SEC. 2920. If the action, set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand is founded on a note, bill, bond, or other writing, as evidence of indebtedness, the original or a copy thereof must be set out in or annexed to the pleading, if in the power of the party to procure it. If not so done, the reason thereof must be stated in the pleading. If there be no such copy so set out or annexed, and no sufficient reason stated for such omission, it will be sufficient ground for a demurrer to such pleading.

Annex copy.

If it appears on the face of a paragraph of the answer that it is founded upon a written instrument, and neither the instrument nor a copy of it is filed, the paragraph will be subject to a demurrer. Price v. The Grand Rapids, etc., Co., 12 Ind. R.

SEC. 2921. In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court or officer of special jurisdiction, it shall not be necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made.

Legal conclusion pleading allowed as to a judgment.

SEC. 2922. In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, whether such conditions are expressed or implied, it shall not be necessary to state the facts constituting such performance, but a general statement that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part, or to that substantial effect, shall be sufficient.

Same as to conditions precedent.

When the terms of subscription are prescribed by a charter, it is not necessary to state the terms in the petition, and a general averment that all the terms and conditions necessary to authorize a demand of payment of subscription have been performed, is sufficient under the code. Henderson & Nashville R. R. Company v. Leavell, 16 B. M., 361.

Where the note in suit was payable at the Albany city bank, and the complaint did not allege presentment at that place, but only that it was duly presented, held, that presentment at the Albany city bank being a condition precedent, presentment there, was, under the code, properly alleged by the word duly. Gay v. Paine, 5 How., 108.

And under an averment of performance, evidence in excuse of non-performance is not admissible. Oakley v. Morton, 1 Kern, 25; and see Garvey v. Fowler, 4 Sand., 665.

Same as to any legal capacity not merely individual.

SEC. 2923. A plaintiff suing as a corporation, partnership, executor, guardian, or in any other way, implying corporate, partnership, representative, or other than individual capacity, need not state the facts constituting such capacity or relation, but may aver generally, or as a legal conclusion, such capacity or relation; and where a defendant is held in such capacity or relation, a plaintiff may aver such capacity or relation, in the same general way.

Some legal conclusions taken as true if not controverted.

SEC. 2924. If the general allegation contemplated in the three preceding sections is made in a petition, and is not controverted in the answer, or made in the answer in relation to a set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, and not controverted in the reply, each allegation not so controverted shall, on the trial, be taken as true.*

How to controvert such proposition.

SEC. 2925. If either of the allegations contemplated in sections 2921-2922-2923 is intended to be controverted, it shall not be sufficient to controvert it in terms of the allegation contradictory of the general proposition intended to be controverted, but it is necessary to state specifically the facts relied on as a denial of such proposition.

Private statute.

SEC. 2926. In pleading a private statute, or a right derived therefrom, it shall be sufficient to refer to such statute by its title and the day of its passage, and the court shall thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

The plaintiff having resorted to the courts of this state to enforce contracts prohibited and made indictable by the law of this state, (against lotteries,) the subject-matters of which are declared to be public and common nuisances, should, by an averment of the place where made, and that, by the laws of that place such contracts were authorized, have shown that these contracts were not within the statute and vitiated by it, the laws of the state having no extra-territorial force. It is as if an exception had been engrafted upon the statute, which prohibiting all dealing in regard to lottery tickets, excluded from its operation all contracts made without the state: and the plaintiff, in seeking to enforce a contract within the general statute, must, in pleading, by proper averments, bring himself within the exception. Per W. F. Allen, J. Thatcher v. Morris, 1 Kern., 437.

Rules of court.

SEC. 2927. Every court of this state shall take judicial notice of the rules of any other court thereof.

Petition in slander.

SEC. 2928. In an action for slander or libel, it shall not be necessary to state in the petition any extrinsic fact for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of any defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, but it shall be sufficient to state generally that the * Section 2924 must not be supposed to be a mere repetition of the matter of 2917, for as these general averments may sometimes be legal conclusions, they constitute a departure, in so far, from the spirit of fact pleading, and the question might arise, indeed, has, in other states, arisen, whether they would be admitted by a non-denial of them, as well as the question whether as they were not propositions of fact, any evidence could be introduced under them. To meet such doubt this section is framed. Report on Civil Code.

same was spoken or published concerning the plaintiff, nor shall it be necessary to state any prefatory or extrinsic fact for the purpose of showing that such words were used in a defamatory sense, but it shall be sufficient generally to state that the words or matter were used in a defamatory sense, specifying such defamatory sense, and where the words or matter set forth, with or without the alleged meaning, show a cause of action, it shall be sufficient.*

SEC. 2929. In actions of slander or libel, the defendant may, in his answer, allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory, and any mitigating circumstances sufficient in law to reduce the amount of damages; or he may allege either one of these without the other, and the allegation of the truth of the matter charged shall not, if the defendant fail to establish it, be deemed, in itself, proof of the malice of such words, but the jury shall decide upon the whole case, whether such defense was, or was not, made with malicious intent, and whether he prove the justification or not, he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances, but each defense must be separately stated and numbered, and if the defendant relies on more than one mitigating circumstance sufficient in law to reduce the amount of damages, each of such circumstances must be separately stated and numbered, and sufficient in itself, and if the defendant relies on the truth of the matter charged, nothing herein is intended to relax the law of pleading heretofore in force, as

Answer in slander.

* We regard this section as of great value. The first part of it, removing the need of showing by an allegation of extrinsic facts, the application to the plaintiff, was made the law of New York, and copied into all the new systems, but it was soon construed, not to exempt the plaintiff from the need of showing by averment of extrinsic or prefatory facts, that the words were used in a defamatory sense. The 61st section of the English practice act, of 1852, introduces the section as in substance here recommended. This was meant to be the law of all states adopting the new system, and is also substantially that of Maryland, section 73—Alabama, section 2229—Tennessee, section 2897, so it may be said to constitute the present prevailing rule of practice.

We believe that this section, even without its express enactment, would follow logically from a fair construction of the principle that only facts should be stated, as contradistinguished from evidence.

That the plaintiff was meant is not a legal conclusion, it does not then fall under that objection. It is a statement of pure fact, and to show that he was meant by statements of other facts, is certainly pleading evidence. That defendant meant plaintiff is an ultimate fact, that is to say, it is the kind of fact which should be plead. It is distinguished from a proposition of evidence in this, that it is the outcome and last result of several propositions of evidence, which lead to it as a conclusion of fact to be proved. It springs up in the mind as a sequence of these evidentiary facts. It is just the kind of statement, then, that should be made in all good pleading.

That pleading is the best which contains facts in the last degree of remoteness from what is evidence, and though this last expression of facts is often difficult to attain, yet no one deems a pleading bad, merely because, while it does well state ultimate facts, it does not state the minor facts that go to prove these. But this is what the old declaration in slander demanded. It demanded that you plead the facts showing that the defendant meant the plaintiff. That is the testimony which showed it. In no other case had you to plead all the premises which led to the fact-conclusion. That the defendant meant the plaintiff is a fact-proposition of defendant's state of mind in using the words, and you might as well in an assault case wherein you rely on purpose and malice to augment damage, insist that all the facts which show that defendant had such purpose or malice, must be stated in the declaration. These prior facts are in both cases alike, mere evidence, and should not be stated, or certainly should not be required to be stated under the penalty of bad pleading. The same is true of the proposition, the defendant intended to charge a crime—or the defendant meant a particular thing. And what right has the defendant to ask the plaintiff, how do you know I meant you, or that thing? Any more than in a suit on a note, to ask, how do you know I executed that note? or made that contract? Report on Civil Code, p. 306.

regards the certainty of statement required in such a mode of defense.*

In all actions of slander for words not in themselves actionable, the right to recover depends upon the question whether they caused special damage, and the special damage must be fully and accurately stated. If the special damage was a loss of customers or of a sale of property, the persons who ceased to be customers, or refused to purchase, must be named; and if they are not named, no cause of action is stated. (Kendall v. Stone, 1 Seld., 14.)

A defendant in an action of slander may, in his answer, allege both the truth of the matters charged, and mitigating circumstances, or either. They should be separately stated; and it is not necessary to plead the former in order to set up the latter. All matters properly receivable in evidence may be pleaded in mitigation of damages in an action of slander, either with or without a justification. Bush v. Prosser, 13 Barb., 221, and Follett v. Jewett, 1 Am. Law Reg., 600, sustaining this view of the subject. By section 165 of the code, in actions of slander the rules of pleading and evidence both are changed; so that the defendant may now, under an answer properly setting forth the matter in mitigation, give in evidence, to reduce the amount of damages, any or all facts and circumstances which have a legitimate tendency to disprove malice, or show that the truth of the charge was probable or properly inferable—and even the truth of the charge itself. Heaton v. Wright, 10 How., 79; Herr v. Bambery, 10 How., 128.

Intervention.

SEC. 2930. Any person shall be entitled to intervene in an action who has an interest in the matter in litigation, in the success of either of the parties to the action, or an interest against both. An intervention takes place when a third party is permitted to become a party to an action between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the petition, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, or by demanding any thing adversely to both the plaintiff and defendant. A third person may intervene either before or after issue has been joined in the cause, and before the trial commences.

No delay to an intervenor.

SEC. 2931. The court shall determine upon the intervention at the same time that the action is decided, and the intervenor has no right to delay; and if the claim of the intervenor is not sustained, he shall pay all costs of the intervention.

Rules which hold in intervention.

SEC. 2932. The intervention shall be by petition filed in the court in which the action is pending, and it must set forth the facts constituting the grounds on which the intervention rests, and shall be taken notice of by the adverse party, as any other pleading, on being served by copy, and shall be responded to in the time which is allowed for other pleadings of the kind used in such response, and all the pleadings therein shall be governed by the same principles and rules as obtain in other pleadings provided for in this chapter. But if such petition is filed during term, the court shall direct the time in which an answer shall be filed thereto.

Proceedings against a married woman.

SEC. 2933. In a proceeding against a married woman, growing out of any contract which she may have the legal right to make, the plead-

* This section is meant to restore the law as it was before the judge made law of the case of Underwood v. Parks, (Strange,) malice is the gist of the action, and every fact showing its intensity may be proved, and every fact showing its absence or minimum of intensity should also be allowed to be proved, and that without any penalty, if the attempt be actually without malice, though it should not succeed.

ing need not state facts constituting a cause against her with respect to her separate property, but need only state facts constituting a cause of action, or set-off, or counter-claim, or cross-demand, against her as a person, and judgment shall be personal. May be as against a man.

SEC. 2934. One cause of action, defense, set-off, counter-claim, cross-demand, or reply, shall be expressed in but one statement, and not in various counts or divisions. If such be done, the adverse party may move to strike out all but one of such counts or divisions, supporting his motion by an affidavit that the same are for only one cause of action, whereupon the other party shall either so strike out at the cost of the motion, or declining, must show on the trial as many distinct causes as he has counts or divisions, or shall pay all the costs of the whole trial.* Only one statement of one cause.

The theory of the code in reference to pleading is, that the party pleading knows or should know, beforehand, what is the truth of his case, and that he should state the truth, and nothing but the truth, in his pleading. The statement of the case in different forms, for the purpose of guarding against a variance between the allegation and the proof, is no longer necessary. If there is any variance between the allegations and the proofs, in any of the details of the case, the party will upon the trial be allowed to amend, so as to adapt his pleading to his case as proved, upon such terms as may be just—provided no new cause of action is stated. (Dunning v. Thomas, 11 How., 281.)

SEC. 2935. Where a transaction has taken place between the plaintiff and defendant, constituting in favor of the plaintiff a cause of action against the defendant, and where another contemporaneous or subsequent transaction growing out of and based upon the former transaction, has also taken place between them, which may or may not have operated a merger or displacement of the former cause of action—then, if such plaintiff is not clear upon which of such transactions he is entitled to recover, he may state in his petition, in distinct counts, the facts constituting each of such causes of action, and may pray for the relief proper to each cause of action, and must also state that he claims to recover but for one of such causes; whereupon the defendant may allow judgment to go against him on either of such causes in bar of the other; or if the defendant contests both of such causes, the plaintiff may, on proper proof, recover on either, or having obtained verdict on both, may state on which one he will have judgment, which judgment shall be in bar of the other. May state two causes of action growing out of one transaction.

The same principles shall obtain in regard to a set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand.†

SEC. 2936. Where a transaction has occurred, and if certain facts thereof should be proved, such proof would entitle the plaintiff to one kind or degree of relief, while if other facts thereof were proved, such May select alternate causes of action based on same right to recover.

* There is no longer any reason for the allowance of many statements. It was done to avoid a variance which might defeat the cause, but now the same proof which could be made under many statements, may be under one, by an amendment, if need be. The facile power of amendment stands in the stead of the several counts. Report on Civil Code, p. 309.

† This section is needed for cases like the following: A. sells goods to B. and receives B's note therefor. But some doubt exists as to A's ability to recover on the note transaction; perhaps it has been altered by the consent of the maker, who is now dead, and the consent can not be proved, and he desires to unite with it his cause growing out of the original transaction. Now, it will be seen that verification don't stand in the way, for both transactions are equally true, though a recovery in one should defeat the right of recovery on the other. Nor is this a stating of one cause of action in two ways. For the cause of action is constituted by the statement of the facts put into the count, and these are dissimilar in each. Report on Civil Code, p. 309.

proof would entitle the plaintiff to another kind or degree of relief; then if the plaintiff can not determine which group of facts he can prove, but believes he can prove the one or the other of such groups, he may state as cause of action in distinct counts, each of such group of facts, with the relief which he demands thereon, and that he asks judgment only on one of such group of facts. Whereupon the parties shall have the same rights, and the same proceedings may be had as are provided for in section 2935, and the verification of the causes of action of this section shall be in effect that the plaintiff believes one or the other of them true, but can not determine which.*

Contradictory defenses.

SEC. 2937. Contradictory causes of defense or reply may be stated in an answer or reply, and when the pleading is verified, it must be to the same effect as required in the last section.

Joined in answer.

SEC. 2938. Two or more parties making the same defense or reply, may do so jointly.

Different counts if defendants have different relations to plaintiff.

SEC. 2939. The pleading may include one count only when the same contract was made by each of the adverse parties, but must include different counts describing the different contracts of the adverse parties, when, as in the case of maker and indorser, the same contract was not made by all.

Plaintiff to set forth any exception he claims under.

SEC. 2940. Whenever a party claims a right derogatory from the general law, or when his claim is founded upon an exception of any kind, he shall set forth such claim or such exception particularly in his pleading.

Legal conclusions not to be stated; to be ordinary language.

SEC. 2941. Propositions which state matters of law, as contradistinguished from those which state matters of fact, must not be stated in a pleading, but if a proposition which has a meaning which would make it matter of law has also another and a common sense meaning, which would make it matter of fact, it shall be taken in the latter meaning and shall be deemed a proposition of fact.†

* This section provides for a case dissimilar to that of section 2935, in this, that here is only one transaction. At common law, one transaction often gave a party a right to elect one of several formal actions, to each of which were attached remedies dissimilar either in kind or degree. In each of these actions a different group of facts in such transaction was relied on as a cause of such remedy, and to that end was either stated in the declaration, or was implied by the very form of the action chosen. The same right of election to rely on one group of the facts as a claim for damage exists under the new system, but whether it allowed one, having made such choice to afterwards state any other group, which would seem to ignore such choice has been doubted. The best and most experienced lawyers, under the new system, have most felt that this right should continue to be enjoyed, and when guarded by the required verification as herein, it can not be attended with danger. This is no license for stating one cause of action in many ways; but only for allowing a choice of one of many possible remedies, dissimilar in kind or degree, to be made out of the facts of a transaction. Report on Civil Code, p. 309.

† The first part of this section tends to the exclusion of statement of law. We know it is difficult to do so in every case. The latter part of it in view of that difficulty, provides for the construction of a statement which has two meanings—one of which is attached by the popular, and another by the legal mind. And in providing that such shall be held to be a fact-statement rather than a legal one, we in part remove the difficulty which would otherwise exist. We thus, also, by a more positive regulative principle, secure the leading idea of this system of fact-statement and ordinary language. Again, most of the trouble which has attended the new system, has grown out of a want of just this rule. A statement has been found in the petition which was capable of two constructions, one of which would make it a legal, the other a fact-conclusion. In strict keeping with the requirement that ordinary language should be the language of pleading, it should have been taken as ordinary language, and therefore to be fact-statement, and should have been replied to as such. But perhaps for want of a distinct averment of this rule, it has been denied as a legal conclusion. And then the trial has been conducted on the same hypothesis, and many of the uncertainties of the common count and general issue have been the result. Report on Civil Code, p. 310.

It seems to be safe and a compliance with the code, to state the facts constituting the cause of action substantially in the same manner as they were stated in the old system in a special count. By that system the legal issuable facts were to be stated, and the evidence by which those facts were to be established was to be brought forward upon the trial. This position will not embrace what were known as the common counts. Facts, from which the indebtedness appears, should be stated so that the defendant, by his answer, may put them in issue or avoid them. Under the present system, it is no longer necessary to state the conclusion of law from the facts previously stated. Under the old system, the facts constituting the cause of action were stated, and then in actions of assumpsit followed the conclusions of law, by means whereof the defendant became liable, &c.; and then followed the undertaking and promise, upon which issue was joined. The consideration, when necessary, should always appear in the statement of facts constituting the cause of action. It has been supposed that a wider latitude should be allowed in equity pleading, and that evidence may to some extent, be incorporated in the statement. The rule of the code is broad enough for all cases, and it permits a statement of facts only as contra-distinguished from the evidence which is to establish those facts. But in equity cases the facts may be more numerous, more complicated, more involved; and the pleader may state all the facts, in a legal and concise form, which constitute the cause of action and entitle him to relief. The rule touching the statement of facts constituting the cause of action is the same in all cases, and the rules by which the sufficiency of the pleadings are to be determined are prescribed by the code. Per Marvin, J., People v. Ryder, 2 Kern., 437.

The words, "facts constituting a cause of action" in the code, sec. 142, mean those facts which the evidence on the trial will prove, and not the evidence which will be required to prove the existence of those facts. Wooden v. Strew, 10 How., 48.

"The facts" which are required to be stated as "constituting the cause of action," can only mean real traversable facts, as distinguished from propositions or conclusions of law, since it is the former, not the latter, that can alone, with any propriety, be said to constitute the cause of action." Per Duer, J., Mann v. Morewood, 5 Sand., 564.

"The errors which too frequently occur in pleadings under the code, must be ascribed to a mistaken interpretation of the words, "facts constituting a cause of action," or "a defense;" nor is the source of the mistake difficult to be explained. In writing and in conversation, the term "fact" is frequently and not improperly applied to an abstract proposition—a proposition true in morals or in law, but of which the truth depends, not upon testimony, but upon authority or reasoning, and in this sense of the term, it is obvious that every just conclusion of law is a fact. That such a conclusion, however, although just in itself, is not a fact within the meaning of the code, is evident upon slight reflection, and as a single example will be sufficient to prove. There is no apparent impropriety in saying, "it is a fact that Peter owes John a certain sum of money," but who will assert that a complaint would be good that should aver that the defendant owes the plaintiff a certain sum for which the plaintiff demands judgment, without alleging a single fact from which the debt could arise? Yet, if the words of the code, "facts constituting a cause of action," refer to conclusions of law, and not to the facts, from which if admitted or proved, the conclusions are to be drawn, even such a complaint would be free from objection. All these errors in pleading will be avoided, if it is constantly remembered that the facts which the code requires to be set forth are not true propositions, but physical facts, capable as such of being established by evidence, oral or documentary, and from which, when so established, the right to maintain the action, on the validity of the defense, is a necessary conclusion of law—a conclusion which the court will draw, and which it is quite unnecessary that the pleader should state." Per Duer, J., Lawrence v. Wright, 2 Duer, 674.

Mere conclusions of law, or mere propositions of law, should not be stated, or, at most, should be but seldom and very briefly introduced; and are never necessary, sec. 129; and least of all, should they be relied upon as a substantive allegation in pleading. For this purpose they are totally worthless.

They are not facts; and above all, they are not issuable facts. No issue can be taken upon them—sec. 128. Drake v. Cockroft, 4 E. D. Smith, 34, ante, vol. 1, p. 141. Ensign v. Sherman, 13 How. Pr. R., 37. Throop v. Hatch, 3 Abb., 25. Spier v. Stalter, ante, vol. 1, p. 317. The People v. McCumber, N. Y. Court of Appeals, December Term, 1859, ante, vol. 1, p. 540.

Thus the answer that the defendant is not indebted, put into a demand, the grounds of which are set forth by the plaintiff, expresses only a conclusion of law. It does not put in issue any fact alleged by the plaintiff, nor set up any fact by way of avoidance, but only asserts, as a matter of law, that the facts stated do not constitute a cause of action; that is, do not show an indebtedness, and is more like a demurrer than an answer in bar. Re Prime, 1 Barb., 352. Pierson v. Cooley, 1 Code Rep., 91. Morrow v. Cougar, 3 Abb., 328. Maurice v. N. Y. Dry Dock Co., 3 Edw., Ch. R., 146. Dimon v. Dunn, 15 N. Y. Rep., 498. Western Law Monthly, vol. 1, p. 451.

The allegation that he is the owner, is only a legal conclusion, some issuable fact by which it would appear that he is owner, should be stated. Adams v. Holley, 12 How., 326.

An averment that the settlement with his guardian had no reference to the claim in this suit, nor was the same in any way released, discharged or affected thereby, is an averment of a legal conclusion. Jones v. The Phoenix Bank, 4 Seld., 228.

A statement that by means of a contract, set out in the complaint, it became the duty of the defendant to perform certain acts, is a statement of a conclusion of law. City of Buffalo v. Holloway, 3 Seld., 493.

To say that Southwick has failed to fulfill his obligations, is no more than saying that he has broken his contract, or that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment. It is merely the inference from a state of facts not disclosed. Van Schaick v. Winne, 16 Barb., 95.

The new matter must be facts, and where the answer alleged that a note sought to be recovered upon, was obtained by fraud, but did not set out the facts and circumstances of such fraud, it was held insufficient on that ground. McMurray v. Gifford, 5 Pr. R., 14.

A mode of contestation conceding the facts of a pleading, but seeking to avoid their legal effect, is to be specially pleaded.

Same, obtains as to any one fact-proposition of the adverse plea.

What may be given in evidence.

SEC. 2942. Any defense showing that a contract, written or oral, or any instrument sued on, is void or voidable; or the fact that the alleged instrument was delivered to a third person, as an escrow, or showing matter of justification, excuse, discharge, or release, and any cause of defense which admits the facts of the adverse pleading, but by some other matter seeks to avoid their legal effect, must be specially pleaded.

SEC. 2943. Any defense that admits that an allegation of the other pleading is true, as an allegation of fact, but assumes that it is not true as an allegation of law, and seeks to avoid it by new matter, must be specially pleaded.

SEC. 2944. Under a mere denial of an allegation, no evidence shall be introduced by the party so denying, which does not tend to negative such an allegation of fact, or to negative some proposition of fact, as contradistinguished from one of law, which the party having made the controverted allegation, is bound to prove, in order to sustain such allegation.*

* This section constitutes the last of this cluster of sections, which are eliminations of the general one, that only fact statements shall be used in pleading. It may be thought that it should have been placed in the chapter on evidence. But it will do a better office to stand as a warning here. And it is really a guide to pleading; for it plainly tells the party who knows what facts he wants to prove, how to plead, in order to be admitted to prove them. For instance, if the defendant merely denied in the case supposed in the last section, that "A. promised B.,"—under such denial he could not prove that A. was an infant. He could only prove that A. did not as a matter of fact promise B. If he wanted to show that while he did promise as a matter of fact, yet as a matter of law such promise was not binding, then he must state the circumstance on which he intends to rely, as proof to establish that defense. Under the mere denial supposed, the defendant could prove that A. did not

But the true construction to be put upon the code, section 92, 85, is, that "new matter" shall comprehend every fact not appearing in the petition, which defeats the action and which the plaintiff is not required to prove to make out his case, whether such fact existed concurrently with, or arose subsequently to, the alleged cause of action.

Such new matter must be specifically stated. Under the general or special denial authorized by section 92, no evidence can be received except that which merely negates the material facts stated in the petition. Facts going to show the illegality or original invalidity of the plaintiff's claim, or showing it subsequently defeated, are all new matter to be specially pleaded; and can not be proved under a denial. This construction is necessary to carry out the object of the code; which, as declared by the code commissioners, was, "to present facts in such a manner as that the points in dispute to which the proof is to be directed, shall be perceived." Rep., p. 50. If infancy, duress, and like defenses, and in replevin, ownership in defendant, or in third person, can be given in evidence under a denial, then the plaintiff is not apprised of the facts "to which the proof is to be directed." The language of the code, section 92, necessarily limits the office of the answer of non detinet. It is a special denial of a fact asserted; and that fact may be disproved, by proving the non existence of any fact, or the falsity of any statement, offered in support of it, but not by evidence of other facts, of other ownership; for, if so, then special facts not set up in the answer would be proved. The proofs and pleadings would not correspond. If so, payment might as well be proved under a denial. Payment, tender, accord, and satisfaction, arbitration, release, former judgment, discharge in bankruptcy, and like defenses, must be specially pleaded. 9 Barb., 371; 8 Barb., 608; 8 How. Pr. promise B., or could prove any fact which could furnish a fact-inference, that A. did not promise B. Or any facts which negative any fact proved by the plaintiff for the purpose of establishing his proposition of fact. The propositions of the pleading will all be of fact where possible to be so construed, and so when a promise is alleged, it will not be a promise implied by law, from facts stated or not stated, but will be a fact-promise—which the party expects to prove as alleged, and where there was no fact promise made, there should be none averred—but only the facts on which the law implies the promise.

So, "A. promised so and so," with the denial, "A. did not so promise," will not allow the denier to show that facts exist inconsistent with such a promise—when the same is treated as a proposition of law, but only that facts exist inconsistent with it as a proposition of fact. On a denial of a fact proposition, or a proposition which has both a fact and a law meaning taken in its fact meaning—the denior may prove any fact-proposition contradicting the denied proposition, or any fact-proposition inconsistent with it, implying that it is not true. For example, if one states as a consideration, labor for defendant, and defendant's promise to pay its value, defendant may deny the labor, and thereunder disprove the labor. If he deny the promise to pay its value, he may thereunder disprove the promise to pay value—by showing that the promise was not that, but something else—was misunderstood, or not made, or made to another, and not to plaintiff—but can not show that he did not do the labor, under such denial.

If there was no actual fact-promise, but mere labor, under such circumstances as that the law would attach thereto a promise—so that the promise is a legal conclusion and not a fact, then no promise should be stated, but only the facts. As A. did such and such labor for the defendant, and it was worth so much. On denial thereof, the defendant could only prove the contradictory of labor being done.

That A. sold goods to the defendant will not allow proof that he sold them to the wife of the defendant, unless she was his actual agent in the transaction. Not, for instance, if he had protested against sale to her. The proposition will be treated as a fact-proposition, and the proof must prove it as a fact, and not as a legal proposition; and under a denial of it, defendant may prove that they were sold to his wife, and thus contradict it. Report on Civil Code, p. 313.

Not to plead evidence.

SEC. 2945. Propositions which are statements of evidence, as contradistinguished from propositions which are statements of the ultimate results of evidence, should not be stated in any pleading.*

Where the suit is for equitable relief, such as an injunction and similar actions, and where the costs of the action are in the discretion of the court, it is often necessary to state in the complaint, the facts which will bear upon the granting of costs, or of particular relief as they were formerly stated in a bill in chancery. Howard v. Tiffany, 3 Sand., 695.

Every fact which the plaintiff must prove to enable him to maintain his suit, and which the defendant has a right to controvert in his answer, must be distinctly averred or stated. This rule of pleading in an action for a legal remedy, is the same as formerly in this, that facts, and not the evidence of facts, must be pleaded. Allen v. Patterson, 3 Seld., 478. See also Eno v. Woodworth, 4 Com., 249; Munn v. Morewood, 5 Sand., 557.

If evidence of facts be alone stated, the necessary facts, though provable by such evidence, can not be proved. Western Law Monthly, 1 vol., p. 90.

It is true, it does not subject the pleading to a demurrer, if it, at the same time, contains an allegation of sufficient material matter to show a legal right. 8 O. St. R., 293, 297-8, post. But the extraneous matter is liable to be stricken out on motion of the opposite party, sec. 118, at the costs of the party improperly pleading it. It is besides, unprofessional and derogatory to the standing of the pleader. It can never legitimately aid the party introducing it, but always tends to perplex and embarrass his case, which it is his interest to make as plain and forcible as possible. In the people, ex. rel. Beatty v. The Board of Police, 9 Abb., 257, 269, the court say: "Merely evidence needs not to be, and it should not be, pleaded. It has a tendency besides when so introduced, to confuse a case, and should, for that reason, be stricken out." See also, Dows v. Hotchkiss, 10 N. Y. Leg. Obs., 281; Wooden v. Strew, 10 How. Pr. R., 50; Lawrence v. Tright, 2 Duer., 674; Mann v.

* This section suggests the danger of the other extension. If we were not writing on law, we would call it the danger of wrecking on Scylla while shunning Charybdis. Facts are differentiated from evidence, as effect is from cause. Testimony shows the existence of fact. No right of recovery can be based on testimony, it must be based on established facts. Various testimony may lead to the same facts; or testimony may be of opposite kinds, and yet the facts involved may be found. Infinite issues might be made on the statements of testimony, and yet none of them establish the fact. Rights depend not on testimony but on facts. Testimony is only of value as it is the circumstance from which we infer the fact. The existence of the fact is the ground of the right, and this existence is established in the minds of the jury by evidence. If some evidence be stated there might be also stated fact-propositions enough to constitute a cause of action, in which event, perhaps, little objection should be made, as the fault of excessive statement will tend to its own correction, and to cherish such objections unless in gross departure from the rule will tend to delay—but if there be not a sufficient statement of facts to constitute a cause of action then the fault will be assailable by the demurrer, because not containing a sufficient statement of cause of action. It requires, oft times, more exact thinking, than should be required of pleaders, to never commit the error of stating an item of testimony. This power of compact fact-statement will grow with use. The adverse party will seldom be prejudiced by a small admixture of testimony, and the good sense of the court will, under section 2946, temper the effect of the motion to strike out with a just appreciation of its use; so that substantive justice, rather than formal technicalities shall in each case prevail. Report on Civil Code, p. 314.

SEC. 2946. The court may, on motion of any person aggrieved thereby, cause irrelevant or redundant matter to be stricken from any pleadings, at the cost of any party, whose pleading contains them. Motion to strike out.

What is irrelevant or redundant matter in an answer? It is superfluous matter incorporated with an answer, otherwise good. Section 160 does not refer to a whole answer or defense, in authorizing irrelevant or redundant matter to be stricken out. If an answer otherwise good, is loaded with unnecessary and redundant matters, the plaintiff should move, under section 160 to expunge them. If doubts are entertained as to its sufficiency in law, a demurrer is the remedy. Nichols v. Jones, 6 How., 355.

Under the code a party has the right to set forth his cause of action, fully, and unless he burdens his pleading with matters that are totally irrelevant, impertinent, or imposes upon the defendant the necessity of specifically traversing a great number of facts, which are more properly evidence in support of a cause of action, than substantive averments to show that a cause of action exists, the defendant can not be regarded as aggrieved thereby. Motions to strike out parts of a pleading as irrelevant or redundant, are not to be encouraged unless it is manifest to the court, that it would be to the prejudice of the party who has to answer, to suffer the objectionable matter to remain. Nor is a court to be taxed with the labor and trouble of minutely inspecting a pleading upon summary motion of this kind, for the purpose of ascertaining whether averments are or are not relevant, unless in cases when it is absolutely incumbent upon the party to get rid of them, to enable him to frame a proper answer. Malony v. Dous, 15 How., 261.

An answer drawn in conformity with approved usage in chancery pleading, admitting, specifically, all the statements in the complaint, and stating various legal arguments and propositions in defense, can not be sustained under the code. Such statements are redundant. Gould v. Williams, 9 Pr. R., 51.

This section does not authorize the striking out of every irrelevant or redundant expression. A party must be aggrieved or prejudiced thereby. Hynds v. Griswold, 2 Code Rep., 47; effect must be given to the word "aggrieved," as used in this section. The matter must not only be irrelevant or redundant, but some person must be prejudiced thereby. Such a person only is authorized to make the motion. Ibid., and 4 Pr. R., 69.

Where the complaint, in slander, set forth the speaking by the defendant, at a certain time and place, certain words, and further, that the defendants on divers days and times between that day and the commencement of this suit, spoke the same words, the words in italic were held to be redundant. Gray v. Nellis, 6 Pr. R., 290.

It is probably unnecessary, but not improper, for the party after he has stated the facts in his pleading, to state the legal effect or conclusion therefrom, as for instance, after alleging in the complaint what was done with the note prior to the defendant's taking it, it was added, "whereupon the plaintiff became entitled to the possession of said note." See Decker v. Matthews, 2 Kern., 213.

The true test of the materiality of averments sought to be struck out, is to inquire whether such averments constitute a cause of action or defense; if they do they will not be struck out. Ingersoll v. Ingersoll, 1 Code Rep., 102; Averill v. Taylor, 5 Pr. R., 476; 1 Code Rep., N. S., 104.

It may now be considered as settled, that in a purely legal action, the common law rule, which confined the allegations of fact, in every pleading, to such as were essential to the cause of action or defense, and which, if put in issue, would be decisive of the suit, is still in force; and that whatever is inserted beyond these essential facts in such an action, will be stricken out on motion. Shaw v. Jayne, 2 Code Rep., 69; Knowles v. Gee, 3 ibid., 31; Milligan v. Cary, 3 ibid., 250; Williams v. Hayes, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 148.

Material matter. SEC. 2947. A material allegation in a pleading, is one essential to the claim or defense, and which could not be stricken from the pleading without leaving it insufficient.

Motion to make specific. SEC. 2948. When the facts on which any pleading is founded, are stated in a manner so general, or so indefinite, or so uncertain that the precise nature of the cause of action, or defense, or set-off, or counter-claim, or cross-demand is not so apparent as to enable the adverse party to respond intelligibly thereto, the court may, on motion, require the pleading to be made more specific, definite, and certain by amendment, and no pleading which recites or refers to a contract, shall be deemed sufficiently specific, unless it states whether the same is in writing or not. Such motion shall point out wherein the amendment is required or shall be disregarded, and if the reason for such demand of more specific statement exists outside of the pleadings, the motion must state the same and be sworn to.

Title not to be changed. SEC. 2949. The title of a cause shall not be changed in any of its stages of transit from one court to another.

Judicial notice. SEC. 2950. Matters of which judicial notice is taken, need not be stated in a pleading.

Liberal construction. SEC. 2951. In the construction of a pleading, for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations shall be liberally construed, with a view to substantive justice between the parties.

It is said that everything shall be taken most strongly against the party pleading, or rather, if the meaning of the words be equivocal, they shall be construed most strongly against the party pleading them; for it is to be intended that every person states his case as favorable to himself as possible. This must be taken with some qualification, for the language of a pleading is to have a reasonable intendment and construction, and, when a matter is capable of different meanings, that shall be taken, which shall support the pleading, and not that which will defeat it. Allen v. Patterson, 3 Selden, 480.

Under the code a pleading must be so expressed that it is plain and intelligible to those who understand the language, therefore the words expressed are to be understood in their ordinary and popular sense. Mann v. Morewood, 5 Sand., 557.

How to plead conveyance. SEC. 2952. When a party claims by conveyance, he may state it according to its legal effect or name.

Same of inheritance. SEC. 2953. When a party claims by inheritance, either by immediate or mediate descent, he shall allege how he is heir, as son, nephew, or otherwise.

Same of an estate. SEC. 2954. It shall not be necessary to allege the commencement of either a particular or a superior estate, unless it be essential to the merits of the case.

Same of time. SEC. 2955. When time forms a material point in the merits of a cause, the day, month, and year, or when there is a continued act, the period of its duration must be alleged. When time is not material, it need not be stated, and if stated, need not be proved.

If the time when a fact happened is material to constitute the cause of action, it should be stated. The fact without the time would be insufficient to constitute the cause of action; but if the time is immaterial, a demurrer will not lie for omitting to state it. People v. Ryder, 2 Kern, 433. An allegation that the plaintiff "afterwards, to wit," on a day specified, paid certain moneys, does not preclude him from showing that the payment was made at an earlier day for the purpose of claiming interest. The allegation of time in such a case is immaterial. Lyon v. Clark, 4 Seld., 148.

SEC. 2956. In actions for injuries to goods and chattels, their kind or species shall be alleged. Same as to goods.

SEC. 2957. It shall be necessary to allege a place, only when it is descriptive of the subject matter of the action, and forms a part of the substance of the issue. Same as to place.

SEC. 2958. In actions for injuries to real property, the party shall describe the property, and when the injury is to an incorporeal hereditament, shall describe the property in respect of which the right is claimed, as well as the right itself, either by the name by which the property is designated in the national survey, or by its abutments, or by its course and distances, or by any name which it has acquired by reputation, certain enough to identify it. Same as to real property.

SEC. 2959. When the party intends to prove malice, to affect damages, he must aver the same. Aver malice.

SEC. 2960. In an action, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand on a bond with conditions, the party suing thereon shall, in his pleading, notice the conditions and allege facts constituting the breach or breaches relied on. Breaches in bond.

SEC. 2961. When a pleading shows affirmatively, that its cause of claim is barred by the statute of limitations, it may be assailed by demurrer. Statute of limitations.

SEC. 2962. When the defendant pleads the statute of limitations, responding to such plea, the plaintiff may, without leave or cost, or incurring delay, amend his petition, by a count averring as another cause of action, the proper admission or new promise, with what other matter may be necessary to constitute sufficient cause of such claim, and the plaintiff may recover on either of such claims as he may show himself entitled. But he may in the first instance, rely on and state as cause of action, the matter displacing the bar of the statute as contemplated in the amendment herein stated. Defense of limitations how met.

SEC. 2963. When any pleading shows affirmatively, that its cause of claim should be evidenced by writing, according to the law of evidence, and that the same is not so evidenced, it may be assailed by demurrer. Statute of frauds.

SEC. 2964. Where such cause of action, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, as should be evidenced by writing, is so evidenced, then the same must be stated to be so, and the writing, or a copy thereof, must be annexed to the pleading, unless a reasonable excuse be set forth in the pleading for not annexing the same, else it shall not be received in proof on trial. What must be in writing should be set out or annexed.

SEC. 2965. All statements which need not be proved to any extent at all, such as the statement of time, quantity, quality, and value, when these are immaterial, the statement of finding and losing, and bailment in action for goods, or their value; the statement of promises which were not in fact made, and which need not be proved, and all statements of a like kind, shall be omitted. Not to aver what need not be proved.

SEC. 2966. If a party state more facts, or a greater title or estate than is necessary to entitle him to the relief claimed, and such facts, estates, or title be denied to the full extent, he shall not be compelled to prove more than is necessary to constitute a claim to the relief prayed, or to any lower degree of relief, included in the relief prayed. And if a party states in his answer or reply, more than is needed for his defense, he shall not be compelled to prove more than is needed for his defense. May recover on less than the part alleged.

held admitted.

SEC. 2967. When the action, defense, set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand is founded on a written instrument, and the original is referred to in a pleading, and annexed thereto, the genuineness and due execution of such instrument shall be deemed admitted, unless the adverse party in response to such pleading, if it is one which may be responded to, and if it be not, then before the trial deny the genuineness of execution of the same by affidavit; and when any other writing, purporting to have been executed by one of the parties is referred to in, and filed with a pleading, it may be read against such party as genuine and duly executed, unless he denies the same by affidavit, before the trial is begun.

SEC. 2968. Either party may be allowed, on motion, to make a supplemental petition, answer or reply, alleging facts material to the case, which have happened or have come to his knowledge since the filing of the former petition, answer, or reply, nor shall such new pleading be considered a waiver of former pleadings.

The supplemental answer under the code is a substitute for the old plea of puis darrein continuance; but it differs from the plea in this respect, that the supplemental answer may be allowed on motion, whenever the facts forming the ground of the answer have occurred since the answer was put in, or where the defendant was ignorant of them at the time of pleading the first answer; whereas, the plea of puis darrein continuance could strictly be pleaded only before or at the next continuance after the facts transpired. When the facts asked to be incorporated and pleaded in a supplemental answer go to divest the plaintiff of the right to maintain the action, and transfer the cause of action to another, who has received satisfaction for the demand involved in it, it is the duty of the court to grant the motion. The word may in such a case means must, and it will make no difference whether the motion be made at the earliest day or not. Drought v. Curtis, 8 P. R., 56.

The provision contained in this section does not enable a party to set up by way of supplemental answer, any defense known to him before the putting in of his former answer. Houghton v. Skinner, 5 P. R., 420.

Where plaintiff introduces new facts and parties into the case, by amending his complaint instead of resorting to a supplemental complaint, the amended complaint is not a nullity. It is irregular but the irregularity will be waived by a general appearance by the persons thereby brought in as defendants. Beck v. Stephani, 9 P. R., 193.

A. sued B. for an assault and battery. Afterward B. sued A. for slander. After issue joined in the action of A. against B., the action of B. against A. was tried; and on the trial A. set up, in mitigation of damages, the assault and battery for which he was then suing B. B. recovered only six cents damages, and, in consequence, as was alleged by him, of the setting up of said assault in mitigation, B. now moved for leave to make a supplemental answer, to introduce the facts which had taken place since issue joined, and insisted as the plaintiff A. had set up the assault, etc., in mitigation of the action by B., he could not now recover damages for such assault. The court granted the motion, and said the facts which transpired on the former trial were material. Bradley v. Hontelaig, 4 Pr. R., 251.

Matter of abate-

SEC. 2969. Matter in abatement may be stated in the answer or reply, as one or more of the causes of defense or reply. Either together with or without other causes of defense in bar, and no one of such causes shall be deemed to overrule the other; nor shall a party after trial, on matter of abatement, be allowed in the same action to answer or reply matter in bar.*

* Some have deemed because the old adjective appliances of abatement, namely, the formerly technical pleas of abatement were abolished, that therefore the substantive right of using abateable matter as a defense had also been taken away. No pleas were more technical and unreasonable than were the pleas of abatement. The

In Indiana it had been held in 11 Ind., 398, and 369, and 7 Ind., 147, that defendant having first had the abateable matter determined against him might then answer over to the merits which in N. Y., in 4 How., the contrary, had been held. This section leaves no room for doubt.

And another action pending in a court of another state, is no bar to a suit upon the same cause of action in this. Ind. Dig., 6. Nor is the pending of such suit in one of the federal courts, Cook v. Litchfield, 5 Sandf., 330, and hence would not be ground of demurrer or answer in abatement to a suit in a court in this state. Hence the answer should show where the action is pending.

SEC. 2970. Any defense arising after the commencement of any action, shall be stated according to the fact, without any formal commencement or conclusion, and any answer which does not state whether the defense therein set up arose before or after action, shall be deemed to be of matter arising before action. Subsequent defense how plead.

SEC. 2971. The forms contained in schedule A to this act annexed shall be sufficient, and those and the like forms may be used with such modifications as may be necessary to meet the facts of the case; but nothing herein contained shall render it erroneous or irregular to depart from the letter of such forms so long as the substance is expressed without prolixity. As to forms.

Amendments.

SEC. 2972. No variance between the allegation in a pleading and the proof is to be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action or defense upon the merits. Whenever it is alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact must be shown by proof alivunde to the satisfaction of the court, and such proof must also show in what respect he has been so misled, and thereupon the court may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as may be just.* No immaterial variance to be regarded.

substantive matter of abatement so far as allowed yet to constitute a defense, should not be plead in a manner different from other defenses. It is said that such matter should be first plead, as it might, if true, settle the case and prevent any further contestation on other parts thereof. This is only specious. If more pleas in bar than one are plead, it holds of them also that if one should be found true the same thing would occur. And it is true among several pleas in bar, that there is always one, which really involves a point logically antecedent to, and suspensive of the rest of them. That the plaintiff is an infant and sues alone is, if you get down to the real sense of the plea, but a defense which is based upon the idea that in the suit in hand he should not recover. And to just that, and no more, comes every defense also in bar. Indeed, it is only when you look beyond the case in hand, and ask about making another attempt to realize the same right in some other contemplated suit, that a difference is seen to exist between pleas which state matter in abatement and pleas, which state matter in bar. The true idea of a successful defense is, the successful assertion of any fact which will defeat the suit in hand. And it matters not so far as that suit is concerned, whether it be by showing that it is brought by the wrong man, or at the wrong time, or in the wrong court, or in the wrong way, that there never was a right, or that there is no longer one, or that there is not yet one.

All matter being reduced to one level of virtue, and none having precedence, it follows that any defense may be plead with any other, and that one shall no longer overrule the other. But the question might arise, and has done, whether the jury should not pass on the abateable matter first; and whether a party might not go to trial on abateable matter, and being defeated, amend in the same cause, by pleading the matter in bar. We remove that doubt by this section, which is but an enunciation of the New York decisions in the premises. Report on Civil Code.

* These sections on amendment have been found to be of great utility, and have been introduced into all the codes based on the New York system. They are copied, and into nearly all, with not the smallest change. The examination of the interpretation of them as made in decisions, has however indicated a slight verbal change,

These provisions introduce a principle unknown to the former practice, namely, that of determining this class of questions, not by the incoherence of the two statements upon their face, and hence inferring their effect upon the state of the preparation of the party, but by proof, aliunde, as to whether the party was actually misled to his prejudice by the incorrect statement. Catlin v. Gunter, 10 How., 315.

These sections obviously contemplated a case where the alleged variance has been discovered, or developed on the trial or hearing, at which time, the relief in a case to which it is appropriate, may at once be given, and the trial thereafter proceed upon the amended pleadings. Egert v. Wicker, 10 How., 193; Cotheal v. Tullmadge, 1 E. D. Smith, 575.

The code on the subject of variance between the pleadings and the proofs is applicable to cases in which usury is put in as a defense. These provisions have changed the strict rules which formerly prevailed as to a variance in such cases. Where on the trial the evidence of the defendant tended to prove an usurious agreement which differed from the one alleged in several particulars, but not in its entire scope, and the plaintiff gave no proof that he was misled thereby to his prejudice; held, that the variance was immaterial. Catlin v. Gunter, 1 Kern., 368.

Amendment of the complaint allowed at the trial, in an action of slander, so as to insert words in the German language, with an inuendo that they meant in English the words stated in the complaint; it appearing on the trial that the slander was uttered in German to those who understood that language, that the meaning of the words was properly stated in the complaint, and there being no affidavit of surprise on the part of the defendant. Litzman v. Ritz, 3 Sand, 134.

