SEC. 1898. Nature of business—statement. All building and loan or savings and loan associations, upon receiving the certificate from the auditor, shall have power, subject to the terms and conditions contained in their articles of incorporation and by-laws, to issue stock to members to be paid for in single, stated, or monthly payments, but not more than ten thousand dollars of stock, computed at par value, of any kind shall be issued to one person; to assess and collect from members such dues, membership fees, fines, premiums, and interest on loans as may in the articles of incorporation and by-laws have been provided, and the same shall not be held to be usurious; to permit members, other than holders of guarantee stock, to withdraw all or a part of their stock deposits upon such terms and at such times as the articles of incorporation and by-laws may provide; to acquire, hold, encumber and convey such real estate and personal property as may be necessary for the transaction of their business; to make loans to members on such terms, conditions and securities as the articles of incorporation and by-laws provide; said loans to be made only on real estate security, or on the security of their own shares of stock, not to exceed ninety per cent. of the withdrawal value thereof. It shall be the duty of the secretary of every such association doing business in this state to prepare, on or before February fifteenth of each year, a duly verified statement, showing the book value and withdrawal value of a share of each class of stock in said association, for each monthly period up to January first preceding, and file the same with the auditor of state, which shall be preserved in his office. And the said association shall, on or before February fifteenth of each year, mail to each shareholder a written or printed copy of the same. In case of foreclosure, the borrower shall be charged with the full amount of the loan made to him, together with the dues, interest, premium and fines for which he is delinquent, and he shall be credited with the same value of his pledged shares as if he had voluntarily withdrawn the same. In event that judgment is obtained against a borrower from a building and loan association, no greater recovery shall be had than the net amount of principal actually received, with interest thereon at a rate not greater than twelve per centum per annum on the net amount of loan actually received by and paid to borrower, with statutory attorney fees; no evasion of this provision shall be had by means of any dues, membership fees, premiums, fines, forfeitures or other charges, any agreement to the contrary notwithstanding. [The provisions of said section shall apply to and govern all contracts between building and loan and savings and loan associations and their members, made and entered into prior to the taking effect of the code, and every such contract shall in all actions and proceedings be construed and enforced as in said section provided, and with the same force and effect as if made and entered into after the code took effect, anything in the statutes in force when such contracts were made to the contrary notwithstanding.] [26 G. A., ch. 85, § 9; C., '73, §§ 1185, 1186.] [27 G. A., ch. 48, § 1.]

Powers: While a building and loan association can only loan money on the security prescribed by statute, yet, as incident to the transaction of its business, it may make a loan on real property on the basis of a valuation fixed with reference to improvements to be made, and accept a bond as security that such improvements will be made in order that the value of the property shall be sufficient to sustain the loan. Home Sav. & Trust Co. v. Fidelity & Dep. Co., 115-394.

In the absence of express prohibition a building and loan association has the power to borrow money, such power being implied from the general nature of its business. Bohn v. Boone Bldg. & Loan Assn., 112 N. W. 199.

Therefore held that in accordance with its usual course of business the president and secretary of such association had authority to execute a note to the holder of matured stock for the amount he was entitled to thereon. Ibid.

Where a contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member is void on the ground that it gives to the member a preference over other members, the association is only entitled to recover the amount actually loaned, with interest. Winegardner v. Equitable Loan Co., 120-485.

A contract between a building and loan association and a borrowing member, by which it is agreed that the stock of the member shall mature and constitute a full satisfaction of the loan, after a specified number of payments of dues, premium, and interest, regardless of whether the profits of the association have been in fact such as to mature the stock, is invalid. Such a contract involves the appropriation to the benefit of the borrowing member of assets of the association contributed by other members, thus giving the borrowing member a preference to which he is not entitled. Winegardner v. Equitable Loan Co., 120-485.

The legalizing act of 27 G. A., chap. 48, with reference to building and loan associations, does not validate a previous contract of such association with borrowing members which gives them a preference over other members in the distribution of the assets of the association. Winegardner v. Equitable Loan Co., 120-485.

Settlement: Where the by-laws contained provisions for withdrawal of members and paying back contributions out of the loan fund, only a percentage of which could be used for such purpose, held, that the withdrawal member was not a preferred creditor as to the funds of the association after it had become insolvent, the percentage of the fund applicable to the payment of withdrawals having been exhausted. Rabbit v. Wilcoxon, 103-35.

Where the association is insolvent and unable to pay each stockholder the book value of his shares, the borrowing shareholder is entitled only to credit for the withdrawal value of his shares, and not for the book value consisting of the amount of installments paid on the stock and the earnings thereof at the last dividend period. If a borrowing member is allowed for all the payments he has made and the earnings thereof, the loss of the association will fall upon the members who have not borrowed, and inequality between the two classes of members will result. An equitable distribution of the assets, if any, in excess of the liabilities, should be effected, and the borrowing member should only be entitled to credit for the actual value of his shares. Wilcoxon v. Smith, 107-555.

There is nothing in the statute authorizing a building and loan association to raise money on certificates in any other way than by issuing shares of stock, and the stockholders constitute its members. Teller v. Wilcoxon, 110-565.

Therefore the holder of a certificate of stock is not a creditor of the association entitled to preference over other members in the winding up of its affairs. Ibid.

In the settlement of the affairs of an insolvent building and loan association a borrowing member whose stock has not matured is to be held for the amount of money actually received by him, with interest thereon, less the premium actually paid by him for the loan, and less the interest on the monthly payments of interest made by him. This rule applies to cases where the affairs of the association are not so far settled as to ascertain the value of the stock. When the value of the stock can be determined, the borrower should then be entitled to credit for its value, in addition to the items mentioned. Hale v. Kline, 113-523.

Premiums form a part of the profit fund when paid, and go to the increase of value of shares. If the association is insolvent the borrower should be allowed his share of the profit fund, made up in part of the premiums, but no further credit on account of premiums paid. Briggs v. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn., 114-232.

The fact that interest is exacted monthly instead of at longer intervals will not make the contract usurious. Ibid.

The borrower cannot be required to pay more than twelve per cent. per annum, payable monthly, on the loan. Iowa Cent. Bldg. & L. Assn. v. Vogt, 115-59.

Where the association is solvent and seeking foreclosure, a withdrawing shareholder is entitled to have credited on his stock the dues, but not the premiums paid, for the latter go into the profit fund, and are to be shared equally by all members. But where the association is insolvent, a borrowing member is entitled to credit on his debt for premiums paid, but not for interest nor dues. Spinney v. Miller, 114-210; Tootle v. Singer, 118-533.

In an action by the receiver of a building and loan association after it has become insolvent and ceased to be a going concern, to recover the amount of a loan made to a borrowing member, the member is entitled to have credited upon his loan the interest as paid, and the amount of the premiums paid as of the time of payment, and upon the balance, computing from the time of the appointment of the receiver of the association, the member is chargeable with interest at six per cent., and entitled to credit for the actual value of the shares of stock held by him. Spinney v. Chapman, 121-38.

In determining the net amount of the loan, monthly payments exacted in advance are not to be included. Oskaloosa Nat. B. L. & L. Assn. v. Bailey, 129-287.

When the borrower announces his desire to cease further payment of monthly payments, and to take up his mortgage, and negotiations are begun to ascertain the amount paid, the amount of the indebtedness becomes fixed and from that time interest should be allowed on such amount at the ordinary rate. Ibid.

The net amount of the loan on which interest may be computed does not include an amount credited by way of advance payment on stock; the association can only recover the amount actually paid to or advanced for the mortgagor. Butson v. Home Sav. & Trust Co., 129-370.

This rule is not affected by the fact that the company has become insolvent and gone into the hands of a receiver. Ibid.

Every payment which goes to advance or accelerate the process of maturing the stock is a payment in some degree or measure on the debt, irrespective of whether by the contract such payment is to be directly applied in discharge thereof. Ibid.

A provision fixing a withdrawal value on stock held not to entitle the borrower to credit on foreclosure to the full amount of such withdrawal value. Le Mars Bldg. & L. Assn. v. Burgess, 129-422.

A borrower cannot recover back money voluntarily paid to a building and loan association in excess of the amount due on his loan. Carter v. Iowa State Business Mens' B. & L. Assn., 112 N. W. 828.

Premiums, interest, usury: Where the borrower has authorized the secretary of the association to make a certain bid for priority of loan, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the bid was made by the secretary and the money obtained thereby. In such a transaction the contract is not usurious, no interest being charged on the premium bid. Hawkeye State Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Johnston, 106-218.

It is not unconstitutional to authorize building and loan associations to charge by way of interest or premium more than the lawful rate of interest. The profits inure to the benefit of the borrower with other stockholders. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Heidt, 107-297.

In the absence of express statutory provision it is not lawful for the association to exact from the borrower a sum by way of premium which in addition to the interest contracted for renders the amount to be paid for the loan greater than lawful interest. But payment by the borrower of necessary expenses in making the loan in addition to legal interest will not constitute usury. Ibid.

The association may deduct from the amount of the loan charges for making abstract, examination of the same and appraisal. If these charges are actually for amounts paid out it is immaterial that they are entered as expenses for making the loan. Ibid.

The association may deduct a portion of the dues to cover the expense of management. Ibid.

The statute authorizes penalties for the non-payment of dues and unless exorbitant they will not be unlawful. Ibid.

It is not required that the premium be paid in advance. It may be made payable in monthly installments. But the premium provided for must be fixed and paid in good faith to secure the loan, and not as a mere device to evade the law against usury. If the sums nominally paid as premium and interest together exceed the loaned, and the monthly payments of premium and interest together exceed the highest rate of interest allowed by law, the loan is usurious. Wilcozen v. Smith, 107-555.

Under the provisions of § 1185 of the Code of '73, authorizing building and loan associations to levy, assess and collect from the members dues, fines, interest and premiums, which shall not be construed to make the loan usurious, held that even though it were necessary to avoid the usury law in such case that the association adopt a by-law authorizing the collection of such dues, interest and premiums, the existence of such by-law was sufficiently shown by the instrument evidencing the loan. Building Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Froelich, 110-244.

The burden is upon the borrower to show that there was in fact no bidding for the right of precedence in making the loan, which would serve as a basis for a premium. Ibid.

To take a loan out of the general law as to usury on the ground that it is authorized as a contract with a building and loan association, it must appear that the lender is in fact such an association, and the mere form of the contract of loan will not evidence that fact. Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Assn., 118-401.

The curative act, removing the objection of usury to loans of building associations is valid as to contracts previously made, if the borrower continues to recognize the contract as valid after the change in the law. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107-297; Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Curtis, 107-504.

Building and loan contracts are exempted from the operation of the general law relating to usury. Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129-422.

Where a loan had been purged of usury by the provisions of 27 G. A., chap. 48, held that the repeal of that act by 28 G. A., chap. 69, did not restore the defense of usury as against such loan. Edworthy v. Iowa S. & L. Assn., 114-220; Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129-422.

Loans made by a building and loan association to a member, which would otherwise be usurious, but which are legalized by 27 G. A., chap. 48, are valid, not only as to the member, but as to a third party who has become surety of the member for such loan. There is no illegality involved in accepting personal security for a loan to a member. Le Mars B. & L. Assn. v. McLain, 120-527.

Under this section and the legalizing act of 27 G. A., chap. 48, the computation of interest which is to be made in determining whether the contract with the building and loan association is usurious is to be on the principal sum without rests occasioned by the payment of interest, dues and premiums, and if the total amount of interest and premium paid and delinquent is larger than the principal sum with twelve per cent. interest thereon, then the statutory limit has been exceeded and the borrower is entitled to credit for the excess in addition to the withdrawal value of his stock. Bacon v. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn., 121-449.

The borrower may be charged with such interest, dues and penalties as are provided for by his contract unless the total amount of the charge exceeds the net loan received by him with twelve per cent. per annum thereon. In such event he is not to be required to pay more than such net amount with twelve per cent. interest. In computing the amount paid by way of interest, dues and premiums, the borrower is not to be allowed interest on such sums paid as on partial payments. Iowa Dep. & Loan Co. v. Matthews, 126-743.

Usurious interest provided for in a building and loan contract made before the enactment of chapter 48, acts of 27 G. A., held to be legalized by that statute. Co-operative Bank v. Meldrum, 128-694.

As to the legalizing act, 27 G. A., chap. 48, see Guaranty S. & L. Assn. v. Ascherman, 108-150.

The act of 27 G. A., chap. 48, legalizing loans previously made by such associations, is applicable to foreign as well as domestic companies. Tootle v. Singer, 118-533; Spinney v. Chapman, 121-38.

The mere establishment of the right to the withdrawal value of stock does not give the stockholder a preference, but if the corporation although insolvent, but before being put into the hands of a receiver, pays a portion of the withdrawal value the transferee of the stock is entitled to dividends on the balance in the same proportion as other stockholders, and the previous payment cannot be accounted as a dividend by the receiver. McKee v. Home Savings & Trust Co., 133-548.

SEC. 1898-a. Repeal. Chapter forty-eight (48) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 12.]

The repeal of the act of 27 G. A., does not render unlawful loans which, though unlawful when made, were rendered valid by such act of 27 G. A. Edworthy v. Iowa Sav. & Loan Assn., 114-220.

[The above section repeals the portion of the preceding section inclosed in brackets, which is section 1, chapter 48, of the 27th G. A.]

SEC. 1898-b. Loans, contracts and mortgages legalized. All loans, contracts, and mortgages which are affected by the repeal of said chapter forty-eight (48), acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, are hereby legalized so far as to permit recovery to be had thereon for interest at the rate of eight (8) per cent. per annum, but at no greater rate, and nothing contained in such contracts shall be construed to be usurious so as to work a forfeiture of any penalty to the school fund. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 16.]

SEC. 1898-c. Forbidden stocks—rate of dividend. That no building and loan or savings and loan associations shall issue guaranty stock, fully paid stock, or single payment stock, or any stock of any other kind or name which shall receive fixed dividends, or is not subject to all the liabilities of all other classes of stock of said associations, except that it shall be lawful for such associations to issue fully paid stock upon the payment by the holder thereof of the par value of such stock upon which the dividends to be declared shall not exceed the sum named in said certificate of stock, but in no event shall the dividend exceed eight per cent. per annum nor the rate of dividend declared upon the other stock of said association, which said stock shall be subject to be called in and redeemed by the said association by giving the holder thirty days' notice thereof. But such stock shall not be entitled to vote at any stockholders meeting. Any association having heretofore issued stocks forbidden by this section must retire the same on or before January 1st, 1901, and the same may be retired either by paying the amount due thereon in cash or by the issuing of stock permitted to be issued by the provisions of this section. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 1.]

The holder of stock bearing a fixed dividend issued prior to the statute prohibiting the issuance of such stock, upon giving notice of its withdrawal for the purpose of retiring it, in conformity with the statute, is entitled to legal interest on the amount due from the time of such notice. Kellenberger v. Oskaloosa Nat. B. L. & I. Assn., 129-582.

SEC. 1898-d. Foreclosure of mortgage—costs. In case of foreclosure of any mortgage given by a shareholder of any such association, the mortgagor shall be charged with the rate of interest agreed upon, not however to exceed eight per cent. per annum, and shall be entitled to be credited, as of any anniversary of said mortgage, with the total amount of all payments made on the stock to the said association during the preceding year, and such payment on the stock shall be treated as a payment upon the mortgage, anything in the articles of incorporation or the by-laws of such association to the contrary notwithstanding. If such association shows affirmatively that losses have occurred during the period of the membership of such shareholder in excess of the amount of any fund accumulated from which to pay such losses, to such an extent that the value of the shares of stock have been impaired, then such associations shall be entitled to have entered as a part of the judgment of foreclosure the equitable contribution of said shareholder toward such losses. If, by the articles of incorporation, the withdrawal value of the stock of such mortgagor is greater than the amount paid thereon, together with eight per cent. interest then such withdrawal value shall be credited on the mortgages of the date to which such value is computed, in lieu of the credits of payment on stock as aforesaid, and judgment and decree shall be rendered for only the balance found due, provided, however, that on any mortgage executed between October 1, 1897, and the date of the taking effect of this act, the rate of interest may be computed at the rate therein named, but in no case at a greater rate than twelve per centum per annum on the net amount of the loan actually received by and paid to the borrower, and no evasion of this provision shall be had by means of any dues, premiums, membership fees, fines, forfeitures, or other charges, any agreement to the contrary notwithstanding. In any suit in which the recovery upon the mortgage shall be for a less amount than the amount demanded in the plaintiff's petition, all costs of suit, including attorney's fees, may in the discretion of the court be taxed to the plaintiff. Provided, further, that in case of foreclosure judgment and decree shall be entered for as much as would be due the association under the provisions of this act if suit had not been brought. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 6.]

The fact that on foreclosure of a mortgage the association claims a larger judgment than it is entitled to does not deprive it of the right to attorneys' fees as contemplated in the statute. Le Mars Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Burgess, 129-422.

SEC. 1899-a. Loans—premium and interest. Such associations shall have power to loan money to their members at such rate as may be agreed upon, and may collect premiums and interest thereon, but in no case shall the amount of premium and interest paid exceed eight per cent. per annum, but nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting the payment of such interest and premium monthly, or at such time as may be provided for in the articles of incorporation. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 4.]

SEC. 1900. Voting shares of stock.

The provision that no person shall vote more than ten per cent. of the outstanding shares of the association is applicable to the action of stockholders in adopting a proposition for voluntary liquidation under Code Supplement, § 1907-a. McKee v. Home Sav. & Trust Co., 122-731.

A proxy given before the adoption of the provision for voting on voluntary liquidation does not authorize the holder to use such proxy in voting on the question. Ibid.

SEC. 1902-a. Expenditures and expenses—compensation of officers and agents. All expenditures and expenses for management and conducting the affairs of said associations, not including membership fees and charges for closing loans, shall be paid from the receipts of interest, premiums, and other sources of profit. Said associations may thus use for expenses in any one year a sum not in excess of the following percentages on their assets, as shown by the last annual report, to-wit: Associations with assets not in excess of $100,000, three per centum per annum; associations with assets in excess of $100,000, but less than $300,000, two and one-half per cent.; associations in excess of $300,000, and less than $500,000, two and a quarter per cent.; and associations with assets in excess of $500,000, two per cent.; but in no event shall the expenses of any association exceed $12,000 in any one year. No officer, employe, or agent of any association shall receive directly or indirectly any salary or other compensation, except for services actually rendered; and any compensation hereafter paid in violation of this section may be recovered by any shareholder or borrower within three years from the receipt of such illegal compensation from the person accepting the same, or from any officer knowingly consenting to the allowance thereof, in a suit which may be brought in the name of the association, or in the name of such shareholder or borrower. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 2.]

After the enactment of 28 G. A., chap. 69, it was not competent for a building and loan association to carry out a contract previously made by which an agent was entitled to a percentage of the gross expense fund received in the business of the association, inasmuch as no such expense fund could be provided by the association. Wood v. Iowa Bldg. & Loan Assn., 126-464.

SEC. 1903-a. Fines—terms of withdrawal. Any stockholder in arrears in payments may be fined in a sum not in excess of three cents per share of one hundred dollars each for the first month's delinquency and five cents per share of one hundred dollars each for each succeeding month's delinquency; but said penalty shall only be due and payable from the profits belonging to said delinquent. The terms of withdrawal of a member from such association shall be such that any withdrawing member shall receive a sum not less than he has paid into said association, unless losses have occurred to said association, during the time that said withdrawing member was a member, which exceed the amount of the profits, or any fund created with which to pay such losses, and in that case such withdrawing member shall be charged with his proportionate share of the excess of the losses over the profits, and no more. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 3.]

SEC. 1903-b. Withdrawal of non-borrowing members. The articles of incorporation of any building and loan or building and savings association may, by a three-fourths vote of the board of directors, provide that non-borrowing members shall withdraw their stock at book value in the order of its issue, beginning with the stock first issued, by giving the stockholders thereof thirty days notice. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 5.]

SEC. 1906-a. Detailed statement published. The auditor of state shall publish, in his report of building and loan and savings and loan associations, a detailed statement of the salaries and compensation paid, and to whom, giving the names of the officers and agents respectively receiving such salaries. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 13.]

SEC. 1907-a. Voluntary liquidation. Building and loan or saving and loan associations, by a vote of three-fourths of the shareholders of such associations, represented in person or by proxy, may go into voluntary liquidation upon such plan as shall be determined upon by the shareholders at their meeting. In case any such association resolves to go into voluntary liquidation, it shall have power, after crediting the mortgages given by the borrowing member with the full book value of the stock, to sell and assign such mortgage to a similar building and loan association, or to any other parties who will hold the same upon the terms under which such mortgage was given to the association. In that event the said mortgage shall be held to become due, if no other time can be agreed upon between the mortgagor and the association, within three years after the assignment thereof. In case the shareholders are unable to agree upon other plan and terms upon which the said association may wind up its affairs, the following plan shall be adopted. Interest shall be computed on the respective amounts paid in by the several shareholders from the date of such payments until the date that said association resolves to go into liquidation, and amount so found shall be the basis for distribution of the assets of the association. In the case of a borrowing member the amount thus found due him on stock, if there have been no losses so as to impair the capital, shall be credited on his mortgage and the balance of such mortgage shall be paid within one year together with interest at the rate therein agreed upon not to exceed 8 per cent., and upon the payments of the outstanding mortgages and the conversion of the assets into money the same shall be distributed pro rata among the stockholders according to the amount found due each as aforesaid. And any balance due the borrowing member, over and above the amount actually received as a credit on the mortgage, shall be paid to such members. In case, however, of an impairment of the capital by loss, the amount of such loss shall be estimated and apportioned to each member pro rata according to the amount found due such members in the manner aforesaid, and the borrowing members shall be entitled to receive a credit on their mortgages for the balance after the stock is charged with its pro rata share of the loss, and the balance due on such mortgages shall be paid within twelve months, and upon the final distribution any balance due such borrowing member shall be paid to him. But in the final distribution, before the final dividend is made, interest shall be allowed on the amount found due the non-borrowing member not to exceed six per cent. so as to equalize between the borrowing member who has received a credit on his mortgage and the non-borrowing member. Any plan other than that herein specified shall be submitted to the executive council for approval before the same is adopted. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 7.]

Where the proceedings for voluntary liquidation are not valid under the statutory provision on that subject a receiver may be appointed without regard to such proceedings. McKee v. Home Sav. & T. Co., 122-731.

The holder of a proxy given before the adoption of the provision with reference to voluntary liquidation does not have authority to vote under such proxy on that question. Ibid.

SEC. 1907-b. Consolidation with other companies. Any building and loan or savings and loan association organized under the laws of this state shall have authority to consolidate its business and membership with one or more building and loan or savings and loan associations of the same class organized under the laws of this state and to transfer to such association or associations its entire assets subject to its existing liabilities, and upon the consolidation of such associations, if any one or more of said companies shall have heretofore issued guaranty stock, they may provide for the withdrawal and retirement of said guaranty stock, and the same may be withdrawn in accordance with the plan therein adopted. The plan of such consolidation, when approved by the board of directors of each of the associations, shall be reduced to writing and submitted to the executive council, and if they find that the plan is in conformity with the law, and equitable in all respects to the members of both associations, they shall attach thereto their certificate of approval. Such plan shall then be submitted to the members of both associations, either at the regular meetings or at special meetings called for that purpose, and, if approved by a vote of three-fourths of the shares of stock of each association, the same shall then be filed in the office of the auditor of state, who shall issue a certificate authorizing the consolidation. At such meetings the members may vote in person or by proxy or by written ballot mailed or otherwise delivered to the secretary at or before the time of meeting. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 8.]

SEC. 1907-c. Consolidation when in hands of receiver. In any case where a receiver has been appointed for any such association, its membership and business may in like manner be consolidated with, and its assets transferred to, another such association of the same class, but in such case the receiver shall act in place of the board of directors, and the plan must also be approved by the court by which the receiver was appointed. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 9.]

SEC. 1908. Foreign companies.

Prior to any specific provisions as to foreign associations, such an association might do business in the state upon complying with the law relating to foreign corporations generally. Tootle v. Singer, 118-533.

This section implies that foreign corporations are to be put upon an equality with domestic associations of the same character, upon condition only that they comply with the requirements peculiar to them, and held that the act of 27 G. A., chap. 48, legalizing usurious loans by building and loan associations, was applicable to foreign as well as domestic companies. Ibid.

SEC. 1908-a. Foreign companies. No building and loan or savings and loan association, incorporated under the laws of any other state or country, shall be authorized to do business in this state, whose articles of incorporation are not found by the executive council to be in substantial compliance with the laws of this state, and affording equal security and protection to the members thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 14.]

SEC. 1915-a. Penalty. It shall be unlawful for any agent, solicitor, or other person to sell stock or solicit persons to subscribe for stock in any such association named in section 14 hereof, which has not been authorized to do business in this state, and any person convicted of so doing shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and shall be committed to the county jail until the fine and costs are paid. [28 G. A., ch. 69, § 15.]

SEC. 1918. False statements.

An officer of a building and loan association may be prosecuted for embezzlement, under Code § 4842, relating to embezzlement in general, although he is guilty of a crime under the statutory provisions relating to such associations. State v. Ames, 119-680.

SEC. 1920-a. Unincorporated building and loan associations—extending provisions of other sections to include what. All unincorporated organizations, associations, societies, partnerships or individuals conducting and carrying on a business, the purpose of which is to create a fund derived from periodical payments by members of such organizations, associations, societies, or other persons, upon contracts or otherwise, as well as from fines, forfeitures, incidental fees and payment of premiums and interest, which fund is to be loaned or advanced to members of the organization, association, society or to the persons making such periodical payments, for the purpose of enabling them to acquire the ownership or free possession of real estate, or personal property or to construct buildings, or any or all of such purposes, shall be deemed building and loan associations; and the provisions of chapter thirteen (13) of title nine (9) of the code, and chapter sixty-nine (69) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly of the state of Iowa, shall apply to all such building and loan associations so far as the same can be made applicable to unincorporated organizations, associations, societies, partnerships or individuals. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.]

The statute imposing different conditions on the building and loan business when conducted by an unincorporated association from those imposed upon the business when conducted by a corporation is not unconstitutional. Brady v. Matern, 125-158.

SEC. 1920-b. Sworn statements—deposit of securities. Every such unincorporated organization, association, society, partnership or individual, conducting and carrying on the business defined in section one (1) hereof, shall, before transacting any business in this state, submit to the executive council a full and complete sworn statement of the resources and liabilities of such organization, association, society, partnership or individual, and of the proposed plan or method of doing business; and no such unincorporated building and loan association shall be permitted to carry on its business within this state unless it shall first deposit with the auditor of state at least fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of first mortgages and negotiable notes in the same amount secured thereby upon real estate in the state of Iowa, bearing interest at a rate not less than five per cent. per annum, which said mortgages shall in no case exceed one-half the actual value of the real estate upon which they are taken; and the auditor of state shall have power and authority to require that such further amount of such securities shall be deposited with him as in his judgment may thereafter be necessary to protect the members of such building and loan association, or the persons making periodical payments thereto. The notes, mortgages and securities so deposited with the auditor of state shall, with all interest and accumulations thereon, be held in trust by him for the purpose of fulfilling and carrying out all contracts made by such building and loan association with the members thereof, and with the persons making periodical payments thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 2.]

SEC. 1920-c. Approval—certificate. If the executive council approves the plan or method of business of any such building and loan association, it shall endorse its approval upon the statement of the resources and liabilities and plan of business presented to it, and such statement shall thereupon be filed in the office of the auditor of state, who shall issue a certificate to such building and loan association to transact business within the state of Iowa, if such association has deposited with him the mortgages and securities required by the provisions of section two (2) hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 3.]

SEC. 1920-d. Officers to give bonds—approval. Every officer of such building and loan association who signs or endorses checks or handles any of the funds or securities thereof, shall give such bond or fidelity insurance for the faithful performance of his duty in such sum as the auditor of state may require, and no such officer shall be deemed qualified to enter upon the duties of his office until his bond is approved by, and deposited with, the auditor of state. And any such bond may be increased or additional sureties required by the auditor of state whenever in his judgment it becomes necessary to protect the interest of the association or its members, or persons making periodical payments of money thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 4.]

SEC. 1920-e. Examination. The auditor of state may at any time he may see proper make, or cause to be made, an examination of any such building and loan association, or he may call upon it for a report of its condition upon any given day which has passed, as often as four times each year, which report shall contain the information hereinafter required. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 5.]

SEC. 1920-f. Expense of examination. The expense of making such examination shall be paid by the building and loan association, and if made by the auditor in person he shall be paid his necessary expenses only; if made by an examiner designated by the auditor, he shall receive ten dollars ($10) a day for the time employed by him and his necessary expenses. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 6.]

SEC. 1920-g. Annual reports. On or before the first day of February of each year every such building and loan association shall file with the auditor of state its annual report in writing for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December preceding, giving a complete statement in detail of all of its receipts from all sources, and all disbursements made, during such year, arranged and itemized as may be required by the auditor of state. Such report shall also show the number of members or persons making periodical payments to such association, the number and amount of loans made to such persons, the interest received therefrom, the number and amounts of mortgages, contracts or other securities held by the association, the actual cash value of the real estate securing such mortgages or contracts, the salary paid to each of its officers during the preceding year, the assets and liabilities of the association at the end of the year, and any other matters which in the judgment of the auditor of state may be required to give him full information as to the business transacted by such building and loan association. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 7.]

SEC. 1920-h. Failure or refusal to furnish reports. If any such building and loan association shall fail or refuse to furnish to the auditor of state the report required in the preceding section, the officers or persons conducting the business of such building and loan association shall forfeit the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25) for each day that such report is withheld, and the auditor of state may maintain an action, jointly or severally, against them in the name of the state to recover such penalty, and the same shall be paid in to the state treasury when recovered by him. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 8.]

SEC. 1920-i. Penalties. If any officer or agent of any such building and loan association, or any person conducting the business thereof, shall knowingly and wilfully swear falsely to any statement in regard to any matter in this act required to be made under oath, he shall be guilty of perjury and punished accordingly. And if any officer, agent or employe of any such association, or any person transacting the business thereof, shall issue, utter or offer to utter, any warrant, check, order, or promise to pay of such association, or shall sign, transfer, cancel or surrender any note, bond, draft, mortgage, or other evidence of indebtedness belonging to such association, or shall demand, collect or receive any money from any member or other person in the name of such association without being authorized so to do; or if any such officer, agent or employe of such association, or any person transacting the business thereof, shall embezzle, convert to his own use, or shall use or pledge for his own benefit or purpose, any moneys, securities, credits or other property belonging to the association, or shall knowingly solicit, transact, or attempt to transact any business for any such association which has not procured and does not hold the certificate of authority from the auditor of state to transact business in this state as provided herein; or shall knowingly make, or cause to be made, any false entries in the books of the association, or shall, with intent to deceive any person making an examination of such association, as herein provided, exhibit to the person making the examination any false entry, paper or statement, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), or imprisoned in the penitentiary not exceeding ten (10) years, or punished by both such fine and imprisonment. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 9.]

SEC. 1920-j. Revocation of certificate—receiver. If any such building and loan association, holding a certificate of authority to transact business within this state issued by the auditor as herein provided, shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or shall fail to deposit with the auditor of state such further amount of mortgages or securities as he may require under section two (2) hereof, the auditor of state shall at once revoke such certificate and notify the executive council of the revocation thereof; and under the direction of the executive council, application shall be made by the attorney-general to the proper court for the appointment of a receiver to wind up the affairs of the association; and in such proceedings the amount due from the borrowing members or persons making periodical payments upon contracts or mortgages given by them, shall be ascertained in the manner provided in section seven (7) of chapter sixty-nine (69) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly; and the amounts owing upon such mortgages or contracts from members of the association or persons making periodical payments thereto, shall be treated and considered as due and payable within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court after the appointment of a receiver. [29 G. A., ch. 77, § 10.]

CHAPTER 13-A.

OF THE REGULATION OF CERTAIN PERSONS, FIRMS, COMPANIES, PARTNERSHIPS, ASSOCIATIONS OR CORPORATIONS.

SECTION 1920-k. Terms defined. The term "association" when used in this act shall mean any person, firm, company, partnership, association or corporation, other than building and loan associations and insurance companies and associations, which issue stocks on the partial payment or installment plan. The term "issue" shall mean issue, sell, place, engage in or otherwise dispose of or handle. The term "stock" shall mean certificates, memberships, shares, bonds, contracts, debentures, stocks, tontine contracts, or other investment securities or agreements of any kind or character issued upon the partial payment or installment plan. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.]

SEC. 1920-l. Certificate—how obtained. No association contemplated by this act shall issue any stock until it shall have procured from the auditor of state a certificate of authority authorizing it to engage in such business. To procure such certificate of authority it shall be necessary for such association to file with the auditor of state a statement, under oath, showing the name and location of such association, the name and postoffice address of its officers, the date of organization, and if incorporated a copy of its articles of incorporation, also, a copy of its by-laws or rules by which it is to be governed, the form of its certificates, stocks or contracts, all printed matter issued by it, together with a detailed statement of its financial condition and such other information concerning its affairs or plan of business as the auditor of state may require. The same shall be, by the auditor of state laid before the executive council for consideration. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 2.]

SEC. 1920-m. Executive council to approve plan. If the executive council is satisfied that the business is not in violation of law or of public policy, and is safe, reliable and entitled to public confidence, and if it shall approve the form of certificate of stock or contract, it shall direct the auditor of state to issue to such association a certificate of authority authorizing it to transact business within this state until the first day of March next succeeding the date of such authorization. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 3.]

SEC. 1920-n. Existing companies. Every such association at present transacting, within this state, the business contemplated by this act, shall be subject to all the provisions hereof, and shall within sixty days from the taking effect of the same, comply with all of its requirements. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 4.]

SEC. 1920-o. To report annually. During the month of January of each year, every association transacting the business contemplated by this act, shall file with the auditor of state a statement showing its condition on the 31st day of December preceding. Said statement shall be in such form as shall be prescribed by the auditor of state. If it appears from such statement that such association is doing a safe business and is solvent, the auditor of state may renew its certificate of authority authorizing it to transact business within the state until the first day of March of the following year. If at any time it shall appear that such association is doing an unsafe business or is insolvent the auditor of state may revoke its certificate of authority to authorizing [authorize] it to transact business within the state until the first day of March of the following year. If at any time it shall appear that such association is doing an unsafe business or is insolvent the auditor of state may revoke its certificate of authority to transact business and having revoked the certificate of authority of an association organized under the laws of this state, he shall report his action to the attorney-general who shall at once apply to the district court or a judge thereof for the appointment of a receiver to close up the affairs of such association, and an injunction may issue in the same proceeding enjoining and restraining the association from transacting business in this state. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 5.]

SEC. 1920-p. Deposit of bonds or securities. Before any association shall be authorized to transact business contemplated by this chapter, it shall deposit with the auditor of state a bond approved by the executive council, guaranteeing the faithful performance of all contracts entered into by such association or securities of the kind designated in subdivisions one, two, three, four and five of section eighteen hundred and six of the code, as amended by chapter sixty-six (66), acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly, or such other securities as shall be approved by the executive council in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars, which amount shall remain in possession of the auditor of state until the end of the calendar year in which the association shall first be authorized to transact business. At the end of such calendar year, such association shall deposit with the auditor of state securities of the kind above provided in an amount equal to all its liabilities to persons residing within this state and shall keep such deposit at all times equal to such liability; provided that at no time shall such deposit be reduced below twenty-five thousand dollars except at such time as such association shall be by law closing out its business and its liabilities shall have been reduced below twenty-five thousand dollars. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 6.]

SEC. 1920-q. Unauthorized companies—penalty. Any member or representative of any association who shall attempt to issue or sell any stock as contemplated by this act or to transact any business whatsoever in the name of or on behalf of such association, not authorized to do business within this state, or which has failed or refused to comply with the provisions of this act, or has violated any of its provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 7.]

SEC. 1920-r. Fee for annual certificate. Such association shall pay to the auditor of state for its certificate of authority to transact business, a fee of twenty-five dollars, and for each annual renewal thereof at the time of filing the annual statement ten dollars, which fee shall be by the auditor of state turned into the state treasury as are other fees of his office. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 8.]

SEC. 1920-s. Examination. Every such association doing business within this state, shall be subject to examination in the same manner as is provided for the examination of insurance companies and shall pay the same fees and costs therefor, and shall so far as is consistent with the plan of business, be subject to the same restrictions and regulations. Such examinations shall be full and complete and in making the same the auditor of state or examiner shall have full access to and may demand the production of all books, securities, papers, moneys, etc., of the association under examination, and may administer oaths, summon and compel the attendance and testimony of any persons connected with such association. If upon such examination, it shall appear that such association does not conduct its business in accordance with law, or if it permits forfeiture of payments by persons holding its stock, after three years from the issuance of said stock or provides for the payment of its expenses other than from earnings, or that any profits, advantage or compensation of any form or description is given to any member or investor over any other member or investor of the same class, or if beneficiaries are selected or determined or advantages given one over another by any form of chance, lottery or hazard, or if certificates of stock are by their terms or by any other provision to be redeemed in numerical order or by any arbitrary order or precedence, without reference the amount previously paid thereon by the holder thereof, or that the affairs are in an unsound condition, or if such association refuses such examination to be made, the auditor of state may revoke its certificate or [of] authority to do business in this state, and having revoked the certificate of authority of an association organized under the laws of this state, he shall report the same to the attorney-general, who shall proceed as provided in section five (5) hereof. [30 G. A., ch. 66, § 9.]

OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

CHAPTER 2.

OF LEVEES, DRAINS, DITCHES AND WATERCOURSES.

SECTION 1939. Supervisors to Locate.

The power of a board of supervisors to construct ditches and drains under these provisions is not restricted in terms or by necessary inference to territory outside of towns and cities. The presumption must be exercised that the board will have due consideration for the interests of the public within as well as without the limits of such municipal corporation. Aldrich v. Paine, 106-461.

SEC. 1940. Proceedings—bond—survey—notice. A petition signed by a majority of the persons resident in the county, owning land abutting upon such proposed improvement, shall be first filed in the office of the county auditor, setting forth the necessity for the same, the starting point, route and terminus, together with a bond, with sufficient sureties to be approved by him, conditioned to pay all costs and expenses incurred in case the supervisors refuse to grant the prayer of the petition. The auditor shall thereupon place a copy of the petition in the hands of the county surveyor or a competent engineer, who shall make a survey of the proposed improvement, and return a plat and profile thereof to the auditor; which return shall set forth a full and detailed description thereof, its availability, necessity and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land owned by different persons, through or abutting upon which the improvement is proposed to be located, how it will be affected thereby, and its situation and elevation as compared with that of adjoining lands, with such other facts as he may deem material. The auditor shall immediately thereafter cause notice in writing to be served on the owner of each tract of land, through or abutting upon which the proposed improvement is to be located, who is a resident of the county, of the pendency and prayer of said petition, and the session of the board of supervisors at which the same will be heard, which notice shall be served ten days prior to said session in the same manner that original notices are required to be served. In case any such owner is a non-resident of the county, such notice as to him shall be published, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county, proof thereof being made by affidavits as in case of legal notices published in newspapers, which proof shall be filed with the board. [19 G. A., ch. 44, § 2; C., '73, § 1208.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 15.]

Under § 1208 of the Code of '73 which used the word "adjacent" in describing the owners who are required to petition for a ditch, held, the term applied to owners of land abutting on the improvement, and not the owners of all the land within the congressional subdivision through which it runs. Wormley v. Board of Supervisors, 108-232.

In a proceeding to enjoin the issuance of bonds for the construction of a ditch, the contractor is a necessary party. Tod v. Crisman, 123-693.

Constitutionality: The unconstitutionality of the provision for taxing lands in the vicinity of the ditch without notice to the owner thereof, renders the entire provision for assessment for such ditches invalid. Smith v. Peterson, 123-672.

The provisions of these sections do not contemplate notice to a landowner whose land does not abut upon the ditch that he may be assessed therefor, and as he is not afforded an opportunity for a hearing the statute is unconstitutional as to such owner. Beebe v. Magoun, 122-94.

A statute which provides for notice to the property owner at some stage of the proceedings, before the assessment is made, is not open to constitutional objection simply because it does not provide for a new or additional notice of each successive step leading up to the assessment. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128-427.

The amendatory statute, 30 G. A., ch. 67, providing for notice in proceedings already instituted, is constitutional. Ibid.

No one is entitled to raise the objection of want of notice of the proceedings except the party entitled to notice. Ibid.

The landowner is not entitled to notice of the hearing as to the extent of the drainage district, and as to whether his land shall be included therein. Ibid.

SEC. 1941. Location—damage.

Even though the notice is not in the language of the statute, if it is not so defective that it can be said there is no notice, the action of the board in holding it to be sufficient cannot be collaterally assailed. Oliver v. Monona County, 117-43.

No express finding that the ditch is necessary or would conduce to the public health, convenience or welfare is required. A finding by the board that all the requirements of the law have been fully complied with is sufficient, there being no requirement that a finding as to the necessity for the ditch shall be made of record. Ibid.

The validity of the establishment of a ditch is not affected by the fact that claims for damages are not made and allowed before such location. The objection is not jurisdictional. Ibid.

A landowner who has made claim for damages which has been passed on by the board of supervisors cannot afterwards enjoin the prosecution of the work because the damages allowed are not sufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 1942. Claim for damages.

If in the construction of a county drain or ditch through the limits of a city or town injury will result to the streets or an additional burden of expense be cast upon the corporation, there would seem to be no reason why damages might not be claimed by such corporation as well as by the individual owners through whose land the ditch extends. Aldrich v. Paine, 106-461.

SEC. 1944. Letting work—payment. The auditor shall cause notice to be given of the time and place of letting, the kind and approximate amount of work to be done on each section, and the time fixed for its completion, by publication, once each week, for four (4) consecutive weeks in some newspaper printed in said county, and shall let it upon each separate section to the lowest bidder therefor, who shall be required to execute a bond, with sufficient sureties, in an amount equal to ten per cent. of the estimated cost of the work so let, or deposit such amount in cash with the auditor, as security for the performance of his contract. The engineer in charge of the construction shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section, and upon the filing of the same with the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of the contractor for eighty per cent. of the value of the work done, according to the estimate; and when said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge, and so certified by him to the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of said contractor upon the levee or drainage fund for the balance due, as provided in the following section. If any person to whom any portion of said work has been let shall fail to perform the same as, and in the time, specified in his contract, the cash deposited by him shall be forfeited to, or the penalty named in the bond may be recovered in an action thereon by, the county auditor, for the benefit of the levee or drainage district, on said contract, as liquidated damages, and it shall be relet by the auditor in the manner hereinbefore provided. [19 G. A., ch. 44, § 6; 18 G. A., ch. 85, § 8; 16 G. A., ch. 140, § 1; C., '73, § 1212.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 16.]

One who claims to be the lowest bidder cannot maintain an action of mandamus to compel the board to award the contract to him. Vincent v. Ellis, 116-609.

The statutory provision as to forfeiture of cash deposit and recovery of a penalty does not deprive the board of supervisors of their right to treat the whole contract as forfeited on default of the contractor to perform, and institute new proceedings for the construction of a different ditch. The board is not bound under such circumstances to allow the county auditor to re-let the work under the former proceedings. Brown v. Board of Supervisors, 129-533.

SEC. 1946. Assessment of costs and damages. When any levee, ditch, drain, or change of direction of any water course shall have been located and established, as provided in this chapter, or when it shall be necessary to cause the same to be repaired or reopened, the auditor shall appoint three persons, one of whom shall be a competent civil engineer, and two who shall be resident freeholders of the county, not living within the township or townships where the improvement is or is to be located, and not interested therein or in a like question, nor related to any party whose land is affected thereby, who shall within twenty days after such appointment personally inspect and classify as "dry," "low," "wet," or "swamp" all the land benefited by the location and construction of the improvement, or the repairing or reopening of the same, and shall make an equitable apportionment of the cost, expenses, cost of construction, fees, and damages assessed for the construction of any such improvement, or of repairing or reopening the same, and make report thereof in writing to the board of supervisors and file the same with the county auditor who shall immediately thereafter fix a time for hearing objections thereto before the board of supervisors, and cause to be served upon the owner of each tract of land or lot described in said report as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office notice in writing of the filing and pendency of said report, the amount of special assessment apportioned to such owner, the day set for hearing the same, and that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor on or before noon of the day set for such hearing, which notice as to residents of the county shall be served not less than ten days prior to the day set for such hearing in the same manner that original notices are required to be served and as to non-residents of the county such notice shall be served by publishing the same one [once] each week for two consecutive weeks the last publication not less than ten days prior to the day set for hearing in some newspaper published in the county and by serving the same upon the person or persons in the actual occupancy of the property not less than ten days prior to the day set for such hearing. When the day set for hearing has arrived the board of supervisors shall proceed to hear and determine all objections made and filed to said report, and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment made in said report or any part thereof as may appear to the board to be just and equitable which apportionment shall be assessed among the owners of the land along or in the vicinity of such improvement and to be benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefit to each of them, and levied upon the lands of the owners so benefited in said proportions, and collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected for county purposes; which fund so collected shall be kept separate from other county funds, and shall be paid out only for purposes properly connected with the improvement, on the order of the county auditor, on claims properly certified by the engineer in charge of the improvement as in this chapter provided, or on the order of the board of supervisors. The engineer shall receive for each day's service, while so engaged, five dollars, and the other commissioners shall receive each two dollars per day, to be paid out of the funds so collected. In order to prevent or repair a break in any levee in time of high water, any member of the board of supervisors may at once employ the necessary labor to repair the levee or prevent a break thereof, and the necessary and reasonable expense therefor shall be audited by the board of supervisors and paid from the levee fund. [21 G. A., ch. 139; 19 G. A., ch. 44, § 7; 16 G. A., ch. 140, § 4; C., '73, § 1214.] [29 G. A., ch. 78, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 1.]

[The amendment by the 30 G. A. ignored section 1946 as it appeared in the code supplement, but amended 1946 of the code. Section 1946 of the code was amended by the 29 G. A. by adding matter to the end of the section, and the amendment by the 30 G. A. has been shown as amending the section as it appears in the code supplement.]

These statutory provisions practically authorize the creation of a drainage district and the assessment of the expenses for the improvement upon all the property coming within the general benefit involved in the promotion of the public health, convenience and welfare. It is not the proximity of the parcels of land in question to the ditch or the benefit to the parcels from the construction thereof which is the basis of the assessment, but all the parcels within the drainage district are to be assessed uniformly with the expense in accordance with their general character. The owner is entitled to notice with reference to whether his land is included within the drainage district and this is sufficient to charge him with notice of the subsequent proceedings. Oliver v. Monona County, 117-43.

The funds derived from a special assessment for the construction of a ditch do not belong to the county. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130-412.

Under this section, held that the entire assessment on the lands of an owner, some of which abutted upon the ditch, while others were in the vicinity thereof, was invalid for want of the provision for notice to the owner with reference to the proposed assessment on land in the vicinity. Smith v. Peterson, 123-672.

The act of 30 G. A., chap. 67, relating to special assessments for ditches, provides that when the report is made by the commissioners appointed to classify the benefited lands and apportion the expenses notice shall be served personally upon residents and upon non-residents by publication, and that upon such hearing the board shall determine all objections to the assessment, and may affirm or modify the apportionments, and this provision is made applicable to proceedings already instituted. It was competent for the legislature to thus provide for notice in existing proceedings. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128-427.

SEC. 1946-a. Proceedings now pending. That said section one thousand nine hundred and forty-six (1946) of the code as amended by section one (1) hereof shall be construed to apply to all proceedings now pending before boards of supervisors for the location and construction of levees, drains, ditches or water courses under the provisions of chapter two (2) title ten (X) of the code where the apportionment, assessment or levy of the cost of the improvement has not yet been made as well as to proceedings instituted hereafter. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 2.]

SEC. 1946-b. Re-assessment and relevy. Where the assessment and levy on account of any ditch, drain or water course has been made by the board of supervisors of any county under the provisions of said section one thousand nine hundred and forty-six (1946) of the code without notice or legal notice to the owner of the land affected thereby and the whole or any part thereof remains unpaid, the board of supervisors shall have the authority to recall the assessment or levy thus made without notice and proceed anew as provided in section one (1) hereof to apportion and levy the cost of such improvement among the owners and upon the land benefited thereby, taking as a basis the original apportionment, and report of the commissioners upon which the board had theretofore acted, and the new assessment and levy made upon notice and hearing in such cases shall be certified by the county auditor to the county treasurer, re-entered upon the tax list and collected as other taxes for county purposes, and all payments made under the prior assessment, and levy shall be credited upon the new assessment and levy. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 3.]

A taxpayer who may be subjected to the payment of a tax by reassessment cannot object to the tax on account of defects which might thus be cured. Thompson v. Mitchell, 133-527.

SEC. 1946-c. Completion and payment of work already begun. When any levee, ditch, drain, water course or change of water course shall have been heretofore established by any of the boards of supervisors of this state and contract or contracts let therefor, and the improvement wholly or partly constructed or drainage bonds issued on account thereof and the proceedings or tax therefor have been or shall be for any cause found invalid and the board of supervisors has found or shall find that such improvement will be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, such board is authorized to provide for the completion of the work and the payment therefor, and for the payment of the work already done and of the drainage bonds issued and to that end shall recall the tax theretofore levied and shall reascertain the cost and expense of such improvement, and after notice and hearing as provided in this act shall assess and levy the same upon the lands benefited thereby, and the said board and the other county officers shall proceed as provided by section three (3) and the other provisions of this act. Such re-assessment and relevy of taxes shall be in proportion to and not in excess of benefits, and all taxes theretofore paid upon such improvement shall be credited as provided in section three (3) of this act. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 4.]

SEC. 1946-d. Drainage bonds. Section one thousand nine hundred and fifty-three (1953) of the code shall be construed to apply to and authorize the issuance of drainage bonds in proceedings heretofore or hereafter instituted under section one thousand nine hundred and forty (1940) of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 5.]

SEC. 1946-e. Future levies. Such assessment shall fix the proportion for all future levies on account of such improvement or the repair or re-opening thereof, and may be levied in one year or apportioned among a series of years, and drainage bonds issued therefor as provided by section one thousand nine hundred and fifty-three (1953) of the code, and appeals may be taken as provided by section one thousand nine hundred and forty-seven (1947) of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 67, § 6.]

SEC. 1947. Appeals.

The provision of this section that it shall not be competent to show that the lands assessed were not benefited by the improvements pertains exclusively to the remedy, and is applicable, although the statutory provision in force when the tax was levied authorized the property owner to show that his property was not benefited by the improvements. Allerton v. Monona County, 111-560; Oliver v. Monona County, 117-43.

The landowner being given opportunity to appear before the board of supervisors and make objection that his land as reported by the commissioner is not in fact benefited by the improvement, is concluded by the finding of the board, and such provision is not unconstitutional. Ross v. Board of Supervisors, 128-427.

On an appeal to the district court from an order of the board of supervisors refusing to order the construction of a ditch on an application therefor there is no right to a jury trial. In re Bradley, 108-476.

The petitioners for the establishment of a public ditch being required to contribute to the expense of establishing it, are entitled to notice of appeal from the award of damages taken by a claimant for such damages. Henderson v. Calhoun County, 129-119.

The board of supervisors has no authority to direct the dismissal of an appeal from its action in fixing the assessment upon lands. The county or board of supervisors if properly a party to the appeal in any sense is such party only in a nominal or representative capacity and the real parties in interest have the right to control the proceedings. Temple v. Hamilton, 112 N. W. 174.

The board is given the authority to pass upon the necessity of the improvement and determine its public character and fix the boundaries of the district, which power is legislative rather than judicial; the court should on appeal be reluctant to interfere with the exercise of discretion on the part of the board. Temple v. Hamilton, 112 N. W. 174.

SEC. 1948. Nuisance. Any ditch, drain or water course which is now or may hereafter be constructed so as to prevent the surplus and overflow waters from the adjacent land from entering the same, is hereby declared a nuisance, and the same may be abated as such; and the diverting, obstructing, impeding, or filling up of such ditches, drains, or water courses, or breaking down of such levees in any manner by any person, without legal authority, or obstructing or in any manner diverting any part of the site thereof to private use, is hereby declared a nuisance, criminally punishable as such. [21 G. A., ch. 139; 19 G. A., ch. 44, § 7; 16 G. A., ch. 140, § 4; C., '73, §§ 1214, 1216.] [29 G. A., ch. 78, § 2.]

SEC. 1951. Levees, ditches or drains in public highway—highway along levee. Levees, ditches, drains and embankments may be located and constructed within the limits of public highways, on either or both sides of and along the same, to be so built as not materially to interfere with the public travel thereon, by taxation and assessment under the provisions of this chapter, and, when constructed, shall be under the control of the board of supervisors of the county in which they are situated; and it shall have power to grant a right of way thereon to any railway that will maintain them while used by it, subject to any claim for damages against the company in any condemnation proceedings which shall be instituted, and the damages awarded, paid, or secured to be paid before possession shall be given, but the county shall not be required on account thereof or otherwise to keep up such improvements at its expense. The board of supervisors shall have power to establish public highways along and upon any levee built under the provisions of this chapter, provided that when so used the same shall be worked as other highways and so as to at all times maintain its condition as a levee. [20 G. A., ch. 186, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 78, § 3.]

SEC. 1952. Petition for drain—proceedings.

Where a petition is apparently sufficient as to the number of signers the action of the board of supervisors in entertaining jurisdiction of the proceeding cannot be collaterally assailed. Oliver v. Monona County, 117-43.

The essential facts which must be alleged and established before the improvement can be ordered, are, that the body or district of land is subject to overflow, or is too wet for cultivation, and that the public health, convenience or welfare will be promoted by the proposed work. The duty of hearing and determining this question is committed in the first instance to the board of supervisors, and until the truth of both of these propositions has been established to the satisfaction of such board, the order for the location and construction of the improvement cannot rightfully be made. If the supervisors fail to find facts without which the order for the drain or ditch could not be made, they have no jurisdiction to proceed. In re Bradley, 117-472.

While it is required by Code § 1940 that the petitioners in an application for a ditch, to be constructed at the public expense, shall give a bond to pay all costs and expenses incurred in case the board of supervisors refuse to grant the prayer of the petition, nevertheless, in an appeal in such a proceeding the court may tax the costs against the successful party. Ibid.

A property owner who has knowledge of the proceedings and allows the public improvement to proceed without objection cannot afterwards question the validity of the tax on account of irregularity. Thompson v. Mitchell, 133-527.

SEC. 1968. Compensation. Any person or corporation who by machinery, such as engines or pumps, or by making drains or adit levels, or in any other way, shall rid any lead or zinc bearing mineral lands or lead or zinc mines of water, thereby enabling the miners and the owners of mineral interest in said lands to make them productive and available for mining purposes, shall receive one-tenth of all the lead and zinc mineral taken from said lands as compensation for said drainage. [C., '73, § 1229.] [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.]

lands, shall jointly and severally set apart and deliver from time to time, when demanded, the said one-tenth part of the mineral taken from said lands to the person or corporation entitled thereto, and the owners of the mineral interest therein shall allow the party entitled to such compensation and his agents at all times to descend into and examine said mines, and to enter any building occupied for mining purposes upon any of said lands, and examine and weigh the mineral taken therefrom. [C., '73, § 1230.] [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 2.]

SEC. 1971. Notice to smelters. The person or corporation entitled to said drainage compensation may at any time leave with any smelter of lead or zinc mineral in this state a written notice, stating that said person or corporation claims of the persons named in said notice the amount to which said person or corporation may be entitled, which notice shall have the effect of notices in garnishment, and also authorize the said smelter to retain, for the use of the person entitled thereto, the one-tenth part of the mineral taken from said land and received from the person named in said notice. The payment or delivery of the one-tenth part of the mineral taken from any of said lands by any one of the persons whose duty it is hereby made to pay or deliver the same, shall discharge the parties liable jointly with him, except liability to contribute among themselves. [C., '73, § 1232.] [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 3.]

SEC. 1972. Right of way. Any person or corporation engaged as aforesaid in draining such mines and lead or zinc bearing mineral lands, when he or they shall find it necessary for the prosecution of their work, shall have the right of way upon, over or under the surface of such mineral lands, and the contiguous and neighboring lands, for the purpose of conveying the water from said mineral lands by troughs, pipes, ditches, water races or tunnels, and the right to construct and use shafts and airholes in and upon the same, doing as little injury as possible in making said improvements. [C., '73, § 1233.] [31 G. A., ch. 82, § 4.]

SEC. 1976. Repeal — proceedings. That section nineteen hundred seventy-six (1976) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Proceedings as contemplated by the preceding section may be begun by filing with the county auditor a petition asking the board of supervisors to form a levee or a drainage district, for any one or all of the purposes specified in section nineteen hundred and seventy-five (1975) hereof. Said petition shall be signed by one or more owners of lands lying within the limits of such proposed district; the general limits of said district shall be given therein, and a plat of the proposed district shall be filed with said petition. There shall be filed with said petition a bond, with sureties approved by the county auditor, conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses incurred, in case the board of supervisors shall refuse to grant the prayer or the petition. [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.]

SEC. 1977. Commission. At their next regular session held after the filing of such petition, or at a special session called for the purpose, the board of supervisors shall, if the foregoing provisions have been complied with, appoint a commission of three disinterested freeholders of the county, one of whom shall be, if practicable, a competent civil engineer or surveyor. This commission shall, after being duly sworn, proceed to examine the lands within such proposed district, lay out the work required, and make an estimate of the probable cost of the same. They shall make a full report to the board of supervisors, and may recommend that such district be formed as prayed, or that it be enlarged or diminished, as in their judgment will best subserve the general good and promote the general welfare. [26 G. A., ch. 46, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

SEC. 1979. Repeal—hearing. That section nineteen hundred and seventy-nine (1979) of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“At the time named, or at such other time to which the board of supervisors may adjourn the matter, they shall proceed with the hearing, at which any interested parties may appear, either in person or by counsel, and be heard, and may file written pleadings. The board shall hear and determine the matter, and if they determine against the formation of such district, they shall dismiss the proceedings at the cost of the petitioners. If they shall decide to form such levee or drainage district, they shall proceed to fix the boundaries of the same, and their finding shall be entered upon their records. The finding and the report of the commissioners shall be competent evidence at the hearing above provided for, but shall not be conclusive.” [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 3.]

SEC. 1981. Work carried on—land condemned. After entering the order as provided in section nineteen hundred and seventy-nine hereof, unless further proceedings are suspended as provided in section nineteen hundred and eighty hereof, the board of supervisors shall proceed and adopt such plan or system as in their judgment is proper and best under all the circumstances, and cause the work to be done, causing such ditches to be dug, channels opened, embankments erected, fills made, and such other work done as in their judgment will most efficiently promote the general good and the public welfare. They shall have power, in the manner now provided by law, chapter four of title ten, of this code, to condemn any land which they deem it necessary to take or use in the prosecution of such work, including any that may be required to aid the United States in completing such levee, the costs and expenses of which shall be paid out of the drainage fund pertaining to such district as hereinafter provided. In the doing of this work the board of supervisors shall have power to employ such help and assistance as they deem necessary, and to fix compensation for the same. All the work to be done which shall involve an estimated expenditure of five hundred dollars or over shall be let by contract, after advertising the same, once each week, for three weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county, to the lowest bidder who shall furnish satisfactory security for the performance of the contract: provided, however, that the board of supervisors may reject all bids, and do the work themselves whenever in their judgment, the work can be so done at a substantial saving. [26 G. A., ch. 46, § 7.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 17.]

SEC. 1982. Repeal—costs assessed. That section nineteen hundred and eighty-two (1982) of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“If said district is established, the entire costs and expenses incurred under this chapter shall be assessed against and collected from the lands lying within such district, by the levy of a rate upon the assessable value of the land within such district, sufficient to raise the required sum, provided that where the proposed improvement is for drainage only the board may, in their discretion, classify the land within such district and graduate the tax thereon, as provided in chapter sixty-eight (68) of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly. When the board decides to make such classification, they shall proceed in the manner set forth in section twelve (12) of said chapter sixty-eight (68), and the commissioners shall each be allowed three dollars per day.” [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 4.]

SEC. 1984. Repeal—annual installments. That section nineteen hundred and eighty-four (1984) of the code be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"If the proposed improvement is the maintenance of a levy, the amount collected in any one year shall not exceed [shall not exceed] fifty mills on the dollar of the assessment valuation, which said assessment shall be levied at a level rate on the assessable value of the said lands, easements and railroads within the district. If the amount necessary to pay for the improvement, under section nineteen hundred and eighty-two (1982) hereof, exceed said sum, it shall be levied and collected in annual installments. For all other improvements, the board shall levy a rate sufficient to pay for the same, and may, at their discretion, make the same payable in annual installments of ten or less." [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 5.] [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.]

SEC. 1985. Bonds. If the entire amount required under this chapter cannot be collected in one year, the board of supervisors of such county shall have the power to issue drainage bonds for all which cannot thus be provided for in one year, in substantially the manner and form as provided in section nineteen hundred and fifty-three, chapter two, title ten, of this code, such issue to be determined upon by them before the levy, and an amount sufficient to pay the interest on such bonds shall be estimated and included in the assessment. If the amount of money required for the improvement under the provisions of this chapter cannot be collected in one year, or if the board of supervisors in their discretion deem it advisable that the taxes shall be paid in installments, or in case it becomes necessary to expend an extraordinary sum for the preservation of the levee in case of an emergency, the board of supervisors of the county shall have the power to issue bonds for all which cannot thus be provided for in one year substantially [in] the manner and form as provided in section twenty-eight (28) of chapter sixty-eight (68) of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly and acts amendatory thereto, and all acts and proceedings in relation thereto shall conform therewith, except that bonds issued in anticipation of taxes for the maintenance of a levee shall not exceed five years' taxes and shall be due in six years from the date of issue. [26 G. A., ch. 46, § 11.] [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 3.]

SEC. 1985-a. Claim for repairs. Whenever a levee or drainage district is organized, the board or boards of supervisors, as the case may be, shall have power and authority to audit and allow claims for money and labor expended in the preservation of said levee prior to and since the organization of the said district; all sums so allowed to be payable from the levee or drainage fund. The said board or boards shall also have full power and authority to make an equitable adjustment of and credit for any taxes paid for repairing the levee where the same has been heretofore levied and collected in any manner by said board or boards of supervisors under any prior proceedings. [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 4.]

SEC. 1986. Cost of maintaining. The board of supervisors shall have the right and power to keep up and maintain any such levee, ditches, drains, or system of drainage, either in whole or in part, as may in their judgment be required, and to levy the expense thereof upon the real estate within such drainage district as herein provided for, and collect and expend the same: provided, however, that no such work which shall impose a tax exceeding fifty mills on the dollar on the assessable value of the lands within the district shall be authorized by them, unless the same is first petitioned for and authorized in substantially the manner required by this chapter for the inauguration of new work. [26 G. A., ch. 46, § 12.] [31 G. A., ch. 83, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 93, § 2.]

CHAPTER 2-A.

OF LEVEES, DITCHES, DRAINS AND WATER COURSES.

SECTION 1989-a1. Board of supervisors to establish drainage district. The board of supervisors of any county shall have jurisdiction, power and authority at any regular, special or adjourned session, to establish a drainage district or districts, and to locate and establish levees, and cause to be constructed as hereinafter provided any levee, ditch, drain or water course, or to straighten, widen, deepen or change any natural water course, in such county, whenever the same will be of public utility or conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, and the drainage of surface waters from agricultural lands shall be considered a public benefit and conducive to the public health, convenience, utility and welfare. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 1.]

By the term, agricultural lands, which is used in the provision for special assessments for public ditches, the legislature meant to designate generally those various and well-known bodies of land lying within the state which, owing to location and surface conditions, habitually collect and retain surface waters to such an extent as to presently unfit them for agricultural purposes. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128-442.

SEC. 1989-a2. Proceedings—bond—survey. Whenever a petition signed by one or more of the landowners whose lands will be affected by, or assessed for the expenses of, the proposed improvement, shall be filed in the office of the county auditor setting forth that any body or district of land in the county, described by metes and bounds, or otherwise, so as to convey any [an] intelligible description of such lands, is subject to overflow or too wet for cultivation, and that the public benefit or utility, or the public health, convenience of [or] welfare will be promoted by draining, ditching, tiling or leveeing the same, or by changing a natural water course, and setting forth therein the starting point, route and terminus and lateral branches, if necessary, of the proposed improvement, and there is filed therewith a bond, in amount and with sureties to be approved by the county auditor and conditioned for the payment of all costs and expenses incurred in the proceedings in case the supervisors do not grant the prayer of said petition, the board shall at its first session thereafter, regular, special or adjourned, appoint a disinterested and competent engineer and place a copy of the petition in his hands and he shall proceed to examine the lands described in said petition and any other lands which would be benefited by said improvement or necessary in the carrying out of said improvement, and survey and locate such drain or drains, ditch or ditches, improvement or improvements, as may be practicable and feasible to carry out the purposes of the petition and which will be of public benefit or utility or conducive to public health, convenience or welfare. He shall make return of his proceedings to the county auditor, which returns shall set forth the starting point, the route, the terminus or termini of the said ditch or ditches, drain or drains, or other improvements, together with a plat and profile showing the ditches, drains or other improvements, and the course and length of the drain or drains through each tract of land and the elevation of all lakes, ponds and deep depressions in said district, and the boundary of the proposed district, and the description of each tract of land therein and names of the owners thereof as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, together with the probable cost, and such other facts and recommendations as he may deem material. The board of supervisors may at any time recall the appointment of any engineer made under the provisions of this act, if deemed advisable to do so, and select another to act in his place. That the ditches or drains herein provided for shall be surveyed and located along the general course of the natural streams and water courses or in the general course of natural drainage of the lands of said district, having due regard for straightening and shortening of such natural streams, water courses and course of natural drainage. Whenever any such ditch or drain crosses any railroad right of way it shall be located at the place of the natural water way across such right of way unless said railroad company shall have provided another place in the construction of the road bed for the flow of the water; and if located at the place provided by the railroad company, such company shall be estopped from afterwards objecting to such location on the ground that it is not at the place of the natural water way. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.]

SEC. 1989-a3. Notice of hearing—approval of plan—fees and mileage for serving notice. Upon the filing of the return of the engineer, if the same recommends the establishment of the levee or drainage district, the board of supervisors shall then examine the return of the engineer, and if the plan seems to be expedient and meets the approval of the board of supervisors, they shall direct the auditor to cause a notice to be given, as hereinafter provided. But if it does not appear to be expedient and is not approved, the board of supervisors are hereby authorized to direct said engineer, or another engineer selected by them, to report another plan. When the plan, if any, shall have been finally adopted by the board of supervisors, they shall order the auditor immediately thereafter to cause notice in writing to be served upon the owner of each tract of land or lot within the proposed levee or drainage district, as shown by the transfer books of the auditor's office, and also upon the person in actual occupancy of any lands or lots, and upon each lien holder or incumbrancer of any land through which or abutting upon which the proposed improvement extends as shown by the county records, of the pendency and prayer of said petition, the favorable report thereon by the engineer, the day set for hearing the same before the board of supervisors and all claims for damages must be filed in the auditor's office not less than five days before the day set for hearing upon the petition, which notice, as to residence as to the county, shall be served not less than twenty days prior to the time set for such hearing, in the manner that original notices are required to be served. Provided, however, no notice shall be served by the auditor upon any of the persons hereinbefore described who shall file with said auditor a statement in writing signed by said party entering his appearance at said hearing and waiving any additional notice. The officer or person serving said notice shall receive five cents per mile for the distance actually traveled and not exceeding five dollars per day of eight hours for making said services. In case any such owner, lien holder or incumbrancer is a non-resident of the county, such notice as to him shall be published once each week for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county, the last of which publications shall be not less than twenty days prior to the day set for hearing upon the petition proof of such service to be made by affidavit of the publisher and filed with the county auditor. If at the date set for hearing before the board of supervisors, it should appear that any person entitled to notice, as provided in this section, should not have been served with notice for the time, or in the manner, as provided herein, the board may postpone said hearing and set another time for the same, and notice of such day of hearing may be served on such omitted parties in the manner and for the same length of time, as provided for in this section, and by fixing said new day for hearing and by adjourning said proceedings to said time, the said board of supervisors shall not be held to have lost jurisdiction of the subject matter of said proceeding, nor of any parties so previously served with notice. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 2.]

[Section 2, chapter 94, 32 G. A., amends section 3, chapter 68, 30 G. A., by inserting matter after the word "served" in line 15. This section was amended by section 2, chapter 85, 31 G. A., and after such amendment the word "served" appeared in line 22, where change has been made.]

SEC. 1989-a4. Claims for damages. Any person claiming damages as compensation for or on account of the construction of such improvement shall file such claim in the office of the county auditor at least five days prior to the day on which the petition has been set for hearing, and on failure to file such claim at the time specified, shall be held to have waived his rights thereto. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 4.]

SEC. 1989-a5. Location—damages. The board of supervisors at the session set for the hearing on said petition, which session may be regular, special or adjourned, shall thereupon proceed to hear and determine the sufficiency of the petition in form and manner [matter], which petition may be amended as to form and substance at any time before final action thereon, and, if deemed necessary, the board may view the premises and if they shall find that such levee or drainage districts would not be for the public benefit or utility nor conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, they shall dismiss the proceedings; but, if they shall find such improvement conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare or to the public benefit or utility and no claim shall have been filed for damages as provided in section four hereof, they may if deemed advisable locate and establish the same in accordance with the recommendations of the engineer, or they may refuse to establish the same as they may deem best; and at said hearing, the board may order the said engineer or a new engineer appointed by them if deemed advisable, to make further examination and report to said board as to said proposed improvement, and if they determine that further examination and report shall be made, or if any claims have been filed for damages, as provided in section four hereof, then the board of supervisors shall proceed no further than to determine the necessity of the levee or drainage districts and further proceedings shall be continued to an adjourned, regular or special session, the date of which shall be fixed at the time of the adjournment; and the county auditor shall appoint three appraisers to assess such damages who shall be disinterested freeholders of the county and not related to any party interested in the proposed improvement nor themselves interested in a like improvement; and the engineer appointed by the board of supervisors shall accompany said appraisers and furnish such information as may be called for by the appraisers concerning the survey of said improvement. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 3.]

The authority to pass upon the necessity of the improvement, determine its public character and fix the boundaries of the district, is legislative rather than judicial in its nature and is intrusted, primarily at least, to the board of supervisors. The court should on appeal be very reluctant to interfere with the action of the board and should set aside its order on the ground that the ditch is not a work of public character or its cost a greater burden than the land benefited should bear only where the evidence is so clear as to render that conclusion unavoidable. Temple v. Hamilton, 112 N. W. 174.

SEC. 1989-a6. Assessment of damages—appeal. The appraisers appointed to assess damages shall proceed to view the premises and determine and fix the amount of damages to which each claimant is entitled and shall, at least five days before the date fixed by the board to hear and determine the same, file with the county auditor reports in writing showing the amount of damages sustained by each claimant. Should the report not be filed in time or should any good cause for delay exist the board may postpone the time of final action on the subject and, if necessary, the auditor may appoint other appraisers. When the time for final action shall have arrived, and after the filing of the report of the appraisers, said board shall consider the amount of damages awarded in their final determination in regard to establishing such levee or drainage district, and if in their opinion the cost of construction and the amount of damages awarded is not excessive and a greater burden than should be properly borne by the land benefited by the improvement, they shall locate and establish the same, and they shall thereupon appoint said engineer, or if deemed advisable, may appoint a new engineer as a commissioner, who shall make a permanent survey of said ditch as so located, showing the levels and elevations of each forty acre tract of land and shall file a report of the same with the county auditor together with a plat and profile thereof and shall thereupon proceed to determine the amount of damages sustained by each claimant, and may hear evidence in respect thereto and may increase or diminish the amount awarded in respect thereto, and any party aggrieved may appeal from the finding of the board in establishing or refusing to establish the improvement district or from its finding in the allowance of damages to the district court by filing notice with the county auditor at any time within ten days after such finding, at the same time filing a bond with the county auditor, approved by him, and conditioned to pay all costs and expenses of the appeal unless the finding of the district court shall be more favorable to the appellant or appellants than the finding of the board, which appeal shall be tried in the district court as an ordinary proceeding, except that when the appeal is from the order of the board in establishing or refusing to establish the levee or drainage district, it shall be tried in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term.

If the appeal is from the amount of damages allowed, the amount ascertained in the district court shall be entered of record, but no judgment shall be rendered therefor. The amount thus ascertained shall be certified by the clerk of said court to the board of supervisors, who shall thereafter proceed as if such amount had been by it allowed the claimant as damages. If the appeal is from the action of the board in establishing or refusing to establish said drainage district, the court shall enter such order as may be proper in the premises, and the clerk of said court shall certify the same to the board of supervisors, who shall proceed thereafter in said matter in accordance with the order of the court. How the costs shall be distributed among the litigants and against whom the same shall be taxed shall rest in the discretion of the trial court. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 6.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 3.]

The county cannot appeal from the action of the district court in setting aside an order of the board of supervisors for the reassessment of the expenses of constructing the ditch. Yockey v. Woodbury County, 130-412.

The contractor who is entitled to be paid out of the funds collected by the assessment may appeal, as he has an interest in such fund. Ibid.

SEC. 1989-a7. Damages, by whom paid—engineer. The amount of damages finally determined by the board in favor of any claimant or claimants shall be required to be paid in the first instance by the parties benefited by the said levee or drainage district, or secured to be paid upon such terms and conditions as the county auditor may deem just and proper, and after such damages shall have been paid or secured as aforesaid, the board shall divide said improvement into suitable sections, numbering the same consecutively from the source or beginning of the improvement downward towards its outlet and prescribe the time within which the improvement shall be completed and appoint a competent engineer to have charge of the work of construction thereof, who shall be required before entering upon the work to give a bond to the county for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district to be approved by the auditor in such sum as the board may fix, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 7.]

The provision that the damages are to be secured to be paid upon such terms and conditions as the county auditor may deem just and proper does not render the statute unconstitutional. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128-442.

SEC. 1989-a8. Letting work. The board shall cause notice to be given by publication, once each week, for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county wherein such improvement is located and such additional publication elsewhere as they may direct, of the time and place of letting the work of construction of said improvement, and in such notice they shall specify the approximate amount of work to be done in each section and the time fixed for the commencement and completion thereof and they shall award contract or contracts for each section of the work to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders therefor, or to the lowest responsible bidder considering the same as a whole, exercising their own discretion as to letting said work as a whole or in sections and reserving the right to reject any and all bids and re-advertise the letting of the work. Each person bidding for such work shall deposit in cash or certified check a sum equal to ten per centum of the amount of the bid, not in any event however to exceed ten thousand dollars, said deposit to be returned to him if his bid is not successful, and if successful to be retained as a guarantee only of his good faith in entering on said contract. The successful bidder shall be required to execute a bond with sufficient sureties in favor of the county for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district in an amount equal to twenty-five per centum of the estimated cost of the work so let, or he may deposit such amount in cash with the auditor as security for the performance of his contract and upon the execution of such bond, or the making of such deposit, the deposit originally made with his bid shall be returned to him. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 8.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 30.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 5.]

SEC. 1989-a9. Payment. The engineer in charge of the construction shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section and upon filing the same with the auditor, he shall draw a warrant in favor of such contractor, or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, for eighty per centum of the value of the work done according to the estimate, and when said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge thereof and so certified by him to the board and approved by it, the auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of said contractor upon the levee or drainage fund, or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, for the balance due. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 9.]

SEC. 1989-a10. Failure to perform work—penalty. If any person to whom any portion of said work shall have been let shall fail to perform the same according to the terms specified in his contract, then the cash deposited by him shall be forfeited to the county, or recovery may be had in an action on the bond by the county, for the benefit of the levee or drainage district, for the damages sustained and the work shall be relet by the board in the manner hereinbefore provided. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 10.]

SEC. 1989-a11. Changes in dimensions. If, after said contract shall have been let and the work begun, it shall become apparent to the engineer in charge that the dimensions of the levee, ditch or drain should be enlarged, deepened or otherwise changed for the better service thereof of the lands benefited, then the engineer shall report such fact to the supervisors, explaining to them the necessity for such change, and the board may by resolution authorize such change in the dimensions of said improvement as the engineer shall recommend, provided that all persons whose lands shall be taken or who may be damaged by the said change, shall first have been given like notices and like proceedings had as hereinbefore provided for the establishment of the levee or drainage district. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 11.] [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 4.]

SEC. 1989-a12. Assessment of costs and damages. When the levee or drainage district or other improvement herein provided for shall have been located and established as provided for in this act, or when it shall be necessary to cause the same to be repaired, enlarged, reopened or cleared from any obstruction therein, unless such repairs, reopening or clearing of obstructions can be paid for as hereinafter provided, the board shall appoint three commissioners, one of whom shall be a competent civil engineer and two of whom shall be resident freeholders of the county, not living within the levee or drainage district and not interested therein or in a like question, nor related to any party whose land is affected thereby; and they shall within twenty days after such appointment personally inspect and classify all the lands benefited by the location and construction of such levee or drainage district, or the repairing or reopening of the same, in tracts of forty acres or less according to the legal or recognized subdivisions in a graduated scale of benefits, to be numbered according to the benefit to be received by the proposed improvement; and they shall make an equitable apportionment of the costs, expenses, costs of construction, fees and damages assessed for the construction of any such improvement, or the repairing or reopening of the same, and make report thereof in writing to the board of supervisors. In making the said estimate the lands receiving the greatest benefit shall be marked on a scale of one hundred and those benefited in a less degree shall be marked with such percentage of one hundred as the benefit received bears in proportion thereto. This classification when finally established shall remain as a basis for all future assessments connected with the objects of said levee or drainage district, unless the board, for good cause, shall authorize a revision thereof. In the report of the appraisers so appointed, they shall specify each tract of land by proper description and the ownership thereof as the same appears on the transfer books in the auditor's office, and the auditor shall cause notice to be served upon each person whose name appears as owner and also upon the person or persons in actual occupancy of any such land in the time and manner provided for the establishment of a levee or drainage district, which notice shall state the amount of special assessments apportioned to such owner, upon each tract or lot, the day set for hearing the same before the board of supervisors and that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor on or before noon of the day set for such hearing. When the day set for hearing shall have arrived, the board of supervisors shall proceed to hear and determine all objections made and filed to said report and may increase, diminish, annul or affirm the apportionment made in said report or in any part thereof as may appear to the board to be just and equitable; but in no case shall it be competent to show that the lands assessed would not be benefited by the improvement, and when such hearing shall have been had the board shall assess such apportionment so fixed by it upon the lands within such levee or drainage district. If the first assessment made by the board of supervisors for the original cost or for repairs of any improvement as provided in this act is insufficient, the board may make an additional assessment and levy in the same ratio as the first for either purpose. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 12.]

The statutory provision for notice in proceedings for the assessment of property on account of the benefits derived from the construction of public ditches is not open to the constitutional objection that it authorizes the levying of special assessments upon property in an amount greater than the benefit received, as provision is made therein for the determination of such benefits as a limitation upon the assessment. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128-442.

SEC. 1989-a13. Levy and collection of tax. In estimating the benefits as to the lands not traversed by said improvement they shall not consider what benefits such lands will receive after some other improvements shall have been constructed, but only the benefits which will be received by reason of the construction of the improvement in question as it affords an outlet for the drainage of such lands. Said tax shall be levied upon the lands of the owners so benefited in the ratio aforesaid and collected in the same manner as other taxes for county purposes, and the funds so collected shall be kept as a separate fund and shall be paid out only for purposes properly connected with such improvement on the order of the board of supervisors. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 13.]

SEC. 1989-a14. Appeal — "Drainage Record" — employment of counsel. An appeal may be taken to the district court from the order of the board fixing the assessment of benefits upon the lands in the same manner and time as herein provided for appeals from the assessment of damages. The appeal herein provided for shall be tried in the district court as an action in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term; and when several appeals are taken and pending in the district court by land owners of the same drainage district whose lands have been assessed by the board, the court may, in its discretion, order the consolidation of such cases, and try the same as one cause of action. When any appeal is taken from any order of the board made in any drainage proceeding coming before it for action, it shall be the duty of the board to employ counsel to represent the interests of the drainage district affected by said appeal on the trial thereof in the appellate courts and the expense thereof shall be paid out of the drainage fund of such district. The board shall provide a book to be known as the "Drainage Record" and the county auditor shall keep a full and complete record therein of all proceedings in each case and upon an appeal being taken shall make a full and complete transcript thereof and transmit the same to the clerk of the district court on or before the first day of the term to which the appeal shall be taken. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 14.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 2.]

SEC. 1989-a15. Nuisance. Any ditch, drain or water course which is now or may hereafter be constructed so as to prevent the surface and overflow waters from the adjacent lands from entering the same is hereby declared a nuisance and may be abated as such; and any person or corporation diverting, obstructing, impeding or filling up any such ditch, drain or water course or breaking down any levee established under the provisions of this act without legal authority, shall be deemed guilty of a nuisance and criminally punished as such. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 15.]

SEC. 1989-a16. Subsequent proceedings. In any proceedings heretofore or hereafter had for the establishment of a ditch, drain, levee or the changing of a natural water course, or the establishment of a levee or drainage district where an engineer has been appointed and has made a complete survey, return and plat thereof and for any reason the improvement has been abandoned and the proceedings dismissed and afterwards proceedings are instituted for the establishment of a levee or drainage district, or the changing [of] a natural water course, for the benefit or reclamation of the same territory surveyed in said former proceedings a part thereof, or the same with territory additional thereto, the engineer shall use the return, plat and profile made in said former proceedings, or so much thereof, as may be applicable. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 16.]

Where proceedings with reference to a public ditch were abandoned at the instance of the contractor, on account of doubt as to the constitutionality of the statute under which they were instituted, held that he was not entitled to do the work under new proceedings involving the construction of a ditch of a different character. Brown v. Board of Supervisors, 129-533.

SEC. 1989-a17. Relevy. Where proceedings have been had for the establishment of a ditch, drain, levee, change of natural water course or the establishment of a drainage district under the law as heretofore existing and such improvement has been established and constructed and taxes levied upon the land benefited thereby, or upon any portion thereof for the cost of such improvement, and where the levy so made cannot for any reason be enforced, the board shall proceed as to all lands benefited by said improvement in the same manner as if the appraisalment and apportionment of benefits had never been made; and they shall proceed in the manner hereinbefore provided, using as a basis the entire cost of such improvement, and in taxing up said benefits account shall be taken of the amount of tax, if any, that has been paid by those benefited and credit therefor shall be given accordingly. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 17.]

SEC. 1989-a18. Establishment and construction across railroad right of way. That sections eighteen (18) and nineteen (19) of said chapter be amended to read as follows:

"Whenever the board of supervisors shall have established any levee, or drainage district, or change of any natural water course and the levee, ditch, drain or water course as surveyed and located crosses the right of way of any railroad company, the county auditor shall immediately cause to be served upon such railroad company, in the manner provided for the service of original notices, a notice in writing stating the nature of the improvement to be constructed, the place where it will cross the right of way of such company, and the full requirements for its complete construction across such right of way as shown by the plans, specifications, plat and profile of the engineer appointed by the board, and directing such company to construct such improvement according to said plans and specifications at the place designated, across its right of way, and to build and construct or re-build and re-construct the necessary culvert or bridge where any ditch, drain or water course crosses its right of way, so as not to obstruct, impede or interfere with the free flow of the water therein, within thirty days from the time of the service of such notice upon it; and upon receiving said notice it shall be the duty of such railroad company to construct the improvement across its right of way according to the plans and specifications furnished in said notice and to build and construct or re-build and re-construct the necessary culvert or bridge above mentioned and complete the same within the time specified in said notice; if such railroad company shall fail, neglect or refuse to do so within the time fixed in said notice the auditor shall cause the same to be done under the supervision of the engineer in charge of the improvement and such railroad company shall be liable for the cost thereof to be collected by the county in any court having jurisdiction; and the cost of constructing the improvement across the right of way of such company, not including the cost of building and constructing or re-building and re-constructing any necessary culvert or bridge, shall be considered as an element of such company's damages by the appraisers thereof; and the cost of building and constructing or re-building and re-constructing any necessary culvert or bridge shall be borne by such railroad company without reimbursement therefor. The commissioners to assess benefits shall fix and determine the benefits to the property of the railroad company within the levee or drainage district and make return thereof with their regular return. Such special assessment shall be a debt due personally from the railroad company, and unless the same is paid by the railroad company as special assessment, it may be collected in the name of the county in any court having jurisdiction." [30 G. A., ch. 68, §§ 18, 19.] [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 3.]

SEC. 1989-a19. Construction across highway. Where the board of supervisors shall have established any levee, drainage district or change of any natural water course, and when such levee, ditch, drain or change of any natural water course crosses any public highway, the actual cost of constructing the same across such highway shall be paid by the township trustees from the road fund of such township; and whenever the making of such improvement across any highway necessitates the building of a bridge over the same, the board of supervisors shall build and construct the same and pay all costs and expenses thereof out of the county bridge fund. Whenever any highway within the levee or drainage district will be beneficially affected by the construction of any improvement or improvements in such district, it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed to classify and assess benefits to determine and return in their report the amount of the benefit to such highway, and notice shall be served upon the clerk of the township in which said highway is located as provided in case of an individual property owner. At the time fixed for hearing upon such report the board of supervisors shall fix and determine the amount to be apportioned to the road district on account of such benefit; and the amount so fixed shall be paid to the county for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district, from the road fund of such township or from the county road fund, or partly from each of said funds as the board may determine. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 20.]

SEC. 1989-a20. Construction on or along highway. Whenever a levee or drainage district shall have been established by the board and it shall become necessary or desirable that the levee, ditch, drain or improvement should be located and constructed within the limits of any public highway, on either or both sides and along the same, it shall be so built as not materially to interfere with the public travel thereon; and the board of supervisors shall have power and authority to lay out and establish public highways along and upon any levee or embankment along any ditch or drain built under the provisions of this act, provided that when so established the same shall be worked as other highways and so as not to impair the levee, ditch or drain. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 21.]

SEC. 1989-a21. Control—repairs. Whenever any levee or drainage district shall have been established and the improvement constructed as in this act provided, the same shall at all times be under the control and supervision of the board of supervisors and it shall be the duty of the board to keep the same in repair and for that purpose they may cause the same to be enlarged, reopened, deepened, widened, straightened or lengthened for a better outlet, and they may change or enlarge the same or cause all or any part thereof to be converted into a closed drain when considered for the best interests of the public rights affected thereby. The cost of such repairs or change shall be paid by the board from the drainage fund of said levee or drainage district, or by assessing and levying the cost of such change or repair upon the lands in the same proportion that the original expenses and cost of construction were levied and assessed, except where additional right of way is required or additional lands affected thereby, in either of which cases the board shall proceed as hereinbefore provided; provided, however, that if the repair is made necessary by the act or negligence of the owner of any land through which such improvement is constructed or by the act, or the negligence of his agent or employe, or if the same is filled and obstructed by the cattle, hogs or other stock of such owner, employe or agent, then the cost thereof shall be assessed and levied against the lands of such owner alone. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 22.]

SEC. 1989-a22. Outlet for lateral drains. The owner of any land, lot or premises that have been assessed for the payment of the cost of the location and construction of any ditch, drain or water course as hereinbefore provided, shall have the right to use the ditch, drain or water course as an outlet for lateral drains from said land, lot or premises. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 23.]

SEC. 1989-a23. Sub-drainage districts. If any person who owns land within the drainage district which has been assessed for benefits and which is separated from the ditch, drain or water course for which it has been assessed, by the land of another or others, shall desire to ditch or drain his said land across the land of such other or others into such ditch, drain or water course and shall be unable to agree with such other or others on the terms and conditions on which he may enter upon their lands and construct such drain or ditch, he may proceed in the manner in this section provided, and the ditch or drain which he shall construct or cause to be constructed shall be considered to be conducive to the public health, welfare, convenience and utility to promote which said drainage district was established. He may file his petition with the county auditor asking the board to establish a sub-district within the limits of the original district for the purpose of securing more complete drainage, describing the lands to be affected thereby by metes and bounds or otherwise so as to convey an intelligible description of such lands; and the bond and all other proceedings shall be the same as herein provided for the establishment, formation and construction of original districts and improvement thereof, including the assessment of damages and the assessment of benefits and when established and constructed, it shall be and become a part of the drainage system of such drainage district and be under the control and supervision of the board of supervisors. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 24.]

SEC. 1989-a24. Enlargement of water course or stream. When two or more districts shall have their outlet or discharge into the same natural water course or stream and it shall become necessary to deepen or enlarge said natural water course or stream, each district shall be assessed for the cost of such work in the same ratio to such total cost as the discharge of waters of such district bears to the combined discharge of waters of the several districts emptying into said natural water course or stream; but no district shall be liable to contribute for any improvement or costs and expenses incurred in improving said natural water course or stream above the point of discharge of the waters of such district into the same. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 25.]

SEC. 1989-a25. New levee or drainage districts. If any levee, drainage district or improvement heretofore established, either by legal proceedings or by private parties, or which may hereafter be established, shall prove insufficient to protect or drain all of the lands necessarily tributary thereto, the board of supervisors, upon petition therefor as for the establishment of an original levee or drainage district, shall have the power and authority to establish a new levee or drainage district covering and including such old district or improvement, together with any additional lands deemed necessary; and whenever a new district shall be established as contemplated in this section and the new improvement shall extend into or along the former improvement, the commissioners of classification and benefits shall take into consideration the value of such old improvement in the construction of the new improvement and credit the same to the parties owning the old improvement as their interests may appear. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 26.] [31 G. A., ch. 85, § 6.]

SEC. 1989-a26. How paid—improvement certificates. The special assessment for benefits made by the commissioners appointed for that purpose, as corrected and approved by the board of supervisors, shall be levied at one time by the board against the property so benefited, and when levied and certified shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer. If the owner of any parcel of land, lot or premises against which any such levy shall have been made and certified, which is embraced in any certificate provided for in this section, shall within thirty days from the date of such assessment promise and agree in writing endorsed upon such certificate, or in a separate agreement, that in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments, he will not make any objection of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment of benefits, or levy of such tax upon and against his property, but will pay said assessment with interest thereon at such rate not exceeding six per centum per annum as shall be prescribed by resolution of the board, such tax so levied against the land, lot or premises of such owner shall be payable in ten equal installments, the first of which with interest on the whole assessment shall mature and be payable on the date of such assessment, and the others with interest on the whole amount unpaid annually thereafter at the same time and in the same manner as the March semi-annual payment of ordinary taxes; but where no such terms and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any land, lot or premises then the whole of said special assessment, so levied upon and against the property of such owner, shall mature at one time and be due and payable with interest from the date of such assessment, and shall be collected at the next succeeding March semi-annual payment of ordinary taxes. All of such tax with interest shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after its maturity and shall bear the same interest with the same penalties as ordinary taxes. And the board may provide by resolution for the issuance of improvement certificates, payable to bearer or to the contractors who have constructed the said improvement or completed part thereof within the meaning of this act in payment or part payment therefor, each of which certificates shall state the amount of one or more assessments or part thereof made against the property designating it and the owners thereof liable to assessments for the cost of same, and said certificate may be negotiated. Such certificates shall transfer to the bearer, contractor or assigns all right and interest in and to the tax in every such assessment, or part thereof, described therein and shall authorize such bearer, contractor or assignee to collect and receive every assessment embraced in said certificate, by or through any of the methods provided by law for their collection, as the same mature. Such certificates shall bear interest not to exceed six per centum per annum, payable annually, and shall be paid by the taxpayer to the county treasurer who shall receipt for the same and cause the amount paid to be applied to the payment of the certificate issued therefor. Provided, that any person shall have the right to pay the full amount of the tax so levied against his property, together with interest thereon to date of payment at any time he desires so to do, even before the maturity of any certificates issued therefor. No certificate shall be issued or negotiated for the use of the drainage district for less than par value with accrued interest up to the delivery or transfer thereof. Should the costs of such work exceed the amount of benefits assessed and certificates issued, a new apportionment and levy of tax may be made and other certificates issued in like manner. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 27.]

The provision for the privilege of payment in installments upon waiver of objections does not impose a penalty for refusal to waive objections, and it does not constitute a denial of the equal protection of the law. Sisson v. Board of Supervisors, 128-442.

SEC. 1989-a27. Drainage bonds. If the board of supervisors shall determine that the estimated cost of reclamation and improvement of such district of land is greater than should be levied in a single year upon the lands benefited, instead of issuing improvement certificates as provided in the preceding section, it may fix the amount that shall be levied and collected each year and may issue drainage bonds of the county, bearing not more than six per centum annual interest and payable semi-annually in the proportions and at the times when such taxes shall have been collected, and may devote the same at par, with accrued interest, to the payment of the work as it progresses or may sell the same at not less than par, with accrued interest, and devote the proceeds to such payment; and if in the sale of said bonds a premium is received, such premium shall be credited to the drainage fund, and should the cost of such work exceed the estimate, a new apportionment of the tax may be made and other bonds issued and sold in like manner, but in no case shall the bonds run longer than fifteen years. Any property owner may pay the full amount of the benefit assessed against his property before such bonds are issued and receive a receipt in full therefor. Such payment shall be made to the county treasurer, and it shall be the duty of the county auditor to certify to the treasurer the amount of any such assessment when requested to do so, and the treasurer shall enter the same upon the tax lists in his hands in a separate place provided therefor, and shall furnish the auditor with duplicate receipts given for all assessments so paid in full. The terms and times of payment of the bonds so issued shall be fixed by the board. Said bonds shall be issued for the benefit of the district numbered thereon and each district shall be numbered by the board of supervisors and recorded by the auditor, said record showing specifically the lands embraced in said district and upon which the tax has not been previously paid in full. In no case shall the amount of bonds exceed the benefits assessed. Each bond issued shall show expressly upon its face that it is to be paid only by a tax assessed, levied and collected on the lands within the district so designated and numbered, and for the benefit of which district such bond is issued; nor shall any tax be levied or collected for the payment of said bond or bonds, or the interest thereon, on any property outside the district so numbered, designated and benefited. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 28.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 3.]

SEC. 1989-a28. Establishment when owners mutually agree. Owners of land which requires combined drainage may provide for the establishment of a drainage district or location and construction of drains, ditches and water courses upon their own lands by mutual agreement in writing duly signed, acknowledged and filed with the county auditor; such agreement may include the location, the character of the work to be done, the adjustment of the damages, the classification of the lands to be benefited thereby, the amount of taxes or special assessments to be levied, when the same shall be levied, or so many of these or other provisions as may be agreed upon, and to such extent shall be as valid and binding as though performed in the mode and manner provided for in this act. Upon the filing of the agreement with the county auditor, the board of supervisors shall at the next session thereafter establish such drainage district, and locate the ditch, drain or water course provided for in said mutual agreement according to the terms thereof, and shall thereafter have full and complete jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter, and order such procedure under the provisions of this act as may be required or necessary to carry out the object, purpose and intent of such agreement and to complete and construct the desired improvement and shall retain jurisdiction of the same as fully as in other cases made and provided for in this act. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 29.]

SEC. 1989-a29. Establishment through two or more counties. When the desired levy [levee] or drainage district extends into or through two or more counties and embraces land in two or more counties, the petition of one or more owners of land to be affected or benefited by such improvement shall be presented to the county auditor of each county into or through which said levy [levee] or drainage district will extend, accompanied by a bond to be filed with the county auditor of each of the said counties at the time of filing such petition, conditioned as provided when the district is wholly within one county, in an amount and with sureties satisfactory to, and approved by, the board of supervisors. Upon the presentation of such petition and the approval of such bond, the board of supervisors of each of said counties shall appoint a commissioner, and the commissioners of the several counties thus appointed shall meet within ten days thereafter and appoint a competent engineer, and such commissioners and engineer shall together make a survey of the entire lands embraced in the district, and shall determine what improvement or improvements in the way of levees, drains, ditches or changing of natural water courses are necessary for the reclamation of the lands described in the said petition; the engineer shall make a plat of all of the lands of said district, showing thereon the proposed improvements, the elevations and levels of said lands, so far as he may deem necessary, and a profile of said levee, drains, ditches or changes in any natural water course and shall file a copy in the auditor's office of each of said counties together with a full return of said commissioners and engineer, explaining the situation, describing the lands, the improvements, what effect said improvements will have upon the lands of said district, the course and length of any levee, drain, ditch or change of any natural water course through each tract of land, the estimated cost of the same, the dimensions of said improvement together with the names of the owners of all lands included within said district, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, and which in their opinion will be affected or benefited thereby, together with such other facts and recommendations as to them shall seem advisable, and especially whether or not in their judgment such levee or drainage district should be established. Immediately upon the filing of such return, plat and profile, if such recommends the establishment of the levee or drainage district, each county auditor of said counties shall cause the owners of the lands, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, and also the person in actual occupancy of any lots or lands in the district and also each lien holder or incumbrancer, as shown by the county records, of any land through or abutting upon which the proposed improvement extends, to be notified of the time and place where the boards of the several counties will meet in joint session for the consideration of said petition and return. Such notice shall be the same and served in the same time and manner as provided in this act when the levee or drainage district is wholly within one county. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 30.]

SEC. 1989-a30. Claims for damages—where filed. Any person claiming damages as compensation for, or on account of, the construction of such improvement shall file his claim in writing therefor in the office of the county auditor of the county in which his land is situated, at least five days prior to the time at which the petition has been set for hearing, and on failure to file such claims at the time specified shall be held to have waived his right thereto. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 31.]

SEC. 1989-a31. Hearing—appraisers. At the time set for hearing such petition the boards of the several counties shall meet at the place designated in said notice and sit jointly in considering the petition and proceed in the same manner as provided in section five of this act, except that if it becomes necessary to appoint appraisers, the boards of supervisors acting jointly shall appoint one appraiser from each county, and if said levee or drainage district extends into or through only two counties then the two appraisers shall choose a third, each of whom shall have like qualifications as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county and they shall then proceed in the same manner and make the same return as provided in section six of this act, except that a copy thereof shall be filed in the auditor's office of each of the several counties. After the filing of the report of such appraisers the further proceedings of the board[s] of supervisors acting jointly shall be the same, as in this act provided where the levee or drainage district is wholly within one county so far as applicable except as herein otherwise provided. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 32.]

SEC. 1989-a32. Assessment of costs and damages—improvement certificates—bonds. If the boards of supervisors, acting jointly, shall establish the levee or drainage district, they shall appoint a commission, one of whom shall be selected from each county and in addition thereto a competent engineer, each of whom shall have the same qualifications as provided where the district is wholly within one county; and said commission shall within twenty days go upon and view the premises and classify the same as hereinbefore provided where the district is wholly within one county, and in addition thereto shall make and [an] equitable apportionment of the costs, expenses, costs of construction, fees and damages assessed for the construction of such improvement or of the repairing or reopening the same, and make report thereof as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county, except a copy of said report shall be filed with each of the several county auditors. Immediately upon the filing of such report the several county auditors, acting jointly, shall cause notice to be served of the time when and the place where the boards of supervisors will meet and consider such report, which notice shall be the same and served in the same time and manner and all proceedings thereon shall be the same as provided where the district is wholly within one county, except after the amount to be assessed and levied against the several parcels or tracts of land shall have been apportioned and finally determined, the several boards of supervisors acting separately, and within their own counties, shall proceed to levy and collect the taxes thus apportioned in the same manner as provided where the district is wholly within one county, and they may issue improvement certificates or may sell bonds for the full amount of the benefits apportioned to such county. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 33.]

SEC. 1989-a33. Letting work. If the boards of supervisors, acting jointly, shall establish such levee or drainage district, the auditors of the several counties shall immediately thereafter, acting jointly, cause notice to be given of the time and place of the meeting of the boards for letting the contract or contracts for the construction of the improvement. The notices, bond and all other proceedings in relation to letting the contract or contracts shall be the same as in this act provided where the district is wholly within one county, except that the several boards shall act jointly. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 34.]

SEC. 1989-a34. Supervising engineer—contractor, how paid. At the time of establishing the levee or drainage district the boards of supervisors shall appoint a competent engineer to have charge of the construction of the work, and they shall fix his compensation therefor, and he shall before entering upon and taking charge of said work give bond to the counties for the use and benefit of the levee or drainage district, approved by the boards of supervisors in such sum as they may direct, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. The engineer in charge of the work shall furnish the contractor monthly estimates of the amount of work done on each section and the amount due from each county, a duplicate of which shall be filed with the auditor of each of the several counties. Upon the filing of such statement each auditor shall draw a warrant or deliver to him improvement certificates, as the case may be, in favor of the contractor for eighty per centum of the amount due from his respective county. When said improvement is completed to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge and accepted by the boards of supervisors, the engineer shall certify such fact to the several county auditors and each county auditor shall draw a warrant in favor of the contractor, or deliver to him improvement certificates, for the balance due from his respective county. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 35.]

SEC. 1989-a35. Appeals. Any person or persons aggrieved shall have the right to appeal in the same time and in the same manner as provided when the district is wholly in one county, except that if the appeal is taken from the action of the boards in establishing the levee or drainage district, such appeal may be taken to the district court of either county in which the district or some part thereof is located. If said appeal is from the award of damages or assessment of benefits the appeal shall be taken to the district court of the county in which the land affected is located. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 36.]

SEC. 1989-a36. District court to establish—when. Whenever the establishment of a levee or drainage district, extending into or through two or more counties, is petitioned for as hereinbefore provided and one or more of such boards of supervisors neglect, fail or refuse to take action thereon, the petitioner or petitioners may cause notice in writing to be served upon the chairman of such board or boards, demanding that action be taken upon the prayer of the petition within twenty days from and after the service of such notice; and if such board or boards shall neglect, fail or refuse to take action thereon within the time named, or if such action is taken and the boards of supervisors cannot agree as to the proper determination thereof, the petitioner or petitioners may cause such proceedings to be transferred to the district court of either of the counties into or through which such proposed district, or some part thereof, extends by serving notice upon the auditors of the several counties within ten days after the expiration of the time fixed by the notice, served upon the chairman of the board or boards, or within ten days after the failure of such boards to agree. Upon such notice being given the auditors shall, acting jointly, prepare and certify to the clerk of the district court a full and complete transcript of all proceedings had in such case, on or before the first day of the next succeeding term of said court. The clerk of the district court shall thereupon docket the case and the same shall be tried as in equity and the appearance term shall be the trial term, and the court shall enter judgment and decree dismissing the case or establishing such levee or drainage district and may by proper orders and writs enforce its judgment and decree. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 37.]

SEC. 1989-a37. Special sessions of boards of supervisors. Whenever the district is located in two or more counties, the boards of supervisors shall have power and authority to adjourn from time to time and meet in special session and in all cases shall have the same jurisdiction, power and authority as provided where the improvement is wholly within one county, and all proceedings shall be the same so far as applicable and not herein otherwise provided. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 38.]

SEC. 1989-a38. Cities and towns included. The board of supervisors shall have the same power, right and authority to establish a levee or drainage district that includes the whole or any part of any incorporated town or city, including cities acting under special charter, as they have to establish districts as hereinbefore provided, and they shall have the same power, right and authority with respect to the assessment of damages and benefits within such towns or cities as they have in other cases provided for in this act, and like notice to such city or town with respect to the establishment of such district and the apportionment and assessment of damages and benefits shall be given as is required by this act to be given to owners of property damaged or benefited by the establishment or construction of such improvement. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 39.]

SEC. 1989-a39. Outlet in another state. Whenever a drainage district is established in any county in this state and no practicable or feasible outlet can be obtained except through the lands of an adjoining state, the board of supervisors of such county shall have power and authority to purchase a right of way for such outlet in such adjoining state and pay for the same out of the funds of such district. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 40.]

SEC. 1989-a40. Watchmen. Whenever a levee has been established, or shall hereafter be established, and constructed in any county, the board of supervisors shall be empowered and authorized to employ one or more persons whose duty it shall be to watch such levee and make repairs thereon in case of emergency or cause the same to be made. And such employe shall file with the county auditor an itemized bill for services rendered, and cost and expense incurred in watching or repairing such levee, and the same shall be audited and allowed by the board as other claims and demands and the amount or amounts so allowed shall be paid by the county from the funds belonging to such levee district. If there are no funds on hand belonging to such district, the same shall be paid in the first instance by the county from the general fund and the board shall proceed to assess and levy a tax upon the lands in such district, which assessment and levy shall be apportioned to each tract of land in the same ratio that the original cost thereof was apportioned, and when collected the auditor shall draw a warrant thereon in favor of the county for the sum or sums so paid from the county funds. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 41.]

SEC. 1989-a41. Fees and expenses. Any engineer employed under the provisions of this act shall receive such compensation per diem as shall be fixed and determined by the board of supervisors. Appraisers of damages and commissioners to assess benefits, other than the engineer, shall receive three dollars per day each, and all other fees and costs required under the provisions of this act shall be the same as provided by law for like services in other cases. Such costs and expenses shall be paid by the order of the board of supervisors out of the county treasury from the levee or drainage funds collected for that purpose upon warrants drawn by the county auditor. And the amount of fees for publication of all notices required to be published by the provisions of this act shall be fixed by the board of supervisors not exceeding thirty-three and one-third cents for each ten lines of brevier type, or its equivalent. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 42.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 4.]

SEC. 1989-a42. County auditor—compensation—Drainage record. Whenever a levy or drainage district or districts shall be petitioned for or established in any county, the board of supervisors shall allow the county auditor such compensation or furnish such additional help, as shall be just and reasonable, to be paid by the county; and the county auditor shall be the custodian of all papers and records pertaining to the levee or drainage matter in his county and shall keep the book known as the "Drainage Record" and shall record therein all of the proceedings of the board of supervisors pertaining to the subject of levees or drainage, as well as the papers required to be issued or filed by the county auditor in such proceedings. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 43.]

SEC. 1989-a43. Draining of highways. Whenever the township trustees of any township or townships shall desire to drain any highway within or under the jurisdiction of such trustees, and it becomes necessary to cross the lands of a private owner or owners to obtain a proper outlet and the trustees cannot agree with the owner or owners of such land as to how, where and upon what terms such drain may be constructed, such trustees may file in the office of the county auditor a petition describing the highway to be drained and the lands necessary to be crossed to obtain a proper outlet, the starting point, route and terminus of the desired drain, as near as may be, and asking the establishment of such drain. Upon the filing of such petition the county auditor shall appoint a commissioner, who shall be a competent engineer, and place a copy of the petition in his hands and he shall proceed to survey the proposed ditch or drain along the route described in the petition, or other route if found more practicable or feasible, and shall return a plat and profile thereof to the county auditor, and his return shall set forth a full and detailed description thereof, its size, dimensions, whether it will require a covered or open drain, its availability, necessity and probable cost, with a description of each tract of land or lot owned by different persons through which or abutting upon which the drain is proposed to be located and such other facts and recommendations as he may deem material; and he shall also apportion among the several townships, if more than one, the ratio of the cost of construction and expenses that shall be borne by each township. After the filing of such report the further proceedings shall be the same as provided in title eight (VIII), chapter one (1) of the code in relation to the establishment of highways, except that the costs, expenses and damages shall be paid by the township trustees from the road fund of such township or townships, or from the county road fund, or partly from each of said funds, as the board of supervisors may determine. If the board of supervisors shall establish such drain, the same shall be constructed by the board of supervisors in the same manner that other county work is done, and the cost thereof shall be paid from the road fund of such township or townships, or from the county road fund, or partly from each of said funds, as the board of supervisors may direct, or the township trustees having jurisdiction over said highway shall have the right, if they deem advisable, to petition for the establishment of a drainage district including therein said highway, and said petition shall be considered and acted upon and proceedings had thereunder in all respects the same as provided where petition is signed by one or more of the land owners whose lands would be affected by or assessed for the expenses of the proposed improvements. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 44.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 5.]

SEC. 1989-a44. Inspection. The board of supervisors of any county in or through which an improvement of the character provided for in this act extends, or shall extend, shall cause a competent engineer to inspect such improvement whenever they may deem it necessary, and he shall make report to such board of the condition of the improvement together with such recommendation as he deems necessary. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 45.]

SEC. 1989-a45. Tax, a lien upon premises. The tax provided for in this act, when levied, shall be a lien upon all premises upon which the same is assessed to the same extent and in the same manner as taxes levied for county and state purposes. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 46.]

SEC. 1989-a46. Defects in proceedings. The provisions of this act shall be liberally construed to promote the leveeing, ditching, draining and reclamation of wet, overflow or agricultural lands; the collection of the assessments shall not be defeated, where the proper notices have been given, by reason of any defect in the proceedings occurring prior to the order of the board of supervisors locating and establishing the levee, ditch, drain or change of natural water course provided for in this act, but such order or orders shall be conclusive and final that all prior proceedings were regular and according to law unless they were appealed from. But if upon appeal the court shall deem it just and proper to release any person or modify his assessment or liability, it shall in no manner affect the rights or liability of any person other than the appellant; and the failure to appeal from the order of the board of supervisors of which complaint is made shall be a waiver of any illegality in the proceedings and the remedies provided for in this act shall exclude all other remedies. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 47.]

SEC. 1989-a47. Additional to statutes. The provisions of this act shall be construed as and independent procedure additional to chapter two (2) title ten (X) of the code and supplement, relating to the location, establishment and construction of levees, drains, ditches and water courses and shall not be held to repeal any of such provisions. [30 G. A., ch. 68, § 48.] [31 G. A., ch. 84, § 6.]

SEC. 1989-a48. Preliminary drainage expenses—how paid. Whenever a petition is filed with the county auditor of any county within the state, as contemplated in chapter sixty-eight (68) acts of the thirtieth (30th) general assembly of Iowa for the establishment of a drainage district in any county or counties within the state, the board of supervisors of said county (or counties if there be more than one) are hereby authorized to pay all necessary preliminary expenses in connection with said drainage district, out of the general county fund of said county, or if there be more than one county from the general county fund of each of the counties included in said district in such proportion as the work done or expense created in each county bears to the whole amount of work done or expense created, said amounts to be determined by the engineer in charge of the work, and they shall replace the same to the credit of the county fund of said county or counties as their interests may appear as soon as possible after the drainage district is established, or if said district be not established, then said amounts shall be paid from the proceeds of the bond deposited with the county auditor for that purpose, as provided for in chapter sixty-eight (68) acts of the thirtieth general assembly of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 86.]

SEC. 1989-a49. Pumping stations. The board of supervisors of any county or counties in the state in which a drainage or levee district has been or may hereafter be organized as provided in this act may provide as a part of said drainage system for the establishment and maintenance of a pumping station or stations, when and where the same may be necessary to secure a proper outlet for the drainage of the land comprising the said district and the cost of construction and maintenance of said pumping station or stations shall be levied upon and collected from the lands in the drainage or levee district in the same manner as provided for in the construction and maintenance of ditches or drains or levees in this act. [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 5.]

SEC. 1989-a50. Proceedings under petitions heretofore filed. Whenever any petition has heretofore been filed and any action thereon has been taken by the board of supervisors that is not final, it shall not be necessary that a new petition shall be filed in order to obtain the benefits of this act, but the board of supervisors are hereby empowered to proceed with the improvement from the point at which legal proceedings thereon were stopped. [32 G. A., ch. 94, § 6.]

SEC. 1989-a51. Statute applicable. That the measure of damages for locating, establishing and constructing a levee, ditch, drain or water course across the right of way of any railroad company provided for in section three (3) of this act shall be construed to apply to all cases and proceedings now pending involving such question; and the provisions of this act shall also be applicable to chapter two (2) title ten (10) of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 95, § 4.]

SEC. 1989-a52. Pumping stations. The board of supervisors of any county or counties in the state in which a drainage district has been or may hereafter be organized in the manner provided in chapter two (2) of title ten (10) of the code may provide for the establishment and maintenance of a pumping station when and where the same shall be necessary to secure a proper outlet for the lands comprising the district, and the costs of construction and maintenance of such pumping station or plant shall be levied upon and collected from the lands in the drainage district in the same manner as provided for the construction and maintenance of ditches as provided in title ten (10) chapter two (2) of the code, and code supplement—except the petition referred to shall require the signature[s] of fifty (50) per cent. of the land owners of such district. [30 G. A., ch. 69.]

SEC. 1989-a53. Owners may drain. Owners of land may drain the same in the general course of natural drainage, by constructing open or covered drains; discharging the same into any natural water course, or into any natural depression, whereby the water will be carried into some natural water course, and when such drainage is wholly upon the owner's land he shall not be liable in damages therefor to any person or persons or corporation. Nothing in this act shall, in any manner, be construed to affect the rights or liabilities of proprietors in respect to running waters or streams. [30 G. A., ch. 70.]

The owner may conduct surface water by means of tile drains upon his own land into the natural and usual channel which nature has provided for its discharge upon his neighbor's land without being liable in damages. This was the rule before the adoption of this statute. Dorr v. Simmerson, 127-551.

In an injunction case to restrain the establishment by a land owner of a system of tile drainage on his own land at the complaint of an adjoining owner, it must appear that the defendant is about to materially and unduly increase the flow of water to plaintiff's imminent damage. Wirde v. Vierkandt, 131-125.

Where a ditch is by agreement of adjoining owners constructed along a natural water course, connecting with an outlet, the upper owner's rights are not limited to the drainage of the particular area from which the ditch of itself conducts surface water, but he may construct lateral tile drains so as to drain lands not otherwise affected. Neuhring v. Schmidt, 130-401.

One may lawfully tile a natural water course which passes over his land onto that of another where the effect is not to cast a greater quantity of water or to carry the water in a different manner upon the land of his neighbor. Hull v. Harker, 130-190.

A natural water course is not necessarily a channel with banks, but if the surface water uniformly flows in a given course within reasonable limits, the line of its flow is a water course. Ibid.

The statute as to private drainage and tiling is merely declaratory of the rule at common law, that the owner of land may tile drain it in the general course of natural drainage, discharging the water collected into one natural water course or natural depression by which the water will be carried into some natural water course. Pohlman v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 131-89.

Where a land owner constructs a ditch through his land for drainage purposes, in conjunction with another owner, and acquiesces in its use, it becomes a water course to which the owner of the adjoining land may conduct his surface water. Sheker v. Machovec, 110 N. W. 1055.

CHAPTER 4.

OF TAKING PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR WORKS OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.

SECTION 1995. By railway—limit of.

When property has been devoted to public use it cannot be taken and applied to another conflicting public use by the exercise of the power of eminent domain, unless by authority of the legislature expressly given or necessarily implied. But held that land owned by a steamboat company and used for a landing was not so devoted to a public use, the steamboat company having no power to condemn land for public use for such purposes and therefore not being authorized to hold for such purposes exempt from the right of condemnation for purposes authorized by statute. Diamond Jo Line Steamers v. Davenport, 114-432.

Held further that the fact that the steamboat company had only an undivided interest in the property would indicate that it was not held absolutely and as of right to a public use. Ibid.

A railroad company undertaking to exercise the privilege of eminent domain is precluded from questioning the constitutionality of the conditions provided by statute for the exercise of such privilege. Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 114-713.

A railway company is not bound to acquire a right of way of any particular width, nor to lay its main track in the center of that which is acquired. While ordinarily it is to be presumed to have obtained a right of way of the maximum width, and to have intended to have its track in the center, this is a mere naked presumption, casting the burden of proof on any one asserting the contrary, but subject to be overcome by evidence rebutting the inference. Hence, exclusive possession exercised by an abutting property owner to within less than 50 feet of the center of the railway track may be shown as against the claim of the railroad company to the full width of the right of way. Cedar Rapids Canning Co. v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 120-724.

A railroad cannot acquire by condemnation a strip to exceed one hundred feet in width. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 116-681.

As the statute does not provide for nor require a preliminary survey or location until the condemnation proceedings are commenced, the company is a trespasser in entering upon land for the purpose of making such preliminary survey, and acquires no rights thereby. Ibid.

While the statute contemplates the condemnation only of a right of way one hundred feet in width, yet an additional strip acquired by purchase for use in connection with the right of way constitutes a portion thereof, and the duty of providing a private crossing to the land owner whose property is intersected by the right of way is not changed. Mattice v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 130-749.

SEC. 1998. Additional depot grounds. Any railway corporation owning or operating or constructing a railway shall have power to condemn lands for necessary additional depot grounds or yards, for additional or new right of way for constructing double track, reducing or straightening curves, changing grades, shortening or re-locating portions of the line, for excavations, embankments, or places for depositing waste earth in the same manner as is provided by law for the condemnation of the right of way. Before any proceedings shall be instituted therefor, the company shall apply to the railway commissioners, who shall give notice to the land owner, and examine into the matter, and report by certificate, to the clerk of the district court in the county in which the land is situated, the amount and description of the additional lands necessary for such purposes, present and prospective, of such company; whereupon the company shall have the power to condemn the lands so certified by the commissioners. [20 G. A., ch. 190, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 70, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 79, § 1.]

The right of way which may be taken for railroad purposes is limited to one hundred feet, whether acquired by condemnation or by purchase. Additional right of way for depot grounds can be acquired only by application to the railroad commissioners who shall, after a hearing, certify to the district court the amount and description of additional land necessary for that purpose. Crandall v. Des Moines N. W. R. Co., 103-684.

SEC. 1999. Manner of condemnation.

Measure of damages: In condemnation proceedings the damages are to be assessed once for all, and when once assessed they include all the injuries which may result for all time to come from the construction and operation of the road in a reasonable and proper manner. Hileman v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 113-591.

Additional tracks and sidetracks, as they may become necessary, may be constructed without the payment of additional damages for right of way. Ibid.

Many of the considerations that tend to affect the value of town property are prospective only, but they may nevertheless be taken into account. Therefore, where land was condemned for depot purposes, held, that its prospective increased value on account of the location of the depot in that locality might be considered. Snouffer v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 105-681.

Where a lessee seeks compensation he should be allowed the difference between the value of the annual use of the premises before the taking of the right of way and what it was worth afterward. Werthman v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-135.

The damages to be assessed in condemnation proceedings do not include injuries which may result from the negligence or improper construction of the railroad. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125-301.

In such a proceeding damages resulting from causing water to flow upon the premises of the owner from lands of another owner by the improper construction of ditches are not to be taken into account. Ibid.

It is not to be assumed that where the right of way is maintained through the premises of an owner the private way to which he will be entitled, will be a grade crossing. It must be assumed that it will be an adequate crossing. Ibid.

It is not competent to show in evidence the amount which the company has paid to other owners per acre for rights of way over their land. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-139.

Damages are not to be predicated on any particular form of crossing, the requirement of the statute being that the company shall furnish an adequate crossing. Ibid.

Nor should the jury be told that they may take into account every element of annoyance and disadvantage resulting from the construction of the railroad which would influence an intending purchaser in making an estimate of the market value of the property. Ibid.

Interest is to be awarded from the time the railway takes possession of the right of way. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 131-680.

The allowance of interest from the time of the construction of the road, antedating the institution of condemnation proceedings, is erroneous. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132-11.

Entire premises: The damages allowed on condemnation of a portion of the owner's premises should include damage to the entire premises resulting from the construction of the improvement which involves the taking of his land. Haggard v. Independent School Dist., 113-486.

Two tracts connected by a right of way may constitute one farm, damage to the whole of which is to be considered in proceedings to condemn a right of way across one portion. Westbrook v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115-106.

In the assessment of damages it is error to limit the witnesses to a consideration of any special use for the land. The owner is entitled to have his farm valued as a whole, and his damages assessed on that basis. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116-31.

When separate tracts, one only of which is crossed by a right of way, is adapted to one use, and both are especially valuable because of adaptability to that use and are both injuriously affected by the appropriation, they should be treated as constituting one property in assessing the damages. Hoyt v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 117-296.

Whether the owner of separate parcels is entitled to have them treated as one tract is usually a question for the jury. But where the tracts are entirely independent, not contiguous, and there is no evidence that damage to the part actually taken affects the part not touched the court should direct the jury to consider only that tract over which the right of way is taken. Ibid.

The fact that the railroad company in condemnation proceedings described only one of two tracts which are occupied together as a farm does not deprive the owner of the right to have the damages to the entire farm estimated in the proceeding. Cook v. Boone Suburban Elec. R. Co., 122-437.

Although a tract belonging to one owner may have been platted, it does not follow that there should be a separate assessment as to each subdivision, where there is no physical evidence of the plat, and no improvements made with reference thereto. Gray v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 129-68.

Trespass by company: Where the railroad company entering without right upon land continues to occupy the same after title has been conveyed to another owner, such occupancy may be treated as a continuing trespass, for which the grantee may recover damages from the time of acquiring title. But the grantee is not entitled to recover for the damages suffered by his grantor. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132-11.

Obstructing water course: A railroad company constructing its road across a stream is not liable for negligence in failing to provide for a flood which is not only extraordinary, but unprecedented, and could not reasonably have been foreseen, but it should anticipate and make provision for such floods as may occur in the ordinary course of nature, and will be liable in damages to a property owner whose property is injured by its failing to do so. Houghtaling v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 117-540.

It is immaterial that in the construction of an adequate culvert the company acted upon the advice of its engineers, who were shown to have been competent and skillful. Ibid.

The company is liable for damages resulting from the clogging of a culvert by debris carried down by a stream during a freshet, so far as such damage is the result of a flood not extraordinary and unprecedented, and which could not reasonably have been anticipated. Ibid.

An exception in a conveyance of a right of way does not cover an additional right granted to the railroad company to discharge surface water upon the land. Earhart v. Cowles, 122-194.

A railroad company procuring a right of way by condemnation does not have the right to divert the surface water or a stream to the damage of the land owner from whose land the right of way has been taken, and such unlawful obstruction may be enjoined. Albright v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 133-644.

Proceedings: The proceedings before the commissioners appointed by law to appraise the land are not a suit at law, but in the nature of an inquest to ascertain its value. No hearing is had and no evidence introduced. The commissioners merely inspect the land, determine upon the amount of damages which will be occasioned by the appropriation, and make a written report to the sheriff. To this extent the proceeding is in no respect a suit, but when an appeal from the finding is taken to the district court, the proceeding is adversary and is in the nature of a suit, which may be removed to the federal court under the removal acts. Myers v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118-312.

While no formal pleadings are required in condemnation proceedings, yet if the defendant undertakes to plead formally, and files a written answer, the ordinary rules of pleading should prevail and no affirmative defense not pleaded can be relied on. Mason v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 131-468.

Where the company is in possession of the right of way sought to be condemned, and the description given in the notice is sufficient to direct the sheriff and jury to the premises, and the award contains a correct description, there can be no objection that the notice of the proceedings was insufficient as to the description of the property to be condemned. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129-68.

Abandonment of proceedings: While a company may abandon the condemnation proceedings after the award of damages is made, and thereby escape the payment of the award, it cannot simply abandon the award and continue the proceedings, or institute other proceedings for another award as to the same property. Robertson v. Hartenbower, 120-410.

Abandonment of road: When a railroad company enters upon the land of another, builds a roadbed, places ties and rails thereon, these as a general rule, in the absence of abandonment to the owner, belong to the company constructing the same or to its grantees or assignees, and the land owner cannot in condemnation proceedings, although instituted subsequently to the construction of the road, have the value thereof included in his award. Van Husen v. Omaha B. & T. R. Co., 118-366.

Payment to sheriff: Nothing short of actual payment, or its equivalent, to the owner of the damages assessed constitutes compensation for property wrested from him under the power of eminent domain. Payment of the damages to the sheriff is not effectual where the sheriff becomes insolvent and the property owner is unable to secure the money paid. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110-385.

The deposit with the sheriff of the amount of the award is intended as security for the land owner where the company takes immediate possession of the land and the land owner has such an interest in the deposit when made that he may hold the officer liable for its safe keeping. Bannister v. McIntire, 112-600.

SEC. 2000. Assessment of damages—notice.

It is not necessary that all the condemnations of the same right of way be before the same jury. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129-68.

Where a particular tract included among those as to which damages are to be assessed is overlooked or lost sight of by the sheriff and jury in making up the awards, a subsequent proceeding to assess the damages for such tract is not barred. Mason v. Iowa Central R. Co., 131-468.

SEC. 2003. Notice published. Said notice shall be published in some newspaper in the county, if there is one, if not, then in a newspaper published in the nearest county through which the proposed railway is to be run, once each week, for at least eight successive weeks prior to the day fixed for the appraisal at the instance of the corporation. [C., '73, § 1248.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 26.]

The provisions of this section allowing attorney's fees in such proceedings is not unconstitutional. Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 114-713; Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116-31; Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132-11.

The provision as to attorney's fees does not apply unless on the trial the award is at least equal to that allowed by the commissioners. Wormley v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 120-684.

By the provisions of Code § 884 the proceedings provided for under this section are to be followed in condemning land by a city. Mellichar v. Iowa City, 116-390.

In the taxation of attorney's fees, the court in its discretion may receive testimony, but is not bound to do so, and may limit the testimony to proof of the services rendered. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133-714.

SEC. 2009. Appeals—how taken.

The right of appeal furnishes an adequate remedy for any errors or irregularities in the proceeding. Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129-68.

It is not error to strike from the files an answer of the appellee questioning the jurisdiction of the court over the appellee, where the facts alleged do not show want of jurisdiction. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-139.

Where the land owner alone appeals from the award, the company is the defendant in such sense as to be entitled to remove the case to the federal court without regard to which party made the application for the appointment of commissioners. Kirby v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106 Fed. 551.

An appeal by the land owner from the assessment of damages by the commissioners in a condemnation proceeding is in effect an action by the land owner against the corporation for the value of the property taken, and may be removed to the federal court on account of diversity of citizenship of the parties. Myers v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118-312.

An appeal from the finding of the sheriff's jury is such an action as may be removed to the federal court, on account of diversity of citizenship, although the land owner is the appellant and as a non-resident asks the removal. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. v. Boynton, 204 U. S. 570.

Where in a single proceeding the jury pass on the question as to the damage to be allowed to the owner and his tenant separately, either may appeal without joining the other or serving notice upon the other. An award to one would in no manner affect or prejudice the right of the other. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-139.

While it may not be proper in examining the jurors on voir dire to disclose the amount of the award by the sheriff's jury, there will not be a reversal on that ground where it does not appear that any of the jurors to whom such suggestion was made acted on the final trial of the case. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-139.

Where the company served notice of appeal and afterwards the land owner also served notice and filed a transcript without paying the filing fee and the company thereupon caused the land owner's appeal to be docketed and asked an affirmance for failure of the land owner to prosecute his appeal, held that it was not error for the trial court to consolidate the land owner's appeal with that taken by the company, and subsequent dismissal of its appeal by the company left no question for determination by the court. McKinnon v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & L. Co., 126-426.

Where land is condemned and taken possession of before the damages are paid interest should be allowed on the amount of the award. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116-31.

SEC. 2011. Trial—judgment—costs.

Payment to the sheriff does not limit the property owner to his remedy against the sheriff for the recovery of money thus paid. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110-385.

The court should not on appeal render judgment against the company for the damages found where the property has not been appropriated. Haggard v. Independent Sch. Dist., 113-486.

SEC. 2015. Non-user of right of way.

Where the right of the company to land taken for right of way is lost by non-user the land does not revert to the original owner from whom it was taken, but to the present owner of the tracts of land from which it was taken. Smith v. Hall, 103-95.

Where a right of way is acquired by a fee simple deed and subsequently the separated tracks of the parcel of land through which the right-of-way is thus conveyed by description, excluding the right of way, such subsequent conveyance does not cover any right of reversion of the right of way. Watkins v. Ia. Cent. R. Co., 123-390.

Where the owner of land conveys a right of way passing through his premises and afterwards conveys the two parcels expressly excluding the right of way by description from the conveyance, the grantees of the respective parcels are not entitled to damages on the taking of such right of way by another railroad, after abandonment by non-user for eight years. Spencer v. Wabash R. Co., 132-129.

In a conveyance of land, a portion of which has been taken for railroad right of way, the portion thus taken may be excepted from the grant so that upon abandonment of the right of way the title thereto does not revert to the grantee of the balance of the tract, but to the original grantor. Hall v. Wabash R. Co., 133-714.

It is to be questioned whether this section is meant to apply to a grant of the use of a public highway, but at any rate it does not apply to restrict a railroad company from using a right of way acquired over a public highway alongside a right of way acquired over private property whenever it shall see fit to avail itself of such right. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113-561.

By agreement a land owner may be entitled to enforce a forfeiture of the railroad right of way in case of abandonment although the length of time of non-user contemplated by the statute has not expired. Gill v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117-278.

Use of the right of way over the owner's land which is merely colorable and not for ordinary railroad purposes will not prevent such forfeiture. Ibid.

It is not necessary to constitute such abandonment that the entire line of which the right of way in question forms a part shall have been abandoned. Ibid.

SEC. 2016. Condemning abandoned right of way.

After the lapse of eight years of non-user, the right of way ceases to exist as such, and is to be again acquired by exercise of the power of eminent domain in the same manner as rights of way are obtained in the first instance. And in such case the provision that parties who have previously received compensation, which has not been refunded, shall not be permitted to recover the second time, has no application. Remey v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 116-133; Gray v. Iowa Central R. Co., 129-68.

As to the question involved in the case of Remey v. Iowa Central R. Co., 116-133, the judges of the court on a subsequent consideration in another case were equally divided in opinion. Clark v. Wabash R. Co., 132-11.

SEC. 2017. Raising or lowering highways.

A railroad company may cross streets in the occupation of a right of way acquired over private property without the consent of abutting property owners, if in crossing such streets its track is not laid in front of the property of such abutting owners. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113-561.

Land devoted to the use of a railroad is devoted to public use and a common highway may be used by a railroad company without further compensation to adjoining owners. Burlington Gas Light Co. v.

Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 165 U. S. 370.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that the railroad took its grant of right of way subject to existing easements in favor of the public. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Council Bluffs, 109-425.

And held that, having recognized and adopted a dedication of highways to the public by the original proprietor, a mere non-use by the public of such highways would not defeat the same. Ibid.

SEC. 2020. Crossing railways, canals, etc.

Where the right of one road to cross another has been acquired under existing statutes, the legislature cannot, by a subsequent statute, impose as a condition to the continued use of such crossing the burden of paying the entire cost of putting in and operating an interlocking system.

Manhattan Trust Co. v. Sioux City & N. R. Co., 81 Fed. 50.

But by Code § 2063 a railway proposing to cross one already constructed must bear the expense of interlocking. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114-502.

SEC. 2022. Private crossings. When any person owns land on both sides of any railway, the corporations owning the same shall, when requested so to do, make and keep in good repair a sufficient causeway or other adequate means of crossing the same and one cattle-guard on each side thereof connected by cross fences to the right of way fence on each side of the right of way, at such reasonable place as may be designated by the owner. [C., '73, § 1268; R., § 1329.] [32 G. A., ch. 96.]

The fact that an under passageway is contracted in width after it has been occupied and used for a long period does not entitle the property owner to damages if such passageway is left of sufficient width to fulfill the objects for which it was originally provided. Olver v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 111-221.

A land owner cannot acquire a right to a crossing by adverse possession so as to preclude change thereof by the company. Schrimper v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 115-35.

An undercrossing, constructed in pursuance of the statute, and not by contract with the owner, may be changed by the company to a grade crossing when no peculiar damage results to the owner by the change and the expense of maintaining the undercrossing would be unreasonable. Ibid.

In condemnation proceedings it is proper for the jury to take into account the fact that an adequate crossing over the track is required by statute to be constructed, and that if only an underground crossing would be adequate, such a crossing will be given. Lough v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 116-31.

The duty of determining the kind of crossings is imposed on the company with the limitation that they be adequate, and in determining the damages in a condemnation proceeding it is not to be assumed that the crossing will be a grade crossing.

Gunn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125-301.

Mandamus will lie: To compel railroad companies to construct suitable crossings for one owning land on both sides of the railroad track without the prior submission of the matter to a board of railroad commissioners. Swinney v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123-219.

The statute clearly contemplates such a crossing as shall connect the several parts of the owner's land without requiring him to go into the public highway, and consent to the construction of a way by which he may reach the public highway is not a waiver of his right to a private crossing. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129-507.

Where a grade crossing is impracticable, the fact that an overhead crossing would involve considerable expense will not constitute a sufficient reason for not requiring the company to construct such overhead crossing. Ibid.

The railroad company is not excused from providing a private crossing by the fact that the land owner may pass from one tract of his land to another separated by the railway by means of an adjoining public highway. The statute evidently contemplates more convenient access than is usually afforded by a public highway, even though one side of the land may abut thereon. Mattice v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 130-749.

The fact that the railway has acquired a strip of land for its use adjoining its right of way of full width does not excuse it from furnishing a private crossing. Ibid.

The railroad company is required to build and maintain cattle guards within a reasonable time after having been properly requested. The request must be of some officer or agent of the company, acting within the scope of his duties, such duties including the management or control of the putting in of cattle guards, or of ordering them to be put in. McGill v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 113-358.

Where a private crossing was constructed over three adjacent parallel lines of railroad which was protected by gates at each end of the passageway, held that failure of one of the companies to maintain an inside gate between its own right of way and that of another company would not render it liable for an injury to an animal coming upon its right of way. Fowbel v. Wabash R. Co., 125-215.

The obstruction of a private crossing is prohibited by the provisions of Code § 5078, relating to obstructions of either public or private ways, and a tenant in possession may recover damages to his use of the premises by reason of such obstruction. Morrison v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117-587.

SEC. 2024-a. State to condemn. Whenever in the opinion of the governor of the state, the public interest requires the laying or construction of any drain, sewer or aqueduct, and the acquisition of an easement therefor, upon or across private property, or the taking of any real estate for the making or construction of any drain, sewer or aqueduct, or for rifle ranges, exercise, drill or parade grounds, yards, walls, buildings or other improvements or conveniences for the use or benefit of any fort, arsenal, military post or other institution of the United States, upon or across private property, the same proceedings may be had in the name of the state as are provided for the taking of private property for works of internal improvement by chapter 4, title X, of the code; and the proceedings shall be conducted by the county attorney of the county in which the land is situated, whenever directed by the governor, or he may appoint some other person for that purpose. [29 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-b. Damages certified—how paid—conveyance of title. When the amount of the damages is finally determined, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall certify the amount thereof to the governor who shall, by an order endorsed thereon, direct the payment of the same, including all costs and expenses incurred, and the auditor of state shall issue a warrant on the treasury for the amount, which shall be paid out of such money as may have been deposited in the treasury by the United States, or by any person or persons for and on its behalf, and when paid to the sheriff or person entitled thereto, the governor and auditor of state are hereby authorized and instructed to convey the easement or real estate so taken and all of the rights of the state so acquired therein, to the United States, by good and sufficient deed of conveyance executed for, on behalf of and in the name of the state of Iowa, and thereupon the United States, through its proper officer or agent, may enter upon the premises and construct the desired work. [29 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-c. United States may purchase or condemn. That where the United States of America has undertaken or may hereafter undertake to improve any river, stream, or water-course, forming a part of the boundary line of this state, or within this state, or to utilize any river, stream, or water-course, for any purpose, deemed advisable, the said United States may purchase, or condemn land and private property, in accordance with the provisions of chapter four (4) title ten (10) of the code, for taking private property. [29 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-d. Additional grounds for buildings. Whenever, in the opinion of the executive council of the state, public interest requires the taking of real estate as a site for any state building, or as additional grounds for any existing state building, or for any other state purpose, the state may take and hold, under its right of eminent domain, so much real estate as is necessary for the purpose for which the same is taken; and proceedings may be instituted in the name of the state of Iowa for the condemnation of such real estate under the provisions of chapter four (4) of title ten (X) of the code, which proceedings shall be conducted by some person appointed by the governor of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-e. Damages—how paid. When the amount of damages is determined, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall certify the amount thereof to the executive council which shall, by an order endorsed upon the certificate, direct the payment of the same, and the auditor of state shall, upon receipt of such order, issue a warrant on the treasury for the amount, which warrant shall be paid out of any money appropriated by the general assembly for that purpose, or out of any money received from the sale of other property, the proceeds of which may have been authorized by law to be used for the purpose of the purchase of real estate for state use; and when the amount of such damages is paid to the sheriff, the clerk, or the person entitled thereto, the state, through its proper officer or agent, may enter upon the possession of the real estate taken, and use and occupy the same for state purposes. [30 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-f. Court houses—jails—condemnation proceedings authorized. Whenever the interest of any county requires real estate for the erection of court houses or jails by a county, such county may take and hold such real estate for the purpose for which same is taken, by condemnation proceedings. Such proceedings shall be instituted pursuant to a resolution of the board of supervisors of a county, and shall be instituted and prosecuted in the name of the county seeking such condemnation by the county attorney for such county under the provisions of chapter four (4) of title ten (X) of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-g. Damages—how paid. In cases where such condemnation is sought by a county, the sheriff or clerk, as the case may be, shall, when the amount of the damages is determined, certify the amount thereof to the board of supervisors and such board may direct payment thereof by resolution, and the county auditor shall thereupon issue his warrant therefor upon the proper fund of such county. In any case when the amount of the damages is paid to the sheriff or clerk, or the person entitled thereto, and the time for appeal has expired or final judgment entered upon appeal, the county may enter into possession of the real estate taken, through its proper officers or agents, and use and occupy the same for the purpose taken. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-h. Appeals. No county condemning or seeking to condemn land under the provisions of this act, shall be entitled to the possession of the lands condemned or sought to be condemned until the time for appeal to the district or supreme court from such condemnation has expired, or final judgment rendered on appeal, and in all appeals from the award of the sheriff's jury in such proceedings, the court shall have jurisdiction to pass upon the public necessity for the condemnation of such real estate, and shall determine the same without the intervention of a jury, and may make such order with reference thereto as it may deem proper within its discretion, and may modify, enlarge or diminish the area of grounds sought to be condemned, but all questions as to amount of damages shall be determined by ordinary proceedings as in other cases of condemnation. [30 G. A., ch. 72, § 3.]

SEC. 2024-i. Counties and townships. The board of supervisors of any county and the township trustees of any township are hereby authorized and empowered within their respective limits, and without the limits of any city or town to procure, purchase or condemn, enter upon and take any lands for the purpose of obtaining gravel or other suitable material with which to improve the roads and highways of such county or township, including a sufficient roadway to such land by the most reasonable route, and pay for the same out of the county or township road funds. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 1.]

SEC. 2024-j. Cities and towns. Cities and towns including cities under special charter are hereby authorized and empowered within or without their limits to procure, purchase or condemn, enter upon and take any lands for the purpose of obtaining gravel, stone or other suitable material with which to improve the streets and alleys of such city or town, including a suitable roadway thereto by the most reasonable route, and pay for the same from the general fund, grading fund, or from the highway or poll taxes of such city or town, or partly from each of said funds. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 2.]

SEC. 2024-k. Condemnation proceedings. Proceedings for condemnation of land as contemplated in this act shall be, in accordance with the provisions relating to taking private property for works of internal improvements. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 3.]

SEC. 2024-l. Reversion of lands. When lands that have been condemned and taken under this act, and not used for the purpose herein specified for the period of five consecutive years, such lands shall then revert to the owner or owners of the tract from which it was taken. [30 G. A., ch. 73, § 4.]

SEC. 2026. Repeal—interurban or street railway over highways. That section two thousand and twenty-six (2026) of the supplement to the code, and chapter eighty-seven (87) of the acts of the thirty-first general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Any interurban or street railway, may for the purpose of constructing or extending its line locate, build and operate its road by any power other than steam, over and along any portion of the public road, beyond the limits of any city or town, which is one hundred feet or more wide. It shall as soon as practicable put the road in as good repair as it was before its use for such railway. Boards of supervisors are authorized to accept for road purposes conveyances of land adjoining any such road or part thereof sufficient to increase the same to the width of one hundred feet; but in any county in which such company desires to operate its line of railway over a road not less than sixty feet in width, for a distance not over two miles, beyond the limits of a city or town, the board of supervisors may grant the right to it to operate its line over said road, not exceeding two miles, under such rules and regulations as said board may prescribe, and may also from time to time make such further reasonable regulations as may be necessary. Where an interurban railway desires to operate its lines along or upon a public highway beyond the limits of any city or town, and in the opinion of the board of supervisors of the county in which such highway is located, it is impracticable or inexpedient to increase the width thereof to one hundred feet, such board of supervisors may permit such interurban railway company to construct and operate its railway along and upon such highway, under such restrictions and regulations as the board may deem advisable; but no such railway shall construct or operate its line along or upon such highway until a written statement of consent of two-thirds of the residents owning property abutting upon such highway shall have been obtained and filed with the auditor of the county in which the highway is located; but no such written consent signed by any abutting land owner shall be construed to waive any claim for damages he may have on account of the location and construction of such railway upon and along the highway in front of the premises unless expressly so stated therein, and no such written consent shall have the effect to deprive any other abutting land owner of his right to recover damages therefor. And in all cases the location, construction and operation of such interurban railway shall be subject to the provisions of section two thousand twenty-seven (2027) of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 97.]

The provisions of the act from which this section is derived related entirely to street railways and a street railway which is thus extended beyond the city limits along the public highway to a neighboring city or town does not become subject to taxation under the provisions relating to taxation of railroads. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 106-476.

Under the provisions of Code § 1334, which now control the taxation of interurban railways, an electric railway constructed and operated along the highway outside of the city limits is to be taxed as an interurban railway, being now so defined by Code Supplement § 2033-a. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125-430.

SEC. 2028. Ways to lands which have none. Any person, corporation or copartnership owning or leasing any land not having a public or private way thereto, may have a public way to any railway station, street or highway established over the land of another, not exceeding forty feet in width, to be located on a division line or immediately adjacent thereto; but if a railway is to be constructed thereon, as provided in section two thousand and thirty-one (2031) the same may be located wherever necessary and practicable, but not exceeding one hundred feet in width, and not interfering with buildings, orchards, gardens or cemeteries; and when the same shall be constructed it shall, when passing through inclosed land, be fenced on both sides by the person or corporation causing it to be established. [25 G. A., ch. 18; 15 G. A., ch. 34, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.]

One whose property is not reached by a public highway may have an outlet to the highway established at his expense. Perry v. Board of Supervisors, 133-281.

One who petitions for the establishment of a public way cannot be defeated by a showing that proceedings to establish a public highway along the same line have been defeated, where it does not appear that the party asking the establishment of the way was a party to the proceeding for establishing the highway. Kirkhart v. Roberts, 123-137.

The provisions relating to the establishment of rights of way to mines are to be construed together and it is only on a public way, such as is authorized to be located under this section, that a railway may be established under § 2031. Morrison v. Thistle Coal Co., 119-705.

The right of way for a railway thus established is a public way, even though it is not maintained so as to be available for use by the traveler otherwise than by use of railway cars. Ibid.

The requirement of this section, before its amendment by 29 G. A., chapter 82, that such right of way, not exceeding forty feet in width, may be located on a division line or immediately adjacent thereto, did not render it improper where, by reason of making a reasonably convenient curve, it was necessary to construct a portion of the track more than forty feet from a division line. Ibid.

CHAPTER 4-A.

OF INTERURBAN RAILWAYS.

SECTION 2033-a. Interurban railway defined. Any railway operated upon the streets of a city or town by electric or other power than steam, which extends beyond the corporate limits of such city or town to another city, town or village, or any railway operated by electric or other power than steam, extending from one city, town or village to another city, town or village, shall be known as an interurban railway, and shall be a work of internal improvement. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 1.]

The provision that the portion of an interurban railway system within the corporate limits of a city shall be subject to municipality regulation does not destroy its character as a part of the system for the purposes of taxation. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125-430.

SEC. 2033-b. What statutes apply. The words railway, railway company, railway corporation, railroad, railroad company, and railroad corporation, as used in the code and acts of the general assembly, now in force or hereafter enacted, are hereby declared to apply to and include all interurban railways, and all companies or corporations constructing, owning or operating such interurban street railways, and all provisions of the code and acts of the general assembly, now in force or hereafter enacted, affecting railways, railway companies, railway corporations, railroads, railroad companies and railroad corporations, are hereby declared to affect and apply in full force and effect to all interurban railways, and to all interurban railway companies or railway corporations constructing, owning or operating such interurban railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 2.]

SEC. 2033-c. When a street railway. Any interurban railway shall within the corporate limits of any city or town, or of any city acting under a special charter, upon such streets as it shall use for transporting passengers, mail, baggage, and such parcels, packages, and freight as it may carry in its passenger or combination baggage cars only, be deemed a street railway, and be subject to the laws governing street railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 3.]

An interurban line which includes a city street car system may be taxed by the executive council as a unit. Waterloo & C. F. R. T. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 131-237; Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co. v. Cummins, 125-430.

An interurban railway, so far as it is operated within the limits of a city, does not come within the terms of Code § 2071, declaring that a railway company is liable to an employe for injuries resulting from the negligence of a co-employe. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 125-270.

SEC. 2033-d. Powers of cities and towns. Cities and towns and cities acting under special charters, shall have power to authorize or forbid the construction of such railways upon, or over, or along the streets, alleys and public grounds within their limits and to prescribe the conditions and regulations under which said railways shall be constructed and operated within said limits. But the right to operate as a street railway under section three (3) of this act shall not be granted for a period exceeding twenty-five (25) years. Nothing herein shall impair the obligation of contracts of such city or town heretofore made. This act shall not in any manner affect sections seven hundred and seventy-five (775) and seven hundred and seventy-six (776) of the code, which shall be applicable to interurban railways. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 4.]

SEC. 2033-e. Grade-crossings — duties of employes — penalty. Wherever the tracks of an interurban railway cross the tracks of any steam railway at grade the steam railway shall have the right of way and not be compelled to stop its trains and the interurban railway company operating said line shall cause its cars to come to a full stop not nearer than ten (10) feet nor further than fifty (50) feet from such crossing, and before proceeding to cross said steam railway tracks shall cause some person in its employ first to cross said track ahead of said car or cars and ascertain if the way is clear and free from danger for the passage of said interurban cars, and said interurban cars shall not proceed to cross until signalled to do so by such person employed as aforesaid, or said way is clear for such passage over said tracks. Every person in charge of any interurban car or cars, who wilfully fails to comply with the provisions hereof and fails to bring the car or cars which he has in charge to stop, or causes the same to cross said steam railway tracks before the way is clear or he is signalled to do so, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00) or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed twelve (12) months in the discretion of the court. No steam railway shall obstruct the free passage of the cars of an intersecting interurban railway at such crossing. [29 G. A., ch. 81, § 6.]

SEC. 2033-f. Automobile railway—statutes applicable. Any system of railway operating cars within the state of Iowa over or upon any track other than steel or iron shall be known as an automobile railway, and shall be a work of internal improvement. The words “railway”, “railway company”, “railway corporation”, “railroad”, “railroad company” or “railroad corporation”, as used in the code and acts of the general assembly now in force or hereafter enacted, are hereby declared to apply to, and include, automobile railways, and all companies or corporations owning or operating such automobile railways, and all provisions of the code and acts of the general assembly now in force or hereafter enacted affecting railways, railway companies, railway corporations, railroads, railroad companies or railroad corporations, are hereby declared to affect and apply in full force and effect to all automobile railways and to all automobile railway companies owning or operating such automobile railways. [32 G. A., ch. 98.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF RAILWAYS.

SECTION 2036. May join or consolidate.

A lease of railroad property for a long period of time is not void under the statutory provision against the creation of perpetuities. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124; First Nat. Bank v. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co., 69 Fed. 441.

OF THE PURCHASE OR CONTROL OF RAILROADS IN OTHER STATES.

SEC. 2038-a. Powers in other states. That any railroad corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of this state and owning and operating a railroad therein shall be authorized and empowered to exercise in any other state or territory of the United States in which it may control or operate a connecting line or lines of railway the powers and privileges conferred upon it by its articles of incorporation and all powers, privileges and franchises conferred upon railroad corporations under and by virtue of the laws of Iowa or of such other state or territory, for the purposes set forth in section two hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

SEC. 2038-b. May purchase, lease, control or operate. That any railroad corporation so organized under the laws of Iowa and owning and operating a railroad therein may lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire and own, control or operate any connecting extension of its said railroad not parallel or competing therewith, in any other state or territory of the United States, and to that end may purchase and control the stock, bonds or securities of any such extension if not contrary to the laws of such other state or territory. [29 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2039. Duties and liabilities of lessees.

A special assessment on railway property for improvement of abutting streets cannot be collected directly from the lessee where the lessee has not undertaken to pay such assessment. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112-300.

A construction company operating engines and cars over a temporary track in the construction of a railroad is engaged in the operation of a railroad within the provisions of Code § 2071, providing that every corporation operating a railway shall be liable to its employes for all damages sustained in consequence of the negligence of co-employes. Mace v. Boeker, 127-721.

SEC. 2041. Bonds—mortgages.

By statute the company has express authority to mortgage after-acquired property, and by that statutory provision, when the power to mortgage exists, the right to incumber after-acquired property is necessarily included. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

SEC. 2042. After-acquired property.

The statute expressly authorizes any corporation organized under the state law for the purpose of constructing and operating a railway, to mortgage its franchise and all its property, whether acquired before or after the execution of the mortgage. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 124.

SEC. 2043. Execution of mortgages.

A railroad company is in many respects purely a private corporation, and it may bind itself by an ultra vires mortgage, which is not against public policy, by accepting and retaining the benefits thereof. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

SEC. 2051. Conditional sale or lease of equipment or rolling stock.

In any contract for the sale of railroad or street railway equipment or rolling stock or power house, electric or other equipment of street or inter-urban railways or of electric light and power companies or of steam heating companies, such equipment including engines, boilers, generators, switch boards, transformers, motors and other machinery and appliances, it may be agreed that the title thereto, although possession thereof be delivered immediately or at any time or times subsequently, shall not vest in the purchaser until the purchase price shall be fully paid, or that the seller shall have and retain a lien thereon for the unpaid purchase money. In any contract for the leasing or hiring of such property, it may be stipulated for a conditional sale thereof at the termination of such contract, and that the rentals or amounts to be received under such contract may, as paid, be applied and treated as purchase money, and that the title to the property shall not vest in the lessee or bailee until the purchase price shall have been paid in full, and until the terms of the contract shall have been fully performed, notwithstanding delivery to and possession by such lessee or bailee; but no such contract shall be valid as against any subsequent judgment creditor, or subsequent bona fide purchaser for value without notice, unless:

1. The same shall be evidenced by an instrument executed by the parties and acknowledged by the vendee, or lessee, or bailee, as the case may be, in the same manner as deeds are acknowledged or proved;

2. Such instrument shall be filed for record in the office of the secretary of state;

3. Each locomotive engine, stationary engine, boiler, switch board, transformer, motor, other piece of machinery or appliance or car sold, leased or hired as aforesaid shall have the name of the vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked on each side thereof, followed by the word "owner," "lessor" or "bailor," as the case may be. [25 G. A., ch. 28, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 99.]

SEC. 2052. Recording. The contracts herein authorized shall be recorded by the secretary of state in a book of records to be kept for that purpose, and, on payment in full of the purchase money and the performance of the terms and conditions stipulated in any such contract, a declaration in writing to that effect may be made by the vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, which declaration may be made on the margin of the record of the contract, duly attested, or it may be made by a separate instrument, to be acknowledged by the vendor, lessor or bailor, or his or its assignee, and recorded as aforesaid. For such services the secretary of state shall be entitled to a fee of ten cents per hundred words for recording each of the contracts and each of said declarations but in no case shall the fee be less than one dollar and a fee of one dollar for noting such declaration on the margin of the record. [25 G. A., ch. 28, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 88.]

SEC. 2054. Cattle-guards—crossings—signs.

The statute absolutely requires railroad companies to construct specified crossings wherever their road crosses public streets or highways and makes them absolutely liable for failure to do so. The provision for notice when there has been such failure and for the construction thereof by the municipal or other authorities is for the protection and accommodation of the public only and does not affect or lessen the duties or liability of the delinquent company. See v. Wabash R. Co., 123-443.

An approach to a crossing situated on the company's right of way is a part of the crossing which the company is bound to construct. Ibid.

The duty to erect a crossing necessarily implies a duty to maintain it. Ibid.

In an action for personal injuries resulting from a defect in such crossing or approach the burden of proof is on the defendant to show contributory negligence upon the part of the plaintiff. Ibid.

The company may be held liable for not taking precautions at highway crossings for the protection of those in the rightful use of the highway. Oliver v. Iowa Central R. Co., 123-217.

But a person sui juris voluntarily and unnecessarily placing himself in a position of known danger cannot recover from the railroad company for injuries received, although the company has been negligent in not taking steps to protect him from danger. Ibid.

In the absence of some controlling reason to the contrary, highways are to be improved so that the travel shall pass along the middle line of the land appropriated therefor and a railroad company cannot complain of the assumption that it constructed its crossing at the place thus fixed by legal presumption. The statute requires cattle guards and fences to be placed along the line of the highway. Craig v. Wabash R. Co., 121-471.

In an action to recover damages resulting to an employe by reason of a defective cattle-guard, a plea of contributory negligence may be quite different from an allegation in the petition that plaintiff was free from contributory negligence. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106-85.

Where an animal had gone upon the right of way over a defective cattle-guard and had afterwards escaped across such guard to the highway and was there killed, held, that it did not necessarily appear that it was not killed by reason of the defective cattle-guard and the the company might be liable. Riley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104-235.

SEC. 2055. Failure to fence—liability for stock killed—speed at depots.

Failure to provide fences and cattle-guards: The fact that the railroad company allows a portion of its right of way to remain open for use of the public as a highway does not relieve it from liability for stock killed on such portion of its right of way where it does not appear that the dedication of such portion of the right of way to the public has been accepted by it. Sarver v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 104-59.

The fact that fencing would involve a cattle-guard at the place where a spur track leaves the main track does not constitute an excuse for not maintaining a fence at such place. Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104-63.

The issue under a general denial in an action to recover for injuries to stock on a right of way raises simply the question whether the company has the right to fence its right of way at the point involved, and not the question whether it has a legal excuse for not so doing. Ibid.

There is no liability for a failure to fence unless the injury is caused thereby. Norman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 110-283.

Upon proof of the failure of the railroad company to fence its track at the point where an animal comes upon the right of way from adjoining premises and is killed a prima facie case is made out for the recovery of damages for the killing of the animal, and to escape such liability the company attempting to relieve itself from the duty of maintaining a fence on account of an arrangement with the adjoining property owner by which such fence is to be maintained by him, has the burden of proof. The voluntary construction of some kind of a fence by the adjoining land owner will not excuse the company from erecting such fence as is required by law. Craig v. Wabash R. Co., 121-471.

It is the track, and not the right of way, which is required to be fenced, and where the track was laid on a bridge, and the right of way under the bridge was left unfenced, and cattle passed through from an adjoining field under the bridge onto the highway, and were killed at the highway crossing, held that the railroad company was not liable by reason of the want of a fence. Cagwin v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 113-175.

