THE Seventh General Assembly of the State of Iowa, about the first day of February, 1858, passed the following Joint Resolution :

“ Resolved, the Senate concurring, that WM. SMITH, of Linn county, W. T. BARKER, of Dubuque county, and CHARLES BEN DARWIN, of Des Moines county, be and are hereby appointed Commissioners to draft and report to the Judiciary Committee of the two houses a Code of Civil and Criminal procedure ; and also to report such changes as may seem necessary to harmonize existing laws and adapt them to the new constitution ; and said Commissioners to Revise and Codify the General Laws of the State so far as practicable, and report the same in the several parts through the Judiciary Committees to the legislature as speedily as practicable ; and that after the same shall have been enacted as laws by the General Assembly, that said Commissioners shall arrange and index all of the General Laws into one volume, to be published by order of the General Assembly ; said volume to contain all General Laws in force in the State.”

The gentlemen named in the above resolution entered at once upon their appointed labors, but soon becoming better advised of the magnitude of the undertaking, they reported to the Legislature the impossibility of completing the work during the session. It resulted that on the 11th day of March, 1858, the following Act was passed :

“An Act providing for a Revision of the Laws of Iowa, and the preparation of a Code of Civil and Criminal Procedure.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the Commissioners appointed by the Legislature to conform the Laws of the State to the Constitution and perform other duties, are hereby directed to prepare a Code of Civil and Criminal procedure, and Revise and Codify the Laws of the State and have their report ready for publication by the first day of September, 1858.

SEC. 2. Immediately after the filing of their report by said Commissioners, the Secretary of State shall procure to be printed 500 copies of said report, and one month previous to the next session of the General Assembly whether the same be an extra or regular one, shall mail to each member thereof one copy of such printed report and shall retain the residue for the use of the General Assembly.”

To the Eighth Session in January, 1860, this Commission presented a Code of Civil Practice, designed as a substitute for Part Third of the Code of 1851. It became law with a few changes and constitutes that portion of this book known as PART THIRD. The Commission also presented at same session a Code of Criminal Practice, designed to supersede and stand for all of Titles 24 and 25 of the Code of 1851, except the Chapter 187, concerning the government of the Penitentiary, which subject was not included in the new Criminal Code. The act with little change became law, and constitutes the Code of Criminal Practice found herein.

At the same session the Commission also presented a Revision of the Laws, together with the following Report thereon :

The Commission to whom the Seventh General Assembly of the State of Iowa, assigned the duty, among other things, to "Revise and Codify the Laws of the State." herewith tender their report thereon.

There occurred to us in the outset of this branch of the work, a question as to the extent of our duty—namely, whether it intended a mere revision, such as would be met by a compilation and arrangement in proper order of the existing laws, without change, or a codification which would imply not only the former, but also a creation of new law, such as we might deem demanded by our conditions as a people. We concluded that the first, the mere revision, was intended.

And such a revision do we now present. We will give the reasons which led us to this conclusion. 1. We were attendant during the last session when this branch of the work was discussed and expressed in the act defining our duty, and we well remember such to have been the accepted understanding of its intention. 2. This conclusion comports with our view of the actual wants of the State.

To codify the law, is to state in a system, not only the law in force by statute, but also that announced in decisions, as well as that not yet so announced, but remaining thus far the grand fund of common law, out of which new decisions are daily made. Such codification would be very desirable, but is not to be attained without the painful labor of many minds working in concert for many years. This was accomplished, as to part of the law under the inspiration of the great Napoleon, in the Code which bears his name, and which will live when Marengo and Austerlitz are forgotten. The attempt to codify all the law, is being seriously urged in England, and has been actually entered upon in New York by a commission appointed for the term of seven years. The systems called Codes, as of Tennessee, Alabama, Virginia, North Carolina, Iowa, &c., are not codifications, in the sense in which the word is here used, except to a very limited extent. These are revisions of the statute law, with a further announcement of a few provisions of general law which have heretofore been expressed only in decisions. Codification aims to leave no law unexpressed in statute, to the end that the law may be read and known of all men, and the ex post facto result of judge-made law, may thus be averted.

There is a part of the law of every State, which is peculiar to such State. It may exist elsewhere, but has not, for that reason, been adopted—but, on the contrary, has been adopted, because such State, elected to enact it as adapted to its condition. Such is called political, police, or administrative law. There is, also, much other law which is not enacted, but is appropriated, as the occasion arises, from that fountain of municipal justice, which we call the common law, and which has not been by such State expressly enacted. Our Code and its cognates, include only the former kind of law, with a few of the principles which have heretofore been of the other kind.

We think that this State is not ready for a codification of the former kind of law—its resources have not been yet sufficiently developed—its population has not yet become sufficiently compact. The wants met by such a kind of legislation are yet fluctuating, and though rapidly developing, they are yet unfixd.

This assertion might be predicated, a priori, upon a knowledge of the uneven diffusion of our population, and upon its steady and rapid growth, and the assumption is verified by the modifications suggested and made at each session of the General Assembly. We think that as these men, who come biennially from each neighborhood in the State, yet fail in that kind of legislation, to make such laws as remain long acceptable to the whole, we, but three men, without remarkable opportunities of observation, should more signally fail to recommend a system of this kind of law which would be wisely so adapted. The day for such a work will be when Iowa shall have much more fully expressed her legislative will in her statutes, and such statutes will form the basis of such a codification, which should be but their revision. It is true regarding such law as we are speaking of, that it should grow, or to speak less poetically, but more logically, it should be suggested by a well defined existing public want, and be exactly shaped to respond to it. To the codification of the other kind of law, the same objection does not obtain. For it is that kind of law which does not owe its fitness to the accidents of time and place, but rests on relations and rights, which are not qualified by the census, the population or depopulation of a state, or the rise or fall of a sovereignty. The objection to its codification is the enormous labor and time required, and the fact that it is being attempted by older and better qualified States, whose labors or experience may, in the future, be a guide to us, in this comparatively untried field. Such reasons deterred us from embarking in the endeavor of codification.

Codification, in such department of law, to a limited extent, after the manner in which the same was very sparingly attempted in the Code of Iowa, of 1851, we deem not only practicable, but highly desirable. The subject of promissory notes,—bills of exchange,—bailment,—agency,—co-partnership,—insurance,—contracts,—landlord and tenant,—suretyship,—husband and wife,—infants,—guardian and ward,—administration,—guaranty, is such, as without extraordinary labor, might be codified. Such codification would consist in a statement in one statute of that law which is now only to be found scattered through the decisions reported in many thousand volumes. It would dispose of the evil of conflicting decisions—compact the law into portable and cheap and easily obtainable shape, and avert the thousand evils of non-statute law.

But, we have not attempted even this kind of codification, because, had we deemed our powers sufficiently ample, our time has been all occupied, either in imperative private affairs, or in the preparation of the reports presented.

The method of arrangement chosen in this revision, is not the alphabetical one, which might have been chosen, had no method been imposed by the Code of 1851; but that method is so good, and so well understood, that a change would neither be sustained by reason, nor by the approval of the people. The method or classification of the Code has very illustrious prototypes, and among the States there are several Codes which use the same method, as for example, those of Virginia, Alabama, Delaware, etc.

This revision which we offer you, does not need to be enacted, as it is the law as it exists already. We add nothing to the law—subtract nothing therefrom—make no change of word or phrase—merely of the arrangement of the existing law. We simply put into one chapter what we think belongs to one chapter. We indicate what act and section thereof, each section comes from—the book where it was formerly found, and when it was passed and took effect.

The old sections of the Code, and of the subsequent acts, are intended to be indicated by the old numbers, and the whole work is intended to be sectioned from one upwards, after the manner of the Code of 1851. Whether it is all the law depends upon the fidelity of the revision, and any one disputing its rectitude, in any instance, may go for himself in that instance to the sources whence it is drawn, and may also obtain the decision of the courts thereon.

Any revision making changes, even of words, and so needing to be enacted, would also need to be printed, and would take a very long session to get itself enacted by so slow paced a body as a legislature; and so it has occurred, that this kind of revision is a very frequent and popular one. Sometimes such revision has been made purely as a private enterprise, and at other times under the direction of the State, in which latter case, the work of revision has been committed to one or more men, and then approved by a simple order that it be published, or otherwise. Among such revisions are those of Florida, Georgia, California, New Hampshire, 1853,—Connecticut, 1854,—Arkansas, 1858,—Minnesota, 1859,—Michigan, 1857,—Illinois, etc.

If verbal changes are needed in the laws included in this revision, they are not worth the expense which would attend the making of them in the revision. If these are to be made, let them be all stated in one amendatory act, and after its passage, incorporated into the proper place in the revision.

But the truth is, taking the Code of 1851 as a basis of law and classification, it is much more easy and cheap to provide a fair revision, than if nothing had been done by the State towards methodizing its laws. We would recommend that the laws of this session be also incorporated with the revision, as soon as the same shall adjourn, and that such completed revision, containing all the laws of Iowa, shall be ordered to be printed and bound in one volume. * * * * *

During the last days of the Session, Acts were passed providing that Mr. DARWIN revise the General Laws of that Session into the Revision about to be published, and also place under each chapter a synopsis of prior laws upon the subject of such chapter, giving also references to decisions of the Supreme Court, made thereon, and furnishing notes and references to the Code of Civil Practice, from States having similar Codes.

As to the execution of the work, this may be said. The Laws have been carefully compared with the Archives, by Dr. ROBERT I. THOMAS, (the gentleman who has acted as Clerk of the Commission and of the Revisor, and to whom I am indebted for many and varied services;) the endeavor has been to publish them just as they are therein found; no attempt has been made to correct any thing which seemed a mistake, except in a perfectly clear case of mere punctuational or grammatical error. To have done otherwise would have been to make and not merely to publish the law. The references to the decisions of the Supreme Court of this State, are in most cases mere references. Sometimes on a specially important subject the substance of the decision has been given. But they will be generally found mere intimations of the subject of the decision, rather than statements of its substance. More than this could not be done within the limits of the work as predetermined by the law. In this matter I have received great aid from DILLON'S Digest; indeed, nearly all the unpublished decisions found cited herein are taken therefrom. The haste with which the work needed to be done would not have allowed me to give such decisions at all had they not been attainable in that work.

With regard to the decisions illustrating the Civil Code, the substance has been given in all cases, for as the books containing the same are not easily found in Iowa, to have given references would have been of little value. Nor have the selections been confined to the "highest courts." But others of recognized authority have also been given. In this matter I have received great guidance from HOWARD'S and from VOORHIES' New York Codes; also from MONELL, VAN SANTVOORDS, and WHITTAKER, and from STANTON'S Kentucky Code.

The plan of the book, with the method of its chapters and sections, was pointed out by the act before mentioned, and has been followed.

The sections of the New Codes as in the original acts are not given, because it could subserve no valuable purpose, and would in those cases, which cases are numerous, where the old sections of the Code are retained, have cumbered the first line with figures.

It is due to myself to say, that what has been done since the last session of the Legislature, has been done under the pressure of very great and necessary haste, which fact will, I hope, be taken into account by those who may criticise its many imperfections.

CHARLES BEN DARWIN.

TITLE I.

OF THE SOVEREIGNTY AND JURISDICTION OF THE STATE, THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, AND THE STATUTES.

---

CHAPTER 1.

THE SOVEREIGNTY AND JURISDICTION OF THE STATE.

[Code—Chapter 1.]

SECTION 1. (1.) The boundaries of the State of Iowa are defined in the first article of the constitution. Boundaries of the state.

SEC. 2. (2.) The state possesses sovereignty co-extensive with the boundaries referred to in the preceding section, subject to such rights as may at any time exist in the United States, in relation to the public lands, or to any military or naval establishment within the above limits. Sovereignty.

SEC. 3. (3.) The state has concurrent jurisdiction on the waters of any river or lake which forms a common boundary between this and any other state. Its concurrent jurisdiction.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. "An act to define the jurisdiction of the several counties in this territory that front upon the Mississippi river," passed July 24, 1840, took effect July 30, 1840; I. T., 2d sess. extra, chap. 9, p. 9; also, in reprint of 1843, p. 300.

2. "An act in relation to that portion of country which is attached to the several organized counties in this territory for judicial purposes," passed and took effect July 28, 1840; I. T., 2d sess. extra, chap. 22, p. 15; also in reprint of 1843, p. 130.

3. "An act to prevent the exercise of foreign jurisdiction within the limits of the territory of Iowa," passed and took effect July 31, 1840; I. T., 2d sess. extra, chap. 35, p. 48; also reprint of 1843, p. 301.

4. "An act to attach the country ceded to the United States by the Sac and Fox Indians, 1842, to the adjacent counties," passed and took effect June 11, 1845; I. T., 7th sess., chap. 29, p. 50.

5. "An act to authorize the governor of Iowa territory to employ counsel in cases growing out of the disputed boundary between this territory and the state of Missouri," passed and took effect Jan. 17, 1846; I. T., 8th sess., chap. 23, p. 22.

6. "An act concerning the southern boundary of Iowa," passed Jan. 16, 1847, 1st sess., chap. 3, p. 20.

7. "An act to complete the change from a territorial to a state government," passed Feb. 23, took effect March 17, 1847; 1st sess., chap. 78, p. 94.

DECISIONS. The riparian proprietor on the Mississippi owns only to the ordinary water mark. 3 Iowa, 26; see also Sayer et al. v. Lyons City, Dec. term, 1859.

CHAPTER 2.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

[Code—Chapter 2.]

ARTICLE 1.

[SECTIONS (4), (5), and (6), repealed by Sec. 12, and substituted by Article 2.]

SEC. 4. (7.) The persons so appearing to be members shall then proceed to elect such other officers as may be requisite for the time being; and, when so temporarily organized, shall choose a committee of five by ballot, or viva voce, as those present may determine, which committee shall examine and report upon the credentials of the persons claiming to be members.

ganization.

SEC. 5. (8.) When the above committee has reported, those who are reported as holding certificates of election from the proper authority, shall proceed to the permanent organization of their respective houses by the election of officers.

SEC. 6. (9.) No member of the general assembly shall be questioned in any other place for any speech or debate in either house.

Members may administer oaths.

SEC. 7. (10.) Any member is authorized to administer oaths in the house of which he is a member, and while acting on a committee he may administer oaths upon the business of such committee.

(11.) [Repealed by section 17.]

Contempt.

SEC. 8. (12.) Each house of the general assembly has authority to punish as a contempt, by fine and imprisonment, or either of them, the offense of knowingly arresting a member in violation of his privilege; of assaulting or threatening to assault a member, or threatening to do any harm to the person or property of a member, for anything by him said or done in either house as a member thereof; of attempting, by menace or other corrupt means, to control or influence a member in giving his vote, or to prevent his giving it; of disorderly or contemptuous conduct tending to disturb its proceedings; of refusing to attend, or to be sworn, or to be examined, as a witness before either house or a committee when duly summoned; of assaulting or preventing any person going to either house, or its committee by order thereof, knowing the same; of rescuing or attempting to rescue any person arrested by order of either house, knowing such arrest; and of knowingly impeding any officer of either house in the discharge of his duties as such.

Imprisonment.

SEC. 9. (13.) Imprisonment for contempt of either house shall not extend beyond the session at which it is ordered, and shall be in the jail of the county in which the general assembly may then be sitting, or, if there be no jail, then in one of the nearest county jails.

SEC. 10. (14.) Fines and imprisonment for contempt shall be only by virtue of an order of the proper house, entered on its journals, stating the grounds thereof. Imprisonment shall be effected by a warrant under the hand of the presiding officer for the time being of the house ordering it, countersigned by the secretary of the house, running in the name of the state, and directed to the sheriff or jailor of the proper county; and under such warrant the officer of the house, the sheriff and jailor will be authorized to commit and detain the person. Fines shall be collected by virtue of a similar warrant, directed to any proper officer of any county in which the offender has property, and executed in the same manner as executions for fines issued by courts of record, and the proceeds shall be paid into the state treasury.

SEC. 11. (15.) Punishment for contempt, as in this chapter provided, No bar. is no bar to any other proceeding, civil or criminal, for the same act.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act amending Chapter 2, of the Code.

SECTION 12. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That sections four, five and six, of chapter two of the code are hereby repealed. Repeal.

SEC. 13. (2.) The regular sessions of the general assembly shall be biennial, and shall commence on the second Monday in January next ensuing the election of its members, and shall take place at the seat of government unless specially convened at some other place, and the governor may so convene them in times of pestilence or public danger. Sessions.

SEC. 14. (3.) At two o'clock in the afternoon of the day of the sitting of the general assembly, and at the place of the sitting of the houses respectively, the president of the senate shall call the senate to order; and some person claiming to be elected a member of the house of representatives shall call the house to order, and the persons present claiming to be elected to the senate, shall choose a secretary, and those of the house of representatives a clerk for the time being. In case of the absence of the president of the senate at the time of the convening of the general assembly, the senate may be called to order by any person claiming to be elected a member of that body, and a president pro tempore, shall be chosen from their own number, by the persons claiming to be elected senators. Organization pro tem.

SEC. 15. (4.) The secretary and clerk so elected, shall receive and file the certificates of election presented, each for his own house, and make a list of the names of the persons who appear by such certificates to be elected members of the respective houses. Certificates of election.

SEC. 16. (5.) The speaker of the house of representatives shall hold his office until the first day of the meeting of a regular session of the general assembly next after that at which he was elected. All other officers elected by the senate or house of representatives, shall hold their offices only during the session at which they were elected. Term of office.

SEC. 17. (6.) Section eleven of said chapter is hereby repealed.

CHAPTER 3.

THE STATUTES.

[Code—Chapter 3.]

Approval SECTION 19. (16.) When the governor approves a bill he shall set his name thereto with the date of his approval.

Bill returned. SEC. 20. (17.) When a bill, which passes both houses of the general assembly, is returned by the governor without his signature and with his objections thereto, and upon a reconsideration is passed in both houses by a constitutional majority, it shall be authenticated as having become a law by a certificate indorsed thereon or attached thereto in the following form: "This bill, having been returned by the governor with his objections thereto, and having upon reconsideration been passed in both houses of the general assembly by a constitutional majority, has become a law this — day of —;" which certificate shall be signed by the presiding officer of each of the houses.

Bill retained. SEC. 21. (18.) When a bill passes both houses of the general assembly and is not returned by the governor within three days after it is presented to him, and thereby becomes a law, it shall be authenticated by the governor causing that fact to be certified thereon by the secretary of state in the following manner: "This bill, having remained with the governor three days (Sunday excepted,) the general assembly being in session, has become a law this — day of —."

J. C., Secretary of State."

SEC. 22. (19.) The original acts of the general assembly shall be deposited with, and kept by, the secretary of state, and be printed and distributed and copies deposited for sale as the general assembly directs

When the statutes take effect.

SEC. 23. (20.) All acts of a private nature, which do not expressly prescribe the time when they are to take effect, shall take effect on the thirtieth day next after the day on which they are approved by the governor, or otherwise become law in conformity with the constitution.

SEC. 24. (21.) All acts which are to take effect by publication in the newspapers shall be published in at least two papers, (one at least of them at the seat of government if there be one there,) and shall take effect on the twentieth day after the date of the last publication,* and the secretary of state shall make and sign, on the original roll of each of such acts, a certificate stating in what papers it was published, and the date of the last publication in each of them, and such certificate shall be conclusive thereof, and the printing thereof at the foot of the act in the volume of printed laws shall be evidence of its own genuineness.

SEC. 25. (22.) The acts of a public nature and resolutions passed at the regular sessions of the general assembly are required to be printed, bound, and deposited in the office of the secretary of state, by the first day of May following the session, and the secretary shall distribute them to all the organized counties of the state by the first day of June following, and such acts as have not taken effect before by virtue of other provisions of law, shall take effect throughout the state on the fourth† day of July following. And every such act shall be presumed to have taken effect at that time unless the contrary appear as provided in the following two sections.

SEC. 26. (23.) In case the statutes are not in fact distributed to all the organized counties by the first day of July, the secretary of state shall make, sign, and file in his office, a certificate stating on what day they were deposited in the last county, and they shall take effect on the tenth day after the day on which they are so deposited.

SEC. 27. (24.) The said certificate, or a copy thereof under the hand of the secretary and the seal of the state, shall be considered evidence of the fact therein stated, and, immediately after filing it in his office, the secretary shall publish a copy thereof for four weeks successively in six different newspapers, two of them being papers published at the seat of government (if such there be,) which publication shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such a certificate.

SEC. 28. (25.) The acts and resolutions of the special sessions shall be published at such time, and in such manner, as the general assembly direct in conformity with the constitution.

Construction of Statutes.

SEC. 29. (26.) In the construction of the statutes of this state the following rules shall be observed unless such construction would be in-* Cases where the act does not fix the paper nor the time of taking effect.

† See constitution, art. 3d, 26.

- consistent with the manifest intent of the general assembly or repugnant to the context of the statute.
- Repeal. 1. The repeal of a statute does not revive a statute previously repealed; nor does such repeal affect any right which accrued, any duty imposed, any penalty incurred, nor any proceeding commenced, under or by virtue of the statute repealed.
- Words and phrases. 2. ## CHAPTER 4.

REPEAL OF ACTS, REVISED AND CONSOLIDATED.

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 30. (27.) In the citation of the statutes of this state, this statute shall not be reckoned as one of the statutes of the present political year, but it may be designated as the "CODE," adding as may be necessary the title, chapter, or section. The code.

SEC. 31. (28.) All public and general acts passed prior to the present session of the general assembly, and all public and special acts the subjects whereof are revised in this code, or which are repugnant to the provisions thereof, are hereby repealed, subject to the limitations and with the exceptions herein expressed. Repeal.

SEC. 32. (29.) Local acts are not repealed, unless it be herein so expressed, or unless the provisions of this code are repugnant thereto. Local acts.

SEC. 33. (30.) The existing acts continue in force until the provisions of the code take effect upon them or their subjects respectively. Existing acts.

SEC. 34. (31.) This repeal of existing acts shall not affect any act done, any right accruing or which has accrued or been established, nor Existing rights and liabilities.

- any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause, before the time when such repeal takes effect; but the proceedings in such cases shall be conformed to the provisions of this code as far as consistent.
- Same. SEC. 35. (32.) No offense committed and no penalty or forfeiture incurred under any act hereby repealed and before the repeal takes effect, shall be affected by the repeal; except that when a punishment, penalty, or forfeiture is mitigated by the provisions herein contained, such provisions shall be applied to a judgment to be pronounced after the repeal.
- Suits pending. SEC. 36. (33.) No suit or prosecution, pending when this repeal takes effect, for an offense committed, or for the recovery of a penalty or forfeiture incurred, shall be affected by the repeal, but the proceedings may be conformed to the provisions of this code as far as consistent.
- Officers. SEC. 37. (34.) Persons holding office when this repeal takes effect, may continue to hold the same until the provisions of the code are carried into effect in relation to them respectively, except those offices which are herein abolished, and those as to which a different provision is made.
- SEC. 38. (35.) The terms "heretofore" and "hereafter," as used in this code, have relation to the time when this statute takes effect.
- Acts of present session. SEC. 39. (36.) Whenever any act of a general nature, passed at the present session of the general assembly, separate from this code, conflicts with or contravenes any of the provisions thereof, the provisions of the code shall prevail.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to re-enact all such Acts as may have been repealed or suspended in their operation by the new Constitution, but which are not in conflict therewith.

TITLE II.

OF CERTAIN STATE OFFICERS.

---

CHAPTER 5.

GOVERNOR.

[Code—Chap. 5.]

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 41. (37.) The salary of the governor shall be two thousand Salary. sand dollars annually, to be audited like other claims on the state, and paid quarterly,* out of any money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated.

SEC. 42. (38.) The official term of the governor, for the purpose of Term. computing his salary, commences on the first Monday of the December† following his election, except in case of a special election to fill a vacancy in that office, when the term of service commences on the day of his qualification.

SEC. 43. (39.) When during a vacancy in the office of governor, Vacancy. the secretary of state, the president of the senate, or the speaker of the house of representatives, performs the duties of that office, such officer may receive the compensation of governor for such period as he fills the vacancy.*

* All salaries of state officers are made payable monthly; section 18 of chapter 135 of laws of 8th session. See special laws. The salary of the code was one thousand dollars; of the act of the sixth general assembly, chapter 234, fifteen hundred dollars, and of the act of the seventh general assembly, chapter 113, two thousand dollars, as above.

† See section 465, and 8th session, chapter 135, section 2, special laws.

to actions.

SEC. 44. (40.) Whenever the governor receives information of the commencement of any action or proceeding by which the rights, interests, or property of the state are liable to be affected, he may employ counsel to act in conjunction with the counsel of the proper party, to protect the interests of the state, and when any civil action is, or is about to be commenced by any prosecuting attorney in behalf of the state, if, in the opinion of the governor, the case be such as to render it advisable, he may employ additional counsel to assist in the cause.

Expenses.

SEC. 45. (41.) Expenses incurred under the preceding section and in causing the laws to be executed (when not otherwise provided for) and also in recapturing fugitives from justice fleeing from this state, may be allowed by the governor and paid from the contingent fund, or by appropriation made by the general assembly.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to authorize the Governor to appoint Commissioners to examine the accounts of the State Officers and to define the duties of the Governor in certain cases.

[Passed March 23, 1858, took effect April 8, 1858, Laws of the Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 169, page 410.]

SECTION 46. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the governor of said state be and he is hereby authorized and empowered and it is hereby made his duty to appoint a commission of three competent and safe accountants, who shall examine the books, papers, vouchers, moneys, securities and other documents in the hands or possession or under the control of each and every executive officer of said state, to make out a full, complete and specific statement of the transactions of each of said officers with, for, or on behalf of the state, showing the true balance or balances in each and every case, and report the same to the governor with such suggestions as they may deem proper, on or before the first day of June, 1858.

Same.

SEC. 47. (2.) It shall further be the duty of the governor to appoint similar commission and cause the examination provided in the foregoing section to be made in the month of June of each and every year, and at such other times as in his judgment the public interest or safety may demand, who shall be required to report to him as in said foregoing section required.

SEC. 48. (3.) Whenever any commission of investigation appointed as aforesaid shall report to the governor that any officer has been guilty of any defalcation, misapplication or misappropriation of public money, or that his accounts, papers and books are improperly or unsafely kept, and that the state is likely or liable to suffer loss thereby, it shall be the duty of the governor to forthwith suspend such officer from the exercise of all the functions of his office and to require him to deliver all the money, books, papers, documents, vouchers, furniture and other property of the state to the governor, to be disposed of as shall hereinafter be provided.

Consequences.

SEC. 49. (4.) From and after the date of the suspension of any officer under the provisions of this act, it shall be unlawful for such officer to exercise or attempt to exercise any of the functions of such office until such suspension shall be revoked, and any such exercise or attempt to exercise the rights, duties, or franchises of said office after such suspension, shall be deemed a misdemeanor and shall subject the offender for each and every such offense to the penalty of not more than one year imprisonment in the county jail, and not more than one thousand dollars fine, to be recovered and enforced as provided for by the laws of the state.

SEC. 50. (5.) It shall be unlawful for any officer or person whatever to recognize the authority of any such suspended officer, after the date of such suspension, or to transact any public business with him for and on behalf of the state until such suspension shall be removed, and every person guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, to be recovered as provided by law.

Penalty for doing business with suspended state officer.

SEC. 51. (6.) In every case of suspension it shall be lawful, and it is hereby made the duty of the governor of the state to appoint some suitable person to fill the office ad interim, from which such person has been suspended, and shall before he enters upon the duties of the office, give bond as now required by law, to be approved by the governor, and who when thus appointed and qualified shall have full power and authority to do and perform all the duties and enjoy all the rights and franchises to the said office appertaining and belonging, until the removal of the suspension of his predecessor or the election of a successor.

Appointment ad interim.

SEC. 52. (7.) It shall be the duty of the governor of the state, whenever he shall suspend the functions of any such public officer, to direct the proper legal steps to be taken to indemnify the state from loss by instituting suit upon the official bond of said officer or otherwise as the governor may deem fit.

State indemnity.

SEC. 53. (8.) The commissioners provided for in this act, shall each receive the sum of three dollars per day for each and every day they may be actually employed in the performance of their duties.

Commissioners' compensation.

SEC. 54. (9.) Said commissioners shall have power when in session, to issue subpoenas to call any person or persons before them to testify in reference to any fact connected with their investigation; also to require such persons to produce any papers or books when by the laws of evidence the district court might require by rule to be produced.*

Commissioners' power.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act entitled an Act to amend Chapter 160, of the Acts of the Seventh General Assembly of the State of Iowa.

[Passed April 2nd, 1860, took effect April 11, 1860; Laws of the Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 102.]

SECTION 55. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That nothing in chapter 160 of the acts of the seventh general assembly entitled an act to authorize the governor to appoint commissioners to examine the accounts of the state officers and to define the duties of the governor in certain cases, approved March 23, 1858, shall be so construed as to authorize or compel the governor to appoint the commissioners provided for in said act, unless in his judgment the public service requires it.

SEC. 56. (2.) The commissioners appointed by the governor under the act to which this is amendatory, shall examine the books, accounts and vouchers, work and prices of the state printer and state binder in the same manner as other state officers.

ARTICLE 4.

An Act authorizing the Governor to offer rewards for the arrest and delivery of persons charged with the commission of Capital Crimes.

[Passed April 3, 1860, took effect May 9, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 151.]

Reward for crim-

SECTION 57. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That whenever the governor of this state shall be satisfied, by authentic information, that a capital crime has been committed within the state, and that the person or persons charged with the commission of such crime have escaped from arrest, or remain unarrested, he may, in his discretion, offer a reward not exceeding five hundred dollars, for the arrest and delivery to the proper authorities of the person or persons so charged, and where the governor shall be satisfied that such reward has been earned in compliance with his proclamation offering such reward, he shall give to the person entitled to the same a certificate stating that fact, and the auditor, upon the presentation of such certificate, shall issue his warrant on the treasurer for the amount so certified, which shall be paid as other warrants.

PRIOR LAWS. "An act prescribing the duties of governor," passed February 8, took effect February 17, 1847; 1st session, chapter 32, p. 43.

CHAPTER 6.

SECRETARY.

[Code—Chapter 6.]

ARTICLE I.

Salary.

SECTION 58. (42.) The salary of the secretary of state shall be fifteen hundred dollars annually, to be audited like other claims on the state, and paid quarterly* out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. And he may receive such sum for distributing the laws, and for indexing them when he performs this duty, as may be allowed by the general assembly, and fees allowed by law, but no others.†

Office and duties.

SEC. 59. (43.) He shall keep his office at the seat of government, and perform all duties which at any time may be required of him by law, and he shall have charge of and keep all the acts and resolutions of the territorial legislature, and those which have been or may be passed by the general assembly of the state, the enrolled copy of the constitution of the state, all official bonds of officers approved by the governor, except the bond of such secretary, and all books, records, maps, registers, and other papers, which now are or hereafter may be deposited to be kept in his office.

*See note to section 41.

† This salary was by code, five hundred dollars, and was made fifteen hundred dollars as above, by laws of sixth general assembly, chapter 234, page 393.

SEC. 60. (44.) Commissions required by law to be issued by the governor shall be countersigned by the secretary, who shall register each commission in a book to be kept for that purpose, specifying the name of the officer, the office conferred, the date of the commission, and the tenure of the office. Commissions.

SEC. 61. (45.) The secretary shall procure, at the expense of the state, for each county when organized, a seal for the district court of the same description with that heretofore adopted; and also provide the necessary stationery and fuel for his office, and that for the general assembly during its session, the accounts for which shall be audited like other claims on the state. Court seals. Expenses of office.

SEC. 62. (46.) Immediately after the adjournment of the general assembly he shall furnish the printer authorized to print the statutes with copies of the acts and resolutions passed at the session, prepared with marginal abstracts, and cause them to be printed in a plain manner as a pamphlet. Printing the acts.

SEC. 63. (47.) He shall make his certificate that the acts and resolutions therein contained are truly copied from the original rolls, and cause the certificate to be printed at the end of each volume, which shall be prima facie evidence of their correctness. Certificate.

SEC. 64. (48.) The secretary is required to report to the general assembly at each regular session, (and at such other times as required,) an abstract for each year of the criminal returns received from the clerks of the district court, embracing all the facts contained in such returns. Criminal returns.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act providing for the publication of certain laws in the several Counties of the State.

SECTION (1.) [Obsolete.]

SEC. 65. (2.) At each future session of the general assembly, the secretary of state shall procure from one of the newspapers printed at Des Moines City, in which the general assembly shall order any general law to be printed, so many of such newspapers or printed slips, containing such laws, as shall be sufficient to furnish two such newspapers or slips to each county judge in the state, and it shall also be his duty as soon as possible, within sixty days after the adjournment of each future session, to furnish to each county judge one copy of all general laws not ordered to be printed in the newspapers at Des Moines City. Slips to counties.

SEC. 66. (3.) It shall be the duty of the county judge of each county to cause such of said general laws as he may consider of interest to the people of his county, to be published in two weekly newspapers published in his county, if so many be therein published; and if but one weekly newspaper be published in his county, then in such newspaper: provided, that not more than thirty-five cents per thousand shall in any case be allowed for publishing such laws. Duty of county judge to publish.

SEC. 67. (4.) The accounts for such printing shall be audited and allowed the same as other accounts against the county: provided, that all accounts for such printing shall first be sworn to by some one acquainted with the correctness thereof. Accounts therefor how audited.

* Does county judge in this chapter mean board of supervisors? See chapter 22, article 11.

SEC. 68. (5.) It shall be the duty of the county judge of such county to keep and preserve at least one number of each paper of his county in which any law may be published under the provisions of this act, and whenever he has fifty-two numbers of such paper, he shall cause the same to be bound in a substantial form, and place the same in his office, where it shall remain for future reference; and if such laws shall be published in two weekly newspapers in his county, then fifty-two numbers of each shall be bound in the same volume.

Polk, excepted.

SEC. 69. (6.) Nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to require or authorize the publication in the county of Polk of any such general laws as have been published in two newspapers of that county by order of the general assembly.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. "An act prescribing the general duties of secretary of state," passed Jan. 27, took effect Feb. 4, 1847; 1st sess., chap. 33, p. 30.

2. "An act to authorize the secretary of state to collect and arrange certain papers in his office," passed Jan. 9th, 1849; 2d sess., chap. 35, p. 56.

CHAPTER 7.

AUDITOR.

[Code—Chapter 7.]

SECTION 70. (49.) The salary of the auditor of public accounts shall be fifteen* hundred dollars annually, to be audited like other claims on the state, and paid quarterly † from any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. He shall keep his office at the seat of government, and may receive fees allowed by law, but no others.

Warrants.

9. To have the custody of, and keep, all books, papers, records, documents, vouchers, and all conveyances, leases, mortgages, bonds, and other securities, appertaining to the fiscal affairs and the property of the state, which are not required by law to be kept in some other office ; and to have charge of all property of the state where no other provision is made by law for its custody ;

Books, &c.

10. To furnish to the governor on his requisition, information in writing upon any subject connected with this office ; and to suggest to the governor, or the general assembly, plans for the improvement and management of the public revenue and property ;

Information to governor.

11. To report to the general assembly, at its regular sessions, and at such other times as it may require, a complete statement of the revenue, funds, income, taxable property, and other resources, of the state, and of the property of the state, known to his office, and of the public revenues and expenditures of the state since his last report, up to the first Monday of the November preceding each regular session, with a detailed estimate of the expenditures to be defrayed from the treasury for the ensuing two years, specifying each object of expenditure, and distinguishing between such as are provided for by appropriations, and such as require to be provided for, and showing the probable deficiency of any former appropriations ;

Report to general assembly.

12. To perform all other duties which may from time to time be required of him by law.

Other duties.

SEC. 72. (51.) When the amount due from the state to any person exceeds twenty dollars, the auditor is directed, if requested, to divide the sum into parcels of not less than ten dollars, and to issue warrants for the several sums.

Warrant divided.

SEC. 73. (52.) The auditor may at any time require any person receiving money, securities, or property, or having the management, disbursement, or other disposition, of any property, money, or securities, of the state, of which an account is kept in his office, to render statements thereof or information touching the same in his possession. And any such person refusing or neglecting to render such statement or information shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars, to be recovered by civil action in the name of the state.

Call for information.

SEC. 74. (53.) Every claim against the state shall be presented to the auditor for settlement within two years after the claim accrues, and not thereafter ; and when a claim is so presented, the auditor is authorized to swear and examine the claimant, and any other persons as witnesses, touching the claim, or cause them to answer by affidavit or deposition.

Officers' accounts.

SEC. 75. (54.) If any officer who is accountable to the treasury in respect to any money or property, neglects to render his account to the auditor within the time prescribed by law, or, if no time be so prescribed, then within twenty days after being required so to do by the auditor, the auditor shall state an account against him from the books of the auditor's office, charging ten per cent. damages on the whole sum appearing due, and interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum on the aggregate from the time when the account should have been rendered; all which may be recovered by an action brought on such account stated, or on the official bond of the officer.

Officers failing to pay money.

SEC. 76. (55.) If any such officer fails to pay into the treasury the amount received by him, within the time prescribed by law, or having settled an account with the auditor fails to pay the amount due from himself, the auditor shall charge him with twenty per cent. damages on the amount due, with interest on the aggregate from the time the first sum was payable, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, and the whole may be recovered by an action brought on either such account stated or on the official bond of the officer, and he shall forfeit his commissions.

Defense.

SEC. 77. (56.) The penal provisions in the preceding two sections are subject to any legal defense which the officer may have against the account as stated by the auditor, but judgment for costs shall be rendered against the officer in the action, whatever be its result, unless he rendered an account within the time named in the above two sections.

Oath of officer settling.

SEC. 78. (57.) When a county treasurer, or other collector or receiver of public money, seeks to obtain credit on the books of the auditor's office for payment made to the treasurer, before giving such credit the auditor shall require him to take and subscribe an oath that he has not used or appropriated any of the public money for his private benefit, (further than that which the law allows him,) nor for the benefit of any other person.

Notice to account.

SEC. 79. (58.) In those cases where the auditor is authorized to call upon persons or officers for information or statements, or to render accounts, he may issue his requisition therefor, in writing, to the person or officer called upon, allowing reasonable time, which, being served as a notice in a civil action, by the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the person or officer called upon resides or exercises his office, and returned to the auditor with the service endorsed thereon, shall be evidence of the making the requisition therein expressed.

Office open.

SEC. 80. (59.) All things pertaining to the auditor's office are at all times open to the inspection of the governor, the general assembly, or either house thereof, and to any committee thereof appointed to examine into them.

Expenses.

SEC. 81. (60.) All books, maps, stationery, furniture, fuel, and other necessities for the use of the auditor's office, are to be furnished at the expense of the state.*

TREASURER.

SECTION 82. (61.) The salary of the treasurer of the state shall be fifteen* hundred dollars annually, to be audited like other claims on the state, and paid quarterly† out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. And he may receive fees allowed by law, but no others. Salary.

SEC. 83. (62.) He shall keep his office at the seat of government, and it is his duty to keep an accurate account of the receipts and disbursements at the treasury in books to be kept for that purpose, in which he shall specify the names of the persons from whom money is received, and on what account, and the time thereof. Duties

SEC. 84. (63.) He shall enter the memorandum of warrants issued as certified to him by the auditor, and he shall receive in payment of public dues the warrants issued by the auditor in conformity with law, and redeem such when presented if there be money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and on receiving any such warrant, cause the person presenting it to indorse it, and the treasurer shall write on its face the word "redeemed," and enter in his book containing the auditor's memoranda in the appropriate columns, the name of the person to whom in fact paid, the date of the payment, and the amount of the interest if any. Warrants.

SEC. 85. (64.) When any amount is paid into the treasury the treasurer is required to give the person paying, receipts in duplicate, stating the fund to which the money belongs, one of which may be kept by him, and the other must be delivered to the auditor in order to obtain the proper credit, and the amount shall be charged to the treasurer. Receipts

SEC. 86. (65.) He shall pay no money from the treasury but upon the warrant of the auditor, and shall pay such warrants in the order of their issuance, or if there be no money in the treasury from which such warrant can be paid he shall, upon request of the holder, indorse upon the warrant the date of its presentation, and sign it, from which time the warrant shall bear an interest of eight per cent. per annum until the time limited in the next section. Paying out money.

SEC. 87. (66.) He shall keep a record of the number and amount of the several warrants so presented and indorsed for non-payment, and Record of warrants.

when there are funds in the treasury for their payment to an amount sufficient to render it advisable, he shall give notice thereof, and to what number of warrants the funds will extend, or the numbers of the outstanding warrants which the funds will pay, by three insertions in a newspaper printed at the seat of government; and at the expiration of thirty days from the day of the first insertion the interest on the warrants so notified of being payable shall cease.

Certify warrants canceled.

SEC. 88. (67.) Once in each week he shall certify to the auditor the number, date, amount, and payee, of each auditor's warrant taken up by him, with the date when taken up, and the amount of interest allowed, if any: and on the first Monday of March, June, September and November annually he is directed to account with the auditor and deposit in his office all such warrants received at the treasury, and take the auditor's receipt therefor.

Report to governor.

SEC. 89. (68.) As soon as practicable after the first Monday* of November preceeding the regular session of the general assembly, he shall report to the governor the state of the treasury up to that date, exhibiting the amount received and paid out by the treasurer since his last report, and the balance remaining in the treasury.

Books, &c., subject to inspection.

SEC. 90. (69.) It is his duty to submit his books, accounts, vouchers, and funds, to the inspection of the governor, the general assembly, either house thereof, or any committee of either house appointed for that purpose, when required thereby.

Expenses.

SEC. 91. (70.) The expenses of the treasury are to be audited like other claims on the state, and paid by the state.

CHAPTER 9.

ARTICLE I.

An act to establish a State Land Office, with a register thereof, and to define his duties.

Established.

SECTION 92. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That for the purpose of preserving a proper record of all lands belonging to the state, and of their final disposition, and of transacting business in relation thereto, there shall be a state land office established at the seat of government, with a register thereof, who shall be elected by the people on the first Monday in April next,† and shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

SEC. 93. (2.) The state land office shall be furnished by the secretary of state with a suitable room, and with the necessary furniture and stationery, and a sufficient number of tract books, and other necessary books for records; said tract books to be ruled in a manner similar to those used in the United States land offices, so as to record each tract by its smallest legal subdivision, its section, township, range, and to whom sold, and when price per acre, to whom patented, and when.

Furniture and books.

SEC. 94. (3.) Separate tract books shall be kept for the university lands, the saline lands, the half million acre grant, the sixteenth sections, the swamp lands, and such other lands as the state now owns, or may hereafter own, so that each description of state lands shall be kept separate from all others, and each set of tract books shall be a complete record of all the lands to which they relate.

Separate tract books.

SEC. 95. (4.) The governor of the state, together with the register and receiver of the United States land office in Iowa City, are hereby appointed commissioners to assist in arranging with said register the plan on which the books and records of the state land office shall be kept, so that they may present and preserve an accurate chain of title from the general government to the ultimate purchasers of each smallest legal subdivision of land, and to preserve a permanent record in books, suitably indexed, of all correspondence with the general government, or any of its departments, in relation to state lands, and to preserve, by proper records thereof, copies of the original lists furnished by the state selecting agents, and of all other papers in relation to state lands, which are of permanent interest.

Commissioners to arrange plan.

SEC. 96. (5.) The register of the state land office, immediately after being qualified, as hereinafter provided, shall proceed to take possession of all books, papers, plans, or maps, now in the possession of the superintendent of public instruction, which relate to the selection, or compose a part of the records of any description of state lands, and of the records of patents issued by the state, in the office of the secretary of state; and if any dispute should arise between said register of the state land office and any officer of whom books or other documents are demanded, under the provisions of this section, the governor of this state, and the register and receiver of the land office in Iowa City, as commissioners as aforesaid, shall determine the same, and their decision shall be final.

Duty of register.

Arbitrators.

SEC. 97. (6.) All patents for state lands shall issue from the state land office, and shall be signed by the governor, and recorded by the register, and each patent shall contain therein a marginal certificate of the book and page on which it is recorded, which certificate shall be signed by the register, and all patents shall be delivered to the patentees free of charge.*

Patents

SEC. 98. (7.) No patents for any portion of the state lands now set apart for educational purposes shall issue, except upon the written requisition of the superintendent of public instruction,† which requisition the register of the state land office shall file and record.

Requisition of S. P. I.

SEC. 99. (8.) In like manner no patents or conveyances of Des Moines river improvement lands shall issue, except on the written requisitions of the commissioner thereof;‡ and no patent shall issue for

- Saving clause. clause: "Nothing in this patent shall be construed into a warranty by the state against any claim or claims to said lands arising out of any pre-existing contract in relation to said lands, made or entered into by the state or any of its agents, nor as intended to interfere with any of the rights of any person or company, to any of said lands accruing by virtue of any law of this state, or any contract under the provisions of any of said laws."
- Salary. SEC. 100. (9.) The salary of the register of the state land office shall be $1500 per annum, and he is hereby authorized to employ a
- Clerk. clerk in said office, by the advice and consent of the governor of the State.*
- Business hours. SEC. 101. (10.) The state land office shall be kept open for business during business hours of every day, and shall have the personal attendance of the register; the documents therein shall be subject to inspection, in the presence of the register, by parties having an interest therein, and certified copies thereof, signed by the register, shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the fact to which they relate, in all courts in the State, and they shall be furnished by the register for a reasonable compensation, an account of which shall be kept, and the amount thereof paid quarterly into the treasury.
- Inspection.
- Copies.
- Rules and regulations. SEC. 102. (11.) The governor and the register and receiver of the land office at Iowa City, acting as commissioners as aforesaid, shall have power to make all needful rules and regulations, not inconsistent with this act, for giving to the state land office a proper efficiency and correctness, and for rendering it a public convenience; and for this purpose they shall enter and sign their orders in this respect in a minute book, to be kept in said land office, and the orders so signed by a majority of them, shall be binding on the register.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to authorize the Register of the State land office and Governor to issue patents to the purchasers of Des Moines river improvement lands.

[Passed March 23, 1858, took effect April 7, 1859; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 148, page 289.]

- Register authorized to issue. SECTION 103. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it is hereby made the duty of the register of the State land office to issue patents to the purchasers of Des Moines river improvement lands purchased prior to the ninth day of June, A. D. 1854.
- Governor sign. SEC. 104. (2.) It is made the duty of the register to present said patents to the governor, whose duty it shall be to sign them.
- Patents recorded. SEC. 105. (3.) The register shall record each patent and shall indorse on the same a marginal certificate of the book and page in which the same is recorded.
- Fee for patent. SEC. 106. (4.) The register shall deliver to each person entitled to a patent the same. [The rest of this section is repealed by laws of 8th general assembly, chap. 4, passed Jan. 24, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860. See special laws page 137.]
- Conflicting act repealed. SEC. 107. (5.) So much of chapter one hundred and fifty-three of

ARTICLE 3.

An Act to authorize the Register of the State Land Office to convey the title and issue patents for certain University lands.

[Passed April 2, 1860, took effect May 2, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 121.]

SECTION 108. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it shall be the duty of the register of the state land office to issue a patent to any bona-fide purchaser of any university lands, who may have purchased the same in good faith, before the passage of the joint resolution by the sixth general assembly, approved January 28th, 1857, by which certain sales of university lands were declared null and void, either of the board of trustees or of any person or persons purchasing through them, whenever the register, as aforesaid, shall be satisfied that any such bona-fide purchaser has paid for such land, according to the terms of purchase. Patents for University lands.

CHAPTER 10.

An Act providing for the election of, and defining the duties of Supreme Court Reporter.

SECTION 109. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the supreme court shall appoint a person of known integrity, experience and learning in the law, reporter of the decisions thereof, and said reporter shall hold his office for the term of four years unless sooner removed by the court. Qualifications.

SEC. 110. (2.) Said reporter shall give bond to the state, with at least two sufficient sureties, to be approved by the governor, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, upon condition for the faithful performance of his official duties, and shall further take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, to be filed in the office of secretary of state, that he will perform the duties of his said office with correctness, impartiality and fidelity, and that the volumes of reports printed under his charge shall in every respect comply with this law, and no reporter shall be deemed qualified to act as such until he shall have complied with the provisions of this section. Bond.

SEC. 111. (3.) The judges of the supreme court shall reduce their opinions in every case to writing at the time such case may be decided, but they are instructed to make such opinions as brief as practicable, in the decision of questions already determined by the court in opinions, which they do not modify or overrule. Opinions written.

SEC. 112. (4.) It shall be lawful for the reporter to receive, at the close of each term of the supreme court, the records of all causes decided at such term, with the opinions thereon, and retain the same for such reasonable time as he may require to prepare the report thereof, when they shall be returned and remain in the office of the clerk. Reporter's right to opinions.

SEC. 113. (5.) The reporter shall, as fast as practicable, after the His duty,

- cases are decided, prepare an exact syllabus of each opinion, a short abstract of the facts, involving in the decisions followed by the legal propositions made by counsel in the argument, with the authorities relied on for their support, but not the argument at length. He shall also prepare and arrange suitable indexes and captions, and a table of cases.
- What he shall report. SEC. 114. (6.) It shall be the further duty of the supreme court reporter to attend the several terms of the supreme court, and to report briefly any such cases of practice, and other matters disposed of at the hearing, as the court shall deem of sufficient importance to be reported.
- Volume. SEC. 115. (7.) As often as the reports shall be sufficient to constitute a volume of six hundred pages, exclusive of index and table of cases, it shall be the duty of the reporter to cause the same to be printed and published in a manner and style as neat and substantial as the fourth volume of Iowa Reports, provided that not more than two volumes annually shall be published.
- Price. SEC. 116. (8.) Said reports shall not be sold by the reporter or any other person at a rate higher than four dollars per volume, and if any person shall sell any volume of said reports in violation of the provisions of this act, he shall, on conviction thereof in any district court of this state, pay a fine of two hundred dollars.
- State purchase. SEC. 117. (9.) For the purpose of securing the prompt publication of said reports, the governor is hereby authorized and required to subscribe for and take four hundred and fifty-one copies of each volume, and the state shall pay therefor four dollars per volume.
- Conditions thereof. SEC. 118. (10.) It shall not be lawful for the governor to subscribe for any copies of any volume of said reports until he receives the certificate of the judges of the supreme court that the volume offered is in compliance with the requirements of this law, and the certificate of the secretary of state that four hundred and fifty-one copies of such volume have been delivered to him. Upon receiving such certificate he shall draw his order upon the auditor of state, who shall audit and allow the same upon presentation, and draw his warrant on the treasurer of state for the amount of the same. It shall not be lawful for any person to sell or dispose of any copies of any volume of said reports until the same have been approved by the judges of the supreme court as hereinbefore provided.
- Exchange thereof. SEC. 119. (11.) The secretary of state is hereby authorized to exchange one hundred copies of each volume of said reports for such other books on law and equity as the supreme court may select, and the books obtained by such exchange shall be deposited in the state library, and remain the property of the state.
- Reporters' rights. SEC. 120. (12.) The reporter shall be entitled to receive the copyright of his reports, but the supreme court shall have the power to order the publication of an addition of any volume when, in the opinion of the court, such publication is necessary and practicable, and if the reporter refuses to publish in accordance with such order, the court shall have power to declare the copy-right forfeited to the state.
- His expenses. SEC. 121. (13.) The actual and necessary expenses incurred by the reporter in attending the sessions of the supreme court at Davenport shall be paid out of the state treasury, vouchers to be under oath.
- Unpublished decisions. SEC. 122. (14.) It is hereby made the duty of the present reporter, Thomas F. Withrow, to prepare and publish reports of all cases decided by the supreme court that may remain unpublished after the eighth volume of Iowa Reports shall be issued by W. Penn Clarke.
- SEC. (15.) All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this law are hereby repealed.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. "An act to provide for the appointment of a reporter of the decisions of the supreme court and for other purposes," passed Jan. 25, took effect Jan. 31, 1855; 5th sess. chapter 161, p. 244.

2. Same amended Jan. 24, took effect Feb. 9, 1857; 6th sess., chapter 108, p. 123.

CHAPTER 11.

SEC. 239. (9.) Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to pre- Remonstrance. vent the people of a county who are opposed to a re-location of a county seat remonstrating against it.

CHAPTER 22.

COUNTY JUDGE.

ARTICLE 1.

[Section 103 is superseded by section 15, of the 159th chapter of the laws of the seventh general assembly, which makes county judge electable at the general election of 1859, and every two years thereafter; see section 473.]

SEC. 240. (104.) The county judge is required to keep his office at Office. the county seat, and it is to be kept open for business at all usual times, and he is the keeper of the county seal.

SEC. 241. (105.) The county judge is hereby invested with the Powers. usual powers and jurisdiction of *county commissioners** and of a judge of probate, and with such other powers and jurisdiction as are conferred by this statute; and his official style may be either "county judge" or "judge of" (such a county, naming it).

SEC. 242. [106. Thus modified by sec. 312.]

FIFTH—To keep a book to be known as the "minute book," in which Books. shall be recorded all orders and decisions made by him, except those relating to probate affairs.

SIXTH—To keep also separate books for the probate business.

SEC. 243. (107.) As the judge† issues warrants from time to time, he Warrants. is required to deliver to the treasurer a memorandum of the number, date, amount, and drawee's name, of each.

SEC. 244. (108.) Deeds for the conveyance of lands, and other Deeds, &c. contracts made by the county which are to be formally executed, shall be in the name of the county, executed by the county judge in his official capacity, and acknowledged by him, and have the county seal affixed.‡

SEC. 245. (109.) The county judge can not act as attorney or Not act as attorney.

‡ Probably superseded by art. 11 and 13 hereof.

- counsellor in any business which has or may come before him in his capacity as a county judge.
- Acknowledgments and oaths. SEC. 246. (110.) He has authority to administer oaths and take the acknowledgment of instruments, whenever the same is required or permitted by law, and in the performance of such acts the county seal shall be his seal of office.
- Vacancy or interest. SEC. 247. (111.) In case of a vacancy in the office of county judge, and in case of the absence, inability, or interest, of that officer, the prosecuting* attorney of the county shall supply his place; and when a party in direct interest makes his affidavit to the fact of the interest of the judge, it will be his duty to vacate his seat for the time being, and to cause the prosecuting attorney to be notified to attend, and the judge's refusal so to do will be good cause for an appeal, which may be taken either before the matter is heard, or after. When for the same causes the prosecuting attorney can not act, the county clerk shall fill the place of the judge, and the affidavit must apply to both judge and attorney. When, for any of the above causes, the judge, or the attorney in his proper order, does not act, the record of the proceeding must shew the fact and the cause.
- Field notes. SEC. 248. (112.) The judge† is required to procure for his county (where it has not been done) a copy of the original field notes of the original survey of his county by the United States, and cause a map of the county to be constructed in accordance therewith on a scale of not less than one inch to a mile, and laid off into congressional townships and sections, to be kept open in the office of the judge, and the field notes to be deposited in the same.
- Plat- of town- ship. SEC. 249. (113.) The said judge‡ is further required to cause a plat of each congressional township in his county to be constructed on a scale of not less than two and a half inches to a mile, and divided into sections and quarter sections and subdivisions as subsequent occasion may require, and cause the letter S, or some other suitable letter to be marked on each division and subdivision which appears to be sold according to the returns transmitted by the auditor of state as obtained from the land offices.
- Submit ques- tions to people. SEC. 250. (114.) The county judge§ may submit to the people of his county at any regular election or at a special one called for that purpose. the question whether money may be borrowed to aid in the erection of public buildings; whether the county will construct, or aid to construct, any road or bridge which may call for an extraordinary expenditure; whether stock¶ shall be permitted to run at large, or at what time it shall be prohibited; and the question of any other local or police regulation not inconsistent with the laws of the state. [No contract made by any county judge for the use of or for the erection of county buildings, where the expenditure exceeds two thousand dollars, shall be legal unless it is first submitted to a vote of the people of his county as provided in sections one hundred and thirteen (113) and one hundred and fourteen 114. ¶] And when the warrants of a county are at a depreciated value, he may in like manner submit the question whether a tax of a higher rate than that provided by law shall be levied, and in all cases when an additional tax is laid in pursuance of a vote of the people of any county for the special purpose of repaying borrowed money, or of constructing or aiding to construct any road or bridge, such special tax shall be paid in money and in no other manner.

SEC. 251. (115.) The mode of submitting such questions to the people shall be the following: the whole question, including the sum desired to be raised, or the amount of tax desired to be levied, or the rate per annum, and the whole regulation including the time of its taking effect or having operation, if it be of a nature to be set forth, and the penalty for its violation if there be one, is to be published at least four weeks in some newspaper printed in the county. If there be no such newspaper the publication is to be made by being posted up in at least one of the most public places in each township in the county, and in all such cases in at least five among the most public places in the county including the above, and one of them in all cases at the door of the court house, during at least thirty days prior to the time of taking the vote. All such notices shall name the time when such question will be voted upon, and the form in which the question shall be taken, and a copy of the question submitted shall be posted up at each place of voting during the day of the election. Manner.

SEC. 252. (116.) When a question so submitted involves the borrowing or the expenditure of money, the proposition of the question must be accompanied by a provision to lay a tax for the payment thereof, in addition to the usual taxes, as directed in the following section, and no vote adopting the question proposed will be of effect unless it adopt the tax also. Borrowing and expending money.

SEC. 253. (117.) The rate of the tax shall in no case be more than one per cent. on the county valuation in one year. When the object is to borrow money for the erection of public buildings as above provided, the rate shall be such as to pay the debt in a period not exceeding ten years. When the object is to construct, or to aid in constructing, any road or bridge, the annual rate shall be not less than one mill on a dollar of the valuation, and any of the above taxes becoming delinquent shall draw the same interest with the ordinary taxes. Rate of tax, &c.

SEC. 254. (118.) When it is supposed that the levy of one year will not pay the entire amount, the proposition and the vote must be to continue the proposed rate from year to year, until the amount is paid. Tax.

SEC. 255. (119.) The county judge,* on being satisfied that the above requirements have been substantially complied with and that a majority of the votes cast are in favor of the proposition submitted, shall cause the proposition and the result of the vote to be entered at large in the minute book and a notice of its adoption to be published for the same time and in the same manner as above provided for publishing the preliminary notice; and from the time of entering the result of the vote in relation to borrowing or expending money, and from the completion of the notice of its adoption in the case of a local or police regulation, the vote and the entry thereof on the county records shall have the force and effect of an act of the general assembly. Question adopted.

SEC. 256. (120.) Propositions thus adopted, and local regulations thus established, may be rescinded in like manner and upon like notice by a subsequent vote taken thereon, but neither contracts made under them, nor the taxes appointed for carrying them into effect, can be rescinded. Rescission of vote.

* Board of supervisors, sec. 312.

- When put. SEC. 257. (121.) The judge* shall submit the question of the adoption or rescision of such a measure when petitioned therefor by one fourth of the voters of the county.
- Record evidence. SEC. 258. (122.) The record of the adoption or rescision of any such measure shall be presumptive evidence that all the proceedings necessary to give the vote validity have been regularly conducted.
- Excess of tax. SEC. 259. (123.) In case the amount produced by the rate of tax proposed and levied exceeds the amount sought for the specific object, it shall not therefore be held invalid, but the excess shall go into the ordinary county funds.
- Money appropriated. SEC. 260. (124.) Money so raised for such purposes is specially appropriated and constitutes a fund distinct from all others in the hands of the treasurer, until the obligation assumed is discharged.

As a County Court.

- Always open. SEC. 261. (125.) The county court shall be considered in law as always open, but for the transaction of business requiring notice, the judge shall hold regular sessions on the first Monday of each month except April and August, and on the Tuesday following the first Monday of those months.
- Sessions. SEC. 262. (126.) When the district court is to sit in a county on any of the days appointed in the preceding section for the session of the county court, the latter shall be held on the Monday preceding, and when the county judge is required by law to perform any duty which takes him from his county on one of the appointed days, the session of the county court shall be holden on the following Thursday, or such day as the judge may appoint.
- What heard in session. SEC. 263. (127.) Matters requiring a notice shall be heard in session only, but the judge may continue any business from a session to an intermediate day; and any matter may be heard out of session (the judge assenting) if all parties consent in writing, or if the record shew that they are present and assenting. Other matters than those requiring notice, and orders of an intermediate nature not affecting the merits of matters requiring notice, may be heard and acted upon at any time.
- Books. SEC. 264. (128.) The "minute book," and records of probate business, constitute the records of the county court.
- Powers of court. SEC. 265. (129.) The county court* has authority to provide for the erection and reparation of court houses, jails, and other necessary buildings within and for the use of the county, and such authority in relation to roads, ferries, the poor and cases of bastardy,† as is given in the chapters relating to those subjects, and has such other powers as are or may be given it by law. It shall determine the amount of tax to be levied for county purposes, according to the provisions of law in force at the time, and cause the same to be collected.
- Trials SEC. 266. (130.) All questions in the county court shall be tried by the court, except when it is otherwise provided.
- Appeals. SEC. 267. (131.) An appeal is allowed (except when otherwise expressed) from all decrees and decisions of the county court on the merits of any matter affecting the rights or interests of individuals as distinguished from the public, including an intermediate order involving the merits, and necessarily affecting the decree or decision. The appeal shall be taken within thirty days from the day on which the decision was made, and shall be taken by claiming the appeal and filing in the county office a bond with one or more sureties and a penal sum to be approved by the county judge or clerk, which approval shall be indorsed thereon, and with a condition in substance as follows; that the appellant will prosecute the appeal with effect; that if the appeal be dismissed or the judgment below affirmed, he will comply with the judgment and the orders made by the court below, and that he will pay all costs and sums of money which may be adjudged against him in the court appealed to, and will comply with the orders of that court. But the appeal shall be taken to the next term of the district court in the county if there be ten days between the day when the judgment was rendered by the county court and the day of the sitting of the district court, and the matter shall stand for hearing at that time if required by the appellee, subject to the ordinary rules of practice.

SEC. 268. (132.) Within twenty days from the day of the appeal, and within five days in the case mentioned in the last paragraph of the preceding section, the county clerk is required to file a transcript of the proceedings in the matter in which the appeal is taken, authenticated by the county seal, with the clerk of the district court, who shall enter the same among the causes pending in that court. Transcript.

SEC. 269. (133.) If more than one person be concerned in the matter of the decision from which the appeal is taken, any number of them may take the appeal as above provided; but, if the nature of the case admit of it, the decision may be carried into effect as it regards those who do not join in the appeal bond. Who may appeal.

SEC. 270. (134.) If the party entitled to an appeal fails, without fault on his part, to claim or perfect or prosecute his appeal, he may apply to the district court, which, upon being satisfied of the above matter and that the case requires revision, may authorize an appeal to be taken upon such terms as it deems reasonable and may take such order as may be requisite to give it effect. But no appeal shall be thus allowed without due notice to those adversely interested nor after one year from the act complained of. Failure to appeal, without fault.

SEC. 271. (135.) In all cases in which the county court is empowered to render judgment for a sum of money, or for costs, that court may issue execution against the personal property of the party; but when it is desired to issue execution against real property, or to make the judgment a lien upon it, a transcript of all the proceedings and of the judgment, shall be filed in the office of the district court, and an abstract of the judgment entered on the judgment docket, and from the time it is so filed and entered the judgment shall become as a judgment of the district court, and be a lien on the real property of the party in all respects as a judgment of the district court, and execution may issue from that court as on its own judgments. Executions, filing transcript.

SEC. 272. (136.) Transcripts of the records of, and copies of the papers pertaining to, the county court, may be certified and signed by either the clerk or the judge. Copies.

SEC. 273. (137.) A trial by jury in the county court is not given unless the party desiring it demand a jury, and it can be demanded in those cases only in which such trial is expressly given. When there is a jury it shall consist of six persons and the number of challenges shall be the same as in the court of a justice of the peace; and in the cases of insane persons and apprentices, provided for in the chapters relating to them, if they have no property by which to pay costs when adjudged against them the jurors shall be paid by the county. Jury.

- As judge of probate. SEC. 274. (138.) As the judge of probate, the county judge has jurisdiction of the probate of wills, the administration of the estates of deceased persons, and of the guardianship of minors and insane persons.
- Probate records. SEC. 275. (139.) The probate records shall be kept in books separate from those of the other business of the county court.
- SEC. 276. (140.) It is hereby directed that the business pending in either the probate court or the court of the board of commissioners in any county when this statute takes effect be, in its further progress, conformed to the provisions of this statute as far as practicable; but no proceeding or matter shall become void for want of such conformity if it be conducted legally according to the pre-existing statutes.

(1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That county judges* shall pay into the county treasury all moneys and county warrants received by them from the sale of town lots. or other county property, which they are empowered by law to sell in their counties, within twenty days from the receipt of the same; and upon failure thereof, they shall pay twenty per cent. upon all money so received from the date of its reception. County judges to pay.

ARTICLE 6.

An Act defining what shall constitute a copy of the Field Notes of the Original Survey, as contemplated in Section 112 of the Code.

SECTION 285. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That a copy of the field notes of the original survey, as required in section one hundred and twelve of the code, is hereby construed and understood to mean a copy of the field books of the original survey as returned to the surveyor general's office, and not merely a copy of the descriptive lists returned to the district land offices. Copy.

SEC. 286. (2.) Said copy shall give the dates of the surveys in the order in which they appear in the original field books, and the name of each deputy surveyor as signed to the work he performed, and embrace everything in relation to the lines contained in said field books, only excepting the descriptions of the land which follow the notes of each mile of survey and the general description of the township at the end of each book. Copy to contain.

An Act amending Section 114, of Chapter 15 of the Code, and also to regulate the same.

Amend code.

SECTION 287. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That so much of section one hundred and fourteen of chapter fifteen of the code, as authorizes *county judges** to submit the question whether stock shall be permitted to run at large, the word "stock" shall be construed to mean swine and sheep.

Power to restrain.

SEC. 288. (2.) That in any county that has heretofore decided, or shall hereafter decide by a majority vote, in favor of restraining swine and sheep from running at large, every owner of such stock shall, from and after eight months from the canvass of the vote in said county, retain their swine and sheep from running at large in said county; and in the event of a failure so to do, shall be liable for any damages done by said swine or sheep, to be recovered by action of trespass by the party injured.

Take up.

SEC. 289. (3.) That any person may take possession of any swine or sheep found running at large in said county, after the time specified in section two of this act, and give notice thereof to any constable in said county, who shall have power, and it is hereby made his duty, to sell such swine or sheep at public auction at the highest bidder for cash, upon giving ten days' notice of the time and place of sale, by posting the same in writing in three public places in the township where such swine or sheep were found running at large, the proceeds of which sale, after payment of costs and charges of keeping, shall be paid into the county treasury, to be applied to the use of the county until legal proof be made to the county judge of said county, by the person or persons claiming such property to be his or theirs, whereupon the said judge shall order said amount to be paid out of any money in the hands of the treasurer not otherwise appropriated: provided, that if the owner, or any person for him, shall, on or before the day of such sale, pay the costs and charges thus far made, the constable is hereby required to release said sheep or swine to the person making such application, upon satisfactory proof being made of ownership.

Fees.

SEC. 290. (4.) The fees of the constable under this act shall be the same as upon sale of like property on execution.

ARTICLE 8.

An Act further defining the duties of County Judges.

Transmit the names of county officers.

SECTION 291. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the county judges of the several counties of this state are hereby required to furnish the secretary of state the names by the first day of April, A. D. 1857, of each county judge, clerk of the district court, treasurer and recorder, prosecuting† attorney, sheriff and school fund commissioner,‡ in their counties respectively, designating the office to which each is elected, and the date of the expiration of their said office, and also to report in like manner, and from all county officers hereafter elected or appointed, within ten days after their election and qualification, to said secretary of state.

SEC. 292. (2.) It is hereby made the duty of the secretary of state <sup>Record.</sup> to procure a suitable book, at the expense of the state, in which he shall record the name, the office and term of each officer so reported, as contemplated in the first section of this act.

ARTICLE 9.

An Act in relation to County Funds, and the manner of drawing the same from the County Treasury.

SECTION 293. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That where any money has been or shall hereafter be appropriated by the county court,* for any work of internal improvement in any county, for the erection of any bridge, or the construction of any highway, no part of said appropriation shall be drawn from the county treasury, for the purpose aforesaid, until the work shall have been actually commenced in good faith, and then only in such sums as may be necessary to pay for the work as it progresses, on regularly certified estimates made by the engineer, superintendent or agent having charge of the work. <sup>Appropriations.</sup>

SEC. 294. (2.) No county judge shall make any appropriation of the county funds, nor draw any warrant on the county treasury in favor of any partnership, firm, company, association or incorporation of which the said county judge is an officer, agent or attorney, and any appropriation made, or warrant drawn as aforesaid, and in contravention of the provisions of this act, shall be utterly null and void, and shall not be paid from the county treasury. <sup>Not made if county judge is interested.</sup>

SEC. 295. (3.) All moneys belonging to any county, arising from the sale of any property owned by the county, shall be paid into the county treasury by the person holding the same, and no payment of the same to any other person than the county treasurer shall be of any binding force or effect. <sup>Pay into county treasury.</sup>

SEC. 296. (4.) It shall be the duty of the county judges in making settlements of any moneys received by them, for the sale of any property of the county, to state distinctly the time when any moneys shall have been received by them, and if the same has not been paid into the county treasury by them, in twenty days from the time of receiving the same, in accordance with the first section of the act approved July 15, 1856,† the said county judges shall be charged interest on such moneys, while in their hands, at the rate of twenty per centum per annum. <sup>Judge pay over.</sup>

SEC. 297. (5.) It shall be the duty of the prosecuting ‡ attorneys of each county, to see that this act is strictly enforced, and to prosecute all violation of the same. <sup>Prosecuting attorney must enforce.</sup>

SEC. 298. (7.) Provided, nothing in this act shall be so construed as repealing any part of the act in relation to swamp lands, approved July <sup>Repeal.</sup>

* Perhaps the words italicised in the 1st, 2d, and 4th sections should read "board of supervisors." See sections 312-11, and 330.

ARTICLE 10.

An Act to regulate Public Shows.

Shows prohibited without license.

SECTION 299. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That before any exhibitor or exhibitors of any traveling public show, not already prohibited by law, shall be allowed to exhibit or show any natural or artificial curiosity or exhibition of horsemanship in a circus or otherwise, for any price, gain, or reward, he or they shall apply to the county judge of the county in which he or they intend to show or exhibit, for a permit, and the county judge shall give him or them a permit specifying the time, place or places he or they may be allowed to show or exhibit in the county, on the person or persons thus applying paying into the county treasury the amount said county judge may assess on him or them for the privilege of exhibiting or showing such show, which assessment shall in no case exceed one hundred dollars, nor less than ten, for each and every place at which such show shall be exhibited: provided, it shall not be necessary for any exhibitor or exhibitors as aforesaid to obtain a permit from the county judge to show or exhibit in any incorporated town or city where by the laws or ordinances of such town or city such exhibitor or exhibitors may be required to obtain a permit or license from the municipal authority of such town or city.

Cost of license.

Cities may grant license.

Exhibitions without license, punished.

SEC. 300. (2.) That if any person or persons shall exhibit any public show without first having obtained the permit according to the provisions of this act, he or they shall, for every such offense, pay the sum of one hundred dollars to be recovered in an action of debt at the suit of the county judge or treasurer, or any citizen of the county, before any justice of the peace of the county in which the offense may be committed, and paid into the treasury of said county.

Fees for licenses go to school fund.

SEC. 301. (3.) That all moneys paid into the treasury of any county under the provisions of this act shall be appropriated to the support of common schools in said county, and it shall be the duty of the treasurer of such county annually to apportion the same to the respective school districts in his county, according to the number of youths therein, and to pay the same to the several districts of his county at the time the general school fund is paid and distributed.

ARTICLE 11.

An Act creating a County Board of Supervisors, defining their duties, and the duties of certain County Officers.

[Passed March 22, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 46.]

County body politic.

SECTION 302. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That each organized county shall be a body politic and corporate with such powers and immunities as shall be established by law.

Board of supervisors.

SEC. 303. (2.) In each organized county there shall be a board of supervisors, consisting of one from each civil township, to be elected by the legal voters of each civil township; but if the population of any such township exceeds four thousand inhabitants and is less than eight thousand, there shall be elected one additional supervisor from such township or townships and one additional supervisor for each four thousand inhabitants over and above eight thousand; the number of inhabitants to be determined by the last preceding state or federal census; each of which supervisors shall hold his office for two years except as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 304. (3.) The board of supervisors at their first regular meeting shall be classed and divided by lot, one part holding for one year and the other for two years as hereinafter provided. Classed.

SEC. 305. (4.) The clerk shall prepare the requisite number of ballots marked "1" year and "2" years alternately which when drawn shall entitle the holder to the term corresponding with his ballot and in the absence of any member the clerk shall draw for him but if the number of supervisors be odd, then there shall be a bare majority of ballots marked "1" year. In the event of the organization of new townships, the supervisors therefrom shall hold for one or two years, as may be determined by the number of the next new additional ballot or ballots to be marked as aforesaid: providing further, that in case any township has more than one supervisor there shall be a separate drawing of the ballots by the supervisors from such township but made in accordance with the above provisions. Terms of holding.

SEC. 306. (5.) Duplicate certificates of such drawing, and the result shall be filed, in the office of the county and township clerks, and shall be recorded in the book in which the canvass of votes is recorded. Record of vote.

SEC. 307. (6.) The supervisors of the several townships in the state shall meet on the first Monday of January, June, and the first Monday after the general election in each year at the court-house of their respective counties if there be one, and if none, at the office of the clerk of district court. Time of meeting.

SEC. 308. (7.) A majority of the supervisors of any county shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and all questions which shall arise at meetings shall be determined by the votes of a majority of the supervisors present, except in such cases as is otherwise provided; they shall sit with open doors, and all persons may attend their meetings. The board of supervisors at their first meeting in every year shall organize by choosing one of their number as chairman, who shall preside at all the meetings of the board during the year. Power of majority.

In case of his absence the members present shall choose one of their number as temporary chairman. Every chairman of the board of supervisors shall have power to administer an oath to any person concerning any matter submitted to the board or connected with their powers.

SEC. 309. (8.) Special meetings of the board of supervisors shall be held only when requested by at least a majority of the board, which request shall be in writing, addressed to the clerk of the district court; on the reception of such request the clerk shall immediately give notice in writing to each of the supervisors by causing the same to be delivered to such supervisor or by leaving a copy at his residence at least six days before such meeting, and also immediately cause a notice thereof to be once inserted in the newspapers published in the county not exceeding two (if there be such) at least one week before such meeting, but if there be no paper published in the county a notice of such meeting shall be posted at the front door of the court-house or usual place of meeting; and cause one to be posted in some public place for at least one week; which said notice shall in all cases state the object for which such special meeting is called; at such special meetings no - other business shall be transacted than that designated in the notice aforesaid.

- Oath. SEC. 310. (9.) The members of said board of supervisors shall take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation to wit: I do solemnly swear (or affirm as the case may be) that I will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Iowa, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of the office of supervisor according to the best of my ability.
- Failure of duty. SEC. 311. (10.) If any supervisor shall neglect or refuse to perform any of the duties which are or shall be required of him by law as a member of the board of supervisors, without just cause therefor, he shall for each offense forfeit one hundred dollars.
- Powers. SEC. 312. (11.) The board of supervisors at any lawful meeting shall have the following powers, to wit:
- Chairman. 1. To appoint one of their number chairman, and also a clerk in the absence of the regular officers.
- Adjourn. 2. To adjourn from time to time, as occasion may require.
- Control county property. 3. To make such orders concerning the corporate property of the county as they may deem expedient.
- Settle accounts. 4. To examine and settle all accounts of the receipts and expenditures of the county and to examine, settle and allow all just claims against the county unless otherwise provided by law.
- Buildings. 5. To build and keep in repair the necessary buildings for the use of the county and for the district court.
- Insurance, &c. 6. To cause the county buildings to be insured in the name of the county or otherwise, for the benefit of the county as they shall deem expedient, and in case there is no county building, to provide suitable rooms for county purposes.
- County boundaries. 7. To set off, organize and change the boundaries of townships in their respective counties, designate and give names thereto and define the place of holding the first election.
- Licenses. 8. To grant licenses for keeping ferries in their respective counties as provided by law.
- County seat and buildings. 9. To purchase for the use of the county any real estate necessary for the erection of buildings for county purposes, to remove or designate a new site for any county buildings required to be at the county seat when such removal shall not exceed the limits of the village or city at which the county seat is located.
- Control of county officers. 10. To require any county officer to make a report under oath to them on any subject connected with the duties of his office, and to require any such officer to give such bonds or additional bonds as shall be reasonable or necessary for the faithful performance of their several duties; and any such officer who shall neglect or refuse to make such report or give such bonds within twenty days after being so required, may be removed from office by the board by a vote of a majority of the members elected.
- County agents. 11. To represent their respective counties, and to have the care and management of the property and business of the county in all cases where no other provision shall be made.
- School fund. 12. To manage and control the school fund of their respective counties as shall be provided by law.
- Lay out road. 13. To appoint commissioners to act with similar commissioners duly appointed in any other county or counties, and to authorize them to lay out, alter or discontinue any road extending through their own and one or more other counties, subject to the ratification of the board.

14. To fix the compensation of all services of county and township officers not otherwise provided for by law, and to provide for the payment of the same. Fix compensation.

15. To authorize the taking of a vote of the people for the re-location of the county seat as provided by law. Submit to vote.

16. To alter, vacate or discontinue any state or territorial road within their respective counties. Regulate state roads.

17. To lay out, establish, alter or discontinue any county road heretofore or now laid out or hereafter to be laid through or within their respective counties, as may be provided by law. County roads.

18. To provide for the erection of all bridges which may be necessary and which the public convenience may require within their respective counties and to keep the same in repair. Bridges.

19. To fill by appointments all vacancies that may occur in any of the county offices by death, resignation or removal and such appointee shall hold his office until the next succeeding general election and until his successor shall be elected and qualified. Fill vacancies.

20. To purchase for the use of the county any real estate necessary for the erection of buildings for the support of the poor of such county and for a farm to be used in connection therewith. Support of poor.

21. To have and exercise all the powers in relation to the poor now possessed by the county judge or county court, and to make such rules and regulations (not inconsistent with law) as they may deem necessary for the government of their body, the transaction of business and the preservation of order. Power as to poor.

22. The board of supervisors shall constitute the board of county canvassers. County canvassers.

23. That it shall not be competent for said board of supervisors to order the erection of a court house, jail, poor house or other building or bridge, nor the purchase of real estate for county purposes where the probable cost will exceed two thousand dollars, until a proposition therefor shall have been first submitted to the legal voters of the county, and voted for by a majority of all voting for and against such proposition, at a general election; notice of the same being given for thirty days previously in a newspaper, if one is published in the county, and if none, be published therein then by written notice, posted in a public place in each township in the county. Conditions of same.

SEC. 313. (12.) They shall cause to be made out and published immediately after each regular or special meeting of the board, in at least one newspaper, if there be one in the county, if not by posting on the court house door, a schedule of the receipts and expenditures of the county, which shall state the names of all claimants, the amount claimed, the amount allowed, for what purpose allowed, and a full statement of the amounts of the treasurer's accounts at the last settlement as on his balance sheet, or account-current in making the settlement; no tax shall be levied, no contract for the erection of any public buildings entered into, no settlement with the county officers made, no real estate purchased or sold, no new site designated for any county buildings, no change made in the boundaries of townships, and no money appropriated to aid in the construction of roads and bridges without a majority of the whole board of supervisors voting therefor and consenting thereto. Statement of condition of county.

SEC. 314. (13.) The authority heretofore exercised by the county judge in ordering the publication of advertisements in each county, shall be hereafter exercised by the clerk of the district court, sheriff, and treasurer and recorder respectively, each one acting for his own department. Advertisements.

- ment, and the board of supervisors shall designate the journals in which all other county notices shall be published.
- Equalize assessments. SEC. 315. (14.) It shall be the duty of the board at their June meeting, to equalize the assessment rolls, and levy all uniform taxes to be levied on the taxable property in the county.
- Jury fees. SEC. 316. (15.) All jury fees may be audited and paid as now provided by law, the clerk keeping a true record of the same which shall be laid before the board of supervisors and be made up in their account.
- Compensation. SEC. 317. (16.) Each member of the board of supervisors shall be allowed a compensation of two dollars per day for his services in attending the meetings of the board, and six cents per mile in going to and returning from the place of meeting, to be audited by the board and paid by the county, provided no supervisor shall receive pay for more than fifteen days in one year.
- Books to be kept. SEC. 318. (17.) The board is authorized and required to keep the following books:
- Minute book. 1. A book to be known as the "minute book," in which shall be recorded all orders and decisions made by them, except those relating to roads, and in which, orders for the allowance of money from the county treasury, shall state on what account and to whom the allowance is made, dating the same and numbering them consecutively through each year.
- Road record. 2. A book to be known as the "road record" in which shall be recorded all proceedings and adjudications relating to the establishment, change, or discontinuance of roads.
- Warrant book. 3. A book to be known as the "warrant book," in which shall be entered in the order of their insurance, the number, date, amount, names of the drawee of each warrant drawn on the treasury and the number of the warrants as directed in relation to the minute book.
- Clerk of board and his duties. SEC. 319. (18.) The clerk of the district court or in his absence his deputy, shall be the clerk of the board of supervisors, and it shall be his duty,
1. To record all the proceedings of the board in proper books provided for that purpose.
  2. To make full entries of all their resolutions and decisions on all questions concerning the raising of money and for the allowance of money from the county treasury.
  3. To record the vote of each supervisor on any question submitted to the board if required by any member present.
  4. To sign all orders issued by the board for the payment of money and to record in a book provided for the purpose, the reports of the county treasurer, of the receipts and disbursements of the county.
  5. To preserve and file all accounts acted upon by the board with their action thereon, and he shall perform such special duties as are or may be required of him by law.
- What each account must show. SEC. 320. (19.) It shall be the duty of the clerk to designate upon every account on which any sum shall be audited and allowed by the board, the amount so audited and allowed and the charges for which the same was allowed, and he shall also deliver to any person who may demand it, a certified copy of any record in his office, or any account therein, on receiving from such person a fee of five cents for every folio of one hundred words contained in such certified copy.
- Issuance of county orders. SEC. 321. (20.) The clerk shall not sign or issue any county order except upon the recorded vote or resolution of the board of supervisors authorizing the same, except for jury fees, and every such order shall be numbered, and date, amount, and number of the same and the name of the person to whom issued shall be entered in a book to be kept by him in his office for the purpose.

SEC. 322. (21.) Whenever the clerk of the board of supervisors of any county shall receive from the state authorities notice of the apportionment of school moneys to be distributed in the county, he shall file the same in his office and transmit a certified copy thereof to the county treasurer and he shall also lay a certificate copy thereof before the board at their next regular meeting. Duty as to school money.

SEC. 323. (22.) The first election under this act shall be held at the general election of 1860. 1st election.

SEC. 324. (23.) After the taking effect of this act neither the county judge nor county court shall have or exercise any of the powers hereby conferred upon the board of supervisors, but this act shall not effect said judge or court in any county, until the first meeting of said board of supervisors in January, 1861. Power taken from county judge.

SEC. 325. (24.) In all cases where the powers hereby conferred upon said board of supervisors have heretofore been by law exercised by the county judge, county court, or other county officers, the said supervisors shall conduct their proceedings under said powers in the same way and manner as nearly as may be as is now provided by law in such cases for the proceedings of said county judge, county court and county officers, provided they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. Follow the method of the county judge.

SEC. 326. (25.) All acts and parts of acts heretofore enacted, and which are inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed.

ARTICLE 12.

An Act in relation to Roads and Highways.

[Passed April 2, 1860, took effect Jan. 1, 1861; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 127.]

SECTION 327. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the board of supervisors shall have the same power, and perform the same duties in relation to roads and highways in their respective counties, as have been exercised under previous laws by county judges and county courts, subject to such modifications as shall be or have been made at the present session of the legislature. Roads.

SEC. 328. (2.) When duties are to be performed, or acts done, which can not be performed by the board of supervisors without too much delay or inconvenience, such board may confer the power to perform such duties upon the clerk of the district court, and it shall be the duty of such clerk to exercise authority so conferred, and discharge the duties so required. Power conferable on clerk.

SEC. 329. (3.) This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the 1st January 1861.

ARTICLE 13.

An Act conforming existing laws to the change made in the system of County Government and Organization.

SECTION 330. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all laws which may be in force at the time of the taking effect of this act, devolving any jurisdiction or powers on county judges, Transfer of power to supervisors.

which said jurisdiction or powers are conferred on the county board of supervisors by an act of the present general assembly, entitled "an act creating a board of county supervisors, defining their duties, and the duties of certain county officers," shall be held to apply to, and devolve said jurisdiction and powers upon the said county board of supervisors in the same manner and to the same extent as though the words, "county board of supervisors" occurred in said laws instead of the word, "county judge."

SEC. 331. (2.) This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of January, A. D. 1861.

CHAPTER 24.

RECORDER AND TREASURER.

ARTICLE 1.

- Office and duties. SECTION 358. (150.) The recorder shall keep his office at the county seat, and it is his duty to record at length, and as speedily as possible, all instruments in writing which may be delivered to him for record, in the manner directed by law.
- As treasurer. SEC. 359. (151.) The person who is elected recorder shall be treasurer of the county, and hold his office for the same term as that of recorder, and, as treasurer, shall be the collector of taxes, and if he omit to qualify either as recorder or as treasurer, it is a refusal of both offices.
- Duties. SEC. 360. (152.) It is the duty of the treasurer to receive all money payable to the county, and to disburse the same on warrants drawn and signed by the county judge,* and sealed with the county seal, and not otherwise; and to keep a true account of all receipts and disbursements, and hold the same at all times ready for the inspection of the county judge.†
- Warrants. SEC. 361. (153.) When the warrant drawn by the judge‡ on the treasurer is presented for payment, and not paid for want of money, the treasurer shall indorse thereon a note of that fact and the date of presentation, and sign it, and thenceforth it shall draw interest at the rate of six per cent; and when a warrant which draws interest is taken up, the treasurer is required to indorse upon it the date and the amount of interest allowed, and such warrant is to be considered as canceled and shall not be re-issued.
- Same. SEC. 362. (154.) When a person, wishing to make a payment into the treasury, presents a warrant of an amount greater than such payment, the treasurer shall cancel the same and give the holder a certificate of the overplus, upon the presentation of which to the county judge§ he shall file it, and issue a new warrant of that amount, and charge the treasurer therewith, and such certificate is transferable by delivery, and will entitle the holder to the new warrant, which, however, must be issued in the first drawee's name.

§ Sections 318 and 755.

SEC. 363. (155.) The treasurer is directed to keep a book, ruled so as to contain a column for each of the following items in relation to the warrants drawn on him by the judge—the number, date, drawee's name, when paid, to whom, original amount, interest—and on receiving the memoranda of the warrants issued by the judge* to enter the particulars contained in the memoranda, and on payment of the warrants to enter the remaining particulars. Warrant book.

SEC. 364. (156.) The treasurer shall keep a separate account of the several taxes for state, county, school, and road purposes, opening an account between himself and each of those funds, charging himself with the amount of the tax, and crediting himself with the amounts paid over severally and with the amount of delinquent taxes when legally authorized so to do. Accounts to be kept.

SEC. (157.) and (158.) [Superseded by 798.]

SEC. 365. (159.) The warrants returned by the treasurer shall be compared with the warrant book, and the word "canceled" be written over the minute of the proper numbers in the warrant book, and the original warrant be preserved at least two years. Canceling warrants.

SEC. 366. (160.) The treasurer is required to make weekly returns to the county judge† of the number, date, drawee's name, when paid, to whom paid, original amount, and interest, as kept in the book before directed. Weekly returns.

SEC. 367. (161.) A person re-elected to, or holding over, the office of treasurer, shall keep separate accounts for each term of his office. New accounts each term.

SEC. 368. (162.) No person holding the office of judge or clerk of the supreme or district court, county judge, prosecuting‡ attorney, or sheriff, shall hold the office of county recorder, and if any person is elected to both offices his qualification for the one shall be a refusal of the other. Incapacity.

ARTICLE 2.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

[Prosecuting attorney substituted by district attorney; see next act.]

An Act providing for the Election of District Attorneys, prescribing their duties and fixing their compensation.

Elected in 1858.

SECTION 372. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That there shall be elected by the qualified electors of each judicial district, on the second Tuesday in October, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, and every four years thereafter, one district attorney, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and shall be qualified by the governor.

Term of office.

SEC. 373. (2.) The manner of conducting said election, the return and canvass thereof, as also the manner of proceeding in case of contest, shall be the same as may be provided by law in relation to other state officers: provided, that the governor and lieutenant governor shall not for the purposes of this act be deemed state officers.

Conducting election and canvass.

SEC. 374. (3.) ## CHAPTER 27.

CORONER.

- Duties. SECTION 393. (183.) It is the duty of the coroner to perform all the duties of the sheriff, except those of assessor,* when there is no sheriff, and in cases where exception is taken to the sheriff as provided in the next section.
- Service of process. SEC. 394. (184.) In all proceedings in the courts of record, where it appears from the papers that the sheriff is a party, and where in any action commenced or about to be commenced an affidavit is filed with the clerk of the court stating a partiality, prejudice, consanguinity, or interest, on the part of the sheriff, the clerk or court shall direct process to the coroner, whose duty it is to execute it in the same manner as if he were sheriff.
- Clerk appoint. SEC. 395. (185.) When there is no sheriff, deputy sheriff, or coroner, qualified to serve legal process, the clerk of the district court may, by writing under his hand and the seal of the court certifying the above fact, appoint any suitable person specially in each case to execute such process, who shall be sworn but he need not give bond, and his return shall be entitled to the same credit as the sheriff's, when the appointment is attached thereto.
- Inquests. SEC. 396. (186.) The coroner shall hold an inquest upon the dead bodies of such persons only as are supposed to have died by unlawful means. When he has notice of the dead body of a person supposed to have died by unlawful means, found or being in his county, he is required to issue his warrant to a constable of his county requiring him to summon forthwith three lawful men of the county to appear before the coroner at a time and place named in the warrant.
- Warrant. SEC. 397. (187.) The warrant may be in substance as follows:
- STATE OF IOWA, }
County, }
- To any constable of the said county,*
- In the name of the state of Iowa you are hereby required to summon forthwith, three lawful men of your county, to appear before me at (name the place), at (name the day and hour or say forthwith), then and there to hold an inquest upon the dead body of _____, there lying, by what means he died.
- Witness my hand this _____ day of _____ A. D. 18 ____ .
(Signed,) A. B., coroner of _____ county.
- Service. SEC. 398. (188.) The constable shall execute the warrant, and make return thereof at the time and place named.

* Sheriff no longer is assessor. See chapter 35.

SEC. 399. (189.) If any juror fails to appear the coroner shall <sup>Jurors.</sup> cause the proper number to be summoned or returned from the bystanders immediately, and proceed to empanel them and administer the following oath in substance:—

“You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will diligently inquire, and true presentment make, when, how, and by what means the person whose body lies here dead came to his death, according to your knowledge and the evidence given you: So help you God.”

SEC. 400. (190.) The coroner may issue subpoenas within his county <sup>Subpoenas, con-</sup> for witnesses, returnable forthwith, or at such time and place as he shall <sup>tempt.</sup> therein direct, and witnesses shall be allowed the same fees as in cases before a justice of the peace, and the coroner has the same authority to enforce the attendance of witnesses, and to punish them and jurors for contempt in disobeying his process as a justice of the peace has when his process issues in behalf of the state.

SEC. 401. (191.) An oath shall be administered to the witnesses in <sup>Witnesses' oaths.</sup> substance as follows:

“You do solemnly swear that the testimony which you shall give to this inquest, concerning the death of the person here lying dead, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth: So help you God.”

SEC. 402. (192.) The testimony shall be reduced to writing under <sup>Testimony.</sup> the coroner's order, and subscribed by the witnesses.

SEC. 403. (193.) The jurors having inspected the body, heard the <sup>Verdict.</sup> testimony, and made all needful inquiries, shall return to the coroner their inquisition in writing, under their hands in substance as follows, and stating the matters in the following form suggested, as far as found:

County, }

An inquisition holden at _____, in _____ county, on the _____ day of _____ A. D. 18____ before _____ coroner of the said county, upon the body of _____ (or a person unknown) there lying dead, by the jurors whose names are hereto subscribed. The said jurors upon their oaths do say (here state when, how, by what person, means, weapon, or accident, he came to his death, and whether feloniously.)

In testimony whereof the said jurors have hereunto set their hands, the day and year aforesaid;

[which shall be attested by the coroner.]

SEC. 404. (194.) If the inquisition find that a crime has been com- <sup>Same, secret.</sup> mitted on the deceased, and name the person whom the jury believe has committed it, the inquest shall not be made public until after the arrest directed in the next section.

SEC. 405. (195.) If the person charged be present, the coroner may <sup>Arrest.</sup> order his arrest by an officer or any other person present, and shall then make a warrant requiring the officer or other person to take him before a justice of the peace.

SEC. 406. (196.) If the person charged be not present, and the <sup>Warrant.</sup> coroner believes he can be taken, the coroner may issue a warrant to the sheriff and constables of the county, requiring them to arrest the person and take him before a justice of the peace.

SEC. 407. (197.) The warrant of a coroner in the above cases shall <sup>Same.</sup> be of equal authority with that of a justice of the peace, and when the person charged is brought before the justice he shall be dealt with as a person held under a complaint in the usual form.

Same, stand as complaint.	SEC. 408. (198.) The warrant of the coroner shall recite substantially the transactions before him and the verdict of the jury of inquest leading to the arrest, and such warrant shall be a sufficient foundation for the proceeding of the justice instead of a complaint.
Return.	SEC. 409. (199.) The coroner shall then return to the district court the inquisition, the written evidence, and a list of the witnesses who testify material matter.
Burial expense.	SEC. 410. (200.) The coroner shall cause the body of a deceased person which he is called to view, to be delivered to his friends if any there be, but if not he shall cause him to be decently buried, and the expense to be paid from any property found with the body, or, if there be none, from the county treasury by certifying an account of the expenses, which being presented to the county judge ,* shall be allowed by him if deemed reasonable and paid as other claims on the county.
Justice to act as coroner.	SEC. 411. (201.) When there is no coroner, and in case of his absence or inability to act, any justice of the peace of the same county is authorized to perform the duties of coroner in relation to dead bodies, and in such case he may cause the person charged to be brought before himself, by his warrant, and may proceed with him as a justice of the peace.
Surgeon. &c.	SEC. 412. (202.) In the above inquisition by a coroner, when he or the jury deem it requisite, he may summon one or more physicians or surgeons to make a scientific examination, and may allow in such case a reasonable compensation instead of witness fees.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to provide for the election of coroners, and to define their powers and duties, passed April 13, 1833; M. D., 1833, p. 117; repealed Nov. 29, 1836, Wis., 1st sess., No. 5, p. 14.

Total fees not to exceed.

SEC. 432. (3.) The total amount of fees, compensation and income of said clerk for all official services, shall not exceed the sum of two thousand dollars in any one year; and if the fees herein above established shall amount in the aggregate to more than two thousand dollars for any one year, the excess shall be paid into the county treasury, except so much thereof as may be derived from the temporary school fund, that portion of such excess as may be derived from such school fund shall be paid to said fund.

And it is further provided that in case the total amount of fees and compensation received by said clerk in any one year, shall be deemed by said board an inadequate compensation for the services rendered, said board may allow such additional compensation as they may deem just.

What clerk shall furnish at his own expense.

SEC. 433. (4.) The necessary office room, books, stationery, fuel and lights, for said clerk, shall be provided at the expense of the county; but said clerk shall furnish at his own expense all necessary deputies, and all assistance for the prompt and faithful discharge of all his official duties.

He shall be responsible for the acts, default or misconduct of his deputies.

SEC. 434. (5.) This act shall take effect on the first day of January, 1861.

SEC. 435. (6.) All laws and acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER 30.

TOWNSHIPS AND TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

[Code—Chapter 23.]

Townships remain.

SECTION 440. (218.) The townships now defined and established shall remain, subject to alteration as provided in this chapter.

County divided.

SEC. 441. (219.) The county court* of each organized county shall divide the same into townships, as the convenience of the citizens may require, accurately defining the boundaries thereof, and may from time to time make such alterations in the number and boundaries of the townships as it may deem proper, but, when practicable, it is required to conform to the congressional townships.

Record.

SEC. 442. (220.) The description of the boundaries of each township, and of all alterations in them, and of all new townships, shall be recorded in full in the records of the county court, and of the township.

Officers.

SEC. 443. (221.) There shall be in each township three trustees, one clerk, two constables, and two justices of the peace, except that where any township includes an incorporated town either two, three, or four constables and justices, as the trustees may order, may be elected in such township, two at least of whom shall reside in such town.

Trustees.

SEC. 444. (222.) The trustees are empowered to call meetings of the township, in which one of them shall preside; to direct the place of holding elections; to order the notifying of elections, in which they shall be the judges; and to cause any matter to be inserted in the notices of the meetings or elections for action at such meeting.

SEC. 445. (223.) They shall cause the clerk to keep a record of their proceedings.

SEC. 446. (224.) The township trustees are the overseers of the poor and the fence viewers.

* The word court in this chapter when italicised, should read board of supervisors; section 312.

SEC. 447. (225.) Any person elected to a township office and refusing to qualify and serve shall forfeit the sum of five dollars, which may be recovered by action in the name of the county to the use of the school fund in the county, but no person shall be compelled to serve as a township officer two terms in succession. Refusal to serve.

*Clerk.**

SEC. 448. (226.) It is the duty of the township clerk to keep accurate records of the proceedings and orders of the trustees, and to perform such other acts as may be required of him by law. Duty.

SEC. 449. (227.) He is authorized to administer the oath of office to all the township officers, and he shall make a record thereof, and also of all who file certificates of their having taken the oath before any other officer authorized to administer the same. Oaths of office.

SEC. 450. (228.) The clerk, immediately after the election of justices of the peace in his township, shall send a written notice thereof to the county judge, stating the names of the persons elected, and the time of the election, and shall enter the time of the election of each justice in the township record.† Justice's election.

Constables.

SEC. 451. (229.) The constables shall serve all warrants, notices, and other process, lawfully directed to them by the trustees or clerk of the township, or any court, and perform such other duties as are or may be required by law. Duty.

SEC. 452. (230.) Constables are ministerial officers of justices of the peace, and they shall attend upon the district court when notified therefor by the sheriff.

Organization of new Townships.

SEC. 453. (231.) When the county court has formed a new township; it shall call the first township election, to be holden on the day of the annual township elections, and at such place as it may name; other township meetings may be holden as provided hereafter. First election.

SEC. 454. (232.) The court shall issue its warrant for such first election, stating the time and place of the same, the officers to be elected, and any other business which is to be attended to; and no other business shall be done than such as is so named. Warrant for.

SEC. 455. (233.) Such warrant may be directed to any constable of the county, or to any citizen of the same township by name, and shall be served by posting up copies thereof in three of the most public places in the township fifteen days before the day of the meeting; the original warrant shall be returned to the presiding officer of the meeting (to be returned to the clerk when elected) with a return thereon of the manner of service, verified by oath if served by any other than an officer. How notified.

SEC. 456. (234.) The electors when assembled at the time and place appointed, shall, by nomination or by ballot, elect a chairman for Conduct of election.

the time being, and then proceed to elect by ballot three persons having the qualification of voters, as judges of the election, who shall appoint two clerks of the election, and both judges and clerks shall be sworn faithfully to discharge the duties of their respective offices.

Same.

SEC. 457. (235.) The election shall be conducted as other township elections, and the electors shall proceed to elect the officers named in this chapter.

Future meetings.

SEC. 458. (236.) The electors may, at this meeting, determine in what manner the future meetings of the township, other than for elections, shall be called; and such manner may be changed at any subsequent meeting regularly called.

TITLE IV.

ON ELECTIONS, QUALIFICATIONS FOR OFFICE, CONTESTED ELECTIONS, ETC.

CHAPTER 31.

ELECTIONS, OFFICERS AND THEIR TERMS.

[Code—Chapter 24.]

This chapter of code was repealed by the following act :

An Act revising and amending title four of the code, and further providing for elections, filling vacancies in office, resignations, and contesting elections.

SECTION 459. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That there shall be held throughout the state, on the second Tuesday of October in each year an election for all officers required by law to be chosen at such election, to be called the general election, except the years of the presidential election, when the general election shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November. General election established.

SEC. 460. (2.) Special elections are such as are held in pursuance of a special law, and such as are held to supply vacancies in any office, whether the same be filled by the vote of the qualified voters of the state, or any district, county or township, and may be held at such time as may be designated by such special law, or the proper officer duly authorized to order such election. Special election may be held.

SEC. 461. (3.) All vacancies which are about to occur in office by the expiration of the full term thereof, shall be supplied at the general election next preceding the time at which such term will expire. Vacancies filled.

SEC. 462. (4.) The term of office, of all state, district, county and township officers, except supervisors chosen at a general election, shall commence on the first Monday of January next thereafter, except it be otherwise provided by the constitution or the provisions of this act ; and except, also, a person be chosen to fill the vacancy in any public office, in which case his term of office shall commence as soon as he shall qualify for the performance of the duties of the office to which he may be elected ; provided, however, that any person elected to any public office prior to the adoption of the new constitution, may hold his office for the full term prescribed by the laws in force at the time of his election (unless otherwise provided by the constitution or laws of the state), and the term of office of his successor shall expire at the same time as if it had commenced on the first Monday of January next after his election. It shall be the duty of the governor, at least thirty days before any general election, to issue his proclamation designating all the offices to be filled by the vote of all the electors in the state, or by the electors of any judicial district, and to transmit a copy thereof to the sheriff of each county of the state. Terms of office.
Full terms served out.
Proclamation.

- Sheriff's notice of election. SEC. 463. (5.) It shall be the duty of the sheriff to give at least ten days notice thereof, by causing a copy of such proclamation to be published in some newspaper published in the county, if any be published therein, and if not, by posting a copy of the proclamation in not less than five of the most public places in the county.
- Notice of special election. SEC. 464. (6.) Whenever a special election shall be ordered by the governor, he shall issue his proclamation in like manner as provided in regard to general elections designating therein the time at which such special election shall be held; and the sheriff of each county in which such election is to be held, shall give notice thereof as required by the provisions of this act in relation to the general election.
- Election of governor. SEC. 465. (7.) The governor and lieutenant governor shall be chosen at the general election of the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, and every second year thereafter; and shall hold their offices for the term of two years from the second Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be elected and qualified.
- Election of state officers. SEC. 466. (8.) The secretary of state, auditor of state, treasurer of state, attorney general, register of state land office, and the commissioners of the Des Moines river improvement,* shall be chosen at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and every second year thereafter, and shall hold their offices for the term of two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified.
- Election of judges of supreme court. SEC. 467. (9.) Three judges of the supreme court shall be chosen by the qualified voters of the state at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, who after being elected, and before entering upon the discharge of their duties as judges, shall be classified, so that one judge shall go out of office every-two years. And for the purpose of determining such classification, the persons elected judges shall meet, and determine by lot in such manner as they may agree upon, the term each shall hold his office, as required by section three, article five of the constitution. A certificate of such classification, stating the term of office of each of said judges, shall be signed by the persons so chosen as judges, and filed with the secretary of state, and by him recorded. At every second general election after that of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, there shall be chosen by the qualified voters of the state, one supreme court judge, who shall hold his office for the term of six years, and until his successor is elected and qualified.
- Classification of terms. SEC. 468. (10.) Judges of the district court and district attorneys shall be chosen by the vote of the qualified voters of each judicial district at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and every fourth year thereafter, for the term of four years, and until their successors are elected and qualified.
- One judge elected. SEC. 469. (11.) One member of the board of education shall be chosen by the qualified electors of each judicial district at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight; five of whom shall hold their offices for the term of two years; and six of whom shall hold their offices for the term of four years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. At the first session of the board it shall be determined by lot which members shall hold their offices for the term of four years, and which for the term of two years. A certificate of such classification containing the names and term of office of each member of the board shall be signed by the secretary of the board and filed with the secretary of state, and by him recorded, successors to the members of the board of education.

SEC. 470. (12.) Members of the house of representatives shall be chosen by the vote of the qualified voters of the respective representative districts, at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, and every second year thereafter, for the term of two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Election of representatives.

SEC. 471. (13.) Senators in the general assembly to succeed those whose term of office is about to expire, shall be chosen by a vote of the qualified voters of the proper senatorial districts, at the same time that the members of the house of representatives are chosen, and for the term of four years. Election of senators.

SEC. 472. (14.) Clerks of the district court shall be chosen by a vote of the qualified voters, in the several counties at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and every second year thereafter; and shall hold their offices for the term of two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Election of county clerk.

SEC. 473. (15.) County judges, sheriffs, treasurers and recorders, surveyors, drainage commissioners and coroners, shall be chosen by the vote of the qualified voters of the respective counties at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, and every second year thereafter, and shall hold their offices for the term of two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Election of county officers.

SEC. 474. (16.) Two justices of the peace shall be chosen by the qualified voters of each township at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and every second year thereafter, who shall hold their offices for the term of two years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Election of justices of the peace.

SEC. 475. (17.) Three township trustees, a township clerk and two constables, one assessor and a supervisor of roads for each district, shall be chosen by the qualified voters of each township at the general election of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and annually thereafter, and shall hold their offices for the term of one year, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Election of township officers.

SEC. 476. (18.) In case any public office, now required by law to be filled by the vote of the qualified voters of any county or township, shall not be specifically provided for by this act, then an election to such office may be had at the general election next preceding the expiration of the term of office of the incumbent and with the like effect, as if specially provided for in this act. Election of other officers.

SEC. 477. (19.) One or two additional justices of the peace and one or two additional constables may be elected in each township if the trustees so direct, by posting notices of the same in three of the most public places in the township, at least ten days before election. Additional justices.

SEC. 478. (20.) Justices of the peace and constables shall be considered as county officers under the provisions of this act, except they shall be voted for by the voters of their respective townships. Definition of offices.

CHAPTER 32.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

Manner of conducting the General Election and the Canvass of the Votes.

[Code—Chapter 25.]

- Unorganized counties. SEC. 479. (244.) The provisions of this title so far as applicable, and qualified by the provisions of the chapter relating to counties, are applied to unorganized counties.
- Polls. SEC. 480. (245.) At the general elections a poll shall be opened at the place of election in each township of each county.
- Trustees. SEC. 481. (246.) The trustees of each township are the judges of election in the same.
- Vacancy. SEC. 482. (247.) If any one of the trustees does not attend in time, or refuses to be sworn, his place shall be filled by an elector to be appointed by the trustees who do attend; and if none of the trustees attend at the time for opening the polls the electors present shall choose three qualified persons from their number to act as judges of election.
- Clerks. SEC. 483. (248.) There shall be two clerks of the election, one of whom shall be the township clerk, and the other some elector named by him and approved by the judges of election, and if the township clerk does not attend then the two clerks shall be appointed by the judges of election.
- Oath. SEC. 484. (249.) Before opening the polls each of the judges and clerks shall take the following oath: I, A. B., do solemnly swear, that I will impartially and to the best of my knowledge and ability perform the duties of (judge or clerk) of this election, and will studiously endeavor to prevent fraud, deceit, and abuse, in conducting the same.
- Oath. SEC. 485. (250.) The township clerk may administer the oath to each of the other persons, and one of the trustees if he be present (and if not present any one of the judges) may administer it to the clerk, and the oath shall be entered in the poll books, subscribed by the persons taking it, and certified by the officer administering it.
- Polls opened. SEC. 486. (251.) The polls shall be opened at nine o'clock in the forenoon unless vacancies have to be filled as above, in which case they are to be opened as soon thereafter as may be, and they shall be kept open until six o'clock in the afternoon; and if the judges deem it necessary for receiving the ballots of all the electors, they may keep them open until nine o'clock in the evening. Proclamation thereof shall be made at or before the opening of the polls, and half an hour before closing them.
- Preservation of order. SEC. 487. (252.) Any constable of the township who may be designated by the judges of election is directed to attend at the place of the election, and he is authorized and required to preserve order and peace at and about the same; and if no constable be in attendance the judges of the election may appoint one specially by writing, and he shall have all the powers of a regular constable.
- Same. SEC. 488. (253.) If any person conducts in a noisy, riotous, or tumultuous, manner at or about the polls so as to disturb the election, or insults or abuses the judges or clerks of election, the constable may forthwith arrest him and bring him before the judges, and they, by a warrant under their hands, may commit him to the jail of the county for a term not exceeding twenty-four hours; but they shall permit him to vote.

SEC. 489. (254.) The county judge* shall provide for each township in his county and at the expense of the county, for the purpose of elections, one box with lock and key. Boxes.

SEC. 490. (255.) The county clerk shall prepare and furnish to the judges of election in each township in his county two poll books having each of them a sufficient column for the names of the voters, a column for the number, and sufficient blank leaves to contain the entries of the oaths, certificates, and returns. Poll books

SEC. 491. (256.) The ballots shall designate the office for which the persons therein named are voted for. Ballots.

SEC. 492. (257.) In voting, the electors shall deliver their ballots to one of the judges who shall deposit them in the ballot box, but no person is entitled to vote at any other place than in the township in which he resides at the time he offers to vote. Voting.

SEC. 493. (258.) Any person offering to vote may be challenged, as unqualified, by either of the judges or by any person who is an elector in this state, and it is the duty of each of the judges to challenge any person offering to vote whom he knows or suspects not to be duly qualified. Challenge.

SEC. 494. (259.) When any person is so challenged, the judges shall explain to him the qualifications of an elector and may examine him as to his qualifications, and if the person insists that he is qualified and the challenge is not withdrawn, one of the judges shall tender to him the following oath: Same

“You do solemnly swear that you are a citizen of the United States, that you are a resident of — (town or township) in this county, that you are twenty-one years of age as you verily believe, that you have been a resident of this county “sixty days, and of this state six months, next preceding this election, and that you have not voted at this election”—and if he takes such oath his vote shall be received † Oath.

SEC. 495. (260.) The name of each person, when his ballot is received, shall be entered by each of the clerks in the poll book kept by him, so that there may be a double list of voters. Poll books how kept.

SEC. 496. (261.) When the poll is closed the judges shall proceed to canvass and ascertain the result of the election unless they determine to adjourn the canvass to the next day—which they may do, but no longer—and if the canvass be so adjourned, the opening in the lid of the ballot box shall be closed and sealed, the box locked, and the key delivered to one of the judges, and the box and poll books to one of the clerks, to be securely kept until they meet on the next day. Canvass. or adjournment.

The Canvass by the Judges of Election.

SEC. 497. (262.) The canvass shall be public, and shall commence by a comparison of the poll lists from the beginning and a correction of any errors which may be found therein, until they shall be found or made to agree. If two or more ballots are found so folded together as to present the appearance of a single ballot and to convince the judges that they were cast as one they shall not be counted, but they shall have the words “rejected as double” written upon them, be folded together again, and kept as herein directed. Canvass, ballots double.

† This section was changed from “twenty days” to “sixty days” by laws of seventh general assembly, chapter 159, section 21.

Ballots exceeding voters. SEC. 498. (263.) If the ballots for any officer are found to exceed the number of the voters in the poll lists, that fact shall be certified with the number of the excess in the return, and if it be found that the vote of the township where the error occurred would change the result in relation to a county officer if the person elected were deprived of so many votes, then the election shall be set aside as to him and a new election ordered; but if the error occur in relation to a township officer the trustees may order a new election or not, in their discretion. If the error be in relation to a district or state officer the error and the number of the excess are to be certified to the canvassers, and if it be found that the error would affect the result as above a new vote shall be ordered in the county where the error happened and the canvass be suspended until such new vote is taken and returned. When there is a tie vote and such an excess there shall be a new election as above directed.

Ballot to name office. SEC. 499. (264.) If, at any stage of the canvass, a ballot not stating for what office the person therein named is voted for is found in the box when officers of different kinds are to be elected, it is to be rejected.

Ballots containing too many. SEC. 500. (265.) If a ballot be found containing the names of more persons for an office than can be elected to that office and such ballot form an excess above the number of voters, it shall be rejected as to that office (the cause of rejection being endorsed thereon) and disposed of as hereafter directed; and if it does not form such excess, so many of the names first in order, as are required, shall be counted.

Tally lists. SEC. 501. (266.) As a check in counting, each clerk shall keep a tally list.

Return. SEC. 502. (267.) A return in writing shall be made in each poll book setting forth, in words written at length, the whole number of ballots cast for each officer, (except those rejected,) the name of each person voted for, and the number of votes given to each person for each different office, which return shall be certified as correct, signed by the judges, and attested by the clerks. Such return shall be substantially as follows:

CONTESTING ELECTIONS.

Contesting the Election of County Officers.

SEC. 569. (339.) The election of any person declared duly elected By whom. to a county office may be contested by any elector of the county:

1. For mal-conduct, fraud, or corruption, on the part of the judges of Causes, mal con- election in any township, or of any of the boards of canvassers, or on duct. the part of any member of either of those boards;

2. When the incumbent was not eligible to the office at the time of Ineligibility. the election;

3. When the incumbent has been duly convicted of an infamous Conviction. crime before the election, and the judgment has not been reversed, annulled, or set aside, nor the incumbent pardoned, at the time of the election;

4. When the incumbent has given or offered any elector, or any judge, Bribery. clerk, or canvasser of the election, any bribe or reward in money, property, or thing of value, for the purpose of procuring his election;

5. When illegal votes have been received, or legal votes rejected, at Illegal votes the polls, sufficient to change the result;

6. For any error or mistake in any of the boards of canvassers in Errors. counting the votes, or in declaring the result of the election, if the error or mistake would affect the result;

7. For any other cause (though not enumerated above) which shows Other causes that another was the person legally elected.

SEC. 570. (340.) The term "incumbent," in this chapter, means the Incumbent. person whom the canvassers declare elected.

SEC. 571. (341.) The matter contained in the first ground of con- Qualification. test above named shall not be held sufficient to set aside an election, unless the mal-conduct, fraud, or corruption, be such as to procure or cause the incumbent to be declared duly elected when he has not received the highest number of legal votes.