Where it was alleged in the complaint that the work and labor for which the action was brought was performed by Jones Wolcott; held, that this was an immaterial variance and was properly disregarded by the referee. Woolcott v. Meech, 22 Barb., 321.

A variance between the complaint and the proof, by which it is certain that the defendant was not and could not have been misled, may, under the provisions of the code, be disregarded, without amendment, by a referee as well as a judge. Harmony v. Brigham, 1 Duer, 210.

Vide Butcher v. Death & Teasdale, 15 Mo. Rep., 271; Cummings v. Gutridge, 17 Mo. Rep., 469; Reeves v. Larkin, 19 Mo. Rep., 192.

It is error in the circuit court to permit amendments to be made, except on terms not prejudicial to the rights of the parties. Lee v. Bohst, 9 Mo. Rep., 28. Vide Jones v. Cox, 7 Mo. Rep., 173, affirmed; Jarbee v. Steamboat Daniel Hillman, 19 Mo. Rep., 141.

It is improper to dismiss a suit because all are not made parties who should have been, the court having power to order others interested to be made parties. Hayden v. Marmaduke, 19 Mo. Rep., 403.

Courts of original jurisdiction should be liberal in allowing amendments in furtherance of justice. Dallman v. Bowman, 16 Mo. Rep., 225.

“If a plaintiff asks for equitable relief, and it turns out on the trial that he is entitled to legal relief only, I should permit him to take it in that form. And, if he had asked for legal relief only, where it appeared he was entitled to both legal and equitable, I should allow the proper amendment to administer complete justice in the case. The power to amend, authorized by the code, is ample for such purpose. In trying a cause at the circuit, I should certainly allow whatever amendment was necessary to give the parties redress.” Parker, J., in Getty v. Hudson R. R. Co., 6 How., 270.

and it has been made. One novel idea in this new system is, that the court will not presume, from a mere variance or amendment that the adverse party has been misled, but will insist upon his showing that circumstance, as a fact existing outside the case, which is true of it, if it exist at all. The world is indebted for that suggestion to the distinguished logician and philosopher, JOHN S. MILL. We find it suggested by him as long since as the year 1828, in his edition of Bentham's Rationale of Judicial Evidence. The English act goes quite the length of this, perhaps further, in liberal allowance of amendment. This power obviates the need of many statements, of a cause of action, and excuses the denial of such an allowance. Report on Civil Code.

On a trial at the circuit, the pleading may be made to conform to the proof; immaterial allegations may be disregarded, immaterial evidence rejected, and such judgment may be directed as the facts and the law of the case require. Corning v. Corning, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 351.

In an action on contract, there is no variance between the allegation of a sole liability and the proof of a joint undertaking by the defendant and another. Carter v. Hope, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 351.

Plaintiff permitted to amend on the trial, by changing the form of action, from an action on a promissory note to an action on a special contract. Jackson v. Sanders, 1 Code Rep., 27.

Evidence of a special agreement is admissible in an action by a daughter against her father, for wages, although the plaintiff claimed to recover upon an implied agreement only, the defendant not having been misled. Fort v. Gooding, 9 Barb., 371.

SEC. 2973. When the variance is not material as provided in the last section, the court may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, and may order an immediate amendment without costs.

And it may be amended without costs.

SEC. 2974. When, however, the allegation of the claim or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved, not in some particular or particulars only, but in its general scope and meaning, it shall not be deemed a case of variance within the last two sections, but a failure of proof.

What is not an immaterial variance.

A variance between the pleadings and the proof, sufficient to defeat the action and destroy the defense, must leave the case unproved in its entire scope and meaning. If left unproved in some particular or particulars, it is a subject for amendment upon terms, if the adverse party has been misled by it; otherwise amendments may be made at the trial, and without any conditions whatever. Fuy v. Grimstead, 10 Barb., 321.

Under an averment, in an answer, that the property was "very poor and of very little value," the defendant can not prove that it was "worth nothing and of no value." A defendant will not be allowed to give evidence of a defense not set up in his answer. Deifendorf v. Gage, 7 Barb., 18 Evidence offered in support of immaterial issues, may be rejected on the trial, whether objected to or not. Corning v. Corning, 2 Seld., 97; see Catlin v. Gunter, 1 Kern., 368.

The plaintiff has a right to strike from his petition any cause of action at any time before the final submission of the case to the jury or to the court, where the trial is by the court, (section 2845, Iowa.) By amending his petition, he may submit a distinct cause of action from that in the original petition. Hord v. Chandler, 13 B. M., 404.

Where an answer sets up the defense of usury, stating the circumstances of the transaction, and, on the trial, the taking of usury was proved, but under circumstances variant from those stated in the answer, held, that the scope and meaning of the answer was the usury, and that being proved, there was no failure of proof. Catlin v. Gunter, 10 Pr. R., 321-2; 1 Kernan, 347.

SEC. 2975. The plaintiff may amend his petition without leave, at any time before the answer is filed, without prejudice to the proceedings already had; but a notice of such amendment shall be served on the defendant or his attorney, and the defendant shall have the same time to answer or demur thereto, as he had to the original petition.

Plaintiff may amend before the filing of the answer.

If the plaintiff amends his complaint, by adding new parties, after the defendant's default for want of an appearance has been entered, he thereby waives the default. Seudder v. Voorhies, 1 Barb., 55.

Where after a default, the plaintiff amends his complaint (not in mere matter of form) he must serve the same on the defendant. A judgment entered thereon without such service, is irregular. Bayley v. Smith, 2 Sand, 651.

SEC. 2976. Upon a demurrer being overruled, the party demurring may answer or reply.

Amendment after demurrer

Amendment may be permitted at any time.

SEC. 2977. The court may, on motion of either party, at any time in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, permit such party to amend any pleadings or proceedings by adding or striking out the name of any party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect, or by inserting other allegations material to the case, or when the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense by conforming the pleadings or proceedings to the facts proved. The court may likewise, in its discretion, on terms, and for good cause proved, allow an answer or reply to be filed after the time limited by this code, when such time has not been by order extended. And whenever any proceeding taken by a party, fails, in any respect to conform to the provisions of this code, it may permit an amendment of such proceeding so as to make it conformable thereto.

Variances not affecting the merits, which do not surprise the adverse party, and on which he ought not in good faith, to have relied, will be disregarded on arguments at bar without directing any amendment. If the prevailing party deem an amendment prudent, he must apply for leave, by a motion, after the argument, when the court will allow it on such terms as shall be just. DeRuyster v. Wheeler, 1 Sand., 119. Where it was averred that the defendants represented a note to be "a good note, and that it would pass in South street," and the proof was that they said "the note was good, and that there were people in South street, who would take it;" held, no substantial variance. Hackins v. Appleby, 2 Sand., 421. Evidence of the special agreement is admissible in such action, although, the plaintiffs, in their reply, claim to recover upon an implied agreement only. Such an objection for a variance, between the pleadings and the evidence is provided for by the 169th and 170th sections of the code of procedure. [Sections 2972 and 2973, Iowa.] Fort v. Gooding, 9 Barb., 371; and see Getty v. Hudson River R. R. Co., 6 How., 269.

The court will direct an amendment of the pleadings by substituting a party as defendant, when it appears, at any stage of the proceedings, that such amendment will further the ends of justice. Fuller v. Webster Fire Ins. Co., 12 How., 293.

But such amendment should only be allowed on such terms as to prevent injustice. Luyster v. Sniffin, 3 How., 250. See Onondago Ins. Co. v. Minard, 2 Com., 98.

The court, at the trial, may remedy, by amendment, a variance between the case made by the proof and the complaint, where all the facts, essential to the rights of the parties are put in issue by the answer and reply. Hull v. Gould, 3 Kern., 127. See Corning v. Corning, 2 Seld., 37.

In an action for the recovery of the possession of a heifer, which was secretly taken from the possession of the plaintiff by the defendant, damages are recoverable for time spent and expenses incurred by the plaintiff, in searching for the heifer, after she was taken by the defendant. Where the plaintiff had not claimed such damages in his complaint, he was allowed to amend the same on the trial without terms, by inserting therein allegations to entitle him to such damages, the defendant not being able to show he had any absent witness material to the claim for such damages. Miller v. Garling, 12 How., 203; and see Hagins v. De Hart, ibid., 322.

Where the defendant must have known the facts contained in an amended answer, which he proposes to file, at the time of the filing of his original answer, it is no abuse of discretion to refuse leave to file it. Stiles, J., Barbours v. Moss, administrator, Mss. opin., July, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where a complaint and answer are both very general in form, and neither party demurs, and both have gone to trial with a full understanding of their rights, and neither party has been taken by surprise by the pleading of his adversary, and a full and fair investigation has been had on the merits, such an amendment will be allowed as will conform the complaint to the facts proved, and as will do substantial justice to both parties. Hunter v. The Hudson River Iron and Machine Co., 20 Barb., 493.

Whenever the court can see that justice would be furthered by an amendment of the pleadings and proceedings in an action, if asked for, it should grant the amendment upon terms just to the opposite party. It is in all cases, proper, however, in order to prevent laxity and negligence in pleading, to require from the party asking the amendment, some reasonable excuse for the defect in his pleading, which he seeks to correct. Harrington v. Slade, 22 Barb., 164.

The defendant having answered evasively, ought not to be allowed to amend his answer, after the testimony closed. Crenshaw, C. J., Trumbo v. Botts, Mss. opin., January, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where a wife had sued her husband without appearing by her next friend, and the court held a next friend necessary, the court allowed the proceedings to be amended by inserting the name of a next friend. Forrest v. Forrest, 3 Code Rep., 254.

Under this section a plaintiff will be allowed to amend his petition, in an action of slander, so as to allow the use of other slanderous words by the defendant. Simpson, J., Winn v. Elliott, Mss. opin., January, 1854. Stanton's Ky. Code.

Where plaintiff purposely commenced his action upon contract, with the view to obtain an advantage he could not obtain if he sued in tort, having secured that advantage, he will not be allowed to amend by making his action in tort. Lane v. Bean, 1 Abbott, 65.

Plaintiff declared for goods sold. The answer set up that they were sold upon a credit that had not expired. Plaintiff moved to amend his petition by averring that the goods were procured through fraudulent representations on the part of the defendant. In the original complaint the plaintiff demanded judgment for $162.87, that being the contract price of the goods. In the complaint as proposed to be amended, he demanded judgment for the same amount, averring that to be the value of the goods. Held, that, within the meaning of the code, there was no change in the nature of the claim. Chapman v. Webb, 1 Code Rep., N. S., 388.

The very terms of this section are sufficient to show that it was the intention of the framers of the code to endow the court with the most enlarged discretionary powers in granting amendments. The only proper inquiry for the court is, whether the proposed amendment will change substantially the cause of action or defense, or, if not, whether it will be in furtherance of justice to allow it." Harris, J., Dutcher v. Slack, 3 Pr. R., 322; 1 Code Rep., 113.

The complaint may be amended in the amount claimed by the plaintiff, in an action on contract, for the recovery of money only, even after reply, repeating the original claim, and both pleadings verified. Merchant v. New York Life Ins. Co., 3 Sand., 658; 2 Code Rep., 66, 67.

Where it occurred on the trial that there was a mistake in the name of the plaintiff, it was not held to be a ground of nonsuit, and that such a mistake can be corrected, on trial, by amendment. Barnes v. Perine, 9 Barb., 292; Travis v. Tobias, 8 Pr. R., 334.

Parker, J., in Dows v. Green, 3 Pr. R., 378, said: "The question to be determined is, whether the permitting the plaintiff to alter the prayer of his complaint so as to claim the property itself and damages for its detention, instead of simply praying judgment for the value of the property, is changing substantially the cause of action?" It is changing the form of the action, or, rather, the class to which it belongs, but not the cause of action. The cause of action is made up of the facts which entitle the plaintiff to relief. The injury complained of is the cause of action, and such is the sense in which the words are used. 1 Pr. R., 82; 2 ibid., 43; 3 ibid., 148.

The court under this section may allow amendments to the petition even during the trial, upon proper terms, by adding or striking out the names of parties, or correcting mistakes in the names of parties, or any other mistake, or inserting material allegations, or so changing the allegations thereof as to conform to the proof, provided the ground of action is not materially altered. Hise, C. J., Coil v. Harvard, Mss. Opin., Dec., 1853. Stanton's Ky. Code.

A variance between the declaration and proof must be objected to at the trial; and if not done then, the party can not afterwards avail himself of it. Pike v. Evans, 15 John, 210; and see Hall v. Lathrop, 3 Hill, 237; see Lawrence v. Barker, 5 Wend., 301.

When an order requires a party to amend, and directs him to pay costs, payment of the costs is not a condition precedent to the amendment. It must be expressed to be on payment, &c., or in other express terms. Sturtevant v. Fairman, 4 Sand., 674; Corning v. Corning, 2 Seld., 97; Bowman v. Earle, 3 Duer, 691; Cayuga Co. Bank v. Warden, 2 Seld., 19.

An amendment without costs, is an amendment upon such terms as may be proper, within the meaning of this section. Cayuga Bank v. Warden, 2 Selden, 27.

All technical errors to be disregarded.

SEC. 2978. The court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any error or defect in the proceeding, which does not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party; and no judgment shall be reversed or affected by reason of such error or defect.

So complete and thorough has been the departure from the former rules and forms of pleading, that it is hardly safe to rely upon analogies derived from that system in giving practical effect to the new. Based as the new is upon an entirely different theory, and having professedly different ends to accomplish, it is better, with a view to carry it out in its spirit, to consider it as it is in truth, an entire new theory, to be construed and carried into effect according to its terms and upon principles peculiar to itself. Difficult as it may be for a mind trained to the logical and truly scientific rules of pleading under which justice has so long been administered in states and countries in which the common law has had sway, to cast aside all the rules which have been supposed to be founded in wisdom, and in practice to have accomplished a good purpose, for a new and confessedly imperfect scheme, it is safe to say that it must be done, in order to give effect to the provisions referred to, and to give the new system a fair trial; and that less injustice will be done in that way than by attempting to engraft the new upon the old, which can only be done to the prejudice of both. Bush v. Prosser, 1 Kern., 351.

Amendment does not entitle to a continuance.

SEC. 2979. When either party shall amend any pleading or proceeding, the case shall not be continued in consequence thereof, unless the court shall be satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, that the adverse party could not be ready for trial in consequence of such amendment. But if the court is thus made to become satisfied, a continuance may be granted to some day in the same term, or to the next term of said court.

It has been held that the substitution of parties different from those in whose names the suit was originally brought, where the claim or defense was not substantially changed, did not entitle to a continuance. Huhler v. Pullen, 9 Ind., 273. See cases on this point, Ind Dig., 110, 279, 677.

Consolidation.

SEC. 2980. Whenever two or more actions are pending in the same court which might have been joined, the defendant may, on motion, and notice to the adverse party, require him to show cause why the same shall not be consolidated, and if no sufficient cause be shown, the same shall be consolidated.

Amendments need not be verified unless, &c.

SEC. 2981. Courts may permit the amendments authorized by this chapter to be made, without being verified as prescribed in section 2904, unless a new and distinct cause of action, defense, set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand is thereby introduced.

Lost pleading.

SEC. 2982. If an original pleading be lost or withheld by any one, the court may order a copy thereof to be substituted.

Amendments how to be made.

SEC. 2983. All matters of supplement or amendment, whether of addition or subtraction, shall be made not by erasure or interlineation of the original, or by addition thereto, but upon a separate paper, which shall be filed, and shall constitute, with the original, but one pleading. But if it be stated in such paper, that it is a substitute for the former pleading intended to be amended, in that case it shall be deemed such substitute, but the pleading superseded by the substitute shall not be withdrawn from the files.

SEC 2984. No record shall be amended or impaired by the clerk, or other officer of the court, or by any person without the order of such court, or of some court of competent authority.

Records not to be altered.

Interrogatories.

SEC. 2985. Either party may annex to his petition, answer or reply, written interrogatories to any one or more of the adverse parties concerning any of the material matters in issue in the action, the answer to which on oath may be read by either party as a deposition between the party interrogating and the party answering.

Party may file interrogatories.

SEC. 2986. The party answering shall not be confined to responding merely to the interrogatories, but may state any new matter concerning the same cause of action, which shall likewise be read as a deposition.

What respondent may state.

SEC. 2987. These shall be answered at the same time the petition is required to be answered, and when annexed to the answer or reply, shall be answered at or before the calling of the cause for trial, if such pleading has been filed four clear days.

When response to be filed.

SEC. 2988. The trial of an action by ordinary proceedings shall not be postponed on account of the failure to answer interrogatories, if the party interrogated is present in court at the trial, so that he may be orally examined; nor, in case of his absence, unless an affidavit be filed showing the facts, the party believes will be proved by the answers thereto, and that the party has not filed the interrogatories for the purpose of delay; whereupon, if the party will consent that the facts stated in the affidavit shall be considered as admitted by those interrogated, the trial shall not be postponed for that cause.

No delay.

SEC. 2989. The party in answering such interrogatories, shall distinguish clearly between what is stated from his personal knowledge, and what is stated from information or belief merely. An unqualified statement of a fact shall be considered as made of his personal knowledge.

Respondent must state the extent of his assurance.

SEC. 2990. The answers to the interrogatories shall be verified by the affidavit of the party answering, to the effect that the statements in them made of his own personal knowledge are true, and those made from the information of others he believes to be true.

Affidavit.

SEC. 2991. Where a party filing interrogatories shall also file an affidavit that he verily believes the subject of the interrogatories, or any of them, is in the personal knowledge of the opposite party, and that his answers thereto, if truly made from such knowledge, will sustain the claim of defense, or any part thereof, and the opposite party shall fail to answer therein within the time allowed therefor, or by the court extended, the claim or defense, or the part thereof, according to such affidavit, shall be deemed to be sustained, and judgment given accordingly.

If unanswered, what taken as true.

SEC. 2992. The court may compel answers to interrogatories, by process of contempt, and may, on the failure of the party to answer them after reasonable time allowed therefor, dismiss the petition, or quash the answer of the party so failing.

Answer may be compelled.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. An equitable defense can not be made in a law suit, 5 Iowa, 379; pleadings should be in English, 5 Iowa, 375; a demurrer was sustained to a set of facts which the defendant claimed to show by way of recoupment, because the same were not stated with sufficient certainty and distinctness to constitute a plea of set-off, 5 Iowa, 379; [the plea is not given, but is not uncertainly assailable by motion alone?] aid of venue as stated in the margin, 2 G., 440; a demurrer was sustained to an answer in action on delivery bond, because said answer stated only that the property did not belong at time of levy to attachment defendant, and did not say to whom it did belong, 5 Iowa, 546. [Was not a motion for a more "definite and specific plea" the remedy?] an action may be brought on a judgment instead of scire facias to revive it, 5 Iowa, 506; a judgment can not be given for a larger sum than that demanded in the petition, 5 Iowa, 505; under the claim of interest plaintiff can only recover interest from the commencement of the suit, 5 Iowa, 505; a suit was brought on an agreement which contained a condition precedent of liability, that condition was not in the petition averred performed and demurrer was sustained to the petition. [The second ground of sustaining the demurrer is not shown to have been made as required by section 1754, Code,] 5 Iowa, 386; substantial formality is alone requisite, 5 Iowa, 372; the laws of other states are facts which should be plead as such, if relied on as facts, 5 Iowa, 364; the laws of other states are facts to be plead and proved and not taken notice of judicially, 4 Iowa, 468; a demurrer was sustained to an answer in slander which averred provocation and passion as mitigation, on the ground that such facts could be proved under a denial, 4 Iowa, 456; [see note to sections 2928 and 2929;] if an action be brought by one having the legal interest in a note, a defense against the party beneficially interested may be made by the defendant, 5 Iowa, 540; causes not to be mingled, 1 Iowa, 263; but several notes may be stated in one count, Stadler, Bro. & Co. v. Parmlee & Watts, Dec., 1859; and see 1 G., 147; 4 G., 493; such causes must be held in the same right, 4 G., 196; statements, how to be made, 4 G., 302; 1 Iowa, 4; 5 Iowa, 370; 3 Iowa, 63; a set-off is not a defense and it should be pleaded separately, 4 Iowa, 434; set-off should be pleaded entirely separate from matters of defense, 5 Iowa, 463; if on firm settlement one member give to another a note for his share and afterwards pay a debt of the firm not counted in the settlement, such maker when sued by the payee on said note may set off that sum which the payee should contribute, 5 Iowa, 540; the court and not the jury must define the issue, 5 Iowa, 274, 4 Iowa, 154; allegations not denied taken as true, 5 Iowa, 376; the statement of facts basing the attachment can not be put in issue in the original cause by answer, 5 Iowa, 378; approved, Sackett, Belcher & Co. v. Partridge & Cook, 4 Iowa, 416, and 5 Iowa, 379; a denial of indebtedness held a sufficient answer, 5 Iowa, 378; allegations not responded to are true on trial, 5 Iowa, 276; averments not denied can not be disproved, 4 Iowa, 5; allegations not responded to are taken as true, 4 Iowa, 592; on motion, the court may, if necessary, require a party to respond specifically to the affirmative allegations of the petition, 5 Iowa, 471; when the justice's record states that the defendant's set-off was not objected to, it will not be presumed untrue from the mere fact of a trial, as it would be in a case where the record was silent, and there was only one action, 5 Iowa, 270; material facts charged within a sworn bill to be within the knowledge of the respondent, and not responded to on oath when sworn answer is called for, are taken to be true, 4 Iowa, 581; a respondent in chancery can pray nothing save to be dismissed with costs; for other relief he must ask by cross-bill, 4 Iowa, 581; certificates of stock received by the vendor of land as the price thereof need not be annexed to a bill by the vendor seeking to vacate said sale for fraud, 5 Iowa, 366; if such instrument be in a foreign language the copy should be an English translation thereof, 5 Iowa, 376; the objection to a pleading that a copy of the account is not annexed thereto is waived by omitting to demur therefor, 5 Iowa, 539; merely annexing instrument without inserting in the petition the propositions intended to be sustained by it—rather disproved, 5 Iowa, 291; an amended answer containing new matter filed unreasonably late, may on motion be struck out, 4 Iowa, 458; the plea of justification must confess the charge and must set forth such matters as fix the crime, 4 Iowa, 456; identicalness of parties is not always demanded to admit a defense of res adjudicata, 4 Iowa, 246; provoking language is not a defense to an action for an assault and battery, mitigation only, 5 Iowa, 480; if vendor of land with warranty, sue vendee on notes given for the price, the vendee may reply, that the vendor's title to part of said land was not good, and may deduct from the notes such sum as he reasonably paid for the outstanding title, 5 Iowa, 408; the statement of facts basing the attachment, can not be put in issue in the original cause by answer, 5 Iowa, 378; the laws of other states are facts to be plead and proved, and not taken notice of judicially, 4 Iowa, 468; under a general denial without a specific statement of the statute of another state on which he relies as a fact, defendant can not give in evidence the law, 4 Iowa, 469; more particularity is required by Code than by common law, 4 Iowa, 469; no fact can be held as res adjudicata, except such fact as was an ultimate fact, put directly in issue and decided, 4 Iowa, 199; several grounds of defense should be pleaded in separate counts (dictum,) 5 Iowa, 463; matter of tender can not be proved under plea of payment, 5 Iowa, 484; a party may base his defense on the fact that the conduct of the other party precludes his being heard to assert the facts of his claim, 5 Iowa, 422.

In Slander, prove words substantially as laid, 4 Iowa, 453; provocation may be shown in mitigation, 4 Iowa, 453; so may the general bad character of plaintiff; 8 Iowa, 29; malice presumed from the nature of the words, 2 G., 311; certainty required in a plea of justification, 4 Iowa, 453; M., 286; 2 G., 231; what words are actionable, per se, M., 269; 4 Iowa, 321; 4 G., 354; M., 136; 2 G., 311-587; 4 Iowa, 427-424; that "the petition is insufficient in law to sustain the action," is not a good demurrer, 5 Iowa, 523; taking a bill of exceptions does not save the error of ruling on demurrer where the failing party answers over, 4 Iowa, 589; pleading over waives the demurrer, 4 Iowa, 499; the error of overruling the defendant's demurrer is waived by defendant filing an answer, 4 Iowa, 552; by amending answer demurred to, defendant waives his right to object to the action of the court in making the decision, 4 Iowa, 455; going to trial on one of many counts waives any wrong ruling as to the counts not tried, 1 G., 259; see 8 Iowa, 212; demurrer don't extend back, 4 G., 453; [see notes on Demurrer in Code of Civil Practice.] if one count good then a general demurrer to the whole is bad, M., 102; 2 G., 602; demurrer defined, 5 Iowa, 15; 3 G., 564-538; 2 G., 582; 1 Iowa, 546; 5 Iowa, 521; *Crouch v. ## CHAPTER 123.*

TRIAL AND ITS INCIDENTS.

How issues arise and what they are.

SEC. 2993. Issues arise in the pleadings where a fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds: 1st, of law; 2d, of fact.

What an issue of fact.

SEC. 2994. An issue of fact arises, 1. Upon a material allegation of fact in the petition denied by the answer. 2. Upon a material allegation of fact in a set-off, counter-claim, or cross-demand, presented in the answer and denied by the reply. 3. Upon allegations of fact being new matter, in the answer or reply, which shall be considered as controverted by the opposite party without further pleading.

The plaintiff in his complaint, said the defendant owed him $600, for a note. The defendant, in his answer, did not deny it, nor say anything about it; but said the plaintiff owed him $40.00, for goods sold. The plaintiff made no reply. Held, that there was no issue to be tried. Pardee v. Schenck, 11 How., 500.

What one of law.

SEC. 2995. An issue of law arises upon a demurrer to the petition, answer, or reply, or to some part of either, or upon any allegation of fact in a pleading by the one party, the truth of which is neither controverted by the other party nor by the law for him.

SEC. 2996. Issues both of law and fact may arise upon different parts of the pleadings in the same action. In such cases the issues of law must be first tried; but by going to trial on an issue of fact without objection, a party will be deemed to have waived his demurrer. Of law to be tried first or waived.

SEC. 2997. A trial is a judicial examination of the issues in an action, whether they be issues of law or of fact. Trial defined.

SEC. 2998. Issues of law must be tried by the court, unless referred as provided in section 3089. An issue of fact in an action by ordinary proceedings, must be tried by a jury, unless a jury trial shall be waived, as provided in section 3087, or a reference be ordered, as provided in section 3090. How they are to be tried.

How Equitable Issues Tried.

SEC. 2999. Equitable issues may be tried according to two distinct methods, called first and second methods of equitable trials, and these methods shall differ one from the other in the following particulars, and none others: * Equitable issues, how tried.

1. As to the form of evidence. In all cases tried according to the first method, all the evidence shall be in writing, while in those cases tried by the second method, the evidence shall be as in ordinary actions.

2. As to who may determine the facts therein. In a trial by the first method, the issues shall be tried by the court, who may, however, to inform his conscience, order the whole issue, or any part thereof, or any specific question of fact involved therein, to be tried by a jury, or may refer the same, and may in either case accept or reject the finding of the jury or referee, and may, with or without a statement of any finding of facts, render such judgment as he considers equitable. While in a trial by the second method, either party shall be entitled to have the whole issue or any part thereof, or any specific question of fact involved therein, tried by a jury, under the instructions of the court, as in a case by ordinary proceedings, or to have the same tried by the court acting as a jury, and finding in writing the facts, which finding of facts in either case shall be of ultimate facts and not of evidence of such facts, and shall be stated on the record as a special verdict, and the judgment of the court shall be the legal conclusions based upon and supported by the facts so found as herein contemplated.

3. As to what is triable on appeal. In an appeal taken on a case tried in the first method, all the evidence shall go to the supreme court, which shall try the case on both the law and facts as apparent of record. While in cases tried by the second method, no evidence shall, on appeal, go to the supreme court, except such as may be necessary to explain and apply any bill of exceptions, and such court shall try only the legal errors thereof, duly presented, as in a case by ordinary proceedings, including the sufficiency of the facts stated on the record, as the basis of the judgment to warrant the same.

SEC. 3000. The first method shall obtain in all cases, except, 1. When the first method shall obtain. In divorce cases. 2. In foreclosure of tax-title cases, and of mortgages.

* This section, we have said, under the discussion of the principles of law and equity, is a compromise. A concession to what we believe to be not only abstractly best, but concretely the most practicable. We think that the method here called the second, and which is the only method of chancery trial in New York, Missouri, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, California, and, in all the territories, is the only method sustained by sound reason. Report on Civil Code.

3. In default cases. 4. In cases where all the parties thereto consent to try by the second method, in which cases the second method shall obtain.

Consent, how expressed.

SEC. 3001. The consent in the last section contemplated, must be expressed in open court, and entered of record, or must be in writing and signed by the parties or the attorney of the parties, and filed in the cause.

How one may early indicate his consent.

SEC. 3002. The plaintiff in his petition, or the defendant in his answer, may state his consent to try the case by the second method, and if the other party, within ten days thereafter, file his consent thereto in the clerk's office, the cause shall be so tried.

May consent at any time.

SEC. 3003. Or if all the parties at any time before trial enter into such consent, the cause shall be so tried.

Precedence of Causes.

Order of trial.

SEC. 3004. A civil cause shall not be tried save by consent of the bar, in any other order than that in which it stands upon the docket.

Clerk to keep calendar.

SEC. 3005. The clerk shall keep a calendar of all the causes pending in his court, arranging in one part thereof, criminal causes, in the order of their commencement; in another part thereof, ordinary actions, in the same order; and in another, equitable actions, in the same order, and shall enter the causes thereon as soon as the same are commenced, by the filing of the petition or transcript therein, and shall, under the direction of the court or judge, apportion the same to as many days of the term, as shall be thought necessary, and shall on the order of any party, in any cause, issue subpoenas for witnesses returnable on the — day on which such cause is set for trial, and the clerk shall furnish at such term, the court and the bar, each, with a copy of such calendar.

Criminal causes first.

SEC. 3006. The criminal causes shall first be called in their order, and disposed of by trial, or continuance, in such order, unless the court for good cause shall direct otherwise, and after the civil calendar is entered upon, no criminal cause shall be allowed to intervene. But the court shall not protract the trial of the civil causes beyond a day of the term after which all defendants in criminal causes who desire to be tried at such term, may be so tried, during which re-entry upon the criminal calendar, the causes shall be tried, or continued, in their order.

Trial at first term.

SEC. 3007. Except when otherwise provided, causes shall be tried at the first term after due, legal and timely service has been made, unless reasonable cause for continuance be shown.

Continuance.

When time is asked to apply for continuance.

SEC. 3008. When time is asked for making application for a continuance, the cause shall not lose its place on the calendar, or it may be continued at the option of the other party, and at the cost of the party applying therefor; for which cost judgment may be at once entered by the clerk, unless the contrary be agreed between the parties.

No continuance to be got if in fault.

SEC. 3009. A continuance shall not be granted for any cause growing out of the fault or negligence of the party applying therefor; subject to this rule, it may be allowed for any cause which satisfies the court that substantial justice will thereby be more nearly obtained.

Continuance for want of evidence.

SEC. 3010. Motions for continuance on account of the absence of evidence, must be founded on the affidavit of the party, his agent, or attorney, stating facts as distinguished from legal conclusions which show the materiality of the evidence sought to be obtained, and showing that efforts which constitute due diligence have been used to obtain its presence.

Due diligence must have been used to obtain absent testimony on account of which a continuance is asked, and the court may consider, in determining the question, what appears in the record of the cause as well as in the affidavit. *Deming v. At any time before the cause is finally submitted to the court or jury, either party may be permitted by the court to give further testimony to correct an evident oversight or mistake, but terms may be imposed upon the party obtaining the privilege. [See Kerby v. Cannon, 9 Ind., 371.]
- Jury may come in to inform themselves. SEC. 3071. After the jury have retired for deliberation, if they desire to be informed as to any point of law arising in the case, they may request the officer to conduct them into court, which he shall do, when the information required shall be given, in the presence of, or after notice to the parties or their counsel.
- How given. SEC. 3072. Such information shall be in writing and shall be held approved, unless it be excepted to in the same way as the charge, and no discussion thereon shall be allowed to either party.
- Verdict. SEC. 3073. The verdict must be written and signed by a foreman chosen by the jury itself, and when agreed the jury must be conducted into court, their names called, and the verdict rendered by him, and read by the clerk to the jury and the inquiry made whether it is their verdict. If any juror disagrees, the jury must be sent out again, but if no disagreement is expressed and neither party requires the jury to be polled, the verdict is complete and the jury discharged from the case.

SEC. 3074. When the verdict is announced, either party may re-<sup>Jury polled.</sup>quire the jury to be polled, which shall be done by the court or clerk, asking each juror if it is his verdict. If any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation.

SEC. 3075. When by consent of the parties and the court, the jury<sup>Sealed verdict.</sup> have been permitted to seal their verdict and separate before it is rendered, such sealing is equivalent to a rendition and a recording thereof in open court, nor shall such jury be polled or permitted to disagree thereto, unless such a course has been agreed upon between the parties in open court and entered on the record.

SEC. 3076. If, while the jury are kept together, either during pro-<sup>Food and lodging for jury.</sup>gress of the trial, or after their retirement for deliberation, the court order them to be provided with suitable food and lodging, they must be so provided by the sheriff, at the expense of the county.

SEC. 3077. The verdict of a jury is either general or special. A<sup>General verdict.</sup> general verdict is one in which they pronounce generally for the plaintiff or for the defendant upon all or upon any of the issues.

SEC. 3078. A special verdict is one in which the jury finds facts<sup>Special one.</sup> only; it must present the ultimate facts as established by the evidence, and not the evidence to prove them so that nothing remains to the court but to draw from them its conclusions of law.

A special verdict must state the facts proved, and not the evidence given to prove the facts, and must not leave the facts to be made out by argument and inference, Berkhead v. Brown, 5 Hill, 634; Fuller v. Van Geisen, 4 Hill, 171. A special verdict or finding of a judge in the nature of a special verdict, where trial by jury is waived, should find all the conclusions of fact, so as to leave nothing for further determination except questions of law. Sisson v. Barnett, 2 Com., 406. It is not necessary that a special verdict should contain facts admitted by the pleadings, such facts, together with the facts found by the jury, constitute a proper subject for consideration on appeal. Barto v. Himrod, 4 Seld., 483.

SEC. 3079. In all actions, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or a special verdict, and in any case in which they render a general verdict, they may be required by the court, and must be so required, on the request of any party to the action, to find specially upon particular questions of fact to be stated to them in writing, or to find that the facts stated in the petition, answer, or reply, or in all or either of them, or in any count of either of them, or in case any count of either of them be divisible, then that any defined part thereof is true, or not true, and such special finding is to be recorded with the verdict.*

Where several causes of action are joined in one petition, there should be a separate assessment of damages or verdict in such cause. A general verdict for the plaintiff, it seems, will not stand, if one of the causes of action is insufficient to support a judgment. Mooney v. Kennett, 19 Mo. Rep., 551. See also Langsdale v. Bouton, 12 Ind. Rep.

* The object of this section is to secure a severance in the verdict on which may be entered a judgment, in such way as to allow one part of the judgment to be enjoyed, while an appeal may be taken on the other. See the remarks on section 3121. Report on Civil Code, p. 324.

Special finding prevails.

SEC. 3080. When the special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict, the former controls the latter, and the court may give judgment accordingly.

Assess amount of recovery.

SEC. 3081. When by the verdict either party is entitled to recover money of the adverse party, the jury in their verdict must assess the amount of such recovery.

In replevin or detinue, what jury must find.

SEC. 3082. In actions for the recovery of specific personal property, the jury must assess the value of the property, as also the damages for taking or detention, whenever, by their verdict there will be a judgment for the recovery or return of the property, and when required so to do by either party, must find the value of each article thereof.

And if they fail to so find, they may be sent back to amend their verdict. Ind. Dig., p. 55, sec. 43; Reed v. Thayer, 9 Ind. R., 157.

A verdict for $100 in damages does not authorize a judgment for the return of specific property, and in cases like this, it is obvious how necessary it is to conform to the requisitions of sections 360, [3081 Iowa.] Stiles, J., Barrett v. Crabtree, Mss. opin., June, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

To authorize a jury to assess damages for property illegally taken and detained, (hogs,) there must be some evidence of the value, or some description to enable the jury to determine the value from their own knowledge. Pharis, etc. v. Carver, 13 B. M., 238.

Under this section the jury should fix, in their verdict, the value of each article of property found to belong to the plaintiff, and the judgment should conform to the verdict. Marshall, C. J., Graves v. Watkins, Mss. opin., June, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code. [Yet the Ky. Code does not contain the last clause of ours.]

Verdict moulded to case presented.

SEC. 3083. When there are several defendants, the verdicts and judgments,—whether the pleadings are joint or several, shall be moulded according to the facts, and to meet the exigencies of the case.

Intention is enough.

SEC. 3084. (1790.) The verdict shall be sufficient in form if it expresses the intention of the jury.

If the jury fail in framing their verdict in accordance with the statute, and it is not corrected by them before their discharge, and it is so defective that judgment can not be rendered upon it, venire de novo may be awarded. Ind. Dig., 687; see Dowell v. Richardson, 10 Ind. R., 573.

Where the plaintiff fails to set forth a good cause of action in his petition, and the fault is not cured by the answer, a verdict for the plaintiff can not stand; a new trial should be awarded. Fible v. Caplinger, 13 B. M., 464.

A verdict finding for "the plaintiff the debt in the petition mentioned," held sufficiently certain under the code. Brannin & Smith v. Foree's adm'r, 12 B. M., 509.

If all the counts are good in an ordinary petition and one only be proved as alleged, but not as alleged in other counts, and a general verdict, it will be good. 1 State Law, 327; Noel, etc. v. Hudson, 13 B. M., 205.

Filed and entered.

SEC. 3085. The verdict shall, in all cases, be filed with the clerk, and entered upon the record, after having been put into form by the court, if necessary.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. The court and not the jury must define the issue, 5 Iowa, 274, and 4 Iowa, 154; questions of alterations in notes are of fact and for jury, 4 Iowa, 63; if a jury find a set of facts which have not been put in issue, no judgment should be rendered on them, 5 Iowa, 483; the jury should take in retiring no papers but those containing the issue, 4 Iowa, 461; drawing lots for verdict, 7 Iowa, 90; taking the aggregate of each one's will and dividing by twelve makes a bad verdict, 7 Iowa, 81; a sealed verdict is fixed and binds each juror after it has been made and delivered, 6 Iowa, 456; and such verdict may be put into form by jury even after a separation, Bass v. Hanson, Dec., 1859; less than twelve jurors a fatal defect if not consented to, 6 Iowa, 161; a wrongful separation of the jury after agreeing on verdict, will not defeat a verdict, 4 Iowa, 72; misbehaviour of jury, 4 Iowa, 18, 72; 3 G., 47; view by jury, 6 Iowa,

Trials by the Court.

SEC. 3086. (1771.) Upon a decision of a demurrer, if the unsuccessful party fail to amend or plead over, the same consequences shall ensue as though a verdict had passed against the plaintiff, or the defendant had made default, as the case may be. Upon decision of demurrer.

SEC. 3087. Trial by jury may be waived by the several parties to an issue of fact in the following cases: Jury trial waived.

1. By suffering default or by failing to appear at the trial.
2. By written consent, in person or by attorney, filed with the clerk.
3. By oral consent in open court, entered in the minutes.

SEC. 3088. Upon the trial of questions of fact by the court, in an action by ordinary proceedings, it shall not be necessary for the court to state its finding, except generally for the plaintiff or defendant, unless one of the parties, before any testimony is offered, requests it, in which case its decision shall be given in writing, stating the facts found, and the legal conclusions founded thereon, separately, all of which shall be entered on the record. When court to state finding of facts

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. When a demurrer has been sustained to the answer, and defendant does not amend, the case stands as if judgment by default were had, and defendant can only appear to cross-examine, and can not ask for a nonsuit; in such case no judgment can be had on a note unless it be produced, 5 Iowa, 290; chancellor may refuse issue to jury and find facts himself, presumption on appeal, 2 Iowa, 500; issues how tried, 3 G., 511; nul tiel record for court, 3 G., 170; consent pre-unded, ibid., 219; jury's province to try facts, 2 ibid., 231; presumption for finding, 1 Iowa, 374; trial by court, 3 G., 511; court need not state facts in finding unless requested, 3 G., 574; the verdict of the court as a jury is to be reviewed in the same way as that of any other jury, Byington v. Woodward, Dec., 1859.

*Reference.**

SEC. 3089. All or any of the issues in an action, whether of fact or of law, or both, may be referred, upon the consent of the parties, either written or oral, in court entered upon the record. Reference.

SEC. 3090. When the parties do not consent, the court may, upon the motion of either, or upon its own motion, direct a reference in either of the following cases: Same and when allowed by court.

1. When the trial of an issue of fact shall require the examination of mutual accounts, or when the account being on one side only, it shall be made to appear to the court that it is necessary that the party on the other side should be examined as a witness to prove the account, in which case the referees may be directed to hear and report upon the whole issue, or upon any specific question of fact involved therein; or,
2. When the taking of an account shall be necessary for the information of the court, before judgment, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect.
3. When a question of fact, other than upon the pleadings shall arise, upon motion or otherwise, in any stage of an action.
4. When a question of fact shall arise in any action by equitable proceedings.

* These provisions on reference are the law of Ohio modified to our wants; something like it is a part of the new system wherever received. Report on Civil Code, p. 324.

Proceeding upon a reference is a waiver of all objections to the order of reference on the ground of irregularity; but not of the objection that the court had no jurisdiction to make the order. That objection may be raised at any time. Garcie v. Sheldon, 3 Barb., 232.

All referees to meet.

SEC. 3091. Where not otherwise declared in the order of reference, all the referees must meet to hear proofs, arguments, and to deliberate, but a decision by the majority shall be regarded as their decision.

Vacancies.

SEC. 3092. When appointed by a court, the judge thereof may fill vacancies in vacation.

They stand for the court.

SEC. 3093. The referees shall stand in the place of the court, and shall have the same power, so far as necessary, to discharge their duty.

Trial in same mode as by court.

SEC. 3094. The trial by referees shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. They have the same power to summon and enforce, by attachment, the attendance of witnesses to punish them as for a contempt for non-attendance, or refusal to be sworn, or to testify, and to administer all necessary oaths in the trial of the case, to take testimony by commission, grant continuances, to preserve order, and punish all violations thereof.

It seems that the rule of law which protects parties from any undue influence upon the minds of jurors should be substantially applied to referees. Yale v. Gwinitts, 4 How., 253. On this trial of a cause, a referee takes the place of a jury as well as of the court. His decisions upon questions of fact, like that of a jury, is, as a general rule, conclusive. If therefore, it appears that the report of a referee on questions of fact, has been, even in the slightest degree, affected by any influence exercised by the successful party, it will be set aside for irregularity. See Yale v. Gwinitts, 4 How. Pr. R., 253.

Report to state.

SEC. 3095. The report of the referees on the whole issue, must state the facts found, and the conclusions of law, separately, and shall stand as the finding of the court, except as otherwise provided in equitable actions tried by the first method; and judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court—the report may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner.

If questions of law are raised and passed upon in the course of the trial, and the party takes proper exceptions, he can present those questions, by a bill of exceptions, setting forth as much of the evidence as may be necessary to present such questions. If questions of law and fact, arise during the trial, and the party desires a review upon both, he may incorporate his exceptions in his case, stating them separately from the facts. But neither a case made for the purpose of reviewing questions of fact, nor exceptions which present only questions of law, raised and passed upon during the trial, will bring up for review the conclusions of law or final decisions of the referees upon the facts found by them. For the purposes of an appeal, an exception to their decision, as to all other decisions upon questions of law arising upon the trial must be taken. Exceptions to all decisions made in the course of the trial, must be taken at the trial, and this would be so of the final decision of the referees, if it were required to be made then. There is no authority for reviewing on appeal, a decision to which no exception has been taken. On the contrary, it is plainly prohibited. Therefore, although the referees' report is made by statute a part of the record, the court can not review errors appearing on the face of the record where no exceptions have been taken. Brewer v. Ish., 12 How., 481.

The finding of a referee on a question of fact where the testimony is not decisive either way, is conclusive; and his report will not be set aside unless some principle of law has been violated. Durkee v. Mott, 8 Barb., 423; see Scranton v. Baxter, 4 Sandl., 5. The report of a referee is like the verdict of a jury, and must be destitute of any evidence to support it in order to warrant the court in granting a new trial upon the facts. If there be any proof tending to show the facts in issue, it is not the duty of the court to set aside the report, though the evidence be in its judgment too slight to found a decision upon. Woodin v. Foster, 16 Barb., 146; see Kennedy v. New York & Harlem R. R. Co., 3 Duer, 69.

SEC. 3096. When the reference is to report the facts, the report shall have the effect of a special verdict, except as is otherwise provided in equitable actions tried by the first method. Effect of report.

SEC. 3097. The referees shall sign any true bill of exceptions taken to any ruling by them made in the case whereto any party demands a bill of exceptions; and the party shall have the same rights to obtain such bill as exist in the court, and such bills shall be returned with their report. Bill of exceptions.

SEC. 3098. In all cases of reference, the parties, except when an infant may be a party, may agree upon a suitable person or persons, not exceeding three, and the reference shall be ordered accordingly; and if the parties do not agree, the court shall appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, who shall be persons free from exception, and having the qualifications of jurors, or the court may allow each party to select one, and itself select a third. Appointment of referees.

SEC. 3099. A judge of the court, when a case is pending, may, in vacation, upon the written consent of the parties, make an order of reference. In such case the order of reference shall be written in the written agreement to refer, and shall be filed with the clerk of the court, with the other papers in the case. Vacation appointment.

SEC. 3100. The referees must make an affidavit well and faithfully to hear and examine the case, and to make a just and true report therein according to the best of their understanding. The oath may be administered by any person authorized to administer an oath, and the affidavit shall be returned with the report. Affidavit of referees.

SEC. 3101. The referees shall be allowed such compensation for their services as the court may deem just, which shall be taxed as a part of the costs in the case. Fees of.

SEC. 3102. The order shall not be made until the case is at issue, as to these parties, whose rights are to be examined on the reference. The order may direct when the referee shall proceed to a hearing, and when he shall make his report; but in the absence of such direction, he shall do so on the morning of the tenth day after the day on which was made the order of reference, and shall file his report as soon as done; of the time thus fixed, or determined, the parties shall take notice, and non-attendance of either party within an hour of such time, shall be attended with like consequences as if the case were in court, which consequence shall be reported, as any other fact or finding of the referees. Not made till issue.

SEC. 3103. The referee must be called on by the court to accept or refuse the appointment, and his acceptance shall be entered of record; and he shall be under the control of the court, who may, on the motion of either party, make all proper orders with a view to his proceeding with all due dispatch, and the court or judge may, on his motion, on good cause shown, enlarge the time of making his report. Acceptance of referee.