Defective fence or cattle-guard: The finding in a particular case that stock got on the right of way through a defective gate held sufficiently supported by evidence indicating that the gate was liable to come open by reason of the action of the wind. Huss v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 113-343.

Failure to repair upon notice or within a reasonable time is a failure to fence within the statutory provision. Daily v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 121-254.

Although a proper fence is maintained at the boundary of the right of way, yet if there is another fence nearer the track, leaving a lane between the two fences to which stock have access from the highway or adjoining premises the fence next to the track is such fence as that the stock getting upon the track by reason of defects in such fence. Ibid.

Animals coming into this open way from adjoining premises are running at large within the meaning of the statute, and the company is liable in damages if such animals get upon the track by reason of defect in the fence adjoining the track and are killed. Ibid.

The company being charged with the duty of maintaining proper and sufficient gates at private crossings is bound to use ordinary care and prudence in the construction of such gates, but is not charged with an absolute liability for the results of defects therein. It will not be liable for the results of the defective condition arising from use or decay unless it has actual notice of the defects or in the exercise of reasonable care should have had notice and a sufficient time has elapsed within which to make repairs. Notice may be inferred from lapse of time and the question of notice and the reasonable time for repair or reconstruction are for the jury. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124-170.

The owner of stock can recover for injury thereto on the right of way only upon proof of want of repair in the fence, where that is complained of, and that the condition was known to the defendant or had existed for such length of time that knowledge should be imputed to it. Klay v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126-671.

Under a notice claiming damages on account of the killing of an animal going upon the track because of a defective fence, plaintiff may recover on proof that the accident occurred by reason of a defective cattle-guard. Boyer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123-248.

To relieve the company from liability for the killing of an animal coming upon the right of way across a cattle-guard, it must appear that the guard was reasonably sufficient for the purpose intended. Campbell v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 124-248.

Where a cattle-guard is defective by reason of being filled up with sand and gravel so that animals may readily pass over the same from the highway to the portion of the right of way which is fenced, the company is liable for killing such animals on the fenced portion of the right of way after they have passed thereon from the highway. Pothast v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 110-458.

Where an animal gets upon a right of way over a cattle-guard which is defective by reason of being filled up with snow, an action for the death of the animal falls within the provisions of this section. Paul v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 120-224.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to sustain a verdict against a railroad company for killing of stock by reason of a defective fence. Kling v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 115-133.

Negligence: Where the track is enclosed for a long distance each way from the place of accident and train men have no reason to expect that stock will be on the right of way at such place, there is no duty owed to the owner of the stock until their presence is discovered, and then the company owes only the duty of using ordinary care to avoid injury to such stock. Mears v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 103-203.

Where a gate at a crossing is such as is commonly in use and is in good order, and the railroad company is not negligent in keeping it closed, it will not be liable for stock killed on the right of way going thereon through such gate, unless it is negligent in the operation of its trains with reference to such stock. Ibid.

The liability of the railroad company for stock coming upon the right of way on account of a failure to fence does not depend on the negligence of the employes operating the train. Mikesell v. Wabash R. Co., 112 N. W. 201.

If an animal comes upon the right of way through a defective fence and becoming frightened by the operation of a hand car from which it attempts to escape is injured at a cattle-guard, the company is liable. Ibid.

In an action based on negligent killing of cattle at a crossing, it is sufficient to allege the failure to give the warning signals and to stop the train after the cattle were or should have been discovered in the exercise of reasonable care. It is not necessary to state the causes of the failure of duty and charge the same as independent matters of negligence. Barnard v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 133-185.

Negligence of owner: The mere fact that the owner knows that a gate separating his premises from the right of way is broken down will not as a matter of law preclude his recovery for killing of his animals which go upon the right of way through such gate. Contributory negligence alone will not defeat the owner's recovery. Enix v. Iowa Central R. Co., 114-508.

Contributory negligence of the owner of the stock does not defeat recovery if the animals are killed through the negligence of the company. Barnard v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 133-185.

Evidence, burden of proof: In an action for killing a horse which had passed through a right of way gate upon the track, held that the evidence was sufficient to justify the submission to the jury of the question as to how the gate became open. Titus v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 128-194.

If it appears that a right of way gate has been opened by stock so that an animal gets upon the right of way and is injured, it is then for the jury to determine whether the gate was sufficient in its construction and fastening. Ibid.

Proof of changes in such gate made by the railway company after the accident is inadmissible. Ibid.

If the fence through which stock go upon the right of way is not such as is required by the statute, the company is liable in double damages for the injury. Ibid.

In an action for the killing of an animal coming on the right of way through a gate, evidence is admissible tending to show the general construction of the gate, manner of use, the material of which it was constructed, and the kind of fastening used, in order that the jury may determine whether or not the company was negligent in its construction. But the company is not to be charged with any other negligence in that respect than that related in the petition. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. &

St. P. R. Co., 124-170.

In an action to recover damages for killing of stock, which it is claimed came upon the enclosed portion of the right of way over a cattle-guard from a highway crossing, it is competent to show that the cattle-guard was out of order and ineffective. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32.

It appearing that an animal has got upon the track through a defective fence and been killed, throws upon the company the burden of proving freedom from negligence. Daily v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 121-254.

Where the question was as to whether a gate in the right of way fence was sufficient, it was held error to permit a witness to testify that he did not think such gate was sufficient. Collins v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122-231.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that the jury was justified in finding that the animal killed was struck upon the right of way and not upon the highway. Klay v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126-671.

Speed at depot grounds: Liability for injury to stock on account of operating trains on the depot grounds at a greater rate of speed than eight miles per hour where no fence is built, is limited to stock running at large and is not applicable to stock driven by and under the control of the owner or his servant. Strever v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106-137.

Measure of damages: One who has stock killed on the right of way as the result of a defective cattle-guard over which the animals have come upon the right of way, may recover the value of the animals, and is not limited to the average value of such stock in general. Therefore, where the action was for the killing of a brood mare it was held competent to show the number of her foals as tending to show a special value for breeding qualities. Campbell v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 124-248.

In proving the value of a mare killed on the right of way evidence is competent to show that she was with foal. Boyer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123-248.

Notice: The mis-naming of the defendant in a notice with reference to the killing of stock by designating it as a "railway" instead of a "railroad" company is immaterial, actual notice having been served on the defendant. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32.

It is not essential that the jurat to the affidavit shall state that it was sworn to in the presence of or before the notary who verifies the fact by his certificate. That fact is presumed from the official statement that the affidavit was sworn to which statement is made over the notary's official seal, and is signed by him as a notary public. Ibid.

Double damages: Where the notice and affidavit were sufficient to put the railroad company upon inquiry, which, if diligently pursued, would have led to a discovery of the facts concerning plaintiff's claim, held that that was sufficient, although there was a discrepancy between them. Brammer v. Wabash R. Co., 112-375.

The liability for double damages is provided for only if the stock is running at large when killed, and not if at that time it is in the charge of or under the control of the owner. Morris v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 133-28.

The company having failed to pay in accordance with a notice and affidavit of loss and it appearing that the action is properly maintainable for double damages, the court may give judgment for twice the value of the animal as found by the jury; or if the jury renders a verdict, which upon inquiry the court finds to have been for the value of the animal only, the jury may be allowed to correct their verdict accordingly. Campbell v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 124-248.

A concession by counsel for plaintiff during the progress of the trial that there is no right to recover double damages is not binding on the court in rendering judgment, the facts necessary to entitle the plaintiff to recover double damages having been established. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32.

[The last reference in the notes to this section in the original Code is erroneous. It should be Schurr v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 91-418.]

It is only the willful act of the owner which will defeat his recovery for animals passing through a defective gate or fence and killed on the right of way by the operation of trains. Claus v. Chicago, G. W. R. Co., 111 N. W. 15.

SEC. 2056. Damages by fire.

Ordinary care: The statute does not make a railroad company absolutely liable for fires set out by it. Ordinary and reasonable care on the part of the company is all that is required. But ordinary care demands the use of the best known and most appropriate appliances for preventing the escape of fire. German Ins. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 128-386.

Presumption; burden of proof: The fact that fire is set out by sparks from an engine creates a presumption of negligence on the part of the railroad company which may be overcome by proof that it was not guilty of negligence. Swanson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116-304; Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117-344.

The provision of this section throwing the burden of proof on the company to escape liability from loss due to fires is not applicable to fires set out by section men on the right of way. Connors v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 111-384.

Aside from the provisions of this section the escape of sparks from a locomotive is not in itself proof of negligence in its operation, and where an employe claimed to be injured by reasons of sparks and cinders striking him in the eye, held that proof of the accident was not in itself evidence of negligence on the part of the company. Duree v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 118-640.

Before the enactment of the fire statute it had uniformly been held in this state that negligence of the company would not be presumed from proof of the setting out of fire alone. But it was also held that the setting out of two or more fires by the same engine would constitute some evidence of negligence. And where the evidence indicated that the fires might have been set out by reason of the negligent use of slack coal in the engine, held that there was enough evidence on the subject of negligence to take the case to the jury. Glanz v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119-611.

The fact of a fire caused by the operation of a railroad company having been shown, a presumption of negligence on the part of the company follows without further proof. Kennedy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 119-29.

But the company may contract for exemptions from liability for its negligence in causing fires to property, permitted by it to be located upon its right of way. Ibid.

Measure of damages: Where one's meadow has been destroyed he is entitled to recover its value, which may be ascertained by finding what it would cost to reproduce or restore it. The rule is different as to the destruction of trees. Bradley v. Iowa Central R. Co., 111-562.

Where land has been appropriated to a particular purpose as by converting it into an orchard or a meadow, or planting it to a crop which is already growing, the loss occasioned by a fire destroying the meadow or orchard or crop is to be determined with reference to such existing condition. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32.

When trees, shrubs or meadow are destroyed the measure of damages is at least the difference in value between the land as it was before the injury and its value afterward and the loss of rental value on account of the loss. Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117-344.

The rule of damages for the destruction of a hedge is the difference in value of the entire farm of plaintiff before and after its destruction, and the value of the hedge may be taken into account in determining the amount of the injury. Swanson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116-304; Thompson v. Keokuk & W. R. Co., 116-215.

In such case plaintiff is entitled to recover the value of the grass destroyed, as well as the expense of restoring the meadow. Ibid.

Evidence: In case of the destruction of a meadow, the value of the meadow burned may be determined by comparison with the condition of the remainder of the meadow at the time of the trial. Ibid.

In an action to recover damages for injury to a meadow by fire, evidence as to the effect of fire on another meadow under substantially similar circumstances is admissible. Proximity of the two meadows is not important, the competency of the evidence depending on similarity of the conditions. Castner v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 126-581.

In an action to recover damages for loss of property by fire set out by a railroad engine, evidence of witnesses that they had seen engines of the defendant throw sparks to a greater distance from the track than the place where the fire in question started is competent as bearing on the question whether the fire could have been occasioned by sparks from an engine. Black v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 122-32.

On the question whether the fire was set by sparks from defendant's locomotive, witnesses may testify that within a few minutes after the passing of a locomotive the fire was discovered. Ibid.

Liability for personal injuries from fire: Where it appeared that the wife of the owner of farm buildings had been injured by being burned while attempting to protect the premises against fire, and had been made ill by overexertion in so doing, held that the railroad company being chargeable with negligence in setting out such fire, was liable, regardless of statutory provisions. Glanz v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119-611.

The provisions of this section as to liability for damages resulting from fires set out apply only to injuries to property, and not to injuries to the person. Duree v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 118-640.

SEC. 2057. Repeal—fences required. That section two thousand and fifty-seven (2057) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All railway corporations owning or operating a line of railway within the state shall construct, maintain, and keep in repair a suitable fence of posts and barb wire, or woven wire, or both combined, or posts and boards, or any other fence which the fence viewers shall determine to be equivalent thereto, on each side of the track thereof, so connected with cattle guards at all public road crossings as to prevent cattle, horses, sheep, swine, and other live stock from getting on the railroad tracks. Such tracks shall be fenced within six months after the completion of the same or any part thereof. Such fence, when of barb wire, shall be of five wires; when of barb wire and woven wire, it shall consist of three barb wires above and woven wire not less than twenty-four inches wide at the bottom, or it may consist entirely of woven wire, in which event the woven wire shall be not less than fifty inches wide; all of the above to be securely fastened to posts not more than twenty feet apart, the top of such fences to be not less than fifty-four inches high; or such fences may consist of five boards, securely nailed to posts set not more than eight feet apart, and to be not less than fifty-four inches high, provided, however, that, where such fences are constructed entirely of barb wire, in addition to the above, on the written request of any person owning land abutting such right of way who has constructed, and is maintaining around his said land, or any part thereof, a hog tight fence on all sides thereof except along such right of way, such railroad corporations shall reinforce such right of way fence with such additional barb or woven wire as is necessary to make it hog tight. Fences repaired or rebuilt shall conform to the foregoing provisions. Nothing in this or the following sections shall be construed to compel a railway company operating a third class line to fence its roads through the land of any farmer or other person who by written agreement with such company waives the fencing thereof." [32 G. A., ch. 100.]

The purpose of specifying what shall be a sufficient fence is to fix absolutely the liability of the company for injury to animals going upon the right of way through a fence, unless it complies with the requirements of statute. Titus v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 128-194.

The railroad company erecting and maintaining gates at private crossings must construct them with an efficiency corresponding to the requirements as to a fence. Claus v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 111 N. W. 15.

If, the railroad company having con-

SEC. 2063. Proposed crossing.

Where a railroad about to be constructed is to cross one already constructed, the former must bear the expense of interlocking. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114-502.

The right to use a crossing already established cannot be made to depend upon payment of the entire cost of an interlocking system. Manhattan Trust Co. v. Sioux City & N. R. Co., 81 Fed. 50.

Where one railroad company is bound to pay the expense of an interlocking system, the other company is bound to contribute to the expense of the maintenance thereof. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gowrie & N. W. R. Co., 123-543.

locking system. Manhattan Trust Co. v. Sioux City & N. R. Co., 81 Fed. 50.

Where one railroad company is bound to pay the expense of an interlocking system, the other company is bound to contribute to the expense of the maintenance thereof. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gowrie & N. W. R. Co., 123-543.

SEC. 2064. Apportionment of costs.

The provisions of this section as to apportionment relate only to the costs of the proceedings, and not to the expense of the interlocking device. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Cedar Rapids, G. & N. W. R. Co., 114-502.

SEC. 2066. Sale or lease of railroad property—joint arrangement.

A railway may contract with connecting lines to carry beyond its line, subject only to the qualification that under such agreement arbitrary rates cannot be fixed which are discriminatory in their nature. Bras v. McConnell, 114-401.

SEC. 2071. Liability for negligence or wrongs of employes. Every corporation operating a railway shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person, including employes of such corporation, in consequence of the neglect of the agents, or by any mismanagement of the engineers or other employes thereof, and in consequence of the wilful wrongs, whether of commission or omission, of such agents, engineers or other employes, when such wrongs are in any manner connected with the use and operation of any railway on or about which they shall be employed, and no contract which restricts such liability shall be legal or binding. Nor shall any contract of insurance, relief, benefit, or indemnity in case of injury or death, entered into prior to the injury, between the person so injured and such corporation, or any other person or association acting for such corporation, nor shall the acceptance of any such insurance, relief, benefit, or indemnity by the person injured, his widow, heirs, or legal representatives after the injury, from such corporation, person, or association, constitute any bar or defense to any cause of action brought under the provisions of this section, but nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent or invalidate any settlement for damages between the parties subsequent to injuries received. [C., '73, § 1307.] [27 G. A., ch. 49, § 1.]

In general: The company is not liable to an employe for an injury done by a co-employe when it would not have been liable to a third person injured by a like act. Kincade v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry., 107-682.

This section makes no pretense of fixing the degree of negligence which will entitle an injured person to recover. It does not render the company liable to a trespasser for injuries received, unless due to wilful wrong or gross negligence. Earl v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co., 109-14.

This provision applies only to companies operating commercial railroads and not to street railway companies. McLeod v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 125-270.

This statutory provision does not render the company liable to the surviving husband or wife for such negligence causing the instant death of the other. Major v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 115-309;

Seney v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125-290.

Negligence: The provisions of this section do not alter the character of the relation between the railroad company and a person injured, nor the rule of evidence appropriate to such relation upon an issue as to negligence. In such an action the fact of the happening of the accident through which an employe is injured is not evidence of negligence on the part of the defendant, or its employes, to sustain the burden of proof resting on the plaintiff. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. O'Brien, 132 Fed. 593.

Operation of the railroad: One employed in the construction of a bridge is engaged in the operation of the road in such sense as that the company will be liable for injuries to him caused by negligence of the foreman in allowing a train to go upon the incomplete bridge, the foreman having been provided with a flag for the purpose of enabling him to control the operation of trains over such bridge. Keatley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 103-282.

The peculiarity of the railroad business which distinguishes it from any other is the movement of vehicles or machinery of great weight on the track by steam or other power, and the dangers incident to such movement are those the statute was intended to guard against. If, then, the injury is received by an employe whose work exposes him to the hazards of moving trains, cars, engines, or machinery on the track, and is caused by the negligence of a co-employe in the actual movement thereof, or in any manner directly connected therewith, the statute applies and recovery may be had. Beyond this the statute affords no protection. Akeson v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 106-54.

Therefore, held, that an employe in a railroad coal house, who was injured by the negligence of a co-employe in shoving back a plank over which coal had been carried to fill a tender of a live locomotive, was so engaged in the operation of the railroad as to be entitled to recovery for negligence of the co-employe. Ibid.

An employe engaged in an occupation in connection with the business of the road, having nothing to do with the movement of trains, yet involving the performance of duties which bring him into a situation where he is exposed to the perils and hazards arising from such operation or movement, is within the provisions of this section. Williams v. Iowa Central R. Co., 121-270.

In determining whether an employe is engaged in such employment as to bring him within these provisions the test is, does the duty of the employe, no matter what his designation, require him to perform services which expose him to the hazards peculiar to the business of operating a railway? And held that a car repairer injured by a moving engine when actually employed at his work in the railroad yards was within the statutory provision. Hughes v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 128-207.

An employe operating a hand car is engaged in the operation of the road. Larson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 91-81.

The statute contemplates such injuries only as are caused by the negligent acts of employes engaged in the movement of the engines, cars and machinery on the track, or directly connected therewith. Therefore, held, that the handling of a derrick in coaling an engine was not within the contemplation of the statute. Reddington v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 108-96.

A railroad is only operated, within the meaning of the law, by moving trains, cars, engines, or machinery on the track. Connors v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 111-384.

This section held applicable to injuries sustained by a car cleaner working in a standing car on a side track, which was run into by an engine by reason of the negligence of a hostler in charge of such engine. Jensen v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 115-404.

Where an employe was assisting in transferring railroad rails from one car to another by means of power furnished by the operation of a locomotive engine, held that he was so engaged in the hazardous business of operating railways as to be entitled to recover for injuries received through the negligence of a co-employe. Stebbins v. Crooked Creek R. & C. Co., 116-513.

The operation of an engine and cars over a temporary track in the construction of a railroad is the operating of a railway within the statutory provisions, rendering every corporation operating a railway liable to its employes for damages sustained in consequence of the negligence of other employes. Mace v. Boedker, 127-721.

The ordinary work of a section hand which is wholly disconnected with the operation and control of cars or trains operated on the track is not an employment connected with the use and operation of the road within the statutory provision. Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130-580.

Assumption of risk: The provisions of this section do not affect the rule as to assumption of risk. Chicago, G. W. R. Co. v. Grotty, 141 Fed., 913.

One engaging in the hazardous business of operating trains on a railroad does not assume the risk of the negligence of the train dispatcher. Phinney v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 122-488.

Contractual limitation of liability: The so-called Temple Amendment (added to this section by 27 G. A., chap. 49 and constituting the last sentence of this section as printed above) prohibiting any defense on account of a contract between a railroad company and its employes in the nature of a contract for insurance or relief in case of accident, made prior to the injury, is constitutional. Such a contract constitutes a limitation of liability such as is prohibited by the statute. McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 131-340.

SEC. 2072. Signals at road crossings.

In general: A railroad company cannot be excused for failure to comply with the provisions of this section on the ground that compliance would amount to an interference with interstate commerce. Willfong v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 116-548.

The statutory requirement that the whistle be blown on approaching a highway crossing does not apply to the street crossings within the city limits in the absence of some ordinance or resolution on the part of the city; but the requirement that the bell shall be rung is applicable to street crossings, and if they are less than sixty rods apart, the bell should be rung continuously from the time the duty begins until all such crossings are passed. Golinvaux v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 125-652.

Where there is no ordinance requiring the blowing of the whistle within city or town limits it may be omitted. Pratt v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-287.

The signals required of the railroad company on approaching a highway crossing are not only intended for the benefit of those who are on or about to cross the track, but also for the benefit of those who may be near the track in such position as to be placed in peril. Mitchell v. Union Terminal R. Co., 122-237.

Negligence: The requirements of state statutes and city ordinances are not the sole standards for determining whether due care has been observed by the railroad company to guard against accidents at a crossing. Kowalski v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 84 Fed. 586.

Failure to give signals as required by law will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, to have been the proximate cause of injury at a highway crossing. Kuehl v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126-638.

Even though there is no duty to keep a flagman at a crossing, the fact of the failure to do so may be taken into consideration on the question of alleged negligence in running the train at a high and dangerous rate of speed at such crossings. Golinvaux v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 125-652.

The railroad company does not necessarily discharge its whole legal duty with reference to the safety of persons about to cross a track at a public crossing, or as to the safety of the property under their control, by sounding the whistle and ringing the bell. If by reason of a curve in the track, high banks, or other obstructions, there is peculiar danger to such persons or their property, the common law obligation to exercise care may require the taking of further precautions. Kinyon v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118-349.

An agreement entered into at the time of the employment between the company and an employe that if he sustains any personal injury for which he makes a claim against the company for damages he will give notice thereof in writing within thirty days is a limitation on the company's liability, and therefore invalid. Mumford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co., 128-685.

The mere fact of great speed will not in itself constitute negligence, but if, by reason of natural or artificial obstructions, or a curve in the track, the crossing is of peculiar or extraordinary danger, the operation of the railway must be conducted with reference to that fact. Ibid.

Contributory negligence: The mere fact that the person approaching the crossing may have heard the train at the distance from the crossing at which the signal should have been given, will not of itself justify the court in saying as a matter of law that there was no negligence on the part of the company, or that there was contributory negligence on plaintiff's part in connection with the accident happening at such crossing. Ibid.

One about to cross a railroad track at a highway crossing has the right to place some degree of reliance upon the presumption that the trainmen will do their duty and sound the usual signal of warning in approaching the crossing. The question of contributory negligence in such cases is for the jury. Mitchell v. Union Terminal R. Co., 122-237.

It will not necessarily constitute contributory negligence that a person at a highway crossing seeing danger of a collision with his team imminent, attempts to so control the team as to prevent injury. Ibid.

It is usually a question for the jury whether one whose animals are injured at a highway crossing by a train was guilty of contributory negligence with reference thereto. Kuehl v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 126-638.

Before there can be a recovery on account of negligence of the railway company in failing to give statutory signals, or for running at an exceedingly high rate of speed at a highway crossing, it must be shown that the person suffering injury from such negligence did not contribute to the injury by negligence on his own part, and he cannot in all cases rely upon the railway company to give the signals required by statute. A person possessing the ordinary powers of seeing and hearing cannot, without negligence on his part, knowingly approach a railway crossing and fail to discover an approaching train which he can readily see or hear within sufficient length of time to enable him, with reasonable effort, to avoid danger. Crawford v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 109-433.

Injuries to stock: The statutory signals are intended for the protection, as far as possible, of animals as well as men, and a failure to give such signals when approaching a crossing makes the company absolutely liable for injuries to stock on the crossing, provided it appears that if such signals had been given they would have prevented the animals going on the track or frightened them away from the crossing. Graybill v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 112-738; McGill v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 113-358.

It is for the jury to determine whether the signals were given as required, and if not, whether the failure to give them was the cause of the injury to the animals. Ibid.

Private crossings: The statute does not require the sounding of the engine whistle on approaching a private crossing. The term, "any road crossing," as used, designates a highway crossing. Nichols v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 125-236.

There is no common law duty to give signals on approaching private crossings. The omission to give such signal might constitute negligence as by reason of peculiar or extraordinary circumstances where ordinary prudence would require an alarm or signal to be given by an approaching train. Ibid.

SEC. 2073. Stopping at railway crossings.

This section is as to the forfeiture provided penal in character. The offense denounced is the omission of the engineer to stop the train as required, and the liability of the company is for the commission of the offense on the part of the engineer. There is no liability on the part of the company unless the engineer has been at fault, and the company may have the advantage of any excuse that would be available to the engineer. The burden of proof is not sustained by evidence of the fact alone that the train was not stopped at the crossing. State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122-22.

This section is not unconstitutional as imposing a penalty on a railway company

Evidence: Testimony of witnesses that they did not hear the crossing whistles sounded does not even create a conflict with positive evidence that the signals were given at the whistling posts. Payne v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 108-188.

If the person injured at the crossing would not have heard the signals if given, then the omission to give them will not render the company liable. Ibid.

Positive evidence that the signal at a railroad crossing is not given is not to be discredited because in conflict with evidence of other witnesses that such signals were given. Kinyon v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 118-349.

Testimony of witnesses in a situation to hear and likely to have heard a crossing signal, if one had been given, that they did not hear any such signal, is not to be ignored and treated as of no weight because opposed to the testimony of witnesses who say that the signal was actually given, or that they heard such signal. The testimony of the witnesses who were in a situation to hear and likely to hear a signal, if given, is not to be treated as merely negative evidence. Selensky v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 120-113.

Evidence of persons in a situation to hear and whose attention was not diverted that they did not hear a signal which other witnesses testified to having heard, is not merely negative evidence. Mackerall v. Omaha & St. L. R. Co., 111-547.

As between witnesses who are in an equally advantageous position as to hearing sounds and signals, those who testify that they did not hear are entitled to the same credit as those who testify that they did hear, and the former should not be discredited by an instruction that, as compared with other witnesses, their testimony is negative. Stanley v. Cedar Rapids & M. C. R. Co., 119-526.

for an offense of its employe. The requirement is only that the company secure obedience by its employes to the requirements of the statute. Ibid.

Where the company whose track is crossed by the track of another company does not demand the installation of an interlocking system as authorized by Code § 2063, it must comply with statutory requirement for the stopping of its trains approaching such crossings. If it does insist on the installation of an interlocking system by the other company, it must thereafter bear its share of the expense of maintaining such interlocking system. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gowrie & N. W. R. Co., 123-543.

SEC. 2074. Contract or rule limiting liability.

A contract between an express company and its servant, exempting the express company from liability for injuries to the servant, and authorizing it to contract for like exemption from liability with a railroad company, and the corresponding contract between the express company and the railroad company, exempting the latter from liability for injuries to servants of the express company, are invalid. O'Brien v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 116 Fed. 502.

As a railroad company may absolutely refuse to check as baggage of a passenger that which is merchandise, it may, notwithstanding the provisions of this section, make any regulations in regard to the waiver of such condition which it sees fit to adopt. Weber Co. v. Chicago, St. P., M. & O. R. Co., 113-188.

Limitations of liability in a bill of lading are void. McMillan v. American Express Co., 123-236.

A railroad company contracting for the carriage of goods beyond the end of its line may, in the contract with reference to such carriage, limit its liability, notwithstanding the provisions of this section. Hartley v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co., 115-612.

It may be stipulated that stock is to be in charge of the shipper or his agent while in transit, free transportation being furnished to such person, and that the shipper assumes the duty of loading and unloading, attending to, feeding and watering such stock at his own expense and risk. In case damage results from lack of care in these respects on the part of the shipper or his agent the company will not be liable unless the loss is due to the failure of the company to discharge duties not assumed and undertaken by the shipper. Grieve v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 104-659.

SEC. 2074-a. Repeal—action against joint carriers. That chapter seventy-four (74) of the laws of the thirtieth general assembly be, and the same is hereby, repealed and there is hereby enacted as a substitute therefor the following:

That in all cases where a railway company bills property to a point beyond the terminus of its own railway and provides by contract that it shall not be liable for the destruction of, or damage to, such property beyond the terminus of its own railway and the said property is damaged or destroyed between the place of shipment and place of destination to which it was billed, the initial carrier and the connecting carrier or carriers if more than one, over whose line, or lines, of railway the property shall have been carried between the place of shipment and said place of destination, may be joined as defendants in one action, brought in any county from or into which shipment shall be made, or suit may be brought in any county through which shipment shall be made and service of original notice may be made on any of said carriers in any county of the state, where the carrier to be served has a station agent, by serving such notice on such station agent. [31 G. A., ch. 89, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 101.]

The burden is on the shipper in the first instance to show in such case that injury to stock from want of care did not result from his own negligence and if occasioned by failure to do what he has undertaken then that such failure resulted from the omission on the part of the company to perform some duty devolving upon it. Ibid.

A contract between a railroad company and the shipper of stock by which the latter is to have the entire charge and care of the stock and the company is not to be liable for damages for failing to feed and water, is not void under the statute as a contract limiting liability. Burgher v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 105-335.

A contract for the transportation of live stock, exempting the carrier from liability for loss or damage received from heat, suffocation, crowding, maiming, etc., is invalid. Powers v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130-615.

A limitation of liability for a horse to $100, named in the contract as "the release value of the horse," held invalid under the provisions of this section. Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 112-594.

The case of Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 95-260, is affirmed on appeal to U. S. supreme court. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133.

The case of Griswold v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 90-265, followed in a case involving a similar state of facts. Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 175 U. S. 91.

This section is not applicable to a contract exempting a railroad company from liability to one permitted to erect a building on its right of way, for loss thereof by fire. Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 175 U. S. 91.

SEC. 2074-b. Liability of joint carriers. On proof being made by the owner of the property shipped, that the same has been destroyed or damaged in transit between the said place of shipment and the place of destination, the liability of a common carrier shall attach to all the defendants and judgment shall be entered accordingly against them all unless one or more of the defendants shall prove that it was not, or they were not, liable, in which case judgment shall go only against the remaining defendant or defendants. [31 G. A., ch. 89, § 2.]

SEC. 2075. Lien of judgment.

A pending right of action against a railroad, which is not reduced to judgment before the sale of the property under mortgage foreclosure, is not preserved by this section. Winter v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 111-342.

Section 1309 of Code of '73 had no application to street railways. Fidelity Loan & Trust Co. v. Douglass, 104-532.

SEC. 2076. Repeal—classification of railroads. That section two thousand seventy-six (2076) of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All railroads of the state shall be classified in accordance with the gross amount of their several annual earnings within the state, per mile, for the preceding year, as follows: Class 'A' shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be four thousand dollars or more; class 'B' shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be three thousand dollars or any sum in excess thereof less than four thousand dollars; class 'C' shall include those whose gross annual earnings per mile shall be less than three thousand dollars. In determining the classification of any railroad, the entire railroad property owned or operated by any company shall be considered as a single railroad, and the aggregate gross earnings of the entire railroad within the state shall be divided by the entire mileage owned or operated within the state, to ascertain the gross earnings per mile of such railroad." [32 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2077. Repeal—passenger rates. That section two thousand seventy-seven (2077) of the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"All railroad corporations according to their classifications as herein prescribed shall be limited to compensation per mile for the transportation of any person with ordinary baggage not exceeding one hundred and fifty pounds in weight as follows: Class 'A,' two cents; class 'B,' two and one-half cents; class 'C,' three cents; and for children twelve years of age or under one-half the rate above prescribed, provided, however, that every railroad corporation shall be entitled to charge a fare of not to exceed ten (10) cents for the transportation of each passenger with ordinary baggage for any distance not exceeding five miles. A charge of ten cents may be added to the fare of any passenger when the same is paid upon the cars, if a ticket might have been procured within a reasonable time before the departure of the train, except in those cases where a minimum of ten (10) cents is charged for a distance of less than five miles as above provided." [32 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

Plaintiff suing for wrongful ejection from a train for the refusal to pay ten cents additional on account of not having a ticket has the burden of alleging facts to show that he could not have procured a ticket within a reasonable time before the departure of the train upon which he took passage. Bowsher v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 113-16.

SEC. 2077-a. Bulletins posted. It shall be the duty of all railway companies on all lines of railway operated by them, to keep posted in the waiting room of each passenger station, a bulletin plainly showing the time of arrival and departure at such station of all trains carrying passengers. [29 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.]

SEC. 2078. Repeal—classification of railways. The law as it appears in code section two thousand and seventy-eight (2078) is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The executive council shall at its regular meeting on the second Monday in July in each year classify the different railways, as provided by section two thousand and seventy-six (2076) of the code, from information as to gross earnings obtained from the annual reports of railways made to the executive council for assessment and taxation, if it shall be satisfied of the correctness of same, or from information obtained by said executive council from any other source, and, when there shall be any change in classification, shall issue a certificate to any corporation or corporations affected by such change, certifying the class to which they are respectively assigned; any change of rates by any corporation pursuant to any change of classification shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of such certificate.” [30 G. A., ch. 75.]

SEC. 2079. Automatic couplers and brakes—on new or repaired cars.

It is not negligence per se not to equip engines and tenders with the latest coupling device, in the absence of any statutory provision as to automatic couplers on engines and tenders. Bryce v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 119-274.

The test to be applied in determining the sufficiency of the automatic coupler as complying with the statutory requirement is whether the person operating the coupler is required to go between the ends of the cars; and this test applies to the act of coupling as well as to that of uncoupling. The use of a coupler not complying with these conditions constitutes actionable negligence. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Voelker, 129 Fed. 522.

The statutory provision being for the protection of the lives and limbs of persons, is to be so construed as to prevent the mischief, and advance the remedy so far as the words fairly permit. Ibid.

SEC. 2080. Automatic couplers. After January 1st, 1898, no corporation, company or person, operating a railroad, or any transportation company using or leasing cars, shall have upon any railroad in this state any car that is not equipped with such safety automatic coupler: Provided that the board of railroad commissioners shall have power upon a showing which it shall deem reasonable, to extend the time within which any such corporations shall be required to comply with the provisions of this section; but no such extension shall be made beyond January 1st, 1900. [23 G. A., ch. 18, § 2.] [27 G. A., ch. 50, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-a. Exempt from liability. That no corporation, company or person shall be liable to any prosecution in any court of this state for any fines or penalties incurred under the provisions of section two thousand and eighty-three (2083) of the code in so far as the same relates to the operation of cars not equipped with safety automatic couplers only, as provided by section twenty hundred and eighty (2080) of the code, from the first day of January, 1898, up to and including the time of taking effect of this act; and every such corporation, company, or person shall be, and is hereby, released from all criminal prosecution, penalties, fines, and forfeitures for failure to have cars equipped with such safety automatic couplers during such period. [27 G. A., ch. 51, § 1.]

SEC. 2083-b. Pending litigation. This act shall in no manner affect pending litigation. [27 G. A., ch. 51, § 2.]

TAXES IN AID OF RAILROADS.

SEC. 2084. May be voted. Taxes not exceeding five per cent. on the assessed value of any township, town or city may be voted to aid any railway company, trolley or electric railway which is or may become incorporated under the laws of the state, to aid in the construction of a projected railroad or any trolley or electric railway within the state, as hereinafter provided. [25 G. A., ch. 27; 24 G. A., ch. 18; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.]

SEC. 2085. Petition—notice—submission—certificate—levy—collection. When a petition is presented to the trustees of any township or the council of any town or city, signed by a majority of the resident freehold taxpayers of such township, town or city, asking that the question of aiding any railroad company incorporated under the laws of the state in the construction of a projected railroad within it be submitted to the voters thereof, it shall be the duty of the trustees or council, as the case may be, immediately to give notice of a special election, by publication in some newspaper printed in said township, town or city, if any there be, and, if not, then in some newspaper published in the county, and also by posting copies of said notice in five public places in such township, town or city at least ten days before such election, which shall state the time and place of holding the same, the name of the company, and the line of the road proposed to be aided, the rate per cent. of the tax to be levied, whether one-half thereof shall be collected the first year and one-half the following year, or whether the whole is to be collected in one year, the amount of work required to be done and when and where the same shall be done, to what point said railroad shall be fully completed, and any other conditions which shall be performed before such tax or any part thereof shall become due; and in no case shall such tax become due until such railroad is fully completed according to the conditions in said notice. The trustees or council, as the case may be, shall cause to be prepared the form of the proposition to be submitted. The proposition shall be printed and placed upon the ballots and the election shall be conducted in the same manner as provided with respect to like or similar propositions in the chapter on elections; and if a majority of the votes polled be for the adoption of the proposition, then the clerk of the township, city or town, or the clerk of election, shall forthwith certify to the county auditor the result thereof, the rate per cent. of tax voted, the year or years during which the same is to be collected, the name of the company to which voted, and the time, terms and conditions upon which the same, when collected, is to be paid under the conditions and stipulations in said notice, together with an exact copy of the notice under which the election was held, which the county auditor shall at once cause to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds; the expense thereof, and of publishing the notice, and all the expenses of the election, shall be paid by the railway company to which it is proposed to vote the tax. When such certificate has been made and recorded, the board of supervisors of the county shall, at the time of levying the ordinary tax next following, levy such taxes as are voted under the provisions hereof, as shown by said certificate, and cause the same to be placed on the tax lists of the proper township, town or city, indicating in their order thereupon when and in what proportion the same are to be collected, and upon what conditions the same are to be paid to the railway company, a certified copy of which order shall accompany the tax lists. The taxes shall be collected at the same time or times specified in the order, and in the same manner, and subject to the same laws after they are collectible, as other taxes, or as may be stated in the petition and notices for the election, except as otherwise provided. [20 G. A., ch. 159, § 3.] [29 G. A., ch. 85, § 2.]

A condition in the proposition for voting a tax that the railroad shall be operated in connection and solely with a certain other specified railroad system for a specified time and in active competition with other specified roads does not render the taxes invalid. Bras v. McConnell, 114-401.

Printing of surplusage on the ballot will not necessarily render the election invalid. Ibid.

In a particular case held that the form of ballot was sufficient and was not calculated to mislead the voter in expressing his views. Ibid.

Under a notice of the voting of an aid

SEC. 2086. Notice—conditions—limit of tax. The stipulations and conditions in the notices prescribed in this chapter must conform to those set forth in the petition asking for the election; and the aggregate amount of tax voted in any city, town or township shall not exceed five per cent. of the assessed value of the property therein, respectively. The right to vote taxes within the limits herein provided shall exist after the expiration of ten (10) years from the exercise to the limit of the right herein granted. Nothing herein shall authorize a tax of five per centum within such period named to steam railroads and also five per centum within such period to interurban railways. [25 G. A., ch. 27; 24 G. A., ch. 18; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 4.] [29 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.]

SEC. 2087. Money paid out—certificates. The moneys collected under the provisions of this chapter shall be paid out by the county treasurer to the treasurer of the railway company for whom the same was voted, upon the orders of the president or managing director thereof, at any time after the trustees of such township or council of such town or city voting the same, or a majority thereof, shall have certified to the county treasurer that the conditions required of the railway company and set forth in the notice for the special election have been complied with, which certificate said township trustees or council of such town or city shall make when conditions have been sufficiently complied with to entitle the railway company thereto, or when the conditions are fully complied with on the part of the railway company; but if the costs and expenses of holding the election and of recording the certificates have not been paid, then the treasurer shall first deduct from the moneys collected the amount thereof, and pay same to the parties entitled thereto. [20 G. A., ch. 159, § 5]

SEC. 2088. Certificates of taxes exchangeable for stock or bonds. The county treasurer when required shall, in addition to a tax receipt, issue to each taxpayer, on the payment of any taxes voted under the provisions of this chapter, a certificate showing the amount of tax paid, the name of the railway company entitled thereto, and when the same was paid; and he may charge twenty-five cents for each certificate issued. Said certificates shall be assignable, and, when presented by any person holding the legal title thereto to the president, managing director, treasurer or secretary of the railroad company receiving the taxes paid, as shown by such certificates, in sums of one hundred dollars or more of taxes, it shall issue or cause to be issued to said person the amount of stock of the company desiring the benefit from said taxes, to the amount of said certificate or certificates, and if the taxes paid as shown by said certificate or certificates amount in the aggregate to more or less than any certain number of shares of stock, then the holder thereof shall be entitled to receive the full number of shares of stock covered by said certificates, and may make up in money the balance of any share when the certificates held by him are not equal to one full share of such stock, which stock for such purpose shall be estimated at par. When it shall be proposed in the petition and notice calling an election to issue first mortgage bonds not exceeding the sum of eight thousand dollars per mile for a railroad of three feet gauge, and tax containing a stipulation that the road should be built to a particular place and that the depot should be within 100 rods of a certain street, of that place, held that the stipulations were substantially complied with, and that the company was entitled to the tax. Whitney v. Chicago, A. & N. R. Co., 133-508.

not exceeding the sum of eighteen thousand and five hundred dollars per mile for the ordinary four feet eight and one-half inch gauge in lieu of stock, it shall be lawful to issue bonds of the denomination of one hundred dollars in the same manner as is provided for the issue of stock, and in such case the petition and notice shall state the amount of bonds per mile to be issued, the rate of interest, and the time of payment of the interest and principal thereof. [23 G. A., ch. 19, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 6.]

Where there is no prohibition of the issuance of bonds the stockholder cannot complain that the bonds of the company have been issued prior to the delivery to him of the stock to which he has become entitled. Whitney v. Chicago, A. & N. R. Co., 133-508.

SEC. 2089. Liability of directors. The board of directors of any railway company receiving taxes voted in aid thereof under the provisions of this chapter or any member thereof, who shall vote to bond, mortgage or in any manner incumber said road to an amount exceeding the sum of eight thousand dollars per mile for a railroad of three feet gauge, or exceeding the sum of eighteen thousand five hundred dollars per mile for the ordinary four feet eight and one-half inch gauge, not including in either case any debt for ordinary operating expenses, shall be liable to the stockholders or either of them for double the amount, estimated at its par value, of the stock by him held, if the same should be rendered of less value or lost thereby. [23 G. A., ch. 19, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 159, § 7.]

SEC. 2090. Forfeiture of tax. Should the taxes voted in aid of any railroad under the provisions of this chapter remain in the county treasury for more than one year after the same have been collected, the right to them by the railroad company shall be forfeited, and the persons who paid the same entitled to receive back from the county treasurer their pro rata shares thereof remaining, and in all cases where any taxes have been voted or levied upon the real or personal property in any township, town or city to aid in the construction of any railroad, and the road in aid of which they were voted or levied has not been built, completed or operated into or through such township, town or city, it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of the county where said taxes have been voted and levied and still remain on the tax books to give the railway company in aid of which the tax was voted at least thirty days' notice in writing, to be served like original notices, of their intention to cancel such taxes, and thereupon to cause the same to be cancelled and stricken from the tax books of the county, which cancellation shall remove all liens created by the levy thereof. In all cases where the railway company to whom taxes have been voted neglects or refuses to receive such taxes, or to require or permit the same to be collected and certificates therefor to be issued, for the period of one year after they become due and collectible, and in all cases where taxes have been voted in aid of any railroad, and the conditions upon which the same were voted have not in fact been complied with, and the time in which said conditions were to be fulfilled has expired, the same shall be forfeited, and the county officers of the county in which they have been levied and entered upon the tax books shall enter cancellation thereof upon the proper records; and in all cases where any taxes to aid in the construction of any railroad may be voted upon the inducement or promise offered on the part of said railroad company, or any duly authorized agent thereof, for any rebates or exemptions from said tax or any part thereof, or any agreed price to be paid for the stock that may be issued in lieu of said tax, or a division of said tax, or any portion or percentage thereof, with any of the voters or taxpayers as an inducement to procure said tax to be voted, all taxes so procured to be voted shall be void. [20 G. A., ch. 159, § 8.]

SEC. 2091. Taxes paid in labor or supplies. Nothing contained in this chapter shall preclude any taxpayer who may contract with a railroad company for which taxes may be voted to pay his tax, or any part thereof, in labor upon the line of said railroad, or in material for its construction, or supplies furnished or money paid for the construction thereof, in pursuance of the terms and conditions stipulated in the notices of election, in lieu of a payment to the county treasurer. Upon presenting to the county treasurer a receipt from such railroad company or its duly authorized agent, specifying the amount of such payment, the same shall be credited by the treasurer on his tax, with the same effect as though paid to him in money, and when such receipts have been presented and credited they shall have the same validity in his settlement with the board of supervisors as the orders from the railroad company provided for in this chapter. Laborers shall have a lien upon any tax voted in aid of a railroad company for the amount due them for labor performed in the construction of said railroad. [Same, § 9.]

The lien here provided for in favor of laborers is not a mechanic's lien, nor is it a common law lien. Neither possession nor filing of a statement or claim is essential. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115-383.

SEC. 2091-a. What statutes apply. All of the provisions of sections two thousand and eighty-four, two thousand and eighty-five, two thousand and eighty-six, two thousand and eighty-seven, two thousand and eighty-eight, two thousand and eighty-nine, two thousand and ninety, and two thousand and ninety-one of the code are hereby made applicable to trolley or electric railways. And wherever the word "railroad" appears in any of said sections the same shall be held to include trolley or electric railroad; and wherever the words "railroad company" or "railway company" appear in said sections the same shall be held to include trolley railway company, and electric railway company. Provided, that no stock shall be issued by any such company except upon payment therefor of the full par value thereof in cash or its equivalent. [29 G. A., ch. 85, § 2.]

SEC. 2093. Notice. A public notice to all whom it may concern of the time of filing such petition, the object thereof, and the term of court at which the application will be made for authority to make the change, and requiring all persons desiring the repayment of money or return of property, as in this chapter provided, to appear and present their claims therefor, must be published in a newspaper printed in each county in which the change is to be made, once each week, for a period of ten successive weeks before the term of court at which the application is to be heard. The court may order any additional notice or publication that it may think proper. [16 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 7.]

SEC. 2100. Powers.

The corporation provided for in this section is not a railroad company. But a railroad company may, irrespective of this section, construct a union depot, and in so doing it does not lose any of the powers possessed by it under the general law. Morgan v. Des Moines U. R. Co., 113-561.

A railroad company may purchase and own such right of way as it sees fit, and use it in connection with the operation of a union depot without securing the consent of the railroad commission. Ibid.

SEC. 2110-a. Hours of service limited—exceptions. It shall be unlawful for any railway company within the state of Iowa, or any of its officers or agents to require or permit any employe engaged in or connected with the movement of any rolling stock, engine or train, to remain on duty more than sixteen (16) consecutive hours, or to require or permit any such employe who has been on duty sixteen (16) consecutive hours to perform any further service without having at least ten hours for rest, or to require or permit any such employe to be on duty at any time to exceed sixteen (16) hours in any consecutive twenty-four (24) hours; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to work performed in the protection of life or property in cases of accident, wreck, or other unavoidable casualty, or prevent train crews from taking a passenger train, or freight train loaded exclusively with live stock or perishable freight, to the next nearest division point upon such railroad; and provided further that it shall not apply to that time necessary for the trainmen to reach a resting place when an accident, wreck, washout, snow blockade or other unavoidable cause has delayed their train; and provided further that this section shall not apply to employes of sleeping car companies. [32 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2110-b. Penalty—investigation—prosecutions. Any superintendent, train master, train dispatcher, yard master or other official of any railroad in the state of Iowa, violating any of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100) and not more than five hundred dollars ($500) for each offense. It shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to receive written statements of violations of this act and when so requested to hold the same without disclosure of the name of the person making such statement, and to investigate each and every complaint filed alleging such violation. The board in making such investigation shall have the power to administer oaths, interrogate witnesses, take testimony, and require the production of books and papers, and must file a report of such investigation in writing with a full statement of its finding to the governor. In all cases of violation of this act, the board of railroad commissioners, through the attorney general, must at once begin the prosecution of all parties against whom evidence of violation is found; but this act shall not be construed to prevent any other person from beginning prosecution for violation hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

SEC. 2110-c. Street railways to furnish terminal facilities—compensation. That all persons, firms or corporations now or hereafter owning or operating electric street railways in any city (including cities organized under special charter) or town of this state, are hereby authorized and required to permit the use for interurban business only but not for local street railway business, of such of their terminals, tracks, poles and wires as are located in the streets, alleys and public places of said cities and towns, and such portions of their tracks, poles and wires as may cross property owned by said street railway companies in such cities and towns, by the passenger and combination baggage cars of interurban railway companies, for the transportation of passengers, mail, express and baggage; and said street railways shall furnish to said interurban railways, electric power for the operation of their cars and the transaction of their said business in said cities and towns, as to said tracks so furnished; but said street railways shall not be required to furnish electric power except during such hours as their street railway cars may be in operation; nor shall they be required to furnish such power where they have not power houses and machinery sufficient therefor; and they shall have the preference in the use of their own tracks and power so that their own cars shall not be delayed in transit; nor shall they be required to furnish car houses or car barns or access thereto. Said interurban railways shall pay a reasonable compensation for the privileges and power that may be furnished them as above mentioned under this act. If an agreement for the use of the facilities so furnished and the compensation for the same cannot be made between the interested parties the question as to the amount of such compensation and the conditions under which said facilities shall be furnished, used and operated, shall be heard and determined by the board of railroad commissioners of the state of Iowa, on petition to the said board by either party to the controversy, ten days' notice in writing of such petition being served upon the opposite party; and any order entered by said board of railroad commissioners, or court upon appeal, shall be subject to modification or review from time to time, upon notice being given as herein provided. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 1.]

SEC. 2110-d. Appeal to district court—commissioner—report—hearing. Each party to the proceeding shall have the right to appeal to the district court of the county where the street railway in question is located from any order made by the board of railroad commissioners under this act, which appeal shall be taken within twenty days from the date of the order appealed from, and shall be perfected by serving a notice of appeal upon the other parties to such proceeding and filing the same with the secretary of the board of railroad commissioners, and by filing within twenty days from the date of such order, a petition in the said district court, stating the facts and asking the court to determine the matter in controversy. The board of railroad commissioners shall, when such notice of appeal is filed with its secretary, forthwith certify to said district court a transcript of the papers and proceedings before said board, and its order thereon. The court, or a judge thereof, if the petition is filed in vacation, shall thereupon appoint a commissioner to examine into the necessity of such proceeding, and report the facts and his recommendation in such time as the court or judge may direct, and as soon as possible thereafter the court or judge shall appoint a time and place for the hearing of such petition. The proceedings shall be in equity and subject to all the rules of equity practice, except that the court shall require the issues to be made up at the first term after the petition is filed and give the proceeding precedence over other civil business and try the same thereat if possible. The action shall be triable de novo upon said appeal, except that the question of compensation for the tracks, poles, wires, terminals and power to be furnished shall first be tried to a jury in the same manner and with the same effect as jury trials in ordinary proceedings, and the jury shall assess, separately, compensation for power to be furnished, on such basis as the court shall direct. No such appeal shall suspend the order appealed from if the interurban railway company on whose behalf said order is made shall file such bond for the payment of damages and costs as the district court to which such appeal is taken, or a judge thereof, may order and require. In all cases payment of the compensation awarded shall be made or secured to be made as the board of railroad commissioners or court may order and require before the interurban company desiring the use of the same shall be entitled thereto. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 2.]

SEC. 2110-e. Power furnished outside of city or town. Street railroad companies desiring so to do shall be authorized to furnish to interurban railway companies, power for the operation of the cars of interurban railway companies outside of cities and towns, but no street railroad company shall be required to furnish such power. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.]

SEC. 2110-f. Applicable to interurban railways operating street railways. This shall not apply to those portions of the terminals, tracks, poles and wires of interurban railway companies which are located in the streets, alleys and public places of cities and towns and which are used by such companies for the transaction of a local street railway business; and where an interurban railway company has heretofore built tracks in a city or town used for street railway purposes it may acquire the use of such tracks, poles and wires as may be necessary to complete a terminal loop for the cars operated on such tracks and for the use of its interurban cars only, under the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.]

SEC. 2110-g. Repeal acts in conflict. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 5.]

SEC. 2110-h. Saving clause. The provisions of this act shall not affect any pending litigation. [32 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.]

SEC. 2110-i. Destruction of weeds—written notice. It shall be the duty of every corporation owning or operating a railroad in this state on written notice from the owner, lessee or occupant of any land abutting upon its right of way to cut and burn, or otherwise destroy once each year during the month of July, all cockle burrs, burdock weeds, quack grass and thistles on its right of way adjacent to said land. [32 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

SEC. 2110-j. Penalty. Any failure to comply with the provisions of this act shall be deemed as a misdemeanor and shall be punished accordingly. [32 G. A., ch. 105, § 2.]

SEC. 2110-k. Enforcement. It shall be the duty of the county attorneys in the respective counties to enforce the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 105, § 3.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

SECTION 2113. Repeal—powers and duties. That section twenty-one hundred thirteen (2113) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“It shall from time to time carefully examine into and inspect the condition of each railroad, its equipment, and the manner of its conduct and management with regard to the public safety and convenience in the state; make semi-annual examination of its bridges, and report the condition thereof to the company to which they belong; and if found by it unsafe it shall immediately notify the railroad company whose duty it is to put the same in repair, which shall be done by it within ten days after receiving such notice. If any corporation fails to perform this duty the board may forbid and prevent it from running trains over the same while unsafe. And should any railroad or transportation company in this state fail to provide proper shelter for its patrons at stations where two or more tracks are operated, or fail, or refuse to connect by proper switches or tracks with the tracks or lines of other railroad or transportation companies the board may require such railroad or transportation company to provide the same in such manner and upon such conditions as it may determine. When, in the judgment of the board, any railway corporation fails in any respect to comply with the terms of its charter or articles of incorporation or the laws of the state; or when in its judgment any repairs are necessary upon its road; or any addition to its rolling stock, or addition to or change in its stations or station houses, or change in its rates of fare for transporting freight or passengers, or change in the mode of operating its road or conducting its business, is reasonable and expedient in order to promote the security, convenience, and accommodation of the public, the board shall serve a notice upon such corporation, in the manner provided for the service of an original notice in a civil action, which notice shall be signed by its secretary, of the improvements and changes which it finds to be proper; and a report of such proceedings shall be included in its annual report to the governor as provided in the next section; but nothing in this section shall be so construed as relieving any railroad company from its present responsibility or liability for damage to person or property." [32 G. A., ch. 106.]

SEC. 2116. Duty of railroad to transport. Every railway corporation shall, when within its power to do so, and upon reasonable notice, furnish suitable cars to any and all persons who may apply therefor, for the transportation of any and all kinds of freight, and receive and transport such freight with all reasonable dispatch, and provide and keep suitable facilities for the receiving and handling thereof at any depot on the line of its road; and shall also receive and transport in like manner the empty or loaded cars furnished by any connecting road, to be delivered at any station or stations on the line of its road, to be loaded or discharged or reloaded and returned to the road so connecting; and for compensation it shall not demand or receive any greater sum than is accepted by it from any other connecting railroad for a similar service. In any suit or action in court brought against a railroad corporation for the purpose of enforcing rights arising under the provisions of this section, the burden of proving that the provisions of this section have been complied with by such railroad corporation, shall be upon such railroad corporation. [17 G. A., ch. 77, § 10.] [32 G. A., ch. 107.]

SEC. 2118. Cumulative.

The powers given the railroad commissioners to enforce performance by railroads of the duties imposed upon them by the statute as to private crossings and the like matters, do not exclude other remedies. Swinney v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123-219.

SEC. 2119. Orders of commissioners enforced.

The authority given to the railroad commissioners to enforce the duties imposed by law on railroad companies does not exclude the remedy by mandamus to compel a railroad company to construct a private crossing where the lands of one owner are separated by the railroad right of way and track. Swinney v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 123-219.

SEC. 2120-a. Investigation of interstate freight rates. It is hereby made the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to exercise constant diligence in informing themselves of the rates, charges, rules, and practices of common carriers engaged in the transportation of freight from points in this state to points beyond its limits, and from points in other states to points in this state, also in territory wholly outside this state; and whenever it shall come to the knowledge of the board of railroad commissioners either from their own investigation or by complaint made to them in any manner whatsoever that the rates charged by any common carrier on interstate business are unjust or unreasonable, or that such rates, rules or practices discriminate unjustly against the citizens, industries or interests of this state, or place any of the citizens, industries or interests of this state at an unreasonable disadvantage as compared with those of other states, or are levied or laid in violation of the act to regulate commerce, or in conflict with the rulings, orders or regulations of the interstate commerce commission, it shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners to immediately call the attention of the officials of railroads operating in this state to the fact and to urge upon them the propriety of changing such rate or rates, rules or practices. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-b. Appeal to interstate commerce commission—prosecutions. Whenever such rates, rules or practices are not changed or adjusted so as to remove or remedy such discrimination within a reasonable time, it shall be the duty of the board of railroad commissioners, whenever it can legally be done, to present the facts involved in such discrimination to the interstate commerce commission and appeal to it for relief and thereafter, if deemed necessary, by said board of railroad commissioners, they shall prosecute any charge or charges growing out of any such discrimination at the expense of the state, before said interstate commerce commission. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-c. Attorney general to assist. In all work devolving upon the railroad commission they shall receive, upon application, the services of the attorney general of this state, and he shall also represent them, whenever called upon to do so, before the interstate commerce commission. [32 G. A., ch. 108, § 3.]

SEC. 2120-d. Railroad commissioners to have supervision. The railroad commissioners of this state shall have general supervision over any and all wires for transmitting electric current or any other wire whatsoever crossing under or over any track of a railroad in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2120-e. Regulations. Within thirty (30) days from the taking effect of this act said railroad commissioners shall make regulations prescribing the manner in which such wires shall cross such railroad tracks in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

SEC. 2120-f. Wires must be strung in manner prescribed. It shall hereafter be unlawful for any corporation or person to place or string any such wire for transmitting electric current or any wire whatsoever across any track of a railroad in this state except in such manner as may be prescribed by the railroad commissioners as provided by this act. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

SEC. 2120-g. Examination of wires already strung. The board of railroad commissioners shall, as soon as possible after the taking effect of this act, either by personal examination or otherwise, obtain information where the tracks or railroads are crossed by wires strung over said tracks, contrary to or not in compliance with the rules prescribed by the railroad commissioners as contemplated by this act, and shall order such change or changes to be made by the persons or corporations owning or operating such wires as it may deem necessary to make the same comply with said rules and within such reasonable time as it may prescribe. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.]

SEC. 2120-h. Minimum height. In case such wires cross over said track, in no case shall said board of railroad commissioners prescribe a less height than twenty-two (22) feet above the top of the rails of any railroad track for any wire. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 5.]

SEC. 2120-i. Wires across railroad right of way at highways. The board of railroad commissioners are hereby authorized to provide for and regulate the crossing of wires over and across railroad rights of way at highways and other places within the state. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 6.]

SEC. 2120-j. Penalty—enforcement. Any person or corporation who string or maintain any wire across any railroad track in this state at a different height or in a different manner from that prescribed by the said board of railroad commissioners shall forfeit and pay to the state of Iowa the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) for each separate period of ten days during which such wire is so maintained, said forfeiture to be recovered in a civil action brought in any court of competent jurisdiction in the name of the state of Iowa, by the attorney-general, or by the county attorney of the county in which such wire is situated, at the request of the said board of railroad commissioners, and it is hereby made the duty of the said attorney general and county attorney to bring such action forthwith upon being so requested. [32 G. A., ch. 109, § 7.]

SEC. 2120-k. Railroad commissioners to investigate accidents—report. That upon the occurrence of any serious accident upon any railroad within this state, which shall result in personal injury, or loss of life, the corporation operating the road upon which the accident occurred shall give immediate notice thereof to the board of railroad commissioners whose duty it shall be, if they deem it necessary, to investigate the same, and promptly report to the governor the extent of the personal injuries, or loss of life, and whether the same was the result of mismanagement or neglect of the corporation on whose line the injury or loss of life occurred. Provided, that such report shall not be evidence or referred to in any case in any court. [32 G. A., ch. 110.]

SEC. 2121. Salaries. The board shall keep an office in the capitol at the seat of government, and each commissioner shall receive a salary of twenty-two hundred dollars a year. The secretary of the board shall receive a salary of eighteen hundred dollars a year. [17 G. A., ch. 77, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 7.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF THE REGULATION OF CARRIERS BY RAILWAY.

SECTION 2124. Unjust discrimination.

The provision of 22 G. A., chap. 28, in relation to unjust discriminations and the punishment therefor, held applicable to cases wherein railway companies voluntarily fixed joint rates, irrespective of provisions of 23 G. A., chap. 17 (Code §§ 2152-2157), relating to the fixing of schedules of joint rates by the railroad commissioners. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

SEC. 2128-a. Common carriers to redeem tickets. It shall be the duty of every railroad company, corporation, person or persons acting as common carriers of passengers in the state of Iowa, to provide for the redemption, at the place of purchase and at the general passenger agent's office of said carrier of the whole or any integral part of any passenger ticket or tickets that such carrier may have sold, as the purchaser or owner has not used for passage or received transportation for which such ticket should have been surrendered; and said carrier shall there redeem the same at a rate which shall equal the difference between the price paid for the whole ticket and the cost of a ticket between the points for which said ticket has been actually used, and no carrier shall limit the time in which redemption shall be made to less than ten days from date of sale at the place of purchase and six months from date of sale at general passenger agent's office. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 1.]

The requirement of the statute is that provision shall be made for the redemption of tickets which means that the person or persons in charge of the ticket window and authorized to sell tickets shall be prepared to make redemption when called upon to do so. The statute is not satisfied by the mere appointment of one person who may or may not have his station at the window where the ticket business is transacted, as the one through whom redemption must be made. Rohrig v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 130-380.

Unless the company adopts some regulation limiting the time for redemption of tickets, provided for by 28 G. A., chap. 71, demand therefor may be made at any time within the period of the general statute of limitations. Jolley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 119-491.

The company is afforded time in which to investigate, but must at its peril discharge the statutory obligation if found to exist, within the period fixed, and the holder of a ticket is not bound to apply a second time within ten days to have his ticket redeemed. Ibid.

Formal tender of the tickets is not essential, provided the agent has notice that the ticket holder presents them for redemption, and refuses at the time to accept them for that purpose. Ibid.

The remedy provided by the statute is for those purchasing tickets of passage in good faith and for actual use. One who purchases them for the purpose of subsequently presenting them for redemption and collecting the penalty in case the redemption is refused, is not entitled to relief. Ibid.

SEC. 2128-b. Notice posted. No railroad company, corporation, person or persons doing business in the state of Iowa, as common carrier of passengers, whose rate of fare is regulated by statute of this state, shall sell or issue to any person, at the maximum rate allowed by law, any ticket or tickets bearing any condition of limitation as to the time of use, or as to transferability, without first providing for the redemption of said ticket, as directed by the preceding section hereof, and also having notice of such provision and privilege of redemption conspicuously posted at each place where sales of tickets are made by such common carriers in this state. A failure to provide for the redemption of such ticket or to give notice as above provided shall make all conditions and limitations as to time of use or transferability of no force or effect. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.]

SEC. 2128-c. Penalty. Any railroad company, corporation, person or persons, who as common carriers shall sell or issue tickets as set forth in the preceding sections, and shall refuse or neglect to redeem the same, as by said sections provided, within ten days of date of demand, shall forfeit and pay to the owner of such ticket the purchase price of said ticket, and the further sum of one hundred dollars. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 3.]

SEC. 2128-d. Mileage books. Nothing in this act shall prohibit the sale of mileage books or tickets, at less than the maximum rates allowed by law, bearing reasonable conditions of limitation, as to the right of use for passage. [28 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.]

SEC. 2130. Penalty in treble damages.

The penalty of treble damages authorized in case recovery is had for unlawful discrimination in rates should not be increased by allowing interest on the damages thus awarded. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

While it is the duty of the carrier to provide proper facilities for the interchange of traffic between such carrier and a connecting carrier, or for the forwarding of goods over other lines, the carrier will not be liable in treble damages unless it appears that its failure was the result of undue preferences or unlawful combinations. The statutory provision is penal in character and is to be strictly construed. Clark v. American Express Co., 130-254.

SEC. 2145. Discrimination—punishment.

When joint rates are established between all the points on two or more lines of road, if within the state, extortion and discrimination are prohibited. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

SEC. 2152. Joint rates.

When two or more companies enter into an agreement for joint rates, which agreement covers all stations upon the line in any given state, they virtually create a new and independent line, and become subject to the law preventing unjust discrimination and unreasonable exaction. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

SEC. 2153. Repeal—joint rates over connecting lines. That section two thousand one hundred and fifty-three of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Every owner or consignor of freight to be transported by railway from any point within this state to any other point within this state shall have the right to require that the same shall be transported over two or more connecting lines of railway, to be transferred at the connecting point or points without change of car or cars if in carload lots, and with or without change of car or cars if in less than carload lots, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less over two or more connecting lines of railway than it is over a single line of railway, or where the initial line does not reach the place of destination; and it shall be the duty, upon the request of any such owner or consignor of freight, made to the initial company, of such railway companies whose lines so connect, to transport the freight without change of car or cars if the shipment be in a carload lot or lots, and with change of car or cars if it be in less than carload lots, from the place of shipment to destination, whenever the distance from the place of shipment to destination, both being within this state, is less than the distance over a single line, or when the initial line does not reach the point of destination, for a reasonable joint through rate. This section shall apply to interurban railways and their connection with ordinary steam railways.” [32 G. A., ch. 111, § 1.]

SEC. 2155. Repeal—schedule of joint rates. Section two thousand one hundred and fifty-five of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The board of railroad commissioners shall, within ten days after this act takes effect, notify in writing every railway company owning or operating a railway within this state that it will, upon a day named in such notice, which day shall not be more than thirty days after giving said notice, take up for investigation the subject of establishing joint through rates, as herein provided, between the railway lines in this state. It shall also give a similar notice, directed “To whom it may concern,” and so publish the same that it will have general circulation throughout the state. All corporations, partnerships and persons interested in the subject may present themselves at the hearing and be heard, under such rules and regulations as the board may prescribe. At the end of the investigation, which shall be carried on with all due diligence, the said board of railroad commissioners shall make and publish a schedule of joint through railway rates for such traffic and on such routes as in its judgment the fair and reasonable conduct of business requires shall be done by carriage over two or more lines of railway, and will promote the interests of the people of this state. In the making thereof, and in changing, revising or adding to the same, the board shall be governed as nearly as may be by the preceding sections of this chapter, and shall take into consideration, among other things, the rates established for shipments within this state for like distances over single lines, the rates charged by the railway companies operating such connecting lines for joint inter-state shipments, and the increased cost, if any, of a joint through shipment as compared with a shipment over a single line for like distances. In establishing such rates for shipments in less than carload lots, in cases where at the connecting point or points in the line of shipment the connecting railways have not and are not required to have a common station or stopping place for loading or unloading freight, the board shall make such lawful regulations as in its judgment will be fair and just respecting the transportation of such freight from the usual unloading place of one railway to the usual loading place of the other. The joint through rates thus established shall be promulgated by mailing a printed copy thereof to each railway company affected thereby, and shall go into effect within ten days after they are so promulgated; and from and after that time an official printed schedule thereof shall be prima facie evidence, in all the courts of this state, that the rates therein fixed are just and reasonable for the joint transportation of such freight between the points and over the lines described therein. The said board shall deliver a printed copy of said schedule to any person making application therefor. The share of any railway company of any joint through rate shall not be construed to fix the charge that it may make for transportation for a similar distance over any part of its line for any single rate shipment or the share of any other joint rate. The board, upon such reasonable notice as it may prescribe, may, upon its own motion or upon the application of any person, firm or corporation interested therein, revise, change or add to any joint through rates fixed or promulgated hereunder; and any such revised, changed or added joint rates shall have the same force and effect as the rate or rates originally established. The said board is empowered to authorize, upon proper hearing, any railway company whose line connects the point of shipment with the point of destination but requires a longer haul than the joint haul over which a joint rate has been established, to charge the joint rate without affecting the charge upon any other part of its line, except that the charge for a like kind of property must not be greater for a shorter than for a longer distance over its railroad, all of the shorter haul being included within the longer. This section shall apply to interurban railways and their connection with ordinary steam railways." [32 G. A., ch. 111, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-a. Transportation — conditions. On and after May 1, 1904, common carriers of live stock, in car load lots, upon receiving, in this state, for shipment one or more car loads of horses or mules or two or more car loads of other live stock, shall upon demand of the owner of such animals offered for shipment, issue to such owner, or the actual agent or employe of such owner, without other consideration transportation from the place of receiving such shipment to the place of destination, and return, such transportation to be limited to one person for each shipment, as is above set out. When a single shipment aggregates six cars or more, such owner shall be entitled, on demand, as is above provided, to transportation for one additional person, such additional person to be an actual agent or employe of such owner, and such common carrier shall in like manner and under similar conditions issue transportation for one person to destination of shipment only to the shipper of one car load of cattle, hogs or sheep. The return transportation herein provided for is to be delivered, upon demand, at the office of the carrier at the place of destination, upon proper identification of the person so entitled to same, and shall be good for transportation if presented within forty-eight hours from the time of the delivery of such shipment at place of destination. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

SEC. 2157-b. Penalty. Any common carrier violating the above provisions shall forfeit and pay to the owner of any shipment, as is above provided, three times the amount of the regular fare expended by such owner for himself, or his agent, in going from point of shipment to point of destination, and return, of a shipment of stock as herein provided. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-c. Trespasser. Any person other than the owner, his agent or employe, as is described in section 1 hereof, attempting to use, or using, the transportation therein provided for, shall be considered a trespasser upon the trains or premises of such common carrier. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-d. Water closets in cabooses. That the cabooses or cars attached to such stock trains, and in which the holders of such transportation are required to ride when accompanying such live stock to market, shall be provided with suitable water closets for the use of such persons while in transit, provided that the provisions of this section shall not go into effect until January 1, 1905, and that all such railroads shall be allowed until said time to comply with the requirements of this section. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-e. Penalty. Any railroad in this state engaged in the transportation of live stock, and failing or refusing to comply with the requirements of the foregoing section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each day's negligence or refusal to comply therewith; and all moneys so collected as fines shall be paid into the public school funds of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 76, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-f. Issuance or acceptance of free passes—what prohibited. No common carrier of passengers shall, directly or indirectly, issue, furnish or give any free ticket, free pass or free transportation for the carriage or passage of any person within this state except as permitted in the second section hereof. Nor shall any common carrier, in the sale of tickets for transportation at reduced rates, discriminate between persons purchasing the same, except the persons described in the second section of this act. Nor shall any person accept or use any free ticket, free pass or free transportation except the persons described in said section. The words "free ticket," "free pass," "free transportation" as used in this act shall include any ticket, pass, contract, permit or transportation issued, furnished or given to any person, by any common carrier of passengers, for carriage or passage, for any other consideration than money paid in the usual way at the rate, fare or charge open to all who desire to purchase. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2157-g. What permitted. The persons to whom free tickets, free passes, free transportation and discriminating reduced rates may be issued, furnished, or given are the following, to-wit: (a) the officers, agents, employes, attorneys, physicians, and surgeons, of such common carriers of passengers whose chief and principal occupation is to render service to common carriers of passengers; (b) to the families of the persons included in sub-division "a" hereof; (c) the general officers of any such common carrier; (d) employes on sleeping cars, express cars, and linemen of telegraph and telephone companies, railway mail service employes, postoffice inspectors, customs inspectors and immigration inspectors, newsboys on trains, baggage agents; (e) persons injured in wrecks and physicians and nurses attending such persons; (f) passengers traveling with the object of providing relief in cases of railroad accident, general epidemic, pestilence, or other calamitous visitation; (g) necessary caretakers of live stock, vegetables and fruit, including return transportation to forwarding station; (h) the officers, agents or regularly accredited representatives of labor organizations, composed wholly of employes of railway companies; (i) inmates of homes for the reform or rescue of the vicious or unfortunate, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, and boards of managers, including officers, and superintendents of such homes; (j) superannuated and pensioned employes and members of their families and widows of such members; (k) employes crippled and disabled in the service of a common carrier of passengers; (l) policemen and firemen of any city wearing the insignia of their office within the limits of such city; (m) ministers of religion, traveling secretaries of Railroad Young Men's Christian Associations, inmates of hospitals and charitable and eleemosynary institutions, and persons exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; (n) indigent, destitute and homeless persons, while being transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and necessary agents, employes in such transportation; (o) school children to and from public or parochial schools; (p) the state fish and game warden, and his car and necessary assistants therewith, when engaged in the performance of official duties.

In any prosecution under this act if it is claimed that a free ticket, free pass or other transportation was wrongfully issued or given to physicians or surgeons, attorneys, agents, employes, it shall be incumbent upon the defendant to prove the character of the service rendered, or to be rendered. The provisions of this act shall not be construed to prohibit the interchange of passes for the persons to whom free tickets, free passes, or free transportation may be furnished or given under the provisions of this section. Nothing in this act shall operate to repeal the provisions of section two thousand one hundred fifty (2150) of the code so far as said section refers to the members of the national guard, nor shall it operate to repeal section two thousand one hundred fifty-one (2151) of the code. Nothing in this act shall be construed to invalidate any existing contract between a street railway company and a city where a condition of a franchise grant requires the furnishing of transportation to policemen, firemen, and city officers, while in the performance of official duties. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-h. Testimony—immunity from prosecution. No person, within the purview of this act shall be privileged from testifying in relation to anything herein prohibited, but no person having so testified shall be liable to any prosecution or punishment for any offense concerning which he was required to give his testimony. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-i. Penalty. Any common carrier, its officer, agent or representative, violating any of the provisions of this act shall be fined in a sum not less than one hundred dollars ($100) and not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000) for each offense, or in the discretion of the court shall be imprisoned in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) and not more than ninety (90) days; and any person other than the persons excepted in the second section of this act, who accepts or uses any free ticket, free pass or free transportation for carriage or passage within this state shall be subject to a like penalty. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-j. Names of free pass beneficiaries reported. Every common carrier of passengers within the provisions of this act, shall on or before the first day of February of each year, file with the executive council of the state of Iowa, a sworn statement showing the names of all persons within this state to whom, during the preceding calendar year, it issued, furnished or gave a free ticket, free pass, free transportation or a discriminating reduced rate, except wage earners of common carriers in their ordinary employment and families of such wage earners, and disclosing such further information as will enable the council to determine whether the person to whom it was issued, was within the exception of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-k. Repeal. When this act takes effect, it shall repeal chapter ninety (90), laws of the thirty-first general assembly, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act. [32 G. A., ch. 112, § 6.]

SEC. 2157-l. Track scales—where located—weight certificates. That every person, firm or corporation engaged in operating any railroad within the state of Iowa shall equip the line of its track and thereafter maintain thereon in good order, track scales of sufficient capacity to weigh all carloads of coal that may be transported over the said railroad, and shall weigh the same at the request of any owner, consignor or consignee of such commodities, and furnish written certificates of such weights to such owner, consignor or consignee as hereinafter provided. Such track scales shall be so installed and maintained at all division stations along the line of such railroads within the state of Iowa, and at such other stations as the board of railroad commissioners shall from time to time direct. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-m. Weighing of coal at point where shipment originates. That every person, firm or corporation engaged in operating any railroad within the state of Iowa, over which coal, in carload lots shall be transported for hire, shall weigh such coal at point where such shipment originates unless covered by weight agreement between consignor and railway company, provided such point is equipped with track scales. If not so equipped, it shall be weighed at first practicable point en route where track scales are provided. Said person, firm or corporation shall furnish to said shipper a bill of lading showing date and place weighed, also the gross, tare and net weight for each carload of coal so weighed. The tare weight shall be determined by using actual weight of empty car at loading station, provided track scales are maintained at such point. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 3.]

SEC. 2157-n. Weighed at destination upon request—fee. Such coal shall be weighed at destination upon request of consignee when there are track scales at such point. If not equipped with track scales at such point, then at nearest practicable point en route where such scales are maintained and certificate of weight showing actual gross, tare and net weights, shall be furnished to consignee and settlement of freight charges based on these weights. A reasonable charge of not more than $1.00 per car, may be made for such weighing on request. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 4.]

SEC. 2157-o. How weighed. Cars when weighed on track scales shall be uncoupled, clear and unhampered at both ends, carefully weighed by competent weighmen and certificates issued upon request of consignees, showing gross, tare and net weights. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 5.]

SEC. 2157-p. Prima facie evidence. Certificates mentioned in this act shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein recited in any action arising between consignors and consignees and common carriers. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 6.]

SEC. 2157-q. Penalty. Any common carrier operating in this state violating any of the provisions of this act by neglecting or refusing to weigh cars or to furnish certificates of weights as herein provided shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be, upon conviction thereof, fined in the sum of not more than one hundred and twenty-five dollars ($125.00) for each and every violation. [32 G. A., ch. 113, § 7.]

SEC. 2157-r. Reconsignment without charge. Upon request of the consignee it shall be the duty of any common carrier of freight to re-consign, re-bill and re-ship from any place of destination within the state to any other place within the state any property in car load lots, whether accompanied by any person or not, brought to said place of destination over its own or other line and treat the same in all respects as an original shipment between such places, provided the charges to first place of destination are paid or secured to the satisfaction of such company. [32 G. A., ch. 114.]

SEC. 2157-s. Duty of common carriers of freight. That it is hereby made the duty of all common carriers of freight within this state to move cars of live stock at the highest practicable speed consistent with reasonable safety, and the reasonable movement of its general traffic. [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.]

SEC. 2157-t. Railroad commissioners to prescribe speed. In order to enforce the duty prescribed in section one, the board of railroad commissioners shall immediately and from time to time investigate the practice of the common carriers with respect to the movement of live stock; and if it ascertains at any time that the common carriers or any of them are not moving cars of live stock with the proper speed, then upon notice to any such common carrier or carriers, the said board shall prescribe the speed at which and the conditions under which cars of live stock shall be moved within this state by any such carrier or carriers. The order shall specify the time at which it shall go into effect, which shall be as soon as, in the judgment of the board, the carrier or carriers affected can, with reasonable diligence, readjust its or their time tables. The power to prescribe speed and determine conditions for the movement of cars of live stock within this state is hereby expressly conferred upon the said board of railroad commissioners. [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 2.]

SEC. 2157-u. Enforcement. Any order, ruling or regulation made by the board under this act shall be enforceable as provided in section two thousand one hundred and nineteen (2119) of the code. [32 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE LINES.

SECTION 2158. Right of way.

Under § 1324, Code of 1873, as amended by 19 G. A., chap. 104, providing that any person or company may construct a telephone line along the public highways of the state, held that the term "public highways" as used included city streets, and that a telephone company might occupy such streets without the city's consent.

Chamberlain v. Iowa Telephone Co., 119-619.

Where grant is made to a telephone company to use the streets of a city without limitation as to territory it has the right under such grant to extend its service to meet the demands of the public. State v. Nebraska Tel. Co., 127-194.

SEC. 2163. Liable for mistakes.

A telegraph company being engaged in a public employment may be liable in tort for breach of its obligations arising under a contract Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122-379.

Whether a telegraph company has used reasonable diligence as to the delivery of a message confided to it is to be determined upon the consideration of all the facts of the case, including improper or defective address, and is for the jury. Hurlburt v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 123-295.

Negligence being shown, damages for mental pain and anguish resulting from failure to deliver may be recovered. Ibid.

The statutory provision as to the liability of a telegraph company does not create a right of action in the addressee of a death message to recover damages for negligent delay in the delivery where none existed before, and therefore held that such provision was ineffective to sustain a recovery of damages for mental anguish by the addressee unaccompanied by any physical injury. Rowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 149 Fed. 550.

Negligent delay in delivering a telegram containing an enquiry as to the price of land, but no proposition to buy which if accepted would have constituted a contract of sale, will not authorize recovery of damages for the delay based on loss of the sale. Bennett v. Western Union Tel. Co., 129-607.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages resulting from negligent delay in transmitting a proposition for the exchange of real estate, held that as the proposition was made by mail and did not contemplate a response by telegram, it was for the jury to say whether the unreasonable delay in the acceptance of the contract through a telegraphic response was the cause of the loss of the benefits of the bargain Lucas v. Western Union Tel. Co., 131-669.

One who acts in response to a telegram apparently addressed to a person of a different name, cannot recover damages against the telegraph company for injuries resulting to him by reason of the fact that the telegram was not intended for him, although the telegram has been delivered to him by the company. Bowyer v. Western Union Tel. Co., 130-324.

SEC. 2164. Negligence presumed—notice of claim.

The burden is upon the company to prove that mistake or delay in the transmission or delivery of a message is not due to its own negligence. Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122-379.

It is error to admit in evidence a notice in writing of a claim for damages, where there is no allegation in the pleadings as to such notice. Heald v. Western Union Tel. Co., 129-326 for motion in arrest of judgment in an action on a claim as to which notice is required. Ibid.

Failure to allege notice is a good ground

The objection that notice of a claim against a telegraph company for damages due to negligence was not given within sixty days, as required by statute, may be raised for the first time in a motion in arrest of judgment. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 110 N. W. 143.

CHAPTER 9.

OF EXPRESS COMPANIES.

SECTION 2165. Repeal. That sections 2165 and 2166 of the code be and the same are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

The provisions of Code § 2074 prohibiting contracts limiting the liability of a carrier are applicable to express companies. McMillan v. American Express Co., 123-236.

SEC. 2165-a. Subject to regulations. All express companies operating and doing business in this state are declared to be common carriers, and it shall be the duty of every such express company or common carrier to transport all property, parcels, money, merchandise, packages, and other things of value which may be offered to them for transportation, at a reasonable charge or rate therefor; and all laws so far as applicable, now in force or hereafter enacted, regulating the transportation of property by railroad companies, shall apply with equal force and effect to express companies. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 2.]

SEC. 2165-b. Supervision by railroad commissioners—schedule of joint rates. The railroad commissioners of this state shall have general supervision of all express companies operating and doing business in this state; and shall inquire into any unjust discrimination, neglect or violation of the laws of this state governing common carriers, by any express company doing business therein, or by the officers, agents or employes thereof; and they shall have power and it shall be their duty, to fix and establish reasonable, fair and just rates of charges including a schedule of maximum joint rates for each kind or class of property, money, parcels, merchandise, packages, and other things to be charged for and received by each express company or carriers by express, separately or conjointly, on all such property, money, parcels, merchandise, packages and other things which by the contract of carriage are to be transported separately or conjointly by such express companies, or carriers by express, doing business over the line of any railroad or other carrier between points wholly within the state of Iowa, which rates or charges shall be made to apply to all such express companies or express carriers, and may be changed or modified by said commissioners from time to time in such manner as may become necessary. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 3.]

SEC. 2165-c. Schedule of rates for each company — prima facie evidence. Within six months from the taking effect of this act it shall be the duty of said railroad commissioners, and they are hereby directed, to prepare and make for each express company doing business in this state a schedule of reasonable maximum charges of rates for transporting property, money, parcels, merchandise, packages, and other things carried by such express company or companies between points wholly within the state of Iowa; and in all actions brought against such common carriers wherein there are involved the charges thereof for the transportation of any property, or any unjust discrimination in relation thereto, the schedules or reasonable maximum rates of charges so made by the railroad commissioners shall be taken as prima facie evidence in all courts that the rates fixed therein are reasonable and just maximum rates of charges for which said schedules have been prepared. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 4.]

SEC. 2165-d. Printed schedules posted and displayed. It shall be the duty of every such company or common carrier engaged in transporting property, money, parcels, merchandise, packages and other things, to print in clear and legible type the schedules of rates for transportation of such property, money, parcels, merchandise, packages, and other things, so made by such railroad commissioners, and shall post in each of its offices or places of business where patrons visit for the purpose of making and receiving shipments, and keep displayed in each office or place of business within convenient access, and for the inspection and use of the public during customary business hours such printed schedule of rates of charges and any amendments thereto, and shall also post and display in similar manner any special rules and regulations which may be promulgated by them or said railroad commissioners for the information of their patrons. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 5.]

SEC. 2165-e. Excessive compensation—penalty. It shall be unlawful for any express company or common carrier to charge, demand, collect or receive a greater compensation for such transportation of property, or for any service in connection therewith between the points named in such schedules than the rates and charges which are specified in the schedules made by said railroad commissioners and in effect at the time. Any such express company or common carrier, any officer, representative, or agent or any express company, or carrier, who knowingly violates the provisions of this act shall forfeit to the state of Iowa the sum of five hundred dollars for each offense, to be recovered as by law provided. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 6.]

SEC. 2165-f. Refusal to transport—liable for damages—penalty. Each and every express company or carrier by express, as herein defined, doing business within the state of Iowa, shall at all convenient times during the hours of business accept and receive for prompt transportation and shipment destined to points on their own line, or to points on the lines of other express companies operating within the state, or for points beyond said state, all property, parcels, money, merchandise, packages and other things of value which may be offered to them, or either of them, for transportation by the public, and any express company or other common carrier refusing to transport goods as above provided taking the same in the order presented, shall be liable to the party injured for damages sustained by reason of its refusal, and in addition thereto shall be liable to a penalty of not less than five (5) nor more than five hundred (500) dollars, to be recovered in each case by the owner of the goods in any court having jurisdiction in the county where the wrong is done, or where the common carrier resides or has an agent, and each case of refusal shall be construed as a separate offense under this act. [32 G. A., ch. 116, § 7.]

OF THE MILITIA.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE MILITIA.

SECTION 2168-a. Repeal—Iowa national guard. That section twenty-one hundred and sixty-eight (2168) of the code of Iowa is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The active militia shall be designated "Iowa National Guard" hereafter referred to as "the guard," recruited by volunteer enlistments and shall consist of four regiments of infantry, one signal company, and, at the discretion of the commander-in-chief, of two batteries of artillery and two troops of cavalry and the necessary staff departments, with such other officers and enlisted men as are hereinafter prescribed. [29 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.]

SEC. 2169-a. Repeal—governor to call out. That the law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and sixty-nine-a (2169-a) of the supplement to the code be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

When a requisition shall be made by the president of the United States for troops, the governor, as commander-in-chief, shall order into service the national guard of the state, as organized and officered unless otherwise directed in such requisition; or such portion thereof as may be necessary, and if insufficient, so many of the militia as is required, designating the same by draft if a sufficient number do not volunteer, and shall commission officers therefor; and while so in the service, the national guard and militia shall be subject to the same regulations as those of the United States army, and receive the same compensation and subsistence as when in active service of the state until mustered into the United States service, and the same compensation, subsistence and allowances as officers and men of like rank and service in the United States army thereafter. The state shall pay for such service only that part not paid by the United States. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2173-a. Repeal—enlistments. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and seventy-three-a (2173-a) of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

All enlistments shall be for three years except that enlistments made within ninety days from date of discharge from the guard, United States army, or the organized and disciplined militia of any state, shall be considered continuous service in the guard, and may be for one, two or three years as the soldier may elect; and made by signing the enlistment prescribed by the adjutant general and taking the following oath or affidavit which may be administered by the enlisting officer, to-wit: "You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will bear true allegiance to, and that you will support the constitution of the United States and that of the state of Iowa, and will, as a member of the national guard, serve the United States and the state of Iowa faithfully through your term of service, unless sooner discharged and that you will obey the orders of the commander-in-chief and such officers as may be placed over you, and the laws and regulations governing the military forces." [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 2.]

SEC. 2174. Repeal—staff of commander-in-chief. That the law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and seventy-four (2174) of the supplement to the code, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The staff of the commander-in-chief shall consist of an adjutant general who shall be chief of staff and acting quarter-master general, an assistant adjutant general, a quarter-master general who shall also act as commissary general, a surgeon general, a judge-advocate general, a general inspector of small arms practice, a chief of engineers, a chief signal officer, and seven aids; all of whom shall have served honorably in the regular or volunteer service of the United States, or for not less than one year in the guard. The adjutant general and assistant adjutant general shall be appointed and commissioned by the commander-in-chief, and shall hold office until their successors are appointed and commissioned. The assistant adjutant general shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the adjutant general. The other officers above enumerated may at the discretion of the commander-in-chief be appointed and commissioned by him or detailed for such service from the active membership of the guard, or their duties may be performed by United States army officers regularly or specially detailed, for service with the guard or in the state, by the war department. The adjutant general shall have the rank of brigadier general, and the assistant adjutant general that of colonel. All other officers above enumerated if appointed and commissioned to such offices, shall have the rank of colonel, and if detailed from the active membership of the guard, shall retain their rank in the guard and shall not be relieved from their regular duties by reason of such detail. United States army officers regularly or specially detailed for service with the guard or in the state, may be assigned positions on the staff with their rank in the United States service or such higher rank, not above that of colonel, as the commander-in-chief may designate. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 3.]

SEC. 2175. Repeal—adjutant general—duties. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and seventy-five (2175) of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The adjutant general shall issue and transmit all orders of the commander-in-chief, and shall keep a record of appointments, of all officers commissioned by the governor, of all general and special orders and regulations, and of such matters as pertain to the organization of the military force and his duties. He shall reside at the capital and hold his office at the pleasure of the governor, and shall perform the duties of quartermaster general. He shall have charge of the state arsenal and grounds and all other property of the state kept or used for military purposes, and receive and issue all quartermaster and ordnance stores and camp equipage upon the order of the commander-in-chief. The adjutant general shall furnish at the expense of the state such blanks and forms as shall be approved by the commander-in-chief. He shall in each year preceding a regular session of the general assembly make out a detailed report of the transactions of his office, the expenses thereof and such other matters as shall be required by the commander-in-chief for the period since the last preceding report, and the governor may at any time require a similar report. Upon the recommendation of the adjutant general, there may be appointed an assistant adjutant general with the rank of major, who shall hold his office at the pleasure of the governor. The assistant adjutant general shall be on duty with the adjutant general, and shall perform such duties under the direction of the adjutant general as the commander-in-chief may prescribe, and in the absence of the adjutant general, shall perform the duties of that officer as acting adjutant general. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 4.]

SEC. 2176-a. Repeal—adjutant general—compensation. That the law as it appears in section four (4) of chapter 77, of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

When requisition shall be made on the governor of Iowa by the president of the United States for troops, and during the time the Iowa troops are in the service of the United States under call of the president, the salary of the adjutant general shall be increased so that he shall receive in full compensation for his services, pay and allowances equal to that of a brigadier general of the United States army. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 5.]

SEC. 2178. Repeal—regimental staff—band. That the law as it appears in section five (5) of chapter 77, of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The regimental staff shall be appointed and commissioned by the governor upon recommendation of the regimental commander, and shall consist of one major surgeon and two assistant surgeons or as many as may be required for volunteer regiments in the United States army, who shall receive the approval of the surgeon general as to their professional qualifications before being commissioned, an adjutant, a quartermaster, a commissary, a chaplain, and also for each battalion one adjutant and one quartermaster commissary officer, each of which officers shall have the same rank as corresponding officers in the United States army. The chaplains shall have the right of promotion as provided for in the regulations of the United States army. One inspector of small arms practice may be detailed by the commanding officer of each regiment from the officers of his command. The commander of each regiment shall appoint by warrant from the enlisted men of his regiment, a non-commissioned staff, consisting of a regimental sergeant major, a sergeant major for each battalion, a quartermaster sergeant, a commissary sergeant, two color sergeants, two mounted orderlies with rank of sergeant and four orderlies not mounted, with rank of corporal, the state to furnish mounts. The commissions of regimental staff officers shall expire when the officer nominating them, or his successor, shall make new nominations for their respective offices, and such nominations shall be confirmed by the commander-in-chief. Each regimental commander, subject to the approval of the commander-in-chief, may cause to be enlisted and organized a band, composed of one chief musician, one principal musician, one drum major, four sergeants, eight corporals, one cook and not more than sixteen privates. The enlisted men of the medical department for each regiment shall consist of a first class sergeant, two sergeants, one cook and twelve to fifteen privates, two-thirds of whom may be privates of the first class. The members of such bands and hospital detachments except as otherwise provided, shall be subject to the same regulations and receive the same compensation as other enlisted men of like grade. The regimental commander shall appoint the non-commissioned officers of the band, and upon the recommendation of the company commanders and surgeons, shall appoint the non-commissioned officers of each company and hospital detachments and issue warrants to the persons so appointed. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 6.]

SEC. 2179-a. Repeal—company and troop-officers. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and seventy-nine-a (2179-a) of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

A company of infantry shall consist of a captain, a first lieutenant, a second lieutenant, a first sergeant, a quartermaster sergeant, four sergeants, six corporals, two cooks, two musicians, an artificer, and not less than forty nor more than sixty-four privates and non-commissioned officers. A signal company shall consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, eight sergeants, sixteen corporals, two cooks, two musicians, an artificer, and not less than forty nor more than sixty-four privates and non-commissioned officers. A cavalry troop or battery of light artillery shall have the same officers, non-commissioned officers and number of enlisted men as an infantry company, and a farrier, a blacksmith and a saddler. In time of war or public danger the commander-in-chief may increase the enlisted strength of such organizations as he may deem necessary. Company officers shall be elected by the officers and enlisted men of the company and shall hold office for five (5) years, unless their resignation shall have been accepted or they are dismissed by sentence of court-martial. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 6.]

SEC. 2180. Election of officers. All elections of company officers shall be ordered by the regimental commander. All elections of field officers shall be ordered by the commander-in-chief. Such orders shall be sent to the commanding officer of the company in which said election is ordered, who shall issue his order for such election, giving at least six days' notice thereof, by posting in three public places accessible to the members of his command, and, where practicable, the same shall be published in one or more newspapers in the county where said company is located. All voting shall be in person and by ballot, and a majority of all votes cast shall elect. The senior officer present at such election shall preside. The returns of elections attested by the presiding officer shall be made within five days from the date thereof to the commanding officer of the regiment, who shall promptly forward the same through military channels to the adjutant-general, who, upon approval of the commander-in-chief, shall issue commissions accordingly. At the organization of a new company, the election shall be conducted under such regulations as the adjutant-general shall prescribe. [26 G. A., ch. 102, § 15; 24 G. A., ch. 31, § 8; 18 G. A., ch. 74, § 15.] [28 G. A., ch. 72, § 4.]

SEC. 2181-a. Repeal. That section twenty-one hundred eighty-nine (2189) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. The law as it appears in section 7 of chapter 77 of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 8.]

SEC. 2183. Repeal—term of service—resignation—discharge. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and eighty-three (2183) of the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

Every officer of the guard shall be held to duty for the full term of his commission, unless his resignation shall have been sooner accepted, or he shall have been dismissed by sentence of court-martial. Every enlisted man of the guard shall be held to duty for the full term of his enlistment unless regularly discharged for good and sufficient cause by the regimental commander, approved by the commander-in-chief. All company officers and members of a company or band permanently removing their place of residence from the station of such company or band, except in time of war or public danger, and all members of the guard who have served the full term for which they were commissioned or enlisted, shall upon application be entitled to honorable discharge exempting them from military duty except in time of war or public danger, and it shall be the duty of a company officer upon permanently removing his place of residence from the station of such company to resign his commission and upon failure to do so his commission may be revoked by the commander-in-chief. The term of enlistment of a member of a company or band shall be deemed to have expired upon such removal and he shall be discharged accordingly. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 8.]

SEC. 2184. Repeal—parades—encampments. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and eighty-four (2184) of the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The guard may parade for encampment or drill annually, by company, battalion, regiment or brigade as ordered by the commander-in-chief, and the members thereof, or assignments of details therefrom, at the discretion of the commander-in-chief, may be called out or detailed for target practice, school of instruction or such other practice or instruction as the commander-in-chief may order. In lieu of the encampments provided in paragraph one of this section, the commander-in-chief may, in his discretion, order part or all of the guard to participate in field maneuvers or other exercises for instruction in conjunction with troops of the United States army, for a period of not more than fifteen days. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 9.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 7.]

SEC. 2188. Repeal—penalties. The law as it appears in section twenty-one hundred and eighty-eight (2188) of the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

Any person who shall trespass upon the encampment grounds or the camp grounds of the military force of the state in active service, or of the guard called out for encampment, drill, target practice or other duty, or interrupt, molest or interfere with any member of the guard in the discharge of his duty, or sell any malt or spirituous or other intoxicating liquor within one mile of such encampment, camp or station, except a person engaged in the business prior to the establishment of such encampment, camp or station under permit issued by lawful authority, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable therefor, and the commanding officer of such force may order the arrest of such person and cause him to be delivered to a peace officer or magistrate as soon as practicable. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 10.]

SEC. 2190. Repeal—arms, equipment, uniforms and other property—bond. That section twenty-one hundred and ninety (2190) of the code, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

All officers to whom shall be issued, or who shall be accountable for, arms, equipment, uniforms and any other state or United States property for military uses, or who shall have the control, custody or disbursement of funds as provided for in this chapter, shall before the delivery to them of such arms, equipment, uniforms and other state or United States property, and the receipt of such funds, be required to execute and deliver to the adjutant general a bond therefor, with sureties to be approved by the governor and payable to the state, in such amount as may be fixed by the commander-in-chief, conditioned according to law, for the proper care, use and return in good order, wear, use and unavoidable loss and damage excepted, of all such state and United States property, and the proper and faithful disbursement and accounting of all funds coming into the hands of such officer; upon the violation of any of the conditions of such bond, action thereon shall be brought by the adjutant general upon behalf of the state of Iowa, and any recovery thereon shall be credited to the guard funds of the state. It shall be the duty of the attorney general of the state to prosecute all actions upon such bonds. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 9.]

SEC. 2191. Repeal—inspection—schools of instruction. That section twenty-one hundred and ninety-one (2191) of the code, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The commander-in-chief shall require such inspections of the different organizations of the guard, and such schools of instruction for officers and enlisted men, as he may deem proper and necessary. The inspection shall be made by United States army officers, either on regular or special detail with the guard or in the state, where such officers are available for that purpose, and if made by other officers the commander-in-chief shall fix their compensation therefor in the orders for such inspectors. Schools of instruction may be ordered when sufficient funds are available beyond other requirements of this chapter. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 10.]

SEC. 2192. Embezzlement of state property. Any officer or soldier of the guard knowingly making any false certificate of muster or false return of state property in his hands, or wilfully neglecting or refusing to apply all money drawn from the state treasury for the purpose named in the requisition therefor, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by fine in the amount of money not so applied, or both such fine and imprisonment, and all costs of prosecution. [26 G. A., ch. 101, § 26.] [18 G. A., ch. 74, § 26.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 11.]

SEC. 2199. Military board. An examining board of three or more competent officers, appointed by the commander-in-chief, shall convene at such times and places as he shall direct, whose duty it shall be to examine into the capacity, qualifications, propriety of conduct and efficiency of commissioned officers or any person who shall have been elected or appointed, who shall be ordered before it, and, upon the report of said board, if adverse to such officer and approved by the commander-in-chief, the commission of such officer shall be vacated, or the commission withheld. No officer shall be eligible to sit on such board whose rank of promotion would in any way be affected by the proceedings, and two members at least shall be of equal or superior rank to the officer examined. If any officer shall refuse to report himself before said board when directed, the commander-in-chief may, upon the report of such refusal by such board, vacate his commission. [26 G. A., ch. 102, § 34; 24 G. A., ch. 31, § 14; 18 G. A., ch. 74, § 35.] [29 G. A., ch. 88, § 8.]

SEC. 2201. Payment for uniforms—service badges. Uniforms in kind may be issued by the state under such provisions as the commander-in-chief may direct, or, in lieu thereof, there may be annually paid to each officer and soldier of the guard the sum of four dollars to be paid under like provisions, but in no event will the state be liable for the payment of any money in lieu of uniforms, or for any purpose contemplated in this chapter, unless such payment can be made without exceeding the annual appropriation provided by this chapter. The adjutant general shall procure from the available funds at his disposal, service badges for members of the guard, as follows: For five years' honorable service, a "silver badge" suspended from a silver bar, and for each additional five years of honorable service including twenty years, a "silver bar" with number of years' service enameled thereon; said bars to be attached, in their order, to the lower edge of the badge. For twenty-five years or more honorable service, a "gold badge" suspended from a gold bar, the design and selection of the badges and bars as above provided for, to be made by a committee of officers designated by the commander-in-chief. Service badges shall be the absolute property of those to whom they are awarded. [26 G. A., ch. 102, § 36; 24 G. A., ch. 31, § 15; 18 G. A., ch. 74, §§ 37, 38.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 12.]

SEC. 2203. Repeal—allowance for headquarters—allowance for postage, supplies, etc. That section fourteen (14) of chapter ninety-one (91) of the acts of the thirty-first general assembly be, and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

There shall be allowed annually to each regimental and company commander the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) for postage, stationery, issuing orders, making official returns, keeping official records, conducting the correspondence of his office and all other paper work required by orders or regulations, which sum shall be payment in full for said services; and for like purposes to each chief musician of bands the sum of fifty dollars ($50), and for like purposes to each general inspector of small arms practice, major surgeons and regimental inspectors of small arms practice, the sum of fifty dollars ($50). All payments to be made semi-annually and in the amounts as herein provided. [32 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2204. Repeal—company and band allowance—hospital allowance. That the law as it appears in section twenty-two hundred and four (2204) of the supplement to the code, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

There shall be allowed annually to each company and band for armory rent, lights, fuel and janitor service and like necessary expenses, not to exceed the sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00), to be paid in such amounts, either in part or whole and under such regulations as a board of officers appointed by the commander-in-chief shall prescribe, and approved by him. There shall be allowed annually to each regimental hospital detachment for armory rent, fuel, lights and like necessary expenses, the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary to be paid under such regulations as the commander-in-chief may prescribe, provided that said sum shall be paid only when a majority of the detachment is located at one station under the command of a medical officer, who shall, at least twice a month, conduct drills of the detachment. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 15.]

SEC. 2204-a. Allowance for rifle ranges. The commander-in-chief may designate the location of four regimental rifle ranges, and the expenditure of the sum of two thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby allowed for the acquisition and construction thereof, such sums to be expended under the direction of such officer or board of officers as the commander-in-chief may direct, and the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be allowed annually for expenditure in like manner for the rental and maintenance of each of said ranges, and the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) annually, for each, company, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be allowed upon such conditions as the commander-in-chief may prescribe for the procurement, construction and maintenance of company rifle ranges. These payments to be made when sufficient funds are available beyond other requirements of this chapter. [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 13.]

SEC. 2211. Repeal—compensation of adjutant general and assistants. That section twenty-two hundred and eleven (2211) of the code, be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The adjutant general shall receive an annual salary of two thousand dollars in times of peace; the assistant adjutant general shall receive an annual salary of one thousand five hundred dollars, and there shall be appointed a record clerk in the adjutant general's office, who shall have charge of the war records under direction of the adjutant general, who shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum, and such assistants shall be employed in the adjutant general's and quartermaster general's department as shall, in the opinion of the commander-in-chief be actually necessary, and any person so employed shall receive for the time actually and necessarily on duty such compensation as the commander-in-chief may prescribe. [28 G. A., ch. 72, § 7.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 16.]

SEC. 2212. Repeal—compensation of officers and men. The law as it appears in section twenty-two hundred and twelve (2212) of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and re-enacted to read as follows:

The military force, when in active service of the state upon the call of the governor or sheriff of any county, and the guard when paraded for drill, encampment, target practice, school of instruction, or other duty under orders of the commander-in-chief, shall be paid the following compensation for time actually on duty; each commissioned officer shall receive the pay of his rank in the United States army, at the time of such service, without allowances, increase or additions on account of length of service, and without subsistence, forage or any allowances other than transportation, quarters and stationery. Enlisted men shall be furnished transportation, subsistence and quarters, and in addition thereto shall receive the following per diem: Chief musician, three dollars ($3.00); principal musician, drum major, first class sergeant, regimental sergeant major, commissary sergeant, quartermaster sergeant, color sergeant, first sergeant two dollars ($2.00); battalion sergeant major, company quartermaster sergeant, sergeant and cook one dollar and seventy-five cents ($1.75); corporal, farrier, saddler, blacksmith, one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50); private one dollar and twenty-five cents ($1.25). Enlisted men who have served continuously for three years and not more than five years, shall receive an added amount of fifteen per cent of the above per diem, and those who have served continuously five years or more, an added amount of twenty-five per cent of the above per diem. When in actual service of the state, pursuant to the order of the governor, the compensation of the military force shall be paid out of the state treasury, and when such service is rendered upon the call of the sheriff of a county, such compensation shall be paid from the treasury of the county whose sheriff called for such military force. The claims for such services shall be audited and allowed in the former case by the executive council and in the latter by the board of supervisors, upon presentment of proper claim therefor, at its next session. Should any part of the compensation above provided be paid from the United States, there shall be paid from the state or county treasury only that part thereof not paid by the United States. When on duty on rifle practice, range competition, or schools of instruction, officers shall receive such compensation or allowances as the commander-in-chief shall designate in orders with reference thereto. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 11.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 17.]

SEC. 2213. Repeal—allowance for company drill—band practice—hospital corps drill. That section twelve (12) of chapter seventy-seven (77) of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

There shall be allowed annually to each company for miscellaneous military uses not otherwise provided for by the state, not to exceed the sum of five hundred dollars ($500), the same to be paid semi-annually; companies showing full attendance and actual drill of those present of two hours each week shall be entitled to the full sum of five hundred dollars ($500), and companies showing lesser attendance at drill shall be paid proportionately, provided that when a company's attendance at drill falls below fifty per cent., it shall be deemed inefficient and forfeit its right to any allowance under this section. And for like purposes and under like requirements to each regimental band the sum of two hundred fifty dollars ($250), and to each regimental hospital corps under like requirements, the sum of one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125). The same to be paid under such regulations as the commander-in-chief shall prescribe. [32 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.]

SEC. 2213-a. Warrants—how drawn. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of section one of this act the auditor of state is hereby authorized to draw warrants upon the state treasurer upon the certificate of the adjutant general approved by the governor. [28 G. A., ch. 73, § 2.]

SEC. 2214. Repeal—appropriation. The law as it appears in section twenty-two hundred and fourteen (2214) of the supplement to the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

There is appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) per annum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the support of the guard under the provisions of this chapter not applying to active service, which shall be drawn by a warrant, drawn by the auditor of state on the state treasurer, upon the certificates of the adjutant general approved by the governor, showing for what purpose each draft is to be or has been used, and no indebtedness shall be created in excess of such annual appropriation. [30 G. A., ch. 77, § 13.] [31 G. A., ch. 91, § 18.] [32 G. A., ch. 117, § 3.]

SEC. 2214-a. Stoppage of compensation. Compensation, subject to payment by the state of Iowa, to the officers and enlisted men of the Iowa National Guard for military services shall be subject to stoppage for payment of loss or damage to public property issued them for military uses. [32 G. A., ch. 117, § 4.]

CHAPTER 1-A.

OF THE NAVAL MILITIA.

SECTION 2215-a. Naval militia. At the discretion of the governor as commander-in-chief, there may be organized a naval force and be designated as "naval militia" and shall consist of one ship's crew and commissioned officers therefor, and prescribe regulations governing the said naval militia. [29 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

SEC. 2215-b. Officers. The ship's crew shall be commanded by an officer with the rank of commander, one lieutenant commander, who shall be the executive officer, one lieutenant who shall be the navigation and ordnance officer, one ensign who shall be the aide to the commander, one surgeon with the rank of lieutenant, one engineer with the rank of lieutenant, one assistant engineer with rank of lieutenant junior grade. There shall be allowed to such ship's crew such number of petty officers as the commander-in-chief shall order and direct. Two buglers and not less than forty, nor more than sixty-four petty officers and men. [29 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.]

SEC. 2215-c. Organization—discipline and exercise. The organization of the naval force shall conform as nearly as practicable to the provisions of the laws of the United States, and the system of discipline and exercise shall conform as nearly as may be to that of the navy of the United States. The governor shall have the power to alter, annex, consolidate and disband the same whenever in his judgment it is for the good of the service. [29 G. A., ch. 90, § 3.]

SEC. 2215-d. Uniform. The uniform of the naval militia shall conform to the regulations in force for the navy of the United States. [29 G. A., ch. 90, § 4.]

SEC. 2215-e. Election and appointment of officers. The commissioned officers of the naval militia shall be elected by the officers and men of the ship's crew, under such regulations as the commander-in-chief may prescribe and the ensigns and petty officers shall be appointed by the commander of the naval militia. The time and place of holding elections for officers shall be the same as prescribed for elections in the Iowa National Guard. Provided, the naval militia can be organized and equipped without expense to the state of Iowa, or to the appropriation for the maintenance of the Iowa National Guard, or the appropriation made by the general government to aid the national guard of the several states. [29 G. A., ch. 90, § 5.]

TITLE XII.

OF THE POLICE OF THE STATE.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SETTLEMENT AND SUPPORT OF THE POOR.

SECTION 2216. Who liable to maintain.

The obligation to support children being under these sections primarily upon their father and mother, and secondarily upon their grandfather, in the absence of inability of nearer relatives, held that the grandfather was not bound for their support, although the evidence showed that their father had abandoned his wife and had no property subject to execution, where there was no showing that he was absent or unable to provide for his children. Johnson County v. Stratton, 111-421.

Liability of a grandparent for support of children can be predicated only on proof that the parent is unable, because of physical or mental disability, to earn a living by labor. The inability of such parent to earn sufficient support for himself and children, not due to physical or mental disability, is no ground for throwing the liability for their support upon the grandparent. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129-53.

SEC. 2217. Same.

The grandparent is not liable for the support of his grandchildren where it appears that the parents are capable of furnishing such support. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129-53.

The fact that the father of such children has secured a divorce from their mother, the daughter of the grandparent who is sought to be charged with such support, and has subsequently remarried and become encumbered with another family, is no reason why the support of his children should be thrown upon the grandparent. Ibid.

SEC. 2234. Application for relief—action of supervisors.

If the board of supervisors has in fact employed a competent and efficient physician to care for the poor, the township trustees are not authorized to employ another simply because they believe the county physician is inattentive, neglectful or incompetent. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106-16.

A certificate from the township trustees attached to the account of a physician presented to the board of supervisors is properly admissible in evidence. Ibid.

Where a physician is employed by the board of health to attend upon a person infected with contagious disease he is entitled to compensation from the county if the infected person is a poor person, notwithstanding the employment by the county of another physician to attend generally upon the poor. Ibid.

Where it appeared that the board of supervisors had employed a physician but the case in question was not one which would come within his care under his contract of employment, held that the claim of another physician for services rendered in such case was properly allowed. Taylor v. Woodbury County, 106-502.

SEC. 2235. Payment of claims.

The physician may claim for services performed by another physician under his direction. Taylor v. Woodbury County, 106-502.

Even though the services for which claim is made was originally rendered without proper legal sanction, yet the giving of the certificate contemplated in this section cures any such defect in the claim. Ibid.

SEC. 2244. Admission to poor house—labor.

Although persons admitted to the poor house may be required to perform such labor as may be suited to their age and strength, the proceeds of which are to be appropriated to the use of the poor house, nevertheless the board of supervisors may make a contract with reference to the labor of an insane inmate by which his services are to be accepted in full payment for his board and lodging, and his estate relieved from liability therefor. Marshall County v. Lippincott, 111 N. W. 801.

SEC. 2250. Illegitimates.

The putative father of an illegitimate child being chargeable for its support, the child may recover civil damages for injuries resulting from sale of intoxicating liquors to the father. Goulding v. Phillips, 124-496.

SEC. 2252. "Poor person" defined.

The provisions as to the support of poor persons are to be construed as contemplating only those who having no property are unable because of physical or mental disability to earn a living by labor. Monroe County v. Abegglen, 129-53.

CHAPTER 2.

OF THE CARE OF THE INSANE.

SECTION 2253-a. Repeal—state hospitals—names. That section two thousand two hundred fifty-three (2253) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The hospital for the insane at Mount Pleasant shall be known by the name of "Mount Pleasant State Hospital"; the one at Independence, "Independence State Hospital"; the one at Clarinda, "Clarinda State Hospital"; and the one at Cherokee, "Cherokee State Hospital." [29 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2266. Finding of commissioners—warrant—confinement.

The board of insane commissioners is not required to make a finding upon the question of legal residence of a person found to be insane. Brown v. Lambé, 119-404.

SEC. 2267. Appeal from finding. Any person found to be insan in proceedings herein authorized may appeal from such finding to the district court by giving the clerk thereof, within ten days after such finding has been made, notice in writing that an appeal is taken, which may be signed by the party, his agent, guardian or attorney, and, when thus appealed, it shall stand for trial anew. Upon appeal it shall be the duty of the county attorney to prosecute the action on behalf of the informant without additional compensation. [18 G. A., ch. 152, §§ 1, 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 2270. Settlement in another county. If the commissioners find that the person committed to the hospital has or probably has a legal settlement in some other county, they shall, after the time allowed for an appeal, or, in case an appeal is taken, after the same is finally disposed of, immediately notify the auditor of such county of such finding and commitment, and the auditor so notified shall thereupon inquire and ascertain if possible whether the person in question has a legal settlement in that county, and shall immediately notify the superintendent of the hospital and the commissioners of the county from which such person was committed of the result of such inquiry. If the legal settlement of a person committed cannot for a time be ascertained, and is afterwards found, the notices required shall then be given. If in either of the above cases the auditor of the county in which it is alleged that the patient has a legal settlement shall find adversely to the decision of the commissioners of the county from which the patient was committed, and said commissioners are unwilling to accept his findings, they shall, through the auditor of their county, forthwith apply to the district court through proper legal proceedings for a determination of the case. Any county whose officials shall fail either in cases now in dispute or disputes which may hereafter arise to apply to the district court as herein provided, within six months from the date of the receipt of notice from the auditor of the county in which it is claimed the patient has a legal settlement shall be liable for the maintenance of said patient. If, upon hearing, the court shall find that the patient has no legal settlement in either of the counties in dispute, the board of control shall at once be notified by the auditor of the county from which the patient was committed, in accordance with the provisions of section one (1) chapter ninety-two (92) acts of the thirty-first general assembly and the proceedings thereafter with reference to said patient shall be as provided in said section. The residence of any person found insane who is an inmate of any state institution shall be that existing at the time of admission therein. [24 G. A., ch. 24, § 2; C., '73, § 1402.] [32 G. A., ch. 118.]

SEC. 2279. Insane prisoners—inquiry—confinement.

The commissioners of insanity have no authority to inquire as to the sanity of a prisoner under arrest on indictment, and the provisions of this section are in this respect invalid. The court should proceed under the provisions of Code § 5540. Stone v. Conrad, 105-21.

SEC. 2283. At expense of state. Patients in a hospital having no legal settlement in the state, or whose legal settlement cannot be ascertained, shall be supported at the expense of the state. The trustees of any asylum may authorize the superintendent to remove any patient who has no legal settlement within the state. The cost of such removal to be paid directly from the state treasury, upon a sworn statement of the superintendent and the approval of the trustees appended to each voucher. [21 G. A., ch. 47; C., '73, § 1419.] [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 3.]

SEC. 2287. Repeal—escape—expenses of capture and return. That section two thousand two hundred and eighty-seven (2287) of the code and chapter 79 of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly amendatory thereof are hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

“If any patient shall escape from a state hospital for the insane the superintendent shall cause immediate search to be made for him and if he cannot be found, shall cause notice of such escape to be given forthwith to the clerk of the district court of the county where he belongs and if found to be in that county the clerk shall at once notify the superintendent of the place where the patient can be found, and when so notified or when otherwise informed of the place in which the patient may be taken the superintendent shall send an employe of the hospital or other person for him and cause him to be returned to the hospital unless for good reasons a different course be deemed advisable by the superintendent, and is approved by the board of control. In case of apparent necessity the patient may be taken into custody and restrained by the local authorities until he is taken by the representative of the hospital. All actual and necessary expenses incurred in the capture, restraint and return to the hospital of the patient shall be paid on itemized vouchers sworn to by the claimants and approved by the superintendent and the board of control of state institutions from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated." [31 G. A., ch. 93.]

SEC. 2291-a. Repeal—amount allowed for care of patients. That section twenty-two hundred and ninety-one (2291) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

SEC. 2291-b. Repeal—amount allowed for care of patients. That chapter fifty-four of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

Section 2291. The board of control of state institutions of Iowa may from time to time fix the monthly sum for the board and care of each patient in the hospitals for the insane, which sum for the hospitals at Clarinda, Independence and Mount Pleasant shall not exceed twelve dollars, and for the hospital at Cherokee shall not exceed fifteen dollars. Said sum shall be placed to the credit of the hospital entitled thereto upon certificate of the board of control of state institutions, based upon reports of the superintendent, and paid from the state treasury, as provided by chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and acts amendatory thereof, and the certificate of the board shall be competent evidence of the amount due for the time therein stated. The amount credited a hospital for any month shall be based on the average number of patients in the hospital for the preceding month. When the average number of patients in the hospital at Cherokee shall be more than six hundred, the monthly sum shall not exceed fourteen dollars, and when such number shall be more than seven hundred fifty patients the monthly sum such shall not exceed thirteen dollars, and when such number shall be more than nine hundred patients the monthly sum shall not exceed twelve dollars. Provided, however, that so much of the monthly sum as exceeds twelve dollars shall be paid by the state from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated and shall not be charged to any county or person. [29 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

SEC. 2291-c. Repeal—support for Cherokee state hospital. Section 2 of chapter one hundred forty (140) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

That in order to maintain the hospital for the insane at Cherokee and provide for the patients therein during the first month of its occupancy, the superintendent is authorized to estimate before the opening of the hospital for the support of five hundred fifty patients for such first month, and the sum of eight thousand two hundred fifty dollars is hereby appropriated for that purpose. [29 G. A., ch. 157, § 2.]

SEC. 2291-d. Appropriation for transferring patients. The sum of six thousand dollars, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated to pay the expenses of transferring patients in hospitals for the insane to other hospitals, made advisable by the opening of the hospital at Cherokee. The money required for the purpose stated shall be drawn by and on the estimate of the superintendents of the several hospitals, approved by the board of control of state institutions, and may be so drawn before the expenses are incurred or vouchers therefor are filed. Any unexpended balance of money so drawn shall be returned to the state treasury. An itemized statement of the money so drawn and of the expenses so incurred and paid and of the balance, if any, returned to the state treasury shall be made by the board of control and filed in the office of the auditor of state. [29 G. A., ch. 157, § 3.]

SEC. 2292. Repeal—charged to the county—how certified and paid. Section twenty-two hundred and ninety-two (2292) of the code relating to the expense of the insane, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The superintendents of the hospital for the insane and hospital for inebriates shall certify to the auditor of state on the first days of January, April, July and October, the amount not previously certified by him due the state from the several counties having patients chargeable thereto, and the auditor of state shall thereupon charge the same to the county so owing and the board of supervisors shall at the time of levying other taxes estimate the amount necessary to meet this expense the coming year including cost of commitment and transportation of patients and shall levy a tax therefor. Taxes thus levied and collected, cannot be used for any other purpose or transferred to any other fund. Should any county fail to levy a tax sufficient to meet this expense the deficiency shall be paid from the general county fund. Should any county fail to pay these bills within sixty days from the date of certificate from the superintendent, the auditor of state shall charge the delinquent county the penalty of one per cent. per month on and after sixty days from date of certificate until paid. The superintendent shall at the time of mailing certificate to the auditor of state, send a duplicate copy to the auditor of each county having a patient chargeable thereto, and the county auditor upon receipt of such certificate, shall thereupon pass the same to the credit of the state in his ledger of state accounts, and at once issue a notice to his county treasurer, authorizing him to transfer the amount from the insane or county fund, to the general state revenue, which notice shall be filed by the treasurer as his authority for making such transfer, and shall include the amount so transferred in his next remittance of state taxes to the treasurer of state, designating the fund to which it belongs.” [31 G. A., ch. 94.]

SEC. 2297. Estates of patients liable.

The wife does not become liable to the county for the support of her husband as a patient in the insane hospital. Blackhawk County v. Scott, 111-190.

The state has no common law right of recovery against the estate of one who has received the benefits of treatment as an insane person in the hospitals of the state, and there is no statutory provision creating a liability which may be enforced by the state against the patient or his property. State v. Colligan, 128-536.

The estate of an insane person cannot be taxed with the costs of the hearing on the question of insanity and commitment under such hearing. In re Estate of Westlake, 125-314.

In defense to an action to recover from the estate of an insane person the expense of maintaining him by the county, it may be shown that under an agreement with the board of supervisors he rendered services on the poor farm for an agreed compensation in full payment for his board and lodging. Marshall County v. Lippincott, 111 N. W. 801.

A father is liable to the county for the care and support of his minor son at the hospital for the insane. The statutory provision does not impose a tax nor is it open to objection that it authorizes the taking of private property without just compensation. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133-171.

The question of the insanity of the person for whose support recovery is sought against his parent may be litigated in the action. Ibid.

The fact that the insane person is placed in the hospital without the consent of those liable for his support will not relieve them from the statutory liability. Ibid.

SEC. 2308. County insane fund. The board of supervisors, when levying taxes for general purposes, shall include therein a tax of one and one-half mill or less, as may be necessary, for the purpose of raising a fund for the support of such insane persons as are cared for and supported by the county in the insane ward of the county poor-house, or elsewhere outside of any state hospital for the insane, which shall be known as the county insane fund, and shall be used for no other purpose than the support of such insane persons. [27 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.]

SEC. 2308-a. Costs and expenses—how paid. That in all cases where the commissioners of insanity of a county find to be insane a person who does not have a legal settlement within that county, the costs and expenses of the arrest, care, investigation and commitment of such person authorized by law, including the costs of appeal if an appeal be taken and the person is found to be insane on appeal, shall be paid in the first instance by the county in which such person is so found to be insane. If such person is found to have a legal settlement in another county of this state, such costs and expenses shall be audited and paid by the supervisors of that county in the manner provided for the payment of other claims. If such person be found to have no legal settlement within this state, such costs and expenses shall be paid out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, on vouchers executed by the auditor of the county which has paid them and approved by the board of control of state institutions. Such vouchers shall contain an itemized statement of the costs and expenses, and payment shall be made to the treasurer of the county. [30 G. A., ch. 78.]

CHAPTER 2-A.

OF THE DETENTION AND TREATMENT OF DIPSOMANIACS, INEBRIATES AND THOSE ADDICTED TO THE EXCESSIVE USE OF NARCOTICS.

SECTION 2310-a1. Board of control to provide department. That the board of control is hereby directed to provide for the detention and treatment of dipsomaniacs, inebriates and persons addicted to the excessive use of morphine or other narcotics, in one or more of the hospitals for the insane at the discretion of said board. Said department thus provided for to be designated as a hospital for inebriates. [29 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.]

SEC. 2310-a2. Examination—commitment. That all dipsomaniacs, inebriates and persons addicted to the excessive use of morphine or other narcotics, who shall be citizens of the state of Iowa and residents of the county from which they might be committed to the hospital for inebriates may be brought before the district court or judge of the county where they reside for examination and commitment to said hospital for inebriates. Their examination, trial and commitment shall be governed by the same statutes as now apply to and govern the examination and commitment of incorrigibles to the state industrial school. If it shall be determined by said district court or judge, that such person is addicted to dipsomania, inebriety or to the excessive use of narcotics, he or she shall be committed to such hospital for inebriates, as may be established by the board of control as above provided for. The term of detention and treatment shall be, for the first commitment not less than one, nor more than three years; and for the second commitment not less than two nor more than five years. The governor shall parole a patient on conditions named in the following section. [29 G. A., ch. 93, § 2.]

SEC. 2310-a3. Conditions of parole. If after thirty days of such treatment and detention a patient shall appear to be cured, and if the physician in charge and the superintendent of said institution shall so recommend, the governor shall parole said patient, provided that said patient shall pledge himself or herself to refrain from the use of all intoxicating liquors as a beverage, or other narcotics, during the remaining part of his or her term of commitment and shall avoid the frequenting of places and the association of people tending to lead them back to their old habits of inebriety.

And shall send the following report on the first day of every month during term of parole to the governor, which report must be inquired into and approved as correct by the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the patient resides, and said patient shall furnish the clerk of the district court with satisfactory evidence of his sobriety and good habits.

Report of.....to superintendent of hospital for inebriates at.....Iowa.

I,.....being on parole from the hospital for inebriates at.....Iowa, do hereby certify that I have up to this date, being the first day of.....190.., refrained from the use of all intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and all narcotics of any kind whatsoever, except it be a moderate use of tobacco.

I have carefully inquired into the record of.....as named above and do hereby certify that I believe the statements contained in his above report are true.

.....

Clerk district court of Iowa in and for.....county, Iowa.

Dated this.....day of....., 190..

And if at any time the patient on parole, for any reason fails to make the above report, the sheriff of the county wherein such patient resides shall without further writ or warrant, return said patient at once to the hospital from which he or she has been paroled on receiving notice of such failure from the clerk of the district court of the county wherein the patient resides, or any three reputable citizens thereof. And the patient so returned shall be detained and treated during the full term of his commitment. [29 G. A., ch. 93, § 3.]

SEC. 2310-a4. What statutes apply. That all statutes of the state providing for the trial, commitment, detention and treatment of incorrigibles sent to industrial schools shall be applicable to trial, detention and treatment of all patients committed under the provisions for this act, except in so far as they may be modified by the provisions of this act. [29 G. A., ch. 93, § 4.]

SEC. 2310-a5. Expenses—how paid. That the expense of trial, commitment and treatment of such persons so committed under the provisions of this act shall be borne and paid in the same manner and out of the same fund as the expenses of insane patients are borne and paid, and the estates of such patients shall be liable therefor to the same extent as in the case of insane persons. [29 G. A., ch. 93, § 5.]

SEC. 2310-a6. State hospital for inebriates. The industrial home for the adult blind at Knoxville shall hereafter be called the state hospital for inebriates, and shall be used for the detention, care, and treatment of all male dipsomaniacs, inebriates, and persons addicted to the excessive use of morphine, cocaine, or other narcotic drugs. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.]

SEC. 2310-a7. Officers and employes. The officers and employes of said hospital shall consist of a superintendent, who shall be a reputable physician, and such other officers and employes as the board of control of state institutions shall deem necessary for the proper operation of said institution. Said superintendent shall be appointed by the board of control of state institutions for the term of four years and shall receive such salary as said board may fix, not exceeding two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) per annum. [32 G. A., ch. 80, § 2.]

SEC. 2310-a8. Control. The board of control of state institutions shall have the same power and control over said hospital as is now given it with reference to the several institutions mentioned in chapter one hundred and eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and all amendments thereto, and said act and amendments shall apply to and govern said hospital in every respect in so far as they are not in conflict with the provisions of this act. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 3.]

SEC. 2310-a9. Notice of opening of hospital. When said hospital buildings are erected, refitted, equipped, furnished, and ready for occupancy, said board of control shall mail written notice to every judge of the district court and to every clerk of the district court in the state, notifying them that said hospital is open for the reception of patients. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 4.]

SEC. 2310-a10. Male patients. Said hospital shall receive all male patients regularly committed to it who are dipsomaniacs, inebriates, or who are addicted to the excessive use of morphine, cocaine, or other narcotic drugs. Provided, however, that whenever in the opinion of the board of control of state institutions it shall be necessary to restrict the number of admission for lack of room, said board may notify by mail each district judge and each clerk of the district court in the state of the fact, and that patients will not be admitted except on application approved by the superintendent, and after such notice is given it shall not be lawful for the clerk of any court to issue a warrant for the commitment of any patient to said hospital unless such clerk has been notified by the superintendent in writing that the patient can be received, and until such notice from the superintendent is received the order of commitment shall be suspended. The superintendent shall in such cases grant applications for admission in the order in which they are received. When the board of control is of the opinion that the necessity for such restriction has ceased to exist it may discontinue it and give notice thereof as was required to establish it, and when such notice is given the restriction shall cease. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 95.]

SEC. 2310-a11. Application for commitment. Applications for commitment to said hospital shall be made to the judge of the district court of the district which embraces the county in which the person whom it is proposed to commit resides, and said application may be made in person by any dipsomaniac, inebriate, or user to excess of morphine, cocaine, or other narcotic drug, or it may be made against any such person by his wife, or other relative, or by his guardian or by any other person, such person having first obtained the consent of the district judge for so doing. [30 G. A., ch 80, § 6.]

SEC. 2310-a12. Examination—commitment. On presentation of the application provided for in section six (6) hereof, unless made in person by an inebriate, dipsomaniac, or user to excess of narcotic drugs, the judge shall issue an order, which may be served by any peace officer, directing him to bring the accused person before him for examination, and on his appearance, unless he demands a formal trial, the judge shall hear any evidence which may be adduced touching the accusation. The accused may be represented by counsel and the judge may, if he deems it necessary, require the county attorney of the county where the hearing is had to attend and assist in such hearing. In case said application be voluntarily or involuntarily made and the said judge shall determine that the accused is a proper person to be committed to said hospital, he shall make an order committing him thereto; otherwise he shall be discharged. The term of detention and treatment shall be until the patient is cured and not exceeding three years. Provided that before a person shall be committed to a state hospital for inebriates satisfactory evidence shall be submitted to the trial court or judge showing that the person committed is not of bad repute or of bad character apart from his or her habit for which the commitment is made and that there is reasonable ground for believing that the person if committed will be cured of such habit, and provided further, that the board of control of state institutions may discharge any person committed to a state hospital under the provisions of this act on the recommendation of the superintendent when satisfied that such person will not receive substantial benefit from further hospital treatment. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 7.] [32 G. A., ch. 119.]

SEC. 2310-a13. Formal trial. If the accused shall not voluntarily apply for commitment and shall prior to the beginning of the hearing before the judge, demand a formal trial, the judge shall continue the hearing to the next term of the district court, or if the court shall be in session the case shall be transferred to it, and in either case the cause shall be docketed and tried as a civil case, and all papers used before the judge shall be filed with the clerk of the court; pending such hearing the judge may make such order in relation to the custody, restraint or control of the accused as he shall deem necessary. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 8.]

SEC. 2310-a14. Warrant of commitment. If on a formal trial the accusation is proven the judge of the court shall impose sentence of detention, as provided in section seven (7) hereof, and the clerk of the court shall issue a warrant of commitment in accordance therewith to said hospital. If the truth of the charge is not established he shall be discharged. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 9.]

SEC. 2310-a15. Costs and expenses. All costs and expenses incurred in the arrest of the accused and other costs incurred in any hearing before the judge, and all costs and expenses of trial, and the costs and expenses incurred in taking the accused to the hospital, shall be taxed up on the proceeding or trial as the case may be and be made a matter of record in the proper books of the office of the clerk of the district court of the county where the accused resided and shall be paid by the county and may, if he be committed, be recovered by it of the accused. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 10.]

SEC. 2310-a16. Per capita allowance. The board of control of state institutions shall fix the per capita monthly allowance which may be charged by said hospital for the care, treatment, and maintenance of each patient therein, which shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars ($20.00) per capita per month, which shall be certified by the superintendent of [to] said board and paid out as provided in chapter one hundred and eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly applicable to state hospitals for the insane. Provided, however, that so much of the monthly sum as exceeds fifteen dollars ($15) shall be paid by the state from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated and shall not be charged to any county or person. Provided, that until the average number of patients in said hospital shall exceed two hundred per month, it shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with not to exceed the sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) per month, which may be drawn as above provided. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 11.]

SEC. 2310-a17. Rules and regulations—blanks. The superintendent of said hospital, subject to the approval of the board of control, shall prepare rules and regulations for the government of said hospital and its inmates, and said board of control shall cause to be prepared a blank form of warrant or order of commitment which shall contain such printed questions as may tend to bring out the previous history, condition and treatment of the accused, which blanks shall be furnished to the district judges and to the clerks of the district court. The judge when he investigates the charge and the clerk of the court when the case is tried, shall, so far as they are able, fill out said blanks. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 12.]

SEC. 2310-a18. Patients to labor—treatment. Patients received at said hospital shall be required to labor if in the opinion of the superintendent it is for their physical and mental welfare, and the method of treatment shall be that which is deemed best to eliminate the effects of the alcohol or narcotic drug and to build up the system physically and mentally and which will tend to strengthen the moral character of the patient and enable him to resist the temptation to drink or use narcotic drugs. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 13.]

SEC. 2310-a19. Conditions of parole. Any patient whom the superintendent believes to be cured may be paroled, conditioned on said patient's signing a written pledge agreeing to refrain from the use of all intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and from the use of morphine and cocaine or other narcotic drugs during the term of his commitment and shall avoid frequenting places and the association of people tending to lead him back to his old habits of inebriety. And said paroled patient must make written reports to the superintendent of said hospital at the beginning of each month on blanks to be furnished the clerk of the district court for that purpose, to the effect that he has not during the month past in any respect violated any of the terms and conditions of his parole, which reports must be investigated and approved by the clerk of the district court of the county in which the patient resides, who may demand from said paroled patient satisfactory evidence as to the truth of the statement. If, at any time, a patient on parole shall fail to make said report, or shall fail in any respect to fulfill all of the conditions upon which said parole was granted, he may without any further proceeding whatever and on the written order of the superintendent of said hospital be taken and returned to the hospital, there to be detained and treated as provided herein. Said patient so violating his parole may be returned by any peace officer, or by any officer or person whom the superintendent of the hospital may direct so to do, and in every such case all of the expenses of such taking and return of such patient shall be paid by said hospital and shall be certified by the superintendent thereof to the auditor of state and the amount thereof shall be by him and by the treasurer of state credited to the support fund of said hospital and shall be drawn by said hospital as other funds are drawn. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 14.]

SEC. 2310-a20. Misdemeanor. Any patient in said hospital who shall without due authority leave the hospital, including its grounds and any other place to which he may be permitted to go, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction be punishable by imprisonment in the county jail not less than thirty nor more than ninety days, and the district court of the county in which the institution is situated as well as the district court of any county in which the patient may be found shall have jurisdiction in such cases. The board of supervisors of the county in which such prosecution is had shall certify to the board of control of state institutions an itemized statement of the costs of prosecution and maintenance incurred by the county wherein such prosecution is had, which certificate shall be indorsed by the trial judge stating that the amount, as shown by said certificate is correct. On receipt of such certificate, the said board of control shall order a warrant issued in favor of the treasurer of the county wherein such prosecution is had, for the amount of the costs and expenses so incurred, which shall be payable out of the support or contingent fund of said hospital for inebriates. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 15.] [31 G. A., ch. 96.]

SEC. 2310-a21. Refusal to work. Any patient in said hospital who, shall be required to work as hereinbefore provided, and who shall refuse so to do, or who shall violate any of the rules and regulations of the hospital, shall be subject to punishment therefor and shall not be paroled. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 16.]

SEC. 2310-a22. Commitment of females. Females who are dipsomaniacs, inebriates, or addicted to the excessive use of morphine, cocaine, or other narcotic drugs, may be committed to a state hospital for the insane to be designated by the board of control, for treatment, and all the provisions of this act, so far as applicable and except as modified by this section, shall apply in such cases and also to the cases of such females as may remain in the hospital for inebriates connected with any state hospital. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 17.]

SEC. 2310-a23. Transfer of patients—appropriation. When the hospital for inebriates is open for the reception of patients the board of control shall cause to be transferred to it all male persons then in the inebriate hospitals connected with the insane hospitals of the state, and for the purpose of covering the expense of said transfer there is hereby appropriated the sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary, out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise disposed of. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 18.]

SEC. 2310-a24. Penalties. Any person who shall furnish any patient of said hospital for inebriates, or any patient who has been or may hereafter be committed to any insane hospital as an inebriate, dipsomaniac, or as one addicted to the excessive use of narcotics, any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug, except on the written prescription of the superintendent, shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine, not less than five hundred dollars ($500.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) at the discretion of the court. Any person who shall knowingly furnish any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug to one who has been discharged from either of said institutions as cured, except upon the written prescription of a reputable practicing physician, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars ($300.00) and not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and stand committed to the county jail until such fine is paid. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 19.]

SEC. 2310-a25. Per capita support for first month. For the purpose of the maintenance of said hospital for inebriates during the first month of its operation the superintendent thereof may estimate in advance of said opening and on the basis of a population of three hundred inmates at twenty dollars ($20.00) per capita per month for the necessary supplies to operate the hospital for the first month, and the aggregate of said per capita shall be credited to said institution by the auditor of state and treasurer of state and may be drawn against as provided in chapter 118 of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 20.]

SEC. 2310-a26. Additional land and buildings—appropriation. To carry out the purposes of this act and provide for the purchase of the necessary land, and to erect proper additional buildings and out-buildings, and to refit the present buildings, and to equip and furnish the same, and to purchase all necessary animals, tools, implements, and other needed articles, there is hereby appropriated the sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars ($125,000.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary, out of any funds available therefor, and on the passage and publication of this act the board of control shall proceed to purchase land, and erect, refit, equip and furnish said buildings as are herein provided for. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 21.]

SEC. 2310-a27. Repeal—acts in conflict. Section three thousand two hundred twenty-one (3221) of the code and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall in any way interfere with the execution of any commitment heretofore made under chapter ninety-three (93) of the acts of the twenty-ninth general assembly; and provided, further, that commitments may continue to be made under such act up to the time the hospitals for inebriates provided for herein shall be formally declared ready for the reception of patients. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 22.]

SEC. 2310-a28. Insane patients—expenses. Whenever any person committed to and received in the hospital for inebriates shall become insane, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to file, or cause to be filed, with the commissioners of insanity of Marion county, Iowa, an information charging the said patient with insanity and the said insane commission shall proceed to inquire into the sanity of said patient as provided in title XII, chapter two (2) of the code. In the event that said person shall be judged insane, he shall be transferred to the hospital for the insane, where he shall be detained until such time as that he shall be discharged by the superintendent of the insane hospital, when he shall be returned to the hospital for inebriates, where he shall remain under the terms of the original commitment. All the expense incident to the commitment of said patient to the state hospital for the insane, including the expense of the hearing before the commissioners of insanity of Marion county, and the expense of returning said patient to the hospital for inebriates, shall in the first instance be paid by said hospital for inebriates, and an itemized statement thereof shall be certified by said superintendent to the auditor of state, and said auditor of state and treasurer of state shall credit said hospital with the amount of said expense, which may be drawn by said hospital in the same manner as other funds to its credit in the treasury of the state are drawn, and the auditor of state is authorized to collect said sum from the county where the patient has his legal residence. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 23.]

SEC. 2310-a29. Physical condition of patients. Whenever the physical condition of any patient shall become such that, in the judgment of the superintendent, further confinement will prove injurious to the health of said patient, the state board of control may parole him, under proper conditions and restrictions, for such period of time as it may deem advisable. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 24.]

SEC. 2310-a30. Escape—expenses. In case of the escape of any patient from the hospital, all necessary expense incurred in the recapture and recommitment of such patient, shall be paid by the state. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 25.]

SEC. 2310-a31. Subject to prosecution. Whenever any person shall have been committed to the state hospital for inebriates under the provisions of this act, he shall still be subject to prosecution for any public offense committed against the penal statutes of the state and he shall, at all times, be subject to arrest notwithstanding such commitment. Such person shall, when discharged be returned to said hospital at the expense of the county in which said prosecution was pending and concluded. [30 G. A., ch. 80, § 26.]

SEC. 2310-a32. Traveling expenses of paroled or discharged patients. That when an inebriate person is paroled or discharged from the state hospital for inebriates at Knoxville or from any state hospital in which female inebriates are kept and is unable to furnish or obtain money for the necessary traveling expenses from the hospital to the place of commitment, the superintendent of the hospital with the approval of the board of control of state institutions may furnish said patient with transportation to the place where he or she was committed or to any other point he or she may select which is not more distant from the hospital than the place of commitment. [31 G. A., ch. 97.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

SECTION 2311. Meaning of terms.

The owner of an animal within the terms of this section may be one having less than an absolute or unqualified title.

Getchell & Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson, 124-599.

SEC. 2312. Male animals running at large.

The owner of a bull, turning him loose on his own field, with knowledge or notice that the partition fence separating his field from a field of an adjoining owner is insufficient to restrain him, cannot complain that the animal is taken up by the adjoining owner as running at large. Conway v. Jordan, 110-462.

Tender of the damages cannot be made until the constable has taken possession of the animal and estimated the damages done. Ibid.

One who has been damaged by a bull which has escaped from the custody of its owner, is not limited to a proceeding by distraint; but having distrained the animal to prevent further damage, he may surrender him to the owner and recover such damages as he has suffered, in an action at law. Burleigh v. Hines, 124-199.

This statutory provision is applicable without regard to the sufficiency of partition fences through which the animal escapes from custody of the owner on to the land of another owner and there causes damage by getting with calf the blooded cows of such adjoining owner. Ibid.

The damage to be recovered in such case is the depreciation in value resulting at once on the serving by the bull of the cows thus gotten with calf and a subsequent disposal by the owner of the cows, of one or more of them, will not relieve the owner of the bull from liability for the damage to the cows thus disposed of. Ibid.

SEC. 2313. Distraint damage feasant—recovery.

Where an animal passes from the premises of the owner to the premises of an adjoining owner, through a defective fence, the latter may restrain him for damage done. Conway v. Jordan, 110-462.

By distraining a bull which the owner improperly allows to get beyond his control, such distraint being only for the purpose of preventing further damage, the person who thus distrains does not waive the right to sue for damages and elect to rely upon proceedings under the distraint. He may surrender the animal to the owner and afterwards recover in an action such damages as he has suffered. Burleigh v. Hines, 124-199.

SEC. 2314. What animals not permitted to run at large.

The damages for which animals are distrained must be assessed by the township trustees on notice given as required in Code § 2317. Holaman v. Marsh, 116-483.

Animals which have escaped from the owner's close and are under the control of no one are running at large within the statutory provision with reference to trespasses by such animals. Foster v. Bussey, 132-640.

SEC. 2316. Apportionment of damages.

Where separate trespasses are committed by the stock of different owners, the damage from each trespass are to be considered as distinct as separate, and there is no occasion to apportion the aggregate damages from such trespasses against the different owners in proportion to the number of animals belonging to each engaged in the trespass. Foster v. Bussey, 132-640.

SEC. 2317. Assessment of damages—sale.

The damages for which animals running at large may be distrained under Code § 2314, must be assessed by the township trustees on notice given to them by the person making distraint. Holaman v. Marsh, 116-483.

One who distrains trespassing animals is entitled to compensation for their keeping although by reason of defective township organization there are no trustees competent to assess the damages. Robinson v. Halley, 124-443.

SEC. 2318. Assessment made—appeal.

The fact that there were no trustees of the township wherein stock was distrained to appraise the damage, does not affect the rights of recovery thereof. The owner of the trespassing stock which is distrained by an adjoining land owner should bear the burden of the keeping of the animals, rather than an innocent party. Robinson v. Halley, 124-443.

SEC. 2340. Dogs killed. It shall be lawful for any person to kill any dog caught in the act of worrying, maiming or killing any sheep or lamb, or other domestic animal, or any dog attacking or attempting to bite any person, and the owner shall be liable to the party injured for all damages done, except when the party is doing an unlawful act. The provisions of this section shall not apply to any damage done by a dog affected with hydrophobia. [25 G. A., ch. 84; C., '73, § 1845.] [30 G. A., ch. 81.]

Prior to the amendment of this section the owner of one dog was only liable for the portion of damage done by his own dog acting in concert with others in inflicting an injury by killing stock. Anderson v. Halverson, 126-125.

The fact that a dog is harbored on the premises, title to which is in the wife, will not render the wife liable for injuries committed by such dog, the husband being presumed to be the head of the family and responsible for such injury. Burch v. Lowary, 131-719.

In an action under this section for injury inflicted by a dog, the only defense available to the dog's master is the doing of an unlawful act at the time of the attack by the person injured. Van Bergen v. Eulberg, 111-139.

The unlawful act of the person injured that will defeat liability of the owner of the dog must be one that directly contributes to the injury sustained. Beckler v. Merringer, 131-614.

Mere negligence of the party injured is not sufficient to defeat his recovery for the injury, and the burden is not on the plaintiff to show freedom from contributory negligence, but it is on the defendant to show that the plaintiff was guilty of some unlawful act. Ibid.

Permitting an animal to run at large in the public highway is not such unlawful act as will defeat the action of the owner of such animal against the owner of a dog causing injury to it. Ibid.

Where a horse is frightened in the highway by a dog, and as a consequence, after running some distance is injured by coming into collision with a barbed wire fence, the owner of the dog is liable for the injuries which are the proximate result, although there is an intervening cause contributing to the injury, if it is not the efficient cause thereof. Ibid.

Plaintiff having left his horse and buggy in defendant's livery stable went to the buggy at a seasonable hour and in a proper manner to get some article therefrom and was bitten by defendant's dog. Held, that plaintiff not being a trespasser was entitled to recover, whether defendant's employes knew of his presence at the place or not. Shultz v. Griffith, 103-150.

Negligence by the injured party, whether of omission or commission, does not exempt the owner of a dog from liability for injuries committed by such dog unless the negligence amounts to an unlawful act. Ibid.

Persons who have possession of and harbor dogs are liable therefor as owners under the statutory provision making owners liable for injuries committed by dogs except when the party injured is doing unlawful acts. Ibid.

While this section was evidently intended to do away with the necessity of proving scienter, still the plaintiff is not precluded from proving those facts which would have been necessary to a right of action at common law. Sanders v. O'Callaghan, 111-574.

At common law a person was not entitled to keep a vicious dog on his premises for the purpose of keeping off trespassers, provided they came there in the day time and on some innocent mission. Ibid.

In an action for damages on account of injuries received from a vicious dog, plaintiff must show freedom from contributory negligence. Ibid.

SEC. 2341. Repeal. That chapter ninety-eight (98) of the acts of the thirty-first general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [32 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.]

SEC. 2341-a. Registration of pedigree—fee. Any owner or keeper of any stallion kept for public service, or any owner or keeper of any stallion kept for sale, exchange, or transfer, who represents such animal to be pure bred, shall cause the same to be registered in some stud book recognized by the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., for the registration of pedigrees, and obtain a certificate of registration of such animal. He shall then forward the same to the secretary of the state board of agriculture of the state of Iowa, whose duty it shall be to examine and pass upon the correctness and genuineness of such certificate filed for enrollment. In making such examination said secretary shall use as his standard the stud books recognized by the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., and shall accept as pure bred, any animal registered in any such stud book. And if such registration is found to be correct and genuine, he shall issue a certificate under the seal of the department of agriculture, which certificate shall set forth the name, sex, age, and color of the animal, also the volume and page of the stud book in which said animal is registered. For each enrollment and certificate he shall receive the sum of one dollar, which shall accompany the certificate of registration when forwarded for enrollment. [32 G. A., ch. 20, § 2.]

SEC. 2341-b. Posting certificate of registration. Any owner or keeper of a stallion for public service who represents or holds such animal as pure bred, shall place a copy of the certificate of the state board of agriculture on the door or stall of the stable where such animal is usually kept. [32 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.]

SEC. 2341-c. Grade stallion. Any owner or keeper of a stallion kept for public service, for which a state certificate has not been issued, must advertise said horse or horses by having printed handbills, or posters, not less than five by seven inches in size, and said bills or posters must have printed thereon immediately preceding or above the name of the stallion the words "grade stallion," in type not smaller than one inch in height, said bills or posters to be posted in a conspicuous manner at all places where the stallion or stallions are kept for public service. [32 G. A., ch. 120, § 4.]

SEC. 2341-d. Transfer of certificate—fee. If the owner of any registered animal shall sell, exchange or transfer the same, and file certificate, accompanying the same with a fee of fifty cents, with the secretary of the state board of agriculture, who shall, upon receipt of the original state certificate, properly transferred, and the required fee, issue a new certificate to the then new owner of the animal. And all fees provided by this act shall go into the treasury of the department of agriculture. [32 G. A., ch. 120, § 5.]

SEC. 2341-e. Publishing false pedigrees—penalty. Any person who shall fraudulently represent any animal, horse, cattle, sheep or swine to be pure bred, or any person who shall post or publish or cause to be posted or published any false pedigree or certificate, or shall use any stallion for public service, or sell, exchange or transfer any stallion, representing such animal to be pure bred, without first having such animal registered, and obtaining the certificate of the state board of agriculture as hereinbefore provided, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days or by both such fine and imprisonment. [32 G. A., ch. 120, § 6.]

SEC. 2348. Bounties.

While the board may require other evidence than the verified statement of the claimant that the animals had been destroyed, it is not intended to invest the board with the discretion to pay or not if the essential facts are established to its satisfaction, and on the refusal of the board to pay in a proper case action may be maintained against the county. Bourrett v. Palo Alto County, 104-350.

SEC. 2348-a. Amount of bounty. There shall be paid from the general fund of the county a bounty not exceeding ten cents for each pocket gopher caught and killed within the county, provided that the person entitled to such bounty shall make, as hereinafter provided, proof of destruction of such animal within thirty days after the same was destroyed. [32 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.]

SEC. 2348-b. Proofs required. The person catching and killing any such animal shall remove and present to the officers, before whom he makes his proof, both front feet and claws of each animal for which he claims the bounty, and the person claiming the bounty shall furnish written proof, under oath, that each animal for which he claims the bounty was caught and killed within the county against which he presents the claim for bounty, and the board of supervisors may require in addition to the above any other and further proof which it deems necessary and reasonable to show that each animal for which the bounty is claimed was caught and killed within the county against which the claim is presented. [32 G. A., ch. 121, § 2.]

SEC. 2348-c. To whom presented. The claws and other proofs required may be presented to the county auditor; and the board of supervisors of each county may appoint registrars or other officers in other parts of the county to whom claws of the animal caught and other proofs of the killing may be presented. [32 G. A., ch. 121, § 3.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF FENCES.

SECTION 2355. Partition fences.

The rights and duties of adjacent owners of land with respect to partition fences is purely statutory, and as the statute prior to the enactment of the present Code recognized a hedge fence as a proper form of partition fence and did not specify the height nor required trimming, the owner maintaining such partition fence was not liable to adjoining owners for damage due to the height and untrimmed condition of such hedge Kinney v. Kinney, 104-703.

One of the adjoining owners cannot by injunction compel the other owner to take out and destroy a division hedge on the ground that it has become a nuisance, such a hedge being considered common property of the two owners. Harndon v. Stultz, 124-440.

The rule as to partition fences has no reference to the boundary which is the thread of a non-navigable stream and on which it is impracticable to erect any fence. In such case the bed of the stream must necessarily be regarded as unenclosed land, and the duty to fence devolves on neither one of the adjoining owners. Foster v. Bussey, 132-640.

The sufficiency of a partition fence is of SEC. 2356. Powers of fence viewers.

Fence viewers have no power to decide as to a disputed line, either by measurements of their own or by accepting a disputed survey of another. Boyd v. Schoop, 107-10.

But two modes of dividing partition fences are recognized by statute, one by written agreement and the other by order of fence viewers. If neither of these methods has been followed, the mere fact that a portion of the partition fence has been erected for the owner of the premises by a tenant does not give rise to liability to the adjoining owner for injuries caused by stock escaping through such defective fence. In the absence of division either of the adjoining owners has the right to build such portions of fence as he may see fit and the duty of maintaining every portion of it rests on both alike. DeMers v. Rohan, 126-488.

SEC. 2359. Service of notice. The notice by the fence viewers provided for in this chapter may be served upon any owner nonresident of the county where his land is situated, by publication thereof, once each week, for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper printed in the county in which the land is situated, proof of which shall be made as in case of an original notice and filed with the fence viewers, and a copy delivered to the occupant of said land, or to any agent of the owner in charge of the same. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 1.]

SEC. 2360. Orders—notice.

The action of the fence viewers is not illegal because their findings are put in writing in another township, provided they are duly recorded by the clerk in the proper township. Miles v. Tomlinson, 110-322.

SEC. 2361. Division recorded.

In providing for a written agreement as to partitioning the fence and specifying the circumstances under which such agreement will be binding, the intention to exclude any other form of partition by mutual act is manifest. DeMers v. Rohan, 126-488.

SEC. 2367. Lawful fence defined.

One whose close is surrounded by a lawful fence is entitled to damages against the owner of the animals which have escaped from his premises and being at large have broken through such lawful fence. DeMers v. Rohan, 126-488.

SEC. 2369. Appeal.

The correctness of the findings of the fence viewers is to be determined on appeal, and not on certiorari. Miles v. Tomlinson, 110-322.

of the fence viewers is effected by the filing of a bond as in the case of an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace. Hahn v. Lumpa Estate, 131-722.

An appeal from the order or decision

CHAPTER 5.

OF LOST GOODS.

SECTION 2372. Advertisement—title vests—sale. In all cases where the appraisalment of any such property shall not exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the taker-up shall advertise the same on the door of the court-house, and in three other of the most public places in the county, within five days after the appraisalment, and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such property within six months of the time of taking up, it shall vest in the taker-up; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of twenty dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the time of the reception of the justice's certificate at his office, shall cause an advertisement to be posted on the door of the court-house, and at three other of the most public places in the county, and also a notice to be published once each week, for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed in this state; and if such property be not claimed or proved within ninety days after the advertisement of the same, as aforesaid, the taker-up shall deliver the same to the sheriff of the county wherein it was taken up, who shall thereupon proceed to sell it at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of sale; and the proceeds of all such sales, after deducting the costs and other necessary expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury. [C., '73, § 1513; R., § 1507.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 18.]

SEC. 2374. Disposition of property unclaimed. In all cases where such lost goods, money, bank notes or other things shall not exceed the sum of ten dollars in value, the finder shall forthwith advertise the same on the door of the court house and in three other of the most public places in the county where the same was found; and if no person shall appear to claim and prove such money, goods, bank notes or other things within twelve months from the time of such advertisement, the right to such property, when the same shall consist in goods, money or bank notes, shall be vested in the finder; but if the value thereof shall exceed the sum of ten dollars, the county auditor, within five days from the receipt of the justice's certificate, shall cause to be posted upon the court house door, and in three of the most public places in the county, a notice thereof, which shall also be published, once each week, for three weeks successively in some public newspaper printed at the county seat; and if the said goods, money, bank notes or other things be not reclaimed within six months after the finding, the finder, if the same shall consist in money or bank notes, shall deliver the same to the county treasurer, after deducting the necessary expenses hereinafter provided for; if in bills, notes of hand, patents, deeds, mortgages, or other instruments of value, the same shall be delivered to the county auditor to be preserved in his office for the benefit of the owner when an applicant shall prove his title thereto; if in goods or merchandise, the same shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who shall thereupon proceed to sell the same at public auction to the highest bidder for ready money, having first given ten days' notice of the time and place of such sale; and the proceeds of such sale, after deducting the costs and other expenses, shall be paid into the county treasury. [C., '73; §§ 1510, 1515, R., § 1509.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 19.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

SECTION 2382. Manufacture, sale or keeping for sale prohibited. No one, by himself, clerk, servant, employe or agent, shall, for himself or any person else, directly or indirectly, or upon any pretense, or by any device, manufacture, sell, exchange, barter, dispense, give in consideration of the purchase of any property or of any services or in evasion of the statute, or keep for sale, any intoxicating liquor, which term shall be construed to mean alcohol, ale, wine, beer, spirituous, vinous and malt liquor, and all intoxicating liquor whatever, except as provided in this chapter, or solicit, take, or accept any order for the purchase, sale, shipment, or delivery of any such liquor, or aid in the delivery and distribution of any intoxicating liquor so ordered or shipped, or own, keep, or be in any way concerned, engaged or employed in owning or keeping any intoxicating liquor with intent to violate any provision of this chapter, or authorize or permit the same to be done; and any clerk, servant, employe or agent engaged or aiding in any violation of this chapter shall be charged and convicted as principal. Provided, that nothing herein shall prohibit traveling salesmen soliciting orders for the purchase, sale, and shipment of intoxicating liquors, from persons legally authorized to sell or dispense the same. [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 2; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 8, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 143, §§ 10, 11; 17 G. A., ch. 119, § 4; C., '73, §§ 1523, 1540-2, 1554-5; R., §§ 1559, 1562, 1581, 1587; C., '51, §§ 929-31.] [28 G. A., ch 74, §§ 1, 2.]