SEC. 572. (342.) When the misconduct complained of is on the Same. part of the judges of election in a township, it shall not be held sufficient to set aside the election, unless the rejection of the vote of that township would change the result as to that office.

SEC. 573. (343.) The court for the trial of contested county elec- Court for trial. tions shall be thus constituted: The county judge shall be the presiding officer, and the contestant and incumbent may each name a person who shall be associated with him. But when the county judge is one of the parties the prosecuting attorney shall preside.

SEC. 574. (344.) The county clerk shall be the clerk of this court, Clerk. and keep all papers, and record the proceedings in the election book, in manner similar to the record of the proceedings of the district court. But when the person who holds the offices of clerk of the district court and of county clerk is one of the parties in either of those capacities, the county judge shall appoint a suitable person as clerk for the time being, whose appointment shall be recorded.

SEC. 575. (345.) The contestant shall file in the county office, Statement. within twenty days after the day when the votes are canvassed, a writ- ten statement of his intention to contest the election, setting forth the name of the contestant and that he is an elector of the county, the name of the incumbent, the office contested, the time of the election, and the particular causes of contest; which statement shall be verified by the affidavit of the contestant, or some other elector of the county, that the causes set forth are true as he verily believes; but before the county judge, or in case of his interest the prosecuting attorney, is required to take jurisdiction of the contest, the contestant must file with such judge or attorney a bond, with security to be approved by said judge or attorney, and conditioned to pay all costs in case the election be confirmed, or the statement be dismissed, or the prosecution fails.

- Same. SEC. 576. (346.) When the reception of illegal, or the rejection of legal votes, is alleged as a cause of contest, the names of the persons who so voted, or whose votes were rejected, with the township where they voted or offered to vote, shall be set forth in the statement.
- Nomination. SEC. 577. (347.) The judge shall then issue a precept containing a copy of the statement, with a requisition that the incumbent file in the county office a written nomination of one of the judges of the election within five days after service of the statement upon him.
- Same. SEC. 578. (348.) If either the contestant or the incumbent fail to nominate, the county judge shall appoint for him.
- Time. SEC. 579. (349.) As soon as the judges are nominated, the county judge shall fix a day for the trial not more than thirty, nor less than twenty, days from the notice contemplated in this section, which notice, addressed to the usual officers of the law, shall contain the names of the contestant and the incumbent, and of the judges named by each party, a brief statement of the causes of contest, and the day set for trial.
- Notice. SEC. 580. (350.) The notice shall be served on the incumbent within five days, and on the two nominated judges within fifteen days, from the day it is issued.
- Testimony. SEC. 581. (351.) The testimony may be oral or by depositions, and depositions may be taken on four days notice in the same manner, and for the same causes, as in an action in the district court.
- Subpœnas. SEC. 582. (352.) The county judge and clerk, as well when interested as otherwise, may issue subpœnas for witnesses under the county seal.
- Postponement. SEC. 583. (353.) The trial shall proceed at the time appointed unless postponed for good cause shown by affidavit, the terms of which postponement are in the discretion of the court.
- Proceedings. SEC. 584. (354.) The proceedings shall be under the control and direction of the court, but shall be assimilated to the proceedings in an action as far as practicable.
- Want of form. SEC. 585. (355.) The statement shall not be dismissed for want of form if the particular causes of contest are alleged with such certainty as will sufficiently advise the incumbent of the real ground of contest. If any part of the causes are held insufficient they may be amended, but the incumbent will be entitled to an adjournment if he state on oath that he has matter of answer to the amended causes for the preparation of which he needs further time. Such adjournment shall be upon such terms as the court deem reasonable; but if all the causes are held insufficient and an amendment is asked, the adjournment shall be granted on motion and at the cost of the contestant.
- Process. SEC. 586. (356.) The style and form of process, the officers by whom served, and the manner of service of process and papers, and the fees of officers and witnesses, shall be the same as in the district court so far as the nature to the case permits. The command to a witness may be, to appear at _____ on _____ to testify in relation to a contested election wherein A. B. is contestant and C. D. is incumbent.

SEC. 587. (357.) The trial of contested county elections shall take place at the county seat, unless adjourned to some other place within the county by the concurrence of the court and the parties, which may be done before the commencement of the trial. Where tried.

SEC. 588. (358.) This court shall have all the powers incident to the district court which may be necessary to the right hearing, conduct, and determination, of the matter; to compel the attendance of witnesses, to swear them and direct their examination, to punish for contempt in its presence, to adjourn from day to day, and to make any order concerning intermediate costs and enforce it by attachment. Powers of court.

SEC. 589. (359.) The court or the county judge may direct the attendance of the sheriff or a constable when deemed necessary. Sheriff.

SEC. 590. (360.) It shall be lawful to require any person called as a witness, who voted at such election, to answer touching his qualifications as a voter; and if he was not a qualified voter in the county where he voted, then to require him to answer for whom he voted; and if the witness answer such questions, no part of his testimony on that trial shall be used against him in any criminal action. Compelling answer.

SEC. 591. (361.) The court shall be governed, in the trial and determination of contested elections, by the usual rules of law and evidence so far as applicable, except as herein otherwise expressed, and may dismiss the proceedings if all the causes of contest are insufficient and not amended, or for want of prosecution. Rules of law to govern.

SEC. 592. (362.) The court shall pronounce judgment whether the incumbent or any other person was duly elected, and the person so declared elected will be entitled to his certificate upon qualification. If the judgment be against the incumbent and he has already received the certificate, the judgment annuls it. If the court find that no person was duly elected, the judgment shall be that the election be set aside. Judgment.

SEC. 593. (363.) The nominated judges shall be entitled to receive two dollars a day for the time occupied by the trial. Pay.

SEC. 594. (364.) The contestant and the incumbent are liable to the officers and witnesses for the costs made by them respectively. But if the election be confirmed, or the statement be dismissed, or the prosecution fail, judgment shall be rendered against the contestant for costs; and if the judgment be against the incumbent, or the election be set aside, it shall be against him for costs also. Costs.

SEC. 595. (365.) The county judge is authorized to issue execution for costs to run against personal property, and a transcript filed and recorded in the office of the district court, as provided in relation to transcripts from the county court, shall have the same effect as there provided, and execution may issue thereon against real or personal estate. Execution.
Transcript.

SEC. 596. (366.) The county judge shall have authority to carry into effect any order of the court, after the adjournment thereof, by attachment or otherwise. Power of judge.

SEC. 597. (367.) If notice of contesting the election of an officer is filed before the certificate of election is delivered to him, it shall be withheld until the determination of the contest. Certificate of election.

Contesting the Election of certain State Officers.

SEC. 598. (368.) The election of any person declared duly elected to the office of secretary, treasurer, or auditor of state, attorney general Secretary, judges, &c.

	register of the state land office, commissioner of the Des Moines improvement, judge of the supreme court, or any other state officer except that of governor or lieutenant governor, or of the office of district judge or district attorney, may be contested by an eligible person, who received votes for the office contested, for any of the causes before contemplated.*
Court.	SEC. 599. (369.) The court for the trial of contested state elections shall consist of three judges, not interested, of either the supreme or district court, or part from the one and part from the other as may be convenient.
Clerk.	SEC. 600. (370.) The secretary of state shall be the clerk of this court. But if the person holding that office is a party to the contest, the clerk of the supreme court at the seat of government, or in case of his absence or inability a person appointed by the auditor or treasurer of state, shall be clerk.
Statement.	SEC. 601. (371.) The statement must be filed with the secretary of state within thirty days from the day when the votes are canvassed. If the secretary be a party it must be filed with the clerk of the supreme court, and if he be absent or unable to act then with the auditor or treasurer, who shall immediately appoint, in writing, some suitable person as clerk and file the statement with him.
Time.	SEC. 602. (372.) The clerk shall, as soon as practicable, ascertain which three of the judges residing nearest the seat of government can attend the trial, fix a time therefor and notify the judges, and issue a notice of the time to the sheriff of the county where the contestant resides who shall serve it upon the contestant within three days after it is received; and the clerk shall issue a precept, containing a copy of the statement and a notice of the time fixed for trial, to the sheriff of the county where the incumbent resides which the sheriff shall serve upon the incumbent within three days after receiving it. The sheriffs in these cases shall return their doings to the officer or person who issues the precept. When convenient, the service of any of the above papers may be made by the clerk of this court. The time for the trial shall not be set beyond the last Monday of January following the election.†
Subpœnas.	SEC. 603. (373.) The secretary of state, the several clerks of the supreme and district courts, and any county judge, under their respective seals of office, and either of the judges of the supreme or district courts under their hands, may issue subpœnas for witnesses to attend this court; and disobedience to such process may be treated as a contempt as if it had been issued by the court itself. This section does not diminish the power of any officer to summon witnesses before him to give his testimony by deposition.
Process.	SEC. 604. (374.) Process and papers may be issued to, and served by, the sheriff of any county.
Trial where.	SEC. 605. (375.) The trial shall take place at the seat of government unless in a case such as provided for in relation to county elections.
Pay.	SEC. 606. (376.) The judges shall be entitled to receive, for their travel and attendance, the highest compensation allowed to members of the general assembly, to be paid from the state treasury.
Transcript and lien.	SEC. 607. (377.) A transcript filed in the office of the clerk of the supreme court, as provided in relation to the district court, shall have

SEC. 609. (379.) The provisions of this chapter in relation to contested county elections are applied to contested state elections when applicable, except as herein otherwise directed.

SEC. 610. (380.) The election of any person declared duly elected By whom. to a seat in the senate or house of representatives of the general assembly may be contested by any qualified voter of the county or district to be represented by such senator or representative.

SEC. 611. (381.) The contestant shall, within thirty days after the Statement. declaration of the canvassers, serve on the incumbent a statement as required in relation to county officers, except the list of illegal votes which shall be served with the notice of taking depositions relative to them, and if no such deposition is taken then twenty days before the day of hearing.

SEC. 612. (382.) The county judge and clerk may issue subpoenas Subpoenas. in the above cases as in those before provided, and when a witness is summoned to give his deposition before the judge or clerk the judge shall have the power to compel his attendance.

SEC. 613. (383.) The previous provisions of this chapter shall be Depositions. applicable to, and govern, similar cases in taking depositions in the cases now contemplated, except that the causes of taking depositions do not apply.

SEC. 614. (384.) A copy of the statement and of the notice for Depositions, &c. taking depositions with the service indorsed, and verified by affidavit if not served by an officer, shall be returned to the officer taking the depositions, and then with the depositions shall be sealed up and transmitted by mail or otherwise to the secretary of state with an indorsement thereon showing the nature of the papers, the names of the contesting parties, and the branch of the general assembly before which the contest is to be tried.

SEC. 615. (385.) The secretary shall deliver the same unopened to Same. the presiding officer of the house in which the contest is to be tried, on or before the second day of the session (regular or special) of the general assembly next after taking the depositions, and the presiding officer shall immediately give notice to his house that such papers are in his possession.

SEC. 616. (386.) Nothing herein contained shall be construed to abridge the right of either branch of the general assembly to grant commissions to take depositions, or to send for and examine any witnesses it may desire to hear on such trial.

Contesting the Election of Governor.

SEC. 617. (387.) The election of any person declared duly elected to the office of governor or lieutenant governor may be contested by an eligible person who received votes for the office contested.*

* 387 of code thus amended by laws of seventh general assembly, chapter 159, section 31, passed March 23, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858.

Notice, &c.	SEC. 618. (388.) The contestant shall, within thirty days after the proclamation of the election, deliver to the presiding officer of each house of the general assembly a notice of his intent to contest and a specification of the grounds of such contest as before directed.
Notice to incumbent.	SEC. 619. (389.) As soon as the presiding officers have received the notice and specifications, they shall make out a notice directed to the incumbent and including a copy of the specifications, which shall be served by the sergeant-at-arms.
Court.	SEC. 620. (390.) The presiding officers shall also immediately make known to their respective houses that such notice and specifications have been received. SEC. 621. (391.) Each house shall forthwith proceed separately to choose seven members of its own body in the following manner: 1. The names of the members of each house, except the presiding officer, written on similar paper tickets shall be placed in a box, the names of the senators in their presence by their secretary, and the names of the representatives in their presence by their secretary; 2. The secretary of the senate in the presence of the senate, and the secretary of the house of representatives in the presence of the house, shall draw from their respective boxes the names of seven members each; 3. As soon as the names are thus drawn the names of the members drawn by each house shall be communicated to the other, and the fourteen names thus drawn shall be entered on the journal of each house.
Authority of committee.	SEC. 622. (392.) The members thus drawn shall constitute a committee to try and determine the contested election, and for that purpose shall hold their meetings publicly at the place where the general assembly is sitting at such time as they may designate; and may adjourn from day to day or to a day certain not more than four days distant, until such trial is determined; shall have power to send for persons and papers and to take all necessary means to procure testimony, extending like privileges to the contestant and the incumbent; and shall report their judgment to both branches of the general assembly, which report shall be entered on the journals of both houses.
Testimony.	SEC. 623. (393.) The testimony shall be confined to the matters contained in the specifications.
Judgment.	SEC. 624. (394.) The judgment of the committee pronounced in the final decision on the election shall be conclusive.
Same.	SEC. 625. (395.) If the decision be that no person was duly elected, the office of governor will be filled in the mode required by the constitution until the general election next preceding the next regular session of the general assembly, at which election there shall be an election holden for governor to fill the vacancy during the remainder of the term of that office.
Previous provisions.	SEC. 626. (396.) The provisions of this chapter in relation to contested county elections are applied to a contested election for governor when applicable, except as herein otherwise directed.
Election of school officer contested.	SEC. 627. (32.) The election of any person declared duly elected a member of the board of education may be contested in the manner provided for contesting the elections of members of the general assembly; and the board of education shall possess the same powers in relation to contested seats in that body, as either branch of the general assembly.*

bond; which appointment must be in writing and be approved by the officer who has the approval of the principal's bond, and shall be revocable by writing under the principal's hand; and both the appointment and the revocation shall be filed and kept in the office of the secretary of state, and county judge, respectively.

SEC. 643. (412.) In the absence or disability of the principal, and in the cases provided for in the chapter relating to vacancies, the deputy shall perform the duties of his principal pertaining to his own office, but when any officer is required to act in conjunction with, or in the place of, another officer his deputy can not supply his place. Duties.

SEC. 644. (413.) The secretary, treasurer, and auditor, of state can neither of them appoint either of the others his deputy; nor can either the clerk of the district court, recorder, or sheriff, of a county appoint either of the others. Disqualification.

SEC. 645. (414.) The deputy recorder shall be deputy treasurer also; and the deputy of the clerk of the district court shall be his deputy as county clerk.

SEC. 646. (415.) The sheriff may appoint such number of deputies as he sees fit.* Sheriff

SEC. 647. (416.) Each deputy shall take the same oath as his principal (reciting the condition of his principal's bond) which shall be indorsed upon and filed with the certificate of his appointment. Oath.

SEC. 648. (417.) When a county officer receiving a salary is compelled by the pressure of the business of his office to employ a deputy, the county court may make a reasonable allowance to such deputy. Allowance.

CHAPTER 41.

ADDITIONAL SECURITY AND THE DISCHARGE OF SURETIES.

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 649. (418.) The officer who has the approval of another officer's bond, when he is of opinion that the public security requires it and upon giving the officer ten days notice to show cause to the contrary, may require such officer to give such additional security as may be deemed requisite within a reasonable time to be prescribed. When required.

SEC. 650. (419.) Such additional security shall be by giving a new bond. How.

SEC. 651. (420.) If such requisition be complied with both the old and new security shall be in force; and if not complied with the office shall become, and be declared, vacant, and the proceeding be certified to the proper officer to be recorded in the election book or township record. Effect.

SEC. 652. (421.) When any of the sureties on the bond of a civil officer conceives himself in danger of suffering by remaining surety and desires to be relieved of his obligation, he may petition the approving Sureties petition - officer above referred to for relief stating the ground of his apprehension.

- Notice. SEC. 653. (422.) The surety shall give the principal at least twenty-four hours notice of the presenting and filing of the petition with a copy of the grounds of his apprehension. At the expiration of twenty-four hours from the notice the approving officer may hear the matter or may postpone the hearing, as the case permits or requires.
- Testimony. SEC. 654. (423.) The testimony of both parties as well as that of witnesses may be heard in proceedings under this chapter.
- Order Effect. SEC. 655. (424.) If, upon the hearing, there appears substantial ground for apprehension the approving officer may order the principal to give a new bond and to supply the place of the petitioning surety within a reasonable time to be prescribed, and on such new bond being given the petitioning surety upon the former bond shall be declared discharged from liability on the same for future acts, which order of discharge shall be entered in the proper election book, but the bond will continue binding upon those who do not petition for relief.
- Failure to give. SEC. 656. (425.) If the new bond is not given as required, the office of the principal shall be declared vacant and the order to that effect entered as directed in the preceding section.
- Justice. SEC. 657. (426.) If the proceeding relate to a justice of the peace and he is removed from office the county judge* shall notify the proper township trustees or clerk of the removal.
- Powers. SEC. 658. (427.) The approving officer herein contemplated shall possess all the powers of a justice of the peace to issue subpoenas in his official name for witnesses, to compel their attendance, and to swear them.
- Consent. SEC. 659. (428.) Where an officer consents to give new security in the above cases it may be taken without farther proceeding and with the same effect as above provided.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act in relation to the Bonds of State Officers.

- Increase of penalty. SEC. 660. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That hereafter, whenever the executive of the state shall deem it advisable or necessary that the bonds of any state officer should be increased, and the security enlarged, or a new bond given, he shall notify said state officer of the fact, the amount of new or additional security to be given, and the time when the same shall be executed, which said new security shall be approved by said executive, and filed as now provided by law.
- Refusal. SEC. 661. (2.) If the officer thus notified, shall neglect or refuse to give such new security as required, said office shall be vacant, and said officer disqualified from acting as such officer, which vacancy shall be filled by appointment by said executive until the succeeding April or August† election, at which election said office shall again be filled, by election by the people.

CHAPTER 42.

VACANCIES AND SPECIAL ELECTIONS

[Code—Chapter 35.]

SECTION 662. (429.) Every civil office shall be vacant upon the happening of either of the following events at any time before the expiration of the term of such office, to wit:

1. The resignation of the incumbent;
2. His death;
3. His removal from office;
4. His refusal or neglect to take the oath of office, and also to give bond (when a bond is necessary) in the time prescribed by law;
5. The decision of a competent tribunal declaring his election or appointment void of his office vacant;
6. His ceasing to be a resident of the state, district, county or township, in which the duties of his office are to be exercised, or for which he may have been elected;
7. A failure to elect at the proper election, there being no provision for the incumbent to continue in office until his successor is elected and qualified nor other provision relating thereto;
8. A forfeiture of office as provided by any law of the state;
9. Conviction of an infamous crime or of any public offense involving the violation of his oath of office.

SEC. 663. (430.) Resignations of public officers may be made as follows:

1. By the governor or lieutenant governor, to the general assembly, if in session; if not, to the secretary of state;
2. By senators and representatives in congress, and by all state officers elected by a vote of the qualified voters of the state at large; the judges of the supreme and district courts, and district attorneys to the governor.
3. By senators and representatives in the general assembly, and members of the board of education, to the presiding officer of their respective bodies, if in session, who shall immediately transmit information of the same to the governor, if not in session to the governor.
4. By the county judge to the clerk, and by all other county officers including justices of the peace and constables to the county judge.
5. By all township officers, to the township clerk.
6. By all officers holding by appointment, to the officer or body by whom they were appointed.*

Sections (431,) (432,) (433,) (434) and (435,) [repealed by section 33 of chapter 159 of seventh session.]

SEC. 664. (436.) Until such election, vacancies, except in the offices of governor and county judge, shall be filled by appointment as follows:

In state offices by the governor;

In county offices by the county judge;†

In township offices by the trustees; but when the offices of the three trustees are vacant the clerk shall appoint.

† Board of supervisors, 312-19.

- Vacation of office. SEC. 665. (437.) When a civil officer who is authorized or required to appoint a deputy vacates, or is about to vacate, his office by resignation or by removal he shall remain responsible for the performance of the duties, and may receive the emoluments, of his office until his successor by election or by appointment has qualified; but he shall not be so responsible beyond the day when the result of an election to fill his office is declared.
- Same. SEC. 666. (438.) In the case contemplated in the preceding section, if the vacancy occurs within thirty days previous to an election day at which it may be filled, no appointment shall be made.
- Appointments SEC. 667. (439.) Appointments under the provisions of this chapter shall be made in writing and made to continue until the next election at which the vacancy can be filled and until a successor is elected and qualified, and be filed with the secretary, or proper township clerk, or in the proper county office, respectively.
- Qualification. SEC. 668. (440.) Persons appointed to office as herein provided shall qualify in the same manner as is required of those elected, the time for which shall be prescribed in their appointment; and the provisions of the chapter relating to qualification for office are extended to them.
- Removal. SEC. 669. (441.) A person appointed as herein contemplated may be removed by the officer appointing; and no person can be appointed who has been removed from office within one year.
- Senators in congress. SEC. 670. (442.) A vacancy in the office of senator in congress shall be filled whenever the general assembly is in session after the vacancy occurs.
[Section (443.) code, repealed by section 34 of chapter 159, laws of seventh general assembly, page 409, passed March 23, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858.]
- Possession of office. SEC. 671. (444.) When a vacancy occurs in a public office (except by the resignation or removal from the territory of his office of an officer who is authorized or required to appoint a deputy) possession shall be taken of the office-room and of the books, papers, and all things pertaining to the office, as follows, to be held until the election or appointment and qualification of a successor:
Of the office of the county judge, by the county clerk;
Of that of the county clerk or treasurer, by the county judge;
Of any of the state officers, by the governor; or in his absence or inability at the time of the occurrence, as follows:
Of the secretary, by the treasurer;
Of the auditor, by the secretary;
Of the treasurer, by the secretary and auditor; who shall make an inventory of the money and warrants therein, sign the same and transmit it to the governor if he be in the state, and the secretary shall take the keys of the safes and desks after depositing the books, papers, money, and warrants therein, and the auditor shall take the key of the office-room.
- Time of filling vacancies. SEC. 672. (35.) Vacancies occurring in township offices, ten days; in county offices, fifteen days; and in all other public elective offices, thirty days prior to the day of a general election; shall be filled at such general election: provided, that should a vacancy occur in the office of representative in congress, senator or representative in the general assembly, member of the board of education, and the body in which the vacancy exists will convene in a general or extra session prior to such election, then it shall be the duty of the governor to order a special election to fill such vacancy, to be held at the earliest practicable time; and ten days notice of such election shall be given.*

Special Elections.

[Passed April 3, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 164.]*

Tax levied.

SECTION 710. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the board of supervisors of each county in this state, shall * Almost none of chapter 37 of the code of 1851 is in force, by virtue of its original enactment, although most of it is by subsequent enactment. Some of it was repealed by act of fourth general assembly, chapter 69.

More of it was repealed, as well as of the last named act, by act of sixth general annually as hereinafter provided, levy the following taxes upon the assessed value of the taxable property in the county :

1. For state revenue one and one-half mills on a dollar, when no rate is directed by the census board, but in no case shall the census board direct a levy to be made exceeding two mills on a dollar.

2. For ordinary county revenue, including the support of the poor, not more than four mills on a dollar, and a poll tax of fifty cents.

3. For support of schools not less than one nor more than two mills on a dollar.

4. For making and repairing bridges, not more than one mill on the dollar, whenever the board of supervisors shall deem it necessary.

SEC. 711. (2.) The following classes of property are not to be taxed, and they may be omitted from the assessments herein required. Exemption
The property of the United States, and that of this state, including the university, agricultural college, and school lands, and including all property leased to the state, during the existence of such lease; the property of a county, township, incorporated town, or school district, when devoted entirely to the public use and not held for pecuniary profit. Public grounds, by whomsoever devoted to the public, including all places for the burial of the dead. Fire engines, and implements used for extinguishing fires, with the grounds used exclusively for their buildings, and for the meetings of the fire companies. All grounds and buildings of literary or scientific institutions, incorporated under the laws of this state, also the grounds and buildings of benevolent, agricultural and religious institutions and societies devoted solely to the appropriate objects of these institutions, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres in extent, and not leased, or otherwise used with a view of pecuniary profit.

1. The books, papers and apparatus belonging to the above institutions, and used solely for the purpose above contemplated, and the like property of students in any such institutions, used for their education.

2. Money and credits belonging exclusively to such institutions, and devoted solely to sustaining them, but not exceeding in amount or income, the sum prescribed by their charter.

-3. Animals not specified in the next section, the wool shorn from sheep, belonging to the person giving the list, his farm produce harvested for one year previous to the listing, private libraries not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, family pictures, libraries of clergymen, kitchen furniture of each family, beds and bedding requisite for each family, one bed and the bedding thereof for each single person not a member of another family, the apparel of every family and person actually used for wearing, and all food provided for each family; but no person from whom a compensation for board or lodging is received, or expected, is to be considered a member of a family within the intent of this clause.

4. The polls or estates, or both of persons, who by reason of age or infirmity may in the judgment of the assessor be unable to contribute to the public revenue, such opinion being subject to reversal by the board of supervisors.

5. Mutual insurance companies, incorporated under the laws of Iowa, and when the principal office of doing business is located in this state.

assembly, chapter 146, and the last named act was largely repealed by act of seventh general assembly, chapter 152, while most of the code and of the act of the fourth general assembly were, either without or with modification, re enacted in the revenue law of the seventh session, chapter 152, which, with many amendments, reappears substantially in the above act.

6. The farming utensils of any person who makes his livelihood by farming, and the tools of any mechanic, not in either case to exceed one hundred dollars in value.

7. Government lands entered or located, or lands purchased from this state, shall not be taxed for the year in which the entry, location or purchase is made.

All else taxable. SEC. 712. (3.) All other property real and personal within the state, is subject to taxation in the manner directed, and this section is intended to embrace lands and lots in towns, including lands bought from the United States and from this state, and whether bought on credit or otherwise. Ferry franchises and toll bridges which for the purposes of this act are considered as real property. Horses, cattle, mules, asses, sheep, swine, and money, whether in possession or on deposit, and including bank bills, money, property or labor due from solvent debtors on contract or on judgment, mortgages and other like securities, and accounts bearing interest, property situated in this state, belonging to any bank, or company incorporated or otherwise, whether incorporated by this or any other state, public stocks or loans, household furniture, including gold and silver plate, musical instruments, watches and jewelry, private libraries for their value exceeding one hundred dollars, carriages, stages, hacks, wagons, carts, drays, sleighs, sleds and every description of vehicle, farming utensils, machines and machinery, and mechanics' tools for their aggregate value over one hundred dollars, boats and vessels of every description wherever registered or licensed, and whether navigating the waters of this state or not, if owned either wholly or in part by persons who are inhabitants of this state, to the amount owned in this state. Annuities but not including pensions from the United States or any state, nor salaries or payments expected for services to be rendered.

Credit means. SEC. 713. (457.) The term "credit" as used in this title includes every claim and demand for money, labor, or other valuable thing, and every annuity or sum of money receivable at stated periods, and all money in property of any kind and secured by deed, mortgage, or otherwise; but pensions from the United States, or any of them, and salaries or payments expected for services to be rendered are not included in the above term.*

Duty of party to list. SEC. 714. (4.) Every inhabitant of this state of full age, and sound mind, shall assist the assessor in listing all property subject to taxation in this state of which he is the owner, or has the control or management in the manner hereinafter directed; the property of a ward is to be listed by his guardian, of a minor by his father if living, if not, then by his mother if living, and if not, then by the persons having the property in charge; of a married woman, by herself or husband; of a beneficiary for whom property is held in trust, by the trustee, and the personal property of a decedent, by the executor; of a body corporate, company, society, or partnership, by its principal accounting officer, agent, or partner. Property under mortgage or lease is to be listed by and taxed to the mortgagor or lessor unless it be listed by the mortgagee or lessee.

Commission merchants. SEC. 715. (5.) Commission merchants and all persons trading and dealing on commission, and assignees authorized to sell, when the owner of the goods does not reside in the county, are for the purposes of taxation, to be deemed the owners of the property in their possession.

* Section (457) of code of 1851 defines credits as used in title 6, which meant the act on revenue, and seems unrepealed, and is as above.

SEC. 716. (6.) Any person required to list property belonging to another, shall list it in the same county in which he would be required to, if it were his own, (except as herein otherwise directed) but he shall list it separately from his own, giving the assessor the name of the person or estate to whom it belongs, but the undivided property of a person deceased belonging to his heirs, may be listed as belonging to his heirs without enumerating them. Where and how to be listed.

SEC. 717. (7.) When a person is doing business in more than one county, the property and credits existing in any one of the counties, shall be listed and taxed in that county, and the credits not existing in or pertaining especially to the business in any one county, shall be listed and taxed in that where the principal place of business may be. Any individual of a partnership is liable for the taxes due from the firm. Where listed and taxed.

SEC. 718. (8.) Insurance companies of every description, existing in other states and operating in this, shall be taxed one per cent. for company purposes, and one per cent. for state purposes, upon the amount of the premiums taken by them during the year previous to the listing in the county where the agent conducts that business; and the agent shall render the list and shall be personally liable for the tax; and if he refuses to render the list or to swear as herein required, the amount may be assessed according to the best knowledge and discretion of the assessor. Insurance companies.

SEC. 719. (9.) All personal property shall be listed, assessed and taxed in the name of the owner thereof, on the first day of January of the then current year, and each owner shall be required to pay taxes thereon; but if the owner resides out of the county, it shall be listed by the agent or person having charge of the same. In whose name.

SEC. 720. (10.) All taxable property shall be taxed each year, and personal property shall be listed and assessed each year; real property shall be listed and valued in the year 1861, and each second year thereafter, and shall be assessed at its true cash value, having regard to its quality, location, natural advantages, the general improvement in the vicinity, and all other elements of its value, and in each year in which real estate is not regularly assessed, it shall be the duty of the assessor to list and value any real property not included in the previous assessment. Real property, when valued.

SEC. 721. (11.) Depreciated bank notes and the stock of corporations and companies, shall be assessed at their cash value; credits shall be listed at such sum as the person listing them believes will be received or can be collected thereon, and annuities at the value which the person listing believes them to be worth in money. Credits, how listed.

SEC. 722. (12.) In making up the amount of money and credits which any person is required to list or have listed and assessed, he will be entitled to deduct from the gross amount all bona fide debts owing by him, but no acknowledgment of indebtedness not founded on actual consideration, and no such acknowledgment made for the purpose of being so deducted, shall be considered a debt within the intent of this section, and so much only of any liability of such person as security for another shall be deducted, as the person making the list believes he is equitably or legally bound to pay, and so much only as he believes he will be compelled to pay on account of the inability of the principal debtor, and if there are other sureties able to contribute, then so much only as he in whose name the list is made will be bound to contribute; but no person will be entitled to any deduction on account of any obligation of any kind given to any insurance company for the premiums of insurance, How to estimate the money and credit.

nor on account of any unpaid subscription to any institution, society' corporation or company.

Who held a merchant.

SEC. 723. (13.) Any person owning or having in his possession or under his control within this state, with authority to sell the same, any personal property purchased either in or out of this state, with a view of its being sold at an advanced price or profit, or which has been consigned to him from any place out of this state, for the purpose of being sold within the same, shall be held to be a merchant for the purposes of this act; such property shall be listed for taxation, and in estimating the value thereof, the merchant shall take the average value of such property in his possession or under his control during the next year previous to the time of assessing, and if he has not been engaged in the business so long, then he shall take the average during such time as he shall have been so engaged, and if he be commencing, he shall take the value of the property at the time of assessment.

Who held manufacturer

SEC. 724. (14.) Any person who purchases, receives or holds personal property of any description for the purpose of adding to the value thereof by any process of manufacturing, refining, purifying, or by the combination of different materials with the view of making gain or profit by so doing, and by selling the same, shall be held to be a manufacturer for the purposes of this act, and he shall list for taxation the average value of such property in his hands, estimated as directed in the preceding section; but the value shall be estimated upon those materials only which enter into the combination or manufacture.

Case of agent.

SEC. 725. (15.) Any person acting as the agent of another, and having in his possession or under his control or management, any money, notes, credits, assets or personal property, belonging to such other person, with a view to investing or loaning or in any other manner using the same for pecuniary profit, shall be required to list the same at the real value, and such agent shall be personally liable for the tax on the same, and if he refuse to render the list or swear to the same, the amount of such money, property, notes or credits may be listed, and valued according to the best knowledge and judgment of the assessor, subject to the provisions of section twenty-five (25) of this act.

Township assessor.

SEC. 726. (16.) There shall be elected at the general election in each year by the qualified voters of each township in this state, one township assessor, who shall hold his office for one year, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

Shall give bond.

SEC. 727. (17.) Each assessor before entering upon the duties of his office, shall give bond with two or more sureties to be approved by the township trustees, or in counties not organized into townships, by the board of supervisors, in the sum of five hundred dollars, payable to said trustees or board of supervisors, conditioned for the faithful and impartial discharge of the duties of his office, which bond shall be filed and preserved by the township clerk or clerk of the county board of supervisors.

In case he fails.

SEC. 728. (18.) If any assessor shall fail to give the bond and surety as required in the preceding section, or shall fail to take the oath of office as required by the constitution, on or before the first Tuesday after the first Monday of January following his election, the office shall be considered vacant, and in all cases of vacancies in such office, the trustees or board of supervisors, as the case may be, shall appoint some suitable person to fill the vacancy, which appointee shall hold said office until the next succeeding election, and until his successor is elected and qualified.

SEC. 729. (19.) Any person elected or appointed an assessor as herein provided, shall take and subscribe on his bond, an oath as required by the constitution of the State of Iowa, and in substance the same as the condition of his bond. His oath.

SEC. 730. (20.) The assessor shall be allowed two dollars for each day he shall have been faithfully employed in discharging the duties of his office, to be paid out of the county treasury. His pay.

SEC. 731. (21.) The several assessors in each county shall meet at the office of the clerk of the county board of supervisors of their county, on the second Monday in January of each year, and classify the several descriptions of property to be assessed for the purpose of equalizing such assessment. Equalization meeting.

SEC. 732. (22.) On or before the second Monday of January in each year, the board of supervisors shall furnish each assessor in their county with suitable books in duplicate, properly ruled and headed, in which to enter the following items: Book of assessor, what it shall contain.

1. The name of the individual, corporation, company, society, partnership or firm, to whom any property shall be taxable.

2. His or their lands by township, range, section or part of section, and when such part is not a congressional division or subdivision, some other description sufficient to identify it; and town lots, naming the town in which they are situated, and their proper description by number and block or otherwise according to the system of numbering in the town.

3. Personal property as follows: Number of cattle, number of horses, number of mules, number of sheep, number of swine over six months of age, number of carriages and vehicles of every description, with a separate column for the value of each; amount of capital employed in merchandize, amount of capital employed in manufacture, amount of money and credits, amount of taxable furniture, amount of stock or shares in any corporation or company not required by law to be otherwise listed and taxed, amount of taxable farming utensils or mechanics' tools, amount of all other personal property not enumerated, and the number of polls, and a column for remarks. But no entry shall be made on said book of any animal under the age of one year except as is above provided.

SEC. 733. (23.) Each assessor shall enter upon the discharge of the duties of his office within six days after the second Monday in January in each year, and shall with the assistance of each person assessed, or who may be required by law to list property belonging to another, enter in the books furnished him for that purpose, the several items specified in the preceding section; entering the names of the persons assessed in alphabetical order so far as practicable, by allotting to each letter its requisite number of pages in each of said books. He shall also be furnished with a suitable plat of his township on which to check the several parcels of land, and each town or city lot by him assessed, to avoid omissions or double assessments. Assessor begins when Has plat of townships.

SEC. 734. (24.) It shall be the duty of the assessor to list each and every person in his township, and to assess all the property, personal and real therein, and any person who shall refuse to assist in making out a list of his property, or of any property which he is required by law to assist in listing, or refuse to make the oath or affirmation required by this act, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars to be recovered in the name of the county for the use of the common schools therein; His duty in listing and where any person refuses to make out a list of his property, which by law he is required to do, the assessor shall assess such person according to the best information he can get, as to the amount of taxable property which such person has.

As to oath to persons assessed.

SEC. 735. (25.) The assessor is authorized, and he is hereby required to administer an oath or affirmation to each person assessed, to the effect that he has given in a full, true and correct inventory of all the taxable property owned by him, and all property held by him as agent, guardian or otherwise, and which he is required by law to list to the best of his knowledge and belief and in case any one refuses to make such oath or affirmation, the assessor shall note the fact in the column of remarks opposite such person's name; and should it afterwards appear that such person so refusing has not given a full list of his property, or that under his control, and which he was by law required to list, any property so omitted shall be entered on the book at double its ordinary assessable value, and taxed accordingly.

As to return of his book.

SEC. 736. (26.) Each assessor shall, on or before the third Monday in May in each year, return one of the assessment books of his township to the office of the clerk of the board of supervisors, with the several columns of numbers and values correctly footed up, and the amount of personal property of each person carried forward into a column under the head of total personal property, and the other book he shall on or before the second Monday in April of each year, deliver to the township clerk of his township, to be used by the trustees of the township as the township tax-book, for the levy of taxes for township revenue and road purposes.

Unknown owners.

SEC. 737. (27.) When the name of the owner of any real estate is unknown, and the assessor finds it impracticable to obtain the same, it shall be proper and lawful to assess such real estate without connecting therewith any name, but inscribing at the head of the page the words "owners unknown," and such property, whether lands or town lots, shall be listed as near as practicable in the order of the numbers thereof, and in assessing such real property, no one description shall comprise more than one town lot, or more than the sixteenth part of a section or other smallest sub-division of the land, according to the government surveys, except in cases where the boundaries are so irregular that it can not be described in the usual manner, in accordance with such surveys.

Penalty for failure of duty.

SEC. 738. (28.) If any assessor shall fail or neglect to perform any of the duties required of him by this act, at the time and in the manner specified, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the district court by the board of supervisors, the judgment shall be against him and his bondsmen, and the proceeds of such fines to go to the school fund of the county.

Board of equalization.

SEC. 739. (29.) The board of supervisors of each county, shall constitute a board for the equalization of the assessment, and have power to equalize the assessments of the several persons and townships of the county, substantially in the same manner as is required of the state board of equalization to equalize among the several counties of the state so far as applicable, at their regular meetings in June and next succeeding the general election in each and every year; and at such meetings they shall add to said assessment any taxable property in the county not included in the assessment as returned by the assessors, placing the same in the list of the proper township, and shall assess the value thereof.

Right of one aggrieved by assessment.

SEC. 740. (30.) Any person who may feel aggrieved at anything in the assessment of his property, may appear before the board of equalization either in person or by agent, at the times mentioned in the preceding section, and have the same corrected in such manner as to said board shall seem just and equitable.

SEC. 741. (31.) Each clerk of the county board of supervisors shall on or before the first day of July in each year, make out and transmit to the auditor of state by mail or otherwise, an abstract of the real property in this county in which he shall set forth:

1. The number of acres of land in his county, and the aggregate value of the same, exclusive of town lots, returned by the assessors, as corrected by the county board of equalization at their first meeting.

2. The aggregate value of real property in each town in the county, returned by the assessor as corrected at their first meeting by the county board of equalization.

3. The aggregate value of personal property in his county.

SEC. 742. (32.) The census board constitutes the state board of equalization, and shall meet at the seat of government on the first Monday of August in each year, in which real property is assessed, and shall take an oath faithfully and impartially to discharge the duties of their office. The auditor of state shall be ex-officio clerk of the board, and shall lay before it the abstracts transmitted to him by the county clerk as required by this act, and then the board shall proceed to equalize the valuation of real property among the several counties and towns in the state, in the following manner:

1. They shall add to the aggregate valuation of real property of each county, which they shall believe to be valued below its proper valuation, such per centum in each case as will raise the same to its proper valuation.

2. They shall deduct from the aggregate valuation of real property of each county, which they shall believe to be valued above its proper valuation, such per centum in each case as will reduce the same to its proper valuation.

SEC. 743. (33.) Said board shall keep a full record of their proceedings, and they shall finish their equalization on or before the third Monday of August, immediately after which the auditor of state shall transmit to each clerk of the board of supervisors a statement of the per centum to be added to, or deducted from the valuation of real property in his county. The clerk of the county board of supervisors shall add to, or deduct from the valuation of each tract or parcel of real property in his county, the required per centum on the same, and if the result shall in any case show a fraction of a dollar, such fraction, if less than fifty cents, shall be rejected, and if fifty cents or over, shall be counted as one dollar. And in each year the said board shall determine the rate of state tax to be levied and collected which shall not exceed two mills on the dollar, and the auditor of state shall notify the several county clerks of such rate at the time hereinbefore mentioned.

SEC. 744. (34.) If any clerk of the county board of supervisors shall neglect or refuse to transmit to the auditor of state, the abstract of the assessment of the real property in the county, or to add or deduct the per centum fixed by the state board of equalization, as required by this act, such county clerk shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor for which he shall be prosecuted by indictment in the district court, and if found guilty, shall be fined in any sum, not more than one thousand dollars, and shall also be liable to an action on his official bond to any injured person.

SEC. 745. (35.) The board of supervisors shall furnish to the clerk of each county a suitable book properly ruled and headed, with distinct columns in which to enter the names of tax-payers, descriptions of lands, number of acres and value, number of town lots and value, and value of personal property, and each description of tax, a column for polls, and one for payments, into which book the clerk shall after the equalization in June, as hereinbefore provided, and before the first Monday of November, transcribe from the assessment books of the several townships the names of tax-payers, with the description of property; but in cases where the owner is unknown no one description shall contain more than one town lot, or more than the sixteenth part of a section, or other smallest sub-division of the land according to the government surveys, except in cases where the boundaries are so irregular that it can not be described in the usual manner in accordance with said surveys.

When to levy taxes.

SEC. 746. (36.) At the regular meeting in June in each and every year the board of supervisors shall levy the requisite taxes for the current year, in accordance with law, and shall record the same in the proper book, and it shall be the duty of the clerk of the county board of supervisors, as soon as practicable, to complete the tax list by carrying out in a column by itself the amount of each different tax, and after adding up each column he shall carry forward the several amounts, showing a summary of the total amount of each distinct tax.

Clerk may correct error.

SEC. 747. (37.) The clerk of the county board of supervisors, may correct any clerical or other error in the assessment or tax book, and when any such correction affecting the amount of tax, is made after the books shall have passed into the hands of the treasurer, he shall charge the treasurer with all sums added to the several taxes, and credit him with all the deductions therefrom and report the same to the supervisors.

Entry on tax list; warrant; informality; pre-emption of regularity.

SEC. 748. (38.) An entry shall be made upon the tax list showing what it is, and for what county and year it is, and the clerk of the county board of supervisors under the direction of the board of supervisors, shall attach thereto a warrant under his hand and the official seal of said board in general terms, requiring the treasurer to collect the taxes therein levied according to law, and no informality in the above requirements, shall render any proceedings for the collection of taxes illegal. The clerk of the county board of supervisors shall cause the tax book to be delivered to the treasurer of the county by the first Monday of November, and his receipt taken therefor, and such list or book shall be full and sufficient authority for the collector to collect taxes therein contained. But if the list be delivered to the treasurer after the time above specified, the proceedings shall nevertheless be deemed regular so far as affecting the validity of taxes, or sales of land under this act. At the time of the delivery of said book to the treasurer, the clerk shall make to the auditor of state, a certified statement, showing, the aggregate valuation of lands, town property and personal property in the county each to itself, and also the aggregate amount of each separate tax as shown by said tax book.

Liability of clerk for failure of duty.

SEC. 749. (39.) If any clerk of the county board of supervisors shall fail or neglect to perform any of the duties required of him by this act, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the district court, by the board of supervisors, or by the party injured thereby the judgment entered shall be against him and his bondsmen, and the proceeds of such fine to go to the school fund.

Delinquent tax.

SEC. 750. (40.) The treasurer on receiving the tax book for each year, shall enter upon the same in separate columns, opposite each parcel of real property or person's name, on which, or against whom any tax remains unpaid for either of the preceding years, the year or years for which such delinquent tax so remains due and unpaid.

SEC. 751. (41.) The treasurer after making the above entry shall proceed to collect the taxes, and the list and warrant shall be his authority and justification against any illegality in the proceedings prior to receiving the list; and he is required to attend at his office from the second Monday in November to the first day of February following; and he is also authorized and required to collect so far as practicable the taxes remaining unpaid on the tax books of previous years.

Duty of treasurer to collect.

SEC. 752. (42.) It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to assess any real property subject to taxation, which may have been omitted by the assessors or the county clerk, and to collect taxes thereon, and in such cases he is required to note opposite the tract or lot assessed, the words "by treasurer."

And he may assess omitted property.

SEC. 753. (43.) In all cases where real property subject to taxation, shall not have been assessed by the township assessor, or other proper officer, it is hereby made the duty of the owner thereof, by himself or his agent, to have the same properly assessed by the treasurer, and to pay the taxes thereon; and no failure of the owner to have such property assessed, or to have the errors in the assessment corrected; and no irregularity, error or omission in the assessment of such property, shall affect in any manner the legality of any taxes levied thereon, nor affect any right or title to such real property which would have accrued, to any party claiming or holding under and by virtue of a deed executed by the treasurer as provided for by this act, had the assessment of such property been in all respects regular and valid—and in cases where the assessment of any real property subject to taxation shall have been omitted, the assessment thereof may be made by the county treasurer at any time before the sale of the property, and the taxes levied thereon; and in case it shall appear that the tax for which the property was sold was erroneous or irregular, the error or irregularity may be corrected as provided in section fifty-four* of this act.

Owner's duty to have it assessed.

SEC. 754. (44.) Auditor's warrants shall be received by the county treasurer in full payment of state taxes, and county warrants shall be receivable at the treasury of the proper county for the ordinary county tax, but money only shall be receivable for the school tax. Road taxes may be discharged, and road certificates of work done, received as provided by law.

Auditor's warrants received for taxes.

SEC. 755. (45.) When a state or county warrant is received by the treasurer, he shall indorse on the face of it the amount for which it was received, and the date of reception, and from that date the warrant shall be regarded as canceled, and can not be reissued, but when the warrant amounts to more than is to be paid by the person presenting it, the treasurer shall give him a certificate of the remainder due him as directed in chapter of the code relating to the treasurer.

A received warrant how disposed of.

SEC. 756. (46.) No demand of taxes shall be necessary, but it is the duty of every person subject to taxation to attend at the office of the treasurer (unless otherwise provided) at some time during the time mentioned in a previous section of this act, and pay his or her taxes, and if any one neglects to pay them before the first day of February following the levy of the tax, the treasurer is directed to make the same by distress and sale of his or her personal property, excepting such as is exempt from taxation, and the tax list alone shall be sufficient warrant for such distress.*

Sale by treasurer. SEC. 757. (47.) When the treasurer distrains goods, he may keep them at the expense of the owner, and shall give notice of the time and place of their sale within five days after the taking, in the manner constables are required to give notice of the sale of personal property under execution, and the time of sale shall not be more than twenty days from the day of the taking; but he may adjourn the sale from time to time not exceeding five days, and shall adjourn at least once when there are no bidders, and in case of adjournment, he shall put up a notice thereof at the place of sale. Any surplus remaining above the taxes, charges of keeping and fees for sale, shall be returned to the owner, and the treasurer shall on demand, render an account in writing of the sale and charges.

Duty to assist treasurer. SEC. 758. (48.) If the treasurer be resisted or impeded in the execution of his office, he may require any suitable person to assist him therein, and if such person refuse the aid, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding ten dollars, to be recovered by civil action in the name and to the use of the county, and the person resisting shall be liable as in the case of resisting the sheriff in the execution of civil process.

Taxes, lien when delinquent. SEC. 759. (49.) On the first day of February, the unpaid taxes of whatever description, for the preceding year, shall become delinquent, and shall draw interest as hereinafter provided; and taxes upon real property are hereby made a perpetual lien thereupon against all persons except the United States and this state; and taxes due from any person upon personal property shall be a lien upon any real property owned by such person, or to which he may acquire a title. The treasurer shall in no case sell real property for delinquent tax, when personal property not exempt from taxation belonging to the individual can be found in the county, unless the owner shall in writing designate what piece of real property he prefers having sold rather than the personal property; and the sale of real property so designated shall be made at the regular annual sale of real estate as hereinafter provided.

Penalty for non-payment when due. SEC. 760. (50.) The treasurer shall continue to receive taxes after they have become delinquent, until collected by distress and sale; but if they are not paid before the first day of March, he shall collect as a penalty for non-payment, from each tax-payer so delinquent, one per cent. of the amount of his tax additional, and if not paid before the first day of April, he shall collect another one per cent. additional, and so for each full month which shall expire before the tax shall have been paid. The treasurer shall in all cases make out and deliver to the tax payer a receipt for taxes paid, stating the time of payment, the description of the land, the amount of each kind of tax, the interest on each, and costs, if any, giving a separate receipt for each year; and shall make the proper entries of such payments in the books of his office, and such receipt shall be in full, for his taxes that year: provided, that it shall be the duty of the county treasurer, to receive the full amount of any county, state, or school tax whenever the same is tendered and give a separate receipt therefor.

Accounts of clerk of board of county supervisors. SEC. 761. (51.) The clerk of the county board of supervisors shall keep full and complete accounts with the county treasurer, with each * Section (46) is substantially section 492 of code of 1851, which was amended by section 1 of chapter 162 of fifth session, which seems not repealed and reads thus: And the county treasurer is hereby authorized to appoint one or more deputies to aid and assist in collecting the taxes thus to be made by distress and sale.

separate fund or tax to itself, in each of which accounts he shall charge him with the amounts in his hands at opening of such account, whether it be delinquent taxes, notes, cash or other assets belonging to such fund or tax, the amount of each respective tax, for each year when the tax book is received by him, and all additions to each tax or fund, whether by additional assessments, interest on delinquent taxes, amount received for pedlers' license, or other items which are additions to the respective funds or taxes, and shall, on the first day of each month, ascertain the amount of delinquent and unpaid taxes of all classes on said day, and charge the treasurer in said account with one per cent. on the amount thereof, to be collected by him as provided in section fifty-two* of this act. In these several accounts he shall credit the treasurer, by the proper vouchers, for money disbursed belonging to each, by double and erroneous assessments, and unavailable taxes. The term double and erroneous assessments includes all improper, incorrect and illegal assessments, the correction or remission of which, causes a diminution of the respective tax; and unavailable taxes, includes such as have been properly and legally assessed, but which there is no prospect of collecting.

SEC. 762. (52.) In all cases where any person shall pay any tax, interest or costs, or any portion thereof that shall thereafter be found to be erroneous or illegal, whether the same be owing to erroneous or improper assessment, to the improper or irregular levying of the tax, to clerical or other errors or irregularities, the board of supervisors shall direct the treasurer to refund the same to the tax payer—and in case any real property subject to taxation shall be sold for the payment of such erroneous tax, interest or costs as above mentioned, the error or irregularity in the tax may at any time be corrected as above provided, and shall not affect the validity of the sale or the right or title conveyed by the treasurer's deed; but the title so conveyed shall be deemed legal and valid provided that the property was subject to taxation for any of the purposes for which any portion of the taxes for which the land was sold, was levied, and that the taxes were not paid before the sale, and that the property had not been redeemed from sale.

Sale under improper levy.

Refunding.

SEC. 763. (53.) On the first Monday of October in the year 1860 and in each year thereafter, the county treasurer is required to offer at public sale at the court house, or, if there be no court house, at the office of the county treasurer, all lands, town lots or other real property, on which taxes of any description for the preceding year or years, shall have been delinquent and remain due and unpaid, and such sale shall be made for and in payment of the total amount of taxes, interest and costs due and unpaid on such real property.

Sale for unpaid taxes.

SEC. 764. (54.) The county treasurer is required to give notice of the sale, by publishing an advertisement thereof in some newspaper printed in his county, if any such there be, and if there be no such paper printed in his county, then in the newspaper in this state nearest the county seat, and by posting up a copy of said notice on the door of the court house in said county, at least four weeks before the day of sale, which publication is required to be made once in each week for three successive weeks, the last of which publications is required to be at least three weeks prior to the day of sale. It is required that such advertisement shall state the time and place of sale, and contain a description of the several parcels of real property to be sold as the same are recorded on the tax list, the amount of taxes for each year, and amount of interests and costs against each tract, and the names of owners when known, or persons, if any, to whom taxed. The treasurer is directed to charge and collect, in addition to the taxes and interest, the sum of twenty cents on each tract of real property advertised for sale when the same is included in one line of single column width of the paper in which the publication is made, but if the description occupies more than one line of such single column width, then the sum shall be thirty cents for each description, which sum shall go into the county treasury. The cost of the publication shall be paid out of the county treasury: provided, that if the publisher of such newspaper shall be unable, or unwilling, to publish the said notice accurately and properly, and at said rate of twenty cents for each tract of real property, the treasurer may select some other newspaper having the means and ability to make such publication at the price above specified in a satisfactory manner, having due regard to the circulation of such paper.

Sale.

SEC. 765. (55.) The county treasurer shall attend at the court house in his county, or at his own office as herein before provided on the day of sale, and then and there, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, proceed to offer for sale, separately, each tract or parcel of real property advertised for sale, on which the taxes and costs shall not have been paid.

Mode of sale and what division of land.

SEC. 766. (56.) The person who offers to pay the amount of taxes due on any parcel of land for the smallest portion of the same is to be considered the purchaser, and when such portion constitutes a half or more of the parcel, it shall be taken from the east side thereof, dividing it by a line running north and south, except that town or city lots are to be divided in such case lengthwise by a line parallel with the proper lines of the lots. If the portion taken be less than one half of the tract, it is to be taken from the south-east corner in a square form, as nearly as the form of the land will conveniently permit.—The preceding provisions of this section are subject to the following qualifications: the homestead is liable to be sold for no tax save that which is due on itself exclusively, and the above directions concerning the division of a tract of land shall be modified so as to meet this requirement, and to that end the quantity of land bid may be obtained by drawing the division line in any direction or form so as to avoid the homestead; and when the homestead constitutes part of the tract sold and is not yet ascertained, the court may, at the suggestion of either party, cause a proceeding to be had similar to that required in relation to mechanic's liens, for the ascertainment of the homestead, and in all cases of such sales it may take the requisite order and proceedings to ascertain the land sold, or to set it apart from the homestead.

Continuation.

SEC. 767. (57.) The treasurer shall continue the sale from day to day as long as there are bidders, or until the taxes are all paid.

Duty of vendee.

SEC. 768. (58.) The person purchasing any tract of land or town lot, or any part thereof, shall forthwith pay to the treasurer the amount of taxes and costs charged on said tract or lot, and on failure to do so the said land or lot shall at once again be offered for sale, in the same manner as if no such sale had been made. Such payment may be made in the same funds receivable by law in ordinary payments of taxes.

May pay any time before sale.

SEC. 769. (59.) Any person owning or claiming lands or town lots advertised for sale as aforesaid, may pay the taxes and interest due thereon to the county treasurer, at any time before the sale thereof; but in such case, such person shall pay the costs of advertising, and all other costs which may have accrued up to the time of such payment.

Figures may be used.

SEC. 770. (60.) In all advertisements for the sale of real property for taxes, and in entries required to be made by the clerk of the board of supervisors, treasurer, or other officer, letters and figures may be used as they have been heretofore, to denote townships, ranges, sections, parts of sections, lots, blocks, dates and the amounts of taxes, interest and costs. And no irregularity, or informality, in the advertisements shall affect in any manner the legality of the sale, or the title to any real property conveyed by the treasurer's deed under this act; but in all cases the provisions of this act shall be deemed sufficient notice to owners of the sale of their property.

SEC. 771. (61.) The treasurer shall obtain a copy of said advertisement, together with a certificate of the due publication thereof, from the printer or publisher of the newspaper, in which the same shall have been published, and shall file the same in the office of the clerk of the board of supervisors and such certificate shall be substantially in the following form.

C. D.,
Clerk of the board of supervisors of _____ county, Iowa.

SEC. 772. (62.) The clerk of the board of supervisors is required to attend all sales of real property for taxes made by the treasurer, and make a record thereof in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, therein describing the several parcels of real property on which the taxes and costs were paid by the purchaser, as they are described in the list or advertisement on file in his office, stating, in separate columns, the amount, as obtained from the treasurer's tax list, of each kind of tax, interest and costs for each tract or lot, how much and what part of each tract or lot was sold, to whom sold, and date of sale. The treasurer shall also keep a book of sales in which, at the time of sale, he shall make the same records which the clerk is required to make by the provisions of this section. He shall also note in the tax list, opposite the description of the property sold, the fact and date of such sale.

Record of all sales to be made by clerk.

SEC. 773. (63.) When all the parcels of real property advertised for sale shall have been offered for sale as provided for in this act, and a portion thereof shall remain unsold for the want of bidders, it shall be the duty of the treasurer to adjourn the sale to some day not exceeding two months from the time of adjournment; due notice of which day shall be given at the time of adjournment, and also by keeping a notice thereof posted in a conspicuous place in the treasurer's office. On the day fixed for the re-opening of the sale, the same proceedings shall be had as provided for by this act in relation to the sales commencing on the first Monday of October. And further adjournments shall be made from time to time, not to exceed two months, as provided in this section, and the sales shall thus be continued until the next regular annual sale, or until all the taxes shall have been paid.

Liability to fine
clerk, &c.

SEC. 774. (64.) If any treasurer or clerk shall fail to attend any sale of lands as required by this act, either in person or by a competent deputy, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than fifty nor more than three hundred dollars, to be recovered by an action in the district court by the board of supervisors; the judgment shall be against the treasurer and his bondsmen, and the proceeds go to the school fund. And if such officer, or deputy shall sell or assist in selling any real property, knowing the same to be not subject to taxation, or that the taxes for which the same is sold have been paid, or shall, knowingly and willfully sell, or assist in selling any real property for payment of taxes to defraud the owner of such real property or shall knowingly and willfully execute a deed for property so sold, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than one thousand nor more than three thousand dollars, or to imprisonment not exceeding one year, or to both fine and imprisonment, and to pay the injured party all damages sustained by any such wrongful act; and all such sales shall be void.

SEC. 775. (65.) If any county treasurer or clerk shall be hereafter, either directly or indirectly, concerned in the purchase of any real property sold for the payment of taxes, he shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in an action in the district court brought by the board of supervisors; the judgment shall be against such treasurer or clerk, as the case may be, and his bondsmen, and the proceeds shall go to the school fund, and all such sales shall be void.

Sale delayed one

SEC. 776. (66.) If from neglect of officers to make returns, or from any other good cause, real property can not be duly advertised and offered for sale on the first Monday of October, it shall be the duty of the treasurer to make the sale on the first Monday of the next succeeding month in which it can be made, allowing time for the publication as provided in this act.

SEC. 777. (67.) The county treasurer shall make out, sign and deliver to the purchaser of any real property, sold for the payment of taxes as aforesaid, a certificate of purchase, describing the property on which the taxes and costs were paid by the purchaser, as the same was described in the record of sales, and also how much and what part of each tract or lot was sold, and stating the amount of each kind of tax, interest and costs for each tract or lot, for which the same was sold, as described in the record of sales, and that payment had been made therefor. If any person shall become the purchaser of more than one parcel of property, he may have the whole included in one certificate. For each certificate so delivered the purchaser shall pay a fee of fifteen cents to the clerk of the board of supervisors and thirty-five cents to the county treasurer.

Assignable.

SEC. 778. (68.) Such certificate of purchase shall be assignable by indorsement, and an assignment thereof shall vest in the assignee or his legal representative, all the right and title of the original purchaser.

Time of redemption.

SEC. 779. (69.) Real property sold under the provisions of this act, may be redeemed at any time before the expiration of three years from the date of the sale, by the payment in specie, to the clerk of the board of supervisors of the proper county, to be held by him subject to the order of the purchaser of the amount for which the same was sold and thirty per cent. on the same with ten per cent. interest per annum on the whole amount from the day of sale, and the amount of all taxes accruing after such sale, with ten per cent. interest per annum on such subsequent taxes, unless such subsequent taxes have been paid by the person for whose benefit the redemption is made; which fact may be shown by the treasurer's receipt: provided, that if real property of any minor married woman or lunatic be sold for taxes, the same may be redeemed at any time within one year after such disability be removed, upon the terms specified in this section, which redemption may be made by the guardian or legal representatives.

SEC. 780. (70.) The clerk of the board of supervisors shall, upon application of any party to redeem any real property sold under the provisions of this act, and being satisfied that such party has a right to redeem the same, and upon the payment of the proper amount, issue to such party a certificate of redemption, setting forth the facts of the sale substantially as contained in the certificate of sale, the date of the redemption, the amount paid, and by whom redeemed; and he shall make the proper entries in the book of sales in his office and shall immediately give notice of such redemption to the county treasurer. Such certificate of redemption shall then be presented to the treasurer, who shall countersign the same and make the proper entries in the books of his office, and no certificate of redemption shall be held as evidence of such redemption without such signature of the treasurer.

Certificate of redemption.

SEC. 781. (71.) Immediately after the expiration of the term of three years from the date of the sale of any land for taxes under the provisions of this act, the treasurer then in office shall make out a deed for each lot or parcel of land sold, and remaining unredeemed, and deliver the same to the purchaser upon the return of the certificate of purchase.

Deed in three years.

SEC. 782. (72.) The treasurer is required to demand twenty-five cents for each deed made by him on such sales, but any number of parcels of land bought by one person may be included in one deed, as may be desired by the purchaser.

Fee for deed.

SEC. 783. (73.) Deeds executed by the treasurer shall be substantially in the following form:

Form of deeds.

Know all men by these presents, that whereas, the following described real property, viz.: [here follows the description] situated in the county of ———, and state of Iowa, was subject to taxation for the year [or years] A. D. ———; and whereas the taxes, assessed upon said real property, for the year [or years] aforesaid remained due and unpaid at the date of the sale hereinafter named; and whereas, the treasurer of the said county did, on the ——— day of ———, A. D. 18—, by virtue of the authority in him vested by law, at [an adjourned sale of] the sale begun and publicly held on the first Monday of ———, A. D. 18—, expose to public sale at the court house [or office of the county treasurer] in the county aforesaid in substantial conformity with all the requisitions of the statute in such case made and provided, the real property above described, for the payment of the taxes, interest and costs then due and remaining unpaid on said property; and whereas, at the time and place aforesaid, A. B. of the county of ——— and state of ———, having offered to pay the sum of ——— dollars and ——— cents being the whole amount of taxes, interest and costs then due and remaining unpaid on said property, for [here follows the description of the property sold] which was the least quantity bid for: and payment of said sum having been by him made to the said treasurer, the said property was stricken off to him at that price, [and whereas, the said A. B. did on the _____ day of A. D., _____ duly assign the certificate of the sale of the property as aforesaid and all his right, title and interest to said property to E. F. of the county of _____ and state of _____] and whereas, three years have elapsed since the date of said sale and the said property has not been redeemed therefrom as provided for by law,

Now, therefore, I, C. D., treasurer of the county aforesaid, for and in consideration of the said sum to the treasurer paid as aforesaid, and by virtue of the statute in such case made and provided, have granted, bargained and sold, and by these presents do grant, bargain and sell, unto the said A. B. [or E. F.] his heirs and assigns, the real property last hereinbefore described to have and to hold unto him the said A. B. [or E. F.] his heirs and assigns forever: subject however, to all the rights of redemption provided by law. In witness whereof I, C. D. treasurer as aforesaid by virtue of the authority aforesaid, have hereunto subscribed my name on this _____ day of _____ 18—.

C. D. Treasurer.

STATE OF IOWA, }
County, } ss.

I hereby certify that before me _____ in and for said county, personally appeared the above named C. D., treasurer of said county personally known to me to be the treasurer of said county at the date of the execution of the above conveyance, and to be the identical person whose name is affixed to and who executed the above conveyance as treasurer of said county and who acknowledged the execution of the same to be his voluntary act and deed as treasurer of said county, for the purposes therein expressed.

Given under my hand [and seal] this _____ day of _____ A. D., 18—.

SEC. 784 (74.) The deed shall be signed by the treasurer in his official capacity, and acknowledged by him before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds; and when substantially thus executed and recorded in the proper record of titles to real estate, shall vest in the purchaser all the right, title, interest and estate of the former owner in and to the land conveyed, and also all the right, title, interest and claim of the state and county thereto, and shall be prima facie evidence in all courts of this state, in all controversies, and suits in relation to the rights of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, to the land thereby conveyed, of the following facts:

1. That the real property conveyed was subject to taxation for the year or years stated in the deed.

2. That the taxes were not paid at any time before the sale.

3. That the real property conveyed had not been redeemed from the sale at the date of the deed, and shall be conclusive evidence of the following facts:

1. That the property had been listed and assessed at the time and in the manner required by law.

2. That the taxes were levied according to law.

3. That the property was advertised for sale in the manner and for the length of time required by law.

4. That the property was sold for taxes as stated in the deed.

5. That the grantee named in the deed was the purchaser.

6. That the sale was conducted in the manner required by law.

7. That all the pre-requisites of the law were complied with by all the officers who had, or whose duty it was to have had, any part or action in any transaction relating to or affecting the title conveyed, or purporting to be conveyed by the deed, from the listing and valuation of the property up to the execution of the deed, both inclusive, and that all things whatsoever, required by law to make a good and valid sale, and to vest the title in the purchaser were done, except in regard to the three points named in this section, wherein the deed shall be prima facie evidence only.

And in all controversies and suits involving the title to real property claimed and held under and by virtue of a deed executed substantially as aforesaid by the treasurer, the person claiming title adverse to the title conveyed by such deed, shall be required to prove, in order to defeat the said title, either that the said real property was not subject to taxation for the year or years named in the deed—that the taxes had been paid before the sale, or that the property had been redeemed from the sale according to the provisions of this act, and that such redemption was had or made for the use and benefit of persons having the right of redemption under the laws of this state, but no person shall be permitted to question the title acquired by a treasurer's deed without first shewing that he or she, or the person under whom he or she claims title, had title to the property at the time of the sale, or that the title was obtained from the United States, or this state, after the sale, and that all taxes due upon the property have been paid by such person, or the person under whom he or she claims title as aforesaid: provided, that in any case where a person had paid his taxes and through mistake in the entry made in the treasurers books or in the receipt, the land upon which the taxes were paid was afterwards sold the treasurers deed shall not convey the title: provided further, that in all cases where the owner of lands sold for taxes shall resist the validity of such tax title such owner may show and prove fraud committed by the officer selling the same or in the purchaser to defeat the same and if fraud is so established such sale and title shall be void.

SEC. 785. (75.) When by mistake or wrongful act of the treasurer, land has been sold on which no tax was due at the time, or whenever land is sold in consequence of error in describing such land in the tax receipt, the county is to hold the purchaser harmless by paying him the amount of principal and interest and costs to which he would have been entitled had the land been rightfully sold, and the treasurer and his sureties will be liable to the county for the amount of his official bond, or the purchaser, or his assignee may recover directly of the treasurer in an action brought to recover the same in any court having jurisdiction of the amount, and judgment shall be against him and his bondsmen: provided always, that the treasurer or his sureties shall be liable only for his own or his deputies acts.

Liability of land sold when no tax was due.

SEC. 786. (76.) In all suits and controversies involving the question of title to real property held under and by virtue of a treasurer's deed, all acts of assessors, treasurers, clerks of boards of supervisors and other offices de facto shall be deemed and construed to be of the same validity as acts of officers de jure.

De facto officer.

Not invalid for wrong name.

SEC. 787. (77.) No sale of real property for taxes shall be considered invalid on account of the same having been charged in any other name than that of the rightful owner, if the said property be in other respects sufficiently described.

Evidence of books, &c.

SEC. 788. (78.) The books and records belonging to the offices of the clerk of the board of supervisors and the county treasurer, or copies thereof, properly certified, shall be deemed sufficient evidence to prove the sale of any real property for taxes, the redemption thereof or the payment of taxes thereon.

Entry in case of lot sold which was not subject to taxation.

SEC. 789. (79.) Whenever it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the county treasurer, either before the execution of a deed for real property sold for taxes, or if the deed be returned by the purchaser, that any tract or lot was sold which was not subject to taxation, or upon which the taxes had been paid previous to the sale, he shall make an entry opposite such tract or lot on the record of sales, that the same was erroneously sold, and such entry shall be evidence of the fact therein stated. And in such cases the purchase money shall be refunded to the purchaser as provided by this act.

Limitation five years.

SEC. 790. (80.) No action for the recovery of real property sold for the non-payment of taxes shall lie, unless the same be brought within five years after the date of the sale thereof for taxes as aforesaid, (anything in the statute of limitations to the contrary notwithstanding:) provided, that where the owner or owners of such real property sold as aforesaid, shall at the time of such sale, be minor or minors, or insane, five years after such disability is removed shall be allowed such person or persons, their heirs or legal representatives, to bring their suit or action for recovery of the real property so sold.

Peddlers' tax.

SEC. 791. (81.) A tax for state purposes shall be levied upon peddlers of watches, jewelry and clocks, dry goods, fancy articles, notions, patent medicines or other merchandise not manufactured in this state; for a license to peddle throughout the state for one year as follows: upon each peddler of watches or jewelry, or either of them, thirty dollars; upon each peddler of clocks, fifty dollars; upon each peddler of dry goods, fancy articles, notions, or patent medicines, as follows: upon each peddler thereof, ten dollars; upon each peddler who pursues his occupation with a vehicle drawn by one animal, twenty-five dollars; if drawn by two and less than four animals, fifty dollars; if drawn by four or more animals, seventy-five dollars.

License obtained.

SEC. 792. (82.) Such license may be obtained from the clerk of the board of supervisors of any county, upon paying the proper tax to the treasurer thereof, and license may issue for a less period than one year, for the proportionate amount of tax, and all such license shall state the date of the expiration of the same, and any person so peddling without a license, or after the expiration of his license, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and the person actually peddling is liable, whether he be the owner of the goods or not.*

* Section 81 is substantially 17 of chapter 69 of the fourth session, and 64 of chapter 152 of seventh session, and the following act, I do not find repealed:

An Act to amend an Act entitled "An Act to amend Chapter Thirty-seven of the Code in relation to Assessors." Approved Jan. 22, 1853.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any peddler shall violate the seventeenth section of the act, to which this is amendatory, by peddling, selling or disposing of any of his goods, wares or merchandise, mentioned in said section, without a license, it shall be the duty of the county judge or sheriff of the county in which the offense was committed to arrest such offender

SEC. 793. (83.) Each county is responsible to the state for the full amount of tax levied for state purposes, excepting such amounts as are certified to be unavailable, double or erroneous assessments as hereinafter provided. Each county responsible.

SEC. 794. (84.) If any county treasurer prove to be a defaulter to any amount for state revenue, such amount shall be made up to the state within the next three coming years, by additional levies in such manner as to annual amounts, as the board of supervisors may direct. In such cases the county can have recourse to the official bond of the treasurer for indemnity. Treasurer's defaulter.

SEC. 795. (85.) When interest is due and allowed by the treasurer of any county or the state treasurer on redemption of auditor's warrants, or county warrants, the same shall be received on the warrants by the holder of the same, with the date of the payment, and no interest shall be allowed by the auditor of state or board of supervisors, except such as is thus received. Interest.

SEC. 796. (86.) If the state treasurer or county treasurer discount auditor's warrants at less than the amount due thereon, either directly or indirectly or through third persons, they shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, for the benefit of common schools, to be prosecuted as other fines, and the payee of the warrant may be a witness on the trial. Penalty for discounting warrants.

SEC. 797. (87.) County treasurers shall be liable to a like fine for loaning out, or in any manner using for private purposes, state or county funds in their hands, and the state treasurer shall be liable to a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars for a like misdemeanor, to be prosecuted by the attorney general in the name of the state for the benefit of common schools. Same, fine against loaning.

SEC. 798. (88.) At their regular meetings in January and June, of each year, the board of supervisors shall make a full and complete settlement with the county treasurer as now required by the code, and they shall make and certify to the auditor of state, all credits to the treasurer for double or erroneous assessments, and unavailable taxes, also all dues for state revenue, interest or delinquent taxes, sales of land, peddlers' license and other dues, if any, also the amount collected for these several items, and revenue still delinquent, each year to itself. Said reports shall be forwarded by mail. Settlement with treasurer.

SEC. 799. (89.) The treasurer of each and every county, shall, on or before the tenth day of each month, prepare a sworn statement of the amount of money remaining in his hands on the first day of that month, received by him and belonging to the state treasury, and he shall, on said tenth day of each month, deposit a copy of such statement with the post master, at the county seat of his county, duly sealed and directed to the auditor of state, and have the same registered; and he shall each year, unless otherwise directed by the state auditor, pay into the state treasury, on or before the tenth day of February, all the money due the state, remaining in his hands on the first day of February; and on or before the tenth day of November, all the money due the state remaining in his hands on the first day of November; he shall, also, at any time when directed by the auditor of state, forthwith pay into the state Treasurer's monthly statement.

and prosecute him to final justice before any justice of the peace of the township, or district court of the county in which the offense was committed.

SEC. 2. Upon conviction of the offense as aforesaid, the offender shall forfeit and pay double the amount of license required in said section seventeen for peddling the description of goods which he may be convicted of so selling without a license.

treasury, or to the treasurer of any county, or to any bank incorporated under the laws of this state, any or all the money due the state and remaining in his hands. In case the treasurer of any county shall fail to prepare and deposit the statement required in this section as herein provided, he shall forfeit and pay for each and every failure a sum not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred, to be recovered in an action brought in the name of the state auditor, to recover the same in any court having jurisdiction of the amount. The judgment shall be against the treasurer and his bondsmen, and the amount recovered shall go to the state treasury.

Payment through bank.

SEC. 800. (90.) The state auditor may require any county treasurer to make his payment through any other county treasurer, or through any bank chartered by the laws of this state, but that no charge be made against the state by said bank, or said amounts to exceed one fourth of one per cent. for transportation: but any payment made in pursuance of such requirement of the auditor, shall be a release to the county of its liabilities to the state, to the amount so paid.

Revision of treasurer's account by supervisors.

SEC. 801. (91.) The state auditor shall make and transmit to each clerk of the board of supervisors on the first day of May each year a statement of the county treasurer's account with the state treasury, which account shall be submitted by said clerk to the board of supervisors, at their first meeting; and if they find the same to be incorrect in any particular, they shall forthwith certify the facts in relation to the same, to the auditor of state.

Treasurer going out of office.

SEC. 802. (92.) When a county treasurer goes out of office he shall make a full and complete settlement with the board of supervisors, and deliver up all books, papers, moneys and all other property appertaining to the office, to his successor, taking his receipt therefor; the board of supervisors shall make a statement (so far as state dues are concerned,) to the auditor of state, showing all charges for whatever purposes, which have been created against the treasurer during his term of office, and all credits which have been made; the delinquent taxes and other unfinished business charged over to his successor and the amount of money paid over to his successor, showing to what year and to what accounts the amount so paid over belongs. They shall also see that the books of the treasurer are correctly balanced before being passed into the possession and control of the treasurer elect.

Duplicate receipts for payments to treasurer.

SEC. 803. (93.) When any officer or other person pay the state treasurer any sum of money for revenue, or school purposes, he shall take duplicate receipts therefor, one of which he shall file with the auditor of state, who shall charge the same to the treasurer in account of the proper fund.

Each fund of treasurer to be kept distinct.

SEC. 804. (94.) The state treasurer shall keep each distinct fund coming into his possession as public money in a separate apartment of his safe, and at each quarterly settlement with the state auditor, he shall count each fund in the presence of the auditor, to see if the same agrees with the balance found on the books. The total amount acknowledged to belong to each fund shall be exhibited before the count, and county treasurers shall account with such person as the board of supervisors may direct in like manner, and a report of such accounting shall be made to the board at their next meeting, by the person so appointed by them.

Fine for disobedience.

SEC. 805. (95.) Any officer neglecting or refusing to comply with this act, for whose negligence no other penalty is provided by this act, shall be liable to a fine in any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, to be prosecuted by the attorney general, or district attorney, for the benefit of common schools.

SEC. 806. (96.) The treasurer of the state shall keep in the safe in his office all moneys received by him as such treasurer, until the same are withdrawn therefrom upon warrants issued by the auditor of state in accordance with law. The treasurer shall not deposit any of the moneys received by him as treasurer with, or lend any portion thereof to any person or persons, or associations of persons whatever, or to any company incorporated or unincorporated, nor shall he in any manner whatever, allow said moneys, or any part thereof, to be withdrawn from said safe or used in any manner whatever, otherwise than may be provided by law. Not to lend money

SEC. 807. (97.) Should the treasurer of state at any time violate any of the provisions of section ninety-six of this act, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than five thousand dollars, nor more than twenty thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the county jail not less than one year, nor more than five years, or both at the discretion of the court. Penalty.

SEC. 808. (98.) Except for the purposes of the assessment equalization, and levy of the taxes for the year 1860, chapter 152 of the acts of the (seventh) general assembly is hereby repealed, and all other acts or parts of acts conflicting with this act are hereby repealed, so far as they conflict with this act. Repeal

SEC. 809. (99.) Where any duties, that by the provisions of this act are required to be performed by the clerk of the board of supervisors should be performed prior to the organization of said board they shall be performed by the clerk of the district court and all duties imposed by this act on the board of supervisors which are required to be performed before the organization of said board, shall, until such organization, be performed by the officers who are now required by law to perform them. Duties to be performed by clerk of law of supervisors takes

TITLE VII.

CHAPTER 46.

OF ROADS AND HIGHWAYS.

[Code—Chapter 38*.]

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 819. (514.) The county court has the general supervision County court over the highways in the county with power to establish and change them as herein provided and to see that the laws in relation to them are carried into effect.

SEC. 820. (515.) County and state roads hereafter established must Width. be sixty-six feet in width, unless otherwise specially directed, but the court may for good reasons fix a different width not less than thirty-three feet.

SEC. 821. (516.) A county road may within the limits aforesaid be Changes. increased or diminished in width or it may be altered in direction or discontinued, by pursuing substantially the steps herein prescribed for opening a new road.

SEC. 822. (517.) Bridges are parts of the public highways and must Bridges not be less than sixteen feet in breadth.

SEC. 823. (518.) The county court may prohibit any person from Penalties riding or driving faster than a walk across any bridge maintained at the public charge and whose entire length is twenty-five feet or upwards, under the penalty of one dollar for each offense. Notices thereof must be conspicuously posted at each end of such bridge. The penalty may be recovered by civil action before any justice of the peace in the name and for the use of the county.

Manner of establishing County Roads.

SEC. 824. (519.) Previous to the presentation of a petition for the Notice establishment of a county road four weeks' notice thereof must be given by being posted up at the court house door and in three public places in each township through which it is to pass and in the neighborhood of the proposed road.

SEC. 825. (520.) Such notice must state the principal points through Same. which it will pass if any such are contemplated, and state the time at which application will be made to the county court for the appointment of a commissioner to examine and report upon the same.

SEC. 826. (521.) Security must be given to the satisfaction of the Security. court conditioned that all the expenses growing out of the application will be paid by the obligors in case the contemplated road is not finally established.

* Read sections 312-11-13, and 317, and chapter 22, articles 12, and 13, and then throughout this chapter read the words "court" and "judge," either "board of supervisors" or "clerk of the board of supervisors," as the sense or the powers to be conferred on the clerk may require.

Same.	SEC. 827. (522.) If the road is less than five miles in length the security given shall be for the absolute payment of such expenses.
Hearing.	SEC. 828. (523.) The court at the time of the application specified in the notices aforesaid (which must be on some of its regular days of session) or at some other time to be then fixed, shall proceed to the consideration of the case, and if satisfied that the above mentioned prerequisites have been complied with shall appoint some suitable and disinterested inhabitant of the county a commissioner to examine into the expediency of the proposed road and to report accordingly.
View.	SEC. 829. (524.) The time for the commencement of such examination shall be fixed by the court , and should the commissioner for any cause fail to commence on the day, the court may fix another for that purpose.
Same.	SEC. 830. (525.) The commissioner is not confined to the precise matter of the petition but may inquire and determine whether that or any road in the vicinity answering the same purpose and in substance the same be required, but such road must not be laid out through any burying ground which is by law exempt from execution.
Same.	SEC. 831. (526.) In forming his judgment he must take into consideration both the public and private convenience and inconvenience and also the expense of the proposed road.
Report.	SEC. 832. (527.) After a general examination, if he should not be in favor of establishing the proposed road he will so report and no further proceedings shall be had thereon.
Proceedings of viewer.	SEC. 833. (528.) If he deems such establishment expedient he may proceed at once to lay out the road as hereinafter directed and may report accordingly if the circumstances of the case are such as to enable him to do so without pursuing the course pointed out in the next section.
Same.	SEC. 834. (529.) But if the precise location of the road can not be otherwise given he must call to his aid a competent surveyor and the necessary assistants and cause the line of the road to be accurately surveyed and plainly marked out.
Same.	SEC. 835. (530.) The commissioner, surveyor and assistants must be sworn by some officer authorized to administer oaths, to the faithful and impartial discharge of their several duties, except that where the county surveyor is employed he need not be sworn.*
Same, marks.	SEC. 836. (531.) Mile posts must be set up at the end of every mile and the distance marked thereon, and stakes must be set at each change of direction on which shall be marked the bearing of the new course. Stakes must also be set at the crossing of fences and streams, and at intervals in the prairie not exceeding a quarter of a mile each; in the timber the course must be indicated by trees suitably blazed.
Bearings.	SEC. 837. (532.) Bearing trees must when convenient be established at each angle and mile post, and the position of the road relative to the corners of sections, the junction of streams, or any other natural or artificial monument or conspicuous object, must as far as convenient be stated in the field notes and shown on the plat.
Plat	SEC. 838. (533.) A correct plat of the road together with a copy of the field notes of the surveyor (if one has been employed) must be filed as a part of the commissioner's report.
Pay.	SEC. 839. (534.) The commissioner shall receive one dollar and fifty cents a day for his services, and the surveyor and assistants such compensation as is agreed upon, being the lowest price for which competent persons can be employed and not exceeding three dollars a day for the surveyor and one dollar and twenty-five cents for the assistants.

SEC. 840. (535.) Upon the filing of the report in favor of the proposed road the court must appoint a day when the matter will be acted upon, which shall not be less than sixty nor more than ninety days distant. Hearing.

SEC. 841. (536.) Within thirty days after the appointment of the day all claims for damages in consequence of the establishment of the road must be made if at all, but where a sufficient excuse for not filing such claim within the time aforesaid is shown by affidavit the claim may be considered if made at any time before final action upon the road, and the time for such final action may thereupon be postponed to a future day if necessary. Damages.

SEC. 842. (537.) Such claims must be in writing and filed in the county office. Same.

SEC. 843. (538.) Upon the filing of such claim the court must appoint three suitable and disinterested voters of the county as appraisers to view the ground on a day fixed by the court and report upon the amount of damages sustained by the claimant after deducting therefrom the benefit he will receive from said road. Appraisers.

SEC. 844. (539.) The court shall cause notice of their appointment to be given to each of these appraisers, fixing the hour at which they are to meet at the office of the clerk of the court or of some justice of the peace therein named. Same.

SEC. 845. (540.) If the appraisers are not all present within one hour of the time thus fixed the court or the justice, as the case may be, may fill the vacancy by the appointment of others. Same.

SEC. 846. (541.) The number being completed they must be sworn to discharge their duty faithfully and impartially.

SEC. 847. (542.) They must file their report before the day appointed as aforesaid for final action upon the establishment of the road. Report.

SEC. 848. (543.) Should the report not be filed in time or should any other good cause for delay exist, the court may postpone the time for final action on the subject and may if expedient appoint other appraisers. Same.

SEC. 849. (544.) The appraisers shall each receive one dollar and fifty cents a day for the time actually employed in the performance of their duties. Pay.

SEC. 850. (545.) Should no damages be awarded to the applicant the whole of the costs growing out of the application for damages shall be paid by him. Costs.

SEC. 851. (546.) When the time for final action in relation to the road arrives, whether application for damages has been made or not, the court may hear testimony and receive petitions for and against the establishment of such road. It may establish or reject the road absolutely or it may make such establishment conditional upon the payment in whole or in part of the damages awarded or the expenses incurred in relation thereto, as the public good may seem to require. Hearing.

SEC. 852. (547.) In the latter case, if the condition is not performed by the time appointed the subject shall come up for a rehearing and new action thereon. Condition.

SEC. 853. (548.) If money is thus advanced to secure the opening of a road a memorandum thereof must be made in the record and the person so advancing it shall receive from the clerk a certificate of such Damages re-funded.

fact. The road shall not thereafter be discontinued without refunding to him or his legal representatives the amount so advanced, without interest.

Same      SEC. 854. (549.) When damages have been paid by the county or by an individual for injury to land in consequence of the establishment of a road the amount must be refunded whenever the road is discontinued, and the claim for such refunding is a lien upon the land for the taking of which damages were given, which may if necessary be sold to liquidate such claim.

ing      SEC. 855. (550.) After the road has been finally established the plat and field notes must be recorded by the clerk, and the supervisor of roads shall be directed to have the same opened and worked according to law.

Opening      SEC. 856. (551.) A reasonable time must be allowed to enable the owners of land to erect the necessary fences adjoining the new road.

Crops      SEC. 857. (552.) Where crops have been sowed or planted before the road is finally established the opening thereof shall be delayed until the crop is harvested.

Con cert      SEC. 858. (553.) Roads may be established without the appointment of a commissioner, provided the written consent of all the proprietors of the land to be used for that purpose be first filed and recorded.

Survey      SEC. 859. (554.) If a survey be necessary to give the road a precise location the expense thereof shall be borne by the county if the road be more than three miles in length.

Minor &c      SEC. 860. (555.) The rights of married women and the interests of minors and insane persons are in such cases and for such purposes under the control of their husbands or guardians.

County line.      SEC. 861. (556.) The establishment of a road either along or across a county line may be effected by the concurrent action of the respective county courts in the mode above prescribed, the commissioners in such cases must act in concert and the road will not be deemed established in either county until it is so in both.

[557) to (612) inclusive are either expressly repealed or impliedly superseded by "an act providing for the election of supervisors and defining their duties," passed Jan. 22, 1853, took effect Feb. 2, 1853, laws of fourth general assembly, chapter 48, page 79, or by "an act to provide for the making and repairing of public highways, and prescribing the duties of township officers in certain cases," which superseded the former, or by "an act defining the mode of laying out, establishing, changing and vacating state roads."]

ty judge      SECTION 862. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all state roads, shall hereafter be established by petition to the county court, as hereinafter provided.

Point's designated      SEC. 863. (2.) All petitions for any state road shall specify the place of beginning, the intermediate points, if any, and the place of termination of said roads.

(Com missioner
appointed      SEC. 864. (3.) On application by petition, signed by at least twenty freeholders of each county, through which it is proposed to establish any state road, the county court of each of said counties shall appoint one disinterested freeholder of his county as commissioner to view and survey said road.

SEC. 865 (4.) Previous to granting an order on any petition presented as aforesaid, one of the parties in each county through which such road may pass, shall execute a bond with two or more responsible freeholders in said county, as securities to the satisfaction of the county court, payable to the state of Iowa, and conditioned for the payment of all expenses which may accrue in the location of said road, in case the same shall not be established a public highway.

Bond given for expenses

SEC. 866. (5.) On the filing of a petition and bond, agreeable to the provisions of this act, which shall be at the same term of court in all the counties interested in the location of the road, the county court of each county, shall issue an order directing the commissioner by them appointed, to meet the commissioners of the other counties or county (as the case may be,) at the place of the beginning of said road, on the first Wednesday of the month then next ensuing, and the commissioners when met as before directed, shall employ a competent surveyor, chain-carriers and a marker, and other assistants, if necessary, and proceed to discharge the duties of their appointments, respectively: provided, that each commissioner, surveyor and chain-carrier, shall before entering on the duties of his appointment, take an oath or affirmation to discharge his duties faithfully, and according to law.

Gardens can not be divided

SEC. 868. (7.) The commissioner appointed to lay out and establish any state road, shall cause the same to be correctly surveyed and marked, through the whole distance, and at each angle of the same, and note the courses and distances thereof, and at the crossing of each road or stream, and at the end of each mile, shall mark the number thereof, on a tree or monument erected by them for that purpose. And the commissioners and surveyor of each ward, shall make a certified return of the survey and plat of the whole length of said road, specifying in said return the distance the same may have been laid out in each county, and whether in their opinion the public convenience requires the establishment of said road or any part thereof. One complete copy of which return shall be signed by a majority of the commissioners and surveyor, and immediately deposited in the office of the county judge of each county in which any part of said road shall be laid out, and the judge of the said county shall file the same in his office.

Manner of survey.

Certificate and plat made out and recorded

SEC. 869. (8.) In case the commissioners report in favor of the establishment of such road, the county court of the respective counties shall, at their next regular term after the filing of said report, cause a notice thereof to be published in one or more newspapers published in the county, or having a general circulation therein for six consecutive weeks before the term at which the matter will be heard, notifying all the parties interested in the establishment of the same, that the respect-

County judge determines the road, upon notice by publication.

- ive county court of the said counties, will hear the parties in favor of, or against the establishment of said road, and the application for damages of any person on account of the location of said road through his or their lands; provided further, that written notices, posted in one or more of the most public places near the line of said road, in each township through which the road may pass, and one such on the door of the court house of said county shall be given in all cases of publication under this act where no newspaper is established within the county.
- Written notices may be given.
- Aggrieved party indemnified.
- Jury appointed to assess damages.
- Jury report.
- County may pay damages.
- Petitioners pay damages
- Road established.
- Compensation of surveyor, &c.
- Paid by county.
- Right of appeal.
- Security given for costs.
- SEC. 870. (9.) If any person or persons shall consider themselves aggrieved by the location of said road through his or their lands, such person or persons shall file with the county judge of the proper county, a petition in writing, setting forth the premises on which they claim damages before the term of court designated in the publication of the notice provided in the preceding section, and said judge shall appoint a jury of three disinterested freeholders of the county, whose duty it shall be, after having taken an oath or affirmation, to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties imposed upon them by this act, to proceed to view the said road the entire distance, the same may have been located through the premises of the complainant or complainants, and of minors, idiots, lunatics or insane persons, and to assess the compensation to be paid in money for the property sought to be appropriated, without regard to the benefits resulting from the location of said road, and they shall report to the next regular term of said court, their doings in the premises, setting forth the amount of damages by them adjudged due to each person or company, and the description of such person or company's land so damaged.
- SEC. 871. (10.) If the county court shall be satisfied the amount so assessed and determined by the jury aforesaid be just and equitable, and that said road or any part thereof, will in their opinion, be of sufficient importance to the public to cause the damages to be paid by the county, they shall order the same to be paid the petitioner, from the county treasury, but if in their opinion the said road is not of sufficient importance to the public to justify the payment of the same by the county, they may refuse to establish the same a public highway, unless the damages and expenses are paid by the petitioners. But if there be no application of damages or the damages are paid by the county or petitioners, then and in either case, the court shall establish the same a public highway, and record the same in the proper record.
- SEC. 872. (11.) The following persons required to render services under this act shall receive compensation for each day they shall necessarily be employed, as follows, to wit: commissioners, two dollars per day, the surveyor three dollars, and chain-carriers, markers and other assistants, one dollar and fifty cents each, to be charged as costs and expenses, and such costs and expenses when so adjudged, shall be paid by the several counties in proportion to the length of time occupied on such road in each county.
- SEC. 873. (12.) An appeal from the final decision of the county court on any petition for damages sustained by the location of any state road, as provided by this act, shall be allowed to the district court of the county in which the land lies; but notice must be given of such appeal within twenty days after said decision was made, and no appeal shall be allowed until the appellant shall have filed a bond, with sufficient security, approved by the county judge, for the payment of all costs occasioned by such appeal, in case he does not obtain a better or more favorable judgment in said court than he obtained of the county court, and the county judge shall, within ten days from the time such appeal was taken, deliver to said court a full transcript of all proceedings had before the county court, and on the receipt of such transcript, the court or clerk shall notify four of the petitioners whose names appear first upon the petition asking said road, that can be found in the county, and such notices may be served in the same manner as notices of appeal in other cases, and in such suits the appellant shall be plaintiff, and if the county court has ordered the damages to be paid from the county treasury, then the county shall be defendant, if not then the four petitioners above mentioned shall be defendants, and the final decision of said court shall be certified to the county judge, and by him recorded, which decision shall be final except as hereinafter provided.

Plaintiff and defendant.

SEC. 874. (13.) In all cases of appeal from the final decision of the county court, as provided in the twelfth section of this act, the appellant or appellants shall pay all costs that may accrue in consequence of said appeal, unless the judgment in the district court shall exceed in amount the award rendered by the jury appointed by the county court.

Appellant pays.

SEC. 875. (14.) If upon the reception of the decision obtained in the district court, the county court shall not deem such road of sufficient importance to cause the expenses incurred and damages assessed in the district court, to be paid by the county, he may refuse to establish the same unless the parties interested in the location of said road, shall pay or cause to be paid, before the opening of said road, to the satisfaction of the county court, in case said road is established a highway, all expenses incurred and damages assessed: provided however, it shall be lawful for the county court, if in their opinion a part only of said road will be of public utility, to record and establish such useful part, and reject the residue, in case it be capable of division.

Excessive costs stops the road.

Road districts formed. SECTION 880. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the township trustees of the several townships of this state shall meet on the first Monday of October, A. D., 1858, and every subsequent year thereafter, and divide their respective townships into such number of road districts as they may deem necessary for the public good.

Election of supervisor. SEC. 881. (2.) There shall be elected at the general election in the fall of 1858, and annually thereafter, one supervisor for each road district within the several townships of this state, who shall hold his office for one year, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Said supervisor must reside in the district for which he was elected, and in the election of said supervisor no elector shall vote for more than one supervisor, and none other than the one residing in the district where such elector resides, but no person shall be required to serve as supervisor who is exempt by this act from performing labor on the highway.

Supervisor notified and qualified. SEC. 882. (3.) Said election shall be conducted as other elections, and it shall be the duty of the township clerk to notify said supervisor elect, within five days after said election, and said supervisor elect, thus notified, shall appear before the township clerk within ten days thereafter, and give bond and take the oath of office as required by the constitution of the state of Iowa.

Penalty for refusing to qualify. SEC. 883. (4.) Any supervisor elect, after having been notified as required in section three of this act, who shall fail to appear before said township clerk (unless prevented by sickness) within the specified time, and give bond and take the oath of office as required by this act, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five dollars, and in case of his failing or refusing to pay the same, it shall be the duty of his successor in office to collect the said amount by suit or otherwise, and apply the same to the repairing of roads in his district.

Supervisor gives bond. SEC. 884. (5.) Each supervisor so elected shall be required to give bond in such sum and with such security as the township clerk may deem requisite, conditioned that he will faithfully and impartially perform all the duties devolving upon him, and appropriate all moneys that may come into his hands by virtue of his office according to law, which bond shall be kept by the township clerk among the papers of his office. And in the event of a vacancy occurring in any road district within his township, it shall be the duty of the township clerk to fill such vacancy by appointment as soon as notified of the same.

Men required to work on road. SEC. 885. (6.) Each supervisor shall require all the able-bodied male residents of his district between the ages of twenty-one and forty-five to perform two days' labor upon the public highway between the first day of April and the first day of July of each year as hereinafter provided.

Notice of commencement. SEC. 886. (7.) The supervisor shall be required to give at least three days' notice previous to the day or days designated to work the roads to all persons in his district subject to work, as required in section six of this act, what day he will superintend the work on the roads within his district, and all persons so notified must meet said supervisor or at such time and place, and with such tools, implements and teams Tools brought as said supervisor may designate, and shall labor diligently under the direction of the supervisor, for eight hours each day, and for such two days' labor performed, the supervisor shall give to the person a certificate, which certificate shall be evidence that such person has performed labor on the public highway as required by section six of this act, and shall exempt such person from performing labor in payment of road-poll tax in that or any other road district within this state for this same year: provided, that any person furnishing a good team, consisting of two horses or their equivalent, shall be allowed the same for the team that is allowed for able-bodied men per day.

SEC. 887. (8.) Each person made liable to perform labor on the public highway by section six of this act, who shall fail or neglect to attend either in person or by satisfactory substitute at the time and place appointed with the designated tool, implement or team, having had three days' notice thereof, or having attended, shall spend his time in idleness, or disobey the supervisor, or [*fail to**] furnish to said supervisor within five days thereafter some satisfactory excuse for not so attending, shall forfeit and pay to said supervisor the sum of one dollar and twenty-five cents for each day's delinquency, and in case of a failure to pay such forfeit within ten days, it is hereby made the duty of such supervisor to recover the same by action of debt in the name of the supervisor, before any justice of the peace in the proper township, which money when collected shall be immediately expended on the public highway. Penalty for absence, idleness and disobedience.

SEC. 888. (9.) The supervisor shall perform the same amount of labor as is required of an able-bodied man, for which he shall be allowed the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per day, including the time necessarily spent in notifying the hands and making out his returns, which sum shall be paid out of the road fund after deducting his two days' work required by section six of this act, and road tax for that year: provided, that where there is no money in the hands of the clerk with which to pay the said supervisor, he shall be entitled to receive a certificate from the township clerk for the amount of labor performed, after deducting as above required, which certificate shall be received in payment of his own road tax for any succeeding year. The pay of supervisor

SEC. 889. (10.) For the purpose of enabling the supervisors to determine the precise location of the various roads in their respective districts, it is hereby made the duty of the county judge of each county of this state to furnish each of the township clerks of his county within three months after the taking effect of this act, with a map on a scale of not less than two inches to the mile, of their respective townships, on which map shall be plainly marked all roads which are at the time of making such maps legal roads, which map shall be carefully preserved among the papers of his office. And it is further made the duty of the county judge immediately after the establishing of any new road, to notify the township clerks of the townships in which said road has been located, of the location of the same, and also to furnish a copy of the field notes thereof, and the clerk shall immediately mark the same on the map in his office. Maps of roads furnished
Plan of new road furnished

SEC. 890. (11.) The township clerk shall furnish each supervisor of his township with a map of his district, which map shall contain all the legal roads in said district, and when any new road shall have been established, it shall be the duty of the township clerk to notify each of the supervisors whose district is affected by said new road, and also to Maps of districts furnished furnish a copy of the field notes of the same, which new road shall be immediately marked on the map of said district in his possession.

Road tax determined.

SEC. 891. (12.) The township trustees of each organized township, shall, at an annual meeting to be holden on the second Monday of April in each year, or as soon thereafter as the assessment book is received by the clerk, determine upon the additional amount of property tax to be levied for roads, bridges, plows and scrapers, and levy the same, which shall not be less than one nor more than three mills on the dollar on the amount of the township assessment of that year: provided, that when incorporated cities are by act of incorporation heretofore passed and made road districts, this act shall not interfere with such districts, but the same shall be under the control of such city.

Tax lists for each district made out

SEC. 892. (13.) The township clerk shall within four weeks after such levy make out a tax list for each road district in his township, which list shall be in tabular form and in alphabetical order, having distinct columns for lands, town lots and personal property, and carry out in a column the amount of the tax on each piece of land and town lot, and on the amount of personal property belonging to each individual, and to enable the township clerk to make out such tax list, it is hereby made the duty of the assessor to furnish the township clerk of each township in the several counties of this state, on or before the first day of April of each year, with a correct copy of the assessment lists of said township for that year, which list shall be the basis of such tax list. It shall be the duty of the county judge to furnish the several township clerks of his county with printed blanks necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act.

Supervisor authorized to collect tax.

SEC. 893. (14.) The township clerk shall make an entry upon such tax list showing what it is, for what road district and for what year, and shall attach to the list his warrant under his hand, in general terms requiring the supervisor of such district to collect the taxes therein charged as herein provided, and no informality in the above requirements shall render any proceedings for the collection of such taxes illegal. The clerk is hereby required to cause such lists to be delivered to the proper supervisors of his township by the first day of May next after the levy, take his receipt therefor, and such list shall be full and sufficient authority for the supervisor to collect all taxes therein charged against resident property-holders in his district.

List delivered.

Road tax posted.

SEC. 894. (15.) The supervisor shall within ten days after receiving such tax list, post up in three conspicuous places within his district written notices of the amount of road tax assessed to each tax payer in said district.

Price of labor.

SEC. 895. (16.) The township trustees shall at their annual meeting on the second Monday of April in each year determine the sum that will be allowed for a day's labor, and also the sum that will be allowed for a man and team per day, and the township clerk shall immediately notify each of the supervisors in his township of such determination.

Notice of time to work roads.

SEC. 896. (17.) The supervisor shall be required to give at least three days notice previous to the day designated to work the roads to all persons in his district charged with a road tax, of the day or days he will superintend the work on the roads within his district, and all persons so notified must meet said supervisor at such time and place with such tools, implements and teams, as said supervisor may designate, having such tools and implements in his possession, and in case of a failure to attend either in person or by satisfactory substitute at such time and place, or send a reasonable excuse within five days thereafter for not so doing, the supervisor shall immediately commence suit for the collection of the tax which such person is liable to pay, and expend the same as soon as collected on the public highways in his district.

SEC. 897. (18.) The supervisors of the several districts of each township shall report to the township clerk on the first Monday of October in each year, which report shall embrace the following items: Annual receipt of the supervisor.

1. The names of all persons in his district required by section six of this act to perform labor on the public highway, and the amount performed by each.

2. The names of all persons against whom suits have been brought, as required by section eight of this act, and the amount collected of each.

3. The names of all persons who have paid their property road tax in labor, and the amount paid by each.

4. The names of all persons against whom suits have been brought for the collection of road taxes, and the amount collected from each.

5. The names of all persons who have paid their road tax in money, and the amount paid by each.

6. A correct list of all non-resident lands and town lots on which the road tax has been paid, and the amount paid on each.

7. A correct list of all non-resident lands and town lots on which the road tax has not been paid, and the amount of tax on each piece.

8. The amount of all moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his office, and from what sources.

9. The manner in which the moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his office has been expended, and the amount, if any, in his possession.

10. The number of days he has been faithfully employed in the discharge of his duty.

11. The condition of the roads in his district, and such other items and suggestions as said supervisor may wish to make, which report shall be signed and sworn to by said supervisor and filed by the township clerk among the papers of his office.

SEC. 898. (19.) The township clerk shall immediately after the filing of the report as required in the foregoing section, make out a correct list of all non-resident land and town lots on which the road tax has not been paid, and the amount of tax charged on each piece of land and town lot, designating the district in which said land or town lot is situated, and transmit a certified copy of the same to the county judge of the proper county, which shall be immediately placed in the hands of the county treasurer, who shall collect the same in the same manner that county taxes are collected, and in case of the clerk failing or neglecting to make such return, he shall forfeit and pay to the use of the township for road purposes, a sum equal to the amount of tax on said land, which may be collected by suit on his official bond, commenced in the name of the township by the trustees thereof before any court having competent jurisdiction. Non-resident road tax collected

SEC. 899. (20.) The supervisor shall cause two-thirds of the property tax in his district to be worked out between the first day of May and the first day of July of each year, and the remaining one-third whenever he thinks the condition of the roads demand it, but in all cases before the first day of October of that year. Penalty for neglect to make return.

SEC. 900. (21.) Any supervisor failing or neglecting to perform the several duties required by this act, shall forfeit and pay for the use of the road fund in his district, the sum of one hundred dollars; and it is hereby made the duty of the township clerk in case of such failure or Time of working roads. Neglect of supervisor punished.

- neglect, to commence suit in his name for the collection of the same before any justice of the peace within the proper township.
- Timber may be taken. SEC. 901. (22.) The supervisor is authorized to take timber or other material for the use of the road from any unenclosed lands in the neighborhood of which the road passes, but he is not permitted to cut down or injure any tree growing by the wayside which does not obstruct the road, and which stands in front of any town lot or enclosure or cultivated field, or any ground reserved for any public use, where such tree is intended to be preserved for shade or ornament by the proprietor of the land on or adjacent to which the tree is so standing, and the person owning such timber or material thus taken, shall be paid out of any of the road fund in the hands of the supervisor, a fair value therefor, and in case there be no money in the hands of such supervisor, then such supervisor shall give him a certificate stating the amount, kind and value of such material taken, which certificate shall be received for the payment of his road tax for that or any succeeding year, to the amount thereof.
- Shade trees protected. SEC. 902. (23.) When notified in writing that any bridge or other portion of the public road is unsafe or impassable, the supervisor thus notified shall be liable for all damage resulting from the unsafe or impassable condition of the road or bridge, after allowing a reasonable time for repairing the same.
- Pay for timber. SEC. 903. (24.) For making such extraordinary repairs, the supervisor may call out any or all the able bodied men of the district in which they are to be made, but not more than two days at any one time without their consent, and persons so called out shall be entitled to receive a certificate from the supervisor certifying the number of days of labor performed, which certificate shall be received for road tax for that or any succeeding year, at the rate per day established for that year.
- Damage for unsafe bridges. SEC. 904. (25.) If any able bodied man when duly summoned for any such purpose, fails to appear and labor diligently by himself or his substitute, or send satisfactory excuse therefor, he is liable to a fine of ten dollars, to be recovered by suit before any justice of the peace in the name of the district and for the use of the road fund of said district: provided, in all cases, the person so notified shall have the privilege of paying the value of such work immediately in money.
- Persons summoned to repair bridge. SEC. 905. (26.) It is the duty of the supervisor to remove obstructions in the public highways caused by fences or otherwise, but he must not throw down or remove fences which do not directly obstruct the travel upon the highway, until not to exceed six months' notice has been given to the owner of the land enclosed in part by such fence.
- Fine for neglect to attend. SEC. 906. (27.) When any owner or occupant of land adjoining and abutting upon any road or highway, may desire to plant a hedge upon the line of any road, he shall be allowed to build or remove his fence upon such road or highway: provided, he shall not build or remove his fence more than ten feet within the outer line of said road, and that unless the said road be sixty feet wide the fence shall not be built or removed upon both sides at the same time. Such owner or occupant shall not be allowed to occupy such highway as aforesaid for more than five years, and not more than one year before such hedge shall be planted, and at the expiration of such time he shall remove such fence, upon the order of the supervisor of the district where such road is situated.
- Obstructions removed. SEC. 907. (28.) It shall be the duty of the supervisor to keep the roads in as good condition as the funds at his disposal will permit, and to place guide boards at the forks of the roads in his district, and shall be furnished with money to do the same.
- Provision for growing hedges.
- Condition of roads.

SEC. 908. (29.) Persons meeting each other on any of the public highways of this state, shall give one-half of the same by turning to the right. All persons failing to observe the provisions of this section shall be liable to pay all damages resulting therefrom, together with a fine not exceeding five dollars, to be appropriated to the repairing of roads in the district where the violation occurred. Fine for not giving half the road.

SEC. 909. (30.) The supervisors are hereby required to meet the township trustees at their regular meeting on the first Monday in October of each year, and have a final settlement of all their accounts connected with the road fund and with the affairs of their office as supervisor; and after the payment of the supervisor, the trustees shall order the distribution of the road fund in the hands of the township clerk as they may deem expedient for road purposes, and the township clerk shall pay the same out as ordered by the trustees. The township clerk shall be entitled to five per cent. on all moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his office, and shall be required at least once in each year to make settlement with the county judge, producing vouchers for all moneys paid out by him, specifying for what, and to whom paid. Annual settlement of supervisor.
Pay of clerk.

SEC. 910. (31.) The township clerk of each township shall be required by the county judge of his county to give bond, to be approved by the judge in the sum of twice the amount of the road tax in his township, when the county judge shall give an order to said clerk on the county treasurer for all moneys collected by him as road taxes upon all property within and for his township, upon the payment of which by the treasurer, he shall take from said township clerk duplicate receipts for the sum thus paid him, one of which receipts said treasurer shall deliver over to the county judge to be filed by him among the papers of his office, and said judge shall charge the same to the account of the said clerk upon the road book. Clerk gives bond and draws money.

SEC. 911. (32.) The township clerk shall be allowed the sum of one dollar and fifty cents per day for all days necessarily employed in the discharge of the duties of his office, which account after being signed and sworn to, shall be audited and paid out of the county treasury as other accounts are audited and paid. Pay of clerk.

SEC. (33.) [Obsolete.]

SEC. 912. (34.) All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. Conflicting acts repealed

An Act to authorize the Resurvey of Roads.

SECTION 913. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That when by reason of the loss or destruction of the field notes of the original survey, or in cases of defective surveys or record, or in cases of such numerous alterations of any public highway since the original survey, that its location can not be accurately defined by the papers on file in the proper office, that the county judge of the proper county may, if he deem it necessary, cause such road or roads to be re-surveyed, platted and recorded as hereinafter provided. Re-survey.

SEC. 914. (2.) That a copy of the field notes together with a plat of any highway surveyed under the provisions of this act, shall be filed in the office of the county judge, and thereupon the county judge shall give public notice by publication in some newspaper published within the county, or if no paper is published in his county, by posting such notice in five of the most public places in the vicinity of such survey, that such survey has been made and that at some term of the county court not less than twenty days from the publication, he will unless good cause be shown against so doing, approve of such survey and plat, and order them to be recorded as in cases of the original establishment of a public highway.

hear complaints.

SEC. 915. (3.) In case objections shall be made by any person claiming to be injured by the survey made, the county judge shall have full power to hear and determine upon the matter, and may, if deemed advisable, order a change to be made in the survey, upon the final determination of the county judge, or in case no objection be made at the term of the court named in the said notice of the survey, he shall approve of the same, and cause the field notes and plat of the highway to be recorded as in cases of the establishment or alteration of highways, and thereafter such record shall be received by all courts as conclusive proof of the establishment and existence of such highway, according to such survey and plat.

CHAPTER 47.

SWAMP LANDS.*

ARTICLE 1.

An Act in relation to the Swamp Lands within the State of Iowa.

[Passed Feb. 5, 1851, took effect Feb. 26, 1851; Third Session, Chapter 69, page 169]

SECTION 918. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the commissioner of the state land office is authorized to take such steps as he thinks necessary, in order to secure to the state, the swamp lands granted by the act of congress of the 28th of September, 1850, entitled "An act to enable the state of Arkansas and other states, to reclaim the swamp lands within their limits." Commissioner to secure swamp lands.

SEC. 919. (2.) For this purpose the commissioner when he has reason to believe there is any tract of swamp land within this state not reported as such by the United States surveyor, sufficient to justify a Commissioner to direct county surveyors to examine, &c.

* It is thought best to give all the laws upon this subject and they are here inserted.

more particular examination, he shall direct the county surveyor of any county, in which said lands may be located, to make the examination, and provide the proofs necessary to secure such lands to the state, a list of which shall be returned to the land commissioner, or the authority acting in that capacity, verified by affidavit, for which services the surveyor is entitled to two dollars per day for each and every day actually employed; and for the purposes of this act, any unorganized county attached to another for election purposes in which an election precinct is organized, is declared to be a part of such organized county.

on the governor.

SEC. 920. (3.) Previous to the election and qualification of the commissioner of the land office, the duties above prescribed shall devolve upon the governor, whose duty it shall be to procure from the surveyor general's office a list of the lands returned to that office as swamp lands, and take other steps in the premises as in his opinion are necessary to secure the best interests of this state.

Compensation,

SEC. 921. (4.) All compensation for services rendered, or expenses incurred, in carrying out the provisions of this act, must be made out of the proceeds of the sales of the said swamp lands.

Surveyor may
levies, &c.

SEC. 922. (5.) Subject to the approval of the governor, the county surveyor is authorized to contract with individuals or companies for making the levies or drains necessary to reclaim any of the swamp lands of the state, by giving them a portion of the lands thus reclaimed or a portion of the proceeds thereof.

Commissioner
lands.

SEC. 923. (6.) The commissioner may dispose of any of the swamp lands of the state, for such price as he may think them worth, as herein provided; for the purpose of ascertaining said value, the county surveyor and sheriff in any county in which such lands are located, may upon the direction of the commissioner, appraise such lands in such manner as the school lands are now appraised, for which they are to receive a sum not exceeding two dollars per day each, for all the time actually and necessarily expended in making examination and appraisal.

Proceeds.

SEC. 924. (7.) The proceeds of the sales of such lands after paying all expenses incurred in selecting, appraising, selling and reclaiming such lands as are deemed worthy of reclaiming, shall be paid into the state treasury, subject to the disposition of the general assembly.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to dispose of the swamp and overflowed lands within the state, and to pay the expenses of selecting and surveying the same.

[Passed Jan. 13, 1853, took effect Feb. 2, 1853; Laws of Fourth General Assembly, Chapter 13, page 29]*

Swamp lands.

SECTION 925. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all the swamp and overflowed lands granted to the state of Iowa by the act of congress entitled an act to enable the state of Arkansas and other states to reclaim the swamp lands within their limits, approved September 28th, 1850, be, and the same are hereby granted to the counties respectively in which the same may lie, or be situated, for the purpose of constructing the necessary levees and drains, to reclaim the same—and the balance of said lands, if any there be after the same are reclaimed as aforesaid, shall be applied to the building of roads and bridges, when necessary, through, or across said lands, and

Granted to the

SEC. 926. (2.) Whenever it shall appear that any of the lands granted to the state by the aforesaid act of congress, shall have been sold by the United States since the passage of that act, it shall be lawful for the said counties to convey said lands to the purchasers thereof.

The deed shall be made by the county court as such, and countersigned by the clerk of said court, with the official seal thereof affixed, and on delivering said deed to the purchaser, the county court shall take from him an assignment of all his rights in the premises, and as such assignee, the said court shall be authorized to receive from the United States the purchase money of said land; and whenever any lands embraced by the said act have been located by bounty land warrants, since the passage thereof, it shall be lawful for such county in which the same are situated, to convey the same, in the manner aforesaid to the person, or persons who located said warrant, and take an assignment of the same to the county court which shall thereupon be considered as grantee of the state, and as such may locate said warrant on any of the public lands belonging to the United States, within the limits of said county.

