PREFACE

This book is intended to be a reference text detailing the composition of the Iowa General Assembly from 1846 through 1980. Considering the history of the General Assembly to be an important facet of the development and heritage of the state of Iowa, the authors began the necessary research to compile the information for this book. This research included poring over disintegrating volumes fortuitously preserved by a nineteenth-century librarian to whom we extend our thanks. Some of the books from which information was gathered are in such a delicate condition that further handling will surely destroy them. If for no other reason than this, we feel that compiling all of this information in one text is a worthwhile undertaking. We, the authors, submit the results of our efforts to an unknown public with the sincere hope that this book will provide practical assistance to some, historical or academic interest to others, and an hour or two of diversion to still others. Regardless of its reception, we believe that the information contained herein should be readily accessible to any interested reader and, more importantly, should be preserved for future generations.

The main sources of information for the book were legislative directories, rule books, journals, and Iowa official registers. For the early years, we relied largely on Benjamin F. Gue's "History of Iowa, Volume III", published in 1903. The information obtained from some of the early legislative records was, however, occasionally more curious than it was useful. For example, the early record-keepers apparently considered that recording the weights and military regiments of legislators was important for posterity, but often neglected to mention the legislators' political affiliations. In addition to this kind of gap in the various sources of information available, we sometimes discovered that the sources contained conflicting facts about legislators. While we have attempted to cross-check sources in each of these instances in order to be historically accurate, some errors are possible. When dealing with a considerably large volume of names, mistakes in spelling are possible as well. We therefore apologize in advance for possible errors inadvertently made and not detected and welcome notice of any corrections, which can then be incorporated into the book when it is updated.

The facts contained in this text are generally self-explanatory. The chapter detailing the history of legislators according to constituency did, however, present special problems. Originally, we had planned to provide a history of legislative representation in Iowa that would identify certain facts about each legislator elected since 1846, based solely upon each senatorial and corresponding house district. Thus, for example, people from Dubuque County could check their numbered districts and discover the entire history of elected legislative officials from their area. This plan was abandoned for several reasons. First, records from the early years were sometimes incomplete; additionally, they showed that geographical areas comprising early legislative districts were widely divergent from the corresponding areas of more recent years. Second, as a result of constitutional and statutory changes concerning apportionment and districting, the geographical areas established for house and senate districts were not consistently similar. Senate District 1, for instance, did not correspond geographically through the years to either House District 1 or any other particular house district. Our original plan was further frustrated because, during the years when each house district was composed of only one county, each such district was recorded according to its county name and was not given a numerical designation. Finally, the substantial reapportionment and redistricting in recent years made the identification of legislative districts chiefly by geography rather impractical.

After pursuing various alternatives, we decided to compile the history of legislators by constituency in accordance with the electoral system set forth in the Iowa Constitution. Consequently, for this purpose the book is divided into four time periods: 1846-1856; 1858-1906; 1907-1970; 1971-1980. Major constitutional changes concerning the method of apportionment of legislative districts were employed at the beginning of each of these time periods and governed apportionment for each such period. A brief account of legislative reapportionment in Iowa precedes these chapters and should be helpful in explaining its rather complicated history.

We express special thanks to the members of the Senate Rules and Administration Committee for their support, to Senate Legal Counsel Ann VerHeul for her particular help in researching and proofreading, and to the Senate Journal and Indexing personnel for their able assistance in preparing the book.

(32nd General Assembly)
through
1969-70

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS OF 1904

Senators—number—method of apportionment. Sec. 34. The Senate shall be composed of fifty members to be elected from the several senatorial districts, established by law and at the next session of the general assembly held following the taking of the state and national census, they shall be apportioned among the several counties or districts of the state, according to population as shown by the last preceding census.

Representatives—number—apportionment. Sec. 35. The House of Representatives shall consist of not more than one hundred and eight members. The Ratio of representation shall be determined by dividing the whole number of the population of the state as shown by the last preceding state or national census, by the whole number of counties then existing or organized, but each county shall constitute one representative district and be entitled to one representative, but each county having a population in excess of the ratio number, as herein provided of three fifths or more of such ratio number shall be entitled to one additional representative, but said addition shall extend only to the nine counties having the greatest population.

Ratio of representation. Sec. 36. The General Assembly shall, at the first regular session held following the adoption of this amendment, and at each succeeding regular session held next after the taking of such census, fix the ratio of representation, and apportion the additional representatives, as herein before required.

Note: Due to the reapportionment changes in 1963, with the combination of old and new numbered districts, certain numbered senate districts were listed as having more than one senator while others were listed as having none in that year. The latter category included the 20th, 21st, 29th, 38th, 42nd, 48th, and 50th districts. Every geographical area in the state was nevertheless represented.