SEC. 3104. Any one of such referees may issue and sign subpoenas, and other process, administer oaths, necessary for the discharge of their duties, and the full exercise of all their powers. Power of referee.

SEC. 3105. The formula of procedure which, in the court itself, regulates service, pleading proof, trial, and the preparation, progression, and method of each of these shall obtain before the referee, and in every incident of the proceeding before him the rights and responsibilities of parties, and of their attorneys, and of the referee, shall be the same as if the referee was the court, engaged in the same matter. Procedure of

The court will not hear a motion to postpone a trial pending before referees, on the ground of the absence of a witness. The referees must decide such applications; and, if any errors be committed, the court will correct, on a motion to set aside their report. Longley v. Hickman, 1 Sand., 681. See Green v. Brown, 3 Barb., 118.

Exceptions.

Exception. SEC. 3106. An exception is an objection taken to a decision of the court, or party acting as the court, on matter of law. The party objecting to the decision, must object at the time the decision is made, and at once present his bill of exceptions; but unless the court or adverse party object, he may have time to do so, not extending beyond the term.

Evidence needed. SEC. 3107. No stated form of exception is required. So much of the evidence as is necessary to explain the ruling, should be stated, and the ruling and that it was excepted to when made, unless that fact otherwise appear. If the exception is to the admission or exclusion of evidence, oral or written, the ground of the objection must be also stated, and no other shall be regarded.

A motion to strike out portions of a pleading should be put in such shape that the record which goes to the supreme court will show the objectionable portions. State, to use, &c. v. Steinman & Lanman, 18 Mo. Rep., 201.

Unless the bill of exceptions contains the evidence, an instruction based on such evidence will be presumed to be correct. Bellisime v. McCoy, 1 Mo. Rep., 227; Samuel v. Withers & Bristol, 9 Mo. Rep., 163; Laurent v. Muliken, 10 Mo. Rep., 495; Frazer v. Yeatman, ibid., 501; Walter v. Cuthcart, 18 Mo. Rep., 256.

It is not necessary in a bill of exceptions to set out all the evidence, except where the verdict is alleged to be against evidence. If the rejection of evidence, or rejection of instructions, be complained of, it is sufficient to show the evidence offered, and that the evidence properly raised the question in the instruction. Burge Resort v. Brook, 10 Mo. Rep., 531; Wallace v. Boston, ibid., 660; vide State, to use, &c. v. Fulkerson, 10 Mo. Rep., 681; Lane v. Kingsberry, 11 Mo. Rep., 402.

The party objecting to the decision of the court must state the objection, with so much of the testimony as is necessary to explain it, and no more. If there was other evidence introduced, bearing upon the point, it was the duty of the other party to see that it was stated on the record. But the court will presume that the statement made of the evidence upon which the decision was based, contained all that was necessary to explain the objection, and enable the court to explain the question before it. Easley's Executors v. M. A. Easley, 18 B. M., 94.

Record may be made.

SEC. 3108. When the decision objected to is entered on the record, and the grounds of the exception appear in the entry, or when any error appears of record, the exception may be taken by the party causing to be noted at the end of the decision, or in connection therewith, that he excepts.

Incorporation by reference is enough.

SEC. 3109. Where an instruction is marked "excepted to," such terms shall sufficiently indicate that it was excepted to at the proper time, and an exception when presented for signature, need not include therein, spread out at length, any writing filed in court, but may incorporate the same, by any unmis-takable reference thereto, and the clerk in making a transcript of the bill of exception shall write therein at length, all of such writing included therein by reference.

Mode of obtaining signature to bill.

SEC. 3110. When the decision is not entered on the record, or when the grounds of objection do not sufficiently appear in the record, the party excepting must reduce his exception to writing, and present it to the court for its signature. If the judge deems it true he shall sign it. If he does not deem it true, he shall at once state to the party offering it, what correction he desires to make thereto, if the party accept the same, or if he and the judge can agree upon any correction, the judge shall, having made the same, sign such exception, and it shall be filed and become part of the record. But if the judge and the party can not agree on such exception, the party shall announce the same to the judge, who shall thereupon deliver the exception back to the party. The party may then proceed to procure the signatures of two or more by-standers to the exception, and the court shall allow him a reasonable time therefor, and shall in no manner interfere with his endeavor to do so. If the party procure the signature of two by-standers, attesting that the exception is true, and that the court has refused to sign the same, the exception shall be filed by the clerk and shall become part of the record. The truth of such exception may be controverted and maintained by affidavits not exceeding five in number, and all affidavits impugning the exception shall be filed with the clerk on the morning of the first day after that on which the exception was filed, and those sustaining it on the next morning thereafter. Such affidavits shall also become part of the record, and the supreme court shall, on becoming satisfied that any exception is true, consider the same.

Where the judge who presided at the trial of the case, did not preside when the motion for a new trial was overruled, the bill of exceptions must be certified by the affidavits of persons present at the trial, and who recollect it sufficiently well to make affidavit thereto. Simpson, J., Cambron v. Coughtry, Miss. opin., February, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

SEC. 3111. No exception shall be regarded in the supreme court, unless the ruling has been on a material point, and the effect thereof prejudicial to the substantive rights of the party excepting.

What alone considered in supreme court.

So also if the ground of the motion be, that the verdict is contrary to evidence, 5 Iowa, 283.

New Trials.

New trial.

SEC. 3112. A new trial is a re-examination in the same court of an issue of fact, after a verdict by a jury, report of a referee, or a decision by the court. The former report, verdict, or decision, shall be vacated, and a new trial granted, on the application of the party aggrieved, for any of the following causes affecting materially the substantial rights of such party:

Ground of.

1. Irregularity in the proceedings of the court, jury referee, or prevailing party, or any order of court or referee, or abuse of discretion, by which the party was prevented from having a fair trial.

2. Misconduct of the jury or prevailing party.

3. Accident or surprise, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against.

4. Excessive damages, appearing to have been given under the influence of passion or of prejudice.

5. Error in the assessment of the amount of recovery, whether too large or too small, where the action is upon a contract or for the injury or detention of property.

6. That the verdict, report or decision, is not sustained by sufficient evidence, or is contrary to law.

7. Newly discovered evidence, material for the party applying, which he could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced at the trial.

8. Error of law occurring at the trial, excepted to by the party making the application.

A verdict and judgment obtained by a plaintiff, who shows no right to sue, can not be sustained. Petty v. Malier, 14 B. M., 247.

Where the plaintiff fails to set forth a good cause of action in his petition, and the fault is not cured by the answer, a verdict for the plaintiff can not stand; a new trial should be awarded. Fible v. Caplinger, 13 B. M., 466.

Smallness of damages.

SEC. 3113. A new trial shall not be granted on account of the smallness of damages in an action for an injury to the person or reputation, nor in any other action where the damages shall equal the actual pecuniary injury sustained.

When to be made.

SEC. 3114. The application for a new trial must be made at the term the verdict, report or decision is rendered, and except for the cause of newly discovered evidence, material for the party applying, which he could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at the trial, shall be within three days after the verdict or decision was rendered.

SEC. 3115. The application must be made by motion upon written grounds, filed at the time of making the motion, the causes enumerated in sub-divisions two, three, and seven, of section 3112, must be sustained by affidavits showing their truth, and may be controverted by affidavits. How sustained

SEC. 3116. Where the grounds for a new trial could not with reasonable diligence have been discovered before, but are discovered after the term at which the verdict, report of referee, or decision was rendered or made, the application may be made by petition, filed as in other cases, not later than the second term after the discovery; on which notice shall be served and returned as an original notice, and the defendant held to appear as in an original action. The facts stated in the petition shall be considered as denied, without answer. The case shall be tried as other cases, by ordinary proceedings, but no petition shall be filed more than one year after the final judgment was rendered. Petition for, when necessary

SEC. 3117. The costs of all new trials shall either abide the event of the suit, or be paid by the party to whom such new trial is granted, according to the order of the court, to be made at the time of granting such new trial. Cost of.

SEC. 3118. The court may determine not to grant a new trial, unless certain terms or conditions named by the court shall be agreed to by the opposite party; in the event of his agreement to which, the terms or conditions named shall be entered on the record, and no new trial shall be granted if the party refuse to agree to the terms or conditions upon which a new trial shall be awarded. Impose terms.

SEC. 3119. Upon any motion made for a new trial, or for judgment, notwithstanding the verdict, by reason of the non-averment of some material fact, the party whose pleading is thus alleged defective, may, if the court deem it necessary, file a statement of the omitted fact, which, if true, would remedy the alleged defects, and such statement shall be filed before the hearing of the motion, and shall suspend the same. If the facts thus stated would not, if proved, defeat the object of the motion, it shall be granted. If such new averments would, if proved, defeat the object of the motion, and be not admitted, they must be denied or confessed, and avoided by the opposite party, within such time as the court shall direct, unless the same are denied by legal operation, and in such case the law of pleading and of procedure, applicable to actions and pleadings of that kind shall obtain; except that the party stating the new fact shall be held the plaintiff therein, and the statement and response shall not need to be verified.* If for an omitted statement—that may be alone tried.

SEC. 3120. If the facts thus stated be admitted, or found to be true, the party stating the same shall be entitled to such judgment as he would have been entitled to, if such facts had been stated in the original pleading, and admitted as proved in the trial, together with the costs of, and occasioned by the new pleading and the proceedings therein; but if the fact be found untrue, the opposite party shall be entitled to his costs of, Same

* This section and the next are from the English Act of 1852, and are well commended. It will not encourage unskillfulness in pleading, for the costs will be a punishment; besides, the party who failed to demur is not blameless. If the real facts have been indisputably proved in the trial, the remedy should be by amendment; but if not, then this furnishes the only remedy, except that of going over the ground again, which would be much waste of time, as all of it has been settled except the one or two omitted facts. Report on Civil Code, 329.

Judgment.

SEC. 3121. Every final adjudication of the rights of the parties in an action, is a judgment and such adjudication may consist of many judgments, one of which judgments may determine for the plaintiff or defendant on the claim of either as an entirety, or when a claim consists of several parts or items, such judgment may be for either of them, on any specific part or item of such aggregate claim, and against him on the other part thereof, or a judgment may in either of these ways determine on the claims of co-parties on the same side against each other.*

For a judgment is but a judgment and it may determine all the rights involved

* All that which the court in its final adjudication pronounces, constitutes a judgment and each distinct part of such adjudication which establishes a complete right or duty is also a judgment. At common law, there could be but one judgment in an action at law, which was because of the original writ by which we are no longer fettered. We unite in many causes of action which before could not be done, because that but one judgment could be at law pronounced, and the united causes would, from the peculiarities of common law, as in trespass and debt, for instance demand dissimilar judgments. As we can pronounce dissimilar judgments in one proceed-

SEC. 3122. To avoid a re-examination of questions and issues which have been once satisfactorily settled, and a re-opening of such parts of a cause as have been satisfactorily tried, any party who succeeds in part of his cause, or in part of his causes, and fails as to part, may have the entry in such case express judgment for him for such part as he succeeds upon, and against him on the other part.*

Party may have the adjudication pronounced both for and against him.

SEC. 3123. Judgment may be rendered for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants, whether such plaintiffs or defendants be jointly or severally liable, and the court may determine the ultimate rights of the parties, on the same side as between themselves, and may grant to any party any affirmative relief which he may be entitled to, and render judgment accordingly, and may render such and so many judgments, joint, separate, and cross, as may be necessary to express the rights of the parties.

Several defendants.

ing, we can now unite such causes. Our judgment is under no obligation of following the writ, but may invest a party with any right which has been really and legally determined under the actual contestation. In a word, just whatever rights are proved in the proceeding, whether for plaintiff against defendant, or defendant against plaintiff, or plaintiff against co-plaintiff, or defendant against co-defendant, just such rights can be enounced and established in the adjudication, by one or several judgments. Report on Civil Code, p. 326.

* Owing to the fetters imposed by the old original writ, which fetters we remained bound with a long time after the writ itself as a fact had ceased to issue, a judgment at common law was composed of and constituted by the entirety of the adjudication. No part of it was properly called a judgment, nor could anything less than the entirety be objected to on appeal or otherwise. If a plaintiff sued for two horses, and met with a fair legal ruling on the one, but an unfair one on the other, he could not have a judgment for him as to the one and against him as to the other. But a judgment on the two as one demand was rendered, without any regard to the basis of it as on one or the other, and thus it was made impossible to take an appeal on the bad ruling without also abandoning all the advantage of the good one. The plaintiff had the power to withdraw one horse from the consideration of the jury, if he deemed the ruling against him likely to result in his defeat on such one. But if he did not mean to abandon the right to such claim without taking the action of the supreme court thereon, he would need to come before the court again, and probably would have the same ruling made again, after much delay. Besides, he might not be sure that the cause would be defeated by such ruling, and might desire to test the action of the jury thereon. While but a few causes of action could be united, this evil was not so considerable; but now that any number may be, the advantage of such union would be mainly defeated, unless some such provision as this be established. The English practice has for some time allowed a party in a case divisible to obtain from the jury a severance of the verdict in order to secure this end, and in the act of 1852, it was provided that when a case was "distributable," the jury should sever as here required. Let us illustrate this a little further. A. sues B. on four notes of $100 each, and asks judgment for $400. Suppose the proof clear as to all, and the legal rulings satisfactory as to three, but adverse as to the plaintiff on the fourth, suppose verdict is undistributed for $300. Now, although every body knows that all that should be reviewed is the ruling as to the fourth note, yet the common judgment does not show that, and because it does not, the plaintiff can not get that bad part reviewed without taking up all the good parts as well. If he does not take up all, he must lose his fourth one hundred dollar note. And if he does, he must incur the expense and trouble and risk of having to re-try his right on the three notes again, which, besides being a great burden and risk, is a needless repetition of what has been once done well, and an unnecessary consumption without any sensible excuse, of the time of the court. The remedy is to let the verdict finding for him so much money, say on what part of his claim such finding is founded, and let it find against him on the other part. Let judgment conform to the verdict. Now, here is a judgment on a note, to which, by the hypothesis, have been applied instructions which are deemed by the plaintiff wrong, and from this judgment let him appeal, if he desires, in such way that all the rest of the adjudication—the judgment for him for the $300—may be undisturbed and promptly enjoyed.

This principle may be as well applied to a cause of action or claim composed of many items. To replevin or detain for several distinct pieces of property. To an action for the possession of land in parcels or claimed in distinct rights, &c. Report on Civil Code, p. 327.

The general common law rule that in an action upon an alleged joint contract, the plaintiff must recover against all the defendants or be defeated in the action, has been modified by the code so that a recovery may be had against one of two joint defendants. Therefore, in an action against two persons, on a promissory note, alleged to have been made by them as co-partners in their firm name, it was proved that the note was signed by one in the alleged firm name, and that the other was then his wife; held, that the plaintiff could recover against the husband alone. Brownskill v. James, 1 Kern., 294.

The judgment adapts itself, or must be adapted by the court, to the case made by the pleadings and proofs, and the nature of the relief sought. Douglas et al. v. Howland, 11 Ind. R., 554.

An entry of judgment against the defendants will be regarded as a judgment against such only as have been served with process, or have appeared. Clark, etc. v. Finnell, etc., 16 B. M., 334.

Several were sued in trespass, process served on part only, who appeared, and answered, and judgment against them. Held, that the judgment was right, and not reversible, because no disposition was made of the case as to others not served with process. Waller, etc. v. Martin, 17 B. M., 188.

In case of matter in abatement.

SEC. 3124. Where matter in abatement is plead in connection with other matter not such, the finding of the jury or court must distinguish between matter in abatement and matter in bar, and the judgment must, if it is rendered on the matter in abatement, and not on the merits, so declare.

Special execution.

SEC. 3125. Where any other than a general execution of the common form is required, the party must state in his pleading the facts entitling him thereto, and the judgment may be entered in accordance with the finding of the court or jury thereon.

Judgment as to some, continuance as to others.

SEC. 3126. In an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment for or against one or more of them, whenever a several judgment is proper, leaving the action to proceed against the others.

It is immaterial so far as the defendant is concerned, against whom a judgment is rendered, whether the action is dismissed or continued as to the other defendants, and the objection is not available to such defendant. Simpson, J., Fleety v. Bell, Mss. Opin., Dec., 1855. Stanton's Ky. Code.

It is competent for the plaintiff to dismiss as to part of the defendants, instead of continuing, and where the defendants are joint obligors, such dismissal will not discharge such defendants from liability to contribute to those against whom judgment is rendered. Ibid.

Dismissal of action.

SEC. 3127. An action may be dismissed, and such dismissal shall be without prejudice to a future action:

1. By the plaintiff before the final submission of the case to the jury, or to the court, when the trial is by the court;
2. By the court, when the plaintiff fails to appear when the case is called for trial;
3. By the court, for want of necessary parties, when not made according to the requirement of the court;
4. By the court, on the application of some of the defendants, when there are others whom the plaintiff fails to prosecute with diligence;
5. By the court, for disobedience by the party of an order concerning the pleadings or any proceeding in the action.

Where a defect of parties is made to appear by answer, the court should require the necessary parties to be made, and if not made, dismiss the suit. Carpenter v. Miles, 17 B. M., 602.

The legal effect of an order dismissing the plaintiff's action, for his failure to appear and prosecute, is the same as if the words "without prejudice" had been added. Simpson, J., Williams v. Berry, Miss. Opin., Dec., 1853. Stanton's Ky. Code.

SEC. 3128. In all other cases upon the trial of the action, the decision must be upon the merits. Else on merits.

SEC. 3129. In any case when a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand has been filed, the defendant shall have the right of proceeding to the trial of his claim, although the plaintiff may have dismissed his action, or failed to appear. Set-off—tried.

SEC. 3130. The defendant may also, at any time before the final submission of the cause to the jury or to the court, when the trial is by the court, dismiss his set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand, without prejudice. Or dismissed.

SEC. 3131. Any party to any claim may dismiss the same in vacation and the clerk shall make the proper entry of dismissal on the record, and if the costs are not paid, may enter judgment against such party therefor, in favor of the party entitled thereto, and issue execution therefor at the order of such party; the party so dismissing shall be liable for no costs made by the other party after notice to him of such dismissal. Costs on dismissal.

SEC. 3132. Though all the defendants have been served with notice, judgment may be rendered against any of them severally, where the plaintiff would be entitled to judgments against such defendants, if the action had been against such alone. Though all served yet judgment good against part.

SEC. 3133. The relief granted to the plaintiff, if there be no answer, can not exceed that which he shall have demanded in his petition. But in any other case the court may grant him any relief consistent with the case made by the petition and embraced within the issue. Relief grantable.

If the defendant has answered, the court may grant the plaintiff any relief consistent with the case, made by the complaint, and embraced within the issue. In case no answer has been put in, the relief granted can not exceed that demanded in the complaint. In the former case the demand of relief in the case becomes immaterial. The case made by the complaint and the limits of the issue alone determine the extent of the power of the court. These expressions of the statute include the statement of the right of the plaintiff and its infringement by the defendant. Marquat v. Marquat, 2 Kern., 241.

Alternative equitable relief may be alleged and obtained now, as heretofore. For instance—a complaint for the restitution of property, as a substantive ground of relief, may allege, 1. That it was mortgaged under a usurious contract, and, 2. That the sale under the foreclosure of the mortgage was void for other reasons. Young v. Edwards, 11 How., 201.

SEC. 3134. Whenever damages are recoverable, the party may claim and recover if he shows himself entitled thereto, any amount of damages which he might have hitherto recovered for the same stated cause of action. Damages.

SEC. 3135. If only part of the claim is controverted by the pleading, judgment may, at any time, be rendered for the part not controverted. Part controverted.

SEC. 3136. When a trial by jury has been had, judgment must be entered by the clerk in conformity with the verdict, unless it is special or the court orders the case to be reserved for future argument or consideration. Judgment entered by clerk.

SEC. 3137. When the verdict is special, or when there has been a special finding on particular questions of fact, or issues, or when the court has ordered the case to be reserved, it shall order what judgment shall be entered. Unless special verdict.

- Judgment from pleadings. SEC. 3138. When by the statements of the pleadings, one party is entitled by law to judgment in his favor, judgment shall be so rendered by the court, though a verdict has been found against such party, unless the other party proceed as provided in section 3119.
- Judgment for excess. SEC. 3139. If a set-off, counter-claim or cross-demand established at the time, exceed the plaintiff's claim so established, judgment for the defendant must be given for the excess; or if it appears that the defendant is entitled to any other affirmative relief, judgment must then be given therefor.
- Orders, &c., entered of records. SEC. 3140. All judgments and orders must be entered on the record of the court and specify clearly the relief granted, or order made in the action.
- Memorandum of satisfaction. SEC. 3141. Where a judgment is set aside or satisfied by execution or otherwise, the clerk shall at once enter a memorandum thereof on the column left for that purpose in the judgment docket.
- Land case. SEC. 3142. In cases where the title to land is involved and expressly settled or determined, the clerk shall make a complete record of the whole cause, and enter it in the proper book. But in no other case need a complete entry be made except at the request of a party who will pay the expense of such record.
- An agreed judgment. SEC. 3143. Any judgment in a case pending which may be agreed upon between the parties interested therein, may at any time be entered, and if not done in open court, the judgment agreed to shall be in writing, signed, and filed with the clerk, who shall thereupon enter the same accordingly, and execution thereon may issue forthwith, unless therein otherwise agreed upon between the parties.
- No distinction of debt or damages. SEC. 3144. In all actions where the plaintiff recovers a sum of money, the amount to which he is entitled may be awarded him by the judgment generally without any distinction being therein made as to whether such sum is recovered by way of a debt or damages.
- Court jury. SEC. 3145. The provisions of this chapter relative to juries are intended to be applied to the court when acting as a jury on the trial of a cause so far as they are applicable and not incompatible with other provisions herein contained.
- Matter since judgment; motion. SEC. 3146. A defendant against whom a judgment has been rendered, or any person interested therein having some good matter of discharge which has arisen since the judgment, may, upon motion, in a summary way, have the same discharged either in whole or in part, according to the circumstances.
- Fraudulent assignment of judgment. SEC. 3147. The court shall have power, on motion, to inquire into the facts attending or connected with the assignment of a judgment, or the entry of the same to the use of any party, and to strike out such use, or to declare such assignment void, either in whole or in part, whenever such assignment or use shall be determined to be inequitable or fraudulent, or in bad faith.

Cross*, Dec., 1859; a penalty, not usury, M., 425; 1 G., 128; 3 Iowa, 244; in a penal bond the word penalty can rarely be held to mean liquidated damages, and the word liquidated damages in such bond does not fix the sum beyond question; but whether the sum named in a penal bond be penalty or liquidated damages, must be learned by consideration of all the surroundings of the parties to the instrument, 4 Iowa, 1; when an employer and employee after services rendered, settle what shall be paid therefor and when an employee sues for higher wages, he may be met by such settlement and it will define his rights—such is not accord and satisfaction—nor does the principle, that a creditor of a larger liquidated sum can not be held by an agreement, without consideration, to take, therefore, a smaller sum, apply, 4 Iowa, 219; if vendor of land with warranty, sue vendee on notes given for the price, the vendee may reply, that the vendor's title to part of said land was not good, and may deduct from the notes such sum as he reasonably paid for the outstanding title, 5 Iowa, 408; in suit to recover the penalty of a bond the plaintiff makes his inquest of damages, subject to the limitation of the penalty, 5 Iowa, 354.

Default.

Default.

SEC. 3148. If a party fail to file or amend his pleading by the time prescribed by the rules of pleading, or in the absence of rules by the time fixed by the court; or if having plead, his answer, or reply, on motion or demurrer is held insufficient or is struck out, and he fail to amend or to answer or reply further as required by the rules of or by the court, or if he withdraw his pleading without authority, or permission to replead, judgment by default may be rendered against him on demand of the adverse party, made before such pleading is filed.

Need of notice.

SEC. 3149. Where no appearance is made, default shall not be had until the court determines, from an inspection of the record, that notice has been given as required by this code.

Set aside.

SEC. 3150. Default may be set aside on such terms as the court may deem just, among which must be that of pleading issuably and instanter, but not unless an affidavit of merits be filed, and a reasonable excuse be shown for having made such default, nor unless application therefor be made at the term in which default was entered, or if entered in vacation, then on the first day of the succeeding term.

After judgment by default, it is irregular to move for leave to plead, before a motion to set aside the judgment is made. Hickman v. Barnes, 1 Mo. Rep., 110. If a party, by negligence, suffer judgment by default to go against him, it will not be set aside to admit a defense which the party might have made had he used due diligence. Weimer v. Morris, 7 Mo. Rep., 6. Something more than a mere affidavit of merits is necessary to authorize the circuit court to set aside a judgment by default. The "good cause" required to be shown, must not only be a meritorious defense, but the exercise of due diligence by the party. Barry v. Johnson & Johnson, 3 Mo. Rep., 263; Lacombe and wife v. Wash, 4 Mo. Rep., 557; Green v. Goodloe, 7 Mo. Rep., 25. A judgment by default will not be set aside on account of the mistake or negligence of defendant's attorney. No distinction is made between the negligence of the party and the negligence of the attorney. Field & Colecart v. Matson, 8 Mo. Rep., 686; Kirby & Porter v. Chadwell, 10 Mo. Rep., 392; Austin v. Nelson, 11 Mo. Rep., 192. A case where a judgment by default was set aside, Stout v. Lewis, 11 Mo. Rep., 438.

SEC. 3151. When the action is for a money demand, and the amount of the proper judgment is a mere matter of computation, the clerk shall ascertain the amount. When long accounts are to be examined, the court may refer the matter. In other cases, the court shall assess the damages, unless a jury be demanded by the party not in default. The proper amount having been ascertained by either of the above methods, judgment shall be rendered therefor. Money.

SEC. 3152. The party in default may appear at the time of the assessment and cross-examine the witnesses against him, but for no other purpose. Right of party defaulting.

SEC. 3153. (1833.) When the proceedings are of an equitable character, the court upon reading the pleadings and proofs, and hearing the testimony offered, shall render such judgment as is consistent with the rules heretofore observed in chancery cases. Equitable proceedings.

SEC. 3154. A defendant served by publication alone, shall be allowed at any time before judgment, to appear and defend the action, and upon a substantial defense being declared, time may be given, on reasonable terms, to prepare for trial. Publication notice.

SEC. 3155. When the plaintiff files with the petition, his own affidavit, stating that any of the allegations of the petition recited in said affidavit are true, and known to be so by the defendant, and that they can not be proved or shown otherwise than by his testimony or his answer, so far as affiant knows or believes; such allegations, unless denied by an answer, shall be taken as true. Plaintiff's affidavit of proof.

SEC. 3156. Before a judgment is rendered against a defendant served by publication alone, and who has not appeared, it shall be necessary that a bond be executed to such defendant by one or more sufficient sureties of the plaintiff, to the effect that if the defendant within the period prescribed by law, shall appear, make defense and set aside the judgment, the plaintiff shall restore to him the property taken under any attachment in the action, or under the judgment thereon, the restoration of which may be adjudged, and pay to the defendant such sums of money as the court may award to him. Bond needed.

The taking of the bond required by civil code, is a pre-requisite, which can not be dispensed with, unless the court retains control of the proceeds of the attached effects. Stiles, J., Pettitt v. Perry, Mss. opin., January, 1855.

The failure to execute a bond to a defendant, constructively summoned, required by section 440, is fatal to the judgment, though not to the sale made under it. Stiles, J., Bradley's heirs, etc. v. Morriss, Mss. opin., October, 1857. Stanton's Ky. Code.

If not given.

SEC. 3157. If such bond is not given, the court may enter a judgment ascertaining the rights of the parties, but shall retain control over and preserve any money or property, or the proceeds thereof which may have been attached in the action until the expiration of the period allowed to the defendant in which to appear and make defense; when if no defense is made, such money or property, or its proceeds shall be delivered according to the judgment.

Plaintiff also to be questioned.

SEC. 3158. Before rendering judgment against a defendant served by publication alone, and who has not appeared, the court shall cause the plaintiff to appear personally in court or before a referee, and answer under oath, interrogatories concerning the matters in the petition or any matters of defense thereto, including matters of set-off or counter-claim, and may order the examination to be reduced to writing, and filed with the papers of the action.

Set-off adjusted.

SEC. 3159. If upon the examination provided in the last section, any matters of set-off or counter-claim are disclosed, the same may be adjusted and allowed in the judgment.

Two years in which to open default.

SEC. 3160. When a judgment has been rendered against a defendant or defendants, served by publication only, and who do not appear, such defendants, or any one or more of them, or any person legally representing him or them, may at any time within two years after the rendition of the judgment, appear in court, and move to have the action re-tried; and security for the costs being given, they shall be admitted to make defense; and thereupon the action shall be re-tried as to such defendants, as if there had been no judgment, and upon the new trial, the court may confirm the former judgment, or may modify or set it aside, and may order the plaintiff to restore any money of such defendant paid to him under it, and yet remaining in his possession, and pay to the defendant the value of any such property which may have been taken in attachment in the action, or under the judgment, and not restored.

The provision of the code, allowing an absent defendant constructively served with process, to appear in the circuit court, at any time within five years after judgment, and move a re-trial of the action, does not preclude him from reversing an erroneous judgment against him, at any time, for errors apparent in the record. If the judgment be apparently regular, but unjustly obtained, he may pursue the other course. Payne v. Witherspoon, 14 B. M., 272.

Unless sooner served.

SEC. 3161. The plaintiff may at any time after the judgment, cause a certified copy thereof to be served on a defendant, served by publication only, whereupon the period in which such defendant is allowed to appear and have a new trial, shall be reduced to one year after such service.

Served any where.

SEC. 3162. The service of the copy of the judgment shall be, whether made within or without the state, actual and personal, by delivery of copy, and made and returned, as in case of original notice.

Title not disturbed.

SEC. 3163. The title of a purchaser in good faith to any property sold under an attachment or judgment, shall not be affected by the new trial permitted by section 3160, except the title of property obtained by the plaintiff and not bought of him in good faith by others.

Personal judgment on all personal services.

SEC. 3164. No personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant served by publication only, who has not made an appearance. But a personal judgment shall be rendered against a defendant whether he appear or not who has been served in any mode in this code provided, other than by publication, whether served within or without this state.*

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. A judgment by default admits the averment of the cause of action as alleged in the petition, and that something is due but is not a confession of any fact necessary to be proved on the assessment of damages, and the clerk can not take proof of any fact and is authorized on default only to assess where it is a mere matter of computation, 5 Iowa, 464; a complainant must show himself entitled to relief even against a defaulting defendant, 4 Iowa, 416; only on demands of mere computation can the judgment be entered on the clerk's assessment, 5 Iowa, 472; a motion may save default, 4 G., 119; so of an insufficient answer which has not been assailed as such, 1 Iowa, 528; court's discretion to vacate decree by default, 3 G., 415; nolle prosequi as to a part of the defendants, not retraxit or release of rest, 4 Iowa, 475; see case declining to observe a rule, &c., 3 G., 487; plea saves default, 2 G., 318; sufficient record, averment of default, 4 Iowa, 72; see 4 G., 343; court may assess damages, M., 99; 5 Iowa, 463; co-defendant in default on joint note bound by assessment of jury as to other co-defendant, 1 G., 388; who to assess, 3 G., 125; 1 G., 365; 2 Iowa, 30; 6 ibid., 538; 4 ibid., 72; 5 ibid., 463; and Swift et al. v. Sheldon, Dec., 1859; held that a denial of indebtedness was answer enough to prevent a default, 5 Iowa, 376; [but see sections 2941 and 2943, which preclude the use of mere legal conclusion statements]—judgment by default presumed to be only against those served when indefinitely expressed, Sweeney v. Miller, Dec., 1859; what the record should show in case of default, 6 Iowa, 1; 4 G., 324, 465, 534, 372; 2 G., 479; 1 G., 492; 3 G., 357; 6 Iowa, 331; 3 Iowa, 80; 1

* A judgment obtained in this state in order to be of value as a judgment, when taken to another state, must have been obtained on the kind of notice which was the mode when the United States' constitution provided for giving extra-state force to judgments of sister states—the common law mode. Each state has since then invented other modes of getting notice. Each state has a right to make what law she likes as to the kind of notice which must be given to a defendant. But whenever such modes are not or do not include the modes of the common law, such judgment would be of no force in a sister state, as a personal judgment. As between a personal judgment and one in rem, good sense seems to demand that a personal notice wherever made should entitle to a personal judgment, and that notice by publication only should only entitle to one in rem. Most of the reasons have ceased to exist, which formerly prevented this. The notice which can be served anywhere stands instead of the summons which was not of value out of the jurisdiction. The judgment now, too, is seldom to be enforced by personal restraint, and is chiefly satisfied with property. If the defendant has then, or shall in future have any property within the state whose laws provide for his personal service with notice without such state, he certainly, to the extent of that property which solicits and receives the protection of such state, should render to her allegiance. This principle is recognized in the judgment ad rem. But the advantage of the proposed extension is this: the judgment in rem is measured by the property in court, which may be quite insufficient to discharge the claim, and if the defendant brings more into the jurisdiction subsequently, the plaintiff has to repeat his process by another suit, and, perhaps, by many in succession, at cost and trouble, before he makes his debt, while by this plan, having got a personal notice anywhere, he has a personal judgment, good here at least, and which may be extended over any property of the defendant, then, or afterwards, within this state.

The possible service of notice on one without the jurisdiction has been the law of France, at least since the Code Napoleon, and has been the law of England, at least, since 1852, with the difference that when an English subject is served abroad, he is served with a summons as if at home, and when one not a subject is served, it is with a notice telling him that a summons has been issued. The great good sense of the codifiers of 1851, got rid of this distinction by the use of the notice in all cases. It is possible for a judgment to be personal by our system against one who has not been in fact personally served, if the same be against a resident. But if the service is made out of this state, it must be actually personal. Report on Civil Code, p. 329.

Conveyance by Commissioner.

- Commissioner to convey land. SEC. 3165. Real property may be conveyed by a commissioner appointed by the court—
1. Where, by judgment in an action, a party is ordered to convey such property to another.
  2. Where such property has been sold under a judgment or order of the court and the purchase money paid.
- Deed of. SEC. 3166. The deed of the commissioner shall so refer to the judgment, orders and proceedings authorizing the conveyance as that the same may be readily found.
- What passes. SEC. 3167. A conveyance made in pursuance of a judgment shall pass to the grantee the title of the parties ordered to convey the land.
- Same. SEC. 3168. A conveyance made in pursuance of a sale ordered by the court, shall pass to the grantee the title of all the parties to the action or proceeding.
- Approval. SEC. 3169. A conveyance by a commissioner, shall not pass any right until it has been examined and approved by the court, which approval shall be indorsed on the conveyance and recorded with it.
- Name and signature. SEC. 3170. It shall be necessary for the conveyance to be signed by the commissioner only, without affixing the names of the parties whose title is conveyed; but the names of such parties shall be recited in the body of the conveyance.
- Record of. SEC. 3171. The conveyance shall be recorded in the office in which, by law, it should have been recorded, had it been made by the parties whose title is conveyed by it.

ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT.

[Code—Chapter 109.]

- Property may be attached. SEC. 3172. (1846.) The plaintiff in a civil action may cause any property of the defendant which is not exempt from execution, to be attached at the commencement or during the progress of the proceeding, by pursuing the course hereinafter prescribed.
- Separate petition. SEC. 3173. (1847.) If it be subsequent to the commencement of the action, a separate petition must be filed, and in all cases the proceedings relative to the attachment are to be deemed independent of the ordinary proceedings and only auxiliary thereto.

SEC. 3174. The petition which asks an attachment must, in all cases, be sworn to. It must state: 1. That the defendant is a foreign corporation, or acting as such; or, 2. That he is a non-resident of the state; or, 3. That he is in some manner about to dispose of or remove his property out of the state, without leaving sufficient remaining for the payment of his debts; or, 4. That he has disposed of his property (in whole or in part) with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 5. That he has absconded, so that the ordinary process can not be served upon him; or, 6. That he is about to remove permanently out of the county, and has property therein not exempt from execution, with which he refuses to pay or to secure the debt due to the plaintiff residing in such county; or, 7. That he is about to remove permanently out of the state and refuses to pay or secure the debt of the plaintiff.

Petition must state.

SEC. 3175. (1849.) If the plaintiff's demand is founded on contract, the petition must state that something is due, and as nearly as practicable, the amount, which must be more than five dollars in order to authorize an attachment.

If on contract.

SEC. 3176. (1850.) The amount thus sworn to is intended as a guide to the sheriff, who must, as nearly as the circumstances of the case will permit, levy upon property fifty per cent. greater in value than that amount.

Sheriff levy on, how much.

SEC. 3177. (1851.) If the demand is not founded on contract, the original petition must be presented to some judge of the supreme or district court, or the judge of the county court, who shall make an allowance thereon of the amount in value of the property that may be attached. The provisions of this section apply only to cases in the district court.

If not on contract.

SEC. 3178. (1852.) The property of a debtor may be attached previous to the time when the debt becomes due, when nothing but time is wanting to fix an absolute indebtedness and when the petition in addition to that fact states: 1. That the defendant is about to dispose of his property with intent to defraud his creditors; or, 2. That he is about to remove from the state, and refuses to make any arrangements for securing the payment of the debt when it falls due, and which contemplated removal was not known to the plaintiff at the time the debt was contracted.

Before debt is due.

SEC. 3179. If the debt or demand on which the attachment suit is brought, is not due at the time of the service of the attachment, the defendant is not required to file any pleadings until the maturity of such debt or demand; but he may, in his discretion, do so, and go to trial as early as the cause is reached.

Pleading in such case.

SEC. 3180. And no final judgment shall be rendered upon such attachment, unless the party consents, as in the last section, until the debt or demand upon which it is based becomes due. But property of a perishable nature may be sold as in other attachment cases.

Judgment also.

SEC. 3181. Before any attachment can be issued as aforesaid, the plaintiff must file with the clerk a bond, for the use of the defendant, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in a penalty at least double the value of the property sought to be attached, and in no case less than two hundred and fifty dollars, in the district court, nor less than fifty dollars, if in a justice's court, conditioned that the plaintiff will pay all damages, which the defendant may sustain, by reason of the wrongful suing out of the attachment.

Bond first.

- Additional security. SEC. 3182. The defendant may, at any time before judgment, move the court for additional security on the part of the plaintiff, and if, on such motion, the court is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from this state, or is not sufficient, it may vacate the writ of attachment, and direct restitution of any property taken under it, unless in a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court, and within two clear days thereafter, sufficient security is given by the plaintiff.
- Suit on bond. SEC. 3183. In an action on such bond the plaintiff therein may recover, if he shows that the attachment was wrongfully sued out, such damages as he has thereby suffered, and if sued out maliciously as well as wrongfully, the jury may, on such trial, give vindictive damages, in their discretion, nor need he wait until the principal suit is determined before he bring suit on the bond.
- Writ may run into other county. SEC. 3184. Where suits are properly commenced in the district court of any county, the auxiliary process of attachment may run at the same time into any other county where property of the defendant can be found, and several of them may, at the option of the plaintiff, be issued at the same time or in succession and subsequently, but only those executed shall be taxed in the costs, and if more property is attached in the aggregate than the plaintiff is entitled to hold in that manner, he must abandon the surplus and pay all costs incurred in relation to it.
- Form of it. SEC. 3185. (1856.) The clerk shall issue a writ of attachment directing the sheriff of the county therein named to attach the property of the defendant to the requisite amount therein stated.
- Sheriff's duty. SEC. 3186. (1857.) The sheriff shall, in all cases, attach the amount of property directed, if sufficient, not exempt from execution, be found in his county, giving that in which the defendant has a legal and unquestionable title, a preference over that in which his title is doubtful or only equitable.
- Order of execution of writ. SEC. 3187. Where there are several writs of attachment against the same defendant, they shall be executed in the order in which they were received by the sheriff.
- Pursue property. SEC. 3188. If, after a writ of attachment has been placed in the hands of the sheriff, any property of the defendant is removed from the county, the sheriff may pursue and attach the same in an adjoining county, within twenty-four hours after the removal.
- Defendant may be examined on oath. SEC. 3189. Whenever it appears by the affidavit of the plaintiff, or by the return of the writ of attachment, that no property is known to the plaintiff, or the officer, on which the order of attachment can be executed, or not enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, and it also appears to the court, by affidavit, that the defendant has property within the state, not exempt from the writ, the defendant may be required by the court to attend before it, and give information on oath respecting his property.
- Partnership and also joint property. SEC. 3190. The sheriff shall not, on attachment against a member of a firm, take possession of partnership property: and in executing a writ of attachment upon personal property held by the defendant jointly or in common with another person, he shall not take possession of such property until there has been executed a bond to such other person, by one or more sufficient sureties of the plaintiff, to the effect, that he shall pay to such person the damages he may sustain by the wrongful suing out of the attachment, not exceeding double the amount of the plaintiff's claim, or double the value of the property, if the latter be the larger sum; but such owner or such firm may be garnished, and such property thereby reached.

SEC. 3191. If the defendant at any time before judgment causes a bond to be executed to the plaintiff, by one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court, or by the judge, to the effect that the defendant shall perform the judgment of the court, the attachment shall be discharged and restitution made of any property taken under it, or the proceeds thereof. Bond to perform judgment.

SEC. 3192. The bond mentioned in the last section, may, in vacation, be executed in the presence of the sheriff, having the writ of attachment in his hands; or after the return of the writ before the clerk, with the same effect upon the attachment, as if executed in court. The sureties in either case to be approved by the officer before whom taken. How executed.

SEC. 3193. Such bond shall be part of the record, and if judgment go against the defendant the same shall be entered against him and the sureties of said bond. Judgment on such bond.

SEC. 3194. (1859 and 1860.) Stock or interest owned by the defendant in any company, and also debts due him, or property of his held by third persons, may be attached, and the mode of attachment must be as follows: 1. By giving the defendant in the action, if found within the county, and also the person occupying, or in possession of the property, if it be in the hands of a third person, notice of such attachment. 2. If the property is capable of manual delivery, the sheriff must take it into his custody, if it can be found. 3. Stock in a company is attached by notifying the president or other head of the company, or the secretary, cashier, or other managing agent thereof, of the fact that the stock has been so attached. 4. Debts due the defendant, or property of his held by third persons, and which can not be found, or the title to which is doubtful, are attached by garnishment thereof. Mode of attachment

SEC. 3195. SEC. 3276. (1897.) A failure on the part of the officers of the corporation to comply with the requirements of the last section renders them personally responsible for the debt.

SEC. 3277. If an officer who levies, or is required to levy an execution on personal property, doubts whether it is subject to the execution, he may give the plaintiff therein, or his agent or attorney, notice that an indemnifying bond is required. Bond may, thereupon, be given, by or for the plaintiff, with one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the officer, to the effect that the obligors will indemnify him against the damages which he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale of the property, and will pay to any claimant thereof the damages he may sustain in consequence of the seizure or sale, and will warrant to any purchaser of the property, such estate or interest therein as is sold; and thereupon the officer shall proceed to subject the property to the execution, and shall return the indemnifying bond to the district court of the county, in which the levy is made.

SEC. 3278. SEC. 3279. The claimant or purchaser of any property, for the seizure or sale of which an indemnifying bond has been taken and returned by the officer, shall be barred of any action against the officer levying on the property, if the surety on the bond was good when it was taken. An execution may be issued on the judgment forthwith, on which the same indorsement shall be made as on the execution in virtue of which the property had been seized.

SEC. 3284. Upon the trial of the motion, either party may object that the property was not fairly appraised; and thereupon the jury trying the facts shall hear evidence respecting, and find the value of the property.

SEC. 3285. The giving of the bond mentioned in section 3281 shall not discharge the levy of the execution upon the property claimed. But the officer may leave it, subject to the lien of the levy, with the person in whose possession it is found, pending the proceeding on the bond; and may, in the mean time, proceed with the execution against other property of the defendant.

Stay of Execution.

Stay of execution.

SEC. 3293. When judgment has been rendered against any one for the recovery of money, he may, by procuring one or more sufficient freehold securities to enter into a recognizance acknowledging themselves security for the defendant for the payment of the judgment, together with the interest and costs accrued and to accrue, have a stay of the execution from the time of rendering judgment, as follows:

Time of stay.

If such sum and costs exceed five, but not twenty dollars, two months.

If such sum and costs exceed twenty, but not forty dollars, three months.

If such sum and costs exceed forty, but not sixty dollars, four months.

If such sum and costs exceed sixty, but not one hundred dollars, six months.

If such sum and costs exceed one hundred, but not one hundred and fifty dollars, nine months.

SEC. 3294. The provisions of the foregoing section shall not be enjoyed by any one who does not take such stay within ten days from the expiration of the term at which judgment is rendered. Surety may prevent stay.

SEC. 3301. Any surety for the stay of execution may file with the clerk an affidavit, stating that he verily believes he will be liable for the judgment, interest and costs thereon, unless execution issues immediately; and the clerk shall thereupon issue execution forthwith, unless other sufficient surety be entered before the clerk, as in other cases. Surety may determine a stay.

SEC. 3302. If other sufficient surety be entered, it shall have the force of the original surety entered before the filing of the affidavit, and shall discharge the original surety. Substituted security.

SEC. 3303. Where a stay of execution has been taken, such confessed judgment shall not release any judgment lien, by virtue of the original judgment for the amount then due. Sale postponed. SEC. 3314. When there are no bidders, or when the amount offered is grossly inadequate, or when from any cause the sale is prevented from taking place on the day fixed, the sheriff may postpone the sale for not more than three days, without being required to give any farther notice thereof; but he shall not make more than two such postponements, and such postponement shall be publicly announced when the sale should have taken place.

Excess, how disposed of. SEC. 3315. When the property sells for more than the amount required to be collected, the overplus must be paid to the defendant, unless the officer have another execution in his hands, on which said overplus may be rightfully applied.

Another execution. SEC. 3316. If the property levied on sell for less than sufficient for that purpose, the plaintiff may order out another execution, which shall be credited with the amount of the previous sale. The proceedings under this second sale, shall conform to those hereinbefore prescribed.

Levy holds good. SEC. 3317. When the property is unsold for want of bidders, the levy still holds good; and if there is sufficient time the property may again be advertised and sold under the same execution, or the execution may be returned and a venditioni exponas issued.

SEC. 3318. If the defendant is in actual occupation and possession of any part of the land levied on, the officer having the execution, shall, at least twenty days previous to such sale, serve the defendant with written notice stating that the execution is levied on said land, and mentioning the time and place of sale; and sales made without the notice required in this section, may be set aside, on motion made at the same or the next term thereafter.

Notice to defendant.

