Child Support Recovery Unit

Description

The Department of Human Services (DHS) Child Support Recovery Unit (CSRU) is responsible for assisting custodial parents eligible to receive court-ordered child and medical support and for processing support payments. Any custodial parent may ask for assistance from the CSRU at no charge, although there is a fee of $35 that is collected from the obligee after $550 in support has been distributed to the obligee.

Services

The CSRU provides a variety of services for custodial parents, including locating noncustodial parents and their sources of income, establishing paternity, establishing and modifying support orders, and registering other states' orders for enforcement or modification. In FY 2021, the CSRU served 528,715 parents and children on 150,203 cases, processing more than 2.5 million support payments for a total of $321.4 million. The CSRU filed 9,000 affidavits establishing paternity, 4,560 orders establishing paternity and support, and 2,963 modifications of child support orders. The average annual cost to provide services is $396 per case.

The CSRU uses a variety of methods to collect support from noncustodial parents, such as:

- Directing employers to withhold a portion of wages.
- Intercepting federal and State tax refunds.
- Garnishing money from accounts or financial institutions.
- Restricting the issuance of driver's licenses, professional and recreational licenses, motor vehicle registrations, and passports.
- Making referrals to credit agencies.
- Obtaining contempt of court orders against delinquent obligors.

Child support is recovered through 22 field offices, a centralized employer call center, the Collection Services Center, and a central operations unit.