Proof that a liquor used as a beverage contains alcohol is sufficient to establish its character as intoxicating liquor, however much the alcohol may be diluted or however weak its intoxicating effect as a beverage may be. State v. Colvin, 127-632.

Proof of the sale of beer is prima facie evidence of the sale of an intoxicating liquor and the burden is on the person charged with such sale to show, if he can, that the liquor so sold was not intoxicating. State v. Spiers, 103-711.

The fact that the seller is not aware of the intoxicating character of the liquor sold is no defense. Wilson v. Cory, 114-208.

Violation by an agent of the conditions of the mulct law will render the principal liable to the penalties of the prohibitory law. Hawks v. Fellows, 108-133.

Sale of alcohol without a permit is unlawful even though it is to be used for scientific purposes. In re Application of Henery, 124-358.

The statute provides against every possible scheme that may be devised for the purpose of evading the provisions of the law prohibiting the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, and an acquittal in a prosecution for unlawfully selling or keeping for sale is a bar to a subsequent proceeding for the seizure and destruction of the same liquors as kept for unlawful sale. State v. Cobb, 123-626.

The gift of liquor which is prohibited by the statute is a gift resorted to for the purpose of avoiding the law by a subterfuge or by an indirect dealing intended to conceal unlawful sales, and held that the giving of a drink of liquor from samples by a traveling salesman of a foreign dealer for the purpose of testing the quality of the liquor was not within the prohibition of the statute. State v. Bernstein, 129-520.

Where an insured building is described as used for saloon purposes, the fact that the occupant does not conduct his saloon in strict compliance with the law does not vitiate the policy. Petty v. Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 111-358.

The provisions of 28 G. A., chap. 74, amending this section so as to make criminal the soliciting of orders in the state for sales of liquors outside the state to be shipped into the state, is unconstitutional as an interference with interstate commerce. State v. Hanaphy, 117-15.

Where a dealer in cigarettes brought into the state packages thereof which were opened by him and contents consisting of small packages containing ten each were exposed for sale and sold, held, that such small packages were not original packages within the meaning of the law as to interstate commerce, and that the seller was punishable under the anti-cigarette law. (Code §§ 5006, 5007.) The court considers the case of State v. Coonan, 82-400, relating to sales of intoxicating liquors in original packages, and overrules it in so far as it is inconsistent with this case. McGregor v. Cone, 104-465. But see State v. McGregor, 76 Fed. 956.

SEC. 2384. Nuisance—penalty—abatement—attorney's fee.

While it is not necessary, in order to warrant an injunction, that actual sales must be shown up to the date of the action to enjoin, yet there must be some evidence of the existence of the nuisance at that time. If no nuisance exists when the action is brought, plaintiff is not entitled to a decree. Sharp v. Arnold, 108-203.

It is the use of the place in which the inhibited acts are done, rather than the doing of the acts, which constitutes the offense of nuisance here described. Therefore, held that where blank bills of lading for intoxicating liquors were sent to a banker, and persons desirous of purchasing liquors were in the habit of paying the banker for such bills of lading, thereby procuring the liquors from the freight depot, held that such banker was properly convicted for maintaining a nuisance. The use of the building or place for the prohibited purpose renders it a nuisance, although the party charged owns neither the liquors or the place. State v. Snyder, 108-205.

The sale of alcohol even though for scientific purposes without a permit is unlawful and constitutes a nuisance. In re Application of Henery, 124-358.

In an action for abatement of liquor nuisance and for injunction, evidence of illegal sales after the commencement of the action is competent, the charge being of a continuing offense. Hall v. Coffin, 108-466.

Either the selling in violation of law or the keeping with intent to sell renders the place where the liquors are sold or kept for sale a nuisance. State v. Thompson, 130-227.

The discovery of liquor on the premises is presumptive evidence of keeping for illegal sale. But in itself such keeping has no tendency to prove the act of selling. Ibid.

The finding of intoxicating liquors in the possession of one not legally authorized to sell is presumptive evidence that such liquors are kept for illegal sale. State v. Stevens, 119-675.

SEC. 2385. Permits.

If the liquor sold by the permit holder is so compounded with other substances as to lose its distinctive character as an intoxicant, and to be no longer desirable for use as a stimulating beverage, and is in fact a medicine, then the permit holder is not guilty of violating the law in making a sale without a written request. State v. Gregory, 110-624.

The written requests on which sales are made are admissible in evidence in a prosecution against the seller, and if such requests are defective, the seller is liable. The permit holder should refuse to make a sale on a written request unless he has reason to believe the statements made therein are true, and in no case should he make such sale unless he knows the per-

The fact that liquor found in the possession of defendant is shown to have been in fact owned by another does not prevent such possession from being evidence of keeping for unlawful purposes. Ibid.

Where the mulct law is in force, and the seller has complied with its conditions, proof of the mere sale of liquor is not sufficient to sustain a conviction under this section. State v. Miller, 114-396.

It is not necessary in an indictment for maintaining a place for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor to negative defendant's right to sell under the mulct law, nor to specify in what respect the mulct law has been violated by defendant. It is for the defendant in the first instance to introduce evidence of compliance with the conditions of the mulct law, if he relies upon the provisions of that law as a justification or excuse for selling. State v. Donahue, 120-154.

Where an indictment describes a nuisance as kept in a particular building, situated in a certain town, it is necessary to prove the keeping in the place as charged. State v. Schuler, 109-111.

An indictment for keeping a nuisance, alleging that defendant used a certain building as a drug store "with the intent to sell there intoxicating liquors, to-wit (describing them), and then and there did sell the same," held sufficient, where the words "then and there," were construed as designating the drug store as the place of the unlawful sale. State v. Pinckney, 111-34.

son applying therefor is not a minor, intoxicated, or in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage. When proper requests have been made the question of the seller's good faith in making the sale is for the jury. Ibid.

The keeping for sale by druggists of tonics or other preparations containing a small percentage of alcohol is not a violation of a druggist's permit if it appears that such preparations are not capable of being used as beverages. In re Application of Henery, 124-358.

In stating the purpose for which liquor is required in the request provided for by Code § 2394, the purchaser must state a purpose or use authorized by this section. State v. Swallum, 111-37.

SEC. 2386. Pharmacists—manufacturers of proprietary medicines. If any such registered pharmacist or manufacturer of proprietary medicines shall sell, barter, give, exchange, dispose of or use intoxicating liquors in any manner or for any purpose other than authorized in the preceding section, he shall be liable to all the penalties and proceedings provided for in this chapter, and upon proof of such violation by a registered pharmacist, the clerk of the district or superior court shall transmit to the commissioners of pharmacy a certified copy of the record thereof within ten days after its entry, and upon receipt of such certified copy said commissioner may strike his name from the list of registered pharmacists and cancel his certificate. The commissioners of pharmacy are empowered to make such further rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, with respect to the purchase, keeping and use of intoxicating liquors by registered pharmacists and manufacturers of proprietary medicines, as they shall think proper to prevent abuses of the privilege, and shall revoke the certificate of registration of any pharmacist for repeated violation of this chapter. Said commissioners are authorized to draw from the state treasury an amount not exceeding fifty per cent. of the clear proceeds of all fees collected and paid into the treasury of any county on account of violations of the provisions of this chapter or the chapter regulating the practice of pharmacy, prosecuted by the commissioners, the amounts so drawn to be used solely in prosecutions instituted by them for failure to comply with the provisions of such chapters. The court or clerk thereof, before whom any prosecution is instituted or prosecuted by the commissioners of pharmacy, shall certify to the auditor of state all such cases, and the amount of fees imposed and collected therein. The expenses thus incurred by the commission shall be audited by the executive council, and the amount thereof shall be drawn from time to time upon the warrants of the state auditor. [23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 13, 17; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 18.] [27 G. A., ch. 56, § 1.]

SEC. 2387. Application for permit.

A decree entered by consent will bar one who has been enjoined from the selling of intoxicating liquors from receiving a permit under the provisions of the statute. In re Thoma, 117-275.

A judgment finding defendant guilty of violating his liquor permit whether entered by confession or in settlement of criminal or civil proceedings for such violation renders him ineligible to receive another permit within two years. In re Application of Wilhelm, 124-389.

A sale of alcohol without a permit, although to be used only for scientific purposes is unlawful and a sufficient ground for refusing the issuance of a permit on application within six months after such unlawful sale. In re Application of Henry, 124-358.

A drug store in which soda water and ice cream are sold is not a restaurant within the language of the statute prohibiting the issuance of permits for the sale of intoxicating liquors to the keepers of restaurants. Ibid.

Where the applicant has voluntarily surrendered his permit in consequence of an action for its revocation being brought, his application for a new permit should be denied unless he alleges and proves that he has not knowingly been engaged in the unlawful sale of liquor within two years next before making the application. In re Application of Smith, 125-128.

A particular description of the place in the petition for a permit and in the notice of the application therefor are absolutely necessary to give the court jurisdiction to hear the application and grant the permit. Muncey v. Collins, 132-50.

SEC. 2388. Notice. Notice of an application for a permit must be published, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper regularly published and printed in the English language, and of general circulation in the township, town or city where the applicant proposes to conduct the business, or, if none be regularly published therein, then in one of the papers selected by the board of supervisors for the publication of its proceedings, the last publication of which shall be not less than ten nor more than twenty days before the first day of the term at which the hearing is to be had. This notice shall state the name of the applicant, with the firm name, if any, under which he is doing business, the purpose of the application, the particular location of the place where the proposed business is to be carried on, and that the required petition is or will be on file in the clerk's office of the court (naming it) at least ten days before the first day of the term (naming it) when the application will be made.

A copy of such notice shall be served upon the county attorney in the same manner and for the same length of time as is required of original notices in said courts. [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 3; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 7.]

SEC. 2389. Hearing—remonstrances.

Permits are not granted as a matter of course, and the requirement of the statutory provisions as to particularity of description in the petition and notice as to the place where the privilege is to be exercised is for the purpose of advising the court and public and those who may desire to resist the application as to the exact location where the business is to be conducted. Such description is therefore essential. Muncey v. Collins, 132-50.

In an action to restrain the defendant from selling intoxicating liquors under a permit not sufficiently describing the place where sales were authorized to be made, the defendant is not entitled to have the decree of the court giving him a permit to sell amended so as to make the permit sufficient. Ibid.

The statute is not mandatory with reference to the term of court at which the application for a permit to sell intoxicating liquors shall be passed upon. While it is provided that on the filing of a remonstrance, the court shall fix a day in the term for the trial, and all applications shall be tried at the first term after completed service has been made of the required notice, if the business of the court shall allow, nevertheless the court may, in the exercise of its discretion, postpone the hearing to the next term, like other business. Cox v. Burnham, 120-43.

Any citizen of the county wherein the application is made, may file a remonstrance or objection to granting the permit, and when a remonstrance is thus filed a trial is to be had and the issue is to be determined by the court. In re Application of Smith, 126-128.

A remonstrant becomes in effect a party to the proceeding and may appeal from a decision granting the permit. Ibid.

The question whether the public necessities or conveniences require the granting of a permit is addressed to the discretion and judgment of the trial court. In re Application of Henery, 124-358.

SEC. 2390. Bond—to be recorded. No permit shall issue until the applicant shall execute to the state a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, with good and sufficient sureties to be approved by the clerk of the court, conditioned that he will well and truly observe and obey the laws of the state now or hereafter in force in relation to the sale of intoxicating liquors, that he will pay all fines, penalties, damages and costs that may be assessed or recovered against him for a violation of such laws during the time for which the permit is granted, and the principal and sureties in said bond shall be liable thereon, jointly and severally, for all civil damages and costs that may be recovered against the principal in any action brought by a wife, child, parent, guardian, employer or other person under the provisions of this chapter. The bond, after being approved and recorded by the clerk, shall be deposited with the county auditor, and suit may be brought thereon at any time by the county attorney, or by any person for whose benefit the same is given. The clear proceeds of all other money which may be collected for breaches of the bond shall go to the school fund of the county. If at any time the sureties on the bond shall file with the court or clerk a written request for release, or become insolvent, or be deemed insufficient by the court granting the permit, or its clerk, such court or clerk shall require a new bond to be executed within a reasonable time to be fixed. If the permit holder fails or neglects to furnish a new bond within the time so fixed, the permit shall from that date become null and void. [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 5; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 4.] [28 G. A., ch. 75, § 1.]

Sales made elsewhere than in the place specified in the permit, while the permit holder continues in business in such place, will undoubtedly constitute a breach of his bond. But where the permit holder has ceased to conduct business in the authorized locality and is making sales in another building not covered by the permit, although corresponding in general to the description of the permit, the surety will not be liable. Carter v. Nicol, 116-519.

SEC. 2392. Permit issued. Upon taking said oath and filing said bond, the clerk of the court granting the same shall issue a permit to the applicant, authorizing him to keep and sell intoxicating liquors as in this chapter provided. The permit so issued shall specify the building, give the street and number or location in which intoxicating liquors may be sold by virtue of the same, and the length of time the same shall be in force, unless sooner revoked. Provided that upon the expiration of the lease or destruction of the building where such business is conducted, or for other good and sufficient cause shown, consent in writing of the bondsmen having been obtained therefor, or a new bond given, the district court of the county which granted said permit, or a judge of said court, may change the place specified in said permit to some other place in the same city, town, or township upon motion therefor. A copy of said motion, and notice of the time when and the place where the same will be heard, shall be given to the county attorney of the county where said place is situated, at least five days before said hearing. [23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 5, 16.; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 7.] [27 G. A., ch. 57, § 1.]

A liquor license or privilege is not a property right which cannot be revoked without due process of law. McConkie v. Remley, 119-512.

The permit is a trust reposed in the holder, granted after being shown worthy, and may be revoked. An order granting a permit confers no property right and amounts to no more than a mere privilege to sell under certain conditions. McCoy v. Clark, 104-491.

Where the permit holder keeps for sale or sells contrary to law he may be enjoined for maintaining a nuisance. Ibid.

Where a permit holder takes orders at various places and delivers liquor in pursuance of such orders, and receives payment on delivery, the sales are to be deemed made at such places, and not at the place for which the permit is had. Carter v. Bartel, 110-211.

SEC. 2393. Record—costs. The clerk of the court granting the permit shall preserve as a part of the record and files in his office all petitions and other papers except bonds pertaining to the granting or revocation of permits, and keep suitable books in which bonds and permits shall be recorded. The books shall be furnished by the county like other public records. Whether said permit be granted or refused, the applicant shall pay the costs incurred in the case, and, when granted, he shall make payment before any permit issue, except the court may tax the cost of any witnesses summoned by private persons resisting said application, and the fees for serving such subpoenas, to such persons, when it is shown that such witnesses were summoned maliciously, or without probable cause to believe their evidence material. The fees in such cases shall be as provided in actions at law in the district court. [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 9; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 10.] [28 G. A., ch. 75, § 2.]

SEC. 2394. Requests to purchase.

The seller must believe the statements under the application to be true; he must know the applicant, or have him identified; and he must know or obtain proof that such applicant is not in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage. The

Where the permit and bond describe the premises intended to be covered, they do not apply to sales in a different building, although it may be covered by the same description to which the place of business had been removed. Carter v. Nicol, 116-519.

Where the order granting a permit provided that it should be in force for a specified time, held that the fact that the permit issued by the clerk in pursuance of such order stated that the right to sell was to continue until revocation of the permit or so long as the applicant's registration as a pharmacist was in effect, was no protection to the applicant in selling liquor after the time limited in the order granting the permit. State v. Brown, 109 N. W. 1011.

law is violated by sale to persons in the habit of using liquor as a beverage, although the seller is ignorant of such habit. The seller sells at his peril. Harlan v. Richmond, 108-161.

If the applicant makes the purchase for another he must give the street and number of the user, and in such case is only required to state his own residence generally, but if he is to use the liquor himself he must describe his residence with the same particularity required when he purchases for another, that is, if his residence is in a numbered city he must give his own street and number. The purchaser must not be allowed to avoid these requirements of the law, even though by oversight, forgetfulness or mistake. State v. Swallum, 111-37.

The purchaser must specify in his request the exact purpose and use for which the liquor is required, which must be a use which is lawful under Code § 2385. Ibid.

SEC. 2397. Returns by permit holders.

Where there was a violation of the law as to sale of intoxicating liquors, which consisted in a failure of a permit holder to make proper returns of sales, and an injunction was sought to restrain the permit holder from selling, held that, as it appeared that the permit holder had gone out of business, and was not intending to make further sales, the injunction was properly denied. Redley v. Greiner, 117-679.

SEC. 2399. Illegal sales by permit holder—evidence.

Although sales by a permit holder are only made on signed applications for such liquor to be used for medicine, yet if the seller has knowledge that the purchaser is a minor, or is in the habit of using liquor as a beverage, the sale is unlawful. State v. Skillicorn, 104-97.

The seller of intoxicating liquors is bound to know at his peril whether a person to whom he sells is within the prohibited class. Where a large number of sales appear to have been regularly made to the same person, and the character and habits of sobriety of persons to whom such sales were made were shown to be such as to bring them within the prohibited class, held, that a presumption of illegal sales would arise. Hall v. Coffin, 108-466.

The good faith of the seller is immaterial in determining whether the require-

Sales on written request, not containing the statements required by statute, are unlawful. State v. Harris, 122-78.

Where a sale would be illegal but for the identification required by statute, it cannot be transformed into a legal sale by proof that upon some former occasion a sale had been made to such purchaser which was legal because preceded by a proper identification and statement. State v. Mulhern, 130-46.

The question of good faith in making sales under a permit only arises when proper requests have been made. Prohibition is the rule, and permission to sell is the exception, and he who claims the right to sell must bring himself within the exception. State v. Gregory, 110-624.

The requests for liquor which are required to be preserved and returned by the permit holder may be introduced in evidence as against him. State v. Mulhern, 130-46.

Returns of sales made by the permit holder to the county auditor cannot be considered unless introduced in evidence and made a part of the record in the case. State v. Hatlestad, 132-188.

ments of the law as to sale of intoxicating liquors have been complied with. Peak v. Bidinger, 133-127.

It is no defense to a permit holder in an action against him to recover damages on account of unlawful sales, that he had no knowledge that the person to whom the sales were made was in the habit of becoming intoxicated. Bistline v. Ney, 111 N. W., 422.

A pharmacist renders the place in which his business is carried on a nuisance by violation of the law as to sales under his permit, and in an action to enjoin his place of business as a nuisance, will not be permitted to say that although the statutory regulations have been violated, he has acted in good faith. Rizer v. Tapper, 133-628.

SEC. 2400. Revocation of permit. Permits shall be deemed trusts reposed in the recipients, and may be revoked upon sufficient showing by order of a court or judge. Complaint may be presented at any time to the district or superior court, or a judge thereof, which shall be in writing and signed and sworn to by three citizens of the county in which the permit was granted. A copy of the complaint shall, with a notice in writing of the time and place of hearing, be served on the accused five days before the hearing, and if the complaint is sufficient, and the accused appear and deny the same, the court or judge shall proceed without delay, unless continued for cause, to hear and determine the controversy. If continued or appealed at the instance of the permit holder, his permit may, in the discretion of the court, be suspended during the controversy. The complainant and accused may be heard in person or by counsel, or both, and proofs may be offered by the parties; and if it shall appear upon such hearing that the accused has in any way abused the trust, or that liquors are sold by the accused or his employes in violation of law, or dispensed unlawfully, or he has in any proceeding, civil or criminal, within the last two years, been adjudged guilty of violating any of the provisions of this chapter, the court or judge shall revoke and set aside the permit; the papers and order in such case shall be immediately returned to and filed by the clerk of the court, and, if heard by a judge, the order shall be entered of record as if made in court; and if in this or any other proceeding, civil or criminal, it shall be adjudged by the court or judge that any registered pharmacist, proprietor or clerk has been guilty of violating any provision of this chapter, such adjudication may be by the commissioners of pharmacy regarded as sufficient, if repeated, to work a forfeiture of his certificate of registration. It shall be the duty of the clerk to forward to the commissioners of pharmacy transcripts of such judgments or orders without charge therefor, and as soon as practicable after final judgment or order has been made and entered. [23 G. A., ch. 35, § 7; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 8.] [27 G. A., ch. 58, § 1.]

SEC. 2401. How business conducted — partner — clerks — physicians. A permit holder may employ not more than two registered pharmacists as clerks to sell intoxicating liquors in conformity to the permit and the law; but in such cases the acts of clerks in conducting the business shall be considered the acts of the permit holder, who shall be liable therefor as if he had personally done them, and in making returns, the verification of such requests as may have been received, attested and filled by the clerk must be made by such clerk, and the clerk who transacted any of the business under the permit must join in the general oath required of the employer, so far as relates to his own connection therewith. If for any cause a registered pharmacist who holds a permit shall cease to hold a valid and subsisting certificate of registration or renewal thereof, his permit shall be forfeited and be null and void. Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to prevent licensed physicians from in good faith dispensing liquors as medicines to patients actually sick and under their treatment. In case a permit holder shall die, his personal or legal representative may continue the business, subject to the provisions thereof, through the agency of any reputable registered pharmacist, upon the approval of the court granting such permit, or the clerk thereof, and the giving of a bond as hereinbefore provided. A partner who is a registered pharmacist, not holding a permit, shall have the same rights and be subject to the same restrictions as clerks; and for whose acts the permit holder shall be held responsible the same in all respects as for his clerks. [23 G. A., ch. 35, §§ 2, 15; 22 G. A., ch. 71, § 16.] 28 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

Illegal sales of liquor made by a clerk although without authority may render the principal liable for nuisance. State v. O'Malley, 132-696.

juries resulting from liquor furnished to a patient by a physician cannot be shown in a prosecution for illegal sale of such liquor. State v. Campbell, 129-154.

The fact of settling a civil suit for in-

SEC. 2402. Intoxication punished.

To justify an arrest without a warrant on a charge of being intoxicated, it must be found that the person arrested was in fact in a state of intoxication. Snyder v. Thompson, 112 N. W. 239.

SEC. 2403. Repeal—sale or gift of intoxicating liquors—what prohibited. The law as it appears in section twenty-four hundred three (2403) of the code, and section twenty-four hundred three (2403) of the supplement to the code, is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“No person by himself, agent or otherwise, shall in any manner procure for, or sell or give any intoxicating liquors to any minor for any purpose, except upon written order of his parent, guardian, or family physician, or give to or in any manner procure for or sell the same to any intoxicated person, or to one in the habit of becoming intoxicated.” [32 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

The statute absolutely prohibits the sale of liquor to a minor for any purpose whatever, and the seller is bound at his peril to know whether the person to whom he sells is within the prohibited class. Fielding v. La Grange, 104-530.

Proof that the purchaser was in fact under the age of majority makes out a prima facie case of sale to a minor, although there is no evidence that he had not attained his majority by marriage as provided in Code § 3188. State v. Mulhern, 130-46.

The penalty herein provided for is not covered by the bond required under Code § 2448, Par. 3, of one who carries on the business of selling under the mulct law, nor that provided for in Code § 2422, as to bonds required of permit holders. Headington v. Smith, 113-107.

Liability for illegal sale to minors and intoxicated persons cannot be enforced against the surety on a bond purporting to be executed in pursuance of the provisions of the mulct law, when it appears that the mulct law was not in force in the locality where the business was carried on. Gorman v. Williams, 117-560.

SEC. 2403-a. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of section one hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. [32 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

SEC. 2405. Action to abate nuisance—injunction—contempt.

A temporary injunction may be granted against a person holding a permit to sell intoxicating liquors for keeping for sale or selling the same in his pharmacy contrary to law. McCoy v. Clark, 104-491.

The granting of a temporary writ as a matter of course follows the continuance of an application for the temporary writ, but not a general continuance of the action. Powers v. Winters, 106-751.

An injunction may properly be granted against the premises on which the nuisance is maintained and the owner thereof. Carter v. Bartel, 110-211.

Where a case is made for an injunction it is error to refuse a preliminary writ. One who has been engaged in the traffic of intoxicating liquors in violation of law cannot avoid an injunction by simply making a profession of change of heart. Donnelly v. Smith, 128-257.

A partner and the partnership are liable for damages for the illegal and unauthorized sale of intoxicating liquors by which a wife is deprived of support which her husband should give her. Mathre v. Story City Drug Co., 130-111.

Where liquor is sold to an intoxicated person, and his death is caused by drinking the same, the administrator of the estate cannot recover damages for his death against the person selling the liquor in violation of this section. Bissell v. Starzinger, 112-266.

The action to recover the penalty provided for sales to minors or habitual drunkards, may be brought in the county of defendant's residence, irrespective of the place of sale. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104-572.

Such an action cannot be joined with an action by a wife to recover damages for sales of liquor to her husband. Ibid.

The provisions of the mulct law do not relieve one who sells under its provisions from liability for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Ibid.

It is error to refuse a temporary injunction on the application of a citizen where it appears that the defendant operating under the mulct law is maintaining a place for the sale of liquor otherwise than in strict compliance with the provisions of the mulct law. State v. Roney, 133-416.

The notice of an application for a temporary injunction in vacation must show the name of the judge to whom the application will be made, and the specific place at which the application will be made. The original notice of the beginning of the action in which a temporary and also a permanent injunction will be asked is not sufficient. Beck v. Vaughn, 111 N. W. 994.

If the notice is not given as required, the preliminary injunction will be void for want of jurisdiction, and its enforcement may be enjoined. Ibid.

Permanent injunction: A decree of injunction should not be entered for the closing of a building and making the costs and attorney's fees in the action a lien thereon where it appears that the illegal sales in the building have been without the knowledge or consent of the owner and for a very short time. Merryfield v. Swift, 103-167.

An injunction cannot be granted against a person to restrain him from selling liquor independent of the place where it is sold. State v. Frahm, 109-101.

Where a permanent injunction has already been granted against the members of a firm, another decree for an injunction against them as individuals should not be granted. Carter v. Bartel, 110-211.

An injunction may properly be granted against the premises on which the nuisance is maintained and the owner thereof. Ibid.

Where it appears that defendant has in good faith abandoned the business before the trial and sold his interest in the premises on which the crime is charged to have been carried on, no injunction should be granted. Patterson v. Nicol, 115-283.

Where an injunction was sought to restrain a permit holder from making further sales, on the ground that he had violated the provisions of the law with reference to sales by such person, and it appeared that the defendant had gone out of business and had no intention of making further sales, held that the injunction was properly refused. Redley v. Greiner, 117-679.

A showing that on the eve of the trial the defendant has abandoned the business is not sufficient to warrant the court in refusing to grant an injunction, and in such case the court may properly tax costs and attorney's fees to such defendant. Drummond v. Richland City Drug Co., 133-266.

Primarily a suit under this section has for its object the termination of the unlawful use of the particular premises, and the resulting consequence of restraining one found guilty from establishing a nuisance elsewhere is only incidental. Therefore, if the action is abated under the provisions of Code § 2410 by the giving of bond no judgment can be rendered which will have effect as to a nuisance subsequently established on the premises.

Morris v. Lowry, 113-544; Morris v. Connolly, 113-545.

One who is enjoined from the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor may, without violating such injunction, make sales in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law. Landt v. Remley, 113-555.

A prior injunction will not bar a second action to enjoin for the same nuisance where it appears that the prior injunction was secured through the fraud of the defendant. Cameron v. Tucker, 104-211.

A prior injunction against the owner of premises will not bar a second action for an injunction against such owner and sureties on his bond given under the provisions as to the mulct tax. Ibid.

An injunction restraining defendant from illegally selling liquors in a certain building is not void by reason of the recital therein that defendant was not the owner of the premises during the time of the previous sales and that subsequently the premises have been sold and possession thereof given to another, it appearing that such change of possession did not take place until after the temporary writ had been issued and served. Ohlrogg v. District Court, 126-247.

The general allegation that defendant has established and is keeping, using and maintaining a certain building described as a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors in violation of law, and as a place for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell the same in violation of law, is sufficient in an action to enjoin the nuisance. But if it appears that the defendant is entitled to keep and sell intoxicating liquors by virtue of a permit, then the petition should further recite facts which render the keeping and sale of liquor by such person unlawful. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119-583.

Where it appears that the defendant is still engaged in the business and that the owner has taken no steps to abate the nuisance, the latter cannot complain of the granting of an injunction. McCracken v. Miller, 129-623.

The good faith of the person instituting the proceedings cannot be inquired into, nor the authority of the attorney purporting to represent him, where he has appeared as a witness and accepted responsibility for the action. Rizer v. Tapper, 133-628.

SEC. 2406. How brought and tried—evidence—attorney's fee—investigation by county attorney—report. Actions to enjoin nuisances may be brought in the name of the state by the county attorney, who shall prosecute the same to judgment, or any citizen of the proper county may institute and maintain such a proceeding in his name. The action when brought shall be triable at the first term of court after due and timely service of notice of the commencement thereof has been given; and in such action evidence of the general reputation of the place described in the petition shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of such nuisance. If the plaintiff is successful in the action, an attorney's fee of twenty-five dollars shall be taxed as costs in his favor.

Such action, when brought by a citizen, shall not be dismissed upon the motion of either the plaintiff or defendant until the county attorney shall have been notified in writing of the filing of such motion, and until such county attorney shall have made a personal investigation of the place of business sought to be enjoined, and of all matters set forth in said motion for dismissal, and shall have filed, in writing, a report of his findings in said cause, and his recommendation in reference to the disposition of the same. If any such action shall remain upon the docket for two terms of court, without trial, it shall be the duty of the judge of such court to order the plaintiff and his attorney or attorneys of record, to appear in open court for examination as to the reasons why such cause has not been brought on for trial; and it shall be the duty of the county attorney to conduct such examination, if the judge shall so order. Whenever the court shall have reason to believe that any action commenced under this section has not been brought or prosecuted in good faith said court shall direct the grand jury to investigate all the facts and circumstances connected with the bringing and prosecution of the same. [21 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 82.]

This section fixes the amount of the attorney's fee which is to be allowed in such cases under the general provisions of Code § 2429. Carter v. Bartel, 110-211.

An additional attorney's fee may be taxed against the defendant on an appeal to the supreme court in which he is unsuccessful. Drummond v. Richland City Drug Co., 133-266.

The limitation of this section as to the amount of the fee does not apply to the allowance of an attorney fee under § 2429 providing for the allowance of such fee in proceedings to punish for contempt. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130-488.

If the suit for an injunction is instituted by a citizen, he is free to employ any attorney he may choose, and he may prosecute a proceeding for contempt in violating the injunction when secured without the interposition of the county attorney. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615.

Where the action is brought in the name of the state, it must be brought by the county attorney. The defendant is not bound to respond in such an action brought by an attorney other than the county attorney. Beik v. Vaughn, 111 N. W. 994.

The judge may issue a temporary writ of injunction in vacation on the petition of the state or citizens of the county under this section, as well as on the petition of a citizen of the county under Code § 2405. Young v. Preston, 131-292.

The mere fact of the possession of liquor is evidence of keeping for illegal sale where it does not appear that the defendant is entitled to sell by virtue of a permit or some other lawful authority. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119-583.

One who consents to the prosecution of an injunction suit in his name and testifies that he is the plaintiff in such proceeding cannot deny the authority of the attorney by whom the proceeding is prosecuted, and attorney fees may be taxed in favor of such attorney. Plank v. Hertha, 132-213.

SEC. 2407. Violation of injunction.

It is no defense that accused has acted in good faith upon the advice of counsel in regard to selling liquor in violation of the injunction. State v. Stevenson, 104-50.

It is immaterial that the judge calls the defendant to answer for contempt by notice or citation rather than by warrant of arrest, if the defendant actually appears and submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court for the purposes of the case. State v. Thompson, 130-227.

A decree enjoining a party to the suit from selling liquor is self-executing and its violation is a contempt, though no formal writ of injunction has issued and been served on such defendant. Bartel v. Hobson, 107-644.

Where the defendant who is enjoined is represented in the case by attorney when the decree is rendered, he is chargeable with notice of the decree. Hawks v. Fellows, 108-133.

Violation by an agent of an injunction will subject the principal to punishment for contempt. Ibid.

Where it appeared that one charged with contempt in violating an injunction had not complied with the conditions of the mulct law, held that an order discharging him in a proceeding for contempt was improper, and on certiorari it was annulled. Jones v. Byington, 128-397.

Whether the provisions of Code § 5337 as to withdrawal of a plea of guilty in a criminal prosecution is applicable to proceedings to punish for violation of a liquor injunction or not, it is too late to withdraw such plea after the judgment of the court has been pronounced, although it is not yet entered of record. Beatty v. Roberts, 125-619.

This section requires the setting out of the alleged facts constituting the violation of the injunction, but an information reciting the issuance of an injunction, the knowledge thereof, and the selling and keeping for sale of liquor in violation of its terms, is sufficient. It was not intended to require the setting out of the evidence upon which the proceeding must finally be determined. McGlasson v. Scott, 112-289.

SEC. 2408. Abatement.

The existence of a nuisance being established, a decree, as provided in this section, must be given, unless action has been abated by the owner giving bond, and paying costs before order of abatement, as

A judgment in an injunction proceeding should be proved either by the record itself or by an authenticated copy thereof. Ibid.

The specific provision that there shall be a trial on the issue raised by the denial of the defendant in a proceeding to punish for a contempt in violating an injunction against the sale of intoxicating liquors is in harmony with the general law. See Code § 4465. Drady v. District Court, 126-345.

A proceeding to punish for contempt in the violation of an injunction to abate a liquor nuisance may be prosecuted without the aid of the county attorney. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615.

If the judge, imposing a fine for violation of an injunction, acts without jurisdiction, the person upon whom a fine is sought to be imposed is not bound to appeal, but may enjoin its enforcement. McConkie v. Landt, 126-317.

provided in Code § 2410. Such abatement should have the effect of closing the building referred to against all uses, unless sooner released by proceedings under that section. McCoy v. Clark, 109-464.

SEC. 2410. Abatement by owner. If the owner appears and pays all costs of the proceeding, and files a bond with sureties to be approved by the clerk in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court, or, in vacation, by the clerk, auditor and treasurer of the county, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein within a period of one year thereafter, the court, or, in vacation, the judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises closed under the order of abatement to be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement cancelled so far as the same may relate to said property; and if the proceeding be an action in equity, and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said building only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty or liability to which it may be subject by law. [21 G. A., ch. 66, § 7.] [29 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.]

The giving of a bond abates the action, and not simply the nuisance, and therefore in such a case no judgment can be rendered. Morris v. Lowry, 113-544; Morris v. Connolly, 113-545.

SEC. 2412. Prepayment of fees not required—costs taxed to plaintiff.

One who procures a temporary injunction without complying with the statutory provisions with reference thereto so that the proceeding is void, is liable for costs in an action instituted against him, and others, to enjoin the enforcement of the decree. Beck v. Vaughn. 111 N. W. 994.

SEC. 2413. Search warrant—seizure.

While the information should state the name of the owner or keeper of the intoxicating liquor so that in case of seizure notice thereof may be given to him, yet the determination as to who owned or kept it is important only when the owner or keeper resists unsuccessfully a judgment of forfeiture, and it becomes necessary to tax costs. Where the claimant of the liquor states that he was the keeper thereof, there is no occasion for the jury to determine that fact, and he is liable for costs as fixed by the finding that the liquor was kept for illegal purposes. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109-145.

SEC. 2415. Notice—trial—judgment—appeal.

In a proceeding to forfeit liquor charged to be kept for illegal purposes, the presumption arising under Code § 2427 that the keeping by a person not authorized to sell and on premises not used exclusively for a private dwelling, throws the burden upon a claimant of the liquor to show not only that he did not keep the liquor for illegal sale, but also that it was not kept by any one for that purpose. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109-145.

Acquittal in a prosecution for the unlawful sale or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors is a bar to a subsequent proceeding for the seizure and destruction of the liquors so kept. State v. Cobb, 123-626.

SEC. 2418. Civil action for damages by wife, parent, child, etc.

In an action for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquors the person injured is not required to establish all the elements of an injury actionable at common law. And held that the wife of one who committed suicide while intoxicated by reason of unlawful sales of liquor to him by a permit holder might recover damages without showing that her husband would not have committed suicide had the defendant not sold him the liquor. It is sufficient in such case to show that the act was committed while the husband was in fact intoxicated with liquor unlawfully sold to him by defendant. Bistline v. Ney, 111 N. W. 422.

The measure of damages in an action for loss to a wife by reason of causing the intoxication of her husband is dependent on what the husband had in fact done for the support of the wife prior to the wrongful acts of defendant in selling him intoxicating liquors. Bellison v. Apland, 115-599.

It is error to instruct the jury that the defendant in such a case is liable for all damages sustained by plaintiff on account of the intoxication of her husband where it appears that the husband procured intoxicating liquors elsewhere, which he drank, and which contributed to his besotted condition during the time complained of. Ibid.

Evidence of former suits of the same character by the wife against other defendants is admissible on the question of plaintiff's good faith in bringing the action. Ibid.

An action by a wife for damages for the sale of intoxicating liquor to her husband cannot be joined with an action to recover a penalty for sale to minors or intoxicated persons. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104-572.

In an action to recover damages for permanent injuries received by the husband by reason of the intoxication complained of, he may be permitted as a witness to exhibit to the jury his physical condition. Favre v. Manderscheid, 117-724.

A joint action may be maintained against different persons who contributed to the intoxicated condition causing injury to the husband, although the defendants were conducting separate places of business and did not act in concert. Ibid.

A wife, suing for injuries sustained by reason of the sale of intoxicating liquors by defendant to her husband, is not limited to the recovery of damages resulting from habitual intoxication, but may recover for damages resulting from specific intoxications, so far as defendant may have contributed thereto. League v. Ehmke, 120-464.

The fact that by reason of habitual intoxication the husband was not furnishing support to his wife prior to the time of the sales to her husband by the defendant, will not defeat the liability of the defendant for continuance of such condition by reason of sales made by him. Ibid.

A seller who by his acts contributes to a condition of habitual intoxication, cannot escape liability for specific injuries due to a particular fit of intoxication, not caused by liquor sold by him. Ibid.

Although the language of Code § 2418 differs slightly from that of section 1557 of the Code of '73, nevertheless, one who is entitled to sell liquors by reason of the mulct law, but who sells without compliance with the conditions of the law, is liable in civil damages to a wife who is injured by reason of such sales to her husband. Ibid.

In an action to recover damages for the death of a person caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors to him, life tables showing his expectancy of life are admissible in evidence. Knott v. Peterson, 125-404.

The fact that the husband, for whose death, due to the defendant's wrongful act in selling him intoxicating liquors, the wife seeks recovery, has on account of the habits of intoxication failed to support his wife prior to his death is not to be taken into account in measuring the amount of her recovery. Ibid.

In an action for damages resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors to plaintiff's husband, held that testimony tending to show that the husband was addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors six or seven years prior to the time involved in the action was incompetent as a part of plaintiff's case. Mathre v. Devendorf, 130-107.

It is not competent for the defendant to show by way of defense that the plaintiff has instituted a suit against another for damages for sales of liquors to her husband within the same period of time covered by the petition in the case on trial. Ibid.

The wife is entitled to recover in such cases for only such damages as she has suffered by reason of defendant's act. Ibid.

The jury should not be permitted to give double damages by means of allowance for impaired ability to secure or hold remunerative employment in addition to damages to plaintiff's support or means of support. Ibid.

It is competent to show that the intoxication of the plaintiff's husband prevented him from securing or holding a permanent position of employment. Mathre v. Story City Drug Co., 130-111.

Ordinarily a firm or a partner will not be liable for the wilful or negligent tort of a partner acting beyond the scope of his authority; but an exception to this rule exists where the damage claimed is for unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors. Ibid.

In an action by a child for damages on account of sale of liquor to a parent, evidence of the number of children, even though immaterial, will not be prejudicial. Shull v. Arie, 113-170.

Under this section both principal and agent are liable, but the principal is liable for an authorized sale made by the agent. Ibid.

Damages may be recovered in behalf of an illegitimate child who has been recognized by the parent. Goulding v. Phillips, 124-496.

The bondsmen of one who purports to sell in compliance with the conditions of the mulct law, but has not filed the requisite consent of adjoining property owners, are liable for damages provided for under this section. Breeding v. Jordan, 115-566.

SEC. 2419. Transportation to one not holding permit.

The crime described in this section may be charged in the language of the statute. State v. Reilly, 108-735.

An individual engaged in illegal traffic in intoxicating liquors, if not a carrier, falls within the designation of "other persons" under the language of this section. Ibid.

Notwithstanding the so-called Wilson law, the statutory provisions as to transportation of liquors into the state have no application to carriers transporting such liquors into the state from another state. Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412.

Although by arrangement between the seller of intoxicating liquors in one state and the buyer thereof in another, the goods may be shipped C. O. D. by the seller to the buyer, without subjecting them to the provisions of the law of the state to which they are shipped, with reference to the sale of intoxicating liquors (American Express Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 133, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep., 182, overruling 118 Iowa, 447), yet the legal effect of such transaction as to the time when title to the liquor passes from the seller to the buyer may be controlled by evidence as to the intention of the parties. Hamilton v. Schlitz Brewing Co., 129-172.

The transportation and delivery of a C. O. D. package of liquor by an express company does not render the company liable for damages resulting from the sale thereof. Chambers v. Adams Express Co., 128-154.

An express company receiving liquors from a consignor outside of the state, to be transported to a consignee in the state and delivered to him on payment of the purchase price and charges of transportation, the shipment having been made in pursuance of an order of the consignee, accepted by the consignor, acts as the agent of the consignee in the transportation of liquors and as the agent of the consignor in the collection of the charges, and cannot be deemed the seller nor an agent of the seller of the liquors, in violation of federal or state law. United States v. Adams Exp. Co., 119 Fed. 240.

SEC. 2422. Lien of judgment—liability of sureties—costs—evidence.

Where the real owner of property has an opportunity to make defense in the action he is bound by the judgment declaring a lien on such property. State v. Mateer, 105-66.

Where defendant has been convicted of maintaining a liquor nuisance, the governor may remit the fine, but cannot remit the costs nor suspend their execution. Ibid.

The bond here provided for does not cover the penalty authorized by Code § 2403 in case of sales to minors. Headington v. Smith, 113-107.

Authority to sell under the provisions of the mulct law is not the same as that given to a permit holder. Ibid.

Action against the surety on a liquor seller's bond for civil damages caused by sale of liquor, may be maintained without making the principal a party. Knott v. Peterson, 125-404.

The premises on which a liquor nuisance is maintained are liable to a judgment for a fine imposed for the illegal keeping of liquors, although constituting the homestead of the seller. Jasper County v. Sparham, 125-464.

One who takes the property by conveyance prior to the enforcement of the fine takes it subject to the judgment. Ibid.

The indictment for a liquor nuisance need not specifically describe the premises on which the judgment will become a lien, but the property may be identified by evidence when it is sought to enforce the lien against it. Ibid.

SEC. 2423. Payments—contracts—negotiable paper.

In general: An action under this section to recover back payments made for intoxicating liquors is an action for the enforcement of a statutory penalty, and cannot therefore be removed to the federal courts. Hamilton v. Joseph Schlitz Brg. Co., 100 Fed. 675.

The person named in this section as "receiver," and who is made liable for a return of the money, is evidently the person to whom it belonged when paid by the purchaser. It is not participation in making the sale nor the handling of the money that renders one liable for its return, but only the receipt of such money by him as his own. Foley v. Leisy Brg. Co., 116-176.

A contract for the sale of property, a part consideration of which is an indebtedness for intoxicating liquors, is wholly void, and the person who has contracted to convey may have his title quieted as against the person with whom the illegal contract of conveyance was made. Lindt v. Uihlein, 109-591.

One who claims title to real property in consideration of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors cannot, after his title is adjudged to be void on that ground, assert the rights of an occupying claimant. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116-48.

Money loaned to a partnership engaged in the business of unlawful sale of liquors may be recovered back, it not appearing that the loan was made to enable the partnership to violate the law. Grey v. Callan, 133-500.

A note and mortgage given to secure payment for the interest of a party engaged in the business of illegally keeping and selling intoxicating liquors is invalid and cannot be enforced. Singer v. McNamara, 111 N. W. 925.

Sales in another state: Where a salesman has only authority to take orders subject to approval, and no part of the price is paid, nor any part of the goods delivered when the orders are taken, which are to be filled in another state, the contract is not in violation of the laws of this state. Sachs v. Garner, 111-424.

Money paid for liquor sold and shipped at a point outside of the state on orders there received and approved cannot be recovered back under this section. Brown v. Wieland, 116-711.

As to payments for liquors unlawfully sold in this state, the obligation to repay exists from the time the payment is made, and only demand is necessary to maintain an action on the claim, and therefore such a claim may be introduced by way of counter claim, under the provisions of Code § 3570, although at the time the original action is brought no demand has yet been made. Ibid.

An order given for liquor subject to approval in another state becomes binding upon such approval and the shipment of the liquor in response thereto and the payment of the purchase price may be enforced. Bowlin Liquor Co. v. Brandenburg, 130-220.

Where the sale of intoxicating liquors actually takes place in another state, no recovery may be had for payments made therefor. Hamilton v. Schlitz Brewing Co., 129-172.

Prohibition being the rule, the burden is upon one seeking to recover payment for intoxicating liquors sold to show that the sales, if made in this state, were lawful. But if it appears that the sale was made in another state it will not be presumed to have been unlawful. Westheimer v. Habinck, 131-643.

If sold in another state and shipped to this state for delivery, to the purchaser, the liquors while in the hands of the carrier and still subject to the control and direction of the seller do not become subject to the police regulations of the state. Ibid.

When the buyer accepts liquors shipped to him on his order, given to the seller in another state, his liability is on the contract of sale thus made in the state where the seller resides, even though in the meantime he has countermanded the order. His acceptance is to be deemed a waiver of the countermand, rather than as giving rise to an action on implied contract. Gross v. Feehan, 110-163.

A contract between a principal in another state and an agent in this state to sell intoxicating liquor in original packages prior to the passage of the act of congress subjecting the traffic in intoxicating liquors brought into the state to the regulations of the state, was not unlawful. Green v. Schoenhofen Brg. Co., 103-252.

A note and mortgage given to secure payment for the interest of a party engaged in the business of illegally handling intoxicating liquor cannot be enforced. Singer v. McNamara, 111 N. M. 925.

SEC. 2424. Requisites of indictment or information—testimony of purchaser.

Under the special statutory provisions as to prosecutions for liquor nuisances, it is not necessary in the indictment to allege that the liquors kept by the defendant were sold or kept in violation of law. State v. Brown, 109 N. W. 1011.

SEC. 2425. Several counts—second conviction.

A prosecution under this section is within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, although the aggregate of the fines imposed may be in excess of $10, but this is because more than one offense may be charged in the information, the penalty for each offense being within the constitutional limitation. State v. Babcock, 112-250.

SEC. 2427. Evidence of illegal selling or keeping—license.

The presumption which arises from the finding of liquor on the premises of defendant is that the liquor is kept by some one for illegal sale, and in a prosecution for forfeiture of such liquor the burden is on defendant claiming to be the owner of the liquor to show not only that he did not keep the liquor for illegal sale, but that it was not kept by any one for that purpose. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 109-145.

The possession of a federal license to sell liquor is presumptive evidence of the selling and keeping for sale. McCracken v. Miller, 129-623.

The discovery of liquor on the premises is presumptive evidence of keeping for illegal sale, but does not tend to prove the act of selling in violation of law. State v. Thompson, 130-227.

SEC. 2429. Attorney's fees.

The provisions of this section as to the amount of the attorney's fees are limited by those of Code § 2406 and the cases provided for in that section. Carter v. Bartel, 110-211.

Under this section the limitation of § 2406 as to the amount of the fee to be allowed in an action to enjoin a nuisance is not applicable. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130-488.

The statute authorizes the taxation of attorney's fees as a part of the costs and also allows ten per cent. for collecting the penalty imposed. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615.

The ten per cent. of the fine, in addition to the attorney's fee which is to be allowed to the attorney prosecuting the case, cannot be recovered either as costs or otherwise until the fine has been collected. McConkie v. Landt, 126-317.

The statute contemplates the allowance of reasonable attorney's fees in favor of the attorney by whom the injunction proceeding is actually prosecuted without objection on the part of the person who ostensibly appears as prosecutor. Plank v. Hertha, 132-213.

SEC. 2431. Evasions.

Statutes designed to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors are to be construed and interpreted by the rules having application to statutes generally, save as modified by the provisions of this section, that it shall be the duty of courts and jurors to construe the general chapter relating to the subject of intoxicating liquors so as to prevent evasion. Cox v. Burnham, 120-43.

MULCT TAX.

SEC. 2432. Payment of—lien.

The mulct tax is not payable by a registered pharmacist who has a permit for the sale of intoxicating liquors, although he sells in violation of his permit. In re Assignment of Shonkwiler, 104-67.

Where at the time the mulct tax law went into effect certain premises were already leased under terms by which the lessor could terminate the lease in the case of illegal sale of liquor on the premises, and the lessor had knowledge of illegal sales and did not take steps to terminate the lease, held, that the premises were subject to the tax. In re Smith, 104-199.

No notice to the lot owner of the assessment and levy of the mulct tax is necessary. It is a tax to be assessed and levied by virtue of a general law upon certain persons and property coming within the provisions of the act. The statute contemplates that the person liable to the tax shall appear and pay the same without notice. Ibid.

The mulct tax is to be assessed against every person, other than registered pharmacists holding permits, who is engaged in selling or in keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquors, and upon the real property, and the owner thereof, in or upon which such liquors are sold or kept with intent to sell. The tax is to be assessed regardless of the fact that no petition of consent has been secured or permission to sell granted. The petition and permission are important only in determining whether prosecution under the prohibitory law is barred; they have no relation to the taxing provision. Ibid.

The mulct tax may properly be levied against the owner of the premises who, by the use of ordinary care and diligence, might have known of the unlawful sales of liquor thereon. David v. Hardin County, 104-204.

Under provisions of prior statutes requiring a levy of the mulct tax annually by the board of supervisors, held that where sales were continued for more than six months of the year there could not be any abatement of the full amount of the annual tax. Hubbell v. Polk County, 106-618.

The provisions of the prior statute as to time of making the levy held directory only and that a levy in December instead of in September was valid. Ibid.

Although the tax is payable in quarterly installments, the liability therefor attaches at the beginning of each annual period. Kane v. Grady, 123-260.

It is the property used in connection with the business, and this alone, which is liable for the tax. If a man has divided his property in good faith, so that a part is not used in connection with the business, such part is not liable for the tax, whether it be a part of the same plat lot, or a distinct or separate portion of the same block of buildings. It does not follow that because, for the purpose of a general assessment, property has been treated as one tract, the entire tract is subject to mulct tax. Lucas County v. Leonard, 107-593.

On the other hand, the mulct tax is not limited in its application to the ground only upon which the building used for the purpose stands. The law intends to subject to the tax not only the building and the ground upon which it stands, but also all land appurtenant and used in connection therewith. Ibid.

Where property was sold at tax sale for the mulct tax at the instance of the bondsman who was liable for the payment of the tax, and the sale was subsequently set aside as invalid, held that such bondsman could not recover from the county the amount paid by him at the sale under the provisions of Code § 1446. Guedert v. Emmet County, 116-40.

This so-called tax is merely a charge or license exacted for the privilege of carrying on the business of selling intoxicating liquors, and is therefore not a tax within the meaning of the federal bankrupt law requiring trustees in bankruptcy to pay all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt in advance of the payment of dividends to creditors. In re Ott, 95 Fed. 274.

The tax imposed by the mulct liquor law is a charge or license exacted for the privilege of carrying on the business of vending liquors. It confers no right on the person engaged in the business, but imposes an impediment to the transaction of such business. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121-482.

An action to recover a mulct tax may be maintained against the person conducting the business and the sureties on his bond. Carroll County v. Ley, 127-230.

But the mulct tax is not a personal obligation against the owner of property which can be enforced in an action at law. Ibid.

The provisions of the original mulct law, so far as they were re-enacted in the Code, have been in full force and effect ever since their original enactment and the bond given with reference to observance of the original law was effectual under the provisions of the Code. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126-539.

The provisions with reference to the bond to be given by a seller under the mulct law contemplate the particular location of the place of sale, and it is for damages occasioned by the sale of intoxicating liquors there, and not elsewhere, that the bondsmen are liable. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121-139.

SEC. 2433. Return by assessor. In the months of December, March, June, and September of each year, and before the twentieth day of each of said months, the assessor of each township, town or city, or assessment district thereof, shall return to the county auditor a list of persons who are, or since the last quarterly return have been, engaged in carrying on within said township, town, city or assessment district the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors, or maintaining any place where such liquors are sold or kept for sale, and also a description of the real property wherein or whereon such business is carried on or such place is maintained, with the name of the occupant or tenant and owner or agent. At least five (5) days before the assessor makes the return above contemplated to the county auditor he shall give to the person found in possession of each place which he intends to list, or is required to list, and to the tenant occupant and owner of such place a notice in writing that he intends to return such list to the county auditor charging the property itself and the owner of the property therein described and the person who owns or conducts the business with the mulct tax. But if any one of the persons to whom the assessor is herein required to give notice does not reside within the assessor's assessment district it shall be sufficient for the assessor to mail, at least five days before he makes such return to the auditor, a copy of such notice to such person at his last known post-office address; and if there is any one whose post-office address cannot be ascertained by the assessor it shall be sufficient as to such person for the assessor to post a copy of such notice in some conspicuous place on the front of the property about to be listed as liable to the tax. Service of notice on any agent having general charge of the property or on any agent renting or collecting rent on the property so used or having authority to rent or collect rent on such property, or on any member of the owner's family over fourteen (14) years of age shall be equivalent to notice to the owner of such property. The assessor shall give notice in each case in such one of the ways above provided as the circumstances of the case require, and he shall show in his return to the auditor that he has given notice and the manner of the service. The return signed by the assessor shall in all cases be admissible in evidence without further proof, and such return shall have the same force and effect as the oath of the assessor. The burden of proof shall in all cases be upon the party claiming that notice was not given. The county auditor shall furnish to the several assessors of his county, printed blanks upon which to give the notice contemplated in this amendment. Any assessor wilfully failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of fifty dollars and costs for each offense. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.]

SEC. 2435. Statement by citizens. Should the assessor for any reason fail to perform his duty, any three citizens of the county can, by verified statement on information and belief, addressed to the county auditor, procure the listing of names and places as above provided, with the same force and effect as if done by the assessor. At least five (5) days before listing the property or names with the county auditor as contemplated in code section twenty-four hundred thirty-five (2435) such citizens shall give notice in writing of their intention so to do to the same parties and in the same manner as required of the assessor in section one (1) of this amendment, and proof of the service of notice shall be made by the affidavit of one or more of the citizens making the return, which affidavit shall be returned to and filed with the auditor with the list of names and property sought to be charged; and the return and affidavit of the citizens so filed with the county auditor shall be admissible in evidence in the same way and with the same force and effect as the return of the assessor. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 3.] [29 G. A., ch. 95, § 2.]

SEC. 2436. Quarterly installments—lien—penalty.

Under previous statutory provisions levy of the tax by the board of supervisors was essential. Smithberg v. Archer, 108-215.

Where one sells liquor after the beginning of a period for which taxes are to be paid he becomes liable for the entire amount of the tax, and evidence of subsequent abandonment of the business before the expiration of the period is immaterial. State v. Miller, 114-396.

A surety on the bond who pays the tax is not subrogated to the county's rights under this section: Knoll v. Marshall County, 114-647.

The liquor seller is liable for the full tax for the quarter in which he commences business and the liability of his surety is the same. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126-539.

SEC. 2437. List certified to treasurer—mulct tax account. On the last day of December, of March, of June, and of September in each year, the county auditor shall certify to the county treasurer a complete list of the names of persons returned to him by the assessors, or entered on the sworn statements made to him by citizens as aforesaid, together with a description in each case of the real property wherein or whereon the business is carried on or the place maintained, and the name of the occupant or tenant, and the owner or agent of such property, and the county auditor shall keep in his office in books to be provided for that purpose an account to be known as the "Mulct Tax Account" in which memoranda of all moneys which may come into his hands and those of the county treasurer, from the mulct tax, shall be entered; and the county treasurer shall keep a like account and record of all mulct tax coming into his hands. Settlement of such accounts shall be made with the board of supervisors at the January and June sessions of the board, which settlement shall be published with the proceedings of the board. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 10.] [30 G. A., ch. 83, § 1.]

The mulct tax is made a lien only on the real property wherein or whereon the business is conducted. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121-139.

The notice by citizens of the county of an application to the auditor to have places listed as subject to mulct tax, which have been omitted by the assessor, must be notice in writing, proof of the service of which is to be made by the affidavit of one of the citizens making the application, and proof of service of such notice by a constable is insufficient. National Loan & Inv. Co. v. Board of Supervisors, 111 N. W., 1008.

SEC. 2438. Entry of tax—payments made to county treasurer. The county treasurer shall thereupon enter upon a book known as the "mulct tax book" a quarterly installment of the mulct tax, as due and payable by the person carrying on such business or keeping such place, and as a lien and charge upon and against the real property wherein or whereon such business is carried on or such place maintained. All payments of mulct tax shall be made to the county treasurer upon a certificate from the county auditor showing the amount due. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 10.] [30 G. A., ch. 83, § 2.]

SEC. 2439. When delinquent—sales for—redemption—title in the county. After the expiration of one month from the date when such tax becomes due and payable, if not paid, it shall be delinquent and collectible by the treasurer in the same method as that in which other delinquent taxes are collectible, and all the provisions as to the collection of other delinquent taxes shall apply. Tax sales for such delinquent taxes shall also be made on the first Monday in June of each year, in the same manner and to the same effect as on the first Monday in December, and all the provisions of law as to tax sales in December shall apply to such sales in June. When real estate offered at tax sale under this section shall be passed for want of bid covering amount of tax due thereon, it shall be advertised and sold by the treasurer at next semi-annual tax sale. The treasurer shall appoint, prior to such sale, three appraisers who shall appraise the value of any and all property to be offered at such sale, taking into account any superior, valid lien thereon, and file a separate appraisement for each parcel; and the cost thereof shall be added to the penalty. If at the sale an amount less than the tax and penalty and less than the appraisal is offered, the property shall be sold to the county; at the appraised value, if it is less than the tax and penalty; or at the tax and penalty, if they are less than the appraised value. The provisions of sections fourteen hundred and thirty-six (1436), fourteen hundred and thirty-seven (1437), and fourteen hundred and thirty-eight (1438) of the code shall apply to the redemption; but the supervisors may allow redemption for any amount deemed advantageous to the county; and in default thereof after notice to redeem as provided by section fourteen hundred and forty-one (1441) of the code, the treasurer shall execute a deed to the county, without fee, and such deed shall have, so far as applicable, all the effect as provided by section fourteen hundred and forty-four (1444) of the code as to vesting in the county all the right, title, interest and estate of the former owner in and to the land conveyed. On redemption or on final sale of the property the proceeds shall be applied as provided by section twenty-four hundred and forty-five (2445) of the code. While thus acquiring title the county, to protect its interest, may bid in the property at ordinary tax sale and acquire title under the same terms and conditions as other tax sale purchasers. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 12, 13.] [31 G. A., ch. 99.]

A suit in equity cannot be maintained against the owner of the land on which the nuisance is situated to enforce the payment of the tax. Crawford County v. Laub, 110-355.

SEC. 2441. Application for remission.

The board of supervisors in considering an application for remission of the mulct tax has no power to determine the question of priority as against a mortgage of the premises, nor can the district court on appeal from the action of the board of supervisors consider such question. David v. Hardin County, 104-204.

The word "year" as used in 25 G. A., chap. 62, with reference to the mulct tax, has reference to a calendar year; and therefore where the tax was not payable in advance because the case was not one where consent to the sale could be given, and the property was not shown to be subject to assessment until near the end of the calendar year, held that the board of supervisors at its January meeting could only levy such tax on the premises for the remainder of the preceding calendar year. Ibid.

But where the place had been used for more than six months of the calendar year for sale of liquor and the board at its September meeting levied a tax of six hundred dollars against the property, held, that under the statute the owner was not entitled to a remission of any portion of the tax on the ground that the premises had thus been used for less than one year. Engelthaler v. Linn County, 104-293.

Notice of the proceedings against the property need not be given to the property owner, nor is the fact that the owner did not know of the sale of liquor on his premises controlling, and Code §§ 2433 et seq. are not unconstitutional in this respect. Newton v. McKay, 130-596.

The mulct tax is imposed upon all except permit holders who carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors. Payment of the tax does not in itself constitute a bar to proceedings for the unlawful sale of liquors. It is not therefore a license. The legislature may impose a tax without legalizing the business taxed. Ibid.

The statutory provisions as to the assessment and collection of the mulct tax do not involve notice of the assessment or levy of the tax. Notwithstanding the omission of any provision for such notice, the statute is not unconstitutional. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121-482.

Such statute confers no right but imposes an impediment to the transaction of the business. It is a tax on that business levied to meet the burdens imposed on the general public by what is thought to be the result of the conduct of such business. Ibid.

As the property owner may apply to the board of supervisors for remission of the tax, notice to the property owner of the imposition of such tax by the board is not essential to its validity. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 196 U.S. 276.

SEC. 2445. Tax divided and apportioned.

The county treasurer is not entitled to a collection fee under Code § 490 for the portion of the regular mulct tax which is to be paid to the city, but may collect such fee as to any additional mulct tax imposed by the city and collected by him. Waverly v. Bremer County, 126-98.

The full amount of the tax is recover-

SEC. 2447. Effect of payment.

The business of selling intoxicating liquor in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law is lawful, and a note given by one partner in such business to another for the purchase of the interest of the latter in such business is valid. Phillips v. Gifford, 104-458.

A condition in such note that it shall be void "if the payor is obliged to abandon his present business on account of a change of the liquor law by the next legislature," held to be a valid condition. Ibid.

A person operating under the mulct law is engaged in a lawful occupation. State v. Miller, 114-396; Iowa City v. McInerney, 114-586.

The statute confers no right but imposes an impediment to the transaction of the business. It is a tax on that business levied to meet the burdens imposed on the general public by what is thought to be the result of the conduct of such business. Hodge v. Muscatine County, 121-482.

The mulct tax is imposed upon all except permit holders, who carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors. Payment of the tax does not in itself constitute a bar to proceedings for the unlawful sale of liquors. It is not therefore a license. The legislature may impose a tax without legalizing the business taxed. Newton v. McKay, 130-596.

The provisions of the mulct law do not

SEC. 2448. When a bar—conditions. In any city, including cities acting under special charters, of five thousand or more inhabitants, no proceedings shall be maintained against any person who has paid the last preceding quarterly assessment of mulct tax, nor against any premises as a nuisance on account of the selling or keeping for sale therein or thereon, by such person, of such liquors, provided the following conditions are complied with; and in any city of over twenty-five hundred and less than five thousand inhabitants, when a written statement of consent that intoxicating liquors may be sold in such city, signed by eighty per cent. of the voters residing in such city, voting therein at the last preceding election, as shown by the poll list of said election, shall have been filed with the county auditor, and shall by the board of supervisors at a regular meeting, or at a special meeting called for that purpose, have been held sufficient, and its findings entered of record, which statement when thus found sufficient, shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated until revoked, said city shall come within the provisions of this section:

1. Statement of consent—action of supervisors. A written statement of general consent that intoxicating liquors may be sold in such city, signed by a majority of the voters residing in such city, voting therein at the last preceding election, as shown by the poll list of said election, shall have been filed with the county auditor and shall, by the board of supervisors, at a regular meeting, have been held sufficient, and its finding entered of able by the county, one half the amount recovered being for the use of the city or town in which the business is conducted. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126-539.

relieve the parties selling in accordance therewith from liability to a wife for damages by reason of sales to her husband nor from the penalty provided for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104-572.

Violation of the provisions of the mulct law by an agent subjects the seller to the penalties of the prohibitory law as to the sale of liquor. Hawks v. Fellows, 108-133.

Notwithstanding a mistake of law on the part of one carrying on a business under the supposed protection of the mulct law, he renders himself liable to the penalties of the prohibitory law if he violates the conditions under which he is authorized to conduct the business. State v. Gifford, 111-648.

One who sells in compliance with the mulct law does not violate a previous injunction restraining him from making further unlawful sales, but if he attempts to act under the mulct law without complying with its provisions he violates such injunction. Landt v. Remley, 113-555.

Prohibition is still the rule in this state, and freedom from the penalties imposed by the liquor law for the sale of intoxicants the exception, and he who would bring himself within the exception must prove compliance with all the conditions imposed to secure immunity. Schuneman v. Sherman, 118-230.

record, which statement when thus found sufficient, shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated, until revoked, as hereinafter provided.

2. Resolution of council—consent of property owners—officers barred—limits. The person appearing to pay the tax shall file with the county auditor a certified copy of a resolution regularly adopted by the city council, consenting to such sales by him, and a written statement of consent from all the resident freeholders owning property within fifty feet of the building where said business is carried on. But in no case shall said business be conducted by any person holding any township, town, city or county office, or within three hundred feet of any church building, schoolhouse, or cemetery, nor within one-half mile of the place where any agricultural fair is being held.

3. Bond. He shall file with the county auditor, to be approved by the clerk of the district court, a bond to the county, in the sum of three thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful observance of all the provisions of this chapter relating to the mulct tax, and for the payment of all damages that may result from the sale of intoxicating liquors upon the premises occupied by the obligor. Said bond shall be signed by himself as principal, and by two sureties who shall qualify each in double the amount of the bond, and neither of whom shall be surety on any other like bond, provided that any surety company, authorized to do business in this state, under the laws thereof may become sole surety on any and all bonds required under this section.

4. Place of sale. Said selling or keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors shall be carried on in a single room having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a public business street. The bar where liquors are furnished shall be in plain view of the street, unobstructed by screens, blinds, painted windows or any other device. There shall be no chairs, benches, nor any other furniture in front of the bar, and only such behind the bar as is necessary for the attendants. A list of names of all persons employed about the place shall be filed with the county auditor, and no persons shall be permitted behind the bar except those whose names are so listed.

5. Conduct. The place shall be conducted in a quiet, orderly manner.

6. Gaming and amusements. There shall be no gambling or gaming with cards, dice, billiards or any other device, nor any music, dancing or other form of amusement or entertainment, either in the room where said business is carried on or in any adjoining room or building controlled by the person, partnership or corporation carrying on said business.

7. Obscene pictures. There shall be no obscene or impure decorations, inscriptions, placards or any such thing in the place.

8. Females. No female shall be employed in the place.

9. Opening and closing. The place shall not be open nor any sales be made earlier than five a. m. nor later than 10 p. m. on any day. It shall not be open at all, nor shall any sales be made, on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, nor on any election day or legal holiday, nor on the evening of such days.

10. Minors, drunkards, intoxicated persons. No minor, drunkard or intoxicated person shall be allowed in the room, and no sales of intoxicating liquors shall be made to any minor, drunkard or intoxicated person, or knowingly to any person who has taken any of the so-called "cures for drunkenness."

11. Written notice not to sell. No sale of intoxicating liquors shall be made to any person whose wife, husband, parent, child, brother, sister, guardian, ward over fourteen years of age, or employer, shall by written notice forbid such sales.

12. Payment of tax. If the name of a person desiring to carry on the business of selling or keeping for sale intoxicating liquors, or maintaining a place where such liquors are sold or kept for sale, has not been entered by the auditor on the list of such persons as hereinbefore provided for, or if the property wherein or whereon such business is to be conducted has not likewise been entered by the auditor on such list, then the name of such person and the description of such property shall be entered upon such list by the treasurer, and a quarterly installment of tax shall be paid as though the name of such person and the description of such property had been duly entered upon such list at the last preceding quarterly assessment for such purpose. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 17; 18 G. A., ch. 82; 18 G. A., ch. 147; 17 G. A., ch. 119, § 2; C., '73, § 1114.] [29 G. A., ch. 96, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 100.]

[The amendment by the 31 G. A. ignored code supplement where same appeared. The change has been to the code supplement.]

Conditions; burden of proof: As against a charge of violating an injunction in selling intoxicating liquors the defendant claiming to act in compliance with the mulct law has the burden of showing performance of all the conditions which are in their nature conditions precedent, but it is for the complaining party to show violations of the law involving matters of conduct only, as that sales are made to minors or on Sunday. Jones v. Byington, 128-397.

The seller who relies on compliance with the mulct law as a defense against liability for civil damages in an action by the wife for sale of liquor to her husband, has the burden of alleging and proving full and complete compliance with the conditions imposed by the mulct law. League v. Ehmke, 120-464.

In an indictment for maintaining a place for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, it is not necessary to negative the right of defendant to sell under the mulct law. If defendant claims that his act was lawful because in compliance with the provisions of the mulct law, he must prove not only that he has complied with the provisions as to securing the consent of the proper authorities, but also that he has conducted his place in accordance with the provisions of this and other paragraphs relating to the method of conducting such business. State v. Donahue, 120-154.

Par. 1. Statement of consent: Under 25 G. A., chap. 62, the authority to determine whether the petition of consent was sufficient was not vested in the city council, and its action in granting permission to sell was not conclusive. State v. Pressman, 103-449.

In determining the sufficiency of the signatures to the petition the poll books and registration lists are the best evidence of who cast ballots at the last election. Ibid.

One who acts under the mulct law, in relying on the sufficiency of a petition of consent, does so at his peril, and if the statement of consent is insufficient he may be punished for illegal selling. Bartel v. Hobson, 107-644.

The Official Register of the state is, by Code § 177, made conclusive evidence as to the number of inhabitants in the city. In re Sale of Intoxicating Liquors, 108-368.

The poll list is made the only and exclusive evidence as to who voted in the particular localities. Porter v. Butterfield, 116-725; Wilson v. Bohstedt, 110 N. W. 898.

A statement of consent filed before the present Code went into effect is not effectual under its provisions to suspend the penalties of the prohibitory law. The privilege to sell acquired under such a statement of consent does not constitute a right which is protected as against the repeal of prior statutes resulting from the adoption of the Code. West v. Bishop, 110-410.

The board of supervisors is made a special tribunal for the determination of the sufficiency of the statement of consent, not only as to the county at large, but also as to each and every subdivision thereof, and its findings can only be questioned on appeal. Parol evidence is inadmissible, in the absence of a finding by the board as to the sufficiency of the statement of consent, to show the requisite number of signers for any town within the county. Schuneman v. Sherman, 118-230.

One who sells liquor does so at his peril, and cannot rely on parol evidence that the statement of consent, not approved by the board of supervisors, was in fact sufficient as applied to the locality in which he sells. Ibid.

One who voluntarily pays a mulct tax without ascertaining whether the required general statement of consent has been filed cannot recover back the tax paid on the theory that it was paid under a mistake of fact, if it appears that the statement of consent was not sufficient. Ahl-ers v. Estherville, 130-272.

A statement of consent filed prior to the taking effect of the Code not being effective after the time when the Code took effect, held that taxes paid in reliance on such statement were paid under mistake of law and could not be recovered back. Ibid.

Par. 2; Resolution of council: Where the application is for permission to a firm to sell intoxicating liquors under the mulct law, the authority given by the council to such firm is not available to one member of the firm to whom the business is transferred. State v. Zermuehlen, 110-1.

Consent of property owners: The filing of a statement of consent by adjoining property owners is a condition precedent to the right to sell under the mulct law, and sales made before such statement of consent is filed is unlawful. Landt v. Remley, 113-555.

Where property within fifty feet of the building where the business is carried on is owned by a partnership, the consent of each partner is essential. Close v. O'Brien, 112 N. W. 800.

The purchaser of property from an owner who has consented to the maintenance of a saloon within fifty feet of his property does not take the property subject to the consent previously given by his grantor, and a new statement of consent by such purchaser must be filed by the saloon keeper at the beginning of the next tax year. Conway v. District Court, 132-510.

The consent of an adjoining property owner cannot be withdrawn during the year for which the annual tax is payable although it is paid in quarterly installments, but such withdrawal may be effectual as to the next annual payment. Kane v. Grady, 123-260.

If the room in which sales of liquor are made is less than fifty feet from the premises of a property owner who does not consent, the occupant cannot by constructing a board partition which is fifty feet from such premises leaving an unoccupied space between such partition and the wall of the room render the consent of such property owner unnecessary. McCull v. Rally, 127-633.

An agreement to pay a property owner a sum of money in consideration of his giving consent that a saloon may be established within fifty feet of his property, is against public policy and void. Greer v. Severson, 119-84.

The consent of neighboring property owners required by the statute is not intended to be the subject of barter and sale. Ibid.

Par. 3. Bond: The bond here provided for does not cover the payment of assessments required by city ordinance, under Code § 2455. Ottumwa v. Hodge, 112-430.

Nor does the bond cover the penalty specified by Code § 2403 for sales to minors. Headington v. Smith, 113-107.

The sureties on the bond are liable for sales which are unlawful under Code § 2418, although the seller, purporting to act under the provisions of the mulct law, has failed to file the requisite consent of adjoining property owners. Breeding v. Jordan, 115-566.

Where the bondsman bought in at tax sale the property of his principal, the sale being at his instigation and for taxes for which he was liable, held that he could not recover the amount paid from the county upon the setting aside of the sale as invalid. Guedert v. Emmet County, 116-40.

Where a bond was given in supposed compliance with the mulct law, but it appeared that at the time the provisions of the mulct law were not in force in the city where the business was carried on, held that no liability under such bond for illegal sales to minors and intoxicated persons, under the provisions of Code § 2403, could be enforced against the surety on such bond. Gorman v. Williams, 117-560.

The surety on the bond who pays the amount of the tax is not subrogated to any lien of the county against the property for the payment of such tax. Knoll v. Marshall County, 114-647.

While the surety on the bond may recover from the principal the amount which he is required to pay, he is not subrogated to the remedy of the county against the principal and the county may proceed at its election to enforce the bond or punish the principal for illegal selling. O'Brien County v. Mahon, 126-539.

A bond given to enable a dealer to do business under the mulct law is effectual as a common law obligation although it does not strictly conform to the statutory requirement. Ibid.

The county may elect to collect the mulct tax by action on the bond or to prosecute the principal for illegal sales made by him after failure to pay the tax, and the tax is due and payable whether the principal complies with the law or not. By resorting to one remedy the county does not necessarily waive the other. Ibid.

It is not necessary in the bond to describe the premises on which the business is to be conducted. Ibid.

Interest may be recovered in an action on the bond on account of the delinquency of the principal in paying the tax. Ibid.

The surety on the bond of a liquor seller, selling in accordance with the provisions of the mulct law, is liable under a judgment rendered against his principal in a civil action to recover damages in favor of one who is injured by such sale. Knott v. Peterson, 125-404.

An action on his bond given by one who sells liquor under the mulct law must be confined to sales made on the premises described in the bond. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121-139.

Par. 4. Place of sale: The keeping of a place for the sale of intoxicating liquors, as authorized by the mulct law, does not warrant the peddling of such liquors in other parts of the city, either at wholesale or at retail. Cameron v. Fellows, 109-534.

Compliance with the mulct law will not authorize the maintenance of a cold storage warehouse wherein intoxicating liquors are kept for sale, and the filling of orders from such warehouse by delivery to purchasers at different places about the city. Carter v. Miller Brewing Co., 111-457.

The statutory provision as to one entrance is violated where, in addition to the front door, the room has a door leading into another room or shed, where liquor is stored. State v. Bussamus, 108-11.

Where there was a door connecting the place where liquor were sold with a cellar which was used as a store-room for such liquor, which cellar had an outside entrance, the room in which the sales were made having also an outside entrance, held that the use of the room and the cellar together constituted a violation of the provisions of this section. Powers v. Klatt, 111-357.

It is a violation of the law to have a smaller room partitioned from the main room to be used for a store-room, or to so use a cellar connected with the main room having also an entrance from the street. Garret v. Bishop, 113-23.

The maintenance of a cold storage warehouse separate and removed from the saloon in which the business of selling liquor under the mulct law is prosecuted by the defendant is a violation of the requirement that the business shall be carried on in a single room having but one entrance or exit. Bell v. Hamm, 127-343.

It is a violation of the law to carry on the business in two rooms, one a bar room proper, the other a basement room underneath in which liquors are kept, the two being connected by a flight of stairs, with egress from the basement room to other rooms in the building and through them into a side street. Jones v. Byington, 128-397.

It is not a violation of the provision requiring the business to be carried on in a single room, having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a public street, that there is within the room used as a place for selling liquor an icebox or cooling room, in which beer and other liquor intended for sale are kept, if such cooling room is not a room which could be resorted to for the purpose of concealment while buying or drinking intoxicating liquor. State v. Donahue, 120-154.

There is no exception in the statute to the requirement that the room in which the liquors are sold shall have but one entrance or exit, and an additional doorway may not be maintained, even for the convenience of the proprietor or his employees. State v. Gifford, 111-648.

One who conducts the business of selling intoxicating liquors under the mulct law in a place having a back door which may be used for purposes of entrance and exit, aside from the principal entrance, should be enjoined. State v. Roney, 133-416.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that a place from which the sale of intoxicating liquors was made was not a single room, having but one entrance or exit, and that opening upon a business street. Bartel v. Hobson, 107-644.

A liquor dealer having paid but one tax under the mulct law has no right to keep for sale, and sell, intoxicating liquors from two wholly separate and independent rooms in the same building. Thomas v. Arte, 122-538.

The location of a saloon in the basement of a building with the bar so situated that it is not in the plain view of pedestrians using the street or sidewalk in the ordinary manner is not in compliance with the statute. McCull v. Rally, 127-633.

A basement saloon so constructed that the only entrance is through a long hall after descending from the street does not have an opening upon a public street in the sense required by the statute. Ibid.

Where there were curtains in the window and a sign painted thereon, and flower jars, none of which obstructed the full view of the interior of the premises from the sidewalk in front, held that there was no violation of the mulct law as to the condition of the premises. Lingeibach v. Hobson, 130-488.

Par. 9. Opening and closing: The act of keeping a saloon open on election day is punishable by reason of this provision, and the city council cannot provide for the punishment of the same act, either under Code § 2455, or under the general powers given by Code § 680. Iowa City v. McInerney, 114-586.

The provision that sale shall not be made on legal holidays forbids the sale on the 4th of July or on any other of the days specified in Code § 3053, as holidays with relation to the protesting and dishonor of negotiable instruments. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615.

Keeping the place open for any length of time after ten o'clock and for any purpose, even though it be the cleaning of the place or the counting of the money after door is closed and customers are excluded will constitute a violation of the law. Lingelbach v. Hobson, 130-488.

Par. 10. Minors, etc.: It is a violation of the provision that no minor shall be allowed in the room that the proprietor allows his own minor son to be in the room and behind the bar. Jones v. Byington, 128-397.

SEC. 2449. Cities under five thousand and towns.

Where the petition of consent was presented after the taking effect of the Code, held that it was immaterial that some of the signatures to the petition had been affixed thereto before the Code took effect. Cameron v. Fellows, 109-534.

In determining whether the percentage of signers is sufficient the statement of consent is to be compared with the poll books of the general election preceding the time when the petition is filed. Ibid.

But one general petition of consent for the county may be canvassed by the board of supervisors, and in acting on that petition the board may determine with reference to particular towns whether the number of signers to the general petition who reside in that town, and in the township in which it is located, constitutes the required proportion of voters in such town and township. But the board has no authority to canvass a subsequent petition with reference to a particular town not found on the canvass of the general petition to be one in which sales of liquor may be made. Meyer v. Hobson, 116-349.

To authorize the sale of liquors in a town there should be a finding by the board of supervisors in connection with their canvass of the statement of consent, that there are the requisite number of signers in such town, and in making such determination the board may hear evidence. Therefore in an action in which the right to sell liquors in such town is involved the finding of the board of supervisors on the sufficiency of the number of signers in the town is the only evidence which may be considered. If there is no finding as to the town by the board, then there is no right to sell. Hill v. Gleisner, 112-397.

The board of supervisors canvassing a statement of consent for the sale of intoxicating liquors in the county and making no specific finding that the majority of voters in a certain town in the county had signed the petition cannot long after correct its records so as to make the finding sufficient to legalize the selling of liquor in such town. Brickley v. Westphal, 111 N. W. 829.

SEC. 2450. Sufficiency of statement—finding—appeal. All statements of general consent, filed with the county auditor as provided in the two preceding sections, shall be publicly canvassed by the board of supervisors, at a regular meeting, at least ten clear days notice of such intended canvass having been previously published by the county auditor in the official newspapers of the county, and its finding as to the result in the city having over five thousand inhabitants, or the county, as the case may be, and the various towns and townships therein, shall be entered of record. And such finding shall be effectual for the purpose herein contemplated until revoked as herein provided. If the board shall find the statement sufficient, any citizen of the county may, within thirty days thereafter, upon filing a sufficient bond for the costs, file with the clerk of the district court a general denial as to the statement of general consent, or any part thereof, whereupon the county attorney shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the person or persons filing said statement of consent with the county auditor, and said party shall within ten days file with said clerk a bond conditioned to pay the costs of the hearing in the district court, in a sum to be fixed by the clerk of said court. If such bond be filed, then the auditor shall certify the statement of consent and all papers and records to the district court, where the matter shall be tried de novo, the county attorney appearing for the state, but if no bond be filed, then the order of the board of supervisors finding the statement of general consent sufficient shall be considered and treated as set aside and null and void. The costs in all cases of appeal shall be taxed against the losing party. Should the board of supervisors find the statement of general consent insufficient, any party aggrieved may appeal therefrom to the district court by filing, within thirty days thereafter, with the clerk of said court a sufficient bond for the costs. Upon the filing and approval of said bond, the auditor shall certify the statement of consent and all papers and records to the district court, where the matter shall be tried de novo. All costs shall be taxed against the appellant, whether the finding of the board is sustained or reversed, and in such actions the county attorney shall appear and defend the finding of the board. Only one statement of general consent from any county, city or town, or city or town acting under special charter, therein entitled to file the same, shall be canvassed by the board of supervisors in any one year. When said petition of general consent is found sufficient by the board of supervisors or the city council, as the case may be, it shall, unless revoked under section twenty-four hundred and fifty-one (2451) of the code, be in force and effect for the period of five years only; and all petitions and statements of general consent in force and effect previous to the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six (1906) shall, unless revoked under section twenty-four hundred and fifty-one (2451) of the code, be and become null and void on and after five years from July 1, 1906. [31 G. A., ch. 101.]

Where the record of the findings of the board as to the number of signers shows the number of voters and the number of signers in each of the election precincts, it is sufficient, although the aggregate for each township is not footed up. Cameron v. Fellows, 109-534.

The statute requires the county attorney to appear against the statement in all proceedings before the district court upon appeal. Green v. Smith, 111-183.

The proceeding here contemplated is a special proceeding, and there is no right to a trial by jury in the district court. Ibid.

No right vests until the statement of consent has been adjudged sufficient, and one who has signed the general statement may, before action is taken thereon, withdraw his consent and by proper written notice and request to the board annul his former act in affixing his signature. Ibid.

The sufficiency of the statement of consent may be passed upon by the board of supervisors at an adjourned meeting provided for at a regular meeting of the board. Butterfield v. Treichler, 113-328.

Notice of the hearing should be given ten clear days before the hearing, it is not necessary that notice be given ten days before the first day of the regular session of the board. Ibid.

The poll lists do not show in what towns the voters resided, and therefore in determining the result of the statement of consent with reference to the number of voters signing, resident in the various towns and townships in the county, the board of supervisors and the court on appeal can receive testimony. Porter v. Butterfield, 116-725.

The appeal is to be tried by the court without a jury, and it is error to submit the questions of fact to the jury in such a case. Ibid.

The costs on appeal are to be taxed against the losing party. Ibid.

The "general denial as to the statement of general consent" contemplated by the statute as the basis of an appeal from the action of the board in approving the statement of consent is not a technical pleading, but a general exception or objection. Stokesbury v. Korte, 129-434.

Service of notice by the county attorney of such general denial upon the person or persons filing the statement of consent is not jurisdictional. Ibid.

Such notice may be served upon the person who files the statement with the auditor, although in doing so he acts as attorney or agent for others. Ibid.

The appeal is not made dependent upon the action or consent of the county attorney, and the objecting citizen or citizens may be represented on the appeal by other counsel than the county attorney, who is required to appear only as the representative of the public. Ibid.

A pleading by the objector in the district court describing himself as a citizen of the county is a sufficient allegation that he is such citizen. Ibid.

Where legal proceedings to test the validity of the action of the board of supervisors in approving a statement of consent has been commenced within the period during which the poll books are directed to be preserved, they may be subsequently properly introduced in evidence, although the time for their destruction in the ordinary course has passed. Reed v. Jugenheimer, 118-610.

Such a proceeding is to be tried before the district court de novo, and the burden is upon the petitioners to show that the statement of consent is sufficient. Ibid.

The statement of consent is a public record and the fact that it is temporarily out of the keeping of its legal custodian will not in absence of proof of alteration, prevent its admission in evidence on the trial of an appeal from the action of the supervisors. Wilson v. Bohstedt, 110 N. W. 898.

In a proceeding for review notice to the person or persons filing the statement of consent is all that is required. No notice to persons who have acted or may intend to act in reliance on such petition of consent is provided for. Fitzgibbon v. Macy, 118-440.

Nor is it contemplated that notice be given to all the persons signing the statement of consent, but only to those presenting it to the auditor and causing it to be filed. Ibid.

It is not required that such notice be given with the county auditor, but it should, with proper proof of service, be filed with the clerk of the district court. Ibid.

The provision requiring the persons filing a general statement of consent to give bond within ten days after service of notice of review by the district court, is mandatory, and on failure to file such bond within the time specified, the order of the board of supervisors finding the general statement of general consent is not sufficient is to be treated as null and void. Ibid.

The provision of Code § 2450 that only one statement of general consent shall be canvassed by the board of supervisors in any one year, does not relate to the filing of more than one petition, but to the final consideration thereof by the board, and if the first statement filed is insufficient, and before the board has finally acted upon it by making the canvass necessary to determine its sufficiency, another statement, which is sufficient, is filed and properly brought up for consideration, the board may approve it. In re Canvass of Statement of Consent, etc., 120-680.

The trial provided for in court as to the sufficiency of the statement of consent canvassed by the board of supervisors is by special proceedings, without a jury, but not in equity, and the applicants are not entitled to a continuance in order to take testimony by deposition. Dye v. Augur, 110 N. W. 323.

The general denial which must be filed by those opposing the statement of general consent within thirty days may be amended after that time so as to show the persons contesting to be citizens of the county. Ibid.

Where a general allegation of citizenship is made in the denial and not controverted except by a general denial thereof, no issue is raised requiring the introduction of proof. Ibid.

The board obtains jurisdiction to canvass the statement only by notice given to the public of a hearing at which any citizen may appear and contest the sufficiency of the consent. Therefore the board of supervisors has no authority at a subsequent meeting to nullify the effect of the record which has already been made on such a hearing. Brickley v. Westphal, 111 N. W. 829.

SEC. 2451. Forfeiture or revocation. Whenever any of the conditions of the third preceding section shall be violated, or whenever the council of the city or town or city acting under special charter shall by a majority vote direct it, or whenever there shall be filed with the county auditor a verified petition, signed by a majority of the voters of the said city, town, or city acting under special charter, or county, as the case may be, as shown by the last general election, requesting it, then the bar to proceedings as provided in the second and third preceding sections shall cease to operate, and the persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be liable to all of the penalties provided in this chapter. [25 G. A., ch. 62, § 19.] [28 G. A., ch. 78, § 1.]

This section does not provide for any action by the board of supervisors with reference to a petition to remove the bar to the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law which has been declared by the board in determining the sufficiency of the general petition of consent in the county. Meyer v. Hobson, 116-349.

The board of supervisors is neither permitted nor required to pass upon the sufficiency of the revocation. The filing thereof ipso facto removes the bar. McConkie v. Remley, 119-512.

There is no provision for the revocation of the consent of an adjoining property owner. No revocation of consent will be effectual during the annual period for which consent has been given but it may be effectual as to the succeeding annual period. Kane v. Grady, 123-260.

The sureties on the bond may be liable for unlawful sales, although the seller, purporting to act under the mulct law, has not filed the required consent of the adjoining property owners. Breeding v. Jordan, 115-560.

SEC. 2452. False signatures—time of signing.

The provision of Code § 2452 that every general statement of consent shall be accompanied by the affidavit of some reputable person, showing that said person personally witnessed the signing of each name appearing thereon, and making any false statement contained in said affidavit punishable as perjury, does not impose upon the board the duty of determining the sufficiency and truthfulness of such affidavits where it is admitted that the statement of consent is signed by the genuine signatures of a sufficient number of persons qualified to sign it. In re Canvass of Statement of Consent, etc., 120-680.

The requirement that the signatures to the general statement shall show the voting precinct of the signers is not applicable to a written withdrawal of signatures by those who have already signed. Dye v. Augur, 110 N. W. 323.

SEC. 2455. Additional taxes and regulations.

The bond required by Code § 2448, Par. 3, does not cover payments required to be made by the city ordinance. Ottumwa v. Hodge, 112-430.

A city has no authority to provide by ordinance for the punishment of the act of keeping a saloon open on election day, as prohibited in Code § 2448. Such provision would be inconsistent with the criminal laws of the state. Iowa City v. McInnerny, 114-586.

The mulct tax required to be paid by one selling intoxicating liquors under the mulct law is a tax. Ahlers v. Estherville, 130-272.

SEC. 2461-a. "Bootlegger" defined. Any person who shall, by himself, or his employe, servant or agent, for himself or any person, company or corporation, keep or carry around on his person, or in a vehicle, or leave in a place for another to secure, any intoxicating liquor as herein defined, with intent to sell or dispose of the same by gift or otherwise, in violation of law, shall be termed a bootlegger. [30 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

SEC. 2461-b. Penalty. Every such bootlegger may be restrained by injunction from doing or continuing to do any of the acts prohibited by law, and all the proceedings for injunctions, temporary and permanent, and for fines and costs for violation of same, as defined by law, shall be applicable to such person, company or corporation, and the fact that an offender has no known or permanent place of business or base of supplies, or quits the business after the commencement of an action shall not prevent a temporary or permanent injunction, as the case may be, from issuing. [30 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2461-c. Annual mulct tax—quarterly installments. Every person, partnership or corporation that shall engage in the business of holding intoxicating liquors in store and collecting for the owner thereof the purchase price of said liquors from those to whom they have been conditionally sold or from those not authorized by law to sell the same, shall pay to the treasurer of the county where the business is carried on an annual mulct tax of six hundred dollars in quarterly installments on the first day of January, of April, of July, and of October; and such tax shall be paid for each separate office or place where such business is carried on, and all the provisions of the law relating to the levying, collecting and enforcing of what is known as the mulct tax shall apply and govern in the levying and collecting of the tax herein provided for so far as applicable. [32 G. A., ch. 123, § 1.]

SEC. 2461-d. First quarter payable in advance. No person, partnership or corporation shall engage in the business described in section one of this act without first paying the tax herein required for the quarter during which such business is carried on; and when the tax is so paid it shall go into the general fund of the county collecting the same. [32 G. A., ch. 123, § 2.]

SEC. 2461-e. Sale of intoxicants near military reservations—penalty. No person shall open, maintain or conduct any shop or other place for the sale of wine, beer or any other intoxicating liquors, or sell the same at any place within a distance of one mile from any permanent military post or reservation established by the United States within the state of Iowa; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine not to exceed fifty dollars for each offense, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not to exceed thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [32 G. A., ch. 124.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF FIRE COMPANIES.

SECTION 2467. Removal of fire apparatus. No person shall remove any engine or other apparatus for the extinguishment of fire from the house or other place where it is kept or deposited, except in time of fire or alarm thereof, unless authorized so to do by the president, director or foreman of the company to whom the same shall belong. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty (30) days. [C., '73, § 1565; R., § 1767.] [32 G. A., ch. 125, § 1.]

SEC. 2468. False alarms. No person or persons shall cause or give a false alarm of fire, by setting fire to any combustible material, or by crying or sounding an alarm, or by any other means, without cause. Any person violating the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.) or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty (30) days. [C., '73, § 1566; R., § 1768.] [32 G. A., ch. 125, § 2.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

SECTION 2469. Commissioner. The bureau of labor statistics shall be under the control of a commissioner, biennially appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the executive council, whose term of office shall commence on the first day of April in each odd-numbered year and continue for two years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. He may be removed for cause by the governor, with the advice of the executive council, record thereof being made in his office; any vacancy shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment. He shall give bonds in the sum of two thousand dollars with sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and take the oath prescribed by law. He shall have an office in the capitol, safely keep all records, papers, documents, correspondence, and other property pertaining to or coming into his hands by virtue of his office, and deliver the same to his successor, except as hereinafter provided. Provided, however, that the term of office of the labor commissioner which shall commence on the first day of April, 1906, shall expire on the 31st day of March, 1907. [20 G. A., ch. 132, §§ 1-4.] [31 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2470. Duties—report. The duties of said commissioner shall be to collect, assort, systematize and present in biennial reports to the governor statistical details relating to all departments of labor in the state, especially in its relations to the commercial, social, educational and sanitary conditions of the laboring classes, the means of escape from, and the protection of life and health in factories, the employment of children, the number of hours of labor exacted from them and from women, and to the permanent prosperity of the mechanical, manufacturing and productive industries of the state; and he shall, as fully as practicable, collect such information and reliable reports from each county in the state, the amount and condition of the mechanical and manufacturing interests, the value and location of the various manufacturing and coal productions of the state, also sites offering natural or acquired advantages for the profitable location and operation of different branches of industry; he shall, by correspondence with interested parties in other parts of the United States, impart to them such information as may tend to induce the location of mechanical and producing plants within the state, together with such other information as shall tend to increase the productions, and consequent employment of producers; and in said biennial report he shall give a statement of the business of the bureau since the last regular report, and shall compile and publish therein such information as may be considered of value to the industrial interests of the state, the number of laborers and mechanics employed, the number of apprentices in each trade, with the nativity of such laborers, mechanics' and apprentices' wages earned, the savings from the same, with age and sex of laborers employed, the number and character of accidents, the sanitary condition of institutions where labor is employed, the restrictions, if any, which are put upon apprentices when indentured, the proportion of married laborers and mechanics who live in rented houses, with the average annual rental, and the value of property owned by laborers and mechanics; and he shall include in such report what progress has been made with schools now in operation for the instruction of students in the mechanic arts, and what systems have been found most practical, with details thereof. Such report shall not contain more than six hundred printed pages, and shall be of the number, and distributed in the manner, provided by law. He shall make a report to the governor during the year 1906, and biennially thereafter. The report for the year 1906 shall cover the period only from the date of his last preceding biennial report. [20 G. A., ch. 132, § 5.] [29 G. A., ch. 97, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 2471. Power to secure evidence—witness fees—how paid. The commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics shall have the power to issue subpoenas, administer oaths and take testimony in all matters relating to the duties herein required by said bureau, said testimony to be taken in some suitable place in the vicinity to which testimony is applicable. Witnesses subpoenaed and testifying before the commissioner of the bureau shall be paid the same fees as witnesses before a justice's court, such payment to be made out of the general funds of the state on voucher by the commissioner, but such expense for witnesses shall not exceed one hundred dollars annually. Any person duly subpoenaed under the provisions of this section, who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to attend or testify at the time and place named in the subpoena, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days: provided, however, that no witness shall be compelled to go outside the county in which he resides to testify. [26 G. A., ch. 86, § 2; 20 G. A., ch. 132, § 6.] [29 G. A., ch. 97, § 2.]

SEC. 2472. Right to enter premises—violation or neglect—written notice—prosecution. The commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics shall have the power, upon the complaint of two or more persons, or upon his failure to otherwise obtain information in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, to enter any factory or mill, workshop, mine, store, business house, public or private work, when the same is open or in operation, upon a request being made in writing, for the purpose of gathering facts and statistics such as are contemplated by this chapter, and to examine into the methods of protection from danger to employes, and the sanitary conditions in and around such buildings and places, and make a record thereof. If the commissioner shall learn of any violation of, or neglect to comply with the law in respect to the employment of children, or in respect to fire escapes, or the safety of employes, or for the preservation of health, he shall give written notice to the owner or person in charge of such factory or building, of such offense or neglect, and if the same is not remedied within sixty days after service of such notice, such officer shall give the county attorney of the county in which such factory or building is situated, written notice of the facts, whereupon that officer shall immediately institute the proper proceedings against the person guilty of such offense or neglect. And any owner or occupant of such factory or mill, workshop, mine, store, business house, public or private work, or any agent or employe of such owner or occupant, who shall refuse to allow any officer or employe of said bureau to so enter, or who shall hinder him, or in any way deter him from collecting information, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [26 G. A., ch. 86, § 3.] [29 G. A., ch. 97, § 3.]

Statements of the labor commissioner with reference to an examination of machinery cannot be shown for the purpose of negating defects therein where it does not appear that the commissioner has made any examination. Brusseau v. Lower Brick Co., 133-245.

SEC. 2477. Repeal—compensation and expenses. That section twenty-four hundred and seventy-seven (2477) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics shall receive a salary of eighteen hundred dollars per annum and shall be allowed a deputy at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum payable monthly; he shall also be allowed one factory inspector at a salary of one hundred dollars per month, one office clerk at a salary to be fixed by the committee on retrenchment and reform. The appointment by the commissioner of such factory inspector shall be subject to the approval of the executive council. Said commissioner shall be allowed necessary postage, stationery and office expenses; the said salaries and expenses shall be paid as the salaries and expenses of other state officers are provided for. The commissioner or any officer or employe of the bureau of labor statistics shall be allowed, in addition to his salary, his actual and necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of his duties, said expenses to be audited by the executive council and paid out of the general fund of the state upon a voucher verified by the commissioner or his deputy; but the total of the expense for the officers and employes of said bureau, other than the salaries of the commissioner, his deputy, the factory inspector and clerk, shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum." [30 G. A., ch. 85.] [32 G. A., chs. 126, 127.]

SEC. 2477-a. Child labor in factories, mills, etc.—age limitation. No person under fourteen years of age shall be employed with or without wages or compensation in any mine, manufacturing establishment, factory, mill, shop, laundry, slaughter house or packing house, or in any store or mercantile establishment where more than eight persons are employed, or in the operation of any freight or passenger elevator. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2477-b. Where life and health are endangered—age limitation. No person under sixteen years of age shall be employed at any work or occupation by which, by reason of its nature or the place of employment, the health of such person may be injured, or his morals depraved, or at any work in which the handling or use of gunpowder, dynamite or other like explosive is required, and no female under sixteen years of age shall be employed in any capacity where the duties of such employment compel her to remain constantly standing. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

SEC. 2477-c. Hours of labor—noon intermission. No person under sixteen years of age shall be employed at any of the places or in any of the occupations recited in section 1 hereof before the hour of six o'clock in the morning or after the hour of nine o'clock in the evening, and if such person is employed exceeding five hours of each day, a noon intermission of not less than thirty minutes shall be given between the hours of eleven and one o'clock, and such person shall not be employed more than ten hours in any one day, exclusive of the noon intermission, but the provisions of this section shall not apply to persons employed in husking sheds or other places connected with canning factories where vegetables or grain are prepared for canning and in which no machinery is operated. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2477-d. List posted. Every person, firm or corporation having in its employ, at any of the places or in any of the occupations recited in section 1 of this act, any persons under sixteen years of age, shall cause to be posted at some conspicuous location at the place of such employment, and where same shall be accessible to inspection at all times during business hours, a list of the names of such persons, giving after each name, the date of the birth of such person and the date when employed. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 4.]

SEC. 2477-e. False statements—other violations—penalty. Any parent, guardian or other person, who having under his control any person under sixteen years of age causes or permits said person to work or be employed in violation of the provisions of this act, or any person making, certifying to, or causing to be made or certified to, any statement, certificate or other paper for the purpose of procuring the employment of any person in violation of the provisions of this act, or who makes, files, executes or delivers any such statement, certificate or other paper containing any false statement for the purpose of procuring the employment of any person in violation of this act, or for the purpose of concealing the violation of this act in such employment, and every person, firm or corporation, or the agent, manager, superintendent, or officer of any person, firm or corporation, whether for himself or such person, firm or corporation, either by himself or acting through any agent, foreman, superintendent or manager, who knowingly employs any person or permits any person to be employed in violation of the provisions of this act, or who shall refuse to allow any authorized officer or person to inspect any place of business under the provisions of this act, if demand is made therefor at any time during business hours, or who shall willfully obstruct such officer or person while making such inspection, or who shall fail to keep posted the lists containing the names of persons employed under sixteen years of age and other information as required by this act, or who shall knowingly insert any false statement in such list, or who violates any other provision of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon being found guilty thereof, shall be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2477-f. Enforcement. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics to enforce the provisions of this act, and such commissioner and his deputies, factory inspectors, assistants and other persons authorized by him in writing, state mine inspectors, and county attorneys, mayors, chiefs of police and police officers, acting under their written directions, city and town marshals, sheriffs and their deputies within the territories where they exercise their official functions, and any person having authority therefor in writing from the judge of a court of record within the territory over which such judge has jurisdiction, shall have authority to visit any of the places enumerated in section 1 of this act, and make an inspection thereof to ascertain if any of the provisions of this act are violated or any person unlawfully employed thereat, and such persons shall not be interfered with or prevented from asking questions of any persons found at the place being inspected by them with reference to the provisions of this act. It shall be the duty of the county attorney to investigate all complaints made to him of the violation of this act, and to attend and prosecute at the trial of all cases for its violation upon any information that may be filed within his county. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 6.]

SEC. 2477-g. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 103, § 7.]

SEC. 2477-h. Failure to procure employment—fee returned. Every person, firm or corporation who shall agree or promise, or who shall advertise through the public press, or by letter, to furnish employment or situations to any person or persons, and in pursuance of such advertisement, agreement or promise, shall receive any money, personal property or other valuable thing whatsoever, and who shall fail to procure for such person or persons acceptable situations or employment as agreed upon, within the time stated, or agreed upon, or if no time be specified then within a reasonable time, shall upon demand return all such money, personal property or valuable consideration of whatever character, except an amount not to exceed one dollar to be charged as a filing fee. [32 G. A., ch. 128, § 1.]

SEC. 2477-i. Copy of application or agreement furnished applicant. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to receive any application for employment from, or enter into any agreement with, any person to furnish or procure for said person any employment unless there is delivered to any such person making such application or contract at the time of the making thereof a true and full copy of such application or agreement, which application or agreement shall specify the fee or consideration to be paid by the person seeking employment. [32 G. A., ch. 128, § 2.]

SEC. 2477-j. Division of fees between employment bureau and employer prohibited. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation or any person employed or authorized by such person, firm or corporation to hire or discharge employes, to receive any part of any fee or any percentage of wages or any compensation of any kind whatever, that is agreed upon to be paid by any employe of said person, firm or corporation to any employment bureau or agency for services rendered to any such employe in procuring for him employment with said person, firm or corporation. [32 G. A., ch. 128, § 3.]

to examine at any time the records, books and any papers relating in any way to the conduct of any employment agency or bureau within the state, and must investigate any complaint made against any such employment agency or bureau, and if any violations of law are found he shall at once file or cause to be filed an information against any person, firm or corporation guilty of such violation of law. [32 G. A., ch. 128, § 4.]

SEC. 2477-1. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act, or who shall refuse access to records, books or other papers relative to the conduct of such agency or bureau, to any person having authority to examine same, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100.00), or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 128, § 5.]

CHAPTER 9.

OF MINES AND MINING.

SECTION 2479-a. Repeal by striking out—board of examiners. That chapter nine (9), title twelve (12) of the code be and the same is hereby amended by striking out section twenty-four hundred and seventy-nine (2479) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

The executive council shall appoint a board of five examiners consisting of two practical miners and two mine operators, all holding certificates of competency as mine foremen, and one mining engineer, each of whom shall have had at least five years actual experience in his profession immediately preceding his appointment, who shall hold office for a term of two years. The members of said board shall qualify by taking oath to perform the duties devolving upon them fairly, faithfully and impartially, without fear or favor, uninfluenced by personal or political considerations. No member of said board shall be interested in or connected with any school, scheme, plan or device having for its object the preparation, education or instruction of persons in the knowledge required of applicants for certificates of competency. Any member of said board shall be summarily removed from office by the executive council, upon due notice and hearing, for violation of the law, misfeasance or malfeasance in the performance of his duties, or for other sufficient cause, and his successor shall thereupon be appointed by the said executive council for the unexpired term. [29 G. A., ch. 98, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 86.]

SEC. 2482. Inspection districts—powers and duties of inspector. The governor shall divide the state into three inspection districts, and assign one inspector to each district, who shall devote his entire time to his work, and, before entering thereon, procure, to be paid for by and to belong to the state, all instruments necessary for the discharge of his duties, including a complete set of standards, balances and other means of adjustment in testing any and all apparatus used in weighing, and shall examine, test and adjust, as often as occasion demands, all scales, beams and other apparatus used in weighing coal at the mines. He shall examine all the mines in his district as often as the time will permit, which examination shall be made at least once in every six (6) months of all mines having an average output of fifty tons or more of coal per day, keep a record of the inspections made, showing date, the condition in which the mine is found, the extent and manner in which the laws relating to the government of mines and their operation are observed and obeyed, the progress made in improvements for the better security to health and life, number of accidents happening and their character, the number employed, and such other and further matters as may be of public interest and connected with the mining industries of the state. He shall have the right at all reasonable times, by night or by day, to enter any mine in his district, or any district to which he may be sent by the governor for the purpose of ascertaining its condition, and the manner of its operation, by making personal examination and inquiry in relation thereto, but not so as to unnecessarily obstruct or impede the working of the mines; and to this end the mine owner or person in charge shall furnish such mine inspector all assistance in his power, and forthwith, upon the happening of any accident to any miner in or about the mine by reason of the working thereof which causes loss of life, shall report the same, by mail or otherwise, to the mine inspector and the coroner of the county. Each inspector shall have and maintain, at some suitable place in his district, to be approved by the governor, an office, and shall reside in the district and remain therein, unless otherwise engaged in the conduct of his official duties. [22 G. A., ch. 54, § 2; 21 G. A., ch. 140, §§ 1, 2, 6; 20 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 1, 2, 6.] [29 G. A., ch. 99, § 1.]

SEC. 2483. General office—report to governor—compensation. The three inspectors shall maintain a general office in the capitol, and keep therein all records, correspondence, documents, apparatus or other property pertaining to their office; they shall meet in said office biennially on or before August fifteenth preceding the regular session of the general assembly, and make report to the governor of their official doings, including therein all matters which by this chapter are specially committed to their charge, adding such suggestion as to needed future legislation as in their opinion may be important. Each inspector shall receive for his services the sum of eighteen hundred dollars per annum and actual traveling expenses, not exceeding seven hundred and fifty dollars yearly, the traveling expenses to be paid quarterly upon an itemized statement duly verified and audited by the state auditor. [22 G. A., ch. 52, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 140, §§ 3, 4; 20 G. A., ch. 21, §§ 3, 4.] [28 G. A., ch. 79, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 129.]

SEC. 2485. Maps of mines—surveys—double damages.

The statute authorizing the recovery of double damages occasioned by the removal of coal from the land of an owner without his authority is not unconstitutional. Mier v. Phillips Fuel Co., 130-570.

Evidence in a particular case considered and held sufficient to show such trespass as a basis for the recovery of double damages; but held that evidence as to removal of coal from adjoining land was irrelevant and should not have been admitted. Ibid.

SEC. 2488. Ventilation. The owner or person in charge of any mine shall provide and maintain, whether the mine be operated by shaft, slope or drift, an amount of ventilation of not less than one hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each person, nor less than five hundred cubic feet of air per minute for each mule or horse employed therein, which shall be so circulated throughout the mines as to dilute, render harmless and expel all noxious and poisonous gases in all working parts of the same; [But in no case shall the air current be a greater distance than sixty feet from the working face, except when making cross cuts in entries for an air-course; then in that case the distance shall not be greater than seventy feet, provided, however, that the district mine inspector may in writing grant permission to go beyond the limit herein mentioned when the conditions are such in a special case as to require it. When the air current is carried to the working face of the rooms, in double-room mining, such air current shall be treated as that contemplated in this act.] to do this, artificial means by exhaust-steam, forcing-fans, furnaces, or other contrivances of sufficient capacity and power, shall be kept in operation. If a furnace is used, it shall be so constructed, by lining the up-cast for a sufficient distance with incombustible material, that fire cannot be communicated to any part of the works. When the mine inspector shall find the air insufficient, or the men working under unsafe conditions, he shall at once give notice to the mine owner or his agent or person in charge, and upon failure to make the necessary changes within a reasonable time, to be fixed by him, he may order the men out, to remain out until the mine is put in proper condition. [22 G. A., ch. 56, § 3; 20 G. A., ch. 21, § 10.] [27 G. A., ch. 59, § 1.]

Failure of a mine owner to so far remove or dilute noxious gases as to render the mine a safe place for the miners to work will render him liable. Mosgrove v. Zimbleman Coal Co., 110-169.

SEC. 2489. Safety appliances—competent engineers—boys not employed.

Whether a roof which is in a dangerous condition should be propped by the miner or by the mine owner is to be determined by the jury with reference to whether it is the roof of a room under the charge of the miner, or of an entry for the safety of which the mine owner is responsible. Taylor v. Star Coal Co., 110-40.

The requirement that safety gates shall be maintained at the entrance to a mine shaft contemplates the guarding of the shaft opening so as to prevent involuntary entrance and not an absolute and complete covering of the shaft. Jacobson v. Smith, 123-263.

An employe engaged at work on top of the cage in a mine shaft cannot complain of the negligence of the mine owner in not providing the cage with a cover. Ibid.

The superintendent of a mine having the authority to provide an engineer as a substitute for the regular engineer in charge of the hoisting machinery and power, held that the superintendent himself attempting to operate such machinery and power in the absence of the engineer rendered the employer liable for damages from his own incompetency to discharge such duty. Beresford v. American Coal Co., 124-34.

RELATING TO EXAMINATION OF MINE FOREMEN, PIT BOSSES AND HOISTING ENGINEERS.

SEC. 2489-a. Certificate of competency. That from and after January 1st, 1901, it shall be unlawful for any person to discharge, or attempt to discharge, any of the duties of mine foreman, pit boss, or hoisting engineer at any coal mine, whose daily output is in excess of twenty-five tons, unless he shall hold a certificate of competency for such position as provided in this act. But in case of the discharge, resignation, or disability of any person lawfully performing such duties the owner, agent, operator, or managing officer of said mine shall have a reasonable time within which to secure the services of a certificated person to take the place of the one so discharged, resigned, or disabled; and during such time a competent and capable person, whether certificated as provided in this act or not, may be temporarily employed to perform such services. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 1.]

SEC. 2489-b. How procured. Any person may secure the certificate of competency herein provided for by appearing before the board created by section twenty-four hundred and seventy-nine (2479) of the code for the examination of state mine inspectors, and submitting to such examination as to his qualifications, or producing such evidence of service, as required by this act. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 2.]

SEC. 2489-c. Board of examiners to adopt rules—compensation. The board of examiners referred to in the last preceding section shall meet at such times and places, shall adopt such rules, conditions, and regulations, and shall prescribe and conduct such examinations as shall be more efficient to give effect to the spirit and intent of this act. The members of said board shall each receive the sum of five dollars per day for every day actually employed in the discharge of the duties imposed herein, together with their actual expenses incurred in the performance of such duties, which expenses shall be itemized and verified as provided by section 2480 of the code, but they shall not be allowed compensation for more than seventy days in any one year. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 3.]

SEC. 2489-d. Certificate of competency—how issued. The certificate of competency herein provided shall be issued (1) to any person who shall satisfactorily pass such examination, written or oral, as may be prescribed by said board; (2) to any person who shall produce satisfactory evidence that he has for a period of four years immediately preceding the examination, continuously and capably performed the duties of mine foreman, pit boss, or hoisting engineer as the case may be. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 4.]

SEC. 2489-e. Fees—certificates recorded. Every person applying for a certificate under this act shall pay to said examining board a fee of two dollars, and every successful applicant shall pay to said board an additional fee of two dollars; all of said fees to be accounted for and covered into the state treasury. Each certificate issued under this act shall be recorded in the office of the examining board, and shall show the name, age, residence, and years of experience of the person to whom it was issued. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 5.]

SEC. 2489-f. Penalty. No owner, agent, operator, or managing officer of any coal mine to which this act applies shall employ any mine foreman, pit boss, or hoisting engineer who does not hold the certificate herein contemplated. And any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be punished by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. [28 G. A., ch. 82, § 6.]

SEC. 2490. Scales and weighers—records—payment in money. The owner or operator shall, if the miners are paid by weight, provide the mine with suitable scales of standard make, and require the person selected to weigh the coal delivered from the mine to be sworn before some person authorized to administer oaths, to the effect that he will keep the scales correctly and truly balanced, and accurately weigh and a true record keep of each car delivered, which oath, with that of the check-weighman hereinafter provided for, shall be conspicuously displayed with record of weights at the place of weighing, which record shall carry the account of each miner by itself, be open to the inspection at all proper times of miners and all others having a pecuniary interest in the mine, and all damages sustained on account of a failure to weigh and credit to the proper person any coal mined shall be recoverable in an action brought within two years from the time the right thereto accrued, and a knowledge of a violation of this provision by the miner shall not be a defense thereto. The miners employed and working in any mine may furnish a competent check-weighman, who, before entering upon his duties, shall make and subscribe to an oath to the effect that he is duly qualified and will faithfully discharge his duties as check-weighman, and he shall at all proper times have access to and the right to examine the scales, machinery or apparatus used in weighing and seeing all measures and weights of coal mined and the accounts kept thereof; but not more than one person on the part of the miners collectively shall have this right, and such examination and inspection shall be so made as to create no unnecessary interference with the use of such scales, machinery or apparatus. The owner or agent shall, where the miner is by contract to be paid by the ton or other quantity, unless otherwise agreed upon in writing, weigh the coal before screening, and the miner shall be credited at the rate of eighty pounds to the bushel and two thousand pounds to the ton, but no payment shall be demanded for sulphur, rock, slate, black-jack, dirt or other impurities which may be loaded or found with the coal. Where ten or more miners are employed, such owner or agent shall not sell, give, deliver or issue, directly or indirectly, to any person employed, in payment for labor due or as advances for labor to be performed, any script, check, draft, order or other evidence of indebtedness payable or redeemable otherwise than in money at the face value, and he shall not compel or in any manner endeavor to coerce any employe to purchase goods or supplies from any particular person, firm, company or corporation; but all wages shall be paid in money upon demand semi-monthly, by paying for those earned during the first fifteen days of each month not later than the first Saturday after the twentieth of said month, and for those earned after the fifteenth of each month not later than the first Saturday after the fifth of the succeeding month. A failure or refusal to make payment within five days after demand shall entitle the laborer to recover the amount due him, and one dollar per day additional for each day such payment is neglected or refused, not exceeding the sum due, and in any action therefor the court shall tax as a part of the costs a reasonable attorney fee to plaintiff's attorney. [25 G. A., ch. 98; 22 G. A., ch. 53, §§ 1-3; 22 G. A., ch. 54, §§ 1, 3; 22 G. A., ch. 55, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 80, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 81, § 1.]

Section applied. Mitchell v. Burwell, 110-10.

SEC. 2491. Penalties.

Where a miner was injured by the fall of slate in an entry, held that the question as to whose duty it was to inspect and repair was to be determined in view of the custom and usage in the business. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 121-121.

SEC. 2494. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation, either by themselves, agents or employes, selling or offering to sell for illuminating purposes in any mine in this state any adulterated or impure oil, or oil not recognized by the state board of health as suitable for illuminating purposes as contemplated in this chapter, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense; and any mine owner or operator or employe of such owner or operator who shall knowingly use, or any mine operator who shall knowingly permit to be used, for illuminating purposes in any mine in this state any impure or adulterated oil, oil that has not been inspected and approved by an inspector, or any oil the use of which is forbidden by this chapter, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars. [26 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.] [27 G. A., ch. 60, § 1.]

SEC. 2495-a. Repeal—testing oil. That section twenty-four hundred and ninety-five (2495) be stricken out and the following substituted therefor:

It shall be the duty of an inspector of petroleum products to inspect and test all oil offered for sale, sold, or used for illuminating purposes in coal mines in this state, and for such purpose he may enter upon the premises of any person. If upon test and examination the oil shall meet the requirements made and provided by the state board of health, he shall brand, over his own official signature and date, the barrel or vessel holding the same with the words "Approved for illuminating coal mines." Should it fail to meet such requirements, he shall brand it over his official signature and date, "Rejected for illuminating coal mines." All inspection shall be made within this state, and paid for by the person for whom the inspection is made at the rate of ten cents per barrel or vessel, which charge shall be a lien on the oil inspected, and be collected by the inspector. Each inspector shall be governed in all things respecting his record, compensation, expenses, and returns to the treasurer of state and secretary of state as provided in sections twenty-five hundred and six and twenty-five hundred and seven of the code. It shall be the duty of the inspector whenever he has good reason to believe that oil is being sold or used in violation of the provisions of this chapter to make complaint to the county attorney of the county in which the offense was committed, who shall forthwith commence proceedings against the offender in any court of competent jurisdiction. All reasonable expenses for analyzing suspected oil shall be paid by the owner of the oil whenever it is found that he is selling or offering to sell impure oil in violation of the provisions of this chapter. Such expenses may be recovered in a civil action, and in criminal proceedings such expenses shall be taxed as part of the costs. [27 G. A., ch. 60, § 2.]

SEC. 2495-b. Shot examiners—proof of competency. In all mines, where the coal is blasted from the solid, competent persons shall be employed to examine all shots, before they are charged. Said examiners to have the power to prohibit the charging and firing of any shot which, in their judgment is unsafe. Before entering upon the discharge of their duties, said examiners shall give proof of their competency to the state mine inspector of the district in which the mine, where they are employed, is located, and said inspector shall certify to the operator of each mine the persons who have given proof of their competency to act in the capacity of shot examiners. The state mine inspector to have the power to refuse to give permission to any person to act as shot examiner who, in his judgment, is not sufficiently competent; or he may revoke the permission granted, should it appear that a shot examiner is negligent, or careless in the performance of his work. [29 G. A., ch. 100, § 1.]

SEC. 2496-a. Transportation of powder into coal mines. That no person, firm or corporation, shall be permitted to transport, carry or convey by any electrical process whatever, any powder or other explosives, into any coal mine where twenty or more persons are employed therein until after the coal miners and other employes have ceased their work and have departed from the mines. [32 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.]

SEC. 2496-b. Storage of powder—what permitted. No operator or other person in charge of any coal mine, shall suffer or permit under any circumstances the storing of powder, or other explosives, in any coal mine except as follows: Each miner shall be permitted to have in his separate and individual possession at one time not more than two kegs containing twenty-five pounds of powder each, and other explosives sufficient for one day's use. Such powder, or other explosives, shall be kept by the miner in a wooden or metallic box or boxes securely locked, and said boxes shall be kept at a reasonable distance from the track; nor shall black powder and high explosives be kept in the same box. [32 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.]

SEC. 2496-c. Supply for following day—where deposited. It shall not be construed as storing powder, as defined in section two hereof, to deposit the powder, or other explosives, at the end of the electrical or mechanical haulage at the face of the mine for the following day's use; provided, that it is transported, conveyed or deposited in conformity with the provisions of section one hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 130, § 3.]

SEC. 2496-d. Transportation and delivery—by whom done. The transportation and delivery of all powder and other explosives in said coal mines shall be done by the operator or by men employed by him for that purpose. [32 G. A., ch. 130, § 4.]

SEC. 2496-e. Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 130, § 5.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF THE GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

SECTION 2500. Repeal—detailed reports—co-operation with other surveys. That sections twenty-five hundred (2500), twenty-five hundred and one (2501) and twenty-five hundred and two (2502) of the code be and the same are hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted as a substitute therefor the following:

He shall make detailed maps and reports of counties and districts as fast as the work is completed, which shall embrace such geological, mineralogical, topographical and scientific details as are necessary to make complete records thereof, and, when the information obtained warrants it, the results of any special investigation made by him may be brought together in a report for publication, accompanied by proper illustrations and diagrams. He shall co-operate with the United States geological survey and with adjoining state surveys in the making of topographic maps and the study of geologic problems of the state when in the opinion of the geological board such co-operation will result in profit to the state. He shall, before the first day of January of each year, make to the geological board a full report of the work in the preceding year, together with such minor reports and papers as may be considered desirable for publication. 31 G. A., ch. 104, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2501. Annual report—bulletins. The annual report, together with bulletins of educational and scientific value, and special bulletins containing information necessary for the immediate use of the people at large, shall be published by the state under the direction of the board, and disposed of as other published reports of state officers when no special provision is made, but the copies remaining in the control of the board after such distribution, after retaining a sufficient number to supply probable future demands, shall be sold to persons making application therefor at the cost price of publication, the money thus accruing to be turned into the treasury of the state. [31 G. A., ch. 104, § 3.]

SEC. 2502. Expenses. The members of the board shall be allowed actual expenses incurred in attending to the duties assigned to them by this chapter. Postage, stationery and office expenses of the state geologist shall be paid by the state, as are the expenses of the other state officers but all other expenses of the survey shall be audited and allowed by the board; and the entire expenses provided for under this chapter, aside from the above exception relating to office supplies and expenses, and that of the publication and distribution of reports and bulletins, shall not exceed the sum of eight thousand dollars per annum, which amount is hereby appropriated annually, to be paid out on warrants of the state auditor on the presentation of bills duly audited and allowed as provided in this section. [31 G. A., ch. 104, § 4.]

OF INSPECTION OF PETROLEUM PRODUCTS.

SECTION 2503. Inspectors—chief inspector. The governor shall appoint inspectors of products of petroleum, not exceeding fourteen in number, one of whom shall be designated as chief inspector, who shall have general supervision of the inspection service of the state, except in the matter of making reports and the payment and receipts of fees. All differences arising in the inspection of oils shall be referred to the chief inspector and his decision of the question shall be final. The chief inspector shall make such recommendations to the state board of health as may be deemed necessary to improve the inspection service. He shall devote his time and service wholly to the inspection of oil and the duties of his office. Inspectors may appoint such deputies, helpers and branders as may be necessary in the proper discharge of their official duties, but such appointments before becoming effective must be submitted to, approved and confirmed, and their compensation fixed by the executive council as in their judgment may be necessary, equitable and just. Each inspector shall be a resident of the state, and not interested directly or indirectly in the manufacture or sale of products of petroleum. His term of office shall begin on the first day of July in each odd-numbered year. He shall give bond to the state in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties, with sureties who shall, in addition to the usual justification, make oath, entered on the bond, that they are not directly or indirectly interested in the manufacture or sale of products of petroleum for illuminating purposes, which bond shall be for the benefit of all persons injured through the failure of the inspector to perform his duties, and shall be filed with, and the sureties thereon approved by, the secretary of state. Provided however, that the term of office of the inspectors appointed during the year 1906 shall expire on the 30th day of June, 1907. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.]

SEC. 2504. Regulations. The state board of health shall make rules and regulations for the inspection of petroleum products, for the government of inspectors, and prescribe the instruments and apparatus to be used. Such rules and regulations shall be approved by the governor, and, when so approved, shall be binding upon all inspectors. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 2.]

SEC. 2505. Inspection—branding—fees—supplies. Each inspector shall be furnished, at reasonable expense to the state, with the necessary supplies, instruments and apparatus for testing, and shall promptly make inspection, and test and brand all illuminating oils kept for sale, and for such purpose may enter upon the premises of any person. He shall reject all oils for illuminating purposes which will emit a combustible vapor at a temperature of 105 degrees, standard Fahrenheit thermometer, closed test, not less than one-half pint of oil to be used in the flash test. If upon test and examination the oil shall meet the requirements, he shall brand over his official signature and date the barrel or package holding the same, "approved, flash test...degrees", inserting in the blank the number. Should it fail to meet the requirements, it shall be branded under his official signature and date, "rejected for illuminating purposes." All inspections shall be made within the state, and paid for by the person for whom the inspection is made, at the rate of ten cents per barrel, fifty-five gallons for this purpose constituting a barrel, which charge shall be a lien upon the oil inspected, and be collected by the inspector, reported and paid to the secretary of state, on or before the fifteenth day of each month. For the purposes of this act, gasoline, benzine and naphtha shall be deemed illuminating oil. No gasoline shall be sold, given away or delivered to any person in this state until the package, cask, barrel or vessel containing the same has been plainly marked "gasoline" in such manner as the executive council may prescribe. There shall be no refund nor rebate of charges made or paid for inspection, except upon a duly verified certificate of the owner that the goods, for which such rebate is asked, have been disposed of outside of the state. Said certificate to be in such form as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state and shall be delivered to the inspector and attached to his monthly report. The expense of inspection shall be deducted from any rebate or refund so granted. Any person, firm, corporation or agent violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. All necessary supplies, labels, instruments and apparatus as contemplated in this chapter, shall be purchased by the executive council, and shall be furnished to inspectors as needed by them, upon requisition therefor, made to the chief inspector, approved by him and forwarded to the executive council. Every person who receives products of petroleum for sale which have not been inspected as provided in this chapter, shall, within five days after the receipt thereof, notify the inspector of that inspection district that the same is in his possession; and to neglect so to do shall be deemed a misdemeanor. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 3.]

The failure of the seller to label a vessel containing gasoline sold to a customer, as required by this section, held to constitute negligence per se so as to render the seller liable for injuries sustained by an infant daughter of the purchaser in using the gasoline to start a fire, under the belief that it was the ordinary form of coal oil. Ives v. Welden, 114-476.

SEC. 2506. Record and report—reports from companies, agents, etc. Each inspector shall keep an accurate record of all oils inspected and branded, the number of gallons, the number and kind of barrels or packages, the date and number of gallons approved, the number rejected, the name of the person for whom inspection was made, and the amount of money received therefor, the necessary traveling expenses incurred, and the expenses incurred in prosecution, which record at all reasonable times shall be open to public inspection. A copy of this record duly verified under oath for the preceding month shall be filed with the secretary of state on or before the fifteenth day of each month, who shall examine said report and if found correct endorse his approval thereon, and certify the same to the executive council, and when approved by said council, the auditor of state shall issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount so approved and due the several inspectors, and no item of expense shall be allowed and paid not shown in such reports. It shall be the duty of all persons, firms or corporations, officers or agents thereof within the state, receiving any of the products of petroleum subject to inspection, to file with the secretary of state on or before the tenth day of each month, a certificate duly verified, in such form as shall be approved by the secretary of state, to cover the month preceding the one in which said report is made. Such report shall show the number of tanks or barrels, and if in tanks the tank number, of each product inspected for such person, firm, corporation, officer or agent, the amount of fees paid for such inspection, to whom paid, and, that the amounts so stated are all the products received by him or them which are subject to inspection during such period. For any failure to make the reports contemplated in this section the person, firm, corporation, officer, agent or employe shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 4.]

SEC. 2507. Compensation of inspectors—expenses. Each inspector shall be allowed as full compensation for his services all fees and commissions earned and collected by him up to fifty dollars per month, and twenty-five per cent of any sum collected in any one month in excess of fifty dollars, but in no case shall his compensation exceed one hundred dollars per month, except that the chief inspector shall be allowed twenty-five per cent. of any sum collected by him in any one month in excess of fifty dollars, up to and not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars. Inspectors shall also be allowed such other sums necessarily and actually expended in the discharge of their official duties; and for necessary expenses incurred for prosecution of violation of the provisions of this chapter, and for necessary help in branding barrels. All money collected each month by inspectors, shall, on or before the fifteenth day of the following month, be paid to the secretary of state, and by him accounted for as other fees of his office. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 5.]

Where an oil inspector dies after having rendered services for part of a month and his successor completes the service for that month, each is entitled to the maximum salary for that part of a month during which he has served. State v. Dyer, 106-640.

SEC. 2508. Penalties—damages. If any person, company or corporation, or agent thereof, shall sell, or attempt to sell, any product of petroleum for illuminating purposes which has not been inspected and branded as in this chapter provided, or shall falsely brand any barrel or package containing such petroleum product, or shall refill with products of petroleum barrels or packages having the inspector's brand thereon, without erasing such brand and having the contents thereof inspected, and the barrel or package rebranded, or shall purchase, sell or dispose of any empty barrel or package without thoroughly removing the inspection brand, or shall knowingly or negligently sell or cause to be sold, or shall use or cause to be used, any product of petroleum mentioned in this chapter not inspected and tested, except as otherwise authorized herein; or if any person shall adulterate with any substance for the purpose of sale or use any product of petroleum to be used for illuminating purposes in such a manner as to render it dangerous, or shall sell or offer for sale, or use any product of petroleum for illuminating purposes, which will emit a combustible vapor at a temperature of less than 105 degrees, standard Fahrenheit thermometer, closed test, except as otherwise provided in this section for illuminating railway cars, boats and public conveyance, and except when the oils from which said gas or vapor is generated in closed reservoirs outside the building to be lighted thereby, and except the lighter products of petroleum when used in such lamps or apparatus which, having been submitted to the state board of health and having been examined and tested by said board shall be found to be safe for the use of the public and for street light by street lamps, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or if any common carrier shall carry in any railway passenger, baggage, mail, or express car, street railway car, boat, stage coach, omnibus, or other means of public conveyance, or use or burn therein any oil or fluid, whether composed wholly or in part of petroleum or its products, which will ignite and burn at a temperature of 300 degrees Fahrenheit thermometer, open test, for lighting any lamp, vessel, or fixture of any kind, or boat or street railway car, stage coach or other means of public conveyance; or if any inspector shall falsely brand any package or barrel, or shall practice any fraud or deceit in office, or be guilty of any official misconduct or culpable negligence to the injury of another, or shall deal or have any pecuniary interest, directly or indirectly in any oils or fluids sold for illuminating purposes while holding such office, he or such person, company, corporation or agent shall be fined not less than fifty dollars and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages which may be sustained on account thereof, and each such inspector shall be fined in a sum not less than ten dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months, or be punished by both fine and imprisonment. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 6.]

The exception of the proviso in this section as to the "Welsbach Hydrocarbon Incandescent Lamp" is unconstitutional as attempting to confer a special privilege, but the whole section is not invalid on that account, as the exception is not necessary to the completeness of the general statutory provision which had been in force prior to the attempt to incorporate the exception. State v. Santee, 111-1.

SEC. 2508-a. Duties of state board of health—examination of lamps and apparatus. The state board of health shall examine the particular design, mechanism, and workmanship of such lamps or apparatus as shall be presented to such board, and test said lamps or apparatus, and, if it shall find any lamp or apparatus to be safe, said board shall enter the findings of the board upon the records of the proceedings of said board. The board shall have power, in case it comes to the notice of the board that any lamp or apparatus which it has heretofore approved as safe, because either of change of design, the use of unsuitable material, or poor workmanship in the construction of such lamps or apparatus, or for any other cause, is unsafe as then manufactured, and dangerous to public safety to cancel its approval of such lamp or apparatus, and after such cancellation of the approval of said lamp or apparatus, it shall be unlawful to sell or use the same, and no lamps or apparatus manufactured or sold after such disapproval shall be used in burning the lighter products of petroleum for illuminating purposes. The state board of health shall notify by registered letter the several inspectors of any approval or disapproval by them of any lamp or apparatus submitted to them for examination. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 7.]

SEC. 2509. Removal of inspectors. It shall be the duty of the governor to remove from office any inspector who is incompetent or unfaithful in the discharge of his official duty, or, having knowledge of the violation of any of the provisions of this chapter, shall neglect or refuse to prosecute the offender. In July of each year each inspector shall file with the secretary of the executive council an inventory of all instruments and apparatus belonging to the state, in his possession, or that of his deputy or helper, which shall be fully accounted for in such manner as may be prescribed by the executive council. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 8.]

SEC. 2509-a. Biennial report. The secretary of state shall make and deliver to the governor a report, for the fiscal year ending on the thirtieth day of June in each even-numbered year, of all inspections made, the receipts and expenditures therefor, and such other items as are by this chapter required to be made of record. Provided, however, he shall make and deliver report to the governor for the fiscal year ending on the 30th day of June, 1906, which report shall cover the period only from the date of his last biennial report. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 9.] [31 G. A., ch. 105, § 2.]

SEC. 2510. Repeal. The law as it appears in chapter eleven (11), title twelve (12), of the code and the law as it appears in sections two thousand five hundred and three (2503), two thousand five hundred and eight (2508) and two thousand five hundred and eight-a (2508-a), of the supplement to the code, relating to the inspection of petroleum products, are hereby repealed and the foregoing enacted in lieu thereof. [30 G. A., ch. 87, § 10.]

CHAPTER 11-A.

OF THE MANUFACTURE AND SALE OF LINSEED AND OTHER OILS, THE ADULTERATION THEREOF AND PENALTY.

SECTION 2510-a. Repeal. Sections two thousand five hundred and ten-a (2510-a), two thousand five hundred and ten-b (2510-b), two thousand five hundred and ten-c (2510-c), two thousand five hundred and ten-d (2510-d) and two thousand five hundred and ten-e (2510-e) of the supplement to the code are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 8.]

SEC. 2510-b. Duty of manufacturers and dealers. Every person, firm or corporation who shall expose for sale, or sell, within this state, any white lead, paint, or linseed oil shall accurately label the same as hereinafter required. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.]

SEC. 2510-c. Paint defined. The term "paint" as used in this act shall include white lead in oil or any compound intended for the same use, paste or semi-paste, and liquid or mixed paint ready for use, or any compound intended for the same use. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 2.]

SEC. 2510-d. Labels. Labels required by this act shall clearly and distinctly state the name and address of the manufacturer of the article, or the dealer therein, or of the party for whom the same is manufactured and show, with substantial accuracy, the percentage of each ingredient, both solid and liquid, contained therein (in continuous list with no intervening matter of any kind); provided, that in case of paint other than white paint, the ingredients, other than the coloring material, may be treated as one hundred per cent., in which case it shall be necessary to state the description or trade-name of such coloring matter and state, with substantial accuracy, its chemical analysis. The label shall also state, in case of liquid paints, oils, and other compounds, on packages holding one quart or more, the net measure of contents of each can, package or container. In case of white lead and other paints and compounds, the label shall show on package weighing four pounds or more the net weight of each can, package or container. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 3.]

SEC. 2510-e. Flax seed or linseed oil—chemical and temperature tests. No person, firm or corporation shall manufacture for sale or expose for sale or sell within this state any flaxseed or linseed oil, unless the same answers a chemical test for purity recognized in the United States Pharmacopœia, or any flax seed or linseed oil as "boiled linseed oil" unless the same shall have been put in its manufacture to a temperature of 225 degrees Fahrenheit. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 4.]

SEC. 2510-f. Tanks or vessels containing oil to be marked. No person, firm or corporation shall expose for sale or sell any flax seed or linseed oil, unless it is exposed for sale or sold under its true name, and each tank car, tank, barrel, keg, or vessel containing such oil has distinctly and durably marked therein the true name of such oil in ordinary bold faced capital letters not less than five lines pica in size, the words "pure linseed oil—raw," "pure linseed oil—boiled" as the case may be and the name and address of the manufacturer thereof. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 5.]

SEC. 2510-g. Enforcement—bulletins. It is hereby made the duty of the state food and dairy commissioner to enforce the provisions of this act. The inspectors, assistants and chemists appointed by the state food and dairy commissioner shall perform the same duties and have the same authority under this act as are prescribed by chapter one hundred and sixty-six (166), laws of the thirty-first general assembly. The state food and dairy commissioner shall, from time to time, with the approval of the executive council, publish bulletins, giving the results of inspections and analyses, together with such additional information as he may deem suitable. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 6.]

SEC. 2510-h. Penalty. Whoever shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 7.]

SEC. 2510-i. When effective. This act shall take effect on January 1, 1908. [32 G. A., ch. 131, § 9.]

SEC. 2510-j. Sale of gasoline—conditions—penalty. Every person dealing at retail in gasoline in this state shall after the first day of January, 1907, deliver the same to the purchaser, in quantities of more than one quart and less than six gallons, only in barrels, casks, packages, cans or measures painted vermilion red and having the word "gasoline" plainly stencilled or marked thereon. No such dealer shall deliver kerosene in a barrel, cask, package or can painted or marked as above. Every person purchasing gasoline for use shall procure and keep the same only in barrels, casks, packages or cans painted and marked as above. No person keeping for use, or using, kerosene shall put or keep the same in any barrel, cask, package or can painted or marked as above. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished by fine of not less than five, nor more than one hundred dollars. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 1.]

SEC. 2510-k. Gasoline for manufacturing or mechanical purposes. This act shall not be construed to prohibit the use of gasoline from tanks or reservoirs, of not less than ten gallons capacity, for manufacturing or mechanical purposes. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.]

SEC. 2510-l. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 106, § 3.]

OF THE INSPECTION OF PASSENGER BOATS.

SECTION 2512. Certificates—fees. Any inspector, on the request of the owner, agent or master of any boat other than row-boat, upon the inland waters of the state having a carrying capacity of five or more passengers, shall carefully and thoroughly inspect such boat, its appliances and machinery, and, if found in proper condition and safe for the carriage of persons or passengers, give his certificate thereof, including therein the number of persons or passengers that may be carried, and on what waters; which certificate, or a copy thereof, shall be posted in a conspicuous place on the boat, and any boat so inspected and certified shall be entitled to run for the season following the date thereof. In like manner, upon the request of any pilot or engineer for a license as such, the inspector shall forthwith investigate the competency of the applicant, his acquaintance with and experience in his business, his habits as to sobriety, and other qualifications, and, if found capable of performing well his duties, and of good habits, he shall issue his certificate authorizing him to act as pilot or engineer, as the case may be, for five years from the date thereof, unless sooner revoked for cause, which revocation when made shall take effect upon approval by the governor. The inspector may charge and require advance payment for inspection, for each sailboat, one dollar, each boat propelled by other power with a capacity of not more than twenty persons, five dollars, those of greater capacity, ten dollars, and for each applicant for license as pilot or engineer, three dollars. [22 G. A., ch. 107, §§ 3-5.] [28 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

SEC. 2513. Penalties. If any owner, agent or master of any such boat, having a capacity of carrying five or more persons, plying the inland waters of the state, shall hire, or offer to hire, such boat for the carrying of persons, or receive persons thereon for hire, without first obtaining annually, before the boating season, a certificate as in this chapter required, or if such owner, agent or master, having obtained such certificate, shall permit or receive for carriage on such boat a greater number of persons than authorized therein, or if any person shall act as pilot or engineer on any boat mentioned for which inspection and license are herein required, without first obtaining a license therefor, or if, having such license, he continues to follow such avocation after the same has been revoked, or has expired, he shall be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or punished by both fine and imprisonment; but the provisions of this chapter shall not apply to vessels licensed by authority of the United States. [22 G. A., ch. 107, §§ 1, 3, 4.] [28 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2514. Reports. Each inspector annually, on or before the first day of January, shall report to the governor the number and date of licenses granted pilots or engineers, to whom issued, the date thereof, the number and kind of boats inspected, the time and place of inspection, upon what waters to be used and such other matters as may be considered useful or of general interest, with the total amount of fees received from all sources. [22 G. A., ch. 107, § 6.] [28 G. A., ch. 84, § 3.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF THE DAIRY COMMISSIONER AND IMITATION DAIRY PRODUCTS.

SECTION 2515. Appointment, bond, powers and duties of commissioner—office deputy—assistant—salaries—expenses—report. On or before the first day of April of each even-numbered year, the governor shall appoint a dairy commissioner, who shall have a practical knowledge of and experience in the manufacture of dairy products, and hold his office for two years from the first day of May following his appointment, and until his successor is appointed and qualified, subject to removal by the governor for inefficiency, neglect or violation of duty. He shall give bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, with sureties to be approved by and filed with secretary of state. He shall keep on hand a supply of standard test tubes or bottles and milk measures or pipettes adapted for use by each milk testing machine, the manufacturers or dealers of which have filed with the dairy commissioner a certificate from the director of the Iowa agricultural experiment station, which shall certify that said milk testing machine, when properly and correctly operated, will produce accurate measurements of butter fat, and furnish to any person or corporation desiring the same for testing milk one such tube or bottle, and such milk measure or pipette for each factory, of the kind adapted for the machine operated therein, upon request therefor, certifying it to be accurate, reliable and standard, placing thereon the letters "D. C." as a permanent mark; the tubes or bottles and pipettes to be furnished at the actual cost thereof. He shall have and keep an office in the capitol, and preserve therein all correspondence, documents, records and property of the state pertaining thereto, and may, when necessary, employ an office deputy at a salary of fourteen hundred dollars per year; the dairy commissioner may also appoint, upon the recommendation of the president of the Iowa state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, the director of the Iowa experiment station and the professor of dairying, two assistant[s], who shall perform such duties as may be assigned to him by the dairy commissioner, and who shall receive a salary of fourteen hundred dollars per year, and said deputy and assistant to the dairy commissioner shall be allowed, in addition to their salaries, actual and necessary traveling expenses when in the performance of their official duties, said expenses to be itemized, verified under oath, and when audited and approved by the executive council to be paid upon warrants of the state auditor upon the state treasurer, provided, that such expenditures shall not exceed the appropriation made for the dairy commissioner's office. During his term of office he shall hold no other official position nor any professorship in any state educational institution, and on or before the first day of November shall make annual report to the governor, which shall contain a detailed account of all his doings as commissioner, and the receipts and disbursements of his office since the preceding report, with such facts and statistics in regard to the production, manufacture and sale of dairy products, with such suggestions, as he may regard of public importance connected therewith. In the conduct of his office, he shall have power to issue subpoenas for witnesses, enforce their attendance, and examine them under oath by him to be administered, such witnesses to be allowed fees as in justices' courts, to be paid by the commissioner as part of the expenses of his office, and do such other acts and things as are necessary and proper in the enforcement of the provisions of this chapter. [25 G. A., ch. 47; 24 G. A., ch. 50, § 6; 23 G. A., ch. 52, § 5; 22 G. A., ch. 98, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 52, §§ 11-14.] [28 G. A., ch. 85, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 132.]

SEC. 2516. Imitation butter or cheese.

These provisions, with those of the two made from pure milk and cream. State v. following sections, prohibit the sale of Armour Packing Co., 124-323. oleomargarine which is the color of butter

SEC. 2522. Milk dealers—manufacturers and packers—reports—penalty. Every city milk dealer, or every person furnishing milk or cream to such dealer, or the employe of such milk dealer, and every person or corporation, or the employe of such person or corporation, who operates a creamery, cheese or condensed milk factory, or re-works or packs butter, shall maintain his premises and utensils in a clean and hygienic condition, and shall make, upon blanks furnished by the dairy commissioner, such reports and statistics as may be required for the purpose of compiling statistics authorized by this chapter, and such dealer, owner, operator or business manager shall make such returns and reports within thirty days after receiving the proper blank form from the dairy commissioner and shall certify to the correctness thereof. Whoever shall violate any provision of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than thirty days. [29 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2528-a. Access to factories, buildings, etc. The state food and dairy commissioner and his deputy and assistants shall have full access to all places of business, factories, buildings, wagons and cars used in the manufacture, sale or transportation within the state of any dairy products or imitation thereof. [31 G. A., ch. 107, § 1.]

SEC. 2528-b. Examination and inspection. They may examine and open any package, can or vessel containing, or believed to contain any article or product which may be manufactured, sold or exposed for sale in violation of the laws of this state relative to the dairy products and imitation thereof, and may inspect the contents therein and take therefrom samples for testing or analysis. [31 G. A., ch. 107, § 2.]

SEC. 2528-c. Penalty. Whosoever shall refuse to allow the inspection herein provided for or shall in any way hinder or obstruct the proper officers performing their duties hereunder shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred (100) dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty (30) days. [31 G. A., ch. 107, § 3.]

CHAPTER 14.

OF STATE VETERINARY SURGEON.

SECTION 2529. Appointment—qualification. The state veterinary surgeon shall be appointed by the governor, subject to removal by him for cause, who shall hold office for three years. He shall be a graduate of some regularly established veterinary college, skilled in that science, and shall be by virtue of his office a member of the state board of health. He shall maintain an office at the capitol in a room assigned for his use by the executive council, and his postage, stationery and office supplies shall be furnished by the state. [20 G. A., ch. 189, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.]

SEC. 2530. Powers—regulations. He shall have supervision of all contagious and infectious diseases among domestic animals in, or being driven or transported through, the state, and is empowered to establish quarantine against animals thus diseased, or that have been exposed to others thus diseased, whether within or without the state, and, with the concurrence of the state board of health, may make such rules and regulations as he may regard necessary for the prevention and suppression, and against the spread, of said disease or diseases, which rules and regulations the executive council concurring, shall be published and enforced, and in the performance of his duties he may call for the assistance of any peace officer. He may call experts to his assistance when the exigencies of any case demand such action, and may appoint a secretary, who shall receive a salary of seven hundred fifty dollars ($750) per annum, which shall be paid from the state treasury. [20 G. A., ch. 189, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 133, § 2.]

SEC. 2533. Repeal—notice of contagious disease—duty of state veterinary surgeon—assistants. That section twenty-five hundred and thirty-three (2533) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“It shall be the duty of all local boards of health in the state, upon the appearance of any contagious or infectious disease among domestic animals, to notify the state veterinary surgeon at once of the existence of such contagious or infectious disease; and it shall be his duty, whenever notified in writing by a majority of any board of supervisors, township trustees, or of any city or town council, whether in session or not, of the existence of, or probable danger from, any contagious or infectious disease among domestic animals, to repair at once to the place designated in such notice, and make an investigation, and take such action as the exigencies of the case may demand. The governor may appoint such assistant state veterinary surgeons as may be deemed advisable, who shall act under the instruction of the state veterinary surgeon, and, when engaged in the discharge of their duties, shall receive the sum of five dollars ($5) a day and their actual expenses, which compensation and expenses shall be paid from the state treasury upon itemized and verified accounts, audited and approved by the executive council." [32 G. A., ch. 133, § 3.]

SEC. 2534. Executive council to approve claims for destruction of stock—appeal. Whenever in the opinion of the state veterinary surgeon the public safety demands the destruction of any stock, the same may be destroyed upon the written order of such surgeon, with the consent of the owner, or upon approval of the governor, and by virtue of such order such surgeon, his deputy or assistant, or any peace officer, may destroy such diseased stock, and the owner thereof shall be entitled to receive its actual value in its condition when condemned, to be ascertained and fixed by the state veterinary surgeon and the nearest justice of the peace, who, if unable to agree, shall call upon the nearest or other justice of the peace upon whom they agree as umpire, and their judgment shall be final when the value of the stock, if not diseased, would not exceed twenty-five dollars; but in all other cases either party shall have the right of appeal to the district court, but such appeal shall not delay the destruction of the diseased animals. The veterinary surgeon shall at once file with the executive council his written report thereof, who shall, if found correct, indorse their finding thereon, whereupon the auditor of state shall issue his warrant therefor upon the treasurer of state, who shall pay the same out of any moneys at his disposal under the provisions of this act, but no compensation shall be allowed for stock destroyed while in transit through or across the state, and the word "stock," as herein used, shall be held to mean cattle, horses, mules and asses. [20 G. A., ch. 189, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 133, § 4.]

SEC. 2536. Appropriation. There is annually appropriated out of any moneys, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the uses and purposes herein set forth. [20 G. A., ch. 189, § 8.] [27 G. A., ch. 63, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 89.]

SEC. 2538. Repeal—compensation of veterinary surgeon—expenses. That section twenty-five hundred and thirty-eight (2538) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

"The state veterinary surgeon shall receive an annual salary of eighteen hundred dollars ($1800), which shall be paid in equal monthly installments from the state treasury, and shall also receive the actual expenses incurred by him in the discharge of his official duties. All claims for expenses shall be itemized, verified and paid from the state treasury when audited and allowed by the executive council." [32 G. A., ch. 133, § 5.]

CHAPTER 14-A.

OF THE PRACTICE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE, SURGERY AND DENTISTRY.

SECTION 2538-a. Unlawful practice. That it shall be unlawful for any person to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, or dentistry in this state, who shall not have complied with the provisions of this act. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.]

SEC. 2538-b. Repeal—existing practitioners—registration. Section two (2) of chapter ninety-three (93) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

Any person of good moral character who has practiced the profession of veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry in this state for a period of five years immediately preceding the passage of the act of which this is an amendment shall be deemed eligible to registration as an existing practitioner upon presenting to the board of veterinary medical examiners, created by the act of which this is an amendment, satisfactory evidence that such person is of good moral character and that such person had actually practiced veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry in the state of Iowa for a period of five years immediately preceding the passage of the act of which this is an amendment, application for such registration to be made before July 4, 1902. [29 G. A., ch. 170, § 1.]

SEC. 2538-c. Graduates. Any person who is a graduate of a legally chartered and authorized veterinary college or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college, at the time of the passage of this act, or who shall hold a diploma from such institutions prior to 1901, shall be entitled to registration as an existing practitioner upon the presentation of his diploma, duly verified. All applications for such registration to be made before July 4, 1902. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 3.] [29 G. A., ch. 170, § 2.]

SEC. 2538-d. State board of veterinary medical examiners—term—vacancies. The governor of the state shall appoint a board of examiners within sixty days after the passage of this act; said board to be known as the state board of veterinary medical examiners. This board shall consist of three qualified veterinarians, residents of the state, each of whom shall be a graduate of a legally chartered and authorized veterinary college or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college, and who shall be of good standing in the profession. One of these members shall be appointed for one year; one for two years; and each succeeding appointment shall be for three years. Each shall hold office until his successor is duly appointed and qualified. No member of any veterinary college or veterinary department of the state university or agricultural college, or any person connected therewith, shall be eligible to appointment upon said board. The governor shall fill any vacancy which shall occur on the board, and may remove any member of said board for continued neglect of duty, for incompetency, unprofessional, or dishonorable conduct. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 4.]

SEC. 2538-e. Powers of board. This board shall have power to make all needed regulations for its government and proper discharge of its duties in accordance with this act, and shall have power to administer oaths, and take testimony concerning all matters within its jurisdiction. It shall also have the power to revoke any certificate issued by it when it is shown that such certificate was procured by false representation or where good cause for revocation of such certificate has arisen since the issuance thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 5.] [29 G. A., ch. 170, § 3.]

SEC. 2538-f. Meetings. The meetings of the examining board shall be held at least once a year, or at such times and places as it may elect. At any meeting of the board, a majority shall constitute a quorum to transact business, or to conduct examinations. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 6.]

SEC. 2538-g. Certificate of qualification. Said board shall receive applications for registration, according to sections two and three of this act, and shall issue a certificate of qualification to all applicants who conform to the requirements for such registration, signed by the members of the board, provided that the certificate thus granted specifically and plainly states whether or not the one to whom it is granted is a graduate or non-graduate in veterinary medicine. Such certificate shall be conclusive as to the rights of the lawful holder of the same to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, or dentistry in this state. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 7.]

SEC. 2538-h. Registration fee. The fee for registration shall be five dollars ($5), payable in advance to the secretary of the board. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 8.]

SEC. 2538-i. Qualifications—examination—fee—license. From and after January 1st, 1901, any person not authorized to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, and dentistry in this state, and desiring to enter upon such practice, shall be a graduate of a legally chartered and recognized veterinary college or veterinary department of a university or agricultural college, and shall pass the examination required by said state board of veterinary medical examiners. The fee for such examination shall be fifteen dollars ($15) payable in advance to the secretary of the board. The applicant shall be at least twenty-one years of age and of good moral character. Any person conforming to these requirements shall receive a license to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, or dentistry within this state, signed by the members of the board, which license shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which said person resides, the recording fee to be paid by holder of certificate:

(a) A certificate of registration showing that an examination has been made by the proper board of any state or foreign country, the holder thereof having been at the time of said examination a graduate of a legally chartered and authorized veterinary college, or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college, recognized as in good standing by the Iowa state board of veterinary medical examiners.

(b) A certificate of registration or license issued by proper board of any state or foreign country, may be accepted as evidence of qualification for registration in this state, provided that the holder thereof was at the time of such registration the legal possessor of a diploma issued by a legally chartered and authorized veterinary college or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college in any state or foreign country, and that the date thereto was prior to the legal requirement of the examination test in this state. The fee for such registration shall be fifty dollars ($50.00). [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 9.] [29 G. A., ch. 170, § 4.] [30 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

SEC. 2538-i1. Restrictions. If by the laws of any state or foreign country, or rulings or decisions of the appropriate officers of boards thereof any burden, obligation, requirement, disqualification or disability is put upon veterinarians registered in any state or foreign country, or holding diplomas from any legally chartered and authorized veterinary college, or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college, recognized as in good standing by the Iowa state board of veterinary medical examiners, affecting the right of said veterinarians to be registered or admitted to practice in said state or foreign country, then the same or like burdens, obligations, requirements, disqualifications or disability shall be put upon the registration in this state of veterinarians registered in said state or foreign country or holding diplomas from any legally chartered and authorized veterinary college, or veterinary department of any university or agricultural college recognized as in good standing by the Iowa state board of veterinary medical examiners. [30 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.]