SEC. 927. (3.) In all those counties where the county surveyor has made no examinations and reports of the swamp lands within his county, in compliance with the instructions from the governor, the county court shall at the next regular term thereof, after the taking effect of this act, appoint some competent person, who shall as soon as may be thereafter, after having been duly sworn for that purpose, proceed to examine said lands, and make due report, and plats, upon which the topography of the country shall be carefully noted, and the places where drains or levees ought to be made, marked on the said plats, to the county courts respectively, which courts shall transmit to the proper officers, lists of all said swamp lands in each of the counties in order to procure the proper recognition of the same, on the part of the United States, which lists, after an acknowledgement of the same by the general government shall be recorded in a well bound book provided for that purpose, and filed among the records of the county court.

SEC. 928. (4.) The said lands shall be under the care, and superintendence of the county courts of the counties respectively, in which the same are situated, and at the next April* election, there shall be elected an officer to be styled drainage commissioner of the county of ———, who shall within twenty days after his said election, enter into a bond with good security, to be approved by the county court, payable to the people of the state of Iowa, for the use of the inhabitants of the county of ———, in the penal sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties required of him, or which may hereafter be required of him by law.

SEC. 929. (5.) It shall be the duty of the surveyors in the several counties in this state who have surveyed, or shall survey the said swamp and overflowed lands in their respective counties, to make out plats of all the swamp, and overflowed lands in the several townships, and fractional townships within their counties, noting distinctly upon the same every tract, or parcel of swamp and overflowed land in each township, the quantity, and quality thereof, as to whether the same be first—second—or third rate, and it shall be his duty to return the same as soon as practicable, and in reasonable time to the clerk's office of the county Court to fix time of sale; order of sale of lands.	SEC. 930. (6.) After the surveyors have returned the plats aforesaid, the valuations have been made, and recorded as aforesaid, the said court shall fix upon the proper time for selling said lands, which shall in all cases be at the county seat, and at the court house door of the several counties. The said courts may order the whole of said lands to be sold, and the sale to be continued from day to day, or they may order a part only of said lands to be sold from time to time, as they may deem expedient, and all such orders, so made by them, shall be entered on record in said book.

Sale, notice of.	SEC. 931. (7.) The said drainage commissioner shall be notified in writing by the clerk of all such orders, and within reasonable time thereafter, not exceeding ten days, he shall give at least forty days' notice of the time, and place of sale thereof, by publishing the same in some newspaper printed in the county, or if there be no such newspaper, then by posting up two notices thereof in each election precinct in the county, for the like period of forty days before said day of sale. The said notices shall contain an accurate description of the lands to be sold, and shall specify the time, place, and terms thereof, and that the sale will be at public auction, between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and five o'clock P. M. of the day fixed therefor, and that the same will be continued from day to day, if deemed necessary.

Order of sale.	SEC. 932. (8.) In conducting the sales the said commissioner shall sell the same in such order as may be directed by the county court . No tract shall be sold for less than its valuation, and the same shall be cried separately, and long enough to enable any one to bid who desires it.
Terms of sale.	SEC. 933. (9.) The terms of selling said lands shall be to the highest bidder, for cash, the amount of which, however, may be discharged by the purchaser in labor, to be performed, in manner and according to the terms hereinafter specified.
Labor.
Payment.	SEC. 934. (10.) Upon closing the sales each day—the purchasers shall each pay, or secure the purchase money, according to the terms of sale, or in case of his failure to do so by ten o'clock the succeeding day, the tract purchased shall be again offered at public sale on the same terms as before, and if the valuation shall be bid, the same shall be, stricken off, but if the valuation be not bid, the tract shall be set down as not sold. If sale is not made, the former purchaser shall be required to pay the difference between his bid, and the valuation of the tract, and in case of his failure to make such payment, the drainage commissioner may forthwith institute an action of debt, or assumpsit in his name ,* for the use of the inhabitants of the proper county, for the required sum, and upon making proof, shall be entitled to judgment, with costs of suit, which when collected shall be applied as other moneys arising from the sale of lands.

Sections.

Contract.

SEC. 938. (14.) The said county court shall cause the work to be done on the said sections to be let out at public sale to the lowest responsible bidder, and it shall be the duty of the drainage commissioner, on being ordered by said court so to do, to give at least four weeks' notice of the time and place of such lettings, by putting up notices thereof in six of the most public places in the county, and in case there shall be a newspaper printed in the county, then, by causing a similar notice thereof to be published in the same, for a like period of four successive weeks before the day of such lettings, and the said notices shall contain specifications of the work to be done, to be made out under the direction and control of the county court, provided that two or more counties may reclaim swamp lands in conjunction, and in such case each county shall make payment in proportion to the amount of lands reclaimed in said county.

Lettings.

SEC. 939. (15.) The persons to whom said lettings shall be struck off shall enter into bond, with good security, payable to the said commissioner, for the use of the inhabitants of the county, in the penal sum of double the value of his bid, conditioned for the faithful performance of the work so undertaken by him, according to the specifications thereof, and on a failure to comply with the condition thereof said bond shall be forfeited, and suit brought upon the same to recover damages for non-compliance.

for their lands in cash, or credit by giving mortgage and good security for the purchase money, at the discretion of the said drainage commissioner. But no such credit shall be given for a greater length of time than twelve months, and shall draw interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

Sales limited.

SEC. 941. (17.) The said county courts shall not dispose or sell any more of said lands than shall be absolutely necessary to complete the reclaiming, and draining of the same, and in all cases where there are any lands remaining unsold after the completing of said draining in any county, they shall be expended in the building of roads and bridges through or across said swamp lands, under the direction and superintendence of the drainage commissioner, and if said lands are not needed for this purpose, then to be disposed of in the construction of roads and bridges within the county.

Roads and bridges.

Embezzlement.

SEC. 942. (18.) If any drainage commissioner, or other person shall embezzle, or appropriate to their own use any money, bonds, bills, notes, or mortgages belonging to the drainage fund of any county in this state, he, she, or they shall be liable to indictment, and on conviction shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary of this state, for a period not less than one, nor more than five years, and such conviction shall work a forfeiture of office in all cases.

Private sale.

SEC. 943. (19.) All lands not sold at public sales as herein provided for, shall be subject to sale at any time thereafter at the valuation, and the clerk of the county court is authorized and required to sell all such lands at private sale upon the terms upon which they were offered at public sale, the money to be paid over to the drainage commissioner, and his receipt taken therefor.

Terms.

Accounts verified.

SEC. 944. (20.) The surveyor shall be required to file in the office of the clerk of the county court an affidavit setting forth the number of days he was actually, and necessarily employed, and the number of days that each person [naming such person] was actually, and necessarily employed by him, and when a team was employed, the number of days such team was actually, and necessarily employed in examining the swamp, and overflowed lands, and in making out plats, and descriptions of the same.

Payment.

SEC. 945. (21.) When accounts are proved, and filed in such manner as shall be satisfactory to the county courts, the clerk of said court is hereby authorized, and required to issue a county order for the amount thereof, in favor of the persons entitled thereto, or on their written order, the amounts authorized by this act to be paid, are hereby appropriated: provided, that the clerk of the county court shall charge the several amounts so paid to the drainage fund of the several counties, and the same shall be a debt due, and owing from such fund to the counties, and it is hereby made the duty of the drainage commissioners, to pay out of the first moneys received from the sale of lands, to the treasurers of the several counties the said amounts so charged by the clerk against such drainage fund as aforesaid.

A Bill to prevent Trespass or Waste on Swamp or other Lands in the State of Iowa, and for other purposes.

- Trespass. SECTION 965. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That whenever the county judge of any county shall become satisfied that trespass or waste, by cutting wood or carrying it away, or in any other manner, has been, within six months then past, or is then being committed on any swamp or overflowed lands, situate in, and belonging to, such county, and which have been properly selected according to law, and the returns thereof made to such county judge by the selecting officer, it shall be the duty of said county judge to issue a warrant to the sheriff of his county, or to some other officer directing said sheriff, or officer, to arrest and bring before him, forthwith, the person or persons charged in said warrant with having committed trespass or waste, as aforesaid, or any person then committing the same: provided, that this section shall not be construed as authorizing a warrant for trespass to be issued against any person for cutting or carrying away wood on swamp or overflowed lands, which such person shall have entered at any United States land office, or against any person who has acquired a bona fide pre-emption right to any of said lands, under the subsequent provisions of this act.
- Warrant.
- Arrest.
- Proviso.
- Subpœna. SEC. 966. (2.) It shall be the duty of the county judge, at the time of issuing said warrant, to issue a subpœna to any person or persons, who may be cognizant of trespass or waste committed in violation of this act, requiring such person or persons to appear before him forthwith, to testify in relation to the matter; which subpœna shall be served by the sheriff of the county, or some other officer, deputed by the county judge.
- Trial. SEC. 967. (3.) On the appearance of the person or persons arrested under said warrant the county judge shall proceed to hear testimony in the case, and if the person or persons so arrested shall be found guilty of committing trespass or waste contrary to the provisions of this act he or each of them, if more than one is arrested, shall be adjudged to pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or to be imprisoned in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days at the discretion of said judge: provided, that any person so arrested shall be entitled to be tried by a jury of six disinterested residents of the county, if he or they require it, and the county judge shall have authority to commit such person to the county jail until the fine and costs adjudged against him shall be paid.*
- Fine and imprisonment.
- Jury.
- Fines, how disposed of. SEC. 968. (4.) All fines so inflicted shall inure to the use of the school fund, and be paid to the person having charge of that fund in the county, after deducting from the same the amount of costs which may have been paid by the county, in cases of failure, to sustain any previous action commenced under this act; and the costs in prosecutions under this act, shall be the same as the costs in similar prosecutions before a justice of the peace.
- Mandate to prevent removal of timber. SEC. 969. (5.) It shall be the further duty of the county judge of each county, whenever he may suspect that trespass or waste has been committed, as mentioned in the first section of this act, to issue his mandate to the sheriff of his county, or to some other officer therein, to restrain and prevent all persons from carrying away wood or timber, that may have been cut on any of the swamp or overflowed lands above specified; and to take possession of such wood or timber, and dispose of the same by public or private sale, at the discretion of the sheriff, or officer serving the writ, and return the proceeds thereof to the county treasurer.

SEC. 970. (6.) It is further made the duty of the county judge of Suit for damages. the several counties, to sue for damages, in the name, and for the use of, their respective counties, in the proper district court, any person who shall have committed trespass or waste, in violation of the provisions of Trespass or waste. this act: provided, that it shall be discretionary with said judges to proceed against such person either by criminal prosecution, or civil suit, as above provided, or both.

SEC. 971. (7.) Any person convicted of trespass or waste, before Appeal. the county judge, as above specified, may take an appeal to the proper district court, by giving bond and security to the satisfaction of the county judge, in the usual penalty and condition, with the further condition that he will not, in the meantime, and until the decision of said district court in the matter, commit further waste or trespass as above specified.

SEC. 972. (8.) The foregoing provisions are extended to all school,* All state lands. university, or other lands belonging to the state, so far as the same may be applicable.

SEC. 973. (9.) Any person who shall have a bona fide claim, by Pre-emption. actual settlement or improvement upon any of the swamp or overflowed lands in this state, which shall have been selected, and the returns thereof made to the county judge, as specified in the first section of this act; and any bona fide assignee of such person shall be allowed to enter the same by paying into the county treasury of the proper county the sum of one dollar and a quarter per acre therefor, as hereinafter provided: provided, that such person, or his assignee, shall first prove such claim, before the proper county judge, within ninety days after the first day of March, 1855: provided further, that in any county in which the proper returns shall not have been made to the county judge thereof, by the selecting officer, such person shall have ninety days after the time at which said returns shall be made, wherein to prove his said claim.

SEC. 974. (10.) Any person desirous of perfecting his said claim, Perfecting right of pre-emption. and of receiving the benefit of a pre-emption right to any swamp or overflowed lands above specified, shall be entitled to the same, by proving his claim, within the time specified in the eighth† section of this act to the satisfaction of the proper county judge, by any testimony which shall be satisfactory to said judge; and in case the claimant's right is contested by another, said judge shall appoint a day, when he will hear the evidence on both sides, and he shall make such decision in the case as he may deem right, and award costs in his discretion; and he shall give to the successful claimant a certificate of pre-emption: provided, Amount that no person shall receive a certificate for more than one hundred and sixty acres of land, which may be situate in two distinct tracts, one to consist of prairie, and one of timber: provided, that the timber tract shall not exceed eighty acres. [Passed March 22, 1858, took effect April 7, 1858; Laws of the Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 100, page 198.]

Pre-emption prior to 1857 not forfeited. SECTION 979. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in all cases where any person had acquired a bona fide pre-emption claim to any swamp land of this state, under the laws heretofore in force, and who was, in good faith residing on the same on the fifth day of September, 1857, such person shall not be held to have forfeited the same in consequence of not having proved up such pre-emption in accordance with such law: provided, he shall produce his evidence and prove up the same in accordance with the laws in force prior to the fifth day of September, 1857, and within six months from the day this act goes into force: and provided further, that no certificate of pre-emption has been granted for the land so claimed to any other person.

Must prove up within 6 months.

County judge hear and determine.

SEC. 980. (2.) It shall be the duty of the county judge when application is made for a pre-emption under this act, to hear and determine upon the same within thirty days from the date of the application, and shall notify the applicant at the time of his making his application, of the day upon which he will hear the testimony in the case. If the proof shall be deemed sufficient, the county judge shall issue a certificate of pre-emption in favor of the claimant to lands claimed, or to such portion of them as he shall have sustained his claim for a pre-emption to.

Issue certificate.

SEC. 981. (3.) The several county judges, in all cases where any person now holds, or may hereafter fairly acquire certificates of pre-emption to swamp lands in accordance with the laws heretofore in force, or in accordance with this act, shall be required to quit-claim the county interest to the persons holding said certificates of pre-emption, or the lawful assignees under the same, on payment or tender of payment of the said county judge, the price per acre named in such certificate, at any time within six months from the passage of this act; or if said certificate is granted after the passage of this act, six months from the date thereof.

County judge quit-claims the interest of the county.

ARTICLE 10.

An Act making an Appropriation for Swamp Land purposes.

SECTION 982. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the governor is hereby authorized to appoint an agent to proceed to Washington to effect an adjustment and settlement for the different counties in the state, of their swamp land business, and also one or more to have the swamp and overflowed lands selected in the new and unorganized counties of the state; and for defraying the expenses of the same there be, and hereby is appropriated from the treasury of the state, the sum of two thousand dollars.

Appropriates $2000.

SEC. 983. (2.) That when the general government shall issue the scrip, and refund the money to the state, contemplated by the act of congress of 2d March, 1855, and patent to the state the lands accruing by virtue of the act of congress of 28th September, 1850, the governor, register of state land office, and the agent of the county, if any, shall constitute a board to ascertain what amount of said land, money and scrip, is due the different counties in the state, and when so ascertained the same shall be subject to the order of the county judges, or other proper authorities in the county.

Apportion scrip.

SEC. 984. (3.) That the two thousand dollars hereby appropriated be refunded the state with ten per cent. interest from date of same, each county paying an amount proportionate to its share of the lands, scrip and money received, to be ascertained and withheld by said board and paid over to the state treasury.

Counties refund to the state.

SEC. 985. (4.) Any laws inconsistent with, or contrary to this act, are hereby repealed.

Repeal.

ARTICLE 11.

An Act to authorize the Counties to use the Swamp Lands to and in the construction of Railroads and Seminary Buildings.

SECTION 986. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it shall be competent and lawful for the counties

Swamp lands diverted to railroads, &c.

- owning swamp and overflowed lands, to devote the same or the proceeds thereof, either in whole or in part to the erection of public buildings for the purpose of education, the building of bridges, roads and highways, for building institutions of learning or for making railroads through the county or counties to whom such lands belong: provided, that before any of said land or the proceeds thereof shall be so devoted to any of the purposes aforesaid the question whether the same shall be so done shall be submitted at some general or special election to the people of the county.
- Submitted to the people. SEC. 987. (2.) The proper officer or officers of any county may contract with any person or company for the transfer and conveyance of said swamp or overflowed lands, or the proceeds thereof or otherwise appropriate the same to such person or company or to their use, for the purpose of aiding or carrying out any of the objects mentioned in the first section of this act, which said contract shall be reduced to writing and signed by the respective parties or their lawful authorized agents.
- Officer may make conveyance. SEC. 988. (3.) Before such contract shall be of any force or validity the same shall be published for four weeks immediately preceding some general or special election in some newspaper published in the county and if there be none published therein, then three copies of the same shall be posted in three of the most public places in each township in the county for the length of time aforesaid together with a proclamation of the proper officer and directing how and where the vote thereon shall be taken, and returns made and canvassed and in what manner or form the people shall vote thereon and if it shall appear that a majority of the people in any county voting thereon are in favor of the contract or proposition submitted to them, then and in that case such contract or proposition shall be binding upon the parties thereto, but if a majority of the people voting on such proposition are against the same then it shall be null and void: provided, that no sale, contract or other disposition of said swamp or overflowed lands shall be valid, unless the person or company to whom the same are sold, contracted or otherwise disposed of to, shall take the same subject to all the provisions of the acts of congress of September the 28th, 1850, and shall expressly release the state of Iowa and the county in which the lands are situate, from all liability for reclaiming said land.
- Notice of submitting the question to the people. SEC. 989. (4.) It is further provided that this act shall be so construed as not to interfere with any pre-emption claim under the act of 1855, chapter 156: provided, said claimant was an actual and bona fide settler upon such land as provided in section nine of said act and has not assigned his said pre-emption.
- Contract made binding. SEC. 990. (5.) Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to authorize or allow the people of any county or officer thereof in any manner to contract or otherwise dispose of the swamp or overflowed lands belonging to any county attached thereto for election, judicial or other purposes.
- Company assumes the liability of county.
- Pre-emptions secured.
- Lands exempted.

DECISIONS. Right of pre-emption under chapter 156, of 5th sess., Givens v. Decatur Co., Dec., 1859; see Kinnear v. same Co., same term; certificate for swamp lands may be set aside, 6 Iowa, 405; what a bill therefor must contain, *Calvin v. ## TITLE VIII.

OF THE STATE CENSUS AND THE MILITIA.

CHAPTER 48.

THE CENSUS.

[Code—Chapter 39.]

[This chapter was superseded by the following act, after having been amended by laws of fourth general assembly, chapter 69, p. 122.]

An Act to provide for taking the State Census.

SECTION 991. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the township assessor of each township in this state shall, at the time of assessing property in the years eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, and eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and every ten years thereafter, take an enumeration of the inhabitants in his township. Assessor shall take census.

SEC. 992. (2.) Said assessor shall make return on or before the first day of June, of such enumeration, to the clerk of the district court of the county, who shall make and forward to the secretary of state on or before the first day of September in the current year, an abstract of said census return, showing the total number of males. Return.
Abstract.

The total number of females. Statistics.

The number of persons entitled to vote.

The number of the militia.

The number of foreigners not naturalized.

The total number of children between five and twenty-one years of age.

The number of families and the number of dwelling houses.

The number of acres of improved and unimproved lands.

An enumeration of agricultural, mining and manufacturing statistics, including the value of the products of the farm, herd, orchard and dairy each, and the value of manufactured articles, and of mineral sold the year preceding the census.

The number of miles of railroad finished and unfinished.

The number of colleges and universities, with the number of pupils therein.

SEC. 993. (3.) The governor and secretary, auditor and treasurer of state, or any three of them, constitute a census board for the state. Census board.

* The act was required by article 3d, section 33, of new constitution.

- Other facts. SEC. 994. (4.) The census board must require such other facts, in addition to those hereinbefore stated, to be ascertained and returned as they may deem expedient.
- Blanks prepared and furnished. SEC. 995. (5.) The census board must prepare and cause to be printed suitable blank forms for this purpose, which together with such printed directions as will be calculated to secure uniformity in the returns, must be furnished to the respective clerks of the district court of the county, and by them to the township assessors on or before the first Monday in January of the year in which the census is to be taken.
- Abstracts filed and recorded. SEC. 996. (6.) The secretary of state shall file and preserve in his office the abstracts received from the clerks of the district court, and cause an abstract thereof to be recorded in a book to be by him prepared for that purpose, and published in such manner as the census board may direct.
- Failure to return remedied. SEC. 997. (7.) When any township assessor fails to make an accurate return of the census, as herein provided, the county court may, upon the request of the clerk of the district court, appoint some suitable person to take the census according to the provisions of this act, and at as early a day as practicable, which shall be done at the expense of the county in which the service is performed.
- Returns made. SEC. 998. (8.) The census board shall require any clerk failing to make returns as herein provided, to send up the return as soon as practicable, at the expense of the delinquent county.
- Journal. SEC. 999. (9.) The secretary of state shall keep a journal of the acts of the census board.
- SEC. 1000. (10.) All acts and parts of acts conflicting with this act are hereby repealed.
- Take effect. SEC. 1001. (11.) This act to take effect from and after its publication.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act for taking census, passed, Dec. 30, 1837, Wis., 2d sess., No. 53, page 97; repealed, Aug. 30, 1840.

2. An act for taking census, passed, Jan. 20, 1847? 1st sess., chap. 8, page 23.

CHAPTER 49.

MILITIA.

[Code—Chapter 40.]

ARTICLE 1.

- Who constitute. SECTION 1002. (621.) All the able-bodied white male citizens of the state between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years who are not exempt from military duty agreeably to the laws of the United States constitute the effective military force of this state.
- Secretary's report. SEC. 1003. (622.) The secretary of state on or before the first Monday in January after the taking of each state census must report to the president of the United States the aggregate number of such military force.
- Calling out. SEC. 1004. (623.) Whenever the governor deems it expedient to call into service any portion of the said military force he must prescribe the number, and the manner in which they are to be called out.

SEC. 1005. (624.) He may make temporary appointments of such officers as he thinks proper for calling the troops into service and may appoint the time and place of rendezvous.

SEC. 1006. (625.) No troops can be called into service in any other manner than as volunteers except in cases of insurrection or invasion, and the governor may prescribe the number to be received from the counties respectively, and may fix the amount of their compensation which must not exceed that allowed to soldiers in the army of the United States.

SEC. 1007. (626.) At the time and place of rendezvous each company may proceed to elect the number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers that has been previously prescribed by the governor.

SEC. 1008. (627.) In like manner each regiment, brigade, or division shall at the same time and place elect the number of its officers which has been previously designated by the governor, except that each chief of brigade or division has power to appoint his own staff.

SEC. 1009. (628.) The particular place and hour for opening the polls at any such election, as well as the judges and clerks thereof, shall be fixed and appointed by the officer in temporary command at such place of rendezvous.

SEC. 1010. (629.) The governor may cause any arms owned by the state to be distributed to the troops thus called into service and may direct all necessary supplies to be procured and furnished at the expense of the state.

SEC. 1011. (630.) He may, if he think proper, take command in person of any troops thus called into actual service.

SEC. 1012. (631.) Subject to the foregoing provisions he may make all farther rules and regulations necessary to carry out the general spirit and intent of this chapter.

An Act to enable the Governor to distribute State Arms.

Passed July 12, 1856, took effect Oct. 1, 1856, Laws of Fifth General Assembly, Extra, Chapter 45, page 89.]

ARTICLE 2.

SECTION 1013. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That whenever the governor shall be satisfied that the applicant has a company of not less than thirty men enrolled, uniformed, it shall be lawful for him to supply such company with necessary arms, taking the bond of the captain of the company for their safe keeping and return thereof.

SEC. 1014. (2.) The said captain, on distributing the arms so received to the members of the company, shall take the bond of each in such sum as the governor may direct for the like purpose as that given by the said captain.

SEC. 1015. (3.) So many of the arms of the state as are or may be required at the state penitentiary, shall be delivered to the warden of the same, to be so used.

"An Act authorizing the Governor to raise, arm, and equip a Company of Mounted Men for the defense and protection of our Frontier."

TITLE IX.

OF TOWNS AND VILLAGES.

CHAPTER 50.

VILLAGE PLATS.

[Code—Chapter 41.]

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 1016. (632.) The proprietor of a tract of land may lay out a village plat thereon in the manner herein prescribed.

Manner.

SEC. 1017. (633.) He must cause a survey to be made marking the lots by a stake placed in at least one corner of each which corner shall be uniform throughout the plat so far as practicable, and fixing a stone of not less than one fourth of a cubic foot in dimension in a permanent manner at some point in every street.

SEC. 1018. (634.) An accurate map shall then be made of such plat designating the corners where the stakes are placed and the points where the stones are fixed and marking and describing the length and breadth of the lots as well as the breadth and courses of the streets and alleys, and the breadth shall be designated by feet and inches when practicable. Map.

SEC. 1019. (635.) All the owners of the land shall then acknowledge, before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgment of deeds, that the disposition of the land as shown by the map is with their free consent and in accordance with their desire, and such acknowledgment shall be certified upon the map. Acknowledged.

SEC. 1020. (636.) The plat and acknowledgment shall then be presented to the county judge, who if satisfied that the above requirements have been fully complied with shall enter thereon an order that the whole be recorded. Recorded.

SEC. 1021. (637.) The acknowledgment and recording of such plat is equivalent to a deed in fee simple of such portion of the land as is therein set apart for public use or is dedicated to charitable, religious, or educational purposes.* Dedication to public.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act authorizing the Subdivision of Lands in this State.

SECTION 1022. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in case any person owning land in this state shall desire to subdivide the same into lots or parcels, other than the legal subdivisions thereof, he may have the same surveyed by the county surveyor of the county in which the land lies: the said surveyor, when required thereto, shall survey the same into lots of such size as the owner may desire and make a plat thereof, designating appropriately the number of each lot and its contents, and the length and course of its lines, and certify that the same was so surveyed by him in conformity to law, and at the request of the owner, naming him. Subdivision.

SEC. 1023. (2.) The proprietor of lands so surveyed, may have the said plat and certificate recorded in the recorder's office in the county where the land lies, for which service said recorder shall demand and receive fees, at the same ratio that he does for other services. Record.

SEC. 1024. (3.) It shall be the duty of the proper assessor to enter for taxation in his books all lands so platted and recorded by the numbers of the respective lots, designating the value and number of acres in each. Assessor's duty.

SEC. 1025. (4.) In conveying any of the lots so subdivided and recorded, it shall be a sufficient description to designate the same by numbers and the original United States survey. Description.

SEC. 1026. (5.) Provided that the provisions of this act shall not Proviso as to town lots.

* Section (638) was modified by an act to amend section 638, chapter 41, of the code of Iowa, passed January 25, 1855, laws of fifth general assembly, chapter 101, page 162, which seems to have been itself repealed with all the rest of this chapter as in the code, by an act for the incorporation of cities and towns; laws of seventh general assembly, chapter 157, page 343, being chapter 51 hereof.

interfere with or repeal any laws now in force relating to the laying out of town lots.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act requiring the Proprietors of Town Plats to record the same.

[Passed January 27, 1857, took effect July 1, 1857; Laws of Sixth General Assembly, Chapter 181, page 169.]

Town plats to be recorded.

SECTION 1027. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That any person or persons who shall dispose of, or offer for sale or lease, for any time, any out or in lots in any town or addition to any town or city, or any part thereof, which has been or shall hereafter be laid out, until the plat thereof has been duly acknowledged and recorded, as provided for in chapter forty-one (41) of the code of Iowa, shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for each and every lot or part of lot sold or disposed of, leased or offered for sale.

Forfeiture.

Unrecorded plats to be recorded.

SEC. 1028. (2.) That every person who has heretofore thus laid out any town or addition to any town, and sold lots within the same, without having the plat of the same recorded according to law, shall have the said plat so recorded within three months from the taking effect of this act, and in case of failure so to do, shall be subject to the penalty in this act provided.

ARTICLE 4.

An Act entitled an act to provide for the alteration and vacation of Streets and Alleys in unincorporated villages.

[Passed March 26, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 56.]

Alteration and vacation of streets and alleys.

SECTION 1029. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That streets and alleys in unincorporated villages, which have been, or may hereafter be laid out and dedicated to the public under the provisions of chapter forty-one of the code, shall be subject to be altered or vacated in the same manner provided in chapter thirty-eight of the code, for the alteration or discontinuance of county roads.

CHAPTER 51.

THE INCORPORATION OF VILLAGES AND TOWNS.

[Code—Chap. 42.]

[This chapter of the code seems repealed by the next art.]

ARTICLE I.

An Act for the incorporation of Cities and Towns.

SECTION 1030. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That no town or city shall hereinafter be incorporated in the state of Iowa, in any other manner than as herein provided. None of the provisions of this act shall apply to cities or towns already incorporated in this state, otherwise than as herein provided, save and except section sixty one of this act.

Corporation limited.
Application of law.

SEC. 1031. (2.) When the inhabitants of a part of any county not embraced within the limits of any city, or incorporated town, shall desire to be organized into an incorporated town, they may apply by petition in writing signed by not less than thirty of the qualified voters, residents of the territory to be embraced in the proposed incorporated town, to the county court of the proper county, which petition shall describe the territory proposed to be embraced in such incorporated town, and have annexed thereto an accurate map or plat thereof, shall state the name proposed for such incorporated town, and shall also name the person or persons authorized to act in behalf of the petitioners in prosecuting said petition.

Petition presented.

Contents.

SEC. 1032. (3.) Where any such petition shall be presented to the county court, the same shall be filed in the office of the county judge, to be there kept subject to the inspection of any person or persons interested, until the time appointed for the hearing thereof; the said judge shall at or before the time of such filing, fix and communicate to such petitioners, or their agents, a time and place for the hearing of such petition, which time shall not be less than fifty days after the time of such filing, and thereupon the petitioners or their agents shall cause a notice to be published in some newspaper of general circulation in the county, (if one is published in the county) not less than four consecutive weeks, and a copy of said notice to be posted at some public places within the limits of the said proposed incorporated town, not less than four weeks previous to the time of such hearing, which notice shall contain the substance of said petition, and state the time and place for hearing thereof.

Petition filed.

Day of hearing.

Notice of hearing.

SEC. 1033. (4.) Every such hearing shall be public, and may be adjourned from time to time, and any person interested may appear and contest the granting of said petition, and upon demand shall have the right to a jury of six men to hear and decide the case, and affidavits or other testimony in support of or against said petition, which may be prepared and submitted, shall be examined and heard by said court or jury, and the court may permit the agent or agents named in the original petition, to change or amend the same, but no amendment shall be permitted whereby territory not before embraced shall be added, or the character or extent of said proposed incorporated town materially changed, without appointing another time for hearing, and requiring new notice to be given as above provided.

Hearing public.

Facts proved.	SEC. 1034. (5.) If the court or jury, after hearing such petition, shall be satisfied that at least fifty qualified voters actually reside within the limits described in the petition, and that said petition has been signed by a majority of the voters within said limits, that said limits have been accurately described and an accurate plat or map thereof made and filed, that the name proposed for said town is proper and sufficient to distinguish it from others in the state, and it shall moreover be deemed right and proper in the judgment of the court or jury, that said petition should be granted, the court shall make and indorse on said petition an order to the effect that the incorporated town as named and described in the petition, may be organized, which order the court shall sign and deliver, together with the plat or map, to the recorder of the county, whose duty it shall be to record the same as soon as practicable in the proper book of records, and to file and preserve in his office the original papers, having certified thereon that the same have been properly recorded, and it shall also be the duty of said recorder to make out and certify two transcripts of said record, one of which he shall forward to the secretary of state, and the other he shall deliver to the agent or agents of said petitioners, with a certificate thereon, that a similar transcript has been forwarded to the secretary of state as above provided.
Organization ordered.
Petition filed and recorded.
Beginning of incorporation.	SEC. 1035. (6.) So soon as said record shall be made and said transcripts certified and forwarded and delivered, the inhabitants within the limits described in the petition, shall be deemed an incorporated town, to be organized and governed under the provisions of this act, in like manner as if specially named therein, and so soon as said incorporated town shall be actually organized, by an election of its officers as herein-after provided, notice of its existence as such shall be taken in all judicial proceedings in the state.
Delay in organization.	SEC. 1036. (7.) Two months shall elapse from the time such transcripts are forwarded and delivered, before notice shall be given for an election of officers in any such town, and any person interested may at any time within said two months, make complaint in writing, in the nature of an application for an injunction, to the district court of the county, or to the judge thereof in vacation, having given at least five days' notice thereof, and furnished a copy of the complaint to the agent or agents of the petitioners, for the purpose of having the organization of such proposed town prevented. It shall be the duty of such judge or court to hear such complaint in a summary manner, receiving such answers, affidavits and proofs as may be deemed pertinent, and if it shall appear that the proposed town does not contain the requisite number of inhabitants, or that a majority of them have not signed the petition, or that the limits of said town are unreasonably large, or small, or are not properly and sufficiently described, then the said court or judge shall order that the record of said town shall be annulled, and it shall be the duty of the county recorder to indorse on the record the order so made, and to certify and transmit to the secretary of state a copy thereof, but such proceeding shall in no manner bar a subsequent petition to the county court.
Injunction may be issued.
Complaint heard.
Records annulled.
Provisions for first election.	SEC. 1037. (8.) Unless the agent or agents of the petitioners shall, within two months after the transcript shall be delivered as above provided, be notified of a complaint having been made to the district court, or judge thereof, then at the end of said two months, or after the dis-mission of said complaint, the said agent or agents shall give public notice by posting the same at three or more of the most public places within the limits of said town, of the time and place of holding the first election for officers of said town, which election shall be conducted and the officers elected and qualified in the manner prescribed by law in like cases, the clerk and other officers of the township in which said proposed town is situated presiding at said election in the same manner as at township elections, and making the same returns: provided, the officers so elected shall continue in office only until the time of the regular election of said officers, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

SEC. 1038. (9.) When the inhabitants of a part of any county contiguous and adjoining to any city or town, shall desire to be annexed to such city or town, they may apply by petition in writing to the county court of the proper county, signed by the inhabitants so applying, to be in number not less than a majority of the electors, which petition shall describe the territory proposed to be annexed, and be accompanied by an accurate map or plat thereof, and shall name the person or persons in prosecuting said petition.

Contiguous territory annexed.

SEC. 1039. (10.) When any such petition shall be presented to the county court, the same shall be filed, and like proceedings shall be had for a hearing thereon as is prescribed by the third, fourth, and fifth sections of this act, and should the said petition be granted, the judge shall indorse on said petition an order to the effect that the territory described in the petition may be annexed to, and become a part of the city or town named in said petition, and the petition, together with the map or plat, shall be delivered to the clerk or recorder of such city or town.

Proceedings to secure annexation.

SEC. 1040. (11.) No further action shall be taken on such order for the space of two months, and within that time any person interested, may in like manner as provided in the seventh section of this act, institute a proceeding to have the proposed annexation prevented, and if it shall appear to the court or judge hearing such proceeding, that a majority of the electors aforesaid actually residing within the limits described in such petition, have not signed the same, or that the territory proposed to be annexed is unreasonably large, or that said territory is not properly described, he shall make an order to restrain any further action under the order of the county court, and annulling the same, but such proceeding shall not bar any subsequent petition to the county court.

Proceedings in opposition to annexation.

SEC. 1041. (12.) When any complaint shall be made as before provided, to prevent an annexation of territory, notice thereof shall be given as well to the proper authorities of such city or town as to the agent or agents of the petitioners, and if no such notice shall be given within two months after the delivery of the order to the clerk or recorder of said city or town, then at the end of said two months and within one year, and in case of any such complaint, and after the dismissal of said complaints, and within one year thereafter, the proper authority of such city or town shall provide by ordinance or resolution for the submission to the electors at the next annual election of municipal officers, of the question whether such annexation shall be made, and if a majority of the electors of such city or town voting at such election, shall vote in favor of such annexation, then on the return of such vote to the proper authority of such city or town, a resolution or ordinance shall be adopted or passed declaring that the territory described in the petition has been annexed to, and is a part of such city or town, and it shall be the duty of the clerk or recorder of the said city or town to make out two copies of the petition, plat, order of the county court, abstract of Annexation completed.	SEC. 1042. (13.) So soon as said resolution or ordinance declaring such annexation has been adopted, and the said copies transmitted, delivered and recorded, the said territory shall be deemed and taken to be a part and parcel of the said city or town, and the inhabitants residing therein, shall have and enjoy all the rights and privileges of the inhabitants within the original limits of such city or town.

Corporation desiring to annex territory.	SEC. 1043. (14.) When any municipal corporation shall desire to annex any contiguous territory thereto, not embraced within the limits of any city or town, it shall be lawful for the trustees or council of the corporation, by an ordinance passed for that purpose, at least one month before the regular annual election to submit the question of said annexation to the qualified voters of such corporation, and if a majority of the electors of the corporation voting on the question, shall vote in favor of such annexation, the officers of said corporation shall present to the county court, a petition praying for such annexation, which petition shall describe the territory proposed to be annexed to such municipal corporation, and have attached thereto an accurate map or plat thereof, and like proceedings shall be had upon said petition, as are provided in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sections of this act, so far as the same may be applicable, but it shall be lawful for the voters residents upon the territory thus proposed to be annexed, or any of them to appear at said hearing, and show cause why such annexation should not be made, and if it appear by remonstrance or otherwise that a majority of the legal voters in said district so proposed to be annexed are opposed to such annexation, said annexation shall not be allowed, and if within two months as above provided, no notice of a complaint against such annexation shall be given, according to the provisions of this act, then at the end of said two months, and in case such complaints then at the end of said two months, and after the dismissal of said complaint, the said contiguous territory proposed to be annexed shall be in law deemed and taken to be included in and shall be a part of said municipal corporation and the inhabitants thereof shall, in all respects, be citizens thereafter of the said municipal corporation.

Petition filed and notice given.	SEC. 1049. (20.) When any such petition shall be presented to the clerk of the district court, he shall file the same and docket the case in its proper place, said petition shall be subject to the inspection of any person interested in the subject matter thereof, and notice of the filing of the same shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in said city or town, or by posting a notice of the same in five public places in said city or town, four weeks previous to the succeeding term of said court, which notice shall contain the substance of said petition, and state the term of court at which the hearing thereof will be had.
Petition heard	SEC. 1050. (21.) The hearing of such petition may be had by the court, or either party may demand a jury, and the proper authorities of such city or town, or any person interested in the subject matter of said petition may appear and contest the granting of the same, and affidavits in support of or against said petition which may be prepared and submitted, shall be examined by the court or jury, and the court may in its discretion permit the agent or agents named in the petition to amend or change the same, except that no amendment shall be permitted whereby the territory embraced in said petition shall increase or diminish, without continuing the case to the next term and requiring new motion to be given as above provided.
Amended.
Evidence examined.	SEC. 1051. (22.) If the court or jury, after hearing the petition and evidence bearing upon the subject matter thereof, shall be satisfied that said petition has been signed by a majority of the property holders residing within the limits of the part of the city or town described in the petition and plat, and that the limits have been accurately described and a correct map or plat thereof made and filed, and if the court or jury shall be further satisfied that justice and equity require that the prayer of the petitioners should be granted, the court shall appoint three disinterested persons commissioners to settle and adjust the terms upon which such part shall be so stricken out as to any debts or liabilities of such city or town that have accrued during the connection of such part with such corporation.
Terms adjusted by commissioners.
Commissioners qualify, hear and report.	SEC. 1052. (23.) The commissioners so appointed shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation that they will faithfully and impartially perform their duties as such, and shall at a time ascertained by them fixed, hear the agent or agents named in said petition, and also the proper authorities of the city or town, in regard to the subject matter to them submitted, and report to the next succeeding term of said court their doings and judgment in the premises, and upon the filing of said report the court shall order, adjudge and decree in accordance therewith and with the prayer of said petition: provided , that for good and sufficient cause and upon a proper showing, the court may reject or set aside said report, and appoint new commissioners, and continue the cause for further action to be had thereon.
Judgment rendered.
Decree filed and recorded.	SEC. 1053. (24.) The clerk of said court, as soon as practicable, shall file a certified transcript of such decree, together with the petition and map or plat, in the office of the recorder of the county, and the same disposition shall be made thereof as is provided by section five of this act, in the organization of a corporation under this act.
Completion of separation.	SEC. 1054. (25.) So soon as said record shall be made, and said transcript certified and forwarded and delivered as provided in said section five, the inhabitants residing within the limits described in said petition and plat or map, shall be deemed and taken to be no part of such corporation, and the territory described in such petition and map shall be deemed no part of such city or town, the costs shall be paid by the petitioners, but when witnesses are called in such cases, each party shall pay their own witness fee.

TITLE X.

OF CORPORATIONS.

---

CHAPTER 52.

CORPORATIONS FOR PECUNIARY PROFIT.

[Code—Chapter 43.]

ARTICLE 1.

Who incorporated.

SECTION 1150. (673.) Any number of persons may associate themselves and become incorporated for the transaction of any lawful business including the establishment of ferries, the construction of canals, railways, bridges, or other works of internal improvement; but such incorporation confers no power or privilege not possessed by natural persons except as hereinafter provided.

Powers assumed.

SEC. 1151. (674.) Among the powers of such body corporate are the following:

1. To have perpetual succession;
2. To sue and be sued by its corporate name;
3. To have a common seal which it may alter at pleasure;
4. To render the interests of the stockholders transferable;
5. To exempt the private property of its members from liability for corporate debts except as herein otherwise declared;
6. To make contracts, acquire and transfer property, possessing the same powers in such respects as private individuals now enjoy;
7. To establish by-laws and make all rules and regulations deemed expedient for the management of their affairs, in accordance with law and not incompatible with an honest purpose.

Pre-requisites.

SEC. 1152. (675.) Previous to commencing any business except that of their own organization they must adopt articles of incorporation which must be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county where the principal place of business is to be, in a book kept therefor.

Same.

SEC. 1153. (676.) Corporations for the construction of any work of internal improvement must, in addition, also file a copy of such articles in the office of secretary of state and have the same recorded by him in a book kept for such purposes. Such articles of incorporation must fix the highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation is at any one time to be subject, which must in no case except in that of the risks of insurance companies exceed two-thirds of its capital stock.

SEC. 1154. (677.) A notice must also be published for four weeks <sup>Notices.</sup> in succession in some newspaper as convenient as practicable to the principal place of business.

SEC. 1155. (678.) Such notice must contain:

1. The name of the corporation and its principal place of transacting business;
2. The general nature of the business to be transacted;
3. The amount of capital and stock authorized, and the times and conditions on which it is to be paid in;
4. The time of the commencement and termination of the corporation;
5. By what officers or persons the affairs of the company are to be conducted and the times at which they will be elected;
6. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation is at any time to subject itself;
7. Whether private property is to be exempt from the corporate debts.

SEC. 1156. (679.) The corporation may commence business as soon <sup>When may commence.</sup> as the articles are filed in the office of the recorder of deeds, and their doings shall be valid if the publication in a newspaper is made and the copy filed in the office of secretary of state, when such filing is necessary, within three months from such filing in the recorder's office.

SEC. 1157. (680.) No change in any of the above matters shall be <sup>Change.</sup> valid unless recorded and published as the original articles are required to be.

SEC. 1158. (681.) Corporations for the construction of any work <sup>Duration.</sup> of internal improvement may be formed to endure fifty years; those formed for other purposes can not exceed twenty years in duration; but in either case they may be renewed from time to time for periods not greater respectively than was at first permissible, provided three-fourths of the votes cast at any regular election for that purpose be in favor of such renewal, and provided also that those thus wishing a renewal will purchase the stock of those opposed to the renewal at its fair current value.*

SEC. 1159. (682.) The corporation can not be dissolved prior to <sup>Dissolution.</sup> the period fixed upon in the articles of incorporation except by unanimous consent, unless a different rule has been adopted in their articles.

SEC. 1160. (683.) The same period of newspaper publication must <sup>Notice of.</sup> precede any such premature dissolution of a corporation as is required at its creation.

SEC. 1161. (684.) A copy of the by-laws of the corporation with <sup>By-laws posted.</sup> the names of all its officers appended thereto must be posted in the principal place of business and be subject to public inspection.

SEC. 1162. (685.) A statement of the amount of the capital stock <sup>Statement posted.</sup> subscribed, the amount of capital actually paid in, and the amount of indebtedness of the company in a general way, must also be kept posted up in like manner, which statement must be corrected as often as any

- material change takes place in relation to any part of the subject matter of such statement.
- Fraud. SEC. 1163. (686.) Intentional fraud in failing to comply substantially with the articles of incorporation or in deceiving the public or individuals in relation to their means or their liabilities shall subject those guilty thereof to fine and imprisonment or both at the discretion of the court. Any person who has sustained injury from such fraud may also recover damages therefor against those guilty of participating in such fraud.
- What constitutes. SEC. 1164. (687.) The diversion of the funds of the corporation to other objects than those mentioned in their articles and in the notices published as aforesaid (provided any person be thereby injured,) and the payment of dividends which leave insufficient funds to meet the liabilities of the corporation, shall be deemed such frauds as will subject those therein concerned to the penalties of the preceding section, and such dividends or their equivalent in the hands of individual stockholders shall be subject to said liabilities.
- Insurance companies. SEC. 1165. (688.) Dividends by insurance companies, made in good faith before their knowledge of the happening of actual losses, are not intended to be prevented or punished by the provisions of the preceding section.
- Individual liability. SEC. 1166. (689.) A failure to comply substantially with the foregoing requisitions in relation to organization and publicity renders the individual property of all the stockholders liable for the corporate debts.*
- Forfeiture. SEC. 1167. (690.) Either such failure or the practice of fraud in the manner hereinbefore mentioned shall cause a forfeiture of all the privileges hereby conferred, and the courts may proceed to wind up the business of the corporation by an information in the manner prescribed by law.
- False books. SEC. 1168. (691.) The intentional keeping of false books or accounts by any corporation whereby any one is injured is a misdemeanor on the part of those concerned therein, and any person shall be presumed to be concerned therein whose duty it was to see that the books and accounts were correctly kept.
- Transfers; liability. SEC. 1169. (692.) The transfer of shares is not valid except as between the parties thereto until it is regularly entered on the books of the company so far as to show the name of the persons by and to whom transferred, the numbers or other designation of the shares, and the date of the transfer; but such transfer shall not in any way exempt the person or persons making such transfer from any liability or liabilities of said corporation which were created prior to such transfer. The books of the company must be so kept as to show intelligibly the original stockholders, their respective interests, the amount which has been paid in on their shares, and all transfers thereof; and such books, or a correct copy thereof so far as the items mentioned in this section are concerned, shall be subject to the inspection of any person desiring the same.
- Non-user. SEC. 1170. (693.) Any corporation organized or attempted to be organized in accordance with the provisions of this chapter shall cease to exist by the non-user of its franchises for two years at any one time, but such body shall not forfeit its franchises by reason of its omission to elect officers or to hold meetings at any time prescribed by the by-laws, provided such act be done within two years of the time appointed therefor.

SEC. 1171. (694.) Corporations whose charters expire by their own limitation or by the voluntary act of the stockholders may nevertheless continue to act for the purpose of winding up their concerns, but for no other purpose. Powers continued.

SEC. 1172. (695.) Nothing herein contained exempts the stockholders of any corporation from individual liability to the amount of the unpaid installments on the stock owned by them or transferred by them for the purpose of defrauding creditors, and an execution against the company may to that extent be levied upon such private property of any individual. Individual liability.

SEC. 1173. (696.) In none of the cases contemplated in this chapter can the private property of the stockholders be levied upon for the payment of corporate debts while corporate property can be found with which to satisfy the same, but it will be sufficient proof that no property can be found if an execution has issued on a judgment against the corporation and a demand thereon made of some one of the last acting officers of the body for property on which to levy, and if he neglects to point out any such property. Individual liability.

SEC. 1174. (697.) The defendant in any stage of a cause may point out corporate property subject to levy, and upon his satisfying the court of the existence of such property by affidavit or otherwise the cause may be continued or execution against the defendant stayed until the property can be levied upon and sold, and the court may subsequently render judgment and order execution for any balance which there may be after disposing of the corporate property, according to the stage of the cause; but if a demand of property has been made as contemplated in the preceding section the costs of such proceedings shall in any event be paid by the company or by the defendant. Same.

SEC. 1175. (698.) When the private property of a stockholder is taken for a corporate debt he may maintain an action against the corporation for indemnity and against any of the other stockholders for contribution. Indemnity.

SEC. 1176. (699.) For the purpose of repairs, rebuilding, or enlarging, or to meet contingencies, or for the purpose of a sinking fund, the corporation may establish a fund which they may loan and in relation to which they may take the proper securities. Sinking fund.

SEC. 1177. (700.) When the franchise of a corporation has been levied upon under an execution and sold the corporators shall not have power to dissolve the corporation so as to destroy the franchise, and if they neglect to keep up an organization sufficient to enable the business to proceed the purchaser thereupon becomes vested with all the powers of the corporation requisite therefor; and when it becomes impracticable for an individual so to conduct them and in cases where doubts or difficulties not herein provided for arise, the purchaser may apply by petition to the district court which is hereby vested with authority to make any orders requisite for carrying into effect the intent of this chapter in this respect. Judgment sale of franchise.

SEC. 1178. (701.) In any proceedings by or against a corporation or against a stockholder to charge his private property or the dividends received by him the court is invested with power to compel the officers to produce the books of the corporation on the motion of either party upon a proper cause being shown for that purpose. Production of books.

SEC. 1179. (702.) A single individual may entitle himself to all Individuals.

the advantages of this chapter provided he complies substantially with all its requirements, omitting those which from the nature of the case are inapplicable.

Presumption in favor of.

SEC. 1180. (703.) Persons acting as a corporation under the provisions of this chapter will be presumed to be legally incorporated until the contrary is shown; and no such franchise shall be declared actually null or forfeited except in a regular proceeding brought for that purpose.

Want of legal organization.

SEC. 1181. (704.) No body of men acting as a corporation under the provisions of this chapter shall be permitted to set up the want of a legal organization as a defense to an action against them as a corporation, nor shall any person sued on a contract made with such a corporation or sued for an injury to its property or a wrong done to its interests be permitted to set up a want of such legal organization in his defense.

Existing corporations.

SEC. 1182. (705.) Corporations regularly organized under the general law heretofore in force, by adapting their articles of association to the provisions of this chapter and by making the required publication of the change as well as of their intention to act under the foregoing provisions, will be entitled to all the advantages and subjected to all the liabilities above provided for, but the change in their articles of association must be made in accordance with those articles or by the unanimous consent of the stockholders.

Mutual insurance companies.

SEC. 1183. (706.) Mutual insurance companies organized under the provisions of this chapter may render their premium notes a lien upon the whole or any part of the real estate upon which the property insured is situate, whether such real estate is or is not exempt from other liabilities as a homestead, but such lien will not attach until the premium note stating the property on which it is a lien is filed for record and treated in the same manner as though it were a mortgage from the maker thereof to the company except that it need not be acknowledged.

Existing corporations.

SEC. 1184. (707.) Nothing herein contained is intended to affect the interests of companies already organized farther than is above expressed.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend Chapter Forty-three of the Code of Iowa of 1851.

[Passed April 2, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 124.]

Corporations favored as to term of duration.

SECTION 1185. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That corporations for agricultural and horticultural purposes, and cemetery associations may be formed to endure any length of time that may be provided by the articles of incorporation thereof: provided, such corporation shall not own, to exceed nine sections of land, and the improvements and necessary personal property for the management thereof: and provided further, that the articles of incorporation shall provide a mode, by which any member thereof may, at any time withdraw from such incorporation, and also the mode of determining the amount to be received by such member upon withdrawal; and also for the payment thereof to such member, subject only to the rights of creditors of such incorporation; and provided further, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prohibit the general assembly at its present or any subsequent session, from fixing a time when any or all corporations formed under the provisions of this act shall be dissolved.

SEC. 1186. (2.) This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the publication thereof according to law.

- Take effect. SEC 1192. (3.) This act to be in force from and after its passage.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act for the incorporation of Benevolent, Charitable, Scientific, or Missionary Societies.

- Society formed by certificate. SECTION 1193. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That any three or more persons of full age, citizens of the United States, a majority of whom shall be citizens of this State, who shall desire to associate themselves for benevolent, charitable, scientific, religious or missionary purposes, may make, sign and acknowledge before any officer authorized to take the acknowledgments of deeds in this state and file in the office of the secretary of state, and also in the office of the recorder of the county in which the business of such society is to be conducted, a certificate in writing, in which shall be stated the name or title by which such society shall be known in law, the particular business and objects of such society, the number of trustees, directors or managers to manage the same, and the names of the trustees, directors or managers of such society, for the first year of its existence.
- Acknowledged and filed.
- Incorporated. SEC. 1194. (2.) Upon filing a certificate as aforesaid, the persons who shall have signed and acknowledged such certificate, and their associates and successors shall thereupon, by virtue of this act be a body politic and corporate by the name stated in such certificate and by that name they and their successors shall and may have succession and shall be persons in law capable of suing and being sued, and they and their successors may have and use a common seal and the same may alter or change at pleasure; and they and their successors, by their corporate name shall in law be capable of taking, receiving, purchasing and holding real and personal estate, to make by-laws for the management of its affairs, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state or of the United States, to elect and appoint the officers and agents of such society for the management of its business.
- Powers of incorporation.
- Trustees elected. SEC. 1195. (3.) The society so incorporated may annually or oftener elect from its members its trustees, directors or managers at such time and place in such manner as may be specified in its by-laws, who shall have the control and management of the affairs and funds of said society, a majority of whom shall be a quorum for the transaction of business, and whenever any vacancy shall happen among such trustees, directors or managers, by death, resignation or neglect to serve, such vacancy shall be filled in such manner as shall be provided by the by-laws of such society. Vacancy.

SEC. 1196. (4.) In case it shall at any time happen that an election of trustees, directors or managers shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws, said society for that cause shall not be dissolved, but it shall and may be lawful on any other day to hold an election for trustees, directors or managers, in such manner as may be directed by the by-laws of such society. Failure to elect not dissolve corporation.

SEC. 1197. (5.) The provisions of this act shall not extend or apply to any association or individual who shall in the certificate filed with the secretary of state or with the recorder, use or specify a name or style the same as that of any previously existing incorporated society in this state. Name and style.

SEC. 1198. (6.) ## TITLE XI.

OF WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.

CHAPTER 54.

"LICENSES FOR WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT."

[Code—Chapter 45.]*

ARTICLE 1.

FERRY.

- County court. SECTION 1200. (712.) The several county courts* have power to grant such ferry licenses as may be needed within their respective counties, for a period not less than three nor more than ten years.
- Rates of ferriage. SEC. 1201. (713.) The court may prescribe the rates of ferriage as well as the hours of the day or night during which the ferry must be attended, both of which may from time to time be changed at the discretion of the court.
- Exclusive. SEC. 1202. (714.) In granting a ferry license the court has power to make the privilege granted exclusive for a distance not exceeding one mile in either direction from said ferry, in which case no person shall keep a public ferry within the prescribed distance unless after twenty days notice to the person who has obtained such privilege it is made to appear to the court that the public good requires both ferries and a new license is issued for the second ferry accordingly. The notice herein required must be served personally on the owner or on the person in charge of the ferry boat.
- Preference. SEC. 1203. (715.) In granting a ferry license preference must be given to the keeper of a previous ferry at the same point, and if it be a new ferry preference shall be given to the owner of the land, but if there is none such, or if after giving the same notice as is required by the last section he fails to make application for such license, or if in the opinion of the court he is an improper person to receive the same, it may be conferred on any other proper applicant.
- What court. SEC. 1204. (716.) Where the opposite shores of the stream are in different counties a license from either is sufficient, and the court which first exercises jurisdiction by granting a license retains that jurisdiction during the life-time of such license.
- Notice. SEC. 1205. (717.) Where but one side of a river is within this state the county court possesses the same powers so far as the shore of this state is concerned as though the river lay wholly within the jurisdiction of this state.

* For the word "court" or "judge" throughout this chapter when the same is italicized read "board of supervisors." See section 312, and chapter 22, article 13.

SEC. 1206. (718.) Before a license can be granted notice of the intended application therefor must be posted up in at least three public places on each side of the river (if both sides of the river are within this state) in the township and neighborhood in which the ferry is proposed to be kept, at least twenty days next prior to the making of such application. Over common waters.

SEC. 1207. (719.) The court upon being satisfied that the above requirements have been complied with, that a ferry is needed at such place, and that the applicant is a suitable person to keep it, must grant the license, which however shall not issue until the applicant files a bond with sureties to be approved by the court in a penalty not less than one hundred dollars with a condition that he will keep the ferry in proper condition for ferrying and attend the same at all times fixed by the court for running the same, that he will neither demand nor take any illegal tolls and that he will perform all other duties which are or may be enjoined on him by law, which bond shall be filed in the county office. Order and conditions

SEC. 1208. (720.) The license together with the rates of toll established must be entered upon the records of the county court, and the certificate of license shall contain the rates of toll allowed. Record.

SEC. 1209. (721.) Every ferryman must transport the public expresses of the United States and of this state and also the United States mail at any hour of the day or night. Duty.

SEC. 1210. (722.) He must keep a list of the rates of toll allowed him posted up on his boat, or on the door of his ferry house, or at some other conspicuous place near the ferry. Same.

SEC. 1211. (723.) The failure to have such list posted up as aforesaid justifies any person in refusing the payment of tolls, and where such failure is habitual the proprietor of the ferry is liable to pay twenty-five dollars in a suit brought on his bond, and the proceeds shall be paid into the county treasury. Penalty.

SEC. 1212. (724.) When it is made to appear to the county court after ten days notice to the person licensed that such person fails substantially to perform his duties according to law the court may revoke his license. Revocation.

SEC. 1213. (725.) Existing licenses and charters are not to be affected by the provisions of this chapter. Existing licenses.

*Bridges.**

SEC. 1214. (726.) The county court is also authorized to grant licenses for the erection of toll bridges across any stream or other obstruction which justifies the establishment of such bridge and which calls for an expenditure greater than can be met without serious inconvenience by the revenues of the county, but the navigation of no navigable river must be thereby materially obstructed. And in all cases of granting a license to build such bridge preference shall be given to the owner of the land on which said bridge is proposed to be located, provided he be in other respects a competent person to erect such bridge. Bridge licenses.

SEC. 1215. (727.) Subject to the provisions of the last section bridges may be thus authorized to be constructed across navigable streams provided they do not prove substantially a nuisance. Same.

SEC. 1216. (728.) Where the extremities of the bridge lie in different counties a license must be procured from each of such counties, and From what county.

* These provisions as to bridges of any sort, are qualified as to those over navigable rivers by laws of seventh general assembly, chapter 93, page 183,—article 3 hercof.

if different rates of toll are fixed by the different county courts each has power to fix the rates of travel which is going from its own county. A similar principle shall be observed where only one of the extremities of the bridge is within this state.

Duration. SEC. 1217. (729.) Such licenses may be granted to continue for any period not exceeding fifty years, and the rate of toll may be fixed in the first instance in such a manner as to be unalterable within any stipulated period not exceeding ten years; after that time the rate of toll will be under the control of the county court in the same manner as is provided in the case of ferries.

Exclusive. SEC. 1218. (730.) The court is also authorized to stipulate in the license to the effect that no other toll bridge or ferry shall be permitted across the same obstruction within any distance not exceeding two miles of such bridge and for a period not exceeding ten years; any violation of the terms of such stipulation is a nuisance and he who causes it is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Notice. SEC. 1219. (731.) Before granting a license to build a toll bridge the court must be satisfied that the same general notice has been given as is required in the case of an application for a ferry.

Rates of toll. SEC. 1220. (732.) The rates of toll must be conspicuously posted up at each extremity of the bridge under the same penalty as is provided in the case of ferries.

Regulations. SEC. 1221. (733.) Any proprietor of a toll bridge established and kept up according to law may make and enforce a regulation prohibiting any person, under a penalty not exceeding two dollars, from traveling across such bridge faster than on a walk, but such regulation must be conspicuously posted up at each end of the bridge; and suit may be brought for the penalty before a justice of the peace in the name of the proprietor and for his benefit.

Hours. SEC. 1222. (734.) All toll bridges must be so regulated as to allow persons to pass at any hour of the night or day, but the county court may in its discretion in fixing the rates of toll permit a greater amount to be collected during certain hours of the night time.

Other Licenses.

Road licenses. SEC. 1223. (735.) The county court may also grant licenses for the construction of any canal or railroad or any macadamized or plank road, or any other improvement of a similar character or any telegraph line, to keep the same up for a period not exceeding fifty years and to use for this purpose any portion of the public highway or other property public or private if necessary: provided, such use shall not obstruct the highway; and where a road thus authorized is of such a character as to admit of its being used for the same purposes as an ordinary highway the court in its discretion may discontinue a highway thus rendered unnecessary.

Rates of toll. SEC. 1224. (736.) The court in its discretion may at the time of granting the license fix the maximum rates of toll to be charged on any such work and may render the same unalterable for a period not exceeding twenty years from the time tolls are begun to be charged thereon, after the expiration of which time the rate of tolls shall be under the direction of the county court in the same manner as those of ferries and bridges.

Tolls. SEC. 1225. (737.) The time for the commencement of taking tolls as contemplated in the preceding section must be notified to the court and entered on its records before any such tolls are collectable.

SEC. 1226. (738.) The rates of toll established as above contemplated must be conspicuously posted up at every gate or other place where tolls are required to be paid, under the same penalty as is hereinbefore fixed in the case of ferries. Posting rates.

SEC. 1227. (739.) From the decision of the county court in refusing or granting any of the licenses authorized in this chapter an appeal lies to the people of the county as hereinafter regulated at any time within thirty days after the making of such decision, which appeal may be taken by any white male citizen of the county. Appeal.

SEC. 1228. (740.) The county court may also in the first instance cause any question, growing out of an application for any of the licenses authorized herein, to be submitted at once to the popular vote of the county. Question put to vote.

SEC. 1229. (741.) Neither the appeal nor the vote contemplated by the preceding two sections shall be allowed until money is deposited or security given sufficient to indemnify the county against the payment of any of the expenses growing out of the taking of such vote or appeal. Deposit.

SEC. 1230. (742.) Where the license has been granted, and the appeal above authorized is for the purpose of setting aside such grant, the license as granted must be published in the ordinary manner provided for publishing questions thus to be submitted to vote. Publication.

SEC. 1231. (743.) If the appeal be from the order refusing the license the appellant shall draw up and cause to be thus published, a license such as he desires to have submitted. Same.

SEC. 1232. (744.) If, where a license has been granted, the appellant is dissatisfied with the terms thereof he must cause to be published both the license granted and that which he desires to obtain. Same.

SEC. 1233. (745.) The county court must make the necessary arrangements for carrying the above regulations in relation to taking a vote of the people into full effect, and it shall grant or withhold the license in accordance with the result of such vote. Power of court.

SEC. 1234. (746.) In none of the above cases shall the license issue until a bond be filed such as is required in the case of ferry licenses and in such increased penalty as the court directs. Bond.

SEC. 1235. (747.) The county court, as a consideration or bonus for any of the licenses herein contemplated, may require the licensee to pay money or do acts for the purpose of promoting the public convenience in connection with the subject of his license, but for no other purpose. Bonus.

SEC. 1236. (748.) The taking illegal toll by the grantees of any of the licenses herein contemplated subjects the offender to the penalty of twenty-five dollars for every such offense to be recovered by suit on the bond of such licensee by the person who paid the illegal toll and for his own benefit, or he may bring suit in the name of the county in which latter case he is a competent witness but the proceeds shall go into the county treasury. Unlawful toll.

SEC. 1237. (749.) A failure in other respects to comply substantially with the terms fixed by the court in accordance with the above provision works a forfeiture of any of the licenses herein authorized and also subjects the party guilty of such failure to damages for all the injury resulting therefrom, for which he is also liable on his bond. Forfeiture.

SEC. 1238. (750.) Any person who refuses to pay the regular tolls established and posted up in accordance with the provisions of this chapter or who shall run through or pass around their toll gates with a view of avoiding the payment of just tolls or dues forfeits the sum of five Evading toll.

dollars for every such offense, which together with costs of suit may be recovered by the person entitled to such toll by civil action before the proper justice of the peace; but nothing herein contained shall prevent a person from fording a stream across which a toll bridge has been constructed.

SEC. 1239. (751.) The proprietor of any canal, road, bridge, or ferry authorized by this act may establish rules for the regulation of passengers, travelers, teams, and freight passing or traveling thereon and may enforce those rules by penalties not exceeding five dollars for any one offense; which penalties may be recovered by civil action before a justice of the peace in the name of the proprietor aforesaid, but such rules must be published by being conspicuously posted up before they can be thus enforced.

Sale of execution.

SEC. 1240. (752.) Any of the franchises contemplated in this chapter is subject to execution, and shall be sold as real property and be subject to the same rights and consequences except that the purchaser may take immediate possession of the property.

Effect of

SEC. 1241. (753.) The sale of any such franchise carries with it all the material, implements, and works of whatever kind necessary for or ordinarily used in the exercise of such franchise.

Highest bidder.

SEC. 1242. (754.) In the sale of such franchise he who will satisfy the execution and costs thereon and take the franchise for the shortest period of time to receive during that time all the tolls to which the defendant in execution was entitled, keeping the same in ordinary reasonable repair, is the highest bidder.

Officer's deed.

SEC. 1243. (755.) The officer's deed transfers to the purchaser all the privileges and immunities of the corporation necessary for demanding and receiving tolls during the time therein specified, and the officer must immediately after the sale deliver to the purchaser possession of the toll houses and gates of the defendant, and the purchaser may thereupon demand and receive all tolls accruing during the time limited by the terms of the purchase in the same manner and under the same regulations as the defendant might.

Injury; liability

SEC. 1244. (756.) In case of destruction or extraordinary injury happening to the works thus temporarily in possession of the purchaser without any fault or negligence on his part he shall not be compelled to repair the injury, provided he will abandon his interest in the franchise so held by him and yield possession thereof to the owner without delay.

Free ferries.

SEC. 1245. (757.) Nothing in this chapter contained shall be so construed as to prevent any person, incorporated city, town, or village from establishing a free ferry at any point where a license to keep a ferry has been granted under the provisions of this chapter, provided that where said free ferry is established said person or company shall pay a reasonable compensation to the persons owning said ferry for all boats, ropes, and other material, if the same be fit for use, and when said free ferry is established at a point at or near where a license has been granted to an individual, such individual shall be exonerated from any farther obligation in relation to the ferry. Bond and security shall be given in like manner by the person or company establishing the free ferry as required in this chapter.

SEC. 1246. (758.) Nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to prevent owners of mills from crossing themselves or customers free of charge, nor so as to prevent footmen from passing through toll gates on incorporated roads free of charge.

TAKING PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 1278. (759.) When any corporation or other person Who may take. designs to construct a canal or a railroad, or a turnpike, graded, macadamized, or plank road, or a bridge, as a work of public utility although for private profit, it may take such reasonable amount of private real property as may be requisite for a right of way not exceeding one hundred feet in width upon paying therefor such sum as may be assessed, in the manner herein provided.

SEC. 1279. (760.) The company shall file its petition in the district Manner of proceeding. court in the county where the land lies setting forth in substance:

The name of the owner;

The parcel of land a portion of which is wanted;

The object for which it is wanted;

A prayer that a suitable portion of land may be decreed to the petitioner and may be set apart to them by metes and bounds.

SEC. 1280. (761.) The owners of distinct parcels of real estate Same. may be made defendants to one petition.

- Service, owner unknown. SEC. 1281. (762.) A service upon the owner must be made as in civil actions except as herein qualified :
 Service upon and notice to an agent entrusted with the supervision of a non-resident's land will be sufficient ; a service by publication in a newspaper may be made the prescribed length of time before the return term ; and when the owner of a tract of land is unknown the court, upon being satisfied that diligent and unsuccessful efforts have been made to ascertain the ownership, may either before or after a publication authorize proceedings against him by the description of the unknown owner of that tract of land, (describing it).
- Inquiry of damages. SEC. 1282. (763.) When the requisite service has been made if no sufficient cause to the contrary is shown the court shall issue a writ of inquiry of damages to the sheriff commanding him to summon a jury to inquire into and assess the damages. The jurors are required to possess the ordinary qualifications of jurors and to be persons not interested in the same or a similar question.
- Jurors. SEC. 1283. (764.) Twelve jurors shall be summoned unless the parties otherwise agree in writing, and each party will have the right of challenge both for cause and peremptorily as in the district court.
- Same SEC. 1284. (765.) Or, if the parties assent, the jury may be thus constituted ; the sheriff may set down in writing the names of eighteen jurors and the parties shall alternately strike off one, beginning with the defendant, until but six remain who shall be competent to act and be summoned accordingly.
- Striking a jury. SEC. 1285. (766.) If a juror summoned fail to attend his place may be supplied by one summoned to attend forthwith.
- Juror failing. SEC. 1286. (767.) The jury shall be sworn to examine impartially and report truly upon the subject submitted to their consideration, and the sheriff is authorized to administer such oath.
- Oath. SEC. 1287. (768.) The jury shall then proceed to examine the ground and may hear testimony, but no argument of counsel, and shall set apart by metes and bounds a quantity of land convenient and suitable for the purpose intended and assess the damage occasioned to the owner thereby.
- Inquest. SEC. 1288. (769.) In estimating the damages no deduction shall be made for any benefit that may be supposed to result to the owner from the contemplated work.
- Same. SEC. 1289. (770.) When the petitioning body desires earlier action than is contemplated in the preceding provisions and is proceeding against one person only it may file its petition in the office of the district court and cause a service as before provided, and seven days after service is effected the clerk may in vacation issue a writ of inquiry of damages to the sheriff as before directed and the sheriff shall then proceed as above provided and make his return as hereinafter directed.
- Inquiry before court. SEC. 1290. (771.) Before proceeding with the jury the sheriff is directed to give the defendant if he is known and resides in the county, and if not then to his agent if he have one known or to his tenant, three days' notice of the time and place of the meeting of the jury.
- Notice to party. SEC. 1291. (772.) The report of the jury shall be reduced to writing, signed by each of the jurors, and delivered to the sheriff and be by him returned together with the writ and his doings thereon to the district court without delay.
- Report of jury. SEC. 1292. (773.) Upon the return of the inquest and writ the owner of the land may file objections to the proceedings and show cause why they should be set aside, and the court may direct issues other than those upon the facts found by the jury to be made up and tried as in other civil actions, and if good cause be shown may set aside the proceedings.

SEC. 1293. (774.) The damages assessed by the jury shall be paid Damages. into court for the defendant or to the defendant before a decree for the conveyance of the land can be made, unless the parties otherwise agree.

SEC. 1294. (775.) If no sufficient objection is made and the Decree.
damages are paid the court shall decree a conveyance to the plaintiff of the land reported by the jury, and such decree shall have the same effect and be enforced in the same manner as an ordinary decree for the conveyance of land.

SEC. 1295. (776.) If the contemplated work be not commenced Non-user.
within one year after obtaining land under these provisions, or if after being commenced it cease for two years to be prosecuted, or if after being completed it ceases for two years to be used for its original purpose, the former owner may file his petition in the district court to have the land restored to him upon his refunding the purchase money without interest.

SEC. 1296. (777.) The costs of the foregoing proceedings shall be Costs paid by the petitioner, except that costs occasioned by litigation by the defendant shall be governed by the common rule in relation thereto.

signature, to file such map in the department having the control of the public land in Washington; such location being considered final only so far as to fix the limit and boundary within which lands may be selected; and if it shall appear that the lands that have been donated by the act of congress aforesaid, for the construction of the several lines above indicated, can not be obtained by said companies within the limits and along any part of the line aforesaid, the governor shall from time to time appoint agents to make such selections as may be authorized or granted by congress for the lines aforesaid; but the compensation of such agents and the costs, expenses and charges attendant upon and occasioned by making such selections, shall be fixed, regulated, paid and borne by each of said railroad companies respectively, upon and for its own line.

Agents.

Branch.

SEC. 1304. (7.) The Iowa central air line railroad company shall furnish, equip and operate the branch of their railroad that will be constructed under this grant from Lyons city to the point of intersection with the main line of their road near Maquoketa, in the same manner with their main line from the west, and as completely as though the same was a continuation of said main line, and shall never give any preference to the main line of said road, or any part thereof, as defined in their articles of incorporation, by business arrangements, tariff of prices, or otherwise, over the said branch to their railroad.

Conditions.

SEC. 1305. (8.) The grants aforesaid are made to each of said companies respectively, upon the express condition, that in case either of such railroad companies shall fail to have completed and equipped seventy-five miles of its road within three years from the first day of December next, thirty miles in addition in each year thereafter, for five years, and the remainder of their whole line of road in one year thereafter, or on the first of December, A. D., 1865, then and in that case it shall be competent for the state of Iowa to resume all rights conferred by this act upon the company so failing, and to resume all rights to the lands hereby granted and remaining undisposed of by the company so failing to have the length of road completed in manner and time as aforesaid.

Gauge of road.

SEC. 1306. (9.) The roads aforesaid shall be constructed upon a gauge with a width of four feet, eight and one-half inches, and the iron used in the track shall be of approved quality and pattern, and the said roads shall be completed and finished in a style and of a quality equal to the average of other first class western roads, and when the roads, or any of them, authorized to be constructed by this act, shall be intersected by the roads of any other railroad company now constructed, or hereafter to be constructed, it shall be the duty of such road or roads, receiving the benefit of this act, to furnish all proper and reasonable facilities and to join such other company in making all necessary crossings, turnouts, sidelings and switches, and other conveniences necessary for the transportation of all freight and passengers over either or any road or roads hereby mutually accommodated, whether said passengers or freight are brought by the roads benefited by this act, or any other road or roads now constructed, or which may hereafter be constructed, and at such rates as shall not in any case exceed the regular tariff of charges on such road or roads.

- Rules and regulations. SEC. 1311. (14.) Said railroad companies, accepting the provisions of this act, shall at all times be subject to such rules and regulations as may from time to time be enacted and provided for by the general assembly of Iowa, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and the act of congress making the grant.
- Report. SEC. 1312. (15.) It shall be the duty of the companies receiving the benefits of this act, to make a regular annual report of their proceedings at the usual time and place of electing their officers, exhibiting a detailed statement, as far as practicable, of the amount of their expenditures, liabilities, &c., a copy of which shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state.
- Conditions. SEC. 1313. (16.) Be it further enacted, That any of said companies accepting the grants of lands under this act, shall take the same with the conditions imposed and incumbrances specified in this act, and shall in no event have any claim or recourse whatever upon the state of Iowa, for a misapplication of said grant, incumbrances or conditions in this act imposed.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act granting to Railroad Companies the Right of Way.

- Right of way. SECTION 1314. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That any railroad corporation in this state heretofore organized, or that may be hereafter organized, under the laws of this state, may take and hold, under the provisions contained in this act, so much real estate as may be necessary for the location, construction, and convenient use of their road. Such corporation may also take, remove, and use for the construction and repair of said road and its appurtenances, any earth, gravel, stone, timber, or other materials, on or from the land so taken: provided, that the land so taken otherwise than by the consent of the owners, shall not exceed one hundred feet in width, except for wood and water stations, unless where greater width is necessary for excavation, embankment, or depositing waste earth.
- May take and use. SEC. 1315. (2.) Such railroad corporation may purchase and use real estate for a price to be agreed upon with the owners thereof, or the damages to be paid by such corporation for any real estate taken as aforesaid, when not agreed upon, shall be ascertained and determined by commissioners to be appointed by the sheriff of the county, where such real estate is situated, in conformity with the provisions of this act.
- Limit. SEC. 1316. (3.) Whenever any railroad corporation shall take any real estate as aforesaid, of any minor, insane person, or any married woman whose husband is under guardianship, the guardian of such minor or insane person, or such married woman, with the guardian of husband, may agree and settle with said corporation for all damages or claims by reason of the taking of such real estate, and may give valid releases and discharges therefor.
- Stations. SEC. 1317. (4.) If the owner of any real estate over which said the right of way through his or her premises, the sheriff of the county in which said real estate may be situated shall, upon the application of either party appoint six disinterested freeholders of said county, not interested in a like question, unless a smaller number is agreed upon by the parties, whose duty it shall be to inspect said real estate and assess the damages which said owner will sustain by the appropriation of his land for the use of said railroad corporation and make report in writing to the sheriff of said county, who shall file and preserve the same, and if said corporation shall at any time before they enter upon said real estate for the purpose of constructing said road, pay to said sheriff the sum so assessed and returned to him as assessed, they shall be thereby authorized to construct and maintain their railroad over and across said premises: provided, that either party may have the right to appeal from such assessment of damages to the district court of the county where such lands are situated within thirty days after such assessment is made. But such appeal shall not delay the prosecution of the work upon said railroad, if said corporation shall first pay or deposit with the sheriff the amount so assessed by said freeholders, and in no case shall said corporation be liable for the costs on appeal, unless the owner of such real estate shall be adjudged, and entitled upon the appeal to a greater amount of damages than was awarded by said freeholders. The company shall in all cases pay the costs of the first assessment.

SEC. 1318. (5.) The freeholders so appointed shall be the commissioners to assess all damages to the owners of real estate in said county, and said corporation may at any time after their appointment, upon the refusal of any owner or guardian of any owner of lands in said county, to grant the right of way as aforesaid, by giving the said owner or guardian five days notice thereof in writing, either by personal service or by leaving a copy thereof at his or her dwelling, with some member of the family over fourteen years of age, have the damages assessed in the manner hereinbefore prescribed.

SEC. 1319. (6.) In case of the death, absence, or neglect, or refusal of any of said freeholders to act as commissioners as aforesaid, the sheriff shall summon other freeholders to complete the panel, and said commissioners shall proceed as directed in the preceding section. Said commissioners shall receive two dollars per day each for their services.

SEC. 1320. (7.) If, upon the location of said railroad, it shall be found to run through the land of any non-resident owner, the said corporation may give four weeks' notice to such proprietor, if known, and if not known, by a description of such real estate, by publication in some newspaper published in the county where such lands may lie, (if there be any, and if not, in one nearest thereto,) that said railroad has been located through his or her lands, and if such owner shall not within thirty days thereafter apply to said sheriff to have the damages assessed in the mode prescribed in the preceding section, said company may proceed as herein set forth, to have the damages assessed, subject to the same right of appeal as in case of resident owners, and upon the payment of the damages assessed to the sheriff for such owner, the corporation shall acquire all rights and privileges mentioned in the fifth section of this act.

SEC. 1321. (8.) Any railroad corporation may raise or lower any turnpike, plank road, or other way, for the purpose of having their railroad pass over or under the same; and in such cases said corporation shall put such turnpike, plank road, or other way, as soon as may be, in as good repair and condition as before such alteration.

- Same. SEC. 1322. (9.) If the proprietors of said plank road or turnpike, or the trustees or city council having jurisdiction of such ways respectively, require further alterations or amendments of such turnpike, road, or way, and give notice thereof in writing to the agent or secretary of such railroad corporation, and if the parties can not agree respecting the same, either of the parties may apply to the county judge, who, after reasonable notice to the adverse party, shall make determination respecting such proposed alterations or amendments, and shall award costs in favor of the prevailing party.
- Proceedings. SEC. 1323. (10.) If such railroad corporation shall unnecessarily neglect to make such alterations and amendments thus determined upon by the county judge, the said turnpike corporation, or aggrieved city or township, shall be entitled to their damages for such neglect.
- Damages. SEC. 1324. (11.) Every railroad corporation whilst employed in raising or lowering any turnpike or other way, or in making any other alteration by means of which the same may be obstructed, shall provide and keep in good order suitable temporary ways, to enable travelers to avoid or pass such obstructions.
- Temporary ways. SEC. 1325. (12.) Any railroad corporation may construct and carry their railroad across, over, or under railroad, canal, stream, or water course, when it may be necessary in the construction of the same; and in such cases said corporation shall so construct their railroad crossings as not unnecessarily to impede the travel, transportation, or navigation upon the railroad, canal, or stream so crossed: said corporation shall be liable for the damages occasioned to any corporation or party injured by reason of said crossing.
- May cross canals, roads, &c. SEC. 1326. (13.) Every railroad corporation shall maintain and keep in good repair all bridges, with their abutments, which such corporation shall construct for the purpose of enabling their road to pass over or under any turnpike, road, canal, water course, or other way.
- Bridges. SEC. 1327. (14.) Every railroad corporation shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person in consequence of any neglect of the provisions of this act, or of any other neglect of any of their agents, or by any mismanagement of their engineers, by the persons sustaining such damages.
- Liab. for damages. SEC. 1328. (15.) Any railroad corporation shall be authorized to pass over, occupy, and enjoy, without payment of damages, any of the school, university, and saline or other lands of this state, provided no more of such lands shall be taken than is required for the necessary use and convenience of such corporation.
- May pass over state lands. SEC. 1329. (16.) When any person owns land on both sides of any railroad, the corporation owning such railroad shall, when required so to do, make and keep in good repair one causeway or other adequate means of crossing the same.
- Causeways. SEC. 1330. (17.) Any company organizing under this act shall, as soon as convenient after its organization, establish a principal office at some point on the line of its road, and change the same at pleasure, giving public notice in some newspaper of such establishment or change, and all process against said company shall be served on the president or secretary, or by leaving a copy at the principal office of the corporation.
- Principal office. SEC. 1331. (18.) Every company organized under this act shall be required to erect at all points where their road shall cross any public road, at a sufficient elevation from such public road to admit of free passage of vehicles of every kind, a sign with large and distinct letters placed thereon, to give notice of proximity of the railroad, and warn persons of the necessity of looking out for the cars; and every company neglecting or refusing to erect such sign, shall be liable in damages for all injuries occurring to persons or property from such neglect or refusal. To give warning.

ARTICLE 4.

An Act to authorize Railroad Companies to consolidate their Stock with the Stock of Railroad Companies in this, or an adjoining State, and to connect their Roads with the Roads of said Companies.

SECTION 1332. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That any railroad company heretofore organized, or that may hereafter organize under the laws of this state, shall have the power to intersect, join and unite their railroads, constructed, or to be constructed in this state, or in any adjoining state, at such point on the state line, or at any other point as may be mutually agreed upon by said companies. And such railroads are authorized to merge and consolidate the stock of the respective companies, making one joint stock company of the railroads thus connected, upon such terms as may be by them mutually agreed upon, in accordance with the laws of the adjoining state, with whose road or roads connections are thus formed: provided, that the consent of three-fourths of all the stockholders in amount in any road whose stock is proposed to be consolidated, shall so consent. May intersect.
Consolidate stock.
Consent.

SEC. 1333. (2.) Any railroad company heretofore organized, or which may hereafter be organized, under the laws of this state, for the purpose of constructing a railroad from any point within the state, to the boundary line thereof, is hereby empowered to extend said railroad into, or through any other state, or states, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the laws of such state or states, or through which said road may be so extended; and the rights and privileges of said company, over said extension, in the construction and use of said railroads, for the benefit of such company in controlling and applying the assets of said company, shall be the same as if their railroad had been constructed wholly within this state. Extension.
Rights and privileges.

SEC. 1334. (3.) That any railroad company heretofore organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of this state, and which may have constructed, or commenced the construction of their road so as to meet and connect with any other railroad in an adjoining state, at the boundary line of this state, shall have this power to make such contracts and agreements with any such roads, constructed in an adjoining state, for the transportation of freight and passengers, or for the use of its said road as to the board of directors may seem proper. Contracts.

ARTICLE 5.

An Act supplement to an act entitled an act to accept the grant and carry into execution the trust conferred upon the State of Iowa by an act of congress, entitled an act making a grant of land to the State of Iowa in alternate sections, to aid in the construction of railroads in said State, approved May 15th, 1856, which said act of the legislature of Iowa was approved July 14, 1856

[Passed Jan. 28, 1857, took effect Feb. 17th 1857; Laws of Sixth General Assembly, Chapter 182, page 278.]

SECTION 1335. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Disposition of lands.

State of Iowa, That the said companies may make such disposition of the lands granted by the act to which this is a supplement, by mortgage or deed of trust, as may be deemed proper for the purpose of securing any amount of construction bonds necessary for the completion of such roads; which may bear such rate of interest not to exceed ten per cent. per annum, and may sell the same for the best price that can be procured. Said companies, nor either of them, shall ever be allowed to plead that such bonds are usurious or invalid: provided, that the moneys realized from the sale of the bonds afore-said shall be applied exclusively to the construction and equipment of said roads.

Lien of mortgage.

SEC. 1336. (2.) Any mortgage or deed of trust made upon the lands, roads, or the property of either, shall bind and be a valid lien upon all the property mentioned in such deed or mortgage including rolling stock; and the purchasers under a trustees sale or foreclosure of mortgage, shall have and enjoy all the rights of a purchaser on execution sale: provided further, that nothing contained in this act shall be so construed as in any manner to interfere with, change or modify the rights of this state or of the United States to any lands granted by congress to this state and by this state to certain railroad companies therein, as a security for the completion of said roads, or to transfer any right in said lands otherwise than as subject to all the conditions imposed by the grant made by the United States to this state, and by the grant by this state to said companies or by either of said grants: and provided further, that the faith of the state is in no way pledged for the payment of said bonds.

Record.

SEC. 1337. (3.) Any mortgage or trust deed made as before mentioned shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of each county through which said road runs or wherein it owns or holds lands, and shall be notice to all the world of the rights of all parties under the same.

ARTICLE 6.

An Act for the benefit of Rail Road Companies.

[Passed March 20, 1858, took effect March 31, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 85, Page 119.]

Section 689 of the code not to apply to R. R. companies.

SECTION 1338. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That section numbered six hundred and eighty-nine of the code, shall not be deemed and construed to be applicable to railroad corporations and corporators, and stockholders in railroad companies, shall be liable only for the amount of stock held by them in said companies.

Companies authorized to borrow money on their property.

SEC. 1339. (2.) The said companies shall have the power, and are hereby authorized to mortgage or execute deeds of trust, of the whole or any part of their property, and franchises to secure money borrowed by them for the construction and equipment of their roads, and may issue their corporate bonds in sums not less than five hundred dollars secured by said mortgages or deeds of trust, payable to bearer or otherwise, and if payable to bearer, negotiable by delivery, bearing interest at the rate not to exceed ten per centum per annum, and convertible into stock or not, as may be deemed expedient, and may sell them at such rates or prices as they deem proper, and if said bonds shall be sold below their nominal or par value, they shall be valid and binding on the company, and no plea of usury shall be put in or allowed by said companies in any suit or proceeding upon the same.

Bonds and their interest.

SEC. 1340. (3.) Said mortgages or deeds of trust may by their terms include and cover, not only the property of the companies making them at the time of their date, but property both real and personal which may thereafter be acquired by them, and shall be as valid and effectual for that purpose, as if the property were in possession at the time of the execution thereof.

Mortgages may cover property that may be acquired.

SEC. 1341. (4.) Said mortgages or deeds of trust, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of each county through which the road mortgaged or deeded may run, or wherever it may hold lands, and shall be notice to all the world of the rights of all parties under the same, and for this purpose and to secure the rights of mortgages or parties interested under deeds of trust so executed and recorded, the rolling stock and personal property of the company, properly belonging to the road and appertaining thereto, shall be deemed a part of the road, and said mortgages and deeds so recorded, shall have the same effect both as to notice and otherwise, as to the personal, as to the real estate covered by them.

Mortgages recorded.

TELEGRAPHS.

[Code—Chapter 47.]

- Privilege granted. SECTION 1348. (780.) Any person or company may construct a telegraph line along the public highways of this state, or across the rivers or over any lands belonging to the state or to any private individual, and may erect the necessary fixtures therefor.
- Restrictions. SEC. 1349. (781.) Such fixtures must not be so constructed as to incommode the public in the use of any highway or the navigation of any stream, nor shall they be set up on the private grounds of any individual without paying him a just equivalent for the damages he thereby sustains.
- Damages. SEC. 1350. (782.) If the person over whose lands such telegraph line passes claims more damages therefor than the proprietor of the telegraph is willing to pay the amount of damages may be determined in the same manner as is provided in cases of railroads and other works of internal improvement.
- Duty and liability. SEC. 1351. (783.) If the proprietor of any telegraph within this state, or the person having the control and management thereof, refuses to receive dispatches from any other telegraph line or to transmit the same with fidelity and without unreasonable delay all the laws of the state in relation to limited partnerships, to corporations, and to obtaining private property for the use of such telegraph shall cease to operate in favor of the proprietor thereof, and if private property has been taken for the use of such telegraph without the consent of the owner he may reclaim and recover the same.
- Same. SEC. 1352. (784.) Any person employed in transmitting messages by telegraph must do so without unreasonable delay, and any one who willfully fails thus to transmit them, or who intentionally transmits a message erroneously, or makes known the contents of any message sent or received to any person except him to whom it is addressed, or to his agent or attorney, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 1353. (785.) The proprietor of a telegraph is liable for all <sup>same.</sup> mistakes in transmitting messages made by any person in his employment as well as for all damages resulting from a failure to perform any other duties required by law.

CHAPTER 57.

THE SETTLEMENT AND SUPPORT OF THE POOR.

[Code—Chapter 48.]

ARTICLE I.

The Support of Poor Persons by their Kindred.

SEC. 1354. (786.) For the purposes of this chapter the word <sup>Definitions.</sup> “court” means “board of supervisors;” the word judge also means “board of supervisors;” the word “clerk” means clerk of said board, unless it be otherwise expressed, and both the word “court” and “judge” may mean “clerk of said board,” when the nature of the duty, the time of its necessary discharge or the rules to be made by the board of supervisors, shall so provide; and the word “directors” means directors of the poor house in counties where there is one.*

SEC. 1355. (787.) The father, mother, children, grandfather if <sup>Who to support.</sup> of ability without his personal labor, and the male grand children who are of ability, of any poor person who is blind, old, lame, or otherwise impotent so as to be unable to maintain himself by work shall jointly or severally relieve or maintain such poor person in such manner as may be approved by the trustees of the township where such poor person may be or by the directors, but these officers shall have no control unless the poor person has applied for aid.

SEC. 1356. (788.) The word “father” in the preceding section <sup>Father.</sup> includes the putative father of an illegitimate child, and the question of * See sections 312-21; 325; 330; 328. But does not the limited scope of the title of this last act confine the second section to roads and highways? There is little use in attempting to be more definite than I am in this section, as the board of supervisors will have to work this chapter in the harness of a set of rules which they will establish.

- his being the father may be tried in any action or proceeding to recover for or to compel the support of an illegitimate child. But there shall be no obligation to proceed against the putative father before proceeding against the mother.
- Proceeding to compel. SEC. 1357. (789.) Upon the failure of such relative so to relieve or maintain a poor person who has made application for relief the township trustees or the directors may apply to the court of the county where such poor person resides for an order to compel the same.
- Notice. SEC. 1358. (790.) At least fourteen days written notice of the application shall be given by summons which shall be served as original process in an action may be served and in any county by any officer thereof or by any other person.
- Notice. SEC. 1359. (791.) The court shall make no order affecting a person not served but may notify him at any stage of the proceedings.
- Hearing and order. SEC. 1360. (792.) The court may proceed in a summary manner to hear the allegations and proofs of the parties and order any one or more of the relatives of such poor person who appear to be able, to relieve and maintain him charging them as far as practicable in the order above named and for that purpose making new parties to the proceedings when necessary.
- Order. SEC. 1361. (793.) Such order may be for the entire or partial support of the poor person and it may be for support either by money or by taking the poor person to the relative's house, or the order may assign the poor person for a certain time to one and for another period to another relative as may be adjudged just and convenient, taking into view the means of the several relatives.
- Value. SEC. 1362. (794.) If the court order the relief in any other manner than in money it shall fix a just weekly value upon it.
- Manner. SEC. 1363. (795.) The order may be specific in point of time or it may be indefinite until the further order of the court and may be varied from time to time when the circumstances require it on the application of the trustees of the poor person, or of any relative affected by it, upon fourteen days notice being given.
- Money. SEC. 1364. (796.) When money is ordered to be paid it shall be paid to such officer as the court may direct.
- On failure. SEC. 1365. (797.) If any person fails to render the support ordered, on the affidavit of one of the proper trustees or directors showing that fact the court may order execution for the amount due rating any support ordered in kind as before assessed. In such proceeding the county is plaintiff and the person sought to be charged defendant.
- Appeal. SEC. 1366. (798.) An appeal may be taken from such judgment as provided in the chapter relating to the county judge.
- Abandonment. SEC. 1367. (799.) Whenever a father, or a mother being a widow or living separate from her husband, abandons their children, or a husband his wife, leaving them chargeable or likely to become chargeable upon the public for their support the trustees of the township where such wife or children may be, or the directors, upon application being made to them may apply to the court of any county in which any estate of such father, mother, or husband may be for a warrant to seize the same, and upon due proof of the above facts the court may issue its warrant authorizing the trustees or directors to take into their possession the goods, chattels, effects, things in action, and the lands of the person absconding.
- Process. SEC. 1368. (800.) By virtue of such warrant the trustees or directors may take the property wherever the same may be found in the same county and shall be vested with all the right and title to the personal property and to the rents of the real property which the person absconding had at the time of his departure.

SEC. 1369. (801.) All sales and transfers of any such property real or personal and leases made by the person after the issuing of the warrant shall be absolutely void. Sales.

SEC. 1370. (802.) The said trustees or directors shall immediately make an inventory of the property so seized by them and return the same together with the proceedings to the court, there to be filed. Inventory.

SEC. 1371. (803.) The court upon inquiring into the facts and circumstances of the case may discharge the order of seizure, but if it be not discharged the court shall have power to direct from time to time what part of the personal property shall be sold and how, and how much of the proceeds of such sale and of the rents and profits of the real estate shall be applied to the maintenance of the children or wife of the person so absconding. Orders of sale, &c.

SEC. 1372. (804.) If the party against whom such warrant issued return and support the wife or children so abandoned or give security to the county satisfactory to the judge that such wife or children shall not become chargeable to the county the warrant shall be discharged by an order of the court, and the property taken and remaining restored. Party's return.

SEC. 1373. (805.) The defendant may demand a jury in the trial contemplated on the question of his ability and of his obligation to support a poor relative; and also on the questions of abandonment and of liability to become a public charge as provided above, which demand may be made upon the inquiry contemplated above, and such inquiry shall take place on the request of the defendant unless it be ordered on the motion of the court itself with notice to the defendant. Jury trial.

SEC. 1374. (806.) Any county having expended any money for the relief of a poor person under the provisions of this chapter may recover the same from any of his kindred mentioned in the second section of this chapter, by an action brought in any court having jurisdiction within two years from the payment of such expenses. Action by county.

SEC. 1375. (807.) A more distant relative who may have been compelled to aid a poor person may recover from any one or more of the nearer relatives, and one so compelled to aid may recover contribution from others of the same degree. By kindred.

ARTICLE 2.

Legal Settlements.

SECTION 1376. (808.) Legal settlements may be acquired in the counties as follows: How acquired.

1. Any white person having attained the age of majority and residing in this state one year without being warned as hereafter provided gains a settlement in such county;

2. A married woman follows and has the settlement of her husband if he have any within the state, and if she had a settlement at the time of marriage it is not lost by the marriage;

3. A married woman abandoned by her husband and having obtained authority to act as a single person may acquire a settlement as if she were unmarried;

4. Legitimate children follow and have the settlement of their father if he have one, but if he has none then that of their mother;

5. Illegitimate minor children follow and have the settlement of their mother, or if she have none then that of the putative father;

6. A minor whose parent has no settlement in this state, and a married woman living apart from her husband and having no settlement and whose husband has no settlement in this state, residing one year in any county gains a settlement in such county;

7. A minor bound as an apprentice or servant immediately upon such binding, if done in good faith, gains a settlement where his master has one.

- When lost. SEC. 1377. (809.) A settlement once acquired continues until it is lost by acquiring a new one.
- Lost cases. SEC. 1378. (810.) The provisions of the preceding sections apply to cases of settlements begun to be acquired or lost as well before as after the provisions of this chapter go into effect.
- Foreign paupers. SEC. 1379. (811.) A person coming from another state and not having become a citizen of nor having a settlement in this state, falling into want and applying for relief, may be sent to the state whence he came at the expense of the county under a warrant of the county court, otherwise he is to be relieved in the county where he applies.
- Warning. SEC. 1380. (812.) Persons coming from other states or counties who are, or of whom it is apprehended that they will become, county charges may be prevented from obtaining a settlement in a county by warning them to depart, and thereafter they shall not acquire a settlement except by the requisite residence for one year uninterrupted by another warning.
- If so given. SEC. 1381. (813.) Such warning shall be in writing and may be served upon the order of the trustees of the township or of the directors or of the court or judge. The service may be made by any person and the person making it shall make a return of his doings thereon to the officer issuing the order, and if not made by a sworn officer it must be verified by affidavit.
- Settlement in another county. SEC. 1382. (814.) When a poor person applying for relief in one county has a settlement in another he may be removed to the county of his settlement, if he be able to be removed, upon the order of the judge of the county where he applied for relief and delivered to any trustee of a township in the county where his settlement is or to a director, giving written notice of the fact to the county judge or clerk; or the judge of the county where the poor person applied for relief may in his discretion cause the judge of the county where the poor person has a settlement to be notified of his being a county charge in the first county, and thereafter it will become the duty of the judge of the county of the settlement to order the removal of the poor person if he is able to be removed, and if not able then to provide for his relief.
- Counties liable. SEC. 1383. (815.) The county where the settlement is shall be liable to the county rendering relief for all reasonable charges and expenses incurred in the relief and care of a poor person if notice of relief being rendered is given to the county of the settlement within a reasonable time after the county of the settlement is ascertained; and for the charges of removal and expenses of support incurred after notice given, in all cases.
- Removal and appeal. SEC. 1384. (816.) When an order of removal is made the county to which the removal is made may appeal from the order to the district court of the county where the order is made, by the judge of the county to which the removal is made causing a notice of such appeal signed and sealed by him to be filed in the office of the other county within thirty days after the service of the notice of the order. No other proceeding than the above shall be necessary to effect the appeal and the notice of appeal and a transcript of whatever other proceedings or papers there may be relative to the matter shall be filed in the office of the district court, and the cause may be entitled as of the county issuing the order as plaintiff against the county appealing as defendant and appellant.

SEC. 1385. (817.) The cause may be tried as other actions, but there need be no pleading, the only issue being whether the poor person had a settlement in the county to which he was removed at the time of such order of removal.

SEC. 1386. (818.) Upon the application of the county appellant the district court may in its discretion change the venue of such cause to some convenient disinterested county.

ARTICLE 3.

Relief of the Poor where there is no Poor-House.

SECTION 1387. (819.) The trustees in each township in counties where there is no poor-house have the oversight and care of all poor persons in their township so long as they remain a county charge and shall see that they are properly relieved and taken care of.

SEC. 1388. (820.) The poor must make application for relief to the trustees of the township where they may be, and if the trustees are satisfied that the applicant is in such a state of want as requires relief at the public expense, they may for the time being afford such relief as the necessities of the person may require and shall report the case forthwith to the judge, who is authorized to deny further relief to such person if he find cause.

SEC. 1389. (821.) All claims and bills for the care and support of the poor shall be certified to be correct by the proper trustees and presented to the judge, and if he is satisfied that they are reasonable and proper they are to be paid out of the county treasury.

SEC. 1390. (822.) The court may in its discretion allow and pay to poor persons who may become chargeable as paupers and who are of mature years and sound mind and who will probably be benefitted thereby such sums or such annual allowance as will not exceed the charge of their maintenance in the ordinary mode.

SEC. 1391. (823.) If any poor person on application to the trustees is refused the required relief he may apply to the county judge, who on examination into the matter may direct the trustees to afford relief or the judge may direct specific relief.

SEC. 1392. (824.) A person who is a resident of but having no settlement in this state falling into want and making application in one county but having his usual residence in another, may at his request be removed to such other county by the overseers where he applied, and he shall then be at the charge of such other county.

SEC. 1393. (825.) The judge is invested with authority to enter into contract, when he considers the same expedient, with the lowest bidder through proposals opened and examined at a regular session of the county court, for the support of all the poor at the time being of the county for one year only at a time and to make all requisite orders to that effect.

SEC. 1394. (826.) When such a contract is made the judge shall from time to time appoint some person to examine and report upon the manner the poor are kept and treated, which shall be done without notice to the person contracting for their support, and if upon due notice and inquiry the judge find that the poor are not reasonably and properly supported, treated, or cared for, he has power at a regular session to set aside the contract making proper allowances for the time it has been in operation.

Employment. SEC. 1395. (827.) Such contractor and every contractor under the overseers of a township may employ a poor person in any work for which his age, health, and strength is competent, but this shall be subject to the supervision and orders of the trustees, and in the last resort of the county judge.

ARTICLE 4.

Relief of the Poor where there is a Poor-House.

Poor-house. SECTION 1396. (828.) The county court of each county is hereby authorized to order the erection and establishment of a poor-house in such county whenever that measure is deemed advisable, and also the purchase of such land as may be deemed necessary for the use of the same, and the judge is invested with full authority to make the requisite contracts and to carry such order into effect, provided the cost of said poor-house and land shall be first estimated by said court and approved by a vote of the people at some regular election.

Expenses. SEC. 1397. (829.) The expense of such erection and purchase shall be defrayed by a tax levied on the general assessment roll for that express purpose, which shall constitute a separate and special fund to be collected and paid over in manner as other taxes are, but to be paid in money only.

Directors. SEC. 1398. (830.) When a poor-house is established the court has discretionary authority to appoint directors or not, and when it deems it expedient so to do, may appoint one or three in accordance with the provisions of the following sections; and until the court so appoint directors the judge is invested with all the authority and powers in relation to the poor and the poor-house which are given to the directors when they have been appointed.

Same. SEC. 1399. (831.) The directors when so appointed are to take charge of and manage the affairs of the poor and of the poor-house, and shall be a body corporate under the name of "The directors (or director) of the poor-house of — county" (naming the county).

Qualification and duty. SEC. 1400. (832.) They are required to take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of their office previous to acting therein. They continue in office one year and until their successors are appointed and qualified. They shall keep a record of their doings. And if a vacancy occur in their body the judge may fill it by appointment to continue until the end of the year.

Powers. SEC. 1401. (833.) They may make all contracts and purchases requisite for the poor-house, and may prescribe rules or regulations for the management and good government of the same and for the introducing sobriety, morality, and industry among its occupants.

Steward. SEC. 1402. (834.) The directors may appoint a steward of the poor-house who shall be governed in all respects by the rules and regulations of the board and may be removed by them at pleasure, and who shall receive such compensation, perform such duties, and give such security for their faithful performance as the board may appoint.

Receiving poor. SEC. 1403. (835.) The steward shall receive into the poor-house any person producing an order as hereafter provided and enter in a book to be kept for that purpose the name and age and the date of the reception of such person.

SEC. 1404. (836.) He may require of persons admitted to the poor-house to perform such reasonable and moderate labor as may be suited to their ages and bodily strength, the proceeds of which shall be appropriated to the use of the poor-house in such manner as the directors may determine. Employment.

SEC. 1405. (837.) No person shall be admitted to the poor-house unless upon the written order of a township trustee, a director, or the county judge, and relief is to be furnished in the poor-house only, when the person is able to be taken there, unless the judge order otherwise. Admission.

SEC. 1406. (838.) When a trustee furnishes relief out of the poor-house to any person or gives an order of admission thereto such trustee is required to notify one of the directors forthwith of the fact with the sex, age, health, and property of the poor person, and the date when relief was first furnished, and the directors have authority to countermand such order or supply and to make any other provision in relation to him. Other relief.

SEC. 1407. (839.) The directors are empowered to bind out such poor children of the poor-house as they believe are likely to remain a permanent charge on the public, males until twenty-one and females until the age of eighteen unless sooner married, on such terms and conditions as prescribed in the chapter concerning master and apprentices. And they may bind for shorter periods on such conditions as they may adopt. Binding out.

SEC. 1408. (840.) When any inmate of the poor-house becomes able to support himself the directors may order his discharge. Discharge.

SEC. 1409. (841.) When a poor person applying for relief is in a condition that will not admit of his removal to the poor-house the directors may provide for his relief out of the county treasury until his condition will admit of his removal. Other relief.

SEC. 1410. (842.) The directors shall cause the poor-house to be visited at least once a month by one of their body who shall carefully examine the condition of the inmates and the manner in which they are fed and clothed and otherwise provided for and treated, ascertain what labor they are required to perform, inspect the books and accounts of the steward, and look into all matters pertaining to the poor-house and its inmates and report to the board. When there is no board of directors the county judge may perform the above duty or appoint a person therefor who shall report to him. Visitation.

SEC. 1411. (843.) The directors shall annually report to the county court the state of the poor-house with a full account of their contracts, disbursements, and proceedings. Report.

SEC. 1412. (844.) The expenses of supporting the poor-house shall be paid out of the county treasury by order of the judge on certificates signed by the directors; and in case the ordinary revenue of the county prove insufficient for the support of the poor the court may levy a poor-tax not exceeding one mill on the dollar to be entered on the county list and collected as the ordinary county tax. Expenses.

SEC. 1413. (845.) The judge may allow the directors out of the county treasury such sum as it deems reasonable for their services not exceeding one dollar and a half for each day employed in the duties of their appointment. Directors' pay

SEC. 1414. (846.) The directors are also invested with all powers before given to the trustees of townships in relation to the poor. Powers.

SEC. 1415. (847.) The county court is also invested with authority to let out the support of the poor with the use and occupancy of the poor-house and farm for a period not exceeding three years. Contract to support.

CHAPTER 58.

ILLEGITIMATE CHILDREN.

[Code—Chapter 49.]

- Complaint. SECTION 1416. (848.) When any woman residing in any county of the state is delivered of a bastard child or is pregnant with a child which if born alive will be a bastard, complaint may be made in writing by any person to the county court of the county where she resides stating that fact and charging the proper person with being the father thereof.
- Summons. SEC. 1417. (849.) Upon the complaint being filed the county judge shall issue a summons requiring the person charged to appear at a time named, but not less than seven days distant, and answer to the county on the complaint of _____ (the complainant,) which with a copy of the complaint shall be served at least five days before the return day, and be served and returned in the manner required in other actions. If the accused be not found notice shall be given as in actions before justices of the peace when the defendant is not found.
- Service. SEC. 1418. (850.) From the time of the issuing of the summons in such case the action shall be a perpetual lien and security upon the real property of the accused in the county where the action is pending, for the payment of any money and the performance of any order adjudged by the proper court.
- Lien. SEC. 1419. (851.) Upon the return day of the summons if the legal service has been made the court shall proceed to hear the cause, examining the woman and other witnesses and permitting the accused to put interrogatories also; but continuances may be granted for good cause, and the accused may demand a jury.
- Hearing. SEC. 1420. (852.) If on such examination the accused appear in the opinion of the court or the jury to be the father of the child he shall be adjudged to give security as directed by the court, to the county, conditioned to save the county and also every other county in the state from all charges toward the maintenance of the child.

SEC. 1421. (853.) If upon appeal the judgment below (being against the accused) be sustained it shall be rendered and entered as a judgment of the district court. On appeal.

SEC. 1422. (854.) The issue in such case shall be whether the party is guilty or not and shall be tried as other issues. Issue.

SEC. 1423. (855.) If the accused be found guilty or confess the accusation in the court above, he shall be charged with the maintenance of the child in such sum or sums and in such manner as the district court direct and with the costs of the suit, and shall be required to enter into bond to the county with surety approved by the county judge, or in his absence by the clerk, to save the county and all other counties of the state from all charges for the maintenance of the child and for the performance of the orders of the said court, and execution may issue for costs and for any sum ordered to be paid immediately. Judgment and execution.

SEC. 1424. (856.) When money has been ordered to be paid from time to time or by instalments and when a bond has been ordered to be given with a condition for the performance of any act and the accused neglects to perform such order, a scire facias may issue from the county or district court (as the case may be) to the accused or to his executor, and from the district court to any heir or devisee holding under him any land subject to the lien, to show cause why judgment should not be rendered and execution issue for the sum due or for the breach of the condition ordered by the proper court. Scire Facias.

INSANE PERSONS.

[Code—Chapter 50.]

[All chapter fifty of the code repealed by laws of the seventh general assembly, chapter 141, page 264, being article 1st hereof.]

ARTICLE 1.

An act for the government of the Insane Hospital, and the care of the Insane and Idiots.

SECTIONS (1) (2) (3) (4) [superseded by (1) (2) (3) and (4) of chapter 161 of laws of eighth session, being article 2 hereof.]

Trustees visit asylum.	SEC. 1425. (5.) It shall be the duty of one or more of the board of trustees to visit the institution monthly, and all or a majority thereof quarterly, and at such monthly visits they shall, with the superintendent, examine the accounts of the steward and certify their approval or otherwise, on the page with his monthly balances. They shall also at the same time register their names in a book to be kept for that purpose at the hospital and note therein the general condition of the hospital.
Minutes and reports.	SEC. 1426. (6.) The board of trustees shall make a record of their proceedings at all meetings in a book kept for that purpose, and at their annual meetings shall make a report to the governor, of the condition and wants of the hospital which shall be accompanied by full and accurate reports of the superintendent and a detailed account of all moneys received and disbursed by the steward.
Annual and special meetings.	SEC. 1427. (7.) The board of trustees shall hold their annual meeting on the first Wednesday in December, in each year, at the office of the hospital which shall be in the hospital building. Special meetings for the appointment of resident officers or for the transaction of general business, shall be held on the written request of the president or two members of the board, of which ten days' notice shall be given to each member in writing by the president, stating the object for which the meeting is called.
Trustees not interested in contracts.	SEC. 1428. (8.) No trustee or any officer of the institution shall be either directly or indirectly interested in the purchase of building material or any article of furniture or supply for the use of the hospital.
Trustee can not be superintendent.	SEC. 1429. (9.) No member of the board of trustees shall be eligible to the office of superintendent of the hospital during the term for which he was appointed, nor within one year after his term shall have expired.
Qualification and term of superintendent.	SEC. 1430. (10.) The medical superintendent of the hospital shall be a physician of acknowledged skill and ability in his profession. He shall be the chief executive officer of the hospital and shall hold his office for six years unless sooner removed by the trustees as provided for in the fourth section of this act. Before entering on the duties of his office he shall take and subscribe to an oath or affirmation faithfully and diligently to discharge the duties required of him by law. He shall have the entire control of the medical, moral and dietetic treatment of the patients, and he shall see that the several officers of the institution faithfully and diligently discharge their respective duties. He shall employ attendants, nurses, servants and such other persons as he may deem necessary for the efficient and economical administration of the government of the hospital, assign them their respective places and duties, and may at any time discharge any of them from service.
His powers.	SEC. 1431. (11.) The superintendent shall provide an official seal for the hospital upon which shall be the words "Iowa Insane Hospital, Mount Pleasant." He shall make reports to the trustees as provided for in section six of this act.
Seal.
Reports.
Assistant physician.	SEC. 1432. (12.) The assistant physician shall be a medical man of such character and qualifications as to be able to perform the ordinary duties of the superintendent during his absence.
Steward and his duties.	SEC. 1433. (13.) - the hospital in proportion to the number of insane persons in the county, and in case that all the insane who may apply for admission, can not for some cause be accommodated, then in the selection of patients, the provisions of this section shall be regarded in selecting such as may be admitted, subject to the provisions of section thirty of this act.
- Recurrence of insanity provided for. SEC. 1440. (32.) When any patient discharged from a hospital as cured, shall become insane, and any respectable physician shall file with the probate judge of the county, of which said insane person shall be an inhabitant, an affidavit setting forth the fact of the recurrence of the disease, and such other facts relating thereto as he may deem proper, the probate judge shall forthwith transmit a copy of such affidavit, authenticated by his official seal, to the superintendent of the hospital, and thereupon the same proceeding shall be had as provided in this act for persons found to be insane, upon inquest held for that purpose.
- Writ of habeas corpus allowed. SEC. 1441. (33.) All persons confined as insane, shall be entitled to the benefit of the writ of habeas corpus, and the question of insanity shall be decided at the hearing, and if the judge shall decide that the person is insane, such decision shall be no bar to the issuing of the writ a second time, whenever it shall be alleged that such person has been restored to reason.
- Idiots supported by county. SEC. 1442. (34.) Pauper idiots and lunatics, not within the meaning of this act, and those discharged from the hospital, shall be provided for in the same manner as other poor.
- Record made and papers filed. SEC. 1443. (35.) In all cases of inquest held under the provisions of this act, the probate judge shall file and carefully preserve all papers filed with him, and shall make such entries upon his docket as will, together with the papers filed as aforesaid, preserve a perfect record of each case tried by him.
- Proceeding in case of death. SEC. 1444. (36.) In all cases in which any patient shall die in the hospital, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to immediately give notice to the relations of such deceased patient, if known to him, and if not so known, he shall immediately notify the probate judge of the county from which such patient was sent, who shall forthwith cause a notice of the death of such patient to be published in the two leading newspapers of his county, or if there be no newspaper published in said county, a written notice shall be posted in two public places, one of which shall be at the court house in said county.
- Proceeding in case of escape. SEC. 1445. (37.) If any patient shall escape from the hospital, and return to the county from whence he was committed, it shall be the duty of the sheriff of said county, when notified by the superintendent, to forthwith arrest such patient and return him to the hospital, for which service the sheriff shall be allowed and paid such fees as shall be allowed by law for the commitment of insane persons to the hospital, which fees shall be paid out of the state treasury on the certificate of the superintendent, and warrant of the auditor of state.
- Actions at law. SEC. 1446. (39.) [Superseded by section (12) of next article.]
SEC. 1446. (39.) For all debts due the hospital, an action may be maintained in the name of the superintendent of the hospital to which such debt may be due, and in such action the plaintiff shall be styled the superintendent of the Iowa Insane Hospital, and all suits against the hospital shall be brought against him as defendant.
- Counsel employed. SEC. 1447. (40.) He shall employ an attorney who shall attend to any suit instituted in behalf of or against the hospital, who shall be entitled to a compensation of five per cent. on all sums collected for the hospital, and such fees as may be agreed upon for defending any suits brought against the hospital.

SEC. 1448. (41.) The taxable costs and expenses to be paid under the provisions of this act shall be as follows: to the probate judge, with whom the affidavit was filed, the sum of two dollars for holding an inquest under the provisions of this act. To the medical witness who shall make out the certificate required in the twenty-third section of this act, two dollars and witness fees such as are allowed by law in other cases. To the witnesses and constable the same as are allowed by law for like services in other cases. To each person employed by the probate judge to commit a lunatic to the county poor house, seventy-five cents per day. To the sheriff or other person than an assistant, for taking an insane person to the hospital, or removing one therefrom upon the warrant of the probate judge, mileage at the rate of five cents per mile, going and returning, and one dollar per day for the support of each patient on his journey to or from the hospital, and to each assistant, five cents per mile, and nothing more, the number of miles to be computed in all cases by the nearest route traveled, and costs specified in this section, to be paid out of the county treasury upon the certificate of the probate judge and the order of the county auditor.