SEC. 3319. An any time before nine o'clock, A. M., of the day of sale, the defendant may deliver to the officer a plan of division of the land levied on, subscribed by him, and it shall in that case, be the duty of the officer to sell, according to said plan, so much of the land as may be necessary to satisfy the debt and costs, and no more. If no such plan is furnished, the officer may sell without any division.

Defendant may divide land and have it so sold.

SEC. 3320. When the purchaser fails to pay the money when demanded, the plaintiff or his attorney may elect to proceed against him for the amount; otherwise the sheriff shall treat the sale as a nullity, and may sell the property again on the same day, or after a postponement as above authorized.

If purchaser fail to pay his bid.

SEC. 3321. When any person has heretofore, or shall hereafter, purchase at sheriff's sale, any real estate on which the judgment upon which the execution issued was not a lien at the time of the levy, and which fact was unknown to the purchaser, the district court of the county shall set aside such sale on motion, notice having been given to the debtor, as in case of action, and a new execution may be issued to enforce the judgment, and upon the order being made to set aside the sale, the sheriff or judgment-creditor shall pay over to the purchaser the purchase money; said motion may also be made by any person interested in the real estate.

Sale vacated on motion.

SEC. 3322. (1914.) Money levied upon may be appropriated without being advertised or sold. The same may be done with bank bills, drafts, promissory notes, or other papers of the like character, if the plaintiff will receive them at their par value, as cash, or if the officer can exchange them for cash at that value.

How money appropriated.

SEC. 3323. When a judgment has been obtained against the executor of one deceased, which the personal estate of the deceased is insufficient to satisfy, the plaintiff may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the district court, wherein judgment was rendered against the executor, the heirs and devisees of real estate (if there are such,) setting forth the facts, and that there is real estate of the deceased within the state, describing its location and extent, and praying the court to award execution against the same.

Judgment v. executor.

Real property.

SEC. 3324. A notice shall thereupon be indorsed upon said petition, notifying the persons against whom the petition is filed, to appear on the first day of the term, and show cause, if any they have, why execution should not be awarded.

Notice.

SEC. 3325. The petition and notice shall be served and returned in the ordinary manner, and the same length of time shall be allowed for appearance, as in civil actions.

How served.

SEC. 3326. (1921.) At the proper time, the court shall award the execution, unless sufficient cause be shown to the contrary.

Judgment.

SEC. 3327. (1922.) The non-age of the heirs or devisees shall not be deemed such sufficient cause.

in the hands of the same officer, may be set off, the one against the other; except that the costs shall be so set off, unless the balance of cash actually collected on the larger judgment is sufficient to pay the costs of both judgments, and such costs shall be paid therefrom accordingly.

Sale absolute. SEC. 3329. (1924.) When real property has been levied upon, if the estate is less than a lease-hold, having two years of an unexpired term, the sale is absolute.

SEC. 3330. (1924.) When the estate is of a larger amount, the property is redeemable, as hereinafter prescribed.

Certificate. SEC. 3331. (1925.) At the time of the sale, the sheriff shall give to the purchaser a certificate containing a description of the property and the amount of money paid by such purchaser; and stating that unless redemption is made within one year thereafter, according to law, he or his heirs or assigns, will be entitled to a deed for the same.

Redemption.

SEC. 3332. (1926.) The defendant may redeem such property at any time within one year from the day of sale, as hereinafter provided; and will, in the mean time, be entitled to the possession of the property.

By creditors. SEC. 3333. (1927.) For the first six months after such sale, his right to redeem is exclusive, but if no redemption is made by him at the end of that time, any creditor of the defendant, whose demand is a lien upon such real estate, may redeem the same at any time within nine months from the day of sale. But a mechanic's lien, before judgment thereon, is not of such a character as to entitle the holder to redeem.

Who creditor. SEC. 3334. (1928.) Any creditor whose claim becomes a lien prior to the expiration of the time allowed by law for the redemption by creditors, may redeem. A mortgagee may thus redeem before or after the debt secured by the mortgage falls due.

By creditor. SEC. 3335. (1929.) Creditors having the right of redemption, may redeem from each other within the time above limited, and in the manner herein provided.

Terms of redemption. SEC. 3336. (1930.) The terms of redemption in all cases, will be the reimbursement of the amount paid by the then holder, added to the amount of his own lien, with interest upon the whole at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, together with costs, subject to the exception contained in the next section. But where a mortgagee, whose claim is not yet due, is the person from whom the redemption is thus to be made, a rebate of interest, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, must be made by such mortgagee on his claim.

Senior creditor. SEC. 3337. (1931.) When a senior creditor thus redeems from his junior, he is required to pay off only the amount of those liens which are paramount to his own, with the interest and costs appertaining to those liens.

Junior creditor. SEC. 3338. (1932.) But the junior creditor may in all such cases prevent a redemption by the holder of the paramount lien, by paying off that lien, or by leaving with the clerk before hand the amount necessary therefor.

Same. SEC. 3339. A junior judgment creditor may redeem from a senior judgment creditor, by paying to the party, the clerk or the sheriff, if execution has issued, the full sum due, with interest and costs, and shall become thereby vested with the title to the judgment so redeemed.

Redemption of judgment. SEC. 3340. If paid to the sheriff, he shall give to the party redeeming, a certificate that he has paid such sum for the redemption of the judgment, describing it, which being presented to the clerk, he shall enter such redemption on the judgment docket, as he shall also do if the money is paid to himself.

SEC. 3341. (1933.) Whenever a senior creditor redeems from a Junior creditor. junior creditor, the latter may in return, redeem from the former, and so on, as often as the land is taken from him by virtue of a paramount lien.

SEC. 3342. (1934.) After the expiration of nine months from the Last right. day of sale, the creditors can no longer redeem from each other, except as hereinafter provided. But the defendant may still redeem at any time before the end of the year, as aforesaid.

SEC. 3343. (1935.) Unless the defendant thus redeems, the pur- Who holds. chaser, or the creditor, who last redeemed, prior to the expiration of the nine months aforesaid, will hold the property absolutely.

SEC. 3344. (1936.) In case it is thus held by a redeeming cred- Claim extinct. itor, his lien, and the claim out of which it arose, will be held to be extinguished, unless he pursues the course pointed out in the next section.

SEC. 3345. If he is unwilling to hold the property and credit the Unless. defendant therefor, with the full amount of his lien, he must, within ten days after the nine months aforesaid, enter on the sale book the utmost amount that he is thus willing to credit on his claim.

SEC. 3346. (1938.) Any unsatisfied lien creditor, within ten days Further redemp- after the expiration of the time thus allowed to make the entry re- tions. quired in the last section, may redeem the property by paying the amount of the legal disbursements of the last holder, as hereinbefore regulated, added to the amount thus entered on the sale book, together with interests and costs.

SEC. 3347. (1939.) Such redemptioner shall also credit the defend- Same. ant with the full amount of his lien, unless within ten days after re- deem- ing as aforesaid, he likewise makes a like entry on the sale book, in which case any unsatisfied lien creditor, may in like manner redeem within ten days as aforesaid, and so on until there are no more unsatisfied liens, or until the expiration of the year for redemption, the defendant having the final privilege of redeeming from the last redemp- tion at the end of the year.

SEC. 3348. (1940.) The mode of making the redemption is by Mode of redem- paying the money into the clerk's office for the use of the persons ing. thereto entitled. The person so redeeming, if not defendant in execu- tion, must also file his affidavit, or that of his agent or attorney, stating as nearly as practicable, the amount still unpaid and due on his own claim.

SEC. 3349. (1941.) The clerk shall thereupon give him a receipt Same. for the money, stating the purpose for which it was paid. He must also, at the same time, enter in the sale book a minute of such redemp- tion, of the amount paid, and the amount of the lien of the last redemp- tion, as sworn to by him.

SEC. 3350. (1942.) A creditor redeeming as above contemplated, Entitled to as- is entitled to receive an assignment of the certificate issued by the sher- signments. iff, to the original purchaser, as hereinbefore directed.

- Transferable. SEC. 3353. (1945.) The rights of a defendant in relation to redemption, are transferrable, and the assignee has the like power to redeem.
- Deed to whom. SEC. 3354. (1946.) If the defendant or his assignee fail to redeem, the sheriff must, at the end of the year, execute a deed to the person who is entitled to the certificate as hereinbefore provided, or to his assignee. If the person entitled be dead, the deed shall be made to his heirs, but the property will be subject to the payment of the debts of the deceased, in the same manner, as if acquired during his lifetime.
- When to heirs.
- Deed recorded. SEC. 3355. (1947.) The purchaser of real estate at a sale on execution, need not place any evidence of his purchase upon record, until twenty days after the expiration of the full time of redemption. Up to that time the publicity of the proceedings is constructive notice of the rights of the purchaser, but no longer.
- Deeds imply regularity. SEC. 3356. (1948.) Deeds executed by a sheriff in pursuance of such sales, are presumptive evidence of the regularity of all previous proceedings, in the case, and may be given in evidence without preliminary proof.
- Trespass. SEC. 3357. (1949.) When real estate has been sold on execution, the purchaser thereof, or any person who has succeeded to his interest, may, after his estate becomes absolute, recover damages for any injury to the property committed after the sale and before possession is delivered under the conveyance.
- "Defendant."
"Plaintiff." SEC. 3358. (1951.) The term "defendant" as herein used, is intended to designate the party against whom, and the term "plaintiff" the party in favor of whom, any execution has issued.
- Justices' proceedings. SEC. 3359. (1952.) The provisions of this chapter are intended to embrace proceedings in justices' courts, so far as they are applicable; and the terms "sheriff," and "clerk," are accordingly to be understood, as qualified in this chapter, in the same manner, in this respect, as in that relative to attachment.

PROCEEDINGS SUPPLEMENTAL TO EXECUTION.*

SECTION 3375. When an execution against the property of a judgment debtor, or one of several debtors in the same judgment has been issued from the district or supreme court to the sheriff of the county where such debtor resides, or if he do not reside in the state, to the sheriff of the county where the judgment was rendered, or a transcript of a justices' judgment has been filed, and execution issued thereon, is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, the owner of the judgment is entitled to an order for the appearance and examination of such debtor.

* This proceeding is common to all the new Codes of the new system, except Kentucky, which state having like ourselves an equitable proceeding dissimilar from that at law as to proof and trial yet retains the creditor's bill. As our procedure may be either equitable or ordinary, even as to a chancery right, we have both modes as in this and the next chapter.

The remedy where a creditor's bill was proper previous to the code, is still preserved in the form of an action. The judgment creditor may commence the action for his own benefit, or in behalf of himself and all others in the same situation with himself who may choose to come in and contribute to the expenses of the suit. The rule has not been changed by the code. Hammond v. Hudson River Iron Co., 20 Barb., 378.

An execution may be returned in less than sixty days, and whenever returned unsatisfied, the creditor may proceed under this chapter without regard to the period it was in the sheriff's hands. The execution must be actually returned by the sheriff before the supplementary proceeding can be commenced. Engle v. Ronneau, 2 Sand., 678.

The code requires that "the execution shall be returnable within sixty days after its receipt by the officer," &c. Upon the proper return of the execution therefore, by the sheriff, at any time within the sixty days, proceedings supplementary to execution (in the nature of a creditor's bill,) may be commenced. Livingston & Mitchell v. Cleveland, 5 How., 396.

Same.

SEC. 3376. (1954.) The like order may be obtained at any time after the issuing of an execution upon proof, by the affidavit of the party or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court or officer who is to grant the same, that any judgment debtor has property which he unjustly refuses to apply towards the satisfaction of the judgment.

By whom order granted.

SEC. 3377. (1955.) Such order may be made by the court in which the judgment was rendered, or by any judge thereof in vacation, or by county court of the county to which the execution has been issued as aforesaid, or by the judge thereof. And the debtor may be required to appear and answer before either of such courts or officers, or before a referee appointed by the court or judge who issued the order.

Defendant questioned.

SEC. 3378. The debtor on his appearance, may be interrogated in relation to any fact calculated to show the amount of his property or the disposition which has been made of it, or any other matter pertaining to the purpose for which the examination is permitted to be made. And the interrogatories and answers shall be reduced to writing and preserved by the court or officer before whom they are taken. All examinations and answers under this chapter shall be on oath, and no person shall, on examination, pursuant to this chapter, be excused from answering any question on the ground that his examination will tend to convict him of a fraud, but his answers shall not be used as evidence against him in a prosecution for such fraud.

The proceeding under this chapter is regarded as a substitute for the creditor's bill, under our former system, and the rules settled, in reference to proceedings under these bills may be regarded as controlling when not essentially altered by the code or the practice under the code. Orr's case, 2 Abb., 458; see Griffin v. Dominguez, 2 Duer, 658.

The object of the examination is, to ascertain whether the debtor has any property subject to, or exempt from execution which ought to be applied to the plaintiff's claim. He is required to appear and answer "concerning his property," that is the property belonging to him at the time of the examination, or bound by the judgment; and every question tending to throw light upon that subject is pertinent. It is not sufficient that the defendant answer generally that he has no property; the plaintiff may prosecute his inquiries, notwithstanding such an answer. If the defendant is in possession of any property, the plaintiff may ask when and where and how he obtained the possession, and on what terms he now holds it. If the defendant is not in possession of any property, he may be asked, whether he had any or was interested in any, a short time previous to the judgment, and what has become of it; and if he answer that he has sold it absolutely, he may be asked what was the consideration of the sale, and what has become of the proceeds, so as to ascertain whether any portion of them is in his hands, or due to him.

But if it appear that he has not in his possession, nor under his control, any portion of such proceeds, the inquiry respecting such property or its proceeds can go no further. There is in such case nothing for the creditor to receive. If the answers to the questions show any doubts as to the bona fides of the sale, the examination may be thorough on that point; as a fraudulent transfer of property may not afford any protection against a creditor. Green v. Hicks, 1 Barb. Chan. Rep., 316, 317.

SEC. 3379. Witnesses may be required by the order of the court or judge, or by subpoena from the referee to appear and testify upon any proceedings under this chapter in the same manner as upon the trial of an issue. Witness brought.

SEC. 3380. If any property, rights or credits, subject to execution, are thus ascertained, an execution may be issued, and they may be levied upon accordingly. The court or judge may order any property of the judgment debtor not exempt by law, in the hands either of himself or any other person or corporation, or due to the judgment debtor, to be delivered up, or in any other mode applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment. If property is found, how applied.

SEC. 3381. The court or judge, may also, by order, appoint the sheriff of the proper county, or other suitable person, a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor, and may also, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of the property of the judgment debtor, not exempt by law, or may forbid any interference therewith. Receiver.

Where it appears from the examination that it is doubtful whether the person who is alleged to owe the judgment debtor, or another individual not under examination, is really indebted to him, and as a conclusion of law upon the facts uncertain, a receiver should be appointed to enable the creditor, or the party entitled to the right, to pursue the claim by action. Corning v. Tooker, 5 How., 16.

SEC. 3382. If it shall appear that the judgment debtor has any equitable interest in real estate in the county in which proceedings are had, as mortgagor, mortgagee or otherwise, and the interest of said debtor can be ascertained as between himself and the person or persons holding the legal estate, or the person or persons having any lien on, or any interest in the same, without controversy as to the interest of such person or persons, holding such legal estate or interest therein, or lien on the same, the receiver may be ordered to sell and convey such real estate, or the debtor's equitable interest therein. Such sale shall be conducted in all respects in the same manner as is provided by this code for the sale of real estate upon execution. Equitable interest.

SEC. 3383. If the sheriff shall be appointed receiver, he and his sureties shall be liable on his official bond, for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver. Liability of sheriff as receiver.

SEC. 3384. The judge or referee acting under the provisions of this chapter, shall have power to continue his proceedings from time to time, until they shall be completed. Continuance.

SEC. 3385. The judge may, in his discretion, order a reference to a referee appointed by him to report the evidence, or the facts. Reference.

SEC. 3386. Should the judgment debtor fail to appear after being personally served with notice to that effect, or should he fail to make full answers to all proper interrogatories thus propounded to him, he will be guilty of contempt, and may be arrested and imprisoned until he complies with the requirements of the law in this respect. And if any person, party or witness disobey an order of the court or judge, or Defendant failing to appear.

referee, duly served, such persons, party or witness may be punished as for a contempt.

Service of order. SEC. 3387. The order mentioned herein shall be in writing and signed by the court or judge or referee, making the same, and shall be served as an original notice in other cases.

Compensation. SEC. 3388. Sheriffs, referees, receivers and witnesses, shall receive such compensation as is allowed for like services in other cases, to be taxed as costs in the case, and the collection thereof from such party, or parties as ought to pay the same shall be enforced by an order.

Warrant if he is about to leave state. SEC. 3389. (1959.) Upon proof to the satisfaction of the court, or officer authorized to grant the order aforesaid, that there is danger that the defendant will leave the state, or that he will conceal himself, the said court or officer, instead of the order aforesaid, may issue a warrant for the arrest of the debtor, and for bringing him forthwith before the court or officer authorized to take his examination as hereinbefore provided. After being thus brought before the said court or officer, he may be examined in the same manner and with the like effect as is above provided.

Defendant may give bond and be discharged, & c. SEC. 3390. Upon being brought before the court or officer, he may enter into an undertaking in such sum as the court or officer shall prescribe, with one or more sureties, that he will attend from time to time, for examination, before the court or officer, as shall be directed, and will not, in the mean time, dispose of his property, or any part thereof, in default whereof he shall continue under arrest, and may be committed to jail on the warrant of such court or officer, from time to time, for safe keeping, until the examination shall be concluded.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. In a creditor's bill the objection that administrator is not made a party may be made on the hearing, 3 Iowa, 365; and the bill will then be remanded for amendment, ibid.; such bill may be against the surviving partners, or the representatives of the deceased partners, ibid.; a creditor's bill lies on a dormant judgment, ibid.; as to evidence of collusion or of fraud between grantor and grantees, see 4 Iowa, 524; the execution need not to have been first returned unsatisfied, 3 Iowa, 365, 383, 543.

EQUITABLE ACTIONS SUPPLEMENTAL TO EXECUTION.

Creditor's bill. SECTION 3391. After an execution directed to the sheriff of the county in which the judgment was rendered, or to the sheriff of the county of the defendant's residence, is returned by the proper officer, either as to the whole or part thereof, in substance, no property found to satisfy the same, the owner of the judgment may, in his discretion, institute an action by equitable proceedings in the court from which the execution issued, or in any court having jurisdiction of the cause, for the discovery of any money, chose in action, equitable or legal interest, or any other property to which the defendant is entitled, and for subjecting the same to the satisfaction of the judgment; and in such actions, persons indebted to the defendant in the execution, or holding the money or property in which he has an interest, or holding the evidences or securities for the same, may be also made defendants.

In a proceeding under this section, it is necessary to state, or to charge that a third person is indebted to the defendant in the execution, in order to take judgment by confession. It is not sufficient to state that plaintiff is informed that such is the case. Crenshaw, C. J., Lexington & Danville R. R. Co. v. Morrissey, Mss. Opin., Dec., 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.

A judgment creditor having an execution returned, "no property found," may institute equitable proceedings in the court from whence execution issued, or in the court of any county in which defendant resides or is summoned, and have any interest in land belonging to him, situated in any county, subjected to the payment of his judgment at law. Nixon v. Jack & Co., 16 B. M., 181.

P. recovers a judgment against M., and has execution issued, and a return of "no property found." In the mean time the judgment is reversed by the court of appeals, and a different judgment rendered. P. sued out an attachment, alleging the return of "no property" upon the first judgment, and the fact that M. was insolvent. Held, not to authorize an attachment under this section. Marshall, C. J., McGuire v. Parsons, Mss. Opin., June, 1855. Stanton's Ky. Code.

SEC. 3392. The answers of all defendants shall be verified by their own oath, and not by that of an agent or attorney, and the court shall enforce full and explicit discoveries in such answers by process of contempt. Verified by the party himself.

SEC. 3393. In the action mentioned in the preceding sections, the plaintiff may have an attachment against the property of the defendant in the execution, similar to the general attachments provided for in the chapter 124, on attachment, without either the affidavit or bond therein required. Have general attachment without bond

SEC. 3394. A lien shall in this case be created on the property of defendant, by the levy of the attachment and service of the notice, and copy of petition on the person holding or controlling such property. Lien obtained.

SEC. 3395. The court shall enforce the surrender of the money, or securities therefor, or of any other property of the defendant in the execution, which may be discovered in the action, and for this purpose may commit to jail any defendant or garnishee, failing or refusing to make such surrender, until it shall be done, or the court is satisfied that it is out of his power to do so. Court enforce surrender.

SEC. 3396. The use of the appliances of this equitable action is no waiver of the use of the remedy of the chapter next preceding. Nor is the use of the appliances of that chapter a waiver of the right to also use the appliances of this, but any party entitled to one may use either or both as he may deem it desirable. Right to use either the remedy of this or of last chapter.

JUDGMENT BY CONFESSION.

SECTION 3397. (1837.) A judgment by confession, without action, may be entered by the clerk of the district court, or by a justice of the peace, if within his jurisdiction, in the manner hereinafter prescribed. When allowed.

A judgment by confession, without action, can only be entered against the person who signs the confession. One of two partners or joint debtors can not confess judgment for both. Such judgment is probably valid as against the party signing it, but is void as against the other defendant, and can not be enforced against the joint property. In effect, the party confessing such a judgment makes the debt by his confession his individual debt. Where, after the confession of such a judgment by one partner, a suit was commenced, and judgment regularly obtained against both on the same cause of action, and also upon a promissory note not included in the former judgment; held, on a question of priority of liens, that other judgment creditors could not avail themselves of the objections that a former recovery had been obtained and that the said note did not belong to the plaintiff. Had the judgment been obtained by fraud or collusion, it would have been competent for them to have avoided it on that ground. Stantenburgh v. Vendenburgh, 7 How., 229.

For what.

SEC. 3398. (1838.) Such confession can be only for money due, or to become due, or to secure a person against contingent liabilities on behalf of the defendant, and must be for a specified sum.

Proceeding and statement of facts.

SEC. 3399. (1839.) A statement in writing must be made and signed by the defendant, and verified by his oath to the following effect, and filed with the clerk or justice of the peace:

1. If for money due, or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which the indebtedness arose, and that the sum confessed therefor is justly due, or to become due, as the case may be.

2. If for the purpose of securing the plaintiff against a contingent liability, it must state concisely the facts constituting such liability, and must show that the sum confessed therefor does not exceed the same.

A statement upon which to enter a judgment without action under the code, is not sufficient where it merely states and sets out a promissory note, executed by the defendant to the plaintiff as the consideration of the indebtedness. The facts out of which the indebtedness evidenced by the note arose, should be concisely stated. The supreme court may set aside a judgment entered therein without action, for a defect in the statement upon which it is entered, upon the application of a junior judgment creditor. Chappell v. Chappell, 2 Kern., 215. A confession of judgment which stated that the indebtedness was a promissory note made by the defendant to the order of the plaintiff, for $2,146.33, dated Dec. 11, 1854, payable four months after date, making it due April 17, 1855, held insufficient. A promissory note is a mere evidence of debt, and contains no reference whatever to the facts out of which the indebtedness arose. The court allowed the judgment in this case to be amended, but so as not to interfere with the rights of any judgment creditor which might have, in the mean time, attached. Johnston v. Fellerman, 13 How., 21.

Entry of record.

SEC. 3400. If in the district court, the clerk shall thereupon make an entry of judgment in his court record, for the amount thus confessed, and costs, and shall issue execution thereon, as in other cases.

In justice court.

SEC. 3401. (1841.) If in a justice's court, the justice shall thereupon enter a judgment on his docket, with costs, and issue execution as above directed. If a transcript of such judgment be filed with the clerk of the district court, a copy of the statement must be filed with it.

On past authority.

SEC. 3402. (1842.) Upon an authority given before this statute takes effect, and which was valid when given, judgment may be rendered up, as herein mentioned, or as nearly so as the circumstances of the case will permit.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. The statute must be strictly complied with in confession, 7 Iowa, 136; Kenedy v. Lowe, Dec., 1859; when read and approved by the court, it has all the virtue of a judgment, 7 ibid., 136; [what is the sense of requiring it to be approved by the court? it defeats half the value of the "judgment by confession;" indeed it ceases to be a judgment by confession when the court's approval is needed;] what statement necessary in such judgment, Kennedy v. Lowe, Dec., 1859; may be appealed from, 7 Iowa, 136; M., 363, but usury will be no error, Troxel v. Clark, June, 1859. See 2 G., 492; 3 G., 223.

CHAPTER 129.

OFFER TO CONFESS.

SECTION 3403. Before an action for the recovery of money is brought against any person, he may go into the court of the county of his residence, or of that in which the person having the cause of action resides, which would have jurisdiction of the action, or before the clerk of either of such courts in his office, and offer to confess judgment in favor of such person for a specified sum on such cause of action as provided for in the foregoing chapter. Whereupon, if such person, having had the same timely notice as if he were defendant in an action, that the offer would be made, of its amount and of the time and place of making it, does not attend to accept the confession, or attending, refuses to accept it, and should afterwards commence an action upon such cause, and not recover more than the amount so offered to be confessed, he shall pay all the costs of the action; and on the trial thereof, the offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action or amount to which the plaintiff is entitled, nor be given in evidence.

Party expecting to be sued may give notice of an offer to confess to be made in court.

SEC. 3404. After an action for the recovery of money is brought, the defendant may offer in court to confess judgment, for part of the amount claimed or part of the causes involved in the action. Whereupon, if the plaintiff being present, refuses to accept such confession of judgment, in full of his demands against the defendant in the action, or having had two clear days notice that the offer would be made, of its amount, and of the time of making it, fails to attend, and on the trial does not recover more than was so offered to be confessed, such plaintiff shall pay all the costs of the defendant, incurred after the offer. The offer shall not be deemed to be an admission of the cause of action, or amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, nor be given in evidence upon the trial.

After suit he may in court offer to confess.

Where an offer to confess is made in writing, and accepted before a justice of the peace, and an appeal in the cause is subsequently taken to the circuit court to which the papers, including the offer, are transmitted, the offer stands valid in the circuit court, as having been made before the justice. Lewis v. Morrison, 10 Ind. R., 394.

For forms of offers to confess judgment, see Doyle v. Kiser, 8 Ind. R., 396; Lewis v. Morrison, supra, 11 Ind. R., 440. In the latter case a doubt is expressed whether an offer once made and accepted can be withdrawn. Perkins' Practice.

OFFER TO COMPROMISE.

Offer to allow judgment for a fixed sum.

SECTION 3405. The defendant in an action for the recovery of money only, may at any time after service of notice, and before the trial, serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney, an offer in writing, to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum of money, or to the effect therein specified with costs. If the plaintiff accept the offer and give notice thereof to the defendant or his attorney, within five days after the offer is made, the offer and an affidavit that the notice of acceptance was delivered in the time limited, may be filed by the plaintiff, or the defendant may file the acceptance with a copy of the offer verified by affidavit; and in either case, the offer and acceptance shall be entered upon record, and judgment shall be rendered by the court accordingly. If the notice of acceptance is not given in the period limited, the offer shall be deemed withdrawn, and shall not be given in evidence nor mentioned on the trial. If the plaintiff fails to obtain judgment for more than was offered by the defendant, he can not recover costs, but shall pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer.

Results.

Same conditioned on failure of defense.

SEC. 3406. In an action for the recovery of money only, the defendant having answered, may serve upon the plaintiff or his attorney, an offer in writing, that if he fails in his defense, the amount of the recovery shall be assessed as a specified sum. If the plaintiff accepts the offer and gives notice thereof to the defendant, or his attorney, within five clear days after it was served, or within two clear days if served in term time, and the defendant fails in his defense, the judgment shall be for the amount so agreed upon. If the plaintiff does not so accept the offer he shall prove the amount to be recovered, as if the offer had not been made, the offer shall not be given in evidence or mentioned on the trial. And if the amount recovered by the plaintiff does not exceed the sum mentioned in the offer, the defendant shall recover his costs incurred in the defense, in respect to the question of amount to be taxed under the direction of the court.

Results.

No cause for continuance.

SEC. 3407. The making of any offer pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, shall not be a cause for a continuance of an action or a postponement of a trial.

CHAPTER 131.

SUBMITTING CONTROVERSIES WITHOUT ACTION, OR IN ACTION.

Agreed statement submitted.

SECTION 3408. Parties to a question in difference which might be the subject of a civil action, may without action present an agreed statement of the facts thereof to any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter.

Controversy real.

SEC. 3409. (1844.) It must be shown by affidavit, that the controversy is real, and that the proceeding is in good faith to determine the rights of the parties thereto.

SEC. 3410. The court shall thereupon hear and determine the case, and render judgment thereon, as if an action were pending. Render judgment as in a case.

When a controversy is submitted under this section, the court can only determine the questions of law that arise upon the facts agreed upon, and has no power to send the cause to a jury for determination of questions of fact, that upon the face of the submission may appear to be doubtful. The court must itself construe the submission. The court itself must settle the matter. Wilson v. Commercial Mutual Ins. Co., 3 Duer, 455.

SEC. 3411. The case, the submission, and the judgment, shall constitute the record. What shall make the record.

SEC. 3412. The judgment shall be with costs, and it may be enforced, and shall be subject to review in the same manner, as if it had been rendered in an action, unless otherwise provided for in the submission.

SEC. 3413. The same may be also done, at any time before trial in any action then pending, subject to the same requirements, and attended by the same results as in a case without action, and such submission of a stated case shall be an abandonment by both parties of all pleadings filed in such cause, and the cause shall stand on the agreed case alone, which must provide also for any lien had by any attachment, and for any property in the custody of the law, else such lien and such legal custody will be held waived. A pending cause may be submitted on agreed facts.

SEC. 3414. The parties may, if they think fit, enter into an agreement, in writing, that upon the judgment of the court being given in the affirmative or negative of the question or the questions of law, raised by such special case, particular property therein described, or a sum of money fixed by the parties, or to be ascertained by the court, or in such manner as the court may direct it, shall be delivered to and vested in one of the parties by the other, or in case of money shall be paid by one of such parties to the other of them, either with or without costs of the action and the judgment of the court may be entered for the transfer and delivery of such property, or for such sum as shall be so agreed, or ascertained with or without costs, as the case may be. An agreement as to damage to be paid by party if facts be found against him.

SEC. 3415. In case no agreement shall be entered into as to the costs of such action, the same shall follow the event, and be recovered by the successful party. Costs in such case.

DEPOSITS.

[Code—Chapter 132.]

SECTION 3416. When it is admitted by the pleading or examination of a party, that he has in his possession, or under his control, any money or property capable of delivery, which is in any degree the subject of litigation, and which is held by him as trustee for another party, the court, or judge thereof, may order the same to be deposited in the office of the clerk, or delivered to such party, with or without security, subject to the farther direction of the court. Court or judge may order deposit.

SEC. 3417. Whenever, in the exercise of its authority, a court or judge has ordered the deposit or delivery of money or other property, And compel obedience.

and the order is disobeyed, the court, besides punishing the disobedience, may make an order requiring the sheriff to take the money or property, and deposit or deliver it in conformity with the directions of the court or judge.

Sheriff's power.

SEC. 3418. (2492.) The sheriff has the same power in such cases, as when acting by authority of a writ of replevin.

CHAPTER 133.

RECEIVERS.

Court or judge in vacation may appoint receiver.

SECTION 3419. On the petition of either party to a civil action or proceeding, therein he shows that he has a probable right to any of the property which is the subject of the controversy, and that such property, or its rents and profits, are in danger of being lost or materially injured or impaired, the court, or in vacation, the judge thereof, if satisfied that the interests of one or both the parties will be thereby promoted, and the substantial rights of neither unduly infringed upon, may appoint a receiver to take charge of and control such property under its direction, during the pendency of the action, and may order and coerce the delivery of it to him.

If after the dissolution of a partnership either of the partners makes any use of the partnership property, inconsistent with the winding up of its affairs, it is a fraud on the co-partners, and on the creditors of the partnership, and a court of equity will interfere and take the property out of the hands of such partner, by the appointment of a receiver. Gortner v. The Trustees of the Village of Canajoharie, 2 Barb., 625.

Upon a bill filed by one of the partners to close up a partnership concern, it is a matter of course to appoint a receiver, if the parties can not agree among themselves as to the disposition and control of the property. And when it is necessary to preserve the good will of the business the receiver may be directed to carry it on, under the direction of the court until a sale can be effected. Martin v. Van Schaick, 1 Paige, 479. When either partner has a right to dissolve the partnership and the articles of copartnership do not provide for the settlement of the concern, upon a complaint, filed for that purpose, by one of the parties, the appointment of a receiver is a matter of course. Law v. Ford, 2 Paige, 310; see Herm v. Walsh, 2 Edwd. Ch., 129. The principle upon which a receiver of partnership property is appointed, is with the view of winding up the concerns of the partnership, and dividing the surplus, and not for the purpose of carrying on the partnership business. Hence, as a general rule, a receiver is not appointed except in cases where the plaintiff will be entitled to a decree of dissolution. Jackson v. DeForest, 14 How., 81; see Garretson v. Weaver, 3 Edwd. Ch., 385.

Oath and bond of receiver.

SEC. 3420. Before entering upon the discharge of his duties, he must be sworn faithfully to discharge his trust to the best of his ability, and must also file with the clerk a bond with sureties, to be by him approved, in a penalty to be fixed by the court or judge, and conditioned to the faithful discharge of his duties, and that he will obey the orders of the court in respect thereto.

Receiver's power.

SEC. 3421. (1658.) Subject to the control of the court, a receiver has power to bring and to defend actions, to take and keep possession of property, to collect debts, to receive the rents and profits of real property, and generally, to do such acts in respect to the property committed to him, as the court may authorize.

A receiver is an officer of the court who appoints him. Booth v. Clarke, 17 How., U. S. Rep., 322. And the court will give such directions to a receiver, on the application of one not a party to the suit, as may be necessary to protect his rights. Vincent v. Parker, 7 Paige, 65. It is a contempt to attempt to deprive a receiver of property of which he is rightfully in possession. Noe v. Gibson, 7 Paige, 513; Albany City Bank v. Schermerhorn, 3 Paige, 372; Parker v. Browning, 8 Paige, 388.

A receiver is not to be discharged on his own application when his duties are not ended, unless he show good cause, especially when it might affect parties. His mere desire, though coupled with a statement of complication of accounts, and the necessity of losing much time in the business of his receivership, is not sufficient. Bears v. Chelsea Bank, 4 Edw. Ch., 77.

A receiver does not merely stand in the place of the debtor, but represents the creditors and may therefore maintain an action to set aside an assignment of real and personal property, made by the debtor in fraud of his creditors. Porter v. Williams, 5 Seld., 142; S. C. 12 How., 107; see Wilson v. Allen, 6 Barb., 544; Gillett v. Moody, 3 Com., 479; Talmadge v. Pell, 3 Seld., 328.

SUMMARY PROCEEDINGS.

SECTION 3422. Judgments or final orders may be obtained, on motion, by sureties against their principals, by sureties against their co-sureties, for the recovery of money due them, on account of payments made by them as such; by clients against attorneys; plaintiffs in execution against sheriffs, constables and other officers, for the receiving of money or property collected for them, and damages, and in all other cases specially authorized by statute.

Judgments on motion in certain cases.

SEC. 3423. Notice of such motion shall be served on the party against whom the judgment or order is sought, at least ten days before the motion is made.

Ten days' notice thereof served.

SEC. 3424. The notice shall state, in plain and ordinary language, the nature and grounds of the motion, and the day on which it will be made.

Form of notice.

SEC. 3425. Unless the motion is made and filed with the case, on or before the day named in the notice, it shall be considered as abandoned.

Motion when abandoned.

SEC. 3426. The motion shall be heard and determined without written pleadings, and judgment given according to law and the rules of equity.

No written pleadings.

The proceedings upon a motion for judgment on a bond to suspend the sale of personal property, levied upon by execution, are within that class of remedies denominated special or summary, and it is eminently property that no written pleadings should be required, or even allowed, in such cases. Watson v. Gabby, 18 B. M., 662. Stanton's Ky. Code.

CHAPTER 135.

MOTIONS AND ORDERS.

- What is an order. SEC. 3427. Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, and not included in a judgment, is an order.
- What a motion. SEC. 3428. A motion is a written application for an order addressed to the court, or to a judge, in vacation, by any party to a suit or proceeding, or by any one interested therein.
- What notice to be given of a motion. SEC. 3429. When a party is in court he shall, without service of notice, take notice of any motion made during term on the filing of the same, and notice thereof being entered on the notice book. The same shall be true of a party constructively in court, who has not in fact appeared as to any motion made, either in term or during vacation; but where a party has in fact appeared, notice of any motion made in vacation, and copy of motion, shall be served on him or his attorney.
- Qualities of a written notice of motion. SEC. 3430. When notice of a motion is required to be served, it must be in writing, and shall state the names of the parties to the action or proceeding in which it is made, the name of the court or judge before whom it is to be made, the place where, and the day on which it will be heard, and if affidavits are to be used on the hearing, the notice shall state that fact, and it shall be served ten days before hearing, unless the court or judge direct shorter notice.
- By whom to be served. SEC. 3431. Notices and copies of motions mentioned in this chapter, may be served by any one who would be authorized to serve an original notice, and may also be served by the attorney of the party making the motion.
- Upon whom. SEC. 3432. The service shall be on each of the parties adverse to the motion, if more than one, or on an attorney of record, of such party.
- May be personal or by residence. SEC. 3433. The service may be personal on such party or attorney, or may be left at the usual place of residence of the party, in the same manner as is provided for the service of the original notice in civil actions; or it may be served on the attorney, by being left at his office with any person having the charge thereof.
- Or as the original notice may be. SEC. 3434. In cases unprovided for specially, the notice and copy may, in order to affect the party adverse, be served on the same persons as those on whom might be served the original notice in the case.
- Duty of officer. SEC. 3435. It shall be the duty of any officer authorized to serve any notice and copy, and when such notice and copy shall be delivered to him for service within his county, to serve at once the same, and make prompt return to the party who delivered the same to him, and a failure to do so shall be punished as a disobedience of the process of the court.
- Return. SEC. 3436. The return of proof of service must state the manner in which it was made.
- Court may define mode of its service. SEC. 3437. When the party has no known place of abode in this state, and no attorney in the county where the action is pending, or where the parties, plaintiffs or defendants, are numerous, the court or judge may direct the mode of serving notices and copies, and to what persons they shall be given.
- Several objects included in same motion. SEC. 3438. Several objects may be included in the same motion, if they all grow out of, or are connected with the action or proceeding in which it is made.
- Orders made by judge filed. SEC. 3439. Orders made out of court shall forthwith be filed with and entered by the clerk in the journal of the court, in the same manner as orders made in the term.

SEC. 3440. Testimony to sustain or resist a motion, may be presented in the form of affidavits, if the same does not appear otherwise. But on the hearing of any motion, it shall be lawful for the court or judge, at his discretion, and upon such terms as he may think reasonable, from time to time, to order such document as he may think fit, to be produced, and such witnesses as he may think necessary, to appear, and be examined, viva voce, either before such court or judge.

How proof on motion may be taken.

SEC. 3441. The motions of chapter 122 shall not be affected by the provisions of this chapter, and all motions made in term to dissolve an attachment in whole or part, or in any way regarding security for costs, or to dismiss a cause for any irregularity, or to change venue, or to continue a cause, or to open up a default, shall be served by mere notice, on the notice book, and may be heard on the morning after that on which notice thereof is served, and sooner, if sooner reached, and necessary to be passed upon before trial, any motion made in term affecting an action or proceeding then pending in such court, may be made on such notice as the court shall direct, or without notice, if the court so direct.

What motions this chapter shall not apply to.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

SECTION 3442. If a defendant shall at any time before answering, make and file an affidavit, stating that he has a good defense in whole or in part, the plaintiff, if he be a non-resident of this state, or a corporation, before any further proceeding in the cause, shall file in the clerk's office a bond, with a sufficient surety, who must be a resident of the county where suit is brought, to be approved by the clerk, for the payment of all costs which may accrue in the action in the court in which it is brought, or in any other to which it may be carried, either to the defendant or to the officers of the court.

When security for costs obtainable.

SEC. 3443. An action in which a bond for costs is required by the last section, and has not been given, shall be dismissed on the motion of the defendant at any time before trial, unless in a reasonable time, to be allowed by the court, after the motion is made therefor, such bond is filed securing all past and future costs; and the action shall not be dismissed if a bond for costs is given in such time as the court may allow.

Else case dismissed.

SEC. 3444. If the plaintiff in an action, after its institution, becomes a non-resident of this state, he may be required to give security for costs in the manner and under the restrictions provided in the preceding sections of this chapter.

Resident becoming non-resident

SEC. 3445. In an action in which a bond for costs has been given, the defendant may at any time before trial, make a motion for additional security on the part of the plaintiff; and if on such motion the court is satisfied that the surety in the plaintiff's bond has removed from the state, or is not sufficient for the amount thereof, it may dismiss the action unless in a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court, sufficient security is given by the plaintiff.

Additional security.

Attorney not taken as security.
Summary judgment may be rendered for costs.

SEC. 3446. No attorney or other officer of the court shall be received as security in any proceeding in court.

SEC. 3447. After final judgment has been rendered in an action in which security for costs has been given as required by this chapter, the court, on motion of the defendant, or any other person having the right to such costs, or any part thereof, may render judgment summarily, according to the chapter on summary proceedings, in the name of the defendant or his legal representatives, against the sureties for costs, for the amount of costs adjudged against the plaintiff, or so much thereof as may remain unpaid.

Application for security and reply thereto

SEC. 3448. In no other than the cases herein stated, except costs of the clerk, shall a plaintiff be required to give security for any costs, the application for such security shall be by motion, in writing, filed with the case, and the facts supporting it must be shown by affidavits annexed thereto, which may be responded to by counter affidavits, on or before the hearing of the motion, and each party shall file all his affidavits at once, and none thereafter.

COSTS.

General rule as to costs.

SECTION 3449. Costs shall be recovered by the successful against the losing party. But where the party is successful as to a part of his demand, and fails as to part, unless the case is otherwise provided for, the court may make, on rendering judgment, an equitable apportionment of costs.

On motions.

SEC. 3450. On all motions the court may give or refuse costs, at its discretion, to the extent of ten dollars, unless where it is otherwise provided by law, which costs may be absolute or directed to abide the event of the action.

Costs in case of several parties, or causes of action.

SEC. 3451. In actions where there are several plaintiffs, or several defendants, the costs shall be apportioned according to the several judgments rendered; and where there are several causes of action embraced in the same petition, or several issues, the plaintiff shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor, and the defendant shall recover costs upon the issues determined in his favor.

Costs which can not be collected of the defeated party.

SEC. 3452. All costs accrued at the instance of the successful party, which can not be collected out of the other party, may be recovered, on motion, by the persons entitled to them, against the successful party.

Costs include.

SEC. 3453. The necessary fees paid by the successful party, in procuring copies of deeds, bonds, wills, or other records filed as part of the testimony, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Same.

SEC. 3454. Postage paid by the officers of the court, or by the parties in sending process, depositions and other papers, being part of the record, by mail, shall be taxed in the bill of costs.

Case of a plea of subsequent matter.

SEC. 3455. When a pleading contains a defense stating matter which arose after the commencement of the action, whether such matter of defense be alone or with other matter of defense which arose before the action, the party affected by such matter may confess the same, and thereupon shall be entitled to the costs of the cause, as to the party pleading such matter up to the time of such pleading.

SEC. 3456. When a plaintiff dismisses his action, or any part thereof, or suffers it to abate by the death of the defendant, or other cause, or where the suit abates by the death of the plaintiff, and his representatives fail to revive the same, according to law, judgment for costs may be rendered against such plaintiff or representatives, and if against a representative, shall be paid as other claims against the estate.

Case of death or dismissal.

SEC. 3457. The co-parties against whom judgment has been recovered, are entitled as between themselves to a taxation of the costs of witnesses whose testimony was obtained at the instance of one of the co-parties, and inured exclusively to his benefit.

Successful parties as between themselves.

SEC. 3458. Where an action is dismissed from any court for want of jurisdiction, or because it has not been regularly transferred from an inferior to a superior court, the costs shall be adjudged against the party attempting to institute or bring up the cause.

Case dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

SEC. 3459. *When any party recovers costs, the clerk shall include in the costs for the fee of such party's attorney, (if he have one,) five dollars.** The clerk shall tax, in favor of the party recovering costs, the allowance of his witnesses, the fees of officers, the compensation of referees, the necessary expenses of taking depositions by commission or otherwise, and any further sum for any other matter which the court may have awarded as costs, in the progress of the cause, or may deem just to be taxed.

What the clerk shall tax.

SEC. 3460. In actions in which the cause of action shall, by assignment, after the commencement of the action, or in any other manner, become the property of a person not a party to the action, such party shall be liable for the costs in the same manner as if he were a party.

Transfer during pendency of case.

SEC. 3461. Any person aggrieved by the taxation of a bill of costs, may, upon application, have the same re-taxed by the court, or by a Re-taxation.

* While the act was on its passage, this section was numbered as in the Report on Civil Code, section 845, chapter 31. The lines in italics were by some bitterly assailed as a catch-penny for the lawyers. The friends of the Code who desired, that at that late day in the session, it should not go back to the senate, which it had already passed, urged its passage as it came from the senate with an accompanying assurance that by a separate bill the objectionable matter (the lines above-aid,) should be struck out. The Code was passed, and the next day the following act was passed. In enrolling the Civil Code, the sections and chapters, as some had been struck out, had to be re-numbered, and this section came to be §40 in chapter 30. The following is the act; it came into force July 4, 1860. See Special Laws of 8th session, page 34:—An act to repeal part of section 845 of chapter 31 of the Code of Civil Practice.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the following words be and they are hereby stricken out of section 845, of chapter 31, of the Code of Civil Practice, passed at the present session of the legislature, namely: "When any party recovers costs, the clerk shall include in the costs, for the fee of such party's attorney, (if he have one,) five dollars." And no attorney's fee, or part thereof, shall in any case be taxed as costs against the losing party, anything in the Code of Civil Practice to the contrary notwithstanding.

The following is the brief remark made by the commissioners on this subject:

One who will not pay another a just debt, save at the end of a law-suit, does such other a wrong which is not fully compensated by the payment of costs. For these costs do not include the plaintiff's loss of time, nor his trouble, nor his fee paid an attorney. In some states this idea of securing more perfect compensation is carried to the extent of allowing a fee, of a considerable amount, to the successful party, on motion or demurrer, and on judgment of a sum graduated by the amount involved, being such a per cent. thereof. It is not deemed well to introduce that principle, except in the form indicated, and you will fill the blank with what sum you please. It will be remembered that we have as a security to good pleading: provided, that the discretion of the court may tax costs against the failing party within a small margin. Report on Civil Code, p. 331.

referee, appointed by the court, in which the application or proceeding was had, and in such re-taxation all errors shall be corrected; and if the party aggrieved shall have paid any unlawful charge, by reason of the first taxation, the clerk shall pay the costs of re-taxation, and also to the party aggrieved, the amount which he may have paid by reason of the allowing of such unlawful charge.