SEC. 2538-j. Register—treasurer to hold fees—bond—vouchers. The board shall keep a register of all registered practitioners in the state, setting forth such facts as the board shall see fit. All fees accruing under this act shall be held by the treasurer of the board, who shall execute good and sufficient bond to said board to faithfully discharge his duties, and who shall pay out such funds, only, on vouchers, certified by a majority of said board. It shall be the duty of each person registered as a practitioner under this section, to pay to the secretary of the board an annual fee of one dollar, on or before June 1st of each year, as long as he shall continue in practice in the state of Iowa. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 10.] [30 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2538-k. Compensation—expenses. Each member of said board shall be entitled to receive five dollars ($5) per diem, also actual and necessary traveling expenses, incurred while actually engaged in the discharge of his official duties, provided such compensation and expenses do not exceed said income of fees accruing under this act. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 11.]

SEC. 2538-l. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than thirty days for each and every such offense. It shall be the duty of the county attorney of the county in which violation occurs to conduct all proceedings against violators of this act. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 12.]

SEC. 2538-m. Exceptions. Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to commissioned veterinarians in the United States army or to persons who dehorn cattle, or castrate domestic animals, or to persons who gratuitously treat diseased animals. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 13.]

SEC. 2538-n. Further penalty. Any person who shall, without having been authorized so to do legally, append any veterinary title to his name, or shall assume or advertise any veterinary title in such a manner as to convey the impression that he is a lawful practitioner of veterinary medicine or any of its branches, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished according to the provisions of section twelve (12) of this act. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 14.]

SEC. 2538-o. Re-examinations. In case the examination of any person shall prove unsatisfactory and his name be not registered, he shall be permitted to present himself for re-examination within any period not exceeding twelve months next thereafter, and no charges shall be made for re-examination. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 15.]

SEC. 2538-p. Board to render account to executive council. The board shall render under oath annually on January first to the executive council an account of all fees collected and per diem expenses paid, together with the necessary expenses of the board, and pay over the balance into the state treasury. [28 G. A., ch. 93, § 16.] [30 G. A., ch. 91, § 2.]

CHAPTER 15.

OF THE CARE AND PROPAGATION OF FISH AND THE PROTECTION OF BIRDS AND GAME.

SECTION 2539. Warden—compensation—duties—seizure without warrant—sale. There is hereby created the office of state fish and game warden. The warden shall be appointed by the governor, and hold his office for three years from the first day of April of the year of his appointment. He shall receive a salary of twelve hundred dollars annually to be paid out of the state treasury. He shall have charge and management of the state fish hatcheries, which shall be used in stocking the waters of the state with fish native to the country and to the extent of the means provided by the state. He shall impartially and equitably distribute all fry raised by or furnished to the state, or for it through other sources, in the streams and lakes of the state; shall faithfully and impartially enforce obedience of the provisions of this chapter, and shall make a biennial report to the governor of his doings, together with such information upon the subject of the culture of fish and the protection of game in the country as he may think proper, accompanied with an itemized statement monthly to the executive council under oath of all moneys expended and for what purpose, and of the number and varieties of fish distributed, and in what waters. It shall be the duty of the fish and game warden, sheriffs, constables, and police officers of this state to seize and take possession of any fish, birds, or animals which have been caught, taken, or killed at a time, in a manner, or for a purpose, or had in possession or under control, or have been shipped, contrary to the provisions of this chapter. Such seizure may be made without a warrant. Any court having jurisdiction of the offense, upon receiving proof of probable cause for believing in the concealment of any fish, birds, or animals, caught, taken, killed, had in possession, under control, or shipped contrary to any of the provisions of this chapter, shall issue a search-warrant and cause a search to be made in any place therefor. Any fish, birds, or animals so found shall be sold for the purpose of paying the costs in the case, and the amount, if any, in excess of the costs shall be turned into the school fund of the county in which the seizure is made. Any net, seine, trap, contrivance, material, and substance whatever, while in use or had and maintained for the purpose of catching, taking, killing, trapping or deceiving any fish, birds, or animals contrary to any of the provisions of this chapter is hereby declared to be, and is, a public nuisance, and it shall be the duty of the fish and game warden, sheriffs, constables, and police officers of the state, without warrant or process, to take or seize any and all of the same. And abate and destroy any and all of the same without warrant or process and no liability shall be incurred to the owner or any other person for such seizure and destruction and said warden or his regularly constituted deputies or other peace officers as hereinbefore named shall be released from all liability to any person or persons whomsoever for any act done or committed or property seized or destroyed under or by virtue of this section. [23 G. A., ch. 34, § 12; 17 G. A., ch. 80, §§ 1, 4.] [27 G. A., ch. 64, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2539-a. Repeal. That section five (5) of chapter sixty-four (64) of the laws of the twenty-seventh (27th) general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2540. Fishing—what permitted. Between the first days of November and March, no one shall take from the waters of the state any salmon or trout, nor between the fifteenth day of November and the fifteenth day of May any bass, pike, croppies, pickerel, or catfish, or other game fish, nor shall any one person take of said fish from the waters of the state in any one day more than forty (40) of any or all of said kinds of fish, nor shall any one fish for or by any means catch any fish in any stream, which has been stocked with breeding trout one or two years old, within one year from the date of the stocking thereof, if notice of such fact is by the authority of the warden posted where a public road crosses such stream; nor shall any one at any time take from the waters of the state any fish, except minnows for bait, unless by hook and line; but any person may, between the fifteenth day of May and the fifteenth day of November, use not more than one trot line in streams only, and extending not more than half-way across; nor shall any one place, erect or cause to be placed or erected, any trot line, seine, net, trap, dam or other device or contrivance in the water in such a manner as to hinder or obstruct the free passage of fish, up, down or through the same for the purpose of catching them, except as provided in the next section; nor have, erect or use, while fishing on or through the ice, any house, shed or other protection against the weather, or have or use any stove or other means for creating artificial heat. The possession of a spear or seine in or upon any of the public waters of the state, or upon the ice of the same, or on the shore within a limit of ten rods, or the taking or killing of any fish by any means within three hundred (300) feet of a fishway shall be unlawful.

No person shall, at any time, kill, destroy, have in possession or under control, for any purpose whatever, any bass, catfish, wall-eyed pike, or trout less than six (6) inches in length, except for the purpose of returning the same to the water from which they were taken, as soon as they are taken therefrom, with as little injury to the fish as possible. [26 G. A., ch. 80, § 1; 25 G. A., ch. 65; 23 G. A., ch. 34, §§ 2, 3, 6, 7; 17 G. A., ch. 80, §§ 5, 6; 16 G. A., ch. 70, § 6.] [27 G. A., ch. 64, §§ 2, 4.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, §§ 2, 4.] [30 G. A., ch. 92, §§ 1, 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 93.]

Fish and game are so related to the public welfare that they have, time out of mind, been the subjects of legal control, and their preservation has ever been a matter of legislative concern. Statutes relating to the preservation of fish and game are an abridgment of otherwise legal rights of the owners of the soil in taking fish and game thereon. State v. Beardslay, 108-396; State v. Meek, 112-338.

Several counts charging illegal seining of fish may be embraced in a single information before a justice of the peace, and the fact that the aggregate fine which may be imposed under such information exceeds $100 does not deprive the court of jurisdiction. State v. Denhardt, 129-135.

One who engages in the unlawful act of seining by which fish are taken and carried away may be punished although it does not appear that he assisted in carrying such fish away. Ibid.

SEC. 2540-a. Explosives—drugs—penalty. It shall be unlawful for any one to place in the waters of the state any lime, ashes, or drug of any kind or other substance, explode dynamite, gun cotton, giant powder or other compound or preparation or use electricity in any way with the intent to kill or so to affect any fish that it may be taken and any one guilty of any of said acts shall, upon conviction thereof be fined not less than fifty ($50.00) dollars nor more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days. [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2546. Taking by warden—written permits. The warden may take from any of the public waters of the state, at any time and in any manner, any fish for the purpose of propagating or re-stocking other waters, or exchanging with fish commissioners or wardens of other states. Provided, further, that the warden may, upon proper application in writing, made upon blanks furnished by said warden, issue to whomsoever he may see fit, written permits, upon blank forms to be furnished by said warden, suspending for a specified period specified portions of this chapter relating to fishing and authorizing the person to whom said permit is issued, to take from certain designated lakes of the state, having an area of not less than two (2) square miles, buffalo, carp, quillbacks, redborse, suckers and gar, as in said permit named, in any quantities and for all purposes; provided, however, that no such permit holder shall be authorized to exercise the rights granted in said permit, except in the presence and under the supervision of the warden or one or more of his regularly constituted deputies, without expense to the state, and provided that seining shall not be permitted between the first day of December and the fifteenth day of June. [23 G. A., ch. 34, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 6.] [30 G. A., ch. 94.]

The warden has no authority to take, or empower others to take, fish from the public waters for the purpose of stocking private ponds. State v. Sears, 115-28.

SEC. 2547. Rivers excepted—dams. Nothing herein contained shall be held to apply to fishing in the Mississippi or Missouri rivers, nor to so much of the Des Moines river as forms the boundary line between this state and Missouri, nor to forbid the erection of dams across the waters of the state for manufacturing or other lawful purposes, subject to the provisions of the following section. [23 G. A., ch. 34, § 11; 18 G. A., ch. 92; 16 G. A., ch. 70, § 10.] [29 G. A., ch. 104, § 1.]

SEC. 2548. Fish ways.

The legislature may provide for the passage of fish along, and their protection in, unnavigable as well as navigable waters. State v. Beardsley, 108-396.

One who acquires the right to maintain a dam by grant from the state is subject, without reservation in the grant, to the subsequent control of the legislature as to the construction of fishways. State v. Meek, 112-338.

But where, in an action before a justice of the peace having jurisdiction, it was determined that the owner of the dam was not liable for a violation of the statute in not maintaining a fishway, on the ground that by reason of the grant from the state the statute was not applicable to him, and this judgment was not appealed from, held that this constituted a prior adjudication. Ibid.

SEC. 2551. Game protected. No person shall trap, shoot or kill any pinnated grouse or prairie chicken between the first day of December and the first day of September next following; any woodcock, between the first day of January and the tenth day of July; any ruffed grouse or pheasant, wild turkey or quail, between the fifteenth day of December and the first day of November; any wild duck, goose or brant, rail, plover, sandpiper and marsh or beach bird, between the fifteenth day of April and the first day of September; or any gray or fox squirrel or timber squirrel, between the first day of January and the first day of September, provided that it shall be unlawful to kill any ruffed grouse or wild turkey prior to January 1, 1900. Shooting or killing quail on the public highway shall be in violation of law. No person shall kill any of the birds mentioned in this section from any artificial ambush of any kind or with the aid or use of any sneak boat or sink box or other device used for concealment in the open water, nor use any artificial light, battery or other deception, contrivance or device whatever, with the intent to attract or deceive any of the birds mentioned in this chapter, except that decoys may be used in hunting wild geese and ducks, but no person shall at any time hunt or shoot from any boat, canoe, contrivance or device whatever on any of the waters of this state between sunset and sunrise. [20 G. A., ch. 67; 18 G. A., ch. 193; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 2.] [27 G. A., ch. 66, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 7.] [30 G. A., ch. 92, § 3.]

SEC. 2551-a. What prohibited. That it shall be unlawful for any person other than the owner, or person authorized by the owner, to kill, maim, trap, or in any way injure or capture any deer, elk, or goat except when distrained as provided by law. [27 G. A., ch. 65, § 1.]

SEC. 2551-b. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days or by a fine not exceeding one hundred (100) dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [27 G. A., ch. 65, § 2.]

SEC. 2552. Killing for traffic—destroying eggs or nests. No person shall at any time, or at any place within this state, trap, shoot or kill for traffic any pinnated grouse or prairie chicken, woodcock, quail, ruffed grouse or pheasant; nor shall any one person shoot or kill during any one day more than twenty-five of either kind of said named birds, or of wild turkey, duck, goose or brant; nor shall any one person, firm or corporation have more than twenty-five of either kind of said named birds, except ducks, in his or their possession at any one time, unless lawfully received for transportation; or catch or take or attempt to catch or take, with any trap, snare or net any of the birds or animals named in the preceding section; or in any manner wilfully destroy the eggs or nests of any of the birds named in this and the preceding section. [18 G. A., ch. 193, § 2; 17 G. A., ch. 156, § 3.] [30 G. A., ch. 95, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2556. Penalty—what animals. If any person use any device, kill, trap, ensnare, buy, sell, ship, or have in his possession, or ship, take or carry out of the state, contrary to the provisions of this chapter, any of the birds or animals named or referred to herein, or shall wilfully destroy any eggs or nests of the birds named or referred to in the preceding sections, he shall be punished by a fine of ten dollars for each bird, beaver, mink, otter, or muskrat, or other animals named or referred to in this chapter; and ten dollars for each nest and the eggs therein, so killed, trapped, ensnared, bought, sold, shipped, had in possession, destroyed, or shipped, taken, or carried out of the state, and shall stand committed to the county jail for thirty days unless such fine and costs of prosecuting are sooner paid. [17 G. A., ch. 156, § 7.] [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 8.]

SEC. 2559. Prosecutions—attorney's fee—opinions of attorney-general. In all prosecutions under this chapter, any number of violations may be included in the information, but each one shall be set out in a separate count, and upon conviction there shall be taxed as a part of the costs in the case a fee of five dollars to the informant, and a like fee of five dollars to the attorney prosecuting the case, upon each count upon which there is a plea or verdict of guilty and judgment of conviction; but in no event shall this fee be paid out of the county treasury. Prosecutions for violations of any provision of this chapter may be brought either in the county in which the offense was committed, or in any other county where the person, company or corporation complained of has had or has in his or their possession any fish, birds or animals named herein and bought, sold, caught, taken, killed, trapped or ensnared in violation hereof. When requested by the fish and game warden the attorney-general shall give his opinion, in writing, upon all questions of law pertaining to the office of such warden. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as prohibiting any person from instituting legal proceedings for the enforcement of any provisions hereof. [17 G. A., ch. 156, § 11.] [27 G. A., ch. 64, § 3.]

SEC. 2561. Protection of birds. No person shall destroy the nests or eggs of, or catch, take, kill or have in possession or under control for any purpose whatever, except specimens for use of taxidermists, at any time, any whippoorwill, night-hawk, bluebird, finch, thrush, linnet, lark, wren, martin, swallow, bobolink, robin, turtle-dove, catbird, snowbird, blackbird, or any other harmless bird except bluejays and English sparrows, but nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the removal of nests from buildings, and the keeping of song birds in cages as domestic pets. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than one dollar nor more than twenty-five dollars and costs of prosecution, and may be committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid. [29 G. A., ch. 103, § 9.]

The exception of specimens as to taxidermists has no reference to the killing of game birds during the prohibited season, under Code §§ 2551 and 2554. State v. Fields, 118-530.

CHAPTER 15-A.

IN RELATION TO THE PROTECTION OF GAME.

SECTION 2563-a. License for non-residents. That it shall be unlawful for any person not a bona fide resident of the state of Iowa to pursue, hunt or kill any game bird or animal in the state of Iowa at any time without first procuring a license therefor from the county auditor of the county in which said game is pursued, hunted, or killed. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-b.—How issued—fees. It shall be the duty of the county auditor of such county to issue a license to any person a non-resident of the state of Iowa, whom he shall find to be a careful and prudent person and accustomed to the use of fire-arms, to pursue, hunt, and kill game in the county named in such license during the open season, for any term hereafter not exceeding one year ending on the first day of January next succeeding the issuance of the license, upon the payment of the sum of ten ($10) dollars to the county treasurer as a license fee and the sum of fifty (50) cents to the county auditor for issuing the license, which may be revoked by the county auditor at any time for good cause shown. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 2.]

SEC. 2563-c. Application filed. Any non-resident person who may desire such a license shall file an application with the county auditor properly sworn to, stating the name, age, occupation, and place of residence of the applicant, and the name of the county for which such license is wanted, and pay the fees as provided in section two (2) of this act. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 3.]

SEC. 2563-d. Restrictions. Any such non-resident who may thus have obtained such a license shall be authorized thereby to hunt, pursue, or kill game in the county named therein, but not on the enclosed or cultivated lands of another without a permit in writing from the owner and only during the open season while such license is in force, and shall be authorized thereby to take from the state not to exceed twenty-five (25) game birds or animals of all kinds killed by himself or herself, which shall be carried openly for inspection with his or her license. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 4.]

SEC. 2563-e. Penalty. That if any non-resident person shall pursue, hunt, or kill any game bird or animal in the state of Iowa, without such license or after the same has been revoked or at any time except during the open season, or if any non-resident person shall violate any of the provisions of this act, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than twenty-five (25) dollars nor more than one hundred (100) dollars for each and every offense and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine and costs are paid as provided by law in such cases, or be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty (30) days. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 5.]

SEC. 2563-f. Repeal—game protection fund. That section 6 of an act of the twenty-eighth general assembly, entitled "An act to protect game and to provide a fund to pay the expenses of prosecution under this act," be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

That all license money paid or collected under this act shall be credited by the county treasurer to a fund known as a game protection fund, to be used to defray the expenses of enforcing the law for the protection of game, such expenses to be allowed and ordered paid by the board of supervisors of the county. [28 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-g. Form of license. Such license shall not be transferable, and shall be in the following form:

HUNTER'S LICENSE.

STATE OF IOWA, } County of _____ }

This is to certify that _____ of _____ in the state of _____ having this day made application for a hunter's license, and having paid therefor the sum of ten dollars ($10), as required by law, is hereby permitted to pursue, hunt and kill within the county of _____ and state of Iowa, but not on the enclosed or cultivated lands of another without a permit in writing from the owner, during the year ending January 1st, A. D. _____, any of the birds and animals protected by the game laws of this state, in conformity with the law under which this license is issued, during the time in said year when the shooting and killing of such birds and animals is not prohibited by law.

In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name, and caused the seal of the county auditor to be affixed hereto, this _____ day of _____, A. D. _____.

_____, County Auditor.

[28 G. A., ch. 86, § 7.]

SEC. 2563-h. How enforced. It shall be the duty of county attorneys and all other peace officers to see that this act is strictly enforced, the same as other game laws of the state. [28 G. A., ch. 86, § 8.]

SEC. 2563-i. Using birds as targets—penalty. Any person who keeps or uses a live pigeon, fowl or other bird for the purpose of a target or to be shot at either for amusement or as a test of skill in marksmanship, or shoots at a bird kept or used as aforesaid, or is a party to such shooting, or leases any building, room, field or premises, or knowingly permits the use thereof, for the purpose of such shooting, shall upon conviction thereof be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty days. Nothing in this act shall apply to the shooting of wild game. [30 G. A., ch. 96]

SEC. 2563-j. Wild birds. That all wild birds, both resident and migratory, in this state, shall be, and are hereby declared to be the property of the state. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-k. Sale of wild birds, plumage, etc., prohibited—game birds defined. That no person shall, within the state of Iowa, kill or catch, or have in his or her possession, living or dead, any wild bird other than a game bird, or purchase, offer or expose for sale, transport or ship within or without the state, any such wild bird after it has been killed or caught, except as permitted by this act. No part of the plumage, skin, or body of any bird protected by this section shall be sold or had in possession for sale, irrespective of whether said bird was captured or killed within or without the state. For the purpose of this act the following only shall be considered game birds: The Anatidæ, commonly known as swans, geese, brant and river and sea ducks; the Rallidæ, commonly known as rails, coots, mud-hens and gallinules; the Limicolæ, commonly known as shore birds, plovers, surf birds, snipe, woodcock, sandpipers, tatlars, and curlews; the Gallinæ, commonly known as wild turkeys, grouse, prairie chickens, pheasants, partridges, and quails. All other species of wild birds, either resident or migratory, shall be considered non-game birds. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2563-l. Birds' nests and eggs. That no person shall, within the state of Iowa, take or needlessly destroy or attempt to take or destroy the nest or the eggs of any wild birds, or have such nest in his or her possession, except as permitted by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 3.]

SEC. 2563-m. Transportation of wild birds prohibited. That no person or persons, or any corporation acting as a common carrier, its officers, agents or servants, shall ship, carry, take or transport, either within or beyond the confines of the state, any resident or migratory wild non-game bird, except as permitted by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 4.]

SEC. 2563-n. Not applicable to holder of certificate. That sections 2, 3, 4, and 10 of this act shall not apply to any person holding a certificate giving the right to take birds, their nests, or eggs for scientific purposes only, as provided in section 6 of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 5.]

SEC. 2563-o. Permission certificate—fees. That certificates may be granted by the fish and game warden of the state to any properly accredited persons of the age of fifteen years or upward, permitting the holder thereof to collect birds, their nests or eggs for scientific purposes only. The applicant for the same must present to said officer written testimonials from two well known ornithologists who must be residents of Iowa, certifying to the good character, and fitness of said applicant to be entrusted with such privilege and must pay said officer one dollar to defray the necessary expenses attending the granting of such certificate. On proof that the holder of such certificate has killed any bird, or taken the nest or eggs of any bird for other than strictly scientific purposes, his certificate shall become void, and he shall be liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment of thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 6.]

SEC. 2563-p. Certificates expire—when. That the certificates authorized by section 6 of this act shall expire on the 31st day of December of the year issued and shall not be transferable. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 7.]

SEC. 2563-q. Birds not included. That the English, or European house sparrow, great horned owl, sharp shinned hawk, Cooper's hawk, and blackbirds and crows are not included among the birds protected by this act. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 8.]

SEC. 2563-r. Domestic pets—parrots and canaries. That nothing in this act shall prevent a citizen of Iowa from taking or keeping any wild non-game bird in a cage as a domestic pet, provided that such bird shall not be sold, or exchanged, or offered for sale or exchange, or transported out of the state; and provided further that this act shall not be construed to forbid the selling or shipping of parrots, canaries or any other cage birds, which are imported from other countries or not native to any part of the United States. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 9.]

SEC. 2563-s. Penalty. That any person who violates any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to a fine of five dollars for each offense, and an additional fine of five dollars for each bird, living or dead, or part of bird, or nest, or set of eggs or part thereof, possessed in violation of this act, or to imprisonment for thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 10.]

SEC. 2563-t. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts or parts of acts heretofore passed inconsistent with or contrary to the provisions of this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 108, § 11.]

SEC. 2563-u. Trapping, shooting or killing of pheasants prohibited. No person shall trap, shoot, kill or take in any manner, any Mongolian, ring-neck, English or Chinese pheasants in this state prior to the first day of October, A. D. 1915. [32 G. A., ch. 134, § 1.]

SEC. 2563-v. Penalty. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof be fined not to exceed one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty days. [32 G. A., ch. 134, § 2.]

CHAPTER 16.

OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

SECTION 2564. Appointment—meetings—officers—districts—vacancies—how filled. The state board of health shall consist of the attorney-general and the state veterinary surgeon, who shall be members by virtue of their offices, one civil engineer and seven physicians, to be appointed by the governor, each to serve for a term of seven years and until his successor is appointed; vacancies to be filled by the governor for the unexpired term. But no one of the seven physicians hereafter appointed shall be an officer or member of the faculty of any medical school, and the governor shall have the power to remove any member of said board for good cause shown. It shall meet semi-annually in July and January and at such other times as it may decide upon, such meetings to be held at the seat of government; suitable rooms, office supplies and furniture except postage and stationery, therefor to be provided by the custodian of the capitol. At the meeting held in July a president from their number, and a secretary who shall be a physician not of their number, shall be elected, and the latter have an office in the capitol. For the purposes contemplated in this section the state shall be divided into health districts, numbered and consisting respectively of the counties named as follows:

District No. 1. Allamakee, Butler, Bremer, Black Hawk, Buchanan, Chickasaw, Clayton, Delaware, Fayette, Floyd, Grundy, Howard, Mitchell, Winneshiek.

District No. 2. Benton, Cedar, Clinton, Dubuque, Iowa, Jones, Jackson, Johnson, Linn, Muscatine, Scott.

District No. 3. Appanoose, Davis, Des Moines, Henry, Jefferson, Keokuk, Louisa, Lee, Mahaska, Monroe, Wapello, Washington, Van Buren.

District No. 4. Cerro Gordo, Calhoun, Emmet, Franklin, Hancock, Humboldt, Hamilton, Hardin, Kossuth, Palo Alto, Pocahontas, Webster, Winnebago, Worth, Wright.

District No. 5. Buena Vista, Clay, Cherokee, Dickinson, Ida, Lyon, Osceola, O'Brien, Plymouth, Sioux, Sac, Woodbury.

District No. 6. Audubon, Adair, Cass, Crawford, Carroll, Greene, Guthrie, Harrison, Monona, Pottawattamie, Shelby.

District No. 7. Boone, Dallas, Jasper, Marshall, Madison, Marion, Polk, Story, Tama, Poweshiek, Warren.

District No. 8. Adams, Clarke, Decatur, Fremont, Lucas, Mills, Montgomery, Page, Ringgold, Taylor, Union, Wayne.

When vacancies occur in the state board of health, it shall be the duty of the governor to appoint to membership on the board physicians residing in the various health districts, until seven such districts are represented on the board. After which time the annual appointment shall be made from the physicians residing in the district not represented on the board the preceding year. [26 G. A., ch. 91; 20 G. A., ch. 173; 18 G. A., ch. 151, §§ 1, 9, 10, 12.] [27 G. A., ch. 67, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 97.]

[The amendment by 30 G. A., chap. 97, to the above section, ignored the same section as it appeared in the supplement to the code. The change is shown here as having been made to the code supplement. The amendment effected a change in the times of meetings of state board of health.]

SEC. 2565. Powers—regulations—reports.

In a prosecution for violation of the regulations of the state board of health, the rules of the board may be established by certification of its secretary. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130-333.

SEC. 2567. Clerk of court to keep registry. The clerk of the court in each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all marriages and divorces occurring within the county, together with such data respecting the same as shall be required by the state board of health, and shall report to the secretary of the state board of health on or before the first day of August in each year such data respecting such marriages for the year ending June thirtieth (30th) immediately preceding. The clerk of the district court of each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all births and deaths occurring within the county as shown by the returns filed in his office by the assessor, as provided in section twenty-five hundred and sixty-six; and on or before the first day of June in each year shall furnish to the secretary of the state board of health a report of such births and deaths. [19 G. A., ch. 140; 18 G. A., ch. 151, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 110, §§ 1, 2.]

[Section 2567, which was amended by 31 G. A., chap. 110, was repealed by section 9 of chap. 109, 31 G. A. Section 6 of chapter 109 took the place of section 2567. The repealing act was approved at a later date than the amending act.]

SEC. 2568. Local board of health—quarantine.

The physician appointed as a health officer by a local board of health becomes simply an officer to assist in the administration of the law and the enforcement of the regulations of the board and is not required to treat the sick in his professional capacity. If called into service by the board of health to treat persons infected with contagious disease he is entitled to compensation, although the county may have had a contract with another physician to treat all the paupers of the county. The fact that the patient is a pauper is material in determining who shall pay the bill and not with reference to who shall perform the services. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106-16.

A certificate of the board of health attached to a physician's claim against the county for compensation for services in treating a person infected with contagious disease is admissible in evidence as a part of the claim for such compensation. Ibid.

There is nothing to prevent a member of a city council from acting as physician under the employment of the board of health appointed by the mayor of the city. Dewitt v. Mills County, 126-169.

It being made the duty of local boards of health to establish such relations as are necessary for the protection of the public health, and to proclaim and establish quarantine against infectious or contagious diseases, the members of such board are not individually liable for loss sustained by an individual on account of the establishment of a quarantine. Beeks v. Dickinson County, 131-244.

The provision that the mayor may declare a quarantine in case of infectious or contagious diseases, upon written notice given by any practicing physician of the existence of such disease, makes the written notice by such physician necessary before a quarantine against an individual can be declared, and in the absence of such notice there can be no punishment for violation of such quarantine. State v. Kirby, 120-26.

Expense of disinfecting premises is not chargeable to the county. Schmidt v. Muscatine County, 120-267.

Beyond the boundaries of the city the board of health of the city has no power or authority, and it cannot establish a smallpox pest house in an adjoining township. Warner v. Stebbins, 111-86.

SEC. 2570. Care of infected person.

This section does not enlarge the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the city board of health, as specified in Code, § 2568, nor authorize a transfer of patients having contagious diseases to the jurisdiction of the board of health of an adjoining township. Warner v. Stebbins, 111-86.

A physician employed by the local board of health to treat cases of contagious diseases is entitled to recover by way of compensation from the county for such treatment given by him as is reasonable under the circumstances. Bay v. Monroe County, 121-302.

Where it is made to appear that smallpox or other disease dangerous to the public health exists, the board of health has power to make provision for the care of the patients, and may provide nursing and medical attendance, which will be charged to the patients or those liable for his support, if able to pay; but if unable to pay it is to be at the expense of the county. A physician seeking to enforce a claim for such services against a county must show that the person to whom such services were rendered are unable to pay the expense thereof. Walker v. Boone County, 123-5.

Before amendment of this section by 29 G. A., chapter 105, the liability of the county for the services of a physician employed by a local board of health to attend a person afflicted with a contagious disease as allowed by the board of health was absolute if the patient or those liable for his support were unable to pay. And held that the acceptance of a portion of the claim as allowed by the board of supervisors did not defeat recovery for the balance. Resner v. Carroll County, 126-423.

While the statute as to local boards of health provides for the care of infected persons and for the payment of the expenses incurred on account thereof, it neither expressly or by implication provides for compensation to one who is injured by the establishment of a quarantine. Beeks v. Dickinson County, 131-244.

SEC. 2570-a. Repeal—care of infected person—expenses. That section two thousand five hundred and seventy-a (2570-a) of the supplement to the code and chapter ninety-eight (98) acts of the thirtieth general assembly be, and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

When any person shall be sick or infected with smallpox or other infectious or contagious disease dangerous to the public health, whether a resident or otherwise, the local board of health shall make such provisions as are best calculated to protect the inhabitants therefrom, and may remove such person to a separate house, or to a pest house, or detention or other hospital, and shall provide needful assistance, nurses, medical attendance and supplies. If in the judgment of said board such person cannot be removed, then he shall be cared for at the place where he resides in the same manner as above provided. In case of the removal of more than one person to the same house, or to any pest house, or detention or other hospital, said board shall provide needful assistance, nurses, medical supplies and attendance necessary for their proper care. All bills for expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this section, and in establishing, maintaining, or raising a quarantine, including disinfection and the building and furnishing of any pest house, detention or other hospital, shall be filed with the clerk of the local board of health, which board shall examine the same and act thereon at its next regular meeting after the same have been filed with the clerk and shall certify the amount allowed by it thereon to the county auditor, and the board of county supervisors shall act upon said bills as thus certified at its first regular meeting thereafter. The local board of health shall allow an amount on such bills as shall be reasonable, and the certificate of the local board of health shall be prima facie evidence of the correctness of said bills, but the board of supervisors may revise the amounts so allowed and fix the same. The expenses paid under the provisions of this section shall in no case exceed the reasonable value of the property furnished or services rendered and the county shall not advance such expenses until the same shall have been audited and allowed by the board of supervisors; and the said board of supervisors, shall, at the time it levies the general taxes, levy on the property of the city, town or township, from which such expenses were certified, a sufficient tax to reimburse the county to the extent of one-third of the amount paid by it under the provisions of this act. It is further provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent any person quarantined, as herein provided, from employing at his own expense, the physician or nurse of his choice. The forcible removal of sick or infected persons, as herein provided, shall be effected by an application made to any civil magistrate, in the manner provided for the removal and abatement of nuisances, who shall issue the warrant as directed in such cases, to remove such person or persons to the place designated by the local board of health, or to take possession of the condemned or infected houses or lodgings and such officer shall receive a reasonable compensation for such services, to be determined and allowed by said local board. [31 G. A., ch. 111.]

The expense of fitting up a permanent detention hospital is to be paid by the county, and not by the persons who are detained and treated there. Kurtz v. Polk County, 109 N. W. 612.

SEC. 2570-a1. Saving clause. That nothing in this act shall in any manner affect pending litigation. [31 G. A., ch. 111, § 2.]

SEC. 2570-b. Repeal. That the law as it appears in section twenty-five hundred and seventy-b (2570-b) of the supplement to the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 98, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 111.]

[Section 2570-b was repealed by section 2, chap. 98, 30 G. A., and chap. 98, 30 G. A., was repealed by chap. 111, 31 G. A.]

SEC. 2571. Meetings of local board—regulations—reports—expenses—tax. Local boards of health shall meet for the transaction of business on the first Mondays of April and November in each year, and at such other times as may seem necessary. They shall give notice of all regulations adopted, by publication thereof in some newspaper printed and circulated in the town, city or township, or if there is none, by posting a copy thereof in five public places therein, and through their physician or clerk shall make general report to the state board at least once a year, and special reports when it may demand them, of its proceedings and such other facts as may be required, on blanks furnished by and in accordance with instructions from it. All expenses incurred in the enforcement of the provisions of this chapter, when not otherwise provided, shall be paid by the town, city or township; in either case all claims to be presented and audited as other demands. In the case of townships, the trustees shall certify the amount required to pay such expenses to the board of supervisors of the county, and it shall advance the same, and, at the time it levies the general taxes, shall levy on the property of such township a sufficient tax to reimburse the county, which, when collected, shall be paid to and belong to the county. [22 G. A., ch. 65; 18 G. A., ch. 151, §§ 15, 24; C., '73, §§ 416, 420.] [29 G. A., ch. 106, § 1.]

SEC. 2572. Regulations of state board. Local boards of health shall obey and enforce the rules and regulations of the state board; and peace and police officers within their respective jurisdictions, when called upon to do so by the local boards, shall execute the orders of such board. If any local board of health shall refuse or neglect to enforce the rules and regulations of the state board of health, the state board of health may enforce its rules and regulations within the territorial jurisdiction of such local board, and for that purpose shall have and may exercise all of the powers given by statute to local boards of health; and the peace and police officers of the state, when called upon by the state board of health to enforce its rules and regulations, shall execute the orders of such board. All expenses incurred by the state board of health in determining whether its rules and regulations are enforced by a local board of health, and in enforcing the same when a local board has refused or neglected to do so, shall be paid in the same manner as is now provided for the payment of the expenses of enforcing such rules and regulations by local boards of health. [29 G. A., ch. 107, § 1.]

SEC. 2573. Failure to comply with orders or regulations.

The violation by a physician of the rules of the state board of health is a misdemeanor punishable as provided in Code § 4906. The rules of the board may be proved by certification of the secretary. Pierce v. Doolittle, 130-333.

Rules prescribed by the board prior to the enactment of the Code of '97 continued in force after the enactment of such Code. Ibid.

SEC. 2575-a1. Location of pest houses — controversy — how settled. That when a controversy arises between municipalities or between boards of health thereof, respecting the location of pest houses or hospitals for the treatment of infectious or contagious diseases, such matter shall be referred to the president of the state board of health who shall forthwith appoint a committee of three (3) members thereof, which committee shall upon two days' notice to the parties interested, investigate the matter and make such order in the premises as the facts warrant, and such order shall be final. [29 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.]

A municipality may acquire in an ad- pest house. Hanson v. Cresco, 132-533.
joining school township a location for a

SEC. 2575-a2. Jurisdiction. The health officers of the municipality which is allowed to maintain a pest house or hospital for patients affected by infectious or contagious diseases outside the limits of said municipality, shall have exclusive jurisdiction and control of such pest house or hospital for the enforcement of all sanitary and health regulations. [29 G. A., ch. 108, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a3. Removal — written permission. That no person known to be infected, or sick with any contagious disease dangerous to the public health shall move or be removed from one city, town or township to another city, town or township except as hereinafter provided and by written permission of the local board of health of the city, town or township to which such person is to be removed. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a4. Expenses—how paid. If any person known to be infected or sick with smallpox or other contagious disease dangerous to the public health shall with the knowledge or consent of any member of the local board of health of the city, town or township in which he resides be removed from said city, town or township to another city, town or township either with or without the permission of the local board of such city, town or township to which he is removed, all expense of quarantine or care of such person incurred by the city, town or township to which he is removed shall be paid by the city, town or township from which such person was so removed, in the manner provided in section two thousand five hundred and seventy-a (2570-a) of the supplement to the code. If said person be so removed to another county, said expenses shall in the first instance be paid by such county and recovered from the county from which such person had been removed. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a5. Same. When it is determined by any physician or health officer that any person is sick with smallpox or any other contagious disease dangerous to the public health while in any city, town or township other than the one in which he resides, provided the distance be not to exceed fifteen (15) miles from his place of residence, then and in that event if the person so diseased elect to be moved to the city, town or township in which he resides, he may be so removed by private conveyance along the least frequented highways under escort of a health officer to his abode immediately on determining that he is so diseased; and every such vehicle shall carry as a signal of warning, conspicuously displayed, a yellow flag not less than two feet square. All expenses of removal, care and quarantine of such person shall be paid by the city, town or township to which he is removed and shall be paid in the manner provided in section two (2) of this chapter. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a6. Misdemeanor. Any person who shall move, or any physician or any member of a local board of health who shall cause or assist any person known to be infected or sick with smallpox, or any contagious disease dangerous to the public health to be removed from one city, town or township, to another city, town or township, contrary to the provisions of this act or of any regulation of the state board of health, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100) or imprisonment not exceeding thirty (30) days, or both at the discretion of the court. [30 G. A., ch. 99, § 4.]

CHAPTER 16-A.

OF THE BACTERIOLOGICAL LABORATORY.

SECTION 2575-a7. Establishment. The bacteriological laboratory of the medical department of the state university at Iowa City, is hereby established as a permanent part of the medical department of the university work, and it shall in addition to its regular work perform all scientific analyses and tests, chemical, microscopical or other scientific investigations, which may be required by the state board of health, and it shall make prompt report of the results thereof, under such rules and regulations as the said state board of health may from time to time adopt. [30 G. A., ch. 101, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a8. Director—reports. The professor of bacteriology of the medical department of the state university shall be the director of said laboratory and shall make or cause to be made all such analyses, tests and investigations as shall be required by the state board of health as provided in the preceding section, causing the same to be made without delay and giving such analyses, tests or investigations the preference of the point of time over all other work and shall make prompt report of the result thereof to the board of health or to such person or persons as the board of health may by rule or designation designate. [30 G. A., ch. 101, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a9. Repeal — appropriation — purposes. That section three (3) of chapter one hundred and one (101) of the laws of the thirtieth (30th) general assembly and of chapter one hundred and thirteen (113) of the laws of the thirty-first general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of more perfectly equipping the present bacteriological laboratory at the state university and for the purpose of enabling it to perform the duties hereby imposed, and to provide it with the necessary apparatus and assistants to render the same effective, the sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000) annually or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be additional salary of the director, the assistants, the expenses of said laboratory as may be necessary by this act, including postage, stationery, and other contingent and miscellaneous expenses which may be incurred in the maintaining of said laboratory and performing the duties required therein by the provision of this act. The director shall receive such additional salary not to exceed twelve hundred ($1,200) dollars per year as the state board of health may fix. The appropriations hereby provided shall be expended in the manner provided in section two thousand five hundred and seventy-five (2575) of the code.” [32 G. A., ch. 137, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a10. Acts in conflict. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 137, § 2.]

OF REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

SECTION 2575-a11. State registrar of vital statistics. That for the complete and proper registration of births and deaths for legal, sanitary and statistical purposes, the secretary of the state board of health is hereby constituted state registrar of vital statistics, and it shall be his duty to promulgate and enforce all necessary rules and regulations that may be required to carry out the purposes of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a12. Certificates of death. The undertaker or the person in charge of the funeral of any person dying in Iowa, shall cause a certificate of death to be filled out, with all the personal particulars contained in the standard blanks adopted by the U.S. census bureau, and with a statement of cause of death by attending physician, or in his absence, by the health officer or coroner, and shall file it with the state registrar on or before the 5th day of each month for the month preceding and no sexton or superintendent of a cemetery shall permit interment, and no railroad or other transportation company shall permit shipment of the body unaccompanied by such certificate of death. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a13. State registrar to furnish blanks. The state registrar shall furnish blank certificates of death to physicians and undertakers, and all proper forms and instructions for the effectual execution of the law. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a14. Certified transcripts of certificates of death. It shall be the duty of the state registrar to furnish to the clerk of the district court of each county on or before the first day of February of each year, certified transcripts of the certificates of death filed with him from the respective counties as well as similar transcripts of deaths to the U. S. census bureau at Washington, and to arrange by counties, bind and deposit in the state historical building at Des Moines the original certificates; and transcripts sent each county shall be bound at the expense of said county, and preserved for reference by the clerk of the district court. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a15. Assessor to report births and deaths. It shall be the duty of all assessors at the time of making assessment to obtain and report to the clerk of the district court upon blanks adopted by the state registrar and furnished by the county auditor, such registration of births and deaths as occur within their respective districts for the year ending Dec. 31st, immediately preceding. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 5.] [32 G. A., ch. 135.]

SEC. 2575-a16. Record of marriages and divorces and births. The clerk of the court in each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all marriages and divorces occurring within the county, together with such data respecting the same as shall be required by the state registrar and shall report to said state registrar on or before the first day of August in each year, such data respecting such marriages and divorces for the year ending June 30th immediately preceding, and the clerk of the district court of each county shall keep a book in which shall be recorded all births occurring within the county as shown by the returns filed in this [his] office by the assessor as provided in the section preceding, and on or before the first day of August in each year shall furnish to the state registrar a report of such births. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a17. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated the sum of two thousand (2,000) dollars, annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to pay the expense of printing, postage, clerk hire, and such other expenses as may be required. All bills to be itemized, certified to, and approved by the state registrar. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 7.] [32 G. A., ch. 136.]

SEC. 2575-a18. Penalty. Any person acting as undertaker, sexton, agent of a transportation company, or other person, violating any of the provisions of this act shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) and not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) or be imprisoned not more than sixty (60) days or be subject to both fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court. It shall be the duty of the prosecuting attorney in each county upon complaint of the state registrar to prosecute in such cases and the state registrar shall endeavor to see that this act is uniformly and officially executed throughout this state. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 8.]

SEC. 2575-a19. Repeal—acts in conflict. Sections twenty-five hundred sixty-six (2566) and twenty-five hundred sixty-seven (2567) of the code and chapter one hundred (100) of the laws of the thirtieth (30) general assembly and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 109, § 9.]

CHAPTER 16-C.

OF MATERNITY HOSPITALS.

SECTION 2575-a20. Erection, establishment or maintenance—permit. That from and after the taking effect of this act, it shall be unlawful to erect, or establish or maintain, conduct, keep or carry on, or to continue to maintain, keep or carry on, within this state, any lying-in or maternity hospital, or any institution or place for the reception, care and treatment of women in labor, or where females may be received, cared for and treated during pregnancy or after delivery, or any hospital wherein women are received, cared for and treated during pregnancy, or after delivery, the proprietor, owner or persons in charge of which, or any person representing them, undertakes to adopt or procure or assist in procuring the adoption or disposal of any child born therein, within two hundred feet of any church building, university, school or other institution of learning, or public park, or in a building situated within 75 feet of premises owned by another. And it shall from and after the taking effect of this act be unlawful to so erect, establish, maintain, conduct, keep or carry on, or continue to keep or carry on elsewhere in this state, any place or places above enumerated, for any such purpose or purposes, without having first obtained a permit in writing, as hereinafter provided. This act shall not apply to general hospitals for the treatment of diseases, obstetrics and surgical cases. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a21. Board of health to grant permit. The state board of health is hereby authorized to grant a permit in writing, to establish, maintain, conduct, keep or carry on such lying-in or maternity hospital, or hospital ward, or institution, or place for the reception, care and treatment of women in labor, for pay, or where females may be received, cared for or treated during pregnancy or during or after delivery, for pay, at any place within the state, except as prohibited in section one of this act; but only one such permit shall be issued for any one premises. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 2.]

provided in section two of this act, shall file with the state board of health an application for said permit, naming each person to whom said permit is to be granted, and particularly describing the place or premises to be used for said purposes, and the location thereof; and shall also cause to be filed with said state board of health a statement signed by two regular physicians, holding a certificate, in force, from the state board of medical examiners of this state, to the effect that, to the personal knowledge of each of said physicians, said person, or each of said persons, is of good character and reputation; that he has personally examined the premises described in the application for said permit, and that the same are suitable and properly furnished for the uses described in section one of this act, and that such hospital or ward or other institution or place will be for the public convenience. Upon the filing of such application for a permit, together with said physicians' certificate, the state board of health shall satisfy itself as to the correctness of the matters set forth in said application and physicians' certificate, and shall cause said premises to be inspected, for which inspection a fee of five dollars shall be paid by the person or persons signing such application, and when so satisfied, and upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five dollars by the person or persons applying for said permit to the said state board of health, said state board of health shall issue its permit, particularly naming the person or persons to whom granted, the description and location of the premises to be used, and the purpose or purposes for which said permit is granted, which permit shall continue in force for one year from the date thereof, unless sooner revoked. Said permit may be renewed, from time to time, whenever said state board of health deem it proper so to do, and upon payment to said board of a fee of five dollars for each renewal thereof. Said permit shall not authorize the use of any other place or premises than the one named in said permit or in the renewal thereof. Provided that no fee mentioned in this section should [shall] be required of any religious or charitable institution conducting such lying-in or maternity hospital. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a23. Register of patients, births and deaths—reports. The person or persons in charge of the place described in said permit shall keep a true, accurate and complete register of all patients and of all births and deaths occurring upon said premises, giving date of entry of each patient, date of birth and name of each child born on said premises, and the age of all children dying thereon, and the same particulars, as well as the name, so far as known, of any woman patient dying on said premises; and said person or persons in charge of the place described in said permit shall furnish to the officer authorized by law to receive them, all of the particulars required by law to be furnished for the due registration of each birth or death occurring on said premises, except when such particulars have been furnished by the physician in attendance at birth, or attending on the person so dying thereon. The state board of health shall furnish blanks to all permit holders specified in this act and to be filled out and returned to the state board of health within twenty-four hours after the birth or death of any child or death of any woman patient dying on the premises described in such permit, giving date of birth and sex of each child born on said premises and name and age of the mother, and if the true name of the mother cannot be ascertained then the assumed name given by her, and the age and sex of all children dying on said premises. And the state board of health shall keep a record of same, which record shall be accessible to the members of the state board of health, members of the board of control of state institutions, the attorney general and any county attorney in the state, and to no other person except on order of a court of record. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a24. Articles of adoption—record. The person or persons in charge of the premises described in such permit shall not adopt or dispose of by adoption or procure or assist in the disposal by adoption of any child born thereon, without the articles of adoption being filed as required by law. Within twenty-four hours after the departure, removal or withdrawal from said premises of any child born thereon, or of the body of any such child, the person or persons in charge thereof shall enter upon said register a record of such departure, removal or withdrawal and the name or other description of said child, the name or names and respective residences of the person or persons who took said child or its body, the disposition made of said child or its body, the place to which the same was taken and where the same was left. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a25. Inspections—by whom made—report. Every person in charge of the premises described in any such permit, his servants, employes or agents, shall permit visitation or inspection of said premises, and of the register in this act provided to be kept, to be made at any time, by the state board or local board of health or by any person designated in writing by the state or local board of health for that purpose. It shall be the duty of the local board of health of the city, town or township in which such premises are maintained to inspect such premises at least once in six months; and to file an accurate report of such inspection with the city, town or township clerk of the city, town or township in which such premises are maintained, and that such report shall be preserved as a permanent record. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a26. Revocation of permit. Said permit may be revoked after reasonable notice by the state board of health, and a conviction under the succeeding section of this act shall operate to terminate and revoke said permit. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a27. Penalty. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act or making any false entry on the register required by this act to be kept, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by confinement in the county jail not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. And the premises so unlawfully used are hereby declared to be a nuisance, and the same shall be subject to the procedure provided in section twenty-four hundred and five (2405), twenty-four hundred and six (2406) and twenty-four hundred and seven (2407) of the code, as far as applicable thereto. [32 G. A., ch. 138, § 8.]

CHAPTER 16-D.

OF THE PRACTICE OF NURSING.

SECTION 2575-a28. Certificate required. It shall be unlawful for any person to profess to be a registered nurse without first obtaining from the state board of health a certificate authorizing him or her to practice nursing in this state, except as hereinafter provided. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a29. Examining committee—qualifications of applicants—existing practitioners. At the annual meeting of the state board of health it shall select two physicians from its own membership, and two graduate nurses, residents of this state actively engaged in the practice of nursing, who, together with the secretary of the state board of health, shall constitute the examining committee for the year. The examinations provided for in this act shall be held in the city of Des Moines in July of each year and at such other times and places as the board of health shall direct. All applicants for certificates to practice nursing shall have attained the age of twenty-three (23) years and shall be of good moral character. They shall be graduates of training schools recognized as being in good standing by the state board of health of Iowa and shall have received at least two years' instruction in general hospital practice. After July 1st, 1910, no training school shall be accredited by the state board of health as a school of recognized standing which is not attached to a general hospital, and which does not have a course of study of at least three years. All graduate nurses who are residents of the state and who have been engaged in the practice of nursing prior to the passage of this act shall be granted a certificate without examination upon the payment of the registration fee of five dollars and the same rule shall apply to all nurses who graduate from a recognized school prior to July 1st, 1907. Nurses holding diplomas from hospital training schools of recognized standing upon application to the secretary of the state board of health shall be granted a permit to practice until the first examination of the board following the issuance of the said permit. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a30. Examination — fees—certificates — where registered. After the passage of this act, any person who is not exempt from examination by section two (2) of this act and who shall apply for a certificate to practice nursing shall be examined in the following subjects: elementary hygiene, anatomy, physiology, materia medica, dietetics, and also practical nursing, medical and surgical nursing, obstetrics, nursing of children and the rules and regulations of the state board of health relating to infectious diseases and quarantine and such other subjects as the examining board may require from time to time. Each applicant shall pay the secretary of the state board of health a fee of five dollars ($5.00). If the examination be satisfactory to three members of said committee it shall so report to the state board of health; if the board find the report and ratings correct, it shall authorize its president and secretary to issue a certificate to the successful candidate for which such candidate shall pay an additional fee of one ($1.00) dollar. This certificate shall confer upon the holder the right to practice as a registered nurse and be conclusive evidence thereof. The state board of health is empowered to recognize certificates issued to nurses under the laws of other states having substantially similar requirements to those existing in this state, provided, that such states recognize certificates issued by the state of Iowa; then certificates issued by authority of such other states may be deemed sufficient evidence of qualifications of the licentiate without further examination for certificate in this state; the fee for such certificate shall be ten ($10.00) dollars. The holder of such certificate provided for in this act, shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein he intends to reside. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a31. Unlawful practice. No person after January 1st, 1908, except one holding a certificate under authority of this act shall advertise to be or assume the title of registered nurse or use the abbreviation R. N. or any other words, letters or figures to indicate that the person using the same is a registered nurse and it shall be unlawful for any graduate nurse to practice nursing as a graduate or registered nurse in the state of Iowa without first having registered under this act. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a32. Not applicable to certain nurses. This act shall not apply to any person nursing the sick with or without pay who does not in any way assume to be a registered or graduate nurse. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a33. Refusal to grant certificates—revocation of certificates. The board of health may refuse to grant, or renew any certificate provided for in this act, to a person otherwise qualified, who obtained said certificate by false or fraudulent representation, or for immoral or unprofessional or dishonorable conduct, or for willful or repeated violation of the rules or regulations of the state board of health; and the board may revoke any certificate issued by it, for any such or similar cause; provided, that before the revocation of any certificate issued under the provisions of this act, the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least twenty (20) days prior to the date set for such hearing, the secretary of the state board of health shall cause written notice, under registered mail, to be sent to the licentiate at his last known place of residence; said notice shall contain a statement of the charges, and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel, at the time and place designated in said notice, the board may, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and proper issuance of the notice, revoke said certificate. If the licentiate appear either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements, and shall cause stenographic report of the oral testimony to be taken, which, together with all other papers pertaining thereto, shall be preserved for one year. If five (5) members of the board present at the hearing, are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses charged, the certificate shall be revoked, for such time as the state board of health may determine. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a34. Compensation of examining committee—expenses. Each member of the examining committee, except the secretary, shall receive for his services out of the funds created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination such compensation as is allowed to the members of the state board of medical examiners for like services and the secretary shall receive his necessary expenses, incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage and other contingent expenses, necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act shall be paid from said fund. All expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be itemized, verified, and audited and a warrant drawn therefor on the nurses' fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 7.]

SEC. 2575-a35. Penalty. Any person who shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined a sum not exceeding one hundred ($100.00) dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed thirty (30) days. [32 G. A., ch. 139, § 8.]

CHAPTER 16-E.

OF THE PRACTICE OF EMBALMING.

SECTION 2575-a36. Unlawful practice. It shall be unlawful for any person to embalm or otherwise prepare for transportation by railway or other public conveyance except as hereinafter provided, the dead body of any human being, or to embalm or otherwise prepare any such body, or to practice, or publicly profess to practice the art of embalming without first obtaining, from the state board of health, a license authorizing him to practice embalming in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a37. Examining committee — applicants — qualifications. At the annual meeting of the state board of health, it shall select two physicians from among its own membership, and two licensed embalmers, residents of this state, who, together with the secretary of the state board of health, shall constitute the examining committee for the year. The examinations provided for in this act, shall be held in the city of Des Moines, in July and January of each year and at such other times as the board of health may direct. All applicants for license to practice embalming, shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and shall have had not less than two years practical experience under a licensed embalmer in this state, or in lieu thereof, shall have had a practical experience of not less than one year under a licensed embalmer, and have completed the regular course of instruction in a school of embalming recognized as being in good standing by the state board of health of Iowa; in addition to all of said requirements, each applicant for an embalmer's license shall have actually embalmed not less than ten bodies, under the supervision of a licensed embalmer, prior to the date of examination. Each applicant for examination shall file with the secretary of the state board of health not later than ten days prior to the date of the next examination, a sworn statement of his age and other qualifications as required by this act, and a certificate of good moral character signed by three responsible citizens, one of whom must be a licensed embalmer personally acquainted with the applicant for at least one year. All applications under this act shall be upon blanks furnished by the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 2.]

SEC. 2575-a38. Examination—license—fee. After the passage of this act, each applicant for license to practice embalming, shall be examined in the following subjects: anatomy, sanitary science, the care, disinfection, preservation, transportation of and burial, or other final disposition of dead bodies, and the rules and regulations of the state board of health relating to infectious diseases and quarantine; he may also be required to demonstrate his proficiency as an embalmer by operations on a cadaver. The examination papers and oral answers shall, when concluded, be graded upon the scale of one hundred, each applicant first to pay, to the secretary of the state board of health, a fee of five dollars therefor. The average rating required to pass shall be fixed by the board of health prior to the examination. If the examination be satisfactory to three members of the examining committee, it shall so report to the state board of health; if the board find the report and ratings correct, it shall authorize its president and secretary to issue a license to the successful candidates, for which such candidates shall each pay an additional fee of one dollar. The license, while in force, shall confer upon the holder the right to practice embalming, or to otherwise prepare dead bodies for transportation, burial, or other authorized mode of final disposition, and be conclusive evidence thereof. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a39. Licenses renewed annually—licentiates of other states—fees—licenses registered. Any person now holding an unexpired license from the state board of health as an embalmer, shall be held to be licensed as an embalmer under the terms of this act, but all licenses now in force, or hereafter issued, shall expire on the thirtieth (30th) day of June following the date of issuance of such license. Licenses shall be renewed without examination annually by the state board of health within thirty (30) days after expiration, provided the holder of said license shall make written application to said board, and pay to the secretary thereof the sum of one dollar renewal fee. The state board of health is empowered to recognize licenses issued to embalmers by authorities under the laws of other states having substantially similar requirements to those existing in this state, provided, that such states recognize licenses issued by the Iowa state board of health, then licenses issued by authority of such other states may be deemed sufficient evidence of qualifications of the licentiate without further examination for license in this state; the fee for such license shall be ten dollars. The owner of any license, or renewal, provided for in this act shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the local board of health of each city or town wherein he intends to practice the art of embalming, and no transportation permit shall be issued by the local board to any person not so recorded. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 4.]

SEC. 2575-a40. Secretary of state board of health to keep record. The secretary of the state board of health shall keep a record of the names and residence of all persons to whom licenses have been issued, with the official number and date of issuance; a copy of this record, together with such other information as may tend to improve the public service shall be published annually. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a41. Refusal to grant licenses—revocation. The state board of health may refuse to grant, or renew, any license provided for in this act, to a person otherwise qualified, who obtained said license by false or fraudulent representation, or for habitual intoxication, or for immoral or unprofessional or dishonorable conduct, or for willful or repeated violation of the rules or regulations of the state board of health; and the board may revoke any license, issued by it, for any such similar cause; provided, that before the revocation of any license issued under the provisions of this act, the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least ten (10) days prior to the date set for said hearing, the secretary of the state board of health shall cause written notice, under registered mail, to be sent to the licentiate at his last known place of residence; said notice shall contain a statement of the charges, and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel, at the time and place designated in said notice, the board may, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and the proper issuance of the notice, revoke said license. If the licentiate appear, either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements, and shall cause a stenographic report of the oral testimony to be taken, which together with all other papers pertaining thereto shall be preserved for one year. If five (5) members of the board, present at the hearing, are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses named in this section, the license shall be revoked. After the revocation of a license the licentiate, or holder thereof, shall not practice embalming or any of its branches in this state. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 6.]

SEC. 2575-a42. Jurisdiction over transportation of dead bodies—rules and regulations. The state board of health shall have sole jurisdiction over the transportation of all dead bodies and of all methods preparatory thereto, and the said board is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations, relating thereto, as in its opinion are necessary to subserve and protect the public health; said rules and regulations when made shall be enforced by the secretary of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 7.]

person acting as such, to receive the dead body of any person for shipment, or transportation by railway or other public conveyance, to or from any point in this state or to a point outside of this state, unless said body be accompanied by a removal, or shipping permit signed by the health officer of the local board of health, and a certificate, attached to the outside box containing such body, showing the name and official number of the embalmer by whom it was prepared, and the method of preparation employed; provided, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prevent the shipment of dead bodies intended for use for anatomical purposes within this state when the same are so designated by the shipper. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 8.]

SEC. 2575-a44. Compensation of examining committee—expenses. Each member of the examining committee except the secretary, shall receive for his services, out of the funds created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination or license, and renewals such compensation as is allowed the members of the state board of medical examiners for like services, and the secretary shall receive the sum of twenty-five dollars per month, and his necessary expenses incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage, and other contingent office expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this act, shall be paid from said fund. Any balance of said funds remaining shall be turned over to the state treasurer for the use of the state. All expenses incurred under the provisions of this act shall be itemized, verified, and audited, and a warrant drawn therefor on the embalmers' fund in the same manner as other expenses of the state board of health. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 9.]

SEC. 2575-a45. Penalty—enforcement. Any person who shall knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act, or who shall offer a forged removal, shipping or transportation certificate, or who shall certify falsely as to the preparation of a dead body, or who shall represent himself to be the bona fide owner of a license or renewal when such license or renewal was not regularly issued to him by the state board of health, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days, or both at the discretion of the court. It shall be the duty of the secretary of the state board of health, to see that the provisions of this act are properly administered and enforced throughout the state, and all peace officers and county attorneys shall aid him in their several capacities in the discharge of these duties. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 10.]

SEC. 2575-a46. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 140, § 11.]

CHAPTER 16-F.

OF NURSERY STOCK INFESTED WITH THE SAN JOSE SCALE—PUNISHMENT FOR BRINGING INTO THE STATE, AND TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF THE SCALE.

SECTION 2575-a47. State entomologist—assistants—fees. The entomologist of the state experiment station is hereby constituted the state entomologist and charged with the execution of this act. He may appoint such qualified assistants as may be necessary, fix a reasonable compensation for their labor, and pay the same; and their acts shall have the same validity as his own. He shall, by himself, or his assistants, between the first day of June and the fifteenth day of September, in each year, when requested by the owner or agent or where he has reasonable grounds to believe any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease exists, carefully examine any nursery, fruit farm, or other place where trees or plants are grown for sale, and if found apparently free from any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease, he shall issue his certificate stating the facts, and shall collect therefor a fee of not less than five dollars, nor more than fifteen dollars, according to the amount of stock inspected. It shall be unlawful to sell, or offer for transportation, any nursery stock unless accompanied by a copy of this certificate. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 112, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2575-a48. Quarantine—treatment—collection of cost. The state entomologist shall have authority, when requested by the owner or agent, or when he has reasonable grounds to believe any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease exists, to enter upon any grounds, public or private, for the purpose of inspection, and, if he finds any nursery, orchard, garden, or other place infested by the scale, he may, by himself or his assistants, enter upon such premises and establish quarantine regulations. If in his judgment any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease may be eradicated by treatment, he may, in writing, order such treatment, and prescribe its kind and character. In case any trees, shrubs, or plants are found so infested that it would be impracticable to treat them, he may order them burned. A failure for ten days after the delivery of such order to the owner or persons in charge to treat or destroy such infested trees or plants, as ordered, shall authorize the entomologist to perform this work by himself or his assistants, and to ascertain the cost thereof. He shall certify the amount of such cost to the owner or person in charge of the premises, and if the same is not paid to him within sixty days thereafter he shall certify the amount to the county auditor, who shall spread the same upon the tax books, to be collected as other taxes are, and turned over to the entomologist to become a part of the fund for carrying this act into effect. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a49. Inspection of nursery stock shipped into state. Where nursery stock is shipped into this state, accompanied by a certificate as herein provided, it shall be held prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, but the state entomologist, by himself or his assistants, when they have reason to believe any such stock is infested with any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease, shall be authorized to inspect the same and subject it to like treatment as provided in section two of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2575-a50. Certificate of inspection — penalties. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to bring into this state any trees, plants, vines, cuttings, or buds, commonly known as nursery stock, unless accompanied by a certificate of inspection, signed by the state entomologist of the state of Iowa or by another inspector duly approved by him, showing that the stock has been carefully inspected and found apparently free from any dangerously injurious insect or plant disease. Any person violating or neglecting to carry out the provisions of this act, or offering any hindrance to the carrying out of this act, shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction before a justice of the peace shall be fined not less than ten dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, for each and every offense, together with all the costs of the prosecution, and shall stand committed until the same are paid. All amounts so recovered shall be paid over to the state entomologist, and added to the fund herein provided for the carrying out the provisions of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 4.] [31 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.]

SEC. 2575-a51. Compensation. The state entomologist shall be allowed and paid for his services while engaged in this work, all his necessary traveling expenses and the sum of five dollars per day. All funds coming into his hands shall be paid over to the state treasurer, with an itemized statement of the source whence received. He shall certify the amount of his expenses and per diem to the auditor of state, who shall thereupon draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the amount, which shall be paid out of the funds provided for carrying this act into effect. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 5.]

SEC. 2575-a52. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, for carrying out the provisions of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 53, § 6.]

OF THE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE.

SECTION 2576. Board of medical examiners—examinations—certificates. The state board of medical examiners shall consist of the physicians of the state board of health, and the secretary of the board of health shall be secretary thereof. It shall hold regular meetings in January and July and special ones as may be necessary, due notice thereof being given, at which it shall discharge the duties contemplated by this chapter. All examinations shall be in writing, each candidate for examination in any school of medicine being given the same set of questions, covering anatomy, physiology, general chemistry, pathology, surgery and obstetrics. In materia medica, therapeutics and the principles and practice of medicine, a set of questions shall be used corresponding to the school of medicine which the applicant desires to practice. The examination papers, when concluded, shall be marked upon a scale of one hundred, each candidate for examination first to pay to the secretary of the board a fee of ten dollars therefor. The average required to pass shall be fixed by the board prior to the examination. Each applicant shall, upon obtaining an order for examination, receive from the secretary a confidential number which he shall place upon his work when completed, so that the board, in passing thereon, shall not know by whom it was prepared. All matters connected therewith shall be filed with the secretary and preserved for five years as a part of the records of the board, during which time they shall be open to public inspection. If the examination is satisfactory to five members of the board, it shall issue its certificate, under its seal, signed by its president, secretary, and not less than three other members, who may, in the absence of the others, act as an examining board, and the different schools of medicine represented in the board of health shall be represented in said number. The certificate, while in force, shall confer upon the holder the right to practice medicine, surgery and obstetrics, and be conclusive evidence thereof. In all examinations made or proceedings had pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, any member of the board may administer oaths and take testimony in any manner authorized by law. Any one failing in his examination shall be entitled to a second one, within three months thereafter, without further fee. If any person shall by notice in writing apply to the secretary of the board for an examination or re-examination, and it fails or neglects for three months thereafter to give him the same, he may, notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, practice medicine until the next regular meeting of the board without the required certificate. [22 G. A., ch. 66; 21 G. A., ch. 104, §§ 1-3.] [28 G. A., ch. 89, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 114.]

When the question of license arises collaterally in a civil action between the physician and one who employs him, due qualification under the statute will be presumed and the burden will be upon him who denies such license. Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106-16.

All who hold themselves out to heal the sick regardless of the particular school according to which they practice, are to be examined in anatomy, physiology, general chemistry, pathology, surgery and obstetrics. State v. Heath, 125-585.

Magnetic healers, so called, come within the provision of the statute requiring a physician to procure a license. Ibid.

SEC. 2578. Repeal—refusal of certificate or revocation for cause. That section two thousand five hundred and seventy-eight (2578) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

“The board of medical examiners may refuse to grant a certificate to any person otherwise qualified and shall revoke any certificate issued by it to any physician, who is not of good moral character, or who solicits professional patronage by agents, or who profits by the acts of those representing themselves to be his agents, or who is guilty of fraudulent representations as to his skill and ability, or who is guilty of gross unprofessional conduct, or for incompetency, or for habitual intoxication or drug habit; or if the certificate has been granted upon false and fraudulent statements as to graduation or length of practice, the board of medical examiners shall, to safeguard the public health, revoke the certificate in the manner hereinafter set forth.” [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 1.]

The state board of examiners may revoke a certificate on account of “incompetency.” The person whose right is involved should in such case be given a fair opportunity to meet the charges and evidence against him, but it is not necessary that the evidence be strictly confined to that which would be admissible in a court. Affidavits may be considered. Traer v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 106-559.

SEC. 2578-a. Revocation of certificate—procedure. Before the revocation of any certificate issued by the state medical examiners the licentiate shall have been afforded an opportunity for a hearing before the board. At least twenty (20) days prior to the date set for such a hearing, the secretary of the state board of medical examiners shall cause written notice to be personally served upon the defendant in the manner prescribed for the serving of original notice in civil actions. Said notice shall contain a statement of the charges and the date and place set for the hearing before the board. If the party thus notified fails to appear, either in person or by counsel at the time and place designated in said notice, the board shall, after receiving satisfactory evidence of the truth of the charges and the proper issuance of notice, revoke said certificate. If the licentiate appear either in person or by counsel, the board shall proceed with the hearing as herein provided. The board may receive and consider affidavits and oral statements and shall cause stenographic reports of the oral testimony to be taken which, together with all other papers pertaining thereto, shall be preserved for two years. If five members of the board, present at the hearing, are satisfied that the licentiate is guilty of any of the offenses charged, the license shall be revoked. After the revocation of a certificate the holder thereof shall not practice medicine, surgery or obstetrics in this state, for such times as the state board of health may determine. [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 2.]

SEC. 2578-b. Appeal. Any person aggrieved by any ruling or order entered under the provisions of this act shall have the right of an appeal to the district court in the county in which the alleged offense was committed, upon giving notice to the board of medical examiners of such appeal within twenty days after the entry of such ruling, order, or judgment. [32 G. A., ch. 141, § 3.]

SEC. 2579. Who deemed practitioner.

These statutory directions as to qualifications for the practice of medicine are not unconstitutional on the ground that they grant to some citizens or classes of citizens privileges or immunities which on the same terms are not equally granted to all. The statute merely establishes a rule of evidence by which qualifications to practice medicine shall be ascertained. State v. Bair, 112-466.

Those who are to be deemed as practicing medicine under the statutory provisions requiring a license to practice are of three classes: (1) those professing to be physicians, surgeons or obstetricians and assume the duties incident thereto; (2) those who make a practice of prescribing or do prescribe and furnish medicine and, (3) those who publicly profess to heal. State v. Heath, 125-585.

It is proper to charge in the indictment as contemporaneous acts which together considered constitute the practice of medicine without a license, that the defendant professed to cure and heal, and advertised so to do in newspapers, that he maintained an office with the sign of a doctor for this purpose, and that he actually undertook to cure and heal diseases. State v. White, 132-226.

The design of the law is not to render any mode of treatment whatsoever unlawful, but that every one before he shall undertake to prevent, cure or alleviate disease and pain as an occupation, shall have some knowledge of the nature of disease, its origin, its anatomical and physiological features, its causative relations, and of the preparation and action of drugs. Ibid.

In an indictment for practicing without a license, it is not necessary to allege specifically the time, place or circumstances of such unlawful practicing, nor is it necessary to allege that the prescribing of medicine or the practicing charged was for or upon human beings as distinguished from domestic animals. State v. Kendig, 133-164.

It is not necessary in the indictment to negative the exceptions contained in the statute. Ibid.

SEC. 2580. Penalties.

The practice of medicine is not a right but a privilege upon which the state may impose such license tax as it sees fit. State v. Edmunds, 127-333.

One, who publicly announces his skill in the art of healing under circumstances indicating an intention to treat the sick, is guilty of a violation of the statute if without a certificate and not within the statutory exceptions, although he has not actually undertaken to render his services in any particular case. State v. Heath, 125-585.

SEC. 2581. Itinerant physician. Every physician practicing medicine, surgery or obstetrics, or professing or attempting to treat, cure or heal diseases, ailments or injuries by any medicine, appliance or method, who, by himself, agent or employe goes from place to place, or from house to house, or by circulars, letters or advertisements solicits persons to meet him for professional treatment at places other than his office at the place of his residence, shall be considered an itinerant physician; and any such itinerant physician shall, in addition to the certificate elsewhere provided for in this chapter, procure from the state board of medical examiners a license as an itinerant, for which he shall pay to the treasurer of state, for the use of the state of Iowa, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars per annum. Upon payment of this sum, the secretary shall issue to the applicant therefor a license to practice within the state, as an itinerant physician, for one year from the date thereof. The board may, for satisfactory reasons, refuse to issue such license, or may cancel such license upon satisfactory evidence of incompetency or gross immorality. Any person practicing medicine as an itinerant physician, as herein defined, without having procured such license shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than three hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, and costs, and shall be committed to the county jail until such fine is paid: provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent any physician otherwise legally qualified from attending patients in any part of the state to whom he may be called in the regular course of business, or in consultation with other physicians. [29 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

An indictment for practicing as a non-licensed itinerant physician by professing to cure by dieting patients and prescribing exercises and furnishing eye glasses is sufficient. State v. Edmunds, 127-333.

The words "medicine, appliance or method" used in this section are not to be limited to a medicine or drug or something administered as such. Ibid.

SEC. 2582. Examination and diploma required—registration—fee. From and after January 1, 1899, all persons beginning the practice of medicine in the state of Iowa must submit to an examination as set forth in this chapter, and, in addition thereto, shall present diplomas from medical colleges recognized as in good standing by the state board of medical examiners, and all persons receiving their diplomas subsequent to January 1, 1899, shall present evidence of having attended four full courses of study of not less than twenty-six weeks each, no two of which shall have been given in any one year. The state board of medical examiners shall examine the graduates of the medical departments of the state university of Iowa and of such other medical colleges in this state as are recognized by said board of medical examiners as being in good and legal standing at the annual medical commencement and at the location of said state university and other medical colleges respectively:

(a) A certificate of registration showing that an examination has been made by the proper board of any state, on which an average grade of not less than seventy-five (75) per cent. was awarded, the holder thereof having been at the time of said examination the legal possessor of a diploma from a medical college in good standing in this state, may be accepted in lieu of an examination, as evidence of qualification. But in case the scope of said examination was less than that prescribed by this state, the applicant may be required to submit to a supplemental examination in such subjects as have not been covered.

(b) A certificate of registration or license, issued by the proper board of any state, may be accepted as evidence of qualification for registration in this state, provided the holder thereof was, at the time of such registration, the legal possessor of a diploma issued by a medical college in good standing in this state, and that the date thereof was prior to the legal requirement of the examination test in this state. The fee for such examination shall be fifty dollars. [28 G. A., ch. 89, § 2.] [30 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2582-a. Restrictions. If, by the laws of any state or the rulings or decisions of the appropriate officers or boards thereof, any burden, obligation, requirement, disqualification or disability is put upon physicians registered in this state or holding diplomas from medical colleges in this state, which are in good standing therein, affecting the right of said physicians to be registered or admitted to practice in said state, then the same or like burdens, obligations, requirements, disqualification or disability shall be put upon the registration in this state of physicians registered in said state, or holding diplomas from medical colleges situated therein. [30 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 2583. Fees—compensation—expenses of board. Each member of the board of examiners shall receive, out of the fund created by the payment of fees by applicants for examination or certificates, the sum of eight dollars for each day, and necessary traveling expenses, for the time he is actually engaged in the discharge of his duties as a member of the board, and the secretary shall receive a sum not to exceed twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per month and his necessary expenses incurred for services which cannot be performed at the capitol. All printing, postage, and other contingent office expenses necessarily incurred under the provisions of this chapter shall be paid from said fund. Any balance of said funds remaining shall be turned over to the state treasurer for the use of the school fund. [22 G. A., ch. 66; 21 G. A., ch. 104, § 6.] [27 G. A., ch. 68, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

CHAPTER 17-A.

OF THE PRACTICE OF OSTEOPATHY.

SECTION 2583-a. Diploma—examination—certificate. Any person holding a diploma from a legally incorporated school of osteopathy, recognized as of good standing by the Iowa Osteopathic association, and wherein the course of study comprises a term of at least twenty (20) months, or four (4) terms of five (5) months each, in actual attendance at such school, and which shall include instruction in the following branches, to-wit: Anatomy including dissection of a full lateral half of the cadaver, physiology, chemistry, histology, pathology, gynecology, obstetrics and theory of osteopathy and two full terms of practice of osteopathy, shall, upon the presentation of such diploma to the state board of medical examiners and satisfying such board that he is the legal holder thereof, be granted by such board an examination on the branches herein named, (except upon the theory and practice of osteopathy until such time as there may be appointed an osteopathic physician on the state board of health and medical examiners). The fee for said examination, which shall accompany the application, shall be ten dollars ($10) and the examination shall be conducted in the same manner, and at the same place and on the same date that physicians are examined as prescribed by section twenty-five hundred and seventy-six (2576) of the code. The same general average shall be required as in cases of physicians; provided that osteopaths who are graduates of legally incorporated schools of osteopathy as above recognized, and who are at the time of the passage of this act engaged in the practice of osteopathy in Iowa, shall be entitled to receive a certificate upon the payment of the prescribed fee without such examination. Upon passing a satisfactory examination as above prescribed the said board of medical examiners shall issue a certificate to the applicant therefor, signed by the president and secretary of said board, which certificate shall authorize the holder thereof to practice osteopathy in the state of Iowa. This certificate when issued shall be registered with the recorder of the county in which the holder thereof resides and for which he shall pay a fee of fifty cents (50c). And the holder thereof shall not be subject to the provisions of section two thousand five hundred eighty (2580) of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 1.]

SEC. 2583-b. Drugs—major or operative surgery. The certificate provided for in the foregoing section shall not authorize the holder thereof to prescribe or use drugs in his practice, nor to perform major or operative surgery. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 2.]

SEC. 2583-c. Revocation of certificate. The board of medical examiners may refuse to grant a certificate to any person otherwise qualified, who is not of good moral character. For like cause, or for incompetency, or habitual intoxication, or upon satisfactory evidence by affidavit or otherwise that a certificate has been granted upon false and fraudulent statements as to graduation or length of practice, the said board may revoke a certificate by an affirmative vote of at least five (5) members of the board, which number shall include one or more members of the different schools of medicine represented in said board. After the revocation of a certificate, the holder thereof shall not practice osteopathy, surgery, or obstetrics in the state. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 3.]

SEC. 2583-d. Fraudulent diploma—false representation—penalties. Any person who shall present to the board of medical examiners a fraudulent or false diploma, or one of which he is not the rightful owner, for the purpose of procuring a certificate as herein provided, or shall file, or attempt to file, with the recorder of any county in the state the certificate of another as his own, or who shall falsely personate any one to whom a certificate has been granted by such board, or shall practice osteopathy, surgery or obstetrics in the state without first having obtained and filed for record the certificate herein required, and who is not embraced in any of the exceptions contained in this chapter, or who continues to practice osteopathy, surgery or obstetrics after the revocation of his certificate, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than three hundred dollars ($300), nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) and costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed to the county jail until such fine is paid; and whoever shall file or attempt to file with the recorder of any county in the state the certificate of another with the name of the party to whom it was granted or issued erased, and the claimant's name inserted, or shall file or attempt to file with the board of medical examiners any false or forged affidavit of identification, shall be guilty of forgery. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 4.]

SEC. 2583-e. Itinerant osteopath—license. Every person practicing osteopathy, or obstetrics, or professing to treat, cure or heal diseases, ailments or injury by osteopathic application or method, who goes from place to place, or from house to house, or by circulars, letters or advertisements solicits persons to meet him for professional treatment at places other than his office at the place of his residence, shall be considered an itinerant osteopath; and such itinerant osteopath shall, in addition to the certificate elsewhere provided for in this chapter, procure from the state board of medical examiners a license as an itinerant, for which he shall pay to the treasurer of state, for use of the state of Iowa, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) per annum. Upon payment of this sum, the secretary shall issue to the applicant therefor a license to practice within the state, as an itinerant osteopath, for one year from the date thereof. The board may, for satisfactory reasons, refuse to issue such license, or may cancel such license upon satisfactory evidence of incompetency or gross immorality. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 5.]

SEC. 2583-f. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 158, § 6.]

CHAPTER 18.

OF PRACTICE OF PHARMACY.

SECTION 2585. Secretary and treasurer. The commissioners of pharmacy shall annually, on the first Monday in May, elect a suitable person, who shall not be a member of said board, and who shall be known as secretary and treasurer; said secretary and treasurer shall enter upon the discharge of his duties as soon as he shall have filed with the secretary of state a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of three thousand dollars signed by at least two sureties, who shall justify in the aggregate to double the amount of said bond, and which shall bear upon its face the approval of the governor. The salary of said secretary and treasurer shall not exceed eighteen hundred dollars per annum. [26 G. A., ch. 59, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 8.]

Under a prior statute making no provision for a treasurer of the commission, under the statutes as to embezzlement, held that a person appointed treasurer by the commission was not a public officer. State v. Spaulding, 102-659.

SEC. 2588. Registered pharmacists.

A registered pharmacist having a permit to sell intoxicating liquors is not liable for the payment of the mulct tax although he sells in violation of his permit. In re Assignment of Shonkweiler, 104-67.

A pharmacist selling liquor so compounded with other substances as to lose its distinctive character as an intoxicant, and to be no longer desirable for use as a stimulating beverage, and in fact a medicine, does not violate the prohibitory law, although he may be a permit holder, as provided in Code § 2385. He is not required in such cases to take written requests. State v. Gregory, 110-624.

In an action against a person conducting a drug store for negligence of a clerk in compounding a prescription, it is no defense that the clerk was a registered pharmacist, although the principal was restricted to registered pharmacists in the employment of clerks. Burgess v. Sims Drug Co., 114-275.

SEC. 2589. Repeal. The law as it appears in section twenty-five hundred and eighty-nine (2589) of the supplement to the code, and section twenty-five hundred and ninety (2590) of the code, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.]

SEC. 2589-a. Examination. The commission at such times and places as it may select and in such manner as it may determine, shall conduct an examination for all persons desiring to engage in and conduct business as registered pharmacists within the meaning of section twenty-five hundred and eighty-eight (2588) of the code. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 2.]

SEC. 2589-b. Conditions—registration. No person shall be eligible to take this examination until he has passed his twenty-first birthday and has presented to the commission his own affidavit and that of his employer or employers, affirming that he has had not less than four years' practical experience (including the actual number of weeks he has spent in a reputable college of pharmacy as hereinafter defined) as clerk under the supervision of a registered pharmacist in a drug store or pharmacy in which physicians' prescriptions are compounded. Provided, however, that graduates of reputable pharmaceutical schools and colleges whose entrance and graduation requirements are equivalent to those prescribed by the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties, for the year 1905, and whose course of study consists of two years of not less than thirty-six (36) weeks each, shall be eligible to take the examination without proof of experience as hereinbefore defined. Applicants who are graduates of a junior course, consisting of not less than thirty-six (36) weeks in pharmaceutical schools and colleges whose course consists of or is equivalent to the requirements above specified, shall be allowed one year's credit on store experience. If such applicant passes the required examination, he shall be granted a certificate of registration. Pharmacists thus registered shall have the sole right to keep and sell all medicines and poisons, except intoxicating liquors. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

SEC. 2589-c. Assistant's certificate. If the applicant has passed his eighteenth birthday and has had at least two years' practical experience as hereinbefore defined (including actual number of weeks spent in a reputable college of pharmacy as defined herein) and has presented to the commission his own affidavit and that of his employer or employers, affirming that he has had such experience, he shall upon passing a satisfactory examination, be granted an assistant's certificate to be exchanged for full registration when he shall have reached the age of twenty-one (21) years, and upon satisfactory proof that he has had since the taking of the examination, two additional years of practical experience in a drug store as defined herein. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 4.]

SEC. 2589-d. Examination and registration fees. Each person furnished a certificate under this act shall be charged a fee of five dollars ($5.00) which shall be in full for all services, and in case the examination of said person shall prove defective or unsatisfactory and his name be not registered, he shall be permitted to present himself for re-examination within any period not exceeding twelve (12) months next thereafter, and no charge shall be made for re-examination. The said commissioners are authorized to administer oaths pertaining to their said office and take a certificate of acknowledgment of instruments in writing. After registration, an annual fee of one dollar ($1.00) for renewal certificate shall be paid on or before the 22nd day of March by all pharmacists and assistants who continue in business, and the conduct of such business without such renewal shall be a misdemeanor. [31 G. A., ch. 115, § 5.]

SEC. 2593. Repeal—sale of poisons. Section twenty-five hundred ninety-three (2593) of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

violating any of the provisions of this act shall be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than thirty days." [32 G. A., ch. 142.]

The provisions of this section have no application to the sale of phosphorous, and a pharmacist is not liable in damages for selling that substance without direction as to the care to be exercised in handling it. Gibson v. Torbet, 115-163.

One who sells poisons without the label required by statute is guilty of negligence rendering him liable for injury proximately resulting from his wrong. Burk v. Creamery Pkg. Mfg. Co., 126-730.

SEC. 2594. Itinerant vendors of drugs.

One who merely sells eyeglasses for defective eyes may perhaps be considered an itinerant vendor of drugs under provisions of this section. State v. Edmunds, 127-333.

SEC. 2596-a. Sale of cocaine and certain drugs. No person, firm or corporation shall sell, exchange, deliver or have in his possession with intent to sell, exchange or expose or offer for sale or exchange any coca (Erythroxlyn Coca), cocaine, alpha or beta eucaine or derivatives of any of them, or any preparation containing coca, cocaine, alpha or beta eucaine or derivatives of any of them, or cotton root, ergot, oil of tansy, oil of savin or derivatives of any of them, except upon the original written prescription of a registered physician or veterinarian or licensed dentist for medical, dental or veterinary purposes, and no such prescription shall be refilled. Provided that nothing in this act shall prevent the sale thereof to a wholesale or retail dealer in drugs, nor to a registered physician or veterinarian or licensed dentist. [However, nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent the sale thereof to a wholesale or retail dealer in drugs nor registered physician, or licensed dentist for use in the practice of his profession.] [29 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 143.]

SEC. 2596-b. Penalty. Any one found guilty of violating the provisions of section one of this act, for the first offense, shall pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars and not more than one hundred dollars and cost of prosecution. For the second offense, and each subsequent offense, he shall pay on conviction thereon, a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, and not more than three hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed three months. Any clerk, employe or agent, violating, or aiding in the violation of section one, shall be charged and convicted as principal. [29 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2596-c. Enforcement. Peace officers shall see that the provisions of this act are faithfully executed within their respective jurisdictions, and when they are informed, or have reason to believe that this act has been violated, and the proof thereof can be had, they shall file information to that effect against the offending party before a magistrate, who thereupon shall proceed according to law. The county attorney shall prosecute violators of this act. [29 G. A., ch. 110, § 3.]

CHAPTER 19-A.

BOARD OF DENTAL EXAMINERS AND PRACTICE OF DENTISTRY.

SECTION 2600-a. Repeal. That chapter nineteen (19) of title twelve (12) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-b. Board of examiners—how appointed—term. The board of dental examiners shall consist of five practicing dentists, who shall have been engaged in the continuous practice of their profession in this state for the period of five years preceding their appointment, one of whom shall be appointed annually by the governor, and hold office for the term of five years from and after the first day of August following his appointment, and until his successor is appointed. The Iowa state dental society shall, at the request of the governor, submit a list of dentists of recognized ability, from which he may select the member of the board to be appointed. All vacancies occurring in the board shall be filled in like manner, and the appointee hold office for the unexpired term of his predecessor. All members of the present board shall continue in office under this act until the expiration of their respective terms of office. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 2.]

SEC. 2600-c. Officers—meetings—quorum. The board shall organize by selecting one of its members as president, and one as secretary and treasurer, and shall meet at least once each year, and at such other times as it may deem necessary, and at such place as it may select. A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum, and its meetings shall at all reasonable times be open to the public. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 3.]

SEC. 2600-d. Examinations — license — record books — fees. The board shall at any regular meeting, and may at any special meeting, examine applicants for a license to practice dentistry as to their knowledge and skill in dental surgery, and shall issue to such applicants as are found to be qualified a license authorizing them to practice dentistry. The license shall be signed by each member of the board, attested by the president and secretary, and have the seal of the board affixed thereto; and shall be presumptive evidence of the right of the holder to practice dentistry in the state. The name, age, nativity, location, number of years of practice of the person to whom a license is given, the number of the license, and the date of the registration thereof shall be entered in a book kept in the office of the secretary of the board, which shall be open to the inspection of the public, under proper restrictions as to its safe keeping, and the number of the book and page containing such entries shall be noted on the face of the license. Each applicant for a license shall be a graduate of a reputable dental school, which is recognized as such by the board of dental examiners, and pay to the board a fee of twenty dollars before a license is issued. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 4.]

SEC. 2600-e. Testimony—rules and regulations. The board shall have authority to take testimony in relation to all matters within its jurisdiction, and the presiding officer thereof, or of any committee appointed thereby, may issue subpoenas for, and administer oaths to, witnesses called to testify before the board or such committee; and it may make and adopt all necessary rules, regulations and by-laws not inconsistent with law necessary to enable it to perform the duties and transact the business authorized and required by this act. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 5.]

SEC. 2600-f. Treasurer to give bond. The treasurer shall, on assuming the duties of his office, file with the secretary of state, a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties; and shall keep a full and accurate account of all moneys received by him under the provisions of this act, and pay out the same upon the written order of the president countersigned by the secretary. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 6.]

SEC. 2600-g. Compensation. Each member of the board shall receive the sum of five dollars for each day he is actually engaged in the duties of his office, with the actual expenses incurred by him in the discharge of such duties, and the treasurer shall receive a salary not exceeding three hundred dollars per annum for his services as secretary and treasurer, which amounts shall be paid out of the fund received by the board under the provisions of this act, and from no other fund or source. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 7.]

SEC. 2600-h. Biennial report—auditing committee. The board shall make a biennial report to the governor of its proceedings, including a full and accurate account of all moneys received and disbursed and shall publish said report with a list of dentists licensed to practice in this state, and the president shall appoint an auditing committee consisting of three practicing dentists of the state who are not members of the board, whose duty it shall be to audit the accounts of the board annually, and make a full report thereof, which report shall accompany the biennial report made by the board to the governor. Any sum of money, remaining after the payment of the compensation and expenses of the members of the board and the salary of the secretary and treasurer, shall be by the treasurer paid into the state treasury on or before the first day of May of each year. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 8.] [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 4.]

SEC. 2600-i. License filed with clerk of district court—license filed in wrong county office—fee. Every person to whom a license is issued shall file the same for record with the clerk of the district court in the county in which he desires to practice dentistry and the clerk of the court shall be entitled to a fee of fifty cents for recording such license; and failure to so file such license for record within one year after it is issued by the board, shall work a forfeiture thereof and said license shall not be restored by the board except upon the payment to it the sum of twenty-five dollars as penalty therefor. Provided, however, that where a license to practice dentistry has been issued at any time prior to January 1, 1907, under the provisions of chapter nineteen (19) [of title twelve (XII)] of the code, or under the provisions of chapter nineteen (19)-A [of title twelve (XII)] of the supplement to the code, and the same in good faith, but by mistake, has been filed for record in the office of any other county officer of the proper county except that of the clerk of the district court, then the holder of such license shall be allowed six months from and after the taking effect of this act within which to file the same for record with the clerk of the district court in the county in which he desires to practice dentistry; and from and after the date of said filing the holder of such license shall be authorized to practice dentistry the same as though said license had been originally filed with the proper officer. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 144.]

SEC. 2600-j. Penalty. It shall be unlawful for any person to practice dentistry in this state without having complied with the provisions of this act, and any person who shall violate the provisions thereof shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon a conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not more than forty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 10.]

SEC. 2600-k. Who not eligible to appointment on board. No member of a dental college faculty, or no person connected therewith, shall be eligible to an appointment upon the state board of dental examiners. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 11.]

SEC. 2600-l. Provisions as to physicians, dental students and registered practitioners. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent physicians and surgeons from extracting teeth in the practice of their profession, or to prevent bona fide students of dentistry, in the regular course of their instruction, from operating upon patients at clinics, or under the supervision and in the presence of their preceptors, but no fee or salary for such operations shall be received, either directly, or indirectly, by any such student of dentistry. And nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the practice of dentistry in this state by any practitioner who has been duly registered in accordance with the laws of Iowa existing prior to the passage of this act; or any person who is a member of an incorporated society or community and practicing dentistry solely for and among the members of such community or incorporated society without charge or compensation. [28 G. A., ch. 91, § 12.]

SEC. 2600-m. License for practitioners from other states—fee. The board of dental examiners may, without examination, issue license to practice to any dentist who shall have been in legal practice in some other state or territory for a period of at least five years, upon the certificate of the board of dental examiners or a like board of the state or territory in which such dentist was a practitioner; certifying his competency and that he is of good moral character and upon payment of twenty-five dollars ($25.00). Provided, however, that the state from which any practitioner may come shall have, and maintain equal standards of laws regulating the practice of dentistry and recognize exchange certificates issued by the board of examiners of the state of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 2600-n. Change of residence to another state — certificate—fee. Any duly licensed dentist of the state of Iowa who is desirous of changing his residence to that of another state or territory shall upon application to the board of dental examiners, and the payment of a fee of five dollars ($5.00) receive a certificate which shall attest that he is a duly licensed dentist of the state of Iowa. [31 G. A., ch. 116, § 2.]

CHAPTER 20.

OF THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

SECTION 2602. Admission. All persons named in section twenty-six hundred and one of this act, not having sufficient means for his or her own support, who are disabled by disease, wounds, old age or otherwise, who served in Iowa regiments or batteries, or were accredited to the state of Iowa, or who have been residents of the state for three years next preceding the date of application, shall be eligible to admission into said home. Before admission such person shall file with the officer having charge of such home a certificate signed by the board of supervisors of the county in which such person resides stating that such person is a resident of such county. Such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the residence of such person in all matters affecting the liability of the county with respect to the expenses of such person in case of insanity or any other cause for which the county may be liable. If the applicant is entitled to admission and is not a resident of the state, a record shall be made thereof on admission. Nothing in this act shall be construed to bar any person from admission who is entitled to such admission under section twenty-six hundred and two (2602) of the code. [21 G. A., ch. 58, §§ 2, 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 145.]

SEC. 2604. Commandant—inferior officers. The board of trustees shall appoint a commandant to serve during the pleasure of the board, and who shall be one who has an honorable discharge from the United States army or navy, and whose salary shall not exceed twenty hundred dollars per year, and use and occupancy of the commandant's house with lights, fuel and water, which shall include all allowances. The commandant may appoint, subject to the approval of the board, the adjutant, quartermaster and surgeon, together with such assistant surgeons as may, from time to time, be required, and the said adjutant and quartermaster shall be of like qualifications, as to service in the army or navy, with himself, and also a matron and other necessary subordinate employes, and they shall be subject to removal by him for misconduct or incompetency, but in the case of every removal a detailed statement of the cause shall be reported at once to the board of trustees and subject to its approval. The board shall fix the compensation to be paid the subordinate officers and employes of the home, not to exceed that paid for like services in similar institutions. Provided, that the adjutant, quartermaster and surgeon shall also be furnished without charge the houses erected by the state and now occupied by such officers, together with lights, heat, fuel and water. [21 G. A., ch. 58, § 16.] [29 G. A., ch. 111, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.] [31 G. A., chs. 117, 118.]

SEC. 2606. Rules for admission. The board of trustees may receive into the home dependent honorably discharged Union soldiers, sailors or marines, and their wives, if married prior to the year 1885, provided that the widow of an honorably discharged Union soldier, sailor or marine, who prior to the year 1885 married such honorably discharged Union soldier, sailor, or marine, and who subsequent to the year 1885 married an honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine shall be eligible to admission to the home under such rules and regulations and subject to such conditions as the said board may prescribe, and permit such husband and wife to occupy a cottage on the grounds, or such other quarters as may be specifically set apart for such; provided, such soldiers shall have the qualifications for membership prescribed in sections twenty-six hundred and one and twenty-six hundred and two of this act. Subject to the same rules and regulations, such army nurses and the mother or widow or any Union soldier, sailor or marine as would be eligible to admission to the home, and as are unable to support themselves, may be admitted therein, and be supported and maintained, and receive the same allowance from the state as is granted to other members of the home. [24 G. A., ch. 95, §§ 4, 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 119.]

SEC. 2606-a. Restriction as to pension money. The board of control shall not adopt or enforce any rule in the Iowa soldiers' home which will deprive any member of the home of any part of the pension money which such member receives from the United States government, except as provided for in this act. [28 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 2606-b. Penalty for intoxication. Any member of the home, who shall, while a member of the home, be convicted twice by any court of justice, of violating the criminal statutes of the state, or who shall twice be found guilty by the commandant, or a court martial, if the member so elect, of intoxication or other misdemeanors, shall be required to deposit the money received from the United States government as a pension, with the commandant, immediately on the receipt of his pension check. In cases where such pensioner has a wife, child, or parent dependent upon him for support, at least one-half of such pension money shall be sent to such dependent person, and if there be two or more dependent relatives the pensioner may determine to whom one-half of the pension received by him shall be sent. The other half of such pension money, as well as all money received from such pensioners as have no dependent relatives, shall be kept on deposit by the commandant for such pensioner, subject to the direction of the board of control, and the money so deposited may be paid out with the consent of the depositor, subject to the approval of the commandant under such rules as the board of control may provide, but in case the pensioner abstain from intoxication and is not guilty of further violation of the criminal statutes of the state for a period of ten months from the date of conviction or of intoxication, as hereinbefore provided, he shall be entitled to receive two dollars for the eleventh month and four dollars for the twelfth month following such conviction, from his said pension; and if, during these two months he shall conduct himself in an orderly and sober manner, he shall then have the same control of his pension money as though he had not been twice convicted of violating the criminal statutes, or of being intoxicated as provided in this act. In case any depositor is discharged from the said home, any balance of such deposit in the hands of the commandant, after his ticket has been purchased, shall be paid to such pensioner thirty (30) days after his discharge, and in the case of the death of such depositor the money shall be paid to his heirs, legatees, or legal representatives. No assignment of the money deposited with the commandant, or any claim therefor shall be valid. [28 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.] [29 G. A., ch. 169, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 103.]

SEC. 2606-c. Repeal—pension money—when deposited. Section three (3) of said chapter is hereby repealed, and the following is enacted in lieu thereof:

Each member of the home who receives a pension, and who has a wife or minor children, shall deposit with the commandant forthwith on receipt of his pension check one-half of the amount thereof, which shall be sent at once to the wife if she be dependent upon her own labor or others for support, or, if there be no wife, to the guardian of the minor child or children if dependent upon others for support. Provided, however, that the commandant if satisfied that the wife has deserted her husband, or is of bad character, or is not dependent upon others for support, may pay the money deposited as aforesaid to the guardian of the dependent minor child or children. [29 G. A., ch. 169, § 2.]

SEC. 2606-d. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts and parts of acts, in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 92, § 4.]

SEC. 2608. Annual appropriation—support. For the general support of said home, there is hereby appropriated the sum of fifteen dollars per month for each member, and ten dollars per month for each officer and employe not a member of the home, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be estimated by the average number present for the preceding quarter. These appropriations to be drawn monthly on the requisition of the board of trustees of the home in the usual manner, and then only in such amounts as the wants of the home may require. [23 G. A., ch. 58; 22 G. A., ch. 121.] [27 G. A., ch. 72, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 113, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 146.]

[The above section was amended by section one of chapter 72 of the acts of the 27 G. A., by striking out the first three and a portion of the fourth line of the original section, and then by inserting after the word "member" in the seventh line thereof the word "present." There is no word "member" in the seventh line, but there is the word "number" after which the word "present" has been inserted.]

TITLE XIII.

OF EDUCATION.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

SECTION 2622. Duties—teachers' conventions and institutes. He shall be charged with the general supervision of all the county superintendents and the common schools of the state; may meet county superintendents in convention at such points in the state as may be most suitable for the purpose, at which proper steps may be taken looking toward securing a more uniform and efficient administration of the school laws. He shall appoint, upon the request of county superintendents, the time and place for holding teachers' institutes, such institutes to be called when it is probable that not less than twenty teachers will be present, and remain in session not less than six working days, of which time and place of meeting he shall give notice to the county superintendent of the proper county. He shall attend teachers' institutes thus called in the several counties of the state, so far as consistent with his official duties, and assist in their management and instruction. He shall have power to collect, publish and distribute statistical and other information relative to public schools and education in general; to visit teachers' association meetings and make tours of inspection among the common schools and other institutions of learning in the state, and may deliver addresses upon subjects relative to education; to prepare, publish, and distribute blank forms for all returns he may deem necessary, or that may be required by law, of teachers, or school officers; to publish and distribute annually leaflets and circulars relative to arbor day, memorial day, and other days considered by him worthy of special observance in public schools, the number thereof to be fixed by the executive council; to prepare questions for the use of county superintendents in the examination of applicants for teachers' certificates; and to prepare, publish, and distribute, among teachers and school officers, courses of study for use in the rural and high schools of the state, the number thereof to be fixed by the executive council. When any county superintendent fails to make any report as required of him by law the superintendent of public instruction may appoint some suitable person to perform such duties and fix reasonable compensation therefor, which shall be paid by the delinquent county superintendent. [C., '73, §§ 1577, 1584; C., '51, § 1080.] [28 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 3, § 6.]

SEC. 2625. Reports. He shall on the first day of January report to the auditor of state the number of persons in each county between the ages of five and twenty-one years, and biennially to the governor; which report shall contain a statement of the condition of the common schools in the state, the number of school townships and districts therein, number of independent districts, number of teachers, number of schools, number of school houses and value thereof, number of persons of school age, number of scholars in each county attending school the previous year, number of books in district libraries, the value of all apparatus in schools, and such other statistical information as may be of public importance, plans matured or adopted for the more perfect organization and efficiency of the common schools; and any suggestions he may deem important, regarding further legislation, which will strengthen the common schools of the state. Provided, however, that he shall make a report during the year 1906, which said report shall cover the period only from the date of his last biennial report, and shall report to the governor biennially thereafter. [22 G. A., ch. 82, § 29; C., '73, §§ 1582-3; C., '51, § 1086.] [31 G. A., ch. 121.]

SEC. 2627. Salary and expenses. The salary of the superintendent of public instruction shall be twenty-two hundred dollars per annum, and that of his deputy eighteen hundred dollars, to be paid monthly upon the warrant of the state auditor, and, in addition thereto, the state superintendent shall receive three hundred dollars annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to pay actual traveling expenses incurred in the performance of official duties, to be allowed upon an itemized and verified account filed with the state auditor, who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer for the amount allowed. [22 G. A., ch. 109, § 1; 21 G. A., ch. 118, § 5; C., '73, § 3760.] [28 G. A., ch. 94, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 2, § 5.]

OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATIONAL EXAMINERS.

SECTION 2629. Meetings—examinations. The board shall meet for the transaction of business at such times and places as the president may direct, and shall annually hold at least two public examinations of teachers, to be conducted by a member or the secretary of the board or by such qualified person or persons as the board may select. All examinations shall be conducted in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the board, not inconsistent with the laws of the state, and a record shall be kept of all of its proceedings. It may issue state certificates and state diplomas to such teachers as are found upon examination to possess a good moral character, thorough scholarship and knowledge of didactics, with successful experience in teaching, or with such other training and qualifications as the board may require. The examination for certificates and diplomas shall cover orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, bookkeeping, physiology, history of the United States, algebra, botany, natural philosophy, drawing, civil government, constitution and laws of the state, and didactics; those for diplomas, in addition to the foregoing, geometry, trigonometry, chemistry, zoology, geology, astronomy, political economy, rhetoric, English literature, general history, and such other studies as the board may require. [19 G. A., ch. 167, §§ 2-4.] [28 G. A., ch. 95, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 2.]

SEC. 2630-a. Repeal. Section twenty-six hundred and thirty (2630) of the code is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 96, § 1.]

SEC. 2630-b. Special certificates. The educational board of examiners may issue a special certificate to any teacher of music, drawing, penmanship, or other special branches, or to any primary teacher, of sufficient experience, who shall pass such examination as the board may require in the branches, and methods pertaining thereto, for which the certificate is sought. Such certificates shall be designated by the name of the branch and shall not be valid for any other department or branch. The board shall keep a complete register of all persons to whom certificates or diplomas are issued. [28 G. A., ch. 96, § 2.]

SEC. 2630-c. Validation authorized. The state educational board of examiners is hereby empowered to validate certificates issued by state departments of education in other states, where such certificates were issued upon evidence of scholarship and experience equivalent to that required for like certificates under the laws of this state. [32 G. A., ch. 149.]

SEC. 2631. How long valid—revocation—fees. A state certificate shall authorize the holder to teach in any public school in the state for five years thereafter, and a diploma shall confer such authority for life; but any certificate or diploma may be revoked by the board for sufficient cause, or such cause as would, if known at the time, have prevented issuance thereof, provided the holder of such certificate or diploma shall have due notice, and shall be allowed to be present and make his defense. For each certificate issued the applicant shall pay two dollars, and for each diploma five dollars, which may be required before the examination is commenced. All moneys obtained from this source shall be paid into the state treasury. [19 G. A., ch. 167, §§ 5, 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 3.]

SEC. 2634-a. Repeal—compensation—secretary — employes — salaries. That section twenty-six hundred and thirty-four-a (2634-a) of the supplement to the code be, and the same is hereby, repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Each member of the board shall receive for the time actually employed in such service, his actual necessary expenses, and those not salaried officers or employes of the state or any institution thereof shall be paid in addition, three ($3.00) dollars per day. The board shall have power to employ a secretary and prescribe his duties. He shall receive a salary not exceeding one hundred ($100.00) dollars per month and actual necessary expenses while engaged in the performance of his duties at places other than the capitol. The board shall have power to employ such persons as are necessary to assist in examinations and in reading answer papers and for clerical work and other necessary assistance. Persons so employed shall receive, not to exceed fifty cents per hour for the time actually employed and actual traveling expenses to and from the place where their services are required. All expenditures authorized to be made under the provisions of chapter two (2) of title thirteen (XIII) of the code and of the supplement to the code and amendments thereto and under the provisions of chapter one hundred twenty-two (122), acts of the thirty-first general assembly and under the provisions of this act shall be certified by the chairman of the educational board of examiners to the executive council for payment. If found correct the executive council shall cause same to be paid from any funds paid into the state treasury under the provisions of section twenty-six hundred thirty-one (2631) of the code and chapter one hundred twenty-two (122), acts of the thirty-first general assembly and amendments thereto.” [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 4.]

SEC. 2634-a1. Printing. This act shall be construed as giving legal authority to the educational board of examiners to obtain all the necessary printing for the performance of their duties, as required by law, in the same manner as the printing is provided for state officers. [32 G. A., ch. 6, § 5.]

SEC. 2634-b. Educational examiners to inspect and supervise. That the state board of educational examiners shall constitute a board for the inspection, recognition and supervision of the schools designed for the instruction and training of teachers for the common schools. [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 1.]

SEC. 2634-c. Accredited schools—annual visitations. That schools desiring state recognition shall apply to the board of educational examiners which shall then proceed to inspect such schools with reference to course of study, equipment and faculty. All schools that shall meet the requirements of the board of educational examiners shall be known as accredited schools. Such schools shall have an annual visitation by some member of the board of educational examiners, or some one appointed for that purpose by said board, who shall receive compensation as is provided for in section 2634 of the code. [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 2.]

SEC. 2634-d. Certificates—fees. Graduates of approved accredited schools who shall pass the required examination for a two years' certificate shall receive from the state board of examiners a certificate for two years, which may be renewed under such rules as said board may prescribe. Applicants for a certificate shall pay a fee of $2.00, one-half of which shall be returned in case of failure. [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 3.]

SEC. 2634-e. Sworn statement. At the close of each school year, the principal or superintendent of each accredited school shall file with the board of examiners a sworn statement, showing the name, age, postoffice address, studies and attendance of each of the students in his school taking the prescribed teachers' course. [29 G. A., ch. 115, § 4.]

SEC. 2634-f. Graduates from accredited colleges. That the state educational board of examiners may accept graduation from the regular and collegiate courses in the state university, state normal schools, and the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, and from other institutions of higher learning in the state having regular and collegiate courses of equal rank, as evidence that a teacher possesses the scholarship and professional fitness for a state certificate. [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 1.]

SEC. 2634-g. State certificates granted. That in all cases where such graduation shows the extent and quality of scholarship that is required by section twenty-six hundred and twenty-nine (2629) of the supplement to the code, and when the teacher possesses a good moral character and satisfies the board of being professionally qualified, there shall be granted by the said board of examiners a state certificate valid for five years to teach in any public school in the state. [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 2.]

SEC. 2634-h. Renewal. That at the close of said five years' period upon proof of at least three years' successful teaching experience, the educational board of examiners may renew such state certificate. [32 G. A., ch. 148, § 3.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

SECTION 2641. Reports. On the first day of October preceding the meeting of the general assembly, the president of the university shall make a report to the board of regents, which shall exhibit the condition and progress of the institution, the different courses of study pursued, the branches taught, the means and methods of instruction adopted, the number of students, their names, classes, and residences, with such other matters as he may regard important. The board of regents, on the fifteenth day of October in each even-numbered year, shall make report to the governor, which report shall show the number of professors, tutors, and other officers, the compensation of each, the condition of the university fund, the income received therefrom, the amount of expenditures with the items thereof, and such other information and such recommendations as it shall regard important. [22 G. A., ch. 82, § 29; C., '73, §§ 1600-1.] [31 G. A., ch. 123.]

SEC. 2644. Tax for buildings. For the purpose of providing for the erection, improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the board of regents of the state university, there shall be levied a special tax of one-tenth of a mill on the dollar upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state for the erection of buildings for the state university; and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the treasury to the credit of said state university, said levy to commence with the levy made by the executive council in August, 1896, and the same levy shall be made annually after said first levy for the five successive years thereafter. Any amount in excess of the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars raised by any one of such levies shall be paid into the state treasury. The money realized from such levy shall be held by the treasurer of state, and drawn as provided by law. The amount so realized by said levies shall be in lieu of all appropriations for the erection of buildings for said state university during said period of six years. The board of regents or managing board of the state university shall have authority to expend from time to time in the purchase of books for the university library not to exceed forty-one thousand and nine hundred dollars ($41,900) in the aggregate, and warrants shall be issued therefor, payable when the additional year's tax herein authorized is collected. There shall also be paid out of said additional year's tax the sum of thirteen thousand and one hundred dollars ($13,100) expended in restoring the burned library building and repairing and replacing apparatus injured and destroyed, and in preserving the damaged books and property and warrants shall be issued therefor. [26 G. A., ch., 114.] [27 G. A., ch. 75, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2644-a. Repeal. That chapter ninety-seven (97) of the acts of the twenty-eighth (28) general assembly of the state of Iowa, is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 171, § 1.]

SEC. 2644-b. Levy of special tax—purposes—how drawn. For the purpose of providing for the erection, repair and improvement of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the board of regents of the state university, there shall be levied annually for five years a special tax of one-fifth (1-5) of a mill on the dollar upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state, and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the treasury to the credit of the said state university. Said levy shall be first made with the levy made for state purposes in the year nineteen hundred and two (1902), and the same levy shall be made annually for the four successive years thereafter. The money realized from such levy for said university shall be held by the treasurer of the state for the purposes hereinbefore provided and drawn upon requisition of the board of regents. The funds to be realized from the tax levies herein provided for shall not be anticipated by issuing warrants or other obligations of the state. [29 G. A., ch. 171, § 2.]

SEC. 2644-c. Colonel of cadets. That the commandant and instructor of military science and tactics in the Iowa State university, the college of agriculture and mechanic arts and the state normal school be given the rank of colonel of cadets, and the governor of the state of Iowa is hereby authorized to issue commissions therefor, upon the request of the president of such educational institution. [29 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

SECTION 2646. Board of trustees. The college shall be under the management and control of a board of trustees, of which the governor and superintendent of public instruction shall be members, by virtue of office, but neither the president nor other officer or employe of the college and farm shall be eligible to membership therein. [20 G. A., ch. 76, § 1; C., '73, §1604; R., §1714.] [27 G. A., ch. 76, § 1.]

SEC. 2650. Annual meetings—fiscal year—report. Annual meetings of the board of trustees shall be held at the college during the month of June of each year; the chairman may call special meetings, when found expedient. The fiscal college year shall begin on the first day of July, and end on the thirteenth day of June of each year. The board shall make a biennial report to the governor. [16 G. A., ch. 159, § 9; C., '73, §§ 1609-10; 27 G. A., ch. 76, § 2.]

SEC. 2667. Loans. It may loan said funds upon approved real estate security, subject to the following regulations:

1. Each loan shall be for a term not exceeding ten years, at a rate of interest to be fixed by said board, payable annually;

2. Each loan shall be secured by a mortgage paramount to all other liens upon improved farm lands in the state, the loan not to exceed fifty per cent. of the cash value thereof, exclusive of buildings;

3. Principal and interest shall be payable to the order of the board at the office of the state treasurer, the notes and mortgages to provide for the payment by the borrower of all expenses, attorney fees and costs incurred in collecting the same;

4. A register containing a complete abstract of each loan, and showing its actual condition, shall be kept by the secretary of said board, and be at all times open to inspection. The attorney-general, under the direction of the executive council, shall prepare the necessary blanks, forms and instructions to carry into effect the provisions of this section and to keep such loans secure and unimpaired. [25 G. A., ch. 110, § 1; 20 G. A., ch. 193, § 2; 28 G. A., ch. 98, § 1.]

SEC. 2674-a. Repeal. That chapter 99 of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly of the state of Iowa, is hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 172, § 1.]

SEC. 2674-b. Levy of special tax—purpose—how drawn. For the purpose of providing for the erection, repair and improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the board of trustees of the Iowa state college of agriculture and mechanic arts, there shall be levied annually for five years a special tax of one-fifth of a mill on the dollar upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state, and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the treasury to the credit of the said college. Said levy shall be first made with the levy made for state purposes in the year nineteen hundred and two (1902) and the same levy shall be made annually for the four successive years thereafter. The money realized from such levy for said college shall be held by the treasurer of the state for the purpose hereinbefore provided, and drawn upon requisition of the board of trustees. The funds to be realized from the tax levies herein provided for shall not be anticipated by issuing and discounting warrants or other obligations of the state. [29 G. A., ch. 172, § 2.]

SEC. 2674-c. Repeal not to affect collection and expenditure of taxes. The repeal of said chapter 99 acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly shall in no manner affect the collection and expenditure of the taxes heretofore levied thereunder, but the same shall be collected and expended as though said act remained in full force. [29 G. A., ch. 172, § 3.]

SEC. 2674-d. Department of ceramics. That the trustees of the Iowa state college [of agriculture] and mechanic arts be, and they are hereby required to establish in said college a department of ceramics for the technical and practical education of clay workers, cement manufacturers and users and other allied pursuits in all branches of those arts which exist in this state or which can be profitably introduced and maintained in this state from the mineral resources thereof; including the geology and properties of clays, cement materials, fuels, and other minerals required, and the testing of the products thereof; also the manufacture of fire brick, pressed brick, paving brick and of glazed and enameled brick of all kinds, of sewer pipe, drain tile, fire proofing and terra cotta, of pottery, porcelain, china and other specialties; also including the details of the manufacture and uses of cement and the details of other allied industries. [31 G. A., ch. 124, § 1.]

SEC. 2674-e. Investigation of clays, cement materials and mineral products. Be it further enacted, that the said college shall provide as a part of its engineering experiment station work for the investigation of clays, cement materials, fuels, and other mineral resources of the state with especial reference to their economic uses, and for the publication and dissemination of information useful to such industries and for the testing of the products thereof. [31 G. A., ch. 124, § 2.]

SEC. 2674-f. Highway commission—duties. That the Iowa state college of agriculture and mechanical [mechanic] arts at Ames, shall act as a highway commission for Iowa, whose duties it shall be:

1. To devise and adopt plans and systems of highway construction and maintenance, suited to the needs of the different counties of the state, and conduct demonstration in such highway construction, at least one each year at some suitable place, for the instruction of county supervisors, township trustees, superintendents, students of the college, and others.

2. To disseminate information and instruction to county supervisors, and other highway officers who make request; answer inquiries and advise such supervisors and officers on questions pertaining to highway improvements, construction and maintenance, and whenever the board of supervisors of a county adjudge that the public necessity requires a public demonstration of improved highway construction or maintenance in said county, and so request and agree to furnish necessary tools, help, and motor power for same, the commission shall furnish as soon as practicable thereafter, a trained and competent highway builder for such demonstration, free to the county.

3. To formulate reasonable conditions and regulations for public demonstrations; and to promulgate advisory rules and regulations for the repair and maintenance of highways.

4. To keep a record of all the important operations of the highway commission, and report same to the governor at the close of each fiscal year. [30 G. A., ch. 105.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

SECTION. 2680. Report to governor. The board shall biennially, through its secretary, make a detailed report to the governor of its proceedings during the preceding two years, which report shall show the number of teachers employed, the compensation of each, the number of pupils and classification, an itemized statement of receipts and expenditures, and such further information with such recommendations as may be regarded important to the interests of the institution, and with reference to its connection with the educational work of the state; provided that the report made in the year 1906 shall cover the period only from the date of its last biennial report. [22 G. A., ch. 64, § 2; 16 G. A., ch. 129, § 9.] [31 G. A., ch. 125.]

SEC. 2682. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated the sum of twenty-eight thousand five hundred dollars annually as an endowment fund for the payment of the teachers of said normal school, and the further sum of nine thousand dollars annually as a contingent fund therefor. The amount herein appropriated shall be drawn and paid quarterly on the first days of March, June, September and December, on the requisition of the board of trustees of the school. [29 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2682-a. Special tax—purpose—how drawn. For the purpose of providing for the erection, repair and improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the board of trustees of the state normal school, there shall be levied annually for five years, a special tax of one-tenth of a mill on the dollar upon the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state, and the proceeds thereof shall be carried into the treasury to the credit of said state normal school. Said levy shall be first made with the levy made for state purposes in the year nineteen hundred and two (1902) and the same levy shall be made annually for the four successive years thereafter. The money realized from such levy for said state normal school shall be held by the treasurer of the state for the purposes hereinbefore provided and drawn upon requisition of the board of trustees of said state normal school. [29 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

CHAPTER 5-A.

OF REPORTS FROM EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

SECTION 2682-b. Reports—what to contain. That the secretary of the state university, the secretary of the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts and the secretary of the state normal school be required hereafter to make report to each general assembly within three (3) days after the said general assembly shall have convened. Said reports shall show in plain manner the amount available each fiscal year from state appropriations and all other sources, for the erection, equipment, improvement and repair of buildings, also the funds received from state appropriations, interest on endowment funds, tuition, laboratory fees, janitor fees, donations, rent of lands and from all sources whatsoever going to effect the annual income of the support funds of said institutions. Any appropriation or funds received for any special purpose whatsoever shall also be reported. Hospital receipts and sales of departments shall be listed separately. The report shall show how the moneys thus received were expended, giving under separate heads the cost of instruction, administration, maintenance and equipment of departments, and the general expenses of the institutions. It shall clearly state the number of professors, instructors, fellows and tutors and the number of students enrolled in each course during each year of the biennial period. Students attending the short courses shall be reported separately. The amount of unexpended balances of departments remaining in the hands of the treasurer and the amounts undrawn from the state treasury on the 30th of June of the last year of the biennial period shall be given. The report of the secretary of the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts shall also show the receipts of the experiment station from all sources for each fiscal year and how such funds were expended. [30 G. A., ch. 104.]

CHAPTER 6.

IOWA SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOME.

SECTION 2683. Trustees and officers. The Iowa soldiers' orphans' home, located at Davenport, shall be under the management and control of three trustees, one of whom shall be a resident of Scott county. They shall, at their meeting in May after the regular session of the legislature, elect a president and secretary from their number, and shall elect a treasurer who shall be a resident of the county in which the home is situated, and he shall serve without compensation. The treasurer shall give a bond in a sum to be fixed by the board, with good and sufficient sureties, to be filed with and approved by the secretary of state, and conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and the safe keeping and proper disbursement of all money coming into his hands by virtue of his office. The secretary shall keep full and accurate minutes of the doings of the board, the meetings of which shall be held at the home. The board of trustees shall examine all applications for admission, and reject any for good and sufficient cause. It shall appoint a superintendent, who shall hold his or her office at its pleasure and subject to its direction. The superintendent, subject to the board, shall have charge of the institution and its conduct, and the board shall make biennial reports to the governor of the condition of the home, financial and otherwise. [22 G. A., ch. 74; 22 G. A., ch. 82, § 30; 16 G. A., ch. 94, §§ 4, 10; C., '73, §§ 1623-4, 1629, 1632.] [27 G. A., ch. 78, § 2.]

SEC. 2685. Admissions. All destitute children of soldiers, sailors and marines residents of the state, orphans of soldiers under fifteen years of age, who are destitute or unable to care for themselves, shall be admitted upon applications approved by the board of trustees of the home and become wards of the state, and such other destitute children of like age who have a legal settlement in the state, and whose applications for admission are approved by the board of supervisors or a judge of a court of record, shall be received into the home, but none in the latter class shall be so admitted as long as there are applicants denied in the former; all applications in the latter class to be made to a judge in the district of the applicant's residence, or the board of supervisors of the county in which the applicant is living. [21 G. A., ch. 111; 16 G. A., ch. 94, §§ 1, 2.] [27 G. A., ch. 78, § 3.] [31 G. A., ch. 126.]

SEC. 2688. Regulations. All children admitted to the home shall be subject to the rules and regulations of the same, and, subject to the approval of the trustees, may be expelled by the superintendent for disobedience and refusal to submit to proper discipline. They shall also be discharged upon arriving at the age of sixteen years, or sooner if possessed of sufficient means to provide for themselves. [16 G. A., ch. 94, § 3.; C., '73, § 1634.] [27 G. A., ch. 78, § 4.]

SEC. 2690. Repeal—acts in conflict. Section 2690 of the code and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 5.]

SEC. 2690-a. Placing of child by adoption. That any child in the Iowa soldiers' orphans' home who is an orphan or has been abandoned by its parents, and any child in the home who is not an orphan and who has not been abandoned, with the consent in writing of its parents, or if but one be living, with the consent in writing of the survivor, may be adopted by any citizen of this state on the recommendations of the superintendent with the approval of the board of control of state institutions. The adoption shall be by an instrument in writing to be signed by the superintendent, subject to the approval, in writing, of the board of control, and by the person adopting, and except as herein otherwise provided such instrument shall be signed and recorded as provided by chapter 7 of title XVI of the code as amended and the adoption shall create the rights and liabilities provided by said chapter as amended. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 1.]

SEC. 2690-b. Placing of child by contract. Any orphan child and any child who was abused, wrongfully treated, neglected or abandoned at and before the time it was committed to the home, or who has no home, or who, if returned to the home of its parents, guardian or other person who would have charge of it, would be apt to be subjected to conditions and influences tending to induce it to lead a dissolute, immoral or vicious life, may be placed by the superintendent, with the approval in writing of the board of control, with any person or any family of good standing and character where it will be properly cared for and educated. The child if not adopted as hereinbefore described, shall be placed under articles of agreement to be signed by the person or persons taking the child and the superintendent, approved by the board of control, which shall provide for the custody, care, education, maintenance and earnings of the child for a time to be therein fixed which shall not extend beyond the time when the child shall attain its majority. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 2.]

SEC. 2690-c. Child taken from person with whom placed. In case any child, whether adopted or placed under articles of agreement for a term of years, is not furnished the care, education, treatment and maintenance required by the articles of adoption or agreement, the board of control may cause the child to be taken from the person or persons with whom it is placed, and may make such other disposition of it as shall seem to be for its best interests. And in case legal proceedings are necessary to recover the possession of such child they may be instituted and carried on in the name of the superintendent, and the county attorney of the county in which the child is placed shall, if requested by the superintendent, act as his attorney in the proceedings. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 3.]

SEC. 2690-d. Interference of parent or other person prohibited. It shall not be lawful for any parent or other person not a party to the placing of a child by adoption or for a term of years under the provisions of this act, to interfere in any manner with or to assume or exercise any control over such child or his earnings while so placed, but such earnings shall be used, held, or otherwise applied for the exclusive benefit of the child. [31 G. A., ch. 127, § 4.]

SEC. 2691. Appropriation—salaries. For the support of the home, there is appropriated, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twelve dollars monthly for each child actually supported, and, in addition, the expense of his transmission to the home, payable upon the sworn statement of the superintendent filed with the state auditor, who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasury therefor; the number of children to be ascertained by taking the average attendance for the preceding month. The salary of the superintendent and assistants shall be fixed by the board of trustees, subject to the approval of the executive council. [16 G. A., ch. 94, § 5; C., '73, §§ 1630-1.] [30 G. A., ch., 106, § 1.]

SEC. 2692. Repeal—counties liable. That the law as it appears in section twenty-six hundred and ninety-two (2692) of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“Each county shall be liable for sums paid by the home in support of all its children, other than the children of soldiers, to the extent of six dollars ($6.00) per month each, which shall be charged to the county, and collected as a part of the taxes due the state, and paid by the county at the same time state taxes are paid; the cost of support in excess of the six dollars ($6.00) per capita per month shall be paid by the state from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.” [30 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.]

CHAPTER 6-A.

OF STATE AGENTS.

SECTION 2692-a. State agents—appointment—salary—office—supplies. That the board of control of state institutions is authorized to appoint not more than two persons to act as state agents for the soldiers' orphans' home, and for the industrial school. The salaries of such agents shall be fixed by said board and they may hold their positions during its pleasure. The board shall procure and furnish the agents with office room and such furniture, books, blanks and supplies as may be necessary for the proper discharge of their duties in the same manner as supplies are now furnished other officers of the board. Provided that the board may furnish such office room and supplies to said agents at one or more of the institutions for which they are to act, and may require the institutions to furnish the agents with room, board and facilities for transacting business when stopping therein without charge. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 1.]

SEC. 2692-b. Duties. The duties of the agents shall be as prescribed by law and by the board of control. In addition to other duties they shall be required to find suitable homes, positions and employment when desirable for inmates of said institutions who are to be or have been released, to inspect the homes of such persons, to exercise supervision over such persons, examine into their conduct and environment, and when the conduct of any such persons who have not been finally discharged has been bad or in violation or [of] any of the conditions of their release to return them or cause them to be returned to the institutions from which they were released, or in such cases or when the environment or associations are bad to require them to obtain other homes or places of employment. The state agent shall keep records of their acts and report to the board of control when required the work they do, and results accomplished, the treatment received and the failure or progress made by the persons under supervision and other information required by the board. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 2.]

SEC. 2692-c. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) for the payment of salaries and expenses of the state agents and other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act, such salaries and expenses to be paid in the manner provided by section twenty-seven hundred twenty-seven-a of the supplement to the code. Provided that the board of control may cause to be advanced from the funds hereby appropriated to each agent from time to time sums to be used in defraying the official expenses of such agent, but the aggregate amount of the money so advanced and not expended at any time shall not exceed the sum of two hundred fifty dollars, and the agent shall give security to be approved by the board for the proper use of and accounting each month for all money so advanced. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 3.]

SEC. 2692-d. Repeal. Chapter 157 of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 181, § 4.]

CHAPTER 7.

OF THE INSTITUTION FOR FEEBLE-MINDED CHILDREN.

SECTION 2695-a. Admission of certain women. That all feeble-minded women under forty-six years of age who are residents of the state of Iowa may be admitted to the institution for feeble-minded children at Glenwood. [29 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2695-b. What statutes apply. The provisions of chapter seven (7) of title XIII of the code, in regard to the admission and maintenance of children in said institution, shall apply to the admission and maintenance of feeble-minded women authorized by this act. [29 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.]

SEC. 2700. Support. For the support of the institution, there is appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twelve dollars monthly for each inmate therein supported by the state, counting the actual time such person is an inmate and so supported. Upon the presentation to the state auditor of a sworn statement of the average number of inmates supported in the institution by the state for the preceding month, he shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer for such sum. [23 G. A., ch. 56; 19 G. A., ch. 40, § 9.] [27 G. A., ch. 79, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2700-a. Repeal—ordinary expenses. That all of section twenty-seven hundred of the code, after the word "sum" in the eighth line, is hereby repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 79, § 2.]

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

SECTION 2703-a. Repeal. That section two thousand seven hundred two (2702) and section two thousand seven hundred three (2703) of the code be and the same are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 1.]

SEC. 2704. Repeal—placing under contract of boys and girls—conditions. That section 2704 of the supplement to the code is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"That boys and girls committed to the industrial school who were abused, wrongfully treated, neglected or abandoned at and before the time they were committed to said school, or who have no home, or who if returned to the homes of their parents, guardians or other persons who would have charge of them, would be subjected to conditions and influences tending to induce them to lead dissolute, immoral or vicious lives, may be placed by the superintendent, with the approval in writing of the board of control of state institutions, with any persons or in any families of good standing and character where they will be properly cared for and educated. They shall be so placed under articles of agreement to be signed by the person or persons taking them and the superintendent, approved by said board of control, which shall provide for their custody, care, education, maintenance and earnings for a time to be fixed in said articles which shall not extend beyond the time when the persons bound shall attain their majority. In case a boy or girl so placed be not given the care, education, treatment and maintenance required by this agreement, the board of control may cause the boy or girl to be taken from the person or persons with whom placed and replace or may release or finally discharge him or her as may seem best. It shall not be lawful for any parent or other persons not a party to the placing of a boy or girl to interfere in any manner or assume or exercise any control over such boy or girl or his or her earnings which shall be used, held or otherwise applied for the exclusive benefit of such boy or girl. In case legal proceedings are necessary to enforce any right hereby conferred on any boy or girl, the county attorney of the county in which such proceedings should be instituted shall on request of the superintendent, approved by the board of control, institute and carry on in the name of the superintendent, the proceedings in behalf of the superintendent." [31 G. A., ch. 128.]

SEC. 2705-a. Repeal. That section two thousand seven hundred five (2705) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 3.]

SEC. 2705-b. Superintendent to make written report. The superintendent of the industrial school at Mitchellville shall, on or before the first day of January of each year, and at any other time when so requested by the board of control of state institutions, make a report to the said board in writing, touching all matters required of him by said board. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 4.]

SEC. 2707. Superintendent. The superintendent with such subordinate officers and employes as he may appoint, shall have charge and custody of the inmates of the school. He shall discipline, govern, instruct, employ, and use his best endeavors to reform the pupils in his care, so that, while preserving their health, he may promote, as far as possible, moral, religious and industrious habits, regular, thorough and progressive improvement in their studies, trade and employment. He shall have charge of all the property of the institution. [C., 73, §§ 1651-2.] [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 5.]

SEC. 2708. Commitment. When a boy over the age of nine years and under sixteen, or girl over the age of nine years, and under eighteen, of sound mind, excepting married women, prostitutes, or any girl who is pregnant, shall be found guilty in any court of record of any crime excepting that of murder, the court in its discretion may, instead of entering judgment of conviction, order and direct the party to be sent to the industrial school, if a boy to the department at Eldora, if a girl, to that at Mitchellville, which order, certified by the clerk of the court and under its seal, shall be sufficient authority for his or her transfer to and confinement in said school. If such a boy or girl is convicted before any inferior court of a crime, or shall be found to be guilty of being a disorderly person, he or she may be forthwith sent by the court, accompanied with all the papers filed in his office upon the subject, in custody of an officer, to a judge of a court of record, who shall thereupon issue an order, directed to the parent or guardian of the party, or to such person as may have him or her in charge, or with whom he or she last resided, or one known to be nearly related to him or her, or if he or she be alone and friendless, then to any person the judge may appoint to act as guardian for the purposes of the case, requiring him or her to appear at a time and place stated and show cause why the party should not be committed to the industrial school, which order shall be served by an officer by delivering a copy to the party to whom it is addressed, or by leaving it with some person of full age at the residence or place of business of said party, and immediate return shall be made to the judge of the service. At the time and place mentioned in the order, or to which the hearing may be adjourned, on the appearance of the parent or guardian, or, in case of their failure to appear, then after the appointment of some suitable person as guardian for the purposes of the case, the judge shall proceed to take the voluntary examination of the boy or girl, to hear the statements of the party appearing for him or her, and such testimony in relation to the case as may be produced, and if upon such examination and hearing he shall be satisfied that the boy or girl is a fit subject for the industrial school, he may commit him or her to said school, until he or she arrives at the age of twenty-one (21) years, by warrant, which warrant shall state the place in which the party resided at the time of arrest, and his or her age, as near as can be ascertained, and shall command the officer to take and deliver without delay to the superintendent of said school or other person in charge thereof the said boy or girl, and the statement as to residence or age shall be conclusive thereof for the purposes of this chapter. With the warrant, the judge shall also transmit a statement of the nature of the complaint, and such other particulars concerning the accused as he may be able to ascertain. If the judge is of the opinion that the boy or girl is not a fit subject for the school, or if said boy or girl shall appeal from the decision of the court in which the conviction was had, he shall remand him or her to the custody of the officer who had him or her in charge, to be returned to the magistrate before whom the conviction was had, to be dealt with according to law. [16 G. A., ch. 38, §§ 2-4; C., '73, §§ 1653-8.] [28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 6, 12.] [29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 2.] [31 G. A., ch. 129.]

SEC. 2708-a. Repeal. That section twelve (12), section thirteen (13), and section fourteen (14) of chapter one hundred (100), laws of the twenty-eighth general assembly be, and the same are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 119, § 1.]

SEC. 2709. Complaint by parent or guardian. If any parent or guardian shall make complaint to a judge of a court of record that any boy or girl, over the age of seven years, and under the age of sixteen years, the child or ward of such parent or guardian, is habitually vagrant, disorderly or incorrigible, said judge shall issue a warrant to the sheriff or constable to cause said boy or girl to be brought before him at such time and place as he may appoint, when and where he shall examine the parties, and if in his judgment the boy or girl is a fit subject for the industrial school, he may issue an order, with the consent of said parent or guardian indorsed thereon, to [be] executed by the sheriff or constable, committing said boy or girl to the custody of the superintendent of said school for reformation and instruction until he or she attains the age of twenty-one (21) years; but security for the payment of the expenses of said complaint, commitment and transportation to the school, and the expenses of board thereat, may, in the discretion of the judge, be required of said parent or guardian before such order is executed. [19 G. A., ch. 150; C., '73, § 1659.] [28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 7, 11.] [29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 3.]

the acts of the 29 G. A., (section 2708-a, supra) repeals section 13, chapter 100, 28 G. A., amending said section.]

SEC. 2710. Return to county. If any person committed to the industrial school shall prove unruly or incorrigible, or if his or her presence shall be manifestly and constantly dangerous or detrimental to the welfare of the school, the board of control of state institutions may order his or her removal to the county from which he or she came, and deliver to the jailer of such county, where proceedings shall be resumed as if no committal had been made to the industrial school. [C., '73, § 1662.] [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 8.]

SEC. 2711. Discharge—parole. No one shall be committed to the industrial school for a longer term than until he or she attains the age of twenty-one (21) years, and the board of control of state institutions may at any time after one year's service order the discharge or parole of any inmate as a reward for good conduct. And the board may, in exceptional cases, discharge or parole inmates without regard to the length of their service or conduct, when satisfied that the reasons therefor are urgent and sufficient. If paroled upon satisfactory evidence of reformation, the order may remain in effect or terminate under such rules and regulations as the board may prescribe. The binding out or the discharge of an inmate as reformed, or having arrived at the age of twenty-one (21) years, shall be a complete release from all penalties incurred by the conviction for the offense upon which he or she was committed to the school. [25 G. A., ch. 106; 19 G. A., ch. 150; C., '73, §§ 1660-1.] [28 G. A., ch. 100, §§ 9, 11, 14.] [29 G. A., ch. 119, §§ 1, 4.] [29 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.]

SEC. 2711-a. Repeal. That chapter 80 of the laws of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 100, § 11.]

SEC. 2713. Repeal—support fund. That section 2713 of the supplement to the code as amended by chapter 143 of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly is hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

"For the support of the industrial school there is appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary, thirteen dollars monthly for each boy and sixteen dollars monthly for each girl actually supported in said school, counting the average number therein for each month; the monthly statement for each department to be verified by its superintendent and presented to the state auditor who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer for the same: provided, however, that when the average number of inmates in the department for boys shall be less than 500 for any month said department shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of five thousand five hundred dollars, and when the average number of inmates in the department for girls shall be less than two hundred for any month said department shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of three thousand dollars, and any sum which shall be credited to either department as aforesaid shall be drawn from the state treasury as the regular monthly per capita allowance is drawn." [31 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.]

SEC. 2713-a1. Appropriation for dental work. There is further appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars for the industrial school at Eldora and four hundred ($400.00) dollars for the industrial school at Mitchellville. The same, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be used, in connection with the support fund heretofore appropriated, to furnish proper dental work for those supported in said schools. The statements to be made and vouchers drawn for said funds shall be as provided in the first (1) section of this bill. [31 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.]

SECTION 2713-a. Name and location. There is hereby established at Anamosa, Iowa, the Iowa industrial reformatory for females. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 1.]

SEC. 2713-b. Management—officers—rooms. Said reformatory shall be under the control of the board of control of state institutions, and the immediate management of it shall be under such officers as said board may deem proper, but the chief executive officer of said institution, so selected by the board, shall appoint all subordinate officers and employes, as provided in chapter one hundred eighteen (118), acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, and the salary or compensation to be paid any officer or employe of said reformatory shall be fixed in the manner provided in said chapter. Said reformatory may use and occupy the building now known as the female department of the penitentiary at Anamosa, except the two rooms on the lower floor at the right of the main entrance of the said female department, which may be used as store rooms by said penitentiary and reformatory, and said rooms shall be under the control of the warden of the penitentiary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 2.]

SEC. 2713-c. When opened. Said reformatory may be opened under the direction of the board of control of state institutions as soon as the female department of the penitentiary and the warden's house shall be completed. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 3.]

SEC. 2713-d. Instruction. Any woman or girl committed or transferred to said institution shall be instructed in piety and morality, and in such branches of useful knowledge as are adapted to her age and capacity, and in some regular course of labor, as is best suited to her age, strength, disposition, and capacity, and as promises best to secure the reformation and future well-being of the inmate, and to that end the board of control is authorized to establish, and cause to be operated, in such institutions, schools for education and industrial training as may be deemed best. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 4.]

SEC. 2713-e. Commitments. All girls who may now be committed under chapter eight (8), title thirteen (13) of the code, to the industrial school at Mitchellville, may, in the discretion of the district court or judge thereof, be committed to said industrial school or to this reformatory; provided, however, that no girl under nine years of age shall in any event be committed to said reformatory or to said industrial school under the provisions of this act or of chapter 8, title 13, of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 5.]

SEC. 2713-f. Commitments continued. Any woman or girl over the age of fourteen years, who may be an inmate of the industrial school for girls, whom the superintendent of such school may report to the board of control of state institutions as being unruly and incorrigible, and whose presence is dangerous and detrimental to the welfare of such school, may be, upon investigation of the charge by the board or control, and the same being substantiated, ordered transferred by said board of control to said reformatory to be kept there, under such rules and regulations as may be provided therefor and for the length of time prescribed by chapter eight (8) of title thirteen (13) of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 6.]

SEC. 2713-g. Discharge or parole. The board of control shall have power to order the discharge or parole of any person who is confined under the provisions of this act in said reformatory, said discharge or parole to be a reward for good conduct and for proficiency in studies, and for excellency in work in the industrial department. If paroled, such order shall remain in effect, or terminate under such rules and regulations as may, with the approval of the board, be prescribed. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 7.]

SEC. 2713-h. Officers of penitentiary to serve. The physician, chaplain, and storekeeper at the Anamosa penitentiary shall also serve in the same capacity for the Iowa industrial reformatory for females, for the compensation already provided by law. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 8.]

SEC. 2713-i. Board to notify judges and clerks. At least thirty days prior to the opening of said institution for the reception of inmates, the board of control shall officially notify each judge of the district, superior, or police courts, and each clerk of the district court, of each county in this state, of the time when such institution shall be open for the reception of inmates. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 9.]

SEC. 2713-j. Board to name officers and fix salaries. The board of control of state institutions shall determine what officers may be necessary at said institution, in addition to the superintendent heretofore provided for, and fix the salaries of the same, and may prescribe their duties, and they shall be appointed in the manner prescribed in chapter one hundred eighteen (118), acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, which chapter shall apply to and govern said institution in all respects, except as herein provided. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 10.]

SEC. 2713-k. Heat, light, water, etc. Heat, light, water, sewer facilities, power to operate machinery if needed, shall all be furnished to said reformatory free by the penitentiary at Anamosa. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 11.]

SEC. 2713-l. Per capita appropriation—estimates for supplies. There is hereby appropriated for the support, care, maintenance, clothing, and transportation of the inmates of the said reformatory, and for the purpose of maintaining the schools therein, the sum of fifteen dollars per month per capita, or so much thereof as may be necessary for each inmate thereof; said per capita to be based upon the average number present for the preceding month, and to be available one month in advance. The chief executive officer of said institution is hereby authorized, a month in advance of said opening, to make estimate herein provided for all supplies for the operation of said institution, on the basis of fifty inmates for the first month. Thereafter, all the provisions of chapter one hundred eighteen (118) acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, relating to estimates, vouchers, reports, and otherwise, shall apply to this institution, providing that said estimates shall be made by the warden of the penitentiary at Anamosa, Iowa, upon information furnished by the chief executive officer of said institution, and the said warden shall return to the board of control of state institutions said estimates for approval; and requisitions for supplies needed in said reformatory shall be made upon said warden by such officer of said reformatory as the board of control may designate, and said requisitions shall be honored by the said warden and the storekeeper of said penitentiary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 12.]

SEC. 2713-m. Appropriation for industries. For the purpose of establishing and operating proper industries in said institution, there is hereby appropriated the sum of one thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and for the purpose of furnishing said reformatory there is hereby appropriated the sum of fifteen hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 13.]

SEC. 2713-n. Government and discipline. The board of control of state institutions is hereby authorized to make any provisions for the government, discipline, and control of said institution, not herein specifically provided for, and not in conflict with law. [28 G. A., ch. 102, § 14.]

CHAPTER 9.

OF THE COLLEGE FOR THE BLIND.

SECTION 2715. Admission. All blind persons, residents of the state, of suitable age and capacity, shall be entitled to an education in this institution at the expense of the state, and non-residents may also be entitled to the benefits thereof, if they can be accommodated therein, upon paying to the treasurer sixty-six dollars quarterly in advance. [17 G. A., ch. 72, § 1; C., '73, §§ 1672, 1680; R., §§ 2147-8.] [30 G. A., ch. 107.]

SEC. 2717. Report. On or before the fifteenth day of August in each even-numbered year, the principal of the college shall report to the governor the number of pupils in attendance, the name, age, sex, residence, place of nativity and cause of blindness, with the studies pursued, trades taught, and a complete statement of the expenditures made, and the number, kind and value of articles manufactured and sold. Provided that the report for the year 1906 shall cover only the period from the date of the last biennial report. [22 G. A., ch. 82, § 32; C., '73, § 1677.] [31 G. A., ch. 131.]

SEC. 2718-a. Repeal — appropriation — support. That section twenty-seven hundred and eighteen (2718) of the code and chapter eighty-two (82) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and they are hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

For the support of the college and to meet the ordinary and current expenses thereof, including the compensation of officers, teachers and other employes, the purchase of supplies of food, clothing, furniture and furnishings, books, maps, apparatus, and other incidental expenses, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twenty-two dollars per month for nine months each year, for each resident pupil actually supported in the college. Said sum shall be placed to the credit of the college on the certificate of the board of control of state institutions which shall show the average number of pupils in the college for the preceding month, and shall be paid from the state treasury, as provided by chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and acts amendatory thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.]

SEC. 2718-b. Prior expenses—allowance. All expenses of the college incurred prior to the first day of March, A. D. 1902, shall be paid from the funds heretofore authorized by section twenty-seven hundred and eighteen (2718) of the code, as amended and the monthly allowance authorized by this act shall be computed from the first day of February, A. D. 1902. [29 G. A., ch. 121, § 2.]

OF THE INDUSTRIAL HOME FOR THE BLIND.

SECTION 2722-a. Board of control to close institution—expenses of inmates. As soon as practicable after the passage of this act, the board of control of state institutions is directed to close the industrial home for the blind at Knoxville, to cease all manufacturing thereat, and to cause to be sent to their homes in this state, all of the inmates therein, who may desire to return home, paying the actual expenses thereof, and they are also authorized to give each of said inmates a sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars to cover their incidental expense on their journey home. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 1.]

SEC. 2722-b. Custodian. Said board of control is hereby authorized to employ a proper person as a custodian, whose business it shall be to care for said buildings and all other state property on said farm. He shall live in the building, and shall be paid such sum per month as the board may deem proper for his services. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 2.]

SEC. 2722-c. Authority to lease the farm. Said board is authorized to lease the farm and collect the rental thereof, or they may, if a suitable arrangement can be made, make the lessee of the farm the custodian of said buildings and property. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 3.]

SEC. 2722-d. Disposition of personal property. Said board is authorized to sell such of the personal property at said institution or on said farm as they may deem proper to any person, or they may sell the same to any other institution under their control, which may need the same, or any part of it at a price to be fixed by them. Groceries and other perishable articles and other articles which cannot be disposed of at a fair price, may in the discretion of the board, be given to the industrial school at Mitchellville for use in said institution. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 4.]

SEC. 2722-e. Disposition of rent or sale money. All money received by said board for rent or for sale of personal property shall be paid into the state treasury and placed to the credit of said institution. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 5.]

SEC. 2722-f. Appropriation. There shall be available for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act the moneys collected from rent and from sales of personal property, and there is hereby further appropriated for said purpose the sum of three thousand dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary, and the board is empowered to draw in the name of the present superintendent of said industrial home a sufficient sum in advance on filing vouchers therefor, to in their judgment pay all expenses of transportation of inmates to their homes, and the incidental expenses above provided, on a certificate reciting the facts to said officers. All other sums to be drawn in the manner provided by chapter 118, acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 6.]

SEC. 2722-g. Authority to transfer balances. The treasurer of state is hereby authorized to transfer the following balances of special appropriations to the general funds of the state, viz: of appropriations made in chapter 86, acts of the twenty-fourth general assembly. A balance of $82.95 of the appropriations "for additional furniture and machinery." A balance of $118.50 "for planting orchard and small fruits." A balance of $228.39 "for icehouse and cold storage." Also of chapter 144 of the acts of the twenty-fifth general assembly, a balance of $60.00 of the item "for the building and grounds." [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 7.]

SEC. 2722-h. Acts in conflict repealed. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [28 G. A., ch. 103, § 8.]

OF SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

SECTION 2724. Admission. Every resident of the state, of school age and suitable capacity, who is deaf and dumb, or so deaf as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, shall be entitled to receive an education in the institution at the expense of the state, and non-residents similarly situated may be entitled to an education therein, upon the payment of sixty-six dollars quarterly, in advance. Each superintendent of common schools, on or before the first day of November, shall report to the superintendent of the institution the name, age and postoffice address of each deaf and dumb person, or person so deaf as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools, between the ages of five and twenty-one years and residing in his county. [C., '73, §§ 1688-9; R., §§ 2156, 2160.] [30 G. A., ch. 108.]

SEC. 2726. Repeal—expenses—charged to county—how certified and paid. Section twenty-seven hundred twenty-six (2726) of the code relating to the expenses of the inmates of the school for the deaf, is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“When pupils are not supplied with clothing, or transportation, it shall be furnished by the superintendent who shall make out an account therefor against the parent or guardian, if the pupil be a minor, and against the pupil if he have no parent or guardian, or has attained the age of majority, which bill shall be certified by him to be correct, and shall be presumptive evidence thereof in all courts. The superintendent shall on the first days of April, and October of each year, certify to the auditor of state the amounts due from several counties, and the auditor of state shall thereupon pass the same to the credit of the institution, and charge the amount to the proper county. The superintendent shall at the time of sending certificate to the auditor of state, send a duplicate copy to the auditor of the county of the pupil's residence, who shall, when ordered by the board of supervisors, proceed to collect the same by action if necessary, in the name of the county, and when so collected, shall pay the same into the county treasury. The county auditor, shall upon receipt of said certificate, pass the same to the credit of the state, and thereupon issue a notice to the county treasurer authorizing him to transfer the amount from the general county fund to the general state revenue, which shall be filed by the treasurer as his authority for making such transfer, and shall include the amount in his next remittance of state taxes to the treasurer of state, designating the fund to which it belongs.” [31 G. A., ch. 132.]

SEC. 2727-a. Repeal—appropriation—support. That section twenty-seven hundred and twenty-seven (2727) of the code and chapter eighty-three (83) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly be and they are hereby repealed and in lieu thereof is enacted the following:

For the support of the school and to meet the ordinary and current expenses thereof, including the compensation of officers, teachers and other employes, the purchase of supplies, of food, clothing, furniture and furnishings, books, maps, apparatus and other incidental expenses, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as may be needed, twenty-two dollars per month for nine months of each year, for each resident pupil actually supported in the school. Said sum shall be placed to the credit of the school on the certificate of the board of control of state institutions which shall show the average number of pupils in the school for the preceding month, and shall be paid from the state treasury, as provided by chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and acts amendatory thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-b. Prior expenses—monthly allowance. All expenses of the school, incurred prior to the first day of April, A. D. 1902, shall be paid from the funds heretofore authorized by section twenty-seven hundred and twenty-seven (2727) of the code, as amended, and the monthly allowance authorized by this act, shall be computed from the first day of February, A. D. 1902. [29 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

CHAPTER 11-A.

OF THE SALARIES OF THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF CERTAIN STATE INSTITUTIONS AND THE QUALIFICATION OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

SECTION 2727-c. Salaries. From and after July 1, 1898, the annual salary of the chief executive officer of the following institutions shall be: For the institution for feeble-minded children at Glenwood, twenty-four hundred dollars; for the industrial school, boys' department, at Eldora, eighteen hundred dollars; for the school for the deaf at Council Bluffs, fifteen hundred dollars; for the college for the blind at Vinton, twelve hundred dollars; for the Iowa soldiers' orphans' home at Davenport, fifteen hundred dollars; for the industrial school, girls' department, at Mitchellville, eighteen hundred dollars; for the industrial home for the blind at Knoxville six hundred dollars. The superintendent of the school for the deaf shall be proficient in the use of the sign language. [27 G. A., ch. 74, § 1.] [28 G. A., ch. 141, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 133.]

CHAPTER 11-B.

OF THE BOARD OF CONTROL OF STATE INSTITUTIONS.

SECTION 2727-a1. Nomination—term of office — confirmation — salaries—removal—vacancies. The governor shall, prior to the adjournment of the twenty-seventh general assembly, nominate and, with the consent of two-thirds of the members of the senate in executive session, appoint three electors of the state, not more than two of whom shall belong to the same political party, and no two of whom shall reside at the time of their appointment in the same congressional district, as members of a board to be known as a "board of control of state institutions." Said member shall hold office, as designated by the governor, for two, four, and six years respectively. Subsequent appointments shall be made as above provided and, except to fill vacancies, shall be for a period of six years. The board shall at all times be subject to the above limitations and restrictions. No nomination shall be considered by the senate until the same shall have been referred to a committee of five, not more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party, to be appointed by the president of the senate without the formality of a motion, which committee shall report to the senate in executive session, which report shall be made at any time when called for by the senate. The consideration of nominations, by the senate, shall not be had on the same legislative day the nominations are referred. The chairman of the board for each biennial period shall be the member whose term first expires, and each member thereof shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00) per annum. The governor may, by and with the consent of the senate, during a session of the general assembly, remove any member of the board for malfeasance or non-feasance in office, or for any cause that renders him ineligible to appointment, or incapable or unfit to discharge the duties of his office, and his removal when so made shall be final. When the general assembly is not in session the governor may suspend any member so disqualified, and shall appoint another to fill the vacancy thus created, subject, however, to the action of the senate when next in session. All vacancies on said board that may occur while the general assembly is not in session shall be filled by appointment by the governor, which appointment shall expire at the end of thirty days from the time the general assembly next convenes, and vacancies occurring during a session of the general assembly shall be filled as regular appointments are made and before the end of said session. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a2. Oath—bond—examination—not excused from testifying. Each member of the board shall take the oath, and qualify, as required by section one hundred and seventy-nine of the code, and shall devote his whole time to the duties of his office. Before entering on the duties of his office, each member shall give an official bond in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), conditioned as provided by law, signed by sureties, to be approved by the governor, and when so approved, said bonds shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. No member of the board of control shall be eligible to any other lucrative office in the state during his term of service or for one year thereafter or to any position in any state institution during the term for which he was appointed, nor within one year after his term shall have expired. The said board of control shall be subject to the examination of the joint committee on retrenchment and reform, created by section one hundred and eighty-one of the code. The claim that any testimony or evidence sought to be elicited or produced on such examination may tend to criminate the person giving or producing it, or expose him to public ignominy, shall not excuse him from testifying or producing evidence, documentary or otherwise; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to penalty or forfeiture for and on account of any matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce such evidence, provided that he shall not be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a3. Officers—secretary—salary—acting secretary—supplies. The board shall be provided by the proper authorities with suitably furnished offices at the seat of government, and shall employ a competent secretary, who shall receive a salary not to exceed two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) per annum, and may also hire a stenographer and such other employes as may be necessary. In the absence or disability of the secretary, and the business of the board requires it, the board of control may appoint a member of the board as acting secretary during such absence or disability, who shall at such time have the powers of the secretary of the board. Said appointment shall be made of record in the proceedings of the board, and no additional compensation shall be paid because of the service of such acting secretary. This board shall, by the proper authorities, be also furnished with all necessary books, blanks, stationery, printing, postage stamps, and such other office supplies as are furnished other state officers. It shall present to each general assembly an itemized account of its expenditures, to the end that the legislature may, for the future, fix the maximum amount of such expenditures. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 3.] [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a4. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated sufficient thereof to pay the salaries and expenditures hereby authorized. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a5. Traveling expenses—governor's approval. In addition to the salaries paid the members of the board and the secretary or other employes they shall be entitled to the necessary traveling expenses, by the nearest traveled and practicable route, incurred in going from Des Moines to the different institutions, or to other places in the state, when on official business. No expenditure for traveling expenses to other states shall be made by the board, or by any officer or agent thereof, or by any officer, employe, or agent of any state institution subject to this board, unless the authority to make such trip is granted at a meeting of the board of control upon a written resolution, adopted by the board, which shall state the purpose of such trip, and the reason the same is deemed necessary. Said resolution, if adopted, shall then be submitted to the governor for his written approval, and if he does not approve the same such trip shall not be made at the expense of the state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a6. Itemized statement. Before any expenses of the members of the board, any officer, or agent, thereof, or before any expenses incurred by others under the direction of the board, or the expenses of any officer or employe of any institution under the charge of the board, shall be paid, a minutely itemized statement of every item of expenditure shall be presented to the proper authority, duly verified, which verification shall aver that the expense bill is just, accurate and true, and is claimed for cash expenditures, or cash disbursements, truly and actually made and paid to the parties named, as shown by said statement. Unless the statement is so verified and duly audited, payment thereof shall not be had. The expense bills of the members of the board, the secretary and its other employes, when so verified, shall be presented to the governor for his written audit, before payment is made. The salaries and such actual expenses of the board, and of the secretary and other officers, and the salaries of employes, shall be paid monthly by the treasurer of state, upon the warrant of the auditor of state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 6.]

SEC. 2727-a7. Official seal. The board shall have an official seal, and every commission, order, or other paper executed by the board may, under its direction, be attested with its seal affixed, by the secretary, or any member of the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 7.]

SEC. 2727-a8. Institutions under control. The board of control shall have full power to manage, control, and govern, subject only to the limitations contained in this act, the soldiers' home; the state hospitals for insane; the college for the blind; the school for the deaf; the institution for the feeble-minded; the soldiers' orphans' home; the industrial home for the blind, the industrial school, in both departments; and the state penitentiaries. Within ten days after the appointment and qualification of the members of the board, it shall organize and assume the duties vested in said board, but shall not exercise full control of the institutions until July 1, 1898. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 8.]

SEC. 2727-a9. Powers—duties—annual statement. The boards of trustees and commissioners now charged with the government of the institutions named in section eight hereof shall on and after July 1, 1898, have no further legal existence. All trustees now in office shall continue in office until July 1, 1898. The powers possessed by the governor and executive council, with reference to the management and control of the state penitentiaries, shall, on July 1, 1898, cease to exist in the governor and executive council, and shall become vested in the board of control; and the said board is, on July 1, 1898, and without further process of law, authorized and directed to assume and exercise all the powers heretofore vested in or exercised by the several boards of trustees, the governor, or the executive council with reference to the several institutions of the state herein named. The duties imposed on the executive council, by statute, to establish a uniform system of books and accounts for state institutions, and to cause the same to be examined annually by a skilled accountant, and to annually require a settlement with the officers of each state institution, are transferred from said council to the board of control as to the institutions herein named. Nothing herein contained shall limit the general supervisory or examining powers vested in the governor by the laws or constitution of the state, or that are vested by him in any committee appointed by him. The board shall prepare annually for publication, in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred and sixty-three of the code, a statement of the cost for the preceding year of maintaining each of said institutions, including improvements, itemized so far as practicable, and so arranged as to show the cost of the various kinds of provisions and supplies. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 9.]