Fees allowed.

SEC. 1449. (42.) The probate judge upon satisfactory proof that any person who is an inhabitant of the county in which he may be found, is an idiot or lunatic, and that it is necessary in order to preserve the property of such idiot or lunatic, shall appoint a guardian, which guardian shall by virtue of such appointment be the guardian of the minor children of his ward, unless the court shall appoint some other person their guardian.

Guardians appointed for idiots.

SEC. 1450. (43.) That when any person having a wife shall be declared to be an idiot or lunatic, it shall be lawful for the probate judge to appoint the wife of such person his guardian, if it be made to appear to the satisfaction of the judge that she is competent to perform the duties of such appointment, and any married woman appointed such guardian, shall in her said capacity, have power to enter into official bonds, and her sureties thereon shall be liable in the same manner and to the same extent as though said bond was executed by a sale.

Wife of idiot appointed guardian.

SEC. 1451. (44.) All laws relating to guardians for minors and their wards, and all laws pointing out the duties, rights and liabilities of such guardians and their sureties in force for the time being, shall be applicable to guardians for idiots and lunatics and their children, so far as the same are in conformity with the provisions of this act.

Laws governing guardians.

SEC. 1452. (45.) Such guardian may sue in his own name describing himself as guardian of the ward for whom he sues, and when his guardianship shall cease by his death, removal, or otherwise, or by the decease of his ward, any suit, action or proceeding then pending shall not abate, but his successor or guardian, or such idiot or lunatic, if he be restored to his reason, or the executor or administrator of such idiot or lunatic, as the case may require, and shall be made party to the suit or other proceedings, in like manner as is or may be provided by law for making an executor or administrator party to a proceeding of a like kind, when the plaintiff dies during its pendency.

Power of guardian in law.

SEC. 1453. (46.) Whenever the sale of the real estate of such ward is necessary for his support, or the support of his family, or the payment of his debts, or such sale will be for the interest of the estate of such idiot or lunatic or his children, the guardian may sell the same under like proceedings as is or may be required by law to authorize the sale of real estate by the guardian of a minor.

Idiot's real estate may be sold.

SEC. 1454. (47.) The guardian of any idiot or lunatic, whether appointed by a court in this state or elsewhere, may complete the real contracts of his ward, or any authorized contracts of a guardian who has died or been removed, in like manner, and by like proceeding as the real contract of a decedent may under an order of court, be specially performed by his executor or administrator.

Insolvent estate of idiots settled.

SEC. 1455. (48.) If the estate of the idiot or lunatic is insolvent, or will probably be insolvent, the same shall be settled by the guardian in like manner, and like proceedings may be had as is or may be required by law for the settlement of the insolvent estate of a deceased person.

The conditions on which foreign guardians may act in this state

SEC. 1456. (49.) The foreign guardian of a foreign idiot or lunatic appointed in any other state of the United States or the territories thereof, may possess, manage or dispose of the real and personal estate of his ward, situated in this state in like manner and with like authority as guardians of idiots or lunatics appointed by the courts of this state, after complying with the following requisitions:

1. An authenticated copy of the foreign commission of idiocy or lunacy proved, allowed and recorded in the county where such estate is situated, in like manner as is or may be provided by law for the admission to record of an authenticated copy of a will made in any other of the United States.

2. Evidence satisfactory to the court here, before whom such foreign commission is approved, that such idiocy or lunacy still continues.

3. The foregoing guardian shall file his bond with sureties residing in this state or elsewhere to the acceptance of the court, conditioned for the faithful administration of his guardianship.

Restored lunatics freed from guardianship.

SEC. 1457. (50.) Whenever the probate judge shall be satisfied that a lunatic is restored to reason, or that letters of guardianship have been improperly issued under this act, he shall make an entry upon the records of his court that said guardianship terminate, and the guardianship shall thereupon cease, and the accounts of the guardian shall be settled by the court.

Insane criminals provided for.

SEC. 1458. (51.) If any person in prison charged with a crime or misdemeanor, whether in needy circumstances or not, shall at any time before indictment be found against him, at the request of any citizen be brought before an examining court in the manner provided by law, and if it shall be found by the court that such person was an idiot or was insane when he committed the offense, the said court at their discretion shall proceed and the prisoner shall be dealt with in like manner as other idiots and lunatics are required to be after inquest.

Indicted criminals becoming insane provided for.

SEC. 1459. (52.) If any person in prison shall, after the commission of an offense, and before conviction become insane, whether he be in needy circumstances or not, and whether indicted or not, at the request of any citizen, an inquest may be instituted as provided for in this act, and if such court shall find that such person became insane after the commission of the crime or misdemeanor of which he stands charged, or indicted, and is still insane, the said court shall proceed, and the prisoner shall for the time being and until restored to reason, be dealt with in like manner as other lunatics are required to be after inquest had: provided, however, that if such lunatic be discharged, the bond given for his support and safe keeping shall also be conditioned that said lunatic shall when restored to reason, answer to said crime or misdemeanor, and abide the order of the court in the premises, and any such lunatic may, when restored to reason, be prosecuted for any offense committed by him previous to such insanity.

Restored criminals answer for crime.

Restored criminal changed from hospital to jail.

SEC. 1460. (53.) If the lunatic mentioned in the preceding section shall be confined in the hospital, the superintendent in whose charge he may be, shall as soon as such lunatic is restored to his reason, give notice thereof to the district attorney of the proper county, and retain such lunatic in custody for such reasonable time thereafter as may be necessary for said attorney to cause a capias to issue and to be served, and no longer, and such capias may be issued upon precept filed by said attorney with the clerk of the district court, by virtue whereof the said person so restored to reason, shall be again returned to the jail of the proper county, to answer to the offense alleged against him.

SEC. 1461. (54.) When a person upon indictment for any crime or misdemeanor shall be acquitted on the sole ground that he was insane, the fact shall be found by jury in their verdict, and the prisoner shall be dealt with as provided in the two following sections. Acquittal for insanity.

SEC. 1462. (55.) If the prisoner is not in needy circumstances, and the court is satisfied from the nature of the offense or otherwise that it would be unsafe to permit the prisoner to go at large, such prisoner shall be dealt with in the manner provided in the twenty-fifth section of this act. Insane prisoner provided for.

SEC. 1463. (56.) If the prisoner is a poor person, the probate judge shall proceed, and the prisoner shall be dealt with in like manner as other insane persons are required to be after inquest had, as provided in the twenty-first section of this act. Poor prisoner provided for.

SEC. 1464. (57.) If any person, after being convicted of any crime or misdemeanor, and before the execution in whole or part of the sentence of the court, becomes insane, it shall be the duty of the governor of the state to inquire into the facts, and he may pardon such lunatic, or commute or suspend for the time being the execution in such manner and for such a period as he may think proper, and may by his warrant to the sheriff of the proper county or warden of the Iowa penitentiary, order such lunatic to be conveyed to the hospital and there kept until restored to reason. If the sentence of any such lunatic be suspended by the governor, the sentence of the court shall be executed upon him after such period suspension hath expired, unless otherwise directed by the governor. Convicted criminal becoming insane removed to hospital.

SEC. 1465. (58.) When any other person than those described in the seven preceding sections shall be confined in jail and shall be insane, they may be proceeded against by the probate judge and sent to the hospital, poor-house or jail, or discharged upon bond being given for their safe keeping and supported or otherwise as in other cases. Other insane convicts provided for.

SEC. 1466. (59.) If the probate judge, sheriff or any other person charged with duties under the act, shall refuse or neglect to perform any such duties, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, to be recovered with cost by an action in any court of competent jurisdiction in the name of the superintendent of the hospital, or shall be removed from office in the same manner as for any other neglect of duty. And if any insane person shall be conveyed to the hospital before the superintendent shall have given notice that he can be received as hereinbefore provided, no fees or compensation whatever shall be paid to those by whom he was so conveyed. Neglect of duty punished.

SEC. 1467. (60.) The county judge may allow any sum not exceeding fifty dollars per year, to be paid out of the county treasury for the support of any idiot or lunatic living or inhabitant of said county, who is not supported by the county in the jail or poor-house. Allowance for support of idiot.

SEC. 1468. (61.) The term insane as used in this act includes every species of insanity or mental derangement. The term idiot is restricted to persons foolish from birth, one supposed to be naturally without a mind. A person with a family is one who has a wife and child or either. Insanity. Idiocy. Family.

Poor single person.	The words poor person, wherever it occurs in this act, it is understood, when applied to a person without a family, shall mean one whose estate after payment of his debts and excluding from the estimate such part of the estate as is exempt from execution, is worth less in cash than five hundred dollars; and the same words, when applied to a person having a family, shall mean one whose estate estimated as aforesaid, is worth less in cash, after payment of his debts, than one thousand dollars: provided , that when the said words are applied to a married woman, her estate, and that of her husband, shall be estimated as aforesaid, and the amount shall determine the question as aforesaid, whether she be in needy circumstances or not, within the meaning of the act.
Poor married person.
Salaries of officers.	Section (62) [superseded by section (23) of next article.] SEC. 1469. (63.) The salaries of the president, officers of the hospital named in section fourth of this act, shall be as follows: Of the superintendent* . . . . . $1500.00 and residence in the hospital. Of the assistant physician . . . . . $400.00 and residence in the hospital. Of the steward . . . . . $500.00 and residence in the hospital. Of the matron . . . . . $250.00 and residence in the hospital. These salaries to be paid quarterly by draft upon the treasurer of state upon the auditor's warrant.
Conflicting acts.	SEC. 1470. (64.) That chapter 50 of the code and all acts and parts of acts in regard to the care of the insane and idiots, which are inconsistent with the provisions of this act be and are hereby repealed.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act for the Incorporation and Government of the Hospital for the Insane.
[Passed April 3, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 161.]

Name and trustees.	SECTION 1471. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa , That the hospital for the insane, located at Mount Pleasant, in Henry county, shall be known under the name and by the title of the Iowa hospital for the insane, and shall be placed under the charge of seven trustees four of whom shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.
Term of service and filling of vacancies.	SEC. 1472. (2.) That G. W. Kinkaid, of Muscatine county, J. B. Lash, Samuel McFarland, and Harper Riggs, of Henry county, Maturin L. Fisher, of Clayton county, D. L. McGugin, Lee county, and J. D. Elbert, of Van Buren county, be and are hereby constituted a board of trustees, provided for in the first section of this act. The first two named shall serve for two years; the second two, for four years; the last three, for six years; and as their terms expire, their successors shall be appointed for six years by the general assembly. All vacancies occurring shall be filled by the governor until the meeting of the general assembly, and until their successors are appointed and qualified.
Oath.	SEC. 1473. (3.) The trustees, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States, and of this state, and also faithfully to discharge the duties required of them by law, and the by-laws that may be established. They shall be paid their necessary expenses and two dollars per day during the time they are actually engaged in the discharge of their official duties; such payment to be made out of the state treasury, out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, by an order drawn by the secretary of the board, and approved by the superintendent. The first meeting of the trustees shall be at any time after this act shall take effect, upon a notice from the chairman of the board of commissioners, when they shall organize by the election of a president and secretary, who shall serve until the annual meeting, which shall be held upon the first Wednesday of December in each year, in the hospital building, when the trustees shall choose one of their number president, and another secretary, for the year then ensuing, and until their successors are elected and qualified. Their officers.
Compensation.

* See section (26) of next article.

SEC. 1474. (4.) The trustees shall have the general control and management of the hospital; they shall have full power to make all by-laws necessary for the government of the same, not inconsistent with the laws and the constitution of the state of Iowa, and to conduct the affairs of the institution in accordance with the laws and by laws regulating the same. They shall appoint a medical superintendent, and upon the nomination of the superintendent, they shall also appoint a steward, matron, and an assistant physician or physicians, who shall be styled the resident officers of the institution, and shall reside in the same and be governed and subject to all the laws and by-laws established for the government of the said institution. Said trustees shall fix all salaries not otherwise determined by law; and may, at their pleasure, remove any officer except the superintendent, who may be suspended by said board of trustees until he can have a hearing before the governor of the state, and may then be removed from office by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of said trustees. Powers of trustees and of their officers.

SEC. 1475. (5.) The superintendent before entering upon the duties of his office shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, faithfully and diligently to discharge the duties required of him by law and by-laws regulating the institution. Superintendent's oath.

SEC. 1476. (6.) The steward shall execute a bond to the institution in a sum and with such securities as the board of trustees shall approve, conditioned that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office, and pay over and account for all money that shall come into his hands belonging to the state. He shall have power to draw from the state treasury, out of money not otherwise appropriated, upon his order, approved by the superintendent and not less than two of the trustees, and under the seal of the hospital, a sufficient amount from time to time, for the purpose of defraying any deficiencies that may arise in the current expenses of the institution. Upon the presentation of such order, to the auditor of state, it shall be his duty to draw a warrant on the treasurer for the amount therein specified. Steward's bond and powers.

SEC. 1477. (7.) The board of trustees may take and hold in trust, for the hospital, any lands conveyed or devised, and any money or other personal property given or bequeathed, to be applied for any purpose connected with the institution. Power to take land.

SEC. 1478. (8.) Private patients may be admitted into the hospital by the superintendent, upon the written request of any relative, guardian, or friend of such patient, by filing with the superintendent an obligation signed by himself, together with two other persons, in words and figures in substance as follows, to wit:

Obligation.

In consideration of ——— being admitted a private patient into the hospital for the insane, located at Mount Pleasant, at our request, we, the undersigned, jointly and severally promise and agree to pay said hospital, to the steward thereof, at said hospital, quarterly, on the first days of January, April, July and October, with interest at ten per cent. after said days respectively, the rate of board determined by the board of trustees of said hospital; to provide or pay for all requisite clothing, and for things necessary or proper for the health and comfort of said patient; to remove said patient when discharged; to reimburse funeral expenses in case of death; and if removed uncured, against the advice of the superintendent, before the expiration of three calendar months, to pay board for thirteen weeks, and also to indemnify said hospital for all expenses of suit, which it may incur in collecting said bills of board, supplies, and funeral charges; the same to be included in the damages to be recovered in such suit.

Witness our hands this ——— day of ———, 18——.

Provided, that the said obligation be duly certified by the county judge or the clerk of the district court of the county where such patient resides, that the signers are good and responsible persons, and able to pay any sum that might be adjudged against them by reason of their signing such obligation, and that their signatures are genuine. Duly certified copies of said obligation, attested with the seal of the hospital, shall be evidence in all cases of equal credibility with the original.

Of public patients.

SEC. 1479. (9.) Public patients may be admitted into the hospital by the superintendent upon the written certificate of the county judge of the county where such patient resides, with the seal of said county thereto attached, certifying that such patients, (naming them,) upon due examination had before him, have been found to be insane, and authorizing said superintendent to receive and maintain them at the expense of said county.

Power of county judges as to insane persons

SEC. 1480. (10.) The county judge of any county, upon information being filed before him that there are insane persons within the county needing care and attention, shall issue his warrant directed to the sheriff of said county, authorizing him to arrest the persons charged with insanity, and to bring them before him without delay. Upon the appearance of such person or persons before him, he shall proceed at once to an examination, summoning a jury of six persons, if a jury be demanded. And if upon examination by the judge or upon the verdict of a jury, the person or persons charged in the information, be found to be insane, the judge shall then make out a warrant, and place it in the hands of the sheriff of said county, who shall receive the persons therein named, and convey them to the hospital. Such warrant may be in form the following:

STATE OF IOWA, ——— County:

To the Superintendent of the Iowa Ho-pital for the Insane:

A——— B——— having been, upon examination, found to be insane, you are therefore required to receive him into the hospital, and keep him there until legally discharged.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and affixed the seal of said county, this ——— day of ———, A D. 18——.

Upon receiving the patient and the certificate provided in section 9, the superintendent shall indorse upon said warrant a receipt substantially as follows:

Iowa Hospital for the Insane, A. D. 18—.

Received this — day of — the patient named in the within warrant.

C— D—,
Superintendent.

The sheriff shall make return of the warrant to the county judge, who shall preserve the same in his office.

SEC. 1481. (11.) The sheriff shall be allowed the following fees: Fees of sheriff. For arresting and bringing a person charged with insanity, before the county judge, and subpoenaing witnesses, the same fees as now allowed by law in other cases. For taking an insane person to the hospital, or removing one therefrom, mileage at the rate of five cents per mile, going and returning, and one dollar a day for the support of each patient on his journey to and from the hospital, and to each assistant five cents per mile. Witnesses subpoenaed before the county judge, the same fees as allowed by law in other cases. Said fees and charges to be paid out of the county treasury.

SEC. 1482. (12.) The relatives of any person charged with insanity, or who shall be found to be insane under section 10 of this act, shall in all cases have the right to take charge of and keep said insane person or persons, if they shall desire so to do. But the county judge may require a bond of such relatives, conditioned for the proper and safe keeping of such person or persons. And if the relatives or friends of any patient kept in the hospital, shall ask the discharge of such patient, the superintendent may, in his discretion, require a bond to be executed to the state of Iowa, in such sum and such sureties as he may deem proper, conditioned for the safe keeping of such patient: provided, that no patient who may be under the charge of, or conviction of homicide, shall be discharged without the consent of the superintendent and board of trustees. Rights of relatives to personal custody.

SEC. 1483. (13.) Any patient may be discharged from the hospital upon the application of the superintendent to the trustees, and the order of one of the trustees thereupon. Incurable and harmless patients shall be discharged whenever it is necessary to make room for a recent case, as ordered by the trustees.

SEC. 1484. (14.) Whenever an order is made for the removal of a patient from the hospital, the superintendent shall immediately give notice thereof, under the seal of the hospital to the county judge of the county from which said patient was sent, and thereupon the county judge shall issue his warrant to the sheriff of said county, which shall be substantially as follows: Method of removal from hospital

STATE OF IOWA, — County:

Whereas, the proper authority has decided that —, a patient in the Iowa Hospital for the Insane, from this county, be removed from the hospital; you are, therefore, commanded forthwith to remove said patient, and return him to — township, in this county, whence he was taken to the hospital.

Witness my hand and the seal of said county, this — day of —, A. D. 18—.

County Judge.

Immediately upon receiving such warrant, it shall be the duty of the sheriff, forthwith to execute the same and return it to the county judge, by whom it was issued; and if any county judge, upon receiving such notice, shall refuse, or neglect, for the space of five days, to issue such warrant and place it in the hands of the sheriff, or if the sheriff shall refuse to receive the same, or neglect for the space of twenty days after receiving the warrant, to demand such patient of the superintendent, the expense of the patient shall, from the date of the notice to the county judge until his removal, be charged at the rate of two and a half dollars per week against the person so offending, and the amount may be recovered in an action with the costs of suit by the hospital, against the judge or sheriff so offending; provided, however, that it shall in no case be necessary for the superintendent to give such notice to the county judge, when the friends of such discharged patient are ready and willing to remove him, but such patient may, at once, be entrusted to their care.

What given to patient on removal.

SEC. 1485. (15.) When any patient is discharged as cured, the superintendent shall furnish him with suitable clothing, and a sum of money, not exceeding twenty dollars, unless otherwise supplied; which clothing and money shall, in the case of private patients, be charged to the obligors of the bond filed by them who requested the admission of such patient into the hospital; and in the case of public patients, shall be charged to the county from which such patient was sent.

Trustees to fix price of attention to insane.

SEC. 1486. (16.) The trustees shall, from time to time, fix the sum to be paid per week for the board and care of patients; and to arrive at such sum, shall estimate the total outlay for the support of the hospital; ascertaining such outlay as far as possible from the sums actually paid per annum; and the weekly sum so fixed, shall be the sum said hospital shall be entitled to demand for the keeping of any patient; and the certificate of the superintendent, attested by the seal of the hospital, shall be evidence, in all places, of the amount due, as fixed.

Settlement with the debtor counties.

SEC. 1487. (17.) The superintendent shall certify to the auditor of state on the first days of January, April, July and October, the amount (not previously certified by him) due to said hospital, from the several counties having public patients chargeable thereto; and said auditor shall pass the same to the credit of the hospital. The auditor shall, thereupon, notify the county clerk of each county so owing, of the amount thereof, and charge the same to said county; and the board of supervisors shall add such amount to the next state tax, to be levied in said county, and pay the amount so levied into the state treasury.

Clerks to collect from property of public patient.

SEC. 1488. (18.) The county clerks of the several counties are authorized and empowered from time to time, to collect from the property of any public patient maintained at the hospital, at the cost of such counties, or from any person or persons legally bound to support such patient, the amount for which such county is liable for the support of such patient in the hospital; and the amount so certified as due from such county to the hospital for the maintenance of such patient, by the superintendent, attested with the seal of the hospital, shall be prima facie evidence of the correctness of such amount.

Description of clothing.

SEC. 1489. (19.) The clothing to be furnished each patient, upon being sent to the hospital, shall not be less than the following: For a male, three new shirts, a new and substantial coat, vest, two pairs of pantaloons of woolen cloth, three pairs of socks, a black or dark stock or cravat, two pocket handkerchiefs, a good hat or cap, a pair of new shoes or boots, and a pair of slippers. For a female, in addition to the same quantity of under garments, shoes and stockings, there shall be two woolen petticoats or skirts, three good dresses, a cloak or shawl, and a decent bonnet. Unless such clothing be delivered to the superintendent in good order, he shall not be bound to receive the patient: provided, however, he may receive patients, and furnish them with proper clothing, charging the price thereof to the proper person or county.

SEC. 1490. (20.) It shall be the duty of the relatives or friends sending private patients to the hospital with the assistance of their family physician, and the county judge sending public patients with such assistance as he may be able to obtain, to annex full and precise answers to as many of the following questions as are applicable to the case, and forward the same to the superintendent, when the patient is sent to the institution.

1. What is the patient's age? Married or single? If children, how many?

2. Where was the patient born?

3. Where is his (or her) place of residence?

4. What has been the patient's occupation, and reputed pecuniary circumstances?

5. When were the first symptoms of the disease manifested, and what way?

6. Is this the first attack? if not, when did others occur, and what were their duration?

7. Does the disease appear to be increasing, decreasing, or stationary?

8. Is the disease variable, and are there rational intervals? if so, do they occur at regular periods?

9. Have any changes occurred in the condition of mind or body since the attack?

10. On what subjects, or in what way is derangement now manifested? Is there any permanent hallucinations?

11. Has the patient shown any disposition to injure others? and if so, was it from sudden passion or premeditations?

12. Has suicide ever been attempted? If so, in what way? Is the propensity now active?

13. Is there a disposition to filthy habits, destruction of clothing, breaking glass, &c.?

14. What relatives including grand-parents and cousins, have been insane?

15. Did the patient manifest any peculiarities of temper, habits, disposition, or pursuits, before the accession of the disease—any predominant passion, religious impressions, &c.?

16. Was the patient ever addicted to intemperance in any form, &c.?

17. Has the patient been subject to any bodily disease; epilepsy, suppressed eruptions, discharges or sores, or ever had any injury of the head?

18. Has restraint or confinement been employed? If so, of what kind, and how long?

19. What is supposed to be the cause of the disease?

20. What treatment has been pursued for the relief of the patient?

Mention particulars, and the effects.

21. State any other matter supposed to have a bearing on the case.

SEC. 1491. (21.) No idiot shall be admitted into the hospital.

SEC. 1492. (22.) The superintendent and steward shall report to the trustees from time to time, as shall be provided in the by-laws. The trustees shall report to the governor at their annual meeting, next preceding the meeting of the general assembly, and as much oftener as they may deem necessary, of the condition and wants of the hospital. Their biennial report shall be accompanied by full and accurate reports of the superintendent, and a detailed account of all moneys received and disbursed by the steward.

Questions to be answered by friends of applicant.

Reports to be made

- Notice and by-laws sent to county judges. SEC. 1493. (23.) The trustees shall furnish and mail, when printed, copies of the by-laws to all the county judges in the state; and shall also inform, by mail, said judges when the institution will be open for the reception of patients.
- Insanity defined. SEC. 1494. (24.) The term insane, as used in this act, includes every species of insanity or mental derangement.
- Private patients defined. SEC. 1495. (25.) Private patients mean those sent and maintained at the hospital by their relatives or friends. Public patients mean those sent and maintained at the expense of the counties.
- Salary. SEC. 1496. (26.) The salary of the superintendent shall be $1.500 per annum.
- Appropriation. SEC. 1497. (27.) That for the purposes of furnishing the rooms and other apartments of said hospital and paying the salaries of offices and expenses of servants and other necessaries there is hereby appropriated the sum of $8,000 dollars to be paid out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be audited and paid upon the order of the board of trustees: provided, that no money shall be drawn from the treasurer until the building is finished so as to receive patients.
- Repeal. SEC. 1498. (28.) Chapter 50 of the code, and all that part of chapter 141 of the session laws of the seventh general assembly in relation to insane persons, are hereby repealed.
- SEC. 1499. (29.) This act is hereby declared to be a public act, and shall take effect on the 4th day of July, A. D. 1860.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act in relation to persons Insane and providing for the relinquishment of dower of Married Women who are Insane.

[Passed April 3, 1860, took effect May 2, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 141.]

- Court of probate may release dower of insane wife. SECTION 1500. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in cases where the wife of any person having any dower interest in any real estate situated within this state, shall be insane and for that reason incapable of executing a deed and relinquishing dower, the husband of said insane person may petition the court of probate of the county where such petitioner shall reside, or of the county where said real estate is situated setting forth the facts, and praying for an order authorizing the husband or some other person to execute deed or deeds of conveyance for said wife, and thereby relinquish the dower of the wife in such lands.
- Form of petition and mode of trial and proof. SEC. 1501. (2.) The petition shall be verified by the oath of the petitioner, and shall be filed in the office of the judge of probate of the proper county. Upon filing said petition the court shall fix a time for the hearing of said petition, which shall be within thirty days from the filing of said petition. The court shall also appoint some discreet person who shall act as the agent or attorney for the wife of said petitioner, and whose duty it shall be to ascertain as to the propriety, good faith and necessity of the prayer of the petitioner being granted, and shall have power to resist said application and subpoena witnesses to take depositions to disprove the petition and prove the impropriety of granting said petition.
- Form and condition of decree. SEC. 1502. (3.) Upon the hearing of said petition, if the court is satisfied that the same is made in good faith, and that the petitioner is the proper person to exercise the power and make the conveyances, and that such power is necessary and proper, said court shall enter up a decree, thereby fully authorizing said husband to execute in the name of the wife all such conveyances, or the court may appoint some other person whose duty shall be to execute the conveyances by said decree authorized.

SEC. 1503. (4.) All deeds executed by the person authorized by the decree of the court, as herein provided, shall be valid in law, and shall convey all the dower interest of such insane wife to the real estate so conveyed, provided said power shall cease and become void as soon as the wife shall become sane and of sound mind, and apply to the court to revoke said power, and said court shall revoke said power, and such revocation shall in no wise affect conveyances personally made. Value of such deeds.

An Act to provide for the taking up of Water Crafts found adrift, lost goods and estray animals.

SECTION 1506. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any person or persons shall hereafter stop, or take up, any keel or flat boat, ferry flat, batteau, pirogue, canoe, or other vessel, or water craft found adrift on any water course within the limits, or upon the boundaries of this state, and the same shall be of the value of five dollars, or upwards, including her cargo, tackle, rigging, and other appendages, it shall be the duty of such person or persons within five days thereafter, provided the same shall not have been previously proven and restored to the owner, to go before some justice of the peace of the proper county, and make affidavit in writing, setting forth the exact description of such vessel or water craft, where and when the same was found; whether any, and if so, what cargo, tackle, rigging or other appendages, were found on board or attached thereto; and that the same has not been altered or defaced, either in the whole or in part, since the taking up, either by him, her, or them, or by any other person, to his, her or their knowledge; and the said justice shall thereupon issue his warrant, directed to some constable of his township or district, commanding him forthwith to summon three respectable householders of their neighborhood, if they can not otherwise be had, whose duty it shall be to proceed, without delay, to examine and appraise such boat or vessel, her cargo, or tackle, rigging, and all other appendages as aforesaid, and to make report thereof, under their hands and seals, to the justice issuing such warrant as aforesaid, who shall enter the same, together with the affidavit of the taker up at large, in his estray book; and it shall be the further duty of such justice, within ten days after the said proceedings shall have been entered on his estray book aforesaid, to transmit a certified copy thereof to the clerk of the county judge of the proper county, to be by him recorded in his estray book and file the same in his office.

SEC. 1507. (2.) In all cases where the appraisement of any such boat or vessel, including her cargo, tackle, rigging, or other appendages, as aforesaid, shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the taker up shall advertise the same on the door of the court house, and in three other of the most public places in the county, within five days after the justice's said certificate shall have been entered on the records of the county judge, and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such boat or vessel within six months from the time of taking up as aforesaid, the property in the same shall vest in the taker up; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of twenty dollars, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the county judge, within ten days from the time of the reception of the justice's said certificate at his office, to cause an advertisement to be set up on the door of the court house, and at three other of the most public places of the county; and also, a notice thereof to be published for three weeks successively in some public newspapers.

CHAPTER 61.

FENCES.

[Code—Chapter 52.]

ARTICLE 1.

Partition fences.

SECTION 1526. (895.) The respective owners of lands inclosed with fences shall keep up and maintain partition fences between their own and the next adjoining inclosure so long as they improve them in equal shares unless otherwise agreed between them.

Neglect.

SEC. 1527. (896.) If any party neglect to repair or rebuild a partition fence or a portion thereof which he ought to maintain the aggrieved party may complain to the fence viewers, who after due notice to each party shall examine the same and if they determine the fence is insufficient shall signify it in writing to the delinquent occupant of the land and direct him to repair or rebuild the same within such time as they judge reasonable.

Penalty.

SEC. 1528. (897.) If such fence be not repaired or rebuilt accordingly the complainant may repair or rebuild it, and the same being adjudged sufficient by the fence viewers and the value thereof with their fees being ascertained by them and certified under their hands, the complainant may demand of the owner of the land where the fence was deficient the sum so ascertained, and in case of neglect to pay the same for one month after, demand may recover it with one per cent. a month by action.

Dispute.

SEC. 1529. (898.) When a controversy arises between the respective owners about the obligation to erect or maintain partition fences either party may apply to the fence viewers, who after due notice to each party may inquire into the matter and assign to each his share thereof and direct the time within which each shall erect or repair his share, in the manner provided above.

SEC. 1530. (899.) If a party neglect to erect or maintain the part Neglect. of fence assigned him by the fence viewers it may be erected and maintained by the aggrieved party in the manner before provided, and he shall be entitled to double the value thereof to be recovered as directed above.

SEC. 1531. (900.) All partition fences shall be kept in good repair When kept.
throughout the year unless the owners on both sides otherwise agree.

SEC. 1532. (901.) No person, not wishing his land inclosed and not Who required. occupying nor using it otherwise than in common, shall be compelled to contribute to erect or maintain any fence dividing between him and an adjacent owner, but when he incloses or uses his land otherwise than in common he shall contribute to the partition fences as in this chapter is provided.

SEC. 1533. (902.) When lands owned in severalty have been Inclosed com-inclosed in common without a partition fence and one of the owners is mon made sever-desirous to occupy his in severalty and the other refuses or neglects to alty.
divide the line where the fence should be built or to build a sufficient fence on his part of the line when divided, the party desiring it may have the same divided and assigned by the fence viewers who may in writing assign a reasonable time, having regard to the season of the year, for making the fence, and if either party neglect to comply with the decision of the viewers the other after making his own part may make the other part and recover as directed above.

SEC. 1534. (903.) In the case mentioned in the preceding section, Throwing open. when one of the owners desires to throw his field open and leave it un-inclosed he shall first give the other party six months' notice of such intention, or such shorter notice as may be directed by the fence viewers on notice to the other party.

SEC. 1535. (904.) When land which has lain uninclosed is inclosed, Inclosing com-the owner thereof shall pay for one-half of each partition fence between mon.
his land and the adjoining lands, the value to be ascertained by the fence viewers, and if he neglect for thirty days after notice and demand to pay the same, the other party may recover as before provided; or he may at his election rebuild and make half the fence, and if he neglect so to do for two months after making such election he shall be liable as before provided.

SEC. 1536. (905.) When a division of fence between the owners Division reof improved lands may have been made, either by fence viewers or by corded agreement in writing and recorded in the office of the clerk of the township where the lands are, the owners and their heirs and assigns shall be bound thereby and shall support them accordingly, but if any desire to lay his lands in common and not improve them adjoining the fence divided as above the proceedings shall be as directed in the case where lands owned in severalty have been inclosed in common without a partition fence.

SEC. 1537. (906.) In the provisions of this chapter the term Definitions.
"owner" shall apply to the occupant or tenant when the owner does not reside in the county, but these proceedings will not bind the owner unless notified. The "fence viewers" means the fence viewers of the township in which the division line in controversy is, and if that line is between two townships and both parties live in the same, then it means the viewers of that township, but if the parties live in different townships one viewer at least shall be taken from that of the party complained against.

SEC. 1538. (907.) When a person has made a fence or other improve- On another's land.

ment on an inclosure which on afterward making division lines is found to be on land of another, and the same has occurred through mistake, such first person may enter upon the land of the other and remove his fence or other improvement and material within six months after such line has been run, upon his first paying or offering to pay the other party for any damage to the soil which may be occasioned thereby, and when the parties can not agree as to the damage the fence viewers may determine them as in other cases.

Same. SEC. 1539. (908.) But such fence or other improvement (except substantial buildings) shall not be removed if they were made or taken from the land on which they lie, until the party pays the owner the value of the timber to be ascertained by the fence viewers, nor shall a fence be removed at a time when the removal will throw open or expose the crop of the other party, but it shall be removed in a reasonable time after the crop is secured although the above six months have passed.

Future questions. SEC. 1540. (909.) When any question arises between parties, other than those above stated, concerning their rights in fences, or their duties in relation to building or supporting or removing them, such question may be determined by the fence viewers upon the principles of this chapter.

Lines. SEC. 1541. (910.) A person building a fence may lay the same upon the line between him and the adjacent owner so that the fence may be partly on one side and partly on the other, and the owner shall have the same right to remove it as if it were wholly on his own land.

Same. SEC. 1542. (911.) The foregoing provisions concerning partition fences shall apply to a fence standing wholly upon one side of the division line.

Other proceedings. SEC. 1543. (912.) The foregoing provisions of this chapter do not bar any other legal proceedings for the determination of the title to land or the dividing line between contending owners, nor do they preclude agreements by the parties.

TRESPASSING ANIMALS.

SECTION 1548. (913.) When any person is injured in his land by any kind of domestic animal he may recover his damages by an action Action or distress. against the owner of the beasts or by distraining the beasts doing the damage: provided, that if the beasts were lawfully on the adjoining land and escaped therefrom in consequence of the neglect of the person suffering the damage to maintain his part of the division fence, the owner of the beasts shall not be liable for such damage.

Adjoining owner liable.	SEC. 1549. (914.) And if the beasts are not lawfully upon the adjoining close and came thereupon, or if they escaped therefrom into the injured inclosure, in consequence of the neglect of the adjoining owner to maintain any partition fence or any part thereof which it was his duty to maintain, then the owner of the adjoining land shall be liable as well as the owner of the beasts.
Distress.	SEC. 1550. (915.) If the person injured elect to distrain the beasts he shall proceed as directed in the chapter concerning stray beasts except as herein otherwise provided.
Appraisers	SEC. 1551. (916.) The fence viewers shall in all cases be the appraisers and shall find and certify the amount of damage done by the beasts.
No property vests.	SEC. 1552. (917.) The property in the beasts shall in no case vest in the distrainer but he shall receive his damages, the costs paid by him, and the expense of keeping the beasts.
Proceedings	SEC. 1553. (918.) The proceeding shall in all cases be as directed in relation to property appraised at a sum above ten and not more than thirty dollars, but the proceeds of the sale (after deducting the costs, charges for keeping, and damages) shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of the owner if claimed within twelve months from the sale.
Statement.	SEC. 1554. (919.) The distrainer shall in his statement show that the beasts were taken doing damage on his land, describing it, and the same shall appear in the advertisements, and he shall within forty-eight hours after di-straining the beasts notify the owner if known and living in the same township or within five miles of the injured inclosure in another township.

THE SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

[Code—Chapter 55.]

ARTICLE I.

[924 to 936, each included, repealed by the 17th section of the following law.]

An Act for the Suppression of Intemperance.

[Passed Jan. 22, 1855, took effect July 1, 1855; Laws of Fifth General Assembly, Chapter 45, page 58]

SECTION 1559. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, No person shall manufacture or sell by himself, his clerk, steward or agent, directly or indirectly, any intoxicating liquors, except as hereinafter provided. And the keeping of intoxicating liquor, with the intent, on the part of the owner thereof, or any person acting under his authority or by his permission, to sell the same within this state, contrary to the provisions of this act, is hereby prohibited, and the intoxicating liquors so kept, together with the vessels in which it is contained, is declared a nuisance, and shall be forfeited and dealt with as hereinafter provided.*

Sale of intoxicating liquors prohibited.

Declared a nuisance.

SEC. 1560. (2.) Nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid the sale by the importer thereof, of foreign intoxicating liquor imported under the authority of the laws of the United States regarding the importation of such liquors, and in accordance with such laws: provided, that the said liquor, at the time of said sale by said importer, remains in the original casks or packages in which it was by him imported, and in quantities not less than the quantities in which the laws of the United States require such liquors to be imported, and is sold by him in said original casks or packages, and in said quantities only: provided, that nothing contained in this law shall prevent any person or persons from manufacturing in this state liquors for the purpose of being sold according to the provisions of this act, to be used for mechanical or medicinal purposes.

And on the third and every subsequent conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of two hundred dollars and the costs of prosecution, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail ninety days.
Sale.	SEC. 1562. (6.) If any person by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, shall for himself, or any person else, directly or indirectly, or on any pretence, or by any device, sell, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property, give to any other person any intoxicating liquor, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall pay, on his first conviction for said offense, a fine of twenty dollars and the costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed ten days, unless the same be sooner paid; on the second conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of fifty dollars and the costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed thirty days, unless the same be sooner paid, and on the third and every subsequent conviction for said offense, he shall pay a fine of one hundred dollars and the costs of prosecution, and shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than three nor more than six months. And in default of the payment of the fines and costs provided for the first and second convictions under this section the person so convicted shall not be entitled to the benefit of section 3268 of the code until he shall have been imprisoned sixty days. All clerks, servants and agents, of whatsoever kind, engaged or employed in the manufacture, sale or keeping for sale, in violation of this act, of any intoxicating liquor, shall be charged and convicted in the same manner as principals may be, and shall be subject to the penalties herein provided. Indictments and informations for violations under this section may allege any number of violations of its provisions by the same party, but the various allegations must be contained in separate counts, and the person so charged may be convicted and punished for each of the violations so alleged as on separate indictments or informations; but a separate judgment must be entered on each count on which a verdict of guilty is rendered. The second and third convictions, however, mentioned, in this section, shall be construed to mean convictions on separate indictments or informations.

in some conspicuous place on or about said buildings, and also to be left with or at the last known and usual place of residence of the person named, or described in said information, as the owner or keeper of said liquor if he be a resident of this state, a notice summoning such person, and all others whom it may concern, to appear before said justice at a place and time named in said notice, (which time shall not be less than five nor more than fifteen days after the posting and leaving of said notices) and show cause if any they have, why said liquor, together with the vessels in which the same is contained, should not be forfeited; and said notice shall with reasonable certainty describe said liquor and vessels, and shall state where, when and why, the same were seized. At the time and place prescribed in said notice, the person named in said information, or any other person or persons claiming an interest in said liquor and vessels, or any part thereof, may appear and show cause why the same should not be forfeited. If any person shall then and there so appear, he shall become a party defendant in said case, and said justice shall make a record thereof, whether any person shall so appear or not, said justice shall at the prescribed time, proceed to the trial of said case, and said complainants, or either of them, may, and upon their default, the officer having such liquor in custody shall, appear before said justice, and prosecute said information, and show cause why such liquor should be adjudged forfeited. The proceeding in the trial of such case may be the same substantially as in cases of misdemeanor, triable before justices of the peace, and if any person shall appear and be made a party defendant as herein provided, and shall make written plea that said liquor or the part thereof, claimed by him was not owned or kept with intent to be sold in violation of this act, such party defendant may, at his option, demand a jury to try the issue, and if upon the evidence then and there presented, the said justice or jury as the case may be, shall find for verdict, that said liquor was, when seized, owned or kept by any person (whether said party defendant or not) for the purpose of being sold in violation of this act, the said justice shall render judgment that said liquor or said part thereof, with the vessels in which it is contained, is forfeited. If no person be made defendant in manner aforesaid, or if judgment be in favor of all the defendants, who appear and are made such, then the costs of the proceeding shall be paid as in ordinary criminal prosecutions where the prosecution fails. If the judgment shall be against only one party defendant appearing as aforesaid, he shall be adjudged to pay all the costs of the proceedings in the seizure and detention of the liquor claimed by him up to that time and of said trial. But if such judgment shall be against more than one party defendant claiming distinct interests in said liquor, then the costs of said proceedings and trial shall be according to the discretion of said justice equitably apportioned among said defendants, and execution shall be issued on such judgments against said defendants for the amount of the costs so adjudged against them. And any person appearing and becoming party defendant as aforesaid, may appeal from said judgment of forfeiture as to the whole, or any part of said liquor, and vessels claimed by him; and so adjudged forfeited, to the next term of the district court in said county, if on the rendition of the judgment, he, or some person for him, shall make, or cause to be made, an affidavit stating the facts, showing the alleged errors in the proceedings or judgment complained of; and if also on said rendition of judgment, he shall file with the justice a written undertaking in a sum and with sureties to be approved by said justice that said defendant will prosecute the appeal without delay, and will pay whatever sum may be adjudged against him in the

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 1588. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the auditor of public accounts is hereby authorized and required to cause to be engraved and printed in the best manner to guard against counterfeiting, such quantity of circulating notes in similitude of bank notes in blank of different denominations not less than one dollar, as he may from time to time deem necessary, to carry into effect the provisions of this act, such blank circulating notes shall be countersigned, numbered and registered in proper books to be provided and kept for that purpose, in the office of the auditor and under his direction by such register or registers as the said auditor shall appoint for that purpose so that each such circulating notes shall bear the signature of such register, or one of such registers; of the notes furnished to any corporation organized under the provisions of this act, not more than ten per cent. of the amount shall be in notes of one dollar each, not more than ten per cent. in notes of two dollars each, and not more than twenty-five per cent. shall be in notes of all denominations under five dollars, and not more than fifty per cent. in notes of all denominations under ten dollars.

Auditor procure notes engraved.

Notes countersigned and registered.

Proportion of small notes.

SEC. 1589. (2.) Nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prevent any corporation from procuring their own plate, dies and other materials for engraving and printing blank notes and furnishing them to the auditor and leaving them ever after in his custody and control, to be used and disposed of as though such auditor had procured them under the preceding section.

Bank may procure plates to be left with auditor.

SEC. 1590. (3.) Whenever any corporation formed for the purpose of banking under the provisions of this act shall lawfully transfer to and deposit with the auditor any portion of the public stock issued or to be issued by the United States or any state stocks on which full interest is annually paid, or the stocks of this state, said stocks to be rated at ten per cent. below their average value in the city of New York, for thirty days next preceding the time when such stocks may be left on deposit with the auditor, and in no case shall the auditor issue bills for banking purposes on bonds of this or any other state on which not less than six per cent. is regularly paid, such corporation shall be entitled to receive from the auditor an amount of such circulating notes of different denominations registered and countersigned as aforesaid, equal to the amount of stock actually deposited, rating said stock at ten per cent. less than its average value as aforesaid.

	same in the book hereinafter required, to be kept by him, for recording descriptive lists of securities deposited with him for safe keeping.
Notes put in circulation.	SEC. 1592. (5.) Such corporation is hereby authorized, after having executed and signed the circulating notes registered and countersigned as aforesaid, in the manner prescribed by this act, made payable on demand at the banking house of said corporation within this state, to loan and circulate the same according to the ordinary course of banking business, and no such corporation shall at any time, issue or have in circulation any note, draft, bill of exchange, acceptance, certificate of deposit or other evidence of debt, which from its character or appearance, shall be calculated or intended to circulate as money, other than such notes of circulation as are in this section provided for.
Other circulation prohibited.
Lists of securities kept.	SEC. 1593. (6.) Three descriptive lists of the securities transferred to the auditor as aforesaid, shall be made and signed by the auditor and persons making the transfer; one in a well bound book to be kept by the auditor for that purpose, and one in a like book to be kept by the treasurer, and one in a book to be kept by the corporation, which book shall at all times be open to inspection, and said securities shall then be delivered to the treasurer for safe keeping, who shall receipt to the auditor for the same, and who shall be responsible for any loss or destruction thereof growing out of, or resulting from negligence or the want of reasonable precaution and care. The whole or any part of said securities may be re-delivered to the auditor for the purpose of being sold under the provisions of this act, or being used or disposed of under any order or decree of court, or of being returned to the owner in conformity with the provisions of this act, the auditor in either case giving a receipt upon the book kept by the treasurer aforesaid, specifying therein the purpose for which such re-delivery was made, which receipt shall discharge the treasurer from all further responsibility, but the auditor shall be liable in the same manner as the treasurer is while keeping or disposing of such security.
Stocks deposited with treasurer.
Stocks may be delivered up for certain purposes.
Auditor responsible.
Bank may be established.	SEC. 1594. (7.) Any person may establish, or any number of persons may associate to establish offices of discount, deposit and circulation, and become incorporated upon the terms and conditions, and subject to the liabilities prescribed in this act; but the aggregate amount of the capital stock of any such corporation shall not be less than * fifty thousand dollars; and the auditor of state shall not deliver to any incorporation, notes for circulation, until such corporation shall have deposited with and transferred to him the full amount of * fifty thousand dollars worth of stocks as named in section three of this act, the same to be rated as provided in said section, and the capital stock as required in this section shall be paid up in cash and be and remain so much of the bona fide capital of such corporation. No portion of the capital stock paid in as aforesaid, shall be at any time withdrawn from such corporation so as to reduce the remaining paid up capital then actually held by and in the possession of such corporation below the estimated value of the stocks deposited with and then in the possession of the auditor or treasurer belonging to such corporation, which shall be paid up in cash, and be and remain so much of the bona fide capital of such corporation. No portion of the capital stock paid in shall be at any time or under any circumstance, withdrawn from such corporation, so as to reduce the remaining capital paid in actually and held by and then in the possession

CHAPTER 66.

STATE BANK.

An Act to Incorporate the State Bank of Iowa.

[Passed March 20, 1858, took effect July 23, 1858; Laws of the Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 87, page 125.]

SECTION 1641. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the State Bank of Iowa be and the same is hereby incorporated with all the powers hereinafter granted, and by that name shall be capable of contracting and being contracted with, and of prosecuting and defending actions as fully as natural persons, and of doing all other acts necessary to effect the objects contemplated in this act by the creation of said corporation. State Bank incorporated.

SEC. 1642. (2.) That as soon as five or more branches of the State Bank of Iowa shall be organized as in this act is authorized, the directors of the said State Bank of Iowa appointed by such branches, shall meet in Iowa City at such time as shall be designated by the board of bank commissioners, who shall give ten days previous notice to each branch, of the time of such meeting, and provided two-thirds of the Five or more branches may organize Meet at Iowa City.

- whole number of such directors shall be convened, they shall organize by taking an oath, diligently, faithfully, and impartially to perform the duties imposed upon them by this act, a certificate of which oath, signed by each director, shall be filed and preserved in the office of the secretary of state, and by electing some one of their number as president, who shall preside at the meetings of the board and sign its official documents; and thereafter the directory of the state bank shall be composed of one director, appointed by each branch of said bank, two-thirds of whom shall be a quorum; and other branches may be organized under such directory as is herein provided.
- Elect president. SEC. 1643. (3.) The directors shall, when they deem it necessary, elect a vice president, whose duties shall be prescribed by the by-laws. They shall appoint a secretary, who shall keep a fair and true record of the proceedings of the bank. They shall keep an office in Iowa City, which together with their books, papers, records, and accounts of every description, shall at all times be open to the inspection of any committee of the general assembly, or either branch thereof, and of any commissioner or commissioners specially appointed for that purpose by the general assembly, or either branch thereof, or by the governor of the state.
- Directors may elect a vice president and secretary. They shall procure and furnish each branch with notes for circulation, and decide on the amount to be furnished from time to time to each, within the limits and agreeably to the rules and restrictions prescribed by this act. They may prescribe rules for the settlement of balances between branches, revise their by-laws and regulations concerning charges for making collections, and cause both to be made uniform, or as nearly so as may be expedient. They shall have power by themselves, or by a committee of one or more members of their own body, or by a special agent appointed by them for that purpose, whenever, and as often as they shall think proper, to visit any branch, inspect its books, records and accounts, and all the evidences of debt due to and securities held by such branch, examine and ascertain the amount of money and other property held by such branch; examine on oath the president, vice president, and directors, and cashier, and all other officers, agents, clerks, or servants of the branch, touching its condition, means and liabilities, they shall have power to require any branch to reduce its circulation or other liabilities within such limits as they shall, after full inquiry into its condition, deem necessary to secure from loss either the dealers with such branch, or the other branches of the State Bank of Iowa. They shall, as soon after the first Monday of every month as practicable, publish in some newspaper printed at Iowa City, a consolidated abstract of the monthly reports of all the branches, showing their assets, liabilities, and condition, which statement shall be recorded in a book or books to be kept for that purpose. They may

SEC. 1645. (5.) Each director of the bank, appointed by the branches, shall continue in office until the first Monday in February next after his appointment, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. Vacancies in the board shall be filled by the branch by which the appointment vacated was made. In voting, each member shall be entitled to two votes, and to one additional vote for every fifty thousand dollars of the amount of capital stock paid into the branch represented by him over one hundred thousand dollars, at the time of such voting. The president and vice president of the bank shall hold their offices for one year, and until their successors are appointed; but they may be removed by a resolution of the board. They and all other officers and agents of the bank shall take an oath faithfully, diligently, and impartially, to fulfill the duties of their appointments, and not knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act. They shall be required to give bond in such sum, and with such securities, as the bank shall prescribe, and all vacancies in said appointment shall be filled by the bank.

SEC. 1646. (6.) All notes designed for circulation by the branches shall be furnished by the State Bank of Iowa; but no notes shall be delivered to any branch until they are numbered and countersigned by some person authorized by the State Bank of Iowa to countersign the same as register, and a full record of such numbering and countersigning made in a book provided for that purpose; and all such notes shall have stamped or printed on their face the words, "Registered by the State Bank of Iowa." All notes so worn, defaced, or mutilated, as to be unfit for circulation, shall be returned by the branch by which they were issued, to the bank, and an equal amount of new notes received therefor; all such notes so returned by a branch, shall be credited, and all new ones delivered in their stead shall be charged to such branch on the books of said bank; and the notes so returned shall be burned to ashes in the presence of the president or vice president, and at least two of the directors of said bank.

State Bank to furnish branches with notes, registered and numbered.

Worn and defaced notes exchanged and destroyed.

SEC. 1647. (7.) Before the bank shall deliver to any branch, notes for circulation, it shall require such branch to pay over or deposit to the credit of said bank, as said bank shall order, either in money or United States stocks, or interest paying state stocks at their current value in the city of New York, but in no instance above their par value, an amount equal to twelve and one-half per cent. on the amount of the notes for circulation, which shall be delivered to such branch. And so from time to time as any branch, by the paying of an additional amount of its capital stock, or by not having received the amount of notes for circulation to which it was previously entitled, shall receive an additional amount of notes for circulation; such branch shall deposit with the bank twelve and one-half per cent. on the amount of notes so received; and the stocks and money so deposited shall be denominated the "safety fund," and shall be invested as hereinafter provided, and held by the bank as the property of said branch, in trust for the benefit of the several branches of the state bank of Iowa, and as a fund for the redemption of the notes of circulation of any one or more of said branches that may fail to redeem its notes, to be applied to that purpose in the manner pointed out in this act.

Branches to furnish stocks as security for notes.

Branches deposit stocks as a safety fund for the redemption of notes.

SEC. 1648. (8.) All money so deposited or paid to the bank on account of the safety fund by any branch, shall be under the direction of said bank, invested either in interest-paying stocks of states or of the United States. Each branch shall be entitled to receive the interest

(9.) The state bank of Iowa shall not furnish to any branch, circulating notes to an amount bearing a greater proportion to the capital stock of said branch actually paid in and at the time remaining undiminished by losses, or withdrawal, than the proportion hereinafter specified, that is to say: on the first hundred thousand dollars, or any lesser amount of its capital, not more than twice the amount of such capital, on the second hundred thousand dollars, or part thereof, not more than one and three-quarters the amount of such capital, over one hundred thousand; on the third hundred thousand dollars or part thereof, not more than one and a half the amount of such capital, over two hundred thousand; nor shall said bank furnish to any branch circulating notes of any other denomination than of one dollar, two dollars, three dollars, five dollars, ten dollars, twenty dollars, fifty dollars and one hundred dollars. Of the notes furnished to any branch not more than ten per cent. of the amount shall be in notes of one dollar each, not more than ten per cent. in notes of two dollars each, and not more than twenty-five per cent. shall be in notes of all denominations under five dollars, and not more than fifty per cent. in notes of all denominations under ten dollars. SEC. 1650. (10.) If any branch of the state bank of Iowa shall refuse to pay its notes of circulation, or any of them, in gold or silver coin, the lawful currency of the United States, on which payment shall be lawfully demanded at its banking house or customary place of doing business, during the usual banking hours, such branch shall be deemed to have committed an act of insolvency, and thereupon all its property, credits, securities, liens and assets of every description shall forthwith vest in and be the property, credits, securities, liens and assets of the state bank of Iowa, for the uses and purposes declared in this act. And the said branch shall only be allowed to make payment of any such lawful demand in silver coin where the sum so demanded does not exceed the amount for which silver coin is a legal tender according to the laws of the United States, and when payment shall be demanded on more than one of its notes at the same time, the aggregate amount of such notes so presented for payment to the amount of one hundred dollars shall be considered but one demand. SEC. 1651. (11.) The state bank of Iowa, on receiving information that any branch has committed such act of insolvency, shall forthwith appoint a committee of one or more of its directors, or others, who shall make immediate inquiry into the truth of such information, and report thereon to the bank; and if the bank shall be satisfied from the report of the committee, that such branch has suspended the payment of its notes in gold and silver as provided in section ten, (10) it shall forthwith appoint a suitable receiver, or receivers, who shall take immediate possession of the books, records, money, choses in action and property of such branch, of every description, and hold the same for the joint use of the other branches of the state bank of Iowa, and the creditors of the failing branch, and the state bank of Iowa shall immediately provide money and place the same in such solvent branch or branches, as may be most convenient for the purpose of redeeming the notes of such failing branch, and shall give public notice thereof in some newspaper printed in the place where such failing branch is located, also in some newspaper of general circulation published in Iowa City.

SEC. 1652. (12.) Each solvent branch shall contribute in the ratio of the circulation to which it is entitled, to the sum necessary for redeeming the notes of the failing branch, as provided in the preceding section, on the requisition of the state bank of Iowa, and may be remunerated for such contribution from the safety fund, as soon as money sufficient can be raised from that fund, by a sale or hypothecation of the stock, funds, or other securities belonging thereto.

Solvent branches make up losses of insolvent branches.

Reimbursed from safety fund.

SEC. 1653. (13.) The receiver or receivers appointed as provided in the eleventh section, shall be required to give bond in such sum, and such securities as the state bank of Iowa, or executive committee, shall judge sufficient, and under the direction of said bank, shall proceed to settle up the affairs of such branch, and convert its assets into money; the money so made shall be applied:

Receivers give bond.

1. To reimburse all moneys which shall have been advanced by the several branches, for the redemption of the notes and bills of the insolvent branch, and which may not have been previously reimbursed from the safety fund.

Reimburse all moneys from branches.

2. To reimburse all moneys advanced from the safety fund, other than moneys derived from that portion of the safety fund furnished by the failing branch.

Reimburse the safety fund.

3. To the payment and discharge of all the remaining liabilities of such branch: and Pay the liabilities of insolvent.

4. The residue shall be divided among the stockholders of the failing branch, in proportion to the stock by them respectively held.

Stockholders take what is left

SEC. 1654. (14.) If any branch against which the state bank of Iowa shall have instituted proceedings on account of any supposed act of insolvency as prescribed by the eleventh section of this act, shall deny having committed such act of insolvency, such branch may apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for a writ of injunction to said state bank of Iowa, to suspend all further proceedings against such branch as an insolvent bank; and such court, after citing said state bank of Iowa to appear and show cause why such writ should not be granted, and after the finding of a jury that such branch has at all times continued, and still continues to redeem in gold and silver coin, its notes of circulation, shall make an order enjoining the state bank of Iowa from all further proceedings against such branch on account of the supposed act of insolvency on which such proceedings were instituted, and thereupon all the property and assets of such branch shall be restored to its directors.

Branch may enjoin the state bank.

Prove redemption in specie, and receive its assets from state bank.

SEC. 1655. (15.) If the state bank of Iowa shall, in any case, fail to proceed in the manner prescribed in the foregoing sections of this act, in providing for the payment of the outstanding notes of circulation, and in closing the affairs of any branch that shall have committed an act of insolvency, the holder of any of its notes of circulation, or other creditor of such branch, may, in case payment of such notes of circulation or other claim has been refused when lawfully demanded, and remains unpaid, apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for its writ, commanding the state bank of Iowa so to proceed; and it shall be the duty of such court, after citing such bank to appear and show cause why such writ should not issue, and upon the finding of a jury that such act of insolvency has been committed, to issue their writ commanding said bank forthwith to proceed in the manner pointed out in the preceding sections of this act, to provide for the payment of the outstanding notes of such branch, close up its affairs, and make application of its assets.

A branch refusing to reduce circulation, increase specie, pay in stock, or obey the state bank, may be enjoined by any district, or higher court, on petition of bank, or any director thereof.

SEC. 1656. (16.) That if any branch shall neglect or refuse to comply with any order of the state bank of Iowa, requiring such branch to reduce its circulation or other liabilities, or provide a larger amount of specie or other means, or to pay in its stock, or to do, or to cause to be done any other matter or thing which said bank may deem necessary for the security of such branch, or any other branch or branches, said bank or any director thereof, acting for said bank, may apply to any judge of the supreme court or district court, or any judge of a superior court, or to any judge of any other court not inferior to the district court, by petition, in which the state bank of Iowa shall be made petitioner, and the branch implicated defendant, setting forth the substance of such order, or orders, and such neglect or refusal on the part of the branch, its officers or agents, to comply therewith; and if the president, vice president, or any director of the bank, shall make affidavit of the truth of the facts therein stated, it shall be the duty of such judge to allow an injunction, and to enjoin such branch, its officers and agents, and all others in its employ, or connected therewith, from doing, or suffering, or permitting to be done, any business whatever as a bank, and from intermeddling with, or in any manner disposing of, the books, papers, moneys, choses in action, assets, or property of the branch, until the further order of the supreme court as soon as an injunction is allowed.

Injunction allowed, receiver takes possession of property of branch.

SEC. 1657. (17.) Upon the allowance of such injunction, the property, credits, securities, liens and assets of every description, of such branch, shall forthwith vest in the state bank of Iowa, who shall appoint a receiver to take possession of the same as provided in the eleventh section of this act. A certificate of appointment of such receiver, by the judge, or court, or clerk thereof, making the same, shall be sufficient authority to him to take possession of the books, property and rights of every description of such branch, and shall be full authority to the sheriff of the county where the branch is located, to take and give full possession of such books, property, and rights, with the aid of the county, if required; and said bank receiver shall be governed by the provisions of this act as provided in cases of suspension; and upon the dissolution of such injunction, or a discontinuance of such suit by the bank, all the rights and property of such branch shall be restored to and vest in such branch.

Sheriff gives him full possession and he proceeds according to law.

Not less than five persons may form a branch.

SEC. 1658. (18.) Natural persons, not less in number than five, may associate and form branches of the state bank of Iowa, for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking, each at such place in this state as shall be designated in the certificate hereinafter required to be made, subject to the contingencies, restrictions, conditions and liabilities prescribed in this act.

Certificate of name of branch.

SEC. 1659. (19.) Persons associating to form a branch shall, under their hands and seals, make a certificate, which shall specify, Capital stock.

Name, residence and shares of each stockholder, and the date of incorporation.

1. The name assumed by such branch, and by which it shall be known in its dealings, in which name shall be included the name of the city, village or town in which its banking operations shall be carried on.

2. The amount of the capital stock of such branch, and the number of shares into which the same is divided.

3. The name and place of residence and the number of shares held by each member of the company.

4. The time when such company shall have been formed.

Which certificate shall be acknowledged before a justice of the peace or notary public, and shall be recorded by the recorder of the county where such branch is to be established, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, which shall at all times during office hours be kept open for the inspection of any person wishing to examine the same; One copy of which certificate, duly certified, shall be transmitted to the secretary of state, who shall record and carefully preserve the same in his office, and another to the bank commissioners in this act named, until the organization of the state bank of Iowa, and thereafter to said bank.

Certificate acknowledged and recorded.

Copy filed with secretary of state

SEC. 1660. (20.) The officers of each branch shall at the end of every month, cause to be prepared a statement of the number, names and place of residence of each stockholder in such branch, also the amount of stock owned by each, and the date of the transfers of any stock with the names of the transferer and transferee, one copy of which statement shall be posted up in some conspicuous place in the bank, and one copy shall be caused by the bank to be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds in the county wherein such branch is located, which last mentioned copy or a certified copy of the same under the hand of the recorder shall be prima facie evidence in any court of justice in this state in a suit between the branch or state bank of Iowa and any third person.

Statement of names, residences and shares of stockholders, filed and posted up.

Which shall be prima facie evidence in any suit.

SEC. 1661. (21.) No branch shall be permitted to commence or carry on the business of banking under this act, unless its capital stock shall be at least $50,000, nor shall the capital stock of any such branch ever be increased to exceed $300,000.

Amount of capital stock.

At least fifty per cent. of the capital stock of each branch shall be paid in gold and silver coin, and shall be in the actual possession and bona fide the property of the branch at the time of the commencement of its banking business, and the remainder of the capital stock of such branch shall be paid in gold and silver as aforesaid in installments, each of at least ten per cent. on the whole amount of capital subscribed, as frequently as once in every four successive months, from the time of commencing business until the whole amount of such capital shall be paid up: provided, that the directors may postpone the payments of the deferred installments, or any part thereof, to the branches when satisfied that the public interest does not require them to be paid as frequently as above provided for.

50 percent in specie paid in at commencement.

Remainder paid in.

SEC. 1662. (22.) If any shareholder or his assignee shall fail to pay any installment on his stock when the same shall be required to be paid, the branch may sell said stock at public auction having given three weeks previous notice thereof in a newspaper published in the county where the branch is located, (and having mailed a written notice to such delinquent shareholder or his assignee) to any person who will pay the highest price therefor, not less than the amount unpaid thereon; and the excess, if any, after paying the expenses of the sale, shall be refunded to the delinquent stockholder.

Any stockholder failing to pay his installments, his stock sold after notice is given.

If no bidder can be found who will pay for such stock, the amount unpaid thereon to the branch, and costs of advertisement and sale, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the branch, and such stock may be subsequently sold in such manner as the branch may order.

If stock can not be sold, it is forfeited to branch.

The capital stock of each branch shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and a stock book shall be kept by each branch bank, showing who are the stockholders, and what amount is held by each individual or company, which stock shall be assignable only on the Record of shares kept in stock book.

- books of the branch in such manner as its by-laws shall prescribe, but no shareholder shall have power to sell or transfer any shares held in his own right for the purpose of escaping liability when a bank is involved, or so long as he shall be liable either as principal, debtor, surety, or otherwise, to the branch for any debt, nor shall such shareholder, when liable to the branch for any debt that is overdue, be entitled to receive any dividends, interest or profit on such shares so long as such liability shall continue, but all such dividends, interest or profits shall be retained by the branch and applied to the discharge of such liabilities.
- Stock transferable except when bank is involved or holder indebted to bank. SEC. 1663. (23.) No branch shall take as security for any loan or discount, a lien on any part of its capital stock, or any other than personal security and the same security, both in kind and amount, shall be required of shareholders, as of persons not shareholders; and no branch shall be the holder or purchaser of any portion of its capital stock, or of the capital stock of any other incorporated company, unless such purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith, on security which at the time was deemed adequate to insure the payment of such debt, independent of any lien upon such stock; or in case of forfeitures of stock for the non-payment of installments due thereon, as provided in the twenty-second section; and stocks so purchased shall in no case be held by the branch so purchasing for a longer period of time than six months, if the same can be sold for what the stock cost, or at par.
- Loans secured by personal property only. SEC. 1664. (24.) In all elections of directors, and in deciding all questions at meetings of the stockholders, each share shall entitle the owner thereof to one vote; stockholders may vote by proxies duly authorized in writing, but no officer, clerk, teller or book-keeper of the branch shall act as proxy, and no stockholder whose liability to the branch is past due and unpaid shall be allowed to vote.
- No branch shall buy its own or any other stocks. SEC. 1665. (25.) The affairs of each branch shall be managed by not less than five nor more than nine directors. Every director shall be a citizen of the United States, and shall during his whole term of service reside in this state.
- One note to each share. Each director shall take an oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of the branch, and not knowingly violate or willingly permit to be violated any of the provisions of this act; that he is a bona fide owner in his own right, of the stock standing in his name on the books of the branch, and that the same is not hypothecated, or in any way pledged as security, for any loan obtained or debt owing; which oath, subscribed by himself and certified to by the officer before whom it is taken, shall be filed and carefully preserved in the office of the recorder of the county in which the branch is located; but no person shall be president or director of more than one branch at the same time.
- Proxies allowed, but no officer shall act as such. SEC. 1666. (26.) The stockholders collectively of any branch, shall at no time be liable to such branch, either as principals, debtors or sureties, or both, to an amount exceeding three-fifths part of the capital stock of such branch, then actually paid in, and remaining as capital stock, nor shall the directors, collectively, be so liable to an amount exceeding one-fifth part of the stock actually paid in, standing in their names, and of which they are, collectively, the bona fide owners in their own right.
- Number of directors and qualification. SEC. 1667. (27.) The directors of any branch, first elected, shall hold their places until the first Monday in January next thereafter, and until their successors shall be elected and qualified; all subsequent elections shall be held annually on the first Monday of January, and the SEC. 1695. (55.) The bank commissioners, and all agents appointed by them, shall each be entitled to receive for their services under this act, five dollars per day for every day necessarily employed in the discharge of their duties, and the same mileage as is received by the members of the general assembly, to be paid by the state bank of Iowa. Compensation of commissioners and agents.

SEC. 1696. (56.) This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its approval by a majority of all the electors of this state voting for and against it, at an election provided by law, and not otherwise. Takes effect.

AGRICULTURE.

ARTICLE 1.

An Act for the encouragement of Agriculture.

[Passed Jan. 28, 1857; took effect Sept. 5, 1857? Laws of Sixth General Assembly, Chapter 188, page 297.]

SECTION 1697. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it shall be the duty of all county agricultural societies in this state, whether now organized or hereafter to be organized, annually to offer and award premiums for the improvement of stock, tillage crops, implements, mechanical fabrics and articles of domestic industry, and such other articles and improvements as they may deem proper. And it shall also be their duty so to regulate the amount of premiums and the different grades of the same, as that it will be competent for small as well as large farmers and artizans to compete therefor. County societies.

SEC. 1698. (2.) It shall be the duty of each county society to publish annually a list of the awards, and an abstract of the treasurer's account, in one or more newspapers of the county or adjoining counties, and to make a report of their proceedings during the year, and a synopsis of the awards. And also make a report of the condition of agriculture in their county to the board of directors of the Iowa state agricultural society; which shall be forwarded by mail or otherwise to the secretary of said society, on or before the first of December of each Publish awards and make reports.

year, and a failure to make such report shall forfeit twenty per cent. upon the amount said society is entitled to draw from the state treasury, and the secretary shall be liable to the society for that amount. And it shall be the duty of the auditor of state, before issuing his warrant in favor of said societies for any amount, to demand the certificate of the secretary of the state society that such report has been made.

Officers of state society.

SEC. 1699. (3.) That the present officers and directors of the Iowa state agricultural society shall continue to hold their respective offices till the second Wednesday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and until their successors are elected as hereinafter determined: provided, said society shall at its next annual meeting alter or amend its articles of incorporation in such manner as not to conflict with the provisions of this act.

Meet and elect directors.

SEC. 1700. (4.) It shall be the duty of the officers and directors of the said state society, together with the presidents of all county societies, to meet at the capital of the state on the second Wednesday of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and proceed to elect by ballot, a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and ten directors, who together, or a quorum of five of their number, regularly convened, shall constitute the board of directors of the Iowa state agricultural society. The president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, shall serve one year. The time that each director shall serve, shall be determined by ballot, so that the term of service of five of the number shall expire in one year from their election, and the remaining five in two years; and at all subsequent elections, directors shall be chosen for two years; and the president of the society shall have power to call meetings of the board whenever he may deem it expedient.

Meeting of the board.

SEC. 1701. (5.) There shall be held at the capital of the state, on the second Wednesday of January in each year, an annual meeting of the board of directors of the Iowa State Agricultural Society, together with the president of each county society in the state, or other delegate therefrom, duly authorized in writing, who shall for the time being, be ex officio, members of the board, and entitled to all the rights and privileges of any other member; and at such annual meeting, officers and directors shall be chosen, the place for holding the next annual exhibition shall be determined, premiums on essays and field crops shall be awarded, and all questions relating to the agricultural development of the state may be considered.

- Money paid upon certificates of stock. SEC. 1711. (2.) That the county judge, upon the receipt of the certificate of stock of such society, duly issued and authenticated, as directed by the articles of association of such society, shall issue orders on the treasury of the county for the amount, in such sums as shall seem best, and when the same is paid, such county shall hold such stock in the same manner and subject to the same rules as other shareholders, and the county judge shall represent the county in all meetings of the stockholders.
- Money expended. SEC. 1712. (3.) The money received by the associations from the county treasury, shall be expended under the direction of the board of directors of the association.
- Money repaid in four years. SEC. 1713. (4.) The amount so paid out of the treasury, shall be levied and collected as other taxes are—one-fourth of the amount in each year thereafter, until the same is all levied and collected.

ARTICLE 3.

Agricultural College.

An Act to provide for the establishment of a State Agricultural College and Farm, with a Board of Trustees, which shall be connected with the entire Agricultural interests of the State of Iowa.

- A college established. SECTION 1714. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That there is hereby established a state agricultural college and model farm, to be connected with the entire agricultural interests of the state.
- Board of managers. SEC. 1715. (2.) Said college and farm shall be under the management of a board of eleven trustees, and the governor, the president of the state agricultural society, and the president of the state agricultural college, who shall be ex officio members of said board.
- Terms of office. SEC. 1716. (3.) The board of trustees shall at their first meeting under this act determine by lot their several periods of service, five of whom serving for two years, and six serving for four years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. At the annual meetings in the fall before vacancies occur in this board, each county agricultural society in the state may nominate one person for trustee, from whom the general assembly shall choose trustees to fill vacancies every two years as they occur, discriminating so as to give, if possible, one trustee to each judicial district in the state. Any vacancy in the board of trustees, caused by death, resignation or removal from the state, may be filled by a vote of the majority of the members of said board. Each trustee is required to give a satisfactory bond to the state in such sum as may be required by the governor, for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon them.
- Official bond. SEC. 1717. (4.) The president of the college shall be president of the board of trustees. It shall be his duty to preside at all meetings of the board. He shall control, manage and direct the affairs of the college and farm herein established, subject to such rules as may be prescribed by the trustees.
- President of college. SEC. 1718. (5.) Said board shall have power:
- Powers of trustees. 1. To elect a president for the state agricultural college and farm, and in the absence of the president, a president pro tempore, a secretary, and such other officers as may be required in the transactions of the business of the board.
- Elect officers.

2. To make all necessary rules and regulations for the government of the college and farm. Establish rules.

3. To purchase lands and erect buildings thereon, in accordance with the further provisions of this act. Purchase lands.

4. To keep a full and complete record of all their proceedings, and do such other things as may be found necessary to carry out the intent and meaning of this act. Keep a record.

SEC. 1719. (6.) The trustees shall receive no compensation except for mileage in traveling to and from the meetings of the board, which shall be at the same rate and computed in the same manner as the mileage allowed to members of the general assembly; and the auditor of state is hereby authorized to audit and allow the claims for such attendance, upon not more than three meetings annually. Compensation of trustees.

SEC. 1720. (7.) The first session of the board of trustees shall be held at the capitol of the state, on the second Monday in January, 1859. First session.

SEC. 1722. (9.) Said board of trustees are hereby authorized to select and purchase suitable lands, not less than six hundred and forty acres, for the use and purposes of the college herein established. Purchase suitable land.

SEC. 1723. (10.) Said board shall receive proposals for sale of lands for the use of said college before purchasing the same, and in the purchase, the price, location, quality and variety of soil, advantages of water, timber, stone, et cetera, shall be considered. Proposals of sale and advantages of location.

SEC. 1724. (11.) There is hereby appropriated the proceeds of the sale of five sections of land heretofore granted to the State of Iowa by congress for the erection of capitol buildings, for the use and benefit of the college herein established: provided, congress diverts the same for this purpose; and also the proceeds of the sale of all other lands granted or which may be granted by congress to the state of Iowa for the purposes contemplated by this act. Land appropriated for building.

SEC. 1725. (12.) There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury of the state, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten thousand dollars for the purchase of lands as provided in section nine of this act, and the improvement of the same. $10,000 appropriated.

SEC. 1726. (13.) Upon the execution and delivery to the secretary of state of the proper conveyance or conveyances of the land purchased as hereinbefore provided, with a certificate of the attorney general of the state, that he has examined the title to the same and finds it unencumbered and perfect and in accordance with this act, and that the location has been approved by the trustees, the auditor of state shall draw his warrant or warrants on the state treasurer for the amount of such purchase in favor of the party or parties to whom such sum or sums may be due; said purchase or purchases to be made in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-nine previous to the first day of July of that year. Deed of conveyance. Auditor's warrants. Purchase completed.

SEC. 1727. (14.) If any moneys remain unexpended after the purchase of said farm or lands, the trustees are hereby authorized to appropriate the same, or so much thereof as is needed for the erection of the necessary buildings for the college on the farm, and otherwise improving the same. Buildings erected.

SEC. 1728. (15.) The course of instruction in said college shall include the following branches, to wit: natural philosophy, chemistry, botany, horticulture, fruit growing, forestry, animal and vegetable Studies pursued anatomy, geology, mineralogy, meteorology, entymology, zoology, the veterinary art, plain mensuration, leveling, surveying, book keeping, and such mechanic arts as are directly connected with agriculture. Also, such other studies as the trustees may from time to time prescribe, not inconsistent with the purposes of this act.

Professorships.	SEC. 1729. (16.) The board of trustees shall establish such professorships as they may deem best to carry into effect the provisions of this act.
Tuition free.	SEC. 1730. (17.) Tuition in the college herein established shall be forever free to pupils from this state over fourteen years of age and who have been resident of the state six months previous to their admission. Applicants for admission must be of good moral character, able to read and write the English language with ease and correctness, and also to pass a satisfactory examination in the fundamental rules of arithmetic.
Qualification for admission.
Hours of labor.	SEC. 1731. (18.) The trustees upon consultation with the professors and teachers shall, from time to time, establish rules regulating the number of hours, to be not less than two in winter and three in summer, which shall be devoted to manual labor and the compensation therefor; and no student shall be exempt from such labor except in case of sickness or other infirmity.
Book keeper elected.	SEC. 1732. (19.) The board shall elect annually from the teachers or more advanced pupils, a competent book keeper, who shall keep an accurate account of the receipts and disbursements of said college and farm from all sources; he shall also keep a minute and accurate account with each field and of each crop, which shall embrace the time and manner of cultivation, the amount of seed and the product, condition of the field before planting and sowing, and after harvesting, and kind and amount of fertilizers used; also a list of animals and the value thereof, kept on the farm and the treatment of the same; also, a daily register of the weather; of all of which he shall make an annual statement or synopsis of the same, to the secretary of the board of trustees.

Any person or firm in this state, who shall receive or receipt for any money on account of or for any contract of insurance made by him or them, or for any such insurance company or individual aforesaid, or who shall receive or receipt for money from other persons, to be transmitted to any such company or individual aforesaid, for a policy or policies of insurances, or any renewals thereof, although such policy or policies of insurance may not be signed by him or them, as agent or agents of such company, or who shall in any wise, directly or indirectly, make or cause to be made any contract or contracts of insurance for, or on account of such insurance company aforesaid, shall be deemed to all intents and purposes an agent or agents of such company, and shall be subject and liable to all the provisions, regulations and penalties of this act.

Copies shall be evidence.

SEC. 1754. (10.) That copies of all papers required by this act to be deposited in the office of auditor of state, certified under the hand of such auditor to be true and correct copies of such papers, shall be received as evidence in all courts and places, in the same manner, and have the same force and effect as the originals would have if produced.

Life insurance.

SEC. 1755. (11.) This act shall not be so construed as in any manner to apply to life insurance companies, but shall include within its provisions only the fire and fire and marine departments, of any company that may have separate departments for life insurance, and fire and fire and marine insurance.

Penalties.

SEC. 1756. (12.) Any person or persons violating the provisions of this act, shall, upon conviction thereof, in any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined in any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days, and fed on bread and water only, or both, at the discretion of the court. Violations of the provisions of this act may be prosecuted by information filed by the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, or by indictment of the grand jury.*

Company complying.

SEC. 1757. (13.) Any assurance company complying with the requirements of this act, and securing the certificate of the auditor for any of its agents, shall not be required to furnish the single statement and evidences required hereby, which being filed with the auditor of state, shall be deemed a sufficient compliance for its free transaction of business in the state.

* See as to section 12, constitution, article 1, section 11.

SEC. 1758. (14.) All acts and parts of acts, which conflict with this law, are hereby repealed.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend an Act entitled an Act in relation to Insurance Companies, approved January 28, 1857.

[Passed February 9, 1858, took effect February 17, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 12, page 15.]

SECTION 1759. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That if any insurance company, association, firm or individual, or their agent or agents having filed its or their statements and evidences of investments as required by the act to which this is amendatory, and conformed to the requirements of that act, shall have on deposit in any other state or territory, or elsewhere than in this state, any portion of its capital or earnings as a guarantee fund for the exclusive benefit or security of persons insured in such state, territory or other place, it shall be the duty of the auditor of state to withhold from such body or individual, so alienating any such portion of their capital and resources, the certificate and authority in said act provided for, until such body or individual shall file with the auditor of state a statement duly verified by the oath or affirmation of the president or secretary of such incorporated company, or member of such incorporated company, association, partnership or firm, or by such individual, showing the amount of premiums received in this state by such company during the year ending on the first of January next, preceding the filing of said statement, and shall deposit in this state in such manner as the auditor of state shall direct, five per cent. of the amount so received in money or solvent state or United States stocks of at least par value or mortgages on real estate, situated in this state of at least double the value for which the same is mortgaged—which statements and deposits shall be so made, from year to year, at the time of each renewal or original grant of authority by said auditor, until the sum of forty thousand dollars is deposited as aforesaid; which said sum and every yearly part thereof deposited as aforesaid, shall be held under the control of such auditor of state as a guarantee fund for the benefit of such persons as may be in any manner insured in their property by such company within this state, and the same or any part of the sum so deposited shall not be drawn out by the depositors until all claims for losses or premiums, or risks unexpired, shall be fully paid and discharged, or until all deposits made in other states, territories and other places, not within this state, shall be withdrawn. And in case of the insolvency of any such company, the sums so deposited as aforesaid, shall be applied by the auditor of state, protanto, towards the payment of all claims against such body or individual, filed in his office duly liquidated and authenticated, and losses and premiums on risks unpaid, on policies issued within six months after such insolvency may occur, any such body or individual shall be deemed insolvent, upon failure to pay any undisputed loss insured against, within this state, for the space of ninety days after final judgment, for the amount of any loss so insured against, when no appeal shall have been taken from such judgment by either party, or other proceeding begun to vacate, modify, reverse or review such judgment, or to arrest the same, or to obtain a new trial. Such body or individual shall be entitled to receive the interest or dividends on such stocks so deposited from time to time as the same may become due.

When guarantee fund deposited in another state, the auditor shall withhold certificate until statement is made, a deposit of 5 per cent. with auditor.

Guarantee fund held by auditor for the benefit of parties insured within this state.

Fund how disposed of by auditor when company insolvent.

Application to foregoing.

This section shall not apply to any of the aforesaid bodies or individuals who have made no such deposit as in this section mentioned elsewhere, than in this state.

Auditor issue certificate to for-
companies.

SEC. 1760. (2.) Mutual insurance companies incorporated by any other state than the state of Iowa, upon filing in the office of the auditor the act of incorporation of said company, together with a written instrument under seal of said company signed by the president and secretary of said company, under oath certifying that said company is possessed of a capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars, secured by lien on real estate, worth at cash valuation at least five times the amount of said capital, and not encumbered to more than one half of said cash valuation, shall be entitled to a certificate from said auditor with authority to transact business of insurance in this state, and said company shall be exempt from the provisions of an act to which this is amendatory, with the exception of the publication of statement and certificate of the auditor.

Agent file state-
of district court.

SEC. 1761. (3.) It shall be the duty of the agent or agents in either of the foregoing sections, mentioned, before taking any risks or transacting any business of insurance in this state, to file in the office of clerk of the district court of the county of which he or they may desire to establish an agency for any such company, a copy of the statement required to be filed with the auditor of state as aforesaid, together with a certificate of said auditor, which shall be carefully preserved for public inspection by said clerk, and said statement and certificate shall be published one week in three daily, and three weeks in five weekly newspapers of general circulation in the state of Iowa.

Published in newspaper.

Repeal.

SEC. 1762. (4.) Section seven of the act to which this is amendatory, and all other acts that conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

DECISIONS. Where suit on policy is brought before maturity, the error may be corrected by a supplemental petition, 4 G , 229; a policy which agrees to make good to assigns loss, and that such policy shall not be assignable, is assignable after loss without the consent of the company, 1 Iowa, 404.

False alarms of fire punished.

SEC. 1768. (4.) That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to cause false alarm of fire, either by setting fire to any combustible material or by giving an alarm of fire without cause, and any person offending against the provisions of this section shall be fined a sum of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, to be sued for and recovered as specified in the foregoing sections.

CHAPTER 70.

HEDGES.

An Act relating to Hedges and Hedge Growers.

[Passed January 28, 1857, took effect July 1, 1857, Laws of Sixth General Assembly, Chapter 217, page 375]

Contract for hedges.

SECTION 1769. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all contracts in writing, for the planting or growing of any hedge, shall run with the land which the hedge is designed to benefit, and all transfers of the ownership of land shall operate as a transfer of any hedging contract relating to the same, and the person to whom such land is transferred, no matter by what mode, may sue and be sued upon such hedging contract as though he was one of the original parties to the same.

Lien on land.

SEC. 1770. (2.) All labor or capital expended in pursuance of the contract above mentioned, by any one, in planting or growing any hedge, shall operate as a lien on the land which is to be benefited by the hedge, and the said land shall be liable for the value of the labor and capital expended in planting or growing such hedge, notwithstanding any transfer of the ownership of the land.

To perpetuate lien.

SEC. 1771. (3.) Any hedge planter or grower who desires to establish and perpetuate his lien, shall file with the recorder of deeds in the county where the hedge is situated, a memorandum in writing, having his own signature, containing the following particulars, to wit:

1. The name of the hedge planter or grower.
2. The name of the other party to the contract.
3. The numbers of the land which the hedge is designed to benefit.
4. The date of the contract or time of planting the hedge.
5. The number of rods planted.
6. The price to be paid and the time of payment for the planting or growing of the same.

Such filing shall operate as constructive notice to all persons of the existence of the hedging contract and lien.

Record.

SEC. 1772. (4.) The recorder of deeds shall keep a book for the purpose of recording such memorandums, for which he shall be entitled to the ordinary fees.

SEC. 1773. (5.) Suit may be brought upon hedging contracts, as in ordinary cases, and execution issued against the personal property of the defendant, and the land subject to the lien resorted to afterward in case the demand is not satisfied.

SEC. 1774. (6.) The certificate of the recorder indorsed on the memorandum referred to in section three, shall be evidence of the filing and recording of the same, but not evidence of the facts which it contains, which must be established by the production of the contract, or other competent proof. Recorder's certificate.

TITLE XIII.

REGULATIONS PERTAINING TO TRADE.

CHAPTER 71.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

[Code—Chapter 56.]

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1775. (937.) The treasurer of state is hereby required to procure at the expense of the state a set of the following weights and measures: Length.

One yard of three feet, divided by marks into halves, quarters, eighths, and sixteenths;

One one-foot measure of twelve inches;

One half bushel for dry measure not heaped, containing one thousand and seventy-five and one-fifth cubic inches; Dry measure.

One peck, or a fourth of a bushel;

One half peck, or one-eighth of a bushel;

One gallon measure, containing two hundred and thirty-one cubic inches; Liquid measure.

One quart, or a fourth of a gallon;

One pint, or half of a quart;

One gill, or a fourth of a pint;

One set of avoirdupois weights consisting of a pound, a half pound, a quarter of a pound, and an ounce, and also a ten pound weight; Weights.

- Material. All of which shall be of the most approved material for the preservation of uniformity and shall be kept in the treasurer's office and be the standard weights and measures of this state.
- Hundred weight. SEC. 1776. (938.) The "hundred weight" is hereby declared to consist of one hundred pounds avoirdupois weight, and the ton to consist of twenty such hundreds.
- Perch. SEC. 1777. (939.) The "perch" of mason work or stone is hereby declared to consist of twenty-five feet cubic measure.
- Contracts. SEC. 1778. (940.) Contracts in which no other scale or standard of weight or measures is expressed shall be taken to mean the above, excepting the following in relation to the bushel.
- Except bushel. A bushel of the respective articles hereafter mentioned will mean the amount of weight in this section specified; that is to say:
- Of wheat, sixty pounds;
  - Of shelled corn, fifty-six pounds;
  - Of corn in the cob, seventy pounds;
  - Of rye, fifty-six pounds;
  - Of oats, thirty-three* pounds;

MONEY OF ACCOUNT AND INTEREST.

[Code—Chapter 57.]

ARTICLE 1.

Public accounts, &c. SEC. 1785. (943.) The money of account of this state is the dollar, cent, and mill, and all public accounts and the proceedings of all courts in relation to money shall be kept and expressed in money of the above denomination.

Other denominations. SEC. 1786. (944.) The above provisions shall not in any manner affect any demand expressed in money of another denomination but such demand in any suit or proceeding affecting the same shall be reduced to the above denomination.

[The rest of this article superseded by the next.]

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to regulate the Interest on Money.

[Passed Jan. 20, 1853, took effect Feb. 9, 1853; Laws of Fourth General Assembly, Chapter 37, page 67.]

Rate. SECTION 1787. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the rate of interest shall be six cents on the hundred, by the year, on money due by express contract, unless a different rate be expressed in writing; on all moneys after the same becomes due, where there is no contract fixing the rate of interest, on judgments and decrees for the payment of money, where no other rate is expressed; on money lent without a contract fixing the rate of interest, and on money received to the use of another, and retained beyond a reasonable time, without the owner's consent, express or implied; on money due upon the settlement of matured accounts from the day the balance is ascertained; on money due upon open accounts, after six months from the date of the last item, and on all money due, or to become due, where there is contract to pay interest, and no rate stipulated.

Contracts. SEC. 1788. (2.) Parties may agree, in writing, for the payment of interest not exceeding ten cents on the hundred, by the year.

Judgments. SEC. 1789. (3.) Interest shall be allowed on all moneys due on judgments and decrees, of any competent court or tribunal, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, unless a different rate is fixed by the contract, on which the judgment or decree is rendered, in which case the judgment or decree shall draw interest at the rate expressed in the contract; but no judgment or decree shall draw more than ten per cent. per annum, which rate must be expressed in the judgment or decree.

Money. Retained. SEC. 1790. (4.) No person shall, directly or indirectly, receive in money, goods, or things in action, or in any other manner, any greater sum or value, for the loan of money, or upon contract founded upon any bargain, sale, or loan of wares, merchandize, goods, chattels, lands and tenements, than is in this act prescribed.

Accounts. SEC. 1791. (5.) If it shall be ascertained, in any suit brought on judgments to draw same rate as instrument. Unlawful interest. SEC. 1791. (5.) If it shall be ascertained, in any suit brought on any contract, that a rate of interest has been contracted for greater than is authorized by this act, either directly or indirectly, in money, property, or other valuable thing, the same shall work a forfeiture of ten per cent. per annum upon the amount of such contract to the school fund of the county in which the suit is brought, and the plaintiff shall have judgment for the principal sum, without either interest or costs. The court in which said suit is prosecuted, shall render judgment for the amount of interest forfeited as aforesaid against the defendant, in favor of the state of Iowa, for the use of the school fund of said county, whether the said suit is contested or not, and in all cases where the unlawful interest is not apparent on the contract or writing, the person contracting to pay the unlawful interest shall be a competent witness to prove that the contract is usurious, and in no case where unlawful interest is contracted for, shall the plaintiff have judgment for more than the principal sum, whether the unlawful interest be incorporated with the principal or not.

Forfeiture.

Judgment.

Use of school fund.

Competent witness.

SEC. 1792. (6.) Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the proper bona fide assignee of any usurious contract recovering against the usurer the full amount of the consideration paid by him for such contract, less the amount of the principal money, but the same may be recovered of such usurer in the proper action before any court having competent jurisdiction.

Assignee.

May recover of usurer.

SEC. 1793. (7.) So much of chapter fifty-seven, title thirteen, of the code as may conflict with the provisions of this act, is hereby repealed. This act to take effect in thirty days from and after its publication in the Iowa Capital Reporter and the Iowa Republican.

Repeal.

- PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act relating to interest on contracts, passed April 20, 1833; M. D., 1833, p. 343; repealed March 1, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 276.

The person contracting for illegal interest may be a witness thereto, 4 Iowa, 492; the defense of usury may be made against a bona fide vendee of the note, as the contract is made illegal by the penalty, 4 Iowa, 494; on a penalty nothing but legal interest can be recovered, 3 Iowa, 244; 3 G., 120, 1 G. 179; case where a vendee under city tax title sues to recover his purchase money and interest, Corbin v. City of Davenport, Dec., 1859; see 2 G., 447; usurious contract void, 2 Iowa, 437; 2 G., 217; judgment same interest as note, M., 106; 1 G., 66; 6 Iowa, 235; how to compute, 3 G., 76; interest on an account should be averred in petition, 1 G., 336; M., 417; agreement or usage, may qualify mode of computation, 8 Iowa, 163; Isett & Brewster, v. Ogilvie & Co., Dec., 1859; see M., 294, as to date from which to compute;—where interest alone is payable annually, and is unpaid, it only draws six per cent. interest, Mann v. Cross, Dec., 1859; a penalty not usury, M., 425; 1 G., 128; 3 Iowa, 244; usury may be pleaded when suit is brought on usurious contract in the name of indorsee, 4 Iowa, 490; voidable as to the excess over legal interest, 1 G., 128; the sworn replication of plaintiff does not disqualify the defendant as a witness in usury, 4 Iowa, 490; when the bill states an usurious contract, defendant need not plead it, 1 G., 121; a creditor seeking to recover on a usurious contract, must express a willingness to abandon the usurious part, 1 G., 121.

CHAPTER 73.

NOTES AND BILLS.

[Code—Chapter 58.]

ARTICLE 1.

SEC. 1794. (947.) Notes in writing made and signed by any person promising to pay to another person or his order or bearer, or to bearer

For money.

- only, any sum of money are negotiable by indorsement or delivery in the same manner as inland bills of exchange according to the custom of merchants.
- Action. SEC. 1795. (948.) The person to whom such sum of money is made payable may maintain an action against the maker, and any person to whom such note is so indorsed or delivered may maintain his action in his own name against the maker or the indorser or both of them.
- For property or labor. SEC. 1796. (949.) Bonds, due bills, and all instruments in writing by which the maker promises to pay to another without words of negotiability a sum of money, or by which he promises to pay a sum of money in property or labor, or to pay or deliver any property or labor, or acknowledges any money or labor or property to be due, are assignable by indorsement thereon or by other writing, and the assignee shall have a right of action in his own name subject to any defense or set-off legal or equitable which the maker or debtor had against any assignor thereof before notice of his assignment.
- May be made negotiable. SEC. 1797. (950.) Instruments by which the maker promises to pay a sum of money in property or labor, or to pay or deliver property or labor, or acknowledges property or labor or money to be due to another, are negotiable instruments with all the incidents of negotiability whenever it is manifest from their terms that such was the intent of the maker, but the use of the technical words "order" or "bearer" alone will not manifest such intent.
- Assignment prohibited. SEC. 1798. (951.) When by the terms of an instrument its assignment is prohibited, an assignment of it shall nevertheless be valid, but the maker may avail himself of any defense or set-off legal or equitable against the assignee which he may have against any assignor thereof before suit is commenced thereon.
- Open account. SEC. 1799. (952.) An open account of sums of money due on contract may be assigned, and the assignee will have the right of action in his own name, but subject to the same defenses and set-offs as the instruments mentioned in the preceding section.
- Guarantor. SEC. 1800. (953.) The blank indorsement of an instrument for the payment of money, property, or labor, by a person not a payee, indorsee or assignee thereof, shall be deemed a guaranty of the performance of the contract.
- How chargeable. SEC. 1801. (954.) To charge such guarantor notice of non-payment by the principal must be given within a reasonable time, but the guarantor is chargeable without notice if the holder show affirmatively that the guarantor has received no detriment from the want of notice.
- Notice. SEC. 1802. (955.) An indorser of a negotiable instrument, and a guarantor as contemplated in the preceding section, is liable to the action of an indorsee, assignee, or payee, without notice* if the indorsee, assignee, or payee have used due diligence in the institution and prosecution of a suit against the maker or his representative.
- Notice. SEC. 1803. (956.) The assignor of any of the above instruments not negotiable shall be liable to the action of his assignee without notice.
- Grace. SEC. 1804. (957.) Three days of grace are allowed on bills of exchange according to the custom of merchants, but not on any other instruments ;† and a demand at any time during the three days of grace will be sufficient for the purpose of charging the indorser.

* Modified so as to require notice. See section 1813.

† Modified by section 1813.

CHAPTER 74.

TENDER.

[Code—Chapter 59.]

SECTION 1815. (966.) When a tender of money or property is Not accepted, not accepted by the party to whom it is made the party making it may if he sees fit retain in his own possession the money or property tendered but if afterwards the party to whom the tender was made see proper to accept it and give notice thereof to the other party and the subject of tender be not delivered to him within a reasonable time the tender shall be of no effect.

Offer in writing. SEC. 1816. (967.) An offer in writing to pay a particular sum of money or to deliver a written instrument or specific personal property, if not accepted is equivalent to the actual tender of the money, instrument, or property, subject however to the condition contained in the preceding section, but if the party to whom the tender is made desire an inspection of the instrument or property tendered (other than money) before making his determination it shall be given him on request.

Receipt. SEC. 1817. (968.) The person making a tender may demand a receipt in writing duly signed for the money or article tendered as a condition precedent to the delivery thereof.

Objection. SEC. 1818. (969.) The person to whom a tender is made must at the time make any objection which he may have to the money, instrument, or property tendered, or he will be deemed to have waived it. And if the objection be to the amount of money, the terms of the instrument, or the amount or kind of property, he must specify the amount, terms, or kind which he requires, or be precluded from objecting afterwards. But an offer of bank notes is not a tender though not objected to.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act * * and concerning tender, passed March 12, 1827; M. D., 1833, p. 405.

2. An act on promissory notes, passed Jan. 4, and took effect March 1, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 381; repealed by Reprint, 1843, chap. 106, being No. 3 hereof.

3. An act on notes, &c., passed Feb. 8, 1843; Reprint, chap. 106, p. 451; (this act is same as 1839, save 11, 12, 13, in this new).

DECISIONS. A plea of tender admits that sum to be due, 5 Iowa, 462; a tender after suit brought is not good unless it include costs then accrued, 5 Iowa, 463; if a plea of tender aver falsely that the money has been paid into court, on proper motion the defendant will not be allowed to offer proof on such plea without such payment, 5 Iowa, 462; tender saves cost and interest, if kept good, but does not satisfy the demand, 4 G., 97; it admits cause of action to its extent, 5 Iowa, 460; 4 G., 555; and entitles to judgment for so much, 4 G., 97; the money should be brought into court and a continued readiness expressed, 5 Iowa, 460; 4 G., 97; plea of tender need not be regarded unless money paid in, 5 Iowa, 460; nor can evidence of, under the plea be received, if objected, unless such be done, if the objector has notified the defendant to produce money, and he has failed, 5 Iowa, 460; if the tender was abandoned before the justice, it should not be considered on appeal, 4 G., 97; see case of qualified refusal of tender, 5 Iowa, 317; absolute refusal, 3 G., 335.

CHAPTER 75.

SURETIES.

[Code—Chapter 60.]

Requiring creditor to sue.

SECTION 1819. (970.) When any person bound as surety for another for the payment of money or the performance of any other contract in writing apprehends that his principal is about to become insolvent or to remove permanently from the state without discharging the contract, if a right of action has accrued on the contract he may by writing require the creditor to sue upon the same or to permit the surety to commence suit in such creditor's name and at the surety's cost.

SEC. 1820. (971.) If the creditor refuse to bring suit, or neglect so to do for ten days after the request, and does not permit the surety so to do and furnish him with a true copy of the contract or other writing therefor and enable him to have the use of the original when requisite in such suit, the surety shall be discharged. Creditor refusing.

SEC. 1821. (972.) When the surety commences such suit, he shall file his undertaking to pay such costs as may be adjudged against the creditor, and the suit shall be brought against all the obligors, but those joining in the request to the creditor shall make no defense to the action but may be heard on the assessment of the damages. Suit by surety.

SEC. 1822. (973.) The provisions of this chapter extend to the executor of a deceased surety and to the executor, indorsee, and assignee of the creditor; but they do not extend to the official bonds of public officers, executors, or guardians. Provisions limited.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act concerning debtors and their securities, passed Jan. 12, 1838, Wis., 2d sess., No. 51, p. 94; repealed Aug. 30, 1840.

2. An act concerning debtors and their securities, passed Dec. 25, took effect Jan. 25, 1839, I. T., 1st sess., p. 439; also Reprint, 1843, p. 565.

3. An act for the relief of the securities of persons charged with criminal offenses, passed Jan. 3, 1839; Reprint, 1843, p. 567.

4. An act for the relief of securities of public officers in certain cases, passed Feb. 15, took effect July 4, 1843; Reprint, chap. 135, p. 568.

DECISIONS. Action by surety against a co-surety, Wood v. Perry, Dec., 1859; duties of surety to preserve his rights, 6 Iowa, 39; rights of security, 1 Iowa, 432; when the appeal bond is not in form and substance a recognizance, such as required by the law of appeals, it is error to render summarily judgment against the sureties on a recognizance, under Reprint, 1843, sec. 16, 3 G., 126; a surety may be released from his bonds and another substituted, 2 G., 205; see 8 Iowa, 214; the notice required under sec. 970, of code, in order to release the surety must be in writing, 6 Iowa, 538; a surety who signs a note and takes it up, may re-issue it, 1 G., 179; a co-surety who has paid the debt, may sue for contribution without first making demand therefor, Wood v. Perry, Dec., 1859; the statute of limitations begins to run on a surety who pays the debt from the date of such payment, 6 Iowa, 516.

CHAPTER 76.

PRIVATE SEALS.

[Code—Chapter 61.]

SECTION 1823. (974.) The use of private seals in written contracts (except the seals of corporations) is hereby abolished, and the addition of a private seal to an instrument of writing hereafter made shall not affect its character in any respect. Abolished.

SEC. 1824. (975.) All contracts in writing hereafter made and signed by the party to be bound or his authorized agent or attorney shall import a consideration in the same manner as sealed instruments now do. Consideration implied.

SEC. 1825. (976.) The want or the failure, in the whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract may be shown as a defense, Failure of consideration.

total or partial as the case may be, in an action on such contract brought by one who is not an innocent and bona fide holder.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act respecting seals, passed March 12, 1827; M. D., 1833, p. 515.

2. An act respecting seals, passed June 10, 1828; M. D., 1833, p. 516. The above repealed Aug. 30, 1840.

3. An act respecting seals, passed Jan. 24, took effect Feb. 24, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 435; repealed August 30, 1840; I. T., 2d sess., extra, chap. 29, p. 20.

4. An act to repeal certain acts of July and Aug. 30, 1840; I. T., 2d sess., chap. 29, p. 20.

DECISIONS. ### ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS.

[Code—Chapter 62.]

ARTICLE 1.

General assignment. SECTION 1826. (977.) No general assignment of property by an insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency for the benefit of creditors of the assignor shall be valid unless it be made for the benefit of all his creditors in proportion to the amount of their respective claims.

Assent. SEC. 1827. (978.) In the case of an unconditional assignment of property for the benefit of all the creditors of the assignor the assent of the creditors shall be presumed.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend Chapter 62, Title 13, of the Code of Iowa, and to close up Assignments for benefit of Creditors.

Inventory. SECTION 1828. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in any case of assignment for the benefit of creditors, the debtor or debtors, shall annex to such assignment an inventory, under oath or affirmation, of his, her or their estate, real and personal, according to the best of his, her or their knowledge, and also a list of his, her or their creditors, and the amount of their respective demands; but such inventory shall not be conclusive as to the amount of the debtor's estate, but such assignment shall vest in the assignee or assignees the title to any other property belonging to the debtor or debtors at the time of making the assignment, and comprehended within the general terms of the same. Every assignment shall be duly acknowledged and recorded in the county where the person or persons making the same reside, or where the business in respect of which the same is made, has been carried on.

SEC. 1829. (2.) That the assignee or assignees named in such assignment shall forthwith give notice thereof by publication in some newspaper published in the county, if any, and if none, then in the nearest county thereto, which publication shall be continued at least six weeks; and shall also forthwith send a notice thereof by mail to each creditor of whom he or they shall be informed, directed to their usual place of residence, and notifying the creditors to present their claims, under oath or affirmation, to him within three months thereafter. Notice.

SEC. 1830. (3.) That the assignee or assignees shall also forthwith file with the clerk of the district court of the county where such assignment shall be recorded, a true and full inventory and valuation of said estate, under oath or affirmation, so far as the same has come to his or their knowledge, and shall then and there enter into bonds to said clerk, for the use of the creditors, in double the amount of the inventory and valuation, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by said clerk, for the faithful performance of said trust, and the said clerk shall give a receipt therefor, and the assignee or assignees, may thereupon proceed to perform any duty necessary to carry into effect the intention of said assignment as respects the collection of debts, and the sale of real or personal estate. File inventory. Bond

SEC. 1831. (4.) That at the expiration of three months from the time of first publishing notice as before provided, the assignee or assignees shall report and file with the clerk of the district court as aforesaid, a true and full list, under oath or affirmation, of all such creditors of the assignor or assignors, as shall have claimed to be such, with a true statement of their respective claims, and also an affidavit of publication of notice, and a list of the creditors, with their places of residence, and the date of mailing, to whom notice has been sent by mail duly verified. Claims.

SEC. 1832. (5.) That any person interested as creditors or otherwise by himself or attorney, may appear within thirty days after filing such report, and file with said clerk any exceptions to the claim or demand of any creditor exhibit as aforesaid, and the clerk of said court shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be given to the creditor, which shall be served as in case of an original notice in the district court, and shall be returnable at the next term of the district court in said county; and the said district court shall, at the next term, proceed to hear the proofs and allegations of the parties in the premises, and shall render such judgment thereon as shall be just, and may allow a trial by jury thereon. File exceptions.

SEC. 1833. (6.) That at the first term of the said district court, after the expiration of the three months, as aforesaid, should no exception be made to the claim of any creditor, or if exceptions have been made, and the same have been adjudicated and settled by the court, the said court shall order the assignee or assignees to make from time to time fair and equal dividends, (among the creditors) of the assets in his or their hands, in proportion to their claims, and as soon as may be, and within one year thereafter, to render a final account of said trust to said Dividends.

district court, and said court may allow such commissions and allowances to said assignee or assignees, in the final settlement as may be considered by the court just and right.

Court to have supervision.

SEC. 1834. (7.) That the assignee or assignees, in the execution of said trusts, shall at all times be subject to the order and supervision of the district court, and said court may by citation and attachment, compel the assignee or assignees from time to time to file reports of his or their proceedings, and of the situation and condition of the trust, and to proceed in the faithful execution of the duties required by this act and the order of such court, until a final settlement and distribution is made.*

Citation.

SEC. 1835. (8.) That no assignment shall be declared fraudulent or void, for want of any list or inventory as provided in the first section of this act. The district court of the county may, upon application of the assignee or assignees, or any creditor, compel the appearance in person, of the debtor or debtors before such court, by citation returnable forthwith, or at the next term thereof, and by attachment to answer, under oath, such matters as may then and there be inquired of him, her or them; and such debtor or debtors may then and there be fully examined, under oath, as to the amount and situation of his, her or their estate, and the names of the creditors and amounts due to each, with their places of residence; and may compel the delivery to the assignee or assignees, of any property or estate embraced in the assignment.

ventory.

SEC. 1836. (9.) That the assignee or assignees shall, from time to time, file with the clerk of the district court an additional inventory and valuation of any additional property or estate which may come into his or their hands under said assignment, after the filing of the first inventory, as above provided, in the same manner as in the case of the first inventory, and the clerk may thereupon require additional security by bond, as upon the filing a first inventory.

Debts not due.

SEC. 1837. (10.) That any creditor may claim debts to become due as well as debts due, but on debts not due a reasonable abatement shall be made when the same are not drawing interest, and all creditors who shall not exhibit his, her or their claim, within the term of three months from the publication of notice as aforesaid, shall not participate in the dividends until after the payment in full of all claims presented within said term and allowed by the district court.

Powers.

SEC. 1838. (11.) That any assignee or assignees as aforesaid shall have as full power and authority to dispose of all estate, real and personal assigned, as the debtor or debtors had at the time of the assignment, and to sue for and recover in the name of such assignee or assignees every thing belonging or appertaining to said estate, real or personal, and generally to act and do whatsoever the said debtor or debtors might have done in the premises, but no sale of any real estate belonging to said trust shall be made only on notice, published as in case of sales of real estate on execution, unless the district court shall order and direct otherwise.

Death or failure of assignment.

SEC. 1839. (12.) That in case any assignee shall die before the closing of his trust, or in case any assignee shall fail or neglect for the period of twenty days after the making of any assignment, to file an inventory and valuation, and give bonds as required by this act, it shall be the duty of the county judge of the county, where such assignment may be recorded, on the application of any person intrusted as creditor or otherwise, to appoint some one or more discreet and qualified person or persons to execute the trust embraced in such assignment; and such person or persons, on giving bond with sureties as required above of the assignee or assignees named in such agreement, shall possess all the powers thereby and by this act conferred upon such assignee or assignees, and shall be subject to all the duties hereby imposed as fully as though he or they are named in the assignment; and in case any security shall be discovered to be insufficient, or on complaint before the district court it should be made to appear that any assignee or assignees are guilty of wasting or misapplying the trust estate, said district court may direct and require the giving additional security, and may remove such assignee or assignees, and may appoint others in their stead to fulfill the duties of said trust; and such person so appointed, on giving bond, shall have full power to execute such duties, and to demand and sue for all estate in the hands of the person or persons removed, and to demand and recover the amount and value of all moneys and property or estate so wasted and misapplied, which he or they may neglect or refuse to make satisfaction for, from such person or persons, and his or their sureties.

SEC. 1840. (13.) That in all cases of assignment heretofore made, Assignments heretofore made. which have not been closed by final settlement, it shall be the duty of any assignee or assignees having any such trust estate in his or their hands or under their control, to report to the district court of the county where such assignee may reside, the situation and amount of such trust estate, and the creditors having claims against the same, with the amounts due to each as far as the same have come to his or their knowledge, at the first term of said court after the taking effect of this act, and in case of any neglect to file such report, any creditor or person interested in such estate may, on filing a petition to that effect with the clerk of said court, obtain a citation to such assignee or assignees, to be served as in case of an original notice, requiring such assignee or assignees to appear before said court, to show cause why such report should not be filed, and on such hearing the court may order such report, and may require such assignee or assignees to give bond, with sureties, for the faithful performance of the trust, and may fully investigate the proceedings of such assignee or assignees, in the premises, and may summon such assignee or assignees, if in the judgment of the court such removal is proper, and may appoint others to execute the same; and may make all such orders in the matter as may be proper and necessary to insure a faithful performance of the trusts, and a speedy close of the same by a final distribution and settlement of the estate as in cases above provided.

SEC. 1841. (14.) This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication according to law.

CHAPTER 79.

MECHANICS' LIEN.

[Code—Chapter 64.*]

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 1845. (1009.) No person is entitled to a mechanic's lien who takes collateral security on the same contract. Collateral security.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act securing Liens to Mechanics, Laborers, and others.

SECTION 1846. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That every mechanic, builder, artisan, workman, laborer or other person, who shall do or perform any work or labor upon, or furnish any materials, machinery or fixtures for any building, erection or other improvement upon land, including contractors, sub-contractors, material furnishers, mechanics and laborers engaged in the construction of any railroad or other work of internal improvement, or for repairing the same under or by virtue of any contract with the owner or proprietor thereof, or his agent, trustee, contractor or sub-contractor, upon complying with the provisions of this act, shall have for his work or labor done, or materials, machinery or fixtures furnished, a lien upon such building erection, or improvement, and upon the land belonging to such owner or proprietor on which the same is situated, to secure the payment of such work or labor done, or materials, machinery or fixtures furnished. Who has a right to lien.

SEC. 1847. (2.) Every sub-contractor wishing to avail himself of the benefits of this act shall give notice to the owner or proprietor, or his agent or trustee, before or at the time he furnishes any of the things aforesaid, or performs any of the labor, of his intention to furnish or perform the same, and the probable value thereof; and if afterwards the things are furnished or labor done, the sub-contractor shall settle with the contractor therefor, and having made the settlement in writing, What a sub-contractor must do to benefit by this law.

* All chapter 64 of the code except section 1009 seem to be repealed and superseded by article 2.

the same signed by the contractor and certified by him to be just, shall be presented to the owner or proprietor, or his agent or trustee and left with him, and within thirty days from the time the things shall have been furnished, or the labor performed, the sub-contractor shall file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the building, erection or other improvement is situated, a copy of the settlement between him and the contractor which shall be a lien, on the building, erection or other improvement, for which the things were furnished or for which the labor was performed, and shall at the time file a correct description of the property to be charged with the lien, the correctness of all which shall be verified by affidavit.

What to be done in case contractor is obstinate.

SEC. 1848. (3.) In the case the contractor shall for any reason fail or refuse to make and sign such settlement in writing with the sub-contractor when the same is demanded, then the sub-contractor shall make a just and true statement of work and labor done, or things furnished by him, giving all credits, which he shall present to the owner or proprietor, or his agent, or trustee, and shall also within said thirty days file a copy of the same, verified by affidavit, with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the building, erection or other improvement is situate, together with a correct description of the property to be charged with the lien.

Form and extent of the employer's liability to sub-contractor.

SEC. 1849. (4.) The certificate of settlement made as aforesaid, or the statement of the sub-contractor, shall be a justification to the employer in withholding from the contractor, the amount appearing thereby to be due to the sub-contractor, until he is satisfied that the same has been paid, and the employer shall become the surety of the contractor to the sub-contractor for the amount due for such work, and labor or things, not however exceeding the value thereof as notified under section second.

Mode of serving notice.

SEC. 1850. (5.) The notices mentioned in the preceding sections, may be served by the sheriff or any constable of the county in which such building, erection or other improvement is so situated, and the return thereon of such sheriff or constable shall be received in evidence without further proof.

A record of the liability to be made within ninety days.

SEC. 1851. (6.) It shall be the duty of every person, except as has been provided for sub-contractors, who wishes to avail himself of the provisions of this chapter, to file with the clerk of the district court of the county in which the building, erection, or other improvement to be charged with the lien is situated, and within ninety days after all the things aforesaid shall have been furnished, or the work or labor done or performed, a just and true account of the demand due or owing to him after allowing all credits, and containing a correct description of the property to be charged with said lien and verified by affidavit.

What the clerk shall do with the liability when filed with him.

SEC. 1852. (7.) It shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court to indorse upon every account the date of its filing, and make an abstract thereof in a book by him to be kept for that purpose and properly indexed, containing the date of its filing, the name of the person laying or imposing the lien, the amount of said lien, the name of the person against whose property the lien is filed, and a description of the property to be charged with the same, for all of which he shall receive the sum of one dollar from the person laying or imposing the lien, which shall be taxed and collected as other costs, in case there be suit thereon.

Priorities of such liens.

SEC. 1853. (8.) The liens for work or labor done, or things furnished as specified in this act, shall have priority in the order of the filing of the accounts thereof as aforesaid, and shall be preferred to all other liens and incumbrances, which may be attached to or upon such building, erection or other improvement, and to the land on which the same is situated, or either of them, made subsequent to the commencement of said building, erection or other improvement.

SEC. 1854. (9.) The entire land upon which any such building, erection or other improvement is situated, including as well that part of said land which is not covered with such building, erection or other improvement, as that part thereof is covered with the same shall be subject to all liens created by this act to the extent and only to the extent of all the right, title and interest, owned therein by the owner or proprietor of such building, erection or other improvement, for whose immediate use or benefit such labor was done or things were furnished, and when the interest owned in said land, by such owner or proprietor of such building, erection or other improvement is only a lease-hold interest, the forfeiture of such lease for the non-payment of rent, or for non-compliance with any of the other stipulations therein, shall not forfeit or impair such liens so far as concerns the buildings, erections and improvements thereon, put by such owner or proprietor charged with such lien, but such building, erection or improvement may be sold to satisfy said lien, and be moved within thirty days after the sale thereof by the purchaser.