Clerk's duty in appeal.

SEC. 3462. In cases of appeals from the district court, the clerk shall make a complete bill of costs, showing the items which shall accompany the record, and a copy of the same shall be placed upon the execution docket of the court below.

When costs are paid to clerk of supreme court.

SEC. 3463. When the costs accrued in the supreme court and the court below, are paid to the clerk of the supreme court, he shall pay so much of them as accrued in the court below to the clerk of said court, and take his receipt for the same.

Duty of district clerk.

SEC. 3464. On receiving such costs, the clerk of the court below shall charge himself with the money upon his execution docket, and pay it to the persons entitled to the same.

How this chapter construed.

SEC. 3465. The law of costs shall be construed remedially, and not as the penal law. And if any case shall occur not directly or by fair implication embraced in the express provisions of the law, the court may make such disposition of the costs, as in its sound discretion may seem right.

Interest from time of verdict in case of money.

SEC. 3466. When the judgment is for the recovery of money, interest from the time of the verdict or report until judgment be finally entered, shall be computed by the clerk and added to the costs of the party entitled thereto.

CHAPTER 138.

SURVIVOR AND REVIVOR OF ACTIONS.

No cause of action dies.

SECTION 3467. No cause of action, ex delicto, dies with either or both the parties, but the prosecution thereof may be commenced or continued by or against their personal representatives.*

*The reasons which caused the abatement at common law, are now removed. When the king was the source of the original writ, it was not quite without a reason that the action based on it should die with him; and we find that till the time of Edward 1st, such was true. So, also, in cases of trespass, as there was with a judgment for the plaintiff, a fine also adjudged to the king as a punishment on defendant for his breach of the king's peace, such action partook of the nature of a criminal one, and as there remained after the death of the defendant no longer any power of punishment, it was not without reason that such action should, as it did, abate, on the defendant's death. And on such reasons chiefly rested the principle of abatement. As actions for injuries now look to mere compensation, there seems no reason why the death of either the wrong doer or the wrong sufferer should defeat that remedy. The fact that a judgment will or will not be collected, would seem to be the best criterion, and might most safely be left to the plaintiff or his representatives. A distinction was also made to the effect that whether the estate of the plaintiff was injured or not, should determine the right of the personal representative to continue or to originate an action. But you can not draw any exact line among rights, and say that the invasion of none on such side ever affect the estate—the wealth of the plaintiff. A slander which cripples the father's power of exertion, and limits his sphere of successful activity—or a grievous assault which does the same thing, may be as severe an injury to his children, as the breach of a contract by which it is very

Revivor of Actions.

SEC. 3468. Where there are several plaintiffs or defendants in an action, and one of them dies, or his powers as personal representative cease, if the right of action survive to or against the remaining parties, the action may proceed; the death of the party, or the cessation of his powers, being stated in the record. Proceedings when one of two or more parties dies.

SEC. 3469. When one of the parties to an action dies, or his powers as a personal representative cease before the judgment, if the right of action survive in favor of, or against his representatives or successor, the action may be revived and proceed in their names. Same.

SEC. 3470. The revivor shall be by a conditional order of the court, that the action be revived in the names of the representatives or successors of the party who died, or whose powers ceased, and proceed in favor of or against them. Revivor.

SEC. 3471. The order may be made on the motion of the adverse party, or of the representatives or successors of the party who died, or whose powers ceased, suggesting his death, or the cessation of his powers, which, with the names and capacities of his representatives, or successor, shall be stated in the order. Same.

SEC. 3472. If the order is made by consent of the parties, the action shall forthwith stand revived; and if not made by consent, the order shall be served in the same manner, and returned within the same time, as an original notice, upon the party adverse to the one making the motion, and if sufficient cause be not shown against the revivor at that term of court at which the defendant would be bound to appear were the notice an original one, the action shall stand revived. Same.

SEC. 3473. Upon the death of a plaintiff in an action, it may be revived in the names of his representatives, to whom his right has passed. Where his right has passed to his personal representatives, the revivor shall be in his name; where it has passed to his heirs or devisees who could support the action if brought anew, the revivor may be in their names. Death of plaintiff.

SEC. 3474. Upon the death of a defendant in an action, wherein the right or any part thereof, survives against his personal representatives, the revivor shall be against him; and it may also be against his heirs or devisees of the defendant, or both, when the right of action, or any part thereof, survives against them. Death of defendant.

SEC. 3475. Upon the death of a defendant in an action for the recovery of real property, only, or which concerns only his rights or claims to such property, the action may be revived against his heirs or devisees, or both, and an order therefor, may be forthwith made in the manner directed in the preceding sections of this title. Real property.

SEC. 3476. An order to revive an action against the representatives, or successor of a defendant, shall not be made, without the consent of Time.

clear that his wealth devolving on them, has been diminished to the extent of one or one thousand dollars. This idea has grown up amid a state of things, wherein property was nearly all, and man was nearly nothing. We would put man and those attributes that make him such, and those excellencies that adorn him as such—so far as the same are protected by law—upon as high a plane of protection, as mere chattel interests. And as the law has established itself the guardian of this higher class of rights, when such have been illegally invaded, we would transmit the right to his representatives to vindicate these as well as others less cherished. This is getting to be the way of looking at these things now, and we think we are not advancing beyond the intention of our present Code as in section 2502. Report on Civil Code, p. 332.

Time	such representatives or successor, unless it be made within one year from the time it could have been first made. SEC. 3477. An order to revive an action in the names of the representatives or successor of a plaintiff may be made forthwith, but shall not be made without the consent of the defendant after the expiration of one year from the time the order might have been first made; but where the defendant shall also have died, or his powers have ceased in the mean time, the order of revivor on both sides may be made in the period limited in the last section.
Case stricken from docket when.	SEC. 3478. When it appears to the court by affidavit, that either party to an action has been dead, or where a party sues, or is sued as a personal representative, that his powers have ceased for a period, so long, that the action can not be revived in the names of his representatives, or successors, without the consent of both parties, it shall order the action to be stricken from the docket.
Suaue.	SEC. 3479. At any term of the court succeeding the death of the plaintiff, while the action remains on the docket, the defendant having given to the plaintiff's proper representatives, in whose names the action might be revived, ten days' notice of the application therefor may have an order to strike the action from the docket, and for costs against the estate of the plaintiff unless the action is forthwith revived.
Trial not to be postponed.	SEC. 3480. When by the provisions of the preceding sections, an action stands revived, the trial thereof shall not be postponed by reason of the revivor; if the action would have stood for trial at the term, the revivor is complete, had no death, or cessation of powers taken place.

REVIVOR OF JUDGMENTS.

Execution may be issued till judgment barred.	SECTION 3481. An execution may be issued on a judgment at any time, until the collection of it is barred by the statute of limitations, although no execution may have been previously issued thereon.
How in case of death.	SEC. 3482. The death of one or all the plaintiffs shall not prevent an execution being issued thereon, but on such execution, the clerk shall indorse the death of such of them as are dead, and if all be dead, the names of the personal representatives, or the last survivor, if the judgment passed to the personal representatives, or the names of the survivor's heirs, if the judgment was for real property.  Where judgment has been rendered against all the defendants, without noticing the death of one, it is proper for the court to order the execution to issue in the names of the survivors. Simpon, J., Webb's admin'r v. Hill, Mss. opin., January, 1856. Stanton's Ky. Code.
How sheriff shall then do.	SEC. 3483. The sheriff, in acting upon an execution indorsed as provided in the last section, shall proceed as if the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or the personal representatives or heirs, were the only plaintiffs in the execution, and take bonds accordingly.
An affidavit to be made.	SEC. 3484. Before making the indorsements named above, an affidavit shall be filed with the clerk by one of the plaintiffs, or personal representatives, or heirs, or their attorney, of the death, and that the persons named as such, are the personal representatives or heirs, and in the case of personal representatives, they shall file with the clerk a certificate of their qualifications, according to law in this state.

SEC. 3485. The death of part only of the defendants, shall not prevent execution being issued, which, however, shall operate alone on the survivors and their property. How execution shall operate.

SEC. 3486. The defendant may move the court to quash an execution, on the ground that the personal representatives, or heirs of a deceased plaintiff are not properly stated in the indorsement on the execution, and during the vacation of the court, may obtain an injunction, upon its being made to appear that the persons named are not entitled to the judgment on which the execution was issued. When execution may be quashed.

WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

SECTION 3487. The writ of certiorari may be granted whenever specially authorized by law, and especially in all cases where an inferior tribunal, board or officer, exercising judicial functions, is alleged to have exceeded his proper jurisdiction, or is otherwise acting illegally, when in the judgment of the court applied to for the writ there is no other plain, speedy and adequate remedy. When this writ issues.

SEC. 3488. (1966.) The writ may be granted by the district court of the proper county, but if to be directed to a district court or the judge thereof, then by the supreme court—and shall command the defendant therein to certify fully to the court from which the same issues, at a specified time and place, a transcript of the records and proceedings, as well as the facts in the case, (describing and referring to them, or any of them with convenient certainty) and also to have then and there the writ. By whom granted.

SEC. 3489. (1967.) If a stay of proceedings is sought, the court may require a bond, and may fix the penalty and conditions thereof. Supersedens.

SEC. 3490. The petition for this writ must state facts constituting a case, wherein the writ may issue, and must be sworn to, and the court may require a notice of the application to be given to the adverse party, or may make an order to show cause why the writ should not issue, or may, in its discretion, grant the writ without notice. Petition.

SEC. 3491. (1969.) The writ must be served and the proof of such service made in the same manner as is prescribed for the original notice in a civil action, except that the original shall be left with the defendant and the return or proof of service made upon a copy thereof. Service and return.

SEC. 3492. (1970.) If the return of the writ be defective, the court may order a farther return to be made, and may compel obedience to the writ, and to such farther order, by attachment, if necessary. If defective.

SEC. 3493. (1971.) When a full return has been made, the court must proceed to hear the parties, or such of them as may attend for that Court's action.

* It will be observed that a change has been made in section 3490, for the purpose of more nearly conforming the proceedings to other actions.

CHAPTER 141.

PROCEEDINGS TO REVERSE, VACATE OR MODIFY JUDGMENTS.

[Code—Chapters 112 and 114.]

Where judgment or order may be reversed.

SECTION 3495. A judgment rendered or order made in the district court, or by a judge thereof, may be reversed, vacated or modified, either by the supreme court or by the district court in which the judgment was rendered or order made.

For what in the supreme court.

SEC. 3496. A judgment or order may be reversed or modified by the supreme court for errors appearing on the record.

By appeal.

SEC. 3497. The proceedings to obtain such reversal or modification shall be by appeal as prescribed by law.

Mistake of clerk.

SEC. 3498. A mistake of the clerk shall not be ground for an appeal until the same has been presented and acted upon by the district court.

The court of appeals can not reverse a cause for a clerical misprison until the circuit court refuse on application, to correct it. An error of the clerk in misstating in a judgment, the time when interest begins to run, is such a misprison. Wilson, etc. v. Barnes, 13 B. M., 332.

An error in the date from which interest is to be computed, in entering judgment upon a note or bill of exchange, or allowing costs of protest, will not be cause of reversal, unless the circuit court has refused to correct it on motion. Clark, etc. v. Finnell, etc., 16 B. M., 334.

In the court which rendered the judgment.

SEC. 3499. The district court in which a judgment has been rendered, or by which, or by the judge of which a final order has been made, shall have power after the term at which such judgment or order was made to vacate or modify such judgment or order:

For what reasons.

1. By granting a new trial for the cause, within the time, and in the manner prescribed by sections on new trials.

2. By a new trial granted on proceedings against defendants served by publication only, as prescribed in section 3160.

3. For mistake, neglect or omission of the clerk or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order.

4. For fraud practiced by the successful party in obtaining the judgment or order.

5. For erroneous proceedings against an infant, married woman, or person of unsound mind, when the condition of such defendant does not appear in the record, nor the errors in the proceedings.

6. For the death of one of the parties before the judgment in the action.

7. For unavoidable casualty or misfortune preventing the party from prosecuting or defending.

8. For error in a judgment shown by an infant within twelve months after arriving at full age.

In Bennett v. East, 7 Ind. R., 174, it was held that infants on arriving at age, should proceed by way of review for error in judgments upon which their lands had been sold.

It has been held that where a party prosecutes a proceeding to review a judgment, he can not appeal from the judgment reviewed. The appeal must be from the judgment in the proceedings for review. Ind. Dig., 122, section 42; 7 Ind., 25.

SEC. 3500. The proceedings to correct mistakes, or omission of the clerk, or irregularity in obtaining a judgment or order shall be, by motion served on the adverse party, or on his attorney in the action, and within one year, and when made to vacate a judgment because of irregularity in obtaining it, must be made on the second day of the succeeding term.

Mode of application.

SEC. 3501. The proceedings to obtain the benefit of sub-divisions 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, of section 3499, shall be by petition, verified by affidavit setting forth the judgment or order, the facts or errors constituting a cause to vacate or modify it, and the facts constituting a defense to the action if the party applying was a defendant, and such proceedings must be commenced within one year after the judgment or order was made, unless the party entitled thereto be an infant, married woman or person of unsound mind, and then within one year from the removal of such disability.

Needs to be by petition when.

SEC. 3502. In such proceedings the party shall be brought into court, in the same way, on the same notice as to time, mode of service, and mode of return, and the pleadings shall be governed by the principles, and issues be made up by the same formula, and all the proceedings conducted in the same way as near as can be as in an original action by ordinary proceedings according to this code, except that defendant shall introduce no new cause, and the cause of the petition shall alone be tried.

If party brought in.

SEC. 3503. The judgment shall not be vacated on motion or petition, until it is adjudged that there is a valid defense to the action in which the judgment is rendered, or if the plaintiff seeks its vacation, that there is a valid cause of action, and when a judgment is modified, all liens and securities obtained under it shall be preserved to the modified judgment.

What is to be first considered.

SEC. 3504. The court may first try and decide upon the grounds to vacate or modify a judgment or order before trying or deciding upon the validity of the defense or cause of action.

Same.

SEC. 3505. The party seeking to vacate or modify a judgment or order, may obtain an injunction suspending proceedings on the whole or part thereof, which injunction may be granted by the court or the judge thereof, upon its being rendered probable, by affidavit or petition sworn to, or by exhibition of the record, that the party is entitled to have such judgment or order vacated or modified.

Obtain an injunction.

Results if the judgment be affirmed.

SEC. 3506. In all cases of affirmance of the judgment or order, when the proceedings have been suspended, judgment shall be rendered against the plaintiff in error for the amount of the former judgment, interest and costs, together with damages at the discretion of the court, not exceeding ten per cent. on the amount of the judgment.

Appeals from the District Court to the Supreme Court.

Appeal to the supreme court.

SEC. 3507. The appeal shall not be taken, except within one year from the rendition of the judgment or order, unless the party taking the same was an infant, married woman, or of unsound mind, at the time of its rendition; in which cases, such parties or their legal representatives may take an appeal within one year after the removal of their disability or death, whichever may first happen.

Name of case unchanged.

SEC. 3508. The cause shall be docketed as it was in the court below, and the party taking the appeal shall be called the appellant, and the other party the appellee.

Notice.

SEC. 3509. An appeal is taken by the service of a notice, in writing, on the adverse party, his agent, or any attorney, who appeared for him in the case in the district court, and also upon the clerk of the court wherein the proceedings were had, stating the appeal from the same, or or from some specific part thereof, defining such part.

An appeal from part only.

SEC. 3510. An appeal from part of an order, or from one of the judgments of a final adjudication, or from part of a judgment, shall not disturb or delay the rights of any party to any judgment or part of a judgment, or order not appealed from, but the same shall proceed, as if no such appeal had been taken.

When appeal is perfected.

SEC. 3511. An appeal shall not be perfected until the notice thereof has been served upon both the party and the clerk, and the clerk paid or secured, (unless already secured,) his fees for a transcript; whereupon the clerk shall forthwith transmit by mail, express, or a safe and less expensive messenger, not a party, nor the attorney of a party, a transcript of the record in the cause, or of so much thereof as the appellant in writing in the notice has directed, to which shall be appended copies of the notices of appeal, and of the supersedeas bond, if any.

What shall be sent up.

SEC. 3512. In an action by ordinary proceedings, and in an action by equitable proceedings, tried by the second method of trying equitable actions, all proper entries made by the clerk, and all papers pertaining to the cause, and filed therein, (except subpoenas, depositions, and other papers which are used as mere evidence,) are to be deemed part of the record. But in an action by equitable proceedings tried by the first method of trying equitable actions, the depositions and all papers which were used as evidence, are to be certified up to the supreme court, and shall be so certified, not by transcript, but in the original form. But a transcript of a motion, affidavit, or other paper, when it relates to a collateral matter, shall not be certified, unless by direction of the appellant. If so certified, when not material to the determination of the appeal, the court may direct the person blameable therefor to pay the costs thereof.

Fifteen days service.

SEC. 3513. The notices of appeal must be served fifteen days before the first day of the next term of the supreme court, or the same shall not then be tried, unless the appellee shall give the appellant, ten days before the term, notice indicating that he will insist on a hearing at such term, in which event the cause shall be heard at such term, unless the appellant shall, on a sufficient showing, obtain a continuance.

SEC. 3514. If the appellant having taken an appeal fifteen days before the term, fails to file a transcript in the supreme court, on the morning of the first day of that part of the term devoted to causes from the district whence comes the appeal, or if not taken as many as fifteen days before the term, he fail to have the case so filed at the next succeeding term on the morning aforesaid, in either event, unless the appellant file at the time, when such transcript should be filed, the certificate of the clerk stating when he was served with notice, and that he has not had sufficient time to prepare a transcript, the appellee may file a transcript of the judgment, and of the notice served on the clerk, and may, on motion, have the appeal dismissed, or the judgment affirmed.

Promptness exacted in all appeals.

SEC. 3515. If the transcript has been sent up, but the appellant does not file the same, when the same should be filed as herein provided, the appellee may file the same, and may, on motion, have the appeal dismissed, or the judgment affirmed, as the court from the circumstances of the case shall determine.

Same.

SEC. 3516. If, the transcript being filed, errors are not assigned by the morning of the first of those days devoted to causes from the district whence comes the appeal, the appellee may, on motion, have the appeal dismissed, or the judgment or order affirmed, unless a good cause for the failure is shown by affidavit.

Same, as regards errors.

SEC. 3517. (1979.) A part of several co-parties may appeal, but in such case they must serve notice of the appeal upon all the other co-parties, and file the proof thereof with the clerk of the supreme court.

Part of co-parties may appeal.

SEC. 3518. If the other co-parties refuse to join, they can not nor can any of them take an appeal afterwards; nor shall they derive any benefit from the appeal, unless from the necessity of the case.

Result of refusal to unite.

SEC. 3519. Unless they appear and decline to join, they shall be deemed to have joined, and shall be liable for their due proportion of costs.

When deemed to have joined.

SEC. 3520. The death of one or all of the parties shall not cause the proceedings to abate, but the names of the proper persons shall be substituted, as is provided in such cases in the district court, and the cause may proceed. The court may also, in such case grant a continuance, when such a course will be calculated to promote the ends of justice.

Abatement by death.

SEC. 3521. Where appellant has no right, or no further right to prosecute the appeal, the appellee may move to dismiss the appeal, and if the grounds of the motion do not appear in the record, or by a writing, purporting to have been signed by the appellant, and filed, they must be verified by affidavit.

Right to appeal determined in some way, the same how urged.

SEC. 3522. The appellee may by answer filed and verified by himself, agent or attorney, plead any facts which render the taking of the appeal improper, or destroy the appellant's right of further prosecuting the same, to which answer the appellant may file a reply, likewise verified by himself, his agent or attorney, and the questions of law or fact therein shall be determined by the court.

How answered.

SEC. 3523. The service of all notices of appeal, or in any way growing out of such right, or connected therewith, and all notices in the supreme court, shall be in the way provided for the service of like notices in the district court, and they may be served by the same person and returned in the same manner, and the original notice of appeal must be returned, immediately after service, to the office of the clerk of the district court where the suit is pending.

Notices served as in district court

The power of party to obtain perfect transcript.

SEC. 3524. It shall be the duty of the appellant to file a perfect transcript, and to that end the clerk of the district court must at any time on his suggestion of the diminution of the record, and on the payment of fees, certify up any omitted part of the record, according to the truth, as the same appears in his office of record; and such applicant shall not be entitled to any continuance, in order to correct the record, unless it shall clearly appear to the court that he is not in fault. Subject to which requirement, either party may, on motion before trial day, obtain an order on the clerk of the district court, commanding him to transmit at once to the supreme court, a true copy of such imperfect or omitted part of the record, as shall be in general terms described in the affidavit or order. Such motion must be supported by affidavit, unless the diminution be apparent or admitted by the adverse party, and must not be granted unless the court is satisfied that it is not made for delay.

Original document.

SEC. 3525. Where a view of an original paper in the action may be important to a correct decision of the appeal, the court may order the clerk of the district court to transmit the same, which he shall do in some safe mode, to the clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold the same subject to the control of the court.

Security for costs.

SEC. 3526. The appellant may be required to give security for costs, under the same circumstances as those in which plaintiffs in civil actions in the district court, may be so required.

Supersedeas.

SEC. 3527. An appeal shall not stay proceedings on the judgment or order, or any part thereof, unless a supersedeas is issued, and no appeal or supersedeas shall vacate or affect the lien of the judgment appealed from.

Bond and its conditions.

SEC. 3528. A supersedeas shall not be issued until the appellant shall cause to be executed before the clerk of the court which rendered the judgment or order, by one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by such clerk, a bond to the effect that the appellant shall pay to the appellee all costs and damages that shall be adjudged against the appellant on the appeal; also that he will satisfy and perform the judgment or order appealed from, in case it shall be affirmed, and any judgment or order which the supreme court may render, or order to be rendered, by the inferior court, not exceeding in amount or value the original judgment or order, and all rents, or hire, or damages to property during the pendency of the appeal, out of the possession of which the appellee is kept by reason of the appeal. If the bond is intended to stay proceedings, on only a part of the judgment or order, it shall be varied so as to secure the part superseded alone. When such bond has been approved by the clerk, and filed, he shall issue a written order commanding the appellee and all others, to stay proceedings on such judgment or order, or on such part as is superseded as the case may be.

Yet further security may be obtained.

SEC. 3529. If the appellee believe the supersedeas bond defective, or the sureties insufficient, he may move the supreme court, if in session or in its vacation, on ten days' written notice to the appellant, may move any judge of said court, or the judge of the district court where the appeal was taken, to discharge the supersedeas, and if the court, or such judge, shall consider the sureties insufficient, or the bond substantially defective in securing the rights of the appellee, the court or such judge, shall issue an order discharging the supersedeas, unless a good bond, with sufficient sureties, be executed by a day by him fixed. The order, if made by a judge, shall be in writing, and signed by him, and upon its filing, or the filing of a certified copy of the order when made in court, in the office of the clerk of the district court, execution and other proceedings for enforcing the judgment or order may be taken, if a new and good bond is not filed and approved by the day fixed as aforesaid.

SEC. 3530. But another supersedeas may be issued by the clerk, upon the execution before him, of a new and lawful bond with sufficient sureties, as hereinbefore provided. Further supersedeas if good bond given.

SEC. 3531. If the judgment or order is for the payment of money, the penalty shall be in at least twice the amount of the judgment and costs. If not for the payment of money, the penalty shall be sufficient to save the appellee harmless from the consequences of taking the appeal. But it shall in no case be less than one hundred dollars. Penalty of bond.

SEC. 3532. The taking of the appeal from a part of a judgment or order, and the filing of a bond as above directed, does not cause a stay of execution as to any part of the judgment or order not appealed from. Stay may be to only part of judgment.

SEC. 3533. (1987.) If execution has issued prior to giving the bond above contemplated, the clerk shall countermand the same. Execution countermanded.

SEC. 3534. (1988.) Property levied upon and not sold at the time such countermand is received by the sheriff, shall forthwith be delivered up to the judgment debtor. Property restored.

Trial and Decision.

SEC. 3535. The clerk shall arrange the appeals upon the docket, setting a proper number for each day of the term, and placing together those from the same judicial district. Cases on docket arranged.

SEC. 3536. The supreme court may reverse or affirm the judgment or order below, or the part of either appealed from, or may render such judgment or order as the district court or judge should have done, according as it may think proper. Power of supreme court on appeal.

SEC. 3537. (1986.) The supreme court, where it affirms the judgment, shall also, if the appellee moves therefor, render judgment against the appellant and his sureties on the bond above mentioned, for the amount of the judgment, damages and costs referred to therein, in case such damages can be accurately known to the court without an issue and trial. As to sureties

SEC. 3538. Upon the affirmance of any judgment or order for the payment of money, the collection of which, in whole or part, has been superseded by bond, as above contemplated, the court shall award to the appellee damages upon the amount superseded; and if satisfied by the record, that the appeal was taken for delay only, must award such sum as damages, not exceeding fifteen per cent. thereon, as shall effectually tend to prevent the taking of appeals for delay only. Damages for delay.

SEC. 3539. If the supreme court affirm the judgment or order, it may send the cause to the district court to have the same carried into effect, or it may itself issue the necessary process for this purpose, and direct such process to the sheriff of the proper county, according as the party thereto may require. May remand the same.

SEC. 3540. (1992.) If by the decision of the supreme court, the appellant becomes entitled to a restoration of any part of the money or property that was taken from him by means of such judgment or order, either the supreme or district court may direct execution or writ of restitution to issue for the purpose of restoring to such appellant his property or value thereof. It may also order restitution.

SEC. 3541. (1993.) Property acquired by a bona-fide purchaser, under a judgment subsequently reversed, shall not be affected by such reversal. Title when not disturbed.

- May imprison to compel obedience. SEC. 3542. The supreme court shall have power to enforce its mandates upon inferior courts and officers, by fine and imprisonment, which imprisonment may be continued until obeyed.
- Re hearing. SEC. 3543. If a petition for re-hearing be filed, the same shall suspend the decision or procedendo, if the court, on its presentation, or one of the judges, if in vacation, shall so order, in either of which cases such decision and procedendo shall be suspended until the next term.
- Same SEC. 3544. The petition for re-hearing shall be the argument of the applicant therefor, and if the court think that such argument requires a reply, it shall so indicate to the other party, and he may make reply within such time as said court shall allow, and with a view to a re-hearing, the court may extend the suspension of proceedings yet farther, if need be.
- No reversal save of point tried below. SEC. 3545. A judgment or order shall not be reversed for an error which can be corrected, on motion, in the inferior court, until such motion has been made there and overruled.
- Form of errors. SEC. 3546. An assignment of error need follow no stated form, but must, in a way, as specific as the case will allow, point out the very error objected to. Among several points in a demurrer, or in a motion, or instructions, or rulings in an exception, it must designate which is relied on as an error, and the court will only regard errors which are assigned with the required exactness; but the court must decide on each error assigned.
- Motions on book. SEC. 3547. All motions must be entered in the motion book, and shall stand over till the next morning after that morning on which entered, and till after having been publicly called by the court, unless the parties otherwise agree, and the adverse party shall be deemed to have notice of such motion.
- Hear all the causes. SEC. 3548. The court shall hear all the causes docketed, when not continued by consent, or for causes shown by the party, and the party may be heard orally or otherwise, in his discretion.
- Advisement cases. SEC. 3549. When the court takes a cause under advisement, it shall file its opinion at the next term which is held thereafter at the capital.
- Opinion to be filed. SEC. 3550. No cause is decided until the opinion in writing is filed with the clerk.
- District court's power on remanded case. SEC. 3551. If remanded to the district court to be carried into effect, such decision, and the order of the court thereon, being certified thereto and entered on the records of that court, shall have the same force and effect as if made and entered during the session of the court in that district.
- Executions in supreme court. SEC. 3552. Executions issued from the supreme court shall be the same as those from the district court, and attended with the same consequences, and shall be returnable in the same time.

REPLEVIN.*

[Code—Chapter 115 ]

Petition in replevin

SECTION 3553. The petition in replevin must be sworn to, and it must state:

1. A particular description of the property claimed.
2. Its actual value, and where there are several articles, the actual value of each.
3. The facts constituting the plaintiff's right to the present possession thereof, and must define the extent of his interest in the property, whether it be full or qualified ownership.
4. That it was neither taken on the order or judgment of a court against him, nor under an execution or attachment against him, or against the property. But if it was taken by either of these modes, then it must state the facts constituting an exemption from seizure by such process.
5. The facts constituting the alleged cause of detention thereof, according to his best belief.
6. The amount of damages which the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover for the detention thereof.†

* Sections 4175 and 4176 are as follows

Sec 4175 In replevin there shall be no joinder of any but another cause of replevin; nor shall there be allowed any set-off, counter-claim, or cross demand

Sec 4176 A money judgment obtained in replevin for property, which property was in whole or part exempt from execution, shall also be to the same extent exempt from execution to the party obtaining it, and from all set-off or diminution, either by the party against whom the same is, or by any other person, and where the facts are so and the party desires it, the record shall state the facts of such total or partial exemption, and all the provisions of this and the preceding section shall also obtain as to an action of detinue And concerning these sections the report on the Civil Code, p 343, says

To allow a cross demand in replevin, would let a man take by force his debtor's goods, which were exempt from execution, and when sued in replevin, to keep them away and make his debt a cross demand, to cancel the money judgment which might be got against him To prevent this defeat of the exemption law, this and the next sections are provided

†The action of replevin was peculiar at common law in allowing a defendant to become an actor or plaintiff The defense herein, while it is strictly mere defense and may consist of matter somewhat in the nature of counter claim, as allowed in other actions, can not be by an actual plea of counter claim which would allow an actual reply, and thus narrow the issue And so there is need that the plaintiff state more than a prima facie case, or in other words that he, as in the former chancery bill, anticipate the defense and meet it Such petition contains the matter which would be found in the declaration and replication, according to the common law The result is that a denial of such petition makes the same issue as would have been done by a rejoinder This is the theory of replevin, as used in the new system, wherever adopted The statement of the extent of the interest which the plaintiff has in the property, required by subdivision 3 of this section, will avoid the necessity of giving a bailee, who has a mere temporary right, a money judgment for the whole value of the property, but will secure him in the use of the property, or if that can not be got, in the real value of his interest therein A sheriff who levies on property has an interest to the extent of the execution in his hands, if on replevin from him, he succeeds, let him have alternative judgment for the possession, or the value of such interest, which will be measured by what he had the right to make out of it, and no more By section 3562, it is provided, that if one party have no interest, then the other shall have a money judgment for the total value The fourth sub-division of this section will remove some doubt which has existed since a late decision. Report on Civil Code, p 333.

It seems that an answer averring property in the defendant, or a third person, amounts to a denial of the plaintiff's right, and puts the burden of the issue on him. Ind. Dig., p. 52.

In determining who has the affirmative of an issue, regard is had to the substance and effect of the issue, rather than to the form of it. McLees et al. v. Felt, 11 Ind. R., 218

Replevin for a quantity of merchandize. Answer in avoidance, setting up that the defendant was entitled to a lien upon the goods for freight, wherefore the plaintiffs were not entitled to the possession of them. Reply in denial. Held, that the burden of the issue was upon the defendant, and that he was entitled to open and close; and this, notwithstanding the rule that allegations of value and amount of damage are not considered as true, if not controverted, and notwithstanding the duty of the jury, in such cases, to assess the value of the property and the damages for its detention; for the question as to such value and damages were merely incidental to the main question, as to the right to the possession of property. Ibid.

Under issues where a successful defendant would be entitled to the return of the property, the jury should find its value; and failing to do so, may be sent back to perfect their verdict. Ind. Dig., p. 55. But they need not find whether the property is capable of being returned. The court may determine that question. Ind. Dig., p. 56.

If the party in possession, by any act of his, puts it out of the power of the other party to prove the precise value of the property, the jury may assess the highest value of an article of that description. Lea v. Gates, 10 Ind. R., 164; Ind. Dig., 261.

SEC. 3554. He shall also execute a bond to the defendant, with Bond. sureties, to be approved by the clerk, in a penalty at least equal to twice the value of the property sought, conditioned that he will appear at the next term of the court, and prosecute his suit to judgment, and return the property, if a return be awarded, and also pay all costs and damages that may be adjudged against him. This bond shall be filed with the clerk of the court, and is for the use of any person injured by the proceeding, and a judgment for money rendered against the plaintiff shall go against the sureties on the bond.*

SEC. 3555. (1997.) The clerk shall thereupon issue a writ of replevin directed to the sheriff, to take the property therein described and deliver the same to the plaintiff. The ordinary original notice must also be served on the defendant in the usual manner. Issuance of writ

SEC. 3556. † Why should a party be allowed to obtain wrongfully and then keep another's property, on his choice to pay for it, and to remit the wronged party to a money judgment? And why should the party who fails to obtain his property before a judgment, be compelled to accept of mere money? CHAPTER 143.

DETINUE.*

SECTION 3565. An action may be had in which the plaintiff may claim the delivery of personal property to be made after judgment, or the value thereof, in his discretion, if the specific property can not then be obtained. Specific property obtained after judgment.

SEC. 3566. The petition must be sworn to, and must conform to the requirements of sub-divisions one, two, three, four, five and six, of section 3553 of the chapter on replevin. Petition in such case.

SEC. 3567. The judgment shall define and declare the plaintiff's title, if he establishes the same, and shall also declare the value of such right, as in replevin. Judgment therein.

SEC. 3568. The plaintiff having obtained such alternative judgment, shall stand in the position of a party in replevin, having such judgment, and shall enjoy the same right of choice and the same appliances to enforce the same and all his rights therein, which such party in replevin enjoys. Rights of party having got such judgment.

* It is very unjust to make a man's legal right to get back his only cow taken from him by a wrong doer, depend on his ability to give a bond for twice its value. It would be better to provide that a judgment obtained should stand to him instead of a bond, and entitle him to the same rights. This we have done. By allowing the plaintiff and not the defendant to choose whether he will take the money judgment or insist upon having the actual thing taken where it can be got, we only restore the action of detinue to its original use. See Finlason, p. 428. The English common law commissioners recommended, and the act of 1852 provided, that the court or judge might in all cases, where chattels were determined to belong to a party, compel, where it was practicable, their delivery to him. And the working of the act is well approved. Report on Civil Code, p. 334.

CHAPTER 144.

* To require a full statement of all the facts constituting the right to the immediate possession, it was thought would involve much labor, and was not in fact necessary to warn the defendant, who was in most cases practically apprized by the record of the true grounds of the plaintiff's claim. This is but the current practice now, but this section makes clear what is now in some doubt. Report on Civil Code, p. 334.

SEC. 3580. (2011.) Where there is no proof against some of the defendants, the court may order a discontinuance as to them before the testimony in the case is closed. Discontinuance in part.

SEC. 3587. (2016.) But the party who, on such new trial, shows himself entitled to lands which have thus passed to a bona-fide purchaser, may recover the proper amount of damages against the other party either in the same or a subsequent action. Damages.

SEC. 3588. (2017.) The party who has been successful in such new trial shall (if the case require it) have his writ of restitution to restore him his property. Restitution.

SEC. 3589. (2018.) In an action against a tenant the judgment shall be conclusive against the landlord who has received notice as hereinbefore provided. Judgment against landlord.

SEC. 3595. A general verdict in favor of the plaintiff without such General verdict.

- Improvement, set-off. SEC. 3596. (2023.) When the plaintiff in an action of this nature is entitled to damages, for withholding or using, or injuring his property, the defendant may set off the value of any permanent improvements made thereon to the extent of the damages, unless he prefers to avail himself of the law for the benefit of occupying claimants.
- Damages. SEC. 3597. (2024.) In case of wanton aggression on the part of the defendant the jury may award exemplary damages.
- Extent of liability of tenant for rents. SEC. 3598. A tenant in possession in good faith, under a lease or license from another, is not liable beyond the rent in arrear at the time of suit brought for the recovery of land and that which may afterwards accrue during the continuance of his possession.
- Retention till crop matured. SEC. 3599. If the defendant aver that he has a crop sowed, planted or growing on the premises, the jury finding for the plaintiff, and also finding that fact shall further find the value of the premises from the date of the trial until the first day of January next succeeding, and no execution for possession shall be issued until that time, if the defendant executes with surety to be approved by the clerk, a bond in double such sum to the plaintiff, conditioned to pay at said date, the sum so assessed. An action in the nature of that authorized in this chapter, may also be brought by one having a reversionary interest, or by one either in or out of possession, against another who claims title to real property, although the defendant may not be in the possession thereof, for the purpose of determining and quieting the question of title.
- To quiet title. SEC. 3602. If the plaintiff is in possession, he may file a petition setting forth his estate, whether of inheritance for life or years, and describing the premises, and averring that he is credibly informed and believes that the defendant makes some claim adverse to the estate of the petitioner, and praying that he may be notified to show cause why he should not bring an action to try the alleged title, if any, and thereupon the court shall order notice to be given to the defendant, and upon the return of such order of notice, duly executed, if the defendant so notified shall make default, or having appeared, shall disobey the lawful order of the court to bring an action and try the title, the court shall enter a judgment that he be forever debarred and estopped from having or claiming any right or title adverse to the petitioner, and those claiming by or through him, to the premises described.

SEC. 3650. (2072.) The notice must contain a full description of the property mortgaged, together with the time, place, and terms of sale. Notice.

SEC. 3651. Such notice must be served on the mortgagor, and upon all persons having recorded liens upon the same property, which are junior to the mortgage, or they will not be bound by the proceedings. On whom.

SEC. 3652. (2074.) The service and return must be made in the same manner as in case of the original notice by which civil actions are commenced, except that no publication in the newspapers is necessary for this purpose, the general publication directed in the next section being a sufficient service upon all the parties in cases where service is to be made by publication. Service.

- Civil action. SEC. 3660. The holder of any mortgage of real estate must proceed by civil action, in the district court, when he wishes to foreclose the same.
- In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, one who claims adversely to the title of the mortgagor, and prior to the mortgage, can not properly be made a party defendant for the purpose of trying the validity of such adverse claim of title. Corning v. Smith, 2 Selden, 82.
- In an action for the specific performance of a contract to convey several lots of land, being part of a tract owned by one of the defendants, and upon which he had given mortgages prior to the contract to sell; held, that the prior mortgages were improperly made defendants to the action. *Chapman v. - Judgment on bond. SEC. 3664. (2087.) When a judgment is obtained in an action on the bond, the property mortgaged may be sold on the execution issued thereon, and the judgment shall be a lien thereon from the date of the recording of the mortgage. The mortgagor or any other person having a lien on the mortgaged premises, or any part thereof, may redeem the same after sale within the same time and on the same terms as are provided in chapter 125, in cases of real estate, sold on ordinary or general execution.
- Junior incumbrancer. SEC. 3665. (2088.) At any time prior to the sale made in accordance with either of the above modes of foreclosure, a person having a lien on the property which is junior to the mortgage, will be entitled to an assignment of all the interest of the holder of the mortgage by paying him the amount secured with interest and costs, together with the amount of any other liens of the same holder which are paramount to his. He may then proceed with the foreclosure, or discontinue it at his option.
- Overplus. SEC. 3666. (2089.) If there is an overplus remaining after satisfying the mortgage and costs, and if there are no other liens upon the property, such overplus shall be paid to the mortgagor.

SEC. 3670. (2093.) Whenever the amount due on any mortgage is paid off, the mortgagee or those legally acting for him must acknowledge satisfaction thereof in the margin of the record of the mortgage. If he fails to do so within six months after being requested, he shall forfeit to the mortgagor the sum of twenty-five dollars. Satisfaction entered.

SEC. 3671. (2094.) The vendors of real estate, when part or all the purchase money remains unpaid after the day fixed for payment, whether time is or is not the essence of the contract, may file his petition asking the court to require the purchaser to perform his contract or to foreclose and sell his interest in the property. Contracts

SEC. 3672. (2095.) The vendee shall in such cases, for the purpose of the foreclosure, be treated as a mortgagor of the property purchased and his rights may be foreclosed in a similar manner. Same.

SEC. 3673. (2096.) Deeds of trust of real or personal property may be executed as securities for the performance of contracts, and sales made in accordance with their terms are valid. Or they may be treated like mortgages and foreclosed by action in the district court. *Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That no deed of trust, or mortgage, with power of sale on real estate made after the first day of April, A. D., 1861, for the security of the payment of money, shall be foreclosed in any other manner than by proceeding in the district, state, or federal courts.** Deeds of trust

SEC. 3674. (2097.) ## CHAPTER 153.

[Code—Chapter 125.]

SECTION 3761. The writ of mandamus is an order of a court of

---

* The mandamus of common law is very technical. It did not proceed on the principles of pleading, as used in cases where one person made some legal demand

Mandamus may issue on behalf of a public or private person.	competent jurisdiction, and issues from the district court commanding an inferior tribunal, corporation, board or person, to do or not to do, an act, the performance or omission of which the law specially enjoins as a duty, resulting from an office, trust or station, and it is granted on the petition of any private party aggrieved, without the concurrence of the prosecutor for the state, or on the petition of the state by the district attorney, when the public interest is concerned, and is in the name of such private party, or of the state, as the case may be in fact brought.
Statements of petition.	SEC. 3762. The plaintiff in such action shall state his claim, and shall also state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for such claim, and shall also set forth that the plaintiff, if a private individual, is personally interested therein, and that he sustains and may sustain damage by the non-performance of such duty, and that performance thereof has been demanded by him, and refused or neglected, and shall pray a writ of mandamus commanding the defendant to fulfill such duty.
Discretion.	SEC. 3763. Where a discretion is left to an inferior tribunal, the writ of mandamus can only compel it to act. It can not control the discretion of the inferior tribunal.
Other cases.	SEC. 3764. The writ may also be issued by the supreme court to any district court, if necessary, and also in any other case where it is found necessary, to enable it to exercise its legitimate power.
When not.	SEC. 3765. It shall not be issued in any case where there is a plain, speedy and adequate remedy, in the ordinary course of the law, except as herein provided.
The pleadings same as in other cases.	SEC. 3766. The pleadings and other proceedings in any action in which a mandamus is claimed shall be the same in all respects as nearly as may be, and costs shall be recoverable by either party, as in an ordinary action for the recovery of damages.
Legal specific performance.	SEC. 3767. The plaintiff, in any action except those of chapters 142, 143 and 144 hereof, may also in aid of such cause of action, pray, and have a writ of mandamus to compel the performance of a duty established in such action. But if such duty, the performance of which is sought to be compelled, is not one resulting from an office, trust, or station, it must be one for the breach of which a legal right to damages is already complete at the commencement of the action, and must also be a duty of which a court of equity would enforce the performance.*

against another. It is submitted that there is no propriety in this departure. The applicant—the plaintiff—demands of the court by adjudication, an establishment of certain rights to which he claims to be entitled by reason of facts which he states. The defendant being notified of this, states his defense thereto by demurrer or answer, and on the hearing, the court makes such judgment as the case demands. The old reasons presiding over the form of the procedure do not now exist. On the question of the application of the rules of amendment to mandamus as to actions under the Code, our supreme court, 7 Iowa, 395, say, “it is true that this proceeding is regarded as criminal in part. * * * But yet in its substance and real nature it is a civil remedy.” “In England, of late, the statutes have been framed upon this reasonable view, and extended the right (of amendment) to this proceeding.” We add that the English practice has now constituted this a civil action, the pleading in which is the same as in any other claim of remedy. Indeed, the same is substantially true of all those states, which have made any late change in their procedure. This no longer stands as a criminal proceeding, nor are the technicalities of information—inducement, writ, return, &c., longer preserved. This chapter is mainly Kentucky and English, and we hope will be found as efficient as the old mode, and less intricate. Report on Civil Code, p. 354.

* The English Common Law Commissioners, in their second report, page 42, say, the proceedings on mandamus, simplified as they propose, may be applied in every case in which specific performance of a contract or duty is to be enforced, and ought to be so applied; and “that courts of law ought to have power to grant specific per-

SEC. 3768. In case judgment be given to the plaintiff that a mandamus do issue, it shall be lawful for the court in which such judgment is given, if it shall see fit, besides issuing execution in the ordinary way for the damages and costs, also to issue a peremptory writ of mandamus to the defendant commanding him forthwith to perform the duty to be enforced. Command performance.

The Jefferson circuit court has jurisdiction to award a mandamus against the council of the city of Louisville, under proper circumstances, and while the judgment of the court is in force and unreversed, it should be obeyed. A refusal to obey the mandamus is a contempt of court, which justifies the imprisonment of the party, and no action is maintainable for such imprisonment. Kaye v. Kean, 18 B. M., 847.

formance, and to enforce the specific delivery of goods in every case in which that relief has hitherto been granted by courts of equity. This mode of procedure will be the same as in ordinary actions, with the exception that the plaintiff, by his declaration, will pray the specific relief, instead of merely a sum of money. There are cases in which a court of equity, upon peculiar considerations of doubtful justice, grants specific performance, though the legal right be not complete at the commencement of the suit. It may not be advisable to interfere with the jurisdiction of courts of equity in such cases, but only to give courts of law the power of enforcing specific performance in the same cases in which compensation in damages only can now be obtained in those courts." A well reputed late English work on practice—Francis, says: "The equitable effect of this power, so given to courts of law, seems to amount to this, that while hitherto it was in the option of any party to a contract to elect, so far as the control of courts of common law extended, whether he would perform his contract, or pay a sum of money as damages, it is now left to the party against whom the breach is committed to elect between enforcing the contract, or accepting as a substitute money damages; and, subject to the opinion of the court, that the latter was not a perfect compensation, specific performance may be enforced."

The commissioners, in their report upon the point, further say: "That when obligations are imposed by the law, or undertaken by the act of parties, the party on whose behalf they are created, has a right to insist on the specific performance of the acts which have been undertaken for his benefit, when such acts are capable of being performed, and when money would not be a perfect compensation for their non-performance; and in like manner where an injury is about to be committed, for which a mere money payment would not be a full and perfect redress, a power should exist of anticipating and prohibiting the wrongful act. These defects of the common law, it may be observed, did not in ancient times exist to the same extent as at present."

These "useful remedies," quia timet, which, in "ancient times" existed at common law, and which are not restored, nor have any substitute provided for them by the present act, are enumerated by Lord Coke, who wisely remarks that "preventing justice excelleth punishing justice." The writs at common law which might be maintained quia timet before any "molestation, distress, or impleading," are enumerated thus: 1. A man may have a writ of mesne before he be distrained; 2. A warrantie chartæ before he be impleaded; 3. A monstraverunt, before any distress or vexation; 4. An audita querela, before any execution sued; 5. A curia claudenda, before any default of inclosure; 6. A ne injuste vexes before any distress or molestation. And these be called brevia anticipantia, writs of prevention, (Co. Litt. 100 a).