SEC. 2727-a10. Investigation—witnesses—contempt of court. It shall be the duty of said board, or a committee thereof, to visit and inspect, at least once in six months, the institutions named, and investigate the financial condition and management of such institutions; and in aid of any investigation the board shall have the power to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses; to examine the same under oath, which any member thereof shall have the power to administer; and shall have access to all books, papers and property material to such investigation, and may order the production of any other books or papers material thereto. Witnesses other than those in the employ of the state shall be entitled to the same fees as in civil cases in the district court. The claim that any testimony or evidence sought to be elicited or produced on such examination may tend to criminate the person giving or producing it, or expose him to public ignominy, shall not excuse him from testifying or producing evidence, documentary or otherwise; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for and on account of any matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce such evidence, provided that he shall not be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. And it shall be the duty of the board to cause the testimony so taken to be transcribed and filed in the office of the secretary of the board at the seat of government within ten days after the same is taken, or as soon thereafter as practicable and when so filed the same shall be open for the inspection of any person. Any person failing or refusing to obey the orders of the board issued under the provisions of this section, or to give or produce evidence when required, shall be reported by the board to the district court or any judge thereof, and shall be dealt with by the court or judge as for a contempt of court. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 10.]

SEC. 2727-a11. Monthly visitation—may appoint a woman—visiting committee abolished. The board, by a committee, or its secretary, shall visit each hospital for the insane once each month, and in making such visits shall be vested with and exercise the powers and functions now granted the visiting committee to such hospitals, except that the discharge of employes for cause shall be left with the superintendent as hereinafter provided. If the board deem it prudent, it may appoint a woman who resides within fifty miles of any hospital, whose duty it will be to visit such hospital, when directed by the board, and to report to the board, and who shall be paid the same compensation from the funds of the institution visited as is now provided for members of the visiting committee, upon proper audit of the bill for such services and expenses by the board, in the manner provided for payment of current expenses of institutions. The visiting committee to the hospitals for the insane is hereby abolished, and the members are relieved from further duty upon the passage of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 11.]

SEC. 2727-a12. Biennial report. The board shall make reports to the governor and legislature of its observations and conclusions respecting each and every of the institutions named, including the regular biennial report to the legislature, covering the biennial period ending June 30th, preceding the regular session of the general assembly. Said biennial report shall be made not later than November 15th in the year preceding the meeting of the general assembly, and shall also contain the reports which the executive officers of the several institutions are now or may be by the board required to make, also a statement of visitations to the several institutions and when and by whom made. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 12.]

SEC. 2727-a13. Books and accounts. It shall keep at its office a proper and complete system of books and accounts with each institution, which shall show every expenditure authorized and made thereat and said books shall exhibit an account of each extraordinary or special appropriation made by the legislature, with every item of expenditure thereof. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 13.]

SEC. 2727-a14. Uniform system of records and accounts—expert help. It shall prescribe the form of records and the kind of accounts to be made and kept by the institutions heretofore specified. In providing for the books of accounts the said board shall establish as uniform a system as possible, compelling similar institutions to keep similar books in the financial operations of such institutions; and the board shall institute and require the keeping of a perfected system of accounts, and requisitions showing the purchase, storing and consumption of supplies for subsistence, construction or other purposes. For the purpose of establishing said system of accounts, the board is authorized to employ competent and expert help, and to inaugurate in the institutions on July 1, 1898, the most modern and complete method of accounts. The board shall, within six months after the passage of this act, determine the kinds and quality of provisions and supplies for the several institutions subject to its charge. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 14.]

SEC. 2727-a15. Biennial estimates of special appropriations. It shall prepare for the use of the legislature, biennial estimates of appropriations necessary and proper to be made for the support of the said several institutions, and for the extraordinary and special expenditures for buildings, betterments, or other improvements. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 15.]

SEC. 2727-a16. Suggestions for legislation. The board shall incorporate in its report to the legislature, suggestions respecting legislation for the benefit of the several institutions, or for the dependent, defective or criminal classes of the state. The board and its secretary shall on request, attend the meetings of legislative committees to which such questions may be submitted for consideration, and furnish such committees such information in regard to its doings and the conduct of such institutions as may be demanded. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 16.]

SEC. 2727-a17. Plans and specifications—limited to amount of appropriation — penalty. It shall prepare plans for all betterments, improvements or buildings costing more than one thousand dollars ($1,000) for which it may recommend an appropriation. But when an appropriation for any amount has been made, there shall be no expenditure thereof until the board has secured suitable plans and specifications prepared by a competent architect, and accompanied by a detailed statement of the amount, quality and description of all the material and labor required for the completion of said structure; and no plan or plans shall be adopted, and no betterments, improvements or buildings constructed, that contemplate the expenditure of more money for completion than the amount appropriated by the legislature therefor, unless exempted from the provisions of this section by the act making such appropriation. In no event shall the board direct or permit an expenditure for any purpose in excess of the amount appropriated by law, or contemplated by the statute, and the members of the board, its officers and agents, are subject to the provisions of sections one hundred seventy-eight, one hundred and eighty-two, one hundred eighty-four, one hundred eighty-five, one hundred eighty-six, one hundred eighty-seven and one hundred eighty-nine of the code, to the same extent as if said named persons were particularly specified in said sections. The violation of any of the provisions of either of the sections of the code above named by any of such named officers or persons, shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and on conviction the offender shall be fined in any sum not less than two hundred dollars, nor more than five thousand dollars, in the discretion of the court, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 17.]

SEC. 2727-a18. Report to governor. It shall investigate and report to the governor any abuses or wrongs alleged to exist in the state institutions referred to in this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 18.]

SEC. 2727-a19. What to inspect. The board or any member thereof at the stated visits to any of the institutions under its control shall inspect every part of each institution, and all the places, buildings and grounds belonging thereto, or used in connection therewith. They shall make an examination of the general and special dietary, the stores, and methods of supply; as far as circumstances may permit they shall see every inmate of the soldiers' home, and the charitable institutions, especially those admitted since the preceding visit, and shall give such as may require it, suitable opportunity to converse with the members of the board apart from the officers and attendants. They shall, if deemed necessary, examine under oath the officers, attendants, guards and other employes, and make such inquiries as will determine their fitness for their respective duties. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 19.]

SEC. 2727-a20. Recommendations—quarterly conferences. The board shall, during the first six months after its creation, meet in conference as often as it may determine, the superintendents, wardens and other executive officers of each of the said institutions, or as many thereof as it deems practicable, and consider in detail, all questions of management, and the methods to be adopted to secure the economical management of the several institutions, and shall send to such officers such recommendations in regard to the management and improvement of the institutions, as it may deem necessary or advisable, and the board is vested with power to enforce such recommendations and directions. After six months from the creation of the board a consultation and conference of the superintendents, wardens and chief executive officers shall be held quarterly with the board at its office in Des Moines, at a time to be designated by the board, at which meeting all matters concerning the government and management of the institutions shall be considered and discussed, and the chairman of the board of control shall preside at such meetings, and full minutes thereof shall be preserved by the secretary of such board, who shall be secretary of said meeting. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 20.]

SEC. 2727-a21. Districts. The board shall divide the state into proper districts from which the several institutions may receive patients or inmates. The limit of such districts may, from time to time, as the occasion warrants, be changed or altered. And in making such districts, or the rearrangement thereof, the superintendents, wardens, or executive heads of the institutions shall be consulted, at a time and place to be fixed by the board. When the districts are established, or a change thereof is had, the board shall notify the proper county or judicial officers, of such establishment or change. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 21.]

SEC. 2727-a22. Record—transfer—managing officer. The board shall keep in its office, accessible only to the members, secretary and proper clerks, except by the consent of the board, or on the order of a judge or court of record, a record showing the residence, sex, age, nativity, occupation, civil condition and date of entrance or commitment of every person; patient, inmate, or convict in the several institutions governed by the board, the date of discharge of every such person from the institution, and whether such discharge was final, and the condition of the person at the time he left the institution. The record shall also indicate if a person is transferred from one institution to another, and to what institution; and if dead, the date and cause of death. This information shall be furnished to the board by the several institutions, and such other obtainable facts as the board may from time to time require. It is the duty of the managing officer of each institution, who shall be named by the board within ten days after the commitment or entrance of a person, patient, inmate or convict to the institution, to cause a true copy of his entrance record to be made and forwarded to the office of the board of control. When a patient or inmate leaves, or is discharged, transferred, or dies in any institution, the superintendent or person in charge shall, within ten days thereafter, send such information to the office of the board, all of which information shall be furnished on forms which the board may prescribe. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 22.]

SEC. 2727-a23. State architect—expenses—assistant draftsman. The board may employ an architect who shall be skilled in the most improved method of sanitation, and competent to prepare plans, specifications, estimates and details for the buildings, betterments, and every item of equipment which may be necessary in any of the institutions, whose duty shall be to perform the work usually done by architects in preparing plans and specifications, and supervising the work of construction on all the buildings, betterments and improvements done at institutions under the control of the board. Said architect shall also perform such other labor as may be designated by the board, and shall receive a compensation to be by the board fixed, which, including expenses, shall in no event exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum. In cases of sufficient magnitude, the board may secure the advice of a consulting architect, or may procure plans and specifications and drawings from other architects, but the expense thereof shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars in any one year. The state architect shall be entitled to receive in addition to the compensation for his services fixed by the board, his necessary traveling expenses within the state when engaged in official business, and the board may allow him compensation for assistant draftsmen for services performed for the state when, in the opinion of the board, such services are necessary, provided, however, that the total amount allowed for traveling expenses and draftsmen shall not exceed two thousand dollars in any biennial period. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 23.] [29 G. A., ch. 160, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 109.]

SEC. 2727-a24. Institution officers—term of office—removal—qualifications. It shall be the duty of the board to appoint a superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer of each institution under the control of the board. The tenure of office of said officers shall be four years from the date of their appointment, and the superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer now in charge of the several institutions placed under the control of this board and who is now holding under an election or contract for a definite term shall continue in office until the expiration of such term or contract, all other superintendents, wardens, or other chief executive officer shall hold office until January 1, 1899. This provision shall not be applicable to the present warden at the Anamosa penitentiary, and the warden-elect, W. A. Hunter, shall hold his office for the time for which he has been elected. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer of any of the institutions named, may be removed by the board for misconduct, neglect of duty, incompetency, or other proper cause showing his inability or refusal to properly perform the duties of his office, but such removal shall be had only after an opportunity is given such person to be heard before such board upon preferred written charges, but the removal, when made, shall be final. The officers of the several institutions shall have the qualifications, and perform the duties now imposed and required of them by the statute, except as the same are modified or abrogated in this act. In case there is an alleged or seeming conflict between the powers of the superintendents or other executive officers and the board of control, the determination of such question by the board shall be final. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 24.]

SEC. 2727-a25. Power to investigate question of insanity. The board shall have the power to investigate the question of the insanity and condition of any person committed to any state hospital, and shall discharge any person so committed or restrained, if, in its opinion, such person is not insane, or can be cared for after such discharge, without danger to others, and with benefit to the patient, but in determining whether such patient shall be discharged, the recommendation of the superintendent of such hospital shall be secured. The granting of this power to the board to serve as a commission for the determination of the insanity of a person is merely permissive, and does not repeal or alter any statute respecting the discharge or commitment of inmates to the state hospitals. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 25.]

SEC. 2727-a26. Power to transfer. Patients shall be sent to the state hospital and convicts shall be sent to the penitentiary located in the district embracing the county from which they are committed. But the board may transfer the inmate in any hospital, or the convict in any penitentiary to another hospital or to the other penitentiary, at the expense of the state, and shall see that proper record thereof is made at the hospitals and penitentiaries, and in the office of the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 26.]

SEC. 2727-a27. Collection of information—bulletins—forms. The board shall gather and present information embodying the experience of soldiers' homes, charitable, reformatory and penal institutions in this and other countries, regarding the best and most successful methods of caring for the insane, delinquent and criminal classes. And it shall encourage and urge the scientific investigation of the treatment of insanity and epilepsy by the medical staffs of the insane hospitals, and the institution for the feeble-minded, and shall publish from time to time, bulletins and reports of the scientific and clinical work now done in said institutions, or which it may require to be done therein. It shall also provide for the several institutions the forms for statistical returns to be made by them in their annual and other reports. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 27.]

SEC. 2727-a28. Repeal. The law as it appears in section 2727-a28 of the supplement to the code and all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a28-a. Non-resident insane—care and removal. That when the commissioners of insanity of any county shall find to be insane a person who is a non-resident of this state, or whose residence is found by the commissioners to be unknown, they shall at once report the case to the board of control of state institutions and furnish it with a copy of the evidence taken on the question of the legal settlement of the insane person. The board shall investigate the case and if the legal settlement can not be ascertained the board shall cause him to be taken to a state hospital for the insane as a charge of the state, and if the legal settlement of the patient is found thereafter to be in any county of this state the cost of maintaining him shall be charged to that county and collected as provided by law in other cases. If the board of control find that the insane person is a non-resident of this state it may cause him to be conveyed to the place of his legal settlement forthwith or to a state hospital for the insane, there to be treated and cared for until released, at the cost of the state. When the legal settlement of any non-resident patient received in a state hospital is known or if then unknown is afterwards ascertained, he may be transferred to the place of his legal settlement if his condition permit such transfer, unless the cost thereof, or other reasons, shall, in the opinion of the board of control, make the transfer inadvisable. No patient to be maintained at the expense of the state shall be received in a state hospital without the formal order of the board of control. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a28-b. Transfers of insane persons—expenses. The transfer of insane persons to state hospitals or to the places of their legal settlement under the provisions of this act or under the provisions of chapter 78 of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly shall be made according to the directions of the board of control, and when practicable by employes of state hospitals, and the actual and necessary expenses of such transfers shall be paid on itemized vouchers sworn to by the claimants and approved by the board of control from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [31 G. A., ch. 92, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a29. Questionable commitment. The superintendents for the hospitals for the insane and the institution for the feeble-minded are required to immediately notify the board if there is any question as to the propriety of the commitment or detention of any person received at such institution, and said board, upon such notification, shall inquire into the matter presented, and take such action as may be deemed proper in the premises. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 29.]

SEC. 2727-a30. Protection against fire—means of escape. It shall be the duty of the board to compel the superintendent, warden or other chief executive officer of each of the institutions under the control of the board, to provide at each institution, adequate and ready means of protection against fire, and to construct proper means of escape for the inmates and attendants where the same are not already constructed and to establish and enforce rigid rules and regulations, by which the danger of fire shall be minimized, and prevent, as far as possible injury to the persons of the inmates, and the loss or destruction, by any cause, of the property of the state. [27 G. A., ch. 18, § 30.]

SEC. 2727-a31. Official bonds. It shall be the duty of the board of control to require its secretary and each officer and employe of said board, and of every institution under its control who may be charged with the custody or control of any money or property belonging to the state, and who is not now required by statute to give bond, to give an official bond, properly conditioned, and signed by sufficient sureties, in a sum to be fixed by the board, which bond shall be approved by the board, and filed in the office of secretary of state. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 31.]

SEC. 2727-a32. Inventory of stock and supplies. The board shall require within thirty days after its organization, the chief executive officer of each institution under its charge, to make a complete, minute and accurate inventory of the stock and supplies on hand, the amount and value thereof, which inventory shall be under the following heads: Live stock, produce of the farm on hand, carriages and vehicles, agricultural implements, machinery, mechanical fixtures, real estate, beds and bedding in inmates' department, other furniture in inmates' department, personal property of the state in superintendent's department, ready-made clothing, dry goods, provisions and groceries, drugs and medicines, fuel, library, and all other property under such other heads as the board may deem proper. A like inventory shall be submitted by the proper officer of each institution to the board when the annual report of said officer is submitted to the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 32.]

SEC. 2727-a33. Gifts or gratuities—penalties. No member of the board of control, or officer, agent or employe thereof, and no superintendent, officer, manager or employe of any of the institutions under the charge and control of said board, shall, directly or indirectly, for himself or any other person or for any institution under the charge of said board, receive or accept any gift or gratuity from any person or persons, firm or corporation who are dealers in goods, merchandise or supplies which may be used in any of said institutions, or from any employe, servant or agent of such person or persons, firm or corporation. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punished as provided in section four thousand nine hundred and four of the code, and such violation shall be cause for his removal from office. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 33.]

SEC. 2727-a34. Contents of biennial report—daily record. The board shall publish in its biennial report to the legislature the name and salary of every employe of said board, the name and salary of each officer and employe in the several institutions, subject to its control. It shall be the further duty of the board to require the proper officer of each institution to keep in a book prepared for the purpose, a daily record, to be made each day, of the time and the number of hours of service of each employe, and the monthly pay-roll shall be made from such time book, and shall be in accord therewith. When an appropriation is based on the number of inmates in or persons at an institution, the board shall require a daily record to be kept of the persons actually residing at and domiciled in such institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 34.]

SEC. 2727-a35. Political influence or contribution prohibited. Any member, employe, or officer of the board of control, or any officer or employe of a state institution subject to this board, who by solicitation or otherwise, exerts his influence directly or indirectly, to induce other officers or employes of the state to adopt his political views or to favor any particular person or candidate for office, or who shall in any manner contribute money or other thing of value to any person for election purposes shall be removed from his office or position by the proper authorities. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 35.] [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a36. Solicitation of contributions for political purposes a misdemeanor. Any person who demands or solicits, from any member, employe, or officer of the board of control, or from any officer or employe of any institution subject to this board, a contribution of money or other thing of value, for election purposes, or for the payment of the expenses of any political committee or organization, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a37. Assistants — discharged. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer of the several institutions shall appoint all assistants, guards and employes required in the management of the institution the number of whom shall be determined by the board. It is hereby declared a misdemeanor for the members of the board, or any officer thereof, to exert any influence by solicitation or otherwise, on the managing officer of an institution in the selection of any employe or assistant. The said chief executive officer may, at his pleasure, discharge any person employed, but shall keep in the record of employes the date of such discharge, and shall place opposite his name the reason therefor. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 36.]

SEC. 2727-a38. Institution salaries. The board shall, prior to July 1, 1898, and annually thereafter fix, with the written approval of the governor, the annual or monthly salaries of all the officers and employes in the several institutions, except such as are fixed by the general assembly. The board shall classify the officers and employes into grades, and the salaries and wages to be paid in each grade, shall be uniform in similar institutions in the state. The schedule of wages so fixed shall become operative on July 1st of each year. The salaries and wages shall be included in the monthly estimates as hereinafter provided, and paid in the same manner as other expenses of the several institutions. Officers entitled to food supplies for their families shall receive such allowances from the supplies furnished for the patients and inmates of the institution. The word "family" shall be construed to mean only the wife and minor children of an officer. [27 G. A., ch 118, § 37.]

SEC. 2727-a39. Local treasurer abolished. The treasurers of the institutions placed under the management of the board of control will be relieved of their duties, and all such offices will be abolished on July 1, 1898. Such local treasurer shall account to the proper authorities for all moneys, books, records, vouchers or other evidences of property belonging to his office, and in his possession. It shall be the duty of the state treasurer to receive all moneys and evidences of indebtedness in the hands of said treasurer, and a failure on the part of any such treasurer to properly account to the state treasurer on July 1, 1898, without further process of law, shall be by the said state treasurer immediately reported to the attorney-general for such action as may be proper in the premises. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 38.]

SEC. 2727-a40. Moneys remitted to state treasurer. All moneys belonging to the state, derived from any source at any of the institutions under the control of this board, shall be by the proper executive officer, named by the board, accounted for and remitted to the state treasurer on the first day of each month, and all funds for the necessary expenditures of such institutions shall be drawn from the state treasury, as provided in this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 39.]

SEC. 2727-a41. Triplicate estimates—revision—purchase of supplies. The superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer, as may be designated by the board of control, shall on or before the fifteenth day of each month, cause to be prepared triplicate estimates in minute detail, including estimated cost of each item, of all the expenditures required for the institution for the ensuing month. Such estimate shall also include a statement of the source and amount of all the revenues received by the said institution and accounted for to the state treasurer on the first day of each month. Two of said triplicate estimates shall be sent to the office of the board, and the third shall be kept by said superintendent, warden, or other chief executive officer. The board may revise the estimates for supplies or other expenditures, either as to quantity, quality or the estimated cost thereof, and shall certify that it has carefully examined the same, and that the articles contained in such estimate, as approved or revised by it, are actually required for the use of said institution. When the estimates have been so certified and revised, a copy of such revised estimate, duly certified, shall be sent to the institution, and another copy retained by the board. The certified copy sent to the institution shall be sufficient authority to the management of the institution to purchase the supplies enumerated in said estimate, at prices not to exceed those therein named, and not otherwise. Said supplies shall be so purchased as to permit at least thirty days' time to pay therefor, and the steward, clerk, or other officer of the institution, designated by the board, shall require itemized bills to be rendered by the persons who furnish supplies, in duplicate, for all purchases, whether made upon contract or otherwise, which shall be in the following form:

Secretary of the board of control.

SEC. 2727-a42. Monthly statement—affidavit. The steward, clerk or other officer who may be designated by the board, shall prepare a monthly statement showing purchases and expenditures of every kind for the preceding month, which shall be signed by such officer, approved by the chief executive officer of the institution, and filed with the board on a day certain to be fixed by said board. Attached thereto shall be the affidavit of such steward, clerk, or officer, as the case may be, stating that the goods and other articles therein specified were purchased and received by him or under his direction at the institution, and were purchased at a fair, cash, market price, on credit not exceeding thirty days, and that neither he nor any person in his behalf had any pecuniary or other interest in the purchases made, or received any pecuniary or other benefit therefrom, directly or indirectly, by commission, percentage, deductions, or in any other manner whatever, and that the articles contained in such bill conformed in all respects to the invoiced goods received and ordered by him, or the samples from which the goods were purchased, both in quality and quantity. If any invoice or statement, or part thereof, is found objectionable, the board shall endorse its disapproval thereon, with its reason therefor, and return it to the management of the institution, and when the matter complained of is corrected, said statement and invoice shall be returned to the board. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 41.]

SEC. 2727-a43. Pay roll — triplicate abstract — state treasurer. When the monthly statement is so made, approved and verified, it shall be forwarded to the board of control, together with the original invoices of the purchases and a complete and itemized statement of every expense of said institution, including the receipted pay-roll, for the examination and audit of the board, which board shall fix a regular time for the auditing of the accounts of the institution for the preceding month. The monthly pay-roll of each institution shall show the name of each officer and employe, when first employed, the monthly pay, time paid for, the amount of pay, and any deductions for the careless loss or destruction of property. This requirement shall be observed in all cases, and in no event shall a substitute be permitted to receive compensation in the name of the employe for whom he is acting. When the said accounts are audited, the secretary of the board of control shall, under the seal of the board, prepare in triplicate an abstract showing the name, residence and amount due each claimant, and the institution and the fund thereof on account of which the payment is made, which abstract shall also be certified by at least one member of the board, who shall be so authorized by the board, and the proceedings granting such authority shall be preserved in the records of the board. He shall deliver one copy thereof to the auditor of state, another to the treasurer of state, and the third shall be retained in the office of the board. Upon such certificate the auditor of state shall, if the institution named has sufficient funds, issue his warrant upon the treasurer of state for the gross amount as shown by such certified abstract. Said last named officer, upon being furnished by the board with a certified copy of such abstract as herein provided, shall send checks of the treasurer of state to the several persons for the amounts of their respective claims, as certified by the board of control. The treasurer of state shall preserve in his books a record of each check and remittance in the proper manner, showing the date of the issuance of each check, the name of the person to whom it was made payable, and such other data as may be evidence for the state, showing the payment of such indebtedness. The pay-roll of each institution can be paid by a single check sent to the steward, clerk or other officer designated by the board of control. If the treasurer of state shall require more clerical help because of this enactment, the executive council may authorize him to employ an assistant. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 42.] [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a44. Contingent fund. The board of control may permit a contingent fund, not to exceed in any institution two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00), to remain in the hands of the managing officer of such institution, from which expenditures may be made in case of actual emergency requiring immediate action to prevent loss or danger to the institution or to the inmates thereof. A full, minute, and itemized statement of every expenditure made during the month from such fund, shall be submitted by the proper officer of said institution to the board under such rules and regulations as may be by said board established. If necessary, the board shall make proper requisition upon the auditor of state for a warrant on the state treasurer to secure the said contingent fund for each institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 43.]

SEC. 2727-a45. Blanks and forms. The board of control shall formulate and furnish to each institution proper blanks and forms for all statements and accounts necessary to furnish the information required of such institution. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 44.]

SEC. 2727-a46. Duties of institution officers. The stewards of the hospitals for the insane, the clerks of the prisons, and the proper officer of the other institutions who shall be designated by the board, shall have charge of and be accountable for all the supplies and stores of such institution, and shall be charged therewith at their invoice value, and shall in conjunction with the chief executive officer of each institution, make or direct all purchases for such institution as may be ordered by the board, under the estimates as hereinbefore provided. Such officer shall issue all the stores upon requisition approved by the superintendent or other officer designated by the board, which shall be his voucher therefor. He shall present monthly to the board of control an abstract of all expenditures, together with the accounts and pay-rolls for the preceding month, and shall examine and register all goods delivered, according to their amount and quality, and if found to correspond with the samples, and in good order, and correct in charge, he shall certify the bills as herein provided. He shall quarterly take an account of the subsistence supplies and stock in his possession and under his control, and transmit a copy of such invoice, duly verified, to the board; and at the close of the biennial period he shall make a consolidated report of all purchases, and all other transactions of his department, to the state board. If it shall appear that there is any shortage in the stores of the institution, the board shall appoint a committee from its number to investigate the cause thereof, and if it shall appear that the said shortage resulted from unavoidable loss, without the negligence of such steward, clerk or other designated officer shall be credited therewith; otherwise, he shall be charged with the amount thereof, and shall be required to pay the same into the state treasury within sixty days after the determination of the loss. If default shall be made in said payment, he shall forfeit his office, and suit shall be instituted upon his official bond to recover the same. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 45.]

SEC. 2727-a47. Purchase of supplies from one institution for use of another. Without complying with the provisions of chapter one hundred and eighteen (118) of the laws of the twenty-seventh general assembly, requiring estimates to be made, the board of control is empowered to direct the purchase of materials, or any articles of supply, for any institution subject to its management, from any other institution under its control, which purchase shall be made at the reasonable market value of the commodity so purchased, the value thereof to be ascertained and fixed by the said board, and payments therefor shall be made as between institutions in the manner provided by law for payments for supplies. [28 G. A., ch. 143, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a48. Rules—additional duties. The board of control is authorized to make its own rules for the proper execution of its powers, and may require the performance of additional duties by the officers of the several institutions, so as to fully enforce the requirements, intents and purposes of this enactment, and particularly so much thereof as relates to the making of the estimates and furnishing proper proofs of the expenditures or use of all stocks of subsistence and supplies. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 46.]

SEC. 2727-a49. Contracts. Contracts may be entered into under the direction of the board of control by the proper officers of one or more of the institutions for staples and other articles of supplies, as may be found feasible by the board for the institutions to purchase in bulk for use or consumption for periods longer than thirty days. Such contracts shall not, however, be made except in conformity with the provisions of this act relating to estimates. If thought advisable, such contracts may be executed by the representative of one institution, who may be designated by the board to act for other institutions. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 47.]

SEC. 2727-a50. Purchase of supplies. It shall be the duty of the board to make specific rules and regulations respecting the manner in which supplies shall be purchased and contracts made for the several institutions, so as to insure the competition and publicity necessary to secure the economical management of each institution. Jobbers, or others desirous of selling supplies to an institution shall, by filing with the chief executive officer of such institution, or with the secretary of the board, a memorandum showing their address and business, be afforded an opportunity to compete for the furnishing of the supplies under such limitations and rules as the board may prescribe. In purchasing all supplies, local dealers shall have the preference, when such can be given without loss to the state. When samples are furnished the same shall be properly marked and preserved for six months after purchase of such merchandise. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 48.]

SEC. 2727-a51. Letting of contracts — labor of inmates utilized. Contracts for the erection, repairs or improvements of buildings, grounds, or properties of the institutions under charge of this board, and for which appropriations have been or may be made by the legislature, must be let for the whole or for any part of the work to be performed, by the chief executive officer of the institution, subject, however, to the same rules and regulations as herein provided for the furnishing of estimates by said institution to, and the approval and revision thereof by the board of control. If the cost of the erection or betterment is not in excess of three hundred dollars ($300) the board may permit the management of the institution to construct the same by day's labor, without contracting the work. All plans or specifications for the said erections, repairs and improvements, shall be prepared by the architect of the board, under the board's direction. The board shall determine to what extent and for what length of time, and by what means advertisements are to be inserted in newspapers for proposals for the said erections, repairs or improvements. All contracts shall be awarded by the management of the institution to the lowest responsible bidder, subject to the provisions of this act, and the approval of the board, prior to the execution of the contract. The management of the institution has the right to reject any and all bids, and to re-advertise, upon the approval of the board. A preliminary deposit of money or certified check upon a solvent bank in such amount as the board may prescribe shall be required as an evidence of good faith, upon all proposals for the construction of said buildings, repairs and improvements, which deposit or certified check shall be held by the management of the institution under the direction of the board. The provision of this section which requires all work to be let by contract, shall not be mandatory as to the labor on the construction work at the penitentiaries, but the board shall establish such rules, and enforce the provisions of this act so that the construction work at the penitentiaries shall be performed in a manner agreeable thereto, with the strictest accountability exacted in the consumption of all supplies for construction purposes, and in the expenditure of the public moneys. On proper representations the board is authorized to so construct the erections, betterments and improvements at other institutions that the work of inmates may be utilized, if it is found to be advantageous to the state, and a substantial saving made, but the attempt to use such labor shall not permit a substantial departure from the requirements of this section; and in no case shall any expenditure be made except on estimates submitted to and approved by the board, as provided herein. No payment shall be authorized for construction purposes until satisfactory proof has been furnished to the board of control, by the proper officer or supervising architect, that the contract has been complied with by the parties; and all payments shall be made in a manner similar to that in which the current expenses of the several institutions are paid. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 49.]

SEC. 2727-a52. Cherokee commission abolished. The members of the building commission authorized to construct the hospital for the insane at Cherokee shall be relieved from such duty, and the commission abolished on July 1, 1898. Before said last named day the said commission shall surrender to the board of control all plans, specifications, books, records and other properties belonging to or in the possession of the said commission, or any member thereof. The said board shall succeed to and be vested with all the powers of the said building commission, and all duties thereof will be performed by said board, and all legislation affecting the powers, duties or obligations of said building commission shall, so far as applicable, apply with equal force to the said board of control. The said board shall call upon any of the superintendents of the hospitals for the insane for such information or service as the board shall deem proper; and the said superintendents shall respond to such call for the compensation provided in the act relating to the building commission of the hospital for the insane at Cherokee. All outstanding obligations of said commission shall be executed and performed by the board of control, but this shall not prevent said board from selecting all its agents or employees in the work of construction, which shall be executed in a manner agreeable to and pursuant to the provisions of this act. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 50.]

SEC. 2727-a53. Educational institutions. In addition to the powers heretofore mentioned to be exercised by the board of control, the said board shall investigate thoroughly the reports and doings of the regents of the state university, and the trustees of the state normal school, and the state college of agriculture and mechanic arts and the books and records of said institutions, for the purpose of ascertaining:

1. Whether the persons holding positions have faithfully accounted for all moneys of the state which have been drawn from the state treasury or have come into their hands otherwise.

2. If appropriations have been drawn from the state treasury in accordance with law and so expended.

3. Whether such persons have drawn money for services per diem, mileage or expenses, or otherwise, not authorized by law, or have authorized expenditures without authority of law. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 51.]

SEC. 2727-a54. Powers as to the same. The said board shall have power to visit the educational institutions, subpoena and examine witnesses and enforce attendance, and to require the production of books, records, papers and memoranda. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 52.]

SEC. 2727-a55. Investigation of management. It shall be the duty of said board to investigate the manner in which all contracts for the educational institutions have been let, and to ascertain whether or not the matters in charge of such officials are conducted in an economical and business-like manner; and to report the result of such investigation to the governor with the other reports to be filed with that officer. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 53.]

SEC. 2727-a56. Estimates of cost, etc. And when any one of the three last above named educational institutions shall ask appropriations for any buildings or betterments, said institution or institutions shall first have prepared by the architect provided for in this act estimates of the cost, plans and specifications of said buildings or betterments, and submit the same to the following general assembly. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 54.]

SEC. 2727-a57. Repeal. Existing laws relating to the institutions referred to in this act, which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, shall remain in force, and all acts or parts of acts in conflict with, or inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed. [27 G. A., ch. 118, § 55.]

SEC. 2727-a58. Board of control supervision—insane—county and private institutions. All county and private institutions wherein insane persons are kept are hereby placed under the supervision of the board of control of state institutions. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a59. Visitation, when and by whom—reports. It shall be the duty of said board of control as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, and at least twice annually thereafter, by one or more of its members or by some competent and disinterested person, whom the board shall appoint, to visit every private and county institution wherein insane persons are kept. Said visitor shall carefully examine into the capacity of said institutions for the care of insane patients, the number kept therein, and their sex, the arrangement of buildings and the method of their construction, their adaptation for the purposes intended, their condition as to sewerage, ventilation, light, heat, cleanliness, means of water supply, fire escapes and fire protection, the care of patients, their food, clothing, medical attendance, and treatment, their employment, if any, the number, kind, and sex of employes, their duties and salaries, including nurses, attendants, and night watches, the cost to the state or county maintaining patients, which shall in all cases be kept separate and distinct from the cost of keeping papers, and such other information which the said board shall deem proper. Said visitors shall make a written report including all of said matters to said board. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a60. Patients to have a hearing. The person making the visit above provided for shall see all patients in the institutions and shall give each an opportunity to converse with him out of the hearing of any officer or employe of the institution, and shall fully investigate and inquire into any complaint by making inquiry from the persons in charge of said institution, and others, and report the result thereof in writing to said board; but said board, before acting on said report adversely to the institution, shall give the persons in charge thereof a copy of such report and an opportunity to be heard thereon. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a61. Compensation of inspector. In case the inspection herein provided for shall be made by a person appointed by the board of control of state institutions, such person shall be allowed such a sum as the board may, in its discretion, deem proper, not to exceed five dollars ($5.00) per day for the time actually employed in said work and in going to and from the same. The actual expenses of the person making the visit, and his per diem, if any, shall be allowed and paid when itemized, sworn to, and approved, as provided for in chapter one hundred and eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly in relation to the expenses of the board. [28 G. A., ch. A-144, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a62. Board to make rules and regulations. As soon as all private and county institutions in which insane persons may be kept shall have been visited and reports thereon received, the board of control shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations touching the care and treatment of, and make orders in relation to, such insane patients as may be kept in said institutions, which rules and regulations shall not interfere with the medical treatment given to private patients by competent physicians. Copies of such rules and regulations, when adopted, shall be mailed to the chief executive officer of each private institution, and to the clerk of the district court, the chairman of the board of supervisors, and the officer in charge of the institution in all counties having county institutions caring for insane persons. The board shall allow in this case a reasonable time for the management of these institutions to comply with such rules and regulations. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 5.]

SEC. 2727-a63. Failure to comply with board's rules—penalty. If any such institution shall fail, neglect, or refuse within the time fixed by the board to comply substantially in all respects with said rules, regulations, and orders, said board is authorized to remove all said insane persons kept therein at public expense, to the proper state hospital, or to some private or county institution or hospital for the care of the insane that has complied with the rules and regulations prescribed by said board of control, at the expense of the county which sent said patient to said institution. Such removal of patients, if to a state hospital, to be made by an attendant or attendants sent from the state hospital, and the cost of such removal including all expenses of said attendant, shall be certified, by the superintendent of the hospital receiving the patient, to the auditor of state, whereupon he shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state for said sum, which shall be credited to the support fund of said hospital and charged against the general revenues of the state and collected by the auditor of state from said county. And the board of control shall notify the guardian, or one or more of the relatives of patients kept therein at private expense, that the rules as to their care are being disregarded, and of the action taken by the board as to the other patients. And should the board of control believe any person in any such institution sane, or illegally restrained of liberty, it shall institute and prosecute proceedings in the name of the state of Iowa, before the proper officer, board, or court, for the discharge of such person. If a female is removed under the provisions of this section, at least one attendant shall be a female. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 6.]

SEC. 2727-a64. Removal of patients from county asylum. Whenever it shall be found by said board of control that any patient cared for at public expense is confined in any private asylum or county institution, who is violent and whose case is acute and said board shall be of the opinion, after taking competent medical testimony, that said patient can be better cared for in the state hospital with better hopes of recovery, it may remove said patient to the proper state hospital, at the expense of the proper county, said expense to be recovered as provided for in section six (6) hereof. And whenever said board shall find any patient in a state hospital, who shall have become chronic, or likely to do as well in a county or private institution as in the state hospital, it may order the county to which the keeping of said patient is chargeable to remove him or her to some county or private institution in the state which shall have complied with the rules of said board relative to the keeping of insane patients; but in no case shall a patient in a state hospital be thus transferred except upon the written consent of his or her immediate relatives, if any, or the commissioners of insanity of the county to which the patient is chargeable, and of the board of control; nor in the absence of the consent of said board shall a patient in a state hospital, who is not cured, be discharged. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 7.]

SEC. 2727-a65. Insane of other counties—may keep when. The commissioners of insanity, with the consent of the board of supervisors of any county, having insane persons within such county, and having no proper facilities, either at a public or private institution, for the care, keeping and treatment of such persons within the county, may, with the consent of the board of control, provide for their care at the expense of said county at any convenient private or county institution having proper facilities for the care of the same, and which will care for them to the satisfaction of the said board of control, and which will comply with the rules and regulations that may be prescribed by the board of control, relative to the care and keeping of insane persons. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 8.]

SEC. 2727-a66. Authority of private asylums to keep insane. No person shall be confined and restrained in any private institution or hospital for the care or treatment of the insane, except upon the certificate of a board of commissioners of insanity of some county in the state, or of two reputable physicians, at least one of whom shall be a bona fide resident of the state of Iowa, who shall certify that such person is a fit subject for treatment and restraint in said institution or hospital, which certificate shall be the authority of the owners and officers of said hospital or institution for receiving and confining said patient or person therein. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 9.]

SEC. 2727-a67. Appropriation. To provide for the expenses of the inspection herein required and the per diem, there is hereby appropriated the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary, from any funds of the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 10.]

SEC. 2727-a68. Differences of opinion—how adjudicated. When a difference of opinion exists between the board of control and the authorities in charge of any private or county asylum in regard to the removal of a patient or patients as herein provided, the matter shall be submitted to the district court, or judge thereof, of the proper county and shall be summarily tried as an equitable action, and the judgment of the district court or judge shall be final. [28 G. A., ch. 144, § 11.]

SEC. 2727-a69. Annual appropriation — purpose. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of two hundred fifty dollars annually for the payment of the actual and necessary expenses of persons who shall, at the solicitation of the board of control of state institutions, read papers at the quarterly conferences of the chief executive officers of the state institutions under the management of said board. The papers so read shall have especial application to the objects and work of one or more of said institutions. [30 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a70. How and when payable. The money hereby appropriated shall be payable on the first day of July of each year and shall be paid from the state treasury as the expenses of the members of the board of control are paid. [30 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a71. Special policemen. That upon the application and recommendation of the board of control of state institutions the governor shall commission any number of employes of any institution under the control of said board, not exceeding three, to be designated by the chief executive officer, to be special policemen thereof; and such officer or officers shall take an oath of office and shall have power to protect the property of such institution, to suppress riots, disturbances and breaches of the peace, and to enforce all laws for the preservation of good order, and may, upon view or information, without warrant, arrest any person trespassing upon the grounds or destroying the property of such institution, or violating any of the existing laws of the state, and bring such person so offending before the mayor or any justice of the peace within such township, to be dealt with according to law. This act shall not be construed to authorize any additional employes in any institution, or any increase of compensation to any employe so designated. [30 G. A., ch. 111.]

SEC. 2727-a72. Credited to support fund—record. That when an inmate of any state institution under the control of the board of control of state institutions dies intestate, leaving money on deposit with the chief executive or other officer of the institution, and administration of the estate of such intestate is not granted and no surviving spouse or heirs are known to the officers of the institution or are ascertained although diligent search for them be made, the money so left shall be transmitted to the treasurer of state at the end of one year from the death of the intestate and shall be credited to the support fund of the institution from which it was sent. A complete permanent record of the money so sent, showing by whom and with whom it was left, its amount, the date of the death of the owner, his reputed place of residence before he became an inmate of the institution, the date on which it was sent to the state treasurer and any other facts which may tend to identify the intestate and explain the case shall be kept by the chief executive officer of the institution and a transcript thereof shall be sent to and kept by the treasurer of state. [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a73. Payment to party entitled thereto. The money so sent to treasurer of state, or any part thereof, shall be paid at any time within ten years from the death of the intestate to any person who is shown to be entitled thereto by evidence satisfactory to the board of control or to the district court of the county in which the institution from which the money was sent is located. Payment shall be made from the state treasury out of the support fund of such institution in the manner provided for the payment of other claims from that fund. [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 2.]

SEC. 2727-a74. Money now held. The provision of this act shall also apply to all money left by inmates of institutions who have heretofore died intestate and which is now held by the chief executive or other officer of the institutions. [30 G. A., ch. 112, § 3.]

CHAPTER 11-C.

OF THE STATE SANATORIUM FOR THE TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS.

SECTION 2727-a75. State sanatorium established. There is hereby established a state sanatorium for the care and treatment of persons afflicted with incipient pulmonary tuberculosis which shall be called the state sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a76. Superintendent, officers and employes. The officers and employes of said sanatorium shall consist of a superintendent and such other officers and employes to be appointed as the board of control of state institutions shall deem necessary for the proper operation of said institution, including examining physicians. Said superintendent shall be a well educated physician with an experience of at least five years in actual practice of medicine. Said superintendent shall be appointed by the board of control of state institutions for the term of four years and shall receive such salary as the said board may fix, not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars ($2500.00) per annum. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 2.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a77. Control. The board of control of state institutions shall have the same power and control over said institutions as is now given it with reference to the several institutions mentioned in chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and all amendments thereto, and said acts and amendments shall apply to and govern said sanatorium in every respect in so far as they are not in conflict with the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a78. Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act to be expended by the board of control, as herein provided for. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 4.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a79. Purchase of land—erection and equipment of buildings. As soon as practicable after the passage and publication of this act, and when the funds are available therefor, said board of control shall proceed to purchase the necessary land for said sanatorium, and erect, furnish and equip the needed buildings. In locating said sanatorium, it shall take into consideration climate, healthfulness, water supply, drainage, quality of soil, facility of access, timber protection to buildings and a suitable building site. Said site shall contain not less than 160 acres or whatever may be deemed necessary by the board of control. The buildings shall be planned to accommodate at least one hundred patients and necessary officers and employes. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 5.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a80. Proclamation of the opening. When said sanatorium buildings are erected, furnished, equipped and ready for use, said board of control shall notify the governor of the fact, who shall thereupon issue his proclamation of the opening of said sanatorium. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a81. Duties of superintendent. In addition to the duties which may now be imposed by law, the superintendent shall oversee and secure the individual treatment and professional care of each and every patient residing in the sanatorium. He shall prescribe rules subject to the approval of the board of control and not inconsistent with the statutes for the application, examination, reception and government of patients and their discharge, and shall keep a full record of their condition and prospects. He shall endeavor to stimulate the organization and assist in the establishment of hospital, dispensaries, in various counties or large centers of population, for the treatment of patients with advanced tuberculosis. He shall reside at the institution. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 7.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a82. What patients received—applications—examination. No patients shall be received except those afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis in the incipient stage, and who show a reasonable probability of satisfactory improvement by treatment in the sanatorium. Any person wishing to become a patient in the institution shall first make application and if it shall appear to the superintendent from the answers to the questions therein that the applicant has been and is a bona fide resident of this state and is in all other respects entitled under the law to admission, said applicant shall be sent by the superintendent to the examining physician living nearest to the residence of the applicant, and said applicant directed to report to said examining physician for an examination. Said examining physician shall examine said applicant fully with a view of ascertaining whether he is afflicted with incipient tuberculosis, and shall so far as possible fill out the blanks which may be furnished him for that purpose and shall mail the same to the superintendent of the sanatorium, who shall examine the same and if he finds that the applicant as shown by the answers, or by the examination of the examining physician, has been and is a bona fide resident of this state and is in all other respects under the law entitled to admission, he shall receive the applicant as a patient providing there is room, and if no room be then available, he shall enter the name on a book in the order in which the application is made, and the applicant shall be admitted in said order whenever there is room. In case it shall appear from the application itself, or from the report of the examining physician, that the applicant does not come within the provisions of the law, or in case the superintendent shall be in possession of reliable information which convinces him that the applicant is not entitled to the benefits of this act, he shall forthwith notify the applicant that he cannot be admitted as a patient. If, however, the superintendent after receiving the report of the examining physician, is in doubt as to whether it is a case of incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, he shall personally examine the applicant in case he presents himself at the institution for that purpose. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 8.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a83. Examining physicians. The board of control of state institutions shall on the recommendation of the superintendent, and on the approval of the said board appoint physicians in such localities in the state as they may deem proper, whose duty shall be to examine all persons who apply to them, and who have previously made application to the superintendent to be admitted as patient[s] in the sanatorium, provided, however, that the applicant shall in each case pay said examining physician the sum of three dollars ($3.00) which shall be in full for such examination. He shall carefully fill out the blanks in the examination paper and shall also give any additional information he may possess which may aid in determining the eligibility of the person so examined for admission as a patient in the institution. Said examining physicians shall be graduates of a medical school in good standing under the laws of Iowa, and shall be selected, so far as it is practicable, because of his [their] experience with the knowledge of pulmonary diseases. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 9.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a84. Transportation and other expenses—how paid. In case an applicant who has been authorized to be received as a patient in the sanatorium, is without means to pay for the transportation and other necessary expenses to and from including treatment at the institution, and such fact is duly certified to by the board of health of the city, or incorporated town where the applicant resides, or by the majority of the township trustees in case the applicant resides outside of a city or incorporated town, and the superintendent is satisfied that such is the fact, then such expense shall be paid by the state out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated after the same is certified by said superintendent and approved by the board of control. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 10.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a85. Per capita support. The board of control of state institutions shall fix the per capita monthly allowance which may be charged by the said institution for the care, treatment and maintenance of each patient therein, which shall not exceed the sum of thirty dollars ($30) per capita per month, which shall be certified by the superintendent to said board of control and paid out as provided in chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. Provided that the average number of patients in said sanatorium shall not exceed two hundred per month, it shall be credited by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state with the sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) per month which may be drawn as above provided. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 11.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, §§ 1, 2.]

SEC. 2727-a86. Charges for care, treatment and maintenance. Said sanatorium shall be open for all patients, but all patients who are able to pay, shall be charged such rate monthly as the board of control may fix, not exceeding the average actual per capita cost of care, treatment and maintenance. All sums so collected shall by the board of control be covered into the state treasury. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 12.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a87. Support for first month. For the purpose of the maintenance of the sanatorium during the first month of its operation, the superintendent thereof may estimate, in advance of said opening and on the basis of a population of two hundred patients at twenty dollars ($20.00) per capita per month for the supplies to operate the sanatorium, to furnish and equip the same, and to purchase tools, animals, implements and other articles so far as then necessary, for the first month and the aggregate of said per capita shall be credited to said institution by the auditor of state and the treasurer of state and may be drawn against as provided in chapter one hundred eighteen (118) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 13.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 3.]

SEC. 2727-a88. Repeal—acts in conflict. All acts and parts of act in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. [31 G. A., ch. 120, § 14.] [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 1.]

SEC. 2727-a89. Appropriation for collection and dissemination of information. There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) annually, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be used by the board of control of state institutions for the collection and dissemination of information regarding tuberculosis. Said board of control may arrange exhibits, employ lecturers, co-operate with other institutions or organizations or use any means necessary to give to the people of the state a practical knowledge of tuberculosis. Said board of control shall, with the superintendent or such assistance as it may deem advisable, stimulate the organization of, and assist in establishing hospitals or dispensaries or make other provisions, in the various counties or large centers of population, for the treatment of patients in the advanced stages of tuberculosis. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 4.]

SEC. 2727-a90. Appropriation for completion and equipment. There is hereby further appropriated the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) for the purpose of completing and equipping said sanatorium and in making it ready for use. [32 G. A., ch. 147, § 5.]

CHAPTER 12.

OF COUNTY HIGH SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2728. How established. Any county may establish a high school in the following manner: When the board of supervisors shall be presented with a petition signed by one-third of the electors of the county as shown by the returns of the last preceding election, requesting the establishment of a county high school at a place in the county named therein, it shall submit the question together with the amount of tax to be levied to erect the necessary buildings, at the next general election to be held in the county, or at a special one called for that purpose, first giving twenty days' notice thereof in one or more newspapers published in the county, if any be published therein, and by posting such notice, written or printed, in each township of the county, at which election the vote shall be by ballot, for or against establishing the high school, and for or against the levying of the tax, the vote to be canvassed in the same manner as that for county officers. Should a majority of all the votes cast upon the question be in favor of establishing such school, and the levying of such tax, the board of supervisors shall at once appoint six trustees, residents of the county, not more than two from the same township, who, with the county superintendent of common schools as president, shall constitute a board of trustees for said high school. [C., '73, §§ 1697-9, 1701.] [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 1.]

The provisions of Code § 2803 relating to tuition for pupils attending school in another district than that in which they reside, have no application to county high schools organized under this section. Boggs v. School Township, 128-13.

SEC. 2729. Trustees—officers. The trustees, within ten days after appointment, shall qualify by taking the oath of civil officers, and giving bond in such sum as the board of supervisors may require, with sureties to be approved by it, and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified, who shall be elected at the general election following. The trustees then elected shall be divided into two classes of three each and hold their office two and four years respectively, their several terms to be decided by lot; and in all county high schools heretofore established the terms of all trustees therefor shall expire on the first day of January, 1907, and at the general election in 1906 there shall be six trustees elected for each of said county high schools, three of whom shall be elected for two years, and three of whom for four years, and at each general election thereafter three trustees shall be elected for the term of four years. The trustees so elected to qualify in the same manner and at the same time as other county officers and all vacancies occurring to be filled by appointment by the board of supervisors, the appointee to hold the office until the next general election, and a majority of which trustees shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. At the first meeting held in each year, the board shall appoint a secretary and treasurer from their own number, who shall perform the usual duties devolving upon like officers. The treasurer, in addition to his bond as trustee, shall give one as treasurer, in such sum and with such sureties as may be fixed by the board, and receive all moneys from all sources belonging to the funds of the school, and pay them out as directed by the board of trustees, upon orders drawn by the president and countersigned by the secretary; both of which officers shall keep an accurate account of all moneys received and paid out, and at the close of each year, and whenever required by the board shall make a full itemized and detailed report. [C., '73, §§ 1699, 1700, 1704, 1711.] [31 G. A., ch. 135.]

SEC. 2730. Site—tax—approval of electors. As soon as convenient after the organization of the board, it shall proceed to select the best site that can be obtained without expense to the county, at the place named in the petition upon which the vote was taken, for the erection of the necessary school buildings, the title to be taken in the name of the county, and shall procure plans and specifications for the erection of such buildings, and make all necessary contracts for the erection of the same, the cost of which, when completed, shall not exceed the amount of the tax so levied therefor. They shall also annually make and certify to the board of supervisors on or before the first Monday of September of each year, an estimate of the amount of funds needed for improvements, teachers' wages and contingent expenses for the ensuing year, designating the amount for each, which, in the aggregate shall not exceed in any one year, two mills on the dollar, upon the taxable property of the county. No expenditures for buildings or other improvements shall be made, or contract entered into therefor, by said board, involving an outlay of to exceed five hundred dollars in any one year, without the same first being submitted to the electors of the county in which said school be located, for their approval; the tax to be levied and collected in the same manner as other county taxes, and paid over by the county treasurer in the same manner as school funds are paid to district treasurers. [C., '73, §§ 1702-3, 1705.] [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 2.]

SEC. 2731. Management. Said board shall make no purchases, nor enter into any contracts in any year, in excess of the funds on hand and to be raised by the levy of that year. It shall employ, when suitable buildings have been furnished, a competent principal teacher to take charge of the school, and such assistant teachers as may be necessary, and fix the salaries to be paid them, and in the conduct of the school may employ advanced students to assist in the work. Annual reports shall be made by the secretary to the board of supervisors, which report shall give the number of students, with the sex of each, who have been in attendance during the year, the branches taught, the text-books used, number of teachers employed, salary paid to each, amount expended for library, apparatus, buildings, and all other expenses, the amount of funds on hand, debts contracted, and such other information as may be deemed important, and this report shall be printed in at least one newspaper in the county, if any is published therein, and a copy forwarded to the superintendent of public instruction. And for their services the trustees shall each receive the sum of two dollars per day for the time actually employed in the discharge of official duties, claims for services to be presented, audited, and paid out of the county treasury, in the same manner as other accounts against the county. [C., '73, §§ 1705-6, 1710, 1712.] [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 3.]

SEC. 2732. Regulations. The principal of any such high school, with the approval of the board of trustees, shall make such rules and regulations as is deemed proper in regard to the studies, conduct and government of the pupils; and any pupil who will not conform to and obey such rules may be suspended or expelled therefrom by the board of trustees. Said board of trustees shall make all necessary rules and regulations in regard to the age and grade of attainments necessary to entitle pupils to admission into the school, and shall on or before the tenth day of July of each year make an apportionment between the different school corporations of the county, of the pupils that shall attend said school, and shall apportion to each of said school corporations its proportionate number, based upon the number of pupils that can be reasonably accommodated in said school, and the number of pupils of school age, actual residents of such school corporations, as shown by the county superintendent's report last filed with the county auditor, of said county; said apportionment shall be published in the official papers of such county, to be paid for, as other county printing; pupils from the said school corporations to the number so designated in such apportionment, shall be entitled to admission into said school, tuition free, and none others, and it shall be unlawful to accredit pupils so attending to any other school corporation, than the one in which they are enumerated for school purposes. Should there be more applicants for such admission from any school corporation than its proportionate number, so determined, then the board of directors of such school corporation shall designate which of said applicants shall be entitled to so attend. If the school shall be capable of accommodating more pupils than those attending under such apportionment, others may be admitted by the board of trustees, preference at all times being given to pupils desiring such admission, who are residents of the county. The board of trustees shall fix reasonable tuition for such pupils. If such pupils are residents of the county the school corporation from which they attend shall pay their tuition out of its contingent fund. The principal of such high school shall report to the said board of trustees under oath, at the close of each term the names and number of pupils attending such school during said term, from what school corporation they attended, and the amount of tuition, if any, paid by each, the same to be included in the annual report of the secretary of the board of trustees to the board of supervisors, provided for in section twenty-seven hundred and thirty-one (2731) of the code. The tuition so paid to be turned over to the treasurer of the board of trustees to be used in paying the expense of said school under the direction of said board. [C., '73, § 1709.] [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 4.]

The legislature may provide for the establishment and maintenance of county high schools, and require the payment of tuition for pupils attending from any one district in excess of the number allotted to such district. Boggs v. School Township, 128-13.

SEC. 2733-a. Repeal—petitions to abolish—election. That section twenty-seven hundred and thirty-three of the code be repealed and the following substituted:

“Whenever citizens of any county having a county high school desire to abolish the same or to dispose of any part of the buildings or property thereof, they may petition the board of supervisors at any regular session thereof in relation thereto, and sections three hundred and ninety-seven (397), three hundred and ninety-eight (398), three hundred and ninety-nine (399) and four hundred (400) of the code shall apply to and govern the whole matter, including the manner of presenting and determining the sufficiency of such petitions and remonstrances thereto, so far as applicable. If an election is ordered the same shall be held at the time of the general election or at a special election called for that purpose and the proposition shall be submitted and the election conducted in the manner provided in title six (6) of the code. If any proposition as herein provided be legally submitted and adopted, the board of supervisors is hereby empowered to carry the same into effect.” [27 G. A., ch. 84, § 5.]

CHAPTER 13.

OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

SECTION 2734-a. Repeal. There is hereby repealed sections twenty-six hundred thirty-two (2632), twenty-seven hundred thirty-four (2734), twenty-seven hundred thirty-five (2735), twenty-seven hundred thirty-six (2736), twenty-seven hundred thirty-seven (2737) of the code, and sections twenty-seven hundred thirty-four (2734), twenty-seven hundred thirty-six (2736), twenty-seven hundred thirty-seven (2737) of the supplement to the code, and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 1.]

SEC. 2734-b. County superintendent—qualifications—deputy. The county superintendent, who may be of either sex, shall be the holder of a first grade certificate as provided for in this act, or of a state certificate or a life diploma and shall, during his term, be ineligible to the office of school director or member of the board of supervisors. If for any cause he is unable to attend to his official duties, he may appoint a deputy, who may act in his stead, except in visiting schools and trying appeals. He shall serve as the organ of communication between the superintendent of public instruction and school township, district or independent district authorities, and transmit to them or the teachers thereof all blanks, circulars or other communications designed for them. He shall visit the different schools in his county at least once during the school year and at such other times as he may be requested by a majority of the directors of any school corporation, and give personal instruction to the pupils for at least one-fourth of the day. The county superintendent shall on the first Monday of each month file with the county auditor an itemized and sworn statement of actual traveling expenses incurred during the previous month in visiting schools and in attending educational meetings within his county, and such expenses shall be paid by the county board of supervisors, but the total amount paid for any month shall not be more than twenty dollars. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 2.]

One who had secured a first grade certificate from a county superintendent between the time of the passage of 31 G. A., chap. 122, and the time it took effect, but had not secured a first grade certificate under the provisions of that act, held not qualified to hold the office of county superintendent. State v. Huegle, 112 N. W. 234.

SEC. 2734-c. Examinations. On the last Friday and Wednesday and Thursday preceding in the months of January, June, July and October, the county superintendent shall meet and, with such assistants as may be necessary, examine all applicants for a teachers' certificate. Such examinations shall be held at the county seat, in a suitable room which shall be provided for that purpose by the board of supervisors; but the county superintendent may at his discretion cause to be held at the time of any regular examination an additional examination at some other place in the county. The questions used in such examinations shall be furnished by the educational board of examiners, who shall cause the same to be printed, and the examinations shall be conducted strictly under rules prescribed by the board. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 3.]

SEC. 2734-d. Subjects. The examination for the first grade certificate shall include competency in and ability to teach orthography, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, grammar, history of the United States, didactics, elementary civics, elementary algebra, political economy, elementary economics, elementary physics, elements of vocal music, physiology and hygiene, which in each division of the subject shall include special reference to the effects of alcohol, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 4.]

SEC. 2734-e. Special certificates. That a special certificate may be issued for any subject, or any group of subjects, taught in the public schools of Iowa, under such regulations as the board of examiners may adopt. A special certificate shall be issued for a term of three years and shall be renewable under the same conditions as apply to the renewal of first grade certificates. It shall state the names of the subjects for which it is issued, and shall not be valid for the teaching of any other subjects. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 5.]

SEC. 2734-f. Record kept. A record shall be kept by the county superintendent of all examinations taken within his county, with the name, age and residence of each applicant and the date of examination. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 6.]

SEC. 2734-g. First grade certificate—renewal. Applicants who have taught successfully for at least thirty-six weeks, or who have completed a course of study in an approved college or normal school and whose examination entitles them to the first grade certificate, shall receive the same for a term of three years from the date thereof, and such certificates shall be renewable without examination provided the applicants shall show by examination or otherwise that at least one line of professional inquiry has been successfully conducted during the life of the certificate, it being made the duty of the board to forward with each certificate subject to renewal, outlines setting forth various lines of professional study. It is provided further that each application for renewal shall be accompanied by such proof of successful experience and professional spirit as the educational board of examiners may require. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 7.]

A certificate issued by a county superintendent prior to the taking effect of G. A., chap. 122, does not qualify the holder to fill the office of county superintendent under provisions of § 2 of the act. State v. Huegle, 112 N. W. 234.

SEC. 2734-h. Second grade certificate—renewal. Applicants whose examination entitles them to the second grade certificate only, shall receive the same for not to exceed two years, with the privilege of one renewal without further examination, under the same rules as govern the renewal of first grade certificates. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 8.]

SEC. 2734-i. Third grade certificate. Applicants whose examination entitles them to the third grade certificate only, shall receive the same for six months, provided that the county superintendent may at his option extend such certificate to the first day of the July following its issue. A third grade certificate shall not be renewed and not more than two such certificates shall be issued to the same person. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 9.]

SEC. 2734-j. Applicants without experience. Applicants who have had no experience in teaching, but whose examination entitles them to the first grade, shall receive a second grade certificate for two years, provided that when they have taught successfully under such certificate for not less than thirty-six weeks, they shall be entitled to receive a first grade certificate on the conditions herein provided for a renewal of a certificate. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 10.]

SEC. 2734-k. Certificates renewed—conditions. Any person who has held a first grade certificate or a special certificate in any county of this state for one or more years prior to the taking effect of this act, may have the same renewed by the board of examiners, provided said person has taught continuously during the preceding school year, and provided further, that the members of the school board of the school corporation and the county superintendent of the county where such person has been employed and, if in a graded school, the principal or superintendent under whom such person has taught, certify to the success of the applicant in teaching and in government, and unite in recommending the applicant as a teacher of efficiency, scholarship and professional spirit. Under like recommendations the holders of second grade certificates with first grade per cents may have school credit given in lieu of the examination as the board may determine. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 11.]

SEC. 2734-l. Qualifications of applicants. Before admitting any one to the examination, the county superintendent must be satisfied that the person seeking a certificate is of good moral character, of which fact he may require proof, and is in all respects other than in scholarship possessed of the necessary qualifications as an instructor. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 12.]

SEC. 2734-m. Examination papers graded—certificates issued. As soon as the examination is completed the county superintendent shall forward to the superintendent of public instruction, a list of all applicants examined, with the standings of each in didactics and oral reading, and his estimate of each applicant's personality and general fitness, other than scholarship, for the work of teaching. He shall at the same time forward to the superintendent of public instruction the answer papers written, with the exception of those in didactics. Under the supervision of the educational board of examiners, the paper [s] shall be graded and the scholastic qualifications determined. The result of such examination of persons who pass the same shall be entered upon a certificate provided by such board, and shall be transmitted to the county superintendent of the county in which the person entitled thereto resides. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 13.]

SEC. 2734-n. Competent readers — clerical help. Immediately following each examination authorized by this act, the board of examiners shall call to their assistance a sufficient number of competent readers previously selected by the board, ten of whom shall be county superintendents. The county superintendents so chosen shall be known as head readers and shall also constitute a review board in cases of doubt. They shall also make a list of applicants from each county, nearest the passing mark for a third grade certificate. The head readers shall receive necessary traveling expenses only. All other readers shall receive actual traveling expenses to and from the capitol and not to exceed fifty cents an hour for time actually employed in reading and marking answer papers. Such additional clerical help as may be required may be employed by the board at not to exceed thirty cents per hour for time actually employed. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 14.]

SEC. 2734-o. Expenditures certified and paid. All expenditures authorized by this act shall be certified by the superintendent of public instruction to the executive council, who shall cause the auditor of the state to draw warrants therefor upon the treasurer of state, but not to exceed the fees paid into the treasury under the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 15.]

SEC. 2734-p. Application fee. Each applicant for a certificate shall pay a fee of one dollar, one-half of which shall be paid into the state treasury on or before the first day of the succeeding month, and one-half shall be paid into the county institute fund. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 16.]

SEC. 2734-q. Registration fee. No person shall teach in any public school in this state whose certificate has not been registered with the county superintendent of the county in which such school is located. A registration fee of one dollar shall be charged for each year, or part of the year, for which the certificate or diploma is registered. All registration fees shall be paid into the county institute fund. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 17.]

SEC. 2734-r. Third grade certificates, when not to be registered. In case a sufficient number of life diplomas, state certificates, first grade certificates, special certificates and second grade certificates are held in any county to supply the schools thereof, it shall not be incumbent on the county superintendent to register third grade certificates. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 18.]

SEC. 2734-s. Special examination—provisional certificates. When a sufficient number of licensed teachers cannot be secured to fill the schools of any county, the board of examiners may, upon the request of the county superintendent, appoint a special examination for such county to be conducted in all respects as a regular examination and the answer papers to be forwarded to the president of the board as required in regular examinations, and thereupon provisional certificates may be issued by the educational board of examiners. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 19.]

SEC. 2734-t. Certificates, where valid—revocation. All certificates provided for in this act shall be valid in any county within the state, when registered in such county, but a provisional certificate shall be valid, upon registration, only in the county in which it is issued and shall be issued for the same time and subject to the same extension as a third grade certificate, but no person shall be entitled to receive more than one provisional certificate, except upon the approval of the county superintendent. Any certificate or diploma issued by the board may be revoked for any cause which would have authorized or required a refusal to grant the same, or in case the holder thereof violates any of the provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 20.]

SEC. 2734-u. Revocation of certificate — charges — trial — appeal. When in the judgment of the county superintendent there is probable cause for the revocation of a certificate or diploma held by any teacher employed in his county, or when charges are preferred, supported by affidavits charging incompetency, immorality, intemperance, cruelty or general neglect of the business of the school, the county superintendent shall within ten days transmit to such person a written statement of the charges preferred and set the time and place for the hearing of the same, at which trial the teacher shall be privileged to be present and make defense. If in the judgment of the county superintendent there is sufficient grounds for the revocation of the certificate or diploma, he shall at once issue in duplicate an order revoking the certificate or diploma, and the same shall become operative and of full force and effect ten days after the date of its issue, one copy of the order to be mailed to the holder of the certificate and the other to be mailed to the superintendent of public instruction. Provided that the person aggrieved by such order shall have the right to appeal to the superintendent of public instruction within ten days from the date of such mailing and in case of appeal the revocation shall not be effective until the same is affirmed, after full hearing, by the superintendent of public instruction. Provided further, that in the case of life diplomas or state certificates of whatever class, the revocation shall not be effective until affirmed by the educational board of examiners after full review by said board. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 21.]

SEC. 2734-v. List of persons holding certificates and attending normal institute. The county superintendent shall annually, on the first Monday of September, file with the president of the educational board of examiners a list of all persons who for the preceding year have held certificates and have attended the normal institute, with the number of days attendance of each. A similar report of summer school attendance shall be secured by the president of the board. If any subsequent examination or renewal the board may give such credit for institute or summer school attendance as it may determine, any rule adopted to apply equally to all similar cases. [31 G. A., ch. 122, § 22.]

SEC. 2738. Normal institute. The county superintendent shall hold annually, a normal institute for the instruction of teachers and those who may desire to teach, and, with the concurrence of the superintendent of public instruction, procure such assistance as may be necessary to conduct the same, at such time as the schools in the county are generally closed. To defray the expenses of said institute, he shall require the payment of a registration fee of one dollar from each person attending the normal institutes, and the payment in all cases of one dollar from every applicant for a certificate: provided that, if the applicant is granted a two years' certificate, he shall pay one dollar additional. He shall monthly, and at the close of each institute, transmit to the county treasurer all moneys so received, including the state appropriation for institutes, to be designated the "institute fund," together with a report of the name of each person so contributing, and the amount. The board of supervisors may appropriate out of the general fund such additional sum as it may find necessary for the further support of such institute. All disbursements of the institute fund shall be by warrants drawn by the county auditor, who shall draw said warrants upon the written order of the county superintendent, and said written order must be accompanied by an itemized bill for services rendered or expenses incurred in connection with the institute, which bill must be signed and sworn to by the party in whose favor the order is made and must be verified by the county superintendent. All said orders and bills shall be kept on file in the auditor's office until the final settlement of the county superintendent with the board of supervisors at the close of his term of office. No warrant shall be drawn by the auditor in excess of the amount of institute fund then in the county treasury. That the county superintendent shall furnish to the county board of supervisors a certified itemized account of the receipts and disbursements of all moneys collected and paid out by him for a normal institute, which account they shall examine, audit and publish a summary thereof with their proceedings next following the holding of the normal institute. The superintendent shall report to the board of supervisors the first of January annually a summary of his official financial transactions for the previous year. [17 G. A., ch. 54; 15 G. A., ch. 57; C., '73, § 1769.] [27 G. A., ch. 87, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 123, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 113.]

SEC. 2739. Reports. The county superintendent shall annually, on the last Tuesday in August, make a report to the superintendent of public instruction, giving a full abstract of the several reports made to him by the secretaries and treasurers of school boards, stating the manner in and extent to which the requirements of the law regarding instruction in physiology and hygiene are observed, and such other matters as he may be directed by the state superintendent to include therein, or he may think important in showing the actual condition of the schools in his county. At the same time, he shall file with the county auditor a statement of the number of persons of school age in each school township and independent district in the county. He shall also report, as provided by law, to the superintendent of the college for the blind, the name, age, residence and post-office address of every person, resident of the county, so blind as to be unable to acquire an education in the common schools; to the superintendent of the institution for the deaf and dumb, with the same detail, all persons of school age whose faculties in respect to hearing or speaking are so deficient as to prevent them from acquiring an education in such schools; and to the institution for the feeble-minded, all persons of like age who, because of mental defects, are entitled to admission therein. [21 G. A., ch. 1, § 2; C., '73, §§ 1771, 1772; R., § 2070.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 1.]

SEC. 2742. Compensation. He shall receive a salary of twelve hundred and fifty dollars a year, the expenses of necessary office stationery and postage, and those incurred in attendance upon meetings called by the superintendent of public instruction; claims therefor to be made by verified statements filed with the county auditor, who shall draw his warrant upon the county treasurer therefor; and the board of supervisors may allow him such further sum by way of compensation as may be just and proper. [19 G. A., ch. 161, § 1; C., '73, § 1776; R., § 2074.] [29 G. A., ch. 124, § 1.]

CHAPTER 14.

OF THE SYSTEM OF COMMON SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2743. School districts—corporate powers.

While it is not essential that contracts made by the board be limited to the term of office of the individual members, yet it is evidently the legislative intention that contracts with teachers shall not be made for more than one year. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107-29.

A school township may maintain an action in equity to enjoin persons from assuming without authority to act as officers of a district within such township. School Township v. Wiggins, 122-602.

SEC. 2744. Names. Districts townships now existing shall hereafter be called school townships, subdivisions of which shall be called sub-districts. School corporations shall be designated as follows: The school township of (naming civil township), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa; or, the independent school district of (naming city, town, or village, and if there are two or more districts therein, including some appropriate name or number), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa; or, the rural independent school district of (some appropriate name or number), township of (naming township), in the county of (naming county), state of Iowa. [C., '73, § 1716; R., § 2026; C., '51, § 1108.] [27 G. A., ch. 91, § 1.]

SEC. 2745. Directors.

The management of school affairs is left to the discretion of the board of directors, and such discretion will not be interfered with by the courts so far as it is exercised within the scope of the powers conferred upon the board. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129-441.

SEC. 2745-a. Duty of board of school directors—fence. It shall be the duty of all boards of school directors in school districts where the schoolhouse site adjoins the cultivated or improved lands of another to build and maintain a lawful fence between said site and cultivated or improved lands. [27 G. A., ch. 88, § 1.]

SEC. 2745-b. Rights of owner of adjoining lands. The owner of lands adjoining any schoolhouse site shall have the right to connect the fence on his lands with the fences around any schoolhouse site, but he shall not be liable to contribute to the maintenance of the fence around said site. [27 G. A., ch. 88, § 2.]

SEC. 2746. Annual meeting of corporation.

By reason of the provisions of this section as to giving notice of propositions to be submitted to and determined by the voters at school meetings, and Code § 2749, that the board may, or under certain conditions shall, provide in the notice for the annual meeting for submitting any proposition authorized by law to the voters, notice of the proposition to be submitted at such meeting is essential to the validity of their adoption, the statutory provision as to notice being construed as mandatory. Goerdt v. Trumm, 118-207.

The board may provide in the notice of a school meeting for the submission of the question as to voting a schoolhouse tax. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

Unless there has been a valid order of the board of directors for the submission of a proposition, the adoption thereof by the electors is of no validity, even though notice of the submission of the proposition has been given. McNees v. School Township, 133-120.

The law presumes that the officer charged with the posting of the notices has performed his duty. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133-622.

SEC. 2747. Electors.

Women are expressly authorized to vote on the proposition whether a tax shall be levied for the erection of a schoolhouse. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

SEC. 2749. Powers of electors.

Irregularity in recording the acts of the electors will not prevent such action being recognized and taken into account in a court of equity. Locker v. Keiler, 110-707.

It is not necessary that the ballot contain a recital of every preliminary step necessary to render the election valid. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133-622.

No specific form of ballot is prescribed; all that is necessary is that the ballot fairly and intelligently present the question that is to be voted upon. A substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient. So held where the question was as to the validity of bonds issued on a vote of the electors. Ibid.

Where the ballot prepared and used by the electors was in the form of the Australian ballot, with reference to the submission of propositions, and not in strict conformity with the statutory provision as to submission of propositions at school elections, held that the irregularity would not defeat the result of the election. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

The vote of the electors on a proposition of which notice of submission is given is of no validity unless the submission of such proposition has been duly authorized by the board of directors. McNees v. School Township, 133-120.

This provision does not take away the power previously existing in the board of directors to change the schoolhouse site without such vote. James v. Gettinger, 123-199.

SEC. 2750. Special meeting. The board of directors may call a special meeting of the voters of any school corporation by giving notice in the same manner as for the annual meeting, which shall have the powers given to a regular meeting with reference to the sale of school property and the application to be made of the proceeds, and to vote a schoolhouse tax for the purchase of a site and the construction of a necessary schoolhouse, and for obtaining roads thereto. [24 G. A., ch. 21; 18 G. A., ch. 84.] [28 G. A., ch. 104, § 1.]

SEC. 2751. Subdistrict meeting.

The failure to make a record of an election at an annual school meeting will not deprive the officer selected of his right to office. The statute does not declare that the record shall be the sole and exclusive

The electors of a district township having the power to vote a tax may rescind such vote unless, by so doing, they interfere with vested rights; and held that where the board and its officers had failed to certify a schoolhouse tax for collection, and the persons desiring to secure the schoolhouse for which the tax was levied had no interest except the right to bring action to compel the certification of the tax they had no such vested interest as to authorize them to object to the rescission of the tax. Hibbs v. Board of Directors, 110-306.

While a tax voted without the necessary notice is ultra vires as to the school district, yet if schoolhouses have been built in reliance on such tax, and a portion of the tax has been paid, taxpayers who have allowed the secretary to certify such tax to the board of supervisors cannot be heard to question the validity of such tax. Loesche v. Goerd, 123-55.

A schoolhouse tax voted by the electors, at their regular meeting, is enforceable against property which is brought into the school district by extension of its limits prior to the levy of such tax, although at the time the tax was voted the owner was not a resident and could not participate in the election, and notwithstanding the fact that the tax has been certified to the county board for levy before such annexation takes place. Grout v. Illingworth, 131-281.

evidence, and if the record be not kept as required, or if it does not contain evidence of the fact sought to be proved, parol evidence is admissible. State v. Cahill, 131-155.

SEC. 2752. Number of directors. The board of directors of a school township shall be composed of one director from each sub-district. But when there is an even number of sub-districts another member shall be elected at large by all the voters of the school township. When the school township is not divided into sub-districts, a board of three directors shall be elected at large, on the second Monday in March, by all the voters of the school township. [15 G. A., ch. 27; C., '73, §§ 1720-1; R., §§ 2031, 2035, 2075-6; C., '51, §§ 1112, 1721.] [27 G. A., ch. 92, § 1.]

SEC. 2754. Elections to independent districts—tie vote.—At the annual meeting in all independent districts members of the board shall be chosen by ballot. If any district including all or part of a city of the first class, or a city under special charter, the board shall consist of seven members, three of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, 1898, two on the second Monday in March, 1899, and two on the second Monday in March, 1900. In all other independent city, town, or village districts, and in all rural independent districts where the board now consists of six members, the board shall consist of five members, one of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, 1898, two on the second Monday in March, 1899, and two on the second Monday in March, 1900. In all independent city, town, or village districts where the board now consists of three members such board shall hereafter consist of five members, three of whom shall be elected on the second Monday in March, 1898, one for one year, one for two years, and one for three years. In all other rural independent districts the board shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be chosen on the second Monday in March, 1898, and one each year thereafter. In districts composed in whole or in part of cities or towns, a treasurer shall be chosen in like manner, whose term shall begin on the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following and continue for two years, or until his successor is elected and qualified. The term of office of the incumbent treasurer in said district shall expire on the third Monday in March, 1898. In such districts the polls must remain open not less than five hours, and in rural independent districts and school townships not less than two hours. In each case the polls shall open at one o'clock p. m., except as provided in section twenty-seven hundred and fifty-six of this chapter. A tie vote for any elective school office shall be publicly determined by lot forthwith, under the direction of the judges. [22 G. A., ch. 51; 18 G. A., ch. 7, § 2; C., '73, §§ 1789, 1808.] [27 G. A., ch. 91, § 2.] [27 G. A., ch. 93, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 2.]

A deviation from the statutory provision as to the time for keeping the polls open will not invalidate the election where it appears that no one was thereby deprived of the opportunity to cast his ballot. District Tp. v. Independent Dist., 112-321.

SEC. 2755. Election precincts—register of voters—notice. Each school corporation having five thousand or more inhabitants may be divided into such number of precincts as the board of directors shall determine, in each of which a poll shall be held at a convenient place, fixed by the board of directors, for the reception of the ballots of voters residing in such precinct. A separate register of the voters of each precinct shall be prepared by the board from the register of the electors of any city included within such school corporation, and for that purpose a copy of such register of electors shall be furnished by the clerk of the city to the board of directors. Before each annual meeting these registers shall be revised and corrected by comparison with the last register of elections of such cities, and shall have the same force and effect at school meetings held under this section, in respect to the reception of votes thereat, as the register of election has by law at general elections. The board of directors of such school corporation, on or before the last Monday preceding such election shall appoint two suitable persons to be registrars in each of the election precincts of such school corporation for the registration of voters therein, who shall have the same qualifications as registrars appointed for general elections and shall qualify in the same manner, and receive the same compensation to be paid by the school corporation. The registrars shall meet on the day of election at the voting place in the precinct in which they have been appointed and shall hold continuous session from nine o'clock in the forenoon until seven o'clock in the afternoon. Any person claiming to be a voter, and who is not already registered in the proper precinct, may appear before them in the election precinct where he claims he is entitled to vote and make and subscribe under oath a statement in the registry book, which oath and statement shall be of the same general character, as that prescribed by section one thousand and seventy-seven (1077) of the code, and shall thereupon be granted a certificate of registration. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit women from voting at all elections at which they are entitled to vote. The secretary must post a notice of the meeting in a public place in each precinct at least ten days before the meeting, and by publication once each week for two consecutive weeks preceding the same in some newspaper, published in the corporation, such notice to state the time, respective voting precincts and the polling place in each precinct, and also to specify what questions authorized by law, in addition to the election of director or directors, shall be voted upon and determined by the voters of the several precincts. [18 G. A., ch. 8, §§ 1-4.] [28 G. A., ch. 105, § 1.] [29 G. A., ch. 125, §§ 1-2.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 3,]

[The amendment by the 31 G. A., chap. 9, § 3, ignored the code supplement where the same section is found. The amendment was by inserting matter in line 17 of the code section, while the same words, after which the matter should be inserted, appears in line 32 of the code supplement, where the change has been made.]

SEC. 2757. Repeal — meetings of directors — election of officers. That section twenty-seven hundred fifty-seven (2757) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The board of directors of all independent city, town and village corporations shall organize on the third Monday in March, and those of all other school corporations on the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case the day following. Such organization shall be effected by the election of a president from the members of the board, who shall be entitled to vote as a member. Such special meetings may be held as may be determined by the board, or called by the president, or by the secretary upon the written request of a majority of the members of the board, upon notice specifying the time and place, delivered to each member in person, but attendance shall be a waiver of notice. Such meetings shall be held at any place within the civil township in which the corporation is situated. On the first day of July, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following, the board of all independent city, town and village corporations and the retiring board in all other school corporations shall meet, examine the books of, and settle with the secretary and treasurer for the year ending on the thirtieth day of June preceding, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it. On the same day the board of each independent city, town and village corporation, except as provided in section twenty-seven hundred fifty-four (2754) of this chapter, and the new board of every other school corporation, shall elect from outside the board a secretary and treasurer, but in independent districts no teacher or other employe of the board shall be eligible as secretary. All officers shall be elected by ballot and the vote shall be recorded by the secretary. Should the secretary or treasurer fail to report as provided in sections twenty-seven hundred sixty-five (2765) and twenty-seven hundred sixty-nine (2769) of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the new board to take any action necessary to secure a proper settlement.” [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 3.]

SEC. 2758. Qualification of directors—vacancies. Any member of the board may administer the oath of qualification to any member elect, and to the president of the board. Each director elected in March, 1906, or at any regular election thereafter, shall qualify on or before the date for the organization of the board of the corporation in which he was elected by taking an oath to support the constitution of the United States and that of the state of Iowa, and that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his office; and shall hold the office for the term to which he is elected, and until a successor is elected and qualified. In case of a vacancy, the office shall be filled by appointment by the board until the next annual meeting. In all rural school corporations, the term of office of directors whose terms expire on the third Monday in March, 1906, is hereby extended to July 1st, 1906. [C., '73, §§ 1752, 1790; R., §§ 2032, 2079; C., '51, §§ 1113, 1120.] [31 G. A., ch. 137.]

Where a board of directors, in the absence of the election of a new director to succeed one holding office, permitted the director then in office to qualify as his own successor, held that the director thus qualified was at least a de facto officer. District Tp. v. Myles, 109-541.

The term of a director does not begin at the time of his election, but at the time when by statute the regular meeting of the board of directors following the election is to be held, at which the board is to be organized; and if the director elected is ineligible and is therefore unable to qualify, the vacancy is not caused by failure to elect, but by the failure to qualify, and the old director will hold over if he qualifies within ten days from that time. State v. Cahill, 131-155.

SEC. 2759. President—employment of counsel.

The president has no authority to represent that at the time of settlement with the treasurer the funds called for by his accounts were produced, counted and found to be correct. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Hubbard, 110-58.

SEC. 2761. Duties of secretary.

Informality in the records kept by the secretary of the action of the board will not defeat subsequent proceedings based on such action if in fact taken. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

SEC. 2762. Warrants. He shall countersign all warrants and drafts upon the county treasurer drawn or signed by the president; draw each order on the treasurer, specify the fund on which it is drawn and the use for which the money is appropriated; countersign and keep a register of the same, showing the number, date, to whom drawn, the fund upon which it is drawn, the purpose and the amount; and at each regular annual meeting furnish the board with a copy of the same. [19 G. A., ch. 46; C., '73, §§ 1739, 1782; R., §§ 2039, 2061; C., '51, §§ 1122-3.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 4.]

SEC. 2763. Repeal. That section twenty-seven hundred and sixty-three (2763) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 2763-a. Notice of special meetings in certain school corporations. The secretary of the board of directors of any school corporation which is divided into precincts, shall give notice of all special meetings of the voters, as provided by section twenty-seven hundred and fifty-five (2755) of the supplement to the code. Each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 2.]

Under this section before its repeal by 31 G. A., chap. 138, held that it had no application to submission of propositions to the electors. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

has posted the notices as required by statute, in the absence of a showing to the contrary. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133-622.

It will be presumed that the secretary

SEC. 2763-b. Same. The secretary of the board of directors for any school corporation, located wholly within or partly within the corporate limits of cities of the first class, cities of the second class, or incorporated towns, which may not have adopted the provisions of section twenty-seven hundred and fifty-five (2755) of the supplement to the code and divided into precincts, shall give notice of special meeting of the voters in the same manner as for the annual meeting, by posting at least five notices in five public places within said corporation, for not less than ten days next preceding the day of special meeting. Each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 3.]

SEC. 2763-c. Same. The secretary of the board of directors for any school township or for any school corporation not included in the preceding section, shall give ten days' printed or written notice of special meeting to the voters, posted in at least five public places within the corporation. The notice shall be posted at the door of each school house, and also at or near the last place of meeting, and each notice shall state the date, place and hours during which the meeting will be in session, and the object of the meeting. [31 G. A., ch. 138, § 4.]

SEC. 2764. Register of persons of school age. He shall, between the first day of June and the first day of July of each year, enter in a book made for that purpose, the name, sex and age of every person between five and twenty-one residing in the corporation, together with the name of the parent or guardian. [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 5.]

SEC. 2765. Reports. He shall notify the county superintendent when each school is to begin and its length of term, and, within five days after the regular July meeting in each year, file with the county superintendent a report which shall give the number of persons in the corporation, male or female, of school age, the number of schools and branches taught, the number of scholars enrolled and average attendance in each school, the number of teachers employed and the average compensation paid per month, distinguishing the sexes, the length of school in days, and the average cost of tuition per month for each scholar, the text-books used, number of volumes in library, the value of apparatus belonging to the corporation, the number of school-houses and their estimated value, the name, age and post-office address of each deaf and dumb or blind person in the corporation between the ages of five and twenty-one years, and this shall include those who are so blind or deaf as to be unable to obtain an education in the common schools, a like report as to all feeble-minded children of and between such ages, and the number of trees set out and in a thrifty condition on each school-house ground. [19 G. A., ch. 23, § 3; 16 G. A., ch. 112, § 1; C., '73, §§ 1744-5; R., § 2046; C., '51, §§ 1127-8.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 6.]

The auditor in apportioning school taxes has no authority to review the school census reported to him by the secretaries of school townships, and cannot be restrained by injunction from acting on the census as thus reported because of the misconduct of a district secretary in taking the census of his township. Judson v. Agar, 111 N. W. 943.

SEC. 2767. Certifying tax.

After the voting of a tax for a school-house on a proposition submitted to the electors, and the certification of such tax to the board of supervisors, nothing remains to be done before the board proceeds to the erection of the school-house. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

SEC. 2768. Duties of treasurer—payment of warrants. The treasurer shall receive all moneys belonging to the corporation, pay the same out only upon the order of the president countersigned by the secretary, keeping an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures in a book provided for that purpose. He shall register all orders drawn and reported to him by the secretary, showing the number, date, to whom drawn, the fund upon which drawn, the purpose and amount. The money collected by tax for the erection of school-houses and the payment of debts contracted therefor shall be called the school-house fund; that collected for the payment of school buildings bonds shall be called the school building bond fund; that for rent, fuel, repairs, and other contingent expenses necessary for keeping the school in operation, the contingent fund; and that received for the payment of teachers, the teachers' fund; and he shall keep a separate account with each fund, paying no order that fails to state the fund upon which it is drawn and the specific use to which it is to be applied. Whenever an order cannot be paid in full out of the fund upon which it is drawn, partial payment may be made. All school orders shall draw lawful interest after being presented to the treasurer and by him indorsed as not paid for want of funds. [C., '73, §§ 1747-50; R., §§ 2048-50; C., '51, §§ 1138-40.] [31 G. A., ch. 139.]

Officers are presumed, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, to have properly discharged their duties, and the treasurer's book of account is rightly received in evidence in an action against the sureties on his bond to show the true statements of his account at the time such report was rendered. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Hubbard, 110-58.

A school treasurer may lawfully deposit the funds of the school district in a bank, under a contract between such treasurer and the bank, by which the bank agrees to furnish security to the treasurer for funds so deposited, and such contract is not contrary to public policy. Hunt v. Hopley, 120-695.

SEC. 2769. Financial statement. He shall render a statement of the finances of the corporation whenever required by the board, and his books shall always be open for inspection. He shall make an annual report to the board at its regular July meeting, which shall show the amount of the teachers' fund, the contingent fund, and the school-house fund held over, received, paid out, and on hand, the several funds to be separately stated, and he shall immediately file a copy of this report with the county superintendent. [16 G. A., ch. 112, § 2; C., '73, § 1751; R., § 2051; C., '51, § 1141.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 7.]

SEC. 2771. Quorum of board—filling vacancies. A majority of the board of directors of any school corporation shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but a less number may adjourn from time to time. Vacancies occurring among the officers or members shall be filled by the board by ballot, and the person receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and shall qualify as if originally elected or appointed. When the board is reduced below a quorum, by resignation or otherwise, the secretary of the board, or if there be no secretary, the county superintendent, shall call a special election to fill the vacancies, giving notice in the same manner as for the annual meeting on the second Monday in March. [24 G. A., ch. 19; C., '73, §§ 1730, 1738; R., §§ 2037-8.] [28 G. A. ch. 106, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 150.]

SEC. 2772. Temporary officers—course of study—regulations.

The board has power to make rules and regulations as to the conduct of pupils, and a court will interfere with the making and enforcement of such rules only where the board has plainly exceeded its authority. Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129-441.

But a rule may be so far unreasonable or beyond the exercise of discretion that the courts can say it is made without authority. Ibid.

The general character of the school and the conduct of its pupils as affecting the efficiency of the work to be done in the school room and the discipline of the school are matters to be taken into account by the school board in making rules for the government of the school. While the board has no concern with the individual conduct of the pupils wholly outside of the school rooms and school grounds, while they are presumed to be under the control of their parents, yet the conduct of pupils which directly relates to and affects the management of the school and its efficiency is within the scope of proper regulation. Ibid.

Therefore held that a rule prohibiting the playing of football by pupils under the auspices of the school, or in a team purporting to represent the school was valid. Ibid.

SEC. 2773. School-house site — division of district — length of school. It may fix the site for each school-house, taking into consideration the geographical position, number and convenience of the scholars, provide for the fencing of school-house sites, determine the number of schools to be taught, divide the corporation into such wards or other divisions for school purposes as may be proper, determine the particular school which each child shall attend, and designate the period each school shall be held beyond the time required by law. Every school shall be free of tuition to all actual residents between the ages of five and twenty-one years, and each school regularly established shall continue for at least twenty-four weeks of five school days each, in each school year commencing the first of July, unless the county superintendent shall authorize the board to shorten this period in any one or more schools, when in his judgment there are sufficient reasons for so doing. No school shall be in session during the time of holding a teachers' institute except by written permission of the county superintendent. [19 G. A., ch. 172, § 21; 17 G. A., ch. 54; 15 G. A., ch. '57; C., '73, §§ 1724, 1727, 1769; R., §§ 2023, 2037.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 8.]

The directors of a school township have power to change the site of a school-house without a vote of the electors. James v. Gettinger, 123-199.

The matter of the relocation of the school-house site is for the determination of the school board, subject to appeal to the county superintendent, and the action of the board cannot be questioned by injunction. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

Primarily the location of a school-house site is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the school board, subject to review on appeal to the county superintendent and from him to the state superintendent. After final decision on appeal to the state superintendent he has no authority to change such decision on account of subsequent change of conditions. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 111 N. W. 326.

SEC. 2774. Renting room.

The remedy against a school board for failing to provide school accommodations is not by certiorari. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux, 130-100.

SEC. 2778. Contracts—election of teachers—employment of teachers in sub-districts. The board shall carry into effect any instruction from the annual meeting upon matters within the control of the voters, and shall elect all teachers and make all contracts necessary or proper for exercising the powers granted and performing the duties required by law. But the board may authorize any sub-director to employ teachers for the schools in his sub-district. Contracts with teachers must be in writing, and shall state the length of time the school is to be taught, the compensation per week of five days or month of four weeks, and such other matters as may be agreed upon, signed by the president and teacher, and filed with the secretary before the teacher commences to teach under such contract. [22 G. A., ch. 60; C., '73, §§ 1723, 1757; R., §§ 2037, 2055.] [28 G. A., ch. 107, § 1.]

In general: Under this section as amended by 28 G. A., chap. 107, the board of directors is authorized to carry into effect instructions from the annual meeting upon matters which are within the control of the voters, and have properly been submitted to them for action. The recording of the action of the electors is immaterial. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

A court of equity will not, at the suit of a resident taxpayer of a school district, brought against its officers, enforce repayment of money expended under an executed contract of which the school district retains the benefit, although the contract is invalid, there being no claim that the officers acted corruptly or fraudulently, or paid an unreasonable amount. Kagy v. Independent Dist., 117-694.

Where the directors sign a contract in behalf of the district, although not in pursuance of any action of the board, they are not individually liable. Hanna v. Wright, 116-275.

Where directors individually signed a contract for apparatus purporting to bind the board of directors and not indicating an assumption of personal liability, held that they were not individually liable thereon and that the school district having through the board of directors accepted and received the benefit of the apparatus was bound by the contract. Johnson v. School Corporation, 117-319.

It is the vote of the directors which is binding on the district, and not the record thereof. And where no record of the action of the directors was made it may be proven by oral testimony. German Ins. Co. v. Independent Sch. Dist., 80 Fed. 366.

A contract or order given by members of the board of directors acting individually is not binding on the district, but such a contract may be ratified by the acceptance, retention and use by the school district of the property thus contracted or paid for. Richards v. School Township, 132-612.

Where contracts made by a board of directors with persons occupying a judiciary or official relation to the school corporation have been carried out, a taxpayer will not be allowed to maintain a suit in the name of the corporation against the contractor to recover the money paid to him under such contract, the benefits of which are retained by the school corporation. Kagy v. Independent Dist., 117-694.

Contracts with teachers: The rules and regulations of the district fixing the time for opening the schools are part of the contract. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107-29.

Such a contract cannot be made for a longer time than one year. Ibid.

Where a teacher offered by way of tender of resignation to renounce his contract, but this offer was not accepted by the board of directors until after they were notified of its withdrawal, held that a discharge of the teacher, not in accordance with the provisions of Code § 2782 was not authorized. Also held that the fact that the teacher after such unauthorized discharge drew the balance of pay due him and delivered the key of the schoolhouse on demand of the board did not show an abandonment of the contract. Curttright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111-20.

SEC. 2779. Erection or repair of school-house.

The board of directors may delegate to a committee the ministerial duty of carrying out a contract for the erection of a schoolhouse, but the duty of selecting the site, adopting the plans and awarding the contract cannot thus be delegated. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

Upon refusal of the lowest bidder to enter into a contract for the construction of a school-house the board cannot disregard all the bids submitted and enter into a contract with a non-bidder and hold the lowest bidder liable under his deposit for the difference between his proposition and the price fixed in such subsequent contract. Cedar Rapids Lumber Co. v. Fisher, 129-332.

A telegram to one whose bid was found to be the lowest, advising him that his was the lowest bid, held not to be such acceptance of his bid as to render the contract binding upon him. Ibid.

SEC. 2780. Allowances of claims—settlements—compensation of officers.

Claims against the school district must be audited and allowed by the board of directors and not by the president, and until such claim has been presented to the board and the board has had an opportunity to act upon it, no suit can be maintained. Pierson v. Independent Sch. Dist., 106-695.

SEC. 2782. Visiting schools—regulations—discharge of teachers—expulsion of scholars.

Where the validity of a teacher's contract is in question he is not limited to an appeal, but may sue in the courts. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107-29.

While a teacher who has been discharged cannot sue for breach of contract on the ground that the discharge is wrongful without first appealing to the county superintendent, yet, where such an appeal has been taken, and decided in the teacher's favor, the action for the wrongful discharge may be maintained, although the decision of the county superintendent was not on the merits. Jackson v. Independent Sch. Dist., 110-313.

Where a teacher tendered his resignation, which was not accepted by the board until after it was withdrawn, held that the discharge of the teacher, which was not in accordance with the provisions of this section, was not authorized. Curttright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111-20.

Where the action of the board in discharging a teacher was reversed on appeal to the county superintendent on the ground that the teacher had been given no notice, or opportunity to be heard, held that the teacher might be tried on new charges, with due notice and a time fixed for the hearing, without reinstating such teacher in charge of the school, and that such action of the directors would not be enjoined. White v. Wohlenberg, 113-236.

The hearing having by reason of a temporary injunction been postponed until a time when the teacher's contract had expired, held that on dissolution of the temporary injunction the hearing to be had would relate back to the time when the further action of the board had been prevented by such temporary injunction. Ibid.

The board has authority to expel pupils who violate the reasonable regulations made for the government of the conduct of such pupils, in matters within the jurisdiction of the board. Kinzer v. Independent School District, 129-441.

SEC. 2783. Use of contingent fund—free text-books. It may provide and pay out of the contingent fund to insure school property such sum as may be necessary, and may purchase dictionaries, library books, including books for the purpose of teaching vocal music, maps, charts and apparatus for the use of the schools thereof to an amount not exceeding twenty-five dollars in any one year for each schoolroom under its charge; and may furnish school books to indigent children when they are likely to be deprived of the proper benefits of the school unless so aided; and shall, when directed by a vote of the district, purchase and loan books to scholars, and shall provide by levy of contingent fund therefor. [26 G. A., ch. 37; 25 G. A., ch. 34; 21 G. A., ch. 107; 19 G. A., ch. 149, § 1; C., '73, § 1729.] [30 G. A., ch. 115.]

Under this section, which differs from the corresponding section of the Code of '73, the board of directors may contract an indebtedness for books, payable out of the contingent fund, although no funds are on hand at the time from which the indebtedness may be paid. Hanna v. Wright, 116-275; Johnson v. School Corporation, 117-319.

The school board may charge the contingent fund beyond the appropriated money on hand to an extent not exceeding $25 for each school room under its control, and in an action against the school district for an indebtedness thus contracted, the burden is on the district to show that the indebtedness was contracted in excess of the amount which the school board might contract for that purpose. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank v. School Township, 118-540.

SEC. 2785. Duties of directors—contracts. The board of directors of a school township may authorize the director of each subdistrict, subject to its regulations, to make contracts for the purchase of fuel, the repairing or furnishing of school-houses, and all other matters necessary for the convenience and prosperity of the schools in his subdistrict. Such contracts shall be binding upon the school township only when approved by the president of the board, and must be reported to the board. Each director shall, between the first and fifteenth days of June in each year, prepare a list of the heads of families in his subdistrict, the number and sex of all children of school age, and by the twentieth day of said month report this list to the secretary of the school township, who shall make full record thereof. The powers specified in this section cannot be exercised by individual directors of independent districts. [C., '73, §§ 1753-5; R., §§ 2052-3; C., 51, §§ 1124, 1142.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 9.]

SEC. 2791. Attaching territory to adjoining corporation.

In a particular case held that what was done by the superintendent and the board of directors was sufficient to make an effectual change of the boundary attempted, notwithstanding some irregularities in the way in which it was done. Newlon v. Independent Dist., 109-169.

Under statutory provisions prior to the present Code, held that boundaries of independent districts might be changed under the same provisions as applied to the change of boundaries of district townships. Ibid.

Where it appears that the change has been made on grounds which are sufficient to authorize such change it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that the proceedings were regular and the grounds sufficient. Ibid.

SEC. 2792. Restoration.

This provision has no application to the severance of a portion of the territory

Where a property owner has acquiesced in the attempted change of boundary, and recognized it as valid, he cannot afterwards, nor can his grantee, question its validity. Ibid.

Where no natural obstacles exist there is nothing on which the county superintendent may base an order, and an action of his with reference to change of boundaries is without jurisdiction. School Tp. v. Independent Dist., 110-30.

By virtue of the provisions of this section it is possible that an independent district may be reduced in size to less than four sections of land. Rural Ind. School Dist. v. New Ind. School Dist., 120-119.

originally included in such testimony. Williams v. Core, 124-213.

SEC. 2793. Boundary lines changed. That section twenty-seven hundred ninety-three (2793) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"The boundary lines of contiguous school corporations in the same county may be changed by the concurrent action of the respective boards of directors at their regular meetings in July, or at special meetings thereafter, called for that purpose. The corporation from which territory is detached shall, after the change, contain not less than four government sections of land, and its boundary lines must conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land. In the same manner, the boundary lines of contiguous school corporations in the same county may be so changed that one corporation shall be included in and consolidated with the other as a single corporation." [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 10.]

SEC. 2793-a. Corporation limits changed. When the boundary line between a school township and an independent city or town district is not also the line between civil townships, such boundary may be changed at any time by the concurrence of the boards of directors; but in no case shall a forty-acre tract of land, by the government survey, be divided; and such sub-divisions shall be excluded or included as entire forties. The boundaries of the school township or the independent district may in the same manner be extended to the line between civil townships, even though by such change one of the districts shall be included within and consolidated with the other as a single district. When the corporate limits of any city or town are extended outside the existing independent district or districts, the boundaries of said independent district or districts shall be also correspondingly extended. But in no case shall the boundaries of an independent district be affected by the reduction of the corporate limits of a city or town. [27 G. A., ch. 89, § 1.]

Property brought into a school district by annexation after the voting and certification of a schoolhouse tax, but before the levy of such tax, is subject to the tax, although the owner was not a resident of the district at the time the election was held. Grout v. Illingworth, 131-281.

SEC. 2794. Formation of independent district. Upon the written petition of any ten voters of a city, town or village of over one hundred residents, to the board of the school corporation in which the portion of the town plat having the largest number of voters is situated, such board shall establish the boundaries of a proposed independent district, including therein all of the city, town or village, and also such contiguous territory as is authorized by a written petition of a majority of the resident electors of the contiguous territory proposed to be included in said district, in not smaller sub-divisions than entire forties of land, in the same or any adjoining school corporations, as may best subserve the convenience of the people for school purposes, and shall give the same notices of a meeting as required in other cases, at which meeting all voters upon the territory included within the contemplated independent district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against such separate organization. When it is proposed to include territory outside the town, city or village, the voters residing upon such outside territory shall be entitled to vote separately upon the proposition for the formation of such new district, by presenting a petition of at least twenty-five per cent. of the voters residing upon such outside territory, and if a majority of the votes so cast is against including such outside territory, then the proposed independent district shall not be formed. [19 G. A., ch 118, § 1; 18 G. A., ch. 139; C., '73, §§ 1800-1; R., §§ 2097, 2105.] [29 G. A., ch. 126, § 1.]

A written petition of ten voters is essential before the board acquires jurisdiction to act. The territory with reference to which there is no petition cannot be included, but the proposed district need not necessarily contain all the territory for which the petition is presented. Munn v. School Tp., 110-652.

The desirability or necessity for the independent district is for the determination of the electors. The board is to say whether the village contains one hundred residents, and whether the requisite number of electors have signed the respective petitions, and having so found, no option is left, save to fix the boundaries of the proposed district and order the election. Ibid.

On appeal from the action of the board to the county superintendent, the latter determines the question de novo, and may enter such order as ought to have been entered by the board. Ibid.

Although the language of this section before its amendment by 29 G. A., chap. 126, and the enactment of 27 G. A., chap. 89, did not in specific language authorize the formation of an independent district co-extensive with the territory of a city or town out of territory in part belonging to a school township, and in part to an independent district, nevertheless the manifest purpose of the legislature was to authorize such action. Rural Ind.

School Dist. v. New Ind. School Dist., 120-119.

Although, under the language of sections of the Code relating to the division of independent districts, it is provided in some cases that such districts shall not be reduced to a size less than four sections of land, nevertheless there is no provision in the Code that an independent district cannot exist containing less than that amount of territory. Rural Ind. School Dist. v. New Ind. School Dist., 120-119.

While the assent of the voters, outside of the corporate limits, to the annexation of territory to an independent district embracing a city or town is to be separately ascertained, yet when the acquiescence of the majority of the outside voters is given and acted upon a portion of such voters cannot have their land severed from the independent district by proceedings in accordance with Code § 2792. Williams v. Core, 124-213.

Where a petition is presented to the proper board for the formation of an independent district to correspond with a town plat, an independent district may be formed which includes territory theretofore a part of a school township, and it is not essential that the board of directors of the township out of which the new district is formed shall concur in the formation thereof. School Township v. Independent School Dist., 112 N. W. 5.

SEC. 2794-a. Consolidation—how effected. When a written description describing the boundaries of contiguous territory containing not less than sixteen (16) government sections within one or more counties is signed by one-third of the electors residing on such territory and approved by the county superintendent, if one county and by the superintendents of each if more than one county and by the state superintendent if the county superintendents do not agree, and filed with the board of the school corporation in which the portion of the proposed district having the largest number of voters is situated, requesting the establishment of a consolidated independent district, it shall be the duty of said board within ten days to call an election in the proposed consolidated independent district, for which they shall give the same notices as are required in sections twenty-seven hundred and forty-six (2746) of the code and twenty-seven hundred and fifty (2750) of the supplement to the code, at which meeting all voters residing in the proposed independent district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against such separate organization. If a majority of votes cast at such election shall be in favor of such independent organization, the organization of the proposed corporation shall be completed by the election of a board of directors as provided in section twenty-seven hundred and ninety-five (2795) of the code, said board to organize on the first day of July following unless that day falls on a Sunday, in which case on the day following. All taxes previously certified shall be void so far as the property within the limits of the consolidated independent district is concerned, and all taxes necessary for the new corporation shall be certified and levied as provided in section twenty-seven hundred and ninety-six (2796) of the code, but no school corporation from which territory is taken shall, after the change, contain less than four government sections, which territory shall be contiguous and so situated as to form a suitable corporation. When it is proposed to include in such district a town, city or village, the voters residing upon the territory outside of the town, city or village shall be entitled to vote separately upon the proposition for the formation of such new district by presenting a petition of at least twenty-five per cent. of the voters residing upon such outside territory, and if a majority of the votes so cast is against including such outside territory, then the proposed independent district shall not be formed. [31 G. A., ch. 141.]

SEC. 2796. Taxes certified and levied.

This section relates to perfecting an organization already determined upon by the elected officers, and is directory only. Munn v. School Tp., 110-652.

SEC. 2797. Rural independent districts.

Suit against the new districts on indebtedness of the old district must be brought in equity. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 111 Fed. 108.

If the new districts have by agreement divided and apportioned between them the indebtedness of the old district, then an action against them may be at law. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 111 Fed. 153.

SEC. 2799. Uniting independent district.

The invalidity of the petition and notice cannot be urged by electors who were present and voted upon the proposition for consolidation. Molyneaux v. Molyneaux, 130-100.

The elections in the different districts with reference to the consolidation need not be held on the same day and at the same time. If any such requirement is contemplated by the statute it is directory merely. Ibid.

SEC. 2800. Rural independent districts united into school township. A township which has been divided into rural independent districts may be erected into a school township by a vote of the electors, to be taken upon the written request of one-third of the legal voters residing in such civil township. Upon presentation of such written request to the township trustees, they shall call a meeting of the electors at the usual place or places of holding the township election, upon giving at least ten days' notice thereof by posting three written notices in each rural independent district in the township, and by publication in a newspaper, if one be published in such township, at which meeting the said electors shall vote by ballot for or against a school township organization. If a majority of the votes cast at such election be in favor of such organization, each rural independent district shall become a subdistrict of the school township, and shall organize as such on the first Monday in March following by the election of a director, notice of which shall be given as in other cases by the secretary of each of the rural independent districts, and the directors so elected shall organize as a board of directors of the school township on the first day of July following, unless that date falls on Sunday, in which case on the day following. [16 G. A., ch. 155; C., '73, §§ 1815-20.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 11.]

SEC. 2801. Division of school township into subdistricts. The board of any school township may by a vote of a majority of all the members thereof, at the regular meeting in July, or at any special meeting called thereafter for that purpose, divide the school township into subdistricts such as justice, equity and the interests of the people require, and may make such alterations of the boundaries of subdistricts heretofore formed as may be deemed necessary, and shall designate such subdistricts and all subsequent alterations in a distinct and legible manner upon a plat of the school township provided for that purpose, and shall cause a written description of the same to be recorded in the records of the school township, a copy of which shall be delivered by the secretary to the county treasurer and also to the county auditor, who shall record the same in his office. The boundaries of subdistricts shall conform to the lines of congressional divisions of land, and the formation or alteration of subdistricts as contemplated in this section shall not take effect until the first Monday in March thereafter, at which time a director shall be elected for any subdistrict newly formed. [21 G. A., ch. 124; 16 G. A., ch. 109; C., '73, §§ 1725, 1738, 1796; R., § 2038.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 12.]

SEC. 2802. Repeal—changes of boundaries—division of assets and liabilities. That section twenty-eight hundred and two (2802) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“When any changes are made in the boundaries of any school corporations the new corporation shall elect a board of directors in accordance with the new boundaries, and such new boards shall organize as provided in section twenty-seven hundred and fifty-seven (2757) of this chapter. The boards of directors in office at the time the changes are made in the boundaries of the school corporations, shall continue to act until the boards of directors representing the newly formed districts have been duly organized, whereupon the new boards shall make an equitable division of all assets and liabilities of the corporations affected; and, if they cannot agree, the matters upon which they differ shall be decided by disinterested arbitrators, one selected by each board having an interest therein, and if the number thus selected is even then one shall be added by the county superintendent, and the decision of the arbitrators shall be made in writing, either party having the right to appeal therefrom to the district court.” [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 13.]

In making the division of assets and liabilities here contemplated the arbitrators are limited to those existing between the parties at the time the division is made. Independent Dist. v. District Tp., 107-73.

In a suit by the holder of bonds of a district which has ceased to exist by reason of subdivision of its territory into new districts, a court of equity may enforce payment by the new districts in accordance with an equitable apportionment of the liability on the basis of taxable property and population. Gamble v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 146 Fed. 113.

The schoolhouse and all its belongings are the property of the original district until awarded to the newly formed independent district. Such division must be made by the board, and not by the courts. District Tp. v. Wiggins, 110-702.

The division of assets on the severance of the territory from an independent district necessitates either the sale of the schoolhouse and grounds of such district, or the payment to the district to which the severed territory should be attached of a portion of the value of such property. Williams v. Core, 124-213.

A district which is created from another district is liable for its proportion of the indebtedness of the parent district regardless of whether such indebtedness is in excess of the constitutional limitation of indebtedness which the new district might create. Taylor v. School Dist., 97 Fed. 753.

The holder of bonds against the original district may maintain an action in equity against the new districts created out of the original district to enforce the payment of his bonds. Everett v. Independent Sch. Dist., 109 Fed. 697.

SEC. 2803. Attending school in another corporation.

One district may become liable to another for children of the former attending school in the latter under implied contract. Therefore a settlement between the districts for tuition in such cases may be made after the attendance on which it is based has ceased. Weldon Sch. Dist. v. Shelby Sch. Dist., 113-549.

The provisions for paying tuition for pupils attending in another district does not relate to high schools which are established under Code § 2728, and as to which special provision is made. Boggs v. School Township, 128-13.

SEC. 2804. School age—nonresidents.

The fact question as to the residence of the pupil who is required to pay tuition on that account is for the determination of the board, and its finding and judgment on that question cannot be reviewed in an action of mandamus. The remedy is by appeal to the county superintendent. Preston v. Board of Education, 124-355.

SEC. 2806. School taxes—transportation fund. The board of each school corporation shall at its regular meeting in July, or at a special meeting called for that purpose between the time designated for such regular meeting and the third Monday in August, estimate the amount required for the contingent fund, not exceeding five dollars for each person of school age, but each school corporation may estimate not exceeding seventy-five dollars for each school thereof, and such additional sum as may be necessary not exceeding five dollars for each person of school age for transporting children to and from school; and also such additional sum as may be authorized in the chapter on uniformity of text-books; also such sum as may be required for the teachers' fund, which, including the amount received from the semi-annual apportionment, shall not exceed fifteen dollars for each person of school age therein, but each corporation may estimate not exceeding two hundred and seventy dollars, including such apportionment, for each regular school therein. No tax shall be estimated by the board after the third Monday in August, in each year. School corporations containing territory in adjoining counties may vote and estimate all taxes for school purposes in mills. The board shall apportion any tax voted by the annual meeting for school house fund among the several subdistricts in such a manner as justice and equity may require, taking as the basis of such apportionment the respective amounts previously levied upon said subdistricts for the use of such fund. [15 G. A., ch. 67, § 1; C., '73, §§ 1738, 1777-8, 1780; R., §§ 2033-4, 2037-44, 2088.] [28 G. A., ch. 108, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 136, § 14.]

Property which is within the limits of the school district at the time school taxes are determined and certified by the board of directors and levied by the board of supervisors, is subject to such taxes, although annexed to the district after the election of the board of directors imposing such taxes. Grout v. Illingworth, 131-281.

SEC. 2808. Apportionment. The county auditor shall, on the first Monday in April and the first Monday in October of each year, apportion the school tax, together with the interest of the permanent school fund and rents on unsold school lands to which the county is entitled as shown in notice from the auditor of state, and all other money in the hands of the county treasurer belonging in common to the schools of the county and not included in any previous apportionment, among the several corporations therein, in proportion to the number of persons of school age, as shown by the report of the county superintendent filed with him for the year immediately preceding. He shall immediately notify the county treasurer of such apportionment and of the amount due thereby to each corporation. The county treasurer shall thereupon give notice to the president of each corporation, and shall pay out such apportionment moneys in the same manner that he is authorized to pay other school moneys to the treasurers of the several school districts. [C., '73, §§ 1781-2, 1841; R., §§ 1966, 2060.] [27 G. A., ch. 94, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 3.]

[The amendment by 32 G. A. was by adding matter after the word "fund" in the fourth line. The word "fund" only occurs in line three and the change has been made there.]

An action by one independent district against another to recover money collected as taxes on property in the plaintiff district and erroneously paid by the county treasurer to the defendant is one for money had and received, and the statute of limitations will commence to run at the time of payment and not from the discovery of the mistake. Independent School District v. Independent School District, 123-455.

The school census as reported to the auditor is conclusive as to the apportionment of taxes by him. Judson v. Agar, 111 N. W. 943.

SEC. 2809. Repeal—county auditor to report. That section twenty-eight hundred and nine (2809) of the code, relating to the school fund, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The county auditor, shall on the first Monday in January of each year, forward to the superintendent of public instruction a certificate of the election or appointment and qualification of the county superintendent, and shall also on the first day of January of each year make out and transmit to the auditor of state, in accordance with such forms as said auditor may prescribe, a report of the amount of permanent school fund held by the county and also the amount of interest due prior to January first, still remaining unpaid, and shall file said report with the auditor of state on or before the first day of February.” [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 2.]

SEC. 2812. Bonds.

Recitals in the bonds that they are not in excess of the constitutional limitation cannot be relied on by the purchaser. Fairfield v. Rural Ind. Sch. Dist., 111 Fed. 453.

SEC. 2812-a. Repeal. That section twenty-eight hundred and twelve (2812) of the code, section one (1) of chapter ninety-five (95) of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly and chapter one hundred and forty-two (142) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 127, § 1.]

SEC. 2812-b. Repeal. That chapter one hundred and forty (140), laws of the thirty-first general assembly, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following sections enacted in lieu thereof: [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 1.]

SEC. 2812-c. School funding bonds. The board of directors of any school corporation may issue the bonds of said school corporation to pay any judgment against said school corporation or any indebtedness represented by bonds heretofore lawfully issued. Said bonds shall be known as school funding bonds and shall be authorized by resolution of the board. The proceeds derived from said bonds shall be applied in payment of any such outstanding judgment or bonded indebtedness, or said bonds may be exchanged for outstanding judgments or bonds, par for par. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 2.]

It is not provided how the authority to issue bonds shall be given by the voters, and the sufficiency of the ballots on such a vote is to be determined under the provisions relating to annual meetings of the electors. Calahan v. Handsaker, 133-622.

SEC. 2812-d. School building bonds. For the purpose of borrowing money necessary to erect, complete, equip, furnish or improve a school house, or to purchase sites therefor, the board of directors of any school corporation, when they have been heretofore, or when they may hereafter be authorized by the voters at the annual meeting or at a special meeting called for that purpose, may issue the negotiable interest bearing bonds of said school corporation; said bonds to be known as school building bonds. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 3.]

SEC. 2812-e. Form—duration—rate of interest—where registered. All of said bonds shall be substantially in the form provided for county bonds, but subject to changes that will conform them to the action of the board providing therefor, shall run not more than ten years, and may be sooner paid if so nominated in the bond; be in denomination of not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000) or less than one hundred dollars ($100) each, to bear a rate of interest not exceeding six (6) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, to be signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the board of directors, and shall not be disposed of for less than par value, nor issued for other purposes than this chapter provides. All of said bonds shall be registered in the office of the county auditor. The expenses of engraving and printing of bonds may be paid out of the contingent fund. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 4.]

SEC. 2812-f. Redemption—treasurer to keep record. Whenever the amount in the hands of the treasurer, belonging to the funds set aside to pay bonds, is sufficient to redeem one or more of the bonds which by their terms are subject to redemption, he shall give the owner of said bonds thirty (30) days' written notice of the readiness of the district to pay and the amount it desires to pay. If not presented for payment or redemption within thirty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such bonds shall cease and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for its payment whenever it is presented. All redemptions shall be made in the order of their numbers. The treasurer shall keep a record of the parties to whom the bonds are sold, together with their postoffice addresses, and notice mailed to the address as shown by such record shall be sufficient. [32 G. A., ch. 152, § 5.]

SEC. 2813. Tax to pay bonds. The board of each school corporation shall, at the same time and in the same manner as provided with reference to other taxes, fix the amount of tax necessary to be levied to pay any amount of principal or interest due or to become due during the next year on lawful bonded indebtedness which amount shall be certified to the board of supervisors as other taxes, and levied by them on the property therein as other school taxes are levied, but such tax shall not exceed five mills upon the dollar of the assessed valuation of such property for money borrowed for improvements. [18 G. A., ch. 51, § 2; 18 G. A., ch. 132, § 6; C., '73, § 1823.] [27 G. A., ch. 95, § 2.]

SEC. 2814. Repeal—schoolhouse sites—acquisition. That section twenty-eight hundred and fourteen (2814) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted as a substitute therefor:

"Any school corporation may take and hold so much real estate as may be required for school house sites, for the location or construction thereon of school houses, and the convenient use thereof, but not to exceed one acre, exclusive of public highway, except in a city, town or village it may include one block exclusive of the street or highway as the case may be: or in districts consolidated under the provisions of section twenty-seven hundred ninety-nine (2799) of the code, or chapter one hundred forty-one (141) of the laws of the thirty-first general assembly, or in school townships holding not more than two school sites, may consist of not to exceed four acres, for any one site, unless by the owner's consent, which site must be upon some public road already established or procured by the board of directors and shall, except in cities, towns, or villages, be at least thirty rods from the residence of any owner who objects to its being placed nearer, and not in any orchard, garden or public park." [32 G. A., ch. 153.]

Ample grounds are essential for the exercise or recreation of the children and land may be condemned for the purpose of providing such grounds in addition to grounds for a site already secured. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Hewitt, 105-663.

SEC. 2815. Condemnation.

Inconvenience due to the taking of property for school purposes and naturally resulting from such appropriation, by which the market value of the premises is unfavorably affected, should be considered in determining the damages resulting from such taking. Haggard v. Independent Sch. Dist., 113-486.

Benefits will not be taken into account in determining the damage to be assessed. Ibid.

Notice of appeal is to be given to the county superintendent in such cases instead of to the sheriff, as directed in Code § 1999. Ibid.

Judgment for the damage to property should not be rendered against the school district on appeal where the property has not been actually appropriated. Ibid.

The power to obtain the opening of public roads for better access to a school-house having been conferred upon the district, it is fairly to be implied that the district may accomplish that purpose by purchase or by any of the usual and appropriate methods, by which a public way may be established. The district may through its board of electors petition the board of supervisors for a road for the benefit of the district, and the funds of the district may be lawfully appropriated for the payment of damages assessed in such proceeding. Certiorari will not lie to review the action of the board of supervisors in establishing such a road. Brockway v. Board of Supervisors, 133-293.

SEC. 2818. Appeal to county superintendent.

A teacher seeking to recover for the breach of his contract may sue thereon and is not limited to an appeal. Burkhead v. Independent Sch. Dist., 107-29.

Where a teacher sued for a breach of contract, claiming that an attempted discharge was not in accordance with the requirements of Code § 2782, and therefore invalid, held that he was not to be denied relief because he had not appealed from the illegal action of the board in attempting to discharge him. Curtright v. Independent Sch. Dist., 111-20.

The right of appeal to the county superintendent does not exclude the courts from considering on an application for mandamus whether in the matter complained of the board acted within the scope of its powers as defined by statute.

Kinzer v. Independent School Dist., 129-441.

The action of a school board in determining that a pupil is a non-resident and therefore must pay tuition, cannot be reviewed by mandamus, but only by appeal to the county superintendent. Preston v. Board of Education, 124-355.

The legality of the incorporation of an independent school district may be questioned in an action of quo warranto. Appeal to the county superintendent is not the exclusive remedy. State v. Alexander, 129-538.

The action of a school board with reference to a matter vested in their discretion with the right of appeal to the county superintendent cannot be controlled by injunction. Kinney v. Howard, 133-94.

SEC. 2820. Appeal to state superintendent—no money judgment.

Where a county superintendent acts without jurisdiction, an appeal to the state superintendent cannot confer such jurisdiction, and the correctness of an order made can be contested in the courts. School Tp. v. Independent Dist., 110-30.

The state superintendent does not have authority to change his decision as to the proper location of a school-house site on account of change of conditions after the rendering of his decision. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 111 N. W. 326.

SEC. 2820-a. Indebtedness authorized—amount. Any independent school district containing, or contained in, any incorporated town or city of the second class, of three thousand or less population shall be allowed to become indebted, for the purpose of building and furnishing a school house or houses and procuring a site therefor, to an amount not exceeding in the aggregate, two and one-half per centum of the actual value of the taxable property within such independent school district such value to be ascertained by the last county tax list previous to the incurring of such indebtedness, anything contained in section two (2) chapter forty-one (41) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly notwithstanding. [30 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.]

The change of the law as to the limit of indebtedness for schoolhouse purposes may be taken into account by the board of directors in changing their action with reference to the establishment of a school-house. Doubet v. Board of Directors, 111 N. W. 326.

SEC. 2820-b. Petition. Provided, that before such indebtedness can be contracted in excess of one and one-quarter per centum of the actual value of the taxable property ascertained as provided in section one (1) of this act, a petition signed by a majority of the qualified electors of such independent district, shall be filed with the president of the board of directors asking that an election shall be called, stating the purpose for which the money is to be used, and that the necessary school house or houses cannot be built and furnished within the limit of one and one-quarter per centum of the valuation. [30 G. A., ch. 114, § 2.]

SEC. 2820-c. Question submitted. The president of the board of directors on the receipt of such petition shall within ten (10) days call a meeting of the board who shall call such election fixing the time and place thereof, and give four weeks notice thereof, by publication once each week, in some newspaper published in the said town or city, or if none be published therein in the next nearest town or city in the county. At such election the ballot shall be prepared and used in substantially the following form:

For the issuance of bonds in the sum of $————— for school house purposes.

Against the issuance of bonds in the sum of $————— for school house purposes.

[30 G. A., ch. 114, §'3.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 29.]

SEC. 2820-d. Bonds. If two thirds or more of all the electors voting at such election vote in favor of the issuance of such bonds, the board of directors shall issue the same and make provision for the payment of the same and the interest thereon as provided in section twenty-eight hundred twelve (2812) and twenty-eight hundred thirteen (2813) of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 114, § 4.]

[The above section refers to section 2812 of the code. Section 2812 of the code was repealed by 29 G. A., chap. 127, and a substitute enactment passed, which in turn was repealed by 31 G. A., chap. 140, and a substitute enactment passed, which was repealed by 32 G. A., chap. 152, and a substitute enactment passed.]

SEC. 2820-e. Consolidation authorized. That in all cities of the first class containing a population of fifty thousand or over, according to any census taken by the authority or under the direction of the state of Iowa or of the United States, all the territory embraced within the corporate limits of any such city may be consolidated into and become one independent school district, known as the independent school district of (naming the city), state of Iowa, in the manner following: [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 1.]

SEC. 2820-f. Petition—question submitted—consolidation effected—board of directors—officers. When a written petition, requesting the establishment of a consolidated independent district whose territory shall be co-extensive with that of such city, signed by one hundred voters of such city, is filed with the board of the school corporation, therein having the largest number of voters, it shall be the duty of said board within ten days, to call an election, at which all the voters residing in the proposed district shall be allowed to vote by ballot for or against the proposition, "Shall all the territory within the city of (naming it) be united into one school district?" The board calling said election shall divide the territory within the proposed district into such number of precincts as the board shall determine, and the judges of election shall make and certify a return of the vote to the secretary of the same board which shall, on the next Monday after the election, canvass the returns made to the secretary, ascertain the result of the election, declare the same and cause a record to be made thereof, and in all other respects, except as inconsistent with the provisions of this act, the election shall be conducted as provided by law for elections in independent school districts in cities of the first class. If a majority of the votes cast at such election is favorable to the proposition, the consolidation and formation of said independent district shall thereby be effected, and the board of directors, treasurer, and other officers of the school corporation then holding office in the district affected by such consolidation having the largest number of voters, shall become the board of directors, treasurer and other officers of such consolidated district, and shall continue to hold their respective offices until the terms for which they were originally elected shall expire. The terms of office of all directors, treasurers and officers of boards in all the other districts affected by this act, lying wholly within such consolidated district and holding office at the time of such consolidation, shall cease and determine, and in case of districts lying partly without such consolidated district, the directors, officers and treasurers shall continue to have authority only over the territory lying within their districts, and without the consolidated district; provided that nothing herein contained shall affect the terms of employment of superintendents, principals, or teachers for the current school year, in which such consolidation may be effected. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 2.]

SEC. 2820-g. Taxes. All taxes previously certified during that year, shall be void so far as the property within the limits of the consolidated independent district is concerned. And all taxes necessary for the new corporation for that year shall be certified and levied as provided in section twenty-seven hundred ninety-six (2796) of the code. All property belonging to districts affected by such consolidation shall become the property of the consolidated district, except that in case of districts lying partly without such city, the liabilities and assets of such districts shall be equitably apportioned in accordance with chapter one hundred thirty-six (136), section thirteen (13) acts of the thirty-first (31) general assembly, but nothing herein contained shall affect the rights of existing creditors. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 3.]

SEC. 2820-h. Election expense. The expense of such election shall be borne by the consolidated district, in case such district shall be formed, otherwise by the separate districts in proportion to the assessed valuation therein within the proposed consolidated district. [32 G. A., ch. 155, § 4.]

CHAPTER 14-A.

OF COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

SECTION 2823-a. Duties of parents and guardians—penalty. Any person having control of any child of the age of seven (7) to fourteen (14) years inclusive, in proper physical and mental condition to attend school, shall cause such child to attend some public, private, or parochial school, where the common school branches of reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, grammar, geography, physiology, and United States history are taught, or to attend upon equivalent instruction by a competent teacher elsewhere than school, for at least sixteen (16) consecutive school weeks in each school year, commencing with the first week of school after the first day of September, unless the board of school directors shall determine upon a later date which date shall not be later than the first Monday in December. Provided, that this section shall not apply to any child who lives more than two (2) miles from any school by the nearest traveled road except in those districts in which the pupils are transported at public expense, or who is excused for sufficient reasons by any court of record or judge thereof. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not less than three ($3) dollars nor more than twenty ($20) dollars, for each offense. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-b. Reports to secretary. Upon notice from the secretary of the school corporation within which such school is conducted, it shall be the duty of each principal of each private or parochial school, once during each school year, and at any time when requested in individual cases, and within ten days from the receipt of such notice, to furnish to such secretary a certificate and report of the names, ages and attendance of the pupils in attendance at such school during the preceding year and from the time of the last preceding report to the time at which a report is required and any person having the control of any child between seven and fourteen years of age inclusive, who shall place the same under private instruction, not in a regularly conducted school, upon receiving notice from the secretary of the school corporation, shall furnish a like certificate stating the name and age of such child and the period of time during which said child has been under said private instruction; and any person having the control of such child who is physically and mentally unable to attend school, public or private, shall furnish proofs by affidavit or affidavits as to the physical or mental condition of such child. All such certificates, reports and proofs shall be filed and preserved in the office of the secretary of the school corporation as a part of the records of his office. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-c. Certified copies. It shall be the duty of the secretary of the school corporation to furnish to any person interested, where so requested, certified copies of all certificates contemplated by this act, on file in his office. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-d. Truant schools. The board of directors of any school corporation may establish truant schools, or set apart separate rooms in any public school building, for the instruction of children who are habitually truant from instruction, as contemplated by this act. Such directors may provide for the confinement, maintenance, and instruction of such children in such schools, under such reasonable rules and regulations as they may prescribe. If any child, committed or sent to the truant school shall prove insubordinate and escape from such school during school hours, or absent himself or herself therefrom without the consent of the persons in charge thereof, then it shall be the duty of the person in charge of said school with the consent of the parent or guardian to file information before the judge of a court of record, who may, if the charge be found to be true and the said child be habitually vagrant, disorderly, or incorrigible commit such child to one of the industrial schools of the state, under the same proceeding as is provided by section twenty-seven hundred eight (2708) of the code, so far as the same may be applicable. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 4.]

SEC. 2823-e. Truant officers. The board of directors of each school corporation may, and in school corporations having a population of twenty thousand (20,000) or more shall at their annual meeting in each year, appoint one or more truant officers, who shall serve for one year, and who may be a constable or a member of the police force, whose duty it shall be to report violations of this act to the secretary of the school corporation, and see to the enforcement of the provisions of this act. It shall be the duty of said truant officer or officers to apprehend and take into custody without warrant any child of the age of seven (7) to fourteen (14) years inclusive, who habitually frequents or loiters about public places during school hours without lawful occupation, or cannot produce a certificate as provided in section two (2) hereof, also any truant child who absents himself or herself from school, and place him or her in charge of the teacher having charge of any school which said child is entitled to attend, and which school may be designated to said officers by the person having legal control of such child: Provided, however, in case the school so designated by the parent or person having the care and control of said child be a public school it shall be such as directed by the rules and regulations of the school board and the statutes of the state, and if other than a public school, the maintenance of said child in such school shall be without expense to the school corporation or state. Upon failure of such child to properly attend, or when, on report of the teacher having the custody of such child, said child is shown to not properly conduct itself in the school where placed as herein provided, the child may be removed therefrom by the board of directors and placed either in a public school or a truant school conducted in said district. The truant officer or officers shall be entitled to such compensation for service rendered under this act, as shall be fixed by the board of directors appointing him or them, which compensation shall be paid from the contingent fund of said district. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 5.] 30 G. A., ch. 116, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-f. Enforcement. It shall be the duty of the director or president of any board of directors, or any truant officers appointed by such board of directors, to enforce the provisions of this act, to sue for and recover the penalties herein provided, and to institute criminal prosecution against any person violating the provisions of this act, and any such officers neglecting to do so within thirty (30) days after a written notice has been served upon him by any citizen of said district, or the county superintendent of the county, within which the offending person shall reside, shall himself be liable for a fine of not less than ten ($10) dollars nor more than twenty ($20) dollars for each offense. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 6.] [32 G. A., ch. 154.]

SEC. 2823-g. Teachers and school officers—duties. All teachers of the public schools of the state, and county superintendents, and school officers and employes shall promptly report to the secretary of the school corporation any violations of the provisions of this act, of which they have knowledge or information, and he shall promptly inform the president of the board of directors thereof and such president shall, if necessary, call a meeting of the board of directors to take such action thereon as the facts shall justify, and any child placed in any truant school may be discharged therefrom at the discretion of the board, upon sufficient assurance of the future good conduct of such child. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 7.]

SEC. 2823-h. Provisions for punishment. The board of directors of every school corporation is hereby authorized to provide such reasonable methods of punishment of children who are habitually truant from school, or who habitually frequent or loiter about public places during school hours without lawful occupation, as may be necessary to carry out and make effectual the provisions of this act. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 8.]

SEC. 2823-i. School census. It shall be the duty of all officers, empowered to take the school census, to ascertain the number of children of the ages of seven (7) to fourteen (14) years, inclusive, in their respective districts, the number of such children who do not attend school, and so far as possible the cause of failure to attend school. [29 G. A., ch. 128, § 9.]

CHAPTER 14-B.

OF THE SALE AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE SCHOOL LAWS OF IOWA.

SECTION 2823-j. County auditors—requisition—duplicate receipts. On or before the fifteenth day of November of each year, the auditor of each county shall make an estimate of the number of copies of the school laws of Iowa, as will, in his judgment, be required to supply the demand for such laws in his county, in addition to the number of copies of said school laws furnished by the state as provided for in section 2624, chapter 1, title 13 of the code. The county auditor shall transmit this estimate to the superintendent of public instruction, together with a requisition for the number of copies required. On receipt of the requisition the superintendent of public instruction shall forward to the county auditor the number of copies named in the requisition. On receipt of the copies transmitted to him, the county auditor shall execute receipts therefor in duplicate, one of which he shall immediately transmit to the superintendent of public instruction and the other to the state auditor. [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-k. Sale—price. The county auditor shall keep for sale at his office in the court house of the county, copies of the school laws of the state of Iowa, which he shall receive in the manner hereinbefore provided, at a price not to exceed twenty (20) cents per copy of such laws, bound in paper and not to exceed thirty (30) cents per copy of such laws bound in cloth and pay the proceeds of such sales into the county treasury on or before the fifteenth day of November of each year. [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-l. Statement of copies sold. The said county auditor shall also on or before the fifteenth day of November of each year, make out in writing under oath, a statement of the number of copies sold by him and not before accounted for, and the number remaining on hand and the amount paid to the county treasurer, and transmit such statement to the auditor of state, who shall charge the county treasurer with such amount, and the superintendent of public instruction shall certify to the state auditor the number of copies transmitted to each county auditor; and the state auditor shall charge each county auditor therewith, and subsequently credit him with such as may be sold or otherwise lawfully disposed of. [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-m. Copies delivered to successor. When the county auditor goes out of office, having any such copies remaining, he shall deliver them to his successor, taking his receipt therefor in duplicate, one of which shall be sent to the state auditor, which shall be his sufficient discharge for the same. [27 G. A., ch. 90, § 4.]

CHAPTER 14-C.

LIBRARIES FOR THE USE OF TEACHERS, PUPILS AND OTHER RESIDENTS IN SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

SECTION 2823-n. Library fund. The treasurer of each school township and each rural independent district in this state shall withhold annually, from the money received from the apportionment for the several school districts, not less than five nor more than fifteen cents, as may be ordered by the board, for each person of school age residing in each school corporation, as shown by the annual report of the secretary, for the purchase of books as hereinafter provided. When so ordered by the board of directors, the provisions of this section shall apply to any independent district. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-o. Purchase of books—distribution. Between the third Monday of September and the first day of December in each year the president and secretary of the board, with the assistance of the county superintendent of schools, shall expend all money withheld by the treasurer as provided in section one of this act, in the purchase of books selected from the lists prepared by the state board of educational examiners as hereinafter provided, for the use of the school district; in school townships the secretary shall distribute the books thus selected to the librarians among the several subdistricts, and at least semi-annually collect the same and distribute others. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 2.]

SEC. 2823-p. State board of educational examiners to prepare lists of books. It is hereby made the duty of the state board of educational examiners to prepare annually or biennially lists of books suitable for use in school district libraries, and furnish copies of such lists to each president, secretary, and each county superintendent, as often as the same shall be published or revised, from which lists the several presidents and secretaries and county superintendents shall select and purchase books. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 3.]

SEC. 2823-q. Record book. It shall be the duty of each secretary to keep in a record book, furnished by the board of directors, a complete record of the books purchased and distributed by him. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 4.]

SEC. 2823-r. Librarian. Unless the board of directors shall elect some other person, the secretary in independent districts and director in subdistricts in school townships shall act as librarian and shall receive and have the care and custody of the books, and shall loan them to teachers, pupils, and other residents of the district, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by the state board of educational examiners and board of directors. Each librarian shall keep a complete record of the books in a record book furnished by the board of directors. During the periods that the school is in session the library shall be placed in the school house, and the teacher shall be responsible to the district for its proper care and protection. The board of directors shall have supervision of all books and shall make an equitable distribution thereof among the schools of the corporation. [28 G. A., ch. 110, § 5.]

CHAPTER 14-D.

OF THE TEACHING OF THE ELEMENTS OF VOCAL MUSIC IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

SECTION 2823-s. Instruction in vocal music authorized. That the elements of vocal music, including when practical the singing of simple music by note, be taught in all of the public schools of Iowa, and that all teachers teaching in schools where such instruction is not given by special teachers be required to satisfy the county superintendent of their ability to teach the elements of vocal music in a proper manner. Provided, however, that no teacher shall be refused a certificate or the grade of his or her certificate lowered on account of lack of ability to sing. [28 G. A., ch. 109, § 1.]

SEC. 2823-t. Normal institute. That it shall be the duty of each county superintendent to have taught annually in the normal institute the elements of vocal music. [28 G. A., ch. 109, § 2.]

CHAPTER 15.

OF THE UNIFORMITY, PURCHASE AND LOANING OF TEXT-BOOKS.

SECTION 2824. Adoption—contract—agent.

The school board has no authority to contract with a book seller and pay him out of the contingent fund for handling school books when the district has not adopted the plan of purchasing the books for sale to pupils, and payment under such an arrangement may be restrained at the suit of a taxpayer. Ries v. Hemmer, 127-408.

The provision as to adoption of text-books by the board of directors merely empowers the board to adopt and purchase, without indicating the manner of doing so, and is subject to the requirement of Code § 2828, relating to the purchase of text books. McNess v. School Township, 133-120.

SEC. 2828. Bids. Before purchasing text-books under the provisions of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the board of directors, or county board of education, to advertise, by publishing a notice, once each week, for three consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county; said notice shall state the time up to which all bids will be received, the classes and grades for which text-books and other necessary supplies are to be bought, and the approximate quantity needed; and said board shall award the contract for said text-books and supplies to any responsible bidder or bidders offering suitable text-books and supplies at the lowest prices, taking into consideration the quality of material used, illustrations, binding, and all other things that go to make up a desirable text-book; and may, to the end that they may be fully advised, consult the county superintendent, or, in case of city independent districts, with city superintendent or other competent person, with reference to the selection of text-books; provided that the board may reject any and all bids, or any part thereof, and re-advertise therefor as above provided. [23 G. A., ch. 24, § 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 4.]

SEC. 2829. Change—question submitted.

The statute prohibits any change in the text-books adopted by the board of directors except as authorized at a regular meeting of the electors, upon notice of the submission of such proposition. McNees v. School Township, 133-120.

SEC. 2831. County board of education—question as to county uniformity. The county superintendent, the county auditor and the members of the board of supervisors shall constitute a county board of education. When petitions shall have been signed by one-third the school directors in any county, other than those in cities and towns, and filed in the office of the county superintendent of such county at least thirty days before the annual school elections, asking for a uniform series of text-books in the county, then such county superintendent shall immediately notify the other members of the county board of education in writing, and within fifteen days after the filing of the petitions said board of education shall meet and provide for submitting to the electors at the next annual meeting the question of county uniformity of school text-books. [25 G. A., ch. 24, §§ 8, 9.] [28 G. A., ch. 111, § 1.]

SEC. 2832. Selection of books—depositories—distribution—itemized accounts. Should a majority of the electors voting at such elections favor a uniform series of text-books for use in said county, then the county board of education shall meet and select the school text-books for the entire county, and contract for the same under such rules and regulations as the said board of education may adopt. When a list of text-books has been so selected, they shall be used by all the public schools of said county, except as hereinafter provided, and the board of education may arrange for such depositories as it may deem best, and may pay for said school books out of the county funds, and sell them to the school districts at the same price as provided for in section twenty-eight hundred and twenty-four of this chapter, and the money received from said sales shall be returned to the county funds by said board of education monthly. The boards of school officers, who are hereby made the judges of the school meetings, shall certify to the board of supervisors the full returns of the votes cast at said meetings the next day after the holding of said meetings, who shall, at their next regular meeting, proceed to canvass said votes and declare the result. Unless otherwise ordered by the board of education, the county superintendent shall have charge of such text-books and of the distribution thereof among the depositories selected by the board; he shall render to the board at each meeting thereof itemized accounts of his doings, and shall be liable on his official bond therefor. [25 G. A., ch. 24, § 9.] [28 G. A., ch. 112, § 1.]

SEC. 2834. Officers not to be agents.

The statute prohibits any school director from engaging on his own account in the sale of school books and supplies to pupils, and the prohibition is not limited to directors acting as agents of the board under Code § 2824. State v. Wick, 130-31.

CHAPTER 16.

OF THE SCHOOL FUND.

SECTION 2841. Notice—sale. When the board of supervisors shall offer for sale the sixteenth section or lands selected in lieu thereof, or any portion of the same, or any part of the five hundred thousand acre grant, the county auditor shall give at least forty days' notice, by written or printed notices posted in five public places in the county, two of which shall be in the township in which the land to be sold is situated, and also publish a notice of said sale, once each week, for four weeks preceding the same in a newspaper published in the county, describing the land to be sold and the time and place of such sale. At such time and place, or at such other time and place as the sale may be adjourned to, he shall offer to the highest bidder, subject to the provisions of this chapter, and sell, either for cash, or one-third cash and the balance on a credit not exceeding ten years, with interest on the same at the rate of not less than six per cent. per annum, to be paid at the office of the county treasurer of said county on the first day of January in each year, delinquent interest to bear the same rate as the principal. [23 G. A., ch. 23; 18 G. A., ch. 12, § 4; C., '73, § 1846; R., § 1971.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 5.]

SEC. 2849. Loans. The permanent school fund shall be loaned out by the county auditor, as it comes into the hands of the county treasurer, in sums of three thousand dollars or less to one person or company, in case it is found impracticable to keep the whole amount of funds loaned in sums of five hundred dollars or less to one person or company. In the event it can be kept loaned out in sums of five hundred dollars or less to one person or company, then no loan shall exceed five hundred dollars, nor shall a loan of said fund be made to or be carried by the county auditor, treasurer or member of the board of supervisors. Each loan shall be made for at least one and not more than five years, evidenced by promissory notes bearing not less than five per cent. per annum, payable annually, and delinquent interest to draw the same rate, to be secured by a mortgage on unincumbered real estate, situated in the county in which the loan is made, and appraised, as hereinafter provided, for at least double the sum borrowed; the appraisal to be made by three persons under oath, selected by the county auditor, who shall not in making the valuation take into consideration the buildings upon the lands, for which service each shall be allowed fifty cents, to be paid by the borrower, who shall also pay for recording the mortgage. [23 G. A., ch. 23; 19 G. A., ch. 174, § 2; 18 G. A., chs. 1, 2, 6; C., '73, §§ 1861-3; R., §§ 1981-3.] [28 G. A., ch. 113, § 1.]

SEC. 2850. Applications—taking up incumbrances. All applications to borrow from the permanent school fund shall be made to the auditor of the county in which the land is situated which it is proposed to mortgage as security, who shall cause the proper appraisal to be made, and, if satisfactory, shall examine any abstract of title which the proposed borrower may submit, or he may cause an abstract to be prepared at such proposed borrower's expense. If the title is found to be perfect, and the lands unincumbered, he shall certify this fact and submit the application and all the papers connected therewith to the board of supervisors at its next meeting, regular or called, at which meeting the loan shall be approved or disapproved. If the application is accepted, the auditor shall complete the contract by taking a note payable to the county, and a mortgage upon the lands securing the same, and certify the same to the treasurer, who shall pay over to the borrower the amount named in the note, less a fee of two dollars to be paid to the auditor for his services in addition to his salary. The board may reject the application for any good cause. And if it shall happen that a loan is made upon real estate which is in fact incumbered other than for taxes, the board of supervisors may, when necessary for the safety of the loan, appropriate out of any school fund on hand, if such incumbrance does not exceed one-half of the real value of the lands, so much as may be needed to take up and purchase the same, and may also at any meeting, by resolution, assign without recourse, upon payment of the amount due, any school fund note and mortgage to one holding a subsequent lien upon the mortgaged real estate. [C., '73, §§ 1864, 1868-9, 1875; R., § 1984.] [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 4.]

SEC. 2855. Repeal—lands bid in—losses—interest—rents. That section twenty-eight hundred and fifty-five (2855) of the code supplement relating to the permanent school fund, be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“When lands have been bid in by the county for the state under foreclosure of school fund mortgages and the time for redemption has expired a sheriff's deed shall be issued to the state for the use and benefit of the permanent school fund. The county auditor shall thereupon notify the auditor of state who shall give the county credit for the amount of principal in the original notes remaining unpaid. All lands hereafter acquired by the state under foreclosure proceedings shall be resold within two years from date of foreclosure and all such lands heretofore acquired shall be resold on or before January 1, 1909. Such lands shall be appraised, advertised and sold in the manner provided for the appraisal, advertisement and sale of the sixteenth section or lands selected in lieu thereof. When a resale is made the county auditor shall notify the auditor of state, who shall thereupon charge the county with the full amount of the resale, except that when the lands are sold for more than the unpaid portion of the principal, the excess shall be applied to reimburse the county for the costs of foreclosure and the interest paid by the county to the state by reason of default of payment of same by the makers of the notes, previous to the time when the right of redemption has expired, not, however, to exceed three years.

Any excess over and above the amount of the unpaid portion of the principal, costs of foreclosure and interest on the principal as above provided, shall inure to the state and be credited to the permanent school fund account. If the lands shall be sold for a less amount than the unpaid portion of the principal, the loss shall be sustained by the county and the board of supervisors shall at once order the amount of such loss transferred from the general fund of the county to the permanent school fund account. County auditors shall, on or before the first day of January of each year, report to the auditor of state the amount of all sales and resales made during the year previous, of the sixteenth section, five hundred thousand acres grant, escheat estates, and lands taken under foreclosure of school fund mortgages, and the auditor of state shall charge the same to the counties with interest from the date of such sale or resale to January first, at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum. The auditor of state shall, also, on the first day of January, charge to each county having permanent school funds under its control, interest thereon at the rate of four and one-half per cent. per annum for the preceding year, or such part thereof as such funds shall have been in the control of the county, which shall be taken as the whole amount of interest due from each county. All interest collected above the four and one-half per cent charged by the state shall be transferred to the general county fund. If any county fails or refuses to collect the amount of interest due the state, the deficiency shall be paid to the state from the general county fund. Any county delinquent in the payment of interest due the state shall be charged one per cent per month on the amount delinquent until paid. County auditors shall, upon the first day of January of each year, report to the auditor of state the amount of rents collected during the preceding year on unsold school lands and lands taken under foreclosure of school fund mortgages then in the hands of the county treasurer, and the auditor of state shall include the amount so reported in his semi-annual apportionment of interest." [32 G. A., ch. 151, § 1.]

CHAPTER 17.

OF THE STATE LIBRARY AND HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS.

[Section 2868 of the code is alluded to in the title of chapter 173 of the acts of the 29th G. A. as being repealed by said act, but the section is nowhere referred to in the body of the act itself.]

SECTION 2869-a. Repeal. That section 2869 of the code and chapter 148 of the acts of the twenty-seventh general assembly, be and the same are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 8.]

[Chapter 148 of the acts of the 27th G. A., was amended by chapter 145 of the acts of the 28th G. A., by adding thereto the following words: "and for such other purposes as in the judgment of the library board are for the best interests of the traveling library system as operated in the state of Iowa." In repealing said chapter 148, no mention is made of the amendment.]

[Sections 2871, 2872, 2873, and 2874 of the code, are alluded to in the title of chapter 173 of the acts of the 29th G. A., as being repealed by said act, but the same are nowhere mentioned in the body of the act itself.]

SEC. 2881. Repeal. Section two thousand two hundred eighty-one (2881) of the code, and section two thousand eight hundred eighty-one-f (2881-f) of the supplement to the code, and section six (6) of chapter one hundred fourteen (114) of the acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly, are hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 1.]

[For substitute for this section see section 2881-f, infra.
The above section did not repeal section 2881 of the code supplement, but said section has been omitted herefrom as repealed.]

CHAPTER 17-A.

CONSOLIDATION OF THE MISCELLANEOUS PORTION OF STATE LIBRARY WITH THE HISTORICAL DEPARTMENT.

SECTION 2881-a. Consolidation—board of trustees. That the board of trustees of the Iowa state library and the board of trustees of the Iowa historical department be, and the same are hereby, empowered and directed to consolidate the miscellaneous portion of the Iowa state library (exclusive of the law section), or so much thereof as shall be regarded by said board as advisable, with the historical department; the aforesaid consolidation to take effect on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one, or at any such later date as said trustees may direct; and that on and after January first, nineteen hundred and one, the board of trustees of the Iowa state library and the board of trustees of the Iowa state historical department shall cease to exist as such, and the aforesaid boards shall, by this act, become the board of trustees of the state library and the historical department of Iowa, and the newly constituted board shall thereafter be charged with all the duties and responsibilities imposed upon the boards aforesaid and possess all the powers thereof. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-b. State librarian—curator—assistant librarian—reports. That after such consolidation the state librarian shall have general charge of the historical department and of the consolidated and law libraries. The curator of the museum and art gallery shall have charge of the museum, the art gallery, the newspapers, and historical periodicals. The assistant to librarian shall have charge of the law library, under the direction of the state librarian. The above officers shall serve out the terms for which they shall have been appointed, at the expiration of which their successors shall be appointed by the board of trustees, and shall hold their respective offices for the term of six (6) years. The state librarian shall submit to the governor biennially a report giving the history of said consolidated libraries for the preceding two years, accompanied by a like report by the curator of the museum and art gallery. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 2.]

SEC. 2881-c. Furniture and fixtures. The executive council is authorized to procure the furniture and fixtures made necessary by such consolidation and pay for the same out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 3.]

SEC. 2881-d. Assignment of rooms. The board of trustees shall have the control of the respective departments above named, and shall assign rooms to be occupied by each of said officers. [28 G. A. ch. 114, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-e. Appropriations. There shall be annually appropriated, from any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of ten thousand dollars for the use of the state library and historical department and museum, and the sum of four thousand dollars for the separate use of the law department, the money to be expended under the direction of the board of trustees of the state library and historical department; and the existing appropriations of five thousand dollars for the state library and six thousand dollars for the historical department shall be discontinued upon the consolidation aforesaid. [28 G. A., ch. 114, § 5.] [31 G. A., ch. 143.]

SEC. 2881-f. State librarian—curator—assistant librarian—salaries. From and after the taking effect of this act the salary of the state librarian shall be the sum of two thousand four hundred dollars ($2,400) per annum; of the curator of the museum and art gallery the sum of one thousand six hundred dollars ($1,600) per annum, and of the assistant to librarian the sum of one thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,800) per annum. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 2.]

SEC. 2881-g. Other assistants—salaries. As assistants (in addition to the curator of the museum and art gallery and the assistant to librarian) the state librarian may employ one first assistant at an annual salary of one thousand one hundred dollars ($1,100); one second assistant at an annual salary of one thousand dollars ($1,000); and one third assistant at an annual salary of nine hundred dollars ($900). [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 3.]

SEC. 2881-h. Bonds. The state librarian shall give bond in the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), and the curator of the museum and art gallery and the assistant to librarian shall each give bond in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), conditioned upon the faithful performance of their respective duties and a full and accurate accounting of all moneys coming into their hands in virtue of their respective offices. Said bonds shall be approved by the board of trustees of the state library and historical department. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-i. Salaries—how paid. The salaries provided for in this act shall be paid in monthly installments out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [32 G. A., ch. 156, § 5.]

SEC. 2881-j. Custody of public archives. That for the care and preservation of the public archives the state library and historical department of Iowa are hereby given the custody of all the original public documents, papers, letters, records and other official manuscripts of the state executive and administrative departments, offices or officers, councils, boards, bureaus and commissions, ten years after the date or current use of such public documents, papers, letters, records or other official manuscripts. Provided, that the executive council shall have the power and authority to order the transfer of such records or any part thereof at any time prior to the expiration of the limit of ten years hereinbefore provided or to retain the same in the respective offices beyond such limit according as in the judgment of the council the public interest or convenience may require. [31 G. A., ch. 142, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-k. Repeal—transfer and delivery of public archives. That section 2 of said act be repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“That the several executive and administrative departments, officers or offices, councils, boards, bureaus and commissioners are hereby authorized to transfer and deliver to the executive council for arrangement, classification, labeling, filing and calendaring, and then to the state library and historical department for preservation such of the public archives as are designated in section one (1) of this act except such as in the judgment of the executive council should be longer retained in the respective offices.” [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-l. Repeal—state library and historical department authorized to receive archives. That section 3 of said act is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“That the state library and historical department is hereby authorized and directed to receive from the executive council such of the public archives as are designated in section one (1) of this act as rapidly as the same are properly arranged, classified, labeled, filed and calendared." [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

SEC. 2881-m. Hall of public archives. That for the care and permanent preservation by the state library and historical department of the public archives hereinbefore designated, the executive council is hereby authorized and directed to provide, furnish and equip such room or rooms in the historical memorial and art building (now in process of erection) as may be deemed necessary for the purposes of this act, and the room or rooms thus provided for shall be known as the hall of public archives. [31 G. A., ch. 142, § 4.]

SEC. 2881-n. Repeal—appropriation—how expended. That section 5 of said act is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

"That for carrying out the purposes of this act there is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000) annually for two years beginning July 1, 1907, to be expended under the direction of said executive council." [32 G. A., ch. 157, § 1.]

OF THE STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

SECTION 2882-a. Annual appropriation—purposes. That there be and is hereby appropriated to the state historical society of Iowa, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500), annually hereafter as permanent support: For the continued publication of The Iowa Journal of History and Politics; for the continuation of the compilation and publication of the messages and proclamations of the governors of Iowa; for the collection, compilation and publication of documentary materials, relating to the history of Iowa, including such of the archives of the state and territory of Iowa as are of historical importance; for the publication of historical monographs, biographies, essays, lectures, bibliographs and indexes; for the proper maintenance of the library of the society, the collection and purchase of publications bearing upon Iowa and American history, and the proper classifying, cataloging and indexing of such material; for the carrying out of a systematic and scientific anthropological survey of the state; for conducting public lectures of an historical character; and for meeting the incidental and other necessary expenses incurred in connection with the prosecution of the work of the said state historical society of Iowa, as indicated in this act and title XIII, chapter 18, section 2882 of the code. [30 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2882-b. How paid. That the permanent annual appropriation herein provided for shall take the place and be in lieu of all other permanent annual appropriations heretofore made to the state historical society of Iowa, and the same shall be paid in quarterly installments on the order of the board of curators of the said state historical society of Iowa, the first installments to be paid July 1st, 1904. [30 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.]