All the land or improvement liable to the lien.

SEC. 1855. (10.) The lien for the things aforesaid, or work, shall attach to the buildings, erections or improvements, for which they were furnished or the work was done, in preference to any prior lien, or incumbrance, or mortgage upon the land, upon which said building erections or improvements have been erected or put, and any person enforcing such lien, may have such building, erection or improvement sold under execution, and the purchaser may remove the same within a reasonable time thereafter.

Same.

SEC. 1856. (11.) Any person having a lien under or by virtue of this act may bring suit to enforce the same, and to obtain the benefits thereof, in the district court of the county wherein the property on which the lien is attached is situated, without regard to its amount.

Action thereon.

SEC. 1857. (12.) The pleadings, practice, process, and other proceedings in the several district courts, in cases arising under this act, shall be the same as in ordinary civil actions and civil proceedings in said courts, except as herein otherwise provided. The petition among other things, shall allege the facts necessary for securing a lien under this act, and a description of the property charged therewith.

Mode of procedure.

SEC. 1858. (13.) In all suits under this act, the parties to the contract shall, and all other persons interested in the matter in controversy, and in the property charged with the lien may be made parties, but such as are not made parties shall not be bound by any such proceedings.

Parties thereto.

SEC. 1859. (14.) In case of the death of any of the parties specified in the immediately preceding section, whether before or after suit brought, the executor or administrator of such deceased party shall be made plaintiff or defendant, as the case may require, and it shall not be necessary to make the heirs or devisees of such deceased persons parties to such suit, but if there is no executor or administrator of such deceased party then his heirs or devisees may be made parties to such suit, and if any of said heirs or devisees are minors under the age of twenty-one years, their guardians shall be made parties with them, but if such minors shall have no guardians, the court in which the suit is pending shall appoint guardians ad litem for them, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as guardians ad litem are appointed in proceedings for partition of real estate, and the judgment and proceedings of such court in any such suit, shall be as binding on such minors as if they were over the age of twenty-one years.

Judgment, form of.	SEC. 1860. (15.) The court shall ascertain by a trial in the usual way, the amount of indebtedness for which such lien is established, and render judgment for the same, and for cost of suit.
Same by default.	SEC. 1861. (16.) Judgment by default shall be rendered against every defendant, who, after being summoned or notified according to law shall not appear and plead, or answer, within the time allowed in ordinary civil actions.
Judgment in case of no notice or appearance.	SEC. 1862. (17.) When the debtor has not been served with notice, according to law, and has not appeared, but has been lawfully notified by publication, the judgment if for the plaintiff shall be that he recover the amount of the indebtedness found to be due, to be levied out of the property charged with the lien therefor, which said property shall be correctly described in said judgment.
Judgment in case of notice.	SEC. 1863. (18.) When the debtor has been served with notice according to law, or appears to the action, the judgment, if for the plaintiff, shall be against such debtor as in ordinary cases, with the addition, that if no sufficient property of the debtor can be found to satisfy such judgment and costs of suit, then the residue thereof be levied as provided in the next preceding section.
Execution and sale.	SEC. 1864. (19.) The execution to be issued shall be a special feri facias , and shall be in conformity with the judgment, and such writ shall be returnable as ordinary executions; and the advertisement, sale and conveyance of real or personal estate under the same, shall be made as under ordinary executions.
Limitation ninety days.	SEC. 1865. (20.) All suits under this act shall be commenced within ninety days, in case of sub-contractors, and nine months in other cases, from the time of filing the account or statement as aforesaid, and not after, and be prosecuted without unnecessary delay to final judgment.
Meaning of "owner and proprietor."	SEC. 1866. (21.) Every person, including all cestuis que trust , for whose immediate use, enjoyment, or benefit, any building erection or improvement shall be made, shall be included by the words "owner or proprietor" thereof, under this act, not excepting such as may be minors over the age of eighteen years or married women.
Acknowledgment of satisfaction on payment.	SEC. 1867. (22.) Whenever any indebtedness, which is a lien upon any such real estate, erection, or building or other improvement shall be paid and satisfied it shall be the duty of the creditor, if required, to go before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgments of conveyances of real estate, and acknowledge satisfaction of said lien.
Duty of clerk thereupon.	SEC. 1868. (23.) Such satisfaction being acknowledged and certified, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court, who shall thereupon enter satisfaction of such lien upon the record or the margin thereof, in the same manner as the satisfaction of a mortgage is entered and shall be allowed the same fee therefor as is allowed for entering the satisfaction of a mortgage, to be paid by the creditor at the same time the service is performed.
Penalty for refusal to acknowledge satisfaction.	SEC. 1869. (24.) If any creditor fail, refuse or neglect to acknowledge satisfaction as aforesaid, within ten days after payment, and neglect as aforesaid, he shall be liable to any person injured, to the amount of such injury, and for costs of suit.
Employer may be held at any time for what he has in his hands be-	SEC. 1870. (25.) In case any sub-contractor shall not have notified the owner, proprietor, his agent or trustee, before furnishing the things aforesaid, or doing work as provided for in section two, but shall furnish to him the account, as provided for in said section two, or the statement as provided for in section three, and in all other respects shall comply with the provisions of this act, he shall have the benefit of this act, the same as if he had given such notice, to the extent, and only to the extent, that such owner or proprietor can safely with his engagements and liabilities then existing, withhold any amount by him owing to his contractor for such sub contractor.

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

An Act for the Formation of Limited Partnerships.

[Passed March 22, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 98, page 190.]

SECTION 1874. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That limited partnerships for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical or manufacturing business within this state, may be Partnerships authorized.

General partners.	formed by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities herein prescribed.
Special partners.	SEC. 1875. (2.) Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons, who shall be called general partners, and who shall be jointly and severally responsible as general partners now are by law; and of one or more persons who shall contribute in actual cash payments, a specific sum as capital to the common stock, who shall be called special partners, and who shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership, beyond the funds so contributed by him or them to the capital.
General partners transact business.	SEC. 1876. (3.) The general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same.
Certificate of partnership.	SEC. 1877. (4.) The persons desirous of forming such partnership, shall make and severally sign a certificate, which shall contain,
Name of firm.	1. The name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted.
Business.	2. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted.
Names of partners.	3. The names of all the general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence.
Capital.	4. The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the common stock.
Length of partnership.	5. The period at which the partnership is to commence, and the period at which it will terminate.
Certificate acknowledged.	SEC. 1878. (5.) The certificate shall be acknowledged or proved as to the several persons signing the same, before some one authorized to administer oaths and take acknowledgments of deeds.
Certificate recorded.	SEC. 1879. (6.) The certificate so acknowledged, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court, of the county in which the principal place of business of the partnership shall be situated, and shall also be recorded by him at large, in a book to be kept for that purpose, open to public inspection. If the partnership shall have places of business situated in different counties, a transcript of the certificate, and of the acknowledgment thereof duly certified by the clerk of the district court in whose office it shall be filed, under his official seal, shall be filed and recorded in like manner in the office of the clerk of the district court of every such county.
Affidavit of capital paid in.	SEC. 1880. (7.) At the time of filing the original certificate, with the evidence of the acknowledgment thereof, as before directed, an affidavit of one or more of the general partners shall also be filed in the same office, stating that the sums specific in the certificate, to have been contributed by each of the special partners to the common stock, have been actually and in good faith paid in cash.
Partnership illegal, if certificate not filed.	SEC. 1881. (8.) No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formal until a certificate shall have been made, acknowledged, filed and recorded, nor until an affidavit shall have been filed, as above directed, and if any false statement be made in such certificate or affidavit, all the persons interested in such partnership, shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.
Terms of partnership published.	SEC. 1882. (9.) The partners shall publish the terms of the partnership when registered, for at least six weeks immediately after such registry in two newspapers, to be designated by the clerk of the district court of the county in which such registry shall be made, and to be published in the senatorial district in which their business shall be carried on, and if such publication be not made the partnership shall be deemed general.

SEC. 1883. (10.) Affidavits of the publication of such notice by the printers of the newspapers in which the same shall be published, may be filed with the clerk of the district court directing the same, and shall be evidence of the facts therein contained.

Affidavit of publication filed.

SEC. 1884. (11.) Every renewal or continuance of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration, shall be certified, acknowledged and recorded, and an affidavit of a general partner be made and filed, and notice be given in the manner herein required for its original formation, and every such partnership which shall be otherwise renewed or continued, shall be deemed a general partnership.

Renewals acknowledged and recorded.

SEC. 1885. (12.) Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, and every such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration shall have been made, shall be deemed a general partnership, according to the provisions of the last section.

Alterations vitiate the partnership.

SEC. 1886. (13.) The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm in which the names of the general partners only shall be inserted, without the addition of the word "company" or any other general term, and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm, with his privity, he shall be deemed a general partner.

Names of firm specified.

SEC. 1887. (14.) Suits in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted, by and against the general partners in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

Suits against the firm.

SEC. 1888. (15.) No part of the sum which any special partner shall have contributed to the capital stock, shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him, in the shape of dividends, profits or otherwise at any time during the continuance of the partnership, but any partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest shall not reduce the original amount of such capital, and if after the payment of such interest, any profits shall remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits.

Special partner's capital not to be withdrawn.

SEC. 1889. (16.) If it shall appear, that, by the payment of interest or profits to any special partner, the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same, shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital, with interest.

Special partner makes capital good.

SEC. 1890. (17.) A special partner may, from time to time, examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management, but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney, or otherwise. If he shall interfere, contrary to these provisions he shall be deemed a general partner.

Special partner's powers.

SEC. 1891. (18.) The general partners shall be liable to account to each other, and to the special partners, for their management of the concern, both in law and equity, as other partners now are by law.

General partner's duties.

SEC. 1892. (19.) Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership, shall be liable civilly, to the party injured, to the extent of his damage, and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court by which he shall be tried.

A partner's fraud punished by fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 1893. (20.) Every sale, assignment or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership, made by such partnership when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after, or in contemplation of the insolvency of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner, over other creditors of such partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partnership, under the like circumstances, and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of such partnership.

Firm can not assign property or prefer creditors.

Partner can not assign property or prefer creditors.

SEC. 1894. (21.) Every such sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of a general or special partner, made by such general or special partner, when insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after or in contemplation of the insolvency of the partnership, with the intent of giving to any creditor of his own, or of the partnership a preference over creditors of the partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created or security given by any such partner under the like circumstances and with the like intent be void, as against the creditors of the partnership.

Special partner's liabilities.

SEC. 1895. (22.) Every special partner who shall violate any provisions of the two last preceding sections, or who shall concur in or assent to, any such violation by the partnership or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

Special partner not allowed as creditor.

SEC. 1896. (23.) In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner shall, under any circumstances, be allowed to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.

Terms of dissolution of partnership.

SEC. 1897. (24.) No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties, shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation, or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the district court in which the original certificate was recorded, and published once in each week for four weeks, in a newspaper printed in each of the counties where the partnership may have places of business.

CHAPTER 81.

UNCLAIMED GOODS.

An Act to regulate the sale of Unclaimed Goods in the possession of Forwarding and Commission Merchants, Express Companies, and other Common Carriers.

SECTION 1898. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all goods, wares, merchandise or other property which has been transported by, or stored with any forwarding and commission merchants, express companies, and other common carriers, shall be subject to a lien for the just and lawful charges for the transportation, advancing and storage of the same. Goods subject to lien for charges.

SEC. 1899. (2.) That if any goods, wares, merchandise, or other property, shall remain for six months in the possession, uncalled for or unclaimed, of any forwarding or commission merchant, express company, or other common carrier, with the just and legal charges unpaid thereon, the person or persons having the same in charge or possession shall give notice to the marshal of the city if there be a marshal, in which such person may reside, having such goods in store, charge or possession, and if there be no marshal, then such notice must be given to the sheriff of the proper county, which notice must be in writing, and must state when such goods, wares, or merchandise were received, the marks or brands by which such goods are designated if any, and if not designated by marks or brands, then by such other description or designation as may best answer the purpose of indicating what the goods are, and to whom consigned, also the charges paid upon such goods, accompanied by the original receipt for such charges, and by the bill of lading, also the other charges, if any, due and unpaid, which notice must be verified by oath or affirmation. Goods on hand six months may be sold.
Notice given.

SEC. 1900. (3.) The marshal or sheriff, as the case may be, on receiving such notice, shall proceed to the place in which the goods, wares or merchandise contemplated in this act, shall be stored or held in possession, and shall in the presence of the person in whose store or possession such goods, wares or merchandise may be, examine such goods, wares or merchandise, examining minutely the contents of any close package, which may be necessary to be opened to ascertain the nature of its contents, and such marshal or sheriff shall then and there take and make an inventory or invoice of such goods, or separate invoices or inventories where such goods, wares or merchandise may appear to belong, or to be consigned to different persons, each separate invoice or inventory to contain a description of the goods consigned or belonging to each separate individual or firm. Goods described.
Officer examines goods.
Invoices made.

SEC. 1901. (4.) The marshal, sheriff or constable so taking and making these invoices or inventories shall advertise the goods described in such invoice or inventory, in some newspaper of general circulation, published in the place where such goods, wares or merchandise may be in store, or held in possession, which advertisement must state that the goods, wares or merchandise so advertised have remained for six months uncalled for and unclaimed—that they are to be sold, specifying when and where—to defray the expense incurred upon the payment of the freight and the charges due and unpaid upon said goods, including the charge of advertising and selling such goods, which notice must be pub- Goods advertised:
Form of advertisement.

- lished in a weekly paper, if there be one in the place, if not, in the newspaper nearest to the place designated for six consecutive weeks, and one week in a daily, if there be a daily paper.
- Goods sold at auction. SEC. 1902. (5.) The marshal or sheriff advertising such goods, wares or merchandise as aforesaid, shall at the time and place designated in the notice, put up at auction for sale to the highest bidder, such goods, wares and merchandise in such parts and parcels, as to such marshal or sheriff may appear best to effect a profitable sale.
- Perishable goods sold immediately. SEC. 1903. (6.) Nothing contained in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the sale of perishable or damaged goods, immediately on their coming into the possession and being uncalled for, of any forwarding and commission merchant or other common carrier, but such sale must be made by a marshal or sheriff as contemplated in this act, only on the affidavit of the person having the possession thereof, that such property is perishable, and the longest possible notice must be given of such sale in a daily paper if there be one in the place, if not by such other publication as may carry out the intention and provisions of this act.
- Notice of sale.
- Charges paid. SEC. 1904. (7.) That said officer shall pay to the person or persons having a lien on said property the amount thereof: provided, the proceeds of the property sold shall, after paying the expenses of sale be sufficient for that purpose, and the excess shall be by him forthwith deposited with the county treasurer, subject to the order of the owner, said ownership being properly authenticated under oath, said officer shall also file with the county judge a schedule of the property, the sum realized from the sale of each separate package, describing the same, together with a copy of the advertisement as hereinbefore provided, and said officer shall be entitled to such fees therefor as are legal in cases of sale under execution.
- Express deposited with county treasurer.
- No owner applying proceeds go to the school fund. SEC. 1905. (8.) Should the owner of the property sold, not make a demand upon the county treasurer for any money that may be in the treasury to his credit according to the provisions of this act, the sum so unclaimed shall be accounted for by the county treasurer, and placed to the credit of the county in the next subsequent settlement made by the treasurer with the county, and should the sum so uncalled for or unclaimed, remain unclaimed and uncalled for during the period of one year, it shall then be paid into the school fund, to be distributed as other funds may be by law, which may be raised by a tax on the property of the county. But nothing herein contained shall be a bar to any legal claimant from presenting and proving his claim for such money at any time within ten years, and the claim being within that period presented and proved, it shall be paid out of the county treasury in which it was originally placed, without interest.
- Ten years' redemption.

WALLS IN COMMON.

An Act entitled an act respecting Walls in Common.

[This law is copied from the civil law, see article 671, Civil Code of Louisiana.]

- Walls. SECTION 1914. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in cities, towns, and other places, surveyed into building lots, the plats whereof are recorded, he who is about to build contiguous to the land of his neighbor, may, if no wall be on the line between, rest one-half of his wall on his neighbor's land: provided, he build of brick or stone, at least as high as the first story: and provided, the whole thickness of such wall, above the cellar wall, do not exceed eighteen inches, not including the plastering, which, for the purposes of this act, is not to be considered as part of the wall: and provided also, that his neighbor shall not be compelled to contribute to the expense of said wall.
- On line.
- Brick or stone.
- Size of walls.
- Partnership. SEC. 1915. (2.) If his neighbor be willing, and does contribute one-half of the expense of building such wall, then it is a wall in common between them; and if he even refuses to contribute to the building of such wall, he shall yet retain the right of making it a wall in common, by paying to the person who built it, one-half of the appraised value of said wall, at the time of using it.
- Refusal.
- Presumption. SEC. 1916. (3.) Every wall being a separation between buildings, shall, as high as the upper part of the first story, be presumed to be a wall in common, if there be no titles, proof, or mark to the contrary.
- Repairs, &c. SEC. 1917. (4.) The repairs, and rebuilding of walls in common, are to be made at the expense of all who have a right to the same, and in proportion to the interest of each therein: nevertheless, every co-proprietor of a wall in common, may be exonerated from contributing to the repairs or building, by giving up his right in common: provided, no building belonging to him be actually supported by the wall thus held in common.
- Co-proprietors. SEC. 1918. (5.) Every co-proprietor may build against a wall held in common, and cause beams or joists to be placed therein, and any person building such a wall, shall, on being requested by his co-proprietor, make the necessary flues, and leave the necessary bearings for the joists or beams, at such height, and distance apart, as shall be specified by his co-proprietor.
- Mode of building.
- Height. SEC. 1919. (6.) Every co-proprietor is at liberty to increase the height of the wall held in common; but he alone is to be at the expense of raising it, and of repairing, and keeping in repair, that part of the wall, above the part so held in common.
- Re-build. SEC. 1920. (7.) If the wall so held in common, can not support the wall to be raised upon it, he who wishes to have it made higher, is bound to re-build it anew entirely, and at his own expense, and the additional thickness of the wall must be placed entirely on his own land.
- Person paying half. SEC. 1921. (8.) The person who did not contribute to the heightening of the wall held in common, may cause the raised part to become common, by paying one-half of the appraised value of such raising, and half of the value of the grounds occupied by the additional thickness of the wall, if any ground was so occupied.
- Wall in common.

SEC. 1922. (9.) Every proprietor joining a wall, has, in like manner, the right of making it a wall in common, in whole or in part, by repaying to the owner of the wall one-half of its value, or the one-half of the part which he wishes to hold in common, and one-half of the value of the ground on which it is built, if the person who has built the wall, has laid the foundation entirely upon his own ground. Same.

SEC. 1923. (10.) Neither of two neighbors can make any cavity within the body of the wall held by them in common; nor can either affix to it any work, without the consent of the other, or without having, on his refusal, caused the necessary precautions to be used, so that the new work be not an injury to the rights of the other, to be ascertained by persons skilled in building. No cavities.

SEC. 1924. (11.) No dispute between neighbors, as to the amount to be paid by one or the other, by reason of any of the matters treated of in this act, shall delay the execution of the provisions of the same: provided, that the party on whom the claim is made, shall enter into bonds, with security, to the satisfaction of the clerk of the district court of the proper county, conditioned that he shall pay to the claimant whatsoever may be found to be his due, on the settlement of the matter between them, either in a court of justice, or elsewhere; and the said clerk of the district court is hereby required to indorse his approval on said bond, when the same is approved by him, and retain the same in his custody, until demanded by the opposite party. No delay. Bond.

SEC. 1925. (12.) This act is not to prevent adjoining proprietors from entering into special agreement about walls on the lines between them; but no evidence of such agreement shall be competent, unless it be in writing, signed by the parties thereto, or their lawfully authorized agents, and whenever such proprietor is a minor, the guardian of his estate shall have full authority to act for, and bind him, in all matters relating to walls in common. Agreements.

OF EDUCATION.

CHAPTER 84.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

[Code—Chapter 65 ]

ARTICLE 1.

An Act for the Government and Regulation of the State University of Iowa.

[Passed Dec. 25, 1858; Laws of Board of Education.]

- Object of state university. SECTION 1926. (1.) Be it enacted by the Board of Education of the State of Iowa, That the object of the state university of Iowa, established by the constitution at Iowa City, shall be to provide the best and most efficient means of imparting to the youth of the state, of both sexes, upon equal terms, a thorough education and a perfect knowledge of the different branches of literature, the arts and sciences, with their various applications.
- Collegiate department. SEC. 1927. (2.) There shall be attached to the university a collegiate department, in which, as soon as may be deemed expedient by the board of trustees hereinafter provided, regular college classes shall be formed or provided for, and a president and the necessary professors and tutors elected. There shall also be a normal department to the university, in which shall be taught the theory and practice of teaching, and everything which enters into it as an art, including all the most approved methods and processes now in use in all the varieties of teaching.
- Normal department
- Board of trustees. SEC. 1928. (3.) The university shall be governed and managed by a board of trustees consisting of seven persons, to be elected at the first meeting of the board of education, three of whom shall hold their offices for one year, and four for three years, and whenever the terms of any trustees expire, their places shall be supplied by new elections.
- Term of office.
- Per diem and mileage SEC. 1929. (4.) The members of the board of trustees shall each receive the same per diem during the time of their session, and mileage going to and returning therefrom, as members of the general assembly.
- Control. SEC. 1930. (5.) The university shall never be under the exclusive control of any religious denomination whatever.
- Specimens, property of state university. SEC. 1931. (6.) In all cases where specimens of natural history, and geological and mineralogical specimens which are or may be hereafter collected by the state geologist of Iowa, or by any others appointed by the state to investigate its natural history and physical resources, are found, they shall belong to and be the property of the state university, and shall form a part of its cabinet of natural history.
- Officers to be appointed by board of trustees SEC. 1932. (7.) The board of trustees shall appoint a secretary, a treasurer and librarian, and a curator of the cabinet of natural history, who shall hold their respective offices during the pleasure of the board of trustees. It shall be the duty of the secretary to record all the proceedings of the board, and carefully to preserve all its books and papers. It shall be the duty of the treasurer to keep a true and faithful account of all moneys received and paid out by him, and before entering upon the duties of his office, he shall take and subscribe an oath that he will faithfully perform the duties of treasurer, and he shall also give a bond in the penalty of twenty-five thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as treasurer, and that he will at all times keep and render a true account of all moneys received by him as such treasurer, and of the disposition he has made of the same, and that he will at all times be ready to discharge himself of the trust, and to pay over when required; which bond shall have two good sureties, and shall be approved as to its form and the sufficiency of its sureties, by the board of trustees, and also the auditor and secretary of state, and shall be filed in the office of the latter. The librarian and curator shall have charge of the library and cabinet of natural history.

SCHOOL LANDS AND FUND

[Code—Chap. 66.]

ARTICLE 1.

An Act providing for the management of the School Fund and the sale of the School Lands.

[Passed April 3, 1860, took effect first Monday of January 1861; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 162.]

- Perpetual funds. SECTION 1962. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the following are hereby declared to be and remain perpetual funds for common school purposes, the interest of which only, can be appropriated.
- Five per cent. 1. The five per cent. upon the net proceeds of the public lands in the state of Iowa.
- Proceeds of sales of land granted by act of congress to state of Iowa. 2. The proceeds of the sales of the five hundred thousand acres of land, which were granted to the state of Iowa, under the eighth section of the act of congress, passed September the 4th, A. D., 1841, entitled * Section 1959 is thus amended by section first of laws of eighth general assembly, chapter 58, passed March 26, and took effect April 7, 1860. See special laws of eighth session, page 146.

“an act to appropriate the proceeds of all sales of public lands, and to grant pre-emption rights.”

3. The proceeds of all sales of intestate estates which escheat to the state by reason of their being no heir. Of escheated estates.

The proceeds of the sales of the sixteenth section in each township of the state, or lands selected in lieu thereof. Of sixteenth section.

SEC. 1963. (2.) The following are declared to be and remain temporary funds for common school purposes, to be received and appropriated annually in the same manner as the annual interest of the perpetual fund. Temporary funds.

1. All forfeitures of ten per cent. which by the laws of this state, are authorized to be made for the benefit of the school fund. Ten per cent. forfeitures.

2. The proceeds of all fines collected in the state for violations of the penal laws. Fines.

3. The proceeds of all fines collected for the non-performance of military duty. Military fines.

4. The proceeds of the sales of lost goods and estrays. Lost goods, &c.

SEC. 1964. (3.) The five per centum of the net proceeds of all sales of the public lands in the state, is hereby made payable to the state treasurer, whose duty it shall be to apportion the same among the several organized counties in this state, taking into consideration the amount of the permanent school fund already in possession of said counties, so that each county may hold an amount of school fund proportionate to its population. The five per cent. payable to state treasurer, his duty.

SEC. 1965. (4.) Those portions of the permanent school fund enumerated in the second and fourth sub-divisions of section one of this act, are hereby made payable to the county treasurer of the county in which the lands sold are situated, and the proceeds of sub-division third of section one of this act are made payable to the treasurer of the county where said escheated estates are. Permanent school fund payable to county treasurer.

Proceeds of escheated estates.

SEC. 1966. (5.) The temporary funds enumerated in section two of this act are hereby made payable to the county treasurer of the several counties in which they are incurred or arise respectively, which shall be accounted for to the board of supervisors of said county who shall apportion the same among the several school districts of said county, as provided by law. Temporary funds payable to county treasurer.

SEC. 1967. (6.) On the first Monday of March annually, the state auditor shall apportion the interest of the permanent school fund among the several organized counties of this state, in proportion to the number of persons between five and twenty-one years of age in each, and in order to enable him to make such apportionment, it is hereby made the duty of the secretary of the board of education to report to said auditor on the first Monday of February, annually, the number of such persons in each organized county as shown by the reports from the several county superintendents. Auditor to apportion interest of permanent school fund.

Duty of secretary board of education.

SEC. 1968. (7.) The clerk of the district shall annually, on the first Monday of February make out and transmit to the state auditor, a report of the amount of interest then in the hands of the treasurer of said county, and also the amount remaining unpaid, if any. Duty of clerk of district court.

SEC. 1969. (8.) The state auditor shall keep the school fund accounts in books provided for that purpose, separate and distinct from the revenue books, and immediately after making the apportionment required by section six of this act, shall notify the clerk of the district court of each county of the sum to which his county is entitled by said apportionment, and in those cases where the counties have less of such Duty of state auditor.

interest than they are entitled to by the apportionment, he shall by such notice authorize the treasurer of each of such counties to transfer the amount of such deficiency from the state revenue in his hands to such interest fund, and said notice shall be filed by the treasurer, and be his proper voucher to the state for the amount of state revenue so transferred. And in those cases where the counties have an excess of such interest over the amount apportioned to each, and such notice shall authorize the county treasurer to transfer such excess from the interest fund to the state revenue, and such notice shall be filed and be his proper voucher for such amount of the interest fund, and such excess so transferred shall be paid into the state treasury as revenue.

Board of supervisors, their duty.

SEC. 1970. (9.) The board of supervisors may, at such time as they deem best, authorize the township trustees of any organized township, where the sixteenth section, or land selected in lieu thereof, has not been sold, to lay out the same, or cause it to be done, in such tracts as in their judgment will be for the best interests of the school fund, conforming as far as the interests of said fund will permit, to the legal subdivisions of the United States surveys, and they shall appraise each tract at what they believe to be its true value, and certify to the said board of supervisors the divisions and appraisements made by them; said division and appraisement shall be approved or disapproved by said board at their first meeting after such report, and in case they disapprove the same, they may at once order another division and appraisement should they deem it best. In all cases where the board of supervisors approve of any division and appraisement of school lands, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court to make and keep a record of such division, appraisement and approval.

Clerk of district court to give forty days' notice of sale of sixteenth section lands, or of the 500,000 acre grant.

SEC. 1971. (10.) Whenever the board of supervisors shall deem it best to offer for sale the sixteenth section, or lands selected in lieu thereof, or any portion of the same, or any part of the 500,000 acre grant, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the district court to give at least forty days notice by written or printed notices posted in five public places in the county, two of which shall be in the township in which the land to be sold is situated; and shall also publish a notice of said sale for four weeks preceding the same in a newspaper, should one be published in the county; if there is none published in said county, then in some newspaper authorized by the board of supervisors; and shall describe the land to be sold, and state the time and place of sale, then at such time and place, or at such other time and place as the sale may be adjourned to, he shall offer to the highest bidder, subject to the provisions of this act, and shall sell upon the following terms, viz.: either for cash, or one-third of the purchase money to be paid at the time of purchase, and the balance on a credit not exceeding ten years, with interest on the same at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; said interest to be paid at the office of the county treasurer of said county, on the first day of January in each and every year; but in no case shall the land so offered be sold for less than its appraised value—nor shall any member of the board of supervisors, the clerk of the district court, any township trustee or any person who was engaged in the division and appraisement of said land be directly or indirectly interested in the purchase thereof, and any sale made, where such parties or any of them are so interested, shall be void and of no effect.

Terms of sale.

Parties not allowed to purchase.

Patent to be issued when purchase money all paid down.

SEC. 1972. (11) If any purchaser shall pay the whole amount of the purchase money at the time of the purchase, the clerk of the district court shall forthwith issue a certificate of purchase, setting forth that fact which shall be transmitted to the state land office, and entitle the purchaser to a patent which shall be issued by the governor.

SEC. 1973. (12.) In case the lands are purchased upon a partial credit, as hereinbefore provided, the contract shall at once be reduced to writing, signed by the parties, and recorded in the office of the recorder, after which it shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court, and during the continuance of such contract, it shall be lawful for such purchaser, his heir or assignee, at any time to pay the principal and interest due upon such contract, and receive a certificate of purchase, as mentioned in the preceding section.

When lands sold on credit.

SEC. 1974. (13.) When in the judgment of the board of supervisors, any school lands which they are about to offer for sale, are of such a character that a sale upon partial credit would be unsafe or incompatible with the interest of the school fund, and especially in the case of timbered lands, the board of supervisors may, in their discretion, exact the whole of the purchase money in advance; or if they sell such land upon a partial credit, as hereinbefore prescribed, it shall be their duty to require good collateral security for the payment of the purchase money upon which credit is given.

Board of supervisors may require collateral security for sale of valuable lands.

SEC. 1975. (14.) Whenever any purchaser of any school lands sold under the provisions of this act, upon a partial credit, or any person to whom a portion of the school fund has been loaned, fails to pay the interest upon the amount due the school fund from him on the first day of January, and such payment is not made within six months thereafter, then, and in that case, the entire amount both of principal and interest owing to the school fund from such person, shall be deemed to have become due, and the clerk of the district court shall report the name of the delinquent, together with the sum total due from such delinquent to the district attorney of his judicial district, who shall immediately commence suit for the collection of the amount thus reported. The provisions of this section, in so far as they provide for the principal owing for the purchase of school lands, or for money borrowed from the school fund, becoming due and being collected at an earlier day than that stipulated in the contract, upon failure to pay the interest, are hereby declared to be a part of every contract made under and by virtue of this act, whether expressed in such contract or not.

Consequences of failure to pay interest on school fund, or for lands sold on credit.

Name of delinquent reported and suit commenced.

Provisions of this section applicable to all contracts for school lands or money.

SEC. 1976. (15.) All school lands, the sale of which are provided for under this act, shall be subject to taxation from and after the execution and delivery of the contract to the purchaser.

School lands after sale, taxable.

SEC. 1977. (16.) All contracts relative to the sale of school lands provided for in this act, shall be subject to such laws as now are, or may hereafter be in force in this state, relative to the prevention or punishment of waste.

Waste on school lands, how punished.

SEC. 1978. (17.) It is hereby made the duty of the township trustees in each township, to see that no waste be committed upon any school lands lying in their township, and in case any such waste be attempted, it shall be their duty to apply by petition to the district court, or to any judge thereof, for an injunction to stay waste, and the same if granted, shall be without bond and shall stand for trial first in order upon the court docket; the same shall be tried in a summary way, and upon such trial the said township trustees shall be competent witnesses. The court may make such order in the premises as shall be equitable and calculated to secure the school lands from waste or destruction, and may adjudge damages to the township trustees, against the party for injuries done in such cases; the costs shall abide the event of the suit, and the damages shall be paid to the county treasurer, and constitute a part of the permanent school fund.

Duty of township trustees.

Injunction issued without bond

Provisions of sec. 14 applicable to university fund.	SEC. 1979. (18.) The provisions of section fourteen of this act shall be of force as far as applicable to all cases where land is purchased, or money borrowed from the university fund, and in case of delinquency as provided for in said section, the treasurer of the state university shall make the report therein required to the district attorney of the district where the party so purchasing or borrowing resides, or where the real estate given as security for said purchase or loan is situated.
Board of supervisors may employ county surveyor.	SEC. 1980. (19.) When, in the opinion of the board of supervisors, it may be necessary to have a portion of the school lands stated in this act within their county surveyed, they may employ the county surveyor for the purpose, who shall be paid out of the county treasury upon proof made of the request and performance of the service.
How paid.
Permanent school fund loaned.	SEC. 1981. (20.) The permanent school fund shall be loaned out, as hereinafter provided, as the same may come into the hands of the county treasurer, but no loan to any one person or company shall exceed the sum of five hundred dollars, nor shall any loan of the school fund be made to the clerk of the district court, treasurer, or to any member of the board of supervisors. Said loans shall not be made for a shorter time than one year nor for more than five years.
Terms of loan.
Rate of interest, 10 per cent. per annum.	SEC. 1982. (21.) The payment of the money thus borrowed, together with the interest thereon, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, shall be secured by promissory notes executed by the party borrowing together with two good sureties, and by mortgage on unincumbered real estate, which, exclusive of any buildings, is appraised by the appraisers hereinafter provided for, at double the value of the amount of money loaned; which real estate must be situated in the county where such loan is made.
How secured.
Real estate, as security, to be appraised.	SEC. 1983. (22.) The value of real estate offered as security for money loaned as herein provided, shall be fixed by three appraisers under oath, who shall be selected by the clerk of the district court, and in making the valuation provided for, the appraisers shall not take into consideration any buildings that may be on the land; said appraisers shall be allowed for their services the sum of fifty cents each, to be paid by the party borrowing, and party borrowing shall pay for recording the mortgage given to secure such loan.
Appraisers' fees.
Permanent school fund, how loaned.	SEC. 1984. (23.) When any person or persons desire to borrow from the permanent school fund, he or they shall apply to the clerk of the district court of the county, and if in the opinion of the said clerk of the district court, it would be to the interest of the school fund to grant such application, he shall order the necessary papers to be made out to secure the amount thus to be borrowed as required by section twenty-one and twenty-two of this act. When the same are made out, they shall be presented to the said clerk of the district court, who shall, if he approve the same, indorse thereon accepted, and sign his name below the same, and the clerk shall examine the title to any real estate offered as security, and make and preserve an abstract of such title, which shall be certified by him and submitted to the board of supervisors at their first meeting thereafter; the clerk may charge a fee not to exceed two dollars for his services in making said abstract of title, to be paid by the party borrowing. He shall then give to the party borrowing a copy of the promissory note, certifying over his hand and official seal that it is a correct copy of the same, which, together with a mortgage securing it has been filed in his office, and upon the parties presenting said certificate to the treasurer, said treasurer shall pay the amount specified in said copy of note out of the permanent school fund in his possession, and retain the said certified copy as his voucher. The said clerk of the district court shall file the original note in his office, and also the mortgage after having it recorded.

Clerk to file note and mortgage.

SEC. 1985. (24.) At each meeting of the board of supervisors, the clerk of the district court shall make a full statement of all money received for and loaned out of the school fund under his control, and shall also submit for their examination all notes, mortgages, and abstracts of title connected with the school fund which have come into his possession since their last meeting. Said board of supervisors at the first meeting after such report and papers are submitted to them, shall either approve or disapprove of each and every loan made by said clerk of the district court. Should they disapprove of any loan or security thus reported, they may require the party borrowing to give additional security within thirty days; and in case of failure so to do, the entire amount both of principal and interest owing to the school fund shall be deemed to have become due, and the district attorney shall be directed immediately to collect the same; and if such case should it be found impossible to collect the entire amount due, and the security prove insufficient, then the clerk of the district court and his bondsmen shall be liable for the deficiency. The provision herein contained with regard to principal and interest becoming due on the failure to give additional security when required, for money borrowed from the school fund, is hereby declared to be a part of every contract made under and by virtue of this act whether expressed in such contract or not.

Clerk to make statement to board of supervisors, of all moneys received and loaned out of school fund.

Additional security required.

Clerk liable for deficiency.

SEC. 1986. (25.) When any person desires to pay either principal or interest due the school fund, he shall obtain a certificate from the clerk of the district court specifying the amount due from such person to the school fund, stating whether it is principal or interest, or both, and setting forth distinctly the amount of each. Upon the presentation of which certificate to the county treasurer, and not until then, the treasurer shall receive the amount so specified from the person presenting the certificate, and shall indorse on said certificate the date, and his name, and upon the return to the clerk of the district court of such certificate, so indorsed, the party returning it shall have a receipt from said clerk for the amount so paid.

Who may receive, and when, money due the school fund.

Clerk to give receipt.

SEC. 1987. (26.) On the first Monday of January A. D. 1861, the county judge shall transfer all accounts, books, notes and mortgages, which have come into his hands as the officer having charge of the school fund, to the clerk of the district court, and shall make out and deliver to said clerk, to be by him presented to the board of supervisors, at their first meeting, a full and complete settlement sheet, in which shall be specified each loan made from the school fund in his county, the amount of each loan, when made, to whom made, when due, the amount of interest due, and remaining unpaid, with the name of the party so delinquent, the amount of school fund in the hands of the treasurer—also a full and accurate list of all books, papers, bonds, mortgages, and assets of every kind and description connected with the management of the school fund, delivered by him to the clerk of the district court, and also a statement of any facts within his knowledge, material to the safety or interest of the school fund. The clerk of the district court shall at once forward a copy of the settlement sheet herein provided to the auditor of state.

Duty of co. judge and clerk of district court.

SEC. 1988. (27.) On the first Monday of January, A. D. 1861, the Duties of county treasurers.

county treasurer of each county of this state, shall deliver all notes in his possession given for money borrowed from the school fund or school land purchased, to the clerk of the district court and shall at the same time furnish said clerk, to be by him submitted to the board of supervisors at their first meeting, a full and complete list of all such notes delivered to said clerk.

County judge and treasurer to account for papers, &c., not in their possession

SEC. 1989. (28.) When any books, papers, notes, bonds, mortgages, or assets of any kind or description connected with the management of the school fund, are not in possession of the county judge or county treasurer, at the time of the transfers provided for in section twenty-six and twenty-seven of this act, they shall furnish a full description of the same with the reasons why they are not in their possession, and where and how they can be obtained.

County treasurer to keep correct accounts of school funds.

SEC. 1990. (29.) Each county treasurer, shall immediately upon receiving or paying out any moneys belonging to the school fund, enter a correct account thereof on proper books kept by him for the purpose, in all cases where money is received, distinguishing between principal and interest, and shall keep an account showing all money due the school fund, whether principal or interest, and designating the amount of each and from whom due, and his books shall at all times present a clear and intelligible statement of the school fund in his hands. Said books shall at all times be open to the inspection and examination of any householder or tax-payer in the county.

Books open to inspection.

Clerks of district courts to keep school fund account books.

SEC. 1991. (30.) Each clerk of the district court shall keep in his office in books provided for that purpose, an account to be known as the school fund account, in which he shall enter all notes, mortgages, bonds, and assets of every kind and description delivered to him by the county judge, and which may hereafter come into his hands, and he shall open accounts with the county treasurer in which he shall charge him with all money in his hands at the time such account is opened, and also with all money which may thereafter be paid to him as shown by the certificates duly indorsed as hereinbefore provided for, distinguishing between principal and interest, which shall be kept in distinct accounts; and shall on the third Monday of May, the first Monday of October, and the third Monday of December in each and every year, make a complete settlement of the school fund account with the county treasurer, from the time of the last settlement, and at each regular meeting of the board of supervisors, the clerk of the district court shall submit a full report of his last settlement with the county treasurer, and also of all notes, mortgages, bonds assets of every kind and description which have come into his hands since the last meeting of the board.

Clerk to make three yearly settlements with county treasurer.

Report to board of supervisors.

Liability of county officers for neglect of duty.

SEC. 1992. (31.) Any county judge, county treasurer, or clerk of the district court, failing or neglecting to perform any of the duties which are required of him by the provisions of this act, he shall be liable to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought in the district court by the board of supervisors, the judgment to be entered against the party and his bondsmen, and the proceeds to go to the school fund.

Penalty.

Time allowed.

SEC. 1993. (32.) Whenever it shall be evident to the board of supervisors that the interest of the school fund will be endangered by immediate prosecution of any mortgage or the sale of mortgaged premises, they may give such reasonable time as they may deem for the best interest of the school fund.

Duty of chairman of board of supervisors.

SEC. 1994. (33.) At every sale of lands mortgaged to the school fund it shall be the duty of the chairman of the board of supervisors to attend such sale and to bid on behalf of the state the amount of the principal, interest and costs due to the school fund if in his opinion the interests of the said fund require it.

SEC. 1995. (34.) All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act <sup>Repeal.</sup> are hereby repealed so far as they conflict with this act.

SEC. 1996. (35.) This act shall be in force from and after the first <sup>Take effect.</sup> Monday in January, 1861.

CHAPTER 87.

SECRETARY OF BOARD OF EDUCATION.

An Act to provide for the Election and to define the Duties of the Secretary of the Board of Education.

[Passed Dec. 24, 1858; Laws of Board of Education.]

- SECTION 2000. (1.) Be it enacted by the Board of Education of the State of Iowa, That at each regular meeting of the board, there shall be elected a secretary of said board, who shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified.
- SECRETARY OF BOARD OF EDUCATION. Most give bond. SEC. 2001. (2.) He shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, and as soon as may be after his election, give bond for the use of the state of Iowa, in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, with sufficient sureties to be approved by the secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of his office, as secretary of the board of education.
- Take oath. SEC. 2002. (3.) He shall also, at the time of giving bond, take and subscribe an oath, or make affirmation to the effect that he will support the constitution of the United States and of the state of Iowa, and to the best of his ability, faithfully and impartially perform the duties of secretary, which oath shall be indorsed upon the back of said bond, which shall be filed with, and preserved by the secretary of state.
- His duties. SEC. 2003. (4.) It shall be the duty of the secretary to keep an accurate journal of the proceedings of the board, and to perform all other duties required of him by the board, or by the laws of this state.
- Must furnish printer with acts and resolutions of board of education. SEC. 2004. (5.) Immediately after the adjournment of the board of education, he shall furnish the printer authorized to print the laws, with copies of the acts and resolutions passed at the session, and cause them to be printed in a plain manner in the form of a pamphlet.
- Certificate. SEC. 2005. (6.) He shall make his certificate that the acts and resolutions therein contained are truly copied from the original rolls, and cause the same to be printed at the end of each volume, which shall be prima facie evidence of their correctness.
- Have journals printed. SEC. 2006. (7.) He shall, as near as may be, in the same manner as provided in the two preceding sections of this act, have the journals printed.
- When printed must distribute the laws to school officers. SEC. 2007. (8.) He shall, on or before the first day of March, after the acts, resolutions and journals, and such documents as may be required by law, are printed, after the adjournment of any session of the board, transmit to each superintendent of common schools in each organized county in this state, one copy of the laws for every school officer in the county.
- Copies to be preserved. SEC. 2008. (9.) He shall preserve in his office one hundred copies of the acts and resolutions, and twenty-five copies each of the journals, and distribute ten copies to each member of the board of education, and such other documents as may have been published by order of the board of education, and shall hold the same subject to the order of the board.

SEC. 2009. (10.) He shall transmit one copy of the journals to each superintendent of common schools and county judge, in every organized county in this state, within the time fixed for the distribution of the acts of the board of education. To whom transmitted.

SEC. 2010. (11.) After the distribution of the acts and resolutions and journals, as provided in the two preceding sections, should there be any number of the same remaining undistributed, he shall distribute the same in every organized county in this state, pro rata, in proportion to the population of each county. Surplus copies to be distributed pro rata

SEC. 2011. (12.) An office shall be provided for him at the seat of government, in which he shall file all papers, reports, and public documents transmitted to him by the county superintendents of the several counties, each year separately, and hold the same in readiness to be exhibited to the governor, or to a committee from either house of the general assembly, or to the state board of education, at any time when required, and shall keep a fair record of all matters pertaining to his office. Office at seat of government

SEC. 2012. (13.) The secretary of the board of education shall be charged with the general supervision of all the county superintendents, and all the common schools of the state, and he shall see that the school system is as early as practicable, carried into effect, and put in uniform operation. Duties.

SEC. 2013. (14.) With a general view to these special duties, he shall meet the county superintendents of each judicial district, at least once in each year, at such time and place as he may appoint, giving due notice of such meeting; and it is hereby made the duty of the said county superintendents to attend each meeting, the object of which shall be to accumulate valuable facts relative to common schools, to compare views, discuss principles, and in general to listen to all communications and suggestions, and enter into all discussions relative to the compensation of teachers, their qualifications, branches taught, method of instruction, text-books, district libraries, apparatus, and of all other matters embraced in the common school system. Same.

SEC. 2014. (15.) He shall visit such schools as he may have it in his power to do, and witness the manner in which they are conducted. Duty of county superintendents

SEC. 2015. (16.) It shall be his duty to recommend, from time to time, to county superintendents, such books as he shall think advisable for text-books and for district school libraries, a list of which the county superintendents shall immediately transmit to the several presidents of the district boards of directors in their respective counties. Secretary must visit schools.

SEC. 2016. (17.) The secretary of the board of education shall cause as many copies of this act and all other school acts in force, with the forms, regulations and instructions herein contemplated, thereto annexed, to be from time to time printed and distributed among the county superintendents, as he shall deem expedient, directing the latter to distribute the same among the several school districts of the state. He shall also prepare and cause to be distributed to the several county superintendents, a form of certificate in blank to be granted to teachers, also all other blank forms necessary to be used in carrying out this act and all other acts. Further duties of secretary.

SEC. 2017. (18.) He shall annually on the first day of January, Copies of school acts, &c. to be distributed among the county superintendents. Report to auditor. Certificate.

report to the auditor of state the number of persons in each county of the state between the ages of five and twenty-one years.

Report to general assembly and board of education.

SEC. 2018. (19.) He shall make a report to the general assembly and the board of education, at each session thereof, which shall embrace,

1. A statement of the condition of the common schools of the state, and shall contain the number of common school districts therein, the number of schools in the state, the number of scholars between five and twenty-one years of age, and also the number in each county who have attended school the previous year, as returned by the several county superintendents, the number of books in the district libraries, and the value of all apparatus in the schools.

2. Such plans as he may have matured for the management and improvement of the common school fund, and for the better and more perfect organization and efficiency of common schools.

3. All such matters and things relating to his office and to the common schools, as he shall deem expedient to communicate.

4. He shall cause his report to be printed, and shall present five hundred copies thereof to each body, on or before the second day of their session, for distribution.

Salary

SEC. 2019. (20.) He shall receive annually, the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, as compensation for the duties required under this act, and also all necessary contingent expenses for traveling, and clerk hire, pertaining to his office to be audited and paid as the salaries and contingent expenses of other state officers: provided, that his contingent expenses for these purposes shall not exceed the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars in any one year.* And he shall, within twenty days after his election take possession of the books, papers, and effects belonging to the department of the superintendent of public instruction, which office is hereby abolished.

Proviso.

Teachers' institute.

SEC. 2020. (21.) Whenever reasonable assurance shall be given by the county superintendent of any county, to the secretary of the board of education, that a number of not less than thirty teachers desire to assemble for the purpose of holding a teachers' institute in said county, to remain in session for a period of not less than six working days, he shall appoint such time and place for said meeting, and such lectures as the said teachers shall suggest, and shall give due notice thereof, and for the purpose of defraying the expenses of said institutes there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum not exceeding fifty dollars annually for one such institute in each county held as aforesaid, which the said secretary shall immediately transmit to the county superintendent in whose county the institute shall be held, who shall pay out the same as the institute shall direct.

Appropriation.

[The matter of this section was passed, March 28, 1860; laws of eighth general assembly, chapter 66, see Part 15th of Educational laws.]

Vacancy.

SEC. 2021. (22.) Should any vacancy occur at any time in the office of the secretary of the board of education while the board is not in session, the governor shall, by appointment, fill such vacancy until the next session of the board.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to create the office of superintendent of public instruction, passed Jan. 13, took effect Feb. 13, 1841; I. T., 3d sess., chap. 46, p. 37. Repealed by No. 2 hereof.

2. An act to repeal same, passed Feb. 17, took effect March 17, 1842; I. T., 4th sess., chap. 108, p. 93; also Reprint, 1843, p. 601.

CHAPTER 88.

COMMON SCHOOLS.

ARTICLE 1.

An Act to amend an Act, entitled "An Act to provide a system of Common Schools."

[Passed Dec. 24, 1859, took effect March 1, 1869; Laws of Board of Education of the Second Session.]

SECTION 2022. (1.) Be it enacted by the Board of Education of the State of Iowa, That the act of the board of education, passed December, 1858, entitled "an act to provide a system of common schools," be amended, so as to read as follows :

Act of 1853 amended.

Each civil township that is now or may be hereafter organized in the several counties of this state, is hereby declared a school district for all the purposes of this act, and each sub-district, as now organized under an act entitled "an act for the public instruction of the state of Iowa," approved March 12th, 1858, shall continue such, subject to the provisions hereinafter made :

Civil townships made school districts.

SEC. 2023. (2.) In each sub-district there shall be taught one or more schools for the instruction of youth between the ages of five and twenty-one years for at least twenty-four weeks, of five school days each, in each year, unless the county superintendent shall be satisfied that there is good and sufficient cause for failure so to do.

Sub-districts.

SEC. 2024. (3.) Scholars residing in one district may attend school in another, in the same or adjoining county, with the concurrence of the directors of both districts, and in such case, their proportion of the school money of the district to which they belong shall be paid to the treasurer of the district in which they attend school; and scholars may attend school in any sub-district of the township in which they reside, with the consent of the district board.

Scholars living in one county may attend school in adjoining county by consent of directors.

SEC. 2025. (4.) Any township in an unorganized county shall be for the purposes of this act regarded as a portion of the county to which its county is attached for revenue purposes.

Township in unorganized county, how regarded.

SEC. 2026. (5.) Every school district which is now, or may hereafter be organized in this state, is hereby made a body corporate, by the name of the "district township of _____, in the county of _____, and state of Iowa," and in that name, may hold property, become a party to suits and contracts, and do other corporate acts.

School district a body corporate.

May hold property, &c.

SEC. 2027. (6.) 1. Each township district shall hold regular meetings annually, on the second Monday in March.

Meetings.

2. When a new township has been organized, or a district left without officers, the trustees of the township shall post written notices specifying the time and place of the aforesaid meeting, in five conspicuous places in the township: provided, that when any district township shall be divided into two or more entire townships for civil purposes, the existing board of directors shall continue to act for both or all the new districts, till the time of the next election of officers.

Notice to be given of time of meeting.

Proviso.

SEC. 2028. (7.) The electors of a district, when legally assembled at a district school meeting, shall have the following powers, viz.:

Powers of electors.

1. To appoint a chairman and secretary, in the absence of the regular officers.
2. To adjourn from time to time as occasion may require.
3. To levy such tax, not exceeding one per cent. in any one year, on the taxable property of the district, as the meeting shall deem sufficient to purchase or lease a suitable site for a school-house or school-houses, and to build, rent, or purchase a school-house or school-houses, and to keep in repair and furnish the same with the necessary fuel and appendages, and for compensation of teachers, and for procuring district libraries and apparatus for the schools, books and stationery for the board and district meetings, and defray all other contingent expenses of the district: provided, that no tax shall be levied for building school-houses excepting at the regular meeting in March: and provided further, that no more than five mills on the dollar shall be levied in any one year for school-house purposes.
4. To direct the sale or other disposition to be made of any school-house or the site thereof, and of such other property, personal and real, as may belong to the district, and to direct the manner in which the proceeds arising therefrom shall be applied.
5. To provide for the payment of any debts contracted for school-houses or school purposes.
6. To delegate all the powers contained in the foregoing specifications to the district board of directors.
7. To determine the branches to be taught and the text-books to be used in the schools of their district, which power they may also delegate to the district board of directors. [This 7th subdivision was passed April 2, 1860; laws of eighth general assembly, chapter 139.]
- SEC. 2029. (8.) At the meeting of the township districts, the chairman shall submit the questions coming before the electors, in the following order: 1. The levy of a tax for the payment of debts for school-house purposes. 2. For payment of officers and miscellaneous contingent expenses. 3. For paying amounts asked for by the several sub-districts, for each purpose separately. 4. For payment of teachers. 5. For purchase of libraries, fuel, apparatus, &c. 6. For the delegation of power to the board of directors. 7. Other matters necessary or proper to be acted upon.
- SEC. 2030. (9.) The several sub-districts shall annually, on the first Monday in March, hold a meeting for the election of a director, five days' notice of which meeting shall be given by the then resident director, or if there is none, by the district secretary posting a written notice in three public places therein.
- SEC. 2031. (10.) At the meeting of the sub-districts, a chairman and secretary shall be appointed, who shall act as judges of the election, and give a certificate of election to the director elect.
- SEC. 2032. (11.) Each director shall, within ten days after his election, appear before some officer qualified to administer oaths, and take an oath to support the constitution of the United States, and that of the state of Iowa, and that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office, and in case of failure so to qualify, he shall forfeit ten dollars, to be recovered against him for the use of the district.
- SEC. 2033. (12.) The electors of said sub-district shall also, at the regular meeting in March, determine whether they desire any funds raised by tax to erect, repair, lease or furnish a school-house in said sub-district, or for the lease or purchase of grounds for the same, and the amount for each purpose.

May levy tax for purchase or lease of site for school-house, &c.

Proviso.

May direct the sale of property belonging to the district, &c.

Payment of debts provided for.

Delegate powers to district board of directors.

Further power which may also be delegated.

Order of submission of questions to electors.

Tax, and for what purpose.

Director of sub-district elected annually.

Five days' notice of meeting.

Certificate of election.

Take oath.

Penalty for failure to qualify.

Tax.

SEC. 2034. (13.) Whenever any sub-district, at a regular meeting, shall determine that they desire a tax levied for any of the purposes mentioned in the foregoing section, the director for said sub-district shall, within five days thereafter, certify the same to the township clerk, stating the amount of money desired for each purpose separately. Tax how levied.

SEC. 2035. (14.) The directors of the several sub-districts shall constitute a board of directors for the township district, of which board the township clerk shall be secretary, but shall have no vote therein. Township clerk secretary of board of directors.

SEC. 2036. (15.) The district board shall hold their regular meetings on the first Saturday after the first Monday in April and October in each year and may hold such special and adjourned meetings as occasion may require. They shall organize by electing from their own number, a president and treasurer. In the absence of the president the secretary shall preside. Meetings of district board.

SEC. 2037. (16.) The duties of the district board of directors shall be as follows: Its duties.

1. To make all contracts, purchases, payments and sales, necessary to carry out any vote of the district: provided, that before erecting any school-house, they shall consult with the county superintendent as to the most approved plan for such building. To make contracts, &c.

2. To admit pupils not belonging to the district, and not provided for in section three of this act, to their schools, on such terms as they may agree upon. To admit pupils.

3. To determine the number of schools which shall be established, and the length of time each shall be taught, subject to the provisions of section two of this act. Number of schools and length of time to be taught.

4. To fix the site for each school-house, taking into consideration the wants and necessities of the people of each portion of the district. Site for school-house.

5. To establish graded or union schools wherever they may be necessary, and they may, as occasion requires, select a person who shall have the general supervision of the schools in their district, subject to rules and regulations of the board. Graded or union schools.

6. To determine what branches shall be taught in the schools of their district. What branches shall be taught.

7. To require the secretary and treasurer each to give bond to the district in such penalty and with such sureties as they may determine upon; conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties under this act. The bond shall be filed with the president of the board, and in case of breach of condition thereof, he shall bring suit thereon in the name of the district. Secretary and treasurer to give bond.

8. To fill any vacancy, that may occur in the board, until the next regular sub-district meeting. Vacancy.

9. They shall, from time to time, examine the accounts of the treasurer and make settlement with him, and present at each regular meeting of the electors a full statement of the receipts and expenditures of the district, and all matters delegated to them to perform, and all such other matters as may be deemed important. Accounts of treasurer to be examined, &c.

10. To audit and allow all just claims against the district, and to fix the compensation of the secretary and treasurer. Compensation of secretary and treasurer.

11. To visit the schools in their district, and aid the teachers in establishing and enforcing rules for the government of the schools, and see that they keep a correct list of the pupils, embracing the periods of time during which they attend school, the branches taught, and such other matters as may be required by the county superintendent. Visit schools in district, &c.

12. They shall at their first regular meeting after the taking effect Division of districts.

- of this act, divide their district into sub-districts, such as justice, equity and the interests of the people require, and shall designate said sub-districts plainly upon a plat of the district provided for that purpose, and record the same in the district records, and they may at any regular meeting, or at any meeting called for that purpose, change the boundaries of sub-districts as circumstances may require, notice of the same having been given at any previous meeting. They shall cause all such changes to be marked on said map or plat and recorded in the proper book, and in the office of the county judge,* and they shall cause new maps to be made from time to time: provided, that the boundaries of sub-districts shall conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land.
- Proviso. 13. They shall apportion any tax for school-house purposes, in such manner that the rate per cent. levied upon any sub-district which has built a school-house unaided by other portions of the district, shall be so much less than the per cent. levied in other sub-districts, as justice may require, but the per cent. of tax shall be equal on all sub-districts owning no school-house property: provided, that the rate shall not exceed five mills on the dollar in any sub-district; and the board may lessen the amount voted, if necessary, sufficiently to reduce it to that rate.
- How tax to be apportioned. 14. They shall, at their regular meeting in April of each year, estimate the per centum of tax on the taxable property of the district, necessary to raise a fund which, with the teachers' fund from the county treasury, as shown by notice from the county judge,* shall be sufficient to support the several schools of the district, for at least the time required by this act, for the current year, which per centum they shall certify to the county judge,* who shall at the time of levying the taxes for county purposes, levy the per centum of tax thus certified upon the property of the district, which shall be collected and paid over as other school district taxes are.
- Proviso. SEC. 2038. (17.) A majority of the board shall be a quorum to transact business, but a less number may adjourn from time to time, and no tax for school-house purposes shall be levied by the board unless by a vote of a majority of all the members, nor after the 1st Monday in June,* nor shall the boundaries of sub-districts be changed except by a vote of a majority of the board.
- Per centum tax to be estimated in April of each year.
- What constitutes a quorum
- Duties of District Officers.*
- Who to preside. SEC. 2039. (18.) The president, or in his absence, the secretary shall preside in all meetings of the board and of the district, shall draw all drafts on the county treasurer, for money apportioned to his district, sign all orders on the district treasury, specifying in the orders the fund on which they are drawn, and the use for which the money is assigned; and he shall sign all contracts.
- President; his duty. SEC. 2040. (19.) The president shall appear in behalf of his district in all suits brought by or against the same, but when he is individually a party, this duty shall be performed by the secretary; and in all cases where suits may be instituted by or against any of the school officers, to enforce any of the provisions herein contained, counsel may be employed by the board of directors.
- When to be performed by secretary.
- Secretary; his duties. SEC. 2041. (20.) The secretary shall record all the proceedings of the board and district meetings, in separate books, kept for that purpose, shall preserve copies of all reports made to the county superintendent, shall file all papers transmitted to him pertaining to the business of the district, and shall countersign all drafts, warrants and orders drawn by the president.

SEC. 2042. (21.) He shall keep an accurate account of all the ex- Same. penses incurred by the district, and shall present the same to the board of directors, to be audited and paid as herein provided.

SEC. 2043. (22.) He shall give ten days' previous notice of all regu- Same. lar and special meetings of the district, by posting a written notice in five different conspicuous places therein, one of which shall be at or near the last place of meeting, and shall furnish a copy of the same to the teacher of the school, (if in session,) of each sub-district, to be read in the presence of the pupils thereof, and such notice shall in all cases, state the hour of meeting.

SEC. 2044. (23.) Whenever a tax has been voted by any district for purposes in this act specified, the secretary shall immediately certify the per centum to the county judge,* who shall, at the time of levying the tax for county purposes, levy a tax of the amount thus certified to him upon the assessed value of all the real and personal property in the district, which shall be collected by the county collector at the same time and in the same manner as state and county taxes are collected: provided, it shall be receivable only in cash. After tax voted secretary to certify per centum to county judge

SEC. 2045. (24.) The collector shall, on the 1st Monday of April and September in each year, pay over to the treasurer of the district the amount of said tax which shall have been collected, and shall render him a statement of the amount uncollected; and the amount unpaid shall be collected at any subsequent time as delinquent county taxes are collected, and shall be paid over when collected, to the treasurer aforesaid. County collector to pay over amount of tax collected to treasurer of district.

SEC. 2046. (25.) On or before the 20th day of September in each year, the secretary of each school district shall file with the county superintendent a report of the affairs of the district, which shall contain the following items, viz: Secretary of school district to make annual report to county superintendent.

1. The number of persons, male and female, each, in his district, between the ages of five and twenty-one years.
2. The number of schools and the branches taught.
3. The number of pupils and the average attendance of the same in each school.
4. The number of teachers employed, and the average compensation paid per week, distinguishing males from females.
5. The length of school in days, and the average cost of tuition per week for each scholar.
6. The aggregate amount paid teachers during the year, and the balance of teachers' fund in the treasury.
7. The text-books used, and the number of volumes in the district library, and the value of apparatus belonging to the district.
8. The number of school-houses and their estimated value.
9. The amount raised within the year by tax for the erection of school-houses, the amount for teachers' fund and for other purposes of this act, stating separately the amount for each.
10. The amount of public fund received from the county treasury, and if any, from other sources, stating what, and how much from each, and such other information as he may deem useful.

SEC. 2047. (26.) Should the secretary fail to file his report as above directed, he shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars, and shall make good all losses resulting from such failure, and suit shall be brought, in both cases, by the district, on his official bond. Penalty for failure to report.

* See section 2094.

Treasurer; his duties.	SEC. 2048. (27.) The treasurer shall hold all moneys belonging to the district, and pay out the same on the order of the president, countersigned by the secretary, and shall keep a correct account of all expenses and receipts, in a book provided for the purpose.
"School house fund."	SEC. 2049. (28.) The money collected by district tax for school-house purposes, and all contingent expenses, shall be called the "school-house fund," and that received for the support of teachers, shall be called the "teachers' fund," and the treasurer shall keep with each fund a separate account, and shall pay no order which does not specify the fund on which it is drawn, and the specific use to which it is applied. If he have not sufficient funds in his hands to pay in full the warrant drawn on the fund specified, he shall make partial payment thereon, paying as near as may be, an equal proportion of each warrant.
"Teachers' fund" Order to specify fund on which it is drawn.
Partial payment
Money to be received by treasurer.	SEC. 2050. (29.) He shall receive all money apportioned to the district by the county judge ,* and also all money in the county treasury collected on the district tax, for his district.
Statement.	SEC. 2051. (30.) He shall render a statement of the finances of the district from time to time, as may be required by the board, and his books shall always be open for inspection.
Duties of director of sub-district.	SEC. 2052. (31.) It shall be the duty of the director in each sub-district, between the first day of August and the fifteenth day of September of each year, to make and keep on record a list of the names of all heads of families in the sub-district, and the number of children in each family between the ages of five and twenty-one years, distinguishing males from females, and to report the same to the secretary of the township district, on or before the said fifteenth day of September, in each year. He shall further report the number of schools in his sub-district, and the branches taught, the number of pupils and average attendance of the same in each school, the number of teachers and the compensation of each, the text-books used, the number of school-houses, and the estimated value of each.
Same.	SEC. 2053. (32.) He shall, under such rules and restrictions as the township board may prescribe, negotiate and make in his sub-district all necessary contracts for providing fuel for schools, employing teachers, repairing, building and furnishing school-houses, and making all other provisions necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools within his sub-district. All contracts made in conformity with the provisions of this section, shall be reported to the township board of directors; and said board, in their corporate capacity, shall be responsible for the performance thereof on the part of the district.
Same.	SEC. 2054. (33.) He shall have power to dismiss any pupils from the schools in his district for gross immorality, or for persistent violation of the regulations of the school, and to re-admit them if he deems it proper so to do, and shall visit the schools in his sub-district at least twice during each term of said school.
Contracts with teachers to be in writing, &c.	SEC. 2055. (34.) All contracts with teachers shall be in writing, specifying the length of time the school is to be taught, in weeks, the compensation per week, or per month of four weeks, and such other matters as may be agreed upon, and shall be signed by the sub-director and teacher, and be approved by and filed with the president before any teacher shall be entitled to a warrant for services.
Further duties of director.	SEC. 2056. (35.) He shall collect all taxes and debts due his sub-district, and settle any other business remaining unfinished at the time of organizing under the act entitled "An act for the Public Instruction of the State of Iowa," approved March 12th, 1858, and shall apply all funds that may thus come into his hands, to the specific purpose for which they were designed; but before entering upon the said duties, he shall file with the president of the board of directors, a bond such as is required of the secretary and treasurer under this act; but the district treasurer shall settle with the county treasurer, and receive from him all moneys due and unpaid, to any sub-district of his district, applying said funds as in this section provided.

Bond.

SEC. 2057. (36.) When any tax heretofore levied is still unpaid, the director may, at his option, report the amount due from any individual, or upon any tract of land, to the county judge,* who shall cause the amounts so due, to be added to the amount standing on the tax-list against such individual or tract of land, for the current year. These taxes shall then be collected in the same manner as is pursued in the collection of other county taxes.

May report unpaid taxes to county judge, &c.

SEC. 2058. (37.) The sub-district may act independent of the district board in the expenditure of any funds belonging to such sub-district, derived from any debts due or tax levied by it previous to its organization under the "Act for the Public Instruction of the State of Iowa," approved March 12th, 1858.

Sub district independent of district board.

SEC. 2059. (38.) The county judge* of each county shall, at the time of levying the tax for county purposes, levy a tax for the support of schools within the county, of not less than one mill, nor more than two and a half mills on the dollar, on the assessed value of all real and personal property within the county, which shall be collected by the county collector at the time and in the same manner as state and county taxes are collected, except that it shall be receivable only in cash.

County judge to levy tax for school purposes, to be collected by county collector.

SEC. 2060. (39.) On the first Monday of April annually, the county judge* of each county shall apportion said tax, together with the interest of the permanent school fund to which his county is entitled, and all other money in the hands of the county treasurer belonging in common to the schools of his county, among the several school districts therein, in proportion to the number of persons between five and twenty-one years of age, subject to the provisions of section two of this act. And in order to enable him to make such apportionment, it is hereby made the duty of the several county superintendents to report to their respective county judges, on the fifth day of October, annually, the number of such persons in each school district in his county.

County judge to apportion school tax and interest of permanent school fund, annually.

Duty of county superintendents.

SEC. 2061. (40.) The county judge* shall immediately notify the president of each school district of the sum to which his district is entitled by said apportionment, and shall issue his warrant for the same to accompany said notice, which warrant shall be also signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the district in whose favor the same is drawn, and shall authorize the district treasurer to draw the amount due said district from the county treasurer, and the secretary shall charge the treasurer of the district with all warrants drawn in his favor, and credit him with all warrants drawn on the funds in his hands, keeping separate accounts with each fund.

County judge to issue his warrant to the president of each district for the sum his district is entitled to receive.

Qualifications and Duties of Teachers.

SEC. 2062. (41.) 1. No person shall be employed to teach a common school which is to receive its distributive share of the school fund, unless he shall have a certificate of qualification signed by the county superintendent of the county in which the school is situated; and no

No person to be employed as teacher without certificate signed by county superintendent.

* See section 2094.

certificate shall be valid more than one year from the date thereof; and any teacher who commences teaching without such certificate, shall forfeit all claim to compensation for the time during which he teaches without such certificate.

Duties of teacher. 2. The teacher shall keep a correct register of the school, which shall exhibit the sub-district, township, county and state in which the school is kept, the day of the week, the month and year; the name and age, and attendance of each scholar, and the branches taught, the register to be as near as practicable after the form appended to this act.

3. When scholars reside in different districts, a register shall be kept for each district.

4. The teacher shall, immediately after the close of his school, file in the office of the secretary of the board a certified copy of the register aforesaid.

Of the County Superintendent.

County superintendent. SEC. 2063. (42.) A county superintendent of common schools shall be elected in each organized county of this state, whose term of service shall be two years.

When elected. SEC. 2064. (43.) The first election of that officer shall take place on the second Tuesday of October, 1859, at the time and several places of electing the township boards, and at the general election on every two years thereafter; and the election returns to be made in the same manner as for other county officers. The present incumbents who have been elected under the act of March 12th, 1858, shall serve in that capacity until their successors are elected and qualified; but the rate of their compensation after the taking effect of this act, shall be as hereinafter provided.

Take oath. SEC. 2065. (44.) Within twenty days after his election, he shall take and subscribe his oath of office. On his failure to do so, or if for any other cause there be a vacancy in said office, the county judge* shall appoint a person to fill such vacancy, who shall qualify in like manner, and who shall hold his office till the first general election thereafter.

County superintendent to examine applicants. SEC. 2066. (45.) The county superintendent shall examine all persons who shall present themselves at the proper time and place, as to their competency and ability to teach orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and English grammar, and such other branches as may be required hereafter. In making this examination he may, at his option, call to his aid one or more assistants.

Applicant to receive certificate. SEC. 2067. (46.) If the examination is satisfactory, and if the applicant is shown to be of good moral character, he shall receive a certificate accordingly. The names of all those receiving such certificates, and of all those rejected, shall be entered on a register kept by the county superintendent at the date at which they were given.

Register. SEC. 2068. (47.) The county superintendent shall, on the last Saturday of every month, meet all those who are desirous of passing an examination, and for the transaction of all other business within his jurisdiction, in some suitable room at the seat of justice of the county, or at any other place, as occasion may require, and shall notify the county judge* of the place of meeting. If an applicant desire an examination at any other time, he shall be required to pay the superintendent one dollar, before the examination is commenced, unless he presented himself at the regular day fixed in this section, and was unable, from no fault of his own, to obtain an examination, in which case no fee shall be required of him.

SEC. 2069. (48.) If for any cause the county superintendent can not be present at the regular day thus fixed, he shall appoint one or more deputies to make the examination in his stead. He shall afterwards issue certificates to those who receive the recommendation of his deputies as aforesaid. May appoint deputies to examine applicants.

SEC. 2070. (49.) The superintendent may revoke the certificate of any teacher in the county, which was given by the superintendent thereof, for any reasons which would have justified the withholding thereof when the same was given. And the board of directors upon sufficient cause shown, may expel any teacher from school in the district. May revoke certificate of any teacher in county, &c.

SEC. 2071. (50.) On or before the 5th day of October in each year, he shall make a report to the secretary of the board of education containing a digest of the reports made to him by the secretaries of the several township boards, and such other matters as he shall be directed to report by the said secretary, and such as he himself may think pertinent and material, and especially such as will show the condition of the schools under his charge. He shall also suggest such improvements in the system as he may think judicious. He shall also, by the fifth day of October in each year, file with the county judge* an abstract of the number of youths between the ages of five and twenty-one years residing in each township and school district within his county. Report of county superintendent. Abstract.

SEC. 2072. (51.) Should he fail to make either of the reports required in the last section, he shall forfeit to the school fund of his county the sum of fifty dollars, and shall besides, be liable for all damages caused by such neglect. Penalty for failure to report.

SEC. 2073. (52.) He shall at all times conform to the instructions of the secretary of the board of education, as to matters within the jurisdiction of the said secretary. He shall serve as the organ of communication between the secretary and township or district authorities. He shall transmit to the townships, districts or teachers, all blanks, circulars and other communications which are to them directed, and he shall entertain and decide all appeals taken from decisions of district boards. Further duties of county superintendent.

SEC. 2074. (53.) The county superintendent shall receive from the county treasury the sum of two dollars for every day necessarily engaged in official services; but before he shall be entitled to receive such compensation, he shall file in the office of the county judge* a sworn statement of the correctness of his account together with the account itself: provided, that he shall not receive a greater compensation than one-half the salary, fixed by law, of the clerk of the district court of the county in which the superintendent resides. Compensation. Proviso.

SEC. 2075. (54.) In townships comprising but one sub-district, three members of the district board of directors shall be elected in manner as provided in section nine of this act for the election of one member. The persons elected, together with the township clerk, shall constitute the township board, with like powers and duties as herein provided for the board of other townships. Manner of election in townships comprising but one sub-district

SEC. 2076. (55.) If at any time the office of secretary becomes vacant by resignation or otherwise, the board shall appoint one of their own number to fill such vacancy. Vacancy to be filled by board.

SEC. 2077. (56.) A school month shall consist of four weeks, of five school days each. School month.

* See section 2094.

Provision.	SEC. 2078. (57.) Any officer whose term of office is prescribed by this act, shall continue in office until his successor is elected and qualified.
Persons elected, &c., to take oath.	SEC. 2079. (58.) Every person elected or appointed to any office, pursuant to the provisions of this act, shall, before entering upon the discharge of the duties thereof, take an oath to support the constitution of the United States, and of this state, and faithfully to discharge the duties of his office according to the best of his abilities. In case such officer has a written appointment or commission, his oath shall be indorsed thereon. In other cases it may be taken orally. In either case it may be sworn to before any officer authorized to administer oaths.
Oath to be indorsed.
Books, &c., to be delivered to successor in office.	SEC. 2080. (59.) When any officer is superseded by election, or otherwise, he shall immediately deliver to his successor in office, all books, papers, and moneys pertaining to his office, taking a receipt therefor; and every such officer who shall refuse to do so, or who shall willfully mutilate or destroy any such books or papers, or any part thereof, shall be liable to a fine of not less than fifty, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, at the discretion of the court.
Penalty.
Fines and penalties, how appropriated.	SEC. 2081. (60.) All fines and penalties collected from a district officer, by virtue of any of the provisions of this act, shall enure to the benefit of that particular district. Those collected from any member of the township board, shall belong to the township, and those collected from county officers, to the county. In the two former cases, suit shall be brought in the name of the township board; in the latter, in the name of the county, and by the district prosecutor. The amount in each case, shall be added to the fund next to be applied by the recipient, for the use of common schools.
Counties not organized, how regarded.	SEC. 2082. (61.) Unorganized counties shall be regarded for the purposes of this act, the same as though they formed a part of the organized counties to which they are respectively attached.
Defects in laws of board of education, when not in session, to be remedied by regulation of secretary of board.	SEC. 2083. (62.) The secretary of the board of education may make all needful rules and regulations to give efficiency to this law. And should any defect be discovered therein while this board is not in session, which is evidently the result of oversight, and which in his opinion is detrimental to the efficiency of the law, he may supply such defect by a regulation having the force of law, until the matter can be acted on by this board. In such cases he must report the fact and the reasons thereof to the board at its next meeting. He may also make regulations fixing the powers and duties of any subordinate officer or board, when those duties are not sufficiently defined herein, making a like report thereof as is above required.
Further discretionary power.
School district with school-house, before passage of act of March 12, 1858, to form a part of the township district in which such school-house is situated.	SEC. 2084. (63.) In all cases where a school district, as constituted at the time of the taking effect of an act entitled "An act for the public instruction of the state of Iowa," approved March 12, 1858, and formed of a part of two or more civil townships in the same or adjoining counties, had a school-house erected, which said house had not been destroyed, removed or abandoned, said district, as at that time constituted, shall be and remain a sub-district in, and form a part of the township district in which such school-house is situated, for voting, taxation, enumeration of children, distribution of money, and all other school purposes, as fully as though said sub-district were all included within the township in which the school-house is situated, and the boundaries of such sub-district shall not be changed except with the concurrence of the boards of directors of the townships interested: provided , that the provisions of this section shall not apply to incorporated cities and villages containing one thousand inhabitants, or more; and the board of directors shall, at their regular meeting in April next after the passage of this act, divide their districts in accordance with the provisions of this section, and should a vacancy be caused thereby in the office of director in any such sub-district, the secretary shall, as soon as practicable, call a special meeting of the electors therein, to fill such vacancy.

SEC. 2085. (64.) Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to give the township board of directors jurisdiction over any territory included within the limits of any city or incorporated village, with the territory annexed thereto for school purposes, which has organized separately as a school district under any other act of this board.

This act, how construed.

SEC. 2086. (65.) If adequate provision has not been made by the township district for school-house purposes, or the payment of debts in any sub-district, the sub-director may, and shall, at the written request of one-fourth of the electors in his sub-district, call a meeting of the electors of his sub-district: said meeting to be held on the second Monday in July,* and to be organized as at the regular meeting in March.

Sub-director, at request of directors, to call meeting.

SEC. 2087. (66.) He shall give at least ten days' notice of any meeting so called, by causing said notice to be read in the presence of each school taught in his sub-district, if during term time, or if no school be in operation, then by posting written notices of said meeting in at least three conspicuous public places in his sub-district.

Notice, and how given.

SEC. 2088. (67.) The electors of such sub-district, when assembled at such called meeting, may determine whether they desire a tax levied upon the property of said sub-district.

Tax levied determined by electors.

1. For the payment of debts against said sub-district contracted before the organization under an act "for the public instruction of the state of Iowa," approved March 12, 1858, or,

2. For the erection, completion, repairing or furnishing a school-house or houses in said sub-district, or for purchasing, leasing, enclosing or improving grounds for the same: provided, that no tax shall be voted of more than one per cent. on the taxable property of the district in any one year, nor shall any tax for school-house purposes be voted, unless the electors and board of directors of the township district have refused or neglected to vote a tax for said purpose, after being requested by the sub-district at its regular meeting in March so to do, as provided in section thirteen of this act. Nor shall any tax be voted except by a vote of two-thirds of the electors present, or a majority of all the electors of the sub-district.

SEC. 2089. (68.) Whenever any tax has been voted by a sub-district, as provided for in the preceding section of this act, the sub-director shall, within ten days thereafter, certify the same to the secretary of the township district, together with a list of all property owners, residents of his sub-district, and the secretary shall, within twenty days thereafter, estimate the tax upon the taxable property of said sub-district, as shown by the last assessment previous to that time, and shall make a list of such tax and certify the same to the proper authority for levying county taxes; and for such services he shall receive the sum of two dollars per day, which shall be paid out of the proceeds of said tax.†

Secretary of township district to be notified of tax levied by sub-director within ten days thereafter.

Secretary to estimate tax within twenty days thereafter.

Compensation.

SEC. 2090. (69.) No action shall be obligatory under the provisions of sections sixty-five, sixty-six, sixty-seven and sixty-eight of this act, until the general assembly shall provide for and authorize the collection of the taxes therein mentioned.*

† See section 2092.

How moneys arising from taxes to be disposed of.

SEC. 2091. (70.) All money arising from taxes voted by a sub-district, shall, when collected, be paid over to the treasurer of the township district on the order of the sub-director of the district voting the same, and shall be paid out only on the order of the president, countersigned by the secretary and sub-director of said district.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend an Act passed by the Board of Education, Dec. 24, 1859, entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled an Act to provide a System of Common Schools."

[Passed April 2, 1860, took effect April 21, 1860; Laws of Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 112.]

After tax voted, secretary of township district, within ten days, to notify county judge.

SECTION 2092. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That whenever any tax has been voted by a sub-district, and certified to the secretary of the township district, as contemplated in sections sixty-seven and sixty-eight of the act of which this is amendatory, the said secretary shall within ten days thereafter certify the same to the county judge,† who shall, at the time of levying a tax for county purposes, levy a tax of the amount thus certified upon the assessed value of all real and personal property in the sub-district by which it was voted, and the same shall be collected and paid over in the manner provided in sections twenty-four and seventy of the act of which this is amendatory.

County judge to levy tax.

How collected.

Board of directors may appoint a secretary.

SEC. 2093. (2.) In any case where it may be incompatible with the provisions of the act of which this is amendatory, for the township clerk to perform the duties of secretary, the board of directors may appoint a secretary from the district at large, but the person so appointed shall have no vote in the proceedings of said board, except as herein provided. He shall qualify within ten days after his appointment, and a failure to do so shall create a vacancy. In all township districts where there are but two sub-districts, the secretary shall give the casting vote in all questions upon which the two sub-directors can not agree.

Vacancy.

Substitution.

SEC. 2094. (3.) From and after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, the words "board of supervisors" shall be substituted for the words "county judge" in the latter part of the fourteenth specification of section sixteen; and also in sections twenty-three, thirty-six, thirty-eight and forty-four of the act of which this is amendatory, and in section one of this act, and the words "clerk of the board of supervisors" shall be substituted for the words "county judge" in the twelfth and first part of the fourteenth specification of section sixteen, and also in sections twenty-nine, thirty-nine, forty, forty-seven, fifty and fifty-three of the act of which this is amendatory, and the words "first Monday in May" shall be substituted for the words "first Monday in June," in section seventeen, and for the words "second Monday in July" in section sixty-five of the act of which this is amendatory.

OF THE RIGHTS OF PERSONS.

OF PROPERTY.

---

CHAPTER 92.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

What dispositions void.

SECTION 2199. (1191.) Every disposition of property is void which suspends the absolute power of controlling the same for a longer period than during the lives of persons then in being and for twenty-one years thereafter.

Married women.

SEC. 2200. (1192.) Married women may receive grants or gifts of property from their husbands without the intervention of trustees, but this provision applies only to form and manner and leaves the substantial rights of all parties unchanged.

DECISIONS. Executory devise ; estate in futuro ; contingencies ; capacity to take ; charities, &c., 4 Iowa, 252 ; dedication for a church, 4 Iowa, 252 ; 2 Iowa, 315.

CHAPTER 93.

THE TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

[Code—Chapter 76.]

Mortgages, &c., to be recorded.

SECTION 2201. (1193.) No sale or mortgage of personal property where the vendor or mortgagor retains actual possession thereof is valid against existing creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice, unless a written instrument conveying the same is executed, acknowledged like conveyances of real estate, and filed for record with the recorder of deeds of the county where the holder of the property resides.

SEC. 2202. (1194.) The recorder of deeds must keep an entry book or index for instruments of the above description, having the pages thereof ruled so as to show in parallel columns, to be alphabetically arranged in double entry in the manner hereinafter provided in case of deeds for real property: Book and index.

1. The mortgagors or vendors;
2. The mortgagees or vendees;
3. The date of the filing of the instrument;
4. The date of the instrument itself;
5. Its nature;
6. The page and book where the record is to be found.

SEC. 2203. (1195.) Whenever any written instrument of the character above contemplated is filed for record as aforesaid the recorder shall note thereon the day and hour of filing the same, and forthwith enter in his entry book all the particulars required in the preceding section except the sixth item therein, and from the time of said entry and not before shall the sale or mortgage be deemed complete as to third persons and shall have the same effect as though it had been accompanied by the actual delivery of the property so sold or mortgaged. Recorder's note.

SEC. 2204. (1196.) The recorder shall as soon as practicable record such instrument and enter in his entry book in its proper place the page and book where the record may be found. Deed recorded.

DECISIONS. Bill of sale resembles conveyance of real estate, 6 Iowa, 476; 3 ibid., 58; must be recorded, 3 Iowa, 58; it need not provide for retention of possession, Kuhn v. Graves, Dec. term, 1859; though unrecorded yet good between the parties and those having actual notice, McGavron v. Haupt, June term, 1859; see 7 Iowa, 9; effect of delivery with an agreement that the property shall remain till payment in the vendor, 8 Iowa, 331, and Robinson v. Chapline, June, 1859; a sale without change of possession is void as to existing creditors or subsequent purchasers without notice, either actual or by record, 3 Iowa, 59; pledge, 8 Iowa, 207; perfection of title, 7 Iowa, 142; 4 Iowa, 52; stoppage in transitu, 6 Iowa, 480; 1 ibid., 64; warranty, 3 G., 327; 3 Iowa, 571; 8 Iowa, 108; 4 G., 63; the title to a land warrant will only pass by assignment, 4 Iowa, 22; land warrant is a chattel, 3 Iowa, 153; see case of land warrant illegally sold and then located, and the remedy of the owner, 3 Iowa, 153; when oral evidence may be received to explain, 8 Iowa, 386.

CHAPTER 94.

CLAIMS ON PUBLIC LANDS.

[Code—Chapter 77.]

SECTION 2205. (1197.) The owner of what is known as a valid claim or improvement on the public lands has a transferable interest therein which may be sold on execution or otherwise; and any sale of such improvement is a sufficient consideration to sustain a promise. Claims on public lands.

SEC. 2206. (1198.) The occupant of such claim will be deemed to have constructive possession thereof to the extent of three hundred and twenty acres: provided, it be so marked out and designated that the boundaries can be readily traced and determined, and he may protect and defend his possession by the proper civil action. Constructive possession.

DECISIONS. Claims are personalty, 8 Iowa, 463; and good consideration for a note, M., 80-70-312-438; 1 Iowa, 23.

CHAPTER 95.

REAL PROPERTY.

[Code—Chapter 78.]

ARTICLE 1.

- Who seized. SECTION 2207. (1199.) All persons owning lands not held by an adverse possession, shall be deemed to be seized and possessed of the same.
- "Heirs" not necessary. SEC. 2208. (1200.) The term "heirs" or other technical words of inheritance are not necessary to create and convey an estate in fee simple.
- What conveyance passes. SEC. 2209. (1201.) Every conveyance of real estate passes all the interest of the grantor therein unless a contrary intent can be reasonably inferred from the terms used.
- After acquired interests. SEC. 2210. (1202.) Where a deed purports to convey a greater interest than the grantor was at the time possessed of, any after acquired interest of such grantor to the extent of that which the deed purports to convey enures to the benefit of the grantee.
- Adverse possession. SEC. 2211. (1203.) Adverse possession of real property does not prevent any person from selling his interest in the same.
- Estates in futuro. SEC. 2212. (1204.) Estates may be created to commence at a future day.
- Trust estates. SEC. 2213. (1205.) Declarations or creations of trusts or powers in relation to real estate must be executed in the same manner as deeds of conveyance, but this provision does not apply to trusts resulting from the operation or construction of law.
- Tenancy in common. SEC. 2214. (1206.) Conveyances to two or more in their own right create a tenancy in common unless a contrary intent is expressed.
- Wives may convey. SEC. 2215. (1207.) A married woman may convey her interest in real estate in the same manner as other persons.
- Tenant at will. SEC. 2216. (1208.) Any person in the possession of real property with the assent of the owner is presumed to be a tenant at will unless the contrary is shown.
(1209) [repealed by section 2218 hereof.]
- Possession under mortgage. SEC. 2217. (1210.) In the absence of stipulations to the contrary, the mortgagor of real estate retains the legal title and right of possession thereof; but in case of personal property the mortgagee holds that title and right.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend Section 1209 of the Code.

[Passed March 12, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 49, page 54.]

- Notice given to terminate tenancy. SECTION 2218. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That section 1209, chapter 78 of the code be so far amended as to read as follows: "Thirty days' notice in writing is necessary to be given by either party, before he or she can terminate a tenancy at will; but when in any case rent is reserved, payable at intervals of less than thirty days, the length of notice need not be greater than such interval between the days of payment. In case of tenants occupying and cultivating farms, the notice must fix the termination of the tenancy, to take place on the first day of March: provided, that where an express agreement is made, whether the same has been reduced to writing or not, the tenancy shall cease at the time agreed upon, without notice. Farmers leave March 1st, unless special agreement made.

SEC. 2219. (2.) All acts and parts of acts contravening the provisions of this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to abolish entails; to confirm conveyances by tenants in tail, and to regulate the mode of conveyances to joint tenants, passed March 2, 1821; M. D., 1833, p. 278.

2. An act authorizing aliens to hold land, passed March 31, 1827; M. D., 1833, p. 282.

CHAPTER 96.

THE CONVEYANCE OF REAL PROPERTY.

[Code—Chapter 79.]

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 2220. (1211.) No instrument affecting real estate is of any validity against subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice, unless recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the land lies, as hereinafter provided. To be recorded.

SEC. 2221. (1212.) It shall not be deemed lawfully recorded unless it has been previously acknowledged or proved in the manner herein prescribed. Same.

SEC. 2222. (1213.) The recorder of deeds must keep an entry book or index, the pages of which are so divided as to show in parallel columns; Index of records.

1. The grantors;
2. The grantees;
3. The time when the instrument was filed;
4. The date of the instrument;
5. The nature of the instrument;
6. The book and page where the record thereof may be found;
7. The description of the land conveyed, in the manner following:

Grantors.	Grantees.	Date of filing.	Date of instrument.	Character of instrument.	Book.	Page.	Description.
A. B.	C. D.	1848. Jan. 1,	1848. Jan. 1,	Deed.			E. $\frac{1}{4}$ N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ Sec. 14, T. 7, R. 2. W.
M. N.	P. Q.	Oct. 7,	June 4,	Deed.			Lot 429, in Burling- ton.
R. S.	T. V.	Nov. 3,	Sept. 19,	Mortgage.			S. $\frac{1}{2}$ Sec. 10, T. 67, R. 3. W.

Constructive notice.

SEC. 2223. (1214.) The recorder must indorse upon every instrument properly filed in his office for record the time when it was so filed, and shall forthwith make the entries provided for in the last preceding section except that of the book and page where the record of the instrument may be found, and from that time such entries shall furnish constructive notice to all the world of the rights of the grantee conferred by such instrument.

Manner of entries.

SEC. 2224. (1215.) The entries in such entry book shall be double, the one showing the names of the respective grantors arranged in alphabetical order, the other those of the grantees in like order. Where there are two or more grantors having different surnames there must be as many distinct entries among the grantors as there are different names, being alphabetically arranged in regard to each of such names. The same rule shall be followed in case of several grantees.

To be recorded.

SEC. 2225. (1216.) Every such instrument shall be recorded as soon as practicable in a suitable book to be kept by the recorder for that purpose. After which he shall complete the entries aforesaid so as to show the book and page where the record is to be found.

Manner of Acknowledging and Proving Deeds.

Before whom.

SEC. 2226. (1217.) If acknowledged within the state, it must be before some court having a seal or some judge, justice, or clerk thereof, or some justice of the peace, or notary public.

SEC. (1218.) [Repealed; see section 2245 hereof.]

Certificate.

SEC. 2227. (1219.) The court or person taking the acknowledgment must indorse upon the deed a certificate setting forth the following particulars:

1. The title of the court or person before whom the acknowledgment was taken;

2. That the person making the acknowledgment was personally known to at least one of the judges of the court or to the officer taking the acknowledgment to be the identical person whose name is affixed to the deed as grantor, or that such identity was proved by at least one credible witness (naming him);

3. That such person acknowledged the instrument to be his voluntary act and deed.

SEC. 2228. (1220.) If the grantor die before acknowledging the deed, or if for any other reason his attendance can not be procured in order to make the acknowledgment, or if having appeared he refuses to acknowledge it, proof of the due execution and delivery of the deed may be made by any competent testimony. Proof, how and when.

SEC. 2229. (1221.) Such proof may be made before the same court or officers as are authorized to take acknowledgment as aforesaid. Before whom

SEC. 2230. (1222.) The certificate indorsed by them upon the deeds thus proved must state: Certificate

1. The title of the court or officer taking the proof;

2. That it was satisfactorily proved that the grantor was dead, or that for some other reason his attendance could not be procured in order to make the acknowledgment, or that having appeared he refused to acknowledge the deed;

3. The names of the witnesses by whom the proof was made and that it was proved by them that the instrument was executed by the person whose name is thereunto subscribed as a party.

SEC. 2231. (1223.) The certificate of proof or acknowledgment as aforesaid may be given under seal or otherwise, according to the mode by which the courts or officers granting the same usually authenticate their most solemn and formal official acts. Same.

SEC. 2232. (1224.) Any officer who knowingly states a material untruth in either of the certificates above contemplated, may be indicted and fined any sum not exceeding the value of the property conveyed or otherwise affected by the instrument on which such certificate is indorsed. Penalty.

SEC. 2233. (1225.) Any court or officer having power to take the proof above contemplated may issue the necessary subpoenas, and compel the attendance of witnesses residing within the county by attachment if necessary. Subpoenas.

SEC. 2234. (1226.) No instrument containing a power to convey or in any manner affect real estate, certified and recorded as above prescribed, can be revoked by any act of the parties by whom it was executed until the instrument containing such revocation is acknowledged and deposited for record and entered on the entry book in the same office in which the instrument conferring the power is recorded. Revocation of power.

SEC. 2235. (1227.) Every instrument in writing affecting real estate, which is acknowledged or proved, and certified as hereinbefore directed, may be read in evidence without farther proof. Instrument when evidence.

SEC. 2236. (1228.) The record of such instrument or a duly authenticated copy thereof is competent evidence whenever by the party's own oath or otherwise the original is shown to be lost, or not belonging to the party wishing to use the same nor within his control. And in such case it is no objection to the record that no official seal is appended to the recorded acknowledgment thereof, if, when the acknowledgment purports to have been taken by an officer having an official seal, there be a statement in the certificate of acknowledgment that the same is made under his hand and seal of office and the record show by a scroll or otherwise that there was such a seal, which will be presumptive evidence that the official seal was attached to the original certificate. Record, when.

SEC. 2237. (1229.) The provisions of the preceding section are intended to apply to all instruments heretofore recorded as well as those hereafter to be recorded. Retrospective.

- Not conclusive. SEC. 2238. (1230.) Neither the certificate nor the record nor the transcript thereof is conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated.
- Past acts. SEC. 2239. (1231.) Nothing herein contained shall invalidate any act already done.
- Forms. SEC. 2240. (1232.) The following or other equivalent forms, varied to suit circumstances, are sufficient for the purposes therein contemplated:

For a Quitclaim Deed.

- Quitclaim. For the consideration of ——— dollars, I hereby quit claim to A. B. all my interest in the following tract of land, [describing it].

For a Deed in Fee Simple without Warranty.

- Grant. For the consideration of ——— dollars, I hereby convey to A. B. the following tract of land, [describing it].

For a Deed in Fee with Warranty.

- With warranty. The same as the last preceding form adding the words, "and I warrant the title against all persons whomsoever," [or other warranty as the parties may desire.]

For a Mortgage.

- Mortgage. The same as a deed of conveyance, adding the following, "to be void upon condition that I pay," &c.

For a Deed of Trust.

- Deed of trust. For the purpose of securing to A. B. the sum of ——— dollars, with interest from date at the rate of ——— per cent. per annum, [or as the case may be] I hereby convey to C. D. [describe the property conveyed].

And if the sum so secured to A. B. is not paid him by the [stating the time of payment], I hereby authorize the said C. D. to sell the property herein conveyed, [stating the manner, place of sale, notice to be given, &c.], to execute a deed to the purchaser, to pay off the amount herein secured with interest and costs, and to hold the remainder subject to my order.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to require Recorders of Counties to keep the Records of Conveyances of Town Lots separate from those of other real estate.

[Passed January 18, 1855, took effect July 1, 1855; Laws of Fifth General Assembly, Chapter 38, page 51.]

- Deeds of town lots. SECTION 2241. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That it shall henceforth be the duty of the recorders of the different counties in this state, to record all deeds, mortgages, and other conveyances of town lots, in all cities and villages, in their respective counties, the plats whereof are recorded in separate record books, from those in which other conveyances of real estate are recorded.
- Recorded separate. SEC. 2242. (2.) It shall be the duty of the respective county judges to provide suitable record books, for carrying into effect the provisions of this act.
- Books. SEC. 2243. (3.) All acts and parts of acts concerning records of deeds, in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.
- Repeal.

ARTICLE 3.

An Act concerning Acknowledgments of Deeds in foreign countries; and also to amend section 1218 of the Code, relating to Acknowledgments of Deeds executed out of the State.

[Passed January 22, 1855, took effect January 31, 1855; Laws of Fifth General Assembly, Chapter 49, page 76.]

SECTION 2244. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That any deed or other conveyance of lands within this state, which is executed without the United States, may be acknowledged or proven before any state, republic, kingdom or province having a seal, or before any officer authorized by the laws of such foreign country to take acknowledgments of conveyances of real estate, if he have any official seal, the certificate of acknowledgment to be attested by the official seal of such court or officer, and in case said acknowledgment is taken before other than a court of record, or mayor, or other officer of a town having such seal, proof under the official seal of the proper authority, that such officer taking such acknowledgment was duly authorized by the laws of such country to do so, and that his signature thereto is genuine, shall accompany such certificate of such acknowledgment. Acknowledgment out of U. S.
Authentication.

SEC. 2245. (2.) And be it further enacted, That section 1218 of the Code be amended so as to read as follows: Any deed conveyance or other instrument in writing, by which real estate in this state shall be conveyed or encumbered, when made or acknowledged out of the state, but within the United States, shall be acknowledged before some court of record or officer holding the seal thereof, or before some commissioner to take the acknowledgment of deeds, appointed by the governor of this state, or before some notary public, or justice of the peace; and when made by a justice of the peace, a certificate under the official seal of the proper authority of the official character of said justice, and of his authority to take such acknowledgments, and of the genuineness of his signature, shall accompany said certificate of acknowledgment. In the United States.
Acknowledgment.

[Section (3) repealed. See section 2247 hereof.]

ARTICLE 4.

An Act to amend Chapter 49 of Session Laws of 1854-5.

SECTION 2246. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all deeds, mortgages or other instruments in writing, executed out of this state, whereby real estate situated in this state, has been or shall hereafter be conveyed or encumbered, which have been duly acknowledged, in accordance with the provisions of section second, of chapter 49, of the session laws of 1854-5; and filed for record in the recorder's office of the county where such land is situated, shall henceforth be deemed notice to all persons interested, of what they contain from and after such filing. Deeds, &c., executed out of the state.

SEC. 2247. (2.) Section third, of chapter 49, of the session laws of 1854-5, is hereby repealed. This act shall take effect from and after its publication according to law. Repealed.

ARTICLE 5.

An Act providing for the Acknowledgment and Recording of Deeds in certain cases, and rendering valid the Acknowledgment of Deeds and Instruments in Writing.

Acknowledgments in certain cases made valid.

SECTION 2248. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all deeds and conveyances of lands, tenements and hereditaments lying and being within this state, heretofore executed, and which said deeds and conveyances have been acknowledged or proved, according to and in compliance with the laws and usages of the state, territory or country in which such deeds and conveyances were acknowledged and proved, or in which they shall be acknowledged or proven, are hereby declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though the same acknowledgments had been taken or proof of execution made within this state, and in pursuance to the acts and laws thereof; and such deeds so acknowledged or proved as afore-said, may be admitted to be recorded in the respective counties in which such lands, tenements or hereditaments do or may lie, anything in the acts and laws of this state to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: provided, that all deeds and conveyances of lands, tenements and hereditaments, situated within this state, which have been acknowledged or proved in any other state, territory or country, according to and in compliance with the laws and usages of such state, territory or country, and which deeds or conveyances have been recorded within this state, be and the same are hereby confirmed and declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes although the said deeds or conveyances, so acknowledged or proved and recorded, had, prior to being recorded, been acknowledged or proved within this state.

Acknowledgments taken in other states confirmed and made valid.

Previous acknowledgments duly recorded declared legal and valid.

SEC. 2249. (2.) That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages, and other instruments in writing taken and certified previous to the taking effect of this act, and which have been duly recorded in the proper counties in this state, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid in all courts of law or equity in this state or elsewhere; anything in the several different acts or laws of the territory or state of Iowa in regard to acknowledgments to the contrary notwithstanding.

Act of officer legalized.

SEC. 2250. (3.) That all deeds, mortgages or other instruments in writing, for the conveyance of lands, which have heretofore been made, and executed, and the officer taking the acknowledgment has not affixed his seal to the acknowledgment, such acknowledgment shall nevertheless, be good and valid in law and equity; anything in any law heretofore passed, to the contrary notwithstanding.

ARTICLE 6.

An Act entitled an Act prescribing the manner of Certifying Acknowledgments in certain cases.

[Passed Feb. 24, 1858, took effect March 3, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 22, page 27.]

Attorney may acknowledge deeds and other instruments.

SECTION 2251. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the execution of any deed, mortgage or other instrument in writing, executed by any attorney in fact, may be acknowledged by the attorney executing the same.

Officer indorse.

SEC. 2252. (2.) The court or person taking the acknowledgment must indorse upon such instrument a certificate setting forth the following particulars: 1. The title of the court or person before whom the acknowledgment was taken. 2. That the person making the acknowledgment, was personally known to at least one of the judges of the court or to the officer taking the acknowledgment, to be the identical person whose name is subscribed to the instrument as attorney for the grantor or grantors therein named, or that such identity was proved to him by at least one credible witness, to him personally known and therein named. 3. That such person acknowledged said instrument to be the act and deed of the grantor or grantors therein named, by him as his or their attorney thereunto appointed, voluntarily done and executed.

Title of court.

Identity proved.

Voluntary executions.

SEC. 2253. (3.) All acknowledgments by attorneys heretofore made and certified, substantially as herein prescribed shall be deemed sufficient.

Past acknowledgments legalized.

SEC. 2254. (4.) This act shall take effect from and after its publication in the Iowa Citizen and Iowa State Journal.

Take effect.

ARTICLE 7.

An Act to give greater Security to Purchasers and Mortgagees of Real Estate.

[Passed March 8, 1858; took effect July 4, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 33, page 42.]

SECTION 2255. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in every conveyance of real estate the joining of the wife with her husband shall be deemed sufficient to pass any and all right which the said wife had or has in said property in said conveyance, either in her own right independent of the husband, or as his wife, unless the contrary appears on the face of the conveyance.

Wife joining husband in conveyance relinquishes dower.

SEC. 2256. (2.) That any deed, mortgage or other instrument of writing, heretofore executed in pursuance of law, by husband and wife, for the purpose of conveying or incumbering the estate of the wife, or her right of dower in any lands, tenements or hereditaments situated in this state, shall be received in evidence in any of the courts of this state as conveying or incumbering the estate or interest of the wife, or as releasing her right of dower, as the case may be, although the magistrate taking the acknowledgment of such deed shall not have certified that the grantors or wife were personally known, or that he read or made known the contents of such deed, mortgage or other instrument of writing to such wife, or that she relinquished her right of dower, before or at the time she acknowledged the execution thereof.*

Defective acknowledgments made valid.

ARTICLE 8.

An Act to give Additional Security to Land Titles in this State.

[Passed March 8, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 34, page 43.]

SECTION 2257. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the several courts of chancery in this state shall be authorized and empowered to correct, amend and relieve against any errors, mistakes or defects accruing in the deed or other conveyance of any husband and wife, hereafter to be executed and intended to convey or encumber the lands or estate of the wife or her right of dower in the lands of her husband, in the same manner and to the same extent as the said courts are or shall be authorized or empowered to correct errors and mistakes or defects in the deeds or conveyances of any person.*

Courts authorized to correct defects in conveyance of husband and wife.

* As to relinquishment of dower of insane wife, see page 246.

ARTICLE 9.

An Act in relation to County Records.

[Passed March 22, 1858, took effect April 14, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 108, page 203.]

County records may be transcribed.

SECTION 2258. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the county judge of any organized county in this state, whenever such county judge, clerk of the district court and recorder of the proper county, or a majority of them, shall deem it necessary and expedient, shall have authority to have transcribed indexed and arranged any deed, probate or county record belonging to said county, or have made a complete index as contemplated by section numbered 1213 (2222 hereof) of the code of Iowa, of any such record.

New counties may have records transcribed.

SEC. 2259. (2.) Whenever any new county shall have been formed from other original and organized counties, or shall have been attached to another county, for judicial or other purposes, and shall afterwards be fully organized and detached, and when any records of the kind mentioned in section 1st of this act, are in the original county or counties, which properly belongs to such new county, the county judge of such new or attached county, shall, when the same is deemed best by the county judge, county clerk and recorder of such new county, or any two of them, have authority to have transcribed, indexed and arranged, such records, or any of them, for the use of such new county, and at the expense of such new county.

Compensation for transcribing records.

SEC. 2260. (3.) The county judge may employ any suitable person to perform said labor, the amount of the compensation therefor to be previously fixed by the person or persons whose duty it may be to audit claims against the county, and provided that such compensation not exceeding six cents for each one hundred words of the records proper, and twelve and one-half cents for each one hundred words of indexing—such compensation to be paid out of the treasury of the county for which the records are transcribed, and to be audited as other claims.

Records compared and certified to.

SEC. 2261. (4.) When any such records are so transcribed, the county judge of the county to which the original records belong, shall compare the copy so transcribed with the original, and upon the same being found to be correctly transcribed, such county judge shall make a written certificate in each volume or book of such transcribed records under his official seal, certifying that such transcribed records have been compared with the original by himself, and are true and correct copies of the original records.

Transcribed records received as evidence.

SEC. 2262. (5.) Such transcribed records, so certified, shall have the same force and effect in all respects, as the original records, and be admissible as evidence in all cases of equal validity with the original records.

Conflicting acts repealed.

SEC. 2263. (6.) All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed.

RIGHTS OF OCCUPYING CLAIMANTS.

[Code—Chapter 80.]

ARTICLE 1.

Provision concerning.

SEC. 2264. (1233.) Where an occupant of land has color of title thereto, and in good faith has made any valuable improvement thereon, and is afterwards in the proper action found not to be the rightful owner thereof, no execution shall issue to put the plaintiff in possession of the property, after the filing of the petition hereinafter mentioned, until the provisions of this chapter have been complied with.

SEC. 2265. (1234.) Such petition must set forth the grounds on which the defendant seeks relief, stating with other things as accurately as practicable the value of the improvements upon the lands as well as the value of the lands aside from the improvements. Petition.

SEC. 2266. (1235.) All issues joined thereon must be tried as in ordinary cases, and if the value of the land or of the improvements is in controversy such value must be ascertained on the trial. Issues.

SEC. 2267. (1236.) The plaintiff in the main action may thereupon pay the appraised value of the improvements and take the property. Election
(1237) and (1238) [repealed and substituted by article 2 hereof.]

SEC. 2268. (1239.) The purchaser in good faith at any judicial or tax sale made by the proper person or officer has color of title within the meaning of this chapter, whether such person or officer had sufficient authority to sell or not, unless such want of authority was known to such purchaser at the time of the sale. And the rights of such purchaser pass to his assignees or representatives. Who claimant.

SEC. 2269. (1240.) Any person has also such color of title who has occupied a tract of land by himself or by those under whom he claims for the term of five years, or who has thus occupied the land for a less term than five years if he or those under whom he claims have at any time during such occupancy [with the knowledge and consent, express or implied, of the real owner; made any valuable improvement thereon, or where he, or those under whom he claims, have, at any time during such occupancy]* paid the ordinary county taxes thereon for any one year and if two years afterwards elapsed without a repayment or proffer of repayment of the same by the owner of the land, provided such occupancy is continued up to the time at which the suit is brought by which the recovery of the land is obtained as above contemplated: [provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to give tenants color of title against their landlords.†]

SEC. 2270. (1241.) In the cases above provided for, if the occupying claimant has committed any injury to the land by cutting timber or otherwise the plaintiff may set the same off against any claim for improvements made by such claimant. Waste.

SEC. 2271. (1242.) It is a sufficient cause of challenge to any juror selected to appraise the value of the land or the improvements, that he is interested in a like question. Challenge of juror.

SEC. 2272. (1243.) The plaintiff is entitled to an execution to put himself in possession of his property in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, but not otherwise. Plaintiff restricted SEC. 2273. (1244.) The regulations contained in this chapter are intended to be retrospective. Retrospective.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend Chapter Eighty of the Code of Iowa.

SECTION 2274. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That in all cases where judgments have been or may hereafter be rendered in any of the courts of this state under the provisions of chapter eighty of the code of Iowa, in favor of an occupying Judgment paid within three years.

* The matter in brackets was enacted in chapter 36 of the eighth session, see special laws of eighth session, page 144.

† See last note.

claimant or claimants for the amount of his, her or their improvements, the owner of the title to the land may at any time within three years after the date of such judgment, pay the amount of the same, and he shall immediately upon the payment of the same, have the right to the possession of the land for which purpose a writ shall be issued by the clerk of the court where the judgment was rendered upon the application of the owner of the title aforesaid.

Judgment paid
by execution.

SEC. 2275. (2.) If the owner of the title does not within three years from the date of judgment pay the amount of the judgment and take possession of the land, then the owner of the improvements may cause to be issued an execution against the property of the owner of the title for the amount of his judgment, which execution shall be satisfied in the same manner as in any other case; and when the execution is satisfied all claims of the occupying claimant upon the land, and improvements shall cease, but said execution may be levied upon the lands or any other property not exempt from execution of the owner of the title.

Conflicting acts repealed.

SEC. 2276. (3.) So much of chapter eighty of the code of Iowa as comes in conflict with this act is hereby repealed.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act declaring valid, contracts concerning improvements on claims and deeds of the same, passed Dec. 3, 1836; Wis., 1st sess., No. 8, p. 23.

CHAPTER 98.

THE HOMESTEAD.

[Code—Chapter 81.]

SECTION 2277. (1245.) Where there is no special declaration of the statute to the contrary, the homestead of every head of a family is exempt from judicial sale. Homestead exempt.

SEC. 2278. (1246.) A widow or widower, though without children, shall be deemed the head of a family while continuing to occupy the house used as such at the time of the death of the husband or wife. Who head of a family.

SEC. 2279. (1247.) A conveyance by such owner is of no validity unless the husband and wife (if the owner is married) concur in and sign such conveyance. Conveyance of SEC. 2280. (1248.) But the homestead is liable for taxes accruing exclusively thereon, and the whole or a sufficient portion thereof may be sold to pay the same. It is also subject to mechanic's liens in the cases provided by law. Exceptions.

SEC. 2281. (1249.) It may also be sold on execution for debts contracted prior to the passage of this law or prior to the purchase of such homestead (except where otherwise declared,) or for those created by written contract executed by the persons having the power to convey and expressly stipulating that the homestead is liable therefor. But it shall not in such cases be sold except to supply the deficiency remaining after exhausting the other property of the debtor which is liable to execution. When sold on execution.

SEC. 2282. (1250.) The homestead must embrace the house used as a home by the owner thereof, and if he has two or more houses thus used by him at different times and places he may select which he will retain as his homestead. What constitutes it.

SEC. 2283. (1251.) It may contain one or more lots or tracts of land with the buildings thereon and other appurtenances, subject to the limitations contained in the next section, but must in no case embrace different lots and tracts unless they are contiguous, or unless they are habitually and in good faith used as part of the same homestead. Same.

SEC. 2284. (1252.) If within a town plat it must not exceed one half an acre in extent, and if not within a town plat it must not embrace in the aggregate more than forty acres. But if when thus limited in either case its value is less than five hundred dollars it may be enlarged till its value reaches that amount. Same.

SEC. 2285. (1253.) It must not embrace more than one dwelling house nor any other buildings except such as are properly appurtenant to the homestead as such, but a shop or other building situated thereon and really used and occupied by the owner in the prosecution of his own ordinary business and not exceeding three hundred dollars in value may be deemed appurtenant to such homestead. Same.

SEC. 2286. (1254.) The owner may select his own homestead and cause it to be marked out, platted, and recorded as provided in the next section. If he neglect this the privilege of doing the same devolves upon his wife. A failure in this respect by both does not leave the homestead liable, but the officer having an execution against the property of such a defendant may cause the homestead to be marked off, platted, and recorded, and may add the expenses thence arising to the amount embraced in his execution. How selected and defined

- Same. SEC. 2287. (1255.) The homestead shall be marked off by fixed and visible monuments, and in giving the description thereof the direction and distance of the starting point from some corner of the dwelling house shall be stated. The description and plat shall then be recorded by the recorder of deeds in a book to be called the "homestead book," which shall be provided with a proper index.
- May be changed. SEC. 2288. (1256.) The owner may from time to time at his pleasure change the limits of his homestead by changing the metes and bounds as well as the record of the plat and description, or he may change the homestead entirely; but such changes shall not prejudice conveyances or liens made or created previously thereto.
- Liability of new. SEC. 2289. (1257.) The new homestead, to the extent in value of the old, is exempt from execution in all cases where the old or former homestead would have been exempt, but in no other, nor in any greater degree.
- How disagreement settled. SEC. 2290. (1258.) Where a disagreement takes place between the owner and any person adversely interested as to whether any land or buildings are properly a part of the homestead, the sheriff shall at the request of either party summon nine disinterested persons having the qualification of jurors. The parties then, commencing with the owner of the homestead, shall in turn strike off one juror each and shall continue to do so until only three of the number remain. These shall then proceed as referees to examine and ascertain all the facts of the case and shall report the same with their opinion thereon to the next term of the district court.
- Same. SEC. 2291. (1259.) If either party fail to strike off jurors in the manner directed in the last section the sheriff may strike off such jurors.
- Same. SEC. 2292. (1260.) The court may also in its discretion refer the whole matter or any part of it back to the same referees, or to others to be selected in the same manner or as the parties otherwise agree, giving them directions as to the report that is required of them.
- Decision of court. SEC. 2293. (1261.) When the court is sufficiently possessed of the facts of the case it shall make its decision, and may, if expedient, direct the homestead to be marked off anew or a new plat and description to be made and recorded, and may take any farther step in the premises which in its discretion it may deem proper for attaining the objects of this statute. It shall also award costs as nearly as may be in accordance with the practice observed in other cases.
- Change of circumstances. SEC. 2294. (1262.) The extent or appurtenances of the homestead, as thus established, are liable to be called in question in like manner whenever a change in value or circumstances will justify such new proceeding.
- Death. SEC. 2295. (1263.) Upon the death of either husband or wife the survivor may continue to possess and occupy the whole homestead until it is otherwise disposed of according to law.
- Descent. SEC. 2296. (1264.) If there is no such survivor, the homestead descends to the issue of either husband or wife according to the general rules of descent unless otherwise directed by will, and is to be held by such issue exempt from any antecedent debts of their parents or their own.
- When to be sold. SEC. 2297. (1265.) If there is no such survivor or issue, the homestead is liable to be sold for the payment of any debts to which it might at that time be subjected if it had never been held as a homestead.
- Devise of. SEC. 2298. (1266.) Subject to the rights of the surviving husband or wife as declared by law, the homestead may be devised like other real estate of the testator.