The act did not go as far as the recommendation. We have substantially followed it in this, and the succeeding sections, departing only to avoid defects suggested by experience, and to remove doubt.

The following is extracted from a late English Practice Book on this subject—Finalson, and may show some of the workings of the English act, although it will not be an exact criterion of ours.

"Mandamus has been, since the courts of common law lost through disuse their ancient power of compelling the performance of duties, the only means of enforcing the doing of an act, other than the mere payment of money or delivery of property. Thus it lay to restore a party to a scholarship or mastership of a public school, which he held not by private contract, but public right.

It would never lie but when the right or duty was of a public nature. Thus it would not lie to compel the bank to transfer stock; for, though they are a public body, their relation to the holders of stock is of a private nature, founded on personal duty, Rex v. Bank of England, 2 Doug., 524; Davis v. Bank of England, in error, 7 B. & C., 185; and that is just the kind of case to which the present section will apply. In so far as regards one of the principles of the old law, as to mandamus, that the duty must be one of a public nature, this section departs from it; but as regards the other, that it lay only where there was no other remedy either at law or equity, the clause is not inconsistent with it, so far, at least, as law is concerned; for, in truth, there never was any other means at law since the writ of mandamus became known, to secure that which mandamus secured, viz.: the performance of the duty; except, at all events, where the duty was nothing beyond the delivery of property or payment of money, the former of which is provided for by detinue, and replevin and ejectment; and as to the latter, mandamus was never required, except in very peculiar cases, to which the remedy by action was inapplicable. There will, however, be often a concurrent remedy with mandamus, in a suit in equity to compel specific performance of a contract, where the duty arises out of contract. Instances can easily be found in which a duty arises out of a contract to do some act other than a delivery of goods or payment of money, as on a covenant to procure a renewal of letters patent, Simpson v. Clayton, 6 Sc., 469; or to repair, Wright v. Goddard, 8 A. & E., 144. It has been held that any covenant to do an act not contrary to law, may be sued upon, (for damages for the non-performance,) although there be a doubt as to the possibility of performance, Tufnell v. Constable, 7 A. & E., 798. But as to mandamus in such a case, query.

* * * There may be a duty on a contract to execute a contract, or cause it to be duly executed, where execution in a particular way, or by certain parties is necessary to its validity, Thornton v. Jenyns, 1 M. & G., 166; 1 Sc. N. R., 52; Latch v. Wedlake, 11 A. & E., 959; see as to contract to build a house, Fisher v. Ford, 4 Jur., 1034; as to printing a book, Smith v. White, 8 Sc. N. R., 483; to write a book, Sweet v. Lee, 3 M. & G., 452; 4 Sc. N. R., 77. There may be a duty on contract to enter the employ of another, for example as surgeon to a ship, Richards v. Hayward, 2 Sc. N. R., 670; 2 M. & G., 574. In some of such cases this section may apply, aliter as to others, where the compulsory performance would be unsatisfactory; and so also as to contracts to employ, as to which the old principle, that mandamus does not lie where there is really any other adequate remedy, might be applied; for instance, in a case such as Pilkington v. Scott, 15 Mec, and W., 657; as to furnishing rails or doing other work, Macintosh v. Midland Counties Railway Co., 14 Mec, and W., 538; making steam engines, Zuhetta v. Miller, 15 Law, J., C. P., 267; delivering machinery or drawings for it, Kingdom v. Cox, ibid., 95. In the case of an insurance or other broker, a duty arises on a mere retainer to effect an insurance or do any other act proper to be done for the benefit of his employer, within the scope of his business; for the breach of such duty an action lies, as for not effecting a policy as well as for effecting it carelessly, Turpin v. Bolton, 6 Sc. N. R., 447; 5 M. & G., 445; and semble that there would be a case within the present section for the purpose of compelling him to effect the policy. A recent case will illustrate the appli-

INJUNCTION.

SECTION 3773. (2189.) An injunction may be granted as an independent means of relief or as auxiliary to other proceedings, in accordance with the rules heretofore observed, except as herein modified. Injunctions.

SEC. 3774. (2190.) When it is a mere auxiliary measure resorted to during the trial of the principal cause, the terms on which it is allowed as well as the kind of notice to be given to the opposite party, shall be such as the court prescribes. When auxiliary.

SEC. 3775. (2191.) When applied for as an independent means of relief, the petition must be sworn to and presented to the district court, if in session in the county, for an allowance of the injunction. If not in session, application for that purpose may be made to any judge of the supreme or district court, or to the judge of the county court of the proper county. When otherwise.

SEC. 3776. (2192.) If the order of allowance is made by the court in session, the clerk shall make an entry thereof in the court record and issue the writ accordingly. If made in vacation the judge must indorse the said order upon the petition. Allowance.

SEC. 3777. (2193.) In both the cases contemplated in the last section, the order of allowance must direct the writ of issue only after the filing of a bond in the office of the clerk of the district court, in a penalty to be therein fixed, with sureties to be approved by said clerk, (unless the court or judge granting the said order has previously approved said sureties,) and conditioned for the payment of all the damages which may be adjudged against the petitioner by reason of such injunction. Bond.

SEC. 3778. (2194.) When proceedings in a civil action are sought to be enjoined, the suit must be brought in the county wherein such proceedings are pending. The bond must also in that case be farther conditioned to pay any judgment that may be ultimately recovered against the party who seeks the injunction, for the cause of action on which the suit sought to be enjoined is founded. To enjoin civil action.

SEC. 3779. (2195.) The penalty of the bond must be fixed by the court or judge who makes the order, and must be doubly sufficient to cover any probable amount of liability to be thereby incurred. Penalty of bond.

SEC. 3780. (2196.) Upon the filing of the bond as required, the clerk must issue the writ of injunction as directed by the order of allowance. Writ.

cation of the clause, where the covenant was to lay out building grounds with roads, &c., Mason v. Cole, 18 Law, J., Ex., 478; there the mere recovery of damage might be no adequate remedy. Perhaps, the principles upon which the courts of equity act on this point, either as to injunction against breach of covenant, or by decree for specific performance, may be useful, vide Elliott v. Turner, 13 Sin., 477; where it is laid down that equity will not relieve against a breach of covenant, unless the payment of money could not be an adequate compensation. The mandamus may be claimed under this section, for instance, to the bank directing it to pay plaintiff the dividends on certain stock, provided he could maintain an action for damage caused by the refusal or delay to transfer; as to which see Partridge v. Bank of England in error, 9 Q. B., 396; or it may be for performance of a covenant for further reference, Ward v. Audland, 16 Mee, and W., 863. Report of Civil Code, p. 354.

- Defendant may show cause. SEC. 3781. (2197.) The court or judge before granting the writ may, if deemed advisable, allow the defendant an opportunity to show cause why such order should not be granted.
- Motion to vacate. SEC. 3782. (2198.) If the writ is granted without allowing the defendant to show cause, he may at any time before the next term of the court apply to the judge who made the order to vacate or modify the same.
- Application. SEC. 3783. (2199.) Such application must be with notice to the plaintiff and may rest upon the ground that the order was improperly granted, or it may be founded upon affidavits on the part of the defendant. In the latter case the plaintiff may fortify his application by counter affidavits and have reasonable time therefor.
- Consequence. SEC. 3784. (2200.) The judge may thereupon decide the matter at once, unless some good cause for delay be shown. But the vacation of the order shall not prevent the cause from proceeding if any thing be left to proceed upon.
- Disobedience. SEC. 3785. (2201.) Any judge of the supreme or district court, being furnished with an authenticated copy of the writ of injunction, and also with satisfactory proof that such injunction has been violated, shall issue his precept to the sheriff of the county where the violation of the injunction occurred, or to any other sheriff, (naming him,) more convenient to all parties concerned, directing him to attach said defendant and bring him forthwith before the same or some other judge, at a place to be stated in said precept.
- Contempt purged. SEC. 3786. (2202.) If, when thus produced, he files his affidavit denying or sufficiently excusing the contempt charged, he shall be released and the affidavit shall be filed with the clerk of the court for preservation.
- Bond required. SEC. 3787. (2203.) But if he failed to do so, the judge may require him to give bond, with surety, for his appearance at the next term of the court, and also for his future obedience to the injunction, which bond shall be filed with the clerk.
- Committed. SEC. 3788. (2204.) If he fail to give such security, he may be committed to the jail of the county where the proceedings are pending, until the next term of the court.
- Contempt punished. SEC. 3789. (2205.) If the security be given, the court at the next term shall act upon the case, and punish the contempt in the usual mode.
- Motion to dissolve. SEC. 3790. (2206.) The defendant may move to dissolve the injunction, either before or after the filing of the answer.
- Issue on answer. SEC. 3791. (2207.) Issue may be joined on the defendant's answer and a trial had as in other cases.
- Whole case tried. SEC. 3792. (2208.) When practicable, the whole matter connected with the injunction shall be disposed of on such trial, and complete justice administered to all parties.
- Only one motion. SEC. 2793. Only one motion to dissolve or modify an injunction upon the whole case, shall be allowed.
- Damages on the bond. SEC. 3794. Upon the dissolution, in whole or in part, of an injunction to stay proceedings upon a judgment or final order, the damages shall be assessed by the court, which may hear the evidence and decide in a summary way, or may, on the request of either party, cause a jury to be empaneled to find the damages. Where money is enjoined, the damages may be any rate per cent. on the amount released by the dissolution, which, in the discretion of the court, may be proper, not exceeding ten per cent. And where the delivery of property has been delayed by the injunction, the value of the use, hire, or rent thereof shall be assessed. Judgment shall be rendered against the party who obtained the injunction, for the damages assessed, and against the surety of such party.

Where an action is brought upon an injunction bond, the subject of the action being the damage sustained by the plaintiffs in consequence of the injunction, which prevented them from proceeding in their business, all the obligees may join as plaintiffs, notwithstanding the claim of one of them is different in its character and amount from that of the others. Loomis v. Brown, 16 Barb., 325.

SEC. 3795. (2210.) For good cause shown, a judge's order may issue in vacation, directing any of the officers of the court in relation to the discharge of their duties. Judge's order.

SEC. 3796. (2211.) Such order shall be in force only during the vacation in which it is granted, and for the first two days of the ensuing term. How long in force.

SEC. 3797. (2212.) The judge granting it may require the filing of a bond, as in case of an injunction, unless from the nature of the case, such requirement would be clearly unnecessary and improper. Bond may be required.

Coolbaugh*, Dec., 1859; the interest needed to enable to enjoin county judge from illegally spending money or issuing bonds, Rice v. Smith, county judge, Dec., 1859.

PROHIBITION IN AN ACTION BY ORDINARY PROCEEDINGS.*

SECTION 3798. In all cases of breach of contract or other injury, where the party injured is entitled to maintain, and has brought an action by ordinary proceedings, he may, in the same cause, pray and

*This is a much more limited injunction, than that of equity. The party who obtains it, must be entitled to maintain and have brought an action, and the injunction when brought will be only against the repetition, or continuance of the breach or injury of like kind. This was recommended by the English commissioners. They urged as a palpable defect in the administration of justice, that the ordinary scope of the remedy at law, extending only to give compensation or redress for injuries sustained, afforded, in general, no means for preventing their commission; while have a writ of injunction against the repetition or continuance of such breach of contract or other injury, or the committal of any breach of contract or injury of a like kind, arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right, and he may also, in the same action, include a claim for damages or other redress.

SEC. 3799. In such action, judgment may be given for other relief, and also that the writ of injunction do or do not issue, as justice may require; and in case of disobedience, such writ of injunction may be enforced by attachment by the court, or when such court shall not be sitting, by a judge thereof.

SEC. 3800. It shall be lawful for the plaintiff, at any time after the commencement of the action, and whether before or after judgment, to apply ex parte to the court or a judge, for a writ of injunction to restrain on the other hand, the practice of the courts of equity, by way of injunction, extended not only to the protection of equitable rights, but of those also for the violation of which an action lies at common law. It became law in the terms substantially here used as section 79 of the English act of 1854. The process of injunction had before that time been introduced into common law courts in certain cases.

The English commission propounded questions to leading lawyers on this subject, and in answer to such, the distinguished jurist, Montague Smith, says, page report 251, substantially as follows:

“The remedial jurisdiction of common law courts over legal rights should be extended. There are too many modes of indirect relief only, instead of direct relief. A mandamus to admit to an office is more efficacious than an action for damage—the first achieves the thing wanted, the last does not. An injunction is more efficacious than a suit for damages in case of destroying invaluable trees or such other property. There is no reason when rights are purely legal, that law should not protect them, instead of sending suitors elsewhere. This would not trench on the boundary of legal and equitable rights—only affect remedies—it only lets law courts guard law rights. Now parties to law rights are compelled to go to equity courts, for equitable remedies on them, and the absurdity follows that they are sent back to law courts to have the law rights determined—the equitable remedy being based on the legal right.

Let a law court guard by injunction legal rights as an equity court does. When legal rights only are concerned, let law courts prevent their invasion.

So, of discovery—let legal rights be discovered at law by such mode as in chancery or otherwise. Let the same be true of specific performance of contract, when only legal rights are involved; and the court which passes on the right will give the remedy.”

We have said that the acts based on these reports went very far towards making each court independent of the other.

From a late English book on practice, Finlason, we find that the English act is held to apply in the following cases: “The clause, as already shown, might apply in cases of factors improperly pledging goods with which they were intrusted, as in Hatfield v. Phillips, 14 Mee. and W., 665. In cases of contract the clause will apply chiefly where the defendant has covenanted to abstain from any act, as from practising within a particular district, Nicholls v. Stretton, 11 Jur., 1009, a class of cases in which the courts of equity have hitherto exercised their jurisdiction of injunction, Dietrichsen v. Cabburn, 2 Ph., 52, 10 Jur., 601; even though the contract contains stipulations they would not enforce, Rolfe v. Rolfe, 15 Sim., 88. The clause would not often apply to breaches of contract which were not also torts or breaches of duty apart from contract. The clause could apply in cases, where, though the same injury could not be again committed, there could be a continuance of the same injury, as in negligent warehousing, Bourne v. Galliffe, 8 Sc. N. R., 604; not for a false representation, which, from the very nature of the injury, could never be repeated, Ormerod v. Huth, 14 Mee. and W., 651; Bailey v. Walsford, 9 Q. B. 197; but in some instances negligence, if in a continued course of conduct, could be restrained, as if railway companies ran their engines without reasonable protection to prevent sparks from flying therefrom to the peril of contiguous cornstacks, as in Pigott v. Eastern Counties Railway Company, 3 M. and G., 515; and it would apply in cases of defamation, in which there was a renewed publication, though it would be a new cause of action, as in Gathercole v. Miatt, 15 Mee. and W., 319. A court of equity, indeed, has declined to interfere by injunction to prevent the publication of representations it deemed rather libellous than piratical, but that was on the ground that the legal right should be established, Clark v. Freeman, 11 Beav., 112. In cases of nuisance, the clause would have a clear application to prevent the continuance of the defendant in such action from a repetition or continuance of the wrongful act, or breach of contract complained of, or the committal of any breach of contract or injury of a like kind, arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right; and such writ may be granted or denied by the court or judge, upon such terms as to the duration of the writ, keeping an account, giving security, or otherwise, as to such court or judge shall seem reasonable and just, and in case of disobedience, such writ may be enforced by attachment by the court, or, when such court shall not be sitting, by the judge thereof: provided always, that any order for a writ of injunction, made by a judge, or any writ issued by virtue thereof, may be discharged or varied, or set aside by the court, on application thereto by any party dissatisfied with such order.

it, as where a cornice was erected by which the rain flowed on the plaintiff's garden, Fay v. Prentice, 1 C. B., 828; so where dirt was kept on a highway, Goldthorpe v. Hardman, 2 D. and L., 442; 13 Mec. and W., 337; so where timber was kept lying on a river at the entrance to a wharf, Rose v. Groves, 5 M. and G., 613; 6 Sc. N. R., 645; Dobson v. Blackmore, 9 Q. B., 99; Brown v. Mallett, 5 C. B., 594. So the clause might apply (supposing there was time) to prevent the continuance of the same injury, as undermining party walls, Bradbee v. Christ's Hospital, 4 M. and G., 714; or excavating land under houses or in mines, Firmstone v. Water, 2 D. and L., 203.

It may often be a question whether this clause or the section as to mandamus is to be resorted to in cases of continued non-feasance, nearly amounting to mis-feasance, such as in Russell v. Shenton, 3 Q. B., 449, where the complaint was for not cleaning sewers; but there will be no difficulty as the claim for mandamus and injunction can clearly be joined. See as to the jurisdiction of equity to grant injunction in such cases, Hawes v. Taylor, 2 Ph., 209; 11 Jur., 73. A class of cases in which the clause will have a clear application is the actions for imitating trade marks. Crawshaf v. Thompson, 4 M. & G., 357; 5 Sc. N. R., 562; Rodgers v. Nowell, 5 C. B., 109; or in cases of infringement of copy right, Wright v. Tallis, 1 C. B., 898; or piracy of designs, Millengen v. Pickens, 1 C. B., 799; or patents, Allen v. Rawson, 1 C. B., 551; Stead v. Williams, 7 M. & G., 818; Russell v. Leadson, 14 Mec. & W., 574. Cases in which the courts of equity of course can exercise a concurrent jurisdiction by injunction, Geary v. Norton, 1 De G. & S., 9; Heath v. Unwin, 6 Law J., Ch. 283. The clause would clearly apply again in cases of continuance of trespass, as keeping stakes in the lands of plaintiff, Bowyer v. Cook, 16 Law J., C. P., 322. In regard to acts of trespass, where the title is in dispute, the courts of equity have not been accustomed to grant injunction except to prevent irreparable injury, Attorney General v. Mallett, 16 Law J., Ex., 131. See as to jurisdiction in cases of waste, Morris v. Morris, 16 Law J., Ch. 201; as to the common law action, Matthews v. Matthews, 7 C. B., 1018. This section would be applicable peculiarly in cases of a covenant to insure, which has been held a continuing covenant, Doe dl. Maston v. Gladwin, 6 Q. B., 953. So covenants to renew leases, Worley v. Frampton, 16 Law J., Ch. 102; or to make an assignment, Lovelock v. Franklyn, S. Q. B., 371; or to erect buildings, Cunnoch v. Jones, 18 Law J., Ex., 204; or to keep a policy on foot, Dormay v. Boradaile, 5 C. B., 380. The clause would apply to compel a party to abate a nuisance, as to pull down a building erected wrongfully on a common, Davis v. Williams, 20 Law J., Q. B., 330; see Feret v. Hill, 2 C. L. Rep., 1371."

This chapter would not be needed, if we had as have most of the progressive states, successfully removed in full the dissimilarity between law and equity procedure. But as we have not, perhaps, our conservative friends will be less timid in allowing this advance, when they know they are treading on ground deemed even safe by the profession and tribunals of England, which have been, we believe, by our aforesaid friends, esteemed quite sufficiently slow. Report on Civil Code, p. 338.

HABEAS CORPUS.

[Code—Chapter 127.]

- Substance of petition. SECTION 3801. (2213.) The petition for the writ of habeas corpus must be sworn to, and must state:
1. That the person in whose behalf it is sought is restrained of his liberty, and the person by whom and the place where he is so restrained, mentioning the names of the parties if known, and if unknown describing them with as much particularity as practicable;
  2. The cause or pretense of such restraint according to the best information of the applicant; and if it be by virtue of any legal process, a copy thereof must be annexed or a satisfactory reason given for its absence;
  3. It must state that the restraint is illegal and wherein;
  4. That the legality of the imprisonment has not already been adjudged upon a prior proceeding of the same character, to the best knowledge and belief of the applicant;
  5. It must also state whether application for the writ has been before made to, and refused by, any court or judge, and if such application has been made, a copy of the petition in that case with the reasons for the refusal thereto appended must be produced or satisfactory reasons given for the failure to do so.
- Sworn to, &c. SEC. 3802. (2214.) This petition must be sworn to by the person confined or by some one in his behalf, and presented to some court or officer authorized to allow the writ.
- By whom allowed SEC. 3803. (2215.) The writ of habeas corpus may be allowed by the supreme or district court, or by any judge of either of those courts. In such cases it may be served in any part of the state.
- Same. SEC. 3804. (2216.) It may also be allowed by any county court except when the commitment was made by order of one of the courts or officers mentioned in the last section, but when allowed by the county court it is valid only within the limits of the county where issued.
- Application where. SEC. 3805. (2217.) Application for this writ, when made to the supreme or district courts or judges thereof, must be made to the court or judge most convenient in point of distance to the applicant, and the more remote court or judge, if applied to for the writ, may refuse the same unless a sufficient reason be stated in the petition for not making the application to the more convenient supreme or district court, or a judge thereof.
- When refused. SEC. 3806. (2218.) If, from the showing of the petitioner, the plaintiff would not be entitled to any relief, the court or judge may refuse to allow the writ.
- When not. SEC. 3807. (2219.) But if the petition show a sufficient ground for relief, and is in accordance with the foregoing requirements, the writ shall be allowed and may be substantially as follows:

THE STATE OF IOWA,

To the sheriff of, &amp;c., [or to A. B., as the case may be.]

You are hereby commanded to have the body of C. D., by you unlawfully detained as is alleged, before the court [or before me, or before

E. F., judge, &c., as the case may be] at _____, on _____, [or immediately after being served with this writ,] to be dealt with according to law, and have you then and there this writ with a return thereon of your doings in the premises.

SEC. 3808. (2220.) When the writ is allowed by a court it is to be issued by the clerk, but when allowed by a judge he must issue the writ himself, sub-cribing his name thereto without any seal. By whom issued

SEC. 3809. (2221.) If the writ is disallowed, the court or judge shall cause the reasons of said disallowance to be appended to the petition and returned to the person applying for the writ. Disallowed.

SEC. 3810. (2222.) Any judge, whether acting individually or as a member of a court, who wrongfully and willfully refuses such allowance of the writ when properly applied for, shall forfeit to the party aggrieved the sum of one thousand dollars. Penalty for refusing.

SEC. 3811. (2223.) Whenever any court or judge authorized to grant this writ has evidence, from a judicial proceeding before them, that any person within the jurisdiction of such court or officer is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, it is the duty of such court or judge to issue or cause to be issued the writ as aforesaid, though no application be made therefor. Issued without application

SEC. 3812. (2224.) The writ may be served by the sheriff or by any other person appointed for that purpose by the court or judge by whom it is issued or allowed. If served by any other than the sheriff, he possesses the same power and is liable to the same penalty for a non-performance of his duty as though he were the sheriff. By who

SEC. 3813. (2225.) The proper mode of service is by leaving the original writ with the defendant and preserving a copy thereof on which to make the return of service. How.

SEC. 3814. (2226.) If the defendant can not be found, or if he have not the plaintiff in custody, the service may be made upon any person having the plaintiff in his custody, in the same manner and with the same effect as though he had been made defendant therein. Defendant not found.

SEC. 3815. (2227.) If the defendant conceal him-self or refuse admittance to the person attempting to serve the writ, or if he attempt wrongfully to carry the plaintiff out of the county or the state after the service of the writ as aforesaid, the sheriff or the person who is attempting to serve or who has served the writ as above contemplated, is authorized to arrest the defendant and bring him together with the plaintiff forthwith before the officer or court before whom the writ is made returnable. Power of officer

SEC. 3816. (2228.) In order to make such arrest, the sheriff or other person having the writ, possesses the same power as is given to a sheriff for the arrest of a person charged with a felony. Same

SEC. 3817. (2229.) If the plaintiff can be found, and if no one appear to have the charge or custody of him, the person having the writ may take him into custody and make return accordingly. And to get possession of the plaintiff's person in such cases, he possesses the same power as is given by the last section for the arrest of the defendant. Same.

SEC. 3818. (2230.) The court or judge to whom the application for the writ is made, if satisfied that the plaintiff would suffer any irreparable injury before he could be relieved by the proceedings as above authorized, may issue a precept to the sheriff or any other person selected instead, commanding him to bring the plaintiff forthwith before such court or judge. When warrant to issue.

- Defendant arrested. SEC. 3819. (2231.) When the evidence aforesaid is farther sufficient to justify the arrest of the defendant for a criminal offense committed in connection with the illegal detention of the plaintiff, the precept must also contain an order for the arrest of the defendant.
- Precept, how served. SEC. 3820. (2232.) The officer or person to whom the precept is directed must execute the same by bringing the defendant, and also the plaintiff if required, before the court or judge issuing it, and thereupon the defendant must make return to the writ of habeas corpus in the same manner as if the ordinary course had been pursued.
- Want of form. SEC. 3821. (2233.) The defendant may also be examined and committed, or bailed, or discharged, according to the nature of the case.
- Presumption. SEC. 3822. (2234.) The writ of habeas corpus must not be disobeyed for any defects of form or misdescription of the plaintiff or defendant, provided enough is stated to show the meaning and intent of the writ.
- Appearance. SEC. 3823. (2235.) Any person served with the writ is to be presumed to be the person to whom it is directed, although it may be directed to him by a wrong name or description or to another person.
- Plaintiff brought. SEC. 3824. (2236.) Service being made in any of the modes hereinafore provided, the defendant must appear at the proper time and answer the said petition.
- Disobedience. SEC. 3825. (2237.) He must also bring up the body of the plaintiff, or show good cause for not doing so.
- Attachment served. SEC. 3826. (2238.) A willful failure to comply with the above requisitions renders the defendant liable to be attached for a contempt, and to be imprisoned till a compliance is obtained, and also subjects him to the forfeiture of one thousand dollars to the party thereby aggrieved.
- Attorney notified. SEC. 3827. (2239.) Such attachment may be served by the sheriff or any other person thereto authorized by the judge, who shall also be empowered to bring up the body of the plaintiff forthwith, and has for this purpose the same powers as are above conferred in similar cases.
- Answer. SEC. 3828. (2240.) The court or officer allowing the writ must cause the prosecuting attorney of the proper county to be informed of the issuing of the writ and of the time and place when and where it is made returnable.
- Same. SEC. 3829. (2241.) The defendant in his answer must state plainly and unequivocally whether he then has, or at any time has had, the plaintiff under his control and restraint, and if so the cause thereof.
- Same. SEC. 3830. (2242.) If he has transferred him to another person he must state that fact, and to whom, and the time thereof as well as the reason or authority therefor.

SEC. 3858. (2270.) The parties to the action may be the same as <sup>Practice.</sup>in the district court, and all the proceedings prescribed for that court so far as the same are applicable and not herein changed shall be pursued in justice's courts. The powers of the court are only as herein enumerated.

SEC. 3859. (2271.) Ordinary actions in justice's courts are com-<sup>Same.</sup>menced by voluntary appearance or by notice.

SEC. 3860. (2272.) When by notice, no petition need be filed as is required in the district court except where the petition must be sworn to, but the notice must state the cause of action in general terms sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of the claim against him. <sup>Petition not necessary.</sup>

SEC. 3861. (2273.) It must be addressed to the defendant by name, <sup>Notice to whom.</sup>but if his name is unknown, a description of him will be sufficient. It must be subscribed by the plaintiff or the justice before whom it is returnable.

The Appearance of Parties.

Agent's authority.	SEC. 3866. (2278.) An agent appearing for another may be required by the justice to show his authority if written, or prove it by his own oath or otherwise if verbal.
One hour given.	SEC. 3867. (2279.) The parties in all cases are entitled to one hour in which to appear after the time fixed for appearance and neither party is bound to wait longer for the other.
Postponement.	SEC. 3868. (2280.) Upon the return day, if the justice be actually engaged in other official business he may postpone proceedings in the case until such business is finished.
Adjournment.	SEC. 3869. (2281.) If from any cause the justice is unable to attend to the trial at the time fixed, or if a jury be demanded, he may adjourn the cause for a period not exceeding three days, nor shall he make more than two such adjournments.
Same.	SEC. 3870. (2282.) In case of the absence of witnesses, either party, at his own cost, may obtain an adjournment not exceeding sixty days, by filing an affidavit like that required to obtain a continuance in the district court for the like cause.
Condition.	SEC. 3871. (2283.) Either party applying for an adjournment must, if required by the adverse party, consent that the testimony of any witness of the adverse party who is in attendance be then taken to be used on the trial of the cause.
Pleadings.	SEC. 3872. (2284.) The pleadings must be substantially the same as in the district court. They may be written or oral. If oral, they must in substance be written down by the justice in his docket, and sworn to when such verification is necessary.
Set-offs.	SEC. 3873. (2285.) Cross-demands or set-offs must be made, if at all, at the time the answer is put in.
Copies.	SEC. 3874. (2286.) The original or a copy of all written instruments upon which a cause of action or set-off is founded, must be filed with the claim founded thereon, or a sufficient reason given for not doing so.
Either may have change of venue.	SEC. 3875. Either party, before the trial is commenced, may have a change of venue, upon filing an affidavit that the justice is prejudiced against him, or is of near relation to the other party, is a material witness for the affiant, or that the affiant can not obtain justice before him.
Transmission of case and trial or notice thereof.	SEC. 3876. When said change of venue is allowed, said justice shall transmit all the original papers in said case, and a transcript of his proceedings, to the next nearest justice in the township, if there be any, if not, to the next nearest justice in his county, which said justice shall proceed to try said case, and if he can not try the same immediately, he shall then fix a time therefor, of which all parties shall take notice.

SEC. 3877. (2287.) If in a suit for trespass on real property the defendant justifies by pleading title, it must be in writing. The justice shall thereupon make an entry thereof in his docket, and return the original papers and a transcript of all the entries in his docket to the district court in the same manner and within the same time as is required in cases of appeals. Plea of title.

SEC. 3878. (2288.) When, from the plaintiff's own showing on the trial, it appears that the determination of the action will necessarily involve the decision of a question of title to real property, the justice must dismiss the action, stating in his docket the reason therefor. Dismissed.

SEC. 3879. (2289.) But when a case is thus transferred or dismissed on account of the title to lands being involved, if there are other causes of action not necessarily connected they may be severed and the latter tried before the justice. Actions severed.

DECISIONS UNDER THE PRIOR PRACTICE. Every presumption is in favor of the proceedings and jurisdiction of courts of general jurisdiction. There is no presumption in favor of the jurisdiction of a limited court, but that being shown then every presumption is in favor of its proceedings. The jurisdictional averments of the record of a limited court are presumed true. Jurisdiction existing, error is irremediable save by appeal. ### The Trial.

SEC. 3880. (2290.) Unless one of the parties demand a trial by jury at or before the time for joining issue, the trial shall be by the justice. Trial by justice.

- Nonsuit. SEC. 3881. (2291.) If the plaintiff fails to appear by himself, his agent or attorney, on the return day, or at any other time fixed for the trial, the justice shall render a judgment of nonsuit against him with costs, except in the case provided in the next section.
- Exception. SEC. 3882. (2292.) When the suit is founded on an instrument of writing purporting to have been executed by the defendant, in which the demand of the plaintiff is liquidated, if the signature of the defendant is not denied under oath, and if the instrument has been filed with the justice previous to the day for appearance, he may proceed with the cause whether the plaintiff appear or not.
- Default. SEC. 3883. (2293.) In the case provided for in the last section, if the defendant does not appear, judgment shall be rendered against him for the amount of the plaintiff's claim.
- Same. SEC. 3884. (2294.) But if, where the plaintiff's claim is not founded on such written instrument, the defendant does not appear, the justice shall proceed to hear the allegations and proofs of the plaintiff, and shall render judgment thereon for the amount to which he shows himself entitled, not exceeding the amount stated in the notice hereinbefore required.
- Same. SEC. 3885. (2295.) In the cases contemplated in the last two sections, if the defendant has previously filed a set-off, founded on a written instrument purporting to have been signed by the plaintiff, calling for a sum certain, the justice shall allow such set-off in the same manner as though the defendant had appeared and shall render judgment accordingly.
- Judgment set aside. SEC. 3886. (2296.) Judgment of nonsuit or by default may be set aside by the justice, at any time within six days after being rendered, if the party applying therefor can show a satisfactory excuse for his default.
- New trial. SEC. 3887. (2297.) In such a case a new day shall be fixed for trial, and notice thereof given to the other party or his agent.
- Costs. SEC. 3888. (2298.) Such orders shall be made in relation to the additional costs thereby created as the justice shall think equitable.
- Execution recalled. SEC. 3889. (2299.) Any execution which may in the meantime have been issued shall be recalled in the same manner as in cases of appeals.
- Venire. SEC. 3890. (2301.) The justice shall thereupon issue his precept to some constable of the township directing him to summon the requisite number of jurors possessing the same qualifications as are required in the district court.
- Number of jurors. SEC. 3891. (2302.) The jury shall consist of six jurors unless a smaller number be agreed upon between the parties. Each party is entitled to three peremptory challenges. Any deficiency in their number arising from any cause may be supplied by summoning others in the manner above directed.
- When jury discharged. SEC. 3892. (2303.) The justice may discharge the jury when satisfied that they can not agree, and shall immediately issue a new precept for summoning another to appear at a time therein fixed, not more than three days distant, unless the parties otherwise agree.
- Motion in arrest. SEC. 3893. (2304.) No motion in arrest of judgment or to set aside a verdict can be entertained by a justice of the peace.
- Verdict. SEC. 3894. (2305.) The verdict of the jury must be general. But where there are several plaintiffs or defendants the verdict may be for or against one or more of them.

Judgment, and Proceedings incident thereto.

SEC. 3895. (2306.) In cases of nonsuit, confession, or on the verdict of a jury, the judgment shall be rendered and entered upon the docket forthwith. In all other cases the same shall be done within three days after the cause is submitted to the justice for final action. Judgment.

SEC. 3896. (2307.) If the sum found for either party, exceed the jurisdiction of the justice, such party may remit the excess and take judgment for the residue, but he can never afterward sue for the amount so remitted. Excess.

SEC. 3897. (2308.) Instead of so remitting the excess the party obtaining such verdict may elect to have judgment of nonsuit entered against the plaintiff, in which case the plaintiff shall pay the costs. Same.
Nonsuit.

SEC. 3898. (2309.) Mutual judgments between the same parties, rendered by the same or different justices, may be set off against each other. Mutual judgments.

SEC. 3899. (2310.) When rendered by the same court, the same course shall be pursued as is prescribed in the district court.

SEC. 3900. (2311.) If the judgment proposed to be set off was rendered by another justice, the party offering it must obtain a transcript thereof with a certificate of the justice who rendered it, indorsed thereon, stating that no appeal has been taken and that the transcript was obtained for the purpose of being used as a set-off in that case. By different justices

SEC. 3901. (2212.) Such transcript shall not be given until the time for taking an appeal has elapsed. Time.

SEC. 3902. (2313.) The justice so giving a transcript shall make an entry of the fact in his docket, and all other proceedings in his court shall thenceforth be stayed. Entry.

SEC. 3903. (2314.) Such transcript being presented to the justice who has rendered a judgment between the same parties as aforesaid, if execution has not been issued on the judgment rendered by him, he shall strike a balance between the judgments and issue execution for such balance. Execution for balance.

SEC. 3904. (2315.) If execution has already issued, the justice shall also issue execution on the transcript filed with him and deliver it to the same officer who has the other execution. Execution.

SEC. 3905. (2316.) Such officer shall treat the lesser execution as so much cash collected on the larger, and proceed to collect the balance accordingly. Set-off.

SEC. 3906. (2317.) The above rules as to set-off are subject to the same prohibition as to setting off costs, when the effect will be to leave an insufficient amount of money actually collected to satisfy the costs of both judgments, as is contained in the rules of proceeding in the district court. Qualification.

SEC. 3907. (2318.) When the judgment of another justice is thus allowed to be set off, the transcript thereof shall be filed among the papers of the case in which it is so used and the proper entry made in the justice's docket. Transcript filed.

SEC. 3908. (2319.) If the justice refuses the judgment as a set-off he shall so certify on the transcript and return it to the party who offered it. When filed in the office of the justice who gave it, proceedings may be held by him in the same manner as though no such transcript had been certified by him. If set-off refused.

- When permissible. SEC. 3909. (2320.) The party obtaining a judgment in a justice's court for more than ten dollars may cause a transcript thereof to be certified to the office of the clerk of the district court in the county.
- Manner and effect. SEC. 3910. (2321.) The clerk shall forthwith file such transcript and enter a memorandum thereof in his judgment docket, noting the time of filing the same, and from the time of such filing it shall be treated in all respects as to its effect and mode of enforcement, as a judgment rendered in the district court as of that date.

Executions and Proceedings thereon.

- By whom and when issued. SEC. 3911. (2322.) Executions for the enforcement of judgments in a justice's court, except when docketed in the office of the clerk of the district court, may be issued by the justice before whom the judgment was rendered, on the application of the party entitled thereto, at any time within five years from the entry of the judgment but not afterwards.

- For thirty days. SEC. 3915. (2326.) Such indorsement must state the amount paid on such execution (if any) and shall continue the execution in full force for thirty days from the date of renewal.
- Property. SEC. 3916. (2327.) Property levied on before such renewal may be retained by the officer and sold after renewal.

- Entries, &c, when evidence. SEC. 3998. (2405.) The entries and other writings of a person deceased made at or near the time of the transaction and in a position to know the facts therein stated, are presumptive evidence of such facts when the entry was made against the interest of the person so making it, or when made in a professional capacity or in the ordinary course of professional conduct, or when made in the performance of a duty specially enjoined by law.

SEC. 3999. (2406.) Books of account containing charges by one party against the other made in the ordinary course of business, are receivable in evidence, only under the following circumstances, subject to all just exceptions as to their credibility :

1. The books must show a continuous dealing with persons generally, or several items of charge at different times against the other party in the same book or set of books.

2. It must be shown by the party's oath or otherwise that they are his books of original entries.

3. It must be shown in like manner that the charges were made at or near the time of the transactions therein entered, unless satisfactory reasons appear for not making such proof.

4. The charges must also be verified by the party or the clerk who made the entries, to the effect that they believe them just and true, or a sufficient reason must be given why such verification is not made.

SEC. 4000. (2407.) Every private writing, except a last will and testament, after being acknowledged or proved and certified in the manner prescribed for the proof or acknowledgment of conveyances of real property, may be read in evidence without farther proof.

SEC. 4001. (1227.) Every instrument in writing affecting real estate, which is acknowledged or proved and certified as hereinbefore directed, may be read in evidence without farther proof.

SEC. 4002. (1228.) The record of such instrument or a duly authenticated copy thereof, is competent evidence whenever by the party's own oath or otherwise the original is shown to be lost, or not belonging to the party wishing to use the same, nor within his control. And in such case it is no objection to the record that no official seal is appended to the recorded acknowledgment thereof, if, when the acknowledgment purports to have been taken by an officer having an official seal, there be a statement in the certificate of acknowledgment that the same is made under his hand and seal of office and the record show by a scroll or otherwise that there was such a seal, which will be presumptive evidence that the official seal was attached to the original certificate.

SEC. 4003. (1229.) The provisions of the preceding section are intended to apply to all instruments heretofore recorded, as well as those hereafter to be recorded.

SEC. 4004. (1230.) Neither the certificate, nor the record nor the transcript thereof, is conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated.

SEC. 4005. (2408.) The judge of the court is a competent witness for either party and may be sworn upon the trial. But in such a case it is in his discretion to order the trial to be postponed or suspended and to take place before another judge.

SEC. 4006. (2409.) Except when otherwise specially provided, no evidence of any of the contracts enumerated in the next succeeding section is competent unless it be in writing and signed by the party charged or by his lawfully authorized agent.

SEC. 4007. (2410.) Such contracts embrace :

1. Those in relation to the sale of personal property when no part of the property is delivered and no part of the price is paid.

Books of account.

Private writing.

Instrument when evidence.

Record, when.

Retrospective.

Certificate.

Judge a competent witness.

Written evidence only admissible.

2. Those made in consideration of marriage, but not including promises to marry.

3. Those wherein one person promises to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, including promises by executors to pay the debt of their principal from their own estate.

4. Those for the creation or transfer of any interest in lands except leases for a term not exceeding one year.

5. Those that are not to be performed within one year from the making thereof.

Exceptions. SEC. 4008. (2411.) The provision of the first sub-division of the preceding section does not apply when the article of personal property sold is not at the time of the contract owned by the vendor and ready for delivery, but labor, skill, or money are necessarily to be expended in producing or procuring the same: nor do those of the fourth sub-division of said section apply where the purchase money or any portion thereof has been received by the vendor, or when the vendee with the actual or implied consent of the vendor has taken and held possession thereof, under and by virtue of the contract, or when there is any other circumstance which by the law heretofore in force, would have taken a case out of the statute of frauds.

The above regulations. SEC. 4009. (2412.) The above regulations, relating merely to the proof of contracts, do not prevent the enforcement of those which are not denied in the pleadings, unless in cases where the contract is sought to be enforced or damages to be recovered for the breach thereof against some person other than him who made it.

Another exception. SEC. 4010. (2413.) Nothing in the above provisions shall prevent the party himself against whom the unwritten contract is sought to be enforced, from being called as a witness by the opposite party nor his oral testimony from being evidence.

Notarial protest. SEC. 4011. The usual protest of a notary public without proof of his signature, or notarial seal, is prima facie evidence of what it recites concerning the dishonor and notice of a bill of exchange or promissory note.

How Testimony is to be Procured.

Subpœna. SEC. 4012. The clerks of the several courts shall, on application of any person having a cause, or any matter pending in court, issue a subpœna for witnesses under the seal of the court, inserting all the names required by the applicant in one subpœna, which may be served by the sheriff, coroner, or any constable of the county, or by the party or any other person. When a subpœna is not served by the sheriff, coroner, or constable, proof of service shall be shown by affidavit; but no costs of serving the same shall be allowed.

Same. SEC. 4013. The subpœna shall be directed to the person therein named, requiring him to attend at a particular time or place, to testify as a witness, and it may contain a clause, directing the witness to bring with him any book, writing, or other thing under his control, which he is bound by law to produce as evidence.

How far sent in civil cases. SEC. 4014. (2416.) Witnesses in civil cases can not be compelled to attend the district court out of the state where they are served, nor at a distance of more than seventy miles from the place of their residence or from that where they are served with a subpœna, unless within the same county. No other subpœna but that from the district court can compel his attendance at a greater distance than thirty miles from his place of residence or of service if not in the same county.

Demand of fees. SEC. 4015. (2417.) Witnesses are entitled to receive (in advance if demande) their traveling fees to and from the court, together with their fees for one day's attendance. At the commencement of each day after the first they are farther entitled on demand to receive the legal fees for that day in advance. If not thus paid they are not compelled to attend or remain as witnesses.

SEC. 4016. (2418.) For a failure to obey a valid subpoena without a sufficient cause or excuse, or for a refusal to testify after appearance, the delinquent is guilty of a contempt of court. He is also liable to the party by whom he was subpoenaed for all consequences of such delinquency, together with fifty dollars additional damages. Disobeying subpoenas.

SEC. 4017. (2419.) Before a witness is thus liable for a contempt for not appearing, he must be served personally with the process by reading it to him, and by leaving a copy thereof with him if demanded, and it must be shown that the fees and traveling expenses allowed by law were tendered to him if required; or it must appear that a copy of the subpoena, if left at his usual place of residence, came into his hands together with the said fees and traveling expenses above mentioned. When enforced.

SEC. 4018. (2420.) If a witness conceal himself or in any other manner attempt to avoid being personally served with a subpoena, any sheriff or constable having the subpoena may use all necessary and proper means to serve the same, and for that purpose may break into any building or other place where the witness is to be found, having first made known his business and demanded admittance. Powers of officer.

SEC. 4019. A person confined in any prison in this state, may, by order of any court of record, be required to be produced for oral examination in the county where he is imprisoned, and in a criminal case in any county in the state; but in all other cases his examination must be by a deposition. Prisoner examined.

SEC. 4020. While a prisoner's deposition is being taken, he shall remain in the custody of the officer having him in charge, who shall afford reasonable facilities for the taking of the depositions.

SEC. 4021. (2477.) When by the laws of any other state or country, testimony may be taken in this state to be used in the courts of such state or country, and also in all cases herein provided for taking depositions, the persons authorized to take such depositions have power to issue subpoenas and compel obedience thereto, to administer oaths, and do any other act of a court which is necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose for which they are acting. Persons authorized by other states.

SEC. 4022. (2478.) Subpoenas issued by them are valid to the same geographical extent as those emanating from a justice's court, and may be served and returned in the same manner. Subpoenas by them valid.

SEC. 4023. (2479.) Any sheriff or constable, when called upon for that purpose, shall serve such subpoenas and make return thereto. Officers must serve.

SEC. 4024. (2421.) In addition to the above remedies, if a party to a suit in his own right, on being duly subpoenaed, fail to appear and give testimony, the other party may, at his option, have a continuance of the cause as in cases of other witnesses, and at the cost of the delinquent. Parties to appear.

SEC. 4025. (2422.) Or the party so calling his opponent may, in such a case, himself become a witness, or, if he shows by his own testimony or otherwise that he could not have a full personal knowledge of the transaction, the court may order his pleading to be taken as true; such order however is subject to be reconsidered during the term of the court, upon satisfactory reasons being shown for such delinquency. Or pleading taken as true.

SEC. 4026. (2423.) The district court may by rule require the production of any papers or books which are material to the just determi- Books and papers to be produced.

nation of any cause pending before it, for the purpose of being inspected and copied by or for the party thus calling for them.

Petition therefor. SEC. 4027. (2424.) The petition for that purpose must state the facts expected to be proved by such books or papers, and that, as the petitioner believes, such books and papers are under the control of the party against whom the rule is sought, and must show wherein they are material. The rule shall thereupon be granted, to produce the books and papers or show cause to the contrary, if the court deems such rule expedient and proper.

Failure to obey. SEC. 4028. (2425.) On failure to obey the rule, or show sufficient cause for such failure, the same consequences shall ensue as if the party had failed to appear and testify when subpoenaed by the party now calling for the books and papers.

Writings. SEC. 4029. (2426.) Though a writing called for by one party is by the other produced, the party thus calling for it is not obliged to use it as evidence in the case.

Documentary Evidence.