CHAPTER 18-A.

LIBRARY COMMISSION AND FREE PUBLIC SCHOOL LIBRARIES.

SECTION 2888-a. State library commission — term — chairman. The governor shall appoint four persons, at least two of whom shall be women, who, with the state librarian and superintendent of public instruction and president of the state university, shall constitute a state library commission. The first members appointed by the governor shall be appointed for terms of two, three, four and five years from the first day of July, 1900, and all subsequent appointments shall be for terms of five years, except appointments to fill vacancies. The commission shall annually elect a chairman. [28 G. A., ch. 116, § 1.]

SEC. 2888-b. Repeal. That sections two (2), three (3), four (4) and five (5) of chapter one hundred sixteen (116) acts of the twenty-eighth general assembly be and the same are hereby repealed, and that the following be substituted therefor. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 1.]

SEC. 2888-c. Duties of commission. The commission shall give advice and counsel to all free and other public libraries, and to all communities which may propose to establish them, as to the best means of establishing and maintaining such libraries, the section of books, cataloging, and other details of library management. It may print such lists and circulars of information as it shall deem necessary and as approved by the executive council. It may also conduct a summer school of library instruction, a clearing house for periodicals for free gift to local libraries and perform such other public service as may seem to it for the best interests of the state. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 2.]

SEC. 2888-d. Traveling libraries. The state library board shall transfer to the Iowa library commission all associate and traveling libraries belonging to the state, and the said library commission is authorized to accept the same; and it shall be the duty of said commission to operate the said associate and traveling libraries, also to properly equip and circulate the books thus acquired, or subsequently purchased to be loaned within the state to libraries, schools, colleges, universities, library associations, farmers' institutes, granges, study clubs, charitable and penal institutions and individuals, free of cost except for transportation, under such conditions and rules as shall protect the interests of the state and best increase the efficiency of the service it is expected to render the public. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 3.]

SEC. 2888-e. Secretary—assistants — duties — expenses — office. Said commission shall employ a secretary not of its own number, who shall serve at the will of the commission, and under such conditions as it shall determine. It may also employ such other assistants as shall be requisite in the performance of the work of the commission as set forth in sections two (2) and three (3) and number of assistants and their salaries and the salary of the secretary shall be fixed by the committee on retrenchment and reform. It shall be the duty of said secretary to keep a record of the proceedings of the commission; to keep accurate accounts of its financial transactions, and to act under the direction of the commission in supervising the work of the traveling libraries, in organizing new libraries and improving those already established, and in general to perform such other duties as may be assigned him by the commission. In addition to his salary he shall be allowed his necessary traveling expenses while absent from his office in the service of the commission, the same to be verified and certified and paid in the same manner as other expenses incurred by the commission. Said commission to have its office in the state library with storage and shipping room in the basement of the capitol. The work in connection with the associate libraries shall be conducted by the library commission. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 4.]

SEC. 2888-f. Biennial report. The secretary of the commission shall make a full report to the governor on library conditions and progress in Iowa on July first, nineteen hundred three (1903), with sketches of the free public libraries and illustrations of such library buildings as said commission may deem expedient; two thousand (2,000) copies of this report shall be printed, one thousand (1,000) of which shall be bound in cloth and biennially thereafter a like report shall be made to the governor, two thousand (2,000) copies of which shall be printed, one thousand (1,000) of the same to be bound in cloth, these reports to be printed and bound by the state the same as other public documents, and to be distributed under the direction of the commission, and such other printing and binding provided by this act shall be done by the state when allowed by the executive council. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 5.]

SEC. 2888-g. Reports from libraries. The commission shall each year obtain from all free public libraries reports showing condition, growth, development and manner of conducting said libraries, and shall obtain reports from other libraries in the state at their discretion, and shall furnish annually to the secretary of state such information for publication in the Iowa official register as may be deemed of public interest. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 6.]

SEC. 2888-h. Expenses—appropriation. No member of the commission shall ever receive any compensation for service as a member, but the traveling expenses of members in attending meetings of the commission or in visiting or establishing libraries; and other incidental and necessary expenses connected with the work of the commission, shall be paid, including the necessary expense in the maintenance and extension of the traveling library system, provided that the whole amount of said expense and salaries shall not exceed the sum of six thousand ($6,000) dollars in any one year, not more than three thousand five hundred ($3,500) dollars of said sum to be used in the payment of salaries and expenses of the commission and secretary. All bills incurred by the commission or by its members under the law shall be certified by the president and secretary of the commission to the state auditor, who shall issue warrants therefor upon the state treasury, and there is hereby annually appropriated from any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000) to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and any balance not expended in any one year may be added by the commission to the expenditure for any ensuing year. All accounts and bills for expenses of the secretary and members of the commission and all bills for expenditures by the commission, shall be itemized and verified and be audited and allowed by the executive council before being paid. [29 G. A., ch. 173, § 7.]

PART SECOND.

PRIVATE LAW.

TITLE XIV.

OF RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE RIGHTS OF ALIENS.

SECTION 2889. Non-resident aliens — acquiring and holding real estate.

A right to inherit cannot be derived from a parent who has died a non-resident alien and who would on that account not have been entitled to the property if living. Meier v. Lee, 106-303.

SEC. 2889-a. Real property. That all corporations organized under the laws of any foreign country, and corporations organized under the laws of any state of the United States, one-half of whose stock is owned and controlled by non-resident aliens, shall have the right to own, hold, and dispose of any real property owned or held by any such corporations on the fourth day of July, 1888, or any real property acquired by any such corporations under the provisions of section six (6) of chapter eighty-five (85) of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly, or section twenty-eight hundred and ninety (2890) of the code. Provided, however, that any such corporation shall sell or dispose of any such property now owned by it within ten years from the taking effect of this act, and in default of such sale or disposition the provisions of sections twenty-eight hundred and ninety-one (2891), twenty-eight hundred and ninety-two (2892) and twenty-eight hundred and ninety-three (2893) of the code shall be applied thereto. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 1.]

SEC. 2889-b. Bona fide contract. A bona fide contract for the sale of any such lands owned by any such corporation shall be held and considered as a sale within the provisions of the preceding section, and a good and valid deed of conveyance may be made by such corporation at any time upon the fulfillment of such contract by the purchaser of any such lands. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 2.]

SEC. 2889-c. Sales, contracts, deeds, and conveyances legalized. All sales, contracts, deeds, or conveyances of lands owned by any such corporation on the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight (1888), or acquired by any such corporation under the provisions of section six (6) of chapter eighty-five (85) of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly or section twenty-eight hundred and ninety (2890) of the code, bearing date on or after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight (1888), are hereby legalized and rendered of full force and effect, according to their terms, in so far as their validity or the validity of the titles conveyed thereby may be affected by chapter eighty-five (85) of the laws of the twenty-second general assembly, or any amendments thereto, or by chapter one (1), title fourteen (XIV) of the code. [28 G. A., ch. 117, § 3.]

CHAPTER 2-A.

OF SALE OF ABANDONED RIVER CHANNELS, SAND BARS OR ISLANDS, BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

SECTION 2900-a1. Repeal. That chapter one hundred and eighty-five (185) of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof: [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 1.]

SEC. 2900-a2. Sale authorized. That all land between high water mark and the center of the former channel of any navigable stream, where such channel has been abandoned, so that it is no longer capable of use, and is not likely again to be used, for the purposes of navigation, and all land within such abandoned river channels, and all bars or islands in the channels of navigable streams not heretofore surveyed or platted by the United States or the state of Iowa, and all within the jurisdiction of the state of Iowa shall be sold and disposed of in the manner hereinafter provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 1.]

SEC. 2900-a3. Written applications—by whom made. It shall be the duty of the county auditor to file written application with the secretary of state, asking that certain land located within the county be surveyed, appraised and sold, whenever he is satisfied that such land is of the character contemplated by section one (1) of this act. If the county auditor fails or neglects to make such application, then any person desiring to purchase such land may file a written application with the secretary of state, asking that the said land be surveyed, appraised and sold. The said application whether made by the county auditor or by a person desiring to purchase the land, shall contain an accurate description thereof, stating whether the land is abandoned river channel, or land within such abandoned river channel, or an island or a sand bar in a navigable stream, and giving the number of township and range in which it is located, and the section numbers if possible, and also the estimated acreage. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a4. Survey. Upon receiving such application, it shall be the duty of the secretary of state to order a complete survey of such land to be made by the county surveyor of the county wherein the land is situated, and in case of the refusal or inability of such county surveyor to make such survey then the secretary of state shall appoint some other competent surveyor to make such survey. When such survey is made a full report thereof, with field notes, shall be filed with the clerk of the state land office, which report and field notes shall constitute the official survey of such land. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a5. Appraisalment. Upon the filing of such report, with the accompanying field notes, the secretary of state shall thereupon appoint a commission of three disinterested freeholders of the county wherein the land is situated, to view the land and make appraisalment of the value thereof, which appraisalment shall be returned and filed with the clerk of the state land office in the office of the secretary of state. The secretary of state, if he deems it necessary, may either go in person or send the clerk of the state land office into the county to make proper selection of the said commissioners, and the necessary expenses of such trip shall be paid in the manner hereinbefore provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a6. Fees. The surveyor making such survey shall be entitled to receive the sum of five dollars per day for his services as such surveyor and such additional amount as may be agreed upon and necessary for the services of chainmen and other attendants and other necessary expenses, the commissioners, for their services in making such appraisalment shall each be entitled to receive five dollars per day, for the actual time employed. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 5.]

SEC. 2900-a7. Sale—how effected—rights of bona fide occupants. Such lands shall be sold in the following manner: Any person who has in fact lived upon any such land and occupied the same, as a home, continuously for a period of three or more years immediately prior to the time of the appraisalment thereof, and such occupancy has been in good faith for the purpose of procuring title thereto whenever by law such title could be vested in him by purchase from the proper authority, or any person who has acquired possession of such land by inheritance, or by purchase made in good faith from a former occupant, or occupants, whose occupancy dates back over a period of three years prior to the date of appraisalment of the land, shall have first right to purchase such land at the appraised value; provided such bona fide occupant shall file his application for the purchase thereof at the appraised value with the secretary of state within sixty (60) days after the day the appraisalment is made, and shall accompany such application with affidavits showing proof of such bona fide occupancy. If no application has been filed with such bona fide occupant within the sixty (60) day period above provided, then the secretary of state shall advertise the sale of such land once each week for four consecutive weeks in two newspapers of general circulation published in the county wherein the land is situated, and proof of publication shall be filed with the secretary of state. The sale shall be made upon written bids addressed to the secretary of state and the advertisements shall fix the time when such bids will be received and opened. All bids shall be opened by the secretary of state or by the clerk of the state land office at the time fixed, and the land thereupon may be sold to the highest bidder and at not less than the appraised value. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 6.]

SEC. 2900-a8. Lease authorized—lands re-advertised—sale. If no application is filed for the purchase of the land within the sixty (60) day period by a bona fide occupant, and if no bids are received for the purchase thereof, on or before the date of the sale as advertised, then the secretary of state is authorized to lease the land for a period of from one to five years, upon as favorable terms as he can obtain. At the expiration of such lease he shall re-advertise the land for sale in the manner provided in section six (6) hereof. If no bids for the purchase of the land are received on the date of the second advertised sale, then the secretary of state shall submit the matter to the executive council, and they may either order the land re-appraised in the manner provided in section four (4) hereof, and then advertised and sold in the manner provided in section six (6) hereof, or if they deem it advisable, they may authorize the secretary of state to sell the land for less than the appraised value. In such event the secretary of state shall re-advertise the land for sale in the manner provided in section six (6) hereof, and such advertisement shall also state that the land will be sold to the highest bidder without restrictions as to the appraised value. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 7.]

SEC. 2900-a9. Deed or patent. When, upon full compliance with the conditions of this act, any person shall become entitled to a deed or patent for any land, a deed or patent shall thereupon be executed and delivered to such person by the governor, on behalf of the state, duly attested with the seal of the state attached thereto, which deed shall, in addition to the usual formalities, also recite the name of the party making application to have the land surveyed, appraised and sold, the date and the amount of the appraisement, the name of the party making final payment and entitled to a deed therefor, whether as bona fide occupant or as highest bidder, and also that such deed is given for the purpose of conveying such title and interest in the land as the state may at the time own and possess, and has the right to convey. A record of such conveyance shall be made and kept by the clerk of the state land office of the secretary of state. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 8.]

SEC. 2900-a10. Previous survey. Whenever any such land shall be found to have been previously surveyed under and by virtue of any order of a court of record, and the record of such survey has been duly made and preserved, then and in that event, in the discretion of the secretary of state, a duly certified transcript of such record, together with the field notes accompanying the same, if obtainable, may be filed with the clerk of the state land office in the office of secretary of state, and when so filed shall obviate the necessity for any further survey of such land except when such survey becomes necessary for the purpose of execution of conveyance thereof, and the record of such transcript, when filed, shall constitute the official survey of such land. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 9.]

SEC. 2900-a11. Boundary commission. If in any proceeding contemplated by the provisions of this act, it shall become necessary to determine the boundary line between the state of Iowa and either of the states adjoining, the matter shall then be at once referred to the executive council, who shall thereupon proceed to confer with the proper authority of such adjoining state, and if the co-operation of the proper authority of such adjoining state, shall be obtained, then the executive council shall appoint a commission of three disinterested, competent persons, who shall, in conjunction with the parties acting for such adjoining state, have authority to ascertain and locate the true boundary line between the state of Iowa and such adjoining state, so far as the particular land under consideration at the time, is concerned. The report of the commissioners with a statement of their findings shall be submitted to the executive council, who shall file the same with the clerk of the state land office in the office of the secretary of state. The line so ascertained and located shall constitute the true and permanent boundary line between the state of Iowa and such other state to the extent such line shall be so ascertainable and located. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 10.]

SEC. 2900-a12. Commission — how constituted — compensation. The members of the commission shall be selected with reference to their fitness for the duties required and at least one of them shall be a competent surveyor and civil engineer. They shall receive for their services such amount as the executive council may deem reasonable, to be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant for the amount, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 11.]

SEC. 2900-a13. Purchase money refunded—when. If the grantee of the state, or his successors, administrators, or assigns, shall be deprived of the land conveyed by the state under this act by the final decree of a court of record for the reason that the conveyance by the state passed no title whatever to the land therein described, because title thereto had previously for any reason been vested in others, then the money so paid the state for the said land, shall be refunded by the state to the person or persons entitled thereto, provided the said grantee, or his successors, administrators or assigns, shall file a certified copy of the transcript of the said final decree with the executive council within one year from the date of the issuance of such decree, and shall also file satisfactory proof with the executive council that the action over the title to the land was commenced within ten (10) years from the date of the issuance of patent or deed by the state. The amount of money to be refunded under the provisions of this section shall be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant therefor, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 12.]

SEC. 2900-a14. Sales and leases for cash. All sales and leases of land under the provisions of this act shall be for cash. All money received for such sales and leases shall be paid into the state treasury by the secretary of state. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 13.]

SEC. 2900-a15. Expenses of survey, appraisement and advertising—how paid. The expenses of the survey and the appraisement, the expenses of the secretary of state or the clerk of the state land office in making the trip into the county to select the commissioners to appraise the land, the expenses of advertising and re-advertising for sale of the land, and the expenses of re-appraising whenever such re-appraisement is deemed necessary, shall be certified by the secretary of state to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant for the amount, and the same shall be paid out of the general fund. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 14.]

SEC. 2900-a16. Lands in possession of person or corporation for ten or more years—how sold. Provided, however, if any lands in the present or in any former channel of any navigable river, or island therein, or any lands formed by accretion or avulsion in consequence of the changes of the channel of any such river, have been for ten years or more in the possession of any person, company or corporation, or of his or its grantors or predecessors in interest under a bona fide claim of ownership, and the person, company or corporation so in possession, or his or its grantors or predecessors in interest, have paid state or county taxes upon said lands for a period of five years, and have in good faith and under bona fide claim of title, made valuable improvements thereon, and also in any other case where, in the judgment of the executive council, the person in possession of any land subject to the provisions of this act, has, in equity and good conscience, a substantial interest therein, then the said lands shall be sold to the person, company or corporation so in possession thereof as herein-after provided. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 15.]

SEC. 2900-a17. Notice—action to determine title and value—patent. When any person, company or corporation so in possession of any such lands shall give to the secretary of state written notice of his or its claim, or whenever the executive council shall deem it advisable, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to bring an action in equity, in the district court of the county in which said lands are situated, against the party in possession thereof to determine the title of the state to such lands, and the value thereof, exclusive of improvements made thereon by the occupant or by his or its grantors or predecessors in interest. If the person, company or corporation in possession of such land shall, after the court has determined the value thereof as herein provided, tender to the secretary of state the amount adjudged to be the value of said lands, exclusive of improvements made thereon by the occupant or by his or its grantors or predecessors in interest, a deed or patent of such land shall be executed by the governor, attested by the secretary of state, and delivered to the person, company or corporation making such tender, as provided by law. If the person, company or corporation so in possession shall fail to pay to the state the amount so adjudged within six months after the final determination of the action so brought by the state, then said lands shall be subject to the other provisions of this act. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 16.]

SEC. 2900-a18. Applications under former law — deposit money refunded. All applications for the purchase of any such lands, filed under the provisions of chapter one hundred and eighty-five (185) of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly, shall, if the applicants so desire, stand as applications under this act, and such land shall, unless the same fall within the provisions of sections fifteen (15) and sixteen (16) hereof, be appraised and sold as herein provided. If the land described in any application is covered by the provisions of sections fifteen (15) and sixteen (16) of this act, and notice thereof is given to the secretary of state as provided in section sixteen (16) hereof, no deed or patent of such land, or any part thereof, shall be executed or issued until the title thereto shall have been established by the court as herein provided. If the party making such application, or his assignee, does not desire to prosecute his application, or if he does not purchase the land under this act, then all of the money deposited by him with the secretary of state under the provisions of chapter one hundred and eighty-five (185) of the acts of the thirtieth general assembly, shall be repaid to said applicant by the secretary of state; and if any part of the money so deposited has been expended by the secretary of state, then the amount so expended shall be certified by the secretary of state to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant upon the general fund in favor of the person entitled thereto. [31 G. A., ch. 212, § 17.]

OF MEANDERED LAKES AND LAKE BEDS.

SECTION 2900-a19. Survey and sale authorized—canals. The executive council of the state is hereby authorized and empowered to survey the meandered lakes and lake beds within this state, and sell the same as hereinafter provided, and to determine what lakes shall be maintained as the property of the state and what meandered lake beds belonging to the state may be drained, improved, demised or sold, and to grant authority to construct, equip and maintain canals between any of such lakes so maintained, where the public convenience requires it, said grant to be for such time and upon such terms as it may determine. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 196.]

SEC. 2900-a20. Signed statements—survey—report. Upon the presentation to the executive council of a statement signed by not less than fifty (50) freeholders, twenty of whom shall be actual residents of the township or townships in which said lake or lake beds are situated, of any county that any meandered lake or lake bed in such county is detrimental to the public health or the general welfare of the citizens of the county, and that it is unwise to maintain such meandered lake or lake bed as a permanent body of water, and that the interest of the state will be subserved by draining and improving such lake bed, the governor shall, within thirty (30) days after the receipt of such statement, appoint a competent engineer who shall at once examine the situation and condition of such lake or lake bed, make a survey and plat thereof, and ascertain whether its location is such that it can be drained and improved, and make a full report to the executive council of the area and depth of water in the lake and of its general physical condition, which report shall be accompanied by his plat, field notes and profile of his survey. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a21. Hearing—commissioner—notice. Upon receipt of the report of the engineer, the executive council shall determine whether such lake or lake bed shall be maintained and preserved as the property of the state, or whether the same shall be drained, improved and the land included within the meander lines thereof sold in the manner hereinafter specified; and to that end they may hear evidence upon any question involved in such determination at such time and place within the county, or within the counties if more than one, as may be fixed by the council, and may appoint a commissioner to take evidence in the county or counties, if more than one, in which the lake or lake bed is located, or at such other place or places within the state as may be directed by the executive council; and notice of the time and place of hearing by the council or by such commissioner shall be published once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper within the county, or in a newspaper within each of the counties if more than one, where the lake or lake bed is located, the last publication being at least ten (10) days prior to the day fixed for such hearing. The compensation of such commissioner shall be fixed by the executive council, which compensation and the cost of the publication of such notice shall be paid from the state treasury upon the order of the council. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a22. Preservation or sale—drainage. If the executive council shall determine that such lake or lake bed ought not to be drained, demised or sold, the same shall be kept and maintained as the property of the state for the benefit of the general public. If the executive council shall determine that it is to the interest of the state and the general public that the lake or lake bed, as to which the statement is presented, be drained, improved, demised or sold, it may permit the same to be drained under the provisions of the drainage law of the state, and the land included within the meander lines of such lake, which belongs to the state, shall bear its just proportion of the expense of draining such lake and shall be assessed for such expense in the same manner as the lands of private individuals are permitted to be assessed under the drainage laws of the state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a23. Power to sell and convey—deed or patent. When ever the executive council shall determine that any lake or lake bed within the state should be drained, improved, demised or sold, it shall have the right, either before or after such lake or lake bed is drained, to sell and convey by deed or patent the land lying within the meander lines of such lake or lake bed and which belongs to the state; and express authority is hereby given to the executive council to make such sale or sales for and in behalf of the state and to execute and deliver to the purchaser of such land the necessary deed or patent to insure to him title thereto, which deed or patent shall be executed by the governor in behalf of the state, and have the seal of the state attached thereto. But no sale of any of the lands composing any of the lake beds of the state shall be made by the executive council until a complete survey thereof has been made and the same sub-divided to correspond with the government sub-divisions of public land. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 5.]

SEC. 2900-a24. Appraisement. After such lake or lake bed has been surveyed and the land composing the same sub-divided as hereinbefore required, and a plat of such survey filed with the secretary of state, and the county auditor of the county in which said lake or lake bed is situated, the lands belonging to the state which lie within the meander lines of the original government survey, and composing the lake beds, shall be appraised by a commission appointed by the governor, consisting of three (3) disinterested freeholders of the state, one of whom shall be a resident of the county in which the land is situated, who shall examine and appraise said land, and return a written report of such appraisement to the governor, which report shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 6.]

SEC. 2900-a25. Sale—abutting land owners—grantee of county deemed bona fide purchaser—conveyance to counties—when. After the report of the appraisers has been received and filed in the office of the secretary of state, the executive council shall offer the land belonging to the state and composing such lake bed, and included in such survey and appraisement, for sale, and the persons owning lands abutting upon such lake bed and contiguous to lands owned by the state therein, shall have the first right to purchase the lands offered for sale by the state, in an amount sufficient to make the lands owned by them which abut upon the lake or lake bed and are contiguous to lands of the state, conform to the smallest government sub-divisions of public lands, at the price fixed by the appraisers. All other lands included in such survey and composing the lake bed belonging to the state, which may be sold under the provisions hereof, shall be sold for the highest price obtainable; but no sale of any of said land shall be made at less than the appraised value thereof. Provided, however, that in any case where it is made to appear to the executive council by a duly certified copy of the deed, certified to by the recorder of deeds and the county auditor of the county in which the lake or lake bed is situated, and by the sworn statement of the present owner, that the board of supervisors of the county in which such lake or lake bed is situated has heretofore, in good faith, sold and conveyed by deed, any lake or lake bed in such deed named, specified and described, to a bona fide purchaser who has paid to the county the reasonable value of such lake or lake bed, and who has heretofore paid taxes or made valuable improvements in such lake bed; then and in such case the governor shall execute, or cause to be executed, to the county in which such lake or lake bed is situated, a deed or patent, under the seal of the state, conveying to said county all the right, title and interest of the state of Iowa in and to such lake or lake bed, and the title so conveyed shall enure to the grantee of such lake or lake bed, holding the same under title derived from the county in which such lake or lake bed is situated, in the manner in this section provided. Any person or corporation to whom any county of this state has heretofore conveyed or attempted to convey any lake or lake bed in aid of, or because of the construction of any work of internal improvement, and which improvement was in fact constructed, shall be considered a bona fide purchaser who has paid to the county the reasonable value of such lake or lake bed within the meaning of this section, although in describing the said lake or lake bed in such conveyance apt words of description were not used and the said lake or lake bed was described as an unsurveyed portion or a numbered section of land, this amendment shall be operative notwithstanding any proceedings heretofore had under this chapter, provided an actual sale of said lake or lake bed involved, has not been made by the executive council prior to the passage of this act. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 7.] [32 G. A., ch. 197.]

SEC. 2900-a26. Cash sales—expenses. All sales of land under this act, except as otherwise provided in section seven of this act, shall be for cash, and the purchase price thereof shall be paid to the secretary of state and by him paid over to the state treasurer. All expenses of the survey of the lakes and lake beds herein provided for and the appraisement thereof, and all assessments made against the lands belonging to the state for draining such lakes or lake beds, shall be audited by the executive council and by it certified to the auditor of state and paid out of the general fund of the state treasury upon the warrant of the auditor of state. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 8.]

SEC. 2900-a27. Net proceeds. After deducting all costs and expenses connected with the survey, appraisement, drainage and sale of said lands, the net proceeds derived from the sale thereof shall be transmitted by the treasurer of state to the county treasurer of the county in which the land is situated, and the county treasurer to whom such proceeds are transmitted shall execute his receipt in duplicate for the same to the treasurer of state, and one of such receipts shall be filed in the office of the county auditor in the county where the land is located. The money received by the county treasurer shall be placed to the credit of the county road fund and expended under the direction of the board of supervisors in the same manner as other road funds. [30 G. A., ch. 186, § 9.]

CHAPTER 2-C.

OF ISLANDS IN THE WATERS OF THE STATE.

SECTION 2900-a28. Sale or lease authorized. That the executive council of the state be, and it is hereby, authorized and empowered to sell, convey, lease or demise any of the islands belonging to the state which are within the meandered banks of rivers in the state, and to execute and deliver a patent or lease thereof. Provided that nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to islands in the Mississippi or Missouri rivers. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 1.]

SEC. 2900-a29. Survey—appraisement—sale advertised—written bids. Before a sale of any island is made under the provisions of section one (1) hereof, the executive council shall cause a survey and plat of such islands to be made, showing its location and area, and the plat and notes of such survey shall be filed with the secretary of state. The land composing the island shall then be appraised by a commission appointed by the governor, consisting of three (3) disinterested freeholders of the state, who shall report their appraisal to the executive council. The sale of the island shall then be advertised once each week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the island is located, and proof of such publication filed with the executive council. The sale shall be made upon written bids addressed to the executive council of the state, and the advertisement shall fix the time when such bids will be received and opened. All bids shall be opened by the executive council at the time fixed, and the island may thereupon be sold to the highest bidder and at not less than its appraised value. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 2.]

SEC. 2900-a30. Lease—written bids. If it shall be deemed expedient to lease any such island, a lease thereof may be made upon written bids addressed to the executive council, and the island proposed to be leased shall be surveyed and platted, and notice of the leasing thereof and of the receiving and opening of bids shall be published, in the manner provided in section two (2) hereof, but no appraisalment shall be necessary. Upon the opening of the bids received by the executive council it may make a lease of such island to the highest bidder for such term as is deemed advisable. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 3.]

SEC. 2900-a31. Sales and leases for cash—expenses. All sales and leases must be for cash, and the money received therefor shall be paid into the state treasury. All expenses incurred in making the survey, plat, appraisalment, sale or lease of any such island shall be certified by the executive council to the auditor of state, who shall draw his warrant upon the state treasury for the amount, and the same shall be paid from the general fund. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 4.]

SEC. 2900-a32. Patent or lease. When any sale or lease of any island belonging to the state is made by the executive council as herein provided, the governor shall execute and deliver to the purchaser or lessee a patent or a lease thereof, as the case may be, duly attested by the seal of the state of Iowa. [30 G. A., ch. 187, § 5.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF PERPETUITIES AND GIFTS.

SECTION 2901. Disposition of property.

A railroad lease for a long term of years is not void under the statutory provisions against perpetuities. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. v. Trust Co., 82 Fed. 524; First Nat. Bank v. Sioux City Terminal R. & W. Co. 69 Fed. 441.

A restraint on alienation in violation of the statutory provision is invalid; but the language relied on as imposing such condition will be so construed if possible as to make it consistent with the grant. Hubbird v. Goin, 137 Fed. 822.

SEC. 2904-a. Acceptance of gifts, devises, or bequests authorized. Gifts, devises or bequests of property, real or personal, made to any state institution for purposes not inconsistent with the objects of such institution, may be accepted by its governing board, and such board may exercise such powers with reference to the management, sale, disposition, investment or control of property so given, devised or bequeathed, as may be deemed essential to its preservation and the purposes for which the gift, devise or bequest was made. [31 G. A., ch. 144.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

SECTION 2905. Conditional sales—recording.

Where a cash register was sold with a condition that the title should not pass to the purchaser until payment therefor was made, and there was no recorded instrument evidencing such sale, held that an attachment levied on the register and other property of the purchaser took priority over the title of the seller. National Cash Register Co. v. Broeksmit, 103-271.

A reservation of the title to the property by the vendor without recording is not valid as against a subsequent mortgagee without notice, although the subsequent mortgage is not recorded. Union Bank v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 105-136.

Prior to the enactment of this statutory provision, it was held that an innocent purchaser of the property from one in possession under a contract for conditional sale acquired no title thereto as against the original owner, unless the transaction was fraudulent. And under the statute, if the instrument is duly acknowledged and recorded, the purchaser acquires no title as against the original vendor, although the vendee has made an absolute contract to pay for the property, and has given notes for part of the purchase price. National Cash Register Co. v. Zangs, 127-710.

The instrument should be signed by the vendor or lessor; this is the plain provision of the statute. National Cash Register Co. v. Schwab, 111-605.

This section refers to sales which are to take effect on a condition to be performed by the vendee, and not to those conditioned on performance of some agreement by the vendor. Davis Gasoline Engine Works Co. v. McHugh, 115-415.

A conditional sale, such as is referred to in this section, involves delivery to the vendee as owner with reservation to the vendor of the title only for the purpose of security. Where the contract provides that there shall be no delivery until payment, the mere fact that the agent of the seller gives possession to the buyer for a temporary purpose does not bring the case within the provisions of the statute. Possession cannot be relied on as sufficient evidence of title. Gaar v. Nichols, 115-223.

To constitute a conditional sale, within the terms of the statute as to recording instruments evidencing such sale, there must be a delivery of possession to the purchaser with the intention of passing immediate ownership, subject only to the reservation of title to the seller as security for the purchase money. If the contract is conditional as to the transfer of ownership to the vendee, so that, on his failure to perform the condition no right as owner has passed to him, and no definite obligation to pay the purchase price has accrued, then the transaction is not a conditional sale, within the meaning of the statute. In such a case the vendee has only an executory and conditional agreement to purchase, and until he exercises his right under such agreement, he remains simply a bailee. Donnelly v. Mitchell, 119-432.

The fact that the purchaser from the conditional vendee is at the time of advancing the money already in possession will not defeat his right to protection as against an unrecorded conditional sale. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Maynard Sav. Bank, 123-640.

The seller of goods under a contract of conditional sale, reserving the title until the goods are paid for, may by intervention reclaim the goods before the performance of the condition from an assignee for the benefit of creditors, without previous demand. In re Assignment of Wise, 121-359.

In such case, if a note has been given to the seller, for the purchase price, the value of the goods reclaimed by him should be credited thereon, and the balance may be proved as a claim against the insolvent estate. Under such circumstances the recording of the instrument of conditional sale is immaterial. Ibid.

An unrecorded instrument of conditional sale being void as against the creditors of the buyer without notice, the property sold passes to the trustees in bankruptcy. In re Tweed, 131 Fed. 355.

While a general creditor having no lien upon the property is not protected by the recording act, the assignee in bankruptcy may assert the claims of such creditor against the mortgagee. The provisions of the bankrupt act preserve for the equal benefit of all the creditors of the bankrupt the same rights in and to property held by him that any one of them might have acquired therein by purchase from or seizure or sale under judicial process against him if bankruptcy proceedings had not ensued. In re Smith, 132 Fed. 301.

Section applied. Thomson v. Smith, 111-718.

SEC. 2906. Sales or mortgages—recording.

Change of possession: It is the retention of actual possession by the vendor or mortgagor without the recording of the written instrument evidencing the transaction which renders it invalid as to subsequent levy of attachment or execution, and in case of property not capable of immediate actual delivery the question is not to what extent there has been a manual act of transfer from the vendor to the vendee, but whether, at the time of the levy, the vendor still retains the possession which had previously been in him as owner of the property. Peycke v. Hazen, 119-641.

Possession in third person: This section does not apply where the property at the time of sale or mortgage is not in the possession of the vendor or mortgagor. Possession may be taken by symbolical delivery, as by the turning over of the key to the premises where the property is kept. Frank v. Levi, 110-267.

Where the mortgagor of household goods, who resided in another state, the mortgage not being recorded, rented a room in the place in this state, where she intended to reside, and stored the goods therein, held that the goods were in her possession and therefore subject to attachment by an officer levying execution thereon under a judgment against her, and not in the possession of the person from whom the room was rented so as to render recording unnecessary. Young v. Evans, 118-144.

Fraud: Under the circumstances of a particular case, held that mortgagees used reasonable dispatch in causing their mortgages to be filed for record and that therefore they were not guilty of fraud, although the mortgages were not recorded before credit was extended to the mortgagor. Spencer Co. v. Papach, 103-513.

Withholding from record does not alone render the mortgage fraudulent, nor is it fraudulent to provide in the mortgage that the mortgagor shall retain possession, sell at retail, and keep up the stock. Ward v. Parker, 128-124.

The taking of a mortgage upon property worth much more than the amount of the debt secured does not of itself render the mortgage void. Ibid.

The act of a creditor in withholding from record a chattel mortgage securing his debt, by agreement with the mortgagor, until the bankruptcy of the latter, while it may render the mortgage invalid as a lien as against subsequent creditors without notice, does not of itself affect his right to prove his debt in bankruptcy nor subordinate it to the claims of subsequent creditors. In re Ewald, 135 Fed. 168.

Innocent purchaser: A mortgagee under a mortgage to secure a pre-existing debt is not protected Flannigan v. Alt-house, 56-513; Meyer v. Evans, 66-179.

Where the mortgagee on the execution of the mortgage to secure an antecedent debt grants an extension of time on the debt secured he becomes entitled to protection under the recording laws. Union Bank v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co., 105-136.

A person cannot unlawfully seize the mortgaged property and then transform himself into an innocent purchaser thereof by an ex parte cancellation of a debt due him from the owner. Iowa Loan Co. v. Kimball Piano Co., 124-150.

Existing creditors: Failure to record a mortgage will not render it invalid as to a creditor whose claim antedates the giving of the mortgage. Garner v. Fry, 104-515.

A mortgagee whose mortgage is not recorded until after the death of the mortgagor is postponed to the claims of the prior creditors, and the administrator of the mortgagor in the interest of such creditors whose claims have been filed with him, may subject the property to the payment of such claims in priority to the lien of the mortgagee. Blackman v. Baxter, 125-118.

Actual notice: Notice to an agent, even though by information brought to his knowledge before the beginning of his agency, will be presumed to have been retained for a reasonable time. McClelland v. Saul, 113-208.

Priority in recording is not material. The question under the recording act is whether the mortgage prior in time is recorded before rights of others without notice thereof have accrued. Nicholson v. Aney, 127-278.

An attaching creditor taking with actual notice is not protected against an unrecorded mortgage. Notice is sufficient if such as to put a reasonable man upon inquiry which would certainly lead to the knowledge or discovery of the rights of the mortgagee. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114-444.

The burden is on the party claiming as against an unrecorded chattel mortgage to show that he took without notice. Diemer v. Guernsey, 112-393.

One who takes a mortgage from one in possession acquires priority over a vendee of the property under a prior sale which is not recorded, in the absence of actual notice of such sale. Martin v. Lesan, 129-573.

The burden is upon the vendee in such case to show actual notice to the mortgagee. Ibid.

A creditor whose claim antedates the execution of the mortgage must obtain a lien as by attachment or other levy upon the mortgaged property before notice actual or constructive of the mortgage in order to be protected against it on account of failure to record. Murphy v. Murphy, 126-57.

A mortgagee accepting his mortgage with knowledge of a condition imposed for the benefit of other mortgagees is bound by such condition, and cannot question the validity of the prior mortgage. First National Bank v. Reid, 122-280.

Description: A defective description may be cured by a subsequent delivery of the property to the mortgagee as against persons who have not acquired any right or interest before such delivery. Kelley v. Andrews, 102-119.

Where the chattel mortgage described several mares "and all increase of said mares and the increase of the increase," held, that such description included future increase of the animals described and not merely the increase in existence at the time of the execution of the mortgage. Hopkins Fine Stock Co. v. Reid, 106-78.

In determining whether particular articles are covered by a chattel mortgage on a stock of goods under the head of furniture and fixtures, the situation of the parties and all the surrounding circumstances may be considered in determining the intent. Brody v. Chittenden, 106-524.

In such case held that jewelers might be asked as witnesses to state whether regulators were regarded by the trade as part of the stock or as fixtures or as tools. Ibid.

The term "furniture" used in a chattel mortgage of a stock of jewelry may cover implements and instruments used in the business. Ibid.

For the purpose of sufficiently describing certain animals to be selected from a large number, it is not sufficient to allege merely characteristics common to the animals to be described and others, and if the essential distinction, such as a peculiar mark or brand, is not established, the description is not sufficient. Packers' National Bank v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 122-503.

Therefore held that a general description accompanied with the designation of a particular brand was not sufficient to constitute notice, it appearing that the brand had not been placed upon the animals at the time when it was important for the purchaser to know which animals were covered by such mortgage. Ibid.

No sufficient description is afforded by the sweeping statement to the effect that the instrument is intended as a conveyance to the mortgagee of all the property that the mortgagor has, or all that he ever expects to have, and the record of such conveyance does not impart notice to a purchaser of the property. Farmers & Merchants Bank v. Stockdale, 121-748.

The description of property in a chattel mortgage to be sufficient as against third persons having constructive notice only must be such as that the property can be identified by reference to the instrument itself, aided by such inquiries as may be indicated or directed thereby. Ibid.

Where there is no statement as to possession, ownership or location of the property, but only an enumeration of items, the description is insufficient to impart constructive notice. Iowa Lumber Co. v. Cassidy, 107-564.

Where the mortgage named certain items of property, and indicated by its provisions that the mortgagor was the owner of an interest in the property, and that it was located in the county where it was recorded, held that the description was sufficient to impart record notice. Preston v. Caul, 109-443.

In order that the record of a chattel mortgage be constructive notice the description of the property must be sufficiently definite so that one examining the record may be able from such description to ascertain the property with reasonable certainty. Westinghouse Co. v. McGrath, 131-226.

And held that a description which gave only the location of the property as within the county and the name of the owner of the property and its general character, but did not specify the particular location nor the possession of such property was not sufficient. Ibid.

The description in a chattel mortgage of "25 acres of corn hereafter to be grown in Franklin county" held not to be sufficient as against a purchaser without actual notice. Farmers & Merchants Bank v. Stockdale, 121-748.

A description in a chattel mortgage of "one hundred and one yearlings and two-year-olds, branded with the letter F on left hip," held sufficient to warrant the introduction of parol evidence to show that the description was used with reference to certain animals intended by the parties to be covered by the mortgage. Frick v. Fritz, 115-438.

Whether or not the instrument on its face contains sufficient description to identify any property is always a question for the court; but whether or not, being sufficient in law, it is sufficient to cover the property in dispute where extrinsic evidence shows some mistake in the description is a question for the jury under proper instructions. Livingston v. Stevens, 122-62.

Whether certain property, corresponding to the description in the mortgage, was intended to be included is for the jury, while it is for the court to say whether the description is sufficient to impart notice of such an intention to third persons. Chipman v. Weiny, 112-702.

The whole description should be considered in determining whether or not a third person aided by the inquiry which the instrument itself suggests would be enabled to identify the property. It is error for the court to instruct that a defect or inaccuracy in the description is immaterial. Packers' National Bank v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 114-621.

Priority: Where sale of machinery was made to a tenant on condition that it should be set up on the premises, and a chattel mortgage given for the purchase price when accepted, held that the chattel mortgage took priority over the landlord's lien, although not recorded until some days after the machinery was set up and accepted. Davis Gasoline Engine Co. v. McHugh, 115-415.

The rights of a chattel mortgagee without notice of a prior unrecorded mortgage are superior to those of the holder of the prior mortgage, although possession thereunder was taken before the recording of the subsequent mortgage, and the prior mortgagee will not be given preference on the ground that he was a creditor. Sheets v. Poff, 123-714.

Books of account: No record is required of the assignment of books of account which are turned over to the assignee. Preston v. Peterson, 107-244.

Where possession in such case was delivered to the assignee, held that subsequent possession by the assignor for a temporary purpose would not render the sale invalid for want of recording. Ibid.

When recording necessary: An unrecorded mortgage is not invalid as between the parties. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114-444.

A contract with reference to a stock of goods which did not provide for any lien thereon or transfer of title thereto, held not to be within the terms of the recording law. Clement v. Swanson, 110-106.

Waiver of lien: Parol evidence is competent to establish as against the mortgagee in favor of the purchaser of the mortgaged property a system or course of dealing authorized by the mortgagee inconsistent with the provisions of the mortgage, and waiving the mortgagee's lien. Livingston v. Stevens, 122-62; Livingston v. Heck, 122-74.

The assignee of an unrecorded mortgage cannot maintain an action for conversion against one claiming under the mortgagor through a sale made in good faith with consent of the mortgagee and without notice actual or constructive of the assignment. Farmer v. Bank of Graettinger, 130-469.

Residence: The residence of the mortgagor where the chattel mortgage is to be recorded may be different from his legal domicile. Therefore held that a mortgage given by a railroad contractor on property in his possession in a county where he was at work, and in which he actually resided with his family while engaged in performing his contract was properly recorded in such county, although his residence there was only for a temporary purpose. In re Brannock, 131 Fed. 819.

Recording in another state: Recording of a chattel mortgage in North Dakota, where the mortgagor resides, held to be of no effect with reference to property covered by the mortgage situated in this state. Aultman & Taylor Mach. Co. v. Kennedy, 114-444.

As a general rule the law of the place where the property is situated at the time of the transfer governs the validity of the mortgage under the recording acts. Ibid.

Wife joining: A mortgage on one of three teams of horses, any one of which might be claimed as exempt from execution, is valid without the joinder of the wife therein. The acts of the husband in executing the mortgage constitute an election to claim one of the other teams rather than the team mortgaged as exempt. Grover v. Younie, 110-446.

A chattel mortgage on exempt property is not valid unless signed both by the owner and his wife. Nicholson v. Aney, 127-278.

Conceding that a mortgage of exempt property signed by the husband alone may afterwards be ratified and confirmed by the wife, such ratification will not relate back to the prejudice of intervening credits, lien holders or purchasers. Nicholson v. Aney, 127-278.

Whether an assignment of wages exempt from execution for a debt of the assignor must be in writing concurred in and signed by the wife of the assignor under the provision of Code § 2906 requiring encumbrances of exempt personal property to be so executed, quaere. Peterson v. Ball, 121-544.

An assignment of exempt earnings without the wife's consent is not prohibited by the requirement that she shall join in chattel mortgage of exempt property. Dowling v. Wood, 125-244.

CHAPTER 5.

OF REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 2912. Who deemed seized.

The owner of real property is presumed to be in possession thereof until adverse possession has been taken by another. Britt v. Gordon, 132-431.

SEC. 2913. Estate in fee simple.

A fee may be created without the use of the word "heirs," and where a conveyance was made to the wife without limitation in the granting clause, but with a subsequent condition that the property was for her sole use and that she was not to have the privilege of deeding or mortgaging it, held that the granting clause vested in the wife a fee title, and that the condition was void as a restraint upon alienation. Teany v. Mains, 113-53.

SEC. 2914. Conveyance passes—grantor's interest.

A remainderman who has a possibility coupled with an interest which may at some future time ripen into an estate, has such interest as will support a conveyance by him to another. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123-413.

SEC. 2915. After-acquired interest.

Under a warranty deed a title subsequently acquired by the grantor inures to the grantee. Hays v. Marsh, 123-81.

SEC. 2916. Property in adverse possession of another.

Possession is not essential to the validity of a lease. Beck v. Minnesota & Western Grain Co., 131-62.

SEC. 2917. Future estates.

An estate may be created, to begin in the future, and the grant of such an estate, while it passes no present title, does pass a present interest. Lewis v. Curnutt, 130-423.

While estates may be created to commence at a future day, the title is and must be in some one at all times. Wales v. Sammis, 120-293.

Estates may be created by devise to commence at a future day, and a vested remainder may be supported by an estate for years. Shafer v. Tereso, 133-342.

SEC. 2918. Declarations of trust.

Express trusts: An express trust cannot be shown by parol evidence. Hays v. Marsh, 123-81; Ostenson v. Severson, 126-197.

In the absence of documentary evidence of an express trust it cannot be established. Hoon v. Hoon, 126-391.

Deeds which recite consideration as paid cannot be shown by parole to create a trust in favor of the grantor as against the grantee. Byerly v. Sherman, 126-447.

A deed reciting a consideration in hand paid cannot by parol evidence be converted into an instrument creating a trust. Willis v. Robertson, 121-380.

The requirement that an express trust must be evidenced in writing has no reference to trusts in personal property. In re Estate of Fisher, 128-18.

A trust of personal property may be established by parol. Meritt v. Torrance, 129-310.

An agreement by a mortgagee taking title to the property at foreclosure sale that he will reconvey on payment of the amount due under the mortgage amounts to the creation of an express trust which cannot be established by parol. Donaldson v. Empire Loan & Inv. Co., 130-467.

An agreement to take title by sheriff's deed by way of security for an indebtedness is not an agreement for an express trust which must be in writing but it gives rise to a resulting or constructive trust. McElroy v. Allfree, 131-112.

Section applied. Gregory v. Bowsby, 115-327.

Resulting trust: The theory of a resulting trust is that he who supplies the purchase money intends it to be for his own benefit and not for that of another and that the conveyance is taken in the name of another as a matter of convenience or arrangement between them. If two or more advance the price and the deed is taken in the name of one only, a trust will result in favor of the other for a share proportionate to the part of the price paid. Payment to raise a trust pro tanto must be for an aliquot part of the property. The burden being on the party alleging the trust to clearly establish it, the evidence must show that payment for an aliquot part was intended. Culp v. Price, 107-133.

A father paying the purchase price of land, the title being taken in his son's name, has a resulting trust therein unless the money paid is by way of advancement. But before the legal title will be disturbed the resulting trust must be established by clear and satisfactory evidence, and the presumption that the law raises that the conveyance is by way of advancement must be overcome by proof to the contrary intention. Ibid.

The father's testimony as to his intention is competent in such a case as are also his declarations made at the time. The fact that the son has already been provided for and that the father and other children are left unprovided for may also be taken into account. Ibid.

Evidence that the consideration for a conveyance was to be furnished after it was delivered will not show a resulting trust. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107-369.

Where the trustee or other fiduciary buys property in his own name, but with trust funds, a resulting trust arises under the operation or construction of law. Williams v. Williams, 108-91.

Constructive trusts: An express agreement creating a trust cannot be proven by parol evidence, and the breach of an express promise to hold title for another will not constitute fraud on which a court of equity will build up a constructive trust. Andrew v. Andrew, 114-524.

An express trust in real estate cannot be established by parol evidence, and the breach of an express trust created by parol as to real estate will not of itself constitute fraud on which a court of equity will build up a constructive trust. Heddleston v. Stoner, 128-525.

Mere breach of an express promise or refusal on the part of an alleged trustee to execute the trust reposed in him, however reprehensible, will not be sufficient to remove the bar of the statute and allow a trust in realty to be established by parol evidence. Newis v. Topfer, 121-433.

But this rule does not apply where it is made to appear that fraud has entered into the transaction. Ibid.

While an express trust cannot be established by oral evidence it is competent to show fraud in a conveyance by taking advantage of confidential relations existing between members of a family so as to give rise to a constructive trust. Gregory v. Bowsby, 126-588.

Testamentary transactions: This provision appears to relate to transactions other than those of a testamentary nature. Moran v. Moran, 104-216.

Parol evidence is admissible to affix a trust to an unconditional devise only where it shows that the devisee by fraud induced the testator to make the devise on the representation that the devisee would take in trust for another who was the real object of the bounty. Ibid.

SEC. 2919. Conveyances by married women.

This section does not authorize the execution by the wife to the husband of a power of attorney, authorizing him to convey her contingent dower interest in his property. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114-489.

The wife may control or contract with reference to her property in the same manner as other persons, and held that a quitclaim by the wife to the grantee of her husband claiming under a deed in which the wife did not join was effectual to cut off the wife's contingent right of dower. Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N. W. 808.

SEC. 2922. Title and possession of mortgagor.

Lawful possession of the premises by the mortgagee can only be obtained by the consent, express or implied, of the mortgagor who is deemed to hold the legal title. Boggs v. Douglass, 105-344.

The grantor in a conveyance which is found to be a mortgage is entitled to possession and ownership of the crops until the expiration of the statutory period for redemption, after a decree determining the nature of his rights. Harrington v. Foley, 108-287.

In this state a mortgage does not create an estate, but simply a lien or charge upon the land to secure the debt. Adams v. Holden, 111-54.

SEC. 2923. Tenancy in common.

Conveyances or devises to two or more create a tenancy in common unless a contrary intent is expressed. Gilmore v. Jenkins, 129-686.

A conveyance to two or more gives rise to a tenancy in common and not to a general tenancy. Anderson v. Acheson, 132-744.

A conveyance to husband and wife creates a tenancy in common. Bader v. Dyer, 106-715.

One of several tenants in common can maintain an action of forcible entry and detainer against a lessee. The possession of one tenant is presumed to be in support of the common title of all. Willis v. Weeks, 129-525.

SEC. 2924. Vendor's lien.

The mere taking of a note for the purchase price does not waive the vendor's lien. In order to so operate it must be shown by a clear preponderance of the evidence that such was the express agreement of the vendor. Zook v. Thompson, 111-463.

The vendor executing a voluntary conveyance without any agreement for a consideration, is not entitled to a vendor's lien for the purchase price. Ostenson v. Severson, 126-197.

This section has no reference to one who takes property subject to a vendor's lien. Owen v. Higgins, 113-735.

SEC. 2924-a. Rule in Shelley's case abolished. The rule or principle of the common law known as the "rule in Shelley's case" is hereby abolished and is declared not to be a part of the law of this state. [32 G. A., ch. 159, § 1.]

SEC. 2924-b. Estate not enlarged. No express devise, bequest or conveyance of an estate for life or other limited estate in real or personal property shall be enlarged or construed to pass any greater estate to the devisee, legatee, or grantee thereof by reason of any devise, bequest or conveyance to the heirs, heirs of the body, children, or issue of such devisee, legatee or grantee, provided that the passage of this act shall not in any manner or under any circumstances be so construed as to impair or affect the vested rights of any person in or to any lands or estates acquired prior to the taking effect hereof. [32 G. A., ch. 159, § 2.]

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE CONVEYANCE OF REAL ESTATE.

SECTION 2925. Recording.

Effect of recording: An instrument which is not in fact signed by the grantor nor acknowledged by him is not properly or lawfully recorded and imparts no notice and no one has a right to rely upon the fact that he apparently signed such instrument. Sherod v. Ewell, 104-253.

In searching the records of titles the searcher should go back of the day and hour at which the evidence of title in the holder in question was filed for record and examine the title with reference to any conveyance and incumbrance by such holder after the date of the conveyance under which he holds title. Higgins v. Dennis, 104-605.

Therefore, the searcher of title is charged with notice of an incumbrance recorded on the same day as and prior to the record of the conveyance by which title was acquired by the person executing such incumbrance, provided the incumbrance was executed after the actual execution of the conveyance. Ibid.

The law takes no notice of fractions of days with reference to the execution of deeds and mortgages where the order of their execution does not appear. Ibid.

Subsequent purchasers: An attaching creditor is not a subsequent purchaser for value. An unrecorded deed or other instrument creating a lien will take precedence over a subsequent attachment and a purchaser at judicial sale is bound to take notice of all instruments recorded up to the date of the same. Rea v. Wilson, 112-517.

Even though an unrecorded mortgage by mistake does not describe the land intended to be covered thereby, still the judgment lien is not entitled to priority over the unrecorded mortgage. Such priority accrues only in favor of the purchaser at judicial sale without notice of the mortgage. Ibid.

An attaching creditor is not a purchaser, but takes only the interest which his debtor had in the land at the time of attachment. Consequently an unrecorded deed or prior equity takes precedence over his attachment. But a purchaser at judicial or sheriff's sale, whether he be the judgment creditor or a stranger, is a purchaser, and is generally protected from prior unrecorded deeds or equities. Bush v. Herring, 113-158.

A pre-existing indebtedness is a valuable consideration for the execution of a mortgage as between the parties and all others having no equitable interest in the property at the time of its execution. Ibid.

While the recording of a deed is not essential as against an attaching creditor, its delivery is. Parlin, O. & M. Co. v. Martin, 111-640.

An execution purchaser of an heir's interest in realty does not acquire priority over the right existing against the heir to deduct advancements from such interest. Pinckney v. Collie, 114-441.

A subsequent purchaser is not bound to look beyond the property index for information as to conveyances, and if the index shows none, there is no constructive notice. Koch v. West, 118-468.

One who pays money for a sheriff's certificate of sale becomes a purchaser entitled to protection under the recording acts. Ibid.

Inadequacy of consideration alone is not sufficient to defeat the claim of one who is otherwise entitled to protection as a purchaser. Ibid.

The term "subsequent purchasers" is used to describe purchasers claiming under a common grantor. One who has commenced an action affecting the title is not, by reason of the provision of Code § 3543 relating to lis pendens, entitled to protection as a subsequent purchaser as against an unrecorded deed. Noyes v. Crawford, 118-15.

A judgment creditor is not a purchaser under the recording act. Foster v. Hobson, 131-58.

The assignee of an ordinary judgment stands, as a rule, in no better position than his assignor with reference to unrecorded instruments. But an assignee of a mortgage which has gone to foreclosure may stand in a better position. Raymond v. Whitehouse, 119-13.

For valuable consideration: A mortgagee in a mortgage executed to secure a pre-existing debt is not a bona-fide purchaser entitled to priority of lien over a prior unrecorded mortgage on the property. Smith v. Moore, 112-60.

The mere fact of failure to record can only be taken advantage of by a creditor who has changed position or extended credit on the strength of apparent ownership in the grantor. Atkinson v. McNider, 130-281.

Without notice: Although one who takes by quit-claim deed is not an innocent purchaser, and is charged with notice of equities, yet one who takes from such purchaser by warranty deed for value is not affected by outstanding equities of which he had no notice. Hannan v. Seidentopf, 113-658.

The burden of proof is upon the purchaser claiming in hostility to an unrecorded deed to show that he was a purchaser for value without notice. Ibid.

Possession by a tenant is notice, not only of his own rights, but of the rights of the landlord. Ibid.

One who acquires title to property is bound to know not only the rights of those in possession, but also the fact of such possession. Ibid.

A claim of a tenant in common for contribution on account of expenses with reference to the common property is not chargeable against a purchaser of the co-tenant's interest without notice, unless by reason of the possession of the tenant who has incurred such expense, notice is implied. Rippe v. Badger, 125-725.

By acquiescence and silent admission the mortgagee whose mortgage is not recorded tacitly represents to any one acquiring an interest in the property that the mortgagor is the owner of the title, free from incumbrance, and a subsequent purchaser for a consideration does not have the burden of proving want of actual notice. Under such circumstances it is for the mortgagee to show notice to the subsequent purchaser of the prior unrecorded mortgage. Walter v. Brown, 115-360.

The rule that a person holding a conveyance by quitclaim is bound to take notice of defects in his grantor's title does not apply to a purchaser in good faith from one who takes by conveyance in fraud of creditors. Klay, Admr., v. McKellar, 122-163.

SEC. 2926. Acknowledgment.

The unsupported testimony of the person whose acknowledgment is duly certified by a proper officer, that no such acknowledgment was made, is not sufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of the certificate. Swett v. Large, 122-267.

SEC. 2930. Entries of transfers—or transcript. Whenever a deed of unconditional conveyance of real estate or transcript as provided in section four thousand two hundred and fifty-nine (4259) is presented, the auditor shall enter in the index book, in alphabetical order, the name of the grantee, and opposite thereto the number of the page of the transfer book on which such transfer is made; and upon the transfer book he shall enter in the proper columns the name of the grantee, the grantor, date and character of the instrument, the description of the real estate, and the number or letter of the plat on which the same is marked. [C., '73, § 1951.] [27 G. A., ch. 106, § 2.]

SEC. 2935. Repeal—indexes. That section twenty-nine hundred and thirty-five (2935) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

The recorder must keep index books, the pages of which are so divided as to show in parallel columns:

1. Each grantor;
2. Each grantee;
3. The time when the instrument was filed;
4. The date of the instrument;
5. The nature of the instrument;
6. The book and page where the record thereof may be found;
7. The description of the real estate conveyed;

Separate index books shall be kept for mortgages and satisfactions or releases of same; one for those containing descriptions of lots, and one for those containing lands; and separate books for other conveyances of real estate; one for lots, and one for lands. Also he shall keep an index book for powers of attorney and affidavits as provided for in section twenty-nine hundred fifty-seven (2957) of the code. All of above indexes to be arranged alphabetically in accordance with section twenty-nine hundred thirty-seven (2937) and indexed inversely in name of grantee, and in case of affidavits each and every affidavit filed for record shall be indexed in appropriately ruled columns as follows:

Affidavit.	Concerning Whom.	Concerning Lands in.							Remarks.
		Lot	Blk.	Addi-tion	Town	Sec.	Twp.	Rng.

Affiant.	Date of Filing.					Date of Instrument.			Where Recorded
	Month	Day	Year	Hour		Month	Day	Year	Book	Page
				A. M.	P. M.

[32 G. A., ch. 158.]

A subsequent purchaser is not bound to look beyond the property index for information as to conveyances, and if the index shows none, there is no constructive notice. Koch v. West, 118-468.

SEC. 2938. How recorded.

In matters relating to the record of title one may rely upon the public records as written, and the doctrine of idem sonans is not applicable where the initial letters which govern the indexing are not the same; but that doctrine may be relied on to overcome a difference of spelling in other portions of the name. Boyd v. Boyd, 128-699.

SEC. 2941. Town lots. The recorder shall index and record all deeds, mortgages and other instruments affecting lots in cities, towns or villages, the plats whereof are recorded, in separate books from those in which other conveyances of real estate are recorded. Where any instrument contains a description of both land, and lots in cities, towns or villages, the plats whereof are recorded, he shall record such instruments in but one record and charge but one fee, but shall index in both land and town lot indexes. [C., '73, § 1947; R., § 2241.] [31 G. A., ch. 145.]

SEC. 2942. Acknowledgment of conveyances or incumbrances. The acknowledgment of any deed, conveyance or other instrument in writing by which real estate in this state shall be conveyed or incumbered, if made within this state, must be before some court having a seal, or some judge or clerk thereof, or some county auditor or his deputy, or justice of the peace within the county, or notary public within the county of his appointment or in an adjoining county in which he has filed with the clerk of the district court a certified copy of his certificate of appointment. And each of the officers above named is authorized to take and certify acknowledgements of all written instruments, authorized or required by law to be acknowledged. [25 G. A., ch. 52; 22 G. A., ch. 99; C., '73, §§ 277, 1955; R., §§ 201, 2226; C., '51, § 1217.] [27 G. A., ch. 96, § 1.]

What sufficient: Under statutory provisions prior to the present Code an acknowledgment by a deputy clerk of the district court was valid. Hilpire v. Claude, 109-159.

One having an interest, direct or contingent, in a conveyance, or its subject-matter, cannot take and certify an acknowledgment and the record of an instrument so acknowledged does not impart notice to third persons of the mortgagee's interest thereunder. But the mere fact that one is an officer of a corporation, or an agent of a co-partnership, does not disqualify him from taking an acknowledgment of an instrument made to his principal. Bardsley v. German-American Bank, 113-216.

Neither party to the conveyance can take his own acknowledgment of it before himself so as to entitle it to be recorded. Blackman v. Henderson, 116-578.

It is not competent for the cashier of a private bank as a notary public to acknowledge a mortgage executed to the bank. Farmers & Merchants Bank v. Stockdale, 121-748.

The authentication of the notary's seal to the certificate of acknowledgment is just as essential as his signature, and when the certificate lacks this the instrument cannot properly be recorded. Koch v. West, 118-468.

Legalizing acts: In a legalizing act declaring valid instruments defectively acknowledged, but duly recorded, held that the words "duly recorded" meant "actually recorded." Bresser v. Saarman, 112-720.

Such a legalizing act, relating in general to the recording of instruments defectively acknowledged, held applicable to an instrument of adoption. Ibid.

An act legalizing the recording of conveyances defectively acknowledged is not effective as against a purchaser in good faith without notice before the taking effect of the act. Blackman v. Henderson, 116-578.

Defects in the acknowledgment are cured by a subsequent legalizing act. Therefore held that a city plat defectively acknowledged became effectual upon the tion of a subsequent legalizing act and that from the time the legalizing act took effect the plat was acknowledged and recorded as required by law. Parriott v. Hampton, 111 N. W. 440.

LEGALIZING ACTS.

[For table of legalizing acts see front of volume.]

SEC. 2942-a. Acknowledgments legalized. That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing heretofore taken or certified, and which instruments have been recorded in the recorder's office of any county of this state, including acknowledgments of instruments made by any private or other corporation, or to which such corporation was a party, or under which such corporation was a beneficiary, and which have been acknowledged before or certified by any notary public who was at the time of such acknowledgment or certifying a stockholder or officer in such corporation, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid official acts of such notaries public, and to entitle such instruments to be recorded, anything in the laws of the state of Iowa in regard to acknowledgments to the contrary notwithstanding. [26 G. A., extra sess., ch. 23, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-b. Saving clause. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any action or suit now pending in any court of this state. [26 G. A., extra sess., ch. 23, § 2.]

SEC. 2942-c. Legal and valid. That all acknowledgments of instruments, in writing, taken and certified according to the provisions and form prescribed by the code of 1873, which were taken and certified after the twenty-ninth day of September, 1897, and prior to the passage of this act, by officers having authority under the provisions of the code of 1873 to take and certify acknowledgments, are here declared to be legal and valid, and of the same force and effect as though the same were taken and certified according to the form and provisions of the code; and as though the officers taking and certifying the same were authorized to take and certify acknowledgments. [27 G. A., ch. 165, § 1.]

When one pays a valuable consideration against an instrument defectively recorded, for a sheriff's certificate of sale he acquires such vested right as to protect him notwithstanding a legalizing act subsequently passed. Koch v. West, 118-468.

SEC. 2942-d. Acknowledgments by interested stockholders. That all deeds and conveyances of lands within this state heretofore executed but which have been acknowledged or proved according to and in compliance with the laws of this state before a notary public or other official authorized by law to take acknowledgments who was, at the time of such acknowledgment, an officer or stockholder of a corporation interested in any such deed or conveyance, or otherwise interested therein, are, if otherwise valid, hereby declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though acknowledged or proved before an officer not interested therein; and if heretofore recorded in the respective counties in which such lands may be, the records thereof are hereby confirmed and declared effectual and valid in law to all intents and purposes as though said deeds and conveyances, so acknowledged or proved and recorded, had (prior to being recorded) been acknowledged or proved before an officer having no interest therein. [27 G. A., ch. 166, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-e. Acknowledgments defective in form—legalized. That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages or other instruments in writing, taken and certified previous to the passage of this act, and which have been duly recorded in the proper counties in this state, and which are defective only in the form of the certificate of the officer taking the same, or by reason of such acknowledgment having been made before an official not qualified to take the same, but who was at the time qualified to take acknowledgments generally, be and are hereby declared to be as legal and valid for all purposes as if the form of the certificate had been made in accordance with law, and the official taking such acknowledgments duly qualified therefor. [29 G. A., ch. 249, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-f. Legalizing conveyances under power of attorney to husband or wife. No conveyance of real estate heretofore made, wherein the husband or wife conveyed or contracted to convey the inchoate right of dower to the other spouse, acting as the attorney in fact, by virtue of a power of attorney executed by such spouse, such power of attorney not having been executed as a part of a contract of separation, shall be held invalid as contravening the provisions of section three thousand one hundred and fifty-four (3154) of the code, but all such conveyances are hereby legalized and made effective. [29 G. A., ch. 237, § 1.] [30 G. A., ch. 118.]

SEC. 2942-g. Acknowledgments heretofore taken legalized. That the acknowledgments of all deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing heretofore taken or certified, and which instruments have been recorded in the recorder's office of any county of this state, including acknowledgments of instruments made by any private or other corporation, or to which such corporation was a party, or under which such corporation was a beneficiary, and which have been acknowledged before or certified by any notary public who was at the time of such acknowledgment or certifying a stockholder or officer in such corporation, be and the same are hereby declared to be legal and valid official acts of such notaries public, and to entitle such instruments to be recorded, anything in the laws of the state of Iowa in regard to acknowledgments to the contrary notwithstanding. [31 G. A., ch. 146, § 1.]

SEC. 2942-h. Acknowledgments without seal legalized. All deeds, mortgages, or other instruments in writing, for the conveyance of lands which have heretofore been made and executed, and the officer taking the acknowledgment has not affixed his seal to the acknowledgment, such acknowledgment shall, nevertheless, be good and valid in law and equity, anything in any law heretofore passed to the contrary notwithstanding. [31 G. A., ch. 146, § 2.]

SEC. 2942-i. Saving clause. This act shall not affect the rights of parties in any action or suit now pending in any court of this state. [31 G. A., ch. 196, § 3.]

SEC. 2942-j. Certain conveyances of real estate legalized. In all cases where, prior to the year eighteen hundred seventy (1870), an executor, administrator, or guardian, duly appointed, qualified and acting as such in another state without being appointed and qualified in the state of Iowa, conveyed in such trust capacity, real estate lying in this state, and such conveyance has been of record since prior to the first day of January, eighteen hundred seventy one (1871) in the county where the real estate so conveyed is located, such conveyance shall not be held void or insufficient by reason of the fact that it does not appear in such conveyance, or of record otherwise in the state of Iowa, that said executor, administrator or guardian was duly appointed and qualified as such in the state of Iowa, or that due and legal notice of all proceedings with reference thereto was served upon all interested or necessary parties, or that such executor, administrator or guardian was duly authorized by any order of court in Iowa, or in the state in which such administrator, executor, or guardian was acting, to make and execute such conveyance, or that no bond therefor was given, or no report thereof made, or the sale of such real estate approved by the proper court, and all such conveyances, deficient or irregular in any of the particulars above enumerated, are hereby declared valid and legal. [32 G. A., ch. 248.]

WHEREAS, Certain mayors, under section six hundred ninety-one (691) of the code of 1897, have taken the acknowledgments of written instruments and administered oaths in proceedings not connected with the administration of their offices, and;

WHEREAS, Certain notaries public, whose commissions expired July 4th, 1906, and who continued to act as such notaries public and who have since qualified as notaries public, desire to have their acts as such notaries public legalized. Now, therefore,

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa:

SEC. 2942-k. Legalized. All acknowledgments and taking of affidavits made by the mayors and notaries public, as described in the preamble hereof, be and the same are hereby legalized and made of full effect, the same as though said mayors and notaries public had been originally empowered to take said acknowledgments and administer said oaths. [32 G. A., ch. 249.]

SEC. 2943. Out of state. When made out of the state but within the United States, it shall be before a judge of some court of record, or officer holding the seal thereof, or some commissioner appointed by the governor of this state to take the acknowledgment of deeds, or some notary public or justice of the peace; and when made before a judge, or justice of the peace, a certificate, under the official seal of the clerk or other proper certifying officer of a court of record of the county or district, or of the secretary of state of the state or territory, within which such acknowledgment was taken, under the seal of his office, of the official character of said judge, or justice, and of the genuineness of his signature, shall accompany said certificate of acknowledgment. [C., '73, § 1956; R., § 2245.] [27 G. A., ch. 97, § 1.]

SEC. 2943-a. Notarial seals of nonresidents. That the notarial seal which purports to have been affixed to any instrument in writing, by any notary public residing elsewhere than in the state of Iowa, shall be prima facie evidence that the words thereon engraved conform to the requirements of the law of the place where such certificate purports to have been made. [28 G. A., ch. 118, § 1.]

SEC. 2948. Certificate of acknowledgment.

The requirement of this section as to stating the full title of the person before whom the acknowledgment is made is not applicable to acknowledgments of other instruments with reference to which there is no such specific requirement and in the acknowledgment of articles of incorporation it is sufficient that the venue is stated at the beginning of the certificate, and the notary subscribes as a "notary public," without specifically reciting that he is a notary public in and for said county, it being presumed that an officer acts only within the limits of his authority. Smith v. Sherman, 113-601.

The fact that the certificate of acknowledgment is left blank as to the name of the party who makes the acknowledgment does not render such certificate invalid. Tennis v. Gifford, 133-372.

SEC. 2957. Power of attorney—recording—revocation.

The statutory provision authorizing the recording of affidavits explaining defects in a chain of title does not enable one claiming title by adverse possession to make out a title of record on which an abstract showing good title can be founded. Fagan v. Hook, 105 N. W. 155.

SEC. 2958. Forms of conveyances.

In the absence of warranty or of fraud inducing the conveyance there is no liability of the grantor for failure of title. Harrison v. Palo Alto County, 104-383.

CHAPTER 7.

OF OCCUPYING CLAIMANTS.

SECTION 2964. Proceedings.

This section has no application where the action is purely personal, seeking only a money judgment and not attempting to disturb either title to or possession of real property. Central Trust Co. v. Hubinger, 87 Fed. 3.

Loss or surrender of possession terminates the right to be regarded as an occupying claimant and to have relief as such under these statutory provisions. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116-48.

SEC. 2967. Color of title.

One who acquires title to real property in consideration of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, in violation of Code § 2423, and whose title is declared void on that account, cannot assert the rights of an occupying claimant with reference to improvements placed by him upon the premises. Lindt v. Uihlein, 116-48.

The statutory provisions as to occupying claimants furnish a special remedy, and one who seeks to avail himself of those provisions must bring himself within the statute and pursue the course indicated. Ibid.

The proceeding contemplated does not involve recovery of a personal judgment against the land owner, but is in the nature of the assertion of a lien on the property by the party in possession, accompanied by the right to retain such possession until the lien is satisfied. Ibid.

CHAPTER 8.

OF THE HOMESTEAD.

SECTION 2972. Exempt.

In general: Statutes are to be liberally construed in favor of homestead rights.

Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eyre, 107-13;
Edmonds v. Davis, 122-561.

Application of property to the payment of debts should be so made as to preserve, so far as possible, the homestead of the debtor. Shaffer v. Chernyk, 130-686.

In what property: A leasehold interest may be sufficient to support a homestead right. White v. Danforth, 122-403; In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

A homestead right may exist as to property held by an equitable title as effectually as though it were held by a legal title. Foster v. Rice, 126-190.

An existing homestead right is not lost and a new one created by a conveyance absolute in form, but which is in fact a mortgage only. Ibid.

Matured crops raised on the homestead are not within the statutory exemption. (Affirming S. C., 142 Fed. 620.) In re Sullivan, 148 Fed. 814.

Evidence in a particular case held not sufficient to show that certain property claimed as a homestead was exempt because the money used in its purchase was obtained from the sale of a former homestead. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Carroll, 109-564.

Purchase money: The homestead is not exempt from a claim for the purchase money. Clifton Land Co. v. Davenport, 130-94.

Disposal of homestead: The owner may dispose of the homestead without regard to the claims of creditors as to which the homestead is exempt. Dettmer v. Behrens, 106-585.

SEC. 2973. Family defined.

After the death of both the father and mother, the children or any number of them continuing to reside on the homestead property as members of the same family constitute a family, entitled to the homestead exemption. In re Rafferty, 112 Fed. 512.

To constitute one or more persons with another living together in the same house a family, it must appear that they are being supported by that other in whole or in part, and are dependent upon him therefor, and that he is under a natural or moral obligation to render such support. But the fact that the person thus dependent for support is an adult son does not prevent his being a member of the family of his mother. Sheehy v. Scott, 128-551.

The homestead statutes should be liberally construed, but to entitle the occupancy by a widow or widower to the homestead protection there must be a natural or moral obligation of support and a condition of dependence and actual support between such occupant and some person or persons residing with him or her on his premises. Therefore, held that a widower occupying premises and having

Rights of spouse: Both husband and wife are entitled to live upon and enjoy the homestead. But so long as the wife of the owner chooses to live elsewhere, she is not entitled to any benefit from it and the owner is entitled to have the full right to farm and cultivate it so long as he continues to live upon and occupy it as a homestead. Ehrck v. Ehrck, 106-614.

Failure to make the wife a party defendant in proceedings to foreclose a mortgage executed prior to the marriage will not entitle the wife to relief in an independent action. Her rights in the homestead are not in any way superior to the lien of such a mortgage. Browneller v. Wells, 109-230.

The husband is presumed to be the head of the family, and the homestead premises to be under his control, although the legal title is in the wife. Burch v. Lowary, 131-719.

Trustee in bankruptcy: A trustee in bankruptcy may maintain an action to require the setting off of the homestead of the bankrupt and subjecting the remainder of his property to the payment of claims of creditors. Duffield v. Dosh, 124-286.

An insolvent debtor cannot use non-exempt assets for the purchase of a homestead, and thus put it beyond the reach of the trustee in bankruptcy. Clarke v. Sherman, 128-353.

residing with him an adult daughter was entitled to a homestead in such premises. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126-481.

Under this section, as it stood in the Code of '73, which did not include the provision as to a party to whom the homestead is adjudged in a decree of divorce, held that such person did not have the homestead right while continuing to occupy the premises. Clemans v. Penfield, 111-511.

The provision as to cases of divorce is intended to apply to cases wherein the title to the homestead is in one of the parties to the divorce proceeding, and the court deems it proper to assign the homestead to the other so that the decree is the basis upon which the right to occupy the premises after the divorce is founded. In re Pope, 98 Fed. 722.

Where a married woman, after her adjudication as a bankrupt, was granted a divorce and awarded the homestead and the custody of a child, held that the homestead could not be subjected to the payment of her debts in the bankruptcy proceeding. In re Le Claire, 124 Fed. 654.

The provision that the divorced husband or wife to whom the homestead is awarded in the decree is entitled to retain it as exempt during continual personal occupancy was first inserted in the Code of 1897; whether it is retroactive, quaere. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126-481.

The primary object of the exemption is the protection of the family, and as a general rule, when the family ceases to exist the exemption also ceases. Therefore, held that where a widow with children acquired a homestead, her homestead rights in the premises terminated when the children ceased to reside with her. The exception as to continuance of the homestead right to the survivor remaining in possession of a homestead acquired during the existence of the marriage does not apply to such a case. Fullerton v. Sherrill, 114-511.

SEC. 2974. Conveyance or incumbrance.

In general: The homestead right is a favorite of the law, and the purpose of the statute is to require the utmost solemnity in the matter of its alienation. Such alienation must be by one instrument in the execution of which the husband and wife concur. Such conveyance cannot be effected by the action of the husband alone signing the instrument in his own right and under a power of attorney for his wife. Keeline v. Clark, 132-360.

Actual occupation by the family of the owner is sufficient declaration of the homestead character of the premises so that conveyance thereof can only be made by joint action of husband and wife. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128-401.

As by Code § 3157 conveyances between husband and wife are authorized, such a conveyance by one to the other of the homestead will be valid, although not executed by both. Beedy v. Finney, 118-276.

It seems that a sale by the husband alone of the fee title to the homestead, in which he reserves the right to use and occupy the property during the life of himself and wife, is valid and binding. Allbright v. Hannah, 103-98.

An agreement by the holder of the title as to the disposition to be made of the property after the homestead right in the premises has terminated is void without the joinder of the wife. Reilly v. Reilly, 110 N. W. 445.

The owner of the homestead may grant an easement therein without joinder by the husband or wife of such owner. Stokes v. Maxson, 113-122.

One who has acquired a homestead in premises for which he has a contract of purchase cannot transfer his rights under such contract without joinder of his wife in a joint written instrument and a subsequent acceptance of a lease of the property from one purchasing the legal title thereto subject to the contract will not enlarge the rights of creditors nor constitute an abandonment of the homestead. Duffield v. Dosh, 124-286.

Conveyance void: Failure of the wife to join in a conveyance of the homestead renders the conveyance invalid for any purpose. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 113-319.

Where persons living together as husband and wife under a claimed marriage which is invalid because the pretended husband has a former wife living undivorced, of which fact the pretended wife has no knowledge, a conveyance by the pretended husband of premises owned by him and used by the two as a home will not be invalid on account of failure of the pretended wife to join therein. Ibid.

A mortgage on the homestead in which the wife does not join is void, and the purchaser of the premises under foreclosure of such mortgage acquires no right thereto. Way v. Scott, 118-197.

Contract to convey: Where, under a contract by the husband having the legal title to convey the homestead, possession is given to the purchaser such contract is binding upon the wife upon the theory that by giving possession to the purchaser there is an abandonment of the homestead right. But in the absence of such delivery of possession as to constitute an abandonment, the contract of the husband without the assent of the wife is of no validity and the contract cannot be ratified so as to constitute an effectual conveyance save by the execution of a joint instrument in substantial compliance with the statute. Alvis v. Alvis, 123-546.

To constitute a valid conveyance there must be the concurrence of each with the knowledge of the other. Ibid.

The husband and wife must join in the execution of an instrument containing a granting clause applicable to each. It is not sufficient that one of them signs and acknowledges an instrument purporting to convey only the title of the other. Ibid.

A parol agreement to convey is not binding even though based upon good consideration and the payment of the consideration does not operate to create a trust in the homestead property in favor of the person making payment. Ibid.

A contract to convey a homestead in which the wife does not join is void as to both husband and wife, and no action for specific performance or for damages will lie as against either. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128-401.

No action for damages for breach of contract to convey a homestead, the wife not having joined in such contract, can be maintained as against the husband. Whelock v. Countryman, 133-289.

A contract to convey the homestead is void if not signed by both husband and wife. Caldwell v. Drummond, 127-134.

Where husband and wife join in a contract to convey the homestead, and the wife agrees that upon the performance of the contract she will execute a conveyance, relinquishing her statutory rights in and to the land, the contract may be enforced as against her. Cone v. Cone, 118-458.

Foreclosure may be had of a bond for a deed although the premises have been occupied as a homestead and the wife has not joined in the contract. Clifton Land Co. v. Davenport, 130-94.

Where the husband has received money under a contract to convey the homestead in which the wife does not join, an action may be maintained against him to recover the amount so paid. DeKalb v. Hingston, 104-23.

Ratification: Where a contract to convey the homestead was consented to by the wife, but the written contract was not signed by her until some time after its execution by her husband, and she then united with her husband in the execution of a deed in pursuance of the terms of the contract, held that there was such ratification of the contract by the wife that a suit for specific performance could be based thereon. Epperly v. Ferguson, 118-47.

While the wife may ratify a sale of the homestead by her husband, in which she has not joined, she cannot do so after the rights of third parties have intervened and her ratification would prejudice such rights. Stickley v. Widle, 122-400.

If the wife joins in a contract to convey the homestead after its execution by the husband and before the time for performance by delivery of a deed, and joins with her husband in executing the deed, which is tendered in performance of the contract, the vendee cannot rely upon the invalidity of the contract as excusing performance on his part. Ketterick v. Eastlack, 130-498.

Estoppel: The husband or wife of the owner may by conduct be estopped from setting up a homestead right as against one taking possession and making improvements under an oral contract of which the husband or wife has knowledge. Eastwodd v. Crane, 125-707.

Other property included: A deed covering other property together with the homestead may be valid as to the property not included in the homestead. Pryne v. Pryne, 116-82.

Where the owner of premises, a portion of which is used as a homestead, contracts to sell a part thereof, not including the improvements, and leaving enough property in extent and value to constitute the full homestead exemption, such contract is not invalid because of the failure of the husband or wife to join therein, though the portion sold might have been included in the homestead, had the owner elected to do so. The owner may select the homestead without the consent of the husband or wife. Hall v. Gottsche, 114-147.

Prior to the adoption of the provision it was held that a contract by the husband to convey land including the homestead would not be specifically enforced in the whole or in part. Ormsby v. Graham, 123-202.

Under the last clause of this section, which is first found in the present Code, the vendee under a contract to convey premises including a homestead may enforce his contract as to the portion not embraced in the homestead, the price to be paid being abated by deduction of the value of the portion embraced in the homestead. Townsend v. Blanchard, 117-36.

SEC. 2976. Liable for debts antedating purchase—by written contract.

Debts prior to acquisition: Where it is claimed that the homestead is liable for money borrowed to be used in paying therefor, it is not enough to show that the borrowed money was so used, but in order to confer a right to the lien it must also appear that it was a part of the contract that this should be done. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Carroll, 109-564.

To render the homestead liable for money borrowed to pay the purchase price it must appear that the indebtedness was incurred at the time the homestead right attached. Ibid.

Where at the time the homestead was taken possession of the indebtedness which was subsequently attempted to be enforced against it had not been incurred, held that the homestead was not liable to such indebtedness. Ibid.

The previously contracted debt for which a homestead may be sold on execution is one which has become a fixed obligation enforceable prior to the acquisition of the homestead. Anderson v. Kyle, 126-656.

In a particular case, held, that the evidence did not show that a note was executed in renewal of a prior note antedating the homestead so as to make the indebtedness a claim against the homestead. In re Gardner's Estate, 103-738.

The owner may make expenditures on the homestead and improvements thereto necessary to its preservation and suitability for homestead occupation, and the expenditures therefor are protected as a part of the homestead right, even as against indebtedness contracted before the making of the improvements, though after the acquisition of the homestead. Eber-sole v. Mott, 112-596.

The homestead law has always received liberal construction in favor of the homestead occupant out of consideration of public policy and the very humane and beneficent purpose that inspired the enactment of the law. Ibid.

As against a judgment on a note dated subsequent to the acquisition of the homestead, the homestead is prima facie exempt. And where it was contended that the note was executed for a debt previously existing, by reason of conversion by the owner of the homestead of money belonging to the payee of the note, held that the burden was on the payee of the note not only to show conversion, but that it occurred before the acquisition of the homestead. Walker v. Walker, 117-609.

Where husband and wife occupied as a homestead property acquired by the husband with pension money and conveyed to the wife at his direction, held that the title in the wife was subject to sale for her antecedent debts. Whinery v. McLeod, 127-11.

As the homestead is liable for pre-existing debts, an insolvent debtor cannot use non-exempt property for the acquisition of a homestead which will be preserved to him in bankruptcy proceedings. Clarke v. Sherman, 128-353.

Exhausting other property: It is not necessary to provide in a decree of foreclosure that the other real property covered by the lien shall be exhausted before resorting to the homestead. The statutes relating to homesteads make ample provision for the protection of homestead rights from sale on execution until other property of the judgment debtor is exhausted. Kilmer v. Gallaher, 107-676.

One who buys premises not constituting the homestead and assumes the payment of a mortgage covering such premises and also the homestead cannot afterwards enforce the mortgage as against the homestead. Moore v. Olive, 114-650.

The homestead is only secondarily liable for incumbrances to which it is subject with other property. Bissell v. Bissell, 120-127.

Where the entire property to be sold by the sheriff is included within the homestead right, there is no occasion for setting off or reserving from the sale, any portion as constituting the homestead; and if the property is subject to execution sale, a sale in gross may be proper. Edinger v. Bain, 125-391.

Lien of judgments: A judgment becoming a lien upon premises before the occupancy of such premises as a homestead may be enforced and the grantee does not have priority over the judgment lien. Therme v. Bethenoid, 106-697.

SEC. 2977. What constitutes.

Separate tracts: The homestead must embrace the house used as a home, and none other can be selected, but if there are two so used, either may be retained. Knorr v. Lohr, 108-181.

Under the provisions of the Code of '73, a homestead might consist of lots or tracts not contiguous, but in such case it must be shown that such lots or tracts were habitually and in good faith used as a part of the same homestead. Kelley v. Williams, 110-153.

While the homestead may consist of one or more contiguous lots or tracts, yet by changing the actual place of residence to other premises a lot which had previously been a part of the homestead by contiguity may cease to be homestead property. White v. Danforth, 122-403.

The homestead may be selected at any time before judicial sale, and no portion of the tract from which it may be selected is to be regarded as relinquished from the homestead rights, so long as the ownership and occupancy of the person claiming a homestead continues. Lutz v. Ristine, 112 N. W. 818.

Abandonment: An oral contract for the sale of the homestead, followed by possession taken thereunder, amounts to an abandonment of the homestead. Allbright v. Hannah, 103-98.

The homestead right is purely statutory, and for the benefit of the family; and it may be waived or abandoned. The right of occupancy as a homestead does not affect the legal title, and when such right ceases by the death of the occupant, title descends to the issue of the owner, unless otherwise directed by will. Reilly v. Reilly, 110 N. W., 445.

The question of the existence of a homestead right does not rest merely in intention. It arises from the fact of occupancy as a home, and ends only with abandonment in fact. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128-401.

An intention by the occupant of premises formed before his marriage to abandon the same as his residence is immaterial with reference to a homestead right arising on subsequent marriage. Hostetler v. Eddy, 128-401.

One who conveys his homestead loses the homestead right although he afterwards acquires title to the property. Jasper County v. Sparham, 125-464.

While there may be a homestead right in premises held under a contract to convey, yet where husband and wife consented that the vendor should treat the contract as forfeited by reason of provisions therein for forfeiture on non-payment of the purchase price, and the husband accepted a lease of the premises under which husband and wife continued to occupy, held, that the homestead right under the contract was abandoned. Anderson v. Cosman, 103-266.

Whether absence from the homestead shall be deemed an abandonment, or to have been with animus revertendi, depends on the facts of each particular case. Wapello County v. Brady, 118-482.

Occupancy of other property which could be claimed as a homestead is a strong circumstance tending to show an abandonment of the previous homestead. Ibid.

The owner of the homestead cannot have the option of choosing between two homes when either is seized by creditors. One or the other must be shown to have had that character prior to such seizure. Ibid.

When only verbal evidence of the animus revertendi is relied upon, the temptation opened to the witnesses interested is such as to call for careful scrutiny. Ibid.

After selecting and occupying a new homestead, the owner cannot claim the old homestead as exempt while being held for exchange or sale. Stickley v. Widle, 122-400.

When a person removes from his homestead for a temporary cause with the definite and settled purpose of returning, and that purpose is continuously held in good faith, there is no abandonment of the homestead right. Maguire v. Hanson, 105-215.

To constitute a homestead it is not sufficient that the claim is supported by the cultivation and use of the property. Actual occupation of the premises as a home for the owner and his family is required excepting in a few cases, as where a temporary absence from the home for authorized purposes will not affect its homestead character, or where the proceeds of one homestead are invested in property to be used for another homestead, in which case a reasonable time is allowed in which to make a change. But a mere intent to erect upon a lot or tract of land a house to be occupied as a home at some indefinite time, is not sufficient to give the property the homestead character. Ibid.

SEC. 2978. Extent—dwelling—appurtenances—value. If within a city or town plat, it must not exceed one-half acre in extent, otherwise it must not contain in the aggregate more than forty acres, but if, in either case, its value is less than five hundred dollars, it may be enlarged until it reaches that amount. It must not embrace more than one dwelling house, or any other buildings except such as are properly appurtenant thereto, but a shop or other building situated thereon, actually used and occupied by the owner in the prosecution of his ordinary business, and not exceeding three

Where there is no dwelling house to be occupied, the premises cannot constitute a homestead. Blue v. Heilprin, 105-608.

Where the homestead was abandoned by the owner without intention to return thereto, and two days later he made a conveyance of the premises, held, that the purchaser did not acquire the property free from debts which would have attached to it had it not been a homestead. Chambers v. Jackson, 106-6.

Removal from the homestead with intention to return only in a contingency which the owner wishes to avoid, as for instance if he intends "to go back to the place provided he cannot sell it," will constitute an abandonment. Conway v. Nichols, 106-358.

Where the evidence shows an intent to return, the period of absence alone being conditional, there is no abandonment. Rand Lumber Co. v. Adkins, 116-242.

A temporary removal from the premises with the intent of returning does not constitute an abandonment of the homestead. Lutz v. Ristine, 112 N. W., 818.

A temporary removal from the homestead and renting it to third parties will not be deemed an abandonment if the party having the homestead right intends to return and resume the occupancy thereof. In re Pope, 98 Fed., 722.

Although the husband who has a legal title to the homestead abandons it, nevertheless the wife is entitled to the same right therein, until cut off by proper proceedings, and the fact that she is in an insane asylum will not deprive her of such homestead right. Way v. Scott, 118-197.

Where the homestead character of the land is established, the burden of proof to show that it is liable for debts by reason of abandonment is upon the person making such claim. Robinson v. Charleton, 104-296.

Use: Where it appears that a room is used as a place of residence the owner should not be deprived of his statutory exemption because in the prosecution of his ordinary business the front windows and a portion of the room are devoted to that business. Edmonds v. Davis, 122-561.

Mere intention to occupy as a homestead in the future does not impress premises with the character of a homestead. White v. Danforth, 122-403.

hundred dollars in value, is appurtenant thereto. [C., '73, §§ 1996-7; R., §§ 2884-5; C., '51, §§ 1252-3.] [28 G. A., ch. 119, § 1.]

So far as this section restricts the extent of a homestead within a town plat, it is not applicable to homesteads already existing. Sayers v. Childers, 112-677.

The homestead is limited to one-half acre only when within a city or town plat. The fact that it is within the corporate limits of a city, if not within a platted portion thereof, does not bring it within such limitation as to extent. Foster v. Rice, 126-190.

To limit the homestead to one-half acre, under the provisions of § 1996, Code of '73, differing in language from this section, it was necessary that it lie not only within the limits of the municipality, but within a platted portion thereof, and held that such limitation did not apply where a tract of land not within the municipality was platted, and then the municipality was extended to include it. Parrott v. Thiel, 117-392.

SEC. 2979. Selecting—plating—notice to plat and record. The owner, husband or wife, may select the homestead and cause it to be platted, but a failure to do so shall not render the same liable when it otherwise would not be, and a selection by the owner shall control. When selected, it shall be marked off by permanent, visible monuments, and the description thereof shall give the direction and distance of the starting point from some corner of the dwelling, which description, with the plat, shall be filed and recorded by the recorder of the proper county in the homestead book, which shall be, as nearly as may be, in the form of the record books for deeds, with an index kept in the same manner. Should the homestead not be platted and recorded at the time levy is made upon real property in which a homestead is included the officer having the execution shall give notice in writing to said owner, and the husband or wife of such owner, if found within the county to plat and record the same within ten days after service thereof; after which time said officer shall cause said homestead to be platted and recorded as above, and the expense thereof shall be added to the costs in the case. [C., '73, §§ 1998-9; R., §§ 2286-7; C., '51, §§ 1254-5.] [27 G. A., ch. 98, § 1.]

Where a tract of eighty acres was occupied as a homestead, and a contract to convey forty acres of it was made to a son-in-law of the owner on condition that he should build a house and live thereon, which he did, held, that such contract constituted an election to regard the other forty acres of the tract as a homestead and was an abandonment of any homestead right in the tract referred to. Allbright v. Hannah, 103-98.

The selection of the homestead by the owner must control. Ehrck v. Ehrck, 106-614.

The owner may select the homestead without the consent of the husband or wife, and by a conveyance, incumbrance or contract may limit the selection by excluding from the homestead a portion of premises which might be included therein, but

The owner of a homestead is allowed but one shop or other building in which to prosecute his ordinary business. Shaffer v. Chernyk, 130-686.

The homestead being limited to forty acres, if the tract in which the homestead right exists exceeds forty acres in extent, the balance descends on the death of the owner like any other property, subject to the debts of the owner. Porter v. Perkins, 125-55.

The forty acres which may be claimed exempt as a homestead may be selected from any greater number of acres occupied by the owner, the only condition being that the tract selected shall include that forty of the whole on which is situated the house used by the owner as a home. Lutz v. Ristine, 112 N. W. 818.

not necessary to its existence to the full extent allowed by law. Hall v. Gottsche, 114-147.

Where the owners gave notice to the sheriff as to the portion of the premises claimed as a homestead and he offers the portion not included before selling the whole, the sale is not void, although the sheriff does not plat the homestead as here required. Ackerman v. Hendricks, 117-106.

Where the portions of the premises not included within the homestead were offered in forty acre tracts without bids being made, held that the sheriff was not bound to offer the entire portion of the premises not included within the homestead before proceeding to sell the entire premises. Ibid.

An execution sale of any portion of the premises which the owner might have claimed as his homestead is not valid without a platting of the homestead either by the owner or the officer making the sale. Lutz v. Ristine, 112 N. W. 818.

SEC. 2981. Changes.

The proceeds of the homestead, held by the owner for the purpose of investment in another homestead, are exempt to him under the bankrupt law. In re Johnson, 118 Fed. 312.

The proceeds of a homestead are only exempt for a reasonable time, during which they are held for the purpose of investing them in another homestead, and held that where one had sold his homestead in another state and brought the proceeds with him to this state in the shape of notes and mortgages, not being entitled under the circumstances to acquire a homestead in this state, the proceeds of the former homestead were subject to the claims of creditors. Campbell v. Campbell, 129-317.

What will be a reasonable time during which the homestead may be held for the purpose of exchanging it or selling it and investing the proceeds in another home, must depend on the facts of each particular case. Robinson v. Charleton, 104-296

The owner of the homestead may convert it into money and hold the proceeds exempt for the purpose of procuring a new homestead, and with such proceeds may procure other property to be conveyed to his wife, although exceeding in extent that which he might retain as a homestead. The homestead being exempt from claims of creditors, no fraud upon creditors is committed if it is exchanged for other property which is taken in the name of the wife. Richards v. Orr, 118-724.

While the right of homestead will not attach to vacant land acquired by purchase, independently of a change of homestead, it will attach to vacant land taken in exchange for the homestead, or bought with the proceeds of the homestead, when held in good faith for use as a home. Blue v. Heilprin, 105-608.

The property acquired for a new homestead will not be exempt from antecedent debts except to the extent in value of the old homestead. Ibid.

A lot purchased with money previously realized by the execution of a mortgage on the homestead is not exempt under this section. Boettger v. Galloway, 115-353.

Creditors are not prejudiced by the exchange of a homestead which is exempt from their claims for another homestead of greater value, being entitled to subject the new homestead to the extent of the increased value to the payment of the owner's debts. Shaffer v. Chernyck, 130-686.

The creditors are not entitled to subject the homestead to the extent to which it has been improved after the creation of the owner's obligations to them where such improvement does not result in substantial increase in value, but consists only in rendering the premises more convenient and suitable for homestead occupation. Ibid.

Where the widow claims one-third of the proceeds of her husband's estate sold for the purpose of paying debts, she cannot hold it as exempt for investment in a new homestead even though the property sold includes the homestead of her husband. Edinger v. Bain, 125-391.

One who selects a new homestead, retaining the old homestead for purpose of exchange or sale, thereby abandons the homestead exemption as to such old homestead. Sticklely v. Widle, 122-400.

SEC. 2985. Occupancy by surviving spouse—descent.

Election by widow: Where it does not appear that the widow has elected to take a homestead right in lieu of dower, the presumption is that she takes the dower right. Pebbles v. Bunting, 103-489.

The fact that the widow continues to reside upon a portion of the land belonging to her husband does not constitute an election to occupy the homestead for life in lieu of dower, where it does not appear that the premises occupied by her constituted the homestead of her deceased husband. Ibid.

If the widow elects to take one-third in fee she cannot assert any homestead right in the portion thus set apart to her. Edinger v. Bain, 125-391.

The right to the distributive share is primary, and an election is necessary in order to retain the homestead for life. Wold v. Berkholz, 105-370.

Continuance in possession for more than ten years, but under an arrangement by which the wife was asserting her right to a distributive share and not a claim to the homestead, held not sufficient to show an election of the homestead right. Ibid.

The primary right of the surviving distributive share and unless she does something which in law amounts to an election to take the homestead in lieu thereof, the court will award her the distributive share provided by statute. Occupancy for less than a year before commencing proceedings to recover her distributive share held not to bar her right. In re Estate of Lund, 107-264.

The answer of the widow setting up the homestead character of the premises in another case in which she was not called upon to make an election between occupancy of the homestead and a distributive share held not to bar her right to the distributive share. The mere contention of the widow that she has elected to take the homestead, made before the time when she is required to make the election, will not deprive her of her distributive share. Ibid.

The primary right of the surviving spouse is to the distributive share; an election is called for when such survivor desires to take the homestead right. In a particular case held that the occupancy of the homestead was not such as to show an election to retain it in lieu of dower. The presumption of election to take the homestead, which might arise from continuance of occupancy, may be rebutted otherwise than by the actual setting apart of the distributive share. McDonald v. Young, 109-704.

The election of the surviving husband or wife to take the homestead in lieu of a distributive share may be found from occupancy alone, or from other testimony tending to show such purpose. Deere v. Meyer, 131-172.

There is no presumption that the continued occupancy of the homestead is by virtue of an election to retain the homestead for life, unless it appears that such occupancy is inconsistent with any other right to thus occupy. Percifield v. Aumick, 116-383.

Long continued occupancy by a widow of her husband's homestead raises a presumption of her election to take a life interest therein rather than a distributive share of the estate, and such possession is not adverse to the heirs. Huit v. Huit, 122-338.

As to election between homestead and distributive share see also notes in this supplement to Code § 3377.

Descent—exemption: The taking of a distributive share in the estate divests the homestead right, and the widow does not hold the distributive share thus taken exempt from liability for her debts. Benjamin v. Doerscher, 105-391.

The fact that the widow proposes to invest the proceeds of such distributive share in a new homestead will not exempt such proceeds from liability. Ibid.

On the death of the owner, the homestead passes to the widow, and she is entitled to use and occupy it at least for one year. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

If there be no survivor of husband or wife the homestead is to descend to the issue of either according to the rules of descent and is to be held by the issue exempt from the antecedent debts of their parents and their own. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126-481.

The right of heirs to inherit the homestead free from liability for the debts of the ancestor is not dependent on any homestead right in them. If the widow continues to occupy the homestead for life the debts of the deceased owner cannot be enforced against it either as to her or as to the heirs. But if she takes a one-third in fee, so far as this one-third does not include the homestead, or a portion of it, the homestead or the portion of it not so included descends to the heirs free from the debts of the owner. Porter v. Perkins, 125-55.

Any attempted change in boundary by the surviving husband or wife after the death of the owner will not affect the interest of the heirs therein and is thus declared to be exempt from liability for debts of the owner. Ibid.

An existing obligation of the heir is an indebtedness in such sense that the heir takes the homestead exempt therefrom. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Eyre, 107-13.

Where the testator devised all his property to his widow for life, with the stipulation that after her death whatever remained should be divided among his children, held that the share of the proceeds of the homestead received by each child was not exempt from execution under this section. First Nat. Bank v. Willie, 115-77.

The proceeds of a voluntary sale by an heir of his interest in his ancestor's homestead, in the absence of a showing of intention to reinvest such proceeds in another homestead, are not exempt from execution for his debts. Kinzer v. Stephens, 121-347.

The homestead exemption being in derogation of common law, does not inure to the benefit of the heirs to whom the homestead descends, except as provided by statute. Beatty v. Wardell, 130-651.

Devises of the homestead taking otherwise than in accordance with the law of descent do not hold the homestead exempt from their antecedent debts. Rice v. Burkhardt, 130-520.

Estoppel: Adjudication in a proceeding to which the wife is a party, that the property in which she claims an interest did not constitute a homestead, will estop her from asserting a homestead right in her interest therein. Atlee v. Bullard, 123-274.

On the death of those entitled to occupy the premises as a homestead, the title descends to the issue of the owner according to the statutory rules of descent unless otherwise directed by will, and the owner may make such disposition of the title, subject to the right of occupancy as a homestead, as he sees fit. Reilly v. Reilly, 110 N. W. 445.

CHAPTER 9.

OF LANDLORD AND TENANT.

SECTION 2988. Apportionment of rent.

This section relates to an apportionment of rent between the executor and the reversioner pro rata as to time and with reference to rent not accrued, that is, not due at the time of the death of the life tenant. Gudgel v. Southerland, 117-309.

SEC. 2991. Tenant at will—notice to quit.

One in possession with the assent of the owner, in the absence of further proof, is presumed to be a tenant at will. Fischer v. Johnston, 106-181.

One who goes into possession simply of the real estate of another is presumed to be a tenant in the absence of any proof to rebut such presumption. Heddleston v. Stoner, 128-525.

Where a tenant continues to occupy the premises with the assent of the landlord, such occupancy will be deemed to have been under the terms and conditions of the lease creating the tenancy. Kennedy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 119-29.

A tenant holding over after the expiration of his term is presumed to do so as tenant at will, and not under a covenant for renewal, unless the circumstances indicate an affirmative election to renew, rather than to hold as tenant at will. Andrews v. Marshall Creamery Co., 118-595.

The thirty days' notice in writing to terminate a tenancy at will is not required where the tenant does not occupy the premises with the assent of the landlord after the termination of the written lease. McClelland v. Wiggins, 109-673.

SEC. 2992. Landlord's lien.

Rent payable: When no time for payment of rent is fixed, it is not payable until the end of the term. Ingram v. Dailey, 123-188.

Nature and extent: The lien attaches to crops grown upon the leased premises, whether they are exempt from execution or not. The provision that the lien does not apply to property exempt from execution relates only to "any other personal property of the tenant which has been used on the premises during the term." Hipsley v. Price, 104-282.

The lien commences as soon as the property intended to be kept on the premises as a part of the business of the tenant is brought thereon, and attaches to the property so brought as security for the payment of the rent for the entire term. Des Moines Nat. Bank v. Council Bluffs Sav. Bank, 150 Fed. 300.

Where the tenant, who subsequently became a bankrupt, retained possession after the termination of the lease under a contract to purchase, held that the landlord thereafter had no lien on the tenant's personal property for subsequently accruing rent on non-performance of the contract of sale, which was enforceable against the bankrupt's assets. Ibid.

Where the landlord seeks to establish a lien as to property owned by the lessee and used on the demised premises, the burden is not on him to show also that such property is not exempt from execution for the debts of the tenant, the grantee of such property relying upon the exemption. Hays v. Berry, 104-455.

The lien attaches for the rent of the entire term, although it can only be enforced for the rent due, but as to the entire rent provided for by the lease the indebtedness is absolute, though not yet due. Brown v. Cairns, 107-727.

The fact that the landlord reserves the right to sell the entire premises, or a part thereof, with the condition that the rent shall be abated accordingly, does not prevent the entire rent being an indebtedness when the lease is entered into. Ibid.

A landlord cannot assert a lien for other indebtedness than that arising from the renting of the premises for the time covered by the lease, and if he attempts to do, so in such a way as to render it impracticable to determine what amount is due for the leased premises, he forfeits his entire lien. First Nat. Bank v. Flynn, 117-493.

The landlord has no right to the possession of the tenant's property under his lien until some part of the rent is actually due. Hilman v. Brigham, 117-70.

The lien for rent under an occupancy at will resulting from possession after the termination of a written lease attaches only for the length of time necessary to end a tenancy by notice, and not for an entire year, although the tenant has been holding over for more than a year, and the landlord's lien in such case is therefore inferior to a chattel mortgage executed on the tenant's property after the termination of the written lease and prior to the accrual of the rent for which the landlord's lien is claimed. German State Bank v. Herron, 111-25.

The landlord having a lien on the tenant's property may sue for its conversion. Church v. Bloom, 111-319.

The landlord will not be estopped from asserting his lien as against a purchaser from the tenant by reason of having previously failed to object to similar sales during the existence of prior leases, at least without knowledge of such previous sales being brought home to him. Ibid.

The landlord following the proceeds of the property on which he has a lien is confined to his remedy against the person receiving such proceeds and cannot recover for conversion as against one for whose benefit as surety such proceeds have been used. Overholser v. Christensen, 133-129.

The landlord may by his conduct estop himself by relying on his lien as against a purchaser from the tenant, but to constitute such estoppel it must appear that the purchaser has by payment, or otherwise, put himself in such a position as to suffer damage or injury from the action of the landlord in attempting to enforce his lien. Gardner v. Roach, 111-413.

The individual property of one member of a firm, which property is used and kept on the leased premises, is not subject to a landlord's lien for rent due from the firm. The lien and the remedy given the landlord are purely statutory, and the landlord must avail himself of them just as they are given. Ward v. Walker, 111-611.

Creditors claiming a lien upon a stock of goods of the tenant by a bill of sale and who do not take possession of the stock under such sale, are not personally liable to the landlord for rent as to which he has a lien on such stock. Hartwig v. Iles, 131-501.

Priority: A purchaser from the tenant of property used on the premises during the term takes subject to the lien of the landlord and cannot claim protection as a purchaser without notice. Hays v. Berry, 104-455.

One purchasing products of the farm from a subtenant takes subject to the landlord's lien against the original tenant. Beck v. Minnesota & Western Grain Co., 131-62.

Demand by the landlord against such purchaser is necessary before maintaining action against him for conversion. But such demand may be made by an agent. Ibid.

The period within which suit must be brought to enforce the landlord's lien as against a purchaser from the subtenant is to be determined by the terms of the landlord's contract with the original tenant. Ibid.

Where, in a proceeding to enforce a landlord's lien by attachment, employes of the tenant properly file their claims, under the provisions of Code § 4022, such claims take priority over the landlord's lien. Stuart v. Twining, 112-154

Where exempt property covered by a chattel mortgage was left on the premises by the tenant at the end of his term, held, that the landlord acquired no lien thereon as against the mortgagee. Bacon v. Carr, 112-193.

A valid mortgage on personal property of a tenant, executed before the commencement of the term, creates a lien superior to that of the landlord. Gasmick v. Steffensen, 112-688.

Where a chattel mortgage on the property of the tenant is foreclosed, the landlord's lien may be satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale. Dowie v. Christen, 115-364.

Where machinery was sold to the tenant and set up on the premises under an agreement that a chattel mortgage should be executed for the purchase price when the machinery was set up and accepted, held that such chattel mortgage took priority over the landlord's lien. Davis Gasoline Engine Co. v. McHugh, 115-415.

A purchase money mortgage given by a tenant as a part of the transaction for purchase by him of property taken onto the leased premises, is a prior lien to the landlord's claim for future accruing rent. Arnold v. Hewitt, 128-671.

Injunction: A landlord is entitled to an injunction to restrain the removal from the premises of property thereon to the prejudice of his lien, without a showing that the tenant is insolvent. Wallin v. Murphy, 117-640.

Attachment: Where rent has accrued, the landlord may resort to his remedy by attachment, following the procedure prescribed for ordinary attachments, and is not liable for wrongfully suing out an attachment, even though by reason of a counter claim, which is subsequently pleaded, no judgment for rent is secured. Smeaton v. Cole, 120-368.

In an action to enforce the landlord's lien by attachment the tenant cannot interpose by way of counterclaim, a claim for wrongful and malicious suing out of attachment. Ingram v. Dailey, 123-188.

The remedy by attachment is not compulsory. The landlord does not owe the tenant the duty of enforcing his lien against any specific portion of the property subject thereto nor does he deprive himself of the right to enforce his lien against property on which there is a junior incumbrance by omitting to enforce it against property not subject to such incumbrance. The doctrine of marshaling assets has no application in such case. Citizens Savings Bank v. Woods, 111 N. W. 929.

Waiver: If the landlord takes a mort-

SEC. 2993. Attachment.

The landlord's lien gives a right to the landlord to resort to appropriate proceedings to the property of the tenant subject to such lien to satisfy his demand for rent due, but the landlord is not bound to resort to an attachment for the preservation or enforcement of his lien. Staber v. Collins, 124-543.

No attachment can issue for the enforcement of the landlord's lien for rent not due. Gray v. Bremer, 122-110.

Where the landlord has several distinct causes of action against his tenant, only one of which is for rent, and he has blended his claims into one, he thereby waives the right to attachment. Ladner v. Balsley, 103-674.

While another action cannot be joined in a petition to enforce a landlord's lien for rent, yet where the tenant interposes a counter-claim, plaintiff may in reply set up other demands against the tenant which could not have been joined with the original cause of action. Illsly v. Grayson, 105-685.

A counterclaim for wrongful and malicious suing out of a landlord's attachment cannot be interposed in the action in which the attachment is sought. Ingram v. Dailey, 123-188.

One who takes a mortgage on chattel property which is subject to a landlord's lien may take possession of the property under his mortgage so long as the landlord has not proceeded to enforce his lien by attachment of the property, but such attachment entitles the landlord to possession as against such mortgagee and he may under the attachment proceedings seize the property although the mortgagee has taken possession under the mortgage. Brody v. Cohen, 106-309.

An allegation that the sale of property by a tenant was fraudulent is immaterial, inasmuch as even a bona fide sale would not defeat the lien of the landlord's attachment. The landlord is not entitled to remedy by landlord's attachment as to property not subject to the landlord's lien. Hillman v. Brigham, 110-220.

Actual damages suffered by reason of the levy of a landlord's writ of attachment sued out when nothing is owing as rent, may be recovered as against the landlord suing out the attachment. Sigler v. Murphy, 107-128.

CHAPTER 10.

OF WALLS IN COMMON.

SECTION 2994. Resting wall on neighbor's land.

The terms "wall in common" and "party wall" are used synonymously, and neither term is of particular value in determining the meaning of the statutes relating to party walls. The words "party wall" may mean a wall of which the adjoining owners are tenants in common, and the words "wall in common" may mean a wall possessed in severalty by such owners. Primarily either term means a wall for the common benefit and convenience of both tenements which it separates. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130-157.

The statutory provisions as a whole are not to be construed so as to entitle either of the adjoining owners to extend his joists or timbers into the common wall beyond its center. Ibid.

Where the entire party wall erected by one owner is covered by and contributes to the support of a building subsequently erected by the adjoining owner, the latter is bound to pay for his share of the wall erected by the former. Monroe Lodge v. Albia State Bank, 112-487.

Where the first owner builds his wall of the material and dimensions required by the statute, and sufficient to carry his own and a similar building that may be erected by the adjoining proprietor, he is entitled to compensation for the share of the wall so erected, even though a cheaper wall would have been sufficient for the purpose of the adjoining owner. Ibid.

The fact that the wall stands on the SEC. 2995. Contribution by adjoining owner.

It is one-half of the appraised value of the wall at the time the adjoining proprietor uses it that is to be charged to him, not its value to him, but its value as a common wall. Ordinarily such value is arrived at by ascertaining the reasonable boundary line between owners is of itself sufficient to put all parties on enquiry as to the rights of the respective owners, and neither is required to notify the grantees of the other that he claims an interest in the wall. Howell v. Goss, 128-569.

When a party wall is destroyed as the natural result of the action of the elements, and without fault of one owner, he is under no obligation to contribute to the rebuilding of the wall. There is no implication of a mutual easement of perpetual support applicable to future structures. Jackson v. Bruns, 129-616.

Under the provision that an adjoining owner may have the wall erected on the boundary line made a party wall by paying half of the present value, the right to an accounting for the use of such party wall accrues at the time such use commences. Pier v. Salot, 107 N. W. 420; 111 N. W. 989.

Where one owning a building sells to an adjoining owner the right to use the wall of such building as a party wall, it is to be presumed that the grantor acquiesced in the wall as the boundary line between the two premises. Yunker v. White, 111 N. W. 824.

cost of the wall, and deducting for any depreciation that may have occurred before the same is used by the contiguous owner. Monroe Lodge v. Albia State Bank, 112-487.

SEC. 2997. Repairs—expense apportioned.

Where the wall is torn down and rebuilt by one of the owners, not because of its defective condition, but in order to extend it to a greater height, the other owner is not bound to contribute to the expense unless he makes use of the additional height to his own advantage. Howell v. Goss, 128-569.

SEC. 2998. Beams, joists and flues.

The right to build a wall in part upon adjoining property and the right of the adjoining owner to make it a wall in common by paying a portion of the value thereof are both acquired by statute and cannot be controlled by contract. If the adjoining owner does not request flues to be constructed for his use he cannot insist upon using the flues which the builder of the wall has provided for his own use. Koolbeck v. Baughn, 126-194.

Neither owner has the right to so weaken the wall as to render it insufficient or unsafe for the other's use. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130-157.

SEC. 2999. Height of wall—rebuilding.

Neither of the adjoining owners has a right to extend his joists or timbers beyond the center line of the common wall. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130-157.

Where only one of the joint owners desires to add to the height of his building, and to do this it is necessary to rebuild and enlarge the existing wall, he must do this at his own expense; but if the other joint owner subsequently desires to use the added portion of the new wall he must pay his fair proportion of the entire cost of raising and repairing. Howell v. Goss, 128-569.

SEC. 3000. Paying for share of adjoining wall.

An adjoining proprietor may make a wall built entirely on the other party's lands a wall in common, by complying with the statutory provisions. Lederer v. Colonial Investment Co., 130-157.

SEC. 3001. Openings—fixtures.

The adjoining owner who subsequently asserts the right to use the party wall on payment of a portion of the cost, cannot make use of the flues which were not constructed at his request and the use of which will be detrimental to the owner who first constructed the wall. Koolbeck v. Baughn, 126-194.

CHAPTER 11.OF EASEMENTS IN REAL ESTATE.*SECTION 3004. Adverse possession—use.

This section relates to titles by prescription, and not to those by dedication. Hanger v. Des Moines, 109-480.

The adverse possession of an easement cannot be predicated on proof merely of use. It must be established by evidence independent of use that the party claimed the easement as a right. Brown v. Peck, 125-624.

The fact of adverse possession must be established by evidence distinct from and independent of the use of the easement, and it must also appear that the person against whom the claim is made had express notice thereof. Friday v. Henah, 113-425.

The mere use of a right of way over another's land with knowledge thereof on the part of the latter, but without claim of right or title is insufficient to establish a right of way by prescription. McBride v. Bair, 112 N. W. 169.

The provision of this section does not prevent parol evidence of an intent by the grantor to create an easement and knowledge of such intent by the grantee. O'Reagan v. Duggan, 117-612.

The provisions of this section are not applicable to cases where dedication is claimed, and the use of the property may be shown as indicating such dedication. Dodge v. Hart, 113-685.

CHAPTER 2.

OF MONEY OF ACCOUNT AND INTEREST.

SECTION 3038. Rate of interest.

In the absence of contract to the contrary, money becoming due bears interest at the legal rate. Kellenberger v. Oskaloosa Nat. B., L. & I. Ass'n, 129-582.

A judgment may provide for interest on costs and attorney's fees as well as on the principal sum for which the judgment is rendered. Hoyt v. Beach, 104-257.

In recovering judgment under a policy of accident insurance providing for the payment of a fixed sum in the event of a specified loss, and also a weekly indemnity during disability, held, that judgment should not include any allowance of interest on the amount which it should be found the company was liable to pay. Hart v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 105-717.

Where treble damages are allowed to be recovered by way of penalty they should not be increased by adding interest on the amount of the recovery. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

Where a claim is for unliquidated damages, interest may be taken into account as an element of damage in arriving at the sum which will be a just and lawful compensation for the injury sustained. Christie v. Iowa Life Ins. Co., 111-177.

Interest does not accrue on a continuous open account without any settlement or balance being ascertained. McFarland v. McCormick, 114-368.

The receipt of a bank pass book, showing balance due, without objection to

SEC. 3039. On judgments and decrees.

The rate of interest named in a contract applies after maturity as well as before without express stipulation to that effect, but a provision for semi-annual rests is

SEC. 3040. Illegal rate prohibited.

Where the agent of the lender, under the authority of his principal, receives for the benefit of the principal commission in addition to the lawful rate of interest, the contract is usurious. McNeely v. Ford, 103-508.

Payment by the borrower of the necessary expenses of making the loan in addition to lawful interest will not constitute usury. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Heidt, 107-297.

Whether or not the contract is usurious does not depend upon the form the transaction is made to assume. Courts always look beyond the mere form and search diligently for the substance and intent, and where the lender was to have the legal rate of interest for the money loaned, and in addition thereto one-half the discount

SEC. 3041. Usury—penalty.

The defense of usury is personal to the debtor and cannot be maintained by a stranger to the contract. Pardoe v. Iowa State Nat. Bank, 106-345.

Accordingly held that the right of action given against a national bank to recover usury paid and the penalty thereon (U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 5197, 5198) was not available except to a party who had personally or out of his own means paid usurious interest. Ibid.

The plea of usury cannot be interposed by one who is neither a party to the contract nor authorized by the debtor to avail himself of such plea. Bacon v. Iowa Savings & Loan Ass'n, 121-449.

SEC. 3042. Assignee.

The assignee whose right is saved to plead usury under this section is one who takes in good faith and holds with no charges therein, amounts to an account stated. Schoonover v. Osborne, 108-453.

In an action on an administrator's bond the sureties are liable for interest from the time the administrator fails to account in accordance with the order of the court. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

not applicable to interest thus allowed after the maturity of the contract in the absence of express agreement. Rew v. Independent School District, 125-28.

which the borrower was able to secure on paying another debt by the use of the money borrowed, held that the contract was usurious. Weaver v. Burnett, 110-567.

Where renewal notes are given for the same debt, usury in the first or any intermediate note may be pleaded as against the last note. Polk County Sav. Bank v. Harding, 113-511.

Where on the renewal of a loan there is no perfect agreement or suggestion of any kind that the transaction is to be a settlement or composition of the borrower's claim for usury, but the net result of the transaction is to perpetuate the usurious nature of the contract, the right of the borrower to plead usury is not cut off. Hyland v. Phoenix Loan Assn., 118-401.

The defense of usury can be pleaded only by the borrower. Therefore the creditors of a bankrupt cannot set up the defense of usury against the claim of another creditor. In re Worth, 130 Fed. 927.

The defense of usury is as available to the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy as to the debtor himself. In re Stern, 144 Fed. 956.

Interest which has not been paid but only contracted for (covered for instance by notes not yet paid) cannot be recovered. Talbot v. First Nat. Bank, 106-361.

knowledge of the taint. Spinney v. Miller, 114-210.

CHAPTER 3.

OF NOTES AND BILLS.

SECTION 3043. Promissory notes negotiable.

The assignment of a negotiable instrument not transferable by delivery does not make the assignee a holder in due course who is entitled to take free from defenses available against the assignor. Hecker v. Boylan, 126-162.

SEC. 3044. Assignment of non-negotiable instruments.

The assignee gains no better rights by reason of the assignment than his assignor had at the time the assignment was made. Miller Brewing Co. v. Hansen, 104-307.

SEC. 3046. When assignment prohibited.

This section does not apply where plaintiff is not in possession of the note on which suit is brought and the burden is upon him to show that it was transferred by the indorser while the owner thereof with intent to transfer title. Moehn v. Moehn, 105-710.

One who purchases a note and mortgage after maturity takes the same subject to all defenses or counter-claims of the mortgagor held against the mortgagee existing before notice of the transfer. While it is a general rule that the assignee of a mortgage securing paper overdue takes subject to all equities between the original parties, this rule does not apply to latent equities of third parties. Gibson v. McIntire, 110-417.

A verbal assignment of a chose in action is valid. Seymour v. Aultman, 109-297.

A certificate of a mutual benefit association cannot be transferred to a creditor so as to give him a right to the benefit fund if it is expressly provided in the certificate that it shall be non-assignable. Crocker v. Hugin, 103-243.

The assignee is subject to all defenses which would have been available against the assignor. Thomassen v. De Goey, 133-278.

Section applied. Spinney v. Miller, 114-210.

SEC. 3047. Open account assignable. An open account of sums of money due on contract may be assigned, and the assignee will have a right of action thereon in his own name, subject to such defenses and counter-claims as are allowed against the instruments mentioned in the preceding section, before notice of such assignment is given to the debtor in writing by the assignee. But no sale or assignment, by the head of a family, of wages, whether the same be exempt from execution or not, shall be of any validity whatever unless the same be evidenced by a written instrument and if married unless the husband and wife, sign and acknowledge the same joint instrument before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments; and assignments of wages shall have priority and precedence in the order in which notice in writing of such assignments shall be given to the employer, and not otherwise. [20 G. A., ch. 183, § 2; C., '73, § 2087; R., § 1799; C., '51, § 952.] [31 G. A., ch. 148.]

These provisions are not applicable to the assignment of a chose in action. See Code §§ 3443 and 3461. Peterson v. Ball, 121-544.

SEC. 3049. Blank indorsement by one not a party.

A note bearing a blank endorsement by one not a party is notice to any one discounting it that the endorser is presumably an accommodation endorser, without consideration, and hence a mere guarantor. This presumption can, however, be rebutted. Lyon v. First Nat. Bank, 85 Fed. 120.

SEC. 3051. What entitled to grace.

Under Code § 3051 grace was allowed only on negotiable paper. Kilmer v. Galaher, 116-666.

Days of grace are now abolished by the negotiable instruments act. See Supp. § 3060-a 85.

SEC. 3053. Holidays.

Sunday or any other day mentioned by this section as a holiday should not be excluded in estimating the three days within which a motion for new trial is to be filed. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114-228.

The days enumerated in this section as holidays with reference to presentation and dishonor of negotiable paper are also holidays within the provisions of Code § 2448, par. 9, forbidding sales of intoxicating liquors to be made on any legal holiday. See also Code § 3541, relating to appearance in an action. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615.

SEC. 3054. Notice of protest.

Although the statute permits notice by mail to endorsers, the law requires presentment and demand in person, and letters written to the maker before the day of maturity demanding payment will not constitute sufficient demand to hold an indorser. Closz v. Miracle, 103-198.

SEC. 3056. When demand necessary.

This provision has no reference to the question as to admissibility of parol evidence to fix the time for performance of such contract. Ingram v. Dailey, 123-188.

In an action for failure to deliver property in compliance with a contract providing for payment to be made in property, demand for the property must be proved. Newburn v. Hyde, 132-88.

SEC. 3060-a. Sections of code repealed. The following enumerated sections of title fifteen (15) chapter three (3) of the code are hereby repealed: Sections three thousand and forty-three (3043), three thousand and forty-five (3045), three thousand and forty-nine (3049), three thousand and fifty (3050), three thousand and fifty-one (3051), three thousand and fifty-two (3052), three thousand and fifty-four (3054), and three thousand and fifty-five (3055). [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 197.]

CHAPTER 3-A.
OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

SECTION 3060-a1. Form of negotiable instrument. An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements:

1. It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer.
2. Must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money.
3. Must be payable on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time.
4. Must be payable to the order of a specified person or to bearer; and,
5. Where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 1.]

Iowa: A certificate of deposit, payable on a day certain in the future, is negotiable. Bean v. Briggs, 1-488; likewise municipal bonds, Callahan v. Brown, 31-333; Clapp v. Cedar County, 5-15; Griffith v. Burden, 35-138; but a land warrant is not, Fort v. Wilson, 3-153; nor a school order, Nat. State Bk. v. Ind. Dist., 39-490; Shepard v. Dist. Twp., 22-595; Clark v. Des Moines, 19-199.

(1) Other states: The writing may be in pencil. Brown v. Butchers' Bank, 6 Hill, 443.

(2) See section 3060-a3.

May designate particular kind of money, see section 3060-a6, subdivision 5.

(Code section 3045, which permitted the instrument to be made payable in money or labor, is repealed.)

(3) As to when it is payable on demand, see section 3060-a7. When at a future time, see section 3060-a4.

(4) As to when it is payable to order, see section 3060-a8.

For additional citation of authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 20.

(5) See section 3060-a126.

SEC. 3060-a2. Certainty as to sum—what constitutes. The sum payable is a sum certain within the meaning of this act although it is to be paid:

1. With interest; or
2. By stated installments; or
3. By stated installments, with a provision that upon default in payment of any installment, the whole shall become due; or
4. With exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or
5. With costs of collection or an attorney's fee, in case payment shall not be made at maturity. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 2.]

(2) Other states: Markey v. Corey, 108 Mich., 184; Wright v. Irwin, 33 Mich., 32.

(4) Iowa: This changes the rule in Iowa. Culbertson v. Nelson, 93-187.

Other states: In support of the rule, adopted by the act, see Second Nat. Bk. v. Basuier, 65 Fed. 58; Hastings v. Thompson, 54 Minn., 184; Flagg v. School Dist., 4 N. D., 30.

(5) Iowa: See Bank v. Marsh, 89-273; Sperry v. Horr, 32-184. Amount is not rendered uncertain by stipulation that it may be reduced by showing overcharge. Green v. Austin, 7-521.

Other states: The rule adopted by the act is sustained by a great weight of authority outside of the decisions of this state. For some of them, supporting the rule, see Bank v. Sutton Mfg. Co., 6 U. S., App., 312, 331; Dorsey v. Wolff, 142 Ill., 589; Stoneman v. Pyle, 35 Ind., 103; Heard v. Dubuque Bk., 8 Neb., 10; Stark v. Olson, 44 Neb., 646.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 21.

SEC. 3060-a3. When promise is unconditional. An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this act, though coupled with:

1. An indication of a particular fund out of which reimbursement is to be made, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or
2. A statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument. But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 3.]

(1) For authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 22.

(2) Iowa: Changes the rule in Iowa, Charlton v. Reed, 61-166; Knepper v. Chase, 7-145. See Miller v. Poage, 56-96.

Other states: In Mott v. Havana Nat. Bk., 22 Hun., 354, it is held, that the clause "in part payment for a portable engine, which engine shall be and remain the property of the owner of this note, until the amount hereby secured is paid," did not destroy its negotiable character. The same as to a note containing provision "given in consideration of a certain patent right." Hereth v. Meyer, 33 Ind., 511.

For additional citation of authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 22.

SEC. 3060-a4. Determinable future time—what constitutes. An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this act, which is expressed to be payable:

1. At a fixed period after date or sight; or
2. On or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or
3. On or before a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event, which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain.

An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 4.]

(2) Other states: See Mattison v. Marks, 31 Mich., 421; Buchanan v. Wren (Tex.), 30 S. W., 1077; Albertson v. Laughlin, 173 Pa. St., 525.

(3) Iowa: A note is not negotiable if made to mature when convenient. Works v. Hershey, 35-340; or at the option of the maker, Woodbury v. Roberts, 58-348.

Other states: A note payable in a certain number of days after the death of the maker, or upon demand after the death of the maker, is a good promissory note, because the event is sure to happen. Carnwright v. Gray, 127 N. Y., 92; Hegeman v. Moon, 131 N. Y., 462; Shaw v. Camp, 160 Ill., 425. But one payable when, or in a certain number of days after "A shall become of age," is not negotiable, because uncertain as to whether A will live so long. Goss v. Nelson, 1 Burr, 226. Likewise one payable when a certain ship shall arrive. Coolidge v. Ruggles, 15 Mass., 387.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 23.

(4) Iowa: No time of payment being specified, it is presumptively payable on demand. Bank v. Price, 52-570.

SEC. 3060-a5. Additional provisions not affecting negotiability. An instrument which contains an order or promise to do an act in addition to the payment of money is not negotiable. But the negotiable character of an instrument otherwise negotiable is not affected by a provision which:

1. Authorizes the sale of collateral securities in case the instrument be not paid at maturity; or
2. Authorizes a confession of judgment if the instrument be not paid at maturity; or
3. Waives the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of the obligor; or
4. Gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money.

But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 5.]

(1) Iowa: Coupling mortgage with a negotiable note, authorizing mortgagee to take possession of chattel, but not to sell until after maturity of note, does not destroy negotiability. Bank v. Taylor, 67-572; distinguishing Smith v. Marlin, 59-645, holding provision by which debt was liable to be diminished before maturity, destroyed negotiability.

Other states: A mere statement that collateral security has been deposited for the performance of the promise contained in the note does not affect its negotiability. Wise v. Charlton, 4 A. & E., 486; Fancourt v. Thorne, 9 Q. B., 312. And so with a provision authorizing sale of collateral if note be dishonored. Perry v. Bigelow, 128 Mass., 129; Towne v. Rice, 122 Mass., 67; Biegler v. Merchants' L. & T. C., 62 Ill. App., 560. The contrary is held as to this clause "given as collateral security with agreement." Costello v. Crowell, 127 Mass., 293.

(2) Iowa: Provision authorizing attorney to confess judgment is illegal and no part of note, and therefore does not destroy negotiability. Tolman v. Janson, 106-455. This provision meets the requirements of some of the states where judgment notes are in use.

For authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 24.

(3) Other states: This provision is designed to meet the practice in some states of inserting waiver of the benefits of homestead and exemption laws. See Zimmerman v. Anderson, 67 Pa. St., 421.

(4) Other states: If the obligation to the maker to pay in money is certain, the right of the holder to elect to take payment in something other than money will not destroy its negotiable character. Hodges v. Shuler, 22 N. Y., 114.

See notes Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 24.

SEC. 3060-a6. Omissions — seal — particular money. The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that:

1. It is not dated; or
2. Does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or
3. Does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or
4. Bears a seal; or
5. Designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made.

But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 6.]

(1) Other states: See section 3060-a36. True date may be shown by parol evidence between the immediate parties. Bigge v. Piper, 86 Tenn., 589.

(2) Other states: "Value received" not necessary. Daniel on Neg. Insts., section 108.

(3) See sections 3060-a3; 3060-a28; and 3060-a77.

(4) Iowa: See Temple v. Hayes, Morris, 9.

Other states: Corporate seal does not destroy negotiable character. Chase Nat. Bk. v. Faurot, 149 N. Y., 532; Weeks v. Esler, 143 N. Y., 374. Same as to municipal bonds. Bank v. Village of Rome, 19 N. Y., 20; Mercer County v. Hackett, 1 Wall, 83.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 25, note (d).

(5) Iowa: Note made payable in property destroys negotiability. McCartney v. Smalley, 11-85. So with one payable in currency. Rindskoff v. Barrett, 11-172; otherwise if shown that money was intended and so understood. Haddock v. Wood, 46-433; see Culbertson v. Nelson, 93-187.

Other states: A note made payable in gold coin is negotiable. Chrysler v. Griswold, 43 N. Y., 209. So one payable "in bank notes current in the City of New York." Keith v. Jones, 9 Johns, 120. One payable "in current funds at Pittsburg" held not negotiable. Wright v. Hart's Admr., 44 Pa. St., 454.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 25, note (e).

A check payable in current funds is not a negotiable instrument. Dille v. White, 132-327.

SEC. 3060-a7. When payable on demand. An instrument is payable on demand:

1. Where it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presentation; or
2. In which no time for payment is expressed.

Where an instrument is issued, accepted or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing it, payable on demand. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 7.]

(1) For the distinctions between instruments payable on demand and those payable at sight, see Daniel on Neg. Insts., sections 617 and 619, and authorities there cited.

See notes to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), Sec. 26, note (a).

(2) Iowa: A negotiable note transferred by indorsement after maturity is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting or indorsing, payable on demand and must be presented to all the makers in person, or at their usual places of residence or business within a reasonable time after transfer, and notice of non-payment immediately given to bind the indorser. Graul v. Strutzel, 53-712; McKewer v. Kirtland, 33-348; Pryor v. Bowman, 38-92; Blake v. McMillen, 33-150; Bank v. Orvis, 40-332; Closz & Mickelson v. Miracle, 103-198.

A draft or bill in which no time of payment is mentioned is, under the statutes, drawn payable on demand just as effectually as though the words "payable on demand" had been incorporated into it. Blank v. Price, 52-570.

Other states: As bearing on the text see Messmore v. Morrison, 172 Pa. St., 300; James v. Brown, 11 Ohio St., 601; Libby v. Mekelborg, 28 Minn., 38; Roberts v. Snow, 28 Neb., 425.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 26, note (b).

For other authorities relating to instruments issued, accepted or indorsed after maturity see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 26, note (c).

SEC. 3060-a8. When payable to order. The instrument is payable to order where it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of:

1. A payee who is not maker, drawer or drawee; or
2. The drawer or maker; or
3. The drawee; or
4. Two or more payees jointly; or
5. One or some of several payees; or
6. The holder of an office for the time being.

Where the instrument is payable to order, the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 8.]

Other states: The first clause of this section states the rule of the law merchant requiring the word order, or other word of similar import to render the instrument negotiable. Smith v. Kendall, 6 T. R., 123; Carnwright v. Gray, 127 N. Y., 92.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 27, note (a).

(2) See section 3060-a184. A note payable to the order of the maker requires the maker's indorsement to complete the same.

(5) For illustrations see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 27, note (c).

(6) Iowa: A collateral agreement referred to in an indorsement and specified therein does not destroy negotiability. Leland v. Parriott, 35-454; the words "et al. or order" following name of payee destroy negotiability. Gordon v. Anderson, 83-224.

Other states: A note payable to certain persons as trustees of an incorporated association, or their successors in office, is negotiable. Davis v. Gore, 6 N. Y., 124. If the identity of the payee can be ascertained with certainty it is sufficient, though not designated by name. United States v. White, 2 Hill, 59; Blackman v. Lehman, 3 Ala., 547.

SEC. 3060-a9. When payable to bearer. The instrument is payable to bearer:

1. When it is expressed to be so payable; or
2. When it is payable to a person named therein or bearer; or
3. When it is payable to the order of a fictitious or non-existing person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or
4. When the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or
5. When the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 9.]

(2) Iowa: A note payable to "the bearer, M. C. Murdough," is not negotiable. Warren v. Scott, 32-22.

See section 3060-a30.

(3) For a discussion and a criticism of the authorities bearing upon this division of the section by Mr. Crawford, the author of the original negotiable instruments law, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 28, note (b).

(4) Other states: A check payable to "cash" or to "sundries." Willets v. Phoenix Bank, 2 Druer, 121; Mechanics' Bank v. Stratton, 2 Keyes, 365.

SEC. 3060-a10. Terms—when sufficient. The negotiable instrument need not follow the language of this act, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 10.]

Other states: It is not necessary that the instrument be written in the English language but it may be in a foreign language. Debbeian v. Gala, 64 Md. 262, 265; and may be in pencil as well as ink. Brown v. Butchers' Bank, 6 Hill, 443. For rule governing construction of ambiguous instruments, see section 3060-a17.

SEC. 3060-a11. Date—presumption as to. When the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance or indorsement, as the case may be. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 11.]

Other states: Mistake in date may be shown between the immediate parties. Cowing v. Altman, 71 N. Y., 441. Where date is an impossible one, the law will adopt the nearest date. If dated Sept. 31, true date will be deemed to be Sept. 30. Wagner v. Kenner, 2 Rob. (La.), 120.

SEC. 3060-a12. Ante-dated and post-dated. The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is ante-dated or post-dated, provided this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 12.]

Other states: A post-dated bill or check may be negotiated before the day of its date. Brewster v. McCardle, 8 Wend., 478.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 31.

SEC. 3060-a13. When date may be inserted. When an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him, the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 13.]

Other states: See the following sections; also see Redlich v. Doll, 54 N. Y., 238.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 32, note (b).

SEC. 3060-a14. Blanks—when may be filled. Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument, after completion, is negotiated to a holder in due course it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 14.]

Other states: The leading authority upon the right of a person in possession to fill blanks when necessary to complete the instrument in a material particular is Russell v. Langstaffe, 2 Doug., 514. See Androscoffin Bank v. Kimball, 10 Cush., 373. If blank space is left for name of payee holder may fill with his own name. Boyd v. McCann, 10 Md., 118. The authority to complete the instrument, however, will not authorize the insertion of matter not essential to its completeness. Weyerhauser v. Dunn, 100 N. Y., 150.

The rule contained in the second clause of the section operates only where the instruction has been delivered; see the following section. As to rights of bona fide holder for value of such an instrument filled up contrary to agreement, see Redlich v. Doll, 54 N. Y., 234, 238.

For other authorities and a discussion of the rules adopted by this section, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 33, notes (a), (b) and (c).

Where one person signs a note in blank and delivers it to another for a specific purpose and the person to whom it is delivered with authority to fill the blanks for a specified amount fills out the blanks for an unauthorized amount and uses the instrument for an unauthorized purpose, the person whose name is inserted as payee is not a holder in due course and cannot recover against the original signer. Vander Ploeg v. Van Zuuk, 112 N. W. 807.

SEC. 3060-a15. Incomplete instrument not delivered. Where an incomplete instrument has not been delivered it will not, if completed and negotiated, without authority, be a valid contract in the hands of any holder, as against any person whose signature was placed thereon before delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 15.]

Iowa: Delivery to payee by third party without authority is not binding. Ware v. Smith, 62-159; but delivery by third party in violation of agreement is not a defense as against an innocent purchaser. Graff v. Logue, 61-704.

Other states: The instrument must be complete and perfect when issued, or else authority reposed in some one to supply the part required to complete it afterwards. Sedgwick v. McKim, 53 N. Y., 307, 313; Davis Sewing Mach. Co. v. Best, 105 N. Y., 59-67.

For other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 34.

SEC. 3060-a16. Delivery—when effectual—when presumed. Every contract on a negotiable instrument is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument for the purpose of giving effect thereto. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, the delivery, in order to be effectual, must be made either by or under the authority of the party making, drawing, accepting or indorsing, as the case may be; and in such case the delivery may be shown to have been conditional or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the instrument. But where the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course, a valid delivery thereof by all parties prior to him so as to make them liable to him, is conclusively presumed. And where the instrument is no longer in the possession of a party whose signature appears thereon, a valid and intentional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 16.]

Iowa: An alteration made after execution, before delivery without knowledge of surety, discharges surety from liability upon the note. Marsh v. Griffin, 42-403.

Other states: Delivery according to the purpose and intent of the parties is essential to its existence. Burson v. Huntington, 21 Mich., 416.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 35, notes (c) and (d).

SEC. 3060-a17. Construction where instrument is ambiguous. Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous, or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

1. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, references may be had to the figures to fix the amount.

2. Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof.

3. Where the instrument is not dated, it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued.

4. Where there is conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument, the written provisions prevail.

5. Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or a note, the holder may treat it as either, at his election.

6. Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser.

7. Where an instrument containing the words "I promise to pay," is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 17.]

(1) Iowa: No recovery at law can be had on a note which fails to state, in the body of it, the amount for which it is given. Marginal figures are no part of it, but a mere memorandum. Hollen v. Davis, 59-444.

Other states: Marginal figures are regarded as mere memoranda and no part of the instrument. Smith v. Smith, 1 R. I., 388.

(3) Other states: Knisley v. Sampson, 100 Ill., 54.

(4) Other states: But this rule does not permit of the rejection of any of the printed matter which, by any reasonable construction, may be reconciled with the written part. Miller v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co., 90 N. Y., 430.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 36, note (c).

For illustrations and other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 36, note (d).

(6) For rule as to irregular indorsers, see section 3060-a64.

(7) Other states: Monson v. Drakeley, 40 Conn., 559; Dart v. Sherwood, 7 Wis., 523.

SEC. 3060-a18. Liability of person signing in trade or assumed name. No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 18.]

Other states: Presumption is that party takes instrument on the credit of the parties whose names appear thereon. Briggs v. Partridge, 64 N. Y., 363. A person may become a party to a bill or note by any mark or designation he chooses to adopt; provided it be used as a substitute for his name and he intends to be bound by it. DeWitt v. Walton, 9 N. Y., 574. See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 37, where other authorities are cited.

SEC. 3060-a19. Signature by agent—authority—how shown. The signature of any party may be made by a duly authorized agent. No particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose; and the authority of the agent may be established as in other cases of agency. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 19.]

See Conroe v. Case, 74 Wis., 85. As to ratification of unauthorized signature see Bartlett v. Tucker, 104, Mass., 336; Paul v. Berry, 78 Ill., 158; Bank v. Marine Bank, 16 Wis., 120.

SEC. 3060-a20. Liability of person signing as agent, etc. Where the instrument contains, or a person adds to his signature, words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of the principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of the words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 20.]

Iowa: For the rule in Iowa in cases where the makers attempt to sign in representative capacity, merely adding, however, after their own signature, the words "President," "Secretary," "Trustee," etc., see the following cases: Wing v. Glick, 4-73; Am. Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59-697; Scraper Co. v. Tuttle, 61-423; Lewis v. Tilton, 64-220; Hefner v. Brownell, 70-591; McCandless v. Belle Plaine Canning Co., 78-162; Lee v. Percival, 85-639; Matthews v. Dubuque Mattress Co., 87-246; Day v. Ramsdell, 90-731; Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Swan, 100-718.

Other states: But if the principal is plainly disclosed in the body of the instrument, one signing in a representative capacity, or as agent, is not personally liable. Whitney v. Inhabitants of Stow, 11 Mass., 368; Haskell v. Cornish, 13 Cal., 45; Little v. Bailey, 87 Ill., 239. And this would seem to be the rule adopted by this section of the act.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 39, and notes thereto. See also Neg. Insts. Law, by Selover, section 24, and authorities cited.

Mr. Crawford, the author of the original draft of the act, in a note to section 39 of his work, says:

"In the original draft submitted to the Conference of Commissioners on Uniformity of Laws this section read as follows: 'Where a person adds to his signature words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, does not exempt him from personal liability. In determining whether a signature is that of the principal or of the agent by whose hand it is written, that construction is to be adopted which is most favorable to the validity of the instrument.' This is the English rule, and was the rule in New York prior to the statute. Under that rule a person signing for or on behalf of a principal was not liable on the instrument, notwithstanding he had no authority to bind his principal. There was an implied warranty on his part that he possessed such authority, and if he did not he became liable upon such warranty for the damages resulting from the breach. Miller v. Reynolds, 92 Hun, 400. But no action could be maintained against him on the instrument when by its terms it did not purport to bind him. And his liability upon the implied warranty did not accompany the transfer of the instrument, unless the claim founded upon the warranty was also assigned to the person to whom the instrument was transferred. (Id.) The effect of the section, as it now stands, is to permit the holder to sue the agent on the instrument, if he was not duly authorized to sign the same on behalf of the principal."

SEC. 3060-a21. Signature by "procuration"—effect of. A signature by "procuration" operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent in so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 21.]

See notes to section 40, Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.).

SEC. 3060-a22. Effect of indorsement by infant or corporation. The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation or by an infant passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation or infant may incur no liability thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 22.]

For authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 41, notes (a) and (b).

SEC. 3060-a23. Forged signature—effect of. Where a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument, or to give a discharge therefor, or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto, can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party against whom it is sought to enforce such right is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 23.]

Other states: Buckley v. Sec. Nat. Bk. of Jersey City, 35 N. J. Law, 400; Whiteford v. Monroe, 17 Md., 135.

In the absence of an estoppel or of an adoption or ratification of the signature, no rights can be acquired by a bona fide or other holder under a forged signature, against the person whose name is forged. Mersman v. Werges, 3 Fed. 378; Butler v. Carns, 37 Wis., 61; Bank v. Adams, 91 Ind., 280; Bank v. Crafts, 4 Allen, 447; Wellington v. Jackson, 121 Mass., 157.

See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 42, note (b).

CONSIDERATION OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

SEC. 3060-a24. Presumption of consideration. Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration, and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 24.]

Iowa: A blank indorsement by person not the payee or indorsee thereof imports a sufficient consideration to sustain his contract of guaranty. Veach v. Thompson, 15-380.

See code section 3069. Jones v. Berryhill, 25-289; Bank v. Hurford & Bro., 29-579.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 50, note (a).

See also Neg. Inst. Law by Selover, sections 87, 117, 145, 150 and 179, and authorities there cited.

SEC. 3060-a25. Consideration—what constitutes. Value is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing debt constitutes value, and is deemed such, whether the instrument is payable on demand or at a future time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 25.]

Iowa: An antecedent indebtedness is a sufficient consideration and a bona fide holder for value before maturity, of such a note is protected against latent equities. Robinson v. Lair, 31-9.

Other states: Railroad Co. v. Nat. Bank, 102 U. S., 14; Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet., 1. These cases support the rule that a bona fide holder taking a negotiable instrument in payment of, or as security for an antecedent debt, is a holder for a valuable consideration, entitled to protection against all the equities between the antecedent parties. See also Bank v. Morse, 163 Mass., 381; Roberts v. Hall, 37 Conn., 205; Harold v. Kays, 64 Mich., 439; Spencer v. Sloan, 108 Ind., 183.

For other authorities and a discussion of the rule adopted by the act, giving the states in which the rule is changed, see notes to section 51 of Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.).

SEC. 3060-a26. What constitutes holder for value. Where value has at any time been given for the instrument, the holder is deemed a holder for value in respect to all parties who became such prior to that time. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 26.]

In a note to the section of the New York act, the author of the act says: "If a party be a bona fide holder for value of a bill before its acceptance, it is not essential to his right to enforce it against a subsequent acceptor, that an additional consideration should proceed from him to the drawee. The bill itself implies a representation by the drawer that the drawee is already in receipt of funds to pay, and his contract is that the drawee shall accept and pay according to the terms of the draft. The drawee can, of course, upon presentment, refuse to accept, and in that event, the only recourse of the holder is against the prior parties thereto; but in case the drawee does accept the bill, he becomes primarily liable for its payment, not only to the indorsees, but also to the drawer himself." Citing Heuertematte v. Morris, 101 N. Y., 70.

SEC. 3060-a27. When lien on instrument constitutes holder for value. Where the holder has a lien on the instrument, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed a holder for value to the extent of his lien. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 27.]

Other states: Continental Nat. Bk. v. Bell, 125 N. Y., 38, 42; Rogers v. Squires, 98 N. Y., 49.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 53.

SEC. 3060-a28. Effect of want of consideration. Absence of failure of consideration is a matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course, and partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto, whether the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount or otherwise. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 28.]

[The New York act contains the word "or" in place of the word "of" in first line.]

Other states: While the note itself is prima facie evidence of consideration, still as between the immediate parties, it is competent to show want of failure thereof. Corless v. Howe, 11 Gray, 125; Breneman v. Furniss, 90 Pa. St., 186. But burden of proof is on party alleging. Jennison v. Stafford, 1 Cush., 168. Failure of consideration does not affect the negotiability of the instrument. Dingman v. Amsink, 77 Pa., St., 114. The defense of want of consideration is governed by the lex loci. Herdic v. Roessler, 109 N. Y., 127, 133, 134. As to the matter of defense for partial failure of consideration, see Black v. Rigway, 131 Mass., 80.

See Daniel on Neg. Insts. Section 210.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 54, notes (a), (b) and (c).

As to when one is a holder in due course, see sections 3060-a26 to 3060-a29.

SEC. 3060-a29. Liability of accommodation party. An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to a holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 29.]

Other states: The maker of an accommodation note lends his credit without instructions as to the manner of its use. Lenheim v. Wilmarding, 55 Pa. St., 73. He cannot set up want of consideration. Carpenter v. Bank, 106 Pa. St., 170-172. In respect to third persons, he is held to the character which he has assumed. Stephen v. Bank, 88 Pa. St., 157, 162-63. A mutual exchange of notes will not make them accommodation notes. Rice v. Grange, 131 N. Y., 149; Woman v. Frost, 52 N. Y., 422. But he may retract his indorsement, if he is an accommodation indorser at any time before the paper is negotiated. Berkeley v. Tinsley, 88 Va., 1001, 1004. The provision of the statute probably does not apply to corporations, which as a general rule are without power to bind themselves as accommodation parties. Bank v. Atkinson, 55 Fed. 465; Bank v. Bank, 13 N. Y., 309; Bank v. Globe Works, 101 Mass., 57.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 55, notes (a) and (b).

NEGOTIATION.

SEC. 3060-a30. What constitutes negotiation. An instrument is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such manner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof if payable to bearer, it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order, it is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder, completed by delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 30.]

Iowa: A note made payable to bearer is negotiable by delivery and needs no indorsement. Elliott v. Corbin, 4-564; Shelton v. Sherfey, 3 G. Gr., 108. A note payable to J. S. or order, and endorsed by payee to S. T. or bearer, becomes, in the hands of subsequent holders, the same as a note payable to bearer. (Id.) A note payable to order can not be transferred by mere delivery, but should be endorsed by the payee or sued in his name, or the name of his legal representative. Dawson v. Jewett, 4 G. Gr., 157.

See Pearson v. Cummings, 28-344. A provision that a note is negotiable and payable at a certain place designated, does not affect its negotiability, nor prevent its negotiability elsewhere. Schoharie Co. Bk. v. Bevard, 51-257. Wrongful, unauthorized indorsement confers no rights upon transferee. Thorpe Bros. & Co. v. Dickey, 51-676.

As to what instruments are payable to bearer, see section 3060-a9. As to what instruments are payable to order, see section 3060-a8.

Other states: Indorsement is usually made by writing name on the back of the instrument, but the place is not essential. Haines v. Dubois, 29 N. J. Law, 259. Indorsement alone without delivery conveys no title. Dann v. Norris, 24 Conn., 337; Middleton v. Griffith, 57 N. J. Law, 442.

For citation of other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 60.

SEC. 3060-a31. Indorsement—how made. The indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 31.]

Iowa: The assignee of a promissory note, under a transfer made in the body of a separate instrument, executed for an independent purpose, is not the holder of a legal title, discharged of prior equities, within the meaning of the law merchant. Franklin v. Twogood, 18-515. A holder of negotiable paper to be protected against equities existing between the original parties, must have acquired it by indorsement before maturity. A transfer, except by indorsement, even before maturity, carries no such consequences. Grimm v. Warner et al., 45-106. The prevailing rule in this state is, that indorsements of negotiable paper shall be made thereon under the hand of the indorser. Bettis v. Bristol, 56-41. An assignee, as distinguished from an indorsee, acquires no greater rights than the assignor had. Johnson v. Walker et al., 60-315.

Other states: Crosby v. Roub, 16 Wis., 616; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick., 63; French v. Turner, 15 Ind., 59.

For citation of other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 61, notes (a) and (b).

SEC. 3060-a32. Indorsement—must be of entire instrument. The indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part, it may be indorsed as to the residue. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 32.]

Iowa: Prior to the act, an assignee of a note might sue in his own name, although only part of the amount was assigned to him. Cochran v. Glover, Morris, 151.

Other states: Lindsay v. Price, 33 Tex., 282. Indorsement of a partial payment on the instrument does not render it non-negotiable. Smith v. Shippey, 182 Pa. St., 24.

SEC. 3060-a33. Kinds of indorsement. An indorsement may be either in blank or special; and it may also be either restrictive or qualified, or conditional. [29 G. A., ch. 130, & 33.]

Other states: As to what is a special indorsement, see Rice v. Stearns, 3 Mass., 225; Reamer v. Bell, 79 Pa. St., 292. A blank indorsement may be converted into a special or full indorsement by the holder. See sec. 3060-a35. As to what are restrictive indorsements, see Power v. Finney, 4 Call, 411; White v. Nat. Bank, 102 U. S., 658; Hook v. Pratt, 78 N. Y., 371.

SEC. 3060-a34. Special indorsement—indorsement in blank. A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer, and may be negotiated by delivery. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 34.]

SEC. 3060-a35. Blank indorsement—how changed to special indorsement. The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 35.]

Iowa: The holder of a note indorsed in blank may fill up the blank indorsement to himself, and thus recover as indorsee thereunder. Leland v. Parriott, 35-454; it then becomes a contract duly signed by the indorser. Bernard v. Barry, 1 G. Gr., 388; but the indorser of a note in blank cannot be bound by a contract of guaranty written over his indorsement. Belden v. Hann, 61-42.

Other states: Beckwith v. Angell, 6 Conn., 317.

SEC. 3060-a36. When indorsement restrictive. An indorsement is restrictive which either:

1. Prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or
2. Constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or
3. Vests the title in the indorsee in trust for or to the use of some other person. But the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 36.]

Other states: Commercial Nat. Bk. v. Armstrong, 148 U. S., 50; Nat. Butchers' & Drovers' Bk. v. Hubbell, 117 N. Y., 384; Freeman's Bk. v. National Tube Works, 151 Mass., 413; Commercial Nat. Bk. v. Hamilton Nat. Bk., 42 Fed., 880; Bank of Metropolis v. First Nat. Bk. of Jersey City, 19 Fed. 658.

For other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 66.

SEC. 3060-a37. Effect of restrictive indorsement—rights of indorsee. A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right:

1. To receive payment of the instrument.
2. To bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring.
3. To transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so.

But all subsequent indorsees acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 37.]

(2) Other states: The holder of negotiable paper may sue in his own name, though but an agent for others. Ward v. Tyler, 52 Pa. St., 393. The right of a bank to sue in its own name on paper endorsed to it "for collection" is sustained by Wintermute v. Torrent, 83 Mich., 555; Regina Flour Mill Co. v. Holmes, 156 Mass., 11; Spofford v. Norton, 126 Mass., 333. Contra, Rock County Nat. Bk. v. Hollister, 21 Minn., 385.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 67.

SEC. 3060-a38. Qualified indorsement. A qualified indorsement constitutes the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the instrument. It may be made by adding to the indorser's signature the words "without recourse" or any words of similar import. Such an indorsement does not impair the negotiable character of the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 38.]

Iowa: But an indorsement without recourse, as when transferred by delivery only, makes the transferrer liable upon implied warranty only to the extent, that the paper so transferred is genuine and not forged or fictitious; that it is of the kind or description which it purports to be; that the transferrer has done nothing and will do nothing to prevent its collection; that the parties to the instrument are sui juris, and capable of contracting; that it has not been paid, and that he has practiced no fraud upon the transferee in the matter of said transfer. Watson v. Chesire, 18-202; Allen v. Pegram, 16-163; Miller v. Dugan, 36-433; but such indorser is liable if he knew at the time of transfer that the note was worthless. Brown v. Zachary, 102-433.

Other states: An indorsement may be qualified by adding the words "without recourse" or similar words. Grant v. Fleming, 46 Pa. St., 140. A qualified indorsement, however, does not put the transferee on inquiry as to the equities between the original parties. Bisbing v. Graham, 14 Pa. St., 14.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), section 68.

SEC. 3060-a39. Conditional indorsement. Where an indorsement is conditional, a party required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition, and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the conditions have been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument so indorsed is negotiated, will hold the same, or the proceeds thereof, subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 39.]

For note discussing this section and authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 69.

SEC. 3060-a40. Indorsement of instrument payable to bearer. Where an instrument, payable to bearer, is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery, but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as to make title through his indorsement. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 40.]

[The New York act does not contain the word "to" before the word "make" in line three.]