PRIOR LAW. 1. An act to exempt a homestead from forced sale, passed Jan. 15, 1849; 2d sess., chap. 124, p. 152.

Bay*, Dec., 1859; case where homestead mortgaged to secure purchase money, and also another debt, 7 Iowa, 26.

CHAPTER 99.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

[Code—Chapter 82.]

SECTION 2299. (1267.) The executor of a tenant for life who demises real property so held and dies on or before the day on which the rent is payable, and a person entitled to rent dependent on the life of another, may recover the proportion of rent which had accrued at the time of the death. Rent apportioned.

SEC. 2300. (1268.) A tenant giving notice of his intention to quit the demised premises at a time named and afterwards holding over, and a tenant or his assignee willfully holding over the premises after the term and after notice to quit, shall pay to the person entitled thereto double the yearly value of the premises during the time he holds over. Holding over.

SEC. 2301. (1269.) The attornment of a tenant to a stranger is void unless made with the consent of the landlord, or pursuant to, or in consequence of, a judgment at law or in equity, or to a mortgagee after the mortgage has been forfeited. Attornment when void.

SEC. 2302. (1270.) A landlord shall have a lien for his rent upon all crops grown upon the demised premises, and upon any other personal property of the tenant which has been used on the premises during the term and not exempt from execution, for the period of one year after a year's rent, or the rent of a shorter period claimed, falls due; but such lien shall not in any case continue more than six months after the expiration of the term. Landlord's lien

CHAPTER 100.

THE ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

ARTICLE 1.

- Jurisdiction. SECTION 2304. (1272.) The county court has power to take probate of wills, to grant administration of the estates of all persons who at the time of their death were residents of the county, or who die non-residents of the state having property to be administered upon within the county, or where such property is afterwards brought into the county, and it has jurisdiction in all matters relating to the settlement of such estates.*
- Guardianship. SEC. 2305. (1273.) It may also appoint guardians for minors and others requiring guardians, residing within the county, in cases prescribed by law, and may exercise a general supervision over their property, persons, and interests.
- First county. SEC. 2306. (1274.) When a case is originally within the jurisdiction of the courts of either of two or more counties, that court which first takes cognizance thereof by the commencement of proceedings can retain the same throughout.
- May revoke. SEC. 2307. (1275.) Any process or authority emanating from the court in probate matters may for good cause be revoked and a new one issued.
- Bonds approved. SEC. 2308. (1276.) No bond relating to probate matters, required by law to be given and filed in the county office, shall be deemed sufficient until examined by the judge and his approval is indorsed thereon.

* This section is amended by article 2 hereof.

Wills.

SEC. 2309. (1277.) Any person of full age and sound mind may dispose, by will, of all his property except what is sufficient to pay his debts, or what is allowed as a homestead, or otherwise given by law as privileged property to his wife and family. Who may make.

SEC. 2310. (1278.) Property to be subsequently acquired may also be devised when the intention is clear and explicit.

SEC. 2311. (1279.) Personal property to the value of three hundred dollars may be bequeathed by a verbal will if witnessed by two competent witnesses. Verbal wills.

SEC. 2312. (1280.) A soldier in actual service, or a mariner at sea, may dispose of all his personal estate by a will so made and witnessed.

SEC. 2313. (1281.) All other wills, to be valid, must be in writing witnessed by two competent witnesses, and signed by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his express direction. In writing

SEC. 2314. (1282.) No subscribing witness to any will can derive any benefit therefrom unless there be two disinterested and competent witnesses to the same. Witnesses.

SEC. 2315. (1283.) But if, without a will, he would be entitled to any portion of the testator's estate, he may still receive such portion to the extent in value of the amount devised. Exception

SEC. 2316. (1284.) Posthumous children unprovided for by the father's will shall inherit the same interest as though no will had been made. Posthumous.

SEC. 2317. (1285.) The amount thus allowed to a posthumous child, as well as that of any other claim which it becomes necessary to satisfy in disregard of or in opposition to the contemplation of the will, must be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees. Children.

SEC. 2318. (1286.) The word "devisee" as used in this title shall when applicable be construed to embrace "legatees," and the word "devised" shall in like cases be understood as comprising the force of the word "bequeathed." Definitions.

SEC. 2319. (1287.) If a devisee die before the testator, his heirs shall inherit the amount so devised to him unless from the terms of the will a contrary intent is manifest. Devisee.

SEC. 2320. (1288.) Wills can be revoked, in whole or in part, only by being canceled or destroyed by the act or direction of the testator with the intention of so revoking them or by the execution of subsequent wills. Revocation.

SEC. 2321. (1289.) When done by cancellation the revocation requires to be witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will. Cancellation.

SEC. 2322. (1290.) Wills duly sealed up and indorsed may be deposited with the clerk of the court, whose duty it is to file and preserve the same until the death of the testator, unless they themselves sooner demand them. Deposit.

SEC. 2323. (1291.) Any person having the custody of a will shall, at the first stated term of the court after being informed of the death of the testator, bring the same into open court when it shall be publicly read. Of will.

SEC. 2324. (1292.) If he fail to do so after receiving reasonable notice he may be brought in by rule and attachment and committed to Same - jail until he complies, and shall be further liable to any person aggrieved for all the damages sustained by such failure.

- Probate      SEC. 2325. (1293.) After being thus produced and read, a day shall be fixed by the court for proving the same, which may be postponed from time to time at the discretion of the court.
- SEC. 2326. (1294.) Such notice thereof as the court directs shall be immediately given to all persons interested in the matter.
- Recorded.    SEC. 2327. (1295.) After being proved and allowed by the county court, the will together with the certificate hereinafter required shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose.
- Foreign wills.    SEC. 2328. (1296.) Wills proved and allowed in any other state or country shall be allowed and recorded in any county in this state in which it may be desired to use them, upon the production of a copy thereof to the proper county court duly authenticated by the attestation of the clerk of the court in which such will was proved, together with the certificate of the judge or presiding officer that such attestation is in due form of law. If there be no clerk such attestation may be made by the judge or presiding officer, and in all cases if the clerk or officer making such attestation have a seal of office such seal shall be annexed to the attestation.
- Probate conclusive    SEC. 2329. (1297.) Wills shall not be carried into effect unless thus allowed, and such allowance is conclusive as to the due execution of the will unless set aside by an original or appellate proceeding in the district court.
- Copy to executor    SEC. 2330. (1298.) When proved and recorded, the court shall direct the will or an authenticated copy thereof to be placed in the hands of the executor therein named or otherwise duly appointed.
- If no executors.    SEC. 2331. (1299.) If no executors are named therein or if the executors named fail to qualify and act, it shall be retained on file until an executor is appointed and qualified in the manner herein prescribed.
- Certificate.      SEC. 2332. (1300.) Wills, when proved and allowed, shall have a certificate thereof indorsed or annexed thereto signed by the clerk and attested by the seal of the court; and every will so certified, or the record thereof, or a transcript of such record duly authenticated, may be read in evidence in all courts within this state without farther proof.

Executors.

- Executor      SEC. 2333. (1301.) The word "executor," as used in this title, is intended to be applied to the persons who administer upon the estate of one deceased, whether appointed by the will or otherwise.
- Appointment.    SEC. 2334. (1302.) They may in each case consist of one or more, and if not designated by will they may be appointed by the proper county court as hereinafter directed.
- Vacancies.      SEC. 2335. (1303.) If a person appointed executor refuse to accept the trust, or if when duly notified of his appointment he neglects to appear within thirty days and give bond as hereinafter prescribed, a vacancy will be deemed to have occurred.
- Married women.    SEC. 2336. (1304.) A married woman may act as executor independent of her husband. Her marriage subsequent to the appointment does not render it invalid.
- Minors.          SEC. 2337. (1305.) If a minor under eighteen years of age is appointed an executor, there is a temporary vacancy as to him until he becomes of that age.
- Removal.        SEC. 2338. (1306.) The court for good cause may remove an executor.

SEC. 2339. (1307.) In case of vacancy the court may appoint a substitute, or it may allow the other executor (if there is another) to proceed by himself in administering the estate. Vacancy.

SEC. 2340. (1308.) The substitution of other executors shall occasion no delay in the administration of the estate. The periods herein-after mentioned within which acts are to be performed after the appointment of executors, shall all, unless otherwise declared, be reckoned from the issuing of the commission to the first general executor. Substitution.

SEC. 2341. (1309.) If administration of the estate of a deceased non-resident has been granted in accordance with the laws of the state or country where he resided at the time of his death, the person to whom it has been committed may upon his application and upon qualifying himself in the same manner as is required of other executors, be appointed an executor to administer upon the property of the deceased in this state unless another executor has previously been appointed in this state. Non-resident executors.

SEC. 2342. (1310.) The original letters testamentary or of administration or other authority conferring his power upon such executor, or an attested copy thereof together with a copy of the will if there be one attested as hereinbefore directed, must be filed in the office of the judge of the proper county court before such appointment can be made. Proceedings.

SEC. 2343. (1311.) In other cases where an executor is not appointed by will administration shall be granted : Who entitled.

1. To the wife of the deceased ;
2. To his next of kin ;
3. To his creditors ;
4. To any other person whom the court may select.

SEC. 2344. (1312.) The court may unite individuals belonging to the same or different classes as executors whenever it deems such a course expedient. Classes united.

SEC. 2345. (1313.) To each of the above classes in succession a period of twenty days (commencing with the burial of the deceased) is allowed, within which to apply for administration upon the estate.

SEC. 2346. (1314.) The court must appoint no person an executor who is manifestly unsuitable for the discharge of the trust, nor who is a minor except as herein otherwise provided. Restriction.

SEC. 2347. (1315.) If the persons of each class as above ordered respectively fail to apply for such administration within the twenty days above allotted to his class, without sufficient cause being shown for such failure ; or if for any reason all those who apply are improper persons to receive the appointment, the right of administration descends to the next following class. Failing to apply.

SEC. 2348. (1316.) Every executor, except as is herein otherwise declared, before entering upon the discharge of his duty must give bond in such penalty as the judge of the court approves, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed on him by law according to the best of his abilities. Bond.

SEC. 2349. (1317.) He must also take and subscribe an oath the same in substance as the condition of the bond aforesaid, which oath and bond must be filed with the judge of the court. Oath.

SEC. 2350. (1318.) New bonds may be required by the court to be given, and in a new penalty and with new sureties, whenever the same is deemed expedient. New bonds.

SEC. 2351. (1319.) After the filing of the bond and oath aforesaid, the court shall issue a commission under its seal giving the executor the powers authorized by law. Commission.

- Special executor. SEC. 2352. (1320.) When for any cause there is a necessary delay in granting such commission, the court in its discretion may appoint one or more special executors to collect and preserve the property of the deceased, who shall qualify as above required.
- Appeals. SEC. 2353. (1321.) No appeal from the decision appointing such special executors shall prevent their proceeding in the discharge of their duties.
- Inventory. SEC. 2354. (1322.) Such special executors shall make and file an inventory of the property of the deceased in the same manner in all respects as is required of general executors, and shall preserve said property from injury.
- Duties, &c. SEC. 2355. (1323.) For this purpose they may do all needful acts under the direction of the court, but shall take no steps in relation to the allowance of claims against the estate.
- When powers cease. SEC. 2356. (1324.) Upon the granting of full administration the powers of the special executors shall cease and all the business shall be transferred to the general executor.
- Limitation. SEC. 2357. (1325.) Administration shall not be originally granted after the lapse of five years from the death of the decedent, or from the time his death was known in case he died out of the state.
- Provisions may be modified by will. SEC. 2358. (1326.) The preceding provisions are in some respects subject to be changed and modified by the will of a testator. Thus, when the interests of creditors will not be thereby prejudiced, he may prescribe the entire manner in which his estate shall be administered upon, he may exempt the executor from the necessity of giving bond, may constitute him in substance his attorney in fact for the settlement of the estate, may direct that no material and immediate change be made in conducting his business affairs in consequence of his death, and may prescribe the manner in which his affairs shall be conducted until his estate is finally settled, or until his minor children become of age.
- Authority of court. SEC. 2359. (1327.) The county court in its discretion may also authorize the executor to continue the prosecution of any business in which the deceased was engaged at the time of his death, in order to wind up his affairs with greater advantage to the interest of the estate, but such permission does not exempt the executor from the necessity of returning a full inventory and appraisalment of the effects of the deceased as accurately as practicable in the manner prescribed in other cases, and as may be farther directed by the court.

- Inventory. SEC. 2360. (1328.) Within thirty days after their appointment, unless for good cause an extension of that time is specially given by the court, the executors shall make and return into the court an inventory of all the personal effects of the deceased of every description which have come within their knowledge, embracing all book accounts which do not appear by the books or papers of the deceased to have been settled.
- What not assets. SEC. 2361. (1329.) When the deceased leaves a widow, no property which in her hands as the head of a family would be exempt from execution shall be deemed assets or administered upon as such, but the same, after being inventoried without appraisalment, shall remain with her and the family until disposed of according to law.
- Life Insurance. SEC. 2362. (1330.) The avails of any life insurance are not subject to the debts of the deceased except by special contract or arrangement, but shall in other respects be disposed of like other property left by the deceased.

SEC. 2363. (1331.) All personal property (except as aforesaid) found in the county must be appraised by appraisers, who shall be appointed by the court and shall each receive one dollar per day for his services. Appraisement.

SEC. 2364. (1332.) If any portion of such property be in another county, the same appraisers may serve or others may be appointed by the court or by a disinterested justice of the peace of such county, whose duties and compensation shall be as aforesaid. In another county.

SEC. 2365. (1333.) A supplemental inventory must be made out in like manner whenever the existence of other property is discovered. Supplemental inventory.

SEC. 2366. (1334.) The court may summon before it any person suspected of having taken wrongful possession of any of the effects of the deceased, or of having had such effects under his control, and may subject him to an examination under oath, and if upon such examination it appear to the court that such suspected person has the wrongful possession of any property or effects of the deceased, the court shall order such property or effects to be delivered to the executor of the estate. Discovery of assets.

SEC. 2367. (1335.) If he disobey such order or summons, or refuse to answer the interrogatories propounded, he may be committed to the jail of the county until a compliance be yielded.

SEC. 2368. (1336.) The executor, with the approbation of the court, may compound with any debtor of the estate who may be thought unable to pay his whole debt, or in order to avoid doubtful litigation. May compound.

SEC. 2369. (1337.) The interest of a deceased mortgagee shall be included among his personal assets, and upon its being paid off satisfaction shall be entered by the executor. Mortgage assets.

The Disposition to be made of the Property of the Deceased.

SEC. 2370. (1338.) Upon the death of a sole surviving parent leaving a minor child, the court may make such order and allowance for its temporary support as may be suitable and proper. Minor orphans.

SEC. 2371. (1339.) When a person by his will makes such a disposition of his effects as to prejudice the rights of creditors, the will may still be sustained by the giving of security to the satisfaction of the court for the payment of the claims of the creditors to the extent of the value of the property thus devised. Exception to will.

SEC. 2372. (1340.) When no different direction is given in the will, debts due the estate shall as far as practicable be collected and the debts owing by the estate paid off therewith, to the extent of the means thus obtained. First fund.

SEC. 2373. (1341.) The court, on the application of the executor, shall from time to time direct the sale of such portions of the personal effects as are of a perishable nature or which from any cause would otherwise be likely to depreciate in value, and also such portions as are necessary to pay off the debts and charges upon the estate, in addition to the means above provided. Personal property sold.

SEC. 2374. (1342.) If the personal effects are found inadequate to satisfy such charges, a sufficient portion of the real estate may be ordered to be sold for that purpose. Real estate.

SEC. 2375. (1343.) Application for that purpose can be made only after a full statement of all the claims against the estate, and after rendering a full account of the disposition made of the personal estate. Application.

- Notice. SEC. 2376. (1344.) Before any order to that effect can be made, such notice as the court may prescribe must be given to all the persons interested in such real estate.
- Real estate divided. SEC. 2377. (1345.) If convenient, the real estate must be divided into parcels and each appraised in the manner above provided for personal property, and the appraisal filed in like manner.
- Exception. SEC. 2378. (1346.) When a part can not be sold without material prejudice to the general interests of the estate, the court may order the sale of the whole, or of such part as can be sold advantageously.
- Private sale. SEC. 2379. (1347.) Property may be permitted to be sold at private sale whenever the court is satisfied that the interests of the estate will be thereby promoted.
- Public sale. SEC. 2380. (1348.) In other cases sales must be made at public auction after giving the same notice as would have been necessary for the sale of such property on execution.
- Direction. SEC. 2381. (1349.) No property can be sold at private sale for less than the appraisal price without the express approbation of the judge of the county court.
- Credit. SEC. 2382. (1350.) Property may be ordered to be sold on a partial credit of not more than twelve months.
- Sale prevented. SEC. 2383. (1351.) Any heir or other person interested in the estate, who may wish to prevent a sale of the whole or any part thereof, may accomplish that purpose by giving bond to the satisfaction of the court, conditioned that he will pay all demands against the estate to the extent of the value of the property thus kept from sale as soon as called upon by the county court for that purpose.
- Same. SEC. 2384. (1352.) If the conditions of such bond are broken the property is still liable for those debts unless it has passed into the hands of a bona fide purchaser, and the executors may take possession thereof and sell the same under the direction of the court, or they may prosecute the bond, or both at once if the court so direct.
- SEC. 2385. (1353.) If the conditions of the bond are complied with the property passes by devise, distribution, or descent in the same manner as though there had been no debts against the estate.
- Conveyances. SEC. 2386. (1354.) Where real estate is sold, conveyances thereof executed by the executors pass to the purchaser all the interest of the decedent therein. But such conveyance shall not be valid until approved by the judge of the county court.
- Presumption. SEC. 2387. (1355.) Such approval shall be entered of record. A brief memorandum thereof must be indorsed upon the deed with the signature and seal affixed thereto, and the deed so indorsed shall be presumptive evidence of the validity of the sale and of the regularity of all the proceedings connected therewith.
- Limitation. SEC. 2388. (1356.) No action for the recovery of any real estate sold by an executor can be sustained by any person claiming under the deceased, unless brought within five years next after the sale.

Filing Claims against an Estate.

- Executor's notice. SEC. 2389. (1357.) Within thirty days after the receipt of their commission, the executors shall publish a notice of their appointment in such manner as the court directs, either by posting up or by publication in a newspaper.
- SEC. 2390. (1358.) This notice need be given only by the executors first appointed and qualified.

SEC. 2391. (1359.) Claims against the estate must be clearly stated, sworn to, and filed. Ten days notice of the hearing, indorsed on a copy of the claim, must be served upon one of the executors in the manner required for commencing actions in the district court. Claims.

SEC. 2392. (1360.) The same rules of evidence, including those in relation to the calling and examination of the party as a witness, shall be observed as in cases pending in the district court. Evidence.

SEC. 2393. (1361.) The executor may, with the approbation of the court, admit claims with the correctness of which he is satisfied, but not until the claimant has sworn to their correctness. The like rule shall be observed in relation to payments or set-offs to any demands due the estate. Executor may allow.

SEC. 2394. (1362.) All claims not established in the district court must be submitted to and passed upon by the county court; and no claim except such as the executors may admit can be allowed, unless sustained by such testimony as would be sufficient on a trial in the district court. Proof of claims.

SEC. 2395. (1363.) Claims for a mere money demand where no lien is to be enforced shall not, except with the approbation of the county court, be prosecuted originally in the district court. Where.

SEC. 2396. (1364.) Demands though not yet due may be presented, proved, and allowed as other claims.

SEC. 2397. (1365.) Contingent liabilities must also be presented and proved, or the court or executor shall be under no obligation to make any provision for satisfying them when they may afterwards accrue. Contingent.

SEC. 2398. (1366.) Claims against an estate and set-offs thereto may in the discretion of the court be proved up before one or more referees to be agreed upon between the parties or approved by the court, and their decision being entered upon the record becomes a decision of the court. Referees.

SEC. 2399. (1367.) Unsatisfied judgments rendered prior to the death of the decedent shall be entered in the catalogue of claims, and so much thereof allowed as the plaintiff will show by his own oath or otherwise is still unpaid. But they possess no preference over other claims except the liens allowed by law in their favor. Unsatisfied judgments.

SEC. 2400. (1368.) Suits pending at the time of such death may be prosecuted to judgment and then placed in the catalogue of established claims. But no lien is created by such judgment. Suits pending.

SEC. 2401. (1369.) If either of the executors is interested in favor of a claim against the estate he shall not serve in any matter connected with that case. And if all the executors are thus interested the court shall appoint some competent person a temporary executor in relation to such claims. Executor interested.

The Payment of Claims against the Estate.

SEC. 2402. (1370.) As soon as the executors are possessed of sufficient means over and above the expenses of administration they shall pay off the charges of the last sickness and funeral of the deceased. Referred claims.

SEC. 2403. (1371.) They shall in the next place pay any allowance which may be made by the court for the maintenance of the widow and minor children, previous to the time when a sufficient amount for such maintenance can be paid to them out of their shares of the estate, which amount so advanced shall afterwards be deducted from their respective portions. Allowance to widow and children.

Order of payment.	SEC. 2404. (1372.) Other demands against the estate are payable in the following order: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States;</li> <li>2. Public rates and taxes;</li> <li>3. Claims filed within six months after the notice given by the executors of their appointment;</li> <li>4. All other debts;</li> <li>5. Legacies.</li> </ol>
Limitation.	SEC. 2405. (1373.) All claims of the fourth of the above classes not filed and proved within one year and a half of the giving of the notice aforesaid are forever barred, unless the claim is pending in the district or supreme court or unless peculiar circumstances entitle the claimant to equitable relief.
When to pay.	SEC. 2406. (1374.) After the expiration of the time for filing the claims of the third of the above classes, the executors shall proceed to pay of all claims against the estate in the order above stated as fast as the means of so doing come into their hands.
Same.	SEC. 2407. (1375.) Claims of the fourth class may be paid off at any time after the expiration of six months aforesaid without any regard to those claims not filed at the time of such payment. And even legacies may be paid off at any time after the expiration of one year from the date of the notice of appointment of the executor: provided, sufficient be left on hand to satisfy all the claims filed at the date of such payment, the claims of the fourth class as well as the legacies being, within the limits above fixed, preferred to the unfiled claims whether the estate be solvent or not.
Same.	SEC. 2408. (1376.) No payment can be made to a claimant in any one class until those of a previous class are satisfied.
Not due.	SEC. 2409. (1377.) Demands not yet due shall be paid off if the holders will consent to such a rebate of interest as the court thinks reasonable. Otherwise the money to which such claimant would be entitled shall be safely invested until his debt becomes due.
Order of payment.	SEC. 2410. (1378.) Within their respective classes, debts shall be paid off in the order in which they have been proved up subject to the provisions of the following section; but the court shall permit them to be proved up in the order in which they are filed.
Dividend.	SEC. 2411. (1379.) If there are not likely to be means sufficient in all to pay off the whole of the debts of any one class, the court shall from time to time strike a dividend of the means on hand among all the creditors of that class, and the executors shall pay the several amounts accordingly.
Incumbrances.	SEC. 2412. (1380.) The executors may with the approbation of the court use funds belonging to the estate to pay off incumbrances upon lands owned by the deceased, or to purchase lands claimed or contracted for by him prior to his death.
Specific legacies.	SEC. 2413. (1381.) Specific legacies of property may be turned over to the rightful claimant at any time upon his giving unquestionable real estate security to restore the property or refund the amount at which it was appraised if wanted for the payment of debts.
Those payable in money.	SEC. 2414. (1382.) Legacies payable in money may be paid on like terms whenever the executors possess the means which can be thus used without prejudice to the interest of any claim already filed.
Paying them.	SEC. 2415. (1383.) After the expiration of the one year and a half allowed for filing claims as above provided, such legacies may be paid off without requiring the security provided for in the preceding two sections, if the means are still retained to pay off all the claims proved or pending as hereinbefore contemplated.

SEC. 2416. (1384.) If the testator has not prescribed the order in which legacies are to be paid off, and if no security is given as above provided in order to expedite their time of payment, they may be paid off in the order in which they were contained in the will, where the estate is sufficient to pay all. Order.

SEC. 2417. (1385.) Or, when not incompatible with the manifest intention of the testator, the court may direct all payments of money to legatees to be made ratably. Same.

SEC. 2418. (1386.) Such must be the mode pursued when there is danger that the estate will prove insufficient to pay off all the legacies, unless security be given to refund as above provided. Same.

SEC. 2419. (1387.) If the executors fail to make payment of any kind in accordance with the order of the court, they and their sureties may be summoned to appear before the court at a time to be specified in the summons not less than ten days from the time of service, to show cause why they have so failed as aforesaid. Executor failing.

SEC. 2420. (1388.) If no sufficient cause be shown the court shall render judgment on the bond of the executors for the amount of money directed to be paid together with costs, and shall issue execution accordingly. Judgment.

SEC. 2421. (1389.) When any of the obligors in the bond is not served with such summons, a similar course may be pursued to that authorized in parallel cases in the district court and with like consequences. Parties not served.

The Distribution of Personal Property.

SEC. 2422. (1390.) The personal property of the deceased not necessary for the payment of debts nor otherwise disposed of as hereinbefore provided, shall be distributed to the same persons and in the same proportions as though it were real estate. Distribution.

SEC. 2423. (1391.) The distributive shares shall be paid over as fast as the executor can properly do so. Payment.

SEC. 2424. (1392.) The property itself shall be distributed in kind whenever that can be done satisfactorily and equitably. In other cases the court may direct the property to be sold and the proceeds to be distributed. In kind.

SEC. 2425. (1393.) When the circumstances of the family require it the court, in addition to what is hereinbefore set apart for their use, may direct a partial distribution of the money or effects on hand at any time after filing the inventory, upon the execution of security like that required of legatees in like cases. Partial distribution.

The Distribution of Real Property.

SEC. (1394.) [Repealed and substituted by section 2477.]

SEC. 2426. (1395.) Such share shall be so set off as to include the ordinary dwelling house and the land given by law to the husband as a homestead, or so much thereof as will be equal to the share allotted to her by the last section unless she prefers a different arrangement. But no different arrangement shall be permitted where it would have the effect of prejudicing the rights of creditors. Includes homesteads.

SEC. 2427. (1396.) The share thus allotted to her may be set off by the mutual consent of all the parties interested when such consent can be obtained, or it may be set off by referees appointed by the court. How set off.

- Application. SEC. 2428. (1397.) The application for such admeasurement by referees may be made at any time after twenty days and within ten years after the death of the husband, and must specify the particular tracts of land in which she claims her dower, and ask the appointment of referees.
- Notice. SEC. 2429. (1398.) The court shall fix the time for making the appointment and direct such notice thereof to be given to all the parties interested therein as it deems proper.
- Action of referees. SEC. 2430. (1399.) The referees may employ a surveyor if necessary; and they must cause the widow's share to be marked off by metes and bounds, and make a full report of their proceedings to the court as early as practicable.
- Same. SEC. 2431. (1400.) The court may require a report by such a time as it deems reasonable, and if the referees fail to obey this or any other order of the court it may discharge them and appoint others in their stead, and may impose on them the payment of all costs previously made unless they show good cause to the contrary.
- Confirmation. SEC. 2432. (1401.) The court may confirm the report of the referees, or it may set it aside and refer the matter to the same or other referees, at its discretion.
- Same. SEC. 2433. (1402.) Such confirmation after the lapse of thirty days, unless appealed from according to law, shall be binding and conclusive as to the admeasurement, and she may bring suit to obtain possession of the land thus set apart for her.
- Her right contested. SEC. 2434. (1403.) Nothing in the last section shall prevent any person interested from controverting the general rights of the widow to the dower thus admeasured.
(1404.) (1405.) (1406.) [Repealed and substituted by section 2478.]
- Dower and will. SEC. 2435. (1407.) The widow's dower can not be affected by any will of her husband if she objects thereto and relinquishes all rights conferred upon her by the will.
- Descent. SEC. 2436. (1408.) Subject to the rights and charges hereinbefore contemplated, the remaining estate of which the decedent died seized shall, in the absence of other arrangements by will, descend in equal shares to his children.
- Representation. SEC. 2437. (1409) If any one of his children be dead the heirs of such child shall inherit his share in accordance with the rules herein prescribed, in the same manner as though such child had outlived his parent.
Sections (1410) and (1411) [repealed and substituted by article 7 hereof.]
- Female line. SEC. 2438. (1412.) If heirs are not found in the male line the portion thus uninherited shall go to the mother of the intestate and to her heirs, following the same rules as above prescribed.
- When wife to inherit. SEC. 2439. (1413.) If heirs are not thus found the portion uninherited shall go to the wife of the intestate or to her heirs if dead, according to like rules; and if he has had more than one wife who either died or survived in lawful wedlock it shall be equally divided between the one who is living and the heirs of those who are dead, or between the heirs of all if all are dead, such heirs taking by right of representation.
- Escheat. SEC. 2440. (1414.) If, still, there be property remaining uninherited it shall escheat to the state.
- Illegitimate children. SEC. 2441. (1415.) Illegitimate children inherit from the mother, and the mother from the children.

SEC. 2442. (1416.) They also inherit from the father whenever they have been recognized by him as his children, but such recognition must have been general and notorious or else in writing. Same.

SEC. 2443. (1417.) Under such circumstances, if the recognition of relationship has been mutual the father may inherit from his illegitimate child. Same

SEC. 2444. (1418.) But in thus inheriting from an illegitimate child the rule above established must be inverted so that the mother and her heirs take preference of the father and his heirs, the father having the same right of inheritance in regard to an illegitimate child that the mother has in regard to one that is legitimate. Rule in such cases.

SEC. 2445. (1419.) Property given by an intestate, by way of advancement to an heir shall be considered part of the estate so far as regards the division and distribution thereof, and shall be taken by such heir towards his share of the estate at what it would now be worth if in the condition in which it was so given to him. Advancement.

SEC. 2446. (1420.) But if such advancement exceeds the amount to which he would be entitled he can not be required to refund any portion thereof. Same.

[Section (1421) repealed and substituted by section 2479.]

SEC. 2447. (1422.) Within one year from the issuing of the first commission to the executor, and sooner if required by the court, he shall render his account to the court showing the then condition of the estate, its debts and its effects. And from time to time as may be convenient and as may be required by the court he shall render farther accounts until the estate is finally settled. Time.

SEC. 2448. (1423.) Such accounts shall embrace all matters directed by the court and pertinent to the subject. To embrace.

SEC. 2449. (1424.) The executor may be examined under oath by the court upon any matters relating to his accounts when the vouchers and proofs in relation thereto are not sufficiently full and satisfactory. Executor examined.

SEC. 2450. (1425.) He must account for all the property inventoried, at the price at which it was appraised, as well as for all other property which has come into his hands belonging to the estate. Accounting

SEC. 2451. (1426.) The appraisement is only presumptive evidence of the value of an article and shall be so regarded either for or against the executor. Appraisement presumptive.

SEC. 2452. (1427.) He shall derive no profit from the sale of property for a price higher than the appraisement, nor is he chargeable with any loss occurring without any fault of his own. Profit and loss.

SEC. 2453. (1428.) Any executor failing to account upon being required to do so by the court, may be removed and shall be liable on his bond for all the damage caused by such failure. Failure

SEC. 2454. (1429.) Executors shall be allowed the following commissions upon the personal estate sold or distributed by them, and for the proceeds of real estate sold for the payment of debts, which shall be received in full compensation for all their ordinary services: Compensation.

For the first one thousand dollars at the rate of five per cent.;

For the overplus between one and five thousand dollars, at the rate of two and a half per cent.;

For the amount over five thousand dollars, at the rate of 1 per cent.

SEC. 2455. (1430.) Such farther allowances as are just and reasonable may be made by the court for actual, necessary, and extraordinary expenses or services. Farther allowance.

SEC. 2456. (1431.) Any person interested in the estate may attend Accounts con-upon the settlement of the accounts of the executor and contest the same. Accounts settled in the absence of any person adversely interested and without notice to him may be opened within three months on his application.

Mistakes.

SEC. 2457. (1432.) Mistakes in settlements may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge of the executor, and even after that time on showing such grounds for relief in equity as will justify the interference of the district court.

Execution against executor.

SEC. 2458. (1433.) If judgment is rendered against an executor for costs in any suit prosecuted or defended by him in that capacity, execution shall be awarded against him as for his own debt if it appear to the court that such suit was prosecuted or defended without reasonable cause. In other cases the execution shall be awarded against him in his representative capacity only.

Discharge.

SEC. 2459. (1434.) Upon final settlement by the executor an order shall be entered discharging him from farther duties and responsibilities.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

Specific performance.

SEC. 2460. (1435.) When a person, under such an obligation to convey real estate as might have been enforced against him if living, dies before making such conveyance, the district court may enforce a specific performance of such contract by the executor and require him to execute the conveyance accordingly.

Who made party.

SEC. 2461. (1436.) It is not necessary to make any other than the executor party defendant to such proceedings in the first instance, but the court in its discretion may direct other persons interested to be made parties and may cause them to be notified thereof in such manner as they may deem expedient. Heirs and devisees may on their own motion at any time be made defendants.

Notice.

SEC. 2462. (1437.) In an action against several executors they are considered one person, and judgment may be taken and execution issued against all as such although only part were duly served with notice.

Executor of executor.

SEC. 2463. (1438.) An executor has no authority to act in a matter wherein his principal was merely an executor or trustee.

Executors in their own wrong.

SEC. 2464. (1439.) Any person who, without being regularly appointed an executor, intermeddles with the property of a deceased person is responsible to the regular executor, when appointed, for the value of all property taken or received by him and for all damages caused by his acts to the estate of the deceased, but his liability extends no farther.

Action v. Heir, &c.

SEC. 2465. (1440.) In an action against the heirs and devisees, where the judgment is to be against them in proportion to the respective amounts received by them from the estate, costs awarded against them shall be in like proportion.

Tender.

SEC. 2466. (1441.) In such cases any one may tender the amount due from him to the plaintiff, which shall have the same effect so far as he is concerned as though he was the sole defendant.

Receipts by one executor.

SEC. 2467. (1442.) One of several executors may receive and receipt for money. Such receipt shall be given by him in his own name only, and he must individually account for all the money thus received and receipted for by himself; and this shall not charge his co-executor except so far as it can be shown to have come into his hands.

Escheats.

SEC. 2468. (1443.) When the judge of any county court has reason to believe that any property within his county should by law escheat to the state, he must forthwith inform the superintendent of public instruction thereof, and must also appoint some suitable person executor to take charge of such property unless an executor has already been appointed for that purpose in some county in the state.

SEC. 2469. (1444.) The executor must thereupon give such notice <sup>Notice.</sup> of the death of the deceased and the amount and kind of property left by him within this state, as in the opinion of the judge of the county court will be best calculated to notify those interested, as far as practicable and as the circumstances of the case require.

SEC. 2470. (1445.) The property may be sold or the money appro- <sup>Sale.</sup> priated, as soon thereafter as the superintendent of public instruction directs, and the proceeds thereof treated like those arising from the sale of school lands.

SEC. 2471. (1446.) The money or any portion thereof shall be paid <sup>Re-payment.</sup> over to any one who shows himself entitled thereto within ten years after the sale of the property or the appropriation of the money as an escheat, but not afterwards.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act to amend Section 1272, Chapter 83, of the Code of Iowa.

[Passed Jan. 24, 1853, took effect July 4, 1853; Laws of Fourth General Assembly, Chapter 91, page 148.]

SECTION 2472. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That where administration is duly granted by the county court upon the estate of any deceased per-son, in any county of this state, the said county court shall have the same power and authority over any lands and tenements of the decedent, situate in any other county in this state, which said county court may by law exercise over the lands and tenements of such decedent in the county where said administration is granted. <sup>Lands of decedents.</sup>

SEC. 2473. (2.) An alien non-resident may acquire property by devise by becoming a citizen.

SEC. 2493. (6.) If any person being a citizen of this state at the time of his decease shall have made a will bequeathing his property to a person who at the time of making such bequest was an alien non-resident, but who subsequently to the making of such bequest, became a resident, such alien shall be capable in law of becoming a devisee of such property, as well as if he was a resident of this state at the time of making such devise.

ARTICLE 7.

An Act to repeal sections 1410 and 1411 of the Code prescribing the descent of property.

[Passed March 15, 1858, took effect July 4, 1858; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 63, page 96.]

Provisions of code modified.

SECTION 2494. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That sections 1410 and 1411 of the code are hereby repealed, and that the descent of property as prescribed by these provisions of the code be modified as follows:

Estate to be divided between parents and wife.

SEC. 2495. (2.) If the intestate leave no issue, the one-half of his estate shall go to his parents and the other half to his wife; if he leave no wife, the portion which would have gone to her shall go to his parents.

Surviving parent takes the share of both.

SEC. 2496. (3.) If one of his parents be dead, the portion which would have gone to such deceased parent, shall go to the surviving parent, including the portion which would have belonged to the intestate's wife had she been living.

SEC. 2497. (4.) If both parents be dead, the portion which would have fallen to their share or to either of them by the above rules, shall be disposed of in the same manner as if they or either of them had outlived the intestate and died in the possession and ownership of the portion thus falling to their share or to either of them, and so on, through ascending ancestors and their issue.

One-half of the estate to go to heirs of parents.

SEC. 2498. (5.) If the mother be the surviving parent as contemplated in section three of this act, she shall take only a life estate in the intestate's property, and after her death it shall go to the children of her body, if there be any, had by her deceased husband, he being the father of the intestate. If there be no such children, nor issue of such children in the descending line, then the intestate's property shall be divided between the nearest heirs of the father and mother of the intestate, share and share alike, and after such distribution is made the same rules shall be applied to any further distribution thereof, as prescribed in this act.

Mother only to have a life estate.

Property to be divided equally among nearest relations.

CHAPTER 101.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

[Code—Chapter 84.]

SECTION 2499. (1447.) The personal property of the wife does not vest at once in the husband, but if left under his control it will, in favor of third persons acting in good faith and without knowledge of the real ownership, be presumed to have been transferred to him, except as hereinafter provided. Her personal property.

SEC. 2500. (1448.) If the wife has such property which she leaves under his control she must, in order to avoid the entire surrender of her She a creditor of his estate.

interest therein, file for record with the recorder of deeds a notice, stating the amount in value of such property and that she has a claim therefor out of the estate of her husband, and if during her life time he dies or becomes insolvent she shall be deemed a preferred creditor of the estate to that amount without interest and may hold and control the same in her own right; but this preference shall not prejudice the interests of those creditors who became such after the property was thus placed under the husband's control and before the filing of the notice aforesaid, unless they had knowledge of her right in that respect.

- Proof. SEC. 2501. (1449.) The provisions of the preceding section shall not prevent the necessity of proof on the part of the wife of the actual amount of property thus in good faith placed by her under the control of her husband, but the notice aforesaid will after the lapse of five years from the time of the recording thereof be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated in this respect.
- Specific articles. SEC. 2502. (1450.) Specific articles of personal property may be owned by the wife exempt from the husband's debts, although left under his control, if during his lifetime and prior to its being disposed of by him or levied upon for his debts notice of her ownership is filed for record with the recorder of deeds of the county. But such notice shall not exempt her property from liability for his debts contracted after it was left under his control and before the filing of the notice aforesaid except as against those having knowledge of her rights.
- Notice.
- Record. SEC. 2503. (1451.) The notices aforesaid must be recorded in the book kept for recording mortgages and conveyances of personal property and indexed in like manner.
- Stock, &c. SEC. 2504. (1452.) In the case of bank stock, written securities, things in action, or other property which does not ordinarily pass by mere delivery or by oral contract without an indorsement, assignment, or other written evidence of such transfer, knowledge of the ownership of the wife will be presumed without the recording required by the preceding two sections, unless such property has been conveyed to the wife by the husband.
- Debts. SEC. 2505. (1453.) Except as herein otherwise declared, the husband is not liable for the separate debts of the wife, nor is the property of the wife nor the rent nor income thereof liable for the debts of the husband. But the separate debts of the wife as herein contemplated are only those growing out of the contracts mentioned in the next section.
- Her contracts. SEC. 2506. (1454.) Contracts made by a wife in relation to her separate property or those purporting to bind herself only, do not bind the husband.
- Expenses common. SEC. 2507. (1455.) The expenses of the family, the education of the children, and such other obligations as come within the equity of this provision, are chargeable upon the property of both husband and wife or of either of them, and in relation thereto they may be sued jointly or the husband separately.
- Abandoned. SEC. 2508. (1456.) Married women abandoned by their husbands may obtain authority from the district court of the county in which they reside to act and to transact business as though unmarried.
- Petition. SEC. 2509. (1457.) The petition for that purpose must be sworn to, filed, and served as in ordinary civil actions, and issues may be joined and tried in like manner.
- Decree. SEC. 2510. (1458.) If the fact of abandonment be established either by the default of the defendant or by proof, that fact shall be entered of record and the court shall make a decree giving the power sought.

SEC. 2511. (1459.) The court may also under such circumstances Powers given. authorize the wife to sue or defend in any or all cases in place of her husband, to sell or otherwise dispose of so much of the husband's property as is necessary for the maintenance of the family, and to collect debts due the husband. Deeds made and receipts and discharges executed and delivered by the wife in accordance with the power so given are valid.

SEC. 2512. (1460.) The court may in its discretion modify or revoke Decree revoked. its orders and decrees herein authorized.

SEC. 2513. (1461.) The husband has the same rights in relation to Same to husband the wife and her property as is above given to the wife, and he may have the same proceedings in like cases.

SEC. 2514. (1462.) The husband can not remove the wife nor their Homestead. children from their homestead without the consent of the wife, and if he abandons her she is entitled to the custody of their minor children, unless the district court upon application for that purpose shall for good cause otherwise direct.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act concerning the rights of married women, passed Jan. 2, took effect Feb. 2, 1846; I. T., 8th sess., chap. 5, p. 4.

DECISIONS. A married woman sued on her promissory note, answered coverture at time of making same and now, and the answer was held good defense, 5 Iowa, 427; a wife can not be sued during coverture at law, only on the contracts mentioned in sections 1454 and 1455, Code, and petition should state such contract, 5 Iowa, 428; the liability at law of a married woman on her contracts made during marriage, is not a personal liability, only one affecting her property, 5 Iowa, 428; an abandoned wife, self dependent, may sue and be sued as sole woman, 4 Iowa, 321; property of wife, 4 G., 231; the right of the widow in property left with her as the head of a family, 6 Iowa, 44, 137; her portion must be fixed by administration, 6 Iowa, 137; 1 ibid., 226; effect of becoming administrator, de son tort, ibid.; need of ratification of lease of wife's property by her, 4 G., 54; right of dower no defense in action of right, 8 Iowa, 360; joinder of husband and wife in actions, 4 Iowa, 420, 424; wife's right to sue and be sued alone, 4 Iowa, 321; 1 G., 103, 97; 5 Iowa, 426; husband's liability for wife's debts, contracted before marriage, 4 G., 185; actions v. husband by trustee for maintenance of wife, 4 G., 126; under Code, wife may convey to husband, 7 Iowa, 46; 1 Iowa, 271; liability of wife—mode of charging it, 5 Iowa, 426; 1 G., 97; 2 ibid., 435; suing for necessaries furnished to wife who was insane, 8 Iowa, 51.

CHAPTER 102.

MARRIAGE.

[Code—Chapter 85.]

SECTION 2515. (1463.) Marriage is a civil contract requiring the A contract. consent of parties capable of entering into other contracts, except as herein otherwise declared.

SEC. 2516. (1464.) A marriage between a male person of sixteen When valid. and a female of fourteen years of age is valid, but if either party has not attained the age thus fixed the marriage is a nullity or not at the option of such party made known at any time before he or she is six months older than the age thus fixed.

SEC. 2517. (1465.) Previous to any marriage within this state, a License. license for that purpose must be obtained from the judge of the county court of the county wherein the marriage is to be solemnized, agreeable to the provisions of this chapter.

- Same. SEC. 2518. (1466.) Such license must not in any case be granted where either party is under the age necessary to render the marriage absolutely valid, nor shall it be granted where either party is a minor without the previous consent of the parent or guardian of such minor, nor where the condition of either party is such as to disqualify him for making any other civil contract.
- Proof. SEC. 2519. (1467.) Unless the judge of the county court is acquainted with the age and condition of the parties for the marriage of whom the license is applied for, he must take the testimony of competent and disinterested witnesses on the subject.
- Entry of record. SEC. 2520. (1468.) He must cause due entry of the application for the issuing of the license to be made on the records of the county court, stating that he was acquainted with the parties and knew them to be of competent age and condition, or that the requisite proof of such facts was made to him by one or more witnesses (stating their names.)
- Consent, &c. SEC. 2521. (1469.) If either party is a minor the consent of the parent or guardian must be filed in the county office, after being admitted by the said parent or guardian or proved to be genuine, and a memorandum of such facts must be also entered on the records of the county court.
- License. SEC. 2522. (1470.) If the judge of the county court grants a license contrary to the provisions of the preceding sections he is guilty of a misdemeanor, and if a marriage is solemnized without such license being procured the parties so married, and all persons aiding in such marriage, are likewise guilty of a misdemeanor.
- Penalty.
- Fee. SEC. 2523. (1471.) The license shall not be issued until the amount of one dollar has been paid into the county treasury and the receipt therefor filed with the judge of the county court.
- By whom. SEC. 2524. (1472.) Marriages must be solemnized either:
1. By a justice of the peace, or judge of the county court of the county, or the mayor of the city, wherein the marriage takes place;
  2. By some judge of the supreme or district court of this state;
  3. By some officiating minister of the gospel, ordained or licensed according to the usages of his denomination.
- Certificate. SEC. 2525. (1473.) After the marriage has been solemnized, the officiating minister or magistrate shall on request give each of the parties a certificate thereof.
- Penalty. SEC. 2526. (1474.) Marriages solemnized (with the consent of parties) in any other manner than is herein prescribed are valid, but the parties themselves and all other persons aiding or abetting shall forfeit to the school fund the sum of fifty dollars each.
- Same. SEC. 2527. (1475.) The person solemnizing marriage shall forfeit a like amount unless within ninety days after the ceremony he make return thereof to the county court.
- Return.
- Register. SEC. 2528. (1476.) The clerk of the county court shall keep a register containing the names of the parties, the date of the marriage, and the name of the person by whom the marriage was solemnized, which (or a certified transcript therefrom) is receivable in all courts and places as evidence of the marriage and the date thereof.
- Exception. * SEC. 2529. (1477.) The preceding provisions, so far as they relate to the manner of solemnizing marriages, are not applicable to marriages among the members of any particular denomination having, as such, any peculiar mode of performing that ceremony.
- Return. SEC. 2530. (1478.) But where any mode is thus pursued which dispenses with the services of a clergyman or magistrate, the husband is responsible for the return directed to be made to the county court and is liable to the above named penalty if the return is not made.

SEC. 2531. (1479.) Illegitimate children become legitimate by the subsequent marriage of their parents. Illegitimates.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. "An act regulating marriages," passed April 23, 1833; M. D., 1833, p. 329; repealed March 1, 1840, by I. T., 2d sess., chap. 25, p. 31, being No. 3 hercof.

2. An act amending same, passed June 23, 1838; Wis. special session, No. 20, p. 350; repealed March 1, 1840, I. T., 2d sess., chap. 25, p. 31, being No. 3 hercof.

3. An act regulating marriages, passed Jan. 6, took effect March 1, 1840; I. T., 2d sess., chap. 25, p. 31; also Reprint, 1843, p. 434.

4. An act supplementary thereto, passed Feb. 17, 1842; I. T., 4th sess., chap. 97, p. 87; also Reprint, 1843, p. 437.

5. An act to amend an act entitled an act regulating marriages, passed June 19, 1844.

DECISIONS. Age of consent to marry, 2 G., 329; no cause of action v. one who induces by fair means a minor to marry against the consent of parents, ibid; breach of promise of marriage, 3 Iowa, 337, and Thurston v. Cavner, June term, 1859.

CHAPTER 103.

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY.

[Code—Chapter 86.]

ARTICLE 1.

SECTION 2532. (1480) The district court in the county where the plaintiff resides has jurisdiction of all cases of divorce and alimony, and of guardianship connected therewith. Jurisdiction.

SEC. 2533. (1481.) The petition for divorce, in addition to the facts on account of which the plaintiff claims the relief sought, must state that he has been for the last six months a resident of the state and that the application is not made through fear or restraint or out of any levity, but in sincerity and truth for the purpose set forth in the petition. It must also be sworn to by the plaintiff. Petition.

SEC. 2534 (1482.) Divorces from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed against the husband in the following cases: Causes.

1. When the defendant at the time of his marriage was impotent;
2. When he had a lawful wife then living;
3. When he has committed adultery subsequent to the marriage;
4. When he willfully deserts his wife and absents himself without a reasonable cause for the space of two* years;
5. When he is convicted of felony after his marriage;
6. When, after marriage, he becomes addicted to habitual drunkenness;
7. When he is guilty of such inhuman treatment as to endanger the life of his wife.

8. [Repealed January 24, 1855, laws of fifth general assembly, chapter 76, page 112, by a law which repealed chapter 86 of the code, and was itself repealed March 15, 1858, laws of seventh general assembly, chapter 64, page 97, which last law revived all chapter 86 of the code found herein.]

SEC. 2535. (1483.) The husband may in all cases obtain a divorce from the wife for like causes.

Default.

SEC. 2536. (1484.) If the defendant does not appear and answer the petition at the proper time the court, if satisfied that the complainant is the injured party, may decree a dissolution of the marriage contract; or when the defendant can be found, it may in its discretion bring him in by attachment and compel him to answer.

Order concerning children.

SEC. 2537. (1485.) When a divorce is decreed the court may make such order in relation to the children and property of the parties and the maintenance of the wife as shall be right and proper. Subsequent changes may be made by the court in these respects when circumstances render them expedient.

ARTICLE 2.

An Act for the relief of all persons heretofore divorced to whom the disability to marry again has been attached, either by the law under which the divorce was had, or by decree of the court granting the same.

[Passed March 22, 1853; Laws of Seventh General Assembly, Chapter 117, p. 236.]

Persons divorced
again.

SECTION 2538. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That all persons heretofore divorced under or by virtue of any law of this state, whether the same may have been from the bonds of matrimony or from bed and board, and to whom by decree of the court granting such divorce or by virtue of the provisions of law under which such divorce may have been obtained, a disability to marry again may have attached, shall from and after the taking effect of this act, be restored to all the rights and privileges of an unmarried person.*

PRIOR LAWS. 1. "An act concerning divorce," passed April 4, 1833, p. 334; repealed Aug. 30, 1840.

2. An act concerning divorce, passed Dec. 29, took effect Jan. 29, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 179; repealed by Nos. 3 and 5 hereof.

3. An act concerning divorce, alimony, &c., passed Jan. 17, took effect Feb. 17, 1840; I. T., 2d sess., chap. 81, p. 120.

4. An act to amend same, passed Feb. 17, 1842; I. T., 4th sess., chap. 98, p. 87.

5. An act relative to divorce, alimony, and other purposes, passed Jan. 20, 1843; also, Reprint 1843, chap. 65, p. 237.

6. An act amending same, passed Jan. 17, 1846; I. T., 8th sess., chap. 24, p. 23.

7. Code of 1851, chap. 86.

8. "An act to amend the law in relation to divorce and alimony," passed Jan. 24, took effect July 1, 1855, 5th sess., chap. 76, p. 112; repealed by an act to amend the law in relation to divorce and alimony, passed March 15, took effect July 4, 1858, 7th sess., chap. 64, p. 97.

DECISIONS. A case where the fact of petition being unsworn did not defeat jurisdiction, 5 Iowa, 254; a desertion commencing before the passage of the act under which the proceedings are had, and continued after its passage the full term demanded by the act, entitles to a divorce thereunder, 5 Iowa, 254; to grant a divorce under the welfare clause, the court in a sound discretion must be fully satisfied that the permanent, moral, mental, and social welfare of the parties and their children requires it, and it should not be granted to the wrong doer, 5 Iowa, 212; adultery may be inferred indirectly from circumstances when they being all taken are inconsistent with the hypothesis of innocence, and consistent only with that of guilt, 5 Iowa, 208; alimony, 1 Iowa, 9; 4 Iowa, 509; 4 G., 26, 29; sec. 1485 applies to divorce a vinculo, 5 Iowa, 541; the permanent alimony may be money or land, and should be determined by respect to the exact interests of each actual party, 5 Iowa, 222; after divorce a vinculo, court may modify the decree as to children and property, 5 Iowa, 544; the form of making this application was by motion and hearing on merits, and the objection to the form was made too late in the appellate court, 5 Iowa, 543; a proceeding to modify a decree as to alimony abates by the death of the former husband, defendant, 4 Iowa, 515; divorce regulated only by the legislative department, 2 G., 604; a legislative divorce bars dower, ibid.; divorce bars dower while the decree remains of force, 5 Iowa, 232; desertion continued, the statutory term after the taking effect of the law is good cause for divorce, 5 Iowa, 232, 254; the right to a divorce, actually in court, is not divested by a repeal of the law, 5 Iowa, 204; resides, and resident, defined, 1 Iowa, 36; bona fide residence, 4 G., 266; where cause arose out of the state, 4 G., 266; the affidavit not a jurisdictional fact, 5 Iowa, 232, 254; what the petition should state, 4 G., 324; no divorce to wrong doer, 5 Iowa, 204; 4 G., 324; as to the clause "peace and happiness," see 1 Iowa, 40 and 130; 5 Iowa, 204.

CHAPTER 104.

MINORS.

[Code—Chapter 87.]

SECTION 2539. (1487.) The period of minority extends, in males <sup>Majority.</sup> to the age of twenty-one years, and in females to that of eighteen years, but all minors attain their majority by marriage.

SEC. 2540. (1488.) A minor is bound, not only by contracts for <sup>His contracts.</sup> necessaries, but also by his other contracts unless he disaffirms them within a reasonable time after he attains his majority and restores to the other party all money or property received by him by virtue of the contract and remaining within his control at any time after his attaining his majority.

SEC. 2541. (1489.) No contract can be thus disaffirmed in cases <sup>Bound.</sup> where, on account of the minor's own misrepresentations as to his majority or from his having engaged in business as an adult, the other party had good reason to believe the minor capable of contracting.

SEC. 2542. (1490.) Where a contract for the personal service of a <sup>Payment to</sup> minor has been made with him alone, and those services are afterwards <sup>minor.</sup> performed, payment made therefor to such minor in accordance with the terms of the contract is a full satisfaction for those services, and the parent or guardian can not recover therefor a second time.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act empowering probate judges to appoint guardians for minors, passed April 12, 1827; M. D., 1833, p. 301.

2. An act amending same, passed June 26, 1832; M. D., 1833, p. 305. The above repealed Aug. 30, 1840.

3. An act concerning minors, passed Jan. 25, took effect Feb. 25, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 347; also Reprint, 1843, p. 430.

DECISIONS. A minor may be sued in his own name, but can appear only by guardian, and he must have his day in court by proper guardian, before he can be divested of his estate, 5 Iowa, 193; how minor must sue and be sued, 5 Iowa, 157; case of minor assuming to be of majority, an infant trustee may be compelled to convey, 6 Iowa, 353; infant engaged in business, 1 Iowa, 380; M., 82; infant can not disaffirm his deed, if he represented himself of age, 6 Iowa, 353; right of parents to infant's services and compensation therefor, 1 Iowa, 356; presumption of relinquishment of such right, 8 Iowa, 116; 1 Iowa, 356; custody of children in divorce cases, 4 G., 216; marriage of minor, 2 G., 329; when infant is bound by decree—time to show cause against—nature of the showing—diligence—when he may object to decree—effect of admissions by his guardian—how guardian appointed—affidavit evidence—not ground for vacating decree—can title of innocent vendee under such decree, be affected by its vacation? 8 Iowa, 17.

CHAPTER 105.

GUARDIANSHIP OF MINORS.

[Code—Chapter 88.]

ARTICLE 1.

- Natural guardians. SECTION 2543. (1491.) The father is the natural guardian of the persons of his minor children. If he dies or is incapable of acting the mother becomes the guardian.
- Guardian appointed. SEC. 2544. (1492.) The natural and actual guardian of any minor child may by will appoint another guardian for such minor. If, without such will, both parents be dead or disqualified to act as guardian the county court may appoint one.
- Of property. SEC. 2545. (1493.) Although the parents are living and of sound mind, yet if the minor has property not derived from either of them a guardian must be appointed by the county court to manage such property.
- Same. SEC. 2546. (1494.) The father, or in case of his death, absence, or incapacity, the mother may be appointed the guardian to take charge of the property of his minor child, if deemed by the court a suitable person for that purpose.
- Choosing guardian. SEC. 2547. (1495.) If the minor be over the age of fourteen years and of sound intellect he may select his own guardian, subject to the appointment of the court.
- Bond and oath. SEC. 2548. (1496.) Guardians appointed to take charge of the property of a minor must give bond with surety to be approved by the court, in a penalty double the value of the personal estate and of the rents and profits of the real estate of the minor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of their duties as such guardians according to law. They must also take an oath of the same tenor as the condition of the bond.
- Inventory. SEC. 2549. (1497.) Within forty days after their appointment they must make out an inventory of all the property of the minor, which shall be appraised in the same manner as the property of a deceased person. The inventory must be filed in the office of the county judge.
- Powers. SEC. 2550. (1498.) Guardians of the persons of minors have the same power and control over them that parents would have if living.
- What guardians must do. SEC. 2551. (1499.) Guardians of the property of minors must prosecute and defend for their wards. They must also in other respects manage their interests, under the direction of the court. They may thus lease their lands or loan their money during their minority, and may do all other acts which the court may deem for the benefit of the wards.
- Real estate. SEC. 2552. (1500.) When not in violation of the terms of a will by which a minor holds his real property, it may, under the discretion of the county court, be sold or mortgaged on the application of the guardian, either when such sale or mortgage is necessary for the minor's support or education, or where his interest will be thereby promoted by reason of the unproductiveness of the property or of its being exposed to waste or of any other peculiar circumstances.

SEC. 2553. (1501.) The petition for that purpose must state the Petition. grounds of the application, must be verified by oath, and a copy thereof with a notice of the time at which such application will be made to the court must be served personally upon the minor, at least ten days prior to the term fixed for such application.

SEC. 2554. (1502.) The court in its discretion may direct a post- Publication ponement of the matter, and may order such farther publication through the newspapers or otherwise as it may deem expedient.

SEC. 2555. (1503.) It may also direct a reference for the purpose Of reference of ascertaining the propriety of ordering the sale or mortgage as applied for.

SEC. 2556. (1504.) Before any such sale or mortgage can be exe- Bond. cuted the guardian must give security to the satisfaction of the court, the penalty of which shall be at least double the value of the property to be sold or of the money to be raised by the mortgage, conditioned that he will faithfully perform his duty in that respect and account for and apply all moneys received by him under the direction of the court.

SEC. 2557. (1505.) When the application for the sale of property is Costs. resisted the court may in its discretion award costs to the prevailing party, and may when satisfied that there was no reasonable ground for making the application direct the costs to be paid by the guardian from his own funds.

SEC. 2558. (1506.) Deeds may be made by the guardian in his own Sales approved name, but they must be returned to the court and the sale or mortgage be approved before the same are valid.

SEC. 2559. (1507.) The same rule that is prescribed in the sale of Directions real property by executors shall be observed in relation to the evidence necessary to show the regularity and validity of the sales above contemplated.

SEC. 2560. (1508.) No person can question the validity of such sale Validity after the lapse of five years from the time it was made.

SEC. 2561. (1509.) A failure to comply with any order of the court Breach of bond in relation to guardianship shall be deemed a breach of the condition of the guardian's bond, which may accordingly be put in suit by any one aggrieved thereby, for which purpose the court may appoint another guardian of the minor if necessary. The court may also commit him to jail until he complies with such order.

SEC. 2562. (1510.) Guardians of the property of minors must Guardians to account account on oath annually, or oftener if required by the court. It may also direct them to give new or supplemental security, or may remove them for good cause shown which cause must be entered on the records.

SEC. 2563. (1511.) Where a new guardian is appointed the court New guardian may order the effects of the minor which are in the hands of his predecessor to be delivered up to such new guardian.

SEC. 2564. (1512.) The foreign guardian of any non-resident Foreign guardians. minor may be appointed the guardian of such minor by the court of the county wherein he has any property, for the purpose of selling or otherwise controlling that and all other property of such minor within this state.

SEC. 2565. (1513.) Such appointment may be made upon his filing Same. in the office of the judge of the county wherein there is any such property, an authenticated copy of the order for his appointment. He shall thereupon qualify like other guardians except as in the next succeeding section.

Same.

SEC. 2566. (1514.) Upon the filing of an authenticated copy of the bond and the inventory rendered by the guardian in the foreign state, if the court is satisfied with the sufficiency of the amount of the security it may dispense with the filing of an additional bond.

Compensation.

SEC. 2567. (1515.) Guardians shall receive such compensation as the court may from time to time allow. The amount allowed and the service for which the allowance was made must be entered upon the records of the court.

CHAPTER 106.

MASTER AND APPRENTICE.

[Code—Chapter 89.]

SECTION 2573. (1516.) Any minor child may be bound to service Minors. until the attainment of the age of legal majority as hereinafter described.

SEC. 2574. (1517.) Such binding must be by written indenture By indenture. specifying the age of the minor and the terms of the agreement. If the minor is more than twelve years of age and not a pauper the indenture must be signed by him of his own free will.

SEC. 2575. (1518.) A written consent must be appended to, or in- Consent. dorsed upon, such agreement and signed by one of the following persons, to wit:

1. By the father of the minor; but if he is dead, or has abandoned his family, or is for any cause incapacitated from giving his assent, then

2. By the mother; and if she be dead, or unable, or incapacitated for giving such consent, then

3. By the guardian; and if there be no guardian then by the judge of the county court.

SEC. 2576. (1519.) The judge of the county court may bind minors Paupers. who are paupers, till they have attained the age of majority, without obtaining their assent.

SEC. 2577. (1520.) The written indenture must in that case be signed by the master and said judge.

SEC. 2578. (1521.) The indenture must in all cases where there is Indentures. a parent or guardian be in three parts, one being left with the master, another with the county judge, and the third with the person by whose assent he is bound.

SEC. 2579. (1522.) The powers, liabilities, and duties of the master Powers, rights, &c. and the rights of the apprentice are the same as those of parent and child respectively, except as to inheritances and except as is otherwise provided by law.

- Duty. SEC. 2580. (1523.) The parent, guardian, or officer, by whose act or consent any minor is thus bound must watch over the interest of the minor, and if the case require must enter complaint as provided for in the following section.
- Complaint against master. SEC. 2581. (1524.) Upon complaint by the minor or by any other person made to the judge of the county court, stating under oath that the master is ill-treating his apprentice or is in any other manner palpably failing in the discharge of his duty in regard to him, and stating the particulars with reasonable certainty, the court shall summon the master to appear and answer such complaint.
- Service. SEC. 2582. (1525.) The complaint with the proper notice indorsed thereon must be served and returned in the same manner as in the commencement of an action in a justice's court and the time for appearance shall be regulated by the same rules.
- Answer. Issue. SEC. 2583. (1526.) The answer of the master must also be under oath and if any issue be joined thereon it must be tried as in other cases in the county court.
- Judgment. SEC. 2584. (1527.) If the court or jury before whom the case is pending finds the cause of complaint, admitted by the master or proved upon the trial, to be of sufficient magnitude to justify the discharge of the minor from farther service, judgment shall be rendered accordingly and a certificate of such judgment placed in said minor's hands.
- Appeals. SEC. 2585. (1528.) From any judgment in such cases, either the minor or the master may appeal to the district court in the same manner as is provided for in ordinary cases.
- No bar. SEC. 2586. (1529.) The above proceedings form no bar to the bringing of a suit by or on behalf of the minor for damages or for compensation for services.
- Complaint v. apprentice. SEC. 2587. (1530.) If the apprentice, bound as aforesaid, refuses to serve according to the terms of the indenture, upon complaint made in the manner aforesaid, the judge shall issue a warrant to cause the apprentice to be brought forthwith before him and shall also cause notice of the proceedings to be given to the parent, guardian, or officer, by whose act or consent the minor was bound as an apprentice, if to be found in the county.
- Time for answer. SEC. 2588. (1531.) A reasonable space of time not exceeding three days shall be allowed to the minor to consult with his parent, guardian, or other friends previous to making his answer to the complaint.
- Proceedings. SEC. 2589. (1532.) The answer must be made, and the issue thereon tried, in the manner hereinafter provided.
- Discharged. SEC. 2590. (1533.) If he shows sufficient cause for refusing to serve he may be discharged from service in the manner hereinbefore provided.
- Released from indentures. SEC. 2591. (1534.) Instead of proceeding as aforesaid the master may, for any refusal to serve or for any gross misbehaviour on the part of the apprentice, file a complaint for the purpose of releasing himself from the force and effect of the indenture aforesaid.
- Proceedings. SEC. 2592. (1535.) Proceedings shall thereupon be had similar to those provided for in case of a complaint by or in behalf of the apprentice, and judgment rendered in like manner, with the same right of appeal.
- Dissolution. SEC. 2593. (1536.) The death of the master or his removal from the state works a dissolution of the indenture, unless otherwise provided therein or unless the apprentice elects to continue in his service. And in the event of a dissolution, the apprentice shall receive such allowance for services previously rendered as may be thought necessary under the circumstances of the case.

SEC. 2594. (1537.) Upon complaint being made to the district court of the proper county, verified by affidavit, that the father or mother of a minor child is, from habitual intemperance and vicious and brutal conduct, or from vicious, brutal and criminal conduct towards said minor child, an unsuitable person to retain the guardianship and control the education of such child, the court may if it find the allegations in the complaint manifestly true, appoint a proper guardian for the child, and may if expedient also direct that such child be bound as an apprentice to some suitable person until he attains his majority. But nothing herein shall be so construed as to take such minor child if the mother be a proper guardian. Natural guardian removed.

SEC. 2595. (1538.) The same proceedings may take place and a same like order be made where the mother, who has for any cause become the guardian of her minor child, is in like manner found to be manifestly an improper person to retain such guardianship. Same

SEC. 2596. (1539.) The complainant in such cases must be sworn to his complaint and file it in the office of the judge, and a copy thereof, with a notice thereon indorsed stating the time when the matter will be brought before the district court for adjudication, must be served personally on the parent from whom the guardianship is sought to be taken at least ten days before the time so fixed for the adjudication. Proceedings.

SEC. 2597. (1540.) Issues joined shall be tried in the same manner as in ordinary civil actions. Issue.

SEC. 2598. (1541.) Preference shall be given to such cases over the ordinary business of the court, but trials actually commenced need not be suspended for that purpose. Preference.

SEC. 2599. (1542.) The master shall send the said minor child, after the same be six years old, to school at least four months in each year if there be a school within the district, and in all cases and at all times the master shall clothe the minor child in a comfortable and becoming manner. Treatment of minor.

CHAPTER 107.

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN.

An Act to authorize and regulate the Adoption of Children.

[Passed March 16, 1858, in force March 24, 1858; Laws of Seventh Session, Chapter 67, page 102.]

SECTION 2600. (1.) Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, Any person competent to make a will is authorized in Any person may adopt child.

manner hereinafter set forth, to adopt as his own, the minor child of another, conferring thereby upon such child all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities which would pertain to the child, if born to the person adopting in lawful wedlock.

The consent of the parent, or of the mayor, or the county judge, must be obtained in writing.

SEC. 2601. (2.) In order thereto, the consent of both parents, if living and not divorced or separated, and if divorced or separated, or if unmarried, the consent of the parent lawfully having the care, and providing for the wants of the child, or if either parent is dead, then the consent of the survivor; or if both parents be dead, or the child shall have been and remain abandoned by them, then the consent of the mayor of the city where the child is living, or if not in a city, then of the county judge of the county where the child is living, shall be given to such adoption, by an instrument in writing, signed by the parties or party consenting, and stating the names of the parent, if known the name of the child, if known, the name of the person adopting such child, and the residence of all if known, and declaring the name by which such child is hereafter to be called and known, and stating also that such child is given to the person adopting, for the purpose of adoption as his own child.

Instrument of adoption acknowledged and recorded in the same manner as deeds.

SEC. 2602. (3.) Such instrument in writing shall be also signed by the person adopting, and shall be acknowledged by all the parties thereto in the same manner as deeds affecting real estate are required to be acknowledged: provided, that when both parents of the child execute the same, the mother shall be examined apart from her husband, by the officer taking the same, and he shall certify whether or not she executed the same freely and without compulsion or undue influence of her husband, and if not the instrument shall not be valid; and when duly acknowledged, the same shall be recorded in the county where the person adopting resides in the office, and with the record of deeds of real estate, and shall be indexed with the name of the parent by adoption as grantor, and the child as grantee in its original name if stated in the instrument.

The relations of child changed.

SEC. 2603. (4.) Upon the execution, acknowledgment and record of such instrument, the rights, duties and relations between the parent and child by adoption shall thereafter in all respects, including the right of inheritance, be the same that exist by law between parent and child by lawful birth.

Maltreatment subjects adopted parent to be deprived of child.

SEC. 2604. (5.) In case of maltreatment committed or allowed by the adopted parent, or palpable neglect of duty on his part, toward such child, the custody thereof may be taken from him and entrusted to another at his expense if so ordered by the court, and the same proceedings may be had therefor so far as applicable as are authorized by law in such a case in the relation of master and apprentice, or the court may, on showing of the facts, require from the adopted parent, bond with security, in a sum to be fixed by him, the county being the obligee, and for the benefit of the child, conditioned for the proper treatment and performance of duty toward the child, on the part of the parent: provided, that no action of the court or judge in the premises shall affect or diminish the acquired right of inheritance on the part of the child, to the extent of such right in a natural child of lawful birth.

TITLE.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, as follows :

This Act shall be known as the Code of Civil Practice.

CHAPTER 108.‡

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

SECTION 2605. Remedies in civil cases in the courts of this state, Two classes of remedies. are divided into two classes—1st, Actions ; 2d, Special Proceedings.

SEC. 2606. A civil action is a common proceeding in a court of justice, by one party against another, for the enforcement or protection of a private right, or the redress or prevention of a private wrong. It may also be brought, in certain cases, for the recovery of a penalty or a forfeiture. Civil action.

* This Code of civil practice stands in the place of the "PART THIRD" of the Code of 1851, but it is not divided into titles as that was.

† With this Code of civil practice, the commissioners also presented a report in regard to which they say :

"Some notes showing the spirit in which the act is wrought out,—the object sought to be attained—the codes consulted and laid under contribution—the history and illustration of some sections thereof, and the opinions of distinguished legal men on other leading sections, as well as our reasons in recommendation thereof, will be found placed after the act."

That report or rationale, which extends over about 175 pages, will be found to contain much which may be of value in getting a correct conception of the Code of civil practice. It is not supposed that such report will be imperative on the construction of the act, but such reports have always been consulted as suggestive.

‡ This chapter is taken from Kentucky, which state agrees with us in maintaining a limited dissimilarity between proceedings, asking legal and those asking equitable relief. The reformed practice of New York, which is used now in several states, ignores the distinction of ordinary and equitable, and demands all sorts of rights by one mode, which is a simple statement of the facts entitling thereto. The departure of this Code from that system is based upon a supposed requirement of the constitution not conceded by the Code commissioners, but deferred to because so fixed in the legal mind of Iowa. See Report on Civil Code, and also note, page 450.

Special proceed-

SEC. 2607. Every other remedy in a civil case is a special proceeding.

The proceeding supplementary to an execution is a special proceeding, per Willard, J., in Davis v. Turner, 4 P. R., 190, 192; and the proceeding to assess damages upon laying out a plank road, under chapter 210, of the laws of 1847, is most undoubtedly what under the Code is denominated a special proceeding, per Mason, J., ex parte Ransom, 3 Code Rep., 148. Cited and approved, 1 Kernan, 277.

The proceeding upon a bond taken to suspend the sale of personal property under an execution, can not be considered an action but more properly comes within that class of remedies denominated special or summary proceedings, and no written pleadings are allowable. Watson v. Gabbey, 18 B. M., 662.

Forms abolished.

SEC. 2608. The forms of all actions and suits heretofore existing are abolished; and hereafter, there shall be but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights, and the redress or prevention of private wrongs, which shall be called a civil action.*

* As the report of the commissioners on civil practice is difficult of obtainment, I here insert a part of it on the subject of this section—the abolition of forms and actions.

In the earliest practice of law, common sense presided, and the plaintiff stated the facts which he considered entitled him to the remedy which he demanded. These facts were sworn to, and of course could with no propriety include legal conclusions. The chancellor, to whom was presented this statement, who in such affairs, represented the king, issued a writ to the defendant, ordering him to do the thing demanded, or if he did not, to state in some court his reason for refusal.

There was then no division of tribunals into legal and equitable, and the only question was this—has the plaintiff rights which should be adjudged to him?

The chancellor had not long issued such writs before he and his clerks began to give names to them—as debt, covenant, detinue, replevin, &c., up to the number of sixty or more names. And soon they came to confound names with things, and then when a demand of justice arose, the facts of which had not been before presented, and so could not be classed under any of the names which had been given to writs, they said there is no remedy by any writ. That meant, we can not confer the right on any court of law to try this case, by issuing to such court a power to try the same, because we find no precedent for it—we have not done so before. For it was also true, that this writ was an authority to the court to which sent, to try the cause recited in it, if the defendant did not do the duty required. Now, it was very evident that the state was established to do justice, and if the chancellor could not furnish an order to the defendant to do justice, or to a court to make him do it, the remedy must be demanded of the king himself. So parties who stated a new class of facts, and so could not obtain the original writ, went to the king himself and demanded justice. This was nothing new to the king because he had been accustomed a little before this time to have justice done without the intervention of any writs, by trying causes in his own hall. But as the chancellor had been substituted for him in issuing the writ, the king in all such cases now came to send the parties to the chancellor, with the understanding that the chancellor should, instead of submitting it to any other court by a writ, try it himself; and this was the origin of chancery, for this last tribunal was so called. To overcome this difficulty, and provide for justice in the regular courts, a statute was passed, which was intended to allow the chancellor, in all new cases, to make a writ, resembling as near as might be, the writs before issued in similar cases; but he was so wedded to the letter that he failed to see its purpose; besides he was, probably, desirous of preserving his new jurisdiction as a trier of causes, and so he only made another writ or two, which, whilst these very much enlarged the jurisdiction of common law courts yet left it possible for many cases to arise which could not be included within any writ, and so could get into no common law court. The result was as had before been, that new cases arose which had to go before the chancellor, and thus increase the business and consequence of this tribunal; the new tribunal called chancery.

Now it so happened that this chancellor was the keeper of the king's conscience, and therefore a priest; and because a priest, he was chiefly, and indeed largely conversant with the Roman law; and by that law, which at that time was the most excellent in equity, and good conscience, and morality, and logic, a different mode of procedure was established from that which existed in England by the common law, and so he, the chancellor, in the causes tried before him, introduced the forms of the Roman law. This law was much less fettered with technicality than the common law, and was then much more informed with life, much better adapted as an appliance of justice than any other known. It also occurred thereupon, when this last fact became understood, that whenever the common law formula was insufficient for the attainment of justice, the more pliable formula used by the chancellor was resorted to. Now, these courts had fees and honors attached to them; the officers whereof began to struggle, each with the other, for a more extended and more lucrative jurisdiction, so that between 13 Richard II, and Henry VI, during eighty years, there raged between them a hot contest for power.

The code does not change the law which determines what facts shall constitute a cause of action, though, by reducing all forms of action to one, it changes the question, whether the facts show a cause of action in trespass, trover, assumpsit, or any other particular form, into the question whether the petition shows a right of action in any form—by showing a right in the plaintiff, and an injury to that right by the defendant, which is to be determined by the general rules of law, respecting rights and wrongs, as established by long usage in particular actions. Hill, for Wintersmith v. Barrett, etc.; 14 B. M., 85.

The people also took a part in this struggle on the side of law, and for a time it seems to have been feared that chancery would swallow up the dearest rights of our race. Year after year the commoners petitioned parliament to prevent the issuance of the subpoena of chancery, protesting that they had a right to the trial by jury and by battle, and denouncing the introduction of a foreign law of procedure. Officers serving the subpoena were in cases treated with great indignities, being compelled, sometimes, to eat it. The law courts countenanced disobedience to equitable process by granting the habeas corpus to relieve those restrained for disobedience thereto. In process of time, much that had been clear law jurisdiction, was usurped by the chancellor, and became also equitable jurisdiction, and soon much that had become of chancery jurisdiction, ceased to be of law jurisdiction; and while there was a large ground common to both, each slowly began to demark its jurisdiction, and in the reigns of Elizabeth and James, the separation of equity from law was complete.

The court of chancery had not then the jurisdiction it has now, but one less settled, and much more extended, being tempered largely by conscience and honesty rather than by precedent—a jurisdiction which has now become as fixed as that of law, and is as much observant of precedent.

Now the chief differences of procedure in these two tribunals were, that in law, pleadings were narrowed down till it was supposed that only one fact was in dispute. The reasons given for this demand was, that juries were of ignorant men, and could not well understand any but the plainest affirmative and negative, and that as they might be punished for rendering a wrong verdict, it was unjust to subject them to that risk, by accumulating points of dispute. In equity the pleadings were at first of the same form, but soon the number of pleadings were abridged, so that many issues might be found in the same case, and an answer followed by a merely formal replication denying it, completed the mutual altercation.

At first, in both courts, proof was taken the same way and oral—but deposition testimony came to be taken and used, though not exclusively, in chancery, many years before it was allowed to be used at law, so that men went into chancery to obtain written testimony, which they could not get at law. Again the party could not make his adversary testify at law, and could in chancery, and so instead of the simple mode of putting his adversary on the witness stand, the party needed to go into chancery, and file a bill against him asking answers to questions therein propounded, and if the party wanting the testimony was a defendant in some other suit, perhaps asking also, that such suit be stopped till he get such answer—having got which, he could come back to the law court and announce himself ready for trial. The modes of trial were also dissimilar. At law, what was called an issue of fact, though it was very seldom purely fact, and very seldom simply one fact, was tried by various modes, from the duel to the jury. But the jury of early times was not the institution now so called. It was of various numbers as 6, 8, 12, 13, 16, 24, &c. It did not require unanimity. It might decide on belief. It decided on its own knowledge. Indeed it possessed, for years, the function of the judge and the witness; and we know comparatively little about its real powers.

In chancery the chancellor might try the cause himself,—he had no jury as part of his court,—it was urged against his having one, that if he had, he might usurp all jurisdiction, by inventing new writs and making them returnable to himself, and it was also said that the chancellor could not try any facts, which he disproved by his constant practice. Perhaps this saying grew out of the circumstance that then, as now, equitable cases were chiefly cases wherein there were few facts in dispute, and the fact that some issues must be tried by juries. But he did, when he pleased, send facts disputed out to the law courts to be tried, and when the finding was sent back to him, he might, save in some cases, ignore it, and send it back to another jury, or find another way, just as pleased himself.

The principle of decision in a common law court, was largely based on the idea of compensation by damages. This would grow out of the fact, that early, the remedies were simple; and yet an action at law was not so much confined to damages, as some cursory readers have supposed, for in early times there were a class of writs whose office was to prevent injustice being done, and we will quote a little in this regard from a learned English writer. Finlason, pp. 10, 11, 12, 13, says:

"In the 'Mirror of Justice' the chancery is spoken of as the seat and source of the common law jurisdiction; and in Bracton, equity is spoken of as an attribute of legal justice. Nor can there be any ground to think that in ancient times there was any such separation between the two jurisdictions, in so far as legal rights were concerned, as that a court of law could not grant all the remedy and relief for an injury thereto as the court of chancery. The most ancient forms of our writs are all, except in the case of debt, directed to enforce the doing or not doing of acts of every kind. Thus they commanded the defendant that he "render an account," or that he "keep his covenant," with the plaintiff, or that he render to the plaintiff his manor, or his horse, cup, sheep or book, or that he permit the plaintiff to put down a market, set up to the nuisance of his fair, or that he "show cause why he has straightened a certain way," or why he "deforceth the plaintiff of his term," or that he permit the plaintiff to present to his church, or that he unjustly vex not the plaintiff, nor permit him to be vexed, concerning the freehold he holds of the defendant, or that the defendant do full right to the plaintiff of her dower, or his freehold, &c. In some cases, as still in replevin, the writ was to the sheriff, commanding him to do right, as to replevy the plaintiff his cattle, or to cause justice to be done to him. And it was only in cases in which from the very nature of the grievance it could only admit of pecuniary compensation, as debt or deceit, that damages in money formed the sole claim.

In process of time, however, it is very easy to see how, the courts of law ceased to exercise the power of compelling to do, or forbear doing, any acts in respect to real or personal property, except so far as to enforce delivery of goods or premises, and payment of money or pecuniary compensation, although in the real actions, in actions of detinue, replevin and ejectment—to this day remaining—and in some old writs which have long been obsolete, the ancient principle of doing full right to the party who asserted a legal claim in a court of law, continued to be carried out. It was only by degrees the change took place. No later than the reign of Edward IV, we meet in the year books such observations as these: "If men were (good) pleaders (i. e. sound lawyers,) they need not go from the common law, and the Queen's Bench could grant an injunction."

The struggle which ensued in the succeeding reigns between the courts of law and equity, was not whether courts of law could do equity, but whether courts of equity could overturn law. In the reign of Henry VI, we find a decree in chancery for canceling a bond pleaded at law: in the next reign, we find several cases in which the question was whether, as the party had no remedy at law, he could have any in chancery. In the reign of Henry VIII, Sir T. Moore's vast abilities were devoted to the establishment in chancery of an equitable jurisdiction, the need of which was apparent to control law, since law had ceased to embrace the elements of equity, as it had done in the reign of Henry III. And in the reigns of Elizabeth and James, the victory was finally determined in favor of the court of chancery; and law having lost equity, equity triumphed over law. At that time, of course the separation of equity from law was complete; and the court of chancery and law each commenced a disastrous career of litigation in distinct jurisdictions, in which it was too often found that suitors could get no equity at law, nor justice either in law or equity. This was the end of the perversion of pleading and common law procedure. The same spirit which produced one evil, produced the other."

As originally the only demand for chancery was based on the fact that the law had made no provision for the case, so in proportion as the law did make such provision, it in reason ceased to be a chancery and became a law remedy, but yet such case in practice was not always then abandoned as chancery.

We repeat, there never was any necessity for chancery in the reason of things, but only in imperfect legal forms. If the first party who, applying to the chancellor for a writ to the law courts, was refused, had not been refused, and thus compelled to go to the king, there never would have been any chancery. And if all cases had been retained by the chancellor to try himself, instead of being sent to a court, there would have been no law. But there would then have been the simple administration of justice without baptising it as law or as equity.

Now, it resulted from this division of justice into two distinct departments, that there was a court of law, and a court of equity—but no court of justice. A man may have had never so clear rights to relief, but if he asked the wrong court he was turned out with costs. And, perhaps, the court itself might not be very clear. And although by the hypothesis, of the essential difference of jurisdiction which supposed a chancellor unable to determine law, yet he had often to determine law, to see whether the complainant had a cause which was good at law, before he would concede a remedy as of discovery, and in other causes, had to decide that a remedy did exist at law as a reason for a refusal of one in equity.

Then again it occurred that remedies were slow to be introduced at law, because they could be obtained at chancery. Would any one believe that for hundreds of years it would have remained the law, that if a party litigant wanted the testimony of his adversary, he could not swear him, but must file a bill in a distinct and expensive court, and bring him thereto, and get an answer which he might be very obstinate and tedious in giving, and then might answer evasively, while there was really no practical way of extracting promptly the truth, and that all the while the case in which the testimony was to be used, must stand still. Would any one believe this of our practical race, if not undeniable history? And, indeed, would this have been true, if a class of men whose interest it was to keep it so, had not presided over such stupidity, and vindicated it by an embalmment in some learned nonsense. And so it further happened, that one court was often incompetent to administer even that part of justice with which it was commissioned, so that often to get one court to act, a party had to go to another for help, and having got the required help, bring it back to be used in the former. So, too, it was often true, that if a defendant urged one class of reasons in a law court, they could not be regarded by that court, and he would have to be defeated there, and then go into the other court to have that decision arrested in its execution, and to have the injustice done by defeat, vacated by another trial. So that no man was sure of justice in one court. He could have law in one and equity in another, and, perhaps, fall between, and get justice in neither.

Now, while chancery was erected to cure the insufficiency of law, instead of the more practical mode of making statutes to do so, the same folly was apparent in the criminal department. When that was insufficient, a similar appeal was made to the king, who committed that department of the law to his council, who sat in the starred chamber, and thus established the star chamber—a chancery court of criminal law.

This, however, as it touched men in a more tender point—punishment—was abolished by statute 16, Car. 1, while the chancery, just as much an excrescence of a barbarous age, continued till it has been but lately abolished by many of the states, and in great part by England.

Now, while it proved true that the formula of equity procedure were variant from law formula, so much so that different men were needed or supposed to be needed for judges and practitioners of it; it is also true that this evil of many-formed practice, was not thus confined. Not only were the great remedies of law and equity to be demanded by dissimilar forms, but the same was true in one action at law as differed from another. These writs gave names to actions, and a peculiar writ belonged to each, so that if a plaintiff sued out the wrong writ he was defeated with costs. His facts might entitle him to a remedy which a court of law could give, and yet he could not prove them, unless they were of that class of facts which had heretofore been attached to the name of his writ or action; and then some of these distinctions were so acutely drawn by the scholastic subtlety of that age, that the lawyers and judges disagreed as to the proper form of the remedy. This was not the only evil which grew up. In the early and logical age of pleading, the plaintiff stated his facts, and then the defendant denied, particularly, one of these, or admitting it, sta-merely a change into the proper proceedings, by an amendment in the pleadings, and a transfer of the action to the proper docket.

Where the court has no jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the plaintiff's petition, his suit may be dismissed; but if the court has jurisdiction, either by ordinary or equitable proceeding, an error in the form of bringing the suit does not authorize a dismissal of the action, but merely a transfer of it to the proper docket. Landsdale v. Mitchell, 14 B. M., 349.

ted some other fact, which altering the case, avoided the effect of such admitted fact: that is, if the disagreement was on facts and not on law; and this was done that each party and the court might know before hand what was the true point in dispute. But very soon it came to pass that the defendant might make a general denial of all, instead of a special one of some of the material allegations of the petition, and then the plaintiff did not any longer know what the defendant meant to rely on, as his ground of defense on trial—for he might then prove any fact disproving any fact which the plaintiff needed to prove to make his case. This would not have been so bad, but soon this privilege of ambuscade was so far extended to the defendant that under this general denial, which got the name of general issue, the defendant might prove, not only any negative fact, but many affirmative ones. And under some of these technical denials, a defendant might prove almost anything which showed that at the time of suit he was not liable. The result now was that such pleading had abandoned its office, and no longer served to apprise any body of what was in controversy. But this abandonment of fact pleading was not confined to the defendant. The plaintiff also came to invent a mode of ambuscade; and abandoning facts, acquired a right of stating a number of legal conclusions, under the name of common counts, which were as ample in uncertainty, and as devoid of fact statement, as was the general issue itself. This, too, occurred in the most frequent actions. And so it became true that in most suits, the plaintiff had a right so to state his cause, as that any one of many causes of action, could be proved under it, to which the defendant might reply in legal conclusion mode of general issue, and thus no one could tell, from the pleadings, what the plaintiff wanted, nor what the defendant had to say against it.

One would think, that this was ambuscade enough, but it remains to be told that the plaintiff might unite many of these ambuscade counts in one suit for one thing, and that the defendant might also state one special defense in many ways; and, after A. D. 1700, many defenses, each in many ways, and all this with no regard to their truth. Add, also, that many downright falsehoods, such as that of "force and arms," and "finding and losing," &c., were necessary to be stated at the expense of being defeated by the omission of these lies, and you have an idea of the perversion which had fallen upon the beautiful system of good sense, which pleading, at first, really was.

Pleading had now under these principles made a departure from its original purpose, so great as to lead men to look in its face and ask by what reason or what sound logic it came recommended.

In England, and in this country, numerous surface changes were made, many years ago, but the judges seemed so averse to all change, that almost every reform was defeated by judicial legislation. Indeed, it may as well here be said, that all this absurdity had been introduced by the judges. The good sense of the legislature would never have enacted it, and so the less the wonder that the judges opposed its removal. In 1828, Lord Brougham made the first strong and elaborate attack upon this bastille of absurdities. From that speech, I will quote the following. He says:

"The precedents of the ancient pleaders, and the other rules recognized in their times, furnish the most valuable materials for this reform; and, indeed, it is chiefly from the science as they left it, that the principles I am about to state are drawn. The first great rule of pleading should be, to induce and compel the litigant parties to disclose fully and distinctly the real nature of their respective contentions, whether claim or defense, as early as possible. The second is, that no needless impediment should be thrown in the way of either party, in any stage of discussion within the court, whether plea, replication, or rejoinder, whereby he may be hindered to propound his case in point of fact, or of law. In the third place, all needless repetitions, and generally all prolixity should, as well as mere reasoning, which neither simply affirms or denies any proposition of fact or of law, be prevented; and all repugnant or inconsistent pleas should be disallowed, as well as all departure from ground once taken.

That these were the principles on which the ancient pleaders bottomed their system entirely, I will not affirm; but upon them it was mainly built. And I regret to say, that the last century and a half has witnessed great and prejudicial alterations

In a proceeding by ordinary petition, where the proceeding at law is the appropriate remedy, it is not proper to transfer the case to the equity docket, unless the equitable matter presented as a defense be valid, and one which the party has a right to insist upon. Jones v. Letcher, 13 B. M., 365.

Where an answer is filed to an ordinary petition, and which answer contains an equitable defense, no judgment for the plaintiff can be rendered in the original plan; so that the record in the great majority of cases, instead of exhibiting a plain view of what each party is prepared to prove, contains an endless multitude of words, from which, if the real matter in dispute can be gathered at all, it is only by guess-work, or by communications out of the record relating to things of which it gives not even a hint. Let us look into this a little more narrowly. The count of a declaration should convey information as to the subject of an action; but it conveys no precise knowledge of the plaintiff's demand, or indeed, of what the suit is about. Take the instance of the common counts, as they are justly termed, in assumpsit, being those constantly resorted to; and take the most common of these, the count for money had and received. I will take no advantage of the audience I speak before, being unacquainted with legal niceties, in order to make merry with the venerable formalities of the art. All lawyers know how easy it would be in this place to raise a smile, at the least, by recounting the little fooleries of our draftsmen; but I disdain it, and will treat the subject precisely as if I were addressing professional men. The plaintiff declares that the defendant, being indebted to him for so much money had and received, to the use of the said plaintiff, to wit, one thousand pounds, undertook, and faithfully promised to pay it, but broke his engagement; and the count is thus framed, the self-same terms being invariably used, whatever be the cause of action which can be brought into court under this head. Now, observe, how various the matters are which may be all described by the foregoing words. In the first place, such is the declaration for money paid by one individual to another, for the use and benefit of the plaintiff—this is what alone the words of the count imply, but to express this they are rarely, indeed, made use of. 2. The self-same terms are used on suing for money received on a consideration that fails, and used in the same way to describe all the endless variety of cases which can occur of such failure, as an estate sold with a bad title, and a deposit paid; a horse sold with a concealed unsoundness, and so forth. 3. The same words are used when it is wished to recover money paid under mistake of fact. 4. To recover money paid by one person to a stakeholder, in consideration of an illegal contract made with another person. 5. Money paid to revenue officers for releasing the goods illegally detained, of the person paying. 6. To try the right to any office instead of bringing an assize. 7. To try the liability of the landlord for rates levied on his tenant. What information, then, does such a declaration give? It is impossible, on reading this count, to say which of the seven causes of action has arisen; and it is not merely those seven, for each one of them has a vast number of varieties, which are declared on in the same words. In actions of trover, the case is even worse. Suppose the case of a plaintiff suing for any chattel, as a gun, the declaration will be such as may apply equally to at least eight different heads, under each of which are many different causes of action. The words in all would be the very same—that the plaintiff was possessed of a gun, as of his own proper goods and chattels, that he accidentally lost it; that the defendant found it, and converted it to his use. Now this count describes only one case, that of a gun lost by its owner, and detained by the finder. But it is employed to mean, secondly, that the gun has been taken by the defendant under pretence of some title, or in any way not felonious. 3. That it was deposited with the defendant, who refused to deliver it up. 4. That it was stopped in transitu the price not having been paid. 5. That the plaintiff is the assignee of a bankrupt, and seeks to recover the gun, as having been sold after the bankruptcy of the vendor. 6. That the plaintiff has been improperly made a bankrupt, and sues the assignees to try the bankruptcy. 7. That his goods have been unlawfully taken, and he sues to try the validity of an execution, on any of the various grounds of fraud which impeach the validity of the process. 8. That the gun has been misdelivered, or detained by a warehouseman or carrier. All those causes of action differ from each other as much as different things can differ, and yet they are all stated in the declaration the same way and signified under the same form of words."

The result was that commissioners were instituted to examine into the imperfection of the law in its various departments. These have labored in collecting the written experience of the ablest men in such departments, and out of the enormous mass of matter thus collected, have gradually been evolved, and recommended the desired reforms. In 1834, some valuable changes were made in the rules of pleading, and in 1852 and 1854, those important acts were passed which have in England until some disposition has been made of the answer; and the issues that may arise upon it, which are exclusively equitable in their character, are to be tried in the manner such issues were tried before the adoption of the code. They should be transferred to the equity docket. Bosley v. Maitingly, 14 B. M., 91.

If a party, in his petition in equity, fails to show that he is entitled to the restored pleading to its ancient simplicity, and swept away in one forgotten mass, all the irrational technicalities which had for so many years disgraced the bench and bar.

Of these acts we can only have space to say, that through them a man may be sued, whether in or out of the kingdom, by service of process. That the mode of service is natural, simple and prompt. That the facts are to be stated—that all technical forms and fictions are abolished, and the sufficiency of a pleading is determined by the sufficiency of its statement of facts—that there is established the power of adding or striking out parties, so that non or misjoinder of parties may not be fatal—the right of joinder of any sort of causes of action, except in replevin and ejectment—the allowance of stated cases—the sufficiency of a mere statement of facts in slander and libel, without statement of colloquium or innuendo—general averment of performance in actions on contracts with conditions precedent—a need of statement of specific ground of demurrer—no use of formal commencement or conclusion to pleas—special pleas of facts—abolition of distinction between debt and damages—facile production of documents in law courts—simple action to try title to land—such a power of amendment, in the language of the act, “as may be necessary for the purpose of determining in the existing suit the real question in controversy between the parties.” Power of common law courts to issue injunctions in law cases—also to issue a mandamus to compel the performance of a duty—the allowance of equitable defenses to be put in in law courts to law cases, and the ability of the law court to try the same—the allowance of an oral examination of witnesses in chancery, and an abolition of all technicalities in chancery pleadings, and power to add new facts by simple amendment, and a cheap mode of appeal.

This is a statement of only a few of the provisions of these two acts, and these with the act allowing parties to become witnesses in their own cases mark, to-day, the advance of English reform.

In this country, the state of New York, in 1847, appointed a commission of law reform, the result of which was a series of reports which in civil law, became the law of that state, and in criminal and civil law became, in substance, the law of nearly every state, including Iowa, which has made any change for the last ten years, and has been, to the smaller detail, since adopted in some fifteen states and territories of the Union. The central ideas of the New York act, are a simple mode of notice—an abolition of all technical forms of action and pleading—one plain mode of asking for relief by a simple and concise statement of the facts entitling thereto, and without any regard to whether the facts are such as demand a legal, or such as demand an equitable remedy—and a power to confer just such remedy as the facts may justify, whether such remedy is that formerly called legal or equitable—a liberal joinder of parties, and ample power to avoid by amendment any mistake in the number of them—a union under a new classification in one petition, of many causes of action, and in an answer of any number of defenses, or of other causes of action which are related to the plaintiff's cause—a mode of securing a true statement of facts by swearing to the pleadings, not for the purpose of making them evidence, but only to secure an issue of truth unincumbered by falsehoods, and thus to save time and costs—a short mode of pleading, stopping with the answer, and letting the law supply the replication, so as to save time, and the possibility of legal irregularity—a mode of taking all testimony, orally, when it can be so obtained—the fact that the demurrer shall state its reasons—the introduction of the motion to correct all defects of form, and to secure exact statements, which motion must itself indicate the fault sought to be corrected—letting the court try cases as a jury—allowing an examination of the defendant after judgment to discover his means—the power of amendment so that justice may be at once done, if possible. These are some of the reforms recommended by the commission of New York, which have left little to do, and have been since largely appropriated by all legal reformers.

This system was introduced even down to its detail, into Ohio, in 1853—into Missouri in 1850—into California in 1851—into Minnesota in 1851—into Wisconsin in 1857—into Oregon, in law, in 1854—into Indiana, with a slight departure in detail, in 1852—into Kentucky, with a departure precluding equity cases from being united with law cases, in 1851. It was recommended in a Code prepared by commissioners for the District of Columbia in 1857. It was introduced into Iowa, in spirit, with much departure from the letter, in 1851. It is the law also of Kansas, Nebraska, Utah, and Washington territories. Alabama in 1852, Massachusetts in 1852, Tennessee in 1858, Texas and Mississippi at a date unknown to us, also introduced specific relief asked for, and shows a right to any relief, even in a court of law, a demurrer to the petition should not be sustained to the whole claim, but the case transferred to the common docket. Foster v. Watson, etc., 16 B. M., 387.

Though a suit may be, in form, a suit at law, yet if the parties try it as a case in equity, and it be decided as an equity case, and it be a proper case for equity decision, and there be no objection, the court of appeals will so consider and decide it. Bates v. Calver, 17 B. M., 167.

reforms based, more or less, upon these reports—while Maryland in 1856, introduced an act, which is mainly a literal copy of the provisions of the English act of 1852.

We have said this system was introduced into Iowa in 1851. It forms the main features of the "Part Third" of our Code of that year. There were some misfortunes attendant upon its introduction here. 1st. There was no attendant report to tell us of its origin—to point out its aims, or to guide to sources of illustration. It hence followed that many, of both the bar and bench, not acquainted with the latest legal thought, deemed the Code a startling innovation, and without example as a departure from precedent. 2d. That while borrowed almost entirely from New York, except some parts which we think clearly improvements, even on the New York system, yet the terms of the parent act were so far departed from as to make it difficult even to those well versed in both acts, and almost impossible for others to apply the judicial illustration which the New York act has secured, to the illumination of our own. Besides, this act had not then attained its present extended popularity, nor won its way to the general acceptance of so many states and territories.

Then, too, in the older cities of the state, among the old men, the oldest and best lawyers, who were worked gray in the profession, there was a strong cleaving to the friendly old forms in the use of which they did, or were supposed to excel. It was hard for such men to forego a superiority, well and laboriously earned, and to be compelled to begin again by the side of the youth just immersing into the legal arena, with whose sweat, and blood, and scars, these veterans were so gallantly mantled. For these men had not learned then, what they have since—that the new system was the old system shorn only of its nonsense, and that no lesson learned in the logic or philosophy of the old, but applied as well to the new.

Then, too, were the mechanical men, who never went below the surface to find the reason of a thing, who lived and breathed in lifeless forms. There was also the fearfully conservative man, who thought that his long buried ancestors knew much better, not knowing his surroundings, what was best for him amid such surroundings, than he possibly could—and among them all, and rather for the reasons we have given, it turned out that the Code was not welcomed as warmly as it had the right to be.

Thus it was that ill-digested, hasty, unelaborated, obiter dicta, made with a poverty of inquiry deeply to be deplored amid the majesty of such an occasion, were announced, bearing upon its applicability to chancery, and as to what was in the total absence of all clear thinking, called its blending of law and equity. In Clausen v. Lafranze, 4 Green, 224, it was said that chancery was not included in the reform of the Code, and that we must go to England and English books and others, to learn what our law of pleading on that subject was.

And it can not be denied that while we have had no decision, expressly deciding that the Code does not apply to chancery, we have had none deciding that it does as well and as amply apply to pleading in chancery as in law, and while we know, as a fact, that it was so intended by the very distinguished lawyer, Judge Mason, who framed the pleading part of it, yet it seemed to be successfully insisted by its opponents that it only in some very undefined measure, so applies, and in many decisions a want of such applicability, in the same undefined way, seems assumed. The question was never made and discussed with an elaboration befitting its dignity and its value to the state, whether the Code did constitute the sole criterion of equity as well as law practice, or rather, of all practice. Its negative seems to have been rather assumed by an easier process. Nor was the question ever clearly decided whether or not the Constitution required pleadings stating facts, when the demand was for equitable relief, to be framed in a mode, and judged by a criterion different from what obtained as to pleadings which stated facts entitling to a legal remedy. Nor whether a statement of facts entitling to a legal remedy could be stated in the same petition with one entitling to an equitable remedy. But these seem to have been denied rather by implication, than by open avowal. Some vague reference has been constantly made to the Constitution, and because it uses the words "equity" and "law," it has been assumed that in demanding equitable rights, you must use a mode, which has heretofore been used in demanding them, and could not change the same—an argument, which, if applied to law, would also prevent any change in the mode of

An error as to the kind of proceedings should not cause the abatement or dismissal of the action, but it should be changed into the proper proceeding, by amendment, and transferred to the proper docket. A demurrer is not applicable to the question, whether the proceeding should have been at law or in equity. Trustees of Lebanon v. Forrest, 15 B. M., 172.

The defendant in an action to recover the possession of land, may rely upon an equitable defense, such as a claim to hold the land under executory contract; in such case, the party may have the cause transferred to the equity docket; if that be not done, the issue made upon such defense is not to be disregarded, but must be disposed of according to the principles which may be involved, either equitable or legal. Petty v. Maber, 15 B. M., 604.

asking for a legal remedy, and perpetuate the formal actions of debt, covenant, detinue, trespass, &c., as much as the formal character of a pleading wherein an equitable relief was demanded.

The fallacy lies in the fact, that these words have a substantive and an adjective meaning; they are used in the constitution to secure substantive rights. Inasmuch as all rights were included as legal or equitable, and both were needed to make the sum of justice, it was deemed best to use both lest it might be thought that while a man's right to sue for damages was secured to him by the constitution, his right to ask for a specific performance of a contract was not. But the adjective right, the mode of asking was not embalmed in the constitution, because it was, and is, a thing of no consequence—this would change with the wants and intelligence of the race. What was the use of the right of making a man swear to his answer, if you could make him swear in the case? What was the use of the bill of discovery, if you could put the man on the stand, and obtain the discovery by a shorter and more sensible, and more efficient mode? The advocates of the Code never dreamed that it confounded law and equity, because it provided a common mode of asking for relief in each, any more than that it confounded the substantive things, covenant and debt, because it provided a common mode of asking for relief in each of them; namely, the simple statement of the facts entitling to remedy. In equity, as at law, there was much not substantive, not essential to the obtainment and enjoyment of substantive equitable rights. The forms at law and at equity, too, were cumbrous, and often absurd; each needed change—and the aim was to preserve the substantive rights, and abolish the unnecessary and stupid formula of demanding them. And as the right to have a judgment for $100 on statement and proof of the facts entitling you thereto, which facts are legal, as heretofore classed, and which right is in no manner impaired, by the abrogation of the forms of debt or assumpsit, or covenant; so the right to have a judgment that a contractor shall perform to you an agreement, on the statement and proof of the facts entitling you to that remedy; which facts are equitable, as heretofore classed; will just as surely follow, although the form of the petition and answer, and replication and proof and trial is no longer as it was, but is as in law. Rights substantive are embalmed in the constitution—rights adjective, or the modes of asking for the former, are accidental—have been always flexible—never have been, in many particulars, well defined, are as obnoxious to the censure of useless pedantry and red tape circumlocution, as the forms at law.

In its acceptance, as to procedure, asking law remedies, our Code was more fortunate; and yet the writer hereof, who has been compelled to make some considerable acquaintance with the same system as accepted in other states, with much diffidence would suggest, that even at law, it has not secured that prompt justice, which it was meant to do; too many technical constructions have been applied to it, and it has been interpreted too much in the light of the very forms and precedents which it was designed to abate and ignore. We know that human language can not be put into a Code which will not need construction; the only hope of the reformer is to avoid this, as much as may be possible, and that such construction may be made by a mind imbued with the genius of the act, so that each extension of it to a new case may be in harmony with its main purpose. But we are led to think, that our new Code has not been thus construed, for the reason that although ample learning from the old cases adorns each decision of a point of practice, yet the multitude of decisions on the parent code in New York, or the sister codes in the states where used, which may be supposed more capable of furnishing sound illustration, seem to have been entirely overlooked. Since our Code came into force, a similar code has been in force in Kentucky, and in that state there have been five volumes of reports. The same has been true of Missouri, and in that state there have been twelve volumes of reports—in Ohio, in which there have been eight—in Indiana, in which there have been eight—in California, in which there have been eleven. All these reports are replete with learning on this system.

In New York, we find eighteen volumes of Howard and eight of Abbott's, containing decisions which have been made on the Code, and then through eighteen volumes of the court of last resort, we find scattered many decisions on the Code. Now, although our Code of practice is in its central ideas, the same as the New York code, and these sister codes, we have yet to find in all our nine printed volumes of decisions made since it came into force, the first intimation that the reasoning of any other of these states had been consulted, or that there was a code any where else, the decisions on which could be of the remotest use to the bar or the bench in determining the meaning of ours.

We say this not in any spirit of finding fault with our supreme tribunal, the very eminent ability of whose distinguished judges we would regard ourselves as very assuming, should we even endeavor to commend. In this, the state herself is not without blame, for she does not own the books on this subject, which should be at the disposal of her court. * * *

But we mention these things as our solution of the difficulties attendant upon an early, and favorable, and correct recognition of a code, which, although assuming to be its reformers, we hold to be a work of marked excellence, and only unsuccessful because it did not tell us its origin, and because in its scientific conciseness, it did not address itself more to detail, and in its compact generalization, it did not more closely follow the terms of the act, from which its spirit was borrowed.

These things being thus, the Code being in many applications doubtful, and in some having clearly failed to secure its purpose, the general assembly imposed upon us the duty, among other things, of making a Code of civil practice.

In the preparation of this act, all the reports made by former commissioners, engaged in the same duty, have been consulted. The codes of all the states we have before mentioned, have been before us, as well as all the reported decisions on the same—the English practice acts of 1852, and 1854, and the last expressions of English reform in chancery—the codes of Louisiana and France, which, by the way, in the inception of this reform movement, contributed much to the system, as well as all the works on the new practice in the states and in England, and the latest English works on evidence. * * * We preserve and appropriate most of the reforms of the code, and some of them we push further. We can not consent to return again to the dead mummements of the past, and we know that neither the people, nor the bar, nor the bench would allow it.

We offer no invention of our own—all we recommend has been tried. Some sections have been wholly suggested by decisions of the states where the new system is in force, some phrases in the sections got from those states, have been slightly changed on the same suggestion, and some have been wrought out into further detail. It were a prouder office to create an act, but it is a safer one to imitate. We have copied the very words, where we found no good adverse reason, thinking, that thus we might better avail ourselves of the construction of sister states—this copying literally, where practicable, has been done in other states, and we will soon have a body of practice decisions in the Union, which will make the new system as well understood as the old, while it will be free from its follies and technicalities. But let no man think this appropriation and adaptation to our use, has been without patient, protracted, and painful labor. To New York, and England, and Kentucky, we are most largely indebted for our act, but every state which has adopted the new system has contributed something.—Report on Civil Code.

when it appears that, by the provisions of section 2611, the plaintiff should have adopted equitable proceedings.

Trial of equitable issue.

SEC. 2617. Where the action has been properly commenced by ordinary proceedings, either party shall have the right, by motion, to have any issue, which before the adoption of this code was exclusively cognizable in equity, tried in the manner hereinafter prescribed in cases of equitable proceedings; and if all the issues are such as, before the adoption of this code, were cognizable in equity, though none were exclusively so, the defendant shall be entitled to have them all tried as in cases of equitable proceedings.

Where the answer of a defendant to an ordinary petition sets up an equitable defense, the trial of the issue should be as in case of equitable proceedings, and if the equitable defense be adjudged insufficient, and there be a legal issue, that should be referred to a jury, unless a jury be waived in some of the modes pointed out by the code. Smith v. Moberly, 15 B. M., 73.

Case where money is sought to be enjoined.

SEC. 2618. If the plaintiff's claim is for money due by contract, and the defendant puts in a defense of exclusively equitable cognizance, upon the plaintiff filing an affidavit that he verily believes that he will succeed in the action, and that the collection of his claim after judgment will be endangered by the delay arising from such defense being put in, the court shall require the defendant to give security for the payment of any judgment the plaintiff may obtain in the action, and upon his failure to give such security, shall order the defendant to pay into court an amount sufficient to discharge the plaintiff's claim and his probable costs; upon which order execution may be issued as upon a judgment, and the amount collected upon execution shall be brought into court and await the decision of the action, and be paid to the plaintiff or defendant, according to such decision. But no such security shall be required if the trial of the equitable defense takes place during the term at which it is put in, nor until all defenses to the action, other than those of equitable cognizance, are tried or disposed of in favor of the plaintiff.

Error waived.

SEC. 2619. An error as to the kind of proceedings adopted in the action, is waived by failure to move for its correction at the time and in the manner prescribed in this chapter; and all errors in the decisions of the court, on any of the motions named in this chapter, are waived, unless excepted to at the time; which may be done by the clerk noting at the end of such decision words of the following import: "To which decision the plaintiff (or defendant) excepts."

The code requires that when the petition is in equity, when it should have been at law, and at law when it should have been in equity, it is to be reached by motion, and if not so moved, the error is waived. Trustees of Lebanon v. Forrest, etc., 15 B. M., 172.

Uniformity of procedure.

SEC. 2620. The provisions of this code concerning the prosecution of a civil action, apply to both kinds of proceedings, whether ordinary or equitable, unless the contrary appears.*

* We purpose here more at length remarking on its central idea. Uniformity in the pleadings of law and equity, with a possible uniformity throughout, but a right of dissimilarity in the mode of proof, trial, and appeal.

We provide, see section 2999, that, as a main rule, in an equitable case, the proof be in writing, that the judge may try the same—and that all the testimony on appeal goes to the supreme court. Then as the exception, in consent, default, divorce, mortgage cases, and so forth, we provide that the proof may be as in law case—jury, or judge, may try, and find, and state finding of facts, that the court shall from such facts, find the law, which last finding is that upon which is taken the appeal. The former is substantially the Kentucky mode, the latter is that of our Code of 1851, and its retention in this limited manner we urge.

Its allowance in consent cases will not be opposed. Default, if there is notice means consent—if no notice the plaintiff can have no advantage, for the defendant has a liberal time for new trial on showing good cause.

In divorce cases, a jury has been in our judicial history always allowable to either party, who demanded it.

In mortgage the facts are nearly allied in character to law, and commonly no defense is made. The experience of courts has put them on the law docket under our code in many districts.

Perhaps to say this is to say enough to remove objection to its retention thus far. We will add, however, that the last mode is believed by two of this commission to be the most rational mode—the only mode consistent with real scientific legal growth; to be fully approved by experience wherever fairly tested; to be very necessary to a chancery reform; to be now commended by more legal ability all over the Anglo-Saxon world, than any other, as a mode of chancery practice; to be in conflict with no provision of our constitution, old or new; to be the most important, by far, of all the principles commended herein, and to be only the law as it has stood on the code, perhaps doubtfully expressed, for years. But the desire of unanimity in our report, and a conviction that something must be conceded to the opponents of this form of chancery procedure, until experience shall dissipate their opposition, has induced us to cordially unite in the double methods proposed, hoping thus to gradually disclose the excellencies as to the short mode, and thus correct misconceptions and prepare the way for its becoming, in a future day, the sole mode, if duly approved.

We provide that, if a statement of facts is made which the party thinks entitle him to a legal remedy, and placed on the legal docket, and found to entitle only to an equitable remedy, that then the defendant may have the case transferred to the equitable docket, and vice versa. Certainly none can object to this. While a distinct court had sole charge of all adjudication of facts entitling to equitable remedies, with a distinct judge, and differently named and trained legal advisers, and a totally different method of determining the issues, there were, whatever good objections might exist to these two systems of courts, and judges, and procedure, fewer objections against ejecting a case brought in the wrong court. But since we have gone the length of abolishing the duality of these courts, and of the judges, and since, long ago, by the best equity lawyers, the petition in equity was defined, as we define petition in all cases, there remains no reason for dismissing a case, which must come back before the same court—the same judge—the same lawyers, and in the same phraseology, indeed the very same petition, with only the change of additional costs and delay.

If a party, defendant, decline making the objection, he has the right to do so, and thus waive his privilege to have the case tried as a chancery case, that is to say, he may decline the right to have a judge pass on the issues, and may consent that a jury do so in the choice of either party—he may decline having the testimony taken in writing, so as to have the testimony taken up in full, to be tried again, by the supreme court. Both these privileges have, in the chancery practice of this state, been always waivable—so here is nothing new.

But lest the objection to this short mode even in its very guarded use, may be so formidable as to render its acceptance doubtful, we will proceed to discuss the objections made against its use.

And lest some may also object that we provide for uniformity even in the pleadings at law and equity, we will include that question in the argument. And, although we do distinctly recognize in this act the distinction between law and equity, and do not allow an equitable cause to be united in the same petition with a legal one, nor an equitable defense to be united with a legal one, nor used as a defense to a legal cause, save under the condition of being transferred to an equity docket, if the other party so desire; yet we will push this argument a little further than need be, and attempt to show that not only should the uniformity we recommend in pleadings be allowed, and the further uniformity in proof, and trial, and appeal, which we recommend in a very limited class of cases; but also that in all cases there should be not only a perfect uniformity, in all these, but that so far as adjective law is concerned, that is so far as forms of procedure go, the division into legal and been used by way of set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, in the action on which the judgment was recovered.