- Affidavit. SEC. 4030. An affidavit is a written declaration under oath, made without notice to the adverse party.
- Names in jurat. SEC. 4031. In every affidavit made, the names of the several persons making such affidavit, shall be written in the jurat.
- Certificate. SEC. 4032. When any affidavit is sworn by any person who from his signature appears to be illiterate, or a foreigner imperfectly acquainted with the English language, the officer taking such affidavit shall certify in the jurat, that the affidavit was read in his presence to the party making the same, and that such party seemed to understand the same, and that the said party wrote his mark or signature, in the presence of the officer taking such affidavit.
- Assurance of belief at least. SEC. 4033. All facts authenticated by an oath, should be attended by the assurance of knowledge, or at least of a belief, and to that end, if the facts are stated in a positive manner, the oath may be that the affiant believes them, but if the facts, or any of them, are stated not positively, but as a belief, then the oath must not be of a belief, but of the truth of them, and no swearing to a belief of a belief shall be a sufficient oath.*
- In the first person. SEC. 4034. Every affidavit shall be drawn up in the first person, and the affiant shall sign his name immediately below the matter sworn to.
- Who may certify. SEC. 4035. An affidavit may be made within or without this state, before any person authorized to administer oaths.
- Affidavits out of state. SEC. 4036. (2475.) Affidavits taken out of the state before any judge or clerk of a court of record, or before a notary public or a commissioner appointed by the governor of this state to take acknowledgment of deeds in the state where such affidavit is taken, are of the same credibility as if taken within the state.
- Signature and seal, presumption. SEC. 4037. (2476.) The signature and seal of such of the officers herein authorized to take depositions or affidavits as have a seal, and the simple signature of such as have no seal, are presumptive of the genuineness of such signature as well as of the official capacity of the officer, except as herein otherwise declared.

* We will illustrate the evil to be averted by this section. A. makes a statement in an affidavit thus: "B. is a non-resident of the state of Iowa," and it is sworn to thus: "I believe the facts stated in the petition are true." Or perhaps, the statement is, "I believe B. is a non-resident of the state of Iowa," and it is sworn to thus: "the facts stated in the petition are true." Now, in both these cases the testimonial assurance is that of a belief. Although, formerly more assurance, than this comparative assertion, was in some cases demanded, the demand was not based on any sound philosophy, and now, the above would be, in all cases, where not otherwise provided by express law, sufficient. But, suppose that the petition stated, "I believe B. is a non-resident," and was sworn to thus: "I believe the facts stated in the petition are true." Now, you observe, the assurance is less than that of a belief—it is one stage further from positive assurance. It is not that the party believes, but only that he believes that he believes. The distinction is a plain one, and is practically drawn by men who take such last named oaths, who would not take the former. For, although one can be convicted of perjury on an oath as to his belief of an external fact, for that is a positive assurance, as to his state of mind; yet it is doubtful, if he could be on his belief, not of an external fact, but of his own belief—which is not a positive assurance of his state of mind, but a mere belief as to his state of mind. No form of jurat can be invented, which will avoid the evil. The rule suggests a simple remedy. Let the plaintiff state, in his petition, not states of mind, but facts, under a positive form, and let the jurat contain the qualification of the state of mind—assurance—if one is needed, as, "the facts are true," or "I believe the facts to be true." Much moral perjury which now is done, and can not be reached, will thus be averted. Report on Civil Code, p. 343.

SEC. 4038. (2480.) Where a person is desirous of obtaining the affidavit of another who is unwilling to make the same fully, he may apply to any officer competent to take depositions as herein declared, by petition, stating the object for which he desires the affidavit. Affidavits how compelled.

SEC. 4039. (2481.) If such officer is satisfied that the object is legal and proper, he shall issue his subpoena to bring the witness before him, and if he fails then to make a full affidavit of the facts within his knowledge to the extent required of him by the officer, the latter may proceed to take his deposition by question and answer in writing in the usual way, which deposition may afterwards be used instead of an ordinary affidavit. Same.

SEC. 4040. (2482.) The officer thus applied to, may in his discretion require notice of the taking of such affidavit or deposition to be given to any other person interested in the subject matter and allow him to be present and cross-examine such witness. Notice to opposite party.

SEC. 4041. (2483.) The court or officer to whom any ex parte affidavit is presented as a basis for some action, in relation to which any discretion is lodged with such court or officer, may, if deemed proper, require the witness to be brought before some proper officer and subjected to cross interrogatories by the opposite party. Witness cross-interrogated.

SEC. 4042. (2427.) Publications required by law to be made in a newspaper may be proved by the affidavit of any person having knowledge of the fact, specifying the times when, and the paper in which the publication was made. But such affidavit must, for the purpose now contemplated, be made within six months after the last day of publication. Publications in newspapers.

SEC. 4043. (2428.) The posting up or service of any notice or other paper required by law may be proved by the affidavit of any competent witness, attached to a copy of said notice or paper, and made within six months of the time of such posting up. Posting of papers.

SEC. 4044. (2429.) Any other fact which is required to be shown by affidavit, and which may be required for future use in any action or other proceeding, may be proved by pursuing the course above indicated as nearly as the circumstances of the case will admit. Other facts.

SEC. 4045. (2430.) Such proof so made may be perpetuated and preserved for future use by filing the papers above mentioned in the office of the judge of the county court. And the original affidavit appended to the notice or paper, if there be one, and if not the affidavit by itself, is presumptive evidence of the facts stated therein, but does not preclude other modes of proof now held sufficient. Above proof perpetuated.

SEC. 4046. (2431.) A copy of the field notes of any surveyor or a plat made by him and certified under oath as correct, may be received as evidence to show the shape or dimensions of a tract of land, or any other fact whose ascertainment requires only the exercise of scientific skill or calculation. Field notes and plat of surveyors.

SEC. 4047. (2432.) Duly certified copies of all records and entries or papers belonging to any public office or by authority of law filed to be kept therein, shall be evidence in all cases of equal credibility with the original record or paper so filed. Copies when evidence.

SEC. 4048. It shall be the duty of the recorder, in each of the several counties in this state, to cause to be procured a book, entitled "copies of original entries," to be kept as a record, in his office, in which shall be copied a list of the original entries of lands within his county, with name of the person or persons entering the same, and the date of such entry, for which he shall receive a reasonable compensation, to be audited and allowed by the county judge of his county. Copies of original entries.

- Certified copies therefrom. SEC. 4049. Said book, containing a copy of such entries, when compared with the originals, and certified to as true copies by the register of the land office at which such original entries were made, shall be deemed a matter of record, and certified copies thereof, under the hand of said recorder, may be received and read in evidence in all the courts in this state, with like effect as other certified copies of original papers recorded in his office.
- Additional entries. SEC. 4050. Said recorder shall from time to time, as he may deem it necessary, procure in same manner, copies of any additional entries under the same restrictions, and with like effect, until all the lands in his county shall have been entered, and certified copies of the entries thereof procured.
- Officer to give copies. SEC. 4051. (2433.) Every officer having the custody of a public record or writing is bound to give any person, on demand, a certified copy thereof on payment of the legal fees therefor.
- Copies of maps and documents, &c. SEC. 4052. Copies of all maps, official letters, and other documents in the office of the surveyor general of this state, when certified to by that officer according to law, shall be received by the courts of this state as prima facie evidence of the existence of the originals; and that said copies are copies of the original, notwithstanding such maps, official letters, &c., may themselves be copied.
- Certificates of officer. SEC. 4053. (2434.) The certificate of a public officer that he has made diligent and ineffectual search for a paper in his office, is of the same efficacy in all cases as if such officer had personally appeared and sworn to such facts.

	For copying an opinion to be transmitted to the district court in case of a reversal of judgment, ten cents for every one hundred words, to be paid by the party against whom costs

* The outside history of this chapter is this ; the senate friends of the code, fearing that the question of costs might embarrass its passage, and knowing that this chapter was already the law either of the code of 1851 or of subsequent statutes, struck the same out, not intending thereby to repeal the law, but only to leave the same unchanged. The question then occurs, what effect has section 4187 on this chapter? Is it repealed by omission? Will it be intended that the legislature meant to repeal all of part third of the code which was not printed in the act presented by the commissioners, or all not included in it as finally passed? I include the chapter as modified by the fee bill of clerk and county judge.

AN ACT TO ESTABLISH

---

CHAPTER 179.

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

Name of act.      SECTION 4423. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That this act shall be known as, The Code of Criminal Practice.

* The Code of Criminal Practice was, together with the report thereon, drawn by William Smyth, one of the commissioners, and concurred in by his colleagues, W. T. Barker and Charles Ben Darwin. The concurrence of Mr. Barker, however, was qualified by an objection on a few points, as shown in his separate report on these points. The Code as adopted, was in some measure modified by reason of Mr. Barker's report. As the points involved in his objection are of great interest, and the report difficult to be got, I here subjoin the entire report on the Criminal Code, except an act on appeals, drawn by Mr. Barker as a substitute for the chapter on that subject. The figures used in the report are conformed to the sections of this revision, but in some cases the section, it will be seen, has been changed in its passage.

Remarks of Mr. Barker.—While I unite with Judge Smyth and Mr. Darwin, in recommending the principal parts of the report of the Revising Commissioners, relative to the practice in criminal cases, the report contains several provisions which I am unable to approve.

It is proposed to limit the counsel for the state to one argument before the trial jury, giving the closing argument to the defendant's counsel in all cases. (See section 356 [4785] of the reported act.) This rule does not prevail generally in other states, it has never been the law in this state, and I think there are good reasons, why such innovation should not now be adopted. I am aware, that it is urged that the proposed rule has the sanction of a great name—that of EDWARD LIVINGSTON, but I think however well his reasoning might apply to the conditions of society, the laws and the judicial system of Louisiana, it is not correct, when applied to the present condition of our state. He supports the proposition by the singular reason, among others, that by giving the closing argument to the prosecution, "sometimes defeats the ends of justice by enlisting the feelings of humanity on the side of the accused." He assigns as another reason, that the defendant's counsel "is generally the youngest counsel at the bar," and the public prosecutor "one of the highest abilities and standing." In our state, it is well known that in all prosecutions of much importance, the most experienced and eminent counsel are employed or assigned for the defense. Again, our law prohibits the judge from charging upon the facts, while in Louisiana he may recapitulate any part, or all of the testimony, if desired by the jury so to do.

It is well known that persons on trial charged with a crime, are generally objects of the pity, if not the recipients of active sympathy, from the court, jury and community.

Jurors prefer rather to acquit than convict, and often allow their judgments to be swerved from the even balance of justice through sympathy for the defendant. It is well known, that appeals to the sympathies of jurors, is a staple article in all defenses for great crimes, and verdicts of acquittal are of frequent occurrence, which can be accounted for upon no other hypothesis, and which shake the confidence of injured communities in the ability of judicial tribunals to protect society from crime.

SEC. 4424. The provisions of this act shall regulate the proceedings <sup>What to do.</sup> in all prosecutions in all the courts of this state from and after the first day of September, A. D., 1860, except as hereinafter provided.

In every stage of a criminal prosecution, the rights of the defendant are jealously guarded, and great advantages are allowed him which are denied the state. He is allowed a sufficient number of challenges to make the jury substantially one of his own selection. He is furnished with counsel, by the state, if unable to employ one himself; and his counsel, by a special provision of our statute (Code sec. 1614) is exempted from the obligation resting upon attorneys in other cases, to maintain nothing but what is "legal and just," and is impliedly licensed to obtain the acquittal of his client by any means in his power, whether he believes the defense "legal and just," or not; while it would be a violation of the official and professional oath of the attorney for the state, to avail himself of anything illegal or unjust, or to ask the conviction of a defendant he did not believe had been legally proven guilty.

The defendant is presumed to be innocent until the state has removed every reasonable doubt of his guilt, and that by the most strict legal evidence, for that which would produce a moral conviction in the mind, would be insufficient for the purpose of establishing guilt in a criminal trial.

The defendant is permitted to keep the nature of his defense, and the names of his witnesses secret, until it, and they, are made known on the trial. The dissent of one juror prevents a conviction; and while, if the jury err in acquitting the defendant, he can not be again tried for the same offense, yet the court may, on application of the defendant, or upon its own motion, set aside a verdict of conviction if it believes any error has been committed, or injustice done the defendant.

It is apparent that it must be wholly impossible for the counsel for the state to divine, and properly answer, in advance, all the specious arguments, false propositions of law, erroneous deductions of fact from the evidence, which an experienced counsel might advance in behalf of a defendant. Often several defenses are made and urged with great plausibility, that are first made known by the argument of the defendant's counsel. A capital case was recently tried in this state, in which distinguished and experienced counsel, urged the following several defenses, viz.: 1. That the defendant did not commit the act of killing. 2. That the death was the result of accident, from the act of the deceased. 3. That the killing was accidental by the defendant. 4. That the defendant was insane. 5. That at the time of the killing the defendant was intoxicated and incapable of a murderous intent.

To prohibit the state from replying to the arguments and authorities, which might be introduced to substantiate a defense of such a character, or in fact in any criminal prosecution, would undoubtedly be an "advantage" to the defendant, and would at the same time operate as a denial of justice to the community in many cases that readily suggest themselves to the mind. It might lessen the number of convictions, but would not prevent crime.

The proper administration of the criminal law, is the only shield the state provides the peaceable citizen, for the protection of his person and life, and to a great extent his property, against the acts of the vicious and lawless, and its efficiency should not be weakened by unnecessary legislative restrictions.

I know of no existing evil which the proposed rule would remedy, while its adoption would, in my opinion, tend to a laxity in the enforcement of the criminal law, and to weaken the confidence of the people in the ability of the court for the protection of life and property, and would have a direct tendency from that cause, to revive and extend that state of public feeling so much to be regretted, which has occasioned in some localities, men who otherwise are law-abiding citizens, to band together for the punishment of criminals, without authority of law. The proposed rule is not demanded to secure to the defendant an impartial trial, and is not well adapted to our condition as a people, our judicial system, or the manner of conducting criminal trials.

I do not approve of the chapter on appeals, as reported by the commission, and herewith present a draft of an act, which I think should be substituted for that chapter.

The proposed substitute, is mainly the existing law, revised and amended. The most important change proposed in the present law, and in the report, by the proposed substitute, is designed to prevent appeals in capital cases merely for the purpose of delay.

Appeals in such cases may now be taken without any cause, whatever, except for delay, and thus impose needless expense upon the public.

The proposed substitute secures the defendant all just and reasonable rights, and

Not to render invalid, prosecutions commenced.

SEC. 4425. All prosecutions or proceedings in criminal cases which shall be commenced before the first day of September, A. D. 1860, and which by the existing laws would be valid, shall not be rendered invalid by this act, but may be prosecuted to their conclusion, and enforced according to the existing laws, as if this act had not been passed.

will tend to suppress an existing public evil, which requires a remedy. Legal gentlemen of prominent standing have advised this change, saying to me they felt bound to take advantage of the law for their clients, but believed it unjust to the public.

I think that section 380 [4809] should be modified so as to leave it discretionary with the court to employ a person to keep a record of the testimony, in such cases as it may deem necessary. If the provision be adopted as recommended, it will occasion unnecessary delays, and much needless expense. There are many trivial cases, in which it would cost the county several times more to procure the testimony to be written out in full, than the amount of the fine which would be imposed on the defendant, if convicted. There are but two classes of persons qualified to keep "full and accurate" minutes of the testimony, without seriously delaying the progress of the trial, and they are experienced lawyers and stenographers. To employ either would more than equal the expense of an additional public officer for each judicial district.

I think it would better subserve public interests, to modify section 225 [4647] and strike out section 357 [4886], so as to leave the law on that subject as it existed in the Code. Every person conversant with ordinary proceedings before the grand jury, is aware of the fact, that many witnesses are examined before the jury whose testimony is wholly immaterial to either party. Sometimes the private prosecutor is ignorant that this testimony is incompetent, sometimes mistaken as to what they will testify to; and often the grand jury and the public prosecutor, after finding that a crime has been committed, are unable to ascertain what persons know about it, except from the witness stand; it often being the case that those who know of the commission of an offense, are reluctant from sympathy with the guilty party or from other causes to inform against him until compelled so to do by law.

It is of frequent occurrence that not one half of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, are able to testify to any important material fact, touching the case under investigation.

If all the immaterial witnesses, sworn before the grand jury, are to be recognized or subpoenaed to appear before the trial jury, it will create unnecessary expense to the public, and annoyance to the witnesses; and unless they are to be recognized and subpoenaed, the mere formality of indorsing their names upon the indictment is a useless requirement.

But more serious objections exist against the provision, making it a cause for quashing the indictment, should the grand jury omit by accident or otherwise, to indorse the name of any witness sworn before it upon the indictment. This is carrying technicalities to the utmost extreme.

There are no valid reasons why the state should be limited in establishing the guilt of a defendant to the witnesses, whose names were indorsed upon the indictment by the grand jury, or whose names have been furnished the defendant three days before the trial, with a notice that they will be examined.

It often happens that important witnesses are discovered during the progress of the trial, or immediately before it commences, or it is ascertained that a witness whose testimony was relied upon, as sufficient to establish some material fact, is absent, other persons may be present, who could speak to the same point, yet none of them could be called because the district attorney did not know of their materiality in time to give three days' previous notice of his intention to examine them, and the consequence follows that the defendant must be discharged or the trial postponed.

Such a rule can but operate to increase the expenses of administering the criminal law and aid the guilty in escaping, without affording any real protection to the wrongfully accused.

The supreme court, in the case of the State v. Abrahams, 6th Iowa Reports, page 121, says, "there is no principle of law, or of natural right, which entitles a defendant to a previous knowledge of all the witnesses to be called against him. Our statute has gone sufficiently far, probably, in giving him the knowledge of those upon whose information the charge is based, by requiring their names to be indorsed upon the indictment."

This case overrules the cases of Ray v. the State, and Harriman v. the State, so far as they tended to establish a contrary doctrine.

The section amendatory of the Code, was drafted and reported to the judiciary committee by myself, for the purpose of avoiding the rule partially established in the cases of Ray and Harriman v. the State, prior to the decision in the case of the State v. Abrahams. I am now satisfied that the Code, as construed by the supreme court is the just and proper rule upon that subject.

W. T. BARKER.

Remarks of the majority of the Commissioners on the provisions from which Mr. Barker dissents. 1. Mr. Barker dissents from the provisions of section 225, [4647.] "He thinks it would better subserve the public interest to so modify it as to leave the law on that subject as it existed in the Code of 1851." The provisions of the Code of 1851 on the subject, are contained in section 2913, which reads: "When an indictment is found, the names of the material witnesses for the state examined before the grand jury, or whose depositions have been read before it, must in all cases be indorsed thereon before it is presented to the court." The provision in that section requiring the names of the material witnesses on the part of the state whose depositions have been read before the grand jury to be indorsed has reference to section 2898, of the Code of 1851, which provides that, "the grand jury may when the defendant has been held to answer for a public offense, find an indictment upon the testimony taken before the magistrate." The testimony taken before the magistrate spoken of in section 2898, of the Code of 1851, has reference again to section 2868, of the same Code, which required the testimony given on the part of the state and the defendant, on the preliminary examination, to be reduced to writing, &c., and the testimony thus required to be taken in writing was required by section 2880, of the same Code, to be returned by the magistrate to the district court, before which the defendant had been held to answer. Section 2868 of the Code of 1851, with such other parts of chapter 165 of the same Code as required the magistrate to take this testimony in writing, and return the same to the district court, was repealed by chapter 57, of acts of the 4th general assembly, session laws of 1853, page 94. Now, the majority of this commission was in favor of restoring section 2868, of the Code of 1851, and requiring the testimony before the examining magistrate in all cases to be taken in writing and returned to the district court, and to go farther and require in all cases a preliminary examination before indictment; but Mr. Barker was opposed to it, and for the sake of unanimity a compromise was made on the provisions of sections 171 [4593] and 172 [4594,] of this Code. For these reasons the majority of the commission can not see "that the law on this subject, could have been left as it existed in the Code of 1851," so far as that Code required the names of the material witnesses on the part of the state, whose depositions were read before the grand jury to be indorsed on the indictment. We did not find it in the statute book, and so we could not leave it there. We agreed not to restore it, but compromised as before stated.

Again, who are the material witnesses on the part of the state, as contemplated in section 2913 of the Code of 1851, whose names only, Mr. Barker thinks ought to be indorsed on the indictment, and which would better subserve public interests? Are they the witnesses whose evidence goes to support the case on the part of the state only, and not those whose evidence operates in favor of the defendant also? or, do they include both? If the former, we can not agree with him, if the latter, we think the provisions of section 225 [4647] of this Code, does not materially differ from that of section 2913 of the Code of 1851, relative to the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, which are required to be indorsed on the indictment. Indeed we can not see how it can become very material to public interests, or to the interest of either the state, or the defendant, whether the names of all the witnesses examined before the grand jury, or any of them, are indorsed on the indictment. We think it is at least a matter of convenience, and equally so to the state and the defendant, to have presented at one glance, by this indorsement, the names of all the witnesses so examined. That it is not treated in this Code as very material, we think is apparent from the fact, that although the lack of this indorsement is made by the second sub-division of section 269 [4691,] one, among other grounds, of the motion to set aside the indictment, yet a very easy mode of supplying the defect or omission, is provided in section 270 [4692,] viz.: by the district attorney, or the clerk of the court, correcting the indorsement, by the insertion of the names, or name, omitted, so as to correspond with the minutes required to be kept by the clerk of the grand jury, and returned and presented with the indictment, to the court. This also answers the "more serious objections" urged against

PUBLIC OFFENSES AND THE MODES OF PREVENTING AND PROSECUTING, AND SOME GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Definition of crime.

SECTION 4427. A crime or public offense in the meaning of this code is any act or omission forbidden by law, and to which is annexed upon conviction thereof a punishment.

But it is also alleged against this requirement, "that it frequently occurs that not one-half the witnesses examined before the grand jury, are able to testify to any fact material to the case under investigation," and it is urged "that if all immaterial witnesses so examined, are to be required to appear and testify before the trial jury, it will create unnecessary expense to the public, and annoyance to the witnesses." By reference to section 523 [4951] it will be seen, that it is made the duty of the clerk of the court to issue subpoenas for witnesses, both on the part of the defendant and the state, but on the part of either, only when required. Now the parties need not require the clerk to issue subpoenas for these immaterial witnesses. If the state makes unnecessary expense by requiring immaterial witnesses to be subpoenaed, or by requiring them to enter into an undertaking to appear and testify, the public ought to pay such expense. A little care on the part of the district attorney, a little trouble in examining the minutes of the evidence of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, and which are required to be presented with the indictment to the court, and filed by the clerk, there to remain, open to the inspection of the district attorney, will enable him to determine the materiality of the testimony, (and surely he is more competent to judge of its materiality than the grand jury is,) will save any unnecessary expense to the public. The same is also true as to the defendant, if he makes expenses by subpoenaing immaterial witnesses, he will be making an unnecessary expense which he will certainly have to pay, for by the law as decided in the case of Donnelly v. The County of Johnson, 7 Iowa, 419, (and that law remains unchanged,) the defendant has to pay all his own witnesses, whether convicted or acquitted.

Thus we see if unnecessary expenses are incurred by subpoenaing immaterial witnesses, or requiring them to enter into an undertaking to appear and testify, it can only be under the system in this Code recommended, the result of gross carelessness on the part of either the state or the defendant, and the costs consequent thereon have to be paid by the party in fault. This is as it ought to be, we think. As to the "annoyance to the witnesses," we have seen that they have to be paid, those for the state by the county, those for the defendant have to look to the defendant. The interest of the parties, respectively, we think, will be a sufficient guaranty to the witnesses that they will not wantonly and unnecessarily be annoyed in this respect. But it is said that unless the witnesses, whose names are indorsed on the indictment, "are to be subpoenaed or required to enter into an undertaking to appear and testify, the mere formality of indorsing their names is a useless requirement." Is this all? We think it is at least convenient as we have before stated, and an error or omission in respect to it is easily remedied, as before shown. Besides, the argument, if good for any thing, we think would be good against requiring the names of any of the witnesses to be indorsed; but some indorsement in this particular has always been required by our laws, and we think it will be convenient yet to preserve it. True, there will not be the same necessity for it under the system in this Code recommended, that there is by the system at present in force. But the consequence of a mistake or omission in respect to it, is not near as serious to the indictment under this Code, as under the present system. Under this Code, it is easily remedied, under the system at present in force, the indictment must be set aside, a new one found and presented, and trouble and expense, both to the public and to individuals, thereby incurred.

The system at present in force provides that minutes should be kept by the clerk of the grand jury, but because it does not provide that these minutes should be filed with the clerk of the court, they never have been so filed, and thus no easier mode of correcting the want of, or omission in, this indorsement than the finding and presentment of a new indictment is provided. It can not be denied that the costs of witnesses in criminal cases, are the heavy items in the taxed costs; we can not but believe that this provision will cause more circumspection on the part of the district attorney, than the present system. If he requires the attendance of immaterial witness on the part of the state, when the means of ascertaining and determining their materiality is so easy, he can not avoid the responsibility—he can not shift it to the grand jury, as he may under the present system.

The next objection urged against section 225 [4647] and which grows out of it, but which goes more directly to section 357 [4786] is, “that the state should not be limited on the trial, to the witnesses examined by the grand jury, (see errors and corrections in section 357,) or whose names have been furnished the defendant three days before the trial, with a notice that they will be so examined.” This is no new feature in the criminal practice in this state. It is substantially the recent expression of the legislative will, embodied in chapter 109, of the acts of the seventh general assembly. Session laws of 1858, page 211. This act was passed undoubtedly to remedy what the legislature conceived to be a mischief, in the practice generally established throughout the state; under section 2913 of the Code of 1851, (which Mr. Barker is in favor of leaving as it was,) and a previous statute, similar in its provisions; that no witness could be examined in chief, on the part of the state, whose name was not indorsed on the indictment, if objected to by the defendant, and this practice was certainly sanctioned by the opinions of the supreme court, in Ray v. The State, 1 G. Greene, 316, and Harriman v. The State, 2 G. Greene, 272, and expressly decided in Smith v. The State, 4 G. Greene, 190, and it is believed also, in Montgomery v. The State, not regularly reported. These cases had all been decided long before the legislation of 1858 on the subject, which took effect before June 10th, 1858, the day on which the decision in the case of The State v. Abrahams, (referred to by Mr. Barker) was made; that case having doubtlessly originated before the legislation of 1858 went into effect. We believe, (and those who have had the best means of knowing will attest the correctness of our belief,) that it was no uncommon practice, to indorse the names of witnesses on indictments, who had not been examined before the grand jury, which found and presented them, and yet it will scarcely be denied that to do so was in violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of section 2913 of the Code of 1851. This latter mischief we propose to remedy by the provision of section 225 [4647] of this Code, that the names of “no other” witnesses than those examined before the grand jury, shall be indorsed on the indictment. We have thus endeavored to show that section 2913 of the Code of 1851, was far from being free from objections, that it was capable of being differently understood and construed by different judges and courts, and by the supreme court, at different times, that its provisions were not enforced by sanctions adequate to secure its true intent in its operation, and that it became necessary for the legislature to intervene and declare how it should be construed, and enact some additional provisions, and that section 225 [4647] of the Code, herewith reported, embraces substantially, both the construction and additional enactments of the legislature recently expressed. These provisions are reasonable, and as well calculated to promote the administration of substantial justice, equally to the state and to the defendant, as any which we can conceive of. We can not see how the operation of these provisions can lead in practice to the escape of the guilty, or delay in arriving at justice. We do not believe that such have been their practical operations. Other witnesses can be introduced on the part of the state, without any notice, to rebut the case made by the witnesses for the defense. The state has had its witnesses examined before the grand jury, minutes of their evidence have been kept, it knows what facts each witness will testify to, or may know them, the grand jury are required not to find an indictment, unless all the evidence before it, taken together, is such as in its own judgment would, if unexplained, warrant a conviction by the trial jury, (section 215,) [4637.] If any witness on the part of the state is absent, the minutes of his evidence before the grand jury filed in court and matter of record, show what facts the district attorney expects to prove by the absent witness; if the evidence is material all that he has further to show, is that he has used due diligence to procure the attendance of the witness; if he does this, he can have a continuance to another day in the same term, or to another term. If the evidence of the witness is not material, he has still enough of witnesses aside from the absent one, to make out a case, for the indictment is found, and the evidence must have been sufficient, if unexplained; if he has not used due diligence to procure the attendance of the witness, it is his own neglect, and he ought not to complain. The same is required of the defendant if he asks a continuance, as to the materiality of the evidence, and diligence in procuring it.

Misdemeanor.	SEC. 4430. Every other public offense is a misdemeanor.
How punishable.	SEC. 4431. No person can be punished for a public offense, except upon legal conviction in a court having jurisdiction thereof.
How prosecuted.	SEC. 4432. Every public offense must be prosecuted by indictment, except,

If the state finds a witness who was not examined before the grand jury, by whom any material fact can be proved, by giving the required notice, he can testify on the trial. There is no unreasonable hardship in requiring this, if it expects to prove any fact by the witness, the district attorney usually knows what it is, or ought to know. So far from increasing expenses, we believe it will save expenses; true it will require attention on the part of the district attorney, for instead of subpoenaing witnesses at random, without knowing what he can prove by them, and putting them on the witness-stand in the vague hope of proving something, but what, he knows not, perhaps nothing; he will first make careful inquiry and then subpoena those witnesses only who are material.

We concur with the Code commissioners of the state of New York, who in support of a provision (germain to this) in the criminal code, reported by them to the legislature of that state, in 1850, use the following language:

"The theory of a prosecution is, that the defendant is called upon to explain circumstances appearing against him, which if unexplained, tend to establish his guilt; and to deny him this right, is to convert a criminal prosecution into the means of destroying the defendant, by springing upon him on the trial, when wholly unprepared to explain them, a state of facts which if the opportunity had been allowed would have admitted of abundant explanation."

2. Mr. Barker objects to the change in the existing practice, recommended by the majority of the commissioners, to be introduced by the 5th sub-division of section 356, [4785,] which gives the defendant or his council the right to conclude the argument to the jury. The report of the New York commissioners, before referred to, (which we here take occasion to remark, seems to have been the basis of our criminal practice as contained in the Code of 1851, as it is likewise of the amendments thereto, herewith reported,) contained the same provision. They had drawn to some extent on Livingston's Criminal Code. In defending their recommendation they say—"This provision, independently of the high authority of Mr. Livingston, seems to the commissioners to be well sustained, not merely by every consideration of humanity, but by every principle of justice." Mr. Livingston in recommending its introduction in Louisiana observes—"The order in which the case is opened to the jury, and the proof introduced, is the same as that now in use, but a material change is made by giving the closing argument to the defendant. It was thought that this was proper and just, because it is an advantage, that is to say, a benefit to one party, that the other does not and can not, from the nature of things, enjoy. To whom shall this be given, to the accuser or the accused, to him who asserts, or him who denies? Humanity and justice seem to dictate the answer. Every address to a judge must be supposed to contain a new allegation of fact, a new argument, or a new answer to rebut those which have been offered on the other side; to close the debate, therefore, without suffering the accused to reply to such allegation or argument, would be in so much as regards it, to decide on his case without hearing him. The same thing may be said of the prosecution. The remedy would be to suffer the argument to go on until both parties declared they had nothing further to say; but this would rarely happen, and never until the discussion had been protracted to a length so highly inconvenient as not to be permitted. It seems, then, as has been said, that the nature of the case imposes the necessity of giving this advantage to one party or the other. To give it to the prosecution, sometimes defeats the ends of justice, by enlisting the feelings of humanity on the side of the accused. There is in human nature, when not perverted, a feeling, repugnant to oppression, which generally supposes power to be wrong, and ascribes innocence to weakness, whenever they come in competition with each other; and few cases give such scope to the imagination to exert itself in this way, as that of a criminal on his trial. Squalid in his appearance, his body debilitated by confinement, his mind weakened by misery or conscious guilt, abandoned by all the world, he stands alone, to contend with the fearful odds that are arrayed against him.

It is true he has counsel assigned him; but here again the same feelings operate to lead the judgment astray. This counsel is generally the youngest counselor at the bar, who is thus made to enter the lists with one of the highest abilities and standing, with a reputation so well established as to have made him the choice of government as the depository of its interests. If you add to all this the decided advantage of the closing argument, given to a practiced advocate, whom long habit has taught to avail himself of every weak argument or suspicious fact, and a zeal in the performance of his duty has taught to believe that it is proper to do so ; do this, and of two opposite effects one must be produced, both injurious to the fair administration of justice ; either the jury will be swayed by the sentiment I have endeavored to describe, and feel an undue bias in favor of the prisoner ; or if this fails to act, the last impression given with the force of eloquence and professional skill, may, in doubtful cases, have injurious consequences to the innocent. But give the last word to the accused, and you will do little more than counterbalance the disadvantages inseparable from his situation ; while, by this show of humanity and disdain of using the power in your hands, you neutralize the sentiment that would otherwise be felt in his favor. The provision here recommended makes part of the French code of criminal procedure, and it is said to have, in practice, the most beneficial effects." Liv. Crim. Code, 232, 233.

The New York commissioners in the same report further say, " In addition to the high authority of Mr. Livingston in its support, the commissioners have been informed that petitions very numerous signed, from the county of Chenango, and other counties, were presented at a recent session of the legislature.

The petitioners among other things well say, " Your petitioners deem it a matter of right to every person accused, to be allowed to answer the arguments urged, as well as the proofs given against him, which often, (and especially in cases of innocence,) affect him more injuriously than the evidence itself. Upon a trial lasting several days, or it may be weeks, where a mass of evidence is given, what man can anticipate and answer before hand every mode of reasoning, and all the arguments by which the guilt of the accused may be attempted to be proved and established ? Or all improper inferences which may be ably drawn from each portion of the evidence ? Yet the present law requires this impossibility of one on trial upon a charge involving his liberty or life ! Clearly he should have a full opportunity to answer every inference and argument relied upon to prove his guilt. But the law closes his mouth before these arguments are made or heard ; and requires the jury to form no opinion until after the trial closes ; the last thing before which, is, that one, two, or more counsel are to reason the jury into a conviction of guilt, and to all that may be thus urged to this most important, and often decisive part of the trial, no word of answer of explanation or reply, is permitted ! A change in this respect would never prevent the conviction of the guilty, against whom sufficient evidence was produced to warrant a conviction, but would in a great degree protect the innocent from becoming the victims of the injustice and cruelty of the law, or of the prejudices or mistakes of the jury, a result to which this mode of conducting a trial has so often led.

The circumstances which in all probability gave rise to this petition from a large body of farmers and others in the counties above referred to, are within the knowledge of the commissioners. A reputable citizen of Chenango county was indicted in the city of New York, for the forgery of a draft for 30,000 dollars, which, in a civil action, tried in Otsego county, had been recovered upon him, by the verdict of a jury affirming its genuineness. He was, notwithstanding, brought to trial in New York for forgery. The trial lasted three weeks. On the closing of the evidence, the presiding judge (Edmonds,) declared himself convinced of the genuineness of the draft, and advised that the prosecution be abandoned. The counsel for the people, (one of whom was an eminent lawyer, retained by the private prosecutors,) refused to defer to the opinion of the court, and insisted on going to the jury. The cause was summed up at great length, the private counsel referred to closing the argument, and occupying a day and a half. The cause was submitted to the jury, with a renewed expression of the judge's opinion, and the result was that after being out all night, the jury disagreed, and were discharged.

Nor is this feature of private counsel closing the argument in public prosecutions, of unfrequent occurrence. In cases of great importance it happens every day. The argument therefore, that the representative of the public should have this privilege, in practice often fails. It frequently falls into the hands of distinguished lawyers, representing the feelings of private parties, who, though nominally disinterested, are impelled by the strongest feelings of revenge to obtain a conviction. While the practice continues of permitting private counsel in criminal prosecutions, (a right which was seriously questioned in the Commonwealth v. Knapp, 9 Pick., 496,) it can hardly be contended that the fate of a person, whose life may perhaps be involved in the controversy, should be exposed to the danger of the closing remarks of able and eloquent counsel." N. Y. Crim. Code Rep., 207, 208, 209.

Mr. Barker seems to urge that we propose to limit the counsel for the state to one argument before the jury. To this we simply say, we had no such intention. We merely intended to prescribe the order of argument, so that the district attorney should commence and the defendant or his counsel should conclude it. See the 5th and 6th subdivisions of the section. But lest these are not deemed sufficiently explicit on this point, let the following be added to the 6th subdivision: "If but one counsel argues the case on either side, he shall not be confined to one argument, and in that case the arguments on each side must be made alternately."

It is true, that "this provision does not prevail, generally, in other states," and that "it has never been the law in this state," but it is also true that it has obtained in some, just as we recommend, and qualifiedly in others. We think that a provision should never be rejected merely because it is comparatively new; nor adhered to because it is old. It ought to be submitted to the test of a strict investigation on its own intrinsic merits. That is all we ask for this.

We are not aware of any condition of society in our state, or of our laws, or of our judicial system, that destroys the force of Mr. Livingston's argument, in favor of this provision, as Mr. Barker assumes. We think it can scarcely be denied, that our humane feelings are generally enlisted on the side of the accused, unless in cases where the defendant is accused of an outrageous or prevalent crime; but has not the present rule of practice which we propose to change, a tendency to induce this state of feeling, sometimes to the defeat of justice, as Mr. Livingston observes. Our observation has been that in cases where counsel are assigned to a defendant by the court, unless in cases of high importance, they are usually the younger members of the bar, while our public prosecutors rank among the highest of the profession, in point of ability and standing. In the highest classes of felonies it is true that experience and able counsel are usually employed or assigned for the defense, but it is also true that in such cases, eminent private counsel are usually, at least not unfrequently, employed to assist the public prosecutor. We are not aware that any material difference exists in these respects in this state, from what existed in Louisiana and in other states, at the time Mr. Livingston prepared his code.

It is urged, again, that there is a difference between our system of criminal procedure, and that of Louisiana; that here the law prohibits the judge from charging upon the facts, while there he may recapitulate any part or all of the testimony, if desired by the jury so to do, and that therefore Mr. Livingston's reasoning is inapplicable, and incorrect when applied to our system. It will be seen by reference to the code of procedure, that Mr. Livingston recommended, (art. 354, page 532,) that it does not differ materially from ours in that respect, except that it is provided by article 353, that the judge "shall keep notes of all the testimony offered on either side." And article 354 contains this provision: "but he (the judge) shall not recapitulate the testimony, unless requested so to do by one or more of the jurors, if there should be any difference of opinion between them as to any part of the testimony, and then he shall confine his information to the part on which information is required, it being the intent of this article, that the jury shall decide all questions of fact, in which is included the credit due to the witnesses who have been sworn, unbiased by the opinion of the court."

3. Mr. Barker thinks that section 380 [4809] should be so modified as to leave it discretionary with the court, to employ a person to reduce the testimony to writing, on the trial, in such cases as it deems necessary.

This section, as reported, requires this to be done, on the trial of every indictment, either by the court, or some person by it appointed for the purpose.

It is alleged that "this will occasion unnecessary delay and much useless expense." We think that no reasonable delay is unnecessary, nor any reasonable expense useless, that is necessary to attain substantial justice. We think it will not occasion any unreasonable delay or expense. Some of our district judges do this now, themselves, we believe, and this section provides that those of them who do not themselves see proper to do it, may appoint some other person.

The trivial cases spoken of, in which it is alleged it would cost the county more than the amount of the fine imposed, and which is urged as another objection to this section, we think do not come within indictable offenses—and the section is confined to the trial of an indictment.

We can not agree that none but experienced lawyers and stenographers, can keep full and accurate minutes of the evidence on a trial—our experience has been different. We can not agree that this would make an expense equal to that of an additional public officer for each judicial district, unless the compensation of that officer would be very much less than that of any other district officer, and even if it would make some expense, we do not believe that the amount could be better expended.

Governor Grimes, in his message to the extra session of the fifth general assembly, on the 3d day of July, 1856, recommended the passage of a law embracing, substantially, the principle of this section, to be used in cases of applications to the executive for pardons; he says:

"The constitution confers upon the governor of the state, 'the power to grant reprieves and pardons, and commute punishments after convictions,' for offenses against the laws. In a large proportion of cases, the friends of the persons convicted, endeavor to procure the exercise of this power; and as few, if any, of the judges preserve minutes of the testimony taken on the trial of criminal causes, these efforts are, for the most part, based upon ex parte statements, made without the sanction of an oath, and obtained without notice to the prosecuting attorney, or other person representing the government. It is frequently alleged that there was error in the trial; that the judge mistook the law; and that there was a mistake of fact by the jury; that there is newly discovered evidence, showing the sentence to be unjust; or that the case, although within the letter of the law, was not within the spirit of it.

The interests of society require that this great power should be exercised with humanity, but at the same time with the greatest discrimination and caution. Justice to the officer who is compelled to investigate each case presented to him, as well as to the parties more immediately interested, require that every fact proved upon the trial, should be accessible to him, to the condemned, and to the prosecutors. I therefore recommend, that the judges of the several district courts, be required to reduce the evidence given in all criminal cases to writing, to be preserved as a permanent record, in the county where the trial was held;—and that before any application shall be made to the governor for pardon, a notice of the time and place, when and where the application will be presented, shall be served upon the prosecuting attorney of the county, where the offense was committed."

We propose to apply it to another equally important purpose, to allow it to be used on an appeal to the supreme court, in order to remedy a mischief universally admitted, we believe, to exist, viz.: the inequality of punishment in cases of conviction in the different judicial districts. There is a great latitude of discretion given by our statutes prescribing the punishment of offenses, to the district court, in pronouncing sentence upon the convict. There are eleven judicial districts; there may be more hereafter. There are, and must be, as many judges. These judges have each, perhaps, their own peculiar views relative to the mildness and severity of punishments. At least, all have not, and it would be vain to expect they should entertain, the same or similar views, in this respect. A punishment which one would regard as mild enough, another would regard as severe. Hence, upon a conviction of any designated felony, where the range of punishment vested in the discretion of the court will allow it, (and this the law allows in almost every offense not capital) in one district, the court will perhaps sentence the defendant to imprisonment in the penitentiary for one year, whilst in another district, another defendant for a similar offense, committed under precisely similar circumstances, and accompanied with similar circumstances of aggravation or alleviation, will be sentenced by the courts for two, three, four, five, or more years—and for this the law as it now stands, provides no remedy, but the pardoning power, vested in the governor. The same mischief exists in cases of misdemeanors punishable by fine, or imprisonment in the county jail, or both such fine and imprisonment. Is this as it ought to be? We think it is not. The remedy proposed will be seen by reference to sections 497 [4925] and 498 [4926] of the Code herewith reported. Sections 380 [4809] and 481, [4909] provide for furnishing the evidence on the trial in the district court, to the supreme court, on appeal, that it may fix the measure of punishment in the particular case. Thus, equality of punishments will be secured, at least, in a great measure. In-

THE TERMS MAGISTRATE, AND HIS POWERS, PEACE OFFICER AND OFFICERS OF JUSTICE, AS USED IN THIS CODE, DEFINED.

Magistrate, his powers as such.	SECTION 4439. Any judge of the supreme, district, or county courts, and judge of any city court, any justice of the peace, any mayor of any incorporated city, or town, any police, or other special justice of such city, or town, is authorized to receive complaints and preliminary informations, to issue warrants, order arrests, require security to keep the peace, make commitments and take bail in the manner directed by this code. They are designated under the general term, magistrate .
Peace officers.	SEC. 4440. The following persons respectively, are designated in this code under the general term, peace officer . <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Sheriffs and their deputies.</li> <li>2. Constables.</li> <li>3. Marshals and policemen of incorporated cities and towns.</li> </ol> equality in this respect is injustice. One tribunal can, at least, approximate to equality. Eleven or more different tribunals can not. It will diminish the number of applications to the governor for pardons—or, at least, will have a tendency to do so, whilst proper scope will still, doubtless, be left for the beneficent exercise of executive clemency.

4. Mr. Barker does not approve of chapter 42 [220] of our report, relative to appeals to the supreme court. He proposes a substitute; we have not that before us. We have examined it but once, and that cursorily. We do not like that feature of the substitute which requires an allowance of an appeal by a judge of the supreme or district court. We think an appeal ought to be a matter of right in a criminal case as well as in a civil one. As the law is, in a civil case involving five cents, either party is unrestricted in the right of appeal; so it is as the law now stands in criminal cases—in this feature of our report, no change is introduced. This feature of the substitute is like the provision of the Code of 1851, which was changed by chapter 251 of the acts of the sixth general assembly, session laws of 1857.

2. Judges of the county court, judges of city courts, justices of the peace, mayors of incorporated cities and towns, and police and other special justices of such cities and towns within their respective counties.

Complaint and testimony in writing.

SEC. 4448. A complaint may be laid before either of the magistrates mentioned in the preceding section, that a person has threatened to commit a public offense against the person or property of another, which if actually committed where the same is alleged to have been threatened, would have been triable in the county in which such magistrate has jurisdiction, as prescribed in the preceding section; it shall be the duty of the magistrate to examine such complainant and any witnesses he may produce, and reduce such examination to writing, in the form of affidavits, and cause each affidavit to be subscribed and sworn to before him by the person making it.

The complaint.

SEC. 4449. The affidavit of the complainant shall be called the complaint, and it may state the threat upon the information and belief of the complainant generally, or particularly of his own knowledge, as the truth may be; but must state that the complainant fears, that unless the party complained of is prevented, he will carry his threat into execution.

Magistrate to decide as to probable commission of offense.

SEC. 4450. The affidavits must set forth the facts stated by the complainant or his witnesses, tending to show that there is just reason to fear the commission of the offense, where such facts are ascertained on such examination, to exist; leaving the conclusion as to whether there is just reason to fear the commission of the offense, to be drawn by the magistrate.

When warrant to issue.

SEC. 4451. If it appear from such affidavits that there is just reason to fear the commission of the offense alleged to have been threatened by the person complained of, the magistrate must issue a warrant, directed generally to any peace officer in the state, reciting, briefly, the substance of the complaint, and commanding the peace officer forthwith to arrest the person complained of and bring him before the magistrate who issued the warrant; or in case of his absence, or inability to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate of the same county.

Who may execute warrant.

SEC. 4453. It must be executed by a peace officer. When issued by a judge of the supreme or district court, it may be executed in any county of the state; but when issued by any other magistrate, it must be certified in the manner hereinafter prescribed, for a warrant of arrest, issued on a preliminary information, before it can be executed in any county other than that in which it was issued. When so certified, it may then be executed in any county in the state.

When arrested, before whom taken.

SEC. 4454. When the person complained of is arrested, he must be taken before the magistrate who issued the warrant, or in case of his absence or inability to act, before the nearest or most accessible magistrate of the same county without unnecessary delay.

Proceedings when not taken before magistrate who issued warrant.

SEC. 4455. When the person arrested is taken before a magistrate other than the one who issued the warrant, the peace officer who executed the same, and who has charge of the person arrested, must, at the same time, deliver to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, the warrant with his return indorsed and subscribed by him, and the complaint and other affidavits, if any, on which the warrant was issued, must be sent to the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, and if they can not be procured, the complainant and his witnesses, if any, must be subpoenaed, if necessary, by the magistrate before whom the person arrested is taken, to appear before him and make a new complaint and affidavits.

SEC. 4456. (2781.) When the person complained of is brought before the magistrate, if the charge be controverted the magistrate must take testimony in relation thereto. The evidence must be reduced to writing and subscribed by the witnesses.