See Daniel on Negotiable Instruments, sec. 663-a696.

SEC. 3060-a41. Indorsement where payable to two or more persons. Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsers who are not partners, all must indorse unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 41.]

Other states: Ryhiner v. Feickert, 92 Ill., 305. A partner may indorse for the firm. Childress v. Emory, 8 Wheat., 642.

SEC. 3060-a42. Effect of instrument drawn or indorsed to a person as cashier. Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person, as "Cashier" or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation, it is deemed prima facie to be payable to the bank or corporation of which he is such officer; and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation, or the indorsement of the officer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 42.]

Other states: The rule stated in the text is supported by the following authorities. Bank v. Muskingum Bank, 29 N. Y., 619; Bank v. Hall, 44 N. Y., 395; Folger v. Chase, 18 Pick., 63. The extension of the rule to fiscal officers was deemed wise by the Commissioners. See statement of Mr. Crawford in his work, Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 72.

In an action on a certificate of deposit made payable to the cashier of the bank issuing the certificate named as such and endorsed by him as cashier to the plaintiff, parol evidence is admissible to show that such person was the cashier of the defendant bank when such endorsement was made, and that he was acting in that capacity in transferring the certificate. Johnson v. Buffalo Center State Bank, 112 N. W. 165.

In such an action it is not competent for the defendant to show that the cashier was making use of his official title and authority in his own individual interest. Ibid.

The fact that the certificate thus issued and endorsed bore eight per cent. interest and that the plaintiff to whom it was endorsed transferred it instead of presenting it for payment, held insufficient to impute notice that it was not negotiated in the regular course of business. Ibid.

Where an instrument is drawn or endorsed to a person as cashier or president of a bank it is prima facie payable to the bank, and may be negotiated by either the endorsement of the bank or the endorsement of the officer. Griffin v. Erskine, 131-444.

SEC. 3060-a43. Indorsement where name is misspelled, et cetera. Where the names [name] of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled, he may indorse the instrument as therein described adding, if he thinks fit, his proper signature. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 43.]

Other states: Thus one who, while carrying on business on his own account in the name of a company, receives a note payable to the order of the company in the course of such business, may transfer the note by indorsing it in his own name. Bryant v. Eastman, 7 Cush., 111.

SEC. 3060-a44. Indorsement in representative capacity. Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity, he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 44.]

Other states: As to liability of executors and administrators, who accept or indorse, see Schmittler v. Simon, 101 N. Y., 554.

SEC. 3060-a45. Time of indorsement—presumption. Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facie to have been effected before the instrument was overdue. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 45.]

Other states: Mason v. Noonan, 7 Wis., 609. See sec. 3060-a52. See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 75.

SEC. 3060-a46. Place of indorsement—presumption. Except where the contrary appears every indorsement is presumed prima facie to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 46.]

Other states: An indorsement in Massachusetts of a note executed and payable in New York, is a Massachusetts' contract and governed by the law of that state. Glidden v. Chamberlain, 167 Mass., 486.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 76.

SEC. 3060-a47. Continuation of negotiable character. An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 47.]

Other states: The law is well settled that a note or bill negotiable in form, is negotiable as well after as before it becomes due. Nat. Bk. v. Texas, 20 Wall., 72; French v. Jarvis, 29 Conn., 347. But by indorsement after maturity, the instrument becomes according to legal effect, payable on demand, so far as the indorser is concerned; and presentment for payment must be made within a reasonable time, and due notice of dishonor given the indorser. Berry v. Robinson, 9 Johns, 121; Van Hoosen v. Van Alstyne, 3 Wend., 79; Patterson v. Todd, 18 Pa. St., 426.

Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 77. See sections 3060-a119 to 3060-a125.

SEC. 3060-a48. Striking out indorsement. The owner may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out, and all indorsers subsequent to him, are thereby relieved from liability on the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 48.]

Iowa: The holder of a negotiable note is presumed to have the beneficial interest in it and being the payee, may strike out any indorsement on it. Gordon v. Pitt, 3-385; the possession of a note by plaintiff, the payee thereof, is presumed to be rightful, and the erasure of an indorsement thereon will be deemed to have been made by due authority. Goddard v. Cunningham, 6-400; to the same effect. Palmer v. State, Bank, 19-112. See also 15-380.

Other states: The holder may strike out all intervening indorsements, and aver that the first blank indorser indorsed immediately to himself. Byles on Bills, 149; Preston v. Mann, 25 Conn., 127. This may be done at the trial and after the plaintiff has finished his case. Vanarsdale v. Hax, 107 Fed. 878.

Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 78.

SEC. 3060-a49. Transfer without indorsement—effect of. Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferee had therein, and the transferee acquires, in addition, the right to have the indorsement of the transferer. But for the purpose of determining whether the transferee is a holder in due course, the negotiation takes effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 49.]

Iowa: A transferrer by delivery for value of a note impliedly warrants it to have received no material alteration prior to such transfer. Snyder v. Reno, 38-329; see Miller v. Dugan, 36-433.

Other states: See Simpson v. Hall, 47 Conn., 417; Bank v. Bingham, 118 N. Y., 349. See note to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 79.

SEC. 3060-a50. When prior party may negotiate instrument. Where an instrument is negotiated back to a prior party, such party may, subject to the provisions of this act, reissue and further negotiate the same, but he is not entitled to enforce payment thereof against any intervening party to whom he was personally liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 50.]

Iowa: The signer of a note as security, who subsequently takes it up may reissue the note as often as he takes it up. Wilkerson v. Daniels, 1 G. Gr., 180; an accommodation note, having once been discounted and taken up by accommodated party, does not become void, but may be transferred to a third party before maturity, discharged of equities existing between original parties, notwithstanding second indorser's knowledge of its character, and that it has once been indorsed and taken up. Washington Bank v. Crum, 15-53.

Other states: See Scott v. First Nat Bank, 71 Ind., 445.

RIGHTS OF HOLDER.

SEC. 3060-a51. Right of holder to sue—payment. The holder of a negotiable instrument may sue thereon in his own name and payment to him in due course discharges the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 51.]

Other states: This rule holds good even when restrictively indorsed. See section 3060-a37. Where plaintiff is the payee the production of the paper is sufficient. Williams v. Holt, 170 Mass., 351.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 90.

SEC. 3060-a52. What constitutes a holder in due course. A holder in due course is a holder who has taken the instrument under the following conditions:

1. That the instrument is complete and regular upon its face.
2. That he became the holder of it before it was overdue, and without notice that it had been previously dishonored, if such was the fact.
3. That he took it in good faith and for value.
4. That at the time it was negotiated to him he had no notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 52.]

(1) Other states: To determine the character of an indorsee as a bona fide holder for value without notice, the point of time at which he parts with his money, is the important fact. If the paper was then on its face irregular—out of the usual course of business—the effect of that knowledge on the indorsee could not be prevented by subsequently putting it in regular shape. Loose v. Bissell, 76 Pa. St., 459, 462.

As to incomplete instruments and authority to fill up blanks therein see section 3060-a14, supra.

(2) Iowa: A transfer by indorsement is presumed to have been for a valuable consideration and before maturity. Rea v. Owens, 37-262; an assignee of a note and mortgage who takes, without notice, subsequent to an agreement for extension, and subsequent to the original date of maturity, takes it "after due" in such sense that he acquires no right which his assignor, could not have claimed and enforced. Duncan v. Finn, 79-658.

Other states: Marsh v. Marshall, 53 Pa. St., 396. A promissory note matures when, by its terms, the principal becomes due; and one who purchases it in good faith, for value, before maturity, is within the protection of the law merchant, although interest is overdue at the time of such purchase. Kelly v. Whitney, 45 Wis., 110. But see Hart v. Stickney, 41 Wis., 630; Newell v. Gregg, 51 Barb., 253. But a note payable in installments is overdue when the first installment is overdue and unpaid, and one who takes it afterwards, takes it subject to all equities between the original parties. Vinton v. King, 4 Allen, 562. A transfer upon the day of maturity is before the instrument is overdue; for the principal debtor has the whole of that day in which to pay. Continental Nat. Bank v. Townsend, 87 N. Y., 8. But see Sargent v. Southgate, 5 Pick., 312; Pine v. Smith, 11 Gray, 38. A check deposited with a bank on the day of its date cannot be considered overdue when so deposited. Bank v. Manson, 168 Mass., 425.

(3) Iowa: A holder of a note as collateral security for an antecedent indebtedness, and with no extension of time, is not a holder for value. Noteboom v. Watkins, 103-580; neither is one a bona fide holder, who received it as further security for a pre-existing debt without giving any new consideration, or incurring any additional responsibility. Bank v. Hall, 106-540. See Johnson v. Barney, 1-531; Stotts v. Byers, 17-303. That a promissory note was obtained by fraud will not affect the right of a bona fide holder thereof, to whom it was indorsed before maturity, nor that such holder purchased it for a considerably less amount than its face. Sully v. Goldsmith, 32-397.

Other states: See Steckel v. Steckel, 28 Pa. St., 233, 235. As to what constitutes value, see section 3060-a25, supra.

(4) Iowa: A bona fide holder of a note made payable to a fictitious payee may recover of the maker. Lane v. Krekle, 22-399. One not a bona fide holder for value before maturity but merely holding for the payee and not in his own right, is not protected. Bank v. McNulty, 36-229; nor is an assignee in insolvency. Roberts v. Corbin, 26-315; and one who holds under a transfer made in the body of a separate instrument executed for an independent purpose is not the holder of a legal title discharged of prior equities, within the meaning of the law merchant. Franklin v. Truegood, 18-515. But the holder of a note under purchase at judicial sale and without a notice is a bona fide purchaser. Allison & Crane v. King, 21-302.

Other states: As to what constitutes notice, see sec. 3060-a56, infra.

For other authorities under each of these propositions, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 91.

One whose name is inserted in a blank instrument as payee without authority of the original signer is not a holder in due course. A holder in due course is one to whom the instrument is transferred after it has become effectual as a negotiable instrument. Vander Ploeg v. Van Zuuk, 112 N. W. 807.

SEC. 3060-a53. When person not deemed holder in due course. Where an instrument payable on demand is negotiated an unreasonable length of time after its issue, the holder is not deemed a holder in due course. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 53.]

Other states: As to what constitutes reasonable time, see section 3060-a193. No absolute measure can be fixed. A day or two. Field v. Nickerson, 13 Mass., 131, 137; seven days, Thurston v. McKeen, 6 Mass., 428; and even a month, Ranger v. Corey, 1 Metc., 369, is not too long; while eight months, Bank v. Jenness, 2 Metc., 288; Ayres v. Hutchins, 4 Mass., 370; three months and a half, Stevens v. Brice, 21 Pick., 193; and even two months and a half, Losee v. Durkin, 7 J. R., 70, have been deemed sufficient to discredit a note.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 92.

SEC. 3060-a54. Notice before full amount paid. Where the transferee receives notice of any infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same before he has paid the full amount agreed to be paid therefor, he will be deemed a holder in due course only to the extent of the amount theretofore paid by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 54.]

Other states: Dresser v. Missouri, etc., R. R. Construction Co., 93 U. S., 93.

SEC. 3060-a55. When title defective. The title of a person who negotiates an instrument is defective within the meaning of this act when he obtained the instrument, or any signature thereto, by fraud, duress, or force and fear, or other unlawful means, or for an illegal consideration, or when he negotiates it in breach of faith, or under such circumstances as amount to a fraud. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 55.]

Other states: Commercial paper executed under duress is void, even though there may be some consideration to support it. Magoon v. Reber, 76 Wis., 392. The fraud in putting the paper in circulation must be a fraud against the defendant. Kinney v. Kruse; 28 Wis., 183.

For other authorities see note to Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 94.

SEC. 3060-a56. What constitutes notice of defect. To constitute notice of an infirmity in the instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating the same, the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the infirmity or defect, or knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounted to bad faith. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 56.]

Iowa: Certain facts held not to constitute notice of infirmity. Pond v. Agricultural Works, 50-596; the rule stated to be that, the circumstances coming to the knowledge of the purchaser before the purchase must be such as to require that he shall in good faith, inquire as to the validity of the note, and it is only where the failure to inquire evinces actual bad faith, that such notice is sufficient. Merrill v. Hole, 85-66; Cook v. Weirman, 51-561; Lake v. Reed, 29-258. Circumstances and inference therefrom may be sufficient to charge purchaser with notice. Trustee, etc., v. Hill, 12-462; Hoffman v. Leibfarth, 51-711. See Hawkins v. Wilson, 71-762. Knowledge of the transferrer is not imputable or chargeable to the purchaser. Stutzman v. Payne, 23-17.

Other states: In a note to the corresponding section Mr. Crawford says: "The holder is not bound at his peril to be on the alert for circumstances which might possibly excite the suspicion of wary vigilance; he does not owe to the party who puts the paper afloat the duty of active inquiry in order to avert the imputation of bad faith. The rights of the holder are to be determined by the simple test of honesty and good faith, and not by a speculative issue as to his diligence or negligence. The holder's rights cannot be defeated without proof of actual notice of the defect in title or bad faith on his part evidenced by the circumstances. Though he may have been negligent in taking the paper, and omitted precautions which a prudent man would have taken, nevertheless, unless he acted mala fide, his title, according to settled doctrine, will prevail. Cheever v. Pittsburgh, Shenango & Lake Erie R. R. Co., 150 N. Y., 59, 65; American Exchange Nat. Bk. v. New York Belting, etc., Co., 148 N. Y., 705; Knox v. Eden Musee Am. Co., 148 N. Y., 454; Canajoharie Nat. Bk. v. Diefendorf, 123 N. Y., 202; Vosburgh v. Diefendorf, 119 N. Y., 357; Jarvis v. Manhattan Beach Co., 148 N. Y., 652; Murray v. Lardner, 2 Wall., 110; Swift v. Smith, 102 U. S., 442; Belmont v. Hoge, 35 N. Y., 65; Welsh v. Sage, 47 N. Y., 143; Bank v. Young, 41 N. J. Eq., 531; Bank v. Bank, 48 N. J. Law, 513; Phelan v. Moss, 67 Pa. St., 59; Moorehead v. Gilmore, 77 Pa. St., 118; Bank v. Morgan, 165 Pa. St., 199. While gross carelessness will not, as a matter of law, defeat title in purchaser for value, it may constitute evidence of bad faith. Bank v. Diefendorf, 123 N. Y., 191. The payment of value is a circumstance to be taken into account with other facts in determining the good faith of the purchaser, but it is not conclusive. Cunningham v. Scott, 90 Hun., 410, 411. The mere fact that the holder for value of a promissory note made by a third party receives it from a person engaged in the note brokerage business, as collateral security for a loan to such broker, is not sufficient to raise a doubt as to the authority of the broker to so deal with the note. Bank v. New York Belting & Packing Co., 148 N. Y., 698. And a bank has a right to assume as to notes offered to it, whether for discount or as collateral security, by a customer who has an account with it, and who is in the habit of borrowing money from it, that the customer is acting in good faith, and within his lawful rights. (Id.)

The fraudulent misappropriation by the broker of the proceeds of the discount is not sufficient to put the holder to the proof of his bona fides. Sloan v. The Union Banking Co., 67 Pa. St., 470.

One who receives the notes of a corporation from one of its officers in payment of, or as security for, a personal debt of such officer, does so at his peril. Prima facie, the act is unlawful, and, unless actually authorized, the purchaser will be deemed to have taken them with notice of the rights of the corporation. Wilson v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 120 N. Y., 145, 150. And where the maker of a note which is payable to his order and purports to be indorsed by a corporation, procures it to be discounted for his own benefit, this of itself, if unexplained, is notice that the indorsement is not made in the usual course of business, but is for the accommodation of the maker. Bank v. German-Am. Mut. Warehousing & Security Co., 116 N. Y., 281.

SEC. 3060-a57. Rights of holder in due course. A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, and free from defenses available to prior parties among themselves, and may enforce payment of the instrument for the full amount thereof against all parties liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 57.]

Iowa: That defendants were accommodation makers is no defense to an action by an indorsee, though received by plaintiff with knowledge of that fact, if note was taken in good faith for value in the usual course of business. Winters v. Home Ins. Co., 30-172; nor is the rule changed by the fact that it was negotiated by one of the makers, the real debtor instead of the payee. Id. In the absence of statutes permitting same, fraud cannot be set up against a note in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Temple v. Hays & Hendershott, Morris, 9; Lake v. Reed, 29-258; Lehman v. Press, 106-389; Wright, Dryden & Co. v. Flynn, 33-159. Duress not a defense against a bona fide holder for value. Veach v. Thomson, 15-380. Latent infirmities no defense against bona fide holder. Gage v. Sharp, 24-15. County bonds issued without authority are invalid in hands of purchaser. Hull v. Argalls v. County of Marshall, 12-142. Forgery, in its execution, renders paper invalid even in the hands of an innocent holder for value before maturity. Caulkins v. Whisler, 29-495; First Nat Bk. v. Zeins, 93-140.

Other states: In a case construing this section of the Negotiable Instruments Law it has been held that under this law a bona fide holder may enforce a promissory note against the maker even though the note was given for a gambling debt, and that this statute has repealed the English statutes which were formerly in force in the District of Columbia. In the opinion, Alvey, C. J., says: "We know, moreover, that the great and leading object of the act, not only with congress, but also with the large number of the principal commercial states of the Union that have adopted it, has been to establish a uniform system of law to govern negotiable instruments wherever they might circulate or be negotiated. It was not only uniformity of rules and principles that was designed, but to embody in a codified form, as fully as possible, all the law upon the subject, to avoid conflict of decisions, and the effect of mere local laws and usages that have heretofore prevailed. The great object sought to be accomplished by the enactment of the statute, to free the negotiable instrument, as far as possible, from all latent or local infirmities that would otherwise inhere in it to the prejudice and disappointment of innocent holders as against all parties to the instrument professedly bound thereby. This clearly could not be effected so long as the instrument was rendered absolutely null and void by local statutes, as against the original maker or acceptor, as is the case by the operation, indeed, by the express provision, of the statutes of Charles and Anna." Wirt v. Stubblefield, 17 App. Cas. D. C., 283.

See Cromwell v. County of Sac, 96 U. S., 60.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 96.

SEC. 3060-a58. When subject to original defenses. In the hands of any holder other than a holder in due course, a negotiable instrument is subject to the same defenses as if it were non-negotiable. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument, has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 58.]

Mr. Crawford says in a note to section 97 of his work: "It was not deemed expedient to make provision as to what equities the transferee will be subject to; for the matter may be affected by the statutes of the various states relating to set-off and counterclaim. In an act designed to be uniform in the various states, no more can be done than fix the rights of holders in due course. On the question whether only such equities may be asserted as attach to the bill, or whether equities arising out of collateral matters may also be asserted, the decisions are conflicting. In England it was decided in Burroughs v. Moss, 10 Barn. & Cress., 558, that the indorsee of an overdue bill is liable to such equities only as attach on the bill or note itself, and not to claims arising out of collateral matters, such as general set-off is. This is a leading case, and has since been uniformly followed in that country."

Other states: See also Long v. Rhawn, 75 Pa. St., 128; Young v. Shriner, 80 Pa. St., 463; Robinson v. Lymon, 10 Conn., 31. A person to whom the instrument is transferred as a gift, takes it subject to all the equities then existing between the original parties, but not subject to those which arise thereafter. Bank v. Wood, 128 N. Y., 35; Baxter v. Little, 6 Met., 7.

SEC. 3060-a59. Who deemed holder in due course. Every holder is deemed prima facie to be a holder in due course; but when it is shown that the title of any person who has negotiated the instrument was defective, the burden is on the holder to prove that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as a holder in due course. But the last mentioned rule does not apply in favor of a party who became bound on the instrument prior to the acquisition of such defective title. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 59.]

Other states: The presumption is that the indorsee of negotiable paper receives it bona fide and for value. Gray's Admr. v. Bank, 29 Pa. St., 365. The holder may make out his title by presumption until it is impeached by evidence showing that the paper had a fraudulent or illegal inception. This being done, however, it devolves upon him to show the circumstances under which it came into his possession, and that he has acted in good faith. Canajoharie Nat. Bk. v. Diefendorf, 123 N. Y., 191; Joy v. Diefendorf, 130 N. Y., 6; Sullivan v. Langley, 120 Mass., 437; Bank v. Iron Works, 159 Mass., 158; Hutchinson v. Boggs & Kirk, 28 Pa. St., 294; and other authorities cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 98.

One claiming to be the holder in due course and protected against the defense of fraud in the execution of the instrument has the burden of proving that he acquired title as such holder in due course, i. e., in good faith and for value, without notice. Keegan v. Rock, 128-39.

LIABILITIES OF PARTIES.

SEC. 3060-a60. Liability of maker. The maker of a negotiable instrument by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor, and admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 60.]

Other states: The fact that the holder had other collateral securities for the same debt more than sufficient to cover it, from which, however, the debt had not been realized, is not a ground of defense on the part of the maker. Lord v. Bank, 20 Pa. St., 384.

SEC. 3060-a61. Liability of drawer. The drawer by drawing the instrument admits the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse, and engages that on due presentment the instrument will be accepted or paid, or both, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored, and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. But the drawer may insert in the instrument an express stipulation negating or limiting his own liability to the holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 61.]

Other states: The transmission of a draft by mail by payee and its loss is not discovered for six months, discharges drawer. Bank v. Farnsworth (N. D.), 72 N. W. 901. But a knowledge of the facts and a new promise to pay by drawer waives his right to a discharge. Id.

SEC. 3060-a62. Liability of acceptor. The acceptor by accepting the instrument engages that he will pay it according to the tenor of his acceptance, and admits:

1. The existence of the drawer, the genuineness of his signature, and his capacity and authority to draw the instrument; and
2. The existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 62.]

(1) Other states: The discounting of a bill by the drawee who has not accepted it is neither payment nor a promise to pay according to its tenor and effect, but puts him in the position of an indorsee for value with the right of action against drawer and indorser. Swope v. Ross, 40 Pa. St., 186; Bank v. Bank, 46 N. Y., 77; Bank v. Bank, 59 N. Y., 67; Bank v. Bank, 10 Wheat., 333.

Numerous other authorities are cited by Mr. Crawford in his work on the Negotiable Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 112.

SEC. 3060-a63. When person deemed indorser. A person placing his signature upon an instrument otherwise than as maker, drawer or acceptor is deemed to be an indorser, unless he clearly indicates by appropriate words his intention to be bound in some other capacity. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 63.]

See section 3060-a17, subdiv. 6, supra.

SEC. 3060-a64. Liability of irregular indorser. Where a person, not otherwise a party to an instrument, places thereon his signature in blank before delivery, he is liable as indorser in accordance with the following rules:

1. If the instrument is payable to the order of a third person, he is liable to the payee and to all subsequent parties.
2. If the instrument is payable to the order of the maker or drawer, or is payable to bearer, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the maker or drawer.
3. If he signs for the accommodation of the payee, he is liable to all parties subsequent to the payee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 64.]

Other states: This section is intended to cover irregular indorsements. The decisions upon this subject are very conflicting. In some jurisdictions the person placing his signature on the back of a note before the payee has indorsed it, was deemed a joint maker. Good v. Martin, 95 U. S., 93. In other jurisdictions he was regarded as a guarantor and in still others an indorser.

For a discussion of the question and citation of additional authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 114.

SEC. 3060-a65. Warranty where negotiation by delivery, et cetera. Every person negotiating an instrument by delivery or by qualified indorsement, warrants:

1. That the instrument is genuine and in all respects what it purports to be.
2. That he has a good title to it.
3. That all prior parties had capacity to contract.
4. That he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the instrument or render it valueless.

But when the negotiation is by delivery only, the warranty extends in favor of no holder other than the immediate transferee. The provisions of subdivision three of this section do not apply to persons negotiating public or corporate securities, other than bills and notes. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 65.]

Other states: This, of course, refers only to the implied warranty. An express warranty may be so framed as to exclude all other warranties which would otherwise be implied by the law. Giffert v. West, 37 Wis., 115.

(1) Other states: Littauer v. Goldman, 72 N. Y., 506; Herrick v. Whitney, 15 Johns, 240; Coolidge v. Brigham, 5 Metc., 68; McConeghy v. Kirk, 68 Pa. St., 200; Bank v. Caverly, 7 Gray, 216, 220. See the following section.

As to implied warranty as to the identity of the thing sold, see Meyer v. Richards, 163 U. S., 385.

(2) Other states: Meriden Nat. Bk. v. Gallaudet, 120 N. Y., 298, 303.

(3) Other states: One who indorses a promissory note purporting to be executed by a firm, thereby impliedly contracts that the note was made by the firm in whose name it is executed, and he cannot dispute the fact in an action upon the indorsement. Dalrymple v. Hillenbrand, 62 N. Y., 5. And a second indorser cannot dispute the legal capacity of the payee to indorse on the ground that she was a married woman. Bank v. Caverly, 7 Gray, 216, 217. And one indorsing a note of a corporation admits its capacity to execute the note. Glidden v. Chamberlin, 167 Mass., 486.

(4) Other states: As to implied warranty that the note is unpaid, see Daskman v. Ullman, 74 Wis., 474. And an instrument void for usury transferred without indorsement or representation as to its legality, action cannot be sustained against the vendor without alleging and proving scienter. Littauer v. Goldman, 72 N. Y., 506; Meyer v. Richards, 163 U. S., 385.

Otis v. Cullom, 92 U. S., 448, is an action against the vendor of municipal bonds payable to bearer, afterward held void because the legislature had no power to pass the acts under which they were issued. It was held no recovery could be had in the absence of an express warranty.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 115.

The statutory provision as to the warranty implied in negotiating an instrument by delivery or qualified indorsement has no application where the question is as to whether the instrument has been accepted in satisfaction of an indebtedness. Dille v. White, 132-327.

SEC. 3060-a66. Liability of general indorser. Every indorser who indorses without qualification, warrants to all subsequent holders in due course:

1. That matters and things mentioned in subdivisions one, two and three of the next preceding section; and

2. That the instrument is at the time of his indorsement valid and subsisting. And, in addition, he engages that on due presentment, it shall be accepted or paid, or both, as the case may be, according to its tenor, and that if it be dishonored, and the necessary proceedings on dishonor be duly taken, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, or to any subsequent indorser who may be compelled to pay it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 66.]

(1) Other states: United States v. American Exchange Nat. Bk., 70 Fed. 232.

(2) Other states: Parol evidence of an agreement which would vary the legal liability of the indorser under his indorsement is inadmissible. Eaton v. McMahon, 42 Wis., 484. And while there has been some conflict in the decisions, the sounder doctrine puts all indorsements on substantially the same footing. The contract by bank indorsement is fixed by law, and should not be rendered uncertain by parol, any more than when written out in full. Charles v. Denis, 42 Wis., 56, 58. This is the rule adopted in the statute, which makes the indorser's obligation absolute.

Other authorities are to be found in note to sec. 116, Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.).

SEC. 3060-a67. Liability of indorser where paper negotiable by delivery. Where a person places his indorsement on an instrument negotiable by delivery he incurs all the liabilities of an indorser. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 67.]

Other states: The holder of paper payable to bearer and indorsed may sue upon it as bearer or indorsee at his election. Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 663-a; 3 Kent's Comm., 44.

In some states a note payable to a designated payee or bearer cannot be negotiated except by the indorsement of such person. See Garvin v. Wiswell, 83 Ill., 218; Blackman v. Lehman, 63 Ala., 547.

SEC. 3060-a68. Order in which indorsers are liable. As respects one another, indorsers are liable prima facie in the order in which they indorse; but evidence is admissible to show that as between or among themselves they have agreed otherwise. Joint payees or joint indorsees who indorse are deemed to indorse jointly and severally. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 68.]

Other states: This rule is general and applies to accommodation indorsers as well as to others. Such indorsements import, not a joint, but a several and successive liability, each indorser being responsible to all who succeed him. Easterly v. Barber, 66 N. Y., 433; Kelley v. Borroughs, 102 N. Y., 93; McCarty v. Roots, 21 How. (U. S.), 432; Shaw v. Knox, 98 Mass., 214; Howe v. Merrill, 15 Cush., 88; Russ v. Sadler, 197 Pa. St., 51.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 118.

SEC. 3060-a69. Liability of agent or broker. Where a broker or other agent negotiates an instrument without indorsement, he incurs all the liabilities prescribed by section sixty-five of this act, unless he discloses the name of his principal, and the fact that he is acting only as agent. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 69.]

Other states: Meriden Nat. Bk. v. Gallaudet, 120 N. Y., 289; Cabot Bk. v. Morton, 4 Gray, 156; Worthington v. Cowles, 12 Mass., 30.

PRESENTMENT FOR PAYMENT.

SEC. 3060-a70. Effect of want of demand on principal debtor. Presentment for payment is not necessary in order to charge the person primarily on the instrument; but if the instrument is, by its terms, payable at a special place, and he is able and willing to pay it there at maturity, such ability and willingness are equivalent to a tender of payment upon his part. But, except as herein otherwise provided, presentment for payment is necessary in order to charge the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 70.]

Iowa: The failure of the plaintiff to demand payment at the specified place will not excuse the defendant or maker from providing for its payment. Myers v. Byington, 34-205; Games v. Manning, 2 G. Gr., 251; Barker v. Brink, 4 G. Gr., 59. To charge an indorser presentment, demand and notice must be given and shown by affirmative proof. Bank of Red Oak v. Orvis, 40-332. If there are joint makers, presentment and demand must be made upon all. Id. In absence of notice of dishonor, the institution of suit against makers is not sufficient to charge indorser. Kaeter & Skinner v. Hock, Musser & Co., 11-536. In case of transfer after maturity, demand and notice must be given within reasonable time to charge indorser. Jones v. Middleton, 29-188; Pryor v. Bowman, 38-92.

Other states: As to there being no necessity for presentment to charge person primarily liable, see Howard v. Boorman, 17 Wis., 459; Hills v. Place, 48 N. Y., 520.

The rule adopted generally in the United States is that where a note is made payable at a particular bank or place, or a bill of exchange is drawn or accepted payable in like manner, it is not necessary in order to recover of the maker or acceptor to aver or prove presentment or demand of payment at such place on the day the instrument became due or afterward. The only consequence of a failure to make such presentment is that the maker or acceptor, if he was ready at the time and place to make the payment, may plead the matter in bar of damages and costs. Parker v. Stroud, 98 N. Y., 379, 384; Cox v. Nat. Bk., 100 U. S., 713.

A draft drawn in another state, by one residing there, upon a party residing in this state, legal questions in reference to presentation and demand are to be determined by the laws of this state. Sylvester v. Crohan, 138 N. Y., 494; Bank v. Lacombe, 84 N. Y., 367.

SEC. 3060-a71. Presentment where instrument is not payable on demand. Where the instrument is not payable on demand, presentment must be made on the day it falls due. Where it is payable on demand, presentment must be made within a reasonable time after its issue, except that in the case of a bill of exchange, presentment for payment will be sufficient if made within a reasonable time after the last negotiation thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 71.]

Iowa: Protest and notice of dishonor given on the day following expiration of days of grace too late to charge indorser. Barker & Griffith v. Webster & Wells, 10-

593. A presentment for payment before the last day of grace is premature, the note not being due until then. Edgar v. Greer, 8-394.

As to date of maturity, see sec. 3060-a85.

For citation of authorities under this section, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 131.

While the court may sometimes determine the reasonableness or unreasonableness of delay in presentment of a negotiable instrument as a matter of law, the question is ordinarily one of fact. If the drawer knows that the payee desires to make use of the draft for a particular purpose involving some delay in presentation for payment, he cannot complain of the delay reasonably contemplated. West Branch State Bank v. Haines, 112 N. W. 552.

Where the draft passes through the hands of several endorsees, no one of whom is guilty of unreasonable delay, the fact that it is not presented within the time allowed for presentation by the original payee does not defeat recovery against the drawer. Ibid.

Where a bank check has been transferred, demand of payment is within a reasonable time if made through an intermediate bank, according to a general custom with reference to the collection of checks on small banks through other banks. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 110 N. W. 29; 113 N. W.—.

SEC. 3060-a72. What constitutes a sufficient presentment. Presentment for payment, to be sufficient, must be made:

1. By the holder, or by some person authorized to receive payment on his behalf.
2. At a reasonable hour on a business day.
3. At a proper place as herein defined.
4. To the person primarily liable on the instrument, or if he is absent or inaccessible, to any person found at the place where the presentment is made. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 72.]

(1) Iowa: Agent under parole authority may make demand. Bank v. McLeran, et al., 26-306.

Other states: As to when possession of a negotiable instrument is sufficient evidence of a right to present and demand payment, see Shedd v. Brett, 1 Pick., 401. And payment to such person will always be valid unless he is known to the payer to have acquired possession wrongfully. Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 574.

(2) Other states: Except in cases where the instrument is payable at a bank, the holder has the whole day in which to present the same, the only limitation being that he must present it at a reasonable hour, and this may depend upon the circumstances of the case. Bank v. Burton, 58 N. Y., 430; Farnsworth v. Allen, 4 Gray, 453.

(3) See the following section.

(4) Iowa: Presentment for payment must be made to all the makers in person or at their usual places of residence or business. Graul v. Strutzel, 53-712; Closz & Mickelson v. Miracle, 103-198.

Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 132.

SEC. 3060-a73. Place of presentment. Presentment for payment is made at the proper place:

1. Where a place of payment is specified in the instrument and it is there presented.
2. Where no place of payment is specified and the address of the person to make payment is given in the instrument and it is there presented.
3. Where no place of payment is specified and no address is given and the instrument is presented at the usual place of business or residence of the person to make payment.
4. In any other case if presented to the person to make payment wherever he can be found, or if presented at his last known place of business or residence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 73.]

(3) Iowa: A demand made at a maker's residence, if he has no place of business, when he is not at home, is sufficient. Bank v. Orvis, 42-691.

Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y., 518, 522. Presentment at the maker's usual place of business during business hours, there being no one there to answer, is a sufficient demand to charge the indorser. Baumgardner v. Reeves, 35 Pa. St., 250;

Wallace v. Crilly, 46 Wis., 577. When addressed to the drawee at a particular house and accepted generally by him, see Pierce v. Struthers, 27 Pa. St., 249, 254; Struthers v. Blake et al., 30 Pa. St., 139.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 133.

SEC. 3060-a74. Instrument must be exhibited. The instrument must be exhibited to the person from whom payment is demanded, and when it is paid must be delivered up to the party paying it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 74.]

Iowa: Presentment to the maker personally or at his place of permanent residence or business is necessary to charge an endorser. Bank v. Green, Thomas & Co., 11-476.

Other states: Ocean Nat. Bk. v. Fant, 50 N. Y., 474, 476; Musson v. Lake, 4 How., 262; Freeman v. Boynton, 7 Mass., 483.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 134.

SEC. 3060-a75. Presentment where instrument payable at bank. Where the instrument is payable at a bank, presentment for payment must be made during banking hours, unless the person to make payment has no funds there to meet it at any time during the day, in which case presentment at any hour before the bank is closed on that day is sufficient. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 75.]

Other states: Salt Springs Nat. Bk. v. Burton, 58 N. Y., 430; Reed v. Wilson, 41 N. J. Law, 29; Shepard v. Chamberlain, 8 Gray, 225. There seems to be a conflict of authorities as to the precise time as to when suit may be brought on a dishonored note payable at a bank. See Church v. Clark, 21 Pick., 309; Blackman v. Nearing, 43 Conn., 60; Humphreys v. Sutcliffe, 192 Pa. St., 336.

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 135.

SEC. 3060-a76. Presentment where principal debtor is dead. Where the person primarily liable on the instrument is dead, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment must be made to his personal representative, if such there be, and if with the exercise of reasonable diligence he can be found. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 76.]

Iowa: In case of partners, after dissolution of the firm, see Mt. Pleasant Branch of State Bk. v. McLeran, 26-306.

Other states: But there must be competent and legal proof of his death. Weems v. Farmers' Bk., 15 Md., 231.

SEC. 3060-a77. Presentment to persons liable as partners. Where the persons primarily liable on the instrument are liable as partners, and no place of payment is specified, presentment for payment may be made to any one of them, even though there has been a dissolution of the firm. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 77.]

Iowa: In case of partners after dissolution of the firm, see Mt. Pleasant Branch of State Bank v. McLeran, 26-306.

Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y., 518; Bank v. Hunt, 2 Hill, 635.

SEC. 3060-a78. Presentment to joint debtors. Where there are several persons, not partners, primarily liable on the instrument, and no place of payment is specified, presentment must be made to them all. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 78.]

Iowa: That presentment and demand must be made upon all the makers, see Bank v. Orvis, 40-332; Graul v. Strutzel, 53-712, Closz v. Miracle, 103-198.

Other states: Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y. 518; Arnold v. Dreeser, 8 Allen, 435. In some cases this might be impracticable, but such cases are covered by section 3060-a82, infra.

SEC. 3060-a79. When presentment not required to charge the drawer. Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will pay the instrument. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 79.]

Iowa: Kimball v. Bryan, 56-632.

Other states: Presentment is not dispensed with merely because the drawer has no funds in the hands of the drawee. Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S., 708; Dickens v. Beal, 10 Pet., 572.

Presentment for payment is not required to charge the drawer where he has no right to expect or require the drawee to pay the draft. West Branch State Bank v. Haines, 112 N. W. 552.

SEC. 3060-a80. When presentment not required to charge the indorser. Presentment for payment is not required in order to charge an indorser where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation, and he has no reason to expect that the instrument will be paid if presented. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 80.]

SEC. 3060-a81. When delay in making the presentment is excused. Delay in making presentment for payment is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder, and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, presentment must be made with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 81.]

Other states: Windham Bk. v. Norton, 22 Conn., 213. In case of sickness of holder see Wilson v. Senier, 14 Wis., 380. If the facts are not disputed, the question of due diligence is one of law for the court; otherwise for the jury. Belden v. Lamb, 17 Conn., 451.

SEC. 3060-a82. When presentment may be dispensed with. Presentment for payment is dispensed with:

1. Where after the exercise of reasonable diligence presentment as required by this act cannot be made.

2. Where the drawee is a fictitious person.

3. By waiver of presentment, express or implied. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 82.]

(1) Iowa: Demand of payment is unnecessary to charge indorser if the maker of the note has removed from the state before its maturity. Whitely v. Allen, 56-224. While the removal of the maker from the state dispenses with demand, notice of that fact and the fact of non-payment must still be given the indorser in order to charge him. Leonard v. Olson, 99-162. Mere insolvency of maker will not excuse demand on him in order to charge indorser. (Id.)

(3) Iowa: A promise to pay after maturity by an indorser with knowledge that note has not been presented and protested, will operate as a waiver of these requirements. Hughes v. Bowen, 15-446; Campbell v. Varney, 12-13; Lomax v. Smyth & Co., 50-223. Certain facts considered and held not to be a waiver of demand. Freeman v. O'Brien, 38-406. Written promises to pay if maker does not made by indorser after maturity and with knowledge of protest for non-payment, amounts to waiver and renders him liable. Davis v. Miller, 88-114. An indorser in blank is bound, however, by waiver of presentation, protest and notice of non-payment contained in the body of the note, distinguishing. Davis v. Miller, supra.

Other states: Burden is on plaintiff to show due diligence. Eaton v. McMahon, 42 Wis., 484. It is the holder's duty to give the notary information as to the residence of the drawer or indorser. Smith v. Fisher, 24 Pa. St., 222. Presentment is not dispensed with by the insolvency of the maker or drawee. Reinke v. Wright (Wis.), 67 N. W. 737; Bensonhurst v. Wilby, 45 Ohio St., 340. As to when waiver may be made, see Power v. Mitchell, 7 Wis., 161. Waiver may result from implication and usage or from any understanding between the parties which is of a character to satisfy the mind that a waiver is intended. Cady v. Bradshaw, 116 N. Y., 188-191.

For a citation of other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 142.

SEC. 3060-a83. When instrument is dishonored by non-payment. The instrument is dishonored by non-payment when:

1. It is duly presented for payment and payment is refused or cannot be obtained; or

2. Presentment is excused and the instrument is overdue and unpaid. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 83.]

SEC. 3060-a84. Liability of person secondarily liable, when instrument is dishonored. Subject to the provisions of this act, when the instrument is dishonored by non-payment, an immediate right of recourse to all parties secondarily liable thereon, accrues to the holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 84.]

Other states: The indorser's liability having been fixed by demand and notice of dishonor, he becomes an independent and principal debtor and does not stand in the capacity of a mere surety. First Nat. Bk. v. Wood, 71 N. Y., 405. 411.

Other authorities are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 144.

SEC. 3060-a85. Time of maturity. Every negotiable instrument is payable at the time fixed therein without grace. When the day of maturity falls upon Sunday, or a holiday, the instrument is payable on the next succeeding business day. Instruments falling due on Saturday are to be presented for payment on the next succeeding business day, except that instruments payable on demand may, at the option of the holder, be presented for payment before twelve o'clock noon on Saturday, when that entire day is not a holiday. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 85.]

SEC. 3060-a86. Time—how computed. Where the instrument is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run, and by including the date of payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 86.]

SEC. 3060-a87. Rule where instrument payable at bank. Where the instrument is made payable at a bank it is equivalent to an order to the bank to pay the same for the account of the principal debtor thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 87.]

Other states: There has been some conflict in the decisions as to the authority to pay a note or acceptance made payable there. The rule adopted in the statute is the one sustained by the weight of authority; and is also the rule which is most convenient in practice. It is supported by the following decisions: Bank v. Bank, 46 N. Y., 82; Bank v. Hughes, 17 Wend., 94; Bank v. Henninger, 100 Pa., 496; Bedford Bk. v. Acoarn, 125 Ind., 582.

The authorities holding the contrary are cited in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 147.

SEC. 3060-a88. What constitutes payment in due course. Payment is made in due course when it is made at or after maturity of the instrument to the holder thereof in good faith and without notice that his title is defective. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 88.]

Other states: Payment before the day of maturity is a defence which binds only the party receiving payment and those who stand in his shoes. Watson v. Wyman, 161 Mass., 96, 99.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 148.

NOTICE OF DISHONOR.

SEC. 3060-a89. To whom notice of dishonor must be given. Except as herein otherwise provided, when a negotiable instrument has been dishonored by non-acceptance or non-payment, notice of dishonor must be given to the drawer and to each indorser, and any drawer or indorser to whom such notice is not given is discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 89.]

Iowa: Where there are several indorsers of a note, the holder may elect to hold any one or all of the prior indorsers. To hold all liable he must give all notice of protest; otherwise it is only necessary to give those whom he wishes to hold notice. Likewise an indorser thus notified, in order to charge his prior indorsers must them notice; but when an indorser receives notice of non-payment and protest either from a subsequent indorser, or from the holder of the note, it inures to the benefit of all subsequent indorsees. Hamilton v. Veach, 19-419.

Other states: That this rule does not apply to guarantors, see Brown v. Curtiss, 2 N. Y., 225; Allen v. Rightmere, 20 Johns., 365; Roberts v. Hawkins, 70 Mich., 566.

SEC. 3060-a90. By whom given. The notice may be given by or on behalf of the holder, or by or on behalf of any party to the instrument who might be compelled to pay it to the holder, and who, upon taking it up, would have a right to reimbursement from the party to whom the notice is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 90.]

Iowa: Notices of protest to several indorsers residing in the same town may be mailed to one, and will be sufficient to charge them all with notice, provided the party to whom they are sent shall again mail to the proper parties. Van Brunt & Sons v. Vaughn, 47-145. See First Nat. Bk. v. Farneman, 93-161.

Other states: That notice cannot be given by a stranger, see Lawrence v. Miller, 16 N. Y., 235, 237; Chanoine v. Fowler, 3 Wend., 173. A drawee who refuses acceptance cannot give notice. Stanton v. Blossom, 14 Mass., 116.

SEC. 3060-a91. Notice given by agent. Notice of dishonor may be given by an agent either in his own name or in the name of any party entitled to give notice, whether that party be his principal or not. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 91.]

Other states: Drexler v. McGlynn, 99 Cal., 143. A notice made out by a notary public who signed by mistake the maker's name instead of his own, without authority of the maker, is insufficient. Cabot Bk. v. Warner, 92 Mass., 522. Banks as agents for collection, have authority to receive and transmit notices on behalf of the owners of the paper. West River Bk. v. Taylor, 34 N. Y., 128, 130; Colt v. Noble, 5 Mass., 167.

An agent in giving notice represents and acts on behalf of his principal, and this, though he may be a notary acting in his official character. Lawrence v. Miller, 16 N. Y., 235, 238.

SEC. 3060-a92. Effect of notice given on behalf of holder. Where notice is given by or on behalf of the holder, it inures for the benefit of all subsequent holders and all prior parties who have a right of recourse against the party to whom it is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 92.]

Other states: A holder is not bound to give notice to any one but his immediate indorser. West River Bank v. Taylor, 34 N. Y., 128, 131; Linn v. Horton, 17 Wis., 150, 153.

SEC. 3060-a93. Effect where notice is given by party entitled thereto. Where notice is given by or on behalf of a party entitled to give notice, it inures for the benefit of the holder and all parties subsequent to the party to whom the notice is given. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 93.]

SEC. 3060-a94. When agent may give notice. Where the instrument has been dishonored in the hands of an agent, he may either himself give notice to the parties liable thereon, or he may give notice to his principal. If he gives notice to his principal, he must do so within the same time as if he were the holder, and the principal, upon receipt of such notice, has himself the same time for giving notice as if the agent had been an independent holder. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 94.]

Other states: Rosson v. Carroll, 90 Tenn., 90.

SEC. 3060-a95. When notice is sufficient. A written notice need not be signed, and an insufficient written notice may be supplemented and validated by verbal communication. A misdescription of the instrument does not vitiate unless the party to whom the notice is given is in fact misled thereby. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 95.]

Other states: Kilgore v. Bulkley, 14 Conn., 362; Tobey v. Lenning, 14 Pa. St., 483; Aiken v. Marine Bk., 16 Wis., 679.

SEC. 3060-a96. Form of notice. The notice may be in writing or merely oral and may be given in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument and indicate that it has been dishonored by non-acceptance or non-payment. It may in all cases be given by delivering it personally or through the mails. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 96.]

Iowa: Notice of non-payment may be verbal as well as in writing. First Nat. Bk. v. Ryerson, 23-508. Certificate of notary which fails to show that the residences of the several parties were at the places where the notices were addressed to them, held sufficient. Fuller & Warren v. Dingman, 41-506. Certificate of protest considered and held sufficient. Jones v. Berryhill, 25-289.

Other states: Brewster v. Arnold, 1 Wis., 264. A notice which omits an essential feature of the note or misdescribes it, is an imperfect one, but not necessarily invalid. It is invalid only where it fails to give that particular information which it would have given but for its particular imperfection; and even in case the notice in itself be defective, if, from evidence alimunde of the attendant circumstances, it is apparent that the indorser was not deceived or misled as to the identity of the dishonored instrument, he will be charged. Hodges v. Schuyler, 22 N. Y., 114; Artisans' Bk. v. Backus, 36 N. Y., 106; Gill v. Palmer, 29 Conn., 57. To render the notice defective it must fail to convey sufficient knowledge to disclose the identity of the particular instrument dishonored. Mills v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat., 431; Bank of Alexandria v. Swaim, 9 Pet., 33.

For numerous other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 167.

SEC. 3060-a97. To whom notice may be given. Notice of dishonor may be given either to the party himself or to his agent in that behalf. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 97.]

Other states: Fassin v. Hubbard, 55 N. Y., 465, 471; Bank v. Butler Colliery Co., 51 Hun, 63, 68.

SEC. 3060-a98. Notice where party is dead. Where any party is dead, and his death is known to the party giving notice, the notice must be given to a personal representative, if there be one, and if with reasonable diligence, he can be found. If there be no personal representative, notice may be sent to the last residence at last place of business of the deceased. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 98.]

Other states: Shoenberger's Executor v. Lancaster Savings Institution, 28 Pa. St., 459; Massachusetts Bk. v. Oliver, 10 Cush., 557; Goodnow v. Warren, 122 Mass., 82.

SEC. 3060-a99. Notice to partners. Where the parties to be notified are partners, notice to any one partner is notice to the firm, even though there has been a dissolution. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 99.]

Other states: Where partners give a promissory note with one of them as maker and the other as indorser, the latter is not liable on his indorsement unless he be duly notified of the dishonor of the note. Foland v. Boyd, 23 Pa. St., 476; Hubbard v. Matthews, 54 N. Y., 43, 50.

SEC. 3060-a100. Notice to persons jointly liable. Notice to joint parties who are not partners must be given to each of them, unless one of them has authority to receive such notice for the others. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 100.]

Other states: Shepard v. Hawley, 1 Conn., 367; Boyd v. Orton, 16 Wis., 495.

For distinction between parties who are partners and joint parties who are not partners, see Gates v. Beecher, 60 N. Y., 518, 526.

SEC. 3060-a101. Notice to bankrupt. Where a party has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent, or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee or assignee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 101.]

Other states: Where the indorser has made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, notice to the assignee would bind the indorser and his estate. Callahan v. Kentucky Bank, 82 Ky., 231. To the same effect. American Nat. Bk. v. Junk Bros., 94 Tenn., 634. Contra, House v. Vinton, 43 Ohio St., 346.

SEC. 3060-a102. Time within which notice must be given. Notice may be given as soon as the instrument is dishonored, and unless delay is excused as hereinafter provided, must be given within the times fixed by this act. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 102.]

Other states: That the holder need not wait until the close of business hours, but may send notice at once, see Bank of Alexandria v. Swan, 9 Pet., 33; Lenox v. Roberts, 2 Wheat., 373; Whitwell v. Brigham, 19 Pick., 117.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 173.

SEC. 3060-a103. Where parties reside in same place. Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in same place, notice must be given within the following times:

1. If given at the place of business of the person to receive notice, it must be given before the close of business hours on the day following.
2. If given at his residence, it must be given before the usual hours of rest on the day following.
3. If sent by mail, it must be deposited in the post-office in time to reach him in the usual course on the day following. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 103.]

Other states: Adams v. Wright, 14 Wis., 408; Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 1038; Phelps v. Stocking, 21 Neb., 444.

See also Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 174.

The fixed rules of the negotiable instruments act relating to notice of dishonor are not applicable to presentment for payment of a bank check. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 110 N. W. 29; 113 N. W.—.

SEC. 3060-a104. Where parties reside in different places. Where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places, the notice must be given within the following times:

1. If sent by mail, it must be deposited in the post-office in time to go by mail the day following the day of dishonor, or if there be no mail at a convenient hour on that day, by the next mail thereafter.
2. If given otherwise than through the post-office, then within the time that notice would have been received in due course of mail, if it had been deposited in the post-office within the time specified in the last sub-division. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 104.]

Other states: Stephenson v. Dickson, 24 Pa. St., 148; Whitwell v. Johnson, 17 Mass., 449. In Smith v. Poillon, 87 N. Y., 590, 597, it is said: "From a careful examination of all these authorities and many others it is clear that the law is not precisely settled. It appears that at first it was supposed to be necessary that notice of dishonor should be given by the next post after dishonor, on the same day if there was one. That rule was found inconveniently stringent, and then it was held that when the parties lived in different places between which there was a mail, the notice could be posted on the next day after the dishonor, or notice of dishonor. Some of them hold that when there are several mails on the next day, it is sufficient to send the notice by any post of that day. Other authorities lay down the rule, in general terms, that the notice must be posted by the first practical and convenient mail of the next day; and that rule seems to be supported by the most authority in this state. What is a practical and convenient mail depends upon circumstances. It may be controlled by the usages of business and the customs of the people at the place of mailing, and the condition, situation and business engagements of the person required to give the notice. The rule should have a reasonable application in every case, and whether sufficient diligence has been used to mail the notice, the facts being undisputed, is a question of law."

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 175.

SEC. 3060-a105. When sender deemed to have given due notice. Where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the post-office, the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 105.]

Other states: See Windham Bk. v. Norton, 22 Conn., 213; Cook v. Foraker, 193 Pa. St., 461.

SEC. 3060-a106. Deposit in post-office—what constitutes. Notice is deemed to have been deposited in the post-office when deposited in any branch post-office or in any letter box under the control of the post-office department. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 106.]

Other states: See Pearce v. Langfit, 101 Pa. St., 507; Johnson v. Brown, 154 Mass., 105.

SEC. 3060-a107. Notice to subsequent party—time of. Where a party receives notice of dishonor, he has, after the receipt of such notice, the same time for giving notice to antecedent parties that the holder has after the dishonor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 107.]

Other states: Shelburne Falls Nat. Bk. v. Townley, 102 Mass., 177; Seaton v. Scovill, 18 Kans., 435; Linn v. Horton, 17 Wis., 150.

SEC. 3060-a108. Where notice must be sent. Where a party has added an address to his signature, notice of dishonor must be sent to that address; but if he is not given such address, then the notice must be sent as follows:

1. Either to the post-office nearest to his place of residence, or to the post-office where he is accustomed to receive his letters; or

2. If he lives in one place, and have his place of business in another, notice may be sent to either place; or

3. If he is sojourning in another place, notice may be sent to the place where he is sojourning. But where the notice is actually received by the party within the time specified in this act, it will be sufficient, though not sent in accordance with the requirements of this section. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 108.]

[The New York act contains the word "has" in place of the word "is" in line three.]

Other states: That notice must be sent to the address given, see Bartlett v. Robinson, 39 N. Y., 187.

(1) Iowa: A notice of presentment, non-payment and protest to charge indorser, must be sent him at his proper post-office, and when sent to wrong post-office, held insufficient. Northwestern Coal Co. v. Bowman & Co., 69-150; but where notice is addressed to indorser at his former post-office, but which had been discontinued and business transferred to another, held sufficient. Bank v. Owen, 23-185.

Other states: Bank of Columbia v. Lawrence, 1 Pet., 578; Nat. Bk. v. Cade, 73 Mich., 449.

SEC. 3060-a109. Waiver of notice. Notice of dishonor may be waived, either before the time of giving notice has arrived, or after the omission to give due notice, and the waiver may be expressed or implied. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 109.]

Other states: See Ross v. Hurd, 71 N. Y., 14, 18; Lowe v. Howard, 10 Cush., 159.

But it must appear that the indorser had knowledge of the fact that the holder was in default. Thornton v. Wynn, 12 Wheat., 183; Schierl v. Baumel, 75 Wis., 75. And in Massachusetts it is held that knowledge on the part of the indorser, that demand upon the maker has not been made, is material, and must be proved, notwithstanding the fact that he knew that the note had not been paid and that notice of non-payment had not been given, and was aware that he was discharged from all liability. Parks v. Smith, 155 Mass., 26, 33.

For a citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 180.

SEC. 3060-a110. Whom affected by waiver. Where the waiver is embodied in the instrument itself, it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser, it binds him only. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 110.]

Iowa: A waiver of presentation, protest and notice of non-payment contained in the body of the note, is binding on one who indorses in blank. Phillips v. Dippo, 93-35; Bank v. Sigstadt, 96-491; Bank v. Wilka, 102-315.

Other states: Lowry v. Steele, 27 Ind., 168; Bryant v. Taylor, 19 Minn., 376. Where written above the signature, see Woodman v. Thurston, 8 Cush., 157.

SEC. 3060-a111. Waiver of protest. A waiver of protest, whether in the case of a foreign bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument, is deemed to be a waiver not only of a formal protest, but also of a presentment and notice of dishonor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 111.]

Other states: Anville Nat. Bk. v. Kettering, 106 Pa. St., 531; Brewster v. Arnold, 1 Wis., 264. In construing an allegation in a pleading that the instrument was duly protested, it will not be held to comprehend an averment that notice of dishonor was given to the indorser. Cook v. Warren, 88 N. Y., 37.

SEC. 3060-a112. When notice is dispensed with. Notice of dishonor is dispensed with when, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, it cannot be given to or does not reach the parties sought to be charged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 112.]

Other states: Hobbs v. Straine, 149 Mass., 212.

For citation of authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 183.

SEC. 3060-a113. Delay in giving notice—how excused. Delay in giving notice of dishonor is excused when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, notice must be given with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 113.]

Other states: Martin v. Ingersoll, 8 Pick., 1.

SEC. 3060-a114. When notice need not be given to drawer. Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to the drawer in either of the following cases:

1. Where the drawer and drawee are the same person.
2. Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract.
3. Where the drawer is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment.
4. Where the drawer has no right to expect or require that the drawee or acceptor will honor the instrument.
5. Where the drawer has countermanded payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 114.]

(1) Other states: Where all members of the firm are members of the house which drew the bill, notice is not required to render the firm liable. West Branch Bk. v. Fulner, 3 Pa., St., 389.

(4) Other states: Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S., 708; Wollenweher v. Ketterlinn, 17 Pa. St., 389.

SEC. 3060-a115. When notice need not be given to indorser. Notice of dishonor is not required to be given to an indorser in either of the following cases:

1. Where the drawee is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract and the indorser was aware of the fact at the time he indorsed the instrument.

2. Where the indorser is the person to whom the instrument is presented for payment.

3. Where the instrument was made or accepted for his accommodation. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 115.]

(2) Other states: In re Swift, 106 Fed., 65, is a case arising under this statute.

(3) Iowa: Possession by an indorser of a note at maturity waives demand and notice. Lomax v. Smyth, 50-223.

Other states: French v. Bank of Columbia, 4 Cranch, 141; Blenderman v. Price, 50 N. J. L., 296.

SEC. 3060-a116. Notice of non-payment where acceptance refused. Where due notice of dishonor by non-acceptance has been given, notice of a subsequent dishonor by non-payment is not necessary, unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 116.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 187.

SEC. 3060-a117. Effect of omission to give notice of non-acceptance. An omission to give notice of dishonor by non-acceptance does not prejudice the rights of a holder in due course subsequent to the omission. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 117.]

SEC. 3060-a118. When protest need not be made—when must be made. Where any negotiable instrument has been dishonored it may be protested for non-acceptance or non-payment as the case may be; but protest is not required, except in the case of foreign bills of exchange. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 118.]

(1) Iowa: Unless the specified place of payment be at a bank, a deposit of money at such place to meet the note will not be a payment, the holder not being required to make presentment at that place. Callanan et al. v. Williams, et al., 71-363; Englert v. White, 92-97; Klindt v. Higgins, 95-529; Baumgartner v. Peterson, 93-572.

The rule is probably otherwise where the specified place of payment is at a bank. Bank v. Ingerson, 105-349. Payment to payee, who is a trustee, before maturity, with knowledge of assignment, is not a satisfaction of the indebtedness, and such payment will not protect the maker. Livermore v. Maxwell, 87-705. Payment to an agent not in possession of the instrument is done at the peril of the payor; so, too, is payment before maturity, the paper remaining outstanding. Security Co. v. Graybeal, 85-543; U. S. Bank v. Burson et al., 90-191. Where note is payable at a specified place, maker can only exonerate himself from payment of interest by showing that he had funds at the place for the discharge of the note. Robinson v. Lair, 31-9. Presumption of ownership arises from the possession of a note after maturity. Graff v. Adams et al., 100-481; Stoddard v. Burton, 41-582; and payment of a note before maturity, made payable "on or before" to the holder thereof will be upheld. Stoddard v. Burton, supra.

DISCHARGE OF NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS.

SEC. 3060-a119. Instrument—how discharged. A negotiable instrument is discharged:

1. By payment in due course by or on behalf of the principal debtor.
2. By payment in due course by the party accommodated, where the instrument is made or accepted for accommodation.
3. By the intentional cancellation thereof by the holder.
4. By any other act which will discharge a simple contract for the payment of money.

5. When the principal debtor becomes the holder of the instrument at or after maturity in his own right. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 119.]

(1) Other states: Possession of a bill by the acceptor after it has been in circulation, is prima facie evidence that it has been paid by him. Baring v. Clark, 19 Pick., 220. So the possession of a promissory note by the maker. Bank v. Harris, 7 Wash., 139; Madison Square Bk. v. Pierce, 137 N. Y., 444.

SEC. 3060-a120. When persons secondarily liable on—discharged.
A person secondarily liable on the instrument is discharged:

1. By an act which discharges the instrument.
2. By the intentional cancellation of his signature by the holder.
3. By the discharge of a prior party.
4. By the valid tender of payment made by a prior party.
5. By a release of the principal debtor, unless the holder's right of recourse against the party secondarily liable is expressly reserved.
6. By an agreement binding upon the holder to extend the time of payment, or to postpone the holder's right to enforce the instrument, unless made with the assent of the party secondarily liable, or unless the right of recourse against such party is expressly reserved. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 120.]

(5) Other states: By an express reservation of the holder's rights against the tion. Gloucester Bk. v. Worcester, 10 Pick., 528; Tombeckbe Bk. v. Stratton, 7 Wend., drawer or indorser, their rights against the maker or acceptor are reserved by implication. 429.

SEC. 3060-a121. Right of party who discharges instrument. Where the instrument is paid by a party secondarily liable thereon, it is not discharged; but the party so paying it is remitted to his former rights as regards all prior parties, and he may strike out his own and all subsequent indorsements, and again negotiate the instrument, except:

1. Where it is payable to the order of a third person, and has been paid by the drawer; and
2. Where it was made or accepted for accommodation, and has been paid by the party accommodated. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 121.]

(2) Iowa: Maker is not released by extension given to the indorser or the taking of security from the indorser. Whiting v. Western Stage Co., 20, 554.

SEC. 3060-a122. Renunciation by holder. The holder may expressly renounce his rights against any party to the instrument before, at or after its maturity. An absolute and unconditional renunciation of his rights against the principal debtor made at or after the maturity of the instrument discharges the instrument. But a renunciation does not affect the rights of a holder in due course without notice. A renunciation must be in writing, unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 122.]

SEC. 3060-a123. Cancellation—unintentional—burden of proof. A cancellation made unintentionally, or under a mistake, or without the authority of the holder, is inoperative; but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been cancelled, the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake or without authority. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 123.]

SEC. 3060-a124. Alteration of instrument—effect of. Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided, except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration and subsequent indorsers. But when an instrument has been materially altered and is in the hands of a holder if due course, not a party to the alteration, he may enforce payment thereon according to its original tenor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 124.]

Iowa: The severance of one portion of a contract, which leaves one portion in the form of a negotiable promissory note, signed by one of the parties, constitutes such a material alteration that recovery cannot be had on the note, even in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value before maturity, unless the maker is chargeable with gross negligence in its execution. Scofield v. Ford, 56-370. Proof of material alteration since acceptance by drawee casts the burden upon the holder, of showing purchase in good faith without notice of alteration. Smith v. Eals, 81-235; Conger v. Crabtree, 88-536. See Nat. Bk. v. Zeims, 93-140.

Other states: See Jeffries v. Rosenfeld (Mass.), 61 N. E., 49, where the effect of this provision was discussed, but not decided. The burden of explaining an apparent alteration is upon the party producing the paper. Town of Solon v. Williamsburgh Savings Bk., 114 N. Y., 122, 135; Simpson v. Davis, 119 Mass., 269; Gettysburg Nat. Bk. v. Chisolm, 169 Pa. St., 564.

For other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 205.

SEC. 3060-a125. What constitutes a material alteration. Any alteration which changes:

1. The date.
2. The sum payable, either for principal or interest.
3. The time or place of payment.
4. The number or the relations of the parties.
5. The medium or currency in which payment is to be made.

Or which adds a place of payment where no place of payment is specified, or any other change or addition which alters the effect of the instrument in any respect, is a material alteration. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 125.]

BILLS OF EXCHANGE—FORM AND INTERPRETATION.

SEC. 3060-a126. Bill of exchange defined. A bill of exchange is an unconditional order in writing addressed by one person to another, signed by the person giving it, requiring the person to whom it is addressed to pay on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 126.]

Other states: Jarvis v. Wilson, 46 Conn., 191.

SEC. 3060-a127. Bill not an assignment of funds in hands of drawee. A bill of itself does not operate as an assignment of the funds in the hands of the drawee available for the payment thereof, and the drawee is not liable on the bill unless and until he accepts the same. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 127.]

Other states: Harris v. Clark, 3 N. Y., 93; Mandeville v. Welch, 5 Wheat, 286; Brill v. Tuttle, 81 N. Y., 454; Throop Grain Cleaner Co. v. Smith, 110 N. Y., 83.

SEC. 3060-a128. Bill addressed to more than one drawee. A bill may be addressed to two or more drawees jointly, whether they are partners or not; but not to two or more drawees in the alternative or in succession. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 128.]

SEC. 3060-a129. Inland and foreign bills of exchange. An inland bill of exchange is a bill which is, or on its face purports to be, both drawn and payable within this state. Any other bill is a foreign bill. Unless the contrary appears on the face of the bill, the holder may treat it as an inland bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 129.]

Other states: Commercial Bk. of Ky. v. Varnum, 49 N. Y., 269; Life Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 112 U. S., 696; Armstrong v. Am. Exch. Nat. Bk., 133 U. S., 433; Phoenix Bk. v. Hussey, 12 Pick., 483.

SEC. 3060-a130. When bill may be treated as promissory note. Where in a bill drawer and drawee are the same person, or where the drawee is a fictitious person, or a person not having capacity to contract, the holder may treat the instrument at his option either as a bill of exchange or a promissory note. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 130.]

See section 3060-a17.

SEC. 3060-a131. Referee in case of need. The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say, in case the bill is dishonored by non-acceptance or non-payment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not, as he may see fit. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 131.]

The usual form is: "In case of need, apply to Messrs. C. and D. at E." Chitty on Bills, 165.

SEC. 3060-a132. Acceptance of bills of exchange—acceptance—how made—et cetera. The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 132.] [31 G. A., ch. 149.]

Iowa: A conditional acceptance cannot be held to charge an indorsee of the bill before maturity with equities arising out of original transaction between drawer and acceptor. Merritt v. Nihart, 11-57. Evidence tending to show either an express or implied promise of acceptance held admissible. Smith v. Clark & Whiting, 12-32.

Other states: This contract is regarded as a new contract. Superior City v. Ripley, 138 U. S., 93. The usual mode of making an acceptance is by writing the word "accepted" and subscribing the drawee's name. Byles on Bills, 190. Acceptance by telegraph may be made by the party and such an acceptance is within the terms of the statute requiring acceptances to be in writing. North Atchison Bk. v. Garretson, 51 Fed., 167. But to require the acceptance to be on the instrument itself would preclude the giving of an acceptance by telegraph.

SEC. 3060-a133. Holder entitled to acceptance on face of bill. The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill, and if such request is refused, may treat the bill as dishonored. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 133.]

SEC. 3060-a134. Acceptance by separate instrument. Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself, it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 134.]

SEC. 3060-a135. Promise to accept—when equivalent to acceptance. An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who, upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 135.]

Other states: An absolute authority to draw is equivalent to an unconditional promise to pay. Ruiz v. Renauld, 100 N. Y., 256; Merchants Bk. v. Griswold, 72 N. Y., 472, 479. At common law an oral promise was sufficient. Scudder v. Union Nat. Bk., 91 U. S., 406.

For a citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 223.

SEC. 3060-a136. Time allowed drawee to accept. The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentation in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill; but the acceptance, if given, dates as of the day of presentation. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 136.]

SEC. 3060-a137. Liability of drawee retaining or destroying bill. Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same, or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or non-accepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 137.]

Other states: Matteson v. Moulton, 79 N. Y., 627.

SEC. 3060-a138. Acceptance of incomplete bill. A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawee, or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by non-payment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by non-acceptance and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder, in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 138.]

SEC. 3060-a139. Kinds of acceptance. An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 139.]

SEC. 3060-a140. What constitutes a general acceptance. An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 140.]

Other states: Wallace v. McConnell, 13 Pet., 136. See note to section 3060-a70.

SEC. 3060-a141. Qualified acceptance. An acceptance is qualified, which is:

1. Conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated.
 2. Partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn.
 3. Local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place.
 4. Qualified as to time.
 5. The acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all.
- [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 141.]

(1) Other states: Such an acceptance does not become due until the happening of the contingency upon which the bill is accepted. Brockway v. Allen, 17 Wend., 40; Newhall v. Clark, 3 Cush., 376.

SEC. 3060-a142. Rights of parties to qualified acceptance. The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance, he may treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance. Where a qualified acceptance is taken, the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill, unless they have expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notices of a qualified acceptance, he must, within a reasonable time, express his dissent to the holder, or he will be deemed to have assented thereto. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 142.]

Other states: Walker v. N. Y. St. Bk., 9 N. Y., 582.

PRESENTMENT OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR ACCEPTANCE.

SEC. 3060-a143. When presentment for acceptance must be made. Presentment of acceptance must be made:

1. Where the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or
2. Where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or
3. Where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee.

In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 143.]

Other states: Allen v. Suydam, 17 Wend., 368. A bill payable at a fixed period from its date may be presented for acceptance at any time. Bachelor v. Priest, 12 Pick., 399; Oxford Bk. v. Davis, 4 Cush., 188.

SEC. 3060-a144. When failure to present releases drawer and indorser. Except as herein otherwise provided, the holder of a bill which is required by the next preceding section to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fail to do so, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 144.]

Other states: Robinson v. Ames, 20 Johns., 146; Prescott Bk. v. Coverly, 7 Gray, 217; Walsh v. Dort, 23 Wis., 334.

SEC. 3060-a145. Presentment—how made. Presentment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder at a reasonable hour, on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawer or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf; and:

1. Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only.

2. Where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative.

3. Where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 145.]

The holder may require agent to show authority. Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 487.

Other states: Smith v. Melton, 133 Mass., 369.

SEC. 3060-a146. On what days presentment may be made. A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of sections seventy-two and eighty-five of this act. When Saturday is not otherwise a holiday, presentment for acceptance may be made before twelve o'clock noon on that day. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 146.]

SEC. 3060-a147. Presentment where time is insufficient. Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 147.]

SEC. 3060-a148. Where presentment is excused. Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by non-acceptance, in either of the following cases:

1. Where the drawee is dead, or has absconded, or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill.
2. Where after the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment cannot be made.
3. Where although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some ground. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 148.]

Other states: Schmittler v. Simon, 101 N. Y., 554.

SEC. 3060-a149. When dishonored by non-acceptance. A bill is dishonored by non-acceptance:

1. When it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed by this act is refused or cannot be obtained; or
2. When a presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 149.]

SEC. 3060-a150. Duty of holder where bill is not accepted. Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 150.]

SEC. 3060-a151. Rights of holders where bill is not accepted. When a bill is dishonored by non-acceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder and no presentment for payment is necessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 151.]

SEC. 3060-a152. Protest of bills of exchange—in what cases protest necessary. Where a foreign bill, appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by non-acceptance, it must be duly protested for non-acceptance, and where such a bill which has not previously been dishonored by non-acceptance is dishonored by non-payment, it must be duly protested for non-payment. If it is not so protested the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest thereof, in a case of dishonor, is unnecessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 152.]

Other states: Commercial Bank v. Varnum, 49 N. Y., 269, 275; Dennistoun v. Stuart, 17 How. (U. S.), 606; Bank v. Hussey, 12 Pick., 483.
See Byles on Bills, 256.

SEC. 3060-a153. Protest—how made. The protest must be annexed to the bill, or must contain a copy thereof, and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify:

1. The time and place of presentment.
2. The fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof.
3. The cause or reason for protesting the bill.
4. The demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 153.]

Iowa: The certificate or protest is only evidence of notice when it recites that notice was given. Sather v. Rogers, 10-231; Thorp v. Craig, 10-461.

It is only evidence of the facts therein recited, and where it shows that the notice was directed to the indorser at a particular place it will not be presumed that such place was the residence of such indorser. Bradshaw v. Hedge, 10-402.

But a certificate of protest stating that the notary notified the indorsers is sufficient although it does not show that the residence of the several parties are at the places to which the notices were addressed. Fuller v. Dingham, 41-506.

It is not necessary to annex to, or set out in, the notary's certificate, the notice referred to therein, nor need the certificate, in words, formally refer to the seal. Jones v. Berryhill, 25-289.

If the certificate states that notices of protest properly addressed were deposited in the post-office, it will be presumed that the postage was prepaid. Brooks v. Day, 11-46.

When the certificate of protest states that the notary notified the proper parties in a certain manner, the credit due the certificate will generate the presumption that the mode adopted accomplished the result certified to, unless it affirmatively appear that the method adopted could not have done so; but if the notary only certifies as to the steps taken, then, to make out a prima facie case, it must further appear that such steps would effectuate notice. Wamsley v. Rivers, 34-463.

The fact that the certificate is dated at a time subsequent to that of the dishonor and protest will not render it incompetent. Chatham Bank v. Allison, 15-357.

The protest of a notary is not receivable without his seal, but such defect may be cured by the affixing of the seal by the notary at the trial. Rindskoff v. Malone, 9-540.

The certificate of a notary public as to the protest of a bill or note is not admissible against defendant in a criminal case, as he is entitled to be confronted with the witnesses against him. State v. Reidel, 26-430.

Other states: Signature of notary may be printed. Bank of Cooperstown v. Woods, 28 N. Y., 561.

(1) Other states: Duckert v. Von Lilienthal, 11 Wis., 56.

(4) Other states: Notarial certificate of protest is competent without further proof. Porter v. Judson, 1 Gray, 175; Pierce v. Indseth, 106 U. S., 546. And the different states of the Union are deemed foreign to each other so that the notarial certificate of protest under seal is good on mere production. Townsley v. Sumrall, 2 Pet., 170; Halliday v. McDougall, 20 Wend., 81; Johnson v. Brown, 154 Mass., 105, 106.

For a citation of other authorities see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law, (2 Ed.), sec. 261.

SEC. 3060-a154. Protest—by whom made. Protest may be made by:

1. A notary public; or
2. By any reputable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 154.]

Other states: Notary must make presentment and demand in person. Commercial Bk. v. Varnum, 49 N. Y., 269, 275; Ocean Nat. Bk. v. Williams, 102 Mass., 141. Notary who is an officer of a bank may legally protest paper belonging to the bank. Nelson v. First Nat. Bk., 69 Fed. 798; 16 C. C. A., 425.

SEC. 3060-a155. Protest—when to be made. When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor, unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted, the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 155.]

See Byles on Bills, 257.

SEC. 3060-a156. Protest—where made. A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawee, has been dishonored by non-acceptance, it must be protested for non-payment at the place where it is expressed to be payable; and no other presentment for payment to, or demand on, the drawee is necessary. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 156.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 935; and Byles on Bills, 257.

SEC. 3060-a157. Protest—both for non-acceptance and non-payment. A bill which has been protested for non-acceptance may be subsequently protested for non-payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 157.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 1464.

SEC. 3060-a158. Protest before maturity where acceptor insolvent. Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 158.]

SEC. 3060-a159. Where protest dispensed with. Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor. Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 159.]

SEC. 3060-a160. Protest where bill is lost, et cetera. Where a bill is lost or destroyed, or is wrongfully detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 160.]

ACCEPTANCE OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR HONOR.

SEC. 3060-a161. When bill may be accepted for honor. Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by non-acceptance, or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon, may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of the party liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be for part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn, and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party, there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 161.]

See Byles on Bills, 262-266.

SEC. 3060-a162. Acceptance for honor—how made. An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 162.]

SEC. 3060-a163. When deemed to be an acceptance for honor of the drawer. Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 163.]

SEC. 3060-a164. Liability of acceptor for honor. The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 164.]

Other states: Baring v. Clark, 19 Pick., 220.

SEC. 3060-a165. Agreement of acceptor for honor. The acceptor for honor by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentment pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawee, and provided also that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for non-payment and notice of dishonor given to him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 165.]

SEC. 3060-a166. Maturity of bill payable after sight—accepted for honor. When a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for non-acceptance and not from the date of the acceptance for honor. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 166.]

SEC. 3060-a167. Protest of bill accepted for honor, et cetera. Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for non-payment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 167.]

SEC. 3060-a168. Presentment for payment to acceptor for honor—how made. Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows:

1. If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for non-payment was made, it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity.

2. If it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time specified in section 104. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 168.]

See Byles on Bills, 263.

SEC. 3060-a169. When delay in making presentment is excused. The provisions of section eighty-one apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 169.]

SEC. 3060-a170. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor. When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for non-payment by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 170.]

PAYMENT OF BILLS OF EXCHANGE FOR HONOR.

SEC. 3060-a171. Who may make payment for honor. Where a bill has been protested for non-payment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 171.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 1254. Byles on Bills, 267-269.

SEC. 3060-a172. Payment for honor—how made. The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 172.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 1258. Byles on Bills, 267. Konig v. Bayard, 1 Pet., 250.

SEC. 3060-a173. Declaration before payment for honor. The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 173.]

SEC. 3060-a174. Preference of parties offering to pay for honor. Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 174.]

SEC. 3060-a175. Effect on subsequent parties where bill is paid for honor. Where a bill has been paid for honor all parties subsequent to the party for whose honor it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for, and succeeds to, both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honor he pays and all parties liable to the latter. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 175.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 1255.

SEC. 3060-a176. Where holder refuses to receive payment supra protest. Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 176.]

SEC. 3060-a177. Rights of payer for honor. The payer for honor on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor, is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 177.]

BILLS IN A SET.

SEC. 3060-a178. Bills in sets constitute one bill. Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitute one bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 178.]

See Daniel on Neg. Insts., sec. 113. Byles on Bills, 387. Durkin v. Cranston, 7 Johns, 442.

SEC. 3060-a179. Rights of holders where different parts are negotiated. Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is as between such holders the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 179.]

Other states: Walsh v. Blatchley, 6 Wis., 422. Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a180. Liability of holder who indorses two or more parts of a set to different persons. Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed, as if such parts were separate bills. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 180.]

See Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a181. Acceptance of bills drawn in sets. The acceptance may be written on any part and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 181.]

Other states: Dounes & Co. v. Church, 13 Pet., 205; Walsh v. Blatchley, 6 Wis., 422.

SEC. 3060-a182. Payment by acceptor of bills drawn in sets. When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 182.]

See Byles on Bills, 389.

SEC. 3060-a183. Effect of discharging one of a set. Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise, the whole bill is discharged. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 183.]

PROMISSORY NOTES AND CHECKS.

SEC. 3060-a184. Promissory note defined. A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this act is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another, signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's own order, it is not complete until indorsed by him. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 184.]

Other states: Curran v. Witter, 68 Wis., 16. A note payable to the order of the maker is a negotiable one. Miller v. Weeks, 22 Pa. St., 89.

SEC. 3060-a185. Check defined. A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this act [are] applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 185.]

[The word "are" enclosed in brackets, appears in the enrolled bill, as passed, but it does not appear in the original act as adopted in the other states.]

Iowa: N. W. Coal Co. v. Bowman, 69-152.

Other states: One of the characteristics which distinguishes a check from a bill of exchange is that a check is always drawn on a bank or banker. Harris v. Clark, 3 N. Y., 93, 115; Bull v. Bank of Kasson, 123 U. S., 105; Rogers v. Durant, 140 U. S., 298; Ridgeley Bk. v. Patton, 109 Ill., 484; Harrison v. Nicollet Nat. Bk., 41 Minn., 489.

That a draft upon a bank not payable immediately is a bill of exchange, see Bowen v. Newell, 8 N. Y., 190; Harrison v. Nicollet Nat. Bk., 1 Minn., 488.

For other authorities, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 321.

An ordinary bank check is classed as a Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 110 N. bill of exchange, payable on demand. W. 29; 113 N. W.—.

SEC. 3060-a186. Within what time a check must be presented. A check must be presented for payment within a reasonable time after its issue, or the drawer will be discharged from liability thereon to the extent of the loss caused by the delay. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 186.]

Other states: See Industrial Bk. of Chicago v. Bowes, 165 Ill., 70. For instances of unreasonable delay, see Gifford v. Hardell, 88 Wis., 538; First Nat. Bk. v. Miller, 43 Neb., 791; Grange v. Reigh, 93 Wis., 552; Western Wheel Scraper Co. v. Sadilek, 50 Neb., 105; Holmes v. Roe, 62 Mich., 199. For a discussion of the question as to whether or not the death of the drawer operates as a revocation of the authority to pay a check, see Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 322.

Although the specific provision as to instruments act with reference to reasonable time, making it dependent on usage, are applicable also to the presentment of checks. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 110 N. W. 29; 113 N. W.—.

SEC. 3060-a187. Certification of check—effect of. Where a check is certified by the bank on which it is drawn, the certification is equivalent to an acceptance. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 187.]

Other states: Merchants Bk. v. State Bk., 10 Wall., 648; Cooke v. State Nat. Bk., 52 N. Y., 96.

SEC. 3060-a188. Effect where the holder of check procures it to be certified. Where the holder of a check procures it to be accepted or certified, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged from liability thereon. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 188.]

Other states: Minot v. Russ, 156 Mass., 458; Metropolitan Bk. v. Jones, 137 Ill., 634; Meridian Nat. Bk. v. First Nat. Bk. (Ind.), 33 N. E., 247.

SEC. 3060-a189. When check operates as an assignment. A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder, unless and until it accepts or certifies the check. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 189.]

The holder of an unaccepted check may bring action thereon in his own name against the bank (following earlier cases, but not referring to this section.) Bloom v. Winthrop State Bank, 121-101.

As against such right of action the bank may offset a note held by it against the deposit of the drawer of the check. Ibid.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 3060-a190. Short title. This act shall be known as the Negotiable Instrument[s] Law. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 190.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 1.

SEC. 3060-a191. Definitions and meaning of terms. In this act, unless the context otherwise requires:

"Acceptance" means an acceptance completely [completed] by delivery or notification.

"Action" includes counter-claim and set-off.

"Bank" includes any person or association of persons carrying on the business of banking, whether incorporated or not.

"Bearer" means the person in possession of a bill or note which is payable to bearer.

"Bill" means bill of exchange, and "note" means negotiable promissory note.

"Delivery" means transfer of possession, actual or constructive, from one person to another.

"Holder" means the payee or indorsee of a bill or note, who is in possession of it, or the bearer thereof.

"Indorsement" means an indorsement completed by delivery.

"Instrument" means negotiable instrument.

"Issue" means the first delivery of the instrument, complete in form, to a person who takes it as a holder.

"Person" includes a body of persons, whether incorporated or not.

"Value" means valuable consideration.

"Written" includes printed, and "writing" includes print. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 191.]

SEC. 3060-a192. Person primarily liable on instrument. The person "primarily" liable on an instrument is the person who by the terms of the instrument is absolutely required to pay the same. All other parties are "secondarily" liable. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 192.]

See Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 3.

SEC. 3060-a193. Reasonable time—what constitutes. In determining what is a "reasonable time" or an "unreasonable time" regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade or business (if any) with respect to such instruments, and the facts of the particular case. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 193.]

Iowa: Northwestern Coal Co. v. Bowman, 69-153.

The usage of trade or business with respect to the presentation of bank checks for payment is to be taken into account in determining whether such presentation is within a reasonable time. Plover Savings Bank v. Moodie, 110 N. W. 29; 113 N. W.—.

SEC. 3060-a194. Time—how computed—when last day falls on holiday. When the day, or last day, for doing an act herein required or permitted to be done falls on Sunday or on a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 194.]

SEC. 3060-a195. Application of chapter. The provisions of this act do not apply to negotiable instruments made and delivered prior to the passage hereof. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 195.]

SEC. 3060-a196. Law merchant—when governs. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of the law merchant shall govern. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 196.]

Other states: Prescott Bk. v. Coverly, 7 Gray, 217.

See note in Crawford's Annotated Neg. Inst. Law (2 Ed.), sec. 7.

[Section 197 of the act is section 3060-a, supra. As the entire section relates only to the repeal of certain sections of the code, relating to bills and notes, it was deemed best to insert it in advance of the other sections of the act.]

SEC. 3060-a198. Days of grace—demand made on. A demand made on any one of the three days following the day of maturity of the instrument, except on Sunday or a holiday, shall be as effectual as though made on the day on which demand may be made under the provisions of this act, and the provisions of this act as to notice of non-payment, non-acceptance, and as to protest shall be applicable with reference to such demand as though the demand were made in accordance with the terms of this act; but the provisions of this section shall not be construed as authorizing demand on any day after the third day from that on which the instrument falls due according to its face. [29 G. A., ch. 130, § 198.]

SEC. 3060-a199. Indemnifying bond to protect payer. That whenever a note, bond, bill of exchange, certificate of deposit, check or other evidence of indebtedness shall have been lost, stolen or destroyed, and the owner thereof desires payment to be made by the person, firm or corporation issuing the same he shall execute and deliver if demanded to such person, firm or corporation, a good and sufficient bond agreeing to indemnify and save harmless the payer thereof. [31 G. A., ch. 150, § 1.]

SEC. 3060-a200. Indemnifying bond to protect defendants. When an action is brought on a lost note, bond, bill of exchange, draft, certificate of deposit, or other evidence of indebtedness, upon demand of any defendant therein, a good and sufficient bond shall be given to indemnify and save harmless the defendants in said cause. [31 G. A., ch. 150, § 2.]

CHAPTER 4.

OF TENDER.

SECTION 3061. Offer in writing.

A tender in writing is as effectual as an actual personal tender. Shay v. Callanan, 124-370.

Where a sufficient tender is made to authorize the rescission of a contract such right to rescission is not lost by a failure to keep the tender good as required by the statutory provision relating to written tenders. Wisconsin Lumber Co. v. Greene & Western Tel. Co., 127-350.

While an offer of performance in general terms may be sufficient in equity, yet if the party making such tender specifies the exact sum offered he is bound to specify a sum sufficient to discharge the obligation of which performance is tendered. Wood v. Howland, 127-394.

SEC. 3062. When not accepted.

Where a party attempts to rescind a contract made by his agent, which he claims to have been without authority, he must offer to return any money received by the agent in pursuance of such contract and such offer to return must be made to the opposite party in person; and it is not sufficient to notify him that it is held subject to his order at another place. National Imp. & Const. Co. v. Maiken, 103-118.

A tender which is kept good relieves the debtor from liability to pay interest on the amount so tendered. Metropolitan Nat. Bank v. Commercial State Bank, 104-682.

Where one party proposes to pay to the SEC. 3063. Receipt—objection.

The provision that the person to whom a tender is made must at the time make any objections which he may have to the money, etc., tendered, refers to the character or kind of money and not to the amount, and does not prevent him from afterwards insisting that the amount was not sufficient. McWhirter v. Crawford, 104-550.

other the amount of a claim, and is advised by the latter that it will not be accepted, such offer amounts to a tender, although the money is not at the time produced, if the person making the offer could and would have produced it had the other party been willing to accept. Stecker v. Standley, 107-694.

Tender in a law action must be kept good by deposit of the money in court. West v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 117-147.

One who makes a tender may not couple it with a demand for a receipt in full for the claim. West v. Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 117-147.

A tender by transmitting a draft for the amount is as effectual as a personal tender in currency, if no objection is made thereto. Shay v. Callanan, 124-370.

CHAPTER 5.

OF SURETIES.

SECTION 3064. May require creditor to sue.

In the absence of any special statute requiring a creditor to proceed against the principal debtor or any act of the creditor releasing the lien held by him the surety is not relieved by a failure of the creditor to enforce his claim against the debtor. Whitehouse v. American Surety Co., 117-328.

CHAPTER 6.

OF PRIVATE SEALS.

SECTION 3068. Abolished.

Notwithstanding the statutory provision abolishing the effect of a sealed instrument at common law, a release under seal of one joint tortfeasor is a release as to all; but parol testimony is permissible to show that the release was of one not in fact liable, and did not constitute a satisfaction of the liability. Ryan v. Becker, 111 N. W. 426.

SEC. 3069. Consideration implied.

The statutory provision that contracts in writing, signed by the parties to be bound, import a consideration was enacted for the purpose of giving to instruments in writing the same effect as instruments under seal had under the common law, and not to supply proof that the contract was based upon a particular consideration. No particular consideration is presumed, and where a wife sues her husband under a contract made during coverture, which would be valid only so far as it affected her separate property, the burden is upon the wife to show that the contract was with reference to such separate property. Heacock v. Heacock, 108-540.

Under the provisions of this section the burden is upon the defendant in an action on a promissory note to show that the note was without consideration. Luke v. Koenen, 120-103.

Where an agreement is reduced to writing, the writing of itself imports a consideration. Cone v. Cone, 118-458.

The provision that all contracts in writing signed by the party to be bound shall import a consideration, has no application to a case where the consideration is recited in the instrument and it is shown that the consideration thus recited does not exist. An express consideration clearly named in a written contract cannot be altered by parol. Lane v. Richards, 119-24.

SEC. 3070. Failure of—fraud.

While a consideration is presumed in a written contract, it is competent to show that in fact the instrument was without consideration, and parol evidence is competent for that purpose. Want or failure in whole or in part, of the consideration of a written contract may be shown as a defense, entire or partial as the case may be, except in the case of negotiable paper. Beaty v. Carr, 109-183.

Want or failure in whole or in part of the consideration of a written instrument may be shown as a defense, total or partial, as the case may be. Oakland Cemetery Ass'n v. Lakins, 126-121.

Want or failure of consideration in whole or in part may be shown by parol, but must be pleaded. Mosnat v. Uchtyil, 129-274.

As against the express recital of consideration in a written instrument, parol evidence is not admissible to show a different consideration from that expressed. Ibid.

Under the statutory provision that if in an action on negotiable paper by a holder for value before maturity and in good faith, it appears that the instrument was procured by fraud upon the maker, the holder shall recover as against the maker no greater sum than he has paid therefor, held that a purchaser of negotiable school bonds acquiring the same after maturity and after the statutory provision had taken effect, from one who became the holder thereof before maturity in good faith and for value, and before the taking effect of the statute, was not subject to the statutory limitation as to the amount of recovery. (Reversing S. C., 132 Fed. 514.) Gamble v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 146 Fed. 113.

An assignee of a note, although not a good faith holder in the usual course of business, may recover whatever his assignor would have been entitled to under a suit upon the note. Arnd v. Aylesworth, 111 N. W. 407.

Section applied. Plano Mfg. Co. v. Farrel, 110-577.

CHAPTER 7.

OF ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS.

SECTION 3071. Must be without preferences.

What valid: Where a general assignment is made, and as a part of the same transaction, and for the purpose of giving a preference, a mortgage is executed by the same party, the assignment and mortgage will both be void. Groetzing v. Wyman, 105-574.

Mortgages made to the creditors, not with the intention of disposing of the mortgagor's business, but in the hope of being able to continue the business, do not constitute an assignment and therefore are not necessarily fraudulent because of preferences thereby given. Ibid.

A debtor has a legal right to prefer some creditors to others, if he sees fit. Steinke v. Yetzer, 108-512.

In a particular case held chattel mortgages executed separately and prior to the time of making a general assignment and without intention at the time to make such assignment, were valid. Diemer v. Guernsey, 112-393.

A chattel mortgage given by an insolvent to secure one creditor in preference to others, is not rendered invalid by a failure to record it, unless the withholding it from record was by reason of agreement, or resulted in some prejudice to other creditors. Deland v. Miller & Cheney Bank, 119-368.

An insolvent corporation may make payment of its debts or give property in security thereof, just as a natural person may do, and may prefer one of its creditors over another. First Nat. Bank v. Garretson, 107-196.

Intention: One who takes a mortgage in good faith to secure a valid indebtedness is not affected by the intention of the debtor to make an assignment. Ibid.; Manton v. Sieberling, 107-534; Groetzing v. Wyman, 105-574.

One who takes security from an insolvent for a debt, with knowledge of the insolvency, is not to be deprived of the advantage thus secured, unless he took such security with intent to hinder, delay or defraud other creditors. Deland v. Miller & Cheney Bank, 119-368.

A mortgagee who takes a mortgage without knowledge of an intent to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors is protected. Mills v. Miller, 109-688.

The burden is on the creditor attacking the mortgage to show that at the time it was executed there was also an intent to make a general assignment. Ibid.

Several mortgages are not to be taken together as constituting a general assignment where they do not include all the property of the debtor. Ibid.

Where a mortgage is executed in pursuance of a prior agreement to give security, and comes to the knowledge of the mortgagee before the assignee under the assignment has accepted the trust, the mortgage will be valid. Ibid.

Aside from the provisions of the national bankruptcy law a creditor acting in good faith can take security from his debtor even though he knows there are other creditors and that the effect of his action will be to defeat them. But under the bankrupt law knowledge of such fact will render the preference fraudulent. Boudinot v. Hamann, 117-22.

Partial assignments: The statutory provision as to assignment for benefit of creditors does not prevent partial assignments with preferences or sales of mortgages of any or all of the party's property in payment or security of indebtedness. Rothschild v. Hasbrouck, 72 Fed. 813.

Conditions: As an assignment would be subject to all prior valid liens, it is not invalidated by a provision that it is subject to a particular lien described, and such a provision does not estop the assignee from asserting the fraudulent character of the lien thus recognized. Ringgen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109-175.

What law governs: In proceedings under an assignment for benefit of creditors the validity of a mortgage to a creditor executed in another state upon real estate situated in this state, will be determined by the laws of this state. Manton v. Seiberling, 107-534.

Effect of bankrupt law: State insolvent laws are not suspended by the enactment of the national bankrupt act. In re Scholtz, 106 Fed. 834.

SEC. 3072. How made—inventory—effect—recording.

The purchaser from an assignee cannot claim title to property which never passed through the hands of the assignee, and which was not intended to be covered by the instrument of assignment. Gevers v. Farmer, 109-468.

Where an assignment was made by one partner, and the other partner was within reach so that he might be consulted, held that the assignment did not become effectual until confirmed by such other partner. Mills v. Miller, 109-688.

Where the assignee took possession of notes and book accounts belonging to the debtor firm, and was garnished therefor under an attachment issued at the suit of creditors, before the assignment which had been executed by one partner only had become valid by confirmation by the other partner, held that the garnishment took priority over the assignment. Mills v. Miller, 109-688.

The assignee stands in the shoes of the insolvent as to liability with reference to contracts made by him. In re Assignment of Jenks, 129-139.

The assignee acquires no better title to the property than the assignor had, and one who has sold goods to the insolvent, retaining title until the goods have been paid for, may by intervention in the assignment proceeding assert his title to the goods as against the assignee. In re Assignment of Wise, 121-359.

The inventory is not conclusive as to the property passing by the assignment. Turrill v. McCarthy, 114-681.

SEC. 3074. Notice. The assignee shall forthwith give notice of such assignment by publication in some newspaper in the county, which shall be continued, once each week, at least six weeks, and forthwith send a notice by mail to each creditor of whom he shall be informed, directed to his usual place of residence, requiring him to present to him within three months thereafter his claims under oath. [C., '73, § 2119; R., § 1829.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 8.]

SEC. 3075. Claims filed.

Where the creditor having security files his claim with the assignee, he is entitled to dividends only on that portion of his claim which is not satisfied by resorting to the security. He is subject to the equitable rule that where one creditor has security on two funds, on one of which other creditors have security, the former must first exhaust the fund on which he has an exclusive claim before resorting to that which is subject to the claims of other creditors. Therefore, where a creditor having security on property of the insolvent received payment on his claim from the proceeds of such property, held, that he could only participate in dividends on the basis of the balance of his claim. Doolittle v. Smith, 104-403.

It is optional with the mortgagee whether he will enforce his lien against the property or file his claim with the assignee, but if he chooses the latter remedy he cannot thereafter foreclose his mortgage and is deemed to have waived his right to do so. Garner v. Fry, 104-515.

SEC. 3077. Claims contested.

Where the assignee seeks to enforce a claim belonging to the insolvent estate the debtor may set off any claim he has against the estate. Little v. Sturgis, 127-298.

A creditor who has filed his claim and

The order of sale should be entered of record, but a deed executed by the assignee without notice or order of court is not absolutely void, but will at least pass the naked legal title. Bristol Sav. Bank v. Judd, 116-26.

remedies relating to the estate as were possessed by the assignor, and may maintain action on an attachment bond given in favor of the assignor, either by original suit or by intervention in an action already brought against the assignor. Ringen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109-175.

CHAPTER 8.

OF MECHANICS' LIENS.

SECTION 3089. Who may have lien.

Under contract with owner: Material furnished for improvements on land under a contract with one who is not the owner thereof and a bare licensee, does not entitle the person furnishing the material under such contract to a lien on the land nor upon the improvements, which became the property of the owner of the land when made. Hoag v. Hay, 103-291.

Where a party is led to believe that one has a title or interest to which a mechanic's lien will attach, and he has no such title, but obtains it while the contract is being performed, the lien attaches thereto. Floete v. Brown, 104-154.

An owner of a limited estate erecting buildings on the land in pursuance of his interest therein has such an interest that a mechanic's lien may attach thereto. Smith v. St. Paul F. & M. Ins. Co., 106-225.

Where premises were sold with an agreement on the part of the grantor to make improvements thereon which were subsequently made under a contract with him, held that the person making such improvements had not a mechanic's lien on the premises as against the grantee. Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Goode, 106-568.

An equitable title to real property held by contract for a deed is a title to which a mechanic's lien will attach. Sheppard v. Messenger, 107-717.

The statutory definition of the term "owner" (see Code § 3096) extends it so as to include persons who would not ordinarily be held to come within its meaning. The term includes a vendee who acts as agent of the vendor, in a certain sense, in putting improvements on the premises. Janes v. Osborne, 108-409.

A property owner who contracts with the builder to furnish labor and material at reasonable prices for making certain improvements constitutes the builder his agent and authorizes him to contract for labor and material for such owner. Minneah v. Stotts, 130-530.

Improvements on wife's land: Where a wife knows that improvements are being placed on her property under a contract with her husband, but protests against such improvements, her property is not subject to lien therefor. James v. Dalbey, 107-463.

For what improvements or materials: Where a lien is claimed under a contract involving matters for which a lien is not allowed, and it is not possible to determine under the contract what amount is due for matters for which a lien may be had, no lien whatever can be established. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H. & P. Co., 105-1.

SEC. 3092. Filing statement.

What statement sufficient: Where materials are furnished from time to time under separate and distinct contracts, the charges therefor cannot be treated as items of a continuous open running account and as furnished under an entire contract. Hoag v. Hay, 103-291.

An unintentional mistake in the statement which has caused no injury to any one will not defeat a mechanic's lien. St. Croix Lumber Co. v. Davis, 105-27.

The fact that the statement as filed is for a greater sum than due will not defeat the right to a lien where such discrepancy is the result of an honest mistake which is not prejudicial. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105-264.

In the absence of any showing of bad faith it should not be held that the matter included in the statement of one or more items for which no lien can be had operates to invalidate an otherwise enforceable lien. Palmer v. McGinness, 127-118.

The fact that items are included in the statement for which a lien cannot properly be claimed will not defeat the right

A well, designed, sunk and completed for permanent use on the premises, is an improvement for which a mechanic's lien may be had. Hoppes v. Baie, 105-648.

Lumber furnished, not merely for the purposes of replacing worn out parts of a building, but for the improvement of the building, will furnish the basis for a mechanic's lien. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111-200.

It is the furnishing of material for a building which entitles a party to a lien and its actual use in the construction thereof need not be shown. Frudden Lumber Co. v. Kinnan, 117-93.

It seems that by agreement charges for drayage may be a proper item in the account on which a lien is asked. Page v. Grant, 127-249.

Material furnished to supply the loss of other material which has been incorporated into the building and before the building has been accepted by the owner is properly included in the statement for a lien. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 112 N. W. 382.

Subcontractor: The subcontractor must have furnished material for the particular building in order to entitle him to a lien therein, but it is not necessary that the material shall have been actually used in the building. Hobson v. Townsend, 126-453.

lien for material furnished. Oregon Lumber Co. v. Beckleen, 130-42.

to a lien unless it be shown that the claimant was knowingly attempting by false charges to subject the property to an improper burden. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 112 N. W. 382.

Where the statement shows the essential facts, the lien will not be defeated by want of technical accuracy as to the time when the labor was performed or the material furnished. Johnson v. Otto, 105-605.

Where the statement for a mechanic's lien shows that a lien is claimed, and is sufficiently definite as to the items for which the claim is made, it will not be defeated by indefiniteness as to the dates of items of materials and labor furnished and performed. Eggert v. Snoke, 122-582.

If the statement as a whole is just and true, the fact that the whole or part of the bill contracted for is furnished at an agreed price for a lot of items and it so shows instead of giving the price of each one separately, will not defeat the lien. Queal v. Stradley, 117-748.

As against the owner the filing of an insufficient statement or the failure to file any statement will not defeat the lien. Hoppes v. Baie, 105-648; Ewing v. Stockwell, 106-26.

The omission from the statement of credits to which the owner is entitled, if unintentional and without any purpose to defraud, will not defeat the lien. Ewing v. Stockwell, 106-26.

An honest mistake in making up the account will not deprive the claimant of the lien. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106-420.

Delay of the subcontractor to file statement of his lien cannot affect his right to priority over the lien of another subcontractor whose statement is not filed and notice thereof given until after the filing of the statement of the first subcontractor. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoekler, 128-558.

The fact that the contractor gives an order to one subcontractor on the owner for the amount of his bill does not operate as an equitable assignment of the contractor's claim which is to be treated as a payment in determining the amount in the hand of the owner when the statement of another subcontractor is filed. Ibid.

Material furnished for necessary repairs while the building is still in the process of construction and not accepted by the owner is proper to be included in the statement of the lien and in determining the date of the last item for the purpose of ascertaining whether the statement is filed within the statutory period. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 112 N. W. 382.

Application of payments: Change in the application of payments will not be permitted to be made between the owner and the contractor when the effect will be to prejudice the interest of the subcontractor. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106-420.

Verification: A statement not verified does not impart notice of a claim; and

SEC. 3093. Notice by sub-contractor—lien discharged.

Liability of owner: An owner who agrees with the contractor to pay subcontractors and material men becomes personally liable to them for material used in the building. Shorthill Co. v. Bartlett, 131-259.

After the contractor abandons the work and compels the owner to complete the job the latter may pay for the work done out of any balance remaining due to the contractor, and the contractor cannot by giving an order on the owner create a claim against the owner upon the balance remaining out of the contract price which the owner is entitled to use in completing the contract. Page v. Grant, 127-249.

Where the owner makes payments to the contractor without regard to the terms of his contract and without withholding held that a verification signed in a firm name was not sufficient. McGillivray v. Case, 107-17.

The verification of a statement before the deputy clerk is sufficient without the official seal of the clerk being attached where it is filed in the office of the clerk. Wheelock v. Hull, 124-752.

Failure to file: The filing of the statement is not essential to the creation of the mechanic's lien, but only to preserve it against purchasers or incumbrancers in good faith without notice, whose rights accrue after the expiration of the time fixed for filing the statement. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H. & P. Co., 105-1.

One claiming under a mortgage executed after expiration of the time for filing statement is not chargeable with notice of the claim. McGillivray v. Case, 107-17.

Where the improvements were such that any person examining the building within the ninety days allowed for filing a lien would have been aware of them, held that they furnished sufficient foundation for a mechanic's lien. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111-200.

Where lumber was furnished on two distinct occasions for successive improvements, held that the material man could not assert a claim for the first lot of lumber furnished under his lien for the second, which was furnished more than ninety days after the first improvement. Ibid.

Until something is done looking towards the establishment of the lien, an assignment of the debt does not operate as a transfer of such lien. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115-383.

A conveyance of the premises expressly subject to any claim for a mechanic's lien does not defeat the right to such lien. Eggert v. Snoke, 122-582.

amounts which he is authorized to withhold by the terms of the contract, he renders himself liable to persons who furnish materials for the carrying out of the contract. Queal v. Stradley, 117-748.

Actual notice to owner: Where the owner has knowledge of the claims of a subcontractor, he should hold back from the principal contractor enough to pay the subcontractor's claim. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105-264.

The absconding of the principal contractor will not prevent the subcontractor from enforcing his claims against the property. A personal judgment against the principal contractor is not essential to the enforcement of such lien. The proceedings may properly be in rem, where no personal judgment is sought. Ibid.

Where the owner knew that the subcontractor was furnishing the material and knew that his bill therefor had not been paid, held, that the owner could not by settlement with the contractor cut off the rights of the subcontractor, especially where the payment was made in disregard of the terms of the contract. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106-154.

But a subcontractor is not entitled to enforce his lien so far as payment has been made by the owner upon the strength of his statements and agreements. Under such circumstances the subcontractor is estopped from insisting upon repayment of the amount so paid. Ibid.

Where a subcontractor perfects his lien within the time required by law, and the owner has knowledge that the subcontractor is furnishing material for which he has not been paid, the owner is not justified in paying other subcontractors until the time has expired for the filing of liens. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Adams, 107-672.

Payments made to the contractor in accordance with the terms of the contract will not constitute a defense against the claims of a subcontractor if the owner was aware of the existence of the subcontractor's claims at the time of making such payment. Chicago Lumber Co. v. Garmer, 132-282.

Whether knowledge of the architect will constitute notice to the owner of the existence of subcontractor's claims depends upon the terms of the contract. Ibid.

The owner knowing that a subcontractor or materialman is furnishing material and labor for the building which is necessary for its completion, is bound to withhold payments from the contractors until the claims for material and labor are determined. But if the subcontractor fails to preserve the right to a lien and accepts an order on the owner, he abandons his claim against the property so far as it is necessary to satisfy the claims of other lien holders. Wheelock v. Hull, 124-752.

The owner is not justified in paying the principal contractor even in strict accordance with the terms of the contract, if he has knowledge that subcontractors are furnishing material for the building which has not been paid for. Page v. Grant, 127-249.

The owner cannot with knowledge that material or labor has been furnished by a sub-contractor make settlement with the contractor and pay out reserve funds held in his hands to meet other claims for which no lien has been filed. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 112 N. W. 382.

The owner cannot use such reserve funds in completing the building after it has collapsed on account of his own fault with reference to the plans and specifications so as not to defeat the claims of a sub-contractor for material and labor furnished before such collapse. Ibid.

If the owner after due notice still holds in his hands money enough out of the contract price to complete the building and pay the claim of the subcontractor he cannot disregard such claim and pay to the contractor the amount due him under his contract. Frudden Lumber Co. v. Kinnan, 117-93.

Where the owner is fully informed of the nature of the sub-contractor's claim, by the bringing of suit, and is still indebted to the principal contractor beyond the amount of the subcontractor's claim, the failure of the subcontractor to file a claim is immaterial. Johnson v. Des Moines, I. F. & N. R. Co., 129-281.

Owner's estopped: Where the owner had stated to the subcontractor before the furnishing of material that nothing was to be paid to the contractor on the building until its completion, held that the owner was thereby estopped, in an action by the subcontractor to enforce his lien, to say that the contract was otherwise than as he had stated as to payments. Rath v. Orr, 119-511.

Service of notice: An objection that the notice is not such as contemplated by the statute does not raise a question as to the service of such notice. Page v. Grant, 127-249.

Priority: It is not necessary for the subcontractor to file a statement of his lien in order to preserve his claim as against an order given by the contractor to another subcontractor upon the owner. Lindsey & Phelps Co. v. Zoekler, 128-558.

For what material: The burden is upon the subcontractor before he can avail himself of the benefits of the provisions in his favor to show that the labor or material furnished by him was actually for the improvement against which the lien is claimed. And if as to that matter he is deceived by the contractor without the fault of the owner, he is not entitled to a lien as against the owner. Hobson v. Townsend, 126-453.

A subcontractor has a lien for material furnished for a building although as a matter of fact it is not used in the construction of such building but for another structure. Page v. Grant, 127-249.

The subcontractor's lien attaches to money due the contractor for extras, although the amount provided for under the contract as originally made has been fully paid. Shope v. Mitchell, 116-636.

The subcontractor's lien may properly cover material supplied to the contractor to supply other material lost or destroyed during the construction of the building. Nancolas v. Hitaffer, 112, N. W. 382.

Waiver of lien: The giving to a subcontractor of an order for the amount of his claim, which is received by him, and the acceptance of such order by the drawee, amounting to only a recognition of a statement of the amount due, held not to deprive a subcontractor of his right to a lien. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

Terms of contract: The subcontractor is bound to know the terms of the contract between the principal contractor and the owner, whether they are written or oral, and if the owner complies with the terms of such contract in good faith, and without knowledge or notice, which would require him to make inquiries as to the claims of the subcontractor, he will not be required to make a second payment. Iowa Stone Co. v. Crissman, 112-122

SEC. 3094. Sub-contractor's claim after thirty days.

A subcontractor failing to file his claim for a lien until after the expiration of thirty days is entitled only to such lien as to the amount unpaid on the contract when his statement is filed, without regard to the knowledge on the part of the owner before paying the contractor that material and labor have been furnished by the sub-contractor. Empire Portland Cement Co. v. Payne, 128-730.

A subcontractor's claim, though not filed within the time specified by statute, takes priority over the claims of another subcontractor subsequently filed. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoekler, 128-558.

SEC. 3095. Priority.

Lien covers entire property: The right to a mechanic's lien for work done upon a railroad dates from the beginning of the improvement, and is against the whole road. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

A railroad depot may be an integral part of the construction of the road. Ibid.

Leasehold interest: A lessee taking his lease after the time when a statement should be filed and when no statement is already filed, and without actual notice of the mechanic's lien, has priority thereto, and the assignee of such lessee is entitled to the same priority, even though at the time of taking the assignment he has notice of the lien. Floete v. Brown, 104-154.

Judgment under a mechanic's lien will take priority over a landlord's lien for rent, but under particular circumstances, held that by reason of a contract by which the lessor was to advance the money to pay off improvements the mechanic's lien was not effectual as against him. Keys v. Whitlock Mfg. Co., 105-742.

Other subcontractors: The priority as between subcontractors is not affected by the fact that the contractor has given to one of them an order on the owner for the amount of his claim. Lindsay & Phelps Co. v. Zoekler, 128-558.

Mortgages and other liens: A lien takes priority over any claim under an earlier mortgage which is satisfied on the record when the lien is filed. Sioux City Electrical Supply Co. v. Sioux City, etc., Electrical R. Co., 106-573.

Where, by agreement between vendor and vendee, improvements were placed on the premises, held, that a mechanic's lien for such improvements took priority over the vendor's lien for the purchase price. Janes v. Osborne, 108-409.

A mechanic's lien holder does not have priority over the claims of laborers under Code § 4019, even though the mechanic's lien antedates the laborers' claim. Haw v. Burch, 110-234.

The provision as to priority of the subcontractor over a garnishment of the owner has no application to a materialman's claim against a public corporation under Code § 3102. Swearingen Lumber Co. v. Washington School Township, 125-283.

Lien upon improvements: Under prior statutes held that the holder of a mechanic's lien for material furnished for an independent building took priority as to such building over a prior mortgage on the premises on which the building was erected, provided that it should be found by the court that the building could be removed without material injury to the security of an earlier lien holder; but where no such finding was made the land must be sold and the proceeds applied first in payment of prior incumbrances. Tower v. Moore, 104-345.

Where the building or other improvement becomes a part of the real estate so that it may not be separately sold and removed, prior mortgages or lien holders are entitled to priority over subsequent lien holders for improvements or independent structures to the extent of such prior liens. Leach v. Minick, 106-437.

SEC. 3096. Definition of "owner."

The statute extends the definition of the term "owner" so as to include persons whose relation to the property is such that they would not ordinarily be held to come within the meaning of the term. Janes v. Osborne, 108-409. And see notes to Code § 3089 in this Supplement.

The term "owner" within the language of the mechanics' liens law is applicable to one having less than an absolute and unqualified title to the property. Getchell &

Martin Lumber & Mfg. Co. v. Peterson, 124-599.

SEC. 3098. Action to enforce lien.

It is not necessary to introduce any proof of the making and filing of the statement for lien of a subcontractor as against the contractor where the latter has admitted the filing of such statement and set out a copy thereof as a part of his pleading. The statement itself, however, is the best evidence. Wheelock v. Hull, 124-752.

In an action to enforce the lien of a subcontractor for an unliquidated demand, the principal contractor is a necessary party. Ibid.

The provision that action on a bond given in lieu of a mechanic's lien may be brought in the county where the property is situated is applicable to an action by a subcontractor against a public corporation on a bond given by the contractor to hold the public corporation harmless against claims of subcontractors. Thompson v. Stephens, 131-51.

SEC. 3099. Demand for bringing suit—assignment.

A mechanic's lien may be assigned prior to the filing of the statement. Peatman v. Centerville Light, H, & P. Co., 105-1.

But until something is done looking to the establishment of the lien, an assignment of the debt does not transfer any lien. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115-383.

Where one furnishes money to be applied in payment of the purchase price of the property by taking up mechanic's liens of record thereon, under an express agreement that said liens are not to be canceled by the holders thereof, but to be assigned and held for the benefit of the purchaser, he is entitled to subrogation to the claims of the mechanic's lien holders. National L. Ins. Co. v. Ayres, 111-200.

SEC. 3102. Public buildings or bridges—claim of subcontractor.

Where a school district in making a contract for the erection of a schoolhouse reserved the right to withhold payments from the principal contractor so long as the subcontractors were unpaid, held that as against the assignees of the contractor the district might maintain an action for distribution of the fund due the contractor among the subcontractors in proportion to their claims. Independent Sch. Dist. v. Mardis, 106-295.

Under such contract held that the claims which might be satisfied out of the fund were not limited to those which might be established under this section (20 G. A., ch. 179.) Ibid.

A claim for money borrowed from a contractor and used in payment for labor and material is not a claim to be protected under such contract. Ibid.

In the case of a county building the public officer to whom the claim should be submitted is the auditor and not the chairman of the building committee of the board of supervisors. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Thomas, 106-420.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that a subcontractor might have relief under this statute, although, as to prior work he was given security by the assignment of certificates which he had surrendered. Iowa Brick Co. v. Des Moines, 111-272.

The statutory provision in behalf of subcontractors furnishing material or labor for the construction of a public building is to be strictly construed, and the filing of an itemized statement as specified by the statute is essential to the establishment of such claim against a public corporation. Penn v. Northern Building Co., 140 Fed. 973.

The statute is intended to provide for one who furnishes labor or materials to a contractor upon a public work, a remedy having some analogy to a mechanic's lien but it does not create a lien. It only provides that by taking the proper steps within due time the claimant may be substituted for the contractor and recover from the municipal corporation to the extent of the contractor's just demand, if there be found in the hands of the corporation any moneys due him. If the contractor has already been paid all that he is entitled to receive under his contract, the person furnishing labor or materials to him for the improvement has no redress against the corporation. Modern Steel Construction Co. v. Van Buren County, 126-606.

The subcontractor who intends to assert a claim under the statute must take notice of the terms and conditions of the principal contract. If the materials furnished are not such as called for by the contract and the contractor could not recover on account thereof, the subcontractor is in no better situation. Ibid.

If on account of fraud the contractor is without lawful claim against the corporation the contract which has been violated by the contractor cannot be effectual for the benefit of the subcontractor. Ibid.

A subcontractor furnishing material for a public building acquires no lien on the building or on the money which becomes due from the public corporation to the contractor. But such subcontractor having served notice of his claim upon the corporation may sue on the contractor's bond given to relieve the corporation from liability as to the distribution of the money due the contractor, and such action may be maintained in the county where the contract was to be performed, although the contractor and the sureties on his bond are residents of another county. Thompson v. Stephens, 131-51.

No liens or claims can be asserted against a school district for material and labor furnished by a subcontractor in its construction, and a bond in which the contractor obligates himself to deliver such schoolhouse free from liens or claims of any kind and to discharge any liens or claims against the building or which may be claimed against the district does not render the bondsmen liable for subcontractor's claims. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Independent School District, 121-663.

This statute does not create a lien in favor of a laborer or material man upon the funds due to the principal contractor nor is any lien created on the building or improvement itself. Whitehouse v. American Surety Co., 117-328.

Therefore a laborer or materialman who is protected by a bond given by the contractor to the public corporation to secure it against the claims of such persons does not release the surety on such bond by failing to pursue his remedy against the fund due the contractor in the hands of the corporation. Ibid.; Read v. American Surety Co., 117-10.

A contractor's bond given to secure a public corporation against claims by materialmen and laborers enures to the benefit of those who furnish material and labor in carrying out such contract. Hipwell v. National Surety Co., 130-656.

Subcontractors are not bound to perfect their claims against funds in the hands of the officers of the public corporation, but may rely directly on the security afforded by the bond. Ibid.

An assignee of the contract takes subject to the obligation of the contractor's bond to discharge the claim for such material and labor. Ibid.

Garnishment of a public corporation for funds due the contractor which is effected prior to service of a notice of a claim for material furnished, is a good defense to recovery against the corporation on such claim. The claim of the materialman against the corporation is personal and is not a lien on the property. Swearingen Lumber Co. v. Washington School Township, 15-283.

The municipal corporation, against which a claim is made for labor performed or material furnished for the contractor is entitled to protection so far as it has relied upon the provisions of the contract made for its benefit and acted in accordance therewith. Until a claim is filed the corporation owes no duty to the subcontractors and the provisions of the mechanics lien law for the benefit of such persons are not applicable. Green Bay Lumber Co. v. Independent School Dist., 125-227.

If the corporation has in good faith paid out money on certificates of work done, the correctness of such certificates can only be impeached for fraud or mistake, and even in such case no liability of the corporation would attach in favor of the subcontractor unless it appears that the actual cost of the work was in fact less than the amount given in the certificate on which the corporation has acted. Ibid.

Under a provision in the contract that on abandonment of the work by the contractor the corporation may take possession of all materials on the ground and apply them to finishing the work, the corporation is not bound to pay the material man for materials furnished by him to the contractor and which have thus been appropriated. Ibid.

In an action by a material man to enforce a claim against a corporation to which the contractor is a party, the materialman is entitled to a judgment against the contractor for any indebtedness due. Ibid.

SEC. 3104. Release of claim.

A bond given by the contractor to hold the public corporation harmless from claims of subcontractors may be sued on by a subcontractor entitled to a lien in the county in which the work is done, although the contractor and his sureties are residents of another county. Thompson v. Stephens, 131-51.

SEC. 3105. Liens of miners.

The lien of a miner provided for by this section is not limited to property of the operator of the mine which might be removed, or to improvements which he has made, but extends to the premises on which the mine is situated, and which have been leased for mining purposes, to the extent at least that the value of the property has been increased by the improvements made thereon by the mining lessee. Mitchell v. Burwell, 110-10.

The lessor cannot deduct from the value of such improvements, as a claim prior to that of the laborer, the amount due to such lessor for royalties. Ibid.

A laborer's lien does not attach to the property of the owner in favor of the employes of an operating lessee of the mine. Caster v. McClellan, 132-502.

CHAPTER 9.

OF LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

SECTION 3106. Authorized.

A contract by which a person contributed a specified sum to the common stock of a business, without any right to share in the profits, nor any responsibility for the losses, but with an agreement to have a per cent. of the sum invested payable annually and in any event, held not to constitute such a person either a general or a limited partner. Richardson v. Carlton, 109-515.

SEC. 3109. Publication. Upon filing the certificate and affidavit, a notice containing all the facts set out in the certificate shall be published, once each week, for [for] six weeks in two newspapers in the senatorial district in which the business is to be conducted, to be designated by the clerk of the court of the county in which such certificate is filed, proof of which publication may be made by the publishers in the same manner as original notices in ordinary actions, and filed with said clerk, which, when thus made, shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein contained. If the required publication is not made, the partnership shall be general. [19 G. A., ch. 8; C., '73, §§ 2155-6; R., §§ 1882-3.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 9.]

CHAPTER 10.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN, CARRIERS, HOTEL KEEPERS, LIVERY STABLE KEEPERS, AND HERDERS.

SECTION 3127. Damages.

This section refers to a wilful departure from duty by the warehouseman, and not to a mere failure to observe legal requirements in attempting to enforce his lien. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110-359.

SEC. 3129. Repeal. Section thirty-one hundred and twenty-nine (3129) of the code is hereby repealed. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 60.]

SEC. 3130. Unclaimed property—lien for charges.

The warehouseman is not obliged to take any steps towards selling the goods, but if he does it is imperative that he observe the statutory requirements. The procedure provided for is not a privilege, but a duty of the warehouseman in case he undertakes to sell stored property. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110-359.

SEC. 3131. Sale—notice. If the property remains unclaimed and the charges unpaid, the person in possession, if the probable value does not exceed one hundred dollars, shall advertise the same for fourteen days, by posting notices in five of the most public places in the city or locality where said property is held, giving such description as will indicate what is to be sold; if the goods exceed the probable value of one hundred dollars, the length of notice shall be four weeks, and there shall be a publication thereof, once each week, for the same length of time in some newspaper of general circulation in the locality where the property is held, if there be one, and, if not, then in the next nearest newspaper published in that neighborhood, at the end of which period, if the property is still unclaimed or charges unpaid, it may be sold by him at public auction, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m., for the highest price the same will bring, which sale may be continued from day to day, by public announcement to that effect at the time of the adjournment, until all the property is sold; and from the proceeds thereof all charges, costs and expenses of the sale shall be paid, which sale shall be conducted after the manner of sheriff's sales, and like costs taxed for like services. [C., '73, § 2179.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 10.]

It is for the jury to say whether the value of the goods exceeds $100, and if so, whether the warehouseman knew this fact, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known it, and whether the notices required were posted according to law and actual notice was given to the owner. Jeffries v. Snyder, 110-359.

SEC. 3137. Liens of livery stable keepers, etc.

The agister's lien does not take priority over the lien of a prior recorded chattel mortgage, unless the mortgage has consented to the agistment. Beh v. Moore, 124-564.

SEC. 3138. Hotel and innkeepers—liability—lien. Keepers of hotels, inns and eating houses and steamboat owners, who shall provide and keep therein a good and sufficient vault or safe for the deposit of money, jewels and other valuables, and shall provide a safe and commodious place for the baggage, clothing and other property belonging to their guests and patrons, and keep posted up in a conspicuous place in the office or other public room, and in the guests' apartments therein, printed notices, stating that such places for safe deposit are provided for the use and accommodation of the inmates thereof, shall not be liable for the loss of any money, jewels, valuables, baggage or other property not deposited with them, unless such loss shall occur through the fault or negligence of such landlord or keeper, or steamboat owner, his agent, servant or employe, but nothing herein contained shall apply to such reasonable amount of money, nor to such jewels, baggage, valuables or other property as is usual, fit and proper for any such guests to have and retain in their apartments or about their persons. Hotel, inn or eating house keepers shall have a lien upon, and may take and retain possession of, all baggage and other property belonging to or under the control of their guests, which may be in such hotel, inn or eating house, for the value of their accommodations and keep, and for all money paid for or advanced to, and for such extras and other things as shall be furnished, such guest, and such property so retained shall not be exempt from attachment or execution to the amount of the reasonable charges of such hotel, inn or eating house keeper, against such guest, and the costs of enforcing the lien thereon. [18 G. A., ch. 181.] [28 G. A., ch. 120, §§ 1, 2.]

This section gives to the innkeeper a lien, not only upon the property in fact belonging to the guest and brought by him to the hotel or inn, but likewise upon property placed therein which was under the guest's control. Therefore, held, that the innkeeper's lien attached to sample goods carried by a traveling salesman, though the innkeeper had knowledge when receiving the salesman that the goods belonged to his employer. Brown Shoe Co. v. Hunt, 103-586.

CHAPTER 10-A.

OF WAREHOUSEMEN AND WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS.

SECTION 3138-a1. Persons who may issue receipts. Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 1.]

SEC. 3138-a2. Form of receipts—essential terms. Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

- (a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored,
- (b) The date of issue of the receipt,
- (c) The consecutive number of the receipt,
- (d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order,
- (e) The rate of storage charges,
- (f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them,
- (g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent,
- (h) If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership, and
- (i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damages caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 2.]

SEC. 3138-a3. Form of receipts—what terms may be inserted. A warehouseman may insert in a receipt, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

- (a) Be contrary to the provisions of this act,
- (b) In anywise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safe-keeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 3.]

SEC. 3138-a4. Definition of non-negotiable receipt. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a non-negotiable receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 4.]

SEC. 3138-a5. Definition of negotiable receipt. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt is a negotiable receipt. No provision shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is non-negotiable. Such provisions, if inserted, shall be void. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 5.]

SEC. 3138-a6. Duplicate receipts must be so marked. When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word “duplicate” shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 6.]

SEC. 3138-a7. Failure to mark "not negotiable." A non-negotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it "non-negotiable," or "not negotiable." In case of the warehouseman's failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable, may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable. This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 7.]

SEC. 3138-a8. Obligation of warehouseman to deliver. A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this act, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

- (a) An offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien,
- (b) An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt, and
- (c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the warehouseman.

In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 8.]

SEC. 3138-a9. Justification of warehouseman delivering. A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, to one who is—

- (a) The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent,
- (b) A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods, or who has written authority from the person so entitled either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper, or
- (c) A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been indorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 9.]

SEC. 3138-a10. Warehouseman's liability for misdelivery. Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions he shall be so liable, if prior to such delivery he had either—

- (a) Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or
- (b) Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 10.]

SEC. 3138-a11. Negotiable receipt must be cancelled when goods delivered. Except as provided in section thirty-six (36), where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 11.]

SEC. 3138-a12. Negotiable receipt must be cancelled or marked when part of goods delivered. Except as provided in section thirty-six (36), where a warehouseman delivers part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel such receipt, or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 12.]

SEC. 3138-a13. Altered receipts. The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was—

- (a) Immaterial,
- (b) Authorized, or
- (c) Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt, as they were before alteration. Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 13.]

SEC. 3138-a14. Lost or destroyed receipts. Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense, which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs and counsel fees. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 14.]

SEC. 3138-a15. Effect of duplicate receipt. A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 15.]

SEC. 3138-a16. Warehouseman cannot set up title in himself. No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 16.]

SEC. 3138-a17. Interpleader of adverse claimants. If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for non-delivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 17.]

SEC. 3138-a18. Warehouseman has reasonable time to determine validity of claims. If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 18.]

SEC. 3138-a19. Adverse title is no defense, except as above provided. Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in sections nine (9) and thirty-six (36), no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 19.]

SEC. 3138-a20. Liability for non-existence or misdescription of goods. A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt for damages caused by the non-existence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them, or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 20.]

SEC. 3138-a21. Liability for care of goods. A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise, but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 21.]

SEC. 3138-a22. Goods must be kept separate. Except as provided in the following section, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other depositors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and re-delivery of the goods deposited. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 22.]

SEC. 3138-a23. Fungible goods may be commingled, if warehouseman authorized. If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common, and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 23.]

SEC. 3138-a24. Liability of warehouseman to depositors of commingled goods. The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and re-delivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 24.]

SEC. 3138-a25. Attachment or levy upon goods for which a negotiable receipt has been issued. If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishing or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman, or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 25.]

SEC. 3138-a26. Creditors' remedies to reach negotiable receipts. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 26.]

SEC. 3138-a27. What claims are included in warehouseman's lien. Subject to the provisions of section thirty (30), a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, cooping and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice, and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman's lien. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 27.]

SEC. 3138-a28. Against what property lien may be enforced. Subject to the provisions of section thirty (30), a warehouseman's lien may be enforced—

(a) Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, and

(b) Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, if such person has been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 28.]

SEC. 3138-a29. How lien may be lost. A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

(a) By surrendering possession thereof, or

(b) By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 29.]

SEC. 3138-a30. Negotiable receipt must state charges for which lien is claimed. If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms of section twenty-seven (27), although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 30.]

SEC. 3138-a31. Warehouseman need not deliver until lien is satisfied. A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 31.]

SEC. 3138-a32. Warehouseman's lien does not preclude other remedies. Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor, for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 32.]

SEC. 3138-a33. Satisfaction of lien by sale. A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

(a) An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due,

(b) A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists,

(c) A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered, or from the time when the notice should reach its destination, according to the due course of post, if the notice is sent by mail, and

(d) A statement that unless the claim is paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein. From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods. At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this act, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 33.]

SEC. 3138-a34. Perishable and hazardous goods. If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature, will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods and to remove them from the warehouse, and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman, after a reasonable effort, is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in a lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof. The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of the preceding section. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 34.]

SEC. 3138-a35. Other methods of enforcing liens. The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 35.]

SEC. 3138-a36. Effect of sale. After the goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor, or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 36.]

SEC. 3138-a37. Negotiation of negotiable receipts by delivery. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery—

(a) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer, or

(b) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where, by the terms of a negotiable receipt, the goods are deliverable to bearer or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 37.]

SEC. 3138-a38. Negotiation of negotiable receipts by indorsement. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are, by the terms of the receipt, deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. [32 G. A., ch 160, § 38.]

SEC. 3138-a39. Transfer of receipts. A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee. A non-negotiable receipt can not be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 39.]

SEC. 3138-a40. Who may negotiate a receipt. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated—

(a) By the owner thereof, or

(b) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted, or if at the time of such entrusting the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 40.]

SEC. 3138-a41. Rights of persons to whom receipt has been negotiated. A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated requires [acquires] thereby—

(a) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and

(b) The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 41.]

SEC. 3138-a42. Rights of persons to whom receipt has been transferred. A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferor, the title to the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor. If the receipt is non-negotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt. Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferor or transferee of a non-negotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferor or by a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 42.]

SEC. 3138-a43. Transfer of negotiable receipt without indorsement. Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 43.]

SEC. 3138-a44. Warranties on sale of receipt. A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

(a) That the receipt is genuine,

(b) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it,

(c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt, and

(d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods, and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 44.]

SEC. 3138-a45. Indorser not a grantor. The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 45.]

SEC. 3138-a46. No warranty implied from accepting payment of debt. A mortgagee, pledgee or holder for security of a receipt who, in good faith, demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quality or quantity of the goods therein described. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 46.]

SEC. 3138-a47. When negotiation not impaired by fraud, mistake or duress. The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was induced by fraud, mistake, or duress to entrust the possession or custody of the receipt to such person, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake, or duress. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 47.]

SEC. 3138-a48. Subsequent negotiation. Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 48.]

SEC. 3138-a49. Negotiation defeats vendor's lien. Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 49.]

SEC. 3138-a50. Issue of receipt for goods not received. A warehouseman or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of felony, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 50.]

SEC. 3138-a51. Issue of receipt containing false statement. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods, knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 51.]

SEC. 3138-a52. Issue of duplicate receipts not so marked. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods, knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings as provided for in section fourteen (14), shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 52.]

SEC. 3138-a53. Issue for warehouseman's goods of receipts which do not state that fact. Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 53.]

SEC. 3138-a54. Delivery of goods without obtaining negotiable receipt. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt, the negotiating of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods, is outstanding and uncanceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, shall, except in the cases provided for in sections fourteen (14) and thirty-six (36), be found guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars (1,000.00), or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 54.]

SEC. 3138-a55. Negotiation of receipt for mortgaged goods. Any person who deposits goods to which he has no title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 55.]

SEC. 3138-a56. When rules of common law still applicable. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 56.]

SEC. 3138-a57. Interpretation shall give effect to purpose of uniformity. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 57.]

SEC. 3138-a58. Definitions. In this act, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires—

"Action" includes the counter claim, set-off, and suit in equity.

“Delivery” means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

“Fungible goods” means goods of which any receipt is, from its nature or by mercantile custom, treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

“Goods” means chattels or merchandise in storage, or which has been or is about to be stored.

“Holder of a receipt” means a person who has both actual possession of such receipt and a right of property therein.

“Order” means an order by indorsement on the receipt.

“Owner” does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

“Person” includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

To “purchase” includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee.

“Purchaser” includes mortgagee and pledgee.

“Receipt” means a warehouse receipt.

“Value” is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a receipt is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

“Warehouseman” means a person lawfully engaged in the business of storing goods for profit.

A thing is done “in good faith” within the meaning of this act, when it is in fact done honestly whether it be done negligently or not. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 58.]

SEC. 3138-a59. Act does not apply to existing receipts. The provisions of this act do not apply to receipts made and delivered prior to the taking effect of this act. [32 G. A., ch. 160, § 59.]

TITLE XVI.

OF THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF MARRIAGE.

SECTION 3139. Contract.

No particular form or ceremony is necessary. All that is required is that the minds of the parties meet in mutual consent; but neither the intention to marry nor consent to such marriage can be inferred from cohabitation alone. Brisbin v. Huntington, 128-166.

SEC. 3145. Who may solemnize.

Although the mayor of a city may not have the authority to perform the marriage ceremony outside the limits of his jurisdiction, a marriage solemnized by him without the consent of the parties beyond his jurisdiction is valid under Code § 3147. State v. McKay, 122-658.

SEC. 3146. Certificate—return—record.

The law will presume a legal marriage in the absence of other evidence where it is shown that the parties have held themselves out to the world as husband and wife and have lived and cohabited together as such. State v. Rocker, 130-239.

of evidence, whether direct or circumstantial. Casley v. Mitchell, 121-96.

A parish register is competent evidence of a marriage. Ibid.

When the relation is once shown to exist it will be presumed to have continued in the absence of evidence of a dissolution by death or divorce. Ibid.

Proof of the last marriage alone makes out a prima facie case as to its validity, and to overcome such prima facie case proof of a former marriage is required, and also evidence from which it may be concluded that it had not been dissolved by death or divorce. In re Estate of Calton, 129-542.

Record evidence of marriage is not necessary, and it may be proved by any kind

SEC. 3147. Forfeiture.

A marriage solemnized by one of the officers named in Code § 3145, but outside of his jurisdiction, will be void under the provisions of this section. State v. McKay, 122-658.

SEC. 3150. Issue legitimized.

Only by the subsequent marriage of the parents can an illegitimate child ever become legitimate. Such recognition of an illegitimate child as will enable him to inherit does not render him legitimate. Brisbin v. Huntington, 128-166.

CHAPTER 2.

OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

SECTION 3153. Property rights of married women.

Although the family resides on premises owned by the wife and occupied as a homestead, the husband is presumed to be the head of the family. Burch v. Lowary, 131-719.

SEC. 3154. Interest of either spouse in other's property.

Husband and wife cannot enter into written contracts with each other in reference to the disposition of their property unless in pursuance of and in accordance with a valid contract entered into before marriage. Frazer v. Andrews, 112 N. W. 92.

The contingent interest of the wife in her husband's property cannot be made the subject of contract as between them. Sharff v. Hayes, 132-609.

A contract by the husband to pay the wife a consideration for joining in a conveyance to cut off her dower right is invalid in view of the provisions of this section. Miller v. Miller, 104-186.

A contract between the wife and the husband for the payment to the wife of a share of the proceeds of property sold, on condition that she will join in the conveyance of the property for the purpose of releasing her dower interest, is not valid. Garner v. Fry, 104-515.

But if a portion of the proceeds is immediately given to the wife it will be valid as a gift and may be afterward properly treated as her property. Ibid.

Either party may elect whether he or she will join in a conveyance, but cannot use the right for purposes of speculation or oppression. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife as to the interest of the husband in the wife's property on her decease, is invalid, not only as to real property, but also as to personalty. Poole v. Burnham, 105-620.

Such contract is invalid as to property subsequently acquired. Ibid.

While the wife cannot convey her contingent right of dower to her husband, she may by quitclaim to her husband's grantee cut off her contingent rights in the property. Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N. W. 808.

A power of attorney given by a wife to her husband, authorizing him to relinquish her right of dower in the husband's real property, is of no validity. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114-489.

Nor will the wife be bound by ratification of a conveyance to which her name is signed by the husband under such power of attorney. Ibid.

The provision that neither husband nor wife has such an interest in the property of the other that it can be the subject of contract between them is in effect a statute of descent and distribution, and an agreement of the wife upon separation to release for a consideration all interest in her husband's property is void, and will not preclude her from claiming her distributive share, although the agreement, made in another jurisdiction, was valid and enforceable where made. Caruth v. Caruth, 128-121.

This provision renders any contract invalid by which the wife releases to the husband her interest in his land, but it has no application to a property interest which husband or wife may have in the land of the other based upon contracts with third persons, or derived from sources other than the marriage relation. Baird v. Connell, 121-278.

Separation agreements are generally regarded as invalid so far as they relate to the future; but they have often been recognized and enforced so far as they relate to maintenance or other collateral engagements. Ibid.

An agreement of separation will be considered as rescinded if the parties afterwards cohabit as husband and wife; but such an agreement is only thus rescinded in so far as the consideration therefor consists in the arrangement that they shall live apart; there may be other conditions based on independent considerations which are not annulled by the resumption of conjugal relations. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife as to the interest which the wife shall have in the husband's property, made in consideration of the abandonment by the wife of meritorious proceedings for divorce and the resumption of marital relations, is valid. Fisher v. Kootz, 110-498.

An antenuptial contract by which the prospective wife's inchoate distributive share in the husband's estate is surrendered will be valid. Therefore a post-nuptial contract between the husband and wife with reference to the effect which shall be given to such antenuptial contract as to the interest which the wife shall acquire in the husband's property is valid. Ibid.

The courts will rigidly scrutinize a contract apparently unjust or unreasonable in its terms, and especially where it operates to deprive a wife of her interest in the husband's estate without provision for her in the event she survive him. In such a case the burden is upon the husband or those representing him to show that the contract was fairly procured in order to have it upheld. Ibid.

A contract between husband and wife in settlement of a suit for separate maintenance, by which she relinquishes all claims to his estate, except as provided for in such contract, is not effectual to defeat the wife's contingent right of dower in the husband's property subsequently conveyed. Newberry v. Newberry, 114-704.

SEC. 3155. Remedy by one against the other.

An agreement by the husband for a consideration proceeding from his wife's parents that he would reimburse the wife to the extent of the money and property which were advanced to him by her parents, gives to the wife a valid claim against her husband in satisfaction of which he may transfer property to her free from claims of his creditors. Clark v. Ford, 126-460.

A wife may maintain an action against her husband on a note for money loaned by her to him out of her separate estate. In re Estate of Deaner, 126-701.

The time within which such an action may be maintained by the wife is governed by the general provisions of the statute of limitations. Ibid.

The money thus received by the husband cannot be regarded as held by him in trust in the absence of a showing of such agreement on his part. Ibid.

A contract by the husband and wife by which it is agreed that the wife shall have a one-half interest in all property, real and personal, thereafter coming into their possession in consideration for money advanced to the husband from the wife's separate estate, may be enforced by her. McElhanev v. McElhanev, 125-279.

The legal fiction of the oneness of husband and wife has not been entirely effaced. All disabilities which the common law imposed upon husband and wife by reason of the marriage status still exist, except in so far as they have been modified or changed by express statutory enactment. Heacock v. Heacock, 108-540.

Therefore, held that a wife cannot sue a husband on his personal contract made during coverture. Ibid.

As express authority is given for a suit by the wife against her husband to recover her property, or any right growing out of the same, she might sue her husband with reference to property rights arising out of a partnership entered into between them. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119-720.

SEC. 3157. Conveyance to each other valid.

A postnuptial contract with reference to the wife's inchoate distributive share of the husband's estate which she would have been entitled to but for an antenuptial contract releasing such interest, may be valid. The hands of the husband and wife are not to be tied up forever by an understanding entered into before learning fully of the mutual trust and confidence engendered by and essential to well being in the marriage relation. Fisher v. Koontz, 110-498.

A conveyance, transfer or lien, executed by either husband or wife to or in favor of the other, is valid as to any interest which the one may have in the property of the other based upon contracts with third persons or derived from sources other than the marriage relation. Baird v. Connell, 121-278.

Conveyances between husband and wife will be valid, although the premises constitute the homestead, notwithstanding the general provisions of Code § 2974 requiring that both join in a conveyance or incumbrance of the homestead. Beedy v. Finney, 118-276.

The wife cannot by conveyance to her husband extinguish her contingent right of dower in his property. See notes in this supplement to Code § 3154.

SEC. 3161. Attorney in fact.

The wife cannot give the husband a power of attorney to dispose of her contingent dower interest in his property. Sawyer v. Biggart, 114-489.

And see notes in this supplement to Code § 3054.

SEC. 3162. Wages of wife—actions by.

In an action by a married woman for damages resulting from personal injuries, no recovery should be allowed for her loss of time in the absence of evidence that she had any business or employment apart from her husband. Denton v. Ordway, 108-487.

The husband is entitled to the services and earnings of his wife when she is not engaged in business on her own account, and in such case she cannot recover in her own name under implied contract for services rendered to a third person in furnishing him board and lodging. McClintic v. McClintic, 111-615.

But she may recover for board furnished under an express contract. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 116-480.

Where by consent of the husband the wife keeps boarders on her own account, and receives the board money and invests the fund thus accumulated in property in her own name, such property is exempt from any claim on the part of her husband's creditors. Ehlers v. Blumer, 129-168.

SEC. 3164. Contracts of wife.

A husband may contribute by his labor and sagacity to the accumulation of property in the name of his wife, without rendering such property subject to his debts. Deere v. Bonne, 108-281.

This provision as to suits by or against a wife on contracts made by or with her has reference to contracts with persons other than her husband, and does not authorize a suit by a wife against the husband on a contract entered into between them during coverture, not relating to her separate property. Heacock v. Heacock, 108-540.

Common law rules with reference to the oneness of husband and wife still so far exist that any capacity of a married woman to contract is regarded as exceptional, and the grounds therefor must be both alleged and proved by one seeking to recover. Ibid.

The wife, although not engaged in an occupation independent of her husband, may contract for furnishing board and maintain an action in her own name on such contract. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 116-480.

A married woman having authority in this state to acquire, own and dispose of property, and to make contracts and incur liabilities, may enter into a valid contract of partnership with her husband. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119-720.

SEC. 3165. Family expenses.

A diamond shirt stud worn by the husband for personal use and adornment is an expense of the family for which the wife may be liable. Neasham v. McNair, 103-695.

The cost of feed for a horse used by the husband in his business and not by the family does not constitute a family expense chargeable to the wife. Generally speaking, the thing for which the expense is incurred which may be charged to the wife must be used or kept for use in the family. Martin v. Vertres, 130-175.

The wife does not become liable under this section for the support of her husband in an insane hospital, under the provisions of Code § 2297. Blackhawk County v. Scott, 111-190.

A creditor who has obtained judgment against the husband for family expenses may, in an equitable action, subject the property of the wife to the payment thereof without first recovering judgment at law against her. Boss v. Jordan, 118-204.

In a suit to subject the property of the wife to the payment of a judgment against her husband for family expenses, the rights of one who purchased such property after the suit may be declared subject to plaintiff's claim. Ibid.

A note given by the husband for family expenses is not conclusive on the wife, either as to the existence of the debt or as to the amount thereof. The husband may as against the wife extend the time of payment or change the form of indebtedness, but cannot create as binding on the wife, an indebtedness which does not exist. McCartney & Sons Co. v. Carter, 129-20.

Where the husband drives the wife from the home in which she has an equal right of possession with him, he impliedly obligates himself to pay for her support regardless of the cause of such expulsion. Baker v. Oughton, 130-35.

SEC. 3166. Removal from homestead—custody of children.

The wife is entitled to necessaries after being driven from the home by her husband, regardless of the cause of the expulsion. Baker v. Oughton, 130-35.

When the husband seeks to secure the return of his wife after she has left home on the ground of alleged improper conduct, the offer of reconciliation must be unconditional. Ibid.

SEC. 3167. Repeal—insanity of either spouse—conveyance of property. That section three thousand one hundred and sixty-seven (3167) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted in lieu thereof the following:

“Where either the husband or wife is insane and incapable of executing a deed or mortgage relinquishing, conveying or incumbering his or her right to the real property of the other the other may petition the district court of the county of his or her residence or the county where the real estate to be conveyed or incumbered is situated, setting forth the facts and praying for an order authorizing the applicant or some other person to execute a deed or mortgage and relinquish or incumber the interest of the insane person in said real estate.” [30 G. A., ch. 119, § 1.]

SEC. 3169. Repeal—decree. That section three thousand one hundred and sixty-nine (3169) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed and there is hereby enacted in lieu thereof the following:

"Upon the hearing of the petition the court, if satisfied that it is made in good faith by the petitioner and he is a proper person to exercise the power and make the conveyance or mortgage and it is necessary and proper, shall enter a decree authorizing the execution of the conveyance or mortgage for and in the name of such husband or wife by such person as the court may appoint." [30 G. A., ch. 119, § 2.]

CHAPTER 3.

OF DIVORCE, ANNULING MARRIAGES AND ALIMONY.

SECTION 3171. Jurisdiction.

Where a decree of divorce was rendered on a notice by publication which gave the name of defendant with a spelling not the same, nor indicating the same pronunciation as that of defendant's true name, held, that there was no presumption in favor of the validity of such decree. Hubner v. Reichhoff, 103-368.

Mere length of time during which a person has lived in a particular locality is not controlling in determining the length of residence. Intention is the controlling consideration. Sylvester v. Sylvester, 109-401.

The general rule that the domicile of the husband is the domicile of the wife does not apply in proceedings for divorce. Ibid.

A decree procured by one not in good faith a resident of this state is of no validity. Roe v. McCaughan, 113-274.

A proceeding for divorce so far as it affects the marital status of the parties is quasi in rem so that the decree is valid on service by publication. But as to alimony and the costs such a proceeding is in personam and not binding on the defendant who has not appeared nor been served with process in the state and has no property therein. Rea v. Rea, 123-241; Johnson v. Matthews, 124-255.

A decree of divorce fraudulently obtained as a result of an action brought in a state of which the plaintiff is a non-resident and against a non-resident defendant not served within the jurisdiction and not appearing, is void and subject to collateral attack in any court wherein such pretended adjudication is pleaded. Bee-man v. Kitzman, 124-86.

SEC. 3173. Verification—evidence—hearing.

The court should be prompt to denounce collusion between parties in an action to secure a decree of divorce, but in a particular case held that the evidence did not show such collusion as to authorize the court to refuse to hear a case submitted on petition and cross-petition. Blinn v. Blinn, 113-83.

The testimony of the complaining party with reference to the grounds of divorce must be corroborated by other evidence. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

Where the husband procured a decree of divorce from his wife by fraud, held that after his death the wife might maintain an action to set the decree aside in order to be entitled as his widow to draw a pension from the federal government. Lawrence v. Nelson, 113-277.

In a case involving property rights, the presumption arising from a pretended marriage will not be sufficient to overthrow the presumption of the continuing validity of a former marriage, in the absence of any other evidence of a divorce. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 113-319.

A divorce will not be presumed in order to sustain the validity of a subsequent marriage where the evidence affirmatively shows no record of such proceeding in the county in which it should have been instituted, and no grounds therefor. In re Estate of Colton, 129-542.

SEC. 3174. Causes.

Adultery. A husband cannot have a divorce on account of the adultery of the wife with a third person who has such connection at the instigation of the husband for the purpose of securing evidence with a view to a divorce. May v. May, 108-1.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that although the husband had declared his preference for the society of another woman to that of his wife, there was no evidence of illicit relations such as to sustain a divorce on the ground of adultery. Craig v. Craig, 129-192.

As to sufficiency of evidence in particular cases to establish adultery see Biser v. Biser, 110-248; Wells v. Wells, 116-59.

Desertion: Four elements are essential to constitute such desertion as will be sufficient ground for a divorce: (1), the cessation of the marriage relation; (2), the intent to desert; (3), the continuance of the desertion during the statutory period; and (4), the absence of consent or misconduct of the deserted party. Separation does not constitute desertion unless accompanied with the intent to cease to live together as husband and wife, and on the part of the spouse charged with desertion such intent must be shown to have been wrongful, i. e., in disregard of the marital obligations. Kupa v. Kupa, 132-191.

The husband cannot accept the departure of his wife from the home as a desertion and demand a divorce on that ground when he refuses to invite her to return, makes no effort to induce her to resume her place in his house and rejects her overtures for reconciliation. Even though she be originally in fault in leaving him, he cannot shut the door against her return and then make her continued absence the ground of a charge of desertion. McElhaney v. McElhaney, 125-333.

A cessation of intercourse alone will not authorize a divorce. There must be an abandonment of all marital duties and complete separation to constitute desertion under the statute. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133-425.

Under the evidence in a particular case held that desertion as a ground of divorce in an action by the wife against her husband was sufficiently established. Walker v. Walker, 127-77.

Habitual drunkenness: Occasional acts of intoxication are not sufficient to make one an habitual drunkard. There must be an involuntary tendency to become intoxicated as often as the temptation is presented, which comes from a fixed habit acquired from frequent and excessive indulgence. Biser v. Biser, 110-248.

Inhuman treatment: Divorce will only be granted on statutory grounds; and cruel and inhuman treatment will be a sufficient ground only where it is such as to endanger life. Whether a particular act or course of mistreatment is cruel and inhuman, and if so whether it is such as to endanger life, must be determined from the facts of each case, such as the temperament, disposition and mental and physical condition of the complaining party. Blair v. Blair, 106-269.

There may be cruel and inhuman treatment which will be a ground for divorce, although the life of the wife has not been imperiled by physical acts of violence. Berry v. Berry, 115-543.

Inhuman treatment which would warrant a divorce must be such as to endanger life, and it must be treatment which has not been provoked or caused by the fault of the complaining party. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

Cruelty provoked by the wrongful acts or unreasonable conduct of the wife will not entitle her to a divorce. May v. May, 108-1.

A divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment may be granted to the wife on account of conduct of the husband such as would tend to break down her nervous system and permanently impair her health. Shook v. Shook, 114-592.

Unfounded charges by the husband against the wife of lewdness, unchastity and adultery may constitute such inhuman treatment as to endanger the life, although no physical injury be inflicted. Treatment which affects the mind to such a degree as to destroy health or endanger life is a cause for divorce. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

Repeated false assertions by a husband in the presence of his family and to others that his wife is unchaste are calculated to impair her health and endanger life and may justify a divorce. Turner v. Turner, 122-113.

Accusations of infidelity by the wife against the husband do not in themselves constitute such cruel and inhuman treatment as to be likely to impair the health of the husband, and do not therefore constitute grounds for divorce. Pfannebecker v. Pfannebecker, 133-425.

Statements by the husband to the wife that he has lost his affection for her and prefers another woman to her may constitute such cruel and inhuman treatment as to authorize a divorce. Craig v. Craig, 129-192.

Where the evidence discloses a long continued course of ill treatment, even though with slight physical violence which would be likely to impair health and imperil the life of the wife, she is entitled to a divorce. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133-269.

Incompatibility of temper is no ground for divorce; and while the courts cannot compel husband and wife to live together, they can make it so difficult to obtain a divorce as to encourage another effort at observance of the matrimonial vows. Olson v. Olson, 130-353.

As to sufficiency of evidence in particular cases to show such cruel and inhuman treatment as to authorize the granting of a divorce see Schaffer v. Schaffer, 106-492; Sylvester v. Sylvester, 109-401; Wells v. Wells, 116-59; Luick v. Luick, 132-302.

Condonation: The wife, by continuing to live and cohabit with the husband condones any previous acts of his which would have entitled her to a divorce. May v. May, 108-1.

A condonation based on the condition of future good conduct is destroyed as a ground of defense if the improper conduct which has been condoned is subsequently repeated. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

Condonation is always conditional on the fact that the party forgiven will thereafter abstain from the commission of like offenses, and when the condition is broken the original cause of complaint revives. Craig v. Craig, 129-192.

Contract to procure: A contract having for its object the securing of the dissolution of the marriage contract as to one of the parties is against public policy and void, and one who renders services under such a contract cannot recover under quantum meruit. Barngrover v. Pettigrew, 128-533.

SEC. 3177. Maintenance during litigation.

The statute does not expressly or by implication provide that temporary alimony shall be allowed only after answer. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 129-628.

The appearance of the defendant to object to the granting of temporary alimony constitutes an appearance to the action giving the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

After a trial on the merits and a judgment denying plaintiff a divorce, the court has no power to make an allowance to plaintiff of temporary alimony. Wald v. Wald, 124-183.

An allowance of suit money for appeal to the supreme court should be made on application to that court, and not by the district court after the case has been appealed. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

The defendant should not be deprived of his right to defend the action because of his failure to comply with an order for the payment of temporary alimony, where there is no other showing than that on which the allowance of temporary alimony was made. Hancock v. Hancock, 109 N. W. 1009.

The rules as to allowance of suit money are the same in a proceeding for separate maintenance as in a suit for divorce. Ibid.

An attorney's lien does not attach to an allowance for suit money. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 112 N. W. 796.

SEC. 3180. Alimony—custody of children—changes.

Allowance of alimony: The court is not limited to a fixed allowance or proportion of the estate of the defendant which shall be given to the injured party as permanent alimony or for separate maintenance; such sum should be allowed by the court as is just in the light of all the facts before it. Goldie v. Goldie, 123-175.

An alternative decree giving to the successful plaintiff an option of receiving a lump sum less the aggregate of the sum paid by way of annual payments, on failure or refusal of the defendant to make the annual payments provided for, is not necessarily erroneous. Ibid.

Under our practice the property rights of the husband and wife in the property owned by each are ascertained in a divorce proceeding, and final distribution is made in order that the parties may forever remain independent of each other, and in making the allowance of alimony the court must estimate the property of both parties and adjudicate the claims that each has against the other. But the interests of either in the property of the other depending not on the marriage relation, but on contracts with third persons, or acquisition from sources other than the marriage relation are not necessarily involved. Baird v. Connell, 121-278.

Where the evidence was found not sufficient to sustain a decree for divorce, held that an allowance to the husband of plaintiff of alimony to the extent of one-third of the property of the wife was erroneous. McDonald v. McDonald, 117-307.

Provisions as to alimony in particular cases sustained. Casey v. Casey, 116-655; Halley v. Halley, 130-683; Luick v. Luick, 132-302.

Separate maintenance: A suit for separate maintenance cannot be sustained except for a cause which would warrant a decree of divorce. Shors v. Shors, 133-22.

Attorney's fees: In a decree for a divorce allowing the recovery of a specific sum against the defendant by way of alimony, the defendant appealing may be required in the supreme court on affirmance of decree to pay an additional sum by way of attorney's fees in the supreme court. Goldie v. Goldie, 123-175.

In an action for divorce by the wife in which alimony is allowed to her, the money or property thus given is subject to the lien of her attorney for fees. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 112 N. W. 796.

In such case the wife cannot defeat the lien of her attorneys on an allegation of their negligence in not securing larger allowance in her favor, without showing such negligence on their part as would release from her primary liability to them for the payment of their fees. Ibid.

Custody and support of children: Where the wife, suing for divorce and alimony, was denied divorce but given the custody of a child and an allowance for its support, held that such allowance was without authority, as there appeared to be no reason why the child should not remain with and receive support from the father. Garrett v. Garrett, 114-439.

Where the wife, suing for divorce, is given the custody of the children it is not improper to award such alimony as will enable her to properly clothe, maintain and educate them. Walker v. Walker, 127-77.

In determining the reasonableness of a decree providing that the divorced husband may have the custody of the child only at stated periods, and with their consent, it is proper to take into account their dislike for the father. Hullinger v. Hullinger, 133-269.

Effect of decree: A divorce and decree of alimony against the father does not terminate his obligation as a parent to further contribute to the support of his child. Foote v. De Poy, 126-366.