A party can not set off a judgment against his debtor, against one of an assignee of his debtor against him, though the debt upon which his judgment was founded would have been a good set-off if pleaded in time. Stiles, J., Pi cher v. Craig, Mss. opin., June, 1857.—Stanton's Ky. code.

equitable should be ignored, merged into a simple demand for established rights, and that any number of such demands should be allowed to be united in one petition or answer, without any regard to the kind of relief demanded, whether the same be a substantive legal or a substantive equitable right, so that in one cheap contestation the entire legal relations of two litigants could be adjusted.

Now all the objections made to one or the other of the positions assumed here must be classed under one of three leading heads.

1. That the appliances of procedure should be dissimilar in a claim for a legal, and a claim for an equitable substantive right, or,

2. That a claim for a legal substantive right should not be united in a petition with a claim for an equitable substantive right, or that an equitable substantive defense should not be allowed to be made in the same cause to a legal claim; or

3. That the same tribunal should not try both classes of claims, but that a judge should try law, and a chancellor equity.

Now whichever of these positions is maintained, must be so maintained, either,

1. On the ground that there is some essential difference between law and equity requiring it—or,

2. Some accepted decision requiring it—or,

3. Some constitutional provision requiring it.

We will consider in their order, each objection upon all the grounds thereof, and 1. We will ask whether the appliances of procedure should be dissimilar as above stated. If so this dissimilarity must be either

1. In the notice.

2. In the statement of the cause of action or defense.

3. In the form of proof, as oral or written.

4. In the mode of trial as by judge or jury.

5. In the power of controlling the subject of contestation during the pendency of the action.

6. In the kind of decision rendered.

7. In the kind of execution, or the appliance for enforcing a decision.

8. In the value of an appeal as to what shall be passed upon by the supreme court, law only, or facts also.

Dissimilarities have existed in all these appliances, but we will show that such dissimilarities were only accidental, never founded in any but a temporary necessity, and that the circumstances which demanded and perpetuated them no longer exist.

1. A suit is a claim made on some tribunal to do something for you, and a statement of the facts which entitle you to have that thing done. Now it makes no matter whether the thing you want done is a decision against your adversary for $100, or that he convey you one hundred acres of land—the former request would be a right based on the law as distinguished from the equity, the latter on the equity as distinguished from the law, but both on law, in the sense of the municipal justice of the land. In both alike you would need to have the defendant advised that you had made such a claim against him. But what in the essential difference of law and equity is there, which requires that in one case you should call the notice the court gives him in the former case, summons or notice, and in the latter a subpoena? Common sense would say, let the consequence be the same in both—namely, that whether the defendant come or not, the plaintiff have his decision on proper proof. Compulsory attendance and answer of the defendant, might have been necessary, when he was ordered to do something personally, and when you have no means of making him testify only in an answer in equity, but is of no need so far as pleading goes, when you can summon him as a witness and compel his attendance in that capacity, and thus more easily and simply obtain the same result.

There is nothing in the constitution that requires different forms of notice, and there has been an Iowa decision that a simple notice is enough. So here is no need of dissimilarity. Nor has there been any really in our judicial history as a territory or state.

2. Is there any demand in the essential difference of law and equity substantively which requires a dissimilarity in the mode of statement and counter-statement, or pleadings? Reason says, state the facts entitling you to $100, and ask for a decision giving it, and state also the facts entitling you to a decision, that the court

The code permits, but does not require, an equitable defense to be made to an action to recover a legal demand. The defendant permitting a judgment to pass upon a legal demand may thereafter have relief from the judgment by a proceeding by petition in equity. Dorsey v. Reese, 14 B. M., 157.

compel the defendant to convey you one hundred acres of land, and ask for a decision compelling it. The objector says, you sometimes, in equity, want a decision which depends on many and very complicated facts—the reply is, then state the many and complicated facts. Nobody says a petition in equity will be as short as one at law, any more than that all at law will be the same length. Each will depend on its contained facts. The objector says again, sometimes one wants to state facts which are not ultimate but mere evidence, so as to get a sworn reply to them for proof. There are two replies: 1. If a sworn answer for testimony were needed, and allowable, you might get it by our principle of stating the facts entitling you thereto. But 2. You have no longer any need of the sworn pleading as evidence, because you can take the testimony of your adversary either on the stand on interrogatories, or in deposition form, and thus better secure the result you want. It is true that former chancery pleadings were dissimilar from law pleadings, in this, that they were not only statements of a cause of action, but were also drawn with the purpose of making the defendant a witness. But this was an accident growing out of the fact that no law court could make a defendant a witness. Again, the objector says, a bill in chancery must anticipate the defense, and by new facts displace the same. This was not true while pleading at law and chancery were alike in going past an answer and having a replication and further pleadings. But when a special replication was no longer allowed, then if the plaintiff wanted the defendant's testimony to the new matter, which would have been stated in his replication, had he made a special one, he must state such new matter in his petition, in order to call the defendant out thereon. But now a petition will not be bad, because it makes more than a prima facie case, although it need not make more than that. And, indeed, the anticipating mode would be the preferable mode of pleading in all cases where the defense of infancy, statute of limitations, etc., would be replied, for such total statement would really constitute the cause of action. But such injection of matter of anticipation or replication into a petition in chancery, is not now necessary, because the testimony of the defendant to any fact can be forced as a witness.

Again, the plea was, as a pleading, a defense, such as may now be used in an answer at law, and the attendant answer sometimes necessary, was only on the ground that the plaintiff had a right to the testimony of the defendant, and the defendant could not defeat that right by any style of defense. And so, although the defendant might plead matter showing that the plaintiff had no right to an answer as testimony, yet he must support such plea by an answer; so far as concerned the matter he pleads, at least. But the need of this is avoided by the law allowing testimony to be got from him as a witness.

There were other parts of a chancery bill which were equally the result of accident. When a bill was allowed to be filed to prevent a strong man from oppressing a weak one—or because a man was too poor to sue at law—or because, in the days of force, several men had conspired to prevent another obtaining a remedy at law, there was some sense in the charge of combination, etc. But these grounds of chancery jurisdiction passed away, and with them the need of such statements in the bill.

The answer in law and equity, both constitute in reason the statement of facts showing that the plaintiff should not have the decision he asks. Whether these facts are facts constituting a legal or equitable reason, can make in reason no difference, in the mode of stating them. As we have said, when the petition sought testimony as well as stated the facts, the answer stated testimony as well as the facts of defense. But this necessity having been removed, such answer also becomes unnecessary; indeed, improper. This was an accident of chancery pleading, which at first was otherwise; indeed, was as law, and like it, was oral, and put into writing by the clerk.

I need not speak of the replication, which no one will deny is the proper subject of change, and was as in law till the time of Elizabeth.

In requiring a mere statement of facts, we offer no new theory of chancery pleadings—the best equity writers now hold that the bill need contain but a simple statement of the facts entitling to the remedy, and such has been the law during all our history, territorial and state. So we take it, there is nothing in the essential nature of equity and law, which requires that the remedies should now be demanded by dissimilarly drawn pleadings.

Nor is there in our constitution. That don't define or qualify the mode of asking for legal and equitable relief. It only declares that no such relief shall yet be accorded. It preserves the substantive right, and don't concern itself about the adjective Construction.

SEC. 2622. The rule of the common law that statutes in derogation thereof are to be strictly construed, has no application to this code. Its provisions and all proceedings under it, shall be liberally construed with a view to promote its object and assist the parties in obtaining justice.*

appliance. That it leaves to be suggested by the intelligence of the age and its changing conditions.

In the decisions of this state, is nothing demanding dissimilarity in the statement of a legal and an equitable claim, and the constitution expressly provides, that the district court's jurisdiction of equitable demands shall be "in such a manner as shall be prescribed by law;" and our law, territorial and state, has never demanded dissimilarity; so, we conclude, no good objection holds for dissimilarity in pleading in the two kinds of cases.

3. Is there any ground in the essential nature of law and equity, why the district judge, hearing the case, should have the testimony in writing, rather than produced before him orally?

The object is to get to know whether the stated facts of the plaintiff and defendant are true or not. Reason says hear the witness so that you can see whether he states the truth or not; you thus have the words, all a deposition gives you, and also the actions of the witness to illustrate the words. Besides, you are not then confined to the ambiguity of the words, or hopeless, under the doubt inspired by them, but can ask further questions to make the matter clear.

Historically, this was the most early mode, and remained chiefly the law until about the time of Elizabeth. And all chancery reformers have sought to introduce this mode of taking testimony, so that most of the systems which yet adhere to trying chancery cases by a distinct judge, have nevertheless introduced the mode of taking testimony orally, or allowing the chancellor to have a witness brought before him, whenever he desires it, for the purpose of examination. Such is the English practice—and this practice is recommended everywhere in this country, where the thing has been opened to the light of modern thought.

Again, the constitution interposes no objection to this. The question, whether or not, this need of written proof is implied in the appeal, we will postpone till the discussion of that question. Now, you remember, we are considering whether the district judge is compelled to have for his determination of the case, written proof. In the early history of chancery, parties were examined before the chancellor. More latterly, before the master of the rolls; and it was only when sick or aged, so that his personal attendance could not be obtained, that an answer in writing was allowed. Examination of witnesses was also at first oral and in court; and in our own judicial history, the right of oral testimony was established in Michigan, in 1805, and has been our law, territorial and state, always. It was also the law of the territory of Missouri, while such law reached over the now Iowa, that law and chancery proof should be taken in the same way. There have been dicta under the code which seemed to imply the need of written testimony in equity. But they proceeded on that right as a basis of appeal, and that question will not now be treated. There has been no decision that a case tried below, would be wrong, if not tried on written testimony.

We conclude, then, there is no ground for insisting that the mode of proof shall be dissimilar in a claim of equitable right from what it is in one of legal right.

* Every utterance in words is but a very imperfect presentation of the idea which lies behind, which idea gives birth to the words, and is sought to be announced by them. When the question of what the words were intended to enact, arises, it can not be wisely determined except by interrogating the idea which presided over the utterance. The mere utterance is but an effort to embody that idea, and may have been more or less successful.

The principle of interpretation, though of the nicest logic, is also of the most every-day common sense. A sympathizing friend can alone catch every shade of his friend's meanings. An enemy will half conceive, and misconceive, and distort them, quite away from their purpose. It is said, that, if to a daguerreotype, of a large town, in which image the naked eye can detect only a mass of indistinct houses, you apply a microscope, you will have revealed the life of the town, and the wares in which it traffics. These were in the picture before the microscope was applied, but the eye of the observer was not acute enough to find them. So is it with any pronounced sentence, it contains infinite possibilities of application. Sympathy with the idea, lying behind the expression, like the applied microscope, brings out its hidden meanings, and enables you to trace it down into its most secret and minute revealings, so that you may apply it to all the affairs of trade and life. Report on Civil Code.

Whether, however, the report of the commissioners ought to be ever referred to in construing the code, may admit of a doubt. In Martin v. Hemming, 28 E. L. & E., 544, where such a report was cited, POLLOCK, P. B., said—"I must protest against the construction of the statute being at all controlled by that. Several wholesome rules for the construction of the statutes are given in Bac. Ab. tit. 'Statute,' 1, and the reports of the commissioners

4. There is nothing in the essential natures of law and equity requiring that one should be tried by a judge alone, and the other by a jury. Certain facts being established, certain rights follow therefrom; and whether the right is a right which is called legal, or one called equitable, makes no difference in the integrity of the logic. Whether these facts exist or not, it is said should be determined in the one case by a judge, and in the other by a jury. If the case is named equity, then the facts must be tried by a judge, although they may be the very ones which a jury passed on yesterday, in a case called law. But the change of the name of the case has impaired the jury's faculties of finding the facts. But it is said that the facts in an equity case are so blended with the law that it is difficult to separate them. We reply, that it is also true in law that difficulties attend the statement of an issue which shall be of pure fact. Indeed, most issues in law, under the past mode of pleading, have been, howsoever narrowed, a statement of what but seemed a fact, till trial, and then branched out into a legal conclusion. That "A, promised," looks quite like a fact-statement, until the objector starts the question, whether the promise was legal or not, and then the proposition is seen to be a legal one, capable of being divided into its elemental facts of consideration, capacity of promissor, illegal constraint, etc. And the fact-part of all these propositions, not before seen, must be addressed to the jury by process of hypothetical instructions, after the style of this—if such facts are so, then such law follows. The jury in such case, pass on the facts stated in such directions, which facts were not supposed before to be wrapped up in the statement which looked so simple and clear. This was practically true in most cases at law, till the need of stating facts in some measure diminished the frequency of its recurrence.

Indeed, the difficulty is not greater in this respect in equity than in law. It is said again that the facts in equity are more multiplied. We reply, this is not practically true. Most cases in equity are little encumbered with disputed facts. More cases in law than in equity, have a complex mass of facts in dispute, now, of late years, since the allowance of joinder and of many defenses. The doubt in equity is chiefly on the law—on the rights established by the facts, not on the facts. Besides, to say that the number of facts, as one, or twenty, should determine the tribunal—whether it should be jury or judge, is to abandon the position that the nature of the remedy, as legal or equitable, should determine this. Again, to the insistence that the facts are so blended, etc. We reply—the facts, however blended, have got first to be found in each case. Facts establish relations and confer rights. It makes no matter whether a jury finds them—and then the judge pronounces the law on them—or the judge finds them, and then pronounces the law on them. Either the jury or the judge may be the best appliance to do this—but whichever you say is best, is so, without regard to the result which may come of the facts; and is by your own concession the best fact-trier, whether in law or in equity. Indeed, facts are facts, whether legal or equitable conclusions are deduced from them. Indeed, the same facts might entitle to either a legal remedy or to an equitable remedy, and often do; and yet, in one case, these facts must, by your theory, be found by a jury, and in the other, only by a chancellor, depending on the name you give the case. If you say, and we yet address the objector, the judge can make a lumping decision without any unmixing of facts and law—then, we reply, that he can not thus do his duty, because law and equity confer rights on parties by virtue of certain relations, that are established by facts proved; and to confer these rights without having found the facts entitling thereto, is to confer them, without having found the party entitled to them.

Again, the fact that juries are better able to try facts than a judge, has been, since trial by battle ceased, assumed in all Anglo Saxon history. It was said that the chancellor could not try facts, and must needs send them out to a jury.

The chancellor did, as a matter of history, send much matter, clearly fact, to be tried by a jury—and in our judicial history a party has always had a right to a jury to try any fact, and more than that, such finding has been binding upon the judge.

The main prejudice against equity, which lasted so long in England, was based on the charge that it was introducing a new mode of trial, unknown to our ancestors.

There is nothing in the constitution that requires one fact to be tried by a judge and another by a jury. Indeed that instrument would rather support the idea that the jury trial of facts was favored.

There has been no decision that one fact must be tried by the judge and another by the jury.

appointed by the crown are not mentioned among them." And PARKE, B. remarked: Lord DENMAN, in his judgment, in a very important title case, (Fellowes v. Clay, 4 Q. B., 356,) relied on the report of the real property commissioners. There can, however, be no doubt, that it is not a legitimate mode of construing statutes." But in Wood v. Dillingham, 1 Handy, 30, GHOLSON, J., in speaking of the sufficiency of a petition uses this language: "It is in accordance with the form given by way of illustration, by the learned com-

So we conclude that there is no such difference in the nature of the facts establishing an equitable, from those establishing a legal conclusion, as to require a dissimilar mode of trial—but that in both cases, it may be left to the choice of the parties.

5. Is there any reason why, in a case called equitable and one called legal, the court or judge, should have other and dissimilar power of control over the property in dispute during the pendency of the action?

Should not the court and judge, in both alike, have all the power necessary to protect and preserve it, if it needed this protection and preservation?

In early, though not the earliest times, law, judges and courts, had none of this power which the chancery had.

The reason was that a law court, acted in a case by a writ which defined its power to trying and rendering judgment—it had no power to do anything else—at least after equity grew up. Besides the law court was only open during its terms—sometimes there was no standing judge, but one with a commission for that term only, whose power was defined. The chancellor, on the contrary, was a fixed person, having power at first, by special, but soon, by general deputation, as standing for the king. He had no terms—his court was always open. If the chancellor had not had the power the statute would probably have created it in the judge, but did not, because the chancellor had it—and so there was no need of it in law. This is a necessary power in a tribunal—but it may also be useful in law cases, and should not be limited to one kind of cases, but exercised in all when the interests of the litigants require it. There is nothing in the constitution or in decisions which deny the allowance of this power to any judge, or confine it to a particular class of cases.

6. The kind of decision rendered at law was called judgment—at equity, decree—in each case it was the declaration of the tribunal, what the party or parties should do. The law could render only one judgment. Its power to act was conferred upon a stated case or set of facts; it could not touch any other matter. The judgment must follow the writ. Thus it soon attained a fixed unbending form, and was chiefly, that one have money or a piece of property. The decree or decision of the chancellor, was made by a court whose jurisdiction was not of that defined sort. It could make such decision as seemed to promote justice between the parties; it might award money or property, and might order things to be done, by either, for the other. It went so far in its inception as to order apologies to be made by one to another. This power of multiform decision is a very necessary one, but was only exercised by the chancellor because it could not be by the judge, and was not extended by statute to the judge, because it existed in the chancellor. Law courts now have general jurisdiction underived from any original writ, and so are not thus straightened in jurisdiction, and we could and should provide by statute that this power should be used by every court alike, and not be confined to any one.

The established justice of the land affixes to certain relations, certain rights. Reason says, let the court finding such relations confer those rights, by a decision, such as will secure their enjoyment—and no matter what you call it—judgment or decree. Nothing in the constitution or decisions denies this principle.

7. The execution is the means of attaining the enjoyment of the decision. Now this must vary with the thing to be attained. A chancellor constrained the person to do the thing ordered, by imprisonment—if the judge make the decision, he can compel its execution by such means as are given him by legislation, and these can be the same, or others, than those used by the chancellor—such as under the constitution are adapted to the urgency. Let no power of coercing right-doing be lost, but yet exist unimpaired, whenever it should be exercised.

8. Should there be a dissimilarity in the value of an appeal, in a case where the right demanded is equitable, from that in a case where the right demanded is legal?

Common sense, uninfluenced by law, would argue the question thus: The object of an appeal is to get some point, either law or fact, tried over again. The good reason for desiring such re-trial of such point, is the hope that it will be more fairly done. Will that hope be most likely realized in a new trial of a point of law or of fact? Is it more likely that three judges will correct the errors of one judge on law, than which judge they are presumed better lawyers, than that they will correct missioners who prepared the code, and the construction given by them to the provisions of the code, though not obligatory is certainly very persuasive authority, and will always have with me great weight." And in Watson v. Sullivan, 5 O. S., 44, a passage from the report is cited in the opinion of the court for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the code. See also 2 O. S., 621, 643; 3 ibid., 46; 7 ibid., 546, as to the authority of the debates in the constitutional convention, as aids in construing the constitution.

errors of twelve men on fact, each man of which twelve is presumed to be of as sound fact judging sense as any of such three judges?

Common sense would therefore conclude that getting errors of law better tried, would thus be much more hopeful, than getting errors of fact better tried; unless such trial of errors of fact were before another jury, which could occur only in a lower court, and not on appeal. That is to say, if our pretence is well founded that juries best try fact, then fact should not be appealed, but law alone. Each, if to be tried over, should go to that tribunal conceded by our system, best able to do it justice.

But it is said that the constitution in art. 5, sec. 4, declaring that "the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only in all cases in chancery, and shall constitute a court for the correction of errors at law, under such restrictions as the general assembly may by law prescribe;" necessitates that, in demands for equitable rights, facts as well as law should be retriable in the appellate court. We propose to examine that position.

There are two modes of action, which may be taken by a superior court, to which parties from an inferior one go for aid. The first is to hear the parties over on such case as they may then make and give a decision without thinking of the former one. The second is to try, not the party's rights anew, but the decision which was made below, and see if it, the decision, was right; and this trial may proceed, either on law brought up decided below, or on fact brought up and decided below; or on both brought up and either or both below decided.

The first we alone have in a case from a justice to the district court. The second we have in the supreme court.

The substantive right of taking up a "decision," to be tried, is called by the civil law, appeal—and whether it takes the decision up to be tried on fact, or law, or on both, as it may do, it is yet called appeal;—so that appeal don't necessarily in itself imply trial either on fact or on law, as distinguished or combined, but leaves that to be determined by the adjective provisions providing what thing shall be transmitted to be tried, whether law or fact, or both. The word appeal, and the term appellate jurisdiction, obtain as the name of the substantive right.

The substantive right of taking up a decision to be tried by the common law, whether it take the decision up to be tried on fact or law, or both, as it may do, is called "writ of error." The term "writ of error" don't necessarily imply that the decision shall be tried on law only, or on fact only; or that it shall be tried on either alone, or on both together, but leaves that to be determined by the adjective law, the provisions providing what things shall go up.

The chancellor was, as we have said, a civil lawyer, and when he gave a name to the substantive right of taking a case up for a review of the decision, he called it appeal—not because he desired that another result should obtain than that which would flow from the writ of error; but he had given Roman names to all procedure in his court, and so in the same spirit, he named this. Writ of error was, in his language, appeal.

The mode of conferring jurisdiction on any one to try a decision by writ of error, which was a commission from the crown to such person to do so, could not obtain, at first, when the principles of chancery had not got fixed into precedent, and there was yet no established law by which to try the decision, and when also the only tribunal considered cognizant of these principles, was the chancellor. But as soon as these decisions became fixed, and hence became law—then the commission which was actually issued to confer on some one a power to try the decree, was in all its elements a writ of error—that is, it secured only the trial of the decision.

It is true that the process called writ of error, would be less likely to transmit fact up to be re-tried. Because 1. that had been tried once by a jury, and if not done fairly, the remedy was against them, or by a new trial. And 2. there was no objection to a re-trial of the fact in the same court, because to ask it would not be asking any judge to correct his own mistakes, while to take up fact would look like defeating the right of a jury trial.

But in a chancery case, fact which was decided wrong, would not be sought to be re-tried before the very same man who was committed to the supposed error, any more than would law in the like case. Nor would the re-trial of fact in a chancery

Looking to the spirit of the cases in our own state, by which we must always be controlled, it seems to me that the report of the code commissioners may be referred to as an aid in determining questions of doubt arising under the code, but it is by no means authoritative. In this case, however, the passages quoted only speak of the spirit apparent from the whole instrument itself. Western Law Monthly of May, 1859.

cause, be open to the objection of defeating a jury trial, as that right was not conceded, but in clear law cases. So that it would be true, as a matter of history, that when special commissions to try decisions in law, and in equity, became current—that those in law cases would chiefly contain only law points—as they now do; while those in equity would contain also fact, as they now sometimes do. And yet that circumstance was only accidental, one to be demanded and defined in the commission itself. And when, at length, the appellate tribunals came to try decisions, without any special commission, they would try just what came up, so that if fact came, it would be tried, whether on judgment or decree, as is done now. And when later the mode of attaining such appellate jurisdiction was fixed by legislation, that legislation would determine what should go up, and it accordingly always has so done. So that the word appeal, don't necessitate that therein the decision tried should be tried on facts, nor do the words writ of error, necessitate that on such trial facts should be ignored, if they are there in a proper form. And, indeed, in each case, whether the word appeal is used, or writ of error, you can't tell without something more, what shall be tried. But for this you must go to the adjective law, which determines such things.

The reason why the appeal sent facts up more frequently than the writ of error, ceased, when the chancellor came to have a jury—and with the reason also, in great measure, ceased the fact; and with a full power for a binding jury trial the reason ceases altogether.

Appeal then means the substantive right of going to the supreme court, and is the equity word for writ of error, which means at common law the same substantive right—but neither of these terms do, or ever did, limit or define in themselves, what it is which shall go up for review. That is left to adjective legislation which may provide that law or fact, or both shall be so taken up, either by the petition of appeal or by the writ of error.

Again the word "only" as used in the constitution, is neither used to imply that in law cases you may go to the supreme court either by writ of error or by appeal, nor does it mean that you can go there in law by writ of error, only, and in equity, by appeal only. The "only" limits the kind of jurisdiction which the supreme court shall have in equity. It shall not be original as it used to be, but shall be only appellate. It means, whereas in some cases the supreme court has had original jurisdiction in chancery, now it shall have appellate "only," and also shall have appellate jurisdiction of all errors at law.

No writ of error is mentioned—no appliance is mentioned for securing the appellate jurisdiction—nothing is said of the appliances before in use, namely, the petition of appeal, or the writ of error—nothing is said, indicating which of these should be used—nothing prevents the legislature from providing any means it pleases. This "appellate power in chancery" is not defined—not made to apply to the law part, or to the fact part, or to either, or both. It is not limited, in its application to either, for although limited to the correction of errors, it is not said of what kind—whether of law or of fact—for the term is not errors of law—but errors "at" law—which may be either of law or of fact—and, indeed, were it limited to errors of law, in law cases, there would be no power in the supreme court to do what it every day does, namely, to give a new trial because the facts did not justify the finding of the jury. But even, if it were insisted, that the errors to be corrected, were errors of law, only, yet it is equally true that there is no word said of the means of getting them into the supreme court—they stand as to the mode, in the same unprovidedness of means as does the chancery. The term writ of error, as an appliance is no more mentioned, than is petition of appeal. Modes of enjoying this appellate jurisdiction are to be provided under whatsoever "restrictions the general assembly may by law prescribe;" that is, the term "shall have appellate jurisdiction in chancery," commits the constitution makes to no formal mode of such attainment of jurisdiction. Besides, if it were said that "appellate jurisdiction," implied a jurisdiction, to be got by appeal, and a "correction of errors at law," in cases of any kind, or of the law kind, implied a writ of error; yet, there remains the answer, that it is nowhere said what shall be appealed—whether law, or fact alone, or both—and this can't be implied from the mere conferring of the "appellate jurisdiction," especially when it is to be exercised "under such restrictions as the general assembly may, by law, prescribe." Besides, this is plain, the term appellate, if it should apply, that facts should go up as well as

ORGANIZATION OF SUPREME COURT.

[Code—Chapter 90.]

SECTION 2623. The supreme court shall be held at the capital of Court held at this state.

law, don't define the mode of taking them up, nor say that the mode shall not be the same in both—nor what the means shall be. The legislature may provide any mode it pleases, and call it by any name—and the Code did provide and our act in its short mode does, a method certainly not in conflict with any constitutional provision; and it makes the same mode apply to law, which certainly don't impair its efficacy, as a mode of appeal in chancery. It don't ask what kind of case it is, but says if you want law only to go up, take it up, and if you want facts, also, take them up—and if you want both to go up you can take them. That is, it provides one simple mode called appeal, which term does not stand in contrast with writ of error, but has the possibilities of the technical appeal and writ of error both. Indeed it provides that in all cases facts may be taken to this appellate jurisdiction, so that it would seem to meet the fullest demands of the objector who clamors for a review of them. But here the objector makes a new demand—namely, that not only the facts, should go up but also the testimony, in its very terms. Now there is all the difference between testimony and facts, which there is between cause and effect. Testimony establishes facts, and there certainly is no ground for the position that the terms “appellate jurisdiction in chancery,” necessitates its review. Such never has been the established principle of chancery anywhere—it has now and then been the exception provided for by special enactment; and this holds not only under the general principles of equity, as acceptably administered, but also under constitutions whose implications in favor of the preservation of every chancery right are much more positive than ours.

Let us review the usage in this regard:

There never was, in England, but in the earliest times, an appeal, in the sense of a trial of the case anew. The only appeal was, for a trial of the decree. * * *

In this country it is equally true that appellate jurisdiction in chancery, has no fixed meaning, necessitating that it act on testimony as distinguished from facts. The constitution of the United States, article three, section two, says: “The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact.” The makers of it did not think the term appellate enough to imply power over fact, and so expressed the word fact. * * *

Under this provision it was at first provided by congress that appeals in equity shall be by writ of error, and they were so taken for years. And in 4th Dallas, 22, the appellate jurisdiction was sought by an appeal, and it was decided that appeal did not lie, that a writ of error was the mode—simply because it was the means provided by the law, under the constitution. By this appliance, it would seem that it was not meant that testimony as distinguished from facts should go up. During the fifteen years that this was the mode of appeal in equity from the circuit court and district acting as circuit court—it was made the duty of the court to cause the “facts” of the case, on which was founded the decree, fully to appear on the record, either from the pleading and decree itself—or from a case agreed by the parties—or stated by the court. This was like our Code in its purpose. Not the evidence was sent up, but the result of it, and the court, if no statement of facts was sent up affirmed the decree, although the evidence was all sent up—3d Dallas, p. 184; and in 3d Dallas, p. 324, it is decided that appellate jurisdiction can be exercised only in conformity with such regulations as congress prescribes, and that a writ of error in contradistinction to an appeal is the mode so prescribed to bring equity cases up to the supreme court—and the mode of bringing up a finding of fact only and not testimony is recognized as in harmony with the constitution, which decision clearly sustains the mode we commend. And, although, now in the supreme court of the United States, a statement of facts, sent up by the judge, is no longer enough—that does not follow from any meaning inherent in the terms “appellate jurisdiction,” but, because Congress, which had the power to define, as our legislature has, the thing which shall go up, has now provided that in all such cases, the depositions also, and all proceedings, shall go up, so that now, if oral testimony is taken, which may be, the same must be reduced to writing, and appear on the record. But such demand was never founded on the constitution itself.

Now, let us see how this matter has stood in Iowa. Congress, we remember, had power to and did provide the appliance of taking up cases under the words—“shall have appellate jurisdiction, * * with such restriction and under such regulations as Congress shall make.” Now the Constitution of Iowa also allows the jurisdiction “under such restrictions as the general Assembly may, by law, prescribe.” It might be enough to stop here, and say that the legislature has provided the mode, and had clearly the right to do so. But we will show that there is nothing in this mode in conflict with those which have been current since we became a people.

We will not go further back than Michigan, though, the same principles existed here while Louisiana and Missouri territories. By the act of Michigan, 1833, April 23, the supreme court had both original and appellate power, in chancery,—the laws of Michigan became ours in June, 1834. In July, 1836, the organic act of Wisconsin was passed, and became our constitutional law. This gave the appellate right to be enjoyed “under such regulations as may be provided by law.” In December, 1836, the legislature of Wisconsin enacted “that the supreme court shall have and exercise an appellate jurisdiction only, which shall extend to all matters of appeal, error or complaint, from the judgments or decrees of any of the district courts, in all matters of law and equity, wherein the rules of law, or principles of equity appear, from the records or exhibits of any such courts to have been croneously adjudged or determined.” This act explains the use of the word “only,”—it takes away the original jurisdiction then existing in that court in chancery. It also seems to contemplate only a review of rules of law and principles of equity, and very clearly ignores the right of passing on fact, as also on testimony.

We became the territory of Iowa in July, 1838, and the same provision which had been the organic law of Wisconsin, became that of Iowa, using the same terms, as to the appellate jurisdiction of the supreme court in chancery—“under such regulations as may be prescribed by law.”

But the act of Wisconsin, as to the supreme court, remained law till February 10, 1842, when the following was enacted: “That the supreme court of this territory shall exercise appellate jurisdiction only, as is hereinafter provided, and shall have final and conclusive jurisdiction of all matters of appeal, error, or complaint, from the judgment or decrees of any of the district courts, * * in all matters of law or equity, where the rules of law or the principles of equity, appear from the files, records, or exhibits, * * to have been croneously determined.” The “only” is continued for the former reason. Facts here, too, seem clearly ignored—for rules of law, and principles of equity, have nothing to do in inferring facts from testimony. In January, 1839, in the act defining proceedings in chancery, it had been enacted, that on appeal the clerk should certify up “all the papers and proofs which were in his possession,” but as the same act allowed an oral examination of witnesses, and also a jury trial of an issue of fact, it would be quite impracticable to get all the testimony up, and much would not be “in his possession.”

But the point is, that it was never supposed that the terms of the organic act, “appeals in chancery causes shall be allowed in all cases,” in itself defined what should in such appeal be passed on, but left that to the legislature, and when they restricted its value, no court declared it to be against the organic law.

In 1843, the organic act being the same, an act was passed defining again the jurisdiction of the supreme court, and is exactly the repetition of that of Feb. 7, 1842, save that it reads “jurisdiction of all matters of appeal, writs of error, upon law and in fact." This shows an introduction of a power to try "fact." It don't limit such trial to an appel, but extends it as well to a writ of error, which also is a new term in such act. Appeal and writ of error are in that act applied both in the same sense; "appeals shall be allowed * * upon all final judgments and decrees, etc." In the act of February 8, 1844, the use of both of these terms in the same sense, and with a meaning only implying a means of attaining appellate jurisdiction is more apparent. "The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction over all * * judgments and decrees * * in law and chancery." "Writs of error shall issue * * upon any order, decree or judgment." "If a decree shall be rendered against two, and one die, a writ of error may be brought by the survivor." "Appeals and writs of error shall be allowed * * from decrees." And all through the act the writ of error seems to be applied to chancery. In an act amending the same, June 3, 1845, the writ of error is also applied to chancery proceedings.

In this state of things in 1846, the old constitution was made. Now, practically, the supreme court had tried whatever was taken up—if fact, fact was tried, if law only, that was tried.

The constitution of 1846 declared, as the new one does, that "the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction only, in all cases in chancery * * under such restrictions as the general assembly may by law prescribe." We remember now, the origin of the word "only," and we see that just as before they had done, under the organic acts, so now under the constitution, the legislature prescribed by law what should be reviewed, and what should be the form of the appliance. And in the Code of 1851, it was provided that a statement of the facts as found by the court, or a special verdict should go up in chancery, and that the name of the appliance should be appeal.

We trust that we have shown that the terms of the constitution only secure the substantive right of review, and leave the legislature to define what shall be reviewed—and that they in allowing only a finding of facts to go up, have not contravened any right secured by that instrument, nor contravened any right established by well defined chancery precedent. And that there is no well established right in our history as a people, that inferences from testimony as opposed to facts shall in the supreme court be reviewed.

2. We turn now to the second main question. The objector says, law and equity should not be mixed in the same case, which may mean that a statement in law should not go with a statement in equity. The objection has been based upon the different modes of procedure—but, if we have shown that there should be a uniform mode of procedure, we have taken away that objection. But, it may mean that a defense of equity should not be made to a case of law—and of this we will say a word.

Is there any reason in the nature of law and equity, why a case of law should not be met by a defense of equity? The old reason was because a law court could not take notice of an equity case. But say it can—and what difficulty remains? Certain defenses ever so just, a law court had to ignore, because it was not a court of justice, but only of that fraction of justice called law. And so it did wrong, to let the other court do right by declaring that its judgment should be disregarded or annulled. The impediments which grew out of the dissimilarity of the formula of procedure you remove when you provide that no forms shall be required in either—that facts may in both be tried by a jury—that in both, either party who desires a review may take to the supreme court both the facts and the law, or either, as he likes. The old reason for going to a chancellor don't exist, because the principles which he administered are now fixed law—besides, we have no chancellor—and we do not as a matter of fact go to a different court. * * * * *

Even the nation which introduced this system, and where its roots are surely deeper than in our soil, has partly abandoned it, and now allows, and since 1854 has done, that equitable defenses shall be allowed and heard in some law cases.

But here the objector interposes on this last question, article 5, section 6, of the new constitution. "The district court shall be a court of law and equity, "which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions," &c.

That means, that the jurisdiction of the district court, as one of law, shall be distinct and separate from its jurisdiction as a court of equity. Now it needed no constitution to declare that. It was very well understood before. A court always has been and always will be, in trying a law case, exercising a jurisdiction distinct and separate from what it exercises in trying a chancery case—as much as in trying an action of debt, it will be exercising a jurisdiction distinct and separate from what it exercises in trying an action of trespass.

Let us look at this thing of jurisdiction a moment.

One jurisdiction may be separate and distinct from another, in the point of locality, as those of Henry and Des Moines counties. Or in the subject of action, as involving personal or real estates; in point of quantity, as of a justice or district court; and in various other ways.

When jurisdiction was conferred by writ, the jurisdiction of the court, on the facts of that writ was separate and distinct from the same on any other facts, or writ. To say the district court shall be a court of law and equity, is to say law and equity are separate and distinct, and that the court in exercising jurisdiction in one, is exercising a jurisdiction separate and distinct from that which it exercises in the other. And to add thereto, "which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions," is not to render such jurisdiction more distinct or more separate. Trying a case of replevin for a horse, is exercising a distinct jurisdiction from that which is exercised in trying a case for a cow. And so, the court, while trying a case for specific performance is exercising in the same sense, a jurisdiction, distinct and separate from what it exercises in trying a case of slander.

Jurisdiction in such use means power of adjudication—or more briefly power. And, when a court is exercising one power, it is for that very reason not exercising another power, and so these powers are separate and distinct. While acting under the inspiration of equitable principles, it will not be acting under the inspiration of legal ones, and this will be as true, if it be required to act under the inspiration of either, or both, in the same suit, as if so, in different suits. So that in a suit combining two causes of action, one legal and the other equitable—or in an action legal by the plaintiff, equitable by the defendant, you have, while the court is adjudicating either cause, whether on the plaintiff's or defendant's facts, as full a certainty of attaining separate and distinct exercise of jurisdiction, as if the legal and equitable cause had not been brought in the same, but in different petitions—or, as if the equitable defense had not been made in the same, but a different suit, or as if the facts constituting it had been stated not in what we call the defense, but in a separate cause of action.

Indeed the facts of the law case, and the facts of the equitable case, in the same petition, are, of necessity, as distinct as they would be, if they were stated in separate petitions. When an equitable statement of facts is interposed to an action as a defense, it is in so far forth, as it is an equitable defense, in so far forth, as it would be a good cause, in a bill to defeat the legal action, it is in so far forth, a plea of confession and avoidance—or a cross-demand. It concedes the plaintiff's legal right to recover—confesses his legal case, and makes an avoidance case, called equitable. And it don't put in issue then the legal facts, it makes a statement of equitable facts, which, if put in issue, will be an equitable issue, and the only one in the case.

There is as much separation and distinctness between the legal and the equitable jurisdiction—power—exercise of decisive authority, in such cases, as if the same classes of facts had been stated in a pleading between different men in different suits. We will go further and say, even the facts involved in the legal statement, and in the equitable one, the issues coming out of a denial of them are as separately and distinctly defined when they occur in the same action in different counts thereof, or in the same action as a defense to a law case, as if they were in different actions. An equitable remedy is intrinsically different from, and can't be confounded with, a legal remedy. And that, not because any constitution makes or tries to make it so.

The district court shall be a court of law—means, having the power to try legal case of civil actions properly so called, as in proceedings of a special or independent character.

SEC. 2632. An appeal may also be taken to the supreme court from From orders. the following orders:

1. An order made affecting a substantial right in an action, when such order, in effect, determines the action and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken;
2. A final order made in special proceedings affecting a substantial issues, and to award legal remedies, on a statement of legal facts. That it shall be a court of equity means, it shall have power to try equitable issues, and to award equitable remedies, on a statement of equitable facts. Now, when it adds, which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions, it only says what is true, but is not made so, nor any more so, by that provision.

Suppose, before such last change, such section had read thus: the district court shall be a court for the trial of debt, covenant, detinue, etc., which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions. The sentence "which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions," would have added no intensity to the distinctness. It would not have precluded the joinder of two of these. Suppose it read, the district court shall be a court to try facts constituting rights to recover on an express promise to pay money and to try facts constituting a right to recover specific land, on an agreement to convey the same, "which shall be distinct and separate jurisdictions;" now, we insist, nobody could well urge from such words that one of such set of facts should not be joined with the other set.

If we go to the convention, we find nothing in conflict with these views; sixteen lines contains all said on a question, which more than any other legal one, has been and is now occupying the attention of Christendom. The mover of the clause thinks that the Code means "to mingle," "to combine law and equity," and as the supreme court decided prior to the adoption of the Code, and incidentally since, that law and equity could not be "mixed up together,"—so to make the matter plain, such words should be inserted. We have only to regret that even the intention of the convention remains yet rather obscure. This does not prevent the statement of facts which entitle to a remedy, called heretofore legal, in a petition with a statement of facts, entitling to a remedy formerly called equitable; provided that both statements be made in distinct and separate counts, and be not "mingled," combined, or "mixed up together." It would have been so easy, if the convention had meant to interdict the joinder which we have above suggested, to have said a cause at law and a cause in equity—or a statement of facts entitling to a legal remedy and a statement of facts entitling to an equitable remedy—shall not be stated in one action; nor shall a legal defense and an equitable defense be made in the same case. Nor shall an equitable defense be allowed to a legal claim. But there was an evil then, and yet current, to which the terms "mingle," "mix up," "combine," would apply, that is the evil of bad pleading—the evil that came of the first idea got from the Code, namely, that a plaintiff might state whatever he liked without method—without distinction of counts, and all "mixed up," and "mingled," and "combined," without any classification of the facts into distinct groups dependent on the relief which they were intended to apply. We will not say that this must have been the evil sought to be counteracted, for even that is not clear. But if it means that, a legal cause shall not be united in a petition with an equitable one, it spends its whole force on that interdiction, and does not apply as an argument against any thing we have recommended; although, it would then be an answer to that part of this argument which would quite ignore law as law, and equity as equity, and so unite demands for each. And if such is its meaning, we deem it a very pernicious provision, and a step back towards the past which the State did not know she was taking, and in which she goes as one blindly and alone, while her glorious sisterhood look forward and speed on.

[Here are examined the decisions which have been supposed to oppose this view, and letters given from distinguished judges approving uniformity of procedure.]

It will be remembered that in order to sustain the provisions in this act, this argument might have stopped with showing that there should be a uniformity in law and chancery, as to the mere pleadings with such uniformity extended, throughout proof, trial and appeal, only in the very few cases in which the same is specially provided, and needed not to have insisted in uniting law and equity cases in the same action, a thing not allowed in the act—but it was deemed desirable to explore the whole field of inquiry occupied by modern progress, and to put on record our views thereon, so that the concession we have been forced to make in this act to conservatism, and the supposed demands of the new constitution, may carry with it its own antidote, and may in the future open up a way for higher possibilities.

- right therein, or made on a summary application in an action after judgment;
3. When an order grants or refuses, continues or modifies a provisional remedy; or grants, refuses, dissolves, or refuses to dissolve an injunction or attachment; when it grants or refuses a new trial, or when it sustains or overrules a demurrer;
4. An intermediate order involving the merits and materially affecting the final decision;
5. An order or judgment on habeas corpus.
- Orders by judge. SEC. 2633. If any of the above orders are made by a judge of the district court, the same is reviewable in the same way as if made by the court.
- Make rules. SEC. 2634. (1557.) The court may also in its discretion, prescribe rules for allowing appeals, on such other intermediate orders or decisions as they think expedient, and for permitting the same to be taken and tried during the progress of the trial in the court below; but such intermediate appeals must not retard proceedings in the trial in chief in the district court.
- Enforce its appellate jurisdiction. SEC. 2635. (1558.) The court may issue all writs and process necessary for the exercise and enforcement of its appellate jurisdiction.
- SEC. 2636. (1560.) The opinions of the court on all questions reviewed on appeal, as well as such motions, collateral questions and points of practice as they may think of sufficient importance, shall be reduced to writing, and filed with the clerk of the court.
- Dissenting opinions. SEC. 2637. (1561.) All dissenting opinions must be written and filed in the same manner.
- Records to show. SEC. 2638. (1562.) The records and reports must in all cases show whether a decision was made by a full bench, and whether either, and if so, which of the judges dissented from the decision.
- General supervision. SEC. 2639. (1563.) The supreme court has a general supervision over the district court to prevent and correct abuses where no other remedy is provided for by law.

Argument Term.

- Argument term. SEC. 2640. The supreme court shall hold argument terms at the city of Davenport, in the county of Scott, twice a year, one beginning on the first Monday in April, and the other the first Monday of October.
- Business dispatch. SEC. 2611. All the causes on the docket shall be heard each term, unless by the parties, for good cause shown, continued, and such as are thus continued shall go to the succeeding term of the court at the capital.
- Appeal to Des Moines. SEC. 2642. From the counties of Scott, Clinton, Jackson, Dubuque, Clayton, Allamakee, Winneshiek, Hancock, Mitchell, Chickawaw, Floyd, Worth, Cerro Gordo, Tama, Bremer, Butler, Black Hawk, Buchanan, Delaware, Fayette, Jones, Linn, Benton, Johnson, Iowa, Cedar, Muscatine, Louisa, Washington, Des Moines, Henry, Lee, Van Buren, Jefferson and Howard, causes must be taken thereto. But with the consent of the appellee, expressed in writing on the notice of appeal, the appellant may take such appeal to the capital.
- To Davenport. SEC. 2643. Appeals from the other counties of the state shall not go to the Davenport term, unless by consent of parties expressed in the notice of appeal.
- Law of the Davenport term. SEC. 2644. The court at the Davenport term, shall have the same powers, and be governed by the same rules, and the duties of all the officers thereof shall be the same as at the term at the capital, so far as the same are applicable to a term which is only one for argument.

SEC. 2645. Each judge of the supreme court shall have as mileage Compensation. for the Davenport term, going and returning, ten cents for each mile by the nearest practicable route, and the clerk thereof shall have five dollars a day, for each day of the session of such term.

CLERK OF THE SUPREME COURT.

[Code—Chapter 91.]

- Clerks. SECTION 2646. The supreme court may appoint and remove its clerks.
- Place of office. SEC. 2647. Such clerk shall keep his office at the capital of the state.
- Register. SEC. 2648. He shall keep a complete register of all the proceedings of the court, with an index of the same.
- Control opinions. SEC. 2649. He must not allow any written opinion of the court to be removed from his office, except by the reporter, but shall permit any one to examine or copy the same, and shall, when required, make a copy for any one for a fee of six cents for every one hundred words.
- Announce decisions. SEC. 2650. He shall promptly announce by letter, any decision rendered, to one of the attorneys of each side, when such attorneys are not in attendance at the place of court.
- Record opinions. SEC. 2651. He shall make a record of every opinion rendered by said court, as soon as filed, and shall perform all the duties ordinarily pertaining to his office.
- Announce order of trial. SEC. 2652. When the clerk shall have arranged the causes from the different counties for their days, he shall publish the same four weeks in some newspaper, published in the city where the court is to be held, and send copy thereof to the clerk of the district court in each county in the state, who shall post the same in a conspicuous place in his office.

DISTRICT COURT.

- District terms. SECTION 2653. (1566.) The judicial districts, and the terms of the district courts therein respectively, shall remain as at present fixed until otherwise directed—provided that in any county where, by the laws now in force, terms of the district court are holden within any incorporated city or town not being the seat of justice of such county, the said city or town shall provide and furnish the necessary rooms and places for such terms of said court free from charge to such county.

* This chapter remains as in the Code.

SEC. 2654. (1567.) In counties where no time is now fixed for holding a court, the judge may appoint the terms by a written notice to the clerk thereof. No time.

SEC. 2655. (1568.) The clerk shall thereupon prepare as many written notices of the time and place of holding such court as there are townships in the county, and the sheriff shall post up one of such notices in a public place in each of said townships at least three weeks prior to the time therein fixed for holding the court. Notice.

SEC. 2656. (1569.) A special term may be ordered in any county at any regular term of the court in that county. Special terms.

SEC. 2657. (1570.) Such special term may also be called at any time by the judge for the trial of those causes in which both parties consent. Same.

SEC. 2658. (1571.) The court in ordering a special term shall direct whether a grand or petit jury, or both or neither shall be summoned. Jury.

SEC. 2659. (1572.) The court may, by its rules, establish terms in any county for the making up of issues, or the transaction of any other business not requiring a jury; but the number of trial-terms above required shall not on that account be lessened. Issue; terms.

SEC. 2660. (1573.) When a county is not provided with a regular court house at the place where the courts are to be held, they shall be held at such place as the county court provides. Court house.

SEC. 2661. (1574.) If no suitable place be thus provided, the district court shall direct the sheriff to procure one. No place.

SEC. 2662. (1575.) The district judges may interchange and hold each other's courts. Exchange.

SEC. 2663. (1576.) The several district courts shall exercise general original jurisdiction, both civil and criminal, and as well in chancery as at common law, where not otherwise provided by law. They shall also have a general supervision over all inferior courts, to prevent and correct abuses where no other remedy is provided. Jurisdiction.

SEC. 2664. (1577.) The clerk of each district court shall keep a record of the proceedings of the court under the direction of the judge. He shall, from time to time, read over all entries therein in open court, which, when correct, shall be signed by the judge. Records.

SEC. 2665. (1578.) When it is not practicable to have all the records prepared and thus approved during the term, they may be read, corrected and approved at the next succeeding term, but such delay shall not prevent an execution from issuing in the mean time, and all other proceedings may take place in the same manner as though the record had been approved and signed. Entries authorized to be made in vacation, shall be read, approved, and signed at the next term of the court. Same.

SEC. 2666. (1579.) The record aforesaid is under the control of the court, and may be amended, or any entry therein expunged at any time during the term at which it is made, or before it is signed by the judge as aforesaid. Entries corrected.

SEC. 2667. (1580.) Entries made, approved, and signed at a previous term, can be altered only to correct an evident mistake. Same.

SEC. 2668. (1581.) If the judge does not appear on the day appointed for holding the court, the clerk shall make an entry thereof in his record, and adjourn the court till the next day, and so on until the Judge not appearing.

- third day, unless the judge appear, provided three days are allowed for such term.
- Adjournment. SEC. 2669. (1582.) If the judge does not appear by five o'clock of the third day, and before the expiration of the time allotted to the term of the court, it shall stand adjourned till the next regular term.
- Judge sick. SEC. 2670. (1583.) If the judge is sick, or for any other sufficient cause, is unable to attend court at the regularly appointed time, he may, by a written order, direct an adjournment to a particular day therein specified, and the clerk shall, on the first day of the term, or as soon thereafter as he receives the order, adjourn the court as therein directed.
- Proceedings stand continued. SEC. 2671. (1584.) No recognizance or other instrument or proceeding shall be rendered invalid by reason of there being a failure of the term, but all proceedings pending in court shall be continued to the next regular term, unless an adjournment be made as authorized in the last preceding section.
- Same. SEC. 2672. (1585.) In cases of such continuances or adjournments, persons recognized or bound to appear at the regular term which has failed as afore-said, shall be held bound in like manner, to appear at the time so fixed, and their sureties (if any) shall be liable in case of their non-appearance, in the same manner as though the term had been held at the regular time, and they had failed to make their appearance thereat.
- Same. SEC. 2673. (1586.) Upon any final adjournment of the court, all business not otherwise disposed of will stand continued generally.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

[Code—Chapter 93.]*

SECTION 2674. (1587.) No judge of the supreme or district court shall practice as an attorney or counselor at law, or give advice in relation to any case pending, or about to be brought, in any of the courts of this state. Judges can not act as attorneys.

SEC. 2675. In 1860, and every sixth year thereafter, there shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, three commissioners of legal inquiry, who shall hold their office for six years, and any vacancy, by resignation or otherwise, may be filled by the governor, subject to the approval of the senate then, or next to be in session. Commission of legal inquiry.

SEC. 2676. Each of the judges of the supreme and district court shall report to the chairman of such commission, as fast as the same shall fall under his observation, any omission, discrepancy, or other evident imperfection of the law of civil or criminal procedure. Report.

SEC. 2677. Such commission may report to the legislature at each regular session, such amendments in civil or criminal procedure, as they may deem advisable, in order to carry out the intent and general spirit of the system of practice herewith adopted. Duty of.

* In this chapter, sections 2675, 2676, 2677 and 2678 are substituted for 1588 of Code, which had proved quite inefficient in securing suggestion. (William Smyth, W. T. Barker and Charles Ben Darwin were placed on that commission by the governor at the last session of the legislature.) Section 1589 of the Code was repealed. Section 2679 is new. The rest of the chapter is unchanged.

- No pay. SEC. 2678. They shall not, nor shall any of them receive, either directly or indirectly, any compensation for their services.
- Rules as to time of pleading. SEC. 2679. The district court of any county may provide by general rule, that in actions brought, or to be brought, in such court, the time of filing an answer, reply, demurrer or motion, shall be other than that provided in this code, and such other rules as may be necessary to the end that in those counties, where the same seems to such court desirable, issues may be made up in vacation.
- Other rules. SEC. 2680. (1590.) The said courts may adopt also such other rules as they may deem expedient, consistent with law, and may revise the same as often as they think expedient.
- Object thereof. SEC. 2681. (1591.) The prime object of such rules shall be to carry out the purposes of the statute, to preserve as far as is consistent with law, the substance of previous remedies, dispensing with all needless forms with the view of arriving at the prompt attainment of justice.
- Writs. SEC. 2682. (1592.) All process issued by the clerk of the supreme or any district court shall bear date on the day on which it is issued, be tested in the name of the clerk who issued the same, and be under the seal of the court.
- Proceedings public. SEC. 2683. (1593.) All judicial proceedings must be public unless otherwise specially provided by statute, or otherwise agreed upon by the parties.
- Oaths. SEC. 2684. (1594.) All courts have power to administer oaths, connected with any matter pending before them, either by any judge, justice or clerk thereof, or by any other person appointed for that purpose by them.
- Judge disqualified. SEC. 2685. (1595.) A judge or justice is disqualified from acting as such except by mutual consent of parties, in any case wherein he is a party or interested, or where he is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity, within the fourth degree, or where he has been attorney for either party in the action or proceeding. But this section does not prevent them from disposing of any preliminary matter not affecting the merits of the case.
- Sunday. SEC. 2686. (1596.) No court can be opened, nor can any judicial business be transacted on Sunday, except,
 1. To give instructions to a jury then deliberating on their verdict;
 2. To receive a verdict or discharge a jury;
 3. To exercise the powers of a single magistrate in a criminal proceeding.
- Where to sit. SEC. 2687. (1597.) All courts must sit at the places designated for that purpose, pursuant to statute, unless by common consent some other place is fixed upon.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to require county officers to hold office at county seat, passed Feb. 18, 1847 ? 1st sess., chap. 61, p. 78.

CONTEMPTS.

SECTION 2688. (1598.) The following acts or omissions are deemed Contempts. to be contempts, and are punishable as such, by any of the courts of this state, or by any judicial officer acting in the discharge of an official duty, as hereinafter provided:

1. For contemptuous or insolent behavior towards such court while engaged in the discharge of a judicial duty which may tend to impair the respect due to its authority;
2. For any willful disturbance calculated to interrupt the due course of its official proceedings;
3. For illegal resistance to any order or process made or issued by it;
4. For disobedience to any subpoena issued by it and duly served, or refusing to be sworn, or to answer as a witness;
5. For unlawfully detaining a witness or party to an action or proceeding pending before such court, while going to, or remaining at, the place where the action or proceeding is thus pending;
6. For any other act or omission specially declared a contempt by law.

SEC. 2689. (1599.) In addition to the above, the supreme or district Other contempts. courts may punish the following acts or omissions as contempts:

1. Failure to testify before a grand-jury, when lawfully required to do so;
2. Assuming to be an officer, attorney, or counselor of the court, and acting as such without authority;
3. Misbehavior as a juror, by improperly conversing with a party, or with any other person in relation to the merits of an action in which he is acting or is to act as a juror, or receiving a communication from any person in respect to it without immediately disclosing the same to the court;
4. Disobedience by an inferior tribunal, magistrate, or officer, to any lawful judgment, order, or process of a superior court, or proceeding in any matter contrary to law, after it has been removed from such tribunal, magistrate, or officer.

SEC. 2690. (1600.) The punishment for contempts may be by fine, Punishment for contempt. or imprisonment, or both, but where not otherwise specially provided, the supreme and district courts are limited to a fine of fifty dollars and an imprisonment not exceeding one day, and all other courts are limited to a fine of ten dollars.

SEC. 2691. (1601.) But if the contempt consists in an omission to Same. perform an act which is yet in the power of the person to perform, he

- may be imprisoned until he performs it. In that case the act to be performed must be specified in the warrant of commitment.
- Affidavit. SEC. 2692. (1602.) Unless the contempt is committed in the immediate view and presence of the court, or comes officially to its knowledge, an affidavit showing the nature of the transaction is necessary as a basis for further action in the premises.
- Proceedings. SEC. 2693. (1603.) Before punishing for a contempt, unless the offender is already in the presence of the court, he must be served personally with a rule to show cause against the punishment, and a reasonable time given him therefor; or he may be brought before the court forthwith, or on a given day, by warrant, if necessary. In either case he may, at his option, make a written explanation of his conduct under oath, which must be filed and preserved.
- Same. SEC. 2694. (1604.) Where the action of the court is founded upon evidence given by others, such evidence must be in writing, and be filed and preserved, and if the court act upon their own knowledge in the premises, a statement of the facts upon which the order is founded, must be entered on the records of the court, or be filed and preserved when the court keeps no record.
- Commitment. SEC. 2695. (1605.) When the offender is committed, the warrant must state the particular facts and circumstances on which the court acted in the premises, and whether the same was within the knowledge of the court, or was proved by witnesses.
- Certiorari. SEC. 2696. (1606.) No appeal lies to an order to punish for a contempt, but the proceedings may, in proper cases, be taken to a higher court for revision by certiorari.
- No bar. SEC. 2697. (1607.) The punishment for a contempt constitutes no bar to an indictment; but if the offender is indicted, and convicted for the same offense, the court, in passing sentence, must take into consideration the punishment before inflicted.
- "A court." SEC. 2698. (1608.) Any officer authorized to punish for a contempt, is a court within the meaning of this chapter.

CHAPTER 114.

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELORS.

[Code—Chapter 95.]

- Who are. SECTION 2699. (1609.) All persons who, by the law heretofore in force, were permitted to practice as attorneys and counselors, may continue to practice as such.
- Qualifications. SEC. 2700. Any white male person twenty-one years of age, who is actually an inhabitant of this state, and who satisfies any district court of this state that he possesses the requisite learning, and that he is of good moral character, may, by such court, be licensed to practice in all the courts of the state, upon taking the usual oath of office.

SEC. 2701. (1611.) The supreme court may, on motion, admit any practicing attorney of the district court to practice in the supreme court upon his taking the usual oath of office.

SEC. 2702. (1612.) Any practicing attorney of another state, hav- From other states.
ing professional business in either the supreme or district court, may, on motion, be admitted to practice in either of those courts upon taking the oath as aforesaid.

SEC. 2703. (1613.) The form of the oath aforesaid shall be in sub- Oath.
stance as follows: "You do solemnly swear that you will support the constitution of the United States, and of this state, and that you will faithfully discharge the duty of an attorney and counselor of this court, according to the best of your ability."

SEC. 2704. (1614.) It is the duty of an attorney and counselor: Duties.

1. To maintain the respect due to the courts of justice and judicial officers;

2. To counsel or maintain no other actions, proceedings, or defenses, than those which appear to him legal and just, except the defense of a person charged with a public offense;

3. To employ, for the purpose of maintaining the causes confided to him, such means only as are consistent with truth, and never to seek to mislead the judges by any artifice or false statement of fact or law;

4. To maintain inviolate the confidence, and at any peril to himself to preserve the secret of his client;

5. To abstain from all offensive personalities, and to advance no fact prejudicial to the honor or reputation of a party or witness, unless required by the justice of the cause with which he is charged;

6. Not to encourage either the commencement or continuance of an action or proceeding from any motive of passion or interest.

7. Never to reject, for any consideration personal to himself, the cause of the defenseless or the oppressed.

SEC. 2705. (1615.) An attorney and counselor who is guilty of a Disbarred. deceit or collusion, or consents thereto with intent to deceive a court, or judge, or a party to an action or proceeding, is liable to be disbarred, and shall forfeit to the injured party treble damages, to be recovered in a civil action.

SEC. 2706. (1616.) An attorney and counselor has power: Authority.

1. To execute in the name of his client a bond for an appeal, certiorari, or writ of error, or any other paper necessary and proper for the prosecution of a suit already commenced.

2. To bind his client by his agreement in respect to any proceeding within the scope of his proper duties and powers, but no evidence of any such agreement is receivable except the statement of the attorney himself, his written agreement signed and filed with the clerk, or an entry thereof upon the records of the court;

3. To receive money, claimed by his client in an action or proceeding, during the pendency thereof or afterwards, unless he has been previously discharged by his client, and upon payment thereof, and not otherwise, to discharge the claim or acknowledge satisfaction of the judgment.

SEC. 2707. (1617.) The court may, on motion, for either party and May be required to show.
on the showing of reasonable grounds therefor, require the attorney for the adverse party, or for any one of several adverse parties to produce - or prove by his own oath or otherwise, the authority under which he appears, and until he does so, may stay all proceedings by him on behalf of the parties for whom he assumes to appear.

- His lien. SEC. 2708. (1618.) An attorney has a lien for a general balance of compensation upon any papers of his client, which have come into his possession in the course of his professional employment; upon money in his hands belonging to his client, and upon money due to his client and in the hands of the adverse party in an action or proceeding in which the attorney was employed, from the time of giving notice of the lien to that party.
- How released. SEC. 2709. (1619.) Any person interested in such matter may release such lien, by giving security, in a penalty double the amount claimed by the attorney, and conditioned to pay the amount that may be finally found due for his services.
- License revoked, &c. SEC. 2710. (1620.) The supreme and district courts may respectively revoke or suspend the license of any attorney or counselor at law, to practice therein, and a revocation or suspension by the district court in one county operates to the same extent in the courts of all other counties.
- Causes. SEC. 2711. (1621.) The following are sufficient causes for such revocation or suspension.
1. When he has been convicted of a felony or of a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, in either of which cases the record of conviction is conclusive evidence;
  2. When he is guilty of a willful disobedience or violation of the order of the court, requiring him to do or forbear an act connected with, or in the course of his profession;
  3. For a willful violation of any of the duties of an attorney or counselor as herein before prescribed;
  4. For doing any other act to which such a consequence is by law attached.
- Proceedings. SEC. 2712. (1622.) The proceedings to remove or suspend an attorney may be commenced by the direction of the court, or on motion of any individual. In the former case the court must direct some attorney to draw up the accusation; in the latter the accusation must be drawn up and sworn to by the person making it.
- Proceedings. SEC. 2713. (1623.) If the court deem the accusation sufficient to justify farther action, it shall cause an order to be entered, requiring the accused to appear and answer on a day therein fixed, either at the same or a subsequent term, and shall cause a copy of the accusation and order to be served upon him personally.
- Trial. SEC. 2714. (1624.) To the accusation he may plead or demur, and the issues joined thereon shall in all cases be tried by the court, all the evidence being reduced to writing, filed and preserved.
- Judgment. SEC. 2715. (1625.) If the accused plead guilty or fail to answer, the court shall proceed to render such judgment as the case requires.
- Appeal. SEC. 2716. (1626.) In case of a removal or suspension being ordered by a district court, an appeal therefrom lies to the supreme court, and all the original papers, together with a transcript of the record shall thereupon be transferred to the supreme court to be there considered and finally acted upon. A judgment of acquittal by the district court is final.
- Liability. SEC. 2717. (1627.) An attorney who receives the money or property of his client in the course of his professional business, and refuses to pay or deliver it in a reasonable time after demand, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

SEC. 2718. (1628.) Where the attorney claims to be entitled to a Exception. lien upon the money or property, he is not liable to the penalties of the two preceding sections until the person demanding the money proffers sufficient security for the payment of the amount of the attorney's claim when it is legally ascertained.

SEC. 2719. (1629.) Nor is he in any case liable as aforesaid provi- Same. ded he gives sufficient security that he will pay over the whole or any portion thereof to the claimant when he is found entitled thereto.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to regulate the admission and practice of attorneys and counselors at law, passed April 23, 1833; M. D., 1833, p. 226, modified by Wis., 1st sess., No. 24, p. 54.

[Code—Chapter 96.]*

JURORS.

SECTION 2720. (1630.) All qualified electors of the state, of good Who competent. moral character, sound judgment, and in full possession of the senses of hearing and seeing, are competent jurors in their respective counties.

SEC. 2721. (1631.) The following persons are exempt from liability to act as jurors, to wit:—All persons holding office under the laws of the United States or of this state;—all practising attorneys, physicians and clergymen; all acting professors or teachers of any college, Who exempt.

* This chapter presents the law as it before stood in the Code, amended by the seventh session, chapter 133, except that a change is made in section 2732.

- school, or other institution of learning; and all persons disabled by bodily infirmity, or over sixty-five years of age, or specially exempted by any other statute from serving on juries.
- Who excusable. SEC. 2722. (1632.) Any person may also be excused from serving on a jury when for any reason his own interests or those of the public will be materially injured by his attendance, or when the state of his own health, or the death, or the sickness of a member of his family requires his absence.
- Jury lists. SEC. 2723. Two jury lists, one consisting of seventy-five persons to serve as grand jurors, and one consisting of one hundred and fifty persons to serve as petit jurors, and both lists composed of persons competent and liable to serve as jurors, shall be annually made in each county, from which to select jurors for the years commencing on the first day of January annually.
- Same. SEC. 2724. (1634.) Should there be less than that number of such persons in any county, the list shall comprise all those who answer the above description.
- How selected. SEC. 2725. On or before the first Monday in September in each year, the county clerk shall apportion the number to be selected from each township as nearly as practicable in proportion to the number of votes polled therein at the last general election, and shall deliver a statement thereof to the sheriff.
- Same. SEC. 2726. The sheriff shall cause a written notice to be delivered to one of the judges of election in the several townships of the county, on or before the day of the general election in each year, informing them of the number of jurors apportioned for the ensuing year to their respective townships.
- Same. SEC. 2727. The judges shall thereupon make the requisite selection, and return list of names as selected, to the county judge, with the returns of election, and further, provided that in case the judges of election shall fail to make and return said lists as herein required, the county canvassers shall, at the meeting to canvass the votes polled in the county, make such lists for the delinquent townships.
- Same. SEC. 2728. (1638.) The judge shall thereupon file said lists in his office, and cause a copy thereof to be recorded in the election book.
- Service. SEC. 2729. (1639.) Grand jurors shall be selected for the first term in the year at which said jurors are required, commencing next after the last day of July in each year, and shall serve for one year. Petit jurors shall be selected for each term wherein they are required.
- How drawn. SEC. 2730. (1640.) At least twenty days previous to the first day of any term at which a jury of either kind is to be selected, the clerk must write out the names on the lists aforesaid, which have not been previously drawn as jurors during that year, on separate ballots, and the judge of the county court and sheriff having compared said ballots with the jury list and rectified the same, if necessary, shall place the ballots in a box to be provided for that purpose.
- Same. SEC. 2731. (1641.) After thoroughly mixing the same, the clerk shall draw therefrom the requisite number of jurors to serve as aforesaid.
- Their number. SEC. 2732. (1642.) When grand jurors are to be selected their number must be fifteen, and they shall serve for one entire year thereafter; the number of the petit jurors shall be the same unless the judge of the county court on the written direction of the judge of the district court order a greater number.
- Summoned. SEC. 2733. (1643.) Within three days after such drawing the clerk must issue a precept to the sheriff, commanding him to summon the said jurors to appear before the district court at eleven o'clock, A. M., of the first day of the next term thereof (naming the month and day,) unless the judge of the district court has previously directed a different hour or day for their appearance, in which case such direction must be observed.

SEC. 2734. (1644.) The sheriff shall immediately obey such pre- Sheriff's return.
cept, and on or before the day for the appearance of said jurors must make return thereof, and on failure to do so without sufficient cause, is liable to be fined for a contempt in any amount not exceeding fifty dollars.

SEC. 2735. (1645.) If a person summoned as a juror, as aforesaid, Failure. fail to appear, the court may issue a rule returnable to that or the succeeding term, requiring him to appear and show cause why he should not be fined for a contempt, and unless he render a reasonable excuse for his failure to attend, the court may fine him in any amount not exceeding ten dollars and costs.

SEC. 2736. (1646.) Except when required at a special term which Grand jurors.
has been called in vacation, the grand jury need not be summoned after the first term, but must appear at the next term without summons under the same penalty as though they had been regularly summoned.

SEC. 2737. (1647.) If the requisite number of jurors does not ap- Deficiency.
pear by the time appointed as aforesaid, the court may at any time thereafter direct the sheriff to summon, forthwith, the number necessary to make up the deficiency.

SEC. 2738. Where from any cause the persons summoned to serve Same.
as grand jurors, or petit jurors, fail to appear, or when from any cause, the court shall decide that the grand or petit jurors have been illegally elected or drawn, the court may set aside the precept under which the jurors were summoned, and cause a precept to be issued to the sheriff, commanding him to summon a sufficient number of persons from the body of the county to serve as jurors at the term of court then being holden, which precept may be made returnable forthwith, or at some subsequent day of the term, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 2739. (1649.) Within ten days after the close of each term, Certificate. the clerk of the court must make out a certificate to each juror of the amount to which he is entitled for his services, which must be allowed by the county court and paid, as other demands against the county.

CHAPTER 116.

LIMITATIONS OF ACTIONS.

[Code—Chapter 99.]

Limitations.	SECTION 2740. (1659.) The following actions may be brought within the times herein limited respectively after their causes accrue, and not afterwards except when otherwise specially declared, that is to say :
Two years.	1. Actions of slander, libel, malicious prosecution, injuries to the person, or for a statute penalty, within two years ;
Three years.	2. Those against a sheriff or other public officer growing out of a liability incurred by the doing of an act in an official capacity, or by the omission of an official duty, including the non-payment of money collected on execution, within three years ;
Five years.	3. Those founded on unwritten contracts, those brought for injuries to property or for relief on the ground of fraud in cases heretofore solely cognizable in a court of chancery, and all other actions not otherwise provided for in this respect, within five years ;
Ten years.	4. Those founded on written contracts, on judgments of any courts (except those courts provided for in the next section,) and those brought for the recovery of real property, within ten years ;
Twenty years.	5. Those founded on a judgment of a court of record, whether of this or of any other of the United States, or of the federal courts of the United States, within twenty years.
Actions for fraud.	SEC. 2741. (1660.) In actions for relief on the ground of fraud as above contemplated, the cause of action will not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery of the fraud by the party aggrieved.
Effect of answer.	SEC. 2742. (1661.) In actions founded upon contract the above limitations shall not apply if from the answer of the defendant or from his testimony as a witness it appears affirmatively that the cause of action still justly subsists. But the answer of one of several defendants shall not prejudice the interests of others in this respect.
Open account.	SEC. 2743. (1662.) Where there is a continuous open current account, the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued on the date of the last item therein as proved on the trial.
Commencement of action.	SEC. 2744. (1663.) The delivery of the original notice to the sheriff of the proper county with intent that it be served immediately, (which intent shall be presumed unless the contrary appears,) or the actual service of that notice by another person, is a commencement of the action.
Time of non-residence.	SEC. 2745. (1664.) The time during which a defendant is a non-resident of the state shall not be included in computing any of the periods of limitation above prescribed.
Exception.	SEC. 2746. (1665.) But when a cause of action has been fully barred by the laws of any country where the defendant has previously resided, such bar shall be the same defense here as though it had arisen under the provisions of this chapter.
Minors.	SEC. 2747. (1666.) The above limitation of actions for the recovery of real property shall not apply to minors so far as to prevent them from having at least one year after attaining their majority within which to commence such actions.

SEC. 2748. (1667.) If the person entitled to a cause of action die within one year next previous to the expiration of the limitation above provided for, the limitation above mentioned shall not apply until one year after such death. Death.

SEC. 2749. (1668.) If after the commencement of an action the plaintiff fail therein for any cause except negligence in its prosecution, and a new suit be brought within six months thereafter, the second suit shall for the purposes herein contemplated be deemed a continuation of the first. Failure of action.

SEC. 2750. (1669.) The above limitations and provisions shall not apply to evidences of debt intended to circulate as money, but shall in other respects be applicable to all actions brought by or against all bodies corporate and politic except when otherwise expressly declared. Bank bills.

SEC. 2751. Causes of action founded on contract are revived by an admission that the debt is unpaid, as well as by a new promise to pay the same. But such admission or new promise must be in writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby. Admission.

SEC. 2752. A defendant may plead a set-off or counter-claim to any cause of action, notwithstanding such set-off or counter-claim is barred by the statute, provided that the claim pleaded as such set-off was owned by the defendant at the time the same became barred by the statute.

SEC. 2753. (1671.) The provisions of this chapter are intended to apply to causes of action which have already accrued and are not yet barred, subject to the regulations contained in the following two sections. Existing contracts.

SEC. 2754. (1672.) The times hereafter allowed for commencing actions in such cases shall not be less than one-half the periods of limitation herein respectively prescribed, except as provided in the next section. Qualifications.

SEC. 2755. (1673.) But where the period of limitation heretofore fixed by statute is not enlarged by the provisions of the first section of this chapter, the time allowed for the commencement of a suit shall in no case be greater than that fixed by the law heretofore in force as applied to those cases. Same.

SEC. 2756. (1674.) The time of limitation in relation to actions for the recovery of real estate as prescribed in this chapter, shall not commence to run in favor of a settler on any public lands until such lands have been sold by the state. Public lands.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. Limitation of real actions, 60 years, passed Feb. 26, 1821; M. D., p. 385., secs. 26 and 28; repealed Nov. 5, 1829; M. D., 1833., p. 408, made 10 years, though rather questionable if it held, as the law was of date 1833, of 60 years.

2. An act to amend an act entitled "An act for the limitation of penal statutes, criminal prosecutions, and actions at law," passed Nov. 5, 1829; M. D., 1833, p. 408.

3. An act for the limitation of suits, &c., passed May 15, 1820; M. D., 1833, p. 569.

All the above repealed Aug. 30, 1840.

4. An act limiting actions, passed Jan. 25, took effect Feb. 25, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 325. Repealed by No. 5 hereof.

5. An act for the limitation of actions and for avoiding vexatious law suits, passed Feb. 15, took effect July 4, 1843; Reprint, chap. 94, p. 384.

CHAPTER 117.

[Code—Chapter 100.]*

PARTIES TO AN ACTION.

Parties to action.

SECTION 2757. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as provided in the next section.

Since the code, an assignee takes precisely the same interest on the assignment of every species of demand, either at law or in equity, as he did before. Hence, if the demand is such as was capable of assignment before the code was adopted, so as to carry an equitable interest to the assignee, it is such a demand as will now pass by assignment, so as to give the assignee a right of action thereon. Claims for mere personal torts, which die with the person—such as slander, assault and battery, false imprisonment, crim. con., seduction, and the like, are not assignable; but claims for taking and converting personal property, or for injury to personal property, and it seems, generally, all such rights of action for a tort as would survive to the personal representatives of the party, may be assigned, so as to pass an interest to the assignee, which he can assert in his own name in a civil action under the code, as he formerly might do in the name of the assignor, at law. Butler v. The N. Y. & Erie R. R. Co., 22 Barb., 110; Hodgman v. Western R. R. Corporation, 7 How., 492.

A right of action for the wrongful taking and conversion of personal property is assignable; and under the provisions of the code, the assignee can recover upon the same in his own name. An assignment by a person of all his property and estate, transfers a right of action existing in his favor for the tortious conversion of personal property. McKee v. Judd, 2 Kern, 622.

No formality is necessary to effect the transfer of a chose in action. Any transaction between the contracting parties indicating their intention to pass the beneficial interest in the instrument from one to the other, is sufficient for that purpose. Hastings v. McKinley; 1 E. D. Smith.

A principal may sue in his own name upon a simple contract in writing made with his agent, and in the agent's name, of which the principal is the sole owner. This section is an enactment of the rule respecting parties which has always prevailed in courts of equity; and it should be applied, as far as practicable, according to the principles adopted in those courts. Grinnell v. Schmidt, 2 Sand., 705.

A dormant partner is a necessary party as a plaintiff in an action for the recovery of a partnership debt founded on a partnership contract, whether the relief sought be legal or equitable. Secor v. Keller, 4 Duer, 416.

Any transaction between the parties which indicates their intention to pass the beneficial interest in the instrument from one to the other is sufficient; a debt or claim may be assigned by parol. Sto. Eq., 311; 4 Taunt., 326; Rob. on Fr., 275; Blackf., 380; 3 Sme., & M., 647; Hastings v. McKinley, 1 E. D., Smith, 273.

* The provisions of this chapter either exactly or substantially, may be found under the same title, in the codes of N. Y., Ohio, Ky., Ind., Mo., Wis., Minn., Cal., Oregon and in all the territories. In order to obtain the exact value of the decisions cited herein as indeed in all this Part Third, the codes on which the decisions are based, should in each case be consulted.

Real party, who is, 1 E. D. Smith, 273; 17 Barb., 458; 2 Sandf., 705; 4 Duer, 416; 5 Seld., 175; 6 O. S. R., 27; 3 Seld., 229; W. L. M., 1st Vol., p. 545.

See Western Law Monthly, Vol. 1st, p. 437; 7 Ind., 615; Garrison v. Clark, 11 Ind. R., 369; 10 Ind. R., 174.

Our new code of practice has simply adopted, on this subject, the former chancery rule as the general one. Ind. Dig., 632.

Even before the code, the assignee of an assignable right in action, was deemed by courts of law, as well as of equity, to have the real interest in the thing assigned, though not the legal title; and those courts in the exercise of an equitable power over their own proceedings and judgments, would protect those rights of an assignee, by order when applied to for that purpose, though the action was prosecuted in the name of the assignor; while in equity the assignee was allowed as he is now required, in all courts to pursue his action in his own name. The action can not be longer maintained in the name of the assignor; nor is he, in general, at all a proper party. August No. of Western Law Monthly, 1859.

In the Board, etc. v. Mason, 9 Ind. R., 97, a doubt is expressed whether one of two joint payees of a county order could assign his interest to the other, so as to enable the latter to sue in his own name: but there can be no doubt that such an assignment would vest the equitable interest, and enable the assignee, under the statute, to sue. Garrison v. Clark, 11 Ind. R., 369.

The whole subject as to parties, may be summed up thus: Before the new Code, there were two classes of cases, law and equity, in which the rule as to parties was different. The latter system was broader, and embraced the former.

It grew out of a necessity occasioned by the complication of the relations among men, which the narrower system did not meet. The framers of the new code determined to have but one system, and from the necessity of the case, were compelled to take the broader, in order to have a system equal to all exigencies. Hence, the old chancery books give the existing rules as to parties.

Where a promise is made by one party to another for the benefit of a third, as if A. promised B. to pay C. a sum of money, it was held at common law, in this state, though in some of the states it was decided differently, that C. could not sue A. for the money, but that the suit must be by B. for C's use—in other words, that the suit must be between the parties by and to whom the promise was made; but it was held, that in equity C. could sue; and as in our present system of pleading and practice the rules of equity prevail, it may, perhaps, be laid down that now, in this state, a person, not a party to a contract, but being the person for whose benefit it is made, may sue. Ind. Dig., 67; Bird v. Lanius, 7 Ind. R., 615. And it seems that the person having the legal interest in such a contract, is a trustee of an express trust, and may also sue. 2 R. S., p. 27, sec. 4; 1 Chit. Eq. Pl., 3; Perkin's Practice.

Possession of a negotiable promissory note is presumptive evidence of title, Moltram v. Mills, 1 Sand., 37; and where the plaintiff, a bank, sued on a draft payable to W. B. S., their cashier, and the complaint alleged that it was delivered to the said W. B. S., cashier "for the said bank," held, on demurrer to the complaint, that the action was well brought in the name of the bank. Camden Bank v. Rogers, 3 Code Rep. 45; 4 Pr. R. 63; East River Bank v. Judah, 10 Pr. R. 135.

When an agent made a contract in writing in his own name, without disclosing the name of the principal, it was held that the principal was the real party in interest, and might sue on the contract in his own name. Erickson v. Compton, 6 Pr. R., 471.

A, as agent for the plaintiff, effected a policy of insurance on the property of the plaintiff. The policy was in the name of A, as principal, and contained a clause that any loss should be paid to A, only. A loss having occurred, it was held that plaintiff might maintain an action—being the real party in interest. Lane v. Columbus Ins. Co., 2 Code Rep., 65.

The real owner of a note sued on is a necessary party plaintiff to a suit to recover the amount, and no judgment for the money can be rendered until he is a party. The payee is a proper party plaintiff also. Carpenter v. Miles, 17 B. M., 603.

The fact that the plaintiff has not the actual possession of the note sued upon, does not affect his right to recover upon it. It is sufficient if he have a right to the money due upon it. Smith v. McClure, 5 East., 476; 2 Sand., 47 a. note (1) Selden v. Pringle, 17 Barb., 468; Hastings v. McKinley, 1 E. D. Smith, 273.

Whether the plaintiff's title be legal or equitable, is immaterial, if he have the whole interest he may maintain the action. Hastings v. McKinley, 1 E. D. Smith, 273.

It is for the court to say, upon a given state of facts, whether a plaintiff is the real party in interest. Williams & Yeatman v. Whitlock, 14 Mo. Rep., 552. Vide, McLaughlin v. McLaughlin, 16 Mo. Rep., 242; Smith v. Kennett, 18 Mo. Rep., 154; Walker v. Mauro, 18 Mo. Rep., 564; Finney v. Brant, 19 Mo. Rep., 42; Bergesch v. Keenil, 19 Mo. Rep., 127. The assignee of an account may sue in his own name. Smith v. Schibel, 19 Mo. Rep., 140. A debt, evidenced by a note which is lost, may be assigned, so as to enable the assignee to sue in his own name. Long v. Constant, 19 Mo. Rep., 320. The assignee of a claim for damages upon a broken covenant of seizin must sue in his own name. Van Doren v. Relfe, 20 Mo. Rep., 455.

SEC. 2758. An executor or administrator, a guardian, a trustee of an express trust, a party with whom, or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, or a party expressly authorized by statute, may sue in his own name without joining with him the party for whose benefit the suit is prosecuted. <sup>Same.</sup>

Although a public auctioneer has received his advances and commissions, and has no interest in the property sold, or its proceeds, he may maintain an action for the price where he sells the goods for another. Minturn v. Main, 3 Seld., 220; and Bagert v. O'Regan, 1 E. D. Smith, 590.

A factor or other mercantile agent, who contracts in his own name, on behalf of his principal, is a trustee of an express trust, within the meaning of the code, and is the proper party to bring an action upon the contract. Grinnell v. Schmidt, 2 Sand., 705.

An executor or administrator may maintain an action, either in his own name or as executor or administrator, for a debt due to the testator or intestate, at the time of his decease. If such an action be brought in his own names, the defendant can not set off a claim against the testator or intestate which existed at the time of his death. Merritt v. Seaman, 2 Seld., 168; Bright v. Currie, 5 Sand., 433.

Vide, Yates v. Kimmell, 5 Mo. Rep., 87; Robbins v. Aynes, 10 Mo. Rep., 538; Craig v. Callaway county court, 12 Mo. Rep., 94; Linn Co. v. Holland & Beckett, ibid., 127; Reed v. Wilson & Garner, 13 Mo. Rep.

A person with whom, or in whose name, a contract is made, for the benefit of another, is a trustee of an express trust. Harney v. Dutcher, 15 Mo. Rep., 89; Miles v. Davis & Taylor, 19 Mo. Rep., 408.

On a promissory note given to an executor or administrator, on account of the decedent's estate, he may sue either individually, or in his representative character. Bright v. Currie, 5 Sand., 433; Merritt v. Seaman, 2 Selden, 168.

The nominal proprietor of an individual bank, who furnishes the securities to the comptroller, and to whom the circulating notes of the bank are delivered by that officer, and in whose name as proprietor, all the contracts and transactions of the bank are made and conducted, is a "trustee of an express trust," within the meaning of this section. Burbank v. Beech, 15 Barb., 326.

Mercantile factors or agents doing business for others, but in their own names, are trustees of an express trust. Grinnell v. Schmidt, 3 Code Rep., 19; 2 Sand., 706.

An auctioneer, who in his own name, sells goods for a third person, is the trustee of an express trust within this section, and may sue on the contract of sale without an assignment to him of the cause of action, Bogart v. O'Regan,

1 Smith, 590; but independent of this section it was always the law that an auctioneer might sue on the contract of sale in his own name, unless his principal elected to bring the action in his name. Minturn v. Main, 3 Selden, 224.

Who plaintiffs.

SEC. 2759. All persons having an interest in the subject of the action, and in obtaining the relief demanded, may be joined as plaintiffs, except where it is otherwise provided in this code.

The rule prescribed by the code is applicable to all suits, whether at law or in equity. Loomis v. Brown, 16 Barb., 331.

Where an action is brought on an injunction bond, the subject of the action being the damages sustained by the plaintiffs in consequence of an injunction, all the obligees may join as plaintiffs, notwithstanding the claim of one of them is different in its character and amount from that of others. Ibid.

Different creditors of a corporation, having a common interest in the relief sought, may unite in the same complaint. Conro v. Port Henry Iron Co., 12 Barb., 28.

Different persons owning separate tenements affected by a nuisance, may join in suit to restrain, by injunction, the continuance of the nuisance. Peck v. Elder, 3 Sand., 126

Where the parties claiming an interest are numerous, and a suit is brought for their benefit by others who are active in the prosecution, their consent to the prosecution will be presumed, unless they show some disapprobation. Flint v. Spurr, 17 B. M., 513.

Several creditors, having distinct and separate demands, may join in a suit in chancery against the same debtor, to have a fraudulent conveyance of property set aside, or to prevent such conveyance. Simpson, J., Benton, etc. v. Anderson, etc., Mss. opin., January, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Plaintiff an assignee

SEC. 2760. In case of an assignment of a thing in action, the action by the assignee shall be without prejudice to any set-off or other defense existing before notice of the assignment; but this section shall not apply to negotiable instruments transferred in good faith and upon valuable consideration before due.

This section was intended to preserve the rights of the defendants, in cases where the suit was prosecuted in the name of the assignee, in the same manner as the former law preserved the equities of the parties, and protect the rights of the assignee, although the suit was brought in the name of the assignor. The effect of the provisions of the code was to leave the right of set-off unaffected. The only change made is in the form of action. Beckwith v. Union Bank, 1 Sand., 610.

A liquidated demand assigned in good faith, for a full consideration before it becomes due, is not subject to a set-off in favor of the debtor for a like demand against the assignor, payable to the debtor, which was in existence, but was not due when the assignment was made. Watt v. Mayor, etc., 9 N. Y., 1 Sand., 23.

Where a suit was brought on account by the assignees thereof, in the name of the assignor, it was decided that a promissory note of the assignor, held by the defendant at the time of the assignment, but not then due, could not be set off against such account. Wells v. Stewart, 3 Barb., 40.

The party in interest is liable for the costs, as well those made before as after his interest accrued. Where a party takes an absolute assignment of a demand in suit, he takes it cum onere, entitled to the benefits and subject to the liabilities of the assignor. Jordan v. Sherwood and wife, 10 Wend., 622; Miller v. Franklin, 20 id., 630.

Where a bank depositor, who was an indorser on a bill held by the bank, running to maturity, and in whose favor there was a balance of account nearly equal to the bill, made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors; and soon after, and before notice of the assignment, the bill was protested, the assignor fixed as indorser, and the amount of the bill changed to his account on the books of the bank, and the bill was held by the bank uncanceled, when notice of the assignment was given: it was held that the assignee was entitled to recover from the bank the entire sum in deposit, without any deduction for the amount of the bill. Beckwith v. Union Bank, 4 Sand., 610.

SEC. 2761. Any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff; or who is a necessary party to a complete determination or settlement of the question involved in the action. Defendant.

This section was borrowed from the chancery practice, and was intended to preserve the right and duty of a plaintiff to make parties all persons directly interested in the question or controversy stated in the complaint. Voorhies v. Baxter, 1 Abbott, 45.

The assignee of a mortgage may be made a defendant in an action to set aside the mortgage as usurious. Niles v. Randall, 2 Code Rep., 31.

Where the plaintiff in a judgment creditor's bill attempts to reach the moneys due on a mortgage, which he alleges has been fraudulently assigned by the debtor, the assignee of the mortgage must be made a party, although he resides out of the state. Gray v. Schenck, 4 Coms., 460.

The vendee of a party is a necessary party to an action to stay waste, intermediate the contract for sale and the completion of the sale. Kidd v. Denison, 6 Barb., 9.

Where an infant is a party to a contract, in an action on such contract it is not necessary to make the infant a party. Slocum v. Hooker, 6 Pr. R., 167.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, every person interested in the division of the proceeds of the estate should be made a party defendant. Denton v. Nanny, 8 Barb., 618.

It is not necessary to join all the parties to a tort as defendants; one, or more, or all, may be sued jointly, or each separately. 6 Johns. Rep., 26, 31. Where the tort, however, consists of a verbal slander by two or more, a separate action must be brought against each; they can not be sued jointly. Ibid.

Where a complaint in the nature of a creditor's bill against the original debtor and his assignees, seeks to set aside an assignment made for the benefit of creditors, it is not necessary to make all the creditors parties defendant. The assignees in such case represent all the creditors interested in the trust. It would be otherwise if the action were to establish and carry out the assignment, or for portions of the trust fund. Bank of British N. America v. Suydam, 6 Pr., 379.

Several causes of action can properly be united in one complaint only where they each affect all the parties to the action. It is not sufficient that some of the defendants be affected by each or all of them. All the defendants must be affected by each of them to warrant the union of them in one suit. The Lexington and Big Sandy Railroad Co. v. Goodman, 15 How., 85.

But it has been held that the creditor of an estate can not, in a mere personal suit, join the administrator, widow and heirs, as defendants. Ind. Dig., 632.

See also McQueen v. Chouteau's heirs, 20 Mo. Rep., 222; Chouteau v. Borlando, 20 Mo. Rep., 482; 8 Indiana, 293; 6 Abb., 7; 17 N. Y. Rep., 345, 592; 4 Comst., 460; 2 Seld., 190, 82; 6 Abb., 109, 113; 5 Seld., 598; 3 E. D. Smith, 591; 15 N. Y. Rep., 471; 4 Seld., 214.

In an action for specific performance of a contract to convey several lots of land, being part of a tract owned by one of the defendants, and upon which he had given mortgages prior to the contract to sell; held, that the prior mortgages were improperly made parties defendants to the action. They should not be involved in a lawsuit in anticipation that they might foreclose and sell the plaintiff's lots first. When they undertake proceedings touching the plaintiff's rights, it will then be time enough for him to move. Chapman v. Draper, 10 How., 367.

SEC. 2762. (1679.) Persons having an united interest must be Joiner of parties.

joined on the same side, either as plaintiffs or defendants. But when some who should thus be made plaintiffs refuse to join, they may be made defendants; the reasons thereof being set forth in the petition.

The surviving partner and the personal representatives of a deceased partner, can not be united as defendants in an action to recover a partnership debt. The surviving partner is alone liable at law; and it is only when the remedies at law are exhausted, that relief may be had in equity against the representatives of a deceased partner. Higgins v. Freeman, 2 Duer, 650.

Where a receiver, appointed by the court under a creditor's bill, commences an action in equity, to reach the equitable interests of a judgment debtor, in a fund held in trust for him, the judgment debtor is a necessary party to the action against the trustee. Vanderpool v. Van Valkenburgh, 2 Seld., 190.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, one who claims adversely to the title of the mortgagor, and prior to the mortgage, can not properly be made a party defendant for the purpose of trying the validity of such adverse claim of title. Corning v. Smith, 2 Selden, 82.

Where the receiver of the property of a judgment debtor appointed by the court, under a creditor's bill, commences suit against the trustee of a judgment debtor, to reach the equitable interest of the latter in a fund held in trust for him, the judgment debtor is a necessary party to the suit. Vanderpool v. Valkenburgh, 2 Selden, 190. See also unknown heirs of Whitney v. Kimball, 4 Ind. R. 546; 20 Mo., 269.

One suing for more

SEC. 2763. (1680.) When the question is one of a common or general interest to many persons, or when the parties are very numerous and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of the whole.

Where parties plaintiffs, or defendants, are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them before the court in a reasonable time, one or more may prosecute or defend for all. Stiles, J., Pettitt v. Perry, Mss. opin., January, 1855; Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where a fund was devised to a trustee for the benefit of the superannuated preachers of a particular conference, it was held that the superannuated preachers of that body, so entitled to the benefit of that fund, had such an interest as would enable them to maintain an action for the proper execution of the trust for their own and the future benefit of others entitled thereto. Stiles, J., Walker v. Paul, Mss. opin., June, 1855; Stanton's Ky. Code.

A member of an unincorporated association can not maintain, in his name, for the benefit of the association, an action on a note given to, or held by the association, without showing by his complaint the articles or other instrument which gives him such right or authority. The mere fact that the society is unincorporated will not warrant such a suit; nor will a statement that the plaintiff is specially authorized to bring the suit in behalf of the company. Habitck v. Pemberton, 4 Sand., 657.

To enable a plaintiff to bring a suit in his own right, and on behalf of others having a common interest, it is not sufficient to allege that the other parties are so numerous that it would be impracticable to bring them all before the court, but the nature of their common interest must appear to be such as would entitle them, were they all before the court, to maintain the action in their own right, or in their own names. Ibid.

In an action in which an injunction is prayed for, all persons interested in the subject matter in suit must be made parties; except where the parties interested are so numerous that it would be impossible or productive of great inconvenience, to make them all parties, in which case, one of the parties interested, may sue on behalf of himself and all others interested with him; but a plaintiff suing thus must distinctly state in his complaint that he sues as well on behalf of himself as on behalf of all others equally interested with him. Smith v. Lockwood, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 319; 13 Barb., 218.

In what cases and for what reasons courts will permit a plaintiff to commence an action in his own behalf, as well as in behalf of others. See Bouton v. The City of Brooklyn, 15 Barb., 375.

SEC. 2764. Where two or more persons are bound by contract, or by judgment, decree or statute, whether jointly only or jointly and severally, or severally only, and including the parties to negotiable paper, common orders, and checks, and sureties on the same, or separate instruments—the action thereon may, at the plaintiff's option, be brought against any or all of them. When any of those so bound are dead, the action may be brought against any or all the survivors, with any or all of the representatives of the decedents—or against any or all such representatives. An action or judgment against any one or more of several persons jointly bound, shall not be a bar to proceedings against the others.

Joint and several liability, as a distinction, ignored.

Although the several parties to a bill or note may be sued in one action, yet their being so sued does not make them jointly liable. Alfred v. Watkins, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 343.

At common law, when a covenant was entered into by two or more, severally and not jointly, a joint action against the covenantors could not be maintained. The principle was intended to be changed by the code, so as to permit the plaintiff to include in the same action all or any of the parties severally liable upon the same obligation or instrument. So, also, at common law, where the contract was joint and several, the plaintiff must sue each separately or all together. This principle was changed by the code. The plaintiff is now allowed, at his option, to sue any one or more in the same action. But where S. made a contract under seal, and by a separate instrument, also under seal, P. guaranteed the performance by S. of his contract, held that a joint action could not be maintained against S. and P. De Ridder v. Schimerhorn, 10 Barb., 638.

A promissory note and a guaranty of payment written upon it, are different instruments, and impose distinct and different obligations. A joint action, therefore, against the maker and guarantor, can not be maintained. The code does not allow a joint action against several, unless they are liable on the same obligation or instrument, in which case all or any of them may be included in the same action, at the option of the plaintiff. Allen v. Fagate, 11 How., 218.

SEC. 2765. The court may determine any controversy between parties before it when it can be done without prejudice to the rights of others, or by saving their rights. But when a determination of the controversy between the parties before the court, can not be made without the presence of other parties, the court must order them to be brought in.

Bring in other parties.

Under the code, the power to thus admit parties is unrestricted even to the substitution of entirely new parties, if the claim or defense is not changed. Hubler v. Pullen, 9 Ind. R., 273; ibid., 291; Dearmond v. Dearmond, 10 Ind. R., 101; Jones v. Julian, 12 Ind. R.

It was not very material, in chancery, whether parties stood before the court in the character of plaintiffs or defendants, as the court adjusted the equities between them all; nor can the point be very material under the code. Perkins' practice.

One question raised upon the trial was, that the attorney general should have been made a party; to which it was answered that the defendants, not having taken the objection, either by answer or demurrer, had waived it. The court said in effect, that, it appearing that a complete determination of the question in suit could not be had without the presence of the attorney general, he had not only the power, but it was his duty to order the attorney general to be made a party, and did so. Davis v. Mayor, etc., of New York, 2 Duer, 663.

This section is the controlling section in determining whether a demurrer for defect of parties is well taken or not. Wallace v. Eaton, 5 Pr. R., 99-102.

Notwithstanding the 36th sec. Rev. Stat., p. 699, provides, where an appeal is taken from the decision of the county court, in the matter of the probate of a will, that "all necessary parties shall be brought before the court," yet, when the record shows that the devisees, who are not before the court, are non-residents, and may have (by the 38th section supra,) a re-trial of the question of probate within three years, and that the controversy may be, therefore, determined without prejudice to their interests, the failure to make them parties is no ground of reversal. Duval, J., Horton v. Horton, Mss. opin., December, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

When the affidavit of a garnishee and that of his creditor show that the money sought to be recovered of the garnishee belongs to one not a party to the suit, it is notice to the plaintiff, and the court should require such person to be brought before the court. Forepaugh, etc., v. Appold, 17 B. M., 632.

It is error to order the sale of attached effects, where the defendant has only an undivided interest with one who is not a defendant; such person should be made a party. Talbot v. Pierce, 14 B. M., 202.

When a determination of the controversy between the parties before the court can not be made without the presence of other parties, the court must order them to be brought in. Johnson's Heirs v. Chandler's Heirs, 15 B. M., 589.

One who was statutory guardian filed his petition to sell real estate belonging to his wards; was appointed commissioner to sell, and gave bond for due payment to his wards. Suit was instituted against the guardian and his surety, upon the bond given, by order of the circuit court, and recovery had; held, that the sureties in the bond given in the county court, were not indispensable parties, and the recovery was right. Ibid., 590.

Other party made.

§ SEC. 2766. When in an action for the recovery of real or personal property, any person having an interest in the property applies to be made a party, the court may order it to be done by the proper amendment.

A person not a party but having an interest, can not be made a party to an action on contract to recover money. This section must be confined to actions for the recovery of real or specific personal property. Judd v. Young, 7 Pr. R., 79.

The provision allowing a third person to be made a party, extends only to actions for the recovery of real or personal property, and not to an action in the nature of a creditor's bill. Tallman v. Hollister, 9 Pr. R., 508.

Interpleader.

SEC. 2767. Upon affidavit of a defendant before answer in any action upon contract for the recovery of personal property, that some third party without collusion with him, has, or makes a claim to the subject of the action, or on proof thereof as the court may direct, the court may make an order for the safe keeping, or for the payment or deposit in court, or delivery of the subject of the action to such person as it may direct, and an order requiring such third person to appear in a reasonable time and maintain or relinquish his claim against the defendant, and in the mean time stay the proceedings. If such third party, being served with a copy of the order, fails to appear, the court may declare him barred of all claim in respect to the subject of the action against the defendant therein. If such third person appears, he shall be allowed to make himself defendant in the action in lieu of the original defendant who shall be discharged from all liability to either of the other parties, in respect to the subject of the action upon his compliance with the order of the court for the payment, deposit, or delivery thereof.

An order of interpleader, under this section, can only properly be made when the whole controversy turns upon the right of property; that is, upon the question whether the plaintiff in the suit, or the claimant whose substitution as the defendant is desired, is the true owner of the debt, fund, or other property for which judgment is demanded. Where the plaintiff relies on and has averred in his complaint, a special promise or contract to pay the value of the property sold to the defendant, and the same property is claimed by a third person as being the real owner, the latter can not be substituted or made a defendant in the action, because it would deprive the plaintiff of his legal remedy; and might involve the sacrifice of his legal rights without affording him any equivalent or compensation. Where a plaintiff seeks to recover a debt arising upon contract, the claimant who seeks to be substituted a defendant, must, in the language of the code, be "a third person, not a party to the suit making a demand for the same debt." A demand by such third person for the identical property as owner, and that the plaintiff had no authority to make the sale to the defendant in the action, is not ground for interpleader. As owner he must seek his remedies against the defendant or those into whose hands the property may have passed. In such a case if the defendant in the action has not rendered himself absolutely liable upon his promise, and the sale of the property made to the plaintiff through whom the defendant derived title, was fraudulent and void, the title of the true owner may be set up by the defendant as a full defense. Sherman, agt. v. Partridge, 11 How., 154.

SEC. 2768. The provisions of the last section shall be applicable to Sheriff. an action brought against a sheriff, or other officer, for the recovery of personal property taken by him under an attachment or execution, or for the proceeds of such property so taken and sold by him. And the defendant in any such action shall be entitled to the benefit of these provisions against the party in whose favor the attachment or execution issued, upon exhibiting to the court the process under which he acted, with his affidavit that the property, for the recovery of which, or its proceeds, the action was brought, was taken under such process.

SEC. 2769. In an action against a sheriff, or other officer, for the Substitution. recovery of property taken under an attachment or execution, the court may, upon the application of the defendant and of the party in whose favor the process issued, permit the latter to be substituted as the defendant, sureties for the costs being given.

If defendant be substituted, and security for costs be not given at the time of substitution, it will be regarded as waived, and not afterward required, unless there has been some surprise. Gunn v. Gudehus, 15 B. M., 449.

SEC. 2770. An action to recover the possession of specific personal property taken under a landlord's attachment, when it is brought by the tenant or his assignee or under-tenant, may be against the party who sued out the attachment; and the property claimed by such action, may, under the writ therefor, be taken from the officer who seized it, when he has no other claim to hold it than that derived from the writ. The indorsement of a levy on the property made upon the process by the officer holding it, shall be a sufficient taking of the property to sustain the action against the party who sued out the writ. Landlord's attachment.

SEC. 2771. When a married woman is a party, her husband must Married woman. be joined with her, except that

1. When the action concerns her separate property, or is founded on her own contract, she may sue and be sued alone.

2. When the action is between herself and her husband, she may sue and be sued alone. And in no case need she prosecute or defend by guardian or next friend.*

* Regarding this section the commissioners in their report, say: The substantive laws of Iowa, with justice, and but proper humanity, concede to married women certain rights in property. These rights, to be of any value, must be accompanied with adjective rights, which will secure their enjoyment. The right to sue, follows

A husband is an indispensable party in all cases where the wife is a party "except that where the action concerns her separate property, she may sue alone." Stiles, J., Beaumont v. Miller; Mss. Opin., June 1858. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where money belonging to a married woman and which has never been in her husband's possession, is lent by her, with his assent, and a promissory note given to her for the amount, she may maintain an action thereon without joining her husband as co-plaintiff. Where a female, prior to her marriage, comes into the possession of money which she invests, and after her marriage she keeps the same in form of a chose in action, payable to her with the express consent of her husband, it remains her property, and an action upon the security is properly brought in her name alone. Smart v. Comstock, 24 Barb., 411.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, executed by husband and wife, on the lands of the wife, and to enforce payment on the bond executed by both, it was held that the action was properly brought against both husband and wife. Conde v. Shepherd, 4 Pr. R., 75; Conde v. Nelson, 2 Code R., 58.

In an action for the partition or sale of real estate of the husband, held in common, the wife is a necessary party, and must be joined. Ripple v. Gilborn, 8 Pr. R., 456.

An inchoate right of dower is an interest which results from the marital relation, and does not belong to the wife as her separate estate. Ackerson v. Vollmer, 11 How., 42.

In an action of slander for words spoken of a married woman, where the words are actionable per se, the husband is a necessary party as plaintiff—otherwise if the words are not actionable per se; then the husband must sue alone. Klein v. Hentz, 2 Duer, 633. A husband and wife are properly joined as defendants in an action for a tortious injury to personal property, although the injury was committed by the sole act of the wife, without the knowledge or assent of the husband. Matthews v. Feistal & wife, 2 E. D. Smith, 90.

Separate property of a femme covert is that of which she has the exclusive control, independent of her husband, and the proceeds of which she may dispose of as she pleases. That character is imparted to the property by the instrument which invests her with the right to it. Johnson & wife v. Jones, 12 B. M., 329; Petty v. Malier, 14 B. M., 247.

If there is a joint interest in the husband and wife, the husband should join, or the suit would be defective. Smith v. Kearney, 9 Pr. R., 463.

necessarily from the right of property. The only reason why, under the common law, she could not sue at law was, that as she had no rights of property, she had no occasion to do so—as in progress of humanity, she began to have rights conceded to her—the right to sue, also arose, and as it was not recognized by common law, she had to go into a court of chancery to enjoy it. It would have been easier to have enacted a statute, allowing such suit at law; but there were many reasons why in that age, the equity court in such affairs was best. But all these have passed away, and as she is to have substantive rights which Iowa has already said, we can not see why she should not have all the rights logically sequent thereto, the same as any body else. She also formally had to sue by next friend, and so forth, because she was incapable of making a contract, and had no property to pay costs with, if cast in the suit. But, these reasons no longer exist, and the disabilities based on them, should also logically cease.

Besides, if she trades and becomes liable, what sense is there in not allowing her creditor to sue her, as any other person, ignoring the fact of marriage, as much as in the case of a man, a fact which has no longer anything to do with the liability.

her separate property, or her husband being brought in by rule, execution may issue against him also, unless for cause he show that he is not interested in the suit by the wife.

SEC. 2774. If husband and wife are sued together, the wife may defend for her own right; and if either neglect to defend, the other may defend for such one also. Each defend for other.

Where husband and wife are sued jointly, the wife will be allowed to defend separately where she alleges an equitable right to an allowance in the property sought to be subjected. Stiles J., Ferris v. Parsons, Mss., Opin., January 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

SEC. 2775. In an action brought by a man and his wife for an injury done to the wife, in respect of which she is necessarily joined as co-plaintiff, it shall be lawful for the husband to join thereto claims in his own right. Joinder of causes.

SEC. 2776. When a husband, being a father, has deserted his family, the wife, being a mother, may prosecute or defend in his name, any action which he might have prosecuted or defended, and shall have the same powers and rights therein as he might have had. Deserted wife.

SEC. 2777. The action of an infant must be brought by his guardian or next friend; but the court has power to dismiss it if it is not for the benefit of the infant, or to substitute the guardian of the infant or other person as next friend. Action by infant

SEC. 2778. The defense of an infant must be by his regular guardian, or by a guardian appointed to defend him, where no regular guardian appears, or where the court directs a defense by a guardian appointed for that purpose. No judgment can be rendered against an infant until after a defense by a guardian. Defense of infant.

Where infants appear in court on their own petition, to be made parties' process is not necessary; that the court appointed a guardian, ad litem, to answer, was sufficient. Burch & wife v. Breckenridge, etc., 16 B. M., 491.

To make an infant a party defendant to a suit, it is indispensable that a summons be served on the infant, unless the infant be legally before the court in some other mode and no judgment can be rendered against him until a defense by a guardian, ad litem. Pond v. Doneghy, 18 B. M., 560.

SEC. 2779. The appointment can not be made until after service of the notice in the action as directed by this code, and may then be made by the court or judge thereof, or during vacation by the clerk of the district court; but the court shall have power to remove such guardian and appoint another instead, whenever the interests of the infant requires such a change. Guardian.

SEC. 2780. The appointment may be made upon the application of the infant if he is of the age of fourteen years, and applies at or before the term to which the notice is served. If he is under the age of fourteen, or does not so apply, the appointment may be made upon the application of any friend of the infant, or on that of the plaintiff in the action. Application of infant.

SEC. 2781. The action of a person of unsound mind, must be brought by his guardian, or if he has none, by his next friend. When brought by his next friend, the action is subject to the power of the court in the same manner as the action of an infant so brought. Insane plaintiff

SEC. 2782. The defense of an action against a person of unsound mind, must be by his guardian or a guardian appointed by the court to defend for him, when no guardian appears, or when the court directs a defense by a guardian. The guardian to defend may be appointed at Insane defendant.

- the application of any friend of the defendant, or on that of the plaintiff, and no appointment can be made until after service of the notice, as directed in this code, and no judgment can be rendered against him until after a defense by guardian.
- Insane pending suit. SEC. 2783. Where a party is found to be of unsound mind during the pendency of an action, the fact being stated on the record, if he is plaintiff, his guardian may be joined with him in the action as such; if he is defendant, the plaintiff may, on ten days' notice thereof to his guardian, have an order making the guardian a defendant also.
- Prisoner. SEC. 2784. No judgment can be rendered against a prisoner in the penitentiary, until after a defense made for him by his attorney, or if there is none, by a person appointed by the court to defend for him.
- Co-partnership. SEC. 2785. A co-partnership may sue or be sued in its firm name; and when so sued the individual property of any member of such firm, may, on scire facias, be made liable to the judgment, unless he show cause to the contrary. A co-partnership may also sue or be sued in the individual names of its members.*
- Name on instrument. SEC. 2786. (1692.) When an action is founded on a written instrument, suit may be brought by or against any of the parties thereto, by the same name and description as those by which they are designated in such instrument.
- Bond. SEC. 2787. When a bond or other instrument given to the state or to any officer or person, is intended for the security of the public generally, or of particular individuals, suit may be brought thereon in the name of any person intended to be thus secured, who has sustained any injury in consequence of a breach thereof; or by such party in the name of the obligee, the body politic may sue in the name of the obligee in the bond, and in case a motion is allowable, such party may, in the same manner, make such motion.
- Defendant described. SEC. 2788. (1694.) When the precise name of any defendant can not be ascertained, he may be described as accurately as practicable, and when the name is ascertained it shall be substituted in the proceedings.
- Corporations. SEC. 2789. (1695.) Corporations, foreign or domestic, may bring suit in the courts of this state in their corporate name.
- Seduction, party. SEC. 2790. An unmarried female may prosecute, as plaintiff, an action for her own seduction, and recover such damages as may be found in her favor.
- Same. SEC. 2791. A father, or in case of his death or desertion of his family, or imprisonment, the mother, may prosecute as plaintiff for the seduction of the daughter; and the guardian for the seduction of the ward, though the daughter or ward be not living with, nor in the service of the plaintiff at the time of the seduction, or afterwards, and there be no loss of service; but when the action is brought by the guardian, the damages recovered shall inure to the benefit of the ward.
- Loss of service of child. SEC. 2792. A father, or in case of his death or imprisonment or desertion of his family, the mother, may prosecute as plaintiff an action for the expenses and actual loss of service resulting from the injury or death of a minor child.

But the infant must sue for the injury to himself, 15 Barb., 249.

* On this section the commissioners say :
We recognize in a co-partnership, a party other than, and different from any of, or all its members—having a purse of its own—that a creditor of it has a right to sue it, and get a judgment against it and levy on its goods. Such a mode of suing has sometimes its advantages.

SEC. 2793. The state shall commence and prosecute suits according State plaintiff. to the laws of the land, as in cases between individuals, except that no security shall, in such case, be required.

SEC. 2794. No action shall abate by the transfer or assignment of Transfer of interest during suit. any interest therein during its pendency. In case of the marriage of a female party, the fact being suggested on the record, the husband may be made a party with his wife, whenever necessary. In case of any other transfer of interest, the action may be continued in the name of the original party, or the court may allow the person to whom the transfer or assignment is made to be substituted in the action, proper orders being made as to security for costs.

When pendente lite, in an action on contract, the plaintiffs sell and assign the subject matter of the action to a third person, he will not be substituted as plaintiff, on motion of the plaintiffs to the record, and without notice to him. The alleged purchaser is the person to move for substitution; and he should do so on notice to the plaintiffs as well as to the defendant. Even in such a case, it is not a matter of course to order a substitution without imposing any conditions. Howard v. Taylor, 11 How., 380.

Since the decision of the court of appeals, in McKee v. Judd, (2 Kern., 622,) all demands arising from injuries to property are assignable; and when assigned, the action is properly brought in the name of the assignee. Foy v. Troy & Boston R. R. Co., 24 Barb., 382.

If the complainant assign his interest whilst the suit is pending, the assignee must be brought in. Gamble & Johnston v. Johnson, 11 Mo. Rep., 597.

The assignee of a cause of action, assigned after action brought, is liable to the defendant for costs, if he (the assignee) proceed in the action after the assignment, (Cow., 17;) and in such case he takes the demand cum onere, and is liable for the costs which had accrued before, as well as those which arose after the assignment. 10 Wend., 662; ibid., 630, 632.

The right of the plaintiff may be assigned during the action, and the suit progress in his name, or the name of the assignee may be substituted for that of the plaintiff. Warner v. Turner, 18 B. M., 759.

When the assignee is substituted for the plaintiff, and the court is satisfied with his solvency, and requires no security for the costs, and the defendant does not object to the action of the court, his objection will not be heard in the court of appeals. Ibid.

CHAPTER 118.

PLACE OF BRINGING SUIT.

[Code—Chapter 101.]

Place of suit.

SECTION 2795. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county in which the subject of the action, or some part thereof is situated:

1. For the recovery of real property or of an estate therein, or for the determination in any form of such right or interest.
2. For the partition of real property.
3. For the foreclosure of a mortgage of real property, or for the sale of real property under any incumbrance or charge.
4. For injuries to real property.
5. For the possession of personal property.

In an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, the "proper county" for the place of trial is where the mortgaged premises are situated, although the money may be loaned and the mortgage executed and delivered to the mortgagee in another county. Miller v. Hull, 3 How., 325.

An action to have a conveyance of land declared fraudulent, and that it be held in trust for another, is an action to determine an interest in real property. Wood v. Hollister, 3 Abb., 14; and see Mairs v. Remson, 3 C. R., 138.

The supreme court may compel the specific performance, by a resident of the state, of a contract for the conveyance of land, lying without its jurisdiction. It has the same jurisdiction in this class of cases as that possessed by the former court of chancery. This jurisdiction is not taken away by the statute, which enacts that actions for the recovery of real estate or an interest therein, or for the determination of a right or interest in real property, must be tried in the county where the land lies. This provision of the code is not applicable when the land which is the subject of the action lies out of the state. Newton v. Bronson, 3 Kern., 587.

SEC. 2796. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the Same. county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose :

1. An action for the recovery of a fine, penalty, or forfeiture imposed by a statute, except that when the offense for which the claim is made was committed on a water course or road, which is the boundary of two counties, the action may be brought in either of them.

2. An action against a public officer, or person specially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue or under color of his office, or against one who by his command or in his aid, shall do anything touching the duties of such officer, or for neglect of official duty.