For the existence of a state of mind on the part of the juror in reference to the case which, in the exercise of a sound discretion, leads to the inference that he will not act with entire impartiality, and which is actual bias.
Implied bias.	SEC. 4771. A challenge for implied bias may be taken for any of the following causes: 1. Affinity, or consanguinity within the ninth degree, to the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance, the prosecution was instituted, or to the defendant, to be computed according to the rule of the civil law. 2. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, or landlord and tenant, or being a member of the family of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose preliminary information, or at whose instance, the prosecution was instituted, or in his employ on wages. 3. Having served as a juror, in a civil action brought against the defendant, for the act charged as an offense. 8. Having formed or expressed an unqualified opinion, or belief, that the prisoner is guilty or not guilty of the offense charged. 9. If the offense charged be punishable with death, the entertaining of such conscientious opinions as would preclude his finding the defendant guilty; in which case he shall neither be permitted nor compelled to serve as a juror.

SEC. 4778. A peremptory challenge, is an objection to a juror for Same. which no reason need be given, but upon which, the court must exclude him.

SEC. 4779. If the offense charged in the indictment is punishable Same. with death, or imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, or may be so punishable in the discretion of the court, the state is entitled to eight peremptory challenges, and the defendant to twenty, if any other felony, the state to six, and the defendant to sixteen, and if a misdemeanor, the state to two, and the defendant to six.

SEC. 4780. The state shall first exhaust its peremptory challenges, Same. or waive the same, and the defendant afterwards.

THE TRIAL OF THE ISSUE OF FACT ON AN INDICTMENT.

[Code—Chapter 176.]

SECTION 4785. The jury having been empaneled and sworn, the Order of trial. trial must proceed in the following order:

1. The clerk or district attorney must, if the indictment be for a felony, read it, and state the defendant's plea to the jury. In all other cases, this formality may be dispensed with.

2. The district attorney must then offer the evidence in support of the indictment.

3. The defendant or his counsel, may then offer his evidence in support of his defense.

4. The parties may then, respectively, offer rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reason, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original case.

5. When the evidence is concluded unless the case is submitted to the jury on either side, or both sides, without argument, the district attorney must commence, the defendant follow, by one or two counsel at his option, unless the court should permit him to be heard by a larger number, and the district attorney conclude, confining himself to a response to the arguments of the defendant's counsel, provided that where two or more defendants are on trial for the same offense, they may be heard by one counsel each, and provided further that the court, when the affirmative of the issue is with the defendant, may in its discretion award to the defendant the last argument.

6. The court shall then charge the jury in writing without oral explanation or qualification.

Notice of testimony.

SEC. 4786. The district attorney, in offering the evidence in support of the indictment, in pursuance of the order prescribed in the last preceding section, under the second sub-division thereof, shall not be permitted to introduce any witness who was not examined before the grand jury, and the minutes of whose testimony was not taken by the clerk of the grand jury and presented with the indictment to the court, unless he shall have given to the defendant a notice in writing, stating the name, place of residence, and occupation of such witness, and the substance of what he expects to prove by him on the trial, at least three clear days before the commencement of such trial.

Defendant's plea.

SEC. 4787. When the defendant's only plea is a former conviction or acquittal, the order prescribed in the second and third sub-divisions of the section immediately preceding the last, shall be reversed, and the defendant shall first offer his evidence in support of his defense.

Time.

SEC. 4788. The court shall not restrict counsel, as to time, in their argument.

Separate trials.

SEC. 4789. (2992.) When two or more defendants are jointly indicted for felony, any defendant requiring it may be tried separately. In other cases, defendants jointly indicted may be tried separately or jointly in the discretion of the court.

Overt acts.

SEC. 4790. (2996.) Upon a trial for a conspiracy in a case where an overt act is required by law to constitute the offense, the defendant can not be convicted unless one or more overt acts be expressly alleged in the indictment, nor unless one or more of the acts alleged be proved; but other overt acts not alleged in the indictment may be given in evidence.

Higher offense proved.

SEC. 4791. (3000.) If it appear by the testimony that the facts proved constitute an offense of a higher nature than that charged in the indictment, the court may direct the jury to be discharged and all proceedings on the indictment to be suspended, and may order the defendant to be committed or continued on bail to answer any new indictment which may be found against him for the higher offense.

Same.

SEC. 4792. (3001.) If the indictment for the higher offense be dismissed by the grand jury or be not found at the next term, the court must proceed to try the defendant on the original indictment.

Want of jurisdiction.

SEC. 4793. (3002.) The court may also discharge the jury where it appears that it has not jurisdiction of the offense or that the facts as charged in the indictment do not constitute an offense punishable by law.

Same.

SEC. 4794. If the jury be discharged because the court has not jurisdiction of the offense charged in the indictment, and it appear that it was committed out of the jurisdiction of this state, the defendant must be discharged, or ordered to be retained in custody a reasonable time, until the district attorney shall have a reasonable opportunity to inform the chief executive of the state, in which the offense was committed, of the facts, and for said officer to require the delivery of the offender.

SEC. 4795. (3004.) If the offense was committed within the exclusive jurisdiction of another county of this state, the court must direct the defendant to be committed for such time as shall be deemed reasonable to await a warrant from the proper county for his arrest; or if the offense be bailable he may be admitted to bail, in an undertaking with sufficient sureties, that he will within such time as the court may appoint, render himself amenable to a warrant for his arrest from the proper county, and if not sooner arrested thereon will attend at the office of the sheriff of the county where the trial was had, at a certain time particularly designated in the undertaking, to surrender himself upon the warrant, if issued, or that the bail will forfeit such sum as the court may fix, to be mentioned in the undertaking.

new indictment.

SEC. 4796. In the case provided for in the last section, the clerk must transmit, forthwith, a certified copy of the indictment and all the papers in the action, filed with him, except the undertaking mentioned in the last section, to the district attorney of the proper county.

Papers certified.

SEC. 4797. (3006.) If the defendant be not arrested on a warrant from the proper county he shall be discharged from custody, or his bail in the action shall be exonerated, or money deposited instead of bail shall be refunded, as the case may be, and the sureties in the undertaking must be discharged.

Defendant dis-
charged.

SEC. 4798. (3007.) If he be arrested, the same proceedings must be had thereon, as upon the arrest of a defendant in another county on a warrant of arrest issued by a magistrate.

New arrest.

SEC. 4799. (3008.) If the jury be discharged because the facts set forth do not constitute an offense punishable by law, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged therefrom, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded, unless in its opinion a new indictment can be framed upon which the defendant can be legally convicted, in which case the court may direct that the case be submitted to the same or another grand jury.

charged.

SEC. 4800. Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper that the jury should view the place in which the offense is charged to have been committed, or in which any other material fact occurred, it may order the jury to be conducted in a body, in the custody of proper officers, to the place, which shall be shown them by a person appointed by the court for that purpose. The officers must be sworn to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with the jury, on any subject connected with the trial, nor to do so themselves, except the person appointed by the court for that purpose, and that only to show the place to be viewed, and to return them into court without unnecessary delay, at a specified time.

View by jury

SEC. 4801. If a juror have any personal knowledge, respecting a fact in controversy, in a cause, he must declare the same in open court, during the trial, and if during the retirement of the jury a juror declare any fact which could be evidence in the cause, as of his own knowledge, the jury must return into court and the juror must be sworn as a witness, and examined in the presence of the parties, if his evidence be admissible.

Juror a witness.

- Separation of jury. SEC. 4802. The jurors sworn to try an indictment, may, at any time before the final submission of the cause to them, in the discretion of the court, be permitted to separate, or be kept together in charge of proper officers. The officers must be sworn to keep the jury together during the adjournment of the court, and to suffer no person to speak to or communicate with them, on any subject connected with the trial, nor do so themselves, and to return them into court at the time to which it adjourns.
- Not to converse. SEC. 4803. The jury, whether permitted to separate, or kept together, in charge of sworn officers, must be admonished by the court, that it is their duty not to permit any person to speak to, or communicate with them, on any subject connected with the trial, and that any and all attempts to do so, should be immediately reported by them to the court, and that they should not converse among themselves on any subject connected with the trial, or form or express any opinion thereon, until the cause is finally submitted to them. This admonition must be given or referred to by the court, at each adjournment, during the progress of the trial, previous to the final submission of the cause to the jury.
- Juror sick. SEC. 4804. (3013.) If before the conclusion of a trial a juror become sick, so as to be unable to perform his duty, the court may order him to be discharged, and in such case a new juror may be sworn and the trial begin anew, or the jury may be discharged and a new jury then or afterward be impaneled.
- Evidence. SEC. 4805. The rules of evidence in civil cases, are applicable, also, to criminal cases, except as otherwise provided.
- Confession. SEC. 4806. The confession of a defendant, unless made in open court will not warrant a conviction unless accompanied with other proof that the offense was committed.
- Doubt. SEC. 4807. Where there is a reasonable doubt of the defendant being proven to be guilty, he is entitled to an acquittal.
- Same. SEC. 4808. Where there is a reasonable doubt of the degree of the offense, of which the defendant is proven to be guilty, he shall only be convicted of the lower degree.
- Minutes of testimony. SEC. 4809. The court shall, on the trial of every indictment, when requested by either party, keep, or cause to be kept, by some person for that purpose by it appointed, full and accurate minutes of the testimony of each witness examined on the trial, showing the name of the witness, his place of residence, and his occupation, as well as of any oral evidence introduced, either by the state or defendant, after a plea or verdict of guilty, to be considered by the court in aggravation or alleviation of the punishment in pronouncing sentence against the defendant, which shall be certified to be full and accurate by the judge, and signed by him, and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, which shall be deemed a part of the record of the cause.
- One may be convicted. SEC. 4810. (3014.) Upon an indictment against several defendants any one or more may be convicted or acquitted.
- Trial of libel. SEC. 4811. (3015.) On the trial of an indictment for a libel the jury have the right to determine the law and the fact.
- Law and fact who to try. SEC. 4812. (3016.) On the trial of an indictment for any other offense than libel, questions of law are to be decided by the court; saving the right of the defendant and the state to except. Questions of fact are to be tried by the jury. And although the jury have the power to find a general verdict which includes questions of law as well as fact, they are bound nevertheless to receive as law what is laid down as such by the court.

SEC. 4813. The court shall, on motion of either party, instruct the jury on the law applicable to the case, which must always be in writing, signed by the judge and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, and it is to be deemed a part of the record of the cause, and no oral qualification thereof shall be permitted. Instructions in writing.

SEC. 4814. Any instruction asked by either party to be given by the court must be in writing, and must be either given or refused, and so marked and signed by the judge, and filed with the clerk, and so marked by him, and is to be deemed a part of the record. It may be qualified in writing, by the court, but not orally, and the qualification must be distinguished, intelligibly, from the instruction as originally asked by the party, and signed by the judge. Same.

SEC. 4815. After hearing the charge the jury may either decide in court, or may retire for deliberation. If they do not agree without retiring, one or more officers must be sworn to keep them together, in some private and convenient place, without meat or drink, (water excepted,) and not to suffer any person to speak to, or communicate with them, nor speak to, or communicate with them themselves, unless it be to ask them whether they have agreed upon their verdict, and not to communicate to any one the state of their deliberation or the verdict agreed upon, until after the same shall have been declared in open court, and received by the court, and to return them into court when they shall have so agreed upon their verdict, unless by permission, or order of the court, or they be sooner discharged. Officer's duty with jury.

SEC. 4816. (3020.) When a defendant, having given bail, appears for trial, the court may in its discretion at any time after his appearance for trial order him to be committed to the custody of the proper officer to abide the judgment or farther order of the court; and he shall be committed and held in custody accordingly. ## CHAPTER 213.

CONDUCT OF JURY AFTER THE CAUSE IS SUBMITTED TO IT.

[Code—Chapter 177.]

- Jury may take papers. SECTION 4817. (3021.) Upon retiring for deliberation the jury may take with it all papers which have been received as evidence in the case, except depositions and copies of such parts of public records or private documents as ought not, in the opinion of the court, to be taken from the person having them in possession.
- And notes of testimony. SEC. 4818. (3022.) The jury may also take with them notes of the testimony or other proceedings on the trial taken by themselves or any of them, but none taken by any other person.
- Coming into court. SEC. 4819. After the jury have retired for deliberation, if there be any disagreement between them, as to any part of the testimony, or if they desire to be informed on any point of law arising in the cause, they must require the officer to conduct them into court, and upon their being brought in, the information required must be given in the presence of, or after oral notice to, the district attorney and the defendant, or his counsel.
- Juror sick. SEC. 4820. (3024.) If, after the retirement of the jury one of them be taken sick so as to prevent the continuance of his duty, or any other accident or cause occur to prevent their being kept together for deliberation, the court may discharge them.
- When discharged. SEC. 4821. (3025.) Except as provided in the last section, the jury can not be discharged after the cause is submitted to them until they have agreed upon their verdict and rendered it in open court, unless by the consent of both parties entered upon the record, or unless at the expiration of such time as the court may deem proper it satisfactorily appear that there is no reasonable probability that the jury can agree.
- New trial. SEC. 4822. (3026.) In all cases where a jury is discharged or prevented from giving a verdict by reason of any accident or other cause, except where the defendant is discharged from the indictment, during the progress of the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, the cause may be again tried at the same or another term of the court.
- Adjournment of court. SEC. 4823. (3027.) While the jury is absent the court may adjourn from time to time as to other business, but it shall nevertheless be deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury until a verdict be rendered or the jury is discharged.
- Same. SEC. 4824. (3028.) A final adjournment of the court discharges the jury.

CHAPTER 214.

VERDICT.

[Code—Chapter 178.]

SECTION 4825. (3029.) When the jury has agreed upon its verdict <sup>Return of jury.</sup> it must be conducted into court by the officer having it in charge. The names of the jurors must then be called, and if all do not appear the rest must be discharged without giving a verdict. In such case the cause may be again tried at the same or another term.

SEC. 4826. (3030.) If the indictment be for a felony the defendant <sup>Defendant's presence</sup> must be present at the rendition of the verdict. If it be for a misdemeanor the verdict may be rendered in his absence.

SEC. 4827. (3031.) When the jury have answered to their names <sup>Verdict rendered</sup> the court or the clerk shall ask them whether they have agreed upon the verdict, and if the foreman answers in the affirmative they must on being required declare the same.

SEC. 4828. (3032.) The jury may either render a general verdict, <sup>General or special.</sup> or where they are in doubt as to the legal effect of the facts proven, they may, except upon an indictment for libel, find a special verdict.

SEC. 4829. (3033.) A general verdict upon a plea of not guilty is <sup>General.</sup> either "guilty," or "not guilty," which imports a conviction or acquittal on every material allegation in the indictment. Upon a plea of a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense it is either "for the state" or "for the defendant."

SEC. 4830. (3034.) A special verdict is that by which the jury finds <sup>Special.</sup> the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. It must present the conclusions of fact as established by the evidence and not the evidence to prove them, and these conclusions of fact must be so presented as that nothing remains to the court but to draw conclusions of law upon them.

SEC. 4831. (3035.) The special verdict must be reduced to writing <sup>Same</sup> by the jury or in their presence, entered upon the minutes of the court, read to the jury and agreed to by them, before they are discharged.

SEC. 4832. (3036.) The special verdict need not be in any particu- <sup>Same</sup> lar form but shall be sufficient if it present intelligibly the facts found by the jury.

SEC. 4833. (3037.) The court must give judgment upon the special <sup>Judgment</sup> verdict as follows :

1. If the plea be not guilty and the facts prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged in the indictment or of any other offense of which he could be convicted in law, under that indictment, judgment shall be given accordingly. But if the facts found do not prove the defendant guilty of the offense charged or of any offense of which he could be so convicted under the indictment, judgment of acquittal must be rendered.

2. If the plea be a former conviction or acquittal of the same offense, the court must give judgment of conviction or acquittal according as the facts prove or fail to prove the former conviction or acquittal.

SEC. 4834. (3038.) If the jury do not, in a special verdict, pro- <sup>Verdict necessary</sup> nounce affirmatively or negatively on the facts necessary to enable the court to give judgment, or if they find the evidence of facts merely, and not the conclusions of fact from the evidence as established to their satisfaction, the court may order them to retire for farther deliberation.

- Degrees of offense. SEC. 4835. Upon an indictment for an offense consisting of different degrees, the jury may find the defendant not guilty of the degree charged in the indictment, and guilty of any degree inferior thereto, or of an attempt to commit the offense, if punishable by indictment.
- Other offense than charged. SEC. 4836. (3039.) In all other cases the defendant may be found guilty of any offense the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged in the indictment.
- May agree as to part. SEC. 4837. (3040.) On an indictment against several, if the jury can not agree upon a verdict as to all they may render a verdict as to those in regard to whom they do agree, on which a judgment shall be entered accordingly and the case as to the rest may be tried by another jury.
- Verdict insufficient. SEC. 4838. (3041.) If the jury render a verdict which is neither a general nor special verdict, the court may direct them to reconsider it and it shall not be recorded until it be rendered in some form from which it can be clearly understood what is the intent of the jury, whether to render a general verdict, or to find the facts specially and to leave the judgment to the court.
- Informal. SEC. 4839. (3042.) If the jury persist in finding an informal verdict, from which however it can be understood that their intention is to find for the defendant upon the issue, it shall be entered in the terms in which it is found, and the court must give judgment of acquittal. But no judgment of conviction can be given unless the jury expressly find against the defendant upon the issue, or judgment be given against him upon a special verdict.
- Jury polled. SEC. 4840. (3043.) When a verdict is rendered and before it is recorded, the jury may be polled on the requirement of either party; in which case they shall be severally asked whether it be their verdict, and if any one answer in the negative, the jury must be sent out for further deliberation.
- When juror disagrees. SEC. 4841. When the verdict is given, and is such as the court may receive, the clerk may immediately enter it in full upon the record, and must read it to the jury, and inquire of them whether it is their verdict. If any juror disagree, the fact must be entered upon the record, and the jury again sent out; but if no disagreement be expressed, the verdict is complete, and the jury must be discharged from the case.
- Insanity of defendant. SEC. 4842. If the defense be the insanity of the defendant, the jury must be instructed, if they acquit him on that ground, to state that fact in their verdict. The court may thereupon, if the defendant be in custody, and his discharge is deemed dangerous to the public peace and safety, order him to be committed to the Iowa insane hospital, or retained in custody until he becomes sane.
- Discharge of defendant. SEC. 4843. (3045.) If judgment of acquittal be given on a general verdict and the defendant be not detained for any other legal cause, he must be discharged as soon as the judgment is given.

DECISIONS. The degree in murder must be determined by the verdict, 7 Iowa, 236; general verdict of guilty and many counts, 8 Iowa, 477; form of verdict, 8 Iowa, 533; 1 G., 550; correcting verdict, 4 G., 140; 2 G., 191; presence of prisoner when verdict is pronounced for felony, 2 G., 270; sec. 3029 is directory, 7 Iowa, 255.

CHAPTER 215.

BILLS OF EXCEPTION.

[Code—Chapter 179.]

SECTION 4844. On the trial of an indictment, exceptions may be taken by the state, or by the defendant, to any decision of the court upon matters of law, in any of the following cases: Exceptions.

1. In disallowing a challenge to an individual juror.

2. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence on the trial of any challenge.

3. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or evidence, or in deciding any matter of law, not purely discretionary, on the trial of the issue.

SEC. 4845. Nothing herein contained is to be construed, so as to deprive either party of the right of excepting to any action or decision of the court, which affects any other material or substantial right of either party, whether before or after the trial of the indictment, or on such trial. How to be construed.

SEC. 4846. The office of a bill of exceptions is to make a part of the proceedings or evidence appear of record, which would not otherwise so appear. Office of bill of exceptions.

SEC. 4847. All papers pertaining to the cause and filed with the clerk, and all entries made by the clerk in the record book, pertaining to them, and showing the action or decision of the court upon them, or any part of them, are to be deemed parts of the record, and it is not necessary to except to any action or decision of the court, so appearing of record. Papers parts of record.

SEC. 4848. Either party may allege an exception to any decision or action of the court, on any application of either party, which may be, and is made orally to the court, in any stage of the proceedings upon which the decision or action of the court is not required to be, and is not entered in the record book, and reduce the same to writing, and tender the same to the judge, whose duty it is to sign it; and if he sign the same, it shall be filed with the clerk, and thereupon become a part of the record of the cause; but if the judge refuse to sign it, such refusal must be stated at the end thereof, and it may then be signed by two or more attorneys or officers of the court or disinterested bystanders, and sworn to by the persons so signing the same, and filed with the clerk, and it shall thereupon become a part of the record of the cause. Either party may except to decision of court.

The said company hereby agree to pay the state the sum of twenty thousand dollars, which sum shall be paid to the order of the commissioner of the Des Moines river improvement, (as fast as he may require the same, to liquidate existing liabilities against said Des Moines river improvement,) on thirty days' notice given to said company at their office in the city of New York; and any bonds or certificates of indebtedness against said improvement not exceeding in amount the sum of eleven thousand dollars, which are now due and unpaid, are to be received in part payment of said sum of twenty thousand dollars: provided, that no liabilities assumed by the state in this contract, shall be a charge against the state in her sovereign capacity, but all such liabilities, if any, shall be chargeable upon and payable out of the remaining lands belonging to the Des Moines river grant; and provided also, that if congress shall permit a diversion of the lands of said Des Moines river grant, or the title thereto shall become vested in the state, so as to become subject to grant, the said remaining lands, after the payment of all the liabilities, as aforesaid, against said improvement, and the completion of such locks and dams on the Des Moines river as the legislature shall direct, shall be granted to the Keokuk, Fort Des Moines and Minnesota railroad company, to aid in the construction of a railroad up and along the valley of the Des Moines river, upon such terms and in such manner as the legislature may provide, one-fourth of which said lands shall be applied by said company to aid in the construction of said road above the city of Des Moines: and provided further, that if the said Des Moines navigation and railroad company shall ratify and accept these propositions for a contract by filing a written acceptance thereof in the office of the secretary of state within sixty days from the passage of this joint resolution, then this contract shall be in force and bind both of the parties thereto.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate, that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient suffrance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former system of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained, and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies, at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected ; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large, for their exercise ; the state remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states ; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners ; refusing to pass others, to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction, foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws ; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation.

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us :

For protecting them by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states :

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world :

For imposing taxes on us without our consent :

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury :

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses :

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies :

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments :

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy, scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress, in the most humble terms ; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts, by their legislature, to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connexions and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world, for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connexion between them and the state of Great Britain, is, and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and do all other acts and things, which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

SEC. 2. No two or more states shall enter into any treaty confederation, or alliance whatever between them, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, specifying accurately the purposes for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

SEC. 3. No state shall lay any imposts or duties, which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties, entered into by the United States in congress assembled, with any king, prince, or state, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by congress, to the courts of France and Spain.

SEC. 4. No vessels of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any state, except such number only, as shall be deemed necessary by the United States in congress assembled, for the defense of such state, or its trade; nor shall any body of forces be kept up by any state, in time of peace, except such number only, as in the judgment of the United States in congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such state; but every state shall always keep up a well regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutred, and shall provide and constantly have ready for use, in public stores, a due number of field-pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition, and camp-equipage.

SEC. 5. No state shall engage in any war without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, unless such state be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such state, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit of a delay, till the United States in congress assembled, can be consulted; nor shall any state grant commissions to any ships or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States in congress assembled, and then only against the kingdom or state and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States in congress assembled, unless such state be infested by pirates, in which case vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States in congress assembled, shall determine otherwise.

ART. 7. SEC. 1. When land forces are raised by any state for the common defense, all officers of or under the rank of colonel shall be appointed by the legislature of each state respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such state shall direct, and all vacancies shall be filled up by the state which first made the appointment.

ART. 8. SEC. 1. All charges of war, and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several states, in proportion to the value of all land within each state, granted to, or surveyed for, any person, as such land and the buildings and improvements thereon shall be estimated, according to such mode as the United States in congress assembled, shall, from time to time, direct and appoint.

SEC. 2. The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several states, within the time agreed upon by the United States in congress assembled.

ART. 9. SEC. 1. The United States in congress assembled, shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article; of sending and receiving ambassadors, entering into treaties and alliances, provided that no treaty of commerce shall be made, whereby the legislative power of the respective states shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners, as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever; of establishing rules for deciding, in all cases, what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated; of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace; appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas; and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures: provided, that no member of congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

SEC. 2. The United States in congress assembled, shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that hereafter may arise between two or more states concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever, which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: Whenever the legislative or executive authority, or lawful agent of any state in controversy with another, shall present a petition to congress, stating the matter in question, and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of congress, to the legislative or executive authority of the other state in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint, by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question; but if they can not agree, congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven, nor more than nine names, as congress shall direct, shall in the presence of congress be drawn out by lot; and the persons whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges, to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges who shall hear the cause shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons which congress shall judge sufficient; or being present, shall refuse to strike, the congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each state, and the secretary of congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court, to be appointed in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear or defend their claim or cause, the court shall nevertheless proceed to pronounce sentence, or judgment, which shall in like manner be final and decisive; the judgment or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to congress, and lodged among the acts of congress, for the security of the parties concerned: provided, that every commissioner, before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the state where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection, or hope of reward:" provided also, that no state shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

SEC. 3. All controversies concerning the private right of soil, claimed under different grants of two or more states, whose jurisdictions, as they may respect such lands, and the states which passed such grants, are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different states.

SEC. 4. The United States in congress assembled, shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective states; fixing the standard of weights and measures throughout the United States; regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the states: provided, that the legislative right of any state, within its own limits, be not infringed or violated; establishing and regulating post offices from one state to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same, as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office; appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers; appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States; making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

SEC. 5. The United States, in congress assembled, shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of congress, to be denominated "A Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each state; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction; to appoint one of their number to preside: provided, that no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses; to borrow money or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective states an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted; to build and equip a navy; to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each state for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such state, which requisition shall be binding; and thereupon the legislature of each state shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and clothe, arm, and equip them, in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so clothed, armed, and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States, in congress assembled; but if the United States, in congress assembled, shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any state should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other state should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, clothed, armed and equipped, in the same manner as the quota of such state, unless the legislature of such state shall judge that such extra number can not be safely spared out of the same, in which case they shall raise, officer, clothe, arm, and equip, as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared, and the officers and men so clothed, armed, and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States, in congress assembled.

SEC. 6. The United States, in congress assembled, shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander-in-chief of the army or navy, unless nine states assent to the same, nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States, in congress assembled.

SEC. 7. The congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances, or military operations, as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each state, on any question, shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a state, or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislatures of the several states.

ART. 10. The committee of the states, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of congress, such of the powers of congress as the United States, in congress assembled, by the consent of nine states, shall, from time to time, think expedient to vest them with: provided, that no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which, by the articles of confederation, the voice of nine states, in the congress of the United States assembled, is requisite.

ART. 11. Canada acceding to this confederation, and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into, and entitled to all the advantages of this Union: but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine states.

ART. 12. All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed, and debts contracted by or under the authority of congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ART. 13. Every state shall abide by the determinations of the United States, in congress assembled, on all questions which by this confederation are submitted to them. And the articles of this confederation shall be inviolably observed by every state, and the Union shall be perpetual; nor shall any alteration at any time hereafter be made in any of them, unless such alteration be agreed to in a congress of the United States, and be afterwards confirmed by the legislatures of every state.

And whereas it hath pleased the great Governor of the world to incline the hearts of the legislatures we respectfully represent in congress, to approve of, and to authorize us to ratify the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, Know ye, that we, the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do, by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained. And we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents, that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States, in congress assembled, on all questions which by the said confederation are submitted to them; and that the articles thereof shall be inviolably observed by the states we respectively represent, and that the Union shall be perpetual. In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, in congress.

AN ORDINANCE,

- One district. Be it ordained by the United States, in Congress assembled, That the said territory, for the purposes of temporary government, be one district; subject, however, to be divided into two districts, as future circumstances may, in the opinion of congress, make it expedient.
- Descent of estates. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That the estates both of resident and non-resident proprietors in the said territory, dying intestate, shall descend to and be distributed among their children, and the descendants of a deceased child, in equal parts; the descendants of a deceased child or grandchild, to take a share of their deceased parent in equal parts among them; and where there shall be no children or descendants, then in equal parts to the next of kin, in equal degree; and among collaterals, the children of a deceased brother or sister of the intestate, shall have, in equal parts among them, their deceased parent's share; and there shall, in no case, be a distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood; saving, in all cases, to the widow of the intestate her third part of the real estate for life, and one-third part of the personal estate; and this law relative to descents and dower shall remain in full force until altered by the legislature of the district. And until the governor and judges shall adopt laws, as hereinafter mentioned, estates in the said territory may be devised or bequeathed by wills in writing, signed and sealed by him or her, in whom the estate may be, (being of full age,) and attested by three witnesses; and real estates may be conveyed by lease and release, or bargain and sale, signed, sealed and delivered by the person, being of full age, in whom the estate may be, and attested by two witnesses, provided such wills be duly proved, such conveyances be acknowledged, or the execution thereof duly proved, and be recorded within one year after proper magistrates, courts and registers shall be appointed for that purpose; and personal property may be transferred by delivery; saving, however, to the French and Canadian inhabitants, and other settlers of the Kaskaskias, Saint Vincents, and the neighboring villages, who have heretofore professed themselves citizens of Virginia, their laws and customs now in force among them, relative to the descent and conveyance of property.
- Dower. Be it ordained by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be appointed, from time to time, by congress, a governor, whose commission shall continue in force for the term of three years, unless sooner revoked by congress; he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in one thousand acres of land, while in the exercise of his office.
- Wills. There shall be appointed from time to time, by congress, a secretary, whose commission shall continue in force for four years, unless sooner revoked; he shall reside in the district, and have a freehold estate therein, in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of his office. It shall be his duty to keep and preserve the acts and laws passed by the legislature, and the public records of the district, and the proceedings of the governor in his executive department; and transmit authentic copies of such acts and proceedings every six months, to the secretary of congress. There shall also be appointed a court, to consist of three judges, any two of whom to form a court, who shall have a common law jurisdiction, and reside in the district, and have each therein a freehold estate in five hundred acres of land, while in the exercise of their offices; and their commissions shall continue in force during good behaviour.

The governor and judges, or a majority of them, shall adopt and publish, in the district, such laws of the original states, criminal and civil, as may be necessary and best suited to the circumstances of the district, and report them to congress from time to time; which laws shall be in force in the district until the organization of the general assembly therein, unless disapproved of by congress; but afterwards the legislature shall have authority to alter them as they shall think fit.

The governor for the time being, shall be commander-in-chief of the militia, appoint and commission all officers in the same, below the rank of general officers; all general officers shall be appointed and commissioned by congress.

Previous to the organization of the general assembly, the governor shall appoint such magistrates and other civil officers, in each county or township, as he shall find necessary for the preservation of peace and good order in the same. After the general assembly shall be organized, the powers and duties of the magistrates and other civil officers shall be regulated and defined by the said assembly; but all magistrates and other civil officers, not herein otherwise directed, shall, during the continuance of this temporary government, be appointed by the governor.

For the prevention of crimes and injuries, the laws to be adopted or made, shall have force in all parts of the district, and for the execution of process, criminal and civil, the governor shall make proper divisions thereof; and he shall proceed from time to time, as circumstances may require, to lay out the parts of the district, in which the Indian titles shall have been extinguished, into counties and townships, subject, however, to such alterations as may thereafter be made by the legislature.

So soon as there shall be five thousand free male inhabitants of full age, in the district, upon giving proof thereof to the governor, they shall receive authority, with time and place, to elect representatives from their counties or townships, to represent them in the general assembly: provided, that for every five hundred free male inhabitants, there shall be one representative, and so on progressively with the number of free male inhabitants, shall the right of representation increase, until the number of representatives shall amount to twenty-five, after which, the number and proportion of representatives shall be regulated by the legislature: provided, that no person be eligible or qualified to act as a representative, unless he shall have been a citizen of one of the United States three years, and be a resident in the district, or unless he shall have resided in the district three years, and in either case shall likewise hold in his own right, in fee simple, two hundred acres of land within the same: provided also, that a freehold in fifty acres of land in the district, having been a citizen of one of the states, and being resident in the district, or the like freehold, and two years' residence in the district shall be necessary to qualify a man as an elector of a representative.

The representative thus elected shall serve for the term of two years; and in case of the death of a representative, or removal from office, the governor shall issue a writ to the county or township for which he was a member, to elect another in his stead, to serve for the residue of the term.

† The object of the constitution was to establish three great departments of government: the legislative, the executive, and the judicial departments. The first was to pass laws; the second to approve and execute them; the third to expound and enforce them. Martin, heir at law of Fairfax v. Hunter's Lessee, 1 Wheat., 304; 3 Cond. Rep., 575.

The constitution unavoidably deals in general language. It did not suit the purpose of the people in framing this great charter of our liberties to provide for minute specifications of its powers, or to declare the means by which those powers were to be carried into execution. It was foreseen that that would be a perilous and difficult, if not impracticable task. The instrument was not intended merely to provide for the exigencies of a few years, but was to endure through a long lapse of ages; the events of which were locked up in the inscrutable purposes of Providence. It could not be foreseen what new changes and modifications of power might be made indispensable to effectuate the general objects of the charter; and restrictions and specifications which at present might seem salutary, might in the end prove the overthrow of the system itself. Hence its powers are expressed in general terms; leaving to the legislature, from time to time, to adopt its own means to effectuate legitimate objects, and to mould and remodel the exercise of its own powers as its own wisdom, and the public interests should require. Martin, &c. v. Hunter, 1 Wheat., 304; 3 Cond. Rep., 575.

	thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative, and until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.*
Vacancies.	When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.
Officers. Impeachment.	The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.
Senate.	SEC. 3. The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.
Senators classed.	Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.
Qualifications of senators.	No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.
Vice-president.	The vice-president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.
Senate to choose its officers.	The senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore , in the absence of the vice-president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.
To try impeachments.	The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.
Judgment on impeachment.	Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit, under the United States; but the party convicted

Ohio was established as a state of the Union by act of April 30, 1802. Louisiana was admitted into the Union April 30, 1812. Indiana was admitted into the Union December 11, 1816. shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

SEC. 4. The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof, but the congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations except as to the places of choosing senators. Election of members of congress.

The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day. Congress to meet annually.

SEC. 5. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each house may provide. Elections, how judged. Quorum.

Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member. Rules.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question, shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal. Journals.

Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting. Adjournment.

SEC. 6. The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house, they shall not be questioned in any other place. Compensation: privileges.

No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office. Exclusion from office.

SEC. 7. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives; but the senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills. Bills for revenue.

Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

Resolutions, &c., to be approved.	Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.
Powers of congress. Taxes.	SEC. 8. The congress shall have power,* To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises,† to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;‡
Borrowing.	To borrow money on the credit of the United States;§
Commerce.	To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes.§

* Congress must possess the choice of means, and must be empowered to use any means, which are in fact conducive to the exercise of a power granted by the constitution. United States v. Fisher et al., Assignees of Blight, 2 Cranch's Rep., 358; 1 Cond. Rep., 421.

The powers granted to congress are not exclusive of similar powers existing in the states, unless where the constitution has expressly, in terms, given an exclusive power to congress; or the exercise of a like power is prohibited to the states; or there is a direct repugnancy, or incompatibility in the exercise of it by the states. The example of the first class is to be found in the exclusive legislation delegated to congress over places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be located for forts, arsenals, dock yards, &c.; of the second class, of the prohibition of a state to coin money, or emit bills of credit; of the third class, the power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and the delegation of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction. In all other cases the states retain concurrent authority with congress. Houston v. Moore, 5 Wheat., 1; 4 Cond. Rep., 589.

An act of congress repugnant to the constitution can not become the law of the land. Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137; 1 Cond. Rep., 267.

The mere grant of power to congress does not imply a prohibition on the states to exercise the same power. Whenever the terms in which such a power is granted to congress require that it should be exercised exclusively by congress, the subject is as completely taken from the state legislatures, as if they had been expressly forbidden to act upon it. Sturges v. Crowningshield, 4 Wheat., 122; 4 Cond. Rep., 409.

† The power of congress to levy and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, is co-extensive with the territory of the United States. Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat., 317; 4 Cond. Rep., 660.

The power of congress to exercise exclusive legislation, in all cases whatever, within the District of Columbia, includes the power of taxing it. Ibid.

The authority of congress to lay and collect taxes, does not interfere with the power of the states to tax for the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the states, an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat., 1; 5 Cond. Rep., 562.

‡ The constitutional provision that direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states, according to their respective numbers, to be ascertained by a census, was not intended to restrict the power of imposing direct taxes to states only. Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat., 317; 4 Cond. Rep., 660.

§ An act of congress, laying an embargo for an indefinite period of time, is constitutional and valid. The United States v. The William, 2 Hall's Am. Law Jour., 255.

The power of regulating commerce extends to the regulation of navigation. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat., 1; 5 Cond. Rep., 562.

The power to regulate commerce extends to every species of commercial intercourse between the United States and foreign nations, and among the several states.

To establish an uniform rule of naturalization,* and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States;†

To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures;

To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States;

To establish post offices and post roads;

To promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries;

To constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court;

To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations;‡

To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water;

To raise and support armies; but no appropriation of money, to that use, shall be for a longer term than two years;

It does not stop at the external boundary of a state; but it does not extend to a commerce which is completely internal. Ibid.

The power to regulate commerce is general, and has no limitations but such as are prescribed by the constitution itself. This power, so far as it extends, is exclusively vested in congress, and no part of it can be exercised by a state. Ibid.

The power of regulating commerce extends to navigation carried on by vessels employed in transporting passengers. Ibid.

All those powers which relate to merely municipal legislation, or which may be properly called internal police, are not surrendered (by the states) or restrained, and consequently in relation to those the authority of a state is complete, unqualified and exclusive. The City of New York v. Miln, 11 Peters, 102.

The act of the legislature of New York, passed February, 1824, entitled "an act concerning passengers in vessels arriving in the port of New York," is not a regulation of commerce, but of police; and being so, it was passed in the exercise of a power which belonged to that state. Ibid.

The power to regulate commerce, includes the power to regulate navigation, as connected with the commerce with foreign nations and among the states. It does not stop at the mere boundary line of a state, nor is it confined to acts done on the waters or in the necessary course of the navigation thereof. It extends to such acts done on the land, which interfere with, obstruct or prevent the due exercise of the powers to regulate commerce and navigation with foreign nations, and among the states. Any offense which thus interferes with, obstructs, or prevents such commerce and navigation, though done on land, may be punished by congress, under its general authority to make all laws necessary and proper to execute their delegated constitutional powers. The United States v. Lawrence Coombe, 12 Peters, 72.

Persons are not the subjects of commerce, and not being imported goods, they do not fall within the meaning founded upon the constitution, of a power given to congress, to regulate commerce, and the prohibition of the states for imposing a duty on imported goods. Ibid. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat., 1; 5 Cond. Rep., 562.

* Under the constitution of the United States, the power of naturalization is exclusively in congress. Chirac v. Chirac, 2 Wheat., 259; 4 Cond. Rep., 111; Houston v. Moore, 5 Wheat., 1; 4 Cond. Rep., 589.

† The powers of Congress to establish uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcy throughout the United States, does not exclude the right of the states to legislate on the same subject, except when the power is actually exercised by congress, and the state laws conflict with those of congress. Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat., 213; 6 Cond. Rep., 523; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat., 122; 4 Cond. Rep., 409.

Since the adoption of the constitution of the United States, a state has authority to pass a bankrupt law, provided such law does not impair the obligation of contracts: and provided there be no act of congress in force to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy, conflicting with such law. Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat., 122; 4 Cond. Rep., 409.

‡ The act of the 3d March, 1819, chap. 76, sec. 5, referring to the law of nations for a definition of the crime of piracy, is a constitutional exercise of the power of congress to define and punish that crime. United States v. Smith, 5 Wheat., 153; 4 Cond. Rep., 619. See also United States v. Palmer, 3 Wheat., 610; 4 Cond. Rep., 352.

Navy.	To provide and maintain a navy ;
Rules for.	To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces ;
Militia and its organization.	To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions ; To provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the states respectively, the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by congress ;*
Exclusive authority over district	To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular states, and the acceptance of congress, become the seat of the government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards, and other needful buildings. And
General authority.	To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.†
Limitation of powers. Importation of persons.	SEC. 9. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight ; but a tax of duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.
Habeas corpus.	The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it.‡
Attainder, &c.	No bill of attainder or ex post facto law, shall be passed.§
Direct tax.	No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.
Commercial duties and preferences.	No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any state. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another ; nor shall vessels bound to or from one state be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties in another.

* The act of congress of February 28, 1795, to provide for the calling out the militia to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions, is within the constitutional powers of congress. Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat., 19 ; 6 Cond. Rep., 410.

Titles of nobility.

SEC. 10. No state shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation; grant letters of marque and reprisal; coin money; emit bills of credit; make any thing but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts;* pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.† Limitations on the states.

No state shall, without the consent of the congress, lay any imposts or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws; and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any state on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the congress.‡ No state shall, without the consent of congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into any agreement or compact with another state, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay. Of commerce, war, &c.

Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector. † If any act of the legislature is repugnant to the constitution, it is, ipso facto, void; and it is the duty of the court so to declare it. Vanhorne's Lessee v. Dorrance, 2 Dall., 304.

Whatever may be the case in other countries, yet here there can be no doubt that any act of the legislature repugnant to the constitution is absolutely void. Ibid. Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87; 2 Cond. Rep., 308.

The legislature of a state can pass no ex post facto law. An ex post facto law is one which renders an act punishable, which was not punishable when it was committed. Ibid. Houston v. Moore, 5 Wheat., 1; 4 Cond. Rep., 589.

same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose, by ballot, one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list, the said house shall, in like manner, choose the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors, shall be the vice president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them, by ballot, the vice president.*

Meeting of electors. The congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

Qualification for presidency. No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

Vice president, when to act. In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president, and the congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the president and vice president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a president shall be elected.

Compensation of president. The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive during that period any other emolument from the United States or any of them.

Appointment of Officers.

The president shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session. Fill vacancies.

SEC. 3. He shall from time to time give to the congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them; and in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. He shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; and shall commission all the officers of the United States. † Prigg v. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 16 Peters, 539. The clause in the constitution relating to fugitives from labor, manifestly contemplates the existence of a positive, unqualified right on the part of the owner of the slave, which no state law or regulation can in any way qualify, regulate, control, or restrain. Any law or regulation which interrupts, limits, delays, or postpones the rights of the owner to the immediate command of his service or labor, operates pro tanto, a discharge of the slave therefrom. The question can never be, how much he is discharged from; but whether he is discharged from any service by the natural and necessary operation of the state laws, or state regulations. The question is not one of quantity and degree, but of withholding or controlling the incidents of a positive right.

The owner of a fugitive slave has the same right to take him in a state to which he has escaped or fled, that he had in the state from which he escaped; and it is well known that this right to seizure or re-capture is universally acknowledged in all the slave-holding States. Ibid.

Citizens of the United States have a right to expatriate themselves in time of war as well as of peace, until restrained by congress. Such right is subject to the control of the legislature, and to render the exercise of it valid, there must be an entire departure from the United States for a purpose which is not illegal, nor in fraud of the duties at home of the emigrant. *Talbot v. An Act supplementary to the act entitled "an Act to prescribe the mode in which the Public Acts, Records and Judicial Proceedings in each state shall be authenticated so as to take effect in every other state."

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from * Art. 4, sec. 1, Constitution of the United States.—The decisions of the courts of the United States upon this statute, and on the introduction of evidence of the "acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the states," have been:

Under the 4th article and 1st section of the constitution of the United States, and the act of 26th May, 1790, if a judgment has the effect of record evidence in the courts of the state from which it is taken, it has the same effect in the courts of every other state; and the plea of nil debet is not a good plea to an action brought upon such judgment in the court of another state. Mills v. Duryee, 7 Cranch, 483; 2 Cond. Rep., 578; see Leland v. Wilkinson, 6 Peters, 317; United States v. Johns, 4 Dall., 412; Ferguson v. Harwood, 7 Cranch, 408; 2 Cond. Rep., 548; Drummond's administrators v. Magruder's trustees, 9 Cranch, 122; 3 Cond. Rep., 303.

Under the act of May 26, 1790, prescribing the mode in which the public records in each state shall be authenticated, so as to take effect in every other state, copies of the legislative acts of the several states, authenticated by having the seal of the state affixed thereto, are conclusive evidence of such acts in every other state. No other formality is required, than the annexation of the seal, and in the absence of all contrary proof, it must be presumed to have been done by an officer having custody thereof, and competent authority to do the act. United States v. Amedy, 11 Wheat., 392; 6 Cond. Rep., 362.

The record of a judgment in one state is conclusive in another, although it appears that the suit in which it was rendered was commenced by an attachment of property, the defendant having afterwards appeared and taken defense. Mayhew v. Thatcher, 6 Wheat., 129; 5 Cond. Rep., 34.

In an action upon a judgment, in another state, the defendant can not plead any fact in bar which contradicts the record on which the suit is brought. Field v. Gibbs, Peters' C. C. R., 155; see Green v. Sarmiento, Peters' C. C. R., 74; Blount v. Darrah, 4 Wash. C. C. R., 657; Turner v. Washington, 3 Wash. C. C. R., 126.

and after the passage of this act, all records and exemplifications of office books, which are or may be kept in any public office of any state, not appertaining to a court, shall be proved or admitted in any other court or office in any other state, by the attestation of the keeper of the said records or books, and the seal of his office thereto annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of the presiding justice of the court of the county or district, as the case may be, in which such office is or may be kept; or of the governor, the secretary of state, the chancellor or the keeper of the great seal of the state, that the said attestation is in due form, and by the proper officer; and the said certificate, if given by the presiding justice of a court, shall be farther authenticated by the clerk or prothonotary of the said court, who shall certify under his hand and the seal of his office, that the said presiding justice is duly commissioned and qualified; or if the said certificate be given by the governor, the secretary of state, the chancellor or keeper of the great seal, it shall be under the great seal of the state in which the said certificate is made. And the said records and exemplifications, authenticated as aforesaid, shall have such faith and credit given to them in every court and office within the United States, as they have by law or usage in the courts or offices of the state from whence the same are, or shall be taken.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That all the provisions of this act, and the act to which this is a supplement, shall apply as well to the public acts, records, office books, judicial proceedings, courts and offices of the respective territories of the United States, and countries subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, as to the public acts, records, office books, judicial proceedings, courts and offices of the several states.

To what acts the provisions of this law shall apply.