3. An action upon the official bond of a public officer.

This section held not to apply to officers of the United States, and that they must, under the general statute of the state, as to private individuals, be sued in the county where they reside. Freeman v. Robinson, 7 Ind., 321.

SEC. 2797. An action when aided by attachment may be brought in any county of the state, wherever any part of the property sought to be attached may be found, when the defendant, whose property is thus pursued, is a non-resident of this state. If such defendant is a resident of this state, such action must be brought in the county of his residence, or that in which the contract was to be performed, except that if an action be duly brought against such defendant in any other county by virtue of any provisions of this chapter, then such action may, if legal cause for an attachment exist, be aided by an attachment. Case of attachment.

SEC. 2798. (1704.) When by its terms a contract is to be performed in any particular place, action for a breach thereof, may be brought in the county wherein such place is situated. Place of contract.

SEC. 2799. An action against a railroad company, or an owner of a line of mail stages, or other coaches, for an injury to person or property, upon the road or line, or upon a liability as a carrier, may be brought in any county through or into which said road or line passes. Common carrier.

SEC. 2800. (1701.) Except where otherwise provided herein, personal actions must be brought in a county wherein some of the defendants actually reside. But if none of them have any residence within this state, they may be sued in any county wherein either of them may be found. Place of person.

A railroad company must be treated as an inhabitant and a freeholder in each county where its track is laid.

It is a resident of every county through which its road passes, (15 Barb., 560,) and a resident of the county where the office of the company is located and its general business carried on. Convoe v. Nat. Pro. Ins. Co., 10 Fr. R., 403.

SEC. 2801. When a corporation, company, or individual has an office or agency in any county for the transaction of business, any suits growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency, may be brought in the county where such office or agency is located. Corporation.

SEC. 2802. If a suit be brought in the wrong county, it may be there prosecuted to a termination, unless the defendant, before answer, demand a change of venue to the proper county. In which case the court shall order the same at the costs of the plaintiff, and may award the defendant a reasonable compensation for his trouble and expenses in attending at the wrong county. Result of suit in wrong county.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. In a personal action the petition need not state where contract was to be performed, Crouch v. Crouch, Dec., 1859; action for specific performance is local, Johns v. Orcutt, Dec., 1859; where there is no service and jurisdiction is got by attachment, action should be in a county where is some of the property attached, Heidrich & Gillespie v. Brandon, Dec., 1859; specific performance, 3 Iowa, 221; trespass local, M., 248; 2 Iowa, 160; sec. 1704 only applies to cases of personal service, ibid; note secured by mortgage may be sued where it could be if not so secured, Breckenridge v. Brown, and Same v. Scott, both Dec., 1859; a corporation is a person under section 1701, 5 Iowa, 519; a corporation (railroad) resides in every county through which its road runs, or in which its corporate powers are exercised, 5 Iowa, 519; motion to change venue for suit in wrong county not the appliance with which to object to an improper joinder, 7 Iowa, 465; on such motion the legality of the joinder can not be tried, 8 Iowa, 349; a justice can not find error in the transmission to him of a case by change of venue, 1 Iowa, 96; time of change, 1 Iowa, 580; 2 G., 136; section 1704, permissive, not mandatory, 7 Iowa, 467; section 1705 is permissive, not mandatory, 5 Iowa, 268 and 519; the interest of a mortgagee not enough to give venue, 6 Iowa, 240; breach of close so relates to realty as to give venue, 2 Iowa, 160; as to proof of locality of land and as to judicial notice thereof, 3 G., 509; right of plaintiff to dismiss, of defendant to costs, 1 Iowa, 568; objection must be made in district court, else disregarded in supreme, 7 Iowa, 3.

CHANGE OF VENUE.

- When granted. SECTION 2803. A change of venue in any civil action, may be had in any of the following cases :
1. Where the county in which the suit is pending is a party thereto.
  2. Where the judge is a party, or is directly interested in the suit, or is connected by blood or affinity, with any person so interested, nearer than in the fourth degree.
  3. Where either party files an affidavit, stating that the inhabitants of the county are, or the judge is so prejudiced against him, or that the adverse party or his attorney, has such an undue influence over the inhabitants of the county, that he can not obtain a fair trial. Where it is made to appear to the judge that a jury of twelve men can not be obtained in the county where said action is pending, then upon application of either party, a change of venue shall be granted to the nearest county in which a jury can be obtained.†
- Change of venue granted. SEC. 2804. The application for a change of venue may be made, either to the court or to the judge in vacation, and if made in term time, shall not be awarded until issue be made up, unless objection be to the court; nor shall such application be allowed after a continuance, except for a cause not known to the affiant before such continuance, and after one change, no party is entitled to another, for any cause in existence, when the first change was obtained.
- To whom application. only one change. SEC. 2805. The venue shall be changed to some other county in the same district, unless the objections are to the judge, or unless the objection made is claimed to hold to all the other counties of the district, and shall be to the most convenient county to which no objection is made.
- Where to. SEC. 2806. (1709.) If the change is ordered by the judge in vaca-
- Duty of judge.

* The general spirit of this chapter remains the same, and yet every section but one has been in some degree modified.

† The last clause in this section was enacted as a separate law, March 30, 1860, took effect July 4, 1860; Laws of the Eighth General Assembly, Chapter 83.

tion, he must immediately transmit to the clerk, where the cause is pending, the affidavit, if any, and the order for the change.

SEC. 2807. In such case, as well as where the order is made in open court, the clerk must forthwith transmit to the clerk of the proper court, strongly enveloped and sealed, a transcript of the record and proceedings in such cause with all the original papers filed therein, having first made out and filed in his own office, authenticated copies of all such original papers, but if less than all of several plaintiffs or defendants take such change, the clerk shall so transmit not the original papers, but a copy thereof instead, and shall retain the original papers in his office, and as to those who take no change, the cause shall proceed as if no change had been taken by any co-party. Duty of clerk.

SEC. 2808. Upon filing such transcript and papers in the office of the clerk of the court to which the same were certified, the cause shall be docketed without fee, and proceeded in as though it had originated therein. Case docketed.

SEC. 2809. The costs occasioned by such change of venue, including those of the transcript and transmission, and those growing out of the preparation of the other party for trial, shall, unless such change be taken under subdivision 2 of section 2803, be taxed against the applicant and not as a part of the costs of the case, and the clerk may require payment of the costs of the transcript and transmission, before the case is transmitted as aforesaid. Costs.

SEC. 2810. If change of venue be taken in vacation, and the applicant therefor has not procured the transmission of the papers to the proper county, before the first day of the next term thereafter, then such party shall be held to have waived his change of venue, and the cause shall be retained in the court where pending for trial therein, unless such non-transmission be the entire fault of the clerk. And if such change be taken during a term of court, unless the cause be so transmitted as aforesaid, or the costs of the clerk therefor be paid or secured by the morning of the second day thereafter, or before said cause be reached for trial, if sooner reached, then such cause shall be retained for trial in the court where pending, and tried as if no change had been prayed. Waiver of change.

PRIOR LAWS. 1. An act to provide for changing the venue in civil and criminal cases, passed Jan. 18, took effect Feb. 18, 1839; I. T., 1st sess., p. 457, repealed by No. 2 herof.

2. An act to provide for changing the venue in civil and criminal cases, passed Feb. 13, took effect July 4, 1843; Reprint, chap. 156, p. 638.

3. An act amending same, passed June 10, took effect July 1, 1845; I. T., 7th sess., chap. 20, p. 38.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. A change of venue can not be by the court conditioned on the claimants giving a bond for the additional costs incurred by such change, 4 Iowa, 540; a change of venue may be conditioned on the payment into court of the costs occasioned by such change, 4 Iowa, 540; a change of venue from the judge, waived, does not preclude one from the inhabitants of the county, 4 Iowa, 540; an application for change of venue after a continuance, should show a reason for its delay, and if sworn to by the attorney, should show a reason why, 5 Iowa, 268, [see section 2804]; the right to a change of venue after its grant may be waived by an appearance, and trial under the objectionable jurisdiction, 4 Iowa, 540; presumption as to change, 2 Iowa, 433; any one may swear as well as party, 4 G., 417; defines "convenient," 2 Iowa, 433; jurisdiction determines on granting change of venue, 4 G., 415; who pays costs of transcript, 2 Iowa, 435; what must be transmitted, 4 G., 322; costs include those of the term, 2 Iowa, 435.

CHAPTER 120.

THE MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

Notice.	SECTION 2811. (1714.) Actions originating in the district court are to be commenced by serving the defendant with the notice hereinafter described.
Kind of.	SEC. 2812. Such notice must be signed by the plaintiff or his attorney, and must inform the defendant of the name of the plaintiff, and that on or before a date therein named, a petition will be filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of the county wherein suit is brought, naming it and stating generally the nature of the claim, or claims, if more than one, without the need of stating the facts constituting the cause thereof (as for example on account for a promissory note—for work—for goods sold—for assault and battery—for slander—for the recovery of personal or real property, or in some other such general way,) and if the action is for money, how much is claimed—and that unless he appears thereto and defends, before noon of the second day of the term, at which said defendant is required by law to appear—naming it—or at such other time, as may be by general rule of such court prescribed, default will be entered against him, and judgment rendered thereon. If the defendant fail to appear, judgment shall not be rendered for a larger amount than the sum therein claimed and costs.
Petition not filed.	SEC. 2813. If the petition is not filed by the date thus fixed, and ten days before the term, the action will be deemed discontinued.
By whom notice served.	SEC. 2814. The notice may be served by any person not a party to the action.
Defendant to appear, when?	SEC. 2815. The defendant, if served otherwise than by publication, shall be held to appear at the next term after service, provided— <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. He be served within the county where suit is brought in such time as to leave at least ten days between the day of service and the first day of the next term.</li> <li>2. He be served without the county, but within the judicial district, so as to leave at least fifteen such days.</li> <li>3. He be served elsewhere within the state so as to leave twenty such days.</li> <li>4. He be served without the state so as to leave ten such days for every one thousand miles or fraction thereof, extending between the county of suit and the place of service, which distance shall be judicially noticed by the court. If not so served, he shall be held to appear at the second term thereafter.</li> </ol> The statute nowhere requires a summons to be returnable on the first day of the term; but it must be served ten days before that day, that is the Friday week before the Monday on which the term commences. See Blair v. Manson, 9 Ind. R., 357; ibid., 544; ibid., 236.
How notice served.	SEC. 2816. The notice shall be served as follows: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. By reading the notice to the defendant or offering to read it in case he neglects or refuses to hear it read, and in either case by delivering him personally a copy of the notice, or if he refuses to receive it, offering to deliver it.</li> </ol>

2. If not found within the county of his residence, by leaving a copy of the notice at his usual place of residence, with some member of the family over fourteen years of age.

3. By taking an acknowledgment of the service indorsed on the notice, dated, and signed by the defendant.

SEC. 2817. If served personally, the return must state the time and manner and place of making the service, and that a copy was delivered to defendant, or offered to be delivered. If made by leaving a copy with the family, it must state at whose house the same was left and that it was the usual place of residence of the defendant—and the township, town or city in which the house was situated, the name of the person with whom the same was left, or a sufficient reason for omitting to do so, and that such person was over fourteen years of age, and was a member of the family. Return.

The term "family" is not confined to persons under the control, or in the employ of the defendant. Thus, if a son take his widowed mother to reside with him, she is a member of his family within the meaning of the statute. Ellington v. Moore, 17 Mo. Rep., 424.

SEC. 2818. If notice is served out of the county where suit is pending, either within or without the state, return may be made by mail and the postage thereon taxed among the costs. Return by mail.

SEC. 2819. If notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff of the county wherein action is brought, he must note thereon the date when thus left with him, and must proceed to serve the same without delay, if possible, within his county, and must file the same with his return thereon immediately thereafter in the office of the clerk of the district court. If placed in the hands of the sheriff of any other county, he must serve the same if possible within his county at once, and return the same by mail to the party from whom he received it, with his return thereon, immediately thereafter. Sheriff's duty.

SEC. 2820. If a notice be not duly filed by the sheriff, or if the return thereon is defective, the officer making the same may be fined by the court not exceeding ten dollars, and shall also be liable to the action of any person aggrieved thereby. But the court may permit an amendment according to the truth of the case. Fine for bad return.

SEC. 2821. Notice shall not be served on Sunday, unless the plaintiff make oath thereon that personal service will not be possible unless then made, and a notice indorsed with such affidavit shall be served by the sheriff, or may be served by another, as on a secular day. Sunday service.

SEC. 2822. (1724.) The plaintiff may notify either of the defendants that no personal claim is made against him, in which case a copy of that notice must accompany the return. If after such notice and return such defendant unreasonably defend, he must pay costs to the plaintiff. Notice to defendant of no claim.

SEC. 2823. If service be made within the state, the truth of the return is proven by the signature of the sheriff, or his deputy, when made by either of them in his own county, and the court shall take judicial notice thereof. If made without the state or by one not such officer within the state, the return may be proven by the affidavit of him making the same, certified by one empowered to administer oaths. Return how proven.

SEC. 2824. (1726.) If a county is defendant, service may be made on the county judge or clerk of the county court. If any other civil corporation, upon a trustee or other officer thereof. County defendant.

SEC. 2825. (1727.) When an action is brought against a corporation of any other description, service may be made upon either of its Corporation defendant.

officers, or on any clerk or agent engaged in the active management of the ordinary business of the corporation.

Same.

SEC. 2826. If brought against a corporation having no officers, or a partnership, service may be made upon any member thereof, or upon any agent employed in the general management of their business.

Service on agent

SEC. 2827. When a corporation, company, or individual, has, for the transaction of any business, an office or agency in any county, other than that in which the principal resides, service may be made on any agent or clerk employed in such office or agency, in all actions growing out of, or connected with, the business of that office or agency.

Where a summons is returned served on A. B., agent of a corporation named, it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that the service was regular. 11 Ind. R., 339.

A person acting in New York, under a power of attorney, for an insurance company located at Utica, authorizing such person to effect insurances on behalf of said company, held to be such managing agent, of said company as to authorize the commencement of an action against such company by serving the summons upon such person. Bain v. Globe Insurance Co., 9 Pr. R., 448.

To authorize legal service of summons and complaint upon a foreign corporation, where it is made upon its managing agent in this state, the managing agent must be one whose agency extends to all the transactions of the corporation—one who has, or is engaged in, the management of the corporation, in distinction from the management of a particular branch or department of its business. Brewster v. Michigan Central Railroad Co., 5 Pr. R., 183.

An action can not be legally commenced against a railroad corporation (for loss of baggage, or anything else) by the service of a summons on a baggage master in the service of such corporation. He is not such a managing agent as the law requires. Flynn v. Hudson River Railroad Company, 6 Pr. R., 308.

Minor.

SEC. 2828. When the defendant is a minor under the age of fourteen years, the service must be made on him, and also on his father or mother or guardian, and if there be none of these within the state, then on the person within this state having the care and control of such minor, or with whom he shall reside, or in whose service he shall be employed. When the infant is over fourteen years of age, service on him shall be sufficient.

A judgment can not be rendered against an infant until after defense by guardian, nor can a guardian for such infant be appointed to defend until after service upon the infant. Stiles J., Tribble v. Chilton, Mss. opin., June, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

If infants appear in court upon their own petition, and ask to be made parties, process is not necessary. It is sufficient if the court appoints a guardian ad litem to answer for them. Burch and wife v. Breckenridge, etc., 16 B. M., 491.

Although the record does not show that an infant was over fourteen years of age, or that he had no guardian, or that the widow upon whom the process was served was the mother of the infant, yet if these facts appear from the officer's return, it will justify the circuit court in rendering judgment in the action. Wheat, C. J., Webber etc., v. Webber, Mss. opin., June, 1858. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Insane.

SEC. 2829. When the defendant is a person of unsound mind, service must be made upon him and upon his guardian, and if he have no guardian, then upon his wife or the person having the care of him, or with whom he lives, or the keeper of the asylum in which he may be confined.

SEC. 2830. When the defendant is a prisoner in the penitentiary, a Prisoner. copy of the petition must be with the notice delivered to the prisoner, and a copy of the notice shall also be delivered to his wife, if he have any.

SEC. 2831. Service may be made by publication in either of the following cases: Notice by publication.

1. In actions brought for the recovery of real property, or an estate or interest therein.
2. In an action for the partition of real property.
3. In an action for the sale of real property under a mortgage lien or other incumbrance or charge.
4. In actions to compel the specific performance of a contract of sale of real estate, or in actions to establish or set aside a will, where in such cases any or all of the defendants reside out of this state, and the real property is within this state.
5. In actions brought against a non-resident of this state, or a foreign corporation having in this state property or debts owing to such defendant, sought to be taken by any of the provisional remedies, or to be appropriated in any way.
6. In actions which relate to, or the subject of which is real or personal property in this state, when any defendant has or claims a lien or interest, actual or contingent therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is a non-resident of the state or a foreign corporation.
7. In all actions where the defendant being a resident of the state has departed therefrom, or from the county of his residence, with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a notice, or keeps himself concealed therein with the like intent.
8. Where the action is for a divorce.

SEC. 2832. Before service can be made by publication, an affidavit File affidavit must be filed that personal service of notice can not be made, within this state, on the defendant to be served by publication. When such affidavit is filed the party may proceed to make service by publication.

SEC. 2833. The publication must be made by publishing the notice required in section 2812, without addition, four consecutive weeks, Publication how made. which last publication shall be at least ten days before the next term of court, in some newspaper issued at least weekly, and printed in the county where the petition is filed, and if there be none printed in such county, then in such paper printed at the next nearest county of this state, which paper shall, in either case, be determined in writing by the clerk of the court on the affidavit, which affidavit shall be filed in the case.

SEC. 2834. Service by publication shall be deemed complete when When complete. the proper affidavit shall have been filed, and the notice published in the manner and for the time prescribed in the preceding section, and the affidavit of such publication shall have also been filed, which affidavit may be made by any person knowing the fact, and the defendant shall be held to appear at the term which next succeeds such completed service, without regard to the number of days intervening.

SEC. 2835. Actual personal service of the notice either within or Actual service. without the state, supersedes the necessity of publication.

SEC. 2836. In actions where it shall be necessary to make an Unknown person. unknown person defendant, the petition shall be sworn to, and shall state what interest such person has or claims to have, how the same was derived or is claimed to have been derived, as exactly as possible, that the name and the residence of such person are unknown to plaintiff, and that he has sought diligently to learn the same, and thereon proceedings may be had against such person without naming him, as follows :

Notice in such case.

SEC. 2837. The court shall approve a notice collected from the averments of the petition, which notice shall contain the name of the plaintiffs, a description of the property, and all the allegations of the petition concerning the interest of the unknown person and the mode of devolution thereof, the relief demanded, also the name of the court and the term at which appearance must be made. Said notice must be entitled in the full name of the plaintiff against the unknown claimants of property, and shall be signed by the plaintiff's attorney.

Publication.

SEC. 2838. The court, on its approval of said notice, shall indorse the same thereon and order that the said notice be published in some newspaper of this state, designating such paper as shall be most likely to give notice to such unknown person.

Service complete.

SEC. 2839. Such notice shall be filed in the cause, and its contents, without more, shall be published in the paper designated, at least weekly for six successive weeks, and at the end of said time, service shall be deemed complete, and such unknown person in court at the next term thereafter.

Mode of appearance.

SEC. 2840. The mode of appearance may be :

1. By delivering to the plaintiff or the clerk of the court a memorandum in writing to the effect that the defendant appears, signed either by the defendant in person or by his attorney, dated the day of its delivery, and to be filed in the case.

2. By announcing to the court an appearance, which shall be entered of record.

3. By an appearance, even though specially made, by himself or his attorney, for any purpose connected with the cause; or for any purpose connected with the service, or insufficiency of the notice. And an appearance, special or other, to object to the substance or service of the notice, shall render any further notice unnecessary, but may entitle the defendant to a continuance, if it shall appear to the court that he has not had the full timely notice required, of the substantial cause of action stated in the petition. But if the petition contains more than one cause of action, a mere appearance shall not be deemed an appearance to any cause except such as the defendant shall have had due notice of, according to section 2812 hereof and such causes shall be dismissed.*

Sometimes a defendant, after appearing and pleading, by leave of the court, withdraws his appearance.

Such withdrawal carries with it the pleadings he may have filed, and leaves the case as though he had failed to appear at all, and it stands in court upon the plaintiff's complaint. Carver v. Williams, 10 Ind. R., 267. But simply failing to appear at the trial does not have the effect to withdraw an answer filed. Ibid.

*Few things can be more absurd since the introduction of the notice instead of the summons, than the thing called special appearance in court by the defendant, to tell the court that he is not there. If the defendant is there, by reason of the notice, it has served its office. But to ask to quash the notice, as it is called, is a sheer misconception of its office. If that has brought him to court, he can make no objection to it—he can only make objection to be compelled to answer, on pain of default, on the ground that such notice did not give him sufficient time—or sufficient appraisal of time, court, parties, &c.; nor were these aided by any accompanying petition, and, therefore, he wants that time now, inasmuch as that, now, for the first time on coming to court, he has learned the facts which he should have been apprised of several days before. Report on Civil Code, p. 297.

SEC. 2841. When the action is against two or more defendants, and one or more shall have been served, but not all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows : Procedure in case only part be served.

1. If the action be against defendants jointly indebted upon contract, he may proceed against the defendants served, and if he recover judgment it may be entered against all the defendants thus jointly indebted, so far as that it may be enforced against the joint property of all, and the separate property of the defendants served, and it shall not be valid against those not served until on scire facias they have had full opportunity to show cause against the judgment.

2. If the action be against defendants severally liable, he may without prejudice to his rights against those not served, proceed against the defendants served in the same manner as if they were the only defendants.

3. Or the plaintiff may continue till the next term, and proceed to bring in the other defendants ; but at such second term the suit shall proceed against all who have been served in due time, and no further delay shall be allowed to bring in the others, unless all that appear shall consent to such delay.

SEC. 2842. When a petition has been filed affecting real estate, the action is pending so as to charge third persons with notice of its pendency, and while pending no interest can be acquired by third persons in the subject matter thereof as against the plaintiff's title, if the real property affected be situated in the county where the petition is filed. Notice to affect land.

SEC. 2843. When any part of real property, the subject of an action is situated in any other county than the one in which the action is brought, the plaintiff must, in order to affect third persons with a constructive notice of the pendency of the action, file with the clerk of the district court of such county, a notice of the pendency of the action containing the names of the parties, the object of the action, and a description of the property in that county affected thereby, and from the time of such filing only, shall the pendency of the action be constructive notice to subsequent vendees or incumbrancers thereof, who shall be bound by all the proceedings taken after the filing of such notice, to the same extent as if a party to the action, and the clerk of such county must immediately, on receipt of such notice, index and record the same in the incumbrance book. If in an other county.

JOINDER OF ACTIONS.

SEC. 2844. Causes of action of whatever kind, where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings, provided that they be by the same party, and against the same party in the same rights, and if suit on all as to venue may be brought in that county, may be joined in the same petition, but the court to prevent confusion therein, may direct all, or any portion of the issues joined therein, to be tried separately, and may determine the order thereof.†

Join any causes except ordinary and equitable.

Under the code there is but one form of action allowed. But there are causes of action that can not be properly joined in the same petition; [as for example an equitable and an ordinary one,] but the plaintiff may, at any time before the cause is submitted to the jury, or the court, strike out any cause of action and, by amendment, submit for decision, a distinct cause of action from that stated in the original petition. Hord v. Chandler, 13 B. M., 404.

SEC. 2845. The plaintiff may strike from his petition any cause of action, or any part thereof, at any time before the final submission of the case to the jury or to the court, when the trial is by the court.

Plaintiff may strike out cause.

The plaintiff has a right to strike from his petition any cause of action at any time before the final submission of the case to the jury, or to the court. By amending his petition, he may submit a distinct cause of action from that in his original petition. Hord v Chandler, 13 B. M., 404.

SEC. 2846. The court at any time before the defense, shall on motion of the defendant, strike out of the petition, any cause or causes of action improperly joined with others.

So may court.

Misjoinder of actions is no cause of demurrer. A motion to strike out is the proper remedy. Stiles, J., Hart v. Cundiff, Mss. opin., January, 1855. Stanton's Ky. Code.

SEC. 2847. All objections to the misjoinder of causes of actions shall be deemed to be waived, unless made as provided in the last section.

Waiver.

* Section 2844 is substantially that of England and Maryland. The other sections of this chapter are common to all the states using the new system. In some, as in Kentucky, the misjoinder is assailable by motion, in most of them, however, as in Ohio, by demurrer.

† This is substantially the law of the Code, section 1751, though its phraseology is that of the 41st section of the English act of 1852, and of the Maryland act. The old reasons which presided over joinder based upon the fact that jurisdiction was obtained by the original writ, and that only one judgment could be pronounced in a cause, precluded any joinder, inconsistent with the unity of the judgment. And as in actions which partook of the nature of social as well as individual wrongs, the judgment was for the state by way of fine as well as for the individual by way of compensation, such cause could not be joined with one purely individual. But we have provided that any number of judgments may be pronounced in one adjudication—and thus removed that old impediment. Hence the only question of joinder with us rests on simple policy. This chiefly concerns the plaintiff, and he should be left to use his own sense, in guiding him either to unite a slander suit with a promissory note, or to keep them distinct. The court can, if it likes, order cases, the joinder of which it don't favor, to be disunited and tried separately. The English commissioners on this subject, say that the good sense of the plaintiff will be a better guide than can any rule else, to determine what causes should be united. Because it was held by some who reasoned on exploded analogies that tort and contract could not be joined under our present code, section 1751, we have used language removing the doubt. Report on Civil Code.

tion, and all errors in the decision of the court thereon are waived, unless excepted to at the time.

Where there is a misjoinder of several causes of action in the petition, under the rules prescribed by the civil code, unless exceptions for that cause be taken in the circuit court, the irregularity will be deemed to have been waived. McKee v. Rope, 18 B. M., 555.

What done with such causes.

SEC. 2848. When a motion is sustained on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action, the court, on motion of the plaintiff, shall allow him, with or without costs, in its discretion, to file several petitions, each including such of said causes of action as might have been joined, and an action shall be docketed for each of said petitions, and the same shall be proceeded in without further service, and the court shall determine, by order, the time of pleading therein.

CHAPTER 122.*

PLEADING.

[Code—Chapter 104.]

TIME OF PLEADING.

Demur or answer when.

SECTION 2849. The defendant shall, in an action commenced by ordinary proceedings, demur or answer, or do both, as to the original petition, before noon of the second day of the term.

Demur or reply.

SEC. 2850. In such action, the plaintiff shall demur or reply as to the original answer, or do both, before noon of the third day of the term, and as to an amended or supplemental answer, or an answer in the nature of an answer over, after motion or demurrer by the party answering, before noon of the second day after the day on which such answer shall have been filed.

Demur to reply.

SEC. 2851. The defendant shall, if the original reply be filed before noon of the third day of the term, demur thereto before noon of the fourth day of the term, and to an amended or supplemental reply, before noon of the second day after the day on which such pleading shall have been filed.

Equitable proceedings.

SEC. 2852. In an equitable action, the defendant shall demur before noon of the second day of the term, and shall answer in the same time, if the notice shall have been served sixty days before such term, and if not, then in sixty days from the day of completed service.

Demurer therein.

SEC. 2853. If the answer, the action being commenced by equitable proceedings, is filed on the second day of the term, the plaintiff may demur before noon of the third day thereafter, and must reply thereto on or before the fiftieth day after said filing.

* While this chapter is based upon the corresponding chapter in the Codes of the new system as in force in New York, Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, Wisconsin, and the other states before named, it goes into greater detail than any of those: 1, because the need thereof had been suggested by the decisions of those states; 2, such detail was deemed necessary to avert the construction which had been given to chapter 104 of the Code of 1851, and 3, such detail was thought necessary in order to limit the number of rules which otherwise must be made to supply its generality.

SEC. 2854. The defendant must demur to an equitable reply before noon of the second day of the term, after the filing thereof. To reply.

SEC. 2855. If any pleading is by any rule or order, or for any legal reason, filed after the time herein fixed, then the adverse party shall have, in which to file his subsequent pleading, the same number of days as would have been allowed him had such late pleading been filed in the time herein fixed. If pleading be delayed.

SEC. 2856. The appearance term shall not be the trial term for equitable actions, except in cases in which notice shall have been served sixty days before such term, and in which also the answer shall be merely a denial, and the proof documentary. Trial term.

SEC. 2857. The day on which the judge actually opens court, shall be for the purpose of timing the pleadings, considered the first day of the term. First day.

SEC. 2858. Every pleading must, however, be filed on or before the cause is called for trial, although the time allowed for such pleading shall not then have elapsed. Pleading closed before trial time.

SEC. 2859. Taking into consideration in each case, the business of the attorney, and also the opportunities in such county afforded the client to have consulted him before the term, the court, for good cause shown, may, on request, extend the time of filing any pleading beyond the time herein fixed, but shall do so with due regard to making up the issues at as early a day as under the circumstances is possible. Extension of time.

SEC. 2860. The court shall have the power to tax against the losing party to any motion or demurrer contemplated in this chapter, the sum of five dollars, or any smaller sum, depending on the merits of the controversy raised by such motion or demurrer, as costs, in favor of the party who thereon succeeds. But after the filing of any such motion or demurrer, and before the same is called up for argument, such motion or demurrer may be confessed, and the proper amendment made without the costs contemplated in this section; but a second confession of a motion or demurrer to a like pleading, shall not exempt from the costs contemplated in this section, but shall incur them as would an adjudication. Costs for bad pleadings.

SEC. 2861. When a petition, answer, or reply shall be adjudged insufficient in whole or in part upon demurrer, or the whole or some part thereof stricken out on motion, the proper party may file a further like pleading within such time as the court may then direct, and the same shall hold as to the answer or reply of a party whose demurrer is overruled, and in either case, in default of such pleading being so filed, the court shall proceed with the cause in the same manner as if no such original pleading had been filed. Same.

SEC. 2862. If such second petition, answer, or reply be filed, and in like manner be adjudged insufficient, or the whole or some part thereof in like manner stricken out, the party filing such second pleading shall be taxed ten dollars, or some smaller sum, in the discretion of the court, as costs, and file a like pleading instanter; or in default thereof, the court shall proceed with the cause in the same manner as if no second pleading had been filed. Same.

SEC. 2863. If a third petition, answer, or reply be adjudged insufficient, as above, or the whole or some part be stricken out, the party filing such pleading shall be taxed fifteen dollars, or a smaller sum, in the discretion of the court, as costs, and no further petition, answer, or reply shall be filed, but judgment shall be rendered as for want of such pleading. Same.

Motion described.	SEC. 2864. All motions assailing any pleading shall be in writing, and filed in the case, and shall specify the causes on which they are founded, and no cause not so specified shall be argued or considered in support of the motion.
Time of.	SEC. 2865. Motions assailing pleadings for any of the objections stated in this chapter, shall be regulated as regards the time of filing them as demurrers are.
No motion after a motion.	SEC. 2866. A motion after a motion, or a demurrer after a demurrer, to the same pleading, shall not be allowed; but each motion and each demurrer shall state all the objections to any pleading which are intended to be made to it, except that a demurrer, on the ground of insufficient statement of facts to constitute a cause of action, defense, set-off, counter-claim, cross-demand, or reply, may be filed at any time before answer or reply, unless the points thereof have been already made, or could have been made in a prior demurrer.
Motion suspends pleading.	SEC. 2867. A motion assailing any pleading, or any count thereof, for any of the objections stated in this chapter, shall suspend the necessity of any other pleading to such pleading or count, until the motion shall have been determined, whereupon the court shall direct on or before what time the next pleading shall be filed: the same shall obtain as to a demurrer.
To be filed.	SEC. 2868. All pleadings, including demurrers, and all motions made in writing, shall be filed with the case.
When argued.	SEC. 2869. No motion or demurrer shall be argued until the morning after that on or before which the same shall have been filed, as provided in the preceding section, unless by consent, or unless the case be sooner reached.
Not withdrawn.	SEC. 2870. A motion or demurrer once filed shall not be withdrawn, without the consent of the adverse party entered thereon, or of the court; in which last case the court may award to the other party, costs, as imposed on adjudication thereof, and shall fix the time of filing the next pleading.
Notice book.	SEC. 2871. The filing of a pleading in the clerk's office, and notice thereof on the notice book, within the time allowed, shall be equivalent to a filing in open court.
Forms abolished.	SEC. 2872. All technical forms of actions and of pleading, all common counts, general issues, and all fictions are abolished, and hereafter the forms of pleadings in civil actions, and the rules by which their sufficiency is to be determined, are those prescribed in this code.*

* Every plaintiff's right to recover depends upon the existence of a state of facts. A statement of these facts is the thing required.

This is a more difficult requirement than was made by the former system of pleading. Under that there were a few forms into which all causes must come. The question for the lawyer first to settle in the preparation of the papers, was not so much whether the facts constituted a good cause of action, as into which of the forms it would legally fall. This question, where not one of nicety, could often be determined by a glance at a few of the leading facts, without an intimate acquaintance with the minor ones, or with the real character of the cause of action. This form, too, had itself grown into a fact, and implied facts, which with it, need not to be stated, but now without it must be stated, either to constitute a cause of action, or to constitute the cause of action, which means the cause shown for the substantial relief demanded.

The advantage of a statement of facts is very great. It is a guide to the proof. It allows an excellent opportunity of testing a case on the law, by a demurrer, saves much writing in case of a bill of exception, also in cases of instructions, since these are chiefly but an extension of the legal propositions of a pleading into their elemental facts, which should generally be stated rather in the pleadings themselves. We do not say no hypothetical instructions are needed under the new system, but that the tendency will be to render fewer of them necessary. And the record will

The code has not changed the common law rule of pleading, that a man may waive the tort and sue on the contract. Hinds v. Tweddle, 7 Pr. R., 278.

All forms and rules of pleading are abolished, and the rules for testing the sufficiency of a pleading are those prescribed by the code. Royce v. Brown, 3 Pr. R., 390; Buddington v. Davis, 6 How. Pr. R., 402; People v. Ryder, 2 Kern, 437; Allen v. Patterson, 3 Seld., 476, 478; Eno v. Woodworth, 4 Comst., 249; Mann v. Morewood, 3 Sandf., 557; Brackett v. Wilkinson, 13 How. Pr. R., 102; Stewart v. Travis, 10 How. Pr. R., 148; Adams v. Holley, 12 How. Pr. R., 326. In the case of Trustees of School, section 16, &c., v. Oudin, 8 Ohio St. R., 293, 297-8, the supreme court, per J. R. SWAN, J., said:

“We suppose the common law rule, as to the construction of pleadings under the code, is entirely abrogated. If pleadings shall be in ordinary language, as contradistinguished from technical language, they must be construed as meaning what is generally understood by ordinary language; and, hence, there can be no established technical mode of stating a cause of action or defense. So, too, the rules of the common law, as to the sufficiency of pleadings, are abrogated; and in their place are substituted the few and simple rules of the code. Thus the rules of common law pleading, which illustrate and vindicate the law, that the facts which constitute a cause of action shall be set forth in the declaration, may be applicable to a petition under the code. But the language to be used in stating a cause of action is prescribed by the code; and the common law rules in that respect are entirely inapplicable.”

Western Law Monthly.

SEC. 2873. The pleadings are the written statements of the parties of the facts constituting their respective claims and defenses. Pleadings what.

SEC. 2874. The only pleadings allowed are:

1. The petition of the plaintiff.
2. The demurrer or answer by the defendant.
3. The demurrer or reply by the plaintiff.
4. The demurrer by the defendant.

How many pleadings.

The only pleadings allowed in suits in equity are the petition of the plaintiff, the answer or demurrer by the defendant, and the demurrer or reply by the plaintiff. The plea in abatement in this case can be regarded in no other light than a substantial answer to the petition. Stone's adm'r v. Powell, 13 B. M., 343.

The code should be observed as a rule of practice. Ibid., 343.

The Petition.

SEC. 2875. The first pleading by the plaintiff is the petition. The petition must contain:

1. The name of the court and the county in which the action is brought.
2. The names of the parties to the action, plaintiffs and defendants, followed by the word “petition,” if the proceedings are ordinary, and by the words “petition in equity,” if the proceedings are equitable.
3. A statement in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action.
4. A demand of the relief to which the plaintiff considers himself then remain a monument of the law on such facts decided, which under the form of pleading of the dark ages, it never could do.

Nothing has evinced a more total mis-conception of the endeavor of the new system of pleading, than the idea in some quarters current, that the general denial of the Code, was of the same value as the general issue at common law. There could be no true function of good pleading secured while the general issue was allowed to plant its ambuscades, and nearly thirty years ago, in Great Britain, it was shorn of its extended application and reduced to a common sense and quite limited significance, and we abolish it altogether. Report on Civil Code, p. 299.

entitled, and if such demand be for money, the amount thereof must be stated.

5. Where the petition contains more than one cause of action, each must be stated wholly in a count by itself, and must be sufficient in itself; but one prayer for judgment may include a sum, based on all counts looking to money remedy.

9. In a petition by equitable proceedings, each cause of action shall also be separated into paragraphs, numbered as such for more convenient reference, and each paragraph shall contain, as near as may be convenient, a complete and distinct statement.

It is a general rule that it is unnecessary to aver anything in the complaint that is not required to be proved. The Union Mutual Insurance Company v. Osgood, 1 Duer, 708.

Every fact which the plaintiff must prove, to enable him to maintain his suit, and which the defendant has a right to controvert in his answer, must be distinctly averred, or stated. This rule of pleading in an action for a legal remedy is the same as formerly, in this, that facts, and not the evidence of facts, must be pleaded. Allen v. Patterson, 3 Selden, 478.

A statement in a complaint, of a contract, and, that it then became, and was, and continued to be the duty of the defendant, to use due care, and to erect and keep lights, etc., is not sufficient to constitute a cause of action without a statement of the facts from which such duty arises. The city of Buffalo v. Holloway, 3 Selden, 493.

The pleader may use his own language, but the necessary matter must be there, and be stated in an issuable and intelligible form, capable of trial. Facts must still be set forth according to their legal effect and operation, and not the mere evidence of those facts, nor arguments, nor inferences, nor matter of law only. Nor should pleadings be hypothetical, nor in the alternative. The same general principles govern pleadings in equity. Boyce v. Brown, 7 Barb., 85.

In a petition against the assignor of a note, which the assignee has failed to recover of the obligor, it is necessary to set out the consideration of the assignment as well as the reason why the amount was not recovered of the obligor. Elliott v. Thoelkeld, 16 B. M., 344.

An averment of due notice will not be sustained by evidence of facts excusing notice. Garvey v. Fowler, 4 Sands, 665. All the facts which constitute the cause of action must be stated in the complaint, and every fact on which the right of action depends, must be deemed constitutive in the sense of the code. Ibid.

The plaintiff alleged that his eye was injured by having got poison into it, which was deposited in a trough by the defendant, for a malicious purpose, or by the burning of the animal poisoned thereby, etc. Held bad on demurrer, as being in the alternative, as not being a natural or proximate cause of the act of the defendant, and that he is not liable, and that the demurrer can not be said to admit the one cause more than the other. Duvall, J., Johnson v. Williams, Mss. opin., December, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where the complaint alleges "the sale and delivery of goods," it is not necessary to allege a promise on the part of the defendant, to pay, etc. A statement of the facts constituting a cause of action, in ordinary language, etc., is sufficient; that is, all the facts which, upon a general denial, the plaintiff would be bound to prove to entitle him to a judgment. Glenny v. Hitchins, 2 Code Rep., 56; 4 Pr. R., 98; 3 Code Rep., 153.

In an action of assault and battery, the statements in the complaint of the business and employment of the parties, and the object and intent of the assault, together with the statement that it caused the plaintiff to be ridiculed, and so forth, held not to be immaterial or irrelevant, although not essential to entitle the plaintiff to maintain his action, they are material on the question of damages, and may be proved. Root v. Foster, 9 Pr., R. 37.

To say that S. has failed "to fulfill his obligations by virtue of said instrument," is no more than saying he has broken his contract, or that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment. It involves no question of fact; it is merely the plaintiff's inference from a state of facts which he has not thought fit to disclose. Van Schaacks v. Winne, 16 Barb., 95.

Allegations in a pleading should be positively made, in order to prevent immaterial issues and confusion, and the words, "as the plaintiff is informed and believes," following the allegations of the complaint, were stricken out as redundant. Truscott v. Dale, 7 Pr. R., 221.

The allegation that F., the president of the telegraph company, drew his bill on G. F. D., treasurer of said company, does not amount to an averment, that F. as president drew the bill on G. F. D., as treasurer of the telegraph company. The adjuncts, president and treasurer, are only descriptio personam, and does not show the bill to be that of the company. Crenshaw, C. J., Tanner v. Woolfolk, Mss. opin., September, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The facts which are required to be stated, as "constituting the cause of action," can only mean real, traversable facts, as distinguished from propositions or conclusions of law; since it is the former, not the latter, that can alone, with any propriety be said to constitute the cause of action. Mann v. Morewood, 5 Sand., 566.

A statement in the body of a petition, which shows that an individual is a necessary party, does not make him a party. His name must be in the style of the action, which is, the names of the parties, plaintiffs and defendants, at the head of the petition. Crenshaw, C. J., Wilkes, Sheridan, etc. v. Morehead, Mss. opin., September, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The words, "facts constituting a cause of action," mean those facts which the evidence upon the trial will prove, and not the evidence which will be required to prove the existence of the fact. Wooden v. Strew, 10 Pr. R., 50.

The facts which the code requires to be set forth, are not true propositions, but physical facts, capable, as such, of being established by evidence, oral or documentary, and from which, when so established, the right to maintain the action, or the validity of a defense, is a necessary conclusion of law—a conclusion which the court will draw, and which it is quite unnecessary the pleader should state. Lawrence v. Wright, 2 Duer, 674.

A petition asking redress for an injury arising from negligence, or want of skill in the performance of a lawful act, should state such facts as would have authorized the action on the case; and a petition claiming redress for an injury done with force, such facts as would have authorized the action of trespass. Kauntz v. Brown, 16 B. M., 584.

A complainant should state the facts of the case full enough to enable the court on proof or admission of the facts set forth, to grant the relief sought. Tallman v. Green, 3 Sand., 438.

The plaintiff must aver every fact necessary to show a right to recover, and every such necessary averment must be proved in some way. Murdock v. The Chenango Co. Mut. Ins. Co., 2 Coms., 216.

The plaintiff is to state in his complaint the facts which constitute his cause of action, and nothing more. Clark v. Harwood, 8 Pr. R., 472.

The ode of Practice requires that the plaintiff's petition must contain a statement of the facts constituting his cause of action, with scarcely any other requisition, but that it be made in ordinary and concise language, without repetition. Hill for use of Wintersmith v. Barrett, etc., 14 B. M., 84.

The code makes no change in the law which determines what facts constitute a cause of action, except that by reducing all forms of action to the single one by petition, it changes the question, whether the plaintiff's statement of his cause shows facts constituting a cause of action in trespass, assumpsit, or other particular form, into the more general question, whether the petition shows a right of action in any form. Ibid., 85.

The code does not authorize a recovery upon any statement of facts, which before its adoption, did not authorize a recovery in some form of action, and therefore former precedents, rules and adjudications may be resorted to as authoritative, except so far as they relate to the distinctions between the different forms of actions, or to formal and merely technical allegations. Ibid., 86.

In a suit upon an appeal bond, the petition should state so much of the bond and condition, and so much of the decree appealed from, and make such averments as will show a breach of the condition and a cause of action. If the decree was for a surrender of property, that the plaintiff was deprived of its use, etc.; if to pay costs and damages—aver that the decree was affirmed' and that costs and damages were awarded, and what they were. Collins v. Blackburn, 14 B. M., 254-5.

A petition to enforce a vendor's lien, must aver, either that the vendor has complied with his contract, or is able to do so. Simpson, J., Noe, etc. v. Daugherty, Mss. opin., December, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

It is necessary for the plaintiff, who sues for the purchase money of land, to allege his ability to comply with the contract as vendor, otherwise he has no right, in a court of equity, to demand the payment of the purchase money. Held, however, that the allegation that the plaintiff has the legal title of the land sold, is sufficient, though it would be better to allege the fact of his ability, etc., more distinctly. Simpson, J., Simpson's adm'r v. Dunlap, Mss. opin., December, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where a plaintiff sues as receiver, he should at least state the place of his appointment, and distinctly aver that he was appointed by order of the court. White v. Low, 7 Barb., 204; Chataque Co. Bank v. White, 2 Selden, 236.

The defendant in such a suit has a right to insist that the facts constituting the appointment of the plaintiff, as set out, shall be sufficient to show one has been made, and that these facts be so set out as to be triable. Ibid. [But see section 2923.]

In actions to recover damages for the detention of personal property, it is not necessary to set forth the plaintiff's title, otherwise than by a general averment of ownership; and under such an averment, if controverted, the plaintiff may give evidence of the manner in which he acquired title. Heine v. Anderson, 2 Duer, 318.

It is not necessary in a petition to state the facts and circumstances by which the ultimate fact relied on is to be proved. See v. Cox, 16 Mo. Rep., 166; McMartin v. Adams, ibid., 268; vide Boon v. Miller, 16 Mo. Rep., 457; State v. Thomas, 17 Mo. Rep., 503. A plaintiff can only recover on the cause of action alleged in his petition. Link v. Vaughn, 17 Mo. Rep., 585; vide Page & Bacon v. Snow, 18 Mo. Rep., 126; Perry v. Barrett, ibid., 140. An averment that a party "used and occupied premises with the permission of the owner, thereby becoming his tenant," is a sufficient averment of indebtedness. Walker v. Mauro, 18 Mo. Rep., 564. A party suing upon a bond must state his title in his petition. It is not sufficient to aver that he is the legal holder. Smith & Kinzer v. Dean, 19 Mo. Rep., 63. Law and equity being now blended, an equitable title arising out of a contract for the sale of land is a good defense to an action instituted to recover possession of land. Tibeau v. Tibeau, 19 Mo. Rep., 78; vide Ramsours v. Campbell, 19 Mo. Rep., 358. A statement in a petition, that the plaintiff sued in the capacity of administratrix, is a sufficient allegation that she is administratrix. Duncan v. Duncan, 19 Mo. Rep., 368. It is not necessary that facts should be stated in a pleading according to their legal effect. (Pye v. Rutter, 7 Mo. Rep., 548; Muldrow v. Caldwell, 7 Mo. Rep., 563; Moore & Hunt v. Platte County, 8 Mo. Rep., 467;) Page v. Freeman, 19 Mo. Rep., 421. A plaintiff is entitled to all the relief that he could formerly have obtained, both from a court of law and equity, upon the facts. Rankin v. Charless, 19 Mo. Rep., 490. Courts do not take judicial notice of city ordinances. If a party rely on an ordinance, he should set it out in his pleading. Mooney v. Kennett, 19 Mo. Rep., 551. A party seeking equitable relief under the new system, must state facts which would have been a ground for such relief under the old system. Jones v. Brinker, 20 Mo. Rep., 87; Carman v. Johnson, ibid., 108; Maguire v. Vice, ibid., 429. In declaring upon a note, it is not necessary to set out a consideration in the petition. Caples v. Branham, 20 Mo. Rep., 244. If a complainant rely upon a disability as exempting him from the operation of the statute of limitations he should set it up in his bill. Keeton v. Keeton, 20 Mo. Rep., 530.

General damages are such as necessarily result from the injury complained of, and may be recovered without any special averment in the complaint. But such damages as are the natural but not the necessary result of the injury, are special, and must be averred in the complaint. Vandenslice v. Newton, 4 Comst., 130. And in an action for a breach of contract the plaintiff is confined in his recovery to the breach alleged, and can not recover on any other grounds. Briggs v. Vanderbilt, 19 Barb., 222. Damages, costs and expenses, when given as the penalty against a party for the non-performance of a contract, mean the necessary, natural and proximate damages resulting from such non-performance, and not some remote, accidental or special injury to the party to whom the right of action accrues. Groat v. Gillespie, 25 Wend., 383; and see Bagert v. Burkhatton, 2 Barb., 525. Whenever special damages are recovered, it must be on a distinct and definite statement in the complaint. Low v. Archer, 2 Kern., 282.

The contract of the maker of a note is to pay it according to the terms of it. The contract of the indorser is, that the maker will pay on presentment according to the terms of the instrument, or on his default, he, the indorser, on due notice of such demand and non-payment, will pay. The complaint, therefore, in order to conform to the code, should state facts enough against the maker to show his liability to pay, and enough against the indorser to charge him with the debt. In the latter case, not only the making and indorsement of the note should be stated, but also the demand of the maker at the time and place prescribed for that purpose, and notice of such demand and non payment to the indorser. This demand must be on the third day of grace, and notice of demand and refusal given afterwards on the same day or the next. The complaint in this case does not show a demand of the note at the place where it was payable, nor does it show notice of such demand and non-payment, as against the indorsers; a demand at the place appointed in the note for payment was necessary. As against the maker this was of no consequence; but as the plaintiffs have chosen to unite both makers and indorsers in the same action, their statement of facts should have been full enough to show the liability of both. Per Willard, J., Spellman v. Weider, 5 How., 5.

A party seeking to enforce in our state and courts a contract, which by its laws are forbidden, and declared void, must aver and prove where it was made, and that by the laws of that place it was authorized and valid. Thatcher v. Morris, 1 Kern., 437.

An allegation in the complaint "that payment of said note was duly demanded at maturity and refused, and the same was thereupon duly protested for non-payment, and notice thereof duly given to the said indorsers" is deemed sufficient. See Woodbury v. Sackrider, 2 Abb., 404; McCall's Forms, 220.

Degrees of negligence are matters of proof and not of averment. The general allegations of negligence, want of care and skill, &c., are sufficient, whether the defendant is liable for ordinary or only gross negligence. Nolton v. Western R. R. Co., 15 N. Y. R., 444.

Whether on a given state of facts the transaction constitutes an account stated, is a question of law. Lockwood v. Thorne, 1 Kern., 170.

A complaint must state all the issuable facts constituting the cause of action. In an action for the recovery of possession of personal property, a demand and refusal are necessary, where the defendant becomes possessed of the property by the delivery of the wrong-doer, and merely detains it. And this is applicable to a defendant in possession who is assignee of the wrong-doer in trust for creditors. Fuller v. Lewis, 13 How., 219.

It is never necessary in pleading to state matter which the court is supposed to know, and of which it is bound to take notice, and therefore it is unnecessary to state mere matter of common or public statute law. Shaw v. Tobias, 3 Comst., 188.

The plaintiff brought his action on a contract for the payment of money made by the defendant with another, and alleged his title to the cause of action as follows: that he (the plaintiff) "is now the sole owner of the said demand against the said defendant." Held insufficient—merely an allegation of a conclusion of law. Some fact or facts should be stated, showing how the plaintiff became the owner of the demand. Thomas v. Desmond, 12 How., 331.

A complaint stated that the defendant made "his contract in writing," and set forth a copy thereof, in which the defendant "for value received, promised to pay;" but the complaint did not aver any consideration for the contract, in direct terms. It also stated that such contract became the property of the plaintiff by purchase, without stating when, from whom, or upon what consideration. Held, that these defects are not of such a substantial nature, as to be available, under the ground of demurrer that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, but that the remedy is by motion, to make the faulty pleading more definite and certain. That proceeding has taken the place of demurrers for want of form. Prindle v. Caruthers, 15 N. Y. R., 425.

And it is still the rule that the omission to state a necessary fact, in the petition or other pleading of a party, may be cured by an allegation of the same fact in a subsequent pleading of the other party in the same action. Bates v. Graham, 1 Kernan, 237. This is a rule of the common law, still acted upon under the code.

It may be necessary to aver more than will need to be proved. 1 vol. W. L. M., p. 102.

As to what administrator must state, see 1 vol. W. L. M., p. 155, but see also section hereof, 2923.

Although the special prayer of the petition is for the sale of land, which could not, upon the allegations, be granted, yet, under the general prayer for all other proper relief, plaintiff would be entitled to judgment in personam, upon proof sufficient. Stiles, J., Welch v. Owen, Ms. opinion, June, 1856.—Stanton's Ky. Code.

The general prayer formerly of importance in a bill in chancery, is of no consequence in a complaint in any action under the code. Marquat v. Marquat, 2 Kernan, 336.

If the defendant has answered, the court may grant the plaintiff any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. In case no answer has been put in, the relief granted can not exceed that demanded in the complaint. In the former case the demand of relief in the complaint becomes immaterial. The case made by the complaint, and the limits of the issue alone determine the extent of the power of the court. The expressions of the statute include the statement of the right of the plaintiff, and its infringement by the defendant. Marquat v. Marquat, 2 Kern., 241. That the prayer of the complainant is too broad, or embraces too much, is not among the causes for which a defendant may demur. Address v. Shaffer, 12 How., 441.

The complaint should state, in the conclusion, the relief sought, and the amount claimed. It need not be the true sum, but there can be no recovery beyond that laid. The conclusion may, at any time, be amended by leave of the court. Billingsley v. Dean, 11 Ind. R., 331.

A complaint stating facts which show that the maker of the note was entitled to its possession, and alleging that the defendant wrongfully converted and disposed of it to his own use, is sufficient after verdict. Decker v. Matthews, 2 Kern., 313.

Defects in pleading are cured by verdict, in the same manner and to the same extent as before the code. Decker v. Matthews, 2 Kern., 821; 1 Saund., 228, a. n.; Brown v. Harmon, 21 Barb., 505; Clark v. Dales, 20 Barb., 42. This, too, is a rule not in opposition to the code, and therefore not necessarily excluded by it; and as it is a dictate of reason and justice, it is still acted upon by the courts, within the principle already stated as to the applicability of former rules, in pleading under the code. W. L. M.

The Demurrer.

Demurrer.

SEC. 2876. The defendant may demur to the petition only where it appears on its face, either,

1. That the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant or the subject of the action, or,
2. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue, or,
3. That there is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause, or,
4. That there is a defect of parties, plaintiffs, or defendants, or,
5. That the petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or that it states some fact which avoids the cause of action, or,

6. For causes stated in sections 2918, 2920, 2961, 2963, of this chapter.

A party can only demur where the ground of demurrer appears on the face of the complaint. In so demurring, the party must state the ground of demurrer on which he relies, and can only obtain judgment for the cause stated in the demurrer. Whenever the matter of objection does not appear on the face of the complaint, then it may be set up in the answer. Wilson v. Mayor of New York, 15 How., 500. Where an answer is merely defensive—that is, where it asks no affirmative relief, a demurrer to it will not lie. Mead v. Florence, 9 How., 396.

A party now, whatever his taste might lead him to adopt, can be only indulged in such pleadings as the code prescribes; whatever is not expressly authorized by its provisions is no longer a pleading. A demurrer in any other than the cases prescribed by the code would be a nullity. Simpson v. Loft, 8 Pr. R., 235.

A party can demur only in the cases prescribed by the code. He can not except for insufficiency or impertinence. The doctrine of exceptions belonged to the practice of the court of chancery, and has been swept away. Willard, J., Royce v. Brown, 3 Pr. R., 395.

We must forget all old rules respecting demurrers, and regard a demurrer now as a pleading created, with its character and office defined by the code. Gridley, J., Manchester v. Stones, 3 Pr. R., 410.

If the prayer of the complaint is too broad, or embraces too much, it is not among the causes for which a defendant may demur. Nor is surplusage in the complaint a ground of demurrer. Andrews v. Shaffer, 12 How., 441. A demurrer can only be adopted in the particular cases prescribed by the Code of Procedure. However defective the complaint may be, or however far short it may come of complying with any or all of the general rules of pleading laid down in the chapter "upon pleadings," the defendant can not demur unless the objection falls within one or more of the six grounds enumerated in the section of the act. De Witt v. Swift, 3 How., 280. Mere irrelevancy in an answer is not a ground of demurrer. Watson v. Husson, 1 Duer, 242. Under the code, a demurrer will in no case lie for duplicity; and the only mode for a party to avail himself of such objection is by motion to strike out or compel the party to elect. Gooding v. McAllister, 9 How., 123; and see Welles v. Webster, 9 How., 251; and Robinson v. Judd, 9 How., 378.

It is objected that after taking issue upon the principal fact in the complaint, it is too late to allege matter in abatement. This is clearly an error. If the matter in abatement constitute a defense, it must be stated in the answer. There can not be two answers, and the answer may set forth as many grounds of defense as the defendant shall have. A defect of parties, apparent in the complaint, is ground for demurrer. If not so apparent, it may be set up in the answer. Bridge v. Payson, 5 Sand., 210.

A demurrer does not admit the items of an account set forth in a petition, so as to do away with the necessity of proof. If judgment be given on demurrer to such a petition, and the defendant refuse to answer, an inquiry of damages becomes necessary. Darrah & Pomeroy v. Steamboat Lightfoot, 15 Mo. Rep., 187.

Where the cause of action alleged in the complaint is a contract made in a foreign state, and such contract is void by the laws of the state in which it is made, and it does not appear on the face of the complaint what is the law of the foreign state, the proper mode of taking advantage of the law, of such foreign state, is by answer, stating what is the law of such foreign state. A demurrer can not be sustained. Humphrey v. Chamberlain, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 387.

Where, in an action by a corporation or a natural person, the want of legal capacity to sue exists, or is supposed to exist, but that fact does not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection must be taken by answer. It can not be raised by demurrer. Union Mutual Ins. Co. v. Osgood, 1 Duer, 707.

That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue is cause of demurrer, if the fact appears on the face of the petition, and in such a case, a failure to demur amounts to a waiver of the objection. Not so where it is alleged in the answer, and proved on the trial. Petty v. Malier, 14 B. M., 248.

If the plaintiff's petition does not show a promise, in writing, made by one or the undertaking of another, no judgment can be rendered for failing to perform such promise, 3 Mar., 445; 8 B. M., 423, though the defendant should fail to plead and rely upon the statute. Smith v. Fah, 15 B. M. 446.

It is not good ground of demurrer, that an amended petition in a suit by ordinary petition, departs from the cause of action set out in the original petition. Hord v. Chandler, 13 B. M., 403.

A demurrer is not the appropriate mode of raising the question, whether the proceedings should have been at law or in equity. It is only applicable to the question of jurisdiction, when the question is whether the court has jurisdiction either at law or in equity. Trustees of Lebanon v. Forrest, etc., 15 B. M., 172.

Where B., after setting up new matter in answer to an action by A., brought a cross-action against A., founded on the same matter as his answer, and A. moved in the first action that B. should elect either to abandon his answer or his cross-action; held, that the motion should have been in the cross-action, for a reference to inquire, whether the cross-action was for the same cause as the new matter set up in the answer; and if so, then for an order dismissing the cross-suit. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. v. Hunt, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 1.

If a party in his petition in equity fail to show that he is entitled to the special relief asked for, and shows a right to any relief, even in a court of law, a demurrer to the petition should not be sustained to the whole claim, but the case transferred to the common docket. Foster v. Watson, etc., 16 B. M., 387.

An objection to a complaint for the non-joinder of parties, can not be taken by special demurrer, unless the complaint shows that the party for whose non-joinder the demurrer was interposed was living when the suit commenced. It is not enough that the complaint is silent on the subject, the fact must appear affirmatively. Where the fact does not appear on the face of the complaint the objection should be taken by answer, analogous to a former plea in abatement. Branard v. Jones, 11 How., 569.

The defense of non-joinder of a party jointly liable, must be taken advantage of by answer or demurrer, or it is waived. If the objection is by answer, the non-joinder must be alleged. The objection can not be taken advantage of under a denial of the allegations of the complaint. Mayhugh v. Robinson, 10 Pr. R., 162.

The rule that the complaint must show a joint cause of action against all the defendants, is only applicable at law, and never did apply in equity. Where a good cause of action in an equity suit is stated in the complaint, against one of several defendants, though not as against the others, a joint demurrer, against all of the defendants is improper. If the defendants who are unnecessarily made parties, alone demur, the demurrer may be sustained; but the defendant against whom a good cause of action is alleged can not for that reason demur. Eldridge v. Bell, 12 How., 517; and see Phillips v. Haggadon, 12 How., 17; and Brownson v. Gifford, 8 How., 389.

A defect of parties should be relied on in the defendant's answer, otherwise it is to be regarded as waived. Smith v. Fah, 15 B. M., 446.

If a pleading is correct in substance, but not in form, the remedy is by motion, not by demurrer. Howell v. Fraser, 6 How., 221. When the charge in a complaint in an action of slander is general, and the answer alleges that the charge is true, the defect should be cured, not by demurrer, but by motion, to make the answer more definite and certain. Van Wyck v. Guthrie, 4 Duer, 268.

When a demurrer is to the whole complaint, if one of the plaintiffs might have judgment separately, it is bad. Peabody v. Washington Co. Mutual Ins. Co., 20 Barb., 339.

A demurrer to an answer to an ordinary petition, under the code of practice, involves the sufficiency of the petition; if that be bad, it is unnecessary to decide on the sufficiency of the answer. Martin v. McDonald, 14 B. M., 547.

On demurrer to any pleading subsequent to the complaint, either party may attack any previous pleading for a defect in substance, and such as could be reached by general demurrer. Stoddard v. Onondaga Annual Conference, 12 Barb., 575.

Upon a demurrer to an answer, the sufficiency of the complaint may be considered and adjudged upon. Fry v. Bennett, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 238.

Where the petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, the objection is not waived by failure to demur or answer in the court below, and is available here. Stiles, J., Fible v. Caplinger, 13 B. M., 466. Goddard v. Maddock, M.s. opin., December, 1854. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The language here used must be taken to mean, that a defense of another action pending, when available may be set up by demurrer, when it shall appear on the face of the complaint, and by answer, when it does not. Per Edmonds, J., in Burrows v. Muller, 4 Pr. R., 51-2.

When there are in fact two actions pending between the same parties for the same cause, but that fact does not appear on the face of the complaint, the defendant can not demur. He must put in an answer of the same action pending. Hornfager v. Hornfager, 1 Code Rep., N. S. 412.

When a party is suing in two courts for the same cause of action, he may be compelled to elect in which court he will proceed. Hammond v. Baker, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 105.

The pendency of a prior suit in the courts of the United States, or the courts of a sister state, never was a defense to an action in this state, and the code has not changed the rule in this respect. Cook v. Litchfield, 5 Sands, 330.

The pendency of a suit in another state, for the recovery and collection of the same debt, could not affect the right of the plaintiff to prosecute an action for the debt in this state. Simpson, J., McMicken v. Hammond, Mss. opin., January, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The improper joinder of parties is not a ground of demurrer, even if it appeared on the face of the complaint that such improper joinder existed. It is only for defect or want of parties that a demurrer lies. Gregory v. Oaksmith, 12 How., 134. A demurrer will not lie for misjoinder of parties. Peabody v. Wash. Co. Mutual Ins. Co., 20 Barb., 339.

A defect of parties, plaintiffs or defendants, is a valid ground of demurrer, but the objection that the petition shows a misjoinder of parties, either plaintiffs or defendants, can only be taken advantage of by a motion to strike out the name of the party thus improperly joined. Dean, etc. v. English, 18 B. M., 136.

In actions sounding in tort, where it appears by the complaint that all the proper parties are not made, a demurrer will lie for the non-joinder of the proper parties defendant, but not for the misjoinder of some, who have been made defendants with others who are properly sued. If a party is properly sued, he may insist that another ought to be sued with him. But he has no right to object that another, who is sued with him, is improperly made a defendant. Brownson v. Gifford, 8 How., 389.

Defect of parties appearing may be taken advantage of by demurrer. If it does not appear, it may be taken by suggestion in the answer; if such objection is not insisted upon by demurrer or answer, it will be regarded as waived; and the court may, if the rights of those not made parties can be safe, determine the controversy between those before it. If there are indispensable parties, the court should require them to be brought in. Johnson's heirs v. Chandler's heirs, 15 B. M., 589.

A defendant who is properly joined as a party defendant can not demur to the complaint because others are improperly or unnecessarily made defendants. Pinekney v. Wallace, 1 Abbott, 82; Voorhies v. Baxter, ib., 44.

If husband and wife are improperly joined as plaintiffs, the objection must be taken by demurrer or answer; an answer on the merits will be considered as a waiver of the objection. Ingraham v. Baldwin, 12 Barb., 9; and see Baggott v. Boulges, 2 Duer, 160.

It is entirely optional with the defendant whether he will demur or not, for the reason that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; and his election not to avail himself of that right does not preclude him from taking advantage of the error at any other stage of the case. Gould v. Glass, 19 Barb., 185.

The failure to demur does not waive the right of the defendant to object on the trial for the first time, that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Higgins v. Freeman, 2 Duer, 650; Montgomery County Bank v. Albany City Bank, 3 Selden, 464.

Where a defect of jurisdiction of the subject matter is shown by the petition, it is not waived by an omission to demur; but the objection may be made at any time. 3 Seld., 464.

Where the petition in ordinary proceedings sets forth no cause of action, and the defect is not cured by answer, advantage may be taken of the error by motion in arrest of judgment, or by writ of error. Fible v. Caplinger, 13 B. M., 446.

Specify grounds.

SEC. 2877. The demurrer must distinctly specify and consecutively number as the grounds of objection, some matter of error, intended to be argued as a defect in the pleading; unless it do so it shall be disregarded; and it shall not be enough to state the objection in the terms of the preceding section, except that a demurrer to an equitable petition for the fifth reason of section 2876 may be stated in the terms thereof.*

When answer.

SEC. 2878. When any of the matters enumerated in section 2876 do not appear on the face of the petition, the objection may be taken by an answer. If no such objection is taken either by demurrer or answer, the defendant shall be deemed to have waived the same, except only the objection that the petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or states a fact which avoids the cause of action.

This provision forbids the taking of the objection by answer, if the defect appears upon the face of the petition, so that it might be taken by demurrer. Dennison v. Dennison, 9 How. Pr. R., 246.

Matter in abatement constituting a defense, should be pleaded or set up in the answer, unless it is apparent on the face of the complaint; then a demurrer, is the proper remedy. Mayhew v. Robinson, 10 How., 162. "A dilatory defense, which a plea in abatement is considered to be, is not favored; but he who is entitled to avail himself of it must interpose it promptly, according to established forms. Here the facts were fully disclosed by the complaint, and the defendant could have demurred. The authority to object by way of answer is, in terms, limited to cases where the fact does not appear in the prior pleading. When, therefore, section 148 declares that if the objection is not taken by demurrer or answer, it shall be considered as waived, it means that if it be not taken by demurrer where that mode is proper, or by answer, in cases where that is the appropriate method, it is waived. This construction will give full effect to all the language, and will, besides, compel the defendant to take his ground with the promptness inculcated by the rule of pleading to which I have referred. Per Denio, J., Zabriskie v. Smith, 3 Kern., 336.

Not demur and answer same matter.

SEC. 2879. The defendant may demur to one or more of the several causes of action alleged in the petition and answer, as to the residue.

An answer and demurrer to the same cause of action is irregular in practice, and the defendant might have been compelled to elect by which he would stand. Howard v. Michigan Southern Railroad Co., 3 Code Rep., 115; 5 Pr. Rep., 206.

* This is not the general demurrer, because it must assign a reason other than the general one of want of sufficient facts. It is not the special one as understood after the time of Elizabeth, because that was aimed at form. It is a demurrer peculiar to the new system, having the elements of both, as formerly known. The motion in this system serves the function of the special demurrer of the old system, so far as objections are yet allowed to be made to defects not substantial. Report on Civil Code.

Where a defendant demurs and answers to the same cause of action, or to the whole of a complaint, the plaintiff can not treat the demurrer as a nullity, nor move for judgment; but he should move to strike out the answer and demurrer, or that the defendant elect by which he will abide. Spellman v. Weider, 5 Pr., 5.

*Answer.**

SEC. 2880. The answer shall contain :

1. The style of the court, the name of the county, and the name of the plaintiffs and defendants, but when there are several plaintiffs and defendants, it shall be only necessary to give the first name of each class, with the words—and others.
2. A general denial of each allegation of the petition, or else of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief, which latter may be by this or any equivalent statement,—of the truth of no allegation of the petition has this defendant knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief; or,
3. A specific denial of each allegation of the petition controverted by the defendant, or of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief.
4. A statement of any new matter constituting a defense, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition.
5. A statement of any new matter constituting a set-off, or a counter-

* Upon the answer more than upon any other pleading stands the reform system. In no part of the pleadings had sense been so much outraged, and the principles of pleading so much violated. The object of pleading was to let each party know what facts the other relied on. Formerly the plaintiff stated his facts and the defendant traversed, that is denied them; the traverse then had the meaning our denial has now. The plaintiff then knew that he had to prove his facts to recover, and knew that the defendant, under such defense, could prove nothing but that his facts were not true. While this usage lasted, each knew what the other meant to rely on, but soon the defendant began to get the privilege of pleading what was called a general issue. This was never a denial, as the traverse had been, of any fact. It was rather a denial of some legal conclusion from some fact in the petition, or of the legal conclusion drawn from all the facts thereof, namely, the liability, or the guilt of the defendant. That is to say, it was a denial of the legal conclusion which the whole facts of the plaintiff went to establish. If the plaintiff in the early times of pleading plead well, there was in his declaration no legal conclusion, save when he asserted as a result of the facts stated, that the defendant was liable to him in so much, or guilty—and this general issue was mainly a denial of this legal conclusion. It denied no fact so as to advise the plaintiff what fact he would need to prove. It plead no fact so as to apprise the plaintiff what fact the defendant meant to rely upon. This absence of liability or of guilt might be based on any one of twenty diverse facts, and any one of these might be shown under this issue, so that the plaintiff could not tell which he must prepare to meet and refute, and must be surprised and defeated, or else must prepare for every possible one. Thus pleading lost its sceptre of common sense and sound logic.

It is not true, that under any general issue, every fact of defense could be proved, but the spirit of its departure from reason is truly hereby characterised.

Under the old rules of pleading, the language needed, oftentimes, to be technical, and was not meant to be understood by a jury, any more than when it was French or Latin, and the jury needed generally to be told by the court what the pleadings meant. The object is, to use now, ordinary language which juries can understand, and to construe the same by the ordinary, and not the technical meaning.

An allegation under the old system that A. promised B. to the court and lawyers meant, that A. made a promise to B., and that there was a good consideration therefor, and that there was a total absence of all circumstances in the transaction which would defeat a legal capacity to make it, as that A. was not an infant, and was not insane, &c.—while the same words only meant to the ordinary mind that an actual promise was made. Such an allegation now would have only one sense, the ordinary one, and lawyers, and court, and jurors, would all understand it alike and equally well. Report on Civil Code, page 302.

claim, or a cross-demand, or a cross-petition, in ordinary and concise language, without repetition.

6. The defendant may set forth in his answer as many causes of defense, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, whether legal or equitable, as he may have.

A defendant is required, in all cases, to plead any new matter, constituting either an entire or partial defense, and can not give such matter as evidence in mitigation of damages, when not set up in the answer. The complaint alleged that the plaintiff did labor and service for and at the request of the defendant, which was worth $650, and concluded with an averment that there was due to the plaintiff on account of such service, over and above all payments and set-offs, $134, and a demand of judgment for that sum, with interest. The answer consisted only of a general denial of all the allegations of the complaint; held, that evidence of payment as a defense to the action, or of partial payment in mitigation, was inadmissible on the trial, because neither was pleaded. McKyring v. Bull, 16 N. Y. R., 297.

It can hardly be that the legislature intended that when a party could not make a full defense to an action, and could not therefore with truth allege facts constituting a full defense, or fully deny the case made by the plaintiff, that he should be denied the privilege of alleging in his answer, and establishing by proof a partial defense, or alleging and proving mitigating circumstances. If this was not intended, then the statute should be construed as giving authority to spread facts as constituting a partial defense, or tending to reduce the claim of the plaintiff, upon the record, by way of answer, as a ground of defense, or as a defense; otherwise, a return must be had to the former practice, which permitted partial defenses to be given in evidence without plea or notice, for the legislature never intended so to alter the law, that a party who could not make a full defense should not be heard to make any; but, in the language of another, "should be bound hand and foot, and handed over to a jury." Per W. F. Allen, J., Bush v. Prosser, 1 Kern., 352.

The word "defense" in the code, is not there used in its legal, technical sense. It has no application to that part of the answer which contains denial only of the facts stated in the complaint; but it is used in reference to the statement of new matter; and it must be such new matter as constitutes a defense. Now the question arises, whether this new matter must constitute a complete bar to the action, in order to make a good defense? In other words, in an action on a money demand, can the defendant plead partial payment? there being now no general issue where part payment or set-off can be shown when the answer contains simply a denial of the complaint. Held, that there is no way by which a defendant can now avail himself of the defense of partial payment, without pleading it. And it seems that the defendant should not plead full payment in bar, in order to avail himself of partial payment as a defense; but state the facts constituting the new matter. Houghton v. Townsend, 8 How., 441.

And where in an action on an account the action merely denied the allegations in the complaint; held, that the defendant could not insist upon an award made upon the account as a bar to the suit, although the fact of the award appeared from the plaintiff's evidence. Brazill v. Isham, 2 Kern., 9.

But in an action for the conversion of property, an answer which denies each and every allegation in the complaint, is a denial not only of the conversion, but of the plaintiff's title; and under it, evidence that the plaintiff had no title to the property is admissible. Robinson v. Frost, 14 Barb., 536.

Payment is new matter and must be thus answered. Hubber v. Pullen, 9 Ind. R., 273. See ibid., 288.

The payment need not be shown to have been made in money; but any thing that the party has accepted as payment, constitutes payment. Ind. Dig., 622.

As now, in complaints, the relief prayed may be in the alternative in cases where, under the former chancery practice, such prayer of relief was proper; so in answers setting up new matter, relief may be thus prayed where it might have been in answers in chancery. See Adam's Eq. Top., p. 689; Howard's (N. Y.) Code, p. 243; Helm v. Swiggert, 12 Ind. R. Perkins' Practice.

A pleading which sets up usury, either as a ground of defense, or substantive cause of action, must set it up in clear and distinct terms, and the terms of the usurious contract, and the quantum of usurious interest or premium must be specified, and distinctly and correctly set out; and where in an action on a promissory note, the answer alleged that "said note was usurious in its inception," and the payee knew it was executed fraudulently, and to sell usuriously above the rate of seven per cent. per annum, to wit, one and a half per cent. per month: Held, that this was not a sufficient allegation of usury to allow evidence to be given of it. Gould v. Horner, 12 Barb., 601.

In an action for a tort, (except libel or slander,) the defendant can not set up matter in mitigation of damages; but if they exist, he may give evidence of them on trial, or assessment of damages. Rosenthal v. Brush, 1 Code Rep. N. S., 228; Schneider v. Schultz, 4 Sand., 664.

An answer which alleged "that the plaintiff who prosecutes the action is not the real party in interest therein, nor is he an executor, or administrator, or a trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute to sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the suit is prosecuted," held, bad, on demurrer, for the reason that it did not state the facts on which the defendant relied to sustain his allegation, that the plaintiff had no right to sue. Russell v. Clapp, 3 Code Rep., 64; 4 Pr. R., 347.

To authorize a defense on the trial, that the plaintiff is not the real party in interest, the answer must not only allege the facts which show that to be the case, but should negative the exceptions; thus, where, in an action on a promissory note, payee against maker, the answer set up that "the plaintiff is not the sole owner and holder of the note, but holds the same jointly with another," and "therefore the said plaintiff is not individually entitled to recover against the defendant," the answer was held to be insufficient. It should have gone further, and negatived that the plaintiff was a trustee of an express trust, as to the other joint owners' interest, or otherwise entitled to sue without joining the same joint owner. Tompkins v. Acer, 10 Pr. R., 309.

New matter, in avoidance, should confess, directly or by implication, that, but for the matter in avoidance, the action could be maintained. An answer of new matter in avoidance can not, therefore, be pleaded hypothetically. Thus, in an action for slander, the defendant can not, as one defense, deny that he uttered the defamatory words, and then suggest, hypothetically, that if he did, he uttered them in reference to a certain contract. Porter v. McCreaty, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 88; Sayles v. Wooden, ibid., 409; 6 Pr. R., 84; Buddington v. Davis, ibid., 401; Lewis v. Kendall, ibid., 59.

The action was for rent. The answer denied the hiring and occupation, and set up a surrender of the premises to the plaintiff, and other defenses. On the cross-examination of one of the plaintiff's witnesses, it was sought to show that the witness and not the plaintiff was the owner of the premises, and entitled to the rent, if any were due. The appellate court held such proof not admissible under the pleadings, and that the defendant should have raised the point in his answer, that the plaintiff was not the real party in interest, if he intended to rely upon it. Jackson v. Whedon, 1 Smith, 142.

A defense should not be stricken out, because it contains matter which may be proved under a general denial. It was never a good ground of general demurrer, that a plea amounted to the general issue. The objection might be taken, but, being regarded as a mere matter of form, it was only available when taken by special demurrer. The code has retained no such ground of demurrer. The question in every such case now is, whether the matters stated constitute a defense, and not whether they might have been proven under some other form of pleading. Hollenbeck v. Clow, 9 Pr. R., 292.

The code has given no sanction to the revival, in any form, of a general issue, under which facts in their nature constituting a defense, although not avowed in the answer, may be given in evidence upon the trial; and facts tending to prove that a promissory note, or any other contract was void in its origin, on the ground of usury, fraud, duress, etc., are in their nature as certainly matters of defense, as facts subsequently arising; and there exists, consequently, the same necessity for averring them specifically in the answer. The system of pleading which the code has introduced, rests upon very sound and obvious principles. The answer must distinctly aver all those facts, which, when the case of the plaintiff is admitted or proved, the defendant must prove in order to defeat a recovery. Cattig v. Smith, 1 Duer, 266.

In Baker v. Bailey, 16 Barb., 57, it is said general issues are abolished, and the pleader must set forth the very facts on which he places his defense. Formerly, under the general issue of non est factum, the defendant might prove control, lunacy, illegality of consideration, deed obtained by fraud, erasure, and many other defenses. Now he must set forth the facts, which constitute his defense, in each of the above cases. See Houghton v. Townsend, 8 Pr. R., 443; Garvey v. Fowler, 4 Sand., 665.

An answer to a complaint for a balance due for goods sold and delivered, which denies that the plaintiff "ever sold to the defendant any goods which had not been paid for by the defendant;" and also, that "if the plaintiff ever sold any goods to the defendant, they were sold on credit, and not to be paid for in nine years from the day of sale," is bad. In the first there is nothing that amounts to either a denial of the sale and delivery, or an allegation of payment. It is a mere attempt at hypothetical pleading. In the second, the answer is in terms, hypothetical—no allegation is denied—no new matter is alleged—of course no issue is tendered. Hamilton v. Hough, 13 How., 14.

To a complaint, which charged a defendant with digging a ditch across the sidewalk, and carelessly permitting the same to remain open and uncovered; and, in consequence, the plaintiff's wife fell into said ditch—the answer beside a general denial, and as a separate defense, alleged that if such a ditch was dug, it was done without his knowledge, and that said ditch, if any, was well guarded, and if plaintiff's wife fell in, it was her own fault. On motion, the court struck out such allegation as being hypothetical. Wise v. Fanning, 9 Pr. R., 543.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, brought by the assignee of the mortgage, the defendant put in an answer, denying that the mortgagee, for a valuable consideration, paid by the plaintiff, duly assigned, transferred and delivered the mortgage to the plaintiff and alleged that the same, if ever sold by the mortgagee, was, in fact, sold to B., one of the defendants, and that if any assignment was ever executed by the mortgagee to the plaintiff, the same was only so in form, and that B. furnished the money to purchase the same, and that he was the true party in interest, and that the suit should have been brought in his name; held that the answer was defective, because it set up matter in avoidance without admitting, that, but for the matter in avoidance, the action could be sustained, because it was hypothetical; because it set up matter in avoidance, and, at the same time, denied the allegation it sought to avoid, and because it attempted to show argumentatively, that the mortgage had been paid, without asserting the fact. Arthur v. Brooks, 14 Barb., 543.

An answer is defective that states a legal conclusion, and fails to set out the facts on which such conclusion is based. Simpson, J., Grey v. Williams, adm'rs., Mss. opin., Feb., 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

An answer which without denying any fact stated in the complaint, merely says that "the defendant denies that the plaintiff is entitled to the sum of money demanded in this action, or any part thereof," will be struck out on motion. Drake v. Cockroft, 10 How., 377; and see Bridge v. Payson, 5 Sand., 210.

General averment that defendant does not owe the money sued for, or any part thereof, is not sufficient. He must answer the petition by stating the facts upon which he relies. Sapington v. Jeffries, 15 Mo. Rep., 628. Vide Doan v. Moss, 20 Mo. Rep., 297.

A denial of indebtedness is not a sufficient answer to a petition which sufficiently charges that the indebtedness arose out of breaches of a specific contract. The breaches must be denied. Enqler v. Bate, 19 Mo. Rep., 543.

An allegation in a petition, not material to the plaintiff's right of action, is not admitted by a failure to deny it in the answer. Thus the value of an article for which a plaintiff seeks to recover, is not admitted if not denied. Wood v. Steamboat Fleetwood, 19 Mo. Rep., 529.

Where a defendant in ejectment relies on his legal title, he can not at the trial avail himself of a merely equitable defense. Kennedy v. Daniels, 20 Mo. Rep., 104.

An answer is bad that merely alleges that the note sought to be recovered was obtained by fraud, and omitting to state any facts showing the existence of such fraud. McMurray v. Gifford, 5 Pr. R., 14.

In an action on a promissory note, an answer that the defendant is not indebted in any manner and form, as in the complaint alleged, is not a sufficient answer. Pierson v. Cooley, 1 Code Rep., 91.

The rule laid down as to general denials being insufficient on demurrer, in 16 B. M., 335, and in Francis v. Francis, 18 B. M., 60, applies to the reply to a counter-claim or set-off. Stiles, J., Mercantile Ins. Co. v. Phillips, Mss. opin., Sep., 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The general allegation in the answer that the defendant is not indebted as alleged in the petition, is not deemed responsive to the material allegations of the petition, and presents no obstacle to a recovery. Haggard v. Hays' adm'rs, 13 B. M., 175; Welch v. Owens, Mss. opin., June, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The petition was for goods and merchandise, sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant. The answer denied, "that he is to the best of his knowledge and belief indebted to the plaintiff as stated in his petition." The answer controverts neither the sale nor the delivery, nor the value of the goods, but simply denies that he is indebted, as stated in the petition. Every item in the account might be correct, except a single one, of inconsiderable value, and yet the answer in its present form be literally true. Such generality and vagueness of pleading is opposed to the provisions of the civil code regulating the subject. The demurrer to the answer was properly sustained. Francis v. Francis, 18 B. M., 60.

The answer to a petition to recover damages for a loss by the goods being cast overboard by the carrier, to be good, must show all the facts necessary to a justification of the jettison. The averment that the loss occurred by the danger of the river, being a mere conclusion of the law from the facts, is not sufficient. Bentley, v. Bustard, 16 B. M., 686.

The general statement that the defendants do not owe, and ought not to pay, the amount of the bill, "for they do not admit the regular protest and notice," etc., as charged in the petition, is no proper response to the petition, because it neither denies any allegation of fact, nor states any new matter constituting a defense. Clark, etc. v. Finnell, etc., 16 B. M., 335.

Where a defendant wishes to rest his denial upon his ignorance, he must aver that he has neither knowledge nor information sufficient to form a relief. An averment of the want of knowledge, without more, is not sufficient. Ketchem v. Zeraga, 1 Smith, 554.

An answer which denies, on oath, that the defendant has any knowledge or information, sufficient to form a belief, that the payee indorsed and delivered the note to the plaintiff, intended to meet a corresponding allegation in the complaint is a material part of the issue, and comes within one of the alternatives allowed by this section. Sherman v. Bushnell, 7 Pr. R., 171.

In an action on two promissory notes, the complaint alleged the making the notes, and that they were duly transferred to the plaintiff, and that he was the holder and owner thereof. The answer admitted the making the notes, and "that as to the transfer of the notes to the plaintiff, and as to his being the holder and owner, the defendant had no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief." Held to be a good answer. Snyder v. White, 6 Pr. R., 321.

An answer which alleges that the plaintiff "is not the lawful owner and holder of the note" described in the complaint, is insufficient to admit evidence that the plaintiff is not the owner or holder. So, an answer, which avers that the note sued on, "was by a mistake given for a greater sum than was due from the maker to the payee, to wit, a sum sufficient to cancel the balance claimed to be due on the said note," is insufficient to admit evidence to show a mistake in the amount, the defendant alleging nothing but a conclusion of law, without setting out the facts by which it is supported. Sealey v. Engell, 17 Barb., 530.

Facts proved but not pleaded, are not available to the party proving them. Field v. The Mayor, &c., 2 Seld., 179.

The code does not dispense with cross-pleadings between co-defendants where relief is sought by one against another beyond the matter set out in the original petition. And where one co-defendant, in his answer, claims of another an amount greater than is alleged in the original petition to be due from the latter, he should be apprised, by process or rule on the answer, of such demand. Stiles J., Hunt v. Tomlinson, Mss. opin., Jan. 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where an answer is filed to an ordinary petition, containing a valid equitable defense, no judgment for the plaintiff can be rendered, until some disposition has been made of the answer; and the issues that may arise upon it, which are exclusively equitable in their character, are to be tried in the manner such issues were tried before the adoption of the code. Bosley v. Mattingly, 14 B. M., 91.

The code of practice permits, but does not require, an equitable defense to be made to an action to recover a legal demand. The defendant permitting a judgment to pass upon a legal demand, may thereafter have relief from the judgment, by proceeding, by petition in equity. Dorsey v. Reese, 14 B. M., 157.

Form of statement.

SEC. 2881. Matter of defense as distinguished from set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, is either negative, as for example, that which contradicts, in whole or in part, some fact-proposition of the petition, or it is affirmative; as for example, that which states new matter either to avoid some fact-proposition of the petition, or to avoid the legal conclusion of the petition, and all such negative matter, whether wholly or partly so, should be stated in one division of the answer.

Same.

SEC. 2882. Each affirmative matter of defense shall be stated in a distinct division of the answer, and must be sufficient in itself and must intelligibly refer to that part of the petition to which it is intended to apply.

No prayer.

SEC. 2883. In the defense part of an answer or reply, it shall not be necessary to make any prayer of judgment.

Distinctness.

SEC. 2884. Each matter of set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, or cross-petition, must be specially stated in a distinct division.

Equitable matter.

SEC. 2885. An equitable division must be also separated into paragraphs and numbered as is required in regard to an equitable cause of action in the petition.

Set-off.

SEC. 2886. A set-off can only be pleaded in an action founded on contract, and must be a cause of action arising on contract, or ascertained by the decision of a court.

Co-maker or surety.

SEC. 2887. A co-maker or surety when sued alone, may, with the consent of his co-maker or principal, avail himself by way of set-off, of a debt or liquidated demand due from the plaintiff at the commencement of the suit to such co-maker or principal, but the plaintiff may meet such set-off in the same way as if made by the co-maker or principal himself.

New party.

SEC. 2888. Where it appears that a new party is necessary to a final decision upon a set-off, the court shall permit the new party to be made, if it also appears that owing to the insolvency or non-residence of the plaintiff, or other cause, the defendant will be in danger of losing his claim unless permitted to use it as a set-off.

Counter-claim.

SEC. 2889. The counter-claim must be a cause of action in favor of the defendants, or some of them, against the plaintiffs, or some of them, arising out of the contracts or transactions set forth in the petition, as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim, or connected with the subject of the action.*

* This counter claim is that of the new system. There are objections to it. A better might be suggested, but we fear to try the experiment, especially as this has

In an action by a landlord, to recover the rent reserved by the lease, the tenant, the defendant, can not set up, as a counter-claim, a mere trespass by the landlord, and destruction of personal property on the demised premises. Such a trespass is not a cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction, set forth in the complaint, as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim, nor connected with the subject of the action. Drake v. Cockroft, 10 Pr. R., 377; 1 Abbott, 203.

In an action by the lessor for the rent reserved, the lessee may recoup damages sustained by the breach of an implied covenant for quiet enjoyment. Mayor, &c. v. Mabie, 3 Kern, 151; and see Davidson v. Remington, 12 How., 310; Van de Sande v. Hall, 13 How., 458.

In an action to recover for the price of personal property sold, an answer by the defendant setting up a breach of warranty, in respect to the quality of that property, and claiming to recoup to that extent, is a counter-claim, and if not replied to, will be considered as admitted on the trial. Lemon v. Trull, 13 How., 248.

In an action upon a note for the price of a horse, the defendant can plead the damages for a breach of the warranty of soundness, as a counter-claim, and, if the proof warrants it, can have judgment for the excess. Simpson, J., French v. Saile, Mss. opin., January, 1855. Stanton's Ky. Code.

A defendant may set up by way of counter-claim, a claim for damages resulting from the unsoundness of a negro, sold to him as sound, in an action for the purchase money. Crenshaw, C. J., Morehead v. Hulsell, Mss. opin., January, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where the defendant alleges matter, which, if true shows that the plaintiff never had a cause of action against him to the amount claimed in the complaint, such as the payment of a large portion of the promissory notes while in the hands of the payee; such matter does not constitute a counter-claim, and requires no reply. The defendant must prove his payments, therefore, where no reply is put in. Davidson v. Remington, 12 How., 310; and see Vassear v. Livingston, 3 Kern, 252; Silliman v. Eddy, 8 How., 122; Putnam v. De Forest, 8 How., 146; Simpson v. Loft, 8 How., 234; Potter v. Smith, 9 How., 203; Briggs v. Briggs, 20 Barb., 177; *Gleason v. Damages arising from a breach of contract may be set up by way of counter-claim. Page v. Ford, 12 Ind. R.

The cases in the supreme court of this state are—Miles v. Elkin et al., 10 Ind. R., 329, and Slayback v. Jones, 9 ibid., 470, where the previous cases are cited. Stockton v. Graves, 10 Ind. R., 294.

In the latter case it is said: "It would seem that where a party was sued touching the subject-matter of a contract, he might set up by way of counter-claim in such suit, any demand he might have for unliquidated damages growing out of such contract; while if not sued on that contract, but some other, then he might set up, by way of set-off, his claim for damages growing out of the former contract, in the suit upon the second. In other words, the same matter may be set up as a counter-claim, in a suit upon the contract, or as a set-off in a suit upon another contract." Perkin's Practice.

A judgment may be obtained by a defendant against a plaintiff on a counter claim. Jones v. Julian, 12 Ind. R.; Gordon v. George, ibid. See also 7 O. S. R., p. 95, recoupment.

become so well settled by decisions. The word has been railed at by opponents of the new system—but it has now got a well defined meaning. New words are necessary to create new rights of pleading. The danger of old ones is the freight of old associations, which one can not avoid introducing by their use, any one of which may at any time rise up and defeat the new use, though ever so carefully guarded. And yet it is not true as some have said, that this word was before quite unknown to common law, we find it used in 1717 in Brown's Cases in Parliament, p. 587. Report on Civil Code.

plaintiff to comply with the same contract by way of counter-claim. Simpson, J., Dale v. Masters, Mss. opin., June, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

The interposition and proof of the counter-claim, secures to the defendant the full relief which a separate action at law, or a bill in chancery, or a cross-bill, would have secured to him, on an allegation and proof of the same facts, and this provision of the code relates to only such causes of action as exist against the plaintiff and might, in their nature, be the basis of an action against him at the suit of the defendant. Gleason v. Moen, 2 Duer, 642.

The code authorizes the assertion of a counter-claim by one of several defendants. The only restriction as to such counter-claim, is, that it shall be a cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the petition as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim. It is not necessary that it be founded on contract, or arise out of the contract set out in the petition; it is sufficient, if it arise out of the transaction set out in the petition, or is connected with the subject of the action. Tinsley v. Tinsley, etc., 15 B. M., 460.

The value of a growing crop of corn taken by the plaintiff, is a good counter-claim in a suit upon an injunction bond, given by defendant in a proceeding to enjoin a judgment recovered on a writ of forcible detainer against him. Ibid., 460-1.

In an action against several defendants who are jointly and severally liable, either of them may set off promissory notes, executed by the plaintiff, or avail himself thereof by counter-claim. Briggs v. Briggs, 20 Barb., 477.

When the defendants answer certain facts, constituting a valid counter-claim and prayer for relief, it must be regarded as a counter-claim, though not so denominated. The cognomen is not necessary. Stiles, J., Brannaman v. Palmer, Mss. opin., January, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

New party in counter-claim.

SEC. 2890. When it appears that a new party is necessary to a final decision upon a counter-claim, the court may either permit the new party to be made, by a notice to reply to the counter-claim in the answer, or may direct that it be stricken out of the answer, and made the subject of a separate action.

Cross demand.

SEC. 2891. A statement by way of cross-demand is any new matter constituting any cause of action in favor of the defendant, or all the defendants if more than one, against the plaintiff, or all the plaintiffs, if more than one, and which the defendant or defendants might have brought when suit was commenced, or which was then held, either matured or not, if matured when so plead.*

Cross petition.

SEC. 2892. When a defendant has a cause of action, affecting the subject matter of the action, against a co-defendant, or a person not a party to the action, he may make in his answer a cross-petition against the co-defendant or other person.

The defendants thereto, may be notified as in other cases, and defense thereto shall be made in the time and manner prescribed in regard to the original petition, and with the same right of obtaining provisional remedies applicable to the case.

The prosecution of the cross-petition shall not delay the trial of the original action, when a judgment can be rendered therein that will not prejudice the rights of the parties to the cross-petition.

* The set off and counter claim do not constitute the whole of the claims which a defendant may have against a plaintiff. Nor do they fill as large a field as the cross action of our code, of 1851, section 1740. They constitute a necessary class of cross-claims and stand upon a basis so peculiar as to demand the application to them of some separate rules as is here done. The rules allowing of the making of new parties, as in sections 2888, and 2890, should not be extended to a cross demand. This cross demand should only be allowed between the original parties, and between them it should be allowed. The code of 1851, section 1740, contemplated as wide a field as is covered by our set off, counter-claim and cross-demand. The change is only in the classification for the purpose of extending some special rules to each class. The allowance of this cross demand is based on the idea of settling all the differences between the parties in one controversy. Report on Civil Code.

SEC. 2893. The guardian of an infant or person of unsound mind, or attorney for a person in prison, must deny in the answer all the material allegations of the petition, prejudicial to such defendant. Guardian to deny.

SEC. 2894. When the facts stated in the answer, or any division thereof are not sufficient to constitute a defense, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, the adverse party may demur, and shall be held therein to the same certainty in the statement of his grounds therefor, as obtains in a demurrer to the petition. Demurrer and answer.

A demurrer does not lie to an answer, which sets up no new matter, but merely denies the allegations of the complaint. Smith v. Green, 2 Sand., 702; Ketchum v. Zerega, 1 Smith, 557; Thomas v. Harrop, 7 Pr. Rep., 57; People v. Banker, 8 ibid., 261.

Reply.

SEC. 2895. There shall be no reply except upon the allegations of a counter-claim, or set-off, or cross-demand, in the answer. No reply except

SEC. 2896. When the answer contains new matter constituting a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, the plaintiff may reply to such new matter. 1. Denying generally or specifically, each allegation controverted by him, or any knowledge or information thereof, sufficient to form a belief as in case of answer, or—2. He may allege in concise and ordinary language, any new matter not inconsistent with the petition, constituting a defense to the set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand. To new matter of set-off, &c.

Where the complaint avers in an action on contract, the sale and delivery of a bill of goods on a certain day, whereby the defendant is now indebted, &c., and the answer avers that they were purchased on a credit of six months, and that the credit has not expired, it is not new matter in the answer requiring a reply, but a special denial, that the defendant is indebted as alleged in the complaint. 12 How., 455.

SEC. 2897. Any number of defenses, negative or affirmative, are pleadable to a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand. Number of defenses.

SEC. 2898. All the negative matter of the reply, whether wholly or partly so, shall be stated in one division—and each affirmative matter of defense in the reply, shall be sufficient in it-elf, and must intelligibly refer to the part of the answer to which it is intended to apply. A division of equitable matter must also be separated into paragraphs and numbered as required in case of such matter in the answer. Form of statement.

SEC. 2899. When the facts stated in the reply do not amount to a sufficient defense, the defendant may demur, subject to the same requirements of certainty in statements of grounds thereof, as obtain in demurrer to the petition. Demurrer to reply.

A departure from the complaint in a reply to the answer, is not a cause of demurrer under the code. White v. Jay, 3 Kern., 83.

If the parties go to trial upon a reply which is a departure, without objection, they may be bound by the result of such trial. Prenatt v. Runyon, 12 Ind. R.

General Principles of Pleading.

SEC. 2900. The opposite party shall be deemed to join in a demurrer, whenever he shall not amend the pleading to which it is addressed. Deemed to join in demurrer.

quantity, or place, or not, and if not, what time, sum, quantity or place, he admits.

Numbering.

SEC. 2902. The counts of the petition must be consecutively numbered as such, and so must the divisions of the answer as such, and of the reply as such.

Matter separated.

SEC. 2903. If the matter of the petition, answer or reply, is not put into distinct counts or divisions and numbered as herein contemplated, or if one such division contains in the petition more than one cause of action, or if one division in the answer contains more than one affirmative defense, or set off, or counter-claim, or cross-demand, or if one division in the reply contains more than one affirmative defense to any set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, the party so neglecting to divide and number, may, on motion, be ordered to divide and number, and the party so pleading double in the contemplation of this section, may be on motion, ordered to elect on which part of such double count or division he will stand, and to strike out the rest of it—or to re-divide such count or division, made bad by such duplicity.

The distinction between demands or rights of action which are single and entire, and those which are several and distinct, is, that the former immediately arise out of one and the same act or contract, and the latter out of different acts or contracts. Where there are several items of account for goods sold or work performed at different times, there must be either an express contract or the circumstances must be such as to raise an implied contract embracing all the items, to make them a single or entire demand. Secor v. Sturgis, 16 N. Y. R., 548.

Verification.

SEC. 2904. Every pleading must be subscribed by the party, or his attorney, and when any pleading in a case shall be verified by affidavit, all subsequent pleadings except demurrers shall be verified also, and in all cases of verification of a pleading the affidavit shall be to the effect that the affiant believes the statements thereof to be true.*

* This does not mean as our Code now does, that such pleadings shall be used as testimony on the trial—but is only to secure a truthful statement of action or defense. The system of verification, exists under two forms—one is that if one pleading is verified, the other must be—the other is that all must be. The former is the law of California, Wisconsin, Minnesota—was recommended in the Code of the district of Columbia and is the law of New York. The commissioners of that state recommended and persisted in recommending the full verification of all pleadings. This same system is recommended in both the late reports of the commission of Minnesota.

The verification of all pleadings is the law of Ohio, of Oregon, of Missouri and of Kentucky, except that in Kentucky pleadings in some cases need not be verified—which we also provide.

The commission recommended full verification, that is that all pleadings be verified, but concurred with the judiciary committees in their recommendation of half verification as that is called here used, in the hope that its use would soon lead to the adoption of the full verification. For the reasons given for verification and the letters commending its value; where used, see report on Civil Code, p 237; we cite a very little therefrom, as to the objection of novelty. The report says, p. 251:

In the infancy of pleading the thing sought to be secured by verification (namely, truthfulness of statement) was secured by other means.

When that ceased to be longer true, then the pleadings were not in such shape as to allow of verification, nor did they become of a shape to allow verification until the new system introduced the requirement that facts should be stated.

The establishment of these propositions removes the objection, that this thing of verification, never having been before used, is a startling and dangerous innovation.

Verification is needed to secure the very objects of all pleadings. These, are such a statement of the real points of dispute, as that each party may come prepared to contest them—as that the court may know them—and as that the record may show them, and thus establish the law. Originally the plaintiff, before he could bring into court a defendant had to obtain an original writ, which stated generally to the defendant, the cause of action, and the applicant could not obtain from the chancellor, such writ, until he had sworn to the facts constituting the cause of action.

"When the claim was matter of account, it was, at once, compulsorily referred to auditors, assigned by the court, whose jurisdiction was summary, whose investigations were conducted by examination of the parties, on oath, and whose adjudications had all the effect of the judgment of the court, and if the claim, although not matter of mere account, was one of simple debt, which must involve privity of contract, and must rest on credit, and depend, in most instances, on the personal communications of the parties, there was a proceeding called wager of law, in which both the parties were examined summarily on oath, and to which if the defendant resorted, while he could by oath purge himself of the claim, that did not suffice, unless twelve other men of good character, attested upon oath to his credibility: and on the other hand, by resorting to this course, he precluded himself from putting his opponent to the proof of his claim by pleading a denial of it; so that practically it came to this, that the parties themselves were examined upon oath, without delay, before a jury of twelve persons, the party sued relieving the plaintiff from the onus of proving the debt, and himself undertaking to disprove it, to their satisfaction." Fin., p. 23.

"As the defendant could take no formal objection, so neither could he safely plead any untruthful plea; for as denial was easier than proof, and it might often be difficult to prove what both parties knew to be true, pleading by way of denial, was rigidly restricted and construed. Hence, if the claim were true, in any part, defendant must have admitted it as to so much, and denied or framed some other answer to the rest." Fin., p. 6.

Until the middle of the fourteenth century, the pleadings were oral, and until the thirteenth year of Edward I, (1285,) parties had to appear and conduct their statements and counter-statements in person, and were not allowed to appear by attorney. During the period of pleading in person, there would be personal honor to restrain false statement, and before the introduction of attorneys, there would be a comparative inability to state fictitious defenses. The plaintiff's truthfulness was further guaranteed in early times, by the fact that on delivering his declaration, he had to produce a sufficient number of witnesses to give credibility to his demand; this was called his secta or suit; and these persons were originally examined by the court. Indeed the origin of these pledges shows that its tendency would be the same sought by the verification, now. The finding of pledges was an institution of the Great Alfred, who classed the whole people into decennaries consisting of ten families each—no one of each could sue, unless he could find two or more of the same decennary, as pledges to satisfy the court that he had a real cause of complaint, and was not of a litigious and quarrelsome temper. From Alfred's time, 870, till long after the reign of Edward I, 1307, it was never once discontinued, or abolished. If the plaintiff failed in his suit, the judgment always was that the pledges be amerced, and the amercement being delivered to the coroner, he afterwards, with a jury assessed the penalty according to the nature and proportion of the  vexation, and the ability of the party. These were pecuniary penalties, not confined to mere costs, but in proportion to the nature of the demand against him, and his apparent ability to pay it, which was also to be made out of the pledges "if the plaintiff did not prevail in his suit." Finlason says: "As mere security against unprincipled claims and defenses, the plaintiff sued under peril of being amerced, if he made a false claim, and the defendant prepared to plead under peril of being fined, or even imprisoned, if he pleaded falsely; p. 5. "If a man denied his deed falsely, he was fined and imprisoned." 33 Hen. VI., 54. Fines and amerancements, both might be ordered by the court—the former assessed by the court, and the latter by a jury—there were fines "on failing in a suit;" "on parties making false claims," "for vexation under color of law." Others again, as an imposition set by the court on the suitors, with a view to enforce plainness and perspicuity in pleadings." 1 Sel., 41. "These pledges gradually grew into disuse, and for very weighty reasons, and the legislature substituted therefor "costs." 1 Sel., 51.

Under the ancient system of pleading, issues were limited in number—a party who denied a proposition of the plaintiff's petition could not demur to it—he had his choice, to do one or the other—but no right to do both—and if he denied one proposition of fact, he could not deny any other—nor could he avoid the effect of admitting such proposition by more than one statement of sufficient matter. Now whatever was the object of this restriction, its obvious effect would be to make each party state his best defense, which would be his most truthful one, and it would thus secure what we desire to obtain by verification.

This restraint of costs, would do well enough, as long as only one question was involved in the issue—and when the statute of Ann, in 1706, introduced a possibility of many defenses, it would not yet cease to be of value, so long as the jury declared upon such issues distinctly, but when a jury may find a general verdict, including many issues, and each of them including law and fact, costs cease to be a sufficient restraint upon pleading falsehoods.

Besides, more early, this double pleading was under restraint, and not as now, in the mere choice of the party. It did not apply to replications, as it now does, so that there could be but one replication to each plea. It did not obtain in all actions. The court had a discretionary power to allow or refuse it, and was formerly very strict in granting such leave, and expected first to be satisfied of the necessity of pleading the several matters moved to be plead. And only of late did courts relax the strictness limiting the pleader to consistent pleas, and now, perhaps, even that restriction is quite removed, so that a defendant may plead unlimitedly.

Besides, there were two grand systems of pleas, and this liberty did not extend to but one of them, namely: pleas in bar as distinguished from those in abatement—those could not be plead at the same time—nor could those of one class in abatement, be plead with those of another class—so that there were yet some restraints on the number of pleas pleadable. But now, any plea of abateable matter may be plead with any other, and with any plea of matter in bar, so that the possibility of defenses has been opened up in a manner quite unknown heretofore, and more than ever before needs the restraining requirement of truthfulness, which must be sought by verification.

Again, under the common law, the court could try only the action of the plaintiff, because its jurisdiction was confined by the original writ, and the defendant could not become an actor. Since, however, the original writ has fallen into disuse, and courts have a jurisdiction fixed by law, independent of such writ. Defendants have had rights which have gradually been growing, sometimes by the equitable interposition of the court, as in the action of assumpsit, sometimes by statute, till now a defendant may also become a plaintiff, with all the rights of one. Whence further results the possibility of many true issues, and also of a specious statement of false ones—a statement which may mislead the other party, and secure delay, or the necessity of a preparation involving great expense, to avoid a danger which is none the less mischievous because it is ultimately found to be unreal. Indeed, to open to a party the power to plead as many defenses as he likes, and to leave the right quite unguarded, is the most dangerous of all changes.

Again, after the pleading had departed from its primitive simplicity, and general issues and common counts were introduced, and other such legal conclusions, verification was impracticable. Such pleadings did not state facts, and so could not be consistently sworn to. To ask a man to swear to conclusions of law, would be too absurd. Besides, those pleadings also were stuffed with lies—lies, too, which must be stated in them, else they were bad. How could a man swear to an averment of promises, which he knew were never made—to force and arms never used—to a losing and a finding which were a pure invention?

The objections to swearing to general pleadings, then, were, 1. That they did not state the facts of the case—but only facts enough to bring the case within the formal action chosen, which itself aided the facts. 2. They stated many legal conclusions instead of, and substituted for facts. 3. They stated, and had to state facts, which were utterly untrue, as facts.

Indeed, only by the introduction of the principle now underlying the new system of stating the facts constituting the cause of action, was the possibility opened up of a requirement of verification of pleadings.

sion of the truth of the allegations of the petition or answer might subject the party to a criminal or penal prosecution, and when it can be seen from the pleading to be answered, than an admission of the truth of its allegations might so subject the party, his general affidavit that such might be the effect of the admission, without stating the facts leading him to such a conclusion, shall be received, in lieu of a verification of the pleading.

SEC. 2912. Verification shall not be required to a pleading grounded on an injury to the person or the character. Slander, etc.

SEC. 2913. The affidavit of verification may be made before any person, either within or without this state, duly qualified to administer an oath, and must be signed by the person making the same, and the officer before whom the same is taken, shall certify that it was signed in his presence, by the person (naming him) and by him, before such officer sworn to or affirmed. That purporting to be the certificate of such officer, as signed officially, if made within this state, shall be prima facie evidence that it is such certificate, and that its averments are true, and if made without this state shall be so taken, when made before any one, by our law qualified to take depositions, but if taken before any officer not so qualified, his official certificate must be authenticated as is required by section 4058 of this code. Affidavit of verification.

SEC. 2914. The verification of the pleading does not apply to the amount claimed, except in actions founded on contract, express or implied, for the payment of money only. Not to amount claimed.

SEC. 2915. The verification shall not make other or greater proof necessary on the side of the adverse party. Not evidence.

The rule which requires two witnesses, or one witness with strong corroborating circumstances, to overcome the denial in an answer in chancery, seems to have been changed by the provision that the verification of the pleadings shall not make other or greater proof necessary on the side of the adverse party. One witness is sufficient to prove the execution of the note against the plea of non est factum, and authorize a recovery. Albro v. Lawson, 17 B. M., 644.

SEC. 2916. If a pleading be not duly verified, it may be struck out, on motion, but such defect will be deemed waived if the other party respond thereto, or proceed to trial without such motion. If not verified what.

SEC. 2917. Every material allegation of the petition not controverted by the answer, and every material allegation in the answer of new matter, constituting a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, not controverted by the reply, must for the purposes of the action, be taken as true. But the allegations of new matter in the answer, not relating to a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, or of new matter in a reply, is to be deemed controverted by the adverse party as upon a direct denial or avoidance as the case may require. An allegation of value, or of amount of damage, shall not be deemed true by a failure to controvert it, and an averment that, of the truth of any stated allegation or allegations the party has not sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief, shall be deemed a sufficient denial to prevent the same from being taken as true. A party desiring to admit any allegations of fact, which by this section would otherwise be deemed controverted by mere force of law, may at any time file a written admission thereof. Allegations not denied are admitted.

Facts which the pleadings admit, can not be contradicted or varied by evidence. Evidence is only intended to establish contested facts. Parkhurst v. Magraw, Miss. R., 134; Hackett v. Richards, 11 Leg. Obs., 315; and a judgment contrary to the admission in the pleadings, showing that there ought to be no such judgment, would be certainly erroneous. Bridge v. Payson, 5 Sand., 217.

We have frequently decided, and, until a different construction of the code shall be enforced upon us by a higher authority, must continue to decide, that only those allegations in a complaint are to be deemed material in the sense of the code, which the plaintiff must prove upon the trial, in order to maintain his action. It is upon these only that an issue can properly be taken; and it is of these only that the truth is admitted by the omission, in the answer, of a specific denial. Per Duer, J., in Fry v. Bennett, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 245; 5 Sand., 54; Newman v. Otto, 4 Sand., 668; Harlow v. Hamilton, 6 Pr. R., 475.

A material fact that is clearly implied from what is stated, though the fact itself is not set forth in terms, is deemed to be a fact stated, and may be traversed or denied, or avoided, in the same manner as if distinctly set forth; and if not denied, it will be taken as admitted, when occurring in any pleading except a reply. Prindle v. Caruthers, 15 N. Y. Rep., 429; Haught v. Holley, 3 Wendell, 263; 11 East., 406.

It is the duty of the court to tell the jury what questions of fact are to be tried, and what facts are admitted by the pleadings. Butcher v. Death & Teasdale, 15 Mo. Rep., 271; Steil v. Ackli, 15 Mo. Rep., 289. If a material averment, permitted to be inserted in a petition at the trial by way of amendment, is unanswered, it is to be taken as admitted. Robards v. Munson, 20 Mo. Rep., 65.

The allegations of the complaint, not specifically denied, are, it is true, to be regarded as admitted. But, where there are several answers, an admission made in one, is not available against the others. Each answer must stand by itself, as a distinct defense, and the plaintiff must recover upon the whole record. One issue found for him, if a material one, is as complete a defense for him, as if all the issues were found in his favor. Swift v. Kinglsey, 24 Barb., 543.

But where the substantial allegations in a complaint are not directly denied, and no issue is taken upon them in the answer, but the defendant states other facts inconsistent with those set forth by the plaintiff, this will not be construed as a denial of the complaint, so as to prevent the allegations of the complaint from being taken as true. Wood v. Whiting, 21 Barb., 190.

Where, in an action brought by two or more persons, for an unlawful taking of property, the defendant answers that the plaintiffs are not joint owners of the property, that averment is material, and is new matter requiring a reply. Walrad v. Bennett, 6 Barb., 144.

The plaintiffs having alleged in their petition that they were the heirs of J. U. W., and having sued in that character, and the fact of their being his heirs not having been denied in the answer, the allegation had to be taken as true, and it was unnecessary to prove it. It was the duty of the defendants to deny each allegation of the petition they intended to controvert, or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief. Morton, etc. v. Waring's heirs, 18 B. M., 82. [See section 2953.]

No evidence can be admitted to disprove allegations not denied. 10 Ind., 400.

It is not necessary that a special verdict should contain facts admitted by the pleadings. Such facts, together with the facts found by the jury, constitute a proper case for appeal. Barto v. Hinrod, 4 Seld., 483.

A judgment contrary to an admission in the pleadings would be erroneous; so, the objection, if made on the trial, should be allowed. Bridge v. Payson, 5 Sand., 210.

The code does not authorize the court to take as true allegations of value, or amount of damages laid in the plaintiff's petition, in ordinary cases, though not denied in the answer, and though there be no answer to the petition. Daniel v. Judy, 14 B. M., 394.

Allegations of value are not to be taken as true, but an allegation of value followed by another, that the article was sold for that price to the defendant, may be taken as true. Stiles, J., Pate v. Pate, etc., Mss. opin., February, 1858. Stanton's Ky. Code.

If I am under obligation, by contract, to deliver a horse, of the value of two hundred dollars, and allege, by any pleading, that I have delivered a horse of that value, the whole, including the allegation of value, would be taken as true, unless it was controverted by pleading on the other side. The proposition can be applied only where the value stated is not of the gist or essence of the pleading, as in the case supposed, it would be. W. L. M.

SEC. 2918. If the action, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, is founded on an account, a bill of particulars must be incorporated into, or attached to, and filed with the pleading, or such pleading will be demurrable, and if not incorporated into it—must be verified as the pleading. And if the same be not a statement of such particulars as may be necessary to give the court and the other party, reasonable knowledge of the nature and the grounds of the cause of action, set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, the court may, on motion, order it to be made more specific. Such bill of particulars shall be deemed a part of the pleadings to which it is annexed, and shall be answered or replied to as such, and as such shall define and limit the proof, subject, however, to amendment as hereafter provided. The items of a bill of particulars shall be consecutively numbered, and the party adverse shall answer specifically every item; but he may make one and the same allegation or denial concerning any number of items to which such allegation or denial is applicable, specifying the number of the items thus answered together, when less than the whole.

A motion may obtain a more specific statement.

SEC. 2919. If the adverse party shall deny that any item is due or payable, or that he owes the party as alleged, he must state all the substantive grounds on which he rests such denial, and shall specify whether some, and what part of the whole, of such item or demand is denied.*

State ground of denial, &c.