Subsequent change: A decree requiring the defendant to contribute to the support of the minor children, the custody of whom is awarded to the plaintiff, may be modified so as to require a larger payment on a showing of increased financial ability of the defendant and increased necessities in support of the children on the part of the plaintiff. Ostheimer v. Ostheimer, 125-523.

The original decree is conclusive upon the parties as to their then circumstances, and the power to make changes in the decree is not a power to grant a new trial, or retry the same case, but only to adapt the decree to the newer circumstances of the parties. Ferguson v. Ferguson, 111-158.

The original decree is conclusive upon the parties upon the facts and circumstances then existing or which might have been proved. Fraud and false swearing in procuring the original decree is not sufficient ground for modification thereof, there being no evidence of change in the conditions or circumstances affecting the parties, unless the fraud be such as to require the setting aside of the original decree on that ground. Graves v. Graves, 132-199.

An order respecting the custody of children made in a decree of divorce is conclusive until it is subsequently made to appear that by reason of some changed circumstances or conditions the enforcement of the order would result in positive wrong or injustice. Crockett v. Crockett, 132-388.

Setting aside decree: Where it appears that the testimony on which a decree for alimony in a proceeding for divorce is rendered on service by publication was false and untrue it should be set aside. Klaes v. Klaes, 103-689.

And held, that an attorney who was to receive a share of the judgment in such a case for his services was not an innocent purchaser, of property awarded to the plaintiff in such a decree except to the extent to which he had actually made advances of money for expenses. Ibid.

Enforcement: The wife, suing for divorce, may resort to proper proceedings to subject to the payment of her alimony property of the husband in which she has inchoate right of dower and to prevent a conveyance by him in fraud of her rights. Walker v. Walker, 127-77.

Defendant a non-resident: Where alimony has been granted in a suit for a divorce against a non-resident an ex parte divorce fraudulently obtained by such non-resident in another jurisdiction will not bar the alimony awarded. Goldie v. Goldie, 123-175.

On service by publication: While a decree for alimony in a divorce proceeding where service is by publication only is not binding on defendant as a personal judgment, it may be enforced as to his property within the state. Rea v. Rea, 123-241.

As to a non-resident served by publication and not appearing a judgment for alimony and costs is without validity. Johnson v. Matthews, 124-255.

Such a void judgment cannot be vitalized by an order confirming it in a proceeding to subject property of the defendant to the satisfaction thereof. Ibid.

SEC. 3181. Forfeiture of rights. When a divorce is decreed the guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by marriage. In every case in which a divorce is decreed, neither party shall marry again within a year from the date of the filing of said decree unless permission to do so is granted by the court in such decree; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the persons divorced from re-marrying each other. Any person marrying contrary to the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. [C., '73, § 2230; C., '51, § 1486.] [32 G. A., ch. 161.]

The guilty party forfeits all rights acquired by marriage, and this applies to the contingent dower interest in land conveyed either before or after divorce. Pollock v. Milburn, 112-528.

CHAPTER 4.

OF MINORS.

SECTION 3188. Majority.

A male becomes an adult at the age of twenty-one years, but the meaning of the term adult is to be determined by the laws of the country with reference to which that term is used. Banco De Sonora v. Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co., 124-576.

Although a minor attains his majority by marriage, nevertheless in a prosecution for sale of liquor to a minor, proof that he had not attained the age of majority is sufficient prima facie to establish such unlawful sale, without proof that he had not attained majority by marriage. State v. Mulhern, 130-46.

SEC. 3189. Contracts—disaffirmance.

A minor may relieve himself from legal liability under his contract by a timely disaffirmance and a return or offer to return of the consideration received, and such disaffirmance relieves him from liability upon a note given by him in connection with such contract, even in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Seeley v. Seeley-Howe-LeVan Co., 128-294.

Such disaffirmance does not, however, release the obligation of the surety on such contract. Ibid.

The minor may disaffirm before he attains the age of majority, but he is only required by statute to restore the money or property which he has received by virtue of the contract, which remains within his control after attaining majority. Beickler v. Guenther, 121-419.

Where a minor elects to disaffirm a contract for the purchase of land he is entitled to recover the purchase price less the amount owing on the contract, with interest from the time of payment to the time of trial. Ibid.

There is a secondary liability of a minor for necessities furnished to him, such as physicians' services, notwithstanding the primary liability of his parents therefor. Andrews v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 129-162.

A minor is only permitted to contract for necessities because otherwise he might suffer for want of them, and he is not bound by the terms of an express contract for necessities, but only for their reasonable value. Therefore the minor may disaffirm an unexecuted contract for necessities. Wallin v. Highland Park Co., 127-131.

A minor cannot be held liable for breach of promise, but may be held for seduction. Wise v. Schloesser, 111-16.

Although a minor cannot make a valid contract of marriage, nevertheless a promise of marriage by the defendant, a minor, may be shown in an action to recover damages for seduction. Hawk v. Harris, 112-543.

SEC. 3190. Misrepresentations—engaging in business.

If a minor engages in business as a merchant, and parties subsequently assume that he is of full age and deal with him in that belief, no inquiry or representation being made as to his minority, he becomes absolutely liable for the debts contracted in such business, and he may be adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition, though still an infant. In re Brice, 93 Fed. 942.

Occasional transaction of business which is usually transacted by an adult does not constitute the engaging in business contemplated by the statute as estopping a minor from disaffirmance of his contracts. Beickler v. Guenther, 121-419.

CHAPTER 5.

OF THE GUARDIANSHIP OF PERSONS AND PROPERTY.

SECTION 3192. Natural guardian.

Natural guardian: Parents are the natural guardians of their minor children, and as such may accept the delivery of deeds made to them where the deeds are beneficial in their nature. Hall v. Cardell, 111-206.

On the death of the parents, the grandfather or grandmother when next of kin succeeds to the natural guardianship and cannot be deprived of the rights incident thereto by a deed of adoption approved in an ex parte proceeding by the clerk of court on application of a collateral relative. Holmes v. Derrig, 127-625.

An acceptance by a collateral relative of the custody of the child in pursuance of the request of the deceased parent and a reasonable observance of the duty assumed by such acceptance are circumstances of much weight as between claimants otherwise equal in right as to the custody of the child, but are not in all circumstances controlling factors in the situation. Ibid.

A judgment rendered against a minor without appointment of or defense by a guardian is not void, but at most irregular. Reints v. Engle, 130-726. And see notes to § 3482.

Custody of child: The parent's right to the custody of the child, while recognized and allowed strong weight, is not absolute, and will not be enforced against the serious interest of the child. The child's vital welfare, present and future, is not sacrificed to the parent's claim. Hadley v. Forrest, 112-125.

The right of the parent to the custody of his child should be denied with much hesitancy, and only upon satisfactory proof of a legal surrender thereof or unequivocal showing that the interest of the child demands such interposition by the court. Dunkin v. Seifert, 123-64.

The fact that one who has had the custody of a child is better able to give it the comforts and luxuries of life than the father who is surrendering or abandoning his legal right will not be a controlling consideration as against the claim of the father for its custody. Ibid.

While the best interest of the child should always be accepted as a matter of controlling importance in determining the right to its custody, yet this question is a relative one and can never be wholly divorced from the question of the rights and interests of the parents or those standing in loco parentis. The affection of the child for one who has had its custody will not necessarily outweigh other considerations in determining the right to future custody. Miller v. Miller, 123-165.

The parent may lawfully be deprived of the custody of his minor child and still be liable for its support. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133-171.

One who takes and raises a child to which he has no relationship and which he does not adopt does not become liable for medical services rendered to such child without his request. Holmes v. McKim, 109-245.

Agreement as to custody: When a parent has voluntarily parted with the custody of his child, and seeks to recover it from those who have had such custody by his consent, the welfare or wishes of the child will be consulted and, other things being equal, this consideration will be controlling. McDonald v. Stitt, 118-199.

Where a mother had turned her child over at two years of age, to be disposed of to any proper person who would take it, and the child had been taken and kept for several years by one who had the right to believe that the parent would assert no further claims to the child, held that in an action by the mother against such person to recover possession, the interest of the child would be considered, and, under the facts in the particular case, held that the action of the lower court in denying the custody to the mother would be sustained. Ibid.

The mother, equally with the father, is entitled to exercise the authority of disciplining the child, and may delegate this authority to another. Therefore held that a child of eight years of age had no right of action against an aunt for corporal punishment administered under authority given to the aunt by the mother. Rowe v. Rugg, 117-606.

A parent may confer upon some other person the legal right to the custody of a minor child, but such an arrangement contemplating permanent custody will not be binding unless this is the intention of the parent. Miller v. Miller, 123-165.

The parent does not permanently forfeit his right to regain the custody of his child by an arrangement under which the child is to live with and be cared for by another for an annual consideration. The rights of the parent are not to be interfered with except under imperative necessity, for the welfare of the child, growing out of gross misconduct of the parent. Van Auken v. Wieman, 128-476.

Habeas corpus: In a habeas corpus proceeding brought by one claiming to be the guardian against one claiming to be the parent by adoption, the court may enquire not only into the legality of the adoption, but also to the best interests of the child. But the custody of the adopted parent when found to be legal, will not be interfered with unless the best interests of the child require it. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129-337.

The issues in a habeas corpus proceeding for the custody of a child are not triable de novo on appeal, and if there is evidence to support the finding of the trial court, the supreme court will not reverse. Dunkin v. Seifert, 123-64.

Services: Clothing furnished by the father to a minor child remains the property of the father, and he may recover for injury thereto. He may also recover for any loss of services or for medical attendance occasioned directly by the wrongful acts of another with reference to the child. Shoemaker v. Jackson, 128-488.

Emancipation: The father's emancipa-tion of his minor son may be in writing or parol, and may be proven by circumstantial evidence or implied from conduct. The mere fact that the son continues to make his home with the father and to assist him is not controlling in determining the question of emancipation. Bristol v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 128-479.

Emancipation means the voluntary freeing of the child so that he may manage and control his own time and affairs. Guthrie County v. Conrad, 133-171.

Where a son during infancy was allowed to manage his business in his own name, and to pay over his earnings to his mother, there was sufficient evidence of an emancipation by the father. Jacobs v. Jacobs, 130-10.

A mutual understanding between parent and child is sufficient to constitute emancipation, and such understanding may arise by implication from the acts and conduct of the parties. Kubic v. Zemke, 105-269.

If, however, the parent still claims the right to the child's services during minority, whether he exercises the right to have them or not, there is no such emancipation as to free the parent from the obligation the law creates to pay the necessary support furnished to the child by a third party. Ibid.

SEC. 3193. Surviving parent guardian of the person.

The right of the guardian to the custody of the ward may be interfered with by the court in the interests of the ward at least to the extent of making some other temporary disposition of such custody than that which would result from the fact of appointment alone. Smith v. Haas, 132-493.

The appointment of another guardian on the tender of resignation of an existing guardian amounts to an acceptance of such resignation, and the failure of the guardian appointed to qualify does not restore the previous guardianship. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129-337.

SEC. 3197. Bond and oath.

A court of equity has jurisdiction to set aside a settlement and release of the guardian and his sureties on account of fraud in procuring the settlement. Witt v. Day, 112-110.

Under the circumstances of a particular case held that the bondsmen in making settlement with the ward after attaining majority, had not exercised the good faith required, and that the settlement should be set aside. Ibid.

SEC. 3198. Removal—new bond.

In a proceeding to determine the right of a guardian to the custody of the ward, the court may remove such guardian as an unfit person, and substitute another in his place. Smith v. Haas, 132-493.

SEC. 3200. Duties.

Powers: The guardian cannot excuse an unauthorized act on the ground that it was under the advice of a judge given orally outside of court. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127-665.

The signing of a contract by the guardian for the ward under the direction of the probate court makes the contract as binding and conclusive with reference to the ward as though the ward had been an adult and executed such contract in person. In re Harker's Estate, 113-584.

A guardian cannot loan the money of his ward, lease his land or invest his funds without an order of court. Such transactions are invalid, or at least voidable, until approved. Easton v. Somerville, 111-164.

Without direction of court, the guardian has no authority to loan his ward's money, and should keep the money and property of the ward separate from his own, and make investment thereof under the court's direction, as guardian only, and not in his own name. McIntire v. Bailey, 133-418.

While guardians are authorized to employ counsel for their wards, such employment must be under order of court entered on the record. In re Manning Estate, 111 N. W. 409.

On death of ward: After the death of the ward, the guardian still holds funds in his hands for the ward's administrator, and not for his heirs, and cannot be examined as garnishee by judgment creditors of such heirs. Pugh v. Jones, 112 N. W. 225.

Allowance for support: While in general a parent, or one standing in loco parentis to the ward, is not entitled to an allowance out of the ward's estate for support of the child, yet there may be circumstances under which such allowance is proper. In re Carter, 120-215.

While application for such allowance should be made to the probate court before any indebtedness therefor is contracted, yet, even though such application is not made until after the support has been furnished, if the claim therefor is reasonable and just, it may be allowed and payment ordered, the propriety of the allowance being passed upon when it is asked, and when such allowance is made the action of the probate court will be presumed to be correct, and will be sustained unless fraud is shown. Ibid.

But in a particular case held that the circumstances showed fraud and collusion on the part of the guardian in securing an allowance to the parent for the guardian's own personal advantage. Ibid.

Settlement: The court cannot in a guardianship proceeding settle the estate of the deceased ward, nor determine who is entitled to the proceeds of such estate, the heirs of the deceased ward not being parties to the proceeding. Nor is it competent to compel the heirs to become parties to a settlement of the guardianship. In re Guardianship of Lindsay, 132-119.

It is no defense to a guardian in a proceeding to require a settlement of his deceased ward's estate that by agreement of heirs or other persons having an interest in the estate the guardian is entitled to the proceeds of such estate. Ibid.

A settlement between the guardian and the ward made out of court should be closely scanned, and approval thereof should be withheld where it is made to appear that such settlement is clearly against the interest of the ward. In re Guardianship of Holscher, 94 N. W. 486.

One who accepts the trust incident to guardianship should be held responsible for a fair and faithful exercise of his trust. Ibid.

The burden is upon the guardian claiming a settlement with the ward after becoming of age out of court to establish the fact of such settlement. Robb's Estate v. Robb, 111 N. W. 803.

The fact that the guardian has in a voluntary petition in bankruptcy stated indebtedness to his ward as among his liabilities does not estop him when called upon to account as guardian from denying the correctness of such statement with the explanation that the discharge of liability prior to bankruptcy had been questioned by the ward so as to give rise to an obligation of contingent liability. Ibid.

Under the facts of a particular case held that there was such admission by the guardian of receipt of money of the ward as to render him liable to account therefor. In re Gray, 120-144.

Under the provisions of the statute the guardian is not relieved from liability for loss of funds invested, unless he acts under the direction of the court in making such investment. Van Rees v. Witzenburg, 112-30.

Settlements by a guardian with his ward out of court are not favored, and one who relies on such settlement must clearly show that he made full disclosure of everything, and that the ward knew and understood that he was making a full and final settlement. Every reasonable intendment is to be made in favor of the ward. Ibid.

In the absence of any actual accounting or settlement, the guardian is not discharged by a written release from the ward, and a discharge pursuant to such release is not an adjudication. Such discharge may be set aside without proof of actual fraud. Ellis v. Soper, 111-631.

While the mother as guardian may not be bound in all events to support the child out of her own means, in the absence of an allowance by the court from the property of the ward in her hands, nevertheless, where she has ample means she should not be allowed to encroach on the estate of the child, though she may set off the support of her child as against a claim for an accounting for interest. Ibid.

Defense by: Although the defense for a minor child is made in the trial court by a guardian ad litem, the court has authority to appoint a general guardian and direct that he prosecute the appeal in behalf of the minor. In re Estate of Strang, 131-583.

Claims against ward: One who has acquired a lien on the property of the ward by attachment proceedings is not by the subsequent appointment of a guardian compelled to look to the probate court for the enforcement of his rights. Hawks v. Harris, 112-543.

Action by guardian: A guardian suing to set aside a conveyance made by his ward has the burden of proving the ward's legal incapacity. But where the transaction complained of has taken place between persons standing in confidential relations, it will be closely scanned and the burden is on the party claiming the advantage of such transaction to show bona fides. Reese v. Shutte, 133-681.

SEC. 3201. Breach of bond—new guardian.

A failure to account to the ward when he reaches his majority is a breach of obligation under the guardian's bond, and a right of action then accrues to the ward, and the statute of limitation begins to run. The running of the statute cannot be postponed by failure of the ward to make demand for an accounting. Ackerman v. Hilpert, 108-247.

Where a guardian makes final report and his liability is adjudicated, such adjudication is binding on his sureties, and they are not entitled to relief on the ground that the guardian, under mistake as to his duties and liabilities, has made a report showing a greater liability than that actually existing. Steiner v. Lenz, 110-49.

SEC. 3203. Account.

The accounting contemplated by the statute is not for the purpose of adjudicating the correctness of the accounts, but to indicate to the court and those interested, the condition of the estate, its liabilities and resources, the propriety of orders for which application may be made and generally the care given and required to best serve the interests of the ward. Such reports are ex parte and when approved are not to be given greater affect than prima facie evidence of the accuracy of the account as stated. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127-665.

The report of the guardian should show that funds of the ward invested by direction of the court have been invested in his name as guardian and not in his own name, and the requirement as to annual reports should be construed as mandatory, although any reasonable explanation for failure to comply may be accepted by the court, provided the delay in making report is not unreasonable. McIntire v. Bailey, 133-418.

SEC. 3204. Penalty.

On the failure of the guardian to comply with the statutory requirements as to investment of his ward's funds and report thereof he should be removed, even though his bond is sufficient and the estate has not suffered loss. McIntire v. Bailey, 133-418.

It may be a sufficient ground for removal that a feeling of hostility between the guardian and his ward has arisen and such a situation exists that the guardian cannot properly represent the interests of the ward. Ibid.

SEC. 3205. Compensation.

Where the guardian does not do his full duty in notifying his ward of their right to moneys in his hands, and wrongfully mingles the trust fund with his own, he may be charged with interest thereon at six per cent., with annual rents. Blakeney v. Wyland, 115-607.

A guardian should be allowed reasonable attorney's fees actually paid out in defending a claim against his ward's estate. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127-665.

A guardian who has had an allowance for the care of a ward, cannot after the ward's death recover from the estate additional compensation for the same services. Gibson v. Wild, 124-152.

SEC. 3206. Property sold.

Where notice has been served upon the ward and guardian ad litem appointed to act in his behalf an order for the sale of the property is binding. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127-665.

In such case it is the duty of the guardian ad litem to make defense for the ward and, in submitting the case to the court to raise every question involving the rights of the person under disability. Ibid.

SEC. 3219. Guardians of drunkards, spendthrifts and lunatics.

The proceeding for the appointment of a guardian is an adversary proceeding and not a proceeding in rem. The petitioner is plaintiff, and the person against whom the proceeding is instituted is defendant. A jury trial may be had, and an appeal is authorized. Brown v. Lambe, 119-404.

Jurisdiction in guardianship cases is not made to depend upon a strict construction of the word "inhabitant," as found in the statute. The proceeding may be instituted as to one living or being at the time within the state, regardless of his legal residence. Ibid.

Where the court had acquired jurisdiction in a guardianship proceeding by reason of the domicile within the county of the insane ward, there is no right during the continuance of the insanity of the ward to have the jurisdiction of the guardianship transferred to another county. McIntire v. Bailey, 133-418.

It seems that a person is of unsound mind when so weak and infirm mentally as not to be capable of exercising the judgment necessarily required in the management of his ordinary affairs. Garretson v. Hubbard, 110-7.

Where the person for whom it is sought to have a guardian of property appointed is not shown to be incapable of intelligently managing his property, the fact that it appears that he is a sexual pervert and may commit wrongs such as to render him liable to respond in damages will not be ground for appointing a guardian. Schick v. Stuhr, 120-396.

In determining the question as to whether a guardian should be appointed for a person of unsound mind, the ultimate question as to the extent of the capacity of the one for whom guardianship is sought is for the jurv. McGibbons v. McGibbons, 119-140.

Where it was made a condition by a divorced wife of the dismissal of a proceeding brought by her against her former husband to have a guardian appointed for him on the ground of insanity that he should settle property on their child, held that such settlement was invalid whether he was in fact insane or was by duress compelled in escaping an unwarranted proceeding for the appointment of a guardian to make a settlement. Footte v. De Poy, 126-366.

Under the facts in a particular case held

SEC. 3221. Repeal—order of court—power of guardian.
[30 G. A., ch. 80, § 22.]

SEC. 3225. Real estate sold—allowance to family. Whenever the sale or mortgage of the real estate of such ward is necessary for his support or for the support of his family or the payment of his debts, or will be for the interest of the estate or his children, the guardian may sell or mortgage the same under like proceedings as required by law to authorize the sale of real estate by the guardian of the minor. The court shall, if necessary, set off to the wife and minor children of the insane person, or to either, sufficient of his property, of such kind as it shall deem appropriate, to support them during the period such person is insane. [26 G. A., ch. 54; 22 G. A., ch. 70; C., '73, § 2276; R., § 1453.] [29 G. A., ch. 131, § 1.]

SEC. 3227. When estate is insolvent.

Any control which the probate court acquires over property of the ward by the appointment of the guardian is subject to an attachment on such property already levied in another proceeding. Hawk v. Harris, 112-543.

CHAPTER 6.

OF MASTER AND APPRENTICE.

SECTION 3229. Indenture.

The parents of a minor have no right to bind him out as an apprentice save during the years of minority. Walton v. Atchison, T. & F. R. Co., 131-423.

SEC. 3241. Complaint against apprentice.

Where the relation of master and servant continues after the majority of the apprentice, the question as to rightful discharge of the servant by the master is not determined by the statutory provisions relating to apprenticeship. Walton v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 131-423.

The parents of a minor have no right to bind him out as an apprentice save during the years of minority. Ibid.

Where the relationship of master and servant continues after majority of the apprentice, the master has the right to discharge for breach of conditions in the contract of apprenticeship. Ibid.

SEC. 3246. Binding out by order of court.

In the absence of extreme neglect of a natural and legal duty courts will always be slow in refusing recognition to the paramount right of the parent or one who is by nature in loco parentis. Holmes v. Derrig, 127-625.

CHAPTER 7.

OF ADOPTION.

SECTION 3252. Instrument acknowledged and recorded.

A parent may confer upon some other person the legal right to the custody of a minor child although such person does not become the adopted parent; but there must be such intent on the part of the parent as well as an assumption of obligation on the part of the person to whom custody is thus given, and it will be presumed that such surrender of custody is intended to be temporary unless the contrary is made to appear by proof clear, definite and certain. Miller v. Miller, 123-165.

A deed of adoption approved by the clerk of the court on application of a collateral relative in an ex parte proceeding, is not binding as against the grandparents of the child with whom it was left on the death of its parents. Holmes v. Derrig, 127-625.

Where the father of a child joined in executing an instrument of adoption at a time when there was no legally appointed guardian for the child, held that such instrument of adoption was effectual although there had been a previous guardianship. The adopting parent should not be deprived of the custody of the child in a habeas corpus proceeding unless it appears that the best interests of the child require that its custody be given to some other person. Smiley v. McIntosh, 129-337.

Statutes of adoption are in derogation of the common law and are to be strictly construed. Bresser v. Saarman, 112-720.

The recital that the natural parent fully and voluntarily consents to the adoption of the children by husband and wife named as adopting parents is effectual. Ibid.

Where the acknowledgment of an in-

SEC. 3253. Effect. Upon the execution, acknowledgment and filing for record of such instrument, the rights, duties and relations between the parent and child by adoption shall be the same that exist by law between parent and child by lawful birth, and the right of inheritance from each other shall be the same as between parent and children born in lawful wedlock. [C., '73, § 2310; R., § 2603.] [29 G. A., ch. 132, § 1.]

The adoption of a child operates like the subsequent birth of a legitimate child to revoke a will previously executed. It appears to be the legislative intention to instrument of adoption was by a justice of the peace of another state, without the genuineness of his signature being shown by an accompanying certificate, and the instrument thus defectively acknowledged was recorded, held that the recording thereof was legalized by a subsequent statute curing defects in the recording of instruments defectively acknowledged. Ibid.

The instrument of adoption must show the consent of the parent to the adoption and contain a statement that the child is given to the person adopting as his own child. Hopkins v. Antrobus, 120-21.

To render the instrument of adoption effectual, there must be substantial compliance with all the requirements of the statute on the subject. Ibid.

An agreement to adopt, although not executed in conformity with requirements of the statute, may constitute a binding obligation on the part of the adopting parent to confer upon the child attempted to be adopted the rights of inheritance. Cehak v. Battles, 133-107.

The surrender of the custody of the child by its parents to the adopting parents is a sufficient consideration to support an agreement to confer the rights of inheritance. Ibid.

Indexing an instrument for the adoption of a minor under the name of the adopting parents, and also that of the adopted child is sufficient. Indexing is not essential to the validity of the instrument, and the omission of the recorder to index it exactly as provided in the statute will not render it invalid. Hilpire v. Claude, 109-159.

place adopted children upon the same level as children of lawful birth. Hilpire v. Claude, 109-159.

CHAPTER 8-A.

OF THE CARE OF FRIENDLESS CHILDREN AND THE ESTABLISHMENT, REGULATION AND VISITATION OF HOMES FOR.

SECTION 3260-a. Repeal. That chapter eight (8) of title sixteen (16) of the code be and the same is hereby repealed, and the following enacted in lieu thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 1.]

SEC. 3260-b. Powers of societies. Any society legally incorporated under the laws of the state of Iowa for the purpose of receiving, caring for, placing out for adoption, or in any way improving the condition of abandoned, abused, ill-treated, friendless, or orphan children, may receive, control and dispose of such minor children under the provisions of this act; and such corporation shall be the legal guardian of the persons of all children so surrendered to it, and may exercise all the rights and authority of the parents of such children in regulating the apprenticing and adoption thereof. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 2.]

SEC. 3260-c. Surrender of children to. Children may be surrendered to such society by the father and mother jointly; by either father or mother, when the other is dead, or hopelessly insane, an habitual drunkard, has abandoned his family, is in prison for crime, or is an inmate or keeper of a house of ill fame; by the mother alone if the child is illegitimate and in her care and custody; by any court of record or judge thereof, or any mayor, or justice of the peace in the county of the residence of such children or their parents, upon complaint made and proceedings had thereon as hereinafter provided. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 3.]

SEC. 3260-d. Commitment. Whenever it shall be made to appear to any court, judge, mayor or justice of the peace, as above provided, that any child within its jurisdiction, by reason of orphanage, or neglect, abuse, crime, drunkenness, or gross immorality of one or both of the parents, or other persons having custody of such child, is abandoned, ill-treated, or friendless, or in circumstances tending to induce such child to lead a disolute, immoral or vicious life, then it shall be the duty of such court or magistrate to take such child away from its parents or those having control thereof, and commit it to some society incorporated for that purpose, or to some other person or guardian, as may seem to be for the best interests of such child, and the society or person so adopting shall be required to keep such child if over seven (7) years of age and under fourteen (14) years of age, in school during the school sessions of the school district in which said child is kept or in some parochial school for like period. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 4.]

SEC. 3260-e. Written complaint—appeal. All proceedings under section four (4) of this chapter shall be by written complaint duly verified, which complaint shall state the cause of action and the relief asked. If it shall appear that such child is in the custody and control of parents, guardians, or other persons, such parents, guardians or other persons shall be served with a copy of said complaint, and such notice of the time and place of the hearing thereof as may be ordered by the court or magistrate by whom the case is to be tried; which notice and copy shall be served in the same manner as is provided in the service of original notices. An appeal may be taken to the district court from the order of a magistrate at any time within twenty (20) days thereafter, in the same manner as appeals are taken from judgments in justice courts, except that no bond shall be required to stay proceedings. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 5.]

SEC. 3260-f. Custody of child during trial. Upon filing of proper complaint, the magistrate may, if thought best, issue a warrant directed to the sheriff or other peace officer, requiring such peace officer forthwith to take into his custody the child described in such complaint, and to retain possession of it subject to the order and direction of the court. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 6.]

SEC. 3260-g. Religious faith. The court or magistrate in committing children, shall place them as far as practicable in the care and custody of some individual holding the same religious belief as the parents of said child, or with some association which is controlled by persons of like religious faith as the parents of said child; and when any home or society shall dispose of the custody of any child, it shall be, as far as practicable, to some person of the same religious faith as its parents, unless the parents or former guardian otherwise consent. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 7.]

SEC. 3260-h. Habeas corpus. Upon the hearing of any habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of any such child, if it appears that it has been surrendered to the home under the provisions of this chapter, such fact shall be presumptive evidence that it was done properly and that said home was entitled to the custody and guardianship thereof. [29 G. A., c. 133, § 8.]

SEC. 3260-i. Proceedings — county attorney to prosecute — court costs. Proceedings under this act may be brought by any citizen of the state, acting by himself or his attorney. It shall be the duty of the county attorney, when requested, to prepare complaints and prosecute all such cases in behalf of the complainants. Court costs shall be taxed the same as in criminal actions. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 9.]

SEC. 3260-j. Board of control to have supervision—annual reports —financial statement. All associations or societies receiving children under this act shall be under supervision of the board of control of state institutions and shall be subject to visitation by the board of control, its members, or agents, which may require such information and statistics from such associations as the board shall deem necessary, in order to enable it to exercise proper supervision over them. Every such association shall file with the state board of control, during the month of January of each year, an annual written or printed report, which shall include a statement of the number of children cared for during the preceding year, the number of children received for the first time and the number returned from families, the number placed in homes, the number deceased, the number returned to friends, and the number placed in state institutions, the number and names and number of months of each of those attending school; also a financial statement showing the receipts and disbursements of such association. The statement of the disbursements shall show the amount expended for salaries and other expenses, specifying the same, and the amount expended for lands, buildings, and investments. And no child shall be committed to the care of any association which shall not have filed a satisfactory report for the calendar year last preceding with the state board of control, unless it be a society organized within the current year. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 10.]

SEC. 3260-k. Jurisdiction to revoke. The district court of any county in which any society or home may be located shall have jurisdiction to revoke the powers herein granted upon a showing that any such society or person has abused the trust imposed in such society or person, or that the welfare of its wards demands that they be taken from the control of such society or person. It shall be the duty of the state board of control to institute such proceedings whenever, in its judgment, they are advisable. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 11.]

SEC. 3260-l. Associations of other states. No association which is incorporated under the laws of any other state than the state of Iowa shall place any children in any family home within the boundaries of the state of Iowa, either with or without indentures, or for adoption, unless the said association shall have furnished the state board of control with such guarantee as it may require, including an indemnity bond in favor of the state of Iowa in the penal sum of one thousand (1,000) dollars, that no child shall be brought into the state of Iowa by such society or its agents, having any contagious or incurable disease, or having any deformity, or being of feeble mind, or of vicious character, and that said association will promptly receive and remove from the state any child brought into the state of Iowa by its agents, which shall become a public charge within the period of five (5) years after being brought into this state. Provided, that this act shall not be construed as prohibiting any person residing in Iowa from receiving and adopting into his family any child or children from another state. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 12.]

SEC. 3260-m. Appropriations. To provide for the expenses of the inspection herein required, there is hereby appropriated the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or so much thereof as may be necessary, from any funds of the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. [29 G. A., ch. 133, § 13.]

SEC. 3260-n. Expenses of inspection—appropriation to pay. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of two thousand dollars annually for paying the expenses of inspecting county and private institutions in which insane persons are kept as required by sections 2727-a59 and 2727-a60 of the supplement to the code, and associations, societies and homes receiving children as contemplated by section 3260-j of the supplement to the code. The expenses specified shall be paid as provided by section 2727-a61 of the supplement to the code. At the end of each biennial period the board of control of state institutions shall cause to be transferred to the general funds of the treasury any balance of the sums hereby appropriated not required for the payment of the expenses of the period. [31 G. A., ch. 134.]

TITLE XVII.

OF THE ESTATE OF DECEDENTS.

CHAPTER 1.

OF THE PROBATE COURT.

SECTION 3261. Always open—hearing.

No provision is made for a jury trial on an application for an order as to the distribution of the estate. Duffy v. Duffy, 114-581.

An order in a matter of guardianship, made by consent of parties in another county, but subsequently entered on the records of the county where the matter is pending, is valid, and is binding on the guardians and the sureties on his bond. Steiner v. Lenz, 110-49.

SEC. 3265. Extent of jurisdiction.

If deceased is a resident of the state at the time of his death, jurisdiction over his estate is exclusively in the district court of the county of his residence; if a non-resident of the state, then in the court of any county where there was property or estate subject to administration. In the latter case the jurisdiction of the court first assuming jurisdiction is exclusive, and in either case the jurisdiction acquired is co-extensive with the state. McFarland v. Stewart, 109-561.

The court first exercising jurisdiction to appoint an administrator will retain such jurisdiction to the end of the proceeding unless want of jurisdiction appears of record. Nash v. Sawyer, 114-742.

In a proceeding to establish the right to a share in the estate, the amount of indebtedness of the same person to the estate may be adjudicated. Prouty v. Matheson, 107-259.

The probate court is given jurisdiction over the estates of minors, and the control of the guardians appointed by it have the personal charge of such estates, and in the exercise of this jurisdiction the probate court may apply equitable principles. Mock v. Chalstrom, 121-411.

CHAPTER 2.

OF WILLS AND LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION.

SECTION 3270. Disposal of property by will.

Nature and operation: A valid testamentary provision is a provision made by will duly executed in substantial conformity to the law. It speaks and is intended to speak from the date of the death of the testator and not earlier. Until that time, the title, legal and equitable, of the property to which the provision relates, remains unchanged in the testator, and he may sell and convey and dispose of the same as fully and completely as if no will had been made by him. No right, title or interest of any kind in the thing devised or bequeathed passes to the devisee or legatee until the death of the testator, and not then if it appears that he has otherwise disposed of such property during his lifetime. Lewis v. Curnutt, 130-423.

A conveyance deposited in the hands of a third person to be delivered to the grantee only upon the death of the grantor, may be operative without the knowledge or express or formal consent or acceptance of the grantee, even though there is a reserved power to recall such conveyance, if it is not exercised during the life of the grantor. Such a disposition is not testamentary. Ibid.

The characteristic distinction between a will and a trust is that while the former becomes operative only at the death of the testator, a trust passes an interest to the trustees and beneficiary instantly upon the execution and delivery of the writing by which it is created. Ibid.

As a will speaks from the death of the testator with respect to the distribution of all his property, both real and personal, any provision for the conversion of real estate into money and the division thereof among specified legatees is rendered ineffectual if the testator himself converts such real property into money before his death, and the proceeds of such property are to be distributed under a residuary clause governing the distribution of personalty. Upon sale of devised real property by the testator, the proceeds of such sale still remaining in his possession at the time of his death are not to be regarded as a substitute for the property itself, unless so directed in the will. In re Will of Miller, 128-612.

The benefit of the rule by which real estate is equitably transmuted into personalty for the purposes of distribution can be asserted by devisees only as to such lands as the testator was seized of at the time the will became effective by his death. Ibid.

Specific bequests of real property are ineffectual if at the time of the death of the testator there is no real property with which to discharge or satisfy them in whole or in part. Ibid.

Form and interpretation: No particular form is required for a will. The main object of the court is to learn the intention of the maker. The intention being known, all artificiality of language, or looseness of construction must yield to and be governed by it. To ascertain whether the instrument was intended to create a testamentary gift, collateral evidence may be received if the terms of the writing are not clear. In re Estate of Longer, 108-34.

An unconditional devise of all of testator's property to his widow, with full power to sell and convey, vests in the widow a fee title, although the will contains subsequent directions as to the division of the property remaining at her death, or in case of her remarriage. Hambel v. Hambel, 109-459.

An instrument in a particular case in the form of a deed, granting land subject to occupancy and possession of grantor during life, with a provision that it should be of no force until after the death of the grantor, held to be a conveyance, and not an attempted will. Saunders v. Saunders, 115-275.

An instrument which operates to convey a present interest, although possession and enjoyment are reserved during the life of the grantor, may be effective as a conveyance, but if it passes no present interest, and is to be operative only upon the grantor's death, then it is testamentary in character and of no effect, unless executed with all the formalities of a will. Tuttle v. Raish, 116-331.

Therefore held that an instrument granting an interest in property, which was to vest at the grantor's death without children, and after payment of debts, funeral expenses, etc., was testamentary in character. Ibid.

Testamentary capacity and undue influence: The line between competency and incompetency is always drawn with uncertainty and the findings on that question in most cases are justified only as the best solution of a doubtful problem. In re Allison's Estate, 104-130.

A person may have an insane delusion but still be entirely sane on all other subjects, and capable of making a valid will. Hardenburgh v. Hardenburgh, 133-1.

Testamentary incapacity does not necessarily require that a person shall actually be insane or of unsound mind. The testator may be incapable of making a valid will on account of weakness of mind not amounting to insanity. Manatt v. Scott, 106-203.

It seems that a person is of unsound mind when so weak and infirm mentally as not to be capable of exercising the judgment necessarily required in the management of his ordinary affairs. Garretson v. Hubbard, 110-7.

Although the testator's mind be clouded, if he is capable of comprehending his property interests and of determining what disposition he desires to make of his property, and of making such disposition, he has testamentary capacity. In re Evans' Estate, 114-240.

A finding that testator was not of sound mind at the time of executing the will, it is sufficient to sustain the action of the court in refusing to probate the will, the jury having been properly instructed with reference to what is sufficient unsoundness of mind to warrant such a finding. In re Will of Selleck, 125-678.

Mere weakening of mental power will not render a person incapable of executing a will. So long as he retains mind enough to know and comprehend in a general way the natural objects of his bounty, the nature and extent of his estate, and the disposition which he is to make of it, it is not necessary that he should be competent to make contracts or transact business generally. Old age and failure of memory do not of themselves necessarily take away a testator's capacity to make a will, nor will the exclusion of some or all of the testator's legal heirs from the benefits of the will be sufficient evidence of incapacity. Perkins v. Perkins, 116-253.

Undue influence, rendering the will invalid, must be such as subjects the will of the testator to that of the person exercising such influence, and makes the paper express the purpose of such person, rather than that of the testator himself. And such undue influence must be directly connected with the execution of the will, and operating at the time it was made. Ibid.

Neither advice nor solicitation, however earnest or insistent will vitiate a will unless it be further shown that the freedom of will of testator was in some way impaired or destroyed thereby. In re Estate of Townsend, 128-621.

The obligation which the testator may recognize to dispose of property in accordance with the previously expressed wishes of a deceased spouse, does not render the will invalid, as procured by undue influence. Henderson v. Jackson, 111 N. W. 821.

Belief in the binding obligation of such a wish does not constitute mental incapacity to execute a will. Ibid.

Where it appeared that the provisions in the will were dictated by relatives in attendance on the testator while sick and incapable of forming an independent judgment as to the disposition of his property, held that it should be set aside on the ground of undue influence. In re Wiltsey's Will, 109 N. W. 776.

It is error to instruct as to mental capacity where there is not sufficient evidence to show disability for the making of a will, although evidence of mental incapacity may be competent as bearing on the issue of undue influence. Lingle v. Lingle, 121-133.

Error in submitting the question of undue influence will be without prejudice where the jury makes an express finding of want of mental capacity which is supported by the evidence. In re Will of Selleck, 125-678.

Where the jury in answer to a special interrogatory finds against the contestant on the issue as to undue influence, errors in instructing the jury with reference to such issue will not be ground for reversal of a judgment for contestants on a verdict based on want of mental capacity. In re Will of Wharton, 132-714.

Where the contestants rely upon both undue influence and want of mental capacity, an error in submitting the issue as to want of mental capacity will be without prejudice where it appears by special finding of the jury that the will should be set aside on account of undue influence. In re Wiltsey's Will, 109 N. W. 776.

Question for jury: Where there is testimony tending to show undue influence and that the condition of testator's mind was such that he might easily have been influenced by the persons whose undue influence is relied upon, the question as to the sufficiency of the evidence should be submitted to the jury. In re Estate of Jones, 130-177.

Burden of proof—presumption: It is not necessary that the original evidence in behalf of proponent show the sanity of the testator. Sanity is presumed until there is evidence to the contrary. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130-692.

It is not necessary in the original evidence in behalf of proponents to introduce witnesses in support of the sanity of testator. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

Primarily every person is presumed to be sane until the contrary is proven, and the burden of proof of insanity rests in the first instance upon the party alleging it. And while it is true, on the other hand, that settled and general unsoundness of mind, when proved, is presumed to continue, nevertheless the court will take notice of the fact that temporary mental aberration is not uncommon, and the causes thereof are numerous, and therefore proof of want of mental capacity, immediately following a stroke of apoplexy will not be sufficient to give rise to the presumption of continued mental incapacity at a subsequent time when the will in question was executed. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120-337.

It is error to instruct that if testator was afflicted with senile dementia the presumption would be that such condition continued up to the time the will was made and that the burden of proof was upon the proponents to show a lucid interval at the time of the execution of the will. Primarily every person is presumed sane until the contrary is proved and it is also true that when unsoundness of mind is proved a presumption arises in favor of its continued existence. But the jury should be instructed that they must find a continued mental unsoundness before indulging in the presumption of such condition. In re Estate of Glass, 127-646.

When the contestant has introduced evidence tending to show that on and prior to the date of the execution of the will the testator was suffering from a disease of the mind of a permanent and progressive nature amounting to unsoundness, the burden as to the evidence shifts to the proponent to establish the mental competency of the testator at the time of the execution of the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130-177.

Mental incapacity having been proven is presumed to continue until a condition of capacity is shown. In re Will of Knox; Paxton v. Knox, 123-24.

The presumption of want of capacity arising from the appointment of a guardian may be overcome by evidence as to the condition and acts of the testator at the time of making or revoking the will Linkmeyer v. Brandt, 107-750.

Evidence in a particular case considered and held not to be sufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of sanity or soundness of mind on the part of testator. Howe v. Richards, 112-220.

The burden of proving undue influence and that it operated upon the mind of the testator at the very time that the will was executed to such an extent that the will was the result thereof, is upon the contestant. It is not enough to show that there was an opportunity to exercise the undue influence complained of; there must be evidence that it was exercised and that it was instrumental in procuring the will. In re Estate of Townsend, 128-621.

There must be some showing as to the due execution of the will before contestant is put on his proofs. But this showing may be sufficiently made by the contesting witnesses. The burden of proving want of mental capacity and undue influence is upon the contestants and as a general rule does not shift. In re Goldthorp's Estate, 115-430.

The burden of establishing testator's mental capacity, or the existence of undue influence for the purpose of defeating the probate of a will, is throughout upon contestant, save when because of the peculiar relations between the testator and beneficiary it is incumbent on the beneficiary to explain such relations in order to overcome the presumption of undue influence arising therefrom. But the inference to be drawn from the instrument itself is never merely to cast the burden upon contestant in ascertaining its validity. Marshall v. Hanley, 115-318.

Evidence: Testimony as to mental condition of testator at a period long subsequent to the execution of the will is competent where it appears that the condition testified to has been continuous. In re Will of Wharton, 132-714.

An obituary notice in which statements are made as to the mental capacity of testator, although published under the sanction of relatives who afterwards contest the will, is not admissible for the purpose of showing mental capacity. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

A witness, one of the persons unfavorably affected by a will, may testify to the unfriendliness on the part of testator before the execution of the will. Manatt v. Scott, 106-203.

Where incapacity and undue influence are both relied upon and there is substantial evidence of the testator's unsoundness of mind, any evidence however slight tending to sustain the issue as to undue influence should be freely admitted. In re Estate of Glass, 127-646.

Wills—undue influence: In determining whether the will represents the uninfluenced judgment and purpose of testator, or whether it is the result of surrounding influences brought to bear upon him, his physical condition and strength of mind as affected by illness may be taken into account. In re Wiltsey's Will, 109 N. W. 776.

Evidence of mental incapacity, although not sufficient to show disability to make a will, may be admissible on the issue of undue influence. Lingle v. Lingle, 121-133.

Proof that testator was a believer in spiritualism is not sufficient to show want of testamentary capacity. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130-692.

Opinion of witnesses: One who shows an acquaintance with the person whose mental capacity is in question and a familiarity with his conduct, may testify affirmatively that in his opinion such a person was of sound mind, while an opinion that such person was of unsound mind must be based on facts consisting of particular acts or conduct indicating unsoundness. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

A witness who has testified as to what he has observed may express an opinion as to the mental capacity of the testator based on such facts. In re Will of Selleck, 125-678.

One who has seen and observed a testator on different occasions during the time it is claimed he was insane, may, after stating the facts connected therewith, be permitted to say that he thought he was not of sound mind. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120-337.

It is not for a witness, though an expert, to say what will constitute mental capacity. Nor should such expert be allowed to testify as to the effect of mental capacity upon the validity of a will. Marshall v. Hanby, 115-318.

A subscribing witness may state his belief as to the testator's condition of mind without first showing grounds on which that belief is based. Furlong v. Carraher, 108-492; Hertrick v. Hertrick, 114-643.

Subscribing witnesses may give an opinion that the testator was of sound mind without reciting any particular facts or circumstances but other witnesses acquainted with the testator and in a situation to observe his conduct may do the same thing, and the testimony of the subscribing witnesses in this respect is to be subjected to the same tests as to those applicable to other witnesses. In re Will of Wharton, 132-714.

To qualify a nonexpert to give an opinion as to insanity it is only necessary that the circumstances related by the witness as a basis for such opinion tend to indicate unsoundness of mind. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125-335.

An expert should not be allowed to testify that the testator was capable of making the will in question. But he may be asked as to the testator's capacity at that time or before. In re Estate of Glass, 127-646.

It is not proper to ask an expert whether testator was competent to make a will, this being the ultimate fact for the jury to determine. In re Betts' Estate, 113-111.

A question as to actions or appearances indicating mental strength or weakness calls for a fact not an opinion. Manatt v. Scott, 106-203

Reasonableness of will: While the fact that the will is unreasonable or unjust may be considered in connection with evidence bearing on the condition of testator's mind, it is not alone a ground for refusing probate. In re Trotter's Will, 117-417.

The question whether the will is unnatural and unreasonable may be considered on the issue of testator's mental condition. Hardenburg v. Hardenburg, 133-1.

The inequalities of a will may be taken into consideration in determining the mental capacity of the testator or whether undue influence has been exercised, but apparent inequality or inequity in the provisions of a will does not alone warrant the presumption of mental incapacity or undue influence. These may be considered only as circumstances in connection with other facts bearing on the condition of the testator's mind. Manatt v. Scott, 106-203.

What is meant by unjust, unreasonable and unnatural provisions of a will is that they are not as persons in like situation and similar relationship ordinarily and usually make them. Ibid.

Where testatrix had preferred some of her brothers to her natural heirs, it was held material in looking into the equities of the will to know that in remembering those mentioned she forgot other brothers and sisters in needy circumstances. The fact that the will bestows property on the wealthy and overlooks the claim to bounty of those which are poor, in like relationship is a circumstance suggesting a disordered mind or the working of sinister influences. Ibid.

While the justness and reasonableness of the provisions of the will from a moral point of view are entitled to consideration in determining the question of the sanity of the testator, such consideration must be predicated upon facts proven by competent testimony. In re Will of Knox; Paxton v. Knox, 123-24.

The unreasonableness of the will is a fact which may be considered on the issue of undue influence; but it is not in itself sufficient to show undue influence. In re Townsend's Estate, 122-246.

The mere relation of husband and wife or advice given to the husband by the wife as to the making of the will is not sufficient to give rise to a presumption of undue influence. Ibid.

When a will is assailed as being unreasonable or unjust, evidence of the financial condition of those having claims on the bounty of deceased and likely to have been taken into a consideration by him, if in a normal condition of mind in executing his will, is admissible. But the rule ought not to be extended so as to include proof of mere expectancies unless of such a nature as likely to have been known and considered by him. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125-335.

The financial circumstances of the testator and the devisee may be taken into account in determining whether the will is so unreasonable as to indicate a disordered mind, or the working of sinister influences. In re Will of Wharton, 132-714.

Declarations: To render declarations of the testator admissible on the question of undue influence, there should be independent testimony indicating that such influence has been exerted, and then such declarations are chiefly pertinent as showing the condition of mind of testator to have been such that he was susceptible to the sinister influence, and acted in response thereto. In re Estate of Townsend, 128-621.

On the issue of undue influence prior declarations of the testator are not admissible in evidence, nor are his age, or the character and extent of his property admissible. In re Will of Wiltsey; Wiltsey v. Wiltsey, 122-423.

On the question of undue influence the contents of a prior will may be shown as indicating the intention of the testator before being subjected to the undue influence relied upon. In re Will of Selleck, 125-678.

Testator's previous declarations are admissible in support of a will which is impeached on the ground of want of mental capacity. In re Perkins' Estate, 109-216.

Also it is proper to permit those contesting the will to show the amount of advancements made to them for the purpose of rebutting evidence of declarations claimed to have been made by testator on the subject tending to support the will. Ibid.

For the same purpose entries in deceased's books of account are admissible as tending to show the amount of advancements as bearing on his state of mind with reference to the persons to whom the advancements appear to have been made. Ibid.

Declarations made by testator are admissible as bearing on capacity and undue influence, even though made long after the execution of the will, if they tend to show senile dementia which in its nature is progressive. Manatt v. Scott, 106-203.

Statements or declarations of testator or conduct on his part tending to throw light on his mental condition at the time the will was executed may properly be considered by the jury in connection with other facts and circumstances surrounding or attending the execution of the will. But subsequent declarations as to the wishes of testator with reference to the disposition of his property cannot be considered as tending to show revocation. Smith v. Ryan, 112 N. W. 8.

Where the probate of a will is contested on the ground of mental incapacity and undue influence, declarations of the proponent and beneficiary, made before the execution of the will, and with reference to the cancellation of a contract, are admissible for the purpose of showing want of mental capacity and liability to undue influences. Lundy v. Lundy, 118-445.

Devise in lieu of dower: Under the provisions of the Code of '73, held that the creation of a trust of testator's entire property for the purpose of raising a fund for the widow's support and use during life was inconsistent with the dower right of the widow in the property. Campbell v. Sankey, 114-69.

Under the provisions of the Code of 1873 the election of the widow to take under the will as against her dower right could only be shown by record, and notice requiring such election must be given to her before any act of election would be effectual. Byerly v. Sherman, 126-447.

The widow's distributive right is an encumbrance upon the real estate as to which the devisees of specific portions of such estate are required to make ratable contribution, in the absence of any provision on the subject in the will. McGuire v. Luckey, 129-559.

Also held that the devise to a wife of a life estate in all of testator's property in the absence of any restrictive words, was not to be construed as made in lieu of dower. This rule of construction is now changed by the language of this section. Percifield v. Aumick, 116-383. And see notes to Code § 3376 of this supplement.

Section applied. Newberry v. Newberry, 114-704.

SEC. 3271. After-acquired property.

After-acquired property will pass under the terms of a will whenever the intention to so provide is clear and explicit; otherwise it will be treated as intestate property. Flynn v. Holman, 119-731.

SEC. 3274. In writing—witnessed—signed.

Where subscribing witnesses are dead or beyond the jurisdiction of the court, proof of their handwriting is a compliance with the law as to proving execution, and where they are beyond the jurisdiction of the court, even though their depositions are taken and introduced, other evidence of the due execution of the will is admissible. In re Allison's Estate, 104-130.

Where the subscribing witnesses are dead, other evidence of the execution of the will is admissible. Scott v. Hawk, 105-467.

Evidence that the deceased, upon examination of the instrument and the signatures thereto, declared it before his death to be his will, may be introduced to prove execution in such a case. Ibid.

The making of a mark by a testator will satisfy the statutory requirement as to signature, even though the testator is able to write at the time. Scott v. Hawk, 107-723.

If the statute is complied with, nothing more in the execution of the will is necessary. Publication, as such, is not required. Ibid.

The testamentary right to dispose of property is regulated by the statute which requires the will to be witnessed in a certain way, and where it does not appear to have been so witnessed, it will not be valid although it is shown that there were other competent witnesses present at the execution. McCarn v. Rundall, 111-406.

If testator asks a person who is competent to be a witness to attest the will and the person thus requested, instead of attesting in the usual way as a witness, affixes a certificate of acknowledgment thereto, the will is sufficiently witnessed by him. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

The attesting clause is not essential to the sufficiency of the attestation by witnesses, though it may be important in furnishing proof that the testator declared the instrument to be his act, and that the witnesses signed it in his presence. If there is an attestation clause showing the requisite facts, signed by two witnesses, this is prima facie sufficient, but the proof furnished by such clause is not conclusive. Ibid.

It is sufficient that the witness sign in the presence of testator in response to a request of a third person, made by the testator's direction, approved by some sign or act on the part of the testator, and that the signature of the witnesses is with the knowledge of the testator, and in response to such request. Indeed, it is sufficient if the signing is in the presence of testator, with knowledge on his part that the witnesses are signing in response to a request of the third person, he making no objection. Ibid.

It is not essential that the witnesses attest with reference to one and the same act or declaration of the testator. Ibid.

The burden of proof as to due execution and attestation is on the proponents. Ibid.

Questions as to the sufficiency of the attestation are for the jury. Ibid.

It is not necessary that the will be read to or by the testator in the presence of the witnesses. Smith v. Ryan, 112 N. W. 8.

Where the execution of a will is denied, the burden of proof is upon the proponents to establish the genuineness of the signature by a preponderance of the evidence. Beebe v. McFaul, 125-514.

An instrument of conveyance which is not to take effect by way of passing the title to the property until after the grantor's death is testamentary in character, and of no validity unless executed with the formalities of a will. Wilson v. Carter, 132-442.

An instrument which operates to convey a present interest; although possession and enjoyment are reserved during the life of the grantor, may be effective as a conveyance, but if it passes no present interest, and is to be operative only on the grantor's death, then it is testamentary in character and of no effect unless executed with all the formalities of a will. Tuttle v. Raish, 116-331.

SEC. 3276. Revocation—cancellation. Wills can only be revoked in whole or in part by being canceled or destroyed by the act or direction of the testator, with the intention of so revoking them, or by the execution of subsequent wills. When done by cancellation, the revocation must be witnessed in the same manner as the making of a new will. [C. '73, §§ 2329-30; R., §§ 2320-1; C. '51, §§ 1288-9.] [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.]

Wills may be revoked either in whole or in part in the manner pointed out by statutory provision. Whether the revocation is entire or partial must depend on the testator's act and intent as gathered from the instrument of revocation itself. The fact that the instrument relied upon as a revocation is called the last will and testament of the testator is not conclusive. As the latter will may be construed with the earlier one so as to prevent partial intestacy the two should be thus construed together if practicable. Fry v. Fry, 125-424.

A later will in which the testator attempts to dispose of his entire estate works a revocation of a former will even though there is no revocation clause in the later instrument. Schilling v. Bawek, 112 N. W. 210.

Proof of the execution of a subsequent testamentary instrument is not sufficient of itself to establish a revocation. There must be either an express clause of revocation or an inconsistent disposition of the previously disposed property, and the burden is on the contestant to bring forward the subsequent will and demand probate thereof, supporting such demand by proof which would authorize the admission of the subsequent will to probate. In re Will of Dunahugh, 130-692.

The whole will is not rendered void by an attempt in an unauthorized manner to change one of its provisions. Where the alteration is not attended with the formalities required by statute, it is of no effect, and unless it is impossible to determine what the original will was, it remains the will of the testator. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

The will and the codicil should be read together, and the law does not favor revocation of the provisions of a prior will by implication only from a subsequent codicil. Sperry v. Sperry, 126-503.

Obliteration of a provision of a will is not to be given the effect of destroying the entire will, and the instrument will be carried out so far as its contents, at the time of execution, can be ascertained. Richardson v. Baird, 126-408.

It appearing that a will conceded to have been executed cannot be found after the death of the testator the presumption arises that the same was destroyed by him animo revocandi, and the burden is upon the party seeking to establish the will to overcome such presumption by evidence strong, positive and free from doubt. Thomas v. Thomas, 129-159.

The adoption of a child in the manner authorized by statute has the same effect as the subsequent birth of a legitimate child in operating to revoke a will previously executed. Hilpire v. Claude, 109-159.

Whether by the insertion in this section of the provision that birth of a legitimate child to the testator before his death will operate as a revocation of his will, it was intended to negative the implied revocation resulting from recognition of an illegitimate child, or to exclude the doctrine that provision made for a legitimate child subsequently born would prevent revocation resulting therefrom, quaere. But held that in a particular case the provision made for a child which was subsequently born, was so inadequate and uncertain that it would not prevent the birth of such child from operating as a revocation. Rowe v. Rowe, 120-17.

Under the express provision of the statute that the subsequent birth of a legitimate child to the testator before his death operates as a revocation of his will, there is no occasion to apply the general rule of construction that the subsequent birth of a child produces an implied revocation only where no adequate provision therefor has been made. (But now also see 30 G. A., chapter 120.) Fry v. Fry, 125-424.

While a presumption of want of capac-

SEC. 3279. Posthumous children. Whenever a testator shall have a legitimate child born after the making of a last will, either in the lifetime or after the death of such testator, and shall die leaving such child so after born, unprovided for by any settlement, and neither provided for nor mentioned in such will, every such child shall succeed to, and inherit the same interest in such parent's real and personal estate as though no will had been made, and the said interest shall be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 1.]

SEC. 3279-a. Claims. All claims which it becomes necessary to satisfy, and all amounts necessary to be paid from the estate of a testator in disregard of or in opposition to the provisions of a will, shall be taken ratably from the interests of heirs, devisees, and legatees. 30 G. A., ch. 120, § 2.]

SEC. 3279-b. Repeal. Section thirty-two hundred and seventy-nine (3279) of the code is hereby repealed. [30 G. A., ch. 120, § 3.]

SEC. 3281. Heirs of devisee.

The provisions of this section apply as well to a devise to a class as to an individual, but such a statute does not apply where the devise is to a class to be determined only when the will takes effect. In re Nicholson's Will, 115-493.

It may be provided that in the case of the death of the devisee before the will takes effect, the property so devised shall not go to the devisee's heirs but shall take such other direction as the testator may see fit to prescribe. Gilbert v. Gilbert, 127-568.

In such case as is contemplated in this section the property passes directly from the testator to the heirs of the devisee. In re Hulett's Estate, 121-423.

SEC. 3283. Probate—jury trial.

Jurisdiction: A proceeding for the probate of a will is one of which the federal court may take jurisdiction by removal, where the requisite amount is involved and diversity of citizenship exists, as required by the federal constitution and statutes. Wart v. Wart, 117 Fed. 766.

Prior will: In the proceeding for the probate of a will the validity of a prior will is not in issue. Stutsman v. Sharpless, 125-335.

Contest: The widow has no such interest in the estate as entitles her to contest the probate of a will. In re Will of Falton, 107-120.

One who would be willing to share in the property of deceased in the absence of a will may contest the probate of the will and on his death the widow and heirs may be substituted. But if the will which is contested relates only to personal property, the substitution should be of the administrator or executor of the deceased contestant. In re Will of Wiltsey; Wiltsey v. Wiltsey, 122-423.

Executors not otherwise interested in the will cannot protest the probate of a codicil revoking their appointment. Such action is only allowable to one who would have a beneficial interest in the estate if there was no will. In re Estate of Stewart, 107-117.

Anyone interested may propound a will for probate, and notice of the taking of depositions may be given by a proponent to one who has filed objections to the will and who is the chief legatee or beneficiary thereunder. In re Estate of Jones, 130-177.

The judgment of the court in an action by the guardian of an insane person to set aside a contract and conveyance between the ward and a beneficiary is conclusive on the question of the insanity of the ward in a subsequent proceeding to probate the will of such person, proposed by the same beneficiary claiming under such will, executed at the same time as the contract and conveyance previously in question. In re Hendershott's Estate, 111 N. W. 969.

Devises are entitled to nothing save under the probated will and cannot contest the validity of a probate. Seery v. Murray, 107-384.

Procedure: A written petition for the probate of a will is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

The question of the sufficiency of the attestation, where there is a conflict in the evidence, is for the jury. In re Hull's Will, 117-738.

There being no controversy as to the execution of the will, the contestant is entitled to the opening and closing on the issues as to mental capacity and undue influence. In re Will of Wharton, 132-714.

No answer or reply on the part of proponents is required in order to raise an issue on the objections filed to the probate of the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130-177.

Costs: The petitioners for the probate of a will in their own interests and to the end that as beneficiaries named in the instrument they may share in the distribution of the estate are not entitled to have the costs of the proceeding taxed against the estate if the probate of the proposed will is denied. Beebe v. McFaul, 125-514.

Where it appears that the proponent has acted in good faith in proposing the will for probate, he should not be charged with the costs of the contest, although probate of the will is refused. Lingle v. Lingle, 121-133.

There is no impropriety in attempting to uphold what is in good faith believed to be a valid will, and the costs of the contest should not be taxed to the party making such contention, but to the estate of the person whose will is contested. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120-337.

The costs may properly be taxed to the proponent where the trial is simply a contest between proponent claiming the estate of deceased under the will and contestants claiming it as heirs at law and next of kin, and the probate of the will is denied. In re Hendershott's Estate, 111 N. W. 969.

SEC. 3284. Notice of hearing. The clerk shall give notice of the time fixed, by publishing a notice, signed by himself and addressed to all whom it may concern, in a daily or weekly newspaper printed in the county where the will is filed, once each week, for three consecutive weeks, the last publication of which shall be at least ten days before the time fixed for such hearing, and the court in its discretion may prescribe a different notice. [C., '73, § 2341; R., § 2326; C., '51, § 1294.] [30 G. A., ch. 2, § 11.]

SEC. 3287. Will—recorded—executor to have copy. After being proved and allowed, the will, together with the certificate hereinbefore required, shall be recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and the clerk shall cause the same, or an authenticated copy thereof, to be placed in the hands of the executor therein named or otherwise appointed. And whenever it shall appear that the testator died seized of real estate located in a county of this state other than that in which probate is granted, a complete transcript, properly authenticated, and of the record entry of the order of court admitting the will to probate, and if a copy of such will is not contained therein a certified copy of such will shall be attached thereto and the same shall be filed by the clerk in the office of the clerk of the district court in such other county, who shall cause the same to be entered in the probate docket, and said transcript shall be recorded in full in the book kept for the recording of wills in such county, and when so recorded such record may be read in evidence in all courts without further proof. The cost of such transcript and of the recording thereof shall be taxed against the estate of the decedent unless administration thereof is closed, in which event it shall be paid by the owner of the real estate involved. [C., '73, § 2343-4; R., §§ 2327, 2330; C., '51, §§ 1295, 1298.] [29 G. A., ch. 134, § 1.]

SEC. 3290. Vacancies.

This section does not apply to one named as executor in the will but not appointed by the court. In re Estate of Van Vleck, 123-89.

The court is not required to appoint the executor named. Ibid.

In the event of a vacancy in the position of executor the court has power to appoint a successor with all the authority of his predecessor and the person thus appointed is entitled to receive from his predecessor all the assets of the estate held by him as executor or administrator as the case may be, including funds which the executor was authorized to hold for a special purpose. The legatees and distributees are not compelled to look to the predecessor for their shares of the estate which have come into his hands. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

SEC. 3291. How filled.

A discretionary power to sell real estate given to the person named as executor by reason of personal trust and confidence cannot be exercised by the administrator with will annexed, but if it appears from the terms of the will that the executor as such and not the person named as executor and thereby made a trustee is charged with the duty of such sale, held, the successor appointed by the court may exercise the power thus conferred. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

SEC. 3293. Trustees to give bond.

While a person designated by the will as executor may be given a personal trust with reference to the disposition of the property of the testator which cannot be exercised by a substituted executor appointed by the court, if it appears that the power given is conferred upon the executor as such, it may be exercised by a successor duly appointed. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

A corporation may be appointed trustee for beneficiaries under the provisions of a will. State v. Higby Co., 130-69.

SEC. 3295-a. Sale of real estate by foreign executors—made legal. All conveyances of real property heretofore executed by executors or trustees under foreign wills and prior to expiration of three months after the recording of a duly authenticated copy of the will, original record of appointment, qualification, and bond, as required by chapter 162, acts of the eighteenth general assembly, are hereby legalized and declared as valid and effectual in law as though the provisions of said chapter had been strictly followed, provided the proper proof of authority was a matter of record in the office of the clerk of the district court in the county where the real property is situated, at the time the conveyance was executed, or was so made a matter of record prior to the passage of this act; provided, nothing in this act shall in any manner affect pending litigation. [27 G. A., ch. 182, § 1.]

SEC. 3296. Probate conclusive—setting aside.

It is not true that whenever a will has been probated, whether with or without a contest, the order admitting it to probate can only be set aside in an equitable action. Kirsher v. Kirsher, 120-337.

The burden is on the party suing to have probate of the will set aside to show that the instrument was not properly executed. Smith v. Ryan, 112 N. W. 8.

In an action to set aside the probate of a will, the defendants having by counter-claim or cross petition asked to have the will confirmed, the court has no jurisdiction on dismissal of the action by plaintiff to proceed with the entry of a decree confirming the will, and thus cutting off a future action to set aside the probate. Davis v. Preston, 129-670.

One who is not made a party to the proceedings to probate a will is not bound by the result of such proceedings. Busse v. Schaeffer, 128-319.

SEC. 3297. Administration granted.

The right to administer upon the estate does not give the widow such interest as to entitle her to protest the probate of a will. In re Will of Fallon, 107-120.

Until the will is proven, general administration of the estate of the decedent cannot be granted. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

A foreign court acquires no jurisdiction to administer on the estate of a resident of this state. In re Estate of Williams, 130-553.

An administrator appointed in this state cannot by voluntary appearance in a court of another state confer jurisdiction upon the latter court to administer the estate. Ibid.

A court of equity may prohibit creditors residing in this state from prosecuting claims against the estate of a resident decedent in the courts of a foreign state. Ibid.

Mere non-residence alone does not disqualify one from being appointed administrator of an estate within this state. The fact of non-residence is to be considered merely in connection with the ability, character, integrity, etc., of the proposed appointee. Foley v. Cudahy Packing Co., 119-246.

SEC. 3299. Special administrators.

A special administrator is without authority to enter into a compromise of a claim under a policy of life insurance Raven v. Prudential Ins. Co., 129-725.

A special administrator has no authority with reference to debts due to the deceased. Garretson v. Kinkead, 118-383.

A special administrator cannot bring action against an administrator previously appointed for conversion of property of the deceased, but the conversion by the administrator must be reached by proceedings relative to his accounting. Ibid.

SEC. 3300. Inventory—preservation of property.

A special administrator has no power to submit a claim against the estate to arbitration. He has nothing to do with the allowance of claims. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113-76.

SEC. 3301. Bond—oath.

Failure to give bond as required by statute is not jurisdictional, and the defect may be cured by the giving and approval of a bond after objection on that ground has been raised. In re Wiltsey's Will, 109 N. W. 776.

Both principal and sureties are estopped from denying the validity of the appointment and insisting that the court had no jurisdiction of the estate. Nash v. Sawyer, 114-742.

Naming a person as executor does not make him executor in fact upon the testator's death, but ordinarily gives him the right only to become such by compliance with the provisions of the statute. Burlington Prot. Hosp. Assn. v. Gerlinger, 111-293.

An additional bond given by order of the court is security with the original bond for the final accounting by the administrator for all funds coming into his hands during the administration, and it is immaterial whether the funds which he fails to account for were received before or after the execution of the bond. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

The sureties are liable for interest from the date of the failure of the administrator to account and if his delinquency exceeds the amount of bond, then the sureties are liable for the principal named in the bond with interest from the date of administrator's failure to account. Ibid.

The sureties on the administrator's bond are liable for the proceeds of property directed to be set apart as a special fund and held in trust, until so set apart and invested, with the approval of the court. Ibid.

Although the court has approved the setting aside of a fund to be held by the executor as trustee for purposes designated by the will, until such funds are actually set aside so as to charge the executor therewith, the liability of sureties on his executor's bond as to the funds thus set aside is not terminated. Ibid.

The administrator de bonis non is entitled to the custody of funds which have come into the hand of the executor in pursuance of his appointment and the sureties on the bond of the executor are liable in a suit by the administrator de bonis non. Ibid.

The sufficiency of the bond cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding. The authority of the court to appoint does not rest upon the bond. Beresford v. American Coal Co., 124-34.

SEC. 3303. Letters.

Administration necessary: In general, the rights of claimants to the property of a deceased person are to be determined through an administration upon his estate, and not in a proceeding for the settlement of the guardianship of such deceased person. In re Guardianship of Lindsey, 132-119.

Appointment of administrator: The validity of the appointment of an administrator can only be raised in a direct proceeding and cannot be collaterally questioned. Seery v. Murray, 107-384.

The court may appoint an administrator without written application. A petition is not necessary to give the court jurisdiction. Ibid.

Powers and liabilities: The executor cannot be said to be interested in the estate and cannot contest the probate of a codicil. In re Estate of Stewart, 107-117.

An administrator may not, in the absence of statutory authority, bind the estate by his contract, even when, in performing the duties of administration, expenses are necessarily incurred for services rendered or purchases made, but parties with whom the administrator deals must look to him personally for compensation, and no action therefor can be maintained against the estate, though the claim be valid. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108-651.

Parties have been permitted to maintain equitable actions on contracts with the administrator directly against the estate where, because of his insolvency, or some other sufficient reason, their remedy against him is inadequate, but this is always based on a quantum meruit, or benefit received by the estate. Ibid.

An administrator cannot make a binding contract as to the fee to be paid to an attorney for prosecuting a claim for injuries causing the death of deceased. Rickel v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 112-148.

It is doubtful whether an administrator or executor, without the court's approval, has any power to submit controversies as to claims against the estate to arbitration. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113-76.

The administrator of an estate may maintain an action against decedent's grantee to set aside a conveyance, if in fraud of decedent's creditors. Mallow v. Walker, 115-238.

An executor may as such properly deposit funds in a bank and the estate will not become a preferred creditor of the bank for the amount of funds thus deposited. Officer v. Officer, 120-389.

Where the will directs the sale of land, without giving discretion to the executor, or authorizing action by his successors, it does not create a trust in the executor, and his authority with reference to the land is terminated by his ceasing to be executor. Especially is this true where the will directs the conversion of land into money for the purpose of distribution. Boland v. Tiernay, 118-59.

Even though the will gives the executor a right to exercise a discretion as to the time or method of sale of the land, yet, if the power to sell is annexed to the office of executor and created to enable the executor to perform the duties imposed upon him by the will, his authority is that of executor only, and not of trustee. Ibid.

Where a husband was made his wife's sole legatee, and the executor had authority to carry out a contract of sale of her real property, including the homestead, held that his action as executor in completing such sale would not constitute an election to take under the will so as to preclude him from treating the consideration as proceeds of the homestead and using the same to purchase a new homestead exempt from his debts. Milner v. Davis, 120-231.

Those entitled to share in the distribution of an intestate's estate, in the absence of any indebtedness, may agree to a settlement and distribution without administration, and an administrator subsequently appointed cannot recover the assets from those to whom it has been distributed pursuant to the agreement. Douglas v. Albrecht, 130-132.

An administrator is not held personally liable where he has acted in good faith and with ordinary care and prudence in the management of an estate, and he is not liable for loss or depreciation in the value of the property in the absence of a showing of bad faith or negligence. The administrator is entitled to his expenses in caring for crops, etc., upon leased premises. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

Actions against: A judgment against an executor who has been discharged is of no validity unless against him personally. Applegate v. Applegate, 107-312.

An administrator who is entitled to a share in the property of the estate cannot be garnished for such share in order to subject it to the payment of a debt due by him personally. In such case equitable proceedings to subject the property to the payment of his debt may be maintained. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108-695.

Even where the executor has power in the absence of an order of court to settle a controversy respecting the property of the estate in his charge, he cannot delegate such power to another. Williamson v. Robinson, 111 N. W. 1012.

SEC. 3304. Notice of appointment.

The fact of publication is not in itself sufficient to give rise to the presumption that the proper order or direction was made by the clerk. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115-589.

It is not necessary that there be any recorded order of court with reference to publication of notice of the issuance of letters of administration, and an endorsement of such order on the letters, made and signed by the clerk, is sufficient, although the order purports to be the order of the court. Mosher v. Goodale, 129-719.

SEC. 3305. Limitation.

After the expiration of the five years allowed for granting letters of administration, the personal estate of the decedent, if any, vests absolutely in his heirs. Therefore a mere stranger cannot after this period procure letters of administration to be granted for the purpose of subjecting the realty to the payment of claims. Cummings v. Lynn, 121-344.

SEC. 3306. Foreign administration.

Funds which have been sent into the state for investment by an agent and have thus become subject to taxation, as provided in Code § 1320, continue to be taxable here until removed from the state in the process of administration. In re Miller's Estate, 116-446.

SEC. 3307. Estates of absentees. When a citizen of the state, owning property therein, absents himself therefrom and conceals his whereabouts from his family for a period of seven years, a petition may be filed in the district court of any county where such property is situated, setting forth such facts, by any person entitled to administer upon such absentee's estate if he was known to be dead, and praying for the issuance of letters of administration thereon, whereupon said court shall prescribe a notice to be given to such absentee, and order the same to be published in a newspaper published in said county, to be designated by the court, once each week, for eight weeks, proof of the publication of which, in the manner and for the time ordered, shall at the expiration of said period be filed with said petition, and thereupon, if the absentee does not appear, letters of administration upon his estate shall issue as though he were known to be dead, and the person to whom the administration is granted shall proceed and administer and dispose of his estate in the same manner that administrators are required to dispose of and administer the estates of decedents. [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 9.]

The statutory provision for administration on the estate of one who has absented himself from the state for seven years, concealing his whereabouts, is constitutional, and such administration is conclusive, although the supposed decedent is afterwards found to be alive. Therefore, the administrator appointed in such proceeding has authority to receive insurance money under policies in favor of his estate. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Chittenden, 112 N. W. 96.

CHAPTER 3.

OF THE SETTLEMENT OF ESTATES.

SECTION 3310. Inventory.

While it is made the duty of the executor under the collateral inheritance law to file an inventory of real and personal property, the state treasurer has no interest to enforce the performance of this duty unless by the provisions of the will some property or interest therein passes to a collateral heir in such way as to become subject to the tax. While it is the duty of the executor to file an inventory of the personal effects of the deceased without regard to any provision of the collateral inheritance tax law, that is not a duty in the performance of which the state treasurer has any interest. In re Estate of Stone, 132-136.

The administrator is entitled to take possession and control of leasehold interests of decedent and crops growing unharvested on his land at the time of his death, especially where his interest therein is a leasehold interest only. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

SEC. 3312. Exempt personal property.

The widow does not waive her right to exemptions allowed to the husband as head of the family by failure to object to their appraisement as a part of the property of the deceased. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

SEC. 3313. Life insurance—damages for death—widow deemed heir.

Insurance: Where the policy or certificate provides for the payment of the insurance money to the "legal heirs" of insured, the amount due in case of loss does not belong to the estate of the decedent, and the administrator of his estate is not entitled to recover. Schoep v. Bankers' Alliance Ins. Co., 104-354.

Where the indemnity under a policy of life insurance is expressly made payable to the executors or administrators of the insured, a release given by the widow as special administrator and in her own right is ineffectual. Rauen v. Prudential Ins. Co., 129-725.

In the absence of special contract or arrangement with the deceased for the payment of the proceeds of life insurance to his creditors, the widow and heirs are entitled thereto exempt from the debts of the deceased. In re Estate of Donaldson, 126-174.

Damages for wrongful death: The statute allowing recovery in behalf of the estate against one whose wrongful act has caused the death of the intestate does not create a new right of action, but abrogates the common-law rule by which an existing cause of action is terminated on the death of the party entitled to recover. The fact that the person entitled to participate in the distribution of the estate are non-resident aliens does not prevent the recovery of such damages by the administrator of the estate. Romano v. Capital City Brick & Pipe Co., 125-591; Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co., 129-249.

A man's life, health and future prospects are things having pecuniary value to him, and death by the wrongful act of another occasions a pecuniary loss of his estate for which an action will lie in favor of his administrator. Therefore, held, that a bequest of all the testator's estate to his wife was held to cover damages which should be recovered by his administrator against one whose wrongful act has caused his death. In re Estate of Cook, 126-158.

The funds coming into the hands of the administrator as the result of a claim for the wrongful death of intestate are to be distributed to the heirs and next of kin free from any claim for debts, due to either resident or non-resident creditors. In re Estate of Williams, 130-553.

Money recovered for the death of a person leaving a father and mother, and no wife or child, immediately descends to the father and mother in equal shares, and their interest therein may, after the payment of the judgment into court, be applied in payment of a judgment against them. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108-695.

The distribution of damages recovered on account of injuries causing death is to be determined by the law of the place where the injuries complained of were inflicted. In re Estate of Coe, 130-307.

Although Code § 2403 forbids the sale of intoxicating liquors to an habitual drunkard or to an intoxicated person, and § 2448 subjects one who makes such sales to forfeiture, the administrator of the estate of one who dies by reason of purchasing and drinking liquor sold to him in violation of these provisions cannot maintain an action against the seller of the liquor to recover for the estate damages for causing the death of the person to whom the liquor was sold. Bissell v. Starzinger, 112-266.

SEC. 3314. Allowance to widow and children.

The claim of the widow for allowance of support is contingent and uncertain until judicially determined, and her claim thereto abates with her death. Zunkel v. Colson, 109-695.

The provision of this section for allowance to a widow for a year's support is made by way of charity, and should have a liberal construction to promote the purpose of its enactment. Such allowance should be made even though the widow has independent means, if her income is insufficient for her support without resort to the principal fund. Busby v. Busby, 120-536.

SEC. 3315. Discovery of assets.

An appeal will lie from an order made under a statutory provision in relation to the examination of one claimed to have in his possession the effects of the deceased, and likewise from an order granting a retrial in such a proceeding. In re Behren's Estate, 104-29.

One who is made defendant in a proceeding for the discovery of property, and after answering takes no further part in the proceedings, is not bound as to any rights he may have in the property by the adjudication of the probate court on an issue not involving such rights. Milburn v. East, 128-101.

SEC. 3317. Subjecting real estate.

Where the property of deceased does not appear to be sufficient for the payment of his debts, the court or judge may direct the administrator to file a petition in equity to secure to the estate the title of any real estate which in the event of the insufficiency of the personal property may be subjected for the payment of debts.

Such an action is to be instituted in the district court of the county in which an equitable action to subject the property of the decedent to the payment of claims against him may be brought under the general statutes relating to the place of bringing action. Long v. Garey Inv. Co., 112 N. W. 550.

SEC. 3322. Sale of personal property.

With reference to the sale of property directed by the testator, the duty of the executor is simply to carry out the provisions of the will, and in respect thereto he is subject at all times to the orders of the court. In re Estate of Fisher, 128-626.

SEC. 3323. Sale of real estate—application.

The order for the sale of real estate standing in the name of the deceased must be obtained in the court granting administration. Long v. Gary Inv. Co., 112 N. W. 550.

The heirs not being parties to a proceeding for the allowance of claims, are not bound by such allowance. But the allowance of claims by the probate court is sufficient prima facie as against the heirs to authorize an order for the sale of real estate to pay such claims; and it is for the heirs questioning the validity of claims on which it is proposed to make a sale, to introduce some evidence of their invalidity, and thus overcome the prima facie case made by proof of allowance. Milburn v. East, 128-101.

In the absence of peculiar circumstances excusing delay, the application for sale should be made within the time allowed for filing and allowance of claims; but where the interest of the deceased in the real estate was not discovered, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, held that it was not error to order a sale more than three years after the appointment of the administrator. Ibid.

On an application for sale of real property it may be shown by way of resistance that personal property belonging to the estate is not inventoried and is in the hands of the administrator and would be sufficient to pay the debts without resorting to the real estate. Duffield v. Walden, 102-676.

Although there is no showing as to the disposition of the personalty, an order for the sale of realty, although irregular, will not be void. Cheney v. McColloch, 104-249.

Judgment for the sale of real property on the application of the administrator to pay debts for the estate bars the widow's right to dower in the property sold. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

Consent by the widow to the sale of real property for the payment of debts will estop her from asserting a dower right in the property thus sold. Ibid.

Where the real property of the deceased is sold for the payment of debts, the widow takes her one-third interest in the proceeds free from any deduction on account of taxes, repairs, or expenses. But in the absence of issue the additional one-sixth, which passes to her on that account, is subject to deduction for expenses of administration. Wild v. Toms, 123-747.

Sureties on the executor's bond are liable for the proceeds of the sale of real property in the hands of the executor, although no special bond has been given as required by statute. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

SEC. 3324. Notice.

Estates of decedents—sale of property—notice: Where a creditor of the heir has attached the interest of the heir in real estate, and afterwards recovered judgment on his claim, he is entitled to notice of a proceeding by the administrator for the sale of the property to pay decedent's debts. Mullin v. White, 112 N. W. 164.

Under such circumstances the judgment creditor who has received no such notice is entitled to attack the sale collaterally in a suit to subject the land to his judgment. Ibid.

SEC. 3326. Public or private—notice—credit.

While the administratrix has the right to sell lands of decedents to pay the debts of the estate, she cannot sell to herself either directly or through a medium of a third person. Walker v. Walker, 127-77.

SEC. 3328. Bond to prevent sale.

This section has no application to an action by an heir to recover property of the estate taken by a devisee. Seery v. Murray, 107-384.

SEC. 3333. Possession of real property.

In the absence of heirs, the administrator has the right to take possession of the land of the deceased and receive the rents thereof, and the probate court is the proper place for an accounting for such rents. Smith v. Smith, 132-700.

Where an administrator in fact assumes possession and control of the real estate of the deceased, he becomes chargeable as trustee with reference thereto. Schneider v. Schneider, 125-1.

If the administrator, without right to do so, takes possession of real property of the deceased, he is liable individually to the heirs as trustee, but not as administrator. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

An adjudication as to the rights of the administrator to rents and profits of real estate, acting in behalf of the heirs, is not binding as affecting title to the property. Milburn v. East, 128-101.

An administrator has no claim for injuries done to the land belonging to the deceased, and cannot sue as such for trespass. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112-210.

In an attachment suit by a wife against her non-resident husband, her administrator on her death is not entitled to intervene. Sammis v. Hitt, 112-664.

If the administrator has any power to borrow money for keeping up the condition of the real property, such power is limited to cases where due notice has been given to those entitled to the estate, and the liability of the estate is limited to the benefits received. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108-651.

SEC. 3334. Proceeds—account.

Without direction of the court to the charge of the real property of the deceased the administrator has nothing to do with such property, save where there is no heir present and competent to take possession thereof, and if he does assume control of such property, his possession is that of trustee only. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

SEC. 3336. Provisions of will.

Testator may direct the delivery of a deed after his death on the performance of specific conditions and the delivery of such deed by the executor on performance of the conditions will be sufficient to pass title. So held where a grantee named in a deed had before the death of testator made part payment under a contract to convey. Dettmer v. Behrens, 106-585.

SEC. 3338. Claims—statement—notice—allowance.

The bar of the statute of limitations cannot become effectual during the interval between the death of the debtor and the time when in the ordinary course of administration the claim can be filed against the administrator for allowance. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

While a judgment against one who is since deceased may be enforced against the real estate upon which it is a lien without filing it as a claim against the estate, yet this must be done while the judgment lien exists. Hansen's Empire Fur Factory v. Teabout, 104-360.

Where a claim is filed against an estate and parties jointly liable for its payment are insisting that the estate should pay the whole claim, and that their liability in no event exceeds a portion of the amount claimed, the claim of such persons as against the estate is not one which must be filed within one year. Pratt v. Fishwild, 121-642.

The mere withdrawal of a claim for the purpose of preparing a petition thereon does not amount to an abandonment of such claim. Clough v. Ide, 107-669.

The probate court has not exclusive jurisdiction of proof of claims against an estate, and judgment in an action in the district court against the administrator, prosecuted without objection, will be a prior adjudication and defeat a subsequent recovery in a probate court. Ibid.

In presenting a claim against an estate it is not necessary for the claimant to state its legal capacity to sue as a corporation, and denial of corporate capacity must be specific. University of Chicago v. Emmer, 108-500.

A remedy has sometimes been allowed against the estate on contracts made by the administrator where, by reason of his insolvency, or some other sufficient reason, a remedy against the administrator personally is inadequate, but the allowance is limited to the value accruing to the estate. Valley Nat. Bank v. Crosby, 108-651.

The estate cannot be bound by the contract of the administrator with reference to the attorney fee to be paid to an attorney who prosecutes a claim in behalf of the estate against a railroad company for injuries causing the death of decedent. Rickel v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 112-148.

Services rendered by an adult daughter to her father under an arrangement involving compensation for such services may properly be the subject of a claim against his estate. Harrison v. Harrison, 124-525.

A bank has a valid claim against the SEC. 3340. Denial.

The burden of proof, if the claim be unpaid, is on the estate. It is not necessary for the claimant to show attempts to collect, nor to show a prima facie right to recover. Murphy v. McCarthy, 108-38.

The burden is upon the administrator to show a satisfaction of a claim based on a written instrument purporting to bind deceased. University of Chicago v. Emmert, 108-500.

SEC. 3341. Hearing—trial by jury.

The county court originally exercised probate jurisdiction without jury trial, except in cases where jury trial was expressly provided for. Such jurisdiction was subsequently transferred to the circuit court and afterwards to the district court, but nothing in the acts changing the forum indicates a legislative purpose to change the mode of trial except in particular cases where jury trial is especially provided for. Duffield v. Walden, 102-676.

SEC. 3343. Contingent liabilities.

Where the deceased was surety on a bond in which the principal and sureties obligated themselves, and their "heirs, executors and administrators," liability on which bond did not accrue until after the period fixed for filing claims against the estate, held, that such liability could be enforced against the estate in the hands of the distributees, although no claim under

SEC. 3344. Referees.

In view of this provision for reference by a court, it is doubtful whether an administrator or executor, without the court's

SEC. 3347. Expenses of funeral—allowance to widow.

Burial expenses are not, strictly speaking, debts due from the deceased, but charges which the law, out of decency, estate of a deceased officer for misappropriation of funds of the bank. McEbroy v. Allfree, 131-518.

The clerk is expressly directed to enter upon the probate calendar the allowance of claims on the approval thereof by an administrator. Mosher v. Goodale, 129-719.

Receipts given by the claimant to the deceased in which it is specified that the amounts received are in full for services rendered are admissible as tending to throw discredit upon the claimant's testimony as to services for which claim is made which must have antedated the receipts. Bray v. Bray, 128-234.

Prior to the adoption of the present Code there was no provision for pleading special defenses to a claim against the estate. Benton County Sav. Bank v. Strand, 106-606.

The formal rules of pleading relating to allegations and denials are not applicable to the statement and denial of claims against an estate. Harrison v. Harrison, 124-525.

An order of court allowing a claim is in the nature of an adjudication and a party is not entitled to have it set aside and to have a retrial as to the validity of the claim as a matter of right, but must show some ground for setting it aside. Hendron v. Kinner, 110-544.

The proceeding as to the allowance of a contested claim is at law. Mosher v. Goodale, 129-719.

the bond had been filed within the time for settling the estate. Security F. Ins. Co. v. Hansen, 104-264.

imposes upon his estate. But such charges should be reasonable. A decent burial should comport with the social condition of the deceased and the amount of his fortune. Foley v. Brocksmit, 119-457.

Claims on account of the last sickness and funeral of the deceased are not barred by failure to file within a specified time, and so long as the estate is solvent and unsettled the payment may be insisted upon as against the administrator. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127-479.

A claim for attorney's fees rendered for the administrator is not a claim against the estate. Clark v. Sayre, 122-591.

SEC. 3348. Other demands—order of payment.

Charges of the last sickness and funeral are not included within the class of claims here enumerated. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127-479.

Until the time for filing claims has expired the court cannot know judicially that there are no claims against the estate. Seery v. Murray, 107-384.

The filing of a claim is equivalent to the beginning of an action under the statute of limitations. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122-302.

Where the claim as filed was on a promissory note of which the claimant was holder, and an amendment of the claim so as to show that the claimant was surety for the deceased on the note and had paid it, was filed, held, that as the statutory limitation against a claim by the surety against the deceased had run when the amendment was filed, there could be no recovery. Ibid.

Where no other provision is made by will, the debts and charges against the estate of decedent are payable from the personal property of the estate, if it be sufficient for that purpose. Pitkin v. Peet, 108-480.

Under the evidence in a particular case, held that it was a question for the jury to determine whether services rendered to the deceased by a claimant were rendered by him as a member of the family of the deceased. In re Estate of Bishop, 130-250.

The fact that a valid claim, paid by the administrator, was not properly filed, is not ground for disallowance on the administrator's report. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

The executor or administrator takes title to the property of the deceased as trustee for the creditors if the estate is insolvent and may assert the claims of the creditors as against an unrecorded chattel mortgage. Blackman v. Baxter, 125-118.

SEC. 3349. Limitation.

In general: Until the statutory period for filing claims has commenced to run by reason of giving of notice and has expired without claims being filed, the court cannot know in the settlement of the administrator's accounts that the estate is not indebted. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

Charges of the last sickness and funeral are not barred after one year from the time after notice of the appointment of the administrator. Wolfe v. Knapp, 127-479.

The special limitation as to the filing of claims supersedes the general statute of limitations, and stops the running thereof as to such claims. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blenden, 136 Fed. 252.

The publication of notice which starts the running of the period of limitation for the filing of claims is sufficient if made on an order of the clerk, endorsed on the letters of appointment. Mosher v. Goodale, 129-719.

The administrator having a claim against the estate is not excused from filing it within the statutory period. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

The burden is upon defendant to establish the bar of the claim by limitation under this section, and for that purpose the proper giving of notice must be established. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115-589.

Equitable relief: Notice by publication having been duly given, a resident of the state is bound to file his claim within the statutory period, and will not be entitled to equitable relief merely because he has not had actual notice or has put the claim into the hands of a general collecting agent who has failed to file it within the proper time. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Lisker, 122-341.

Equitable relief from the statutory limitation of time for filing claims will not be extended to one who has been negligent in presenting his claim. Bentley v. Starr, 123-657.

One who elects to look to the guardian for payment of a claim against a deceased ward instead of filing such claim against such ward's estate cannot have equitable relief against the bar of the statute. Ibid.

The mere promise of an administrator to pay a claim is not sufficient excuse for delay in not filing and serving notice thereof. But it may be sufficient, if coupled with a request of the administrator, acted upon by the claimant, that the filing of the claim be postponed. Under the evidence in a particular case, held that there was not such showing of postponement at the request of the administrator as to justify the granting of equitable relief. Mosher v. Goodale, 129-719.

Where the holder of a note against deceased was induced to withhold the filing of his claim by the false and fraudulent representations of the executor that the estate was insolvent, held that equity would permit the filing of the claim notwithstanding the statutory bar had accrued, it appearing that the estate was solvent and still unsettled. Henry v. Day, 114-454.

Where a person having a claim against an estate, consisting of a note in the hands of a bank, directed an officer of the bank to take proper steps to have the claim presented, and was afterwards assured by such officer within the time for filing claims that the note had been properly filed, which was not true, and was thereby misled, held that he was entitled to equitable relief, although the estate had been otherwise fully settled and the personal property distributed, it appearing that there was real estate belonging to decedent against which the claim might be enforced. Manatt v. Reynolds, 114-688.

A claim of a municipal corporation against the estate of a deceased person must be filed within the time required by this section and the negligence of the officers of the corporation in failing to file the claim in proper time will not be a ground for equitable relief. In re Jacobs' Estate, 119-176.

SEC. 3353. Order of payments—dividends.

The property of the estate is bound for the payment of debts so far as it will go. Blackman v. Baxter, 125-118.

SEC. 3355. Specific legacies.

Within the twelve months allowed for filing claims, the testator has no authority without order of court to pay over legacies, whether general or specific. Montgomery v. Gilbertson, 111 N. W. 694.

Where the date of giving notice does not appear the limitation cannot be applied. Ibid.

The minority of the claimant is not a peculiar circumstance such as to entitle him to equitable relief against the statutory limitation. Boyle v. Boyle, 126-167.

Where the deceased was surety on a bond in which principal and sureties obligated themselves, and their "heirs, executors and administrators," liability on which bond did not accrue until after the period fixed for filing claims against the estate, held, that such liability could be enforced against the estate in the hands of the distributees, although no claim under the bond had been filed within the time for settling the estate. Security F. Ins. Co. v. Hansen, 104-264.

The limitation as to the time for filing a claim is not controlling where the claim is contingent. Easton v. Somerville, 111-164.

Where the date of giving notice does not appear the limitation cannot be applied. Ibid.

CHAPTER 4.

OF THE DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE INTESTATE'S PROPERTY.

SECTION 3362. Personal property.

Under our law the right to a distributive share of personality in the estate of an intestate vests instantaneously in the heir upon the death of the owner and not from the time of distribution made. Distribution gives to the distributee no new title, but only ascertains the property to which title attaches. Christe v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 104-707.

After the time for administration has expired so that there are no claims of creditors on the property, the heirs of the deceased may maintain an action in their own names for the recovery of the assets of the estate. Ibid.

After the expiration of time for granting administration so that claims of creditors are no longer involved, the personal property of a deceased person vests in his heirs and any settlement they have made or may make in regard to the estate will be binding upon them. Ibid.

The heir has an interest in the personal estate of his ancestor prior to any distribution by administration, and in the absence of indebtedness of the estate the heirs who are entitled to share in the distribution may by agreement determine the rights to their respective shares, even as against an administrator subsequently appointed. Douglas v. Albrecht, 130-132.

While heirs may by mutual agreement settle the estate of a deceased person and render administration of the estate unnecessary, the guardian of the deceased cannot in a proceeding for the settlement of his guardianship take advantage of an arrangement between him and the prospective heirs of his ward by which on the death of the ward he is to become entitled to the ward's estate. In re Guardianship of Lindsay, 132-119.

The legal representative has the right of possession of all personal property owned by the deceased, and this cannot be limited by contracts of, or liens created by the heirs, nor can he be required by the heirs to satisfy the debts of the decedent out of one portion of the personal estate rather than another. Foss v. Cobler, 105-728.

Heirs are not entitled to possession of personal property until through distribution or the expiration of the period of limitation for administration their interest therein has been definitely ascertained. Ritchie v. Barnes, 114-67.

Since the adoption of the Code of '73 the husband cannot by will dispose of the distributive share of the widow in personal property. Poole v. Burnham, 105-620.

In determining whether the widow is entitled to her distributive share, a contract of separation between herself and her husband releasing her interest in his property cannot be taken into account, although made in another jurisdiction where it would be valid and enforceable. Caruth v. Caruth, 128-121.

The personal estate of a decedent will be distributed according to the law of his domicile, irrespective of the place of administration. In re Estate of Titterington, 130-356.

A person cannot have two domiciles at the same time, and a domicile once gained remains until a new one is acquired. To effect a change of domicile, there must be actual residence in the new domicile with the intent that the new residence shall constitute his domicile. Ibid.

SEC. 3364. In kind—proceeds distributed.

Money recovered for the wrongful death of a person leaving a father or mother, and no wife or children may, when paid to the clerk in satisfaction of such judgment, be applied to the satisfaction of judgments against the father and mother. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108-695.

The executor may discharge his trust as to the distribution of the estate by making division of shares of stock among those entitled to participate in the distribution. In re Estate of Fisher, 128-626.

SEC. 3366. Share of surviving spouse—dower.

Extent of dower right: The share of the widow cannot be increased beyond a one-third interest in the real estate of which her husband was seized during his lifetime, by reason of any advancements which he may have made to his children by a prior marriage before the marriage to the claimant. Burgoon v. Whitney, 121-76.

Under the statutes in force from 1853 to 1862, the widow's dower was a life interest in one-third of the real property of which the husband was seized during coverture. Bottorff v. Lewis, 121-27.

The widow is entitled to her one-third share of the proceeds of her deceased husband's realty, which has been sold by the administrator for the payment of debts, free from deduction for taxes, repairs and expenses. Wild v. Toms, 123-747.

The widow who has one-third of the estate of her husband set off to her as her property in fee simple, thereby relinquishes any right of homestead she may have had in the property. The right of homestead can be preserved only by electing to retain the homestead in lieu of a distributive share in fee. Edinger v. Bain, 125-391.

So held where the widow claims one-third of the proceeds of her husband's estate sold for the purpose of paying debts; and held that no intention to invest her share in the acquisition of a new homestead would exempt therefrom liability for her debts. Ibid.

A title bond or contract for a deed is sufficient to create in the vendee an equitable estate in which his wife is entitled to dower; but if by assignment of the contract on the part of the husband the rights thereunder are transferred to another, and by him to a third, who has no knowledge of the contingent rights of the wife of the original vendee, she cannot assert her dower interest as against the innocent holder of the contract for value, although she did not join in the assignment. Hutchinson v. Olberding, 112 N. W. 647.

When attaches: Possession of real property adverse as against the husband does not become adverse as against the wife's right of dower until the death of the husband, if the possession is not under a judicial sale or in pursuance of a relinquishment of dower by the wife; and the statute of limitations as against the wife's right to dower under such circumstances does not commence to run until the death of the husband. Lucas v. Whitacre, 121-251.

The dower interest attaches when the title passes from the government, although no patent has issued. Purcell v. Lang, 108-198.

Relinquishment or conveyance: The widow may relinquish her dower interest by agreement, although not made by way of formal conveyance. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125-197.

The marital interest of one spouse in the property of the other cannot be the subject of contract between them, and a contract or conveyance executed to the wife by the husband in consideration of her release of her contingent dower interest is invalid. As a gift to the wife, such conveyance from an insolvent husband is fraudulent as to creditors. Sharff v. Hayes, 132-609.

By an antenuptial contract fairly entered into, the consideration being that of marriage, the wife may be deprived of her interest in her husband's property, but if the contract operates to deprive the wife of such interest without provision for her in the event she survives her husband, the burden is upon the husband or those representing him to show that the contract was fairly procured. Fisher v. Koontz, 110-498.

An agreement between husband and wife for future separation involving a release by the wife of her contingent dower interest in her husband's land is invalid. Baird v. Connell, 121-278.

While a widow may in equity sell and convey her dower interest before assignment, yet she has no power to execute a mining lease for the premises, or any portion thereof. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112-210.

Although a married woman cannot bind herself by release to her husband of her contingent interest in his property, yet after conveyance of property by the husband in which the wife has not joined she may by quitclaim to her husband's grantee bar her dower interest. Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N. W. 808.

Tenants in common: Where husband and wife are owners in common of property, a conveyance by one of them of his share does not cut off the dower interest of the other in the share thus conveyed. Noecker v. Wallingford, 133-605.

Estoppel: The fact that the wife who has been abandoned by her husband knows that he has married another woman, who believes her marriage to be lawful and cares for the children of the first marriage, will not estop the first wife from claiming dower in the estate of her husband after his decease. Failure of the first wife to reveal her relationship will not defeat her rights. Dunn v. Portsmouth Sav. Bank, 103-538.

The widow who has joined in a conveyance of land during the lifetime of her husband cannot after his death have such conveyance set aside as fraudulent if she has received and retained the consideration for such conveyance. Willis v. Robertson, 121-380.

In the absence of unreasonable delay or estoppel the widow is not barred from asserting her statutory right to a share in the lands of her husband conveyed by him to an innocent purchaser and as to which she has made no relinquishment. Beeman v. Kitzman, 124-86.

Judicial sale: The sale of land by a sheriff under a trust deed executed by the husband alone to secure payment of his debt which was made in accordance with the authority contained in the deed, and was valid when made under the provisions of § 2906 of the Code of 1851, held to cut off the dower interest of the grantor's widow. Pierce v. O'Neil, 132-530.

The widow's dower right is barred by a sale of property of the deceased ordered on proper application for the payment of debts of the estate. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

The exception in the statute as to dower in property sold at execution sale has no application as against a widow who claims under a title adverse to that of the party against whom the execution sale was made. Sherod v. Ewell, 104-253.

Widow causing death: Prior to the amendment of Code § 3386 by 29 G. A., chap. 135 (see Code Supplement, § 3386), it was held that under that section the widow causing the death of her husband was not thereby precluded from asserting her dower interest in his property. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125-449.

Specific performance: In an action for specific performance of a contract to convey made by the husband as owner, in which his wife has not joined, the purchaser asking specific performance may be allowed to retain one-third of the purchase price until it is determined whether the wife outlives the husband, and a lien for the portion of the price thus retained should be created on the property; but the purchaser should not be required to pay interest on the amount thus retained. Bradford v. Smith, 123-41.

SEC. 3367. Homestead.

As between the dower right and the right to occupy the homestead for life it will be presumed that the widow is claiming her dower right unless her election to take the homestead right appears, and to show such election to retain the homestead by continuance of occupancy it must appear that the premises occupied were in fact the homestead of the deceased husband. Peebles v. Bunting, 103-489.

Mere delay in setting apart the widow's distributive share will not show an election to retain the homestead in lieu of the distributive share where the circumstances show that the right to the distributive share was being constantly asserted and recognized. Wold v. Berkholtz, 105-370.

The widow may set up the homestead character of premises in which she is entitled to a distributive share without thereby electing to accept occupancy of the homestead in lieu of dower. In re Estate of Lund, 107-264.

It not appearing that the distributive share set apart to the widow is so selected as to include the homestead, such distributive share is not exempt from her debts contracted prior to the setting apart thereof. Benjamin v. Doerscher, 105-391.

SEC. 3368. Survivor a non-resident.

This section has no application where the grantor is not shown to have been an alien, although his wife was a non-resident alien. Casley v. Mitchell, 121-96.

SEC. 3369. Setting off survivor's share.

A widow may have her dower admeasured from land owned by the husband during coverture as to which she has not joined in a conveyance. Hyatt v. O'Connell, 130-567.

The fact that funds derived by the husband from the sale and conveyance of land by him alone have been used in the support of the wife as a member of the family will not estop her from claiming a dower interest in such land. Ibid.

The widow's right to recover for rents and profits derived from land thus conveyed by her husband commences with demand for assignment of dower. Ibid.

On the death of the widow after she has become entitled to a distributive share, her heirs may have such share set apart. In re Proctor's Estate, 103-232.

The wife's distributive share in real property should be charged with its proportionate share of a mortgage on the entire real estate. Trego v. Studley, 106-742.

Unassigned dower interest is not subject to levy under execution. Brightman v. Morgan, 111-481.

Where two or more distinct tracts of land are by the will given to different parties, and the widow has her dower assigned in a lump out of one of them, the person to whom such tract passes by the will has the right of contribution against the person or persons to whom the other tract or tracts pass by the will. Morey v. Morey, 113-152.

The right of action of the widow to recover her dower interest in premises conveyed by her husband during the coverture, as to which she has not joined in the conveyance, does not accrue so as to set the statute of limitations running until the death of the husband. Lucas v. White, 120-735.

Dower may be assigned by proceedings in equity as well as at law. Such assignment may be made in an equitable action in the nature of a suit for partition. Beeman v. Kitzman, 124-86.

As against a grantee of the husband under a conveyance in which the wife has not joined to relinquish her dower interest, the right of the widow accrues twenty days after the death of the husband, and must be asserted within the statutory period of limitations. Britt v. Gordon, 132-431.

While application for admeasurement of dower must be brought within ten years from the death of the husband, this limitation does not apply to an action in equity to establish a dower right, or for protection of the distributive share. But the general statute of limitations is applicable to any such action. Britt v. Gordon, 132-431.

SEC. 3376. Share not affected by will—election—made by court. The survivor's share cannot be affected by any will of the spouse, unless consent thereto is given within six months after a copy thereof has been served upon the survivor by the other parties interested in the estate, and notice that such survivor is required to elect whether consent thereto will be given, which consent, when given, shall be in open court, or by a writing filed therein, which shall be entered on the proper records thereof; but if at the expiration of six months no such election has been made, it shall be conclusively presumed that such survivor consents to the provisions of the will and elects to take thereunder. But when such surviving spouse is mentally incapable of making such election, the court on petition being filed alleging such disability, may set the matter down for hearing at such time and place as it may deem best, and direct what notice thereof shall be given; and at such hearing the court may enter an order electing for such spouse, which shall be the election under this section, of the person under such disability. [C., '73, § 2452; R., § 2435; C., '51, § 1407.] [30 G. A., ch. 121.]

Devise in lieu of dower. Under the provisions of Code of '73 the grant of a life estate to the widow without provision that such grant should be in lieu of dower was not inconsistent with her taking a dower interest in the estate and in such case no election was required. Sutherland v. Sutherland, 102-535; in re Proctor's Estate, 103-232.

Under the provisions of the Code of '73 an affirmative act on the widow's part was necessary to deprive her of her distributive share and this affirmative act was required to be evidenced in a stated manner. In the absence of some record of election the fact of election to take under the will, could not be shown. Byerly v. Sherman, 126-447, 102 N. W. 157.

Under the language of § 2452 of the Code of 1873, it was held that the acceptance of the provisions of a will did not bar the wife's dower right, unless the will so expressly provided, or there was some necessary inconsistency between the dower right and the provisions of the will. But such rule is changed by the language of § 3270 of the present Code. Keifer v. Gillett, 120-107.

Under the statutory provisions in force before the adoption of this section, held, that a provision in the will charging the estate with support of the widow during her life, was not inconsistent with her dower interest, and no election between the provisions of the will and dower was required. Bentley v. Bentley, 112-625. See notes to Code § 3270 in this Supplement.

A widow who has elected to take, under the provisions of a will, cannot claim a distributive share under the statute. In re will of Wiltsey; Wiltsey v. Wiltsey, 122-423.

A widow may take a life estate under a will, and also her distributive share under the law, unless the latter will be so incompatible with the provisions of the will as to disturb, affect, interrupt or disappoint such provisions. But when the will clearly indicates the intent that the devise to the widow shall be in lieu of her distributive share, she cannot take both, and if she elects to take under the will her declaration that she also claims her distributive share is of no consequence. Parker v. Parker, 129-600.

Under the facts in a particular case held that the provisions of the will, giving a life estate to the widow, were inconsistent with her taking a dower interest. Ibid.

Upon renouncing the will the widow becomes entitled to one-third in value of the husband's estate, and cannot claim the additional one-sixth to which she is entitled by inheritance in the absence of direct heirs, the property having been otherwise disposed of by the will which she renounces. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125-197.

Election: Where the acts of the widow with reference to the property were properly referable to her position as administratrix, rather than to any claim of hers under the will, held, that they did not show an election to take under the will. In re Proctor's Estate, 103-232.

Where the widow fails to claim her dower right and thereby induces a claimant of the property to treat it as having full title, she is estopped from afterwards asserting her right therein. Goldizen v. Goldizen, 107-280.

Where the surviving husband failed during his lifetime to make any claim of a distributive share in addition to the devise made to him in the will, and his heirs likewise failed to make any such claim through him for ten years and until the property had been improved at considerable expense by those claiming it under the will, held that such heir was estopped from asserting any claim to an interest in a distributive share. Lewis v. Sherwin, 129-682; 104 N. W. 511.

Under the provisions of § 2452 of Code of '73, held that an election to accept under the provisions of the will might become effective without being entered of record. Brighton v. Morgan, 111-481.

Where no copy of the will has been served on the widow she is not called upon to elect between the provisions of the will and her statutory right of dower, and acceptance of a benefit under the will does not defeat her dower right. Newberry v. Newberry, 114-704.

In order to estop the widow from claiming under the statute, notwithstanding the terms of the will, there must be a strict compliance with the statutory requirements. Warner v. Hamill, 111 N. W. 939.

Where a life estate is given to the widow by will with the fee to her children at her death, she takes also her statutory interest as not inconsistent with the will. Ibid.

If at the end of six months no election has been made it is to be conclusively presumed that the survivor elects to take under the will. But there can be no election by failure to act where no notice has been served and no consent is entered of record. Bailey v. Hughes, 115-304.

SEC. 3377. Election as between distributive share and occupancy of homestead.

Under the provisions of the Code of '73, held that continuous occupancy of the homestead by the widow, where she had a lease of the premises for life from the heirs, did not constitute an election to accept the homestead for life in lieu of

Where the issue is as to whether the widow has elected to take her distributive share as against the provision made for her in the will, it is not competent for a witness to testify as to the contents of the will, nor as to his understanding as to who was to take under the will. In re Estate of Jones, 130-177.

dower. The widow's primary right is to a distributive share, and unless she does something which deprives her of that right it will be sustained. Robinson v. Lambertson, 115-366. See, also, notes to Code § 2985 in this Supplement.

SEC. 3378. Descent—to children.

The provisions of 27 G. A., ch. 37, are not effectual to legalize an inheritance tax under 26 G. A., ch. 28, as to real property descending to heirs before the curative act took effect. Herriott v. Potter, 115-648.

SEC. 3379. Wife and parents.

The one-sixth share which the widow takes as heir in the absence of issue, is subject to deduction on account of repairs, taxes and expenses properly paid or incurred in the administration of the estate. Wild v. Toms, 123-747.

Although the surviving wife or husband elects to take a homestead right in lieu of a distributive share, such election does not deprive the survivor of the right to a one-sixth interest as heir in the absence of direct disinheritance. Hays v. Marsh, 123-81.

The interest which the surviving wife takes beyond her dower interest in the absence of children, is taken by her as heir. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125-449.

The portion which would pass to the widow in the absence of direct heirs over and above her one-third dower interest cannot be claimed by her under the renunciation of a will which disposes of the entire property, for the will is effectual as to all save her one-third dower interest. Wright v. Breckenridge, 125-197.

SEC. 3381. Heirs of parents.

Descent cannot be claimed though a deceased non-resident alien relative any more than it can through a living relative who cannot inherit on account of being a non-resident alien. Meier v. Lee, 106-303.

Where property is claimed by descent under the provisions of this section through an intervening relative, such descent is mediate and not immediate. Ibid.

The provision that descent to collateral heirs is to be determined by assuming that the common ancestor had outlived the intestate and died in the possession of a portion falling to his share is for the purpose only of determining the right of inheritance of such collateral heirs. Such right being ascertained, the descent is direct from decedent to such heirs. In re Hulett's Estate, 121-423.

SEC. 3381-a. Parents by adoption—wife. One-half of the estate of any adopted child who shall die intestate and leaving no issue, shall descend to the parents by adoption of such child, and the other half to his or her surviving spouse. If one of the parents by adoption be dead, in case there was more than one such parent, the portion which would have gone to such parent shall go to the surviving parent by adoption. If such child leave no surviving spouse, his entire estate shall go to his parents by adoption; or if he leave but one such parent then to such parent. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 1.]

SEC. 3381-b. Heirs of parents by adoption. If the adopted parent or parents, if more than one, be dead, the portion which would have gone to such parent or parents had they or either of them survived the intestate, shall be disposed of in the same manner as if such parent or parents had outlived the intestate and died in possession of such share, and so on through their ascending ancestors. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 2.]

SEC. 3381-c. Natural parents. If heirs are not thus found, the portion thus uninherited shall go to the natural parents of the intestate, and in case of their death then to their heirs under the ordinary rules of descent. [29 G. A., ch. 136, § 3.]

SEC. 3383. Advancements.

An advancement is an irrevocable gift, made by a parent to a child in anticipation of such child's future share of the parental estate. It must be voluntary, and must have been made with the intent on the part of the parent that it shall be taken into account on the settlement of the estate. But where a voluntary gift from parent to child is shown, the rule is that it is presumed to be an advancement, unless paid to or for the child for his education, maintenance or support, or otherwise in the discharge of ordinary parental duties. Bissel v. Bissell, 120-127.

Advancements made by a testator prior to the execution of his will, even designated as such at the time made, are taken to be gifts pure and simple, and cannot be considered in the settlement of the estate under the will, unless such instrument so directs in specific terms. In re Cumming's Estate, 120-421.

The question of whether a gift of property to an heir is a pure gift or an advancement depends upon the intent of the donor at the time of the transfer, and this intent may be established by his declarations prior to the time of the transfer, or contemporaneous with it. Ellis v. Newell, 120-71.

But such declarations, like other admissions, are generally regarded as unsatisfactory evidence on account of the ease with which they may be fabricated, the impossibility of contradiction, and the consequences which the slightest mistake or failure of memory may produce. Ibid.

Subsequent declarations, however, not a part of the res gestae, are not admissible to show that the transaction was a gift, rather than an advancement. Ibid.

Advancements for the purpose of distribution and division are treated as part of the estate, but for no other purpose. The donee cannot be required to refund any portion thereof, nor can it be taken for debts of the estate. Ibid.

Book entries of advancements, when shown to have been made by an ancestor, are evidence both of the fact of the advancements and of the intention with which they are given. Whisler v. Whisler, 117-712.

The value of land given to a prospective heir by way of advancement is to be reckoned as of the date of the death of the intestate owner. Eastwood v. Crane, 125-707.

An advancement to an heir previously given and received constitutes no consideration for a promissory note subsequently given in payment of the property received under such advancement. Marsh v. Chown, 104-556.

The doctrine as to advancements is applicable only in cases of intestacy. McCormick v. Hanks, 105-639. In re Estate of Hall, 132-664.

The statutory provision as to advancements has no application unless the ancestor dies wholly intestate. The doctrine of advancements rests upon the presumed desire of an ancestor to equalize his estate among his heirs. When he makes a will he thereby expresses his intention in this respect and the presumption does not apply. Gilmore v. Jenkins, 129-686.

Where the father purchases land, the title to which is taken in the son's name the presumption is in favor of an advancement rather than a resulting trust, until the contrary intention is shown. Culp v. Price, 107-133.

An execution purchaser of an heir's interest in realty does not acquire priority over the right existing against the heir to deduct advancements from such interest. Pinckney v. Collie, 114-441.

An acknowledgment of indebtedness with agreement and promise to pay at the death of the payee, and then to be deducted from the share of the estate of the payee coming to the debtor, is not an advancement, but an acknowledgment of indebtedness, and a devise to such payee does not constitute an extinguishment thereof. Kinney v. Newbold, 115-145.

By arrangement between the owner of property and a son extinguishing indebtedness of the son to his father in consideration of relinquishment by the son of all interest in his estate, the son's indebtedness may be converted into an advancement, and in such case the son will have no interest in the father's estate on his death. Hickey v. Davidson, 129-384.

While interest is not usually to be computed on an advancement, the arrangement for an advancement may include indebtedness with interest accrued at the time. Ibid.

An advancement to children, made before remarrying, will not give the second wife of their father a greater interest than a one-third interest in the real property of which he is seized during coverture. Burgoon v. Whitney, 121-76.

The right to treat an indebtedness of the heir to the ancestor as an advancement is not affected by a discharge of the heir in bankruptcy. In re Estate of Russell, 129-498.

The doctrine as to advancements is not applicable where the prospective heir takes title to property of the ancestor without the knowledge of the latter. Moore v. Scruggs, 131-692.

If a legacy is given by a parent or one standing in loco parentis and the testator afterwards makes an advancement or gift of money or property of the same kind to the same beneficiary, the presumption will arise that the gift was intended in satisfaction or substitution for the prior legacy, and unless this presumption is rebutted, an ademption in full or pro tanto, as the gift is equal to or less than the prior benefit, will occur. Davis v. Close, 104-261.

SEC. 3384. Illegitimate children—inherit from mother.

An illegitimate child inherits from the mother, and the fact of the mother's death before descent cast will not prevent the child from inheriting her share of the estate which would otherwise have descended to her. Johnson v. Bodine, 108-594.

SEC. 3385. From father.

The recognition required by this section is sufficient if it is extensive, though not universal. The words "general and notorious" should be construed with reference to the circumstances and surroundings of the parties. And held that the evidence in a particular case was sufficient to show such recognition as to entitle an illegitimate son to inherit. Van Horn v. Van Horn, 107-247.

Recognition in another state will entitle an illegitimate son to inherit from his father, although the laws of such state do not provide for such inheritance. Ibid.

A statute as to inheritance by illegitimates must, like other statutes in derogation of the common law, be liberally construed with a view to promote its object and assist the party in obtaining justice. Ibid.

The burden of proof to establish the parentage and recognition required rests upon the child claiming the right to inherit. Watson v. Richardson, 110-673.

Evidence in a particular case held not sufficient to establish such recognition in writing as to entitle the claimant to inherit. Ibid.

Declarations of the putative father are competent to show general or notorious recognition, but such evidence must be carefully scrutinized. In a particular case held that the evidence of such recognition was not sufficient. Evidence of current rumors or reports, where the putative father lived at the time of the birth of the illegitimate child, to the effect that such child belonged to him, is admissible to show paternity. Ibid.

The recognition contemplated by the statute is not recognition as prospective heir, but recognition as an illegitimate child. If the conditions required by the statute exist at the time of the death of the ancestor the child is entitled to inherit under this section. It is immaterial that the recognition antedated the enactment of the statutory provision authorizing inheritance by illegitimates thus recognized. Alston v. Alston, 114-29.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to show such recognition as to entitle an illegitimate son to inherit. Ibid.

The right of an illegitimate child, duly recognized, may be interposed in a partition proceeding to which the legitimate heirs of the deceased are parties. Ibid.

Declarations in letters to an illegitimate child held to amount to such recognition as to entitle the child to inherit from the person who, by the letters, admitted himself to be her father. Britt v. Hall, 116-564.

In a partition proceeding held that the evidence of recognition was sufficient to entitle the illegitimate child to a share in the estate of his father. Morgan v. Strand, 133-299.

Evidence of recognition in particular cases held not sufficient. Brown v. Iowa Legion of Honor, 107-439; Markey v. Markey, 108-373; McCorkendale v. McCorkendale, 111-314; Duffy v. Duffy, 114-581.

SEC. 3386. Heir or beneficiary causing death or disability. No person who feloniously takes or causes or procures another so to take the life of another shall inherit from such person, or receive any interest in the estate of the decedent as surviving spouse, or take by devise or legacy from him, any portion of his estate; and no beneficiary of any policy of insurance or certificate of membership issued by any benevolent association or organization, payable upon the death or disability of any person, who in like manner takes or causes or procures to be taken the life upon which such policy or certificate is issued, or who causes or procures a disability of such person, shall take the proceeds of such policy or certificate; but in every instance mentioned in this section, all benefits that would accrue to any such person upon the death or disability of the person whose life is thus taken or who is thus disabled shall become subject to distribution among the other heirs of such deceased person, according to the foregoing rules of descent and distribution in case of death, and in case of disability the benefits thereunder shall be paid to the disabled person. [29 G. A., ch. 135, § 1.]

Prior to the amendment of this section dower right. In re Estate of Kuhn, 125-449. held it did not apply to the widow's

CHAPTER 5.

OF ACCOUNTING AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

SECTION 3394. Report.

The oversight and direction of the settlement of estates is committed to the district court, and its discretion in determining whether the executor shall be required to make final report and close the estate, will not in general be interfered with. Wheeler v. Long, 128-643.

Decisions of the court as to intermediate reports are not conclusive, so as to prevent the correction of mistakes therein, when the final report is presented. In re Estate of Smith, 133-142.

The allowances of a claim against the estate by a special administrator in favor of a general administrator, which is approved by the court, cannot be attacked by exception to the final report. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

Where the executor has made use of the funds of the estate in his own business he should account for interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum, with annual rests. In re Brown's Estate, 113-351.

The administrator may be allowed valid claims paid, although not filed against the estate. In re Estate of Pennock, 122-622.

SEC. 3398. Mistakes corrected.

Mistakes in settlement may be corrected at any time before final settlement, and the provisions of the next section limiting the time within which application may be made to open up accounts settled in the absence of parties in interest, held to have no application to mistake or fraud in the settlement of the administrator's intermediate accounts. Dorris v. Miller, 105-564.

An action in equity may be maintained to correct a final settlement in a probate proceeding which has been entered through mistake. Tucker v. Stewart, 121-714.

Where the administrator, by falsely reporting the assets of the estate in his hands, induces the guardian of minors interested in the distribution of the estate to accept his note without security, and thereby procures his discharge as administrator, such fraudulent settlement may be set aside in an action in equity. Tucker v. Stewart, 121-714.

SEC. 3399. Settlement contested.

Where the executor uses money of the estate in acquiring property in his own name, a settlement based on a report in which he claims credit for such property as belonging to the estate should be set aside. In re Brown's Estate, 113-351.

The office of exceptions to executor's report is not to demand affirmative relief, but to call the attention of the court to errors of admission or commission in the statements of the account. The report and the objections form the issues to be tried and involve no more than the correctness of the account presented by the executor as such. The individual liability of the executor is not involved. Ibid.

Intermediate orders are not conclusive in a final contest as to the correctness of the accounts of the administrator. In re Mannig's Estate, 111 N. W. 409.

If money received from the estate is in fact used for its benefit, mismanagement of the affairs of the estate will not defeat the right to recover the money so used, unless the claimant is a party to such mismanagement. Ibid.

Mistakes in settlements by administrators may be corrected at any time before final settlement and discharge and the correction may include the allowance of the attorney's fees to the administrator although approved on a prior ex parte application. In re Estate of Sawyer, 124-485.

Liability of an administrator for conversion of the property of deceased must be determined in proceedings relating to his accounting, and cannot be made the subject of an action against him by a special administrator subsequently appointed. Garretson v. Kinkead, 118-383.

A claimant is not estopped from questioning the correctness of the report of an executor, or by the acts of attorneys representing such executor, although they may for some purposes also represent the claimant. In re Cummings' Estate, 120-421.

Where an order has been made for an allowance of support to the widow, and the money has been paid over in accordance with such order, the action of the court should not be questioned, even for fraud, after the lapse of two years or more. Busby v. Busby, 120-536.

SEC. 3400. Discharge.

The report of the executor should not be approved where it appears that he still has funds to distribute. Lippert v. Lippert, 110-550.

The settlement of the final accounts of an executor and his discharge, terminate his power as to real estate, which, by the provisions of the will, he is directed to convert into money. Final settlements seldom, if ever, involve the title and right to possession of realty. Boland v. Tiernay, 118-59.

After an administrator has been garnished on a claim against the estate, he cannot secure a discharge without reporting such contingent liability and thus defeat the claim without rendering himself personally liable. Geiger v. Gage, 111 N. W. 804.

SEC. 3403. Notice of order—publication. When the court shall make an order affecting an executor or administrator, and it cannot be personally served upon him, service thereof may be made by publication of a notice, stating the substance of such order, in some newspaper published in the county where such order was made, once each week, for four weeks in succession, which publication may be proved as in case of original notice. [C., '73, §§ 2479-80; R., §§ 2474-5.] [31 G. A., ch. 9, § 10.]

SEC. 3405. Failure to account.

This section imposes a penalty which accrues to the estate immediately upon the default of the executor, and if the probate court has not exonerated the executor for the default he cannot be heard in an action against him on his bond to set up an excuse. Lippert v. Lippert, 110-550.

SEC. 3415. Compensation.

The compensation provided for by statute does not cover services in making investments, passing on the value of securities, and transacting like business for deceased, but additional compensation cannot be awarded where there is no evidence offered as to the value of such additional services. Fitzgerald v. Paisley, 110-98.

An allowance to executors of an annual salary for services in addition to the statutory compensation will not be held to include the percentage; and such allowance will be held to apply to past as well as future services, where not otherwise specified, as it is not necessary that such salary be fixed in advance. Anderson v. Sabin, 132-507.

Compensation received by executors in excess of that fixed by statute will be presumed to be for extraordinary services unless the contrary is shown. Ibid.

The statutory allowance of compensation is not intended as a mere bonus or retainer leaving the administrator at liberty to charge and collect the reasonable value of his services in addition thereto. If anything farther is allowed, it is only for necessary extraordinary expenses and services and on good reasons clearly shown to the court. In re Estate of Sawyer, 124-485.

Attorney's fees incurred by an executor in a proceeding to construe the provisions of the will may properly be allowed out of the funds of the estate, but where the purpose of the application by a devisee to have the will construed is to have his right to a share under the will established, there is no occasion for allowing attorney's fees as against the estate. In re Nicholson's Will, 123-630.

The statute authorizes an allowance to an administrator for his actual, necessary and extraordinary expenses which would include attorney's fees for services rendered the administrator, but the attorney rendering such services has no claim therefor against the estate. Clark v. Sayre, 122-591.

An attorney is not entitled to compensation out of the estate for services rendered to an administrator in an attempt to perpetuate himself as administrator of the estate, the effort to secure such appointment being unsuccessful. Dorris v. Miller, 105-564.

Generally speaking, an executor or administrator is not prima facie chargeable with interest during the time the law allows for collecting the estate and settling the accounts, which is usually one year after administration is taken. Ibid.

No liability on the part of the administrator, such as will defeat his right to compensation, attaches by reason of mere mistake of judgment as to the property which he is entitled to control. In re Estate of Ring, 132-216.

SEC. 3422. Notice of application for discharge.

There is no provision of statute for notice to other persons than parties interested in the estate of the application of an executor or administrator for discharge. Potter v. Brentlinger, 117-536.

PART THIRD.

CODE OF CIVIL PRACTICE.

TITLE XVIII.

OF PROCEDURE IN COURTS OF ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

CHAPTER 1.

OF PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS.

SECTION 3424. Proceedings.

Every proceeding in court is an action, and the word "action," as employed in this section has a technical meaning. Morris v. Lowry, 113-544.

An action is a proceeding in court. The cause of action is the fact or facts that justify it or show the right to maintain it. It is every fact necessary to be proven if traversed in order to support the right to a judgment. It does not comprise every piece of evidence which is necessary to prove each fact, but every fact which is necessary to be proved. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-660.

SEC. 3425. Civil and special actions.

Unless particularly provided for, a jury is not usually allowed in a special proceeding. In re Bradley, 108-476.

An action of forcible entry and detainer is a special proceeding. Herkimer v. Keller, 109-680.

The proceeding under Code § 3826 to compel an attorney to account is a special proceeding. Union Bldg. & Sav. Ass'n. v. Soderquist, 115-695.

SEC. 3426. Forms of actions.

The fictions of the common law have been abolished and procedure for actions of right as well as other actions is prescribed by statute. Bevering v. Smith, 121-607.

The plaintiff is required to make a statement of the facts constituting his cause of action, and a demand for the relief to which he considers himself entitled, and the fact that he states two inconsistent causes of action cannot be made a ground of objection to the judgment rendered if the question is not raised in proper time and manner. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

SEC. 3427. Equitable proceedings.

One who desires to recover money paid for land, on the ground of fraud or mistake, may tender a reconveyance and bring action at law. He has no occasion for relief in equity. Watson v. Bartholomew, 106-576.

Not every action for an accounting is cognizable in equity. Citizens' Bank v. Whinery, 110-390.

Where there was an agreement that the case should be tried in equity, but the record disclosed subsequent entries showing waiver of a jury, without reference to such agreement, held that it did not sufficiently appear that the case was transferred to the equity docket. Ibid.

An instrument absolute in form may be shown to be a mortgage in an action at law as well as in equity, and fraud of this character relied on does not necessitate the transfer of a law action to the equity docket. Frick v. Kabaker, 116-494.

Although equity has general jurisdiction of the settlement of partnership affairs, yet if in a partnership settlement one partner has withheld from the settlement specific money or property the other partner may sue for his interest therein at law. Erret v. Pritchard, 121-496.

Parties may be tenants in common of mining property without being partners and in such case an action by one against the other for profits and proceeds is not necessarily an equitable action. Doyle v. Burns, 123-488.

In an action to recover for different items of indebtedness not forming part of a continuous account, it is not necessary for transfer the case to the equity side of the docket. Mayo v. Halley, 124-675.

The equitable action of interpleader may still be maintained although not expressly authorized by the statute save in actions of replevin. (See Code § 3487.) Hoyt v. Gouge, 125-603.

An application for admeasurement of dower may be made in a probate proceeding, and when so made is to be determined at law. Brandes v. Brandes, 129-351.

SEC. 3428. Action on note and mortgage.

A general judgment on a note does not merge the mortgage secured thereby. Smith v. Moore, 112-60.

SEC. 3431. Ordinary proceedings.

This section distinguishes the method of trial in ordinary and in equitable proceedings, but does not necessarily imply a jury trial in special proceedings. In re Bradley, 108-476.

Plaintiff who is entitled to maintain an action at common law should not be required to proceed in equity. Van Norman v. Modern Brotherhood, 111 N. W. 992.

SEC. 3432. Error—effect of.

Forms of action are not controlling, and one who has brought his adversary into court is entitled to any remedy which the court can afford in any form of action, if the defendant makes no objection to the procedure. Smith v. Haas, 132-493.

If the case when commenced is well founded and presents an issue properly triable in equity, the court will have jurisdiction, although the equitable ground of relief is removed, and the court will retain the case for final judgment. Heath v. Halfhill, 106-131.

An equity action changed by amendment so as to ask only for the recovery of damages at law may still be tried in equity, in the absence of a motion to transfer it to the proper forum. Lough v. Estherville, 122-479.

Where, after the submission of the case on equitable issues, the plaintiff is allowed to amend his petition so as to convert his action into one at law, the submission should be set aside and the case tried by ordinary proceedings. Hartwig v. Iles, 131-501.

The objection that an action commenced in equity is cognizable only at law cannot be raised by demurrer. McCormick

Har. Mach. Co. v. Markert, 107-340; McClure v. Dee, 115-546.

An objection to the form of proceeding cannot be first raised on appeal. Des Moines Sav. v. Morgan Jewelry Co., 123-434.

The objection that a proceeding should have been in probate instead of in equity is not jurisdictional. Easton v. Somerville, 111-164.

Where no objection is raised to the form of action in the trial court, and the petition discloses and the evidence tends to establish a right in the plaintiff to claim a recovery of the amount sued for, the appellate court is not justified in denying relief because the remedy was not sought in the proper forum. Blondel v. Ohlman, 132-257.

The plaintiff is not entitled to have his action instituted in equity transferred to the law docket on the filing of an amended petition which asks recovery only at law, if the evidence has already been taken by deposition, and the opposite party would be entitled to a continuance if the action were to be tried at law. Saunders v. Wells, 112 N. W. 205.

SEC. 3434. How corrected by defendant.

The fact that defendant in an action at law asks an injunction by way of cross-action does not require the transfer to the equity docket of a proceeding by motion to dissolve such injunction. Brody v. Chittenden, 106-340.

The action of the court in improperly overruling a motion to change the forum will be a ground for reversal. But where the issues in an action commenced in equity are such as must be tried by the court without a jury in an action at law, a refusal to sustain a motion to transfer, even though erroneous, will be error without prejudice. McCormick Har. Mach. Co. v. Markert, 107-340.

The plaintiff cannot, after issue joined, be taken against his will out of a forum in which his action was properly brought, when he has done nothing to disqualify himself from proceeding therein. Therefore held that where the action was properly brought in equity to foreclose an attorney's lien, the defendant could not, after filing his answer, by releasing the lien under the provisions of Code § 322, insist on the transfer of the case to the law docket. Crissman v. McDuff, 114-83.

Where the action is properly brought in equity, a defendant has no right to trial by jury of a law issue presented by his answer. Ibid.

SEC. 3435. Equitable issues.

Where the equitable issues are such as to dispose of the entire controversy it is not error to proceed with the trial of the action as in equity. Twogood v. Allee, 125-59.

The fact of the pendency in the same court of an action at law involving the same subject-matter does not prevent the court in an equitable case from determining issues arising in that case. Clinton v. Shugart, 126-179.

In a law action issues cognizable in equity may be transferred to the equity docket, but the issues at law in such case should not be so transferred. Johnston v. Robuck, 104-523.

Where the trial of the issues at law will practically settle all matters in controversy such issues should be first tried. Ibid.

That the pleadings in an action at law set out facts which, if true, would entitle plaintiff to equitable relief is immaterial so long as such relief is not demanded. Boyce v. Allen, 105-249.

An issue is not equitable within the meaning of the statutory provision as to changing the forum so long as the relief asked or the defenses interposed are not equitable. Ibid.

Where an equitable defense is pleaded to a law action, while that issue may be tried by the court, the right of plaintiff to a jury trial on the case he presents is not affected. Tufts v. Norris, 115-250.

Error in transferring the case to the equity docket when the issues are properly determinable at law will not be a ground for reversal if the judgment rendered is such as must necessarily have been rendered under the evidence had the case been allowed to remain on the law docket. Rat-tray v. Talcott, 124-398.

[Substitute for the paragraph in the Code notes to this section which purports to state the case of Carey v. Gunnison, 65-702, the following:]

If the defense of mistake, which might be interposed in an action at law, involves facts which might also be made the ground for equitable relief, then such facts may be set up in an equitable answer, and the issue arising on such answer will be triable to the court. Carey v. Gunnison, 65-702.

SEC. 3437. Errors waived.

Where the objection to an equitable action is as to the forum in which it is brought and not to plaintiff's right to maintain it, the failure to move to transfer to the proper docket will be a waiver, but not where the plaintiff could not maintain his action in equity because he has a plain, adequate and speedy remedy at law. Such objection may be urged even for the first time in the supreme court. McLachlan v. Gray, 105-259.

Defendant in an action in which equitable relief is asked may object to the maintenance of the action on the ground that no such relief can properly be given. He is not required to move for a transfer of the case to the law docket on the theory that it is improperly brought in equity, even though damages in an action at law might be recovered for the wrong done. Cooper v. Cedar Rapids, 112-367.

Where the relief sought in an action might be awarded either at law or in equity, by failing to ask for a transfer of the action to the equity docket, any error in the proceedings of the case on the law docket is waived. No suit is to be dismissed or abated because of an error in the kind of proceedings. Matthews v. Lures Drug Co., 110-231.

Where a case is tried without objection in equity, it is properly triable de novo on appeal. Clearfield Bank v. Olin, 112-476.

No objection being made in the trial court to the forum in which the action is brought, the objection that it should have been in probate instead of in equity cannot be raised on appeal. Filkins v. Severn, 127-738.

SEC. 3438. Uniformity of procedure.

This section does not necessarily require a jury trial in special proceedings. In re Bradley, 108-476.

Proceedings in an action of forcible entry and detainer are to be governed by the rules applicable to ordinary actions. Herkimer v. Keller, 109-680.

SEC. 3439. Actions on judgments. No action shall be brought upon any judgment against a defendant therein, rendered in any court of record of the state, within fifteen years after the rendition thereof, without leave of the court, for good cause shown, and on notice to the adverse party; nor on a judgment of a justice of the peace in the state within eight years after the same is rendered, unless the docket of the justice or record of such judgment is lost or destroyed; but the time during which an action on a judgment is prohibited by this section shall not be excluded in computing the statutory period of limitation for an action thereon. The provisions of this section shall apply to all judgments rendered after the taking effect of the code of 1873, and prior to the taking effect of the code of 1897, but the time within which an action may be brought on any judgment rendered during said period, which would otherwise be barred by this amendment, is hereby extended one year after the taking effect hereof. [C., '73, § 2521.] [29 G. A., ch. 137, § 1.]

Such provision in the Code of '73 did not operate to extend the statutory period of limitation on judgments rendered before that code took effect. Wilson v. Tucker, 105-55.

The change in the statute made by the addition of the last clause to this section in the present Code is not applicable to judgments rendered more than twenty years before the taking effect of the Code. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108-695.

The change in this section as adopted in the present Code is not applicable to judgments already rendered. Norris v. Tripp, 111-115.

The case of Weiser v. McDonald, 93-772, is followed with reference to the judgment of a justice of the peace rendered before the taking effect of the Code. Parks v. Norton, 114-732.

Unless an action on a judgment of a justice of the peace rendered prior to the taking effect of the Code of '97 is brought within the time limited by that Code, it must have been brought within one year after the taking effect of 29 G. A., ch. 137. Haugen v. Oldford, 129-156.

The time during which an action may be maintained on a judgment is now limited to the five years intervening between the expiration of the fifteen years from the rendition and the twenty years therefrom when the same is barred, and this change in the statute which reduces the period of limitation as to actions on judgments is not unconstitutional as applied to judgments rendered before the amended statute took effect, as a reasonable time for bringing action on such judgments is preserved. Wooster v. Bateman, 126-552.

SEC. 3439-a. Repeal. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed. [29 G. A., ch. 137, § 2.]

SEC. 3440. Judgments not annulled in equity.

A court of equity cannot modify a judgment rendered in an action by ordinary proceedings. Hornish v. Ringen Stove Co., 116-1.

SEC. 3443. Actions survive.

This action does not create a new cause of action for an injury causing death, but only provides that the cause of action of the party who dies shall pass the administrator as assets of the estate. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109-224.

An action for an injury causing death may be brought by the administrator of the deceased without regard to whether the person entitled to the estate of the deceased is a non-resident alien. Romano

v. Capital City Brick & Pipe Co., 125-591; Rietveld v. Wabash R. Co., 129-249.

The right of action for an injury causing death accrues to the estate, and the wife cannot maintain in her own name an action for injuries resulting to her from causing the death of her husband. Major v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 115-309.

The surviving husband has no right of action against one whose negligence or wrong has resulted in the instant death of the wife. Seney v. Chicago M. & St. P. R. Co., 125-290.

To support a recovery in an action for injuries causing death it must be shown that the death was caused by the wrongful act of the defendant. Pearson v. Wilcox, 109-123.

In an action instituted by the administrator in behalf of the estate to recover damages for injuries to the deceased causing his death, there can be no recovery on account of pain suffered during the interval between the injury and the death. Jacobs v. Glucose Sugar Refining Co., 140 Fed. 766.

The right of a vendee under a contract to convey survives to his representatives. Cone v. Cone, 118-458.

The assignment of choses in action is

SEC. 3445. Actions by or against legal representatives—substitution.

Where on the death of plaintiff his administrator was ordered to be substituted, but the case proceeded to judgment in the name of the original plaintiff without such substitution being made, held, that afterwards by a nunc pro tunc entry the court could cure the defect and validate proceedings under such judgment. Hunt v. Johnston, 105-311.

In a contest over the probate of a will relating to personal property, the administrator or executor of a contestant should be substituted on his death. Such contest authorized by this section, and in an action by the assignee thereof the debtor can only interpose such defenses as existed in his favor and against the assignor before notice of the assignment. See Code § 3461. Peterson v. Ball, 121-544.

But it is doubted whether wages to be earned under a contract to labor for an indefinite period at a specified rate of wages is assignable as to wages to be earned in the future, so as to render the employer liable to the assignee for wages so earned. Ibid.

The right of action for damages for breach of contract survives to the executor, and the action therefor may be maintained by him. Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner, 112 N. W. 820.

SEC. 3446. Construction of code provisions.

A statute in derogation of the common law must be liberally construed with a view to promote its objects and assist the parties in obtaining justice. Van Horn v. Van Horn, 107-247.

Statutory provisions as to grounds for cannot be carried on in the interest of the deceased by his widow and heirs. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122-423.

The sum recovered by the personal representatives of one who has through the negligence of another received injuries causing his death will be distributed according to the law of the state where the injury causing death was inflicted. In re Estate of Coe, 130-307.

a new trial do not necessarily include the power of the court to grant new trials, such as has been generally exercised under the common law system. Tathwell v. Cedar Rapids, 122-50.

CHAPTER 2.

OF LIMITATION OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 3447. Period of.

I. In general—effect: The defense of the statute of limitations is not a dishonorable one and it is not libelous to charge a debtor with having escaped the payment of his just debts by interposing such a defense. Hollenbeck v. Hall, 103-214.

The bar of the statute does not destroy the cause of action but merely suspends the remedy. German American Sav. Bank v. Hanna, 124-374.

A statute of limitations is a statute of repose. It takes away the right to maintain an action, but does not pay or cancel the obligation of the debt. Although the action thereon is barred the indebtedness may afford sufficient consideration for a new promise to pay. Spilde v. Johnson, 132-484.

In equity: Equity will apply its rules as to the effect of delay and laches in analogy to the statute of limitations. Adams v. Holden, 111-54.

The statute of limitations is applicable to actions in equity as well as to actions at law. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 92 N. W. 857.

In an action at law, mere delay or acquiescence will not bar the action unless prolonged for the statutory period, save where there is presented the elements of an estoppel, but in equity, laches or acquiescence may bar recovery although the delay has not been for such a length of time as that the action would be barred by the ordinary statute of limitations. Doyle v. Burns, 123-488.

Change of statute: While the new limit may constitutionally be made applicable to causes of action already existing, provided a reasonable time is allowed after the statute takes effect in which the action may be brought, yet the general rule of construction is that such a statute will be given a retrospective effect only where it appears that such was the intention of the legislature. Waples v. Dubuque, 116-167.

The period of limitation may be changed by the legislature at pleasure with reference to causes of action already existing, provided that, if they are shortened, the bar is not immediate, and a reasonable time remains in which to sue, but contract limitations such as those which are usually inserted in policies of fire insurance cannot be impaired by subsequent legislation. Farmers' Co-op. Creamery Co. v. State Ins. Co., 112-608.

While it is true that the statute of limitations relates only to the remedy, and may be changed from time to time, without impairing the obligation of contracts, yet the legislature has no power to cut off the remedy, or bar a suit upon an existing cause of action instantan. A reasonable time must be given within which to prosecute an existing cause of action under the new statute. Therefore, held that the last clause of Code § 3439 before its amendment by 29 G. A., ch. 137, was not applicable to judgments rendered more than twenty years before the Code took effect, and as to which, under the section as it previously stood, and as construed in Weiser v. McDowell, 93-772, there was still a right to bring suit. Cassady v. Grimmelman, 108-695.

The reduction of the period of limitation as to an existing contract or judgment is not an impairment of the obligation of contracts if a reasonable time is preserved during which an action may be maintained, and in determining the reasonableness of time preserved the period elapsing between the enactment of the statute and its taking effect may be considered. Wooster v. Bateman, 126-552.

It is not competent for the legislature by a statute of limitations to take away all remedies existing upon causes of action. Norris v. Tripp, 111-115.

Must be pleaded: The plea of the statute of limitations can be raised only by answer, where the allegations of the petition show that the claim is not barred. Goring v. Fitzgerald, 105-507.

The statute of limitations cannot be relied upon under an answer interposing only a general denial. Belken v. Iowa Falls, 122-430.

Where the bar of the statute is not raised by demurrer, nor otherwise, it will be regarded as waived. In re Estate of McMurray, 107-648.

The court should not submit the statute of limitations to the jury as a defense unless it is pleaded, and a judgment for defendant founded on a verdict returned on that ground will be set aside, even though facts on which such plea might have been founded appear in the record. The statute is deemed waived if not pleaded. McDonald v. Bice, 113-44.

The bar of the statute of limitations must be specially pleaded and cannot be raised by motion to direct a verdict. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126-313.

Pleading by amendment: Where the original petition states a complete cause of action, and the amendment states another, the two causes of action being so distinct that either could be established without reference to the facts alleged in the other, the two causes of action are distinct, and the one stated in the amendment will be barred if the time for suing thereon has elapsed when the amendment is filed, although the action was commenced before the bar had become complete. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-666; Taylor v. Taylor, 110-207.

But an amendment to conform the pleadings to the facts may properly be made to save the cause of action which it was attempted to plead in the first instance. Taylor v. Taylor, 110-207.

Where a substituted petition sets up a cause of action, of the same nature, but not founded on the same facts, the cause of action is not to be deemed the same, and if the substituted petition is not filed within the statutory period, the cause of action therein pleaded is to be deemed barred. Brooks v. Seevers, 112-480.

A party cannot by amendment to his pleading set up a new cause of action which is barred at the time the amendment is filed, although it would not have been barred if set up in his original pleading. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122-302.

Therefore held that where a surety who had paid a note filed a claim against the estate of the principal on the note itself, and subsequently, after his cause of action as surety against his principal was barred, amended his claim so as to show the facts, his claim as thus amended could not be maintained. Ibid.

In an action brought to charge defendant as a member of a firm on an account, an amendment to the petition charging him individually on such account, does not state a new action in such sense that it cannot be made after the period of limitation has run. Pad-den v. Clark, 124-94.

An amendment filed after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation may be considered if it does not set up a new cause of action, but only amplifies the grounds of specifications germane to the cause of action as originally pleaded. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129-747.

In case of disability: After the statute of limitations once commences to run it is not tolled by the subsequent disability of him in whose favor the cause of action exists. Black v. Ross, 110-112.

Therefore held that insanity of a debtor, after a cause of action against him had accrued, would not extend the statute of limitations. The provisions of Code § 3453 with reference to limitation of actions against an insane person apply only to causes of action accruing during disability. Ibid.

When the statutory period has commenced to run against a cause of action it will not be suspended on account of the subsequent death or insanity of the person to whom the right of action has accrued. Roelegsen v. Pella, 121-153.

In case of death: The running of the statute of limitations is not interrupted by the death of the creditor. In general the statute may not be suspended after it has commenced to run. At any rate, mere denial of liability will not have the effect of suspending the running of the statute. Mereness v. First Nat. Bank, 112-11.

The running of the statute of limitations is not affected by the death of the debtor. Widner v. Wilcox, 131-223.

Although there is no statutory provision that the death of the debtor shall toll the statute of limitations, the inability of the creditor to enforce his claim after the debtor's death until in the regular course of administration an executor or administrator has been appointed before whom the claim may be filed, will prevent the bar of the statute accruing during such interval. Alice E. Mining Co. v. Blanden, 136 Fed. 252.

Actions by married women: The statutory provisions, as to limitation of actions contain no exceptions in behalf of married women in regard to actions against their husbands. In re Estate of Deaner, 126-701.

Estoppel: Where a person holding a cause of action is assured by the person against whom the claim exists that the statutory limitation will not be interposed, pending negotiations for settlement, with the intention that the former shall rely on such assurance, and he does so, the person against whom the claim exists cannot in a subsequent suit on such claim interpose the bar of the statute which has accrued during the time when the person holding the claim was reasonably relying on the assurance of the other party that no such claim would be made. Holman v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 117-268.

A defendant who by his own acts or conduct leads the plaintiff to delay the commencement of suit, though there be no express waiver of the limitation, is estopped from availing himself of the provisions of the statute by way of defense. Goodwin v. Merchants' & Bankers' Mut. Ins. Co., 118-601.

Application of payments: In applying the statute of limitations to successive items of indebtedness, payments are to be credited, in the absence of any special direction or application, in the order in which the items accrue. Marion Water Co. v. Marion, 121-306.

When commences to run in general: Where the petition does not state the exact time of the breach, but is based upon a promise which is continuing, a demurrer that the cause of action is barred will not lie. Rime v. Rater, 108-61.

The limitation of action against an indebtedness to be paid in the future does not commence to run until the obligation to make payment arises. Harrison v. Harrison, 124-525.

In cases of fraud: The action by a creditor to subject property fraudulently conveyed by his debtor to the payment of his claim accrues when he has notice of the fraud, and he must bring his action within the statutory period from that time. Stubblefield v. Gadd, 112-681.

Proceedings to subject property to the satisfaction of a judgment must be brought within five years. Applegate v. Applegate, 107-312.

So long as the owner is non-resident the action will not become barred. Ibid.

An action based on fraud is barred in five years unless the running of the statute has been prevented by the fraud not being known to or ascertainable by the injured party. Shircliffe v. Casebeer, 122-618.

In cases of trust: The statute of limitations does not begin to run in favor of a person holding property in trust until he has actually repudiated the trust. Zunkel v. Colson, 109-695.

The statute of limitations does not begin to run against a trust until there has been some denial or repudiation of it by the trustee. Smith v. Smith, 132-700

A cause of action to recover a fund alleged to be held in trust for the plaintiff does not accrue until demand has been made or the trust repudiated. Widner v. Wilcox, 131-223.

Where a grantee in a conveyance which is in fact a mortgage receives full payment of the debt, he thereupon becomes a trustee, and cannot plead the statute of limitations for the purpose of securing or holding title, unless he has done some act indicating the disaffirmance of the trust. Adams v. Holden, 111-54.

The statute does not begin to run as against an action to establish a trust in real property until the right of the party insisting on the establishment of the trust has completely accrued. Percival-Porter Co. v. Oaks, 130-212.

The rule that the statute commences to run against an action for fraud from the time of the commission of such fraud does not apply to a case where the grantee takes title to property charged with a constructive trust. In such a case the statute only commences to run from the disavowal of the trust. Newis v. Topfer, 121-433.

Continuing actions—nuisance: Where an obstruction, placed by a city or town in its streets, is not of a character necessarily permanent, and is without authority, such obstruction is to be considered not a permanent but a continuing nuisance with reference to a property owner injured thereby. Pettit v. Grand Junction, 119-352.

The repeated obstruction of a street by unlawfully allowing trains to stand thereon is a continuing nuisance on the part of the railroad company, and the statute of limitations does not bar an action to restrain its continuance. Gilcrest Co. v. Des Moines, 128-49.

The act of the owner of a dominant estate in so draining his land as to cast surface water upon servient estate otherwise than in the course of nature, constitutes a continuing nuisance, and not a permanent nuisance, and although the injury has continued for more than five years, there may be a recovery for the damage suffered within the five-year limitation. Jones v. Stover, 131-119.

A tile drain constructed by a land owner discharging water on the premises of an adjoining land owner without right, is a continuing, and not a permanent nuisance, and action therefor is not barred within the statutory period after the construction of the drain. Costello v. Pomeroy, 120-213.

A ditch through which there is no permanent or constant flow of water and which naturally tends to fill up and disappear is not such a permanent structure that all the recoverable damages resulting from conducting water through it upon the lands of an adjoining owner accrue at the date of construction. Geneser v. Healy, 124-310.

The fouling of a stream by sewage constitutes a continuing nuisance, and a person injured thereby may recover for damage suffered within the five years preceding the bringing of the action. Vogt v. Grinnell, 133-363.

A nuisance created by a city by polluting a neighboring stream with sewage, such stream not being the stream into which the sewer directly empties, is a continuing and not a permanent nuisance, and right of action for continuance of the nuisance may be maintained without regard to the time when the nuisance was commenced. Bennett v. Marion, 119-473.

The wrongful discharge of sewage upon the land of a private owner is not a permanent but only a continuing nuisance and an action may be maintained for damages resulting within five years although the sewers through which the wrong is effected have been in existence more than five years. Vogt v. Grinnell, 123-332.

In case of partnership: The statute of limitations as to an action by one partner against another for a share of the profits of their partnership does not commence to run until the termination of the partnership relation. Petty v. Haas, 122-257.

Under a contract for winding up the business of a partnership in which it is agreed that each member is to be liable to the other for such assets of the firm as he may reduce to possession, the statute of limitation does not commence to run from the time of the making of the contract, but rather from the time liability thereunder accrues. Varnum v. Winslow, 106-287.

Contract to pay after death: Where an indebtedness is made payable out of a person's estate, the statute does not begin to run until the death of the obligor. Bennett v. Lutz, 119-215.

Breach of covenant: The statute of limitations does not commence to run against a cause of action for substantial damages for breach of covenant of warranty until such damages are actually sustained. Foshay v. Shafer, 116-302.

The right of action for substantial damages under a covenant against encumbrances does not accrue until the encumbrance has been broken by the enforcement of the lien which constitutes the encumbrance. McClure v. Dee, 115-546.

On contingent liability: Where an action is based upon a contract, the maturity of which depends upon the happening of a contingency, the cause of action accrues only when the contingency happens. Grouse v. Moody, 130-320.

Extension of time: No cause of action accrues until the expiration of any valid extension that may be given on a note. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129-65.

Postponing demand: A ward has a right to an accounting upon reaching his majority, and cannot, by postponing the demand therefor, extend the period of limitation. Ackerman v. Hilpert, 108-247.

The running of the statute cannot be postponed by failure to make demand. Bonbright v. Bonbright, 123-305, 98 N. W. 784.

A party cannot toll the statute of limitations by delay in making his demand, when demand is a condition precedent to the right of action. Collman v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 133-177.

The period of limitation against an action on a certificate of deposit does not commence to run until demand, and such demand need not be made within the statutory period of limitation; (overruling Mereness v. First National Bank, 112-11.) Elliott v. Capital City State Bank, 128-275.

Concealment: If the facts, which a recorded deed shows, with other facts known, are of a character to suggest fraud, persons interested must be charged with the knowledge which inquiry made with reasonable diligence would disclose. Clark v. Van Loon, 108-250.

The mere deception practiced by the debtor in denying liability will not constitute such concealment as to prevent the running of the statute of limitations. Mereness v. First Nat. Bank, 112-11.

The statute does not begin to run where the cause of action is fraudulently concealed until the facts are discovered or might have been discovered by the exercise of diligence. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114-632.

In cases where concealment and ignorance of facts are relied on to suspend the running of the statute there must have been such concealment as would prevent a person exercising due diligence from discovering the facts. Murray v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 92 Fed. 868.

Fraudulent concealment of a cause of action prevents the running of the statute of limitations. Faust v. Hosford, 119-79.

Where persons stand in reference to each other as principal and agent, and the agent commits an actual fraud upon the principal, mere silence upon his part amounts to a fraudulent concealment. The burden in such cases is on the defendant to show plaintiff's knowledge of the fraud. Ibid.

Limitation in particular cases:

Par. 1. For injuries from defects in roads or streets—notice: The provision for notice is applicable in a case where the injured party has survived more than three months after the injury, and action in behalf of his estate is subsequently brought for the same injury by his administrator. Sachs v. Sioux City, 109-224.

This provision is applicable where the injury originated in the neglect of the municipality to properly construct or maintain a bridge; for a bridge is properly a part of the street. Ibid.

The object of the statute as to notice is to apprise the city authorities of the location of the defect and the circumstance attending the accident with such reasonable certainty as shall enable them not only to investigate the city's liability while the facts are fresh, but also to ascertain what evidence there may be of conditions then existing, and of the character of the injury while witnesses are at hand. A notice by plaintiff's attorney to defendant demanding a settlement of his claim, not containing any statement of the place or circumstances of the injury, is not sufficient. Giles v. Shenandoah, 111-83.

Where an action was brought within ninety days on a claim against the city for defective sidewalk, and the original notice specified the time, place and circumstances of the injury, held that this was sufficient notice to entitle the plaintiff to recover in another action brought after the expiration of six months. Pardey v. Mechanicsville, 112-68.

Reasonable certainty as to the place is all that is required in the notice. Rusch v. Dubuque, 116-402..

Notice of the accident, giving time, place and circumstances in reasonably specific terms, is sufficient. Perry v. Clarke County, 120-96.

While the circumstances of the injury are to be stated in the notice, the statute does not require the causes which produced the injury to be enumerated. McCartney v. Washington, 124-382.

Recovery by the claimant at least to the extent of the damage specified in the notice of claim is not defeated by asking in the petition to recover more than the amount claimed. Van Camp v. Keokuk, 130-716.

The fact that the notice includes more than is necessary under the statute and alleges more than one defect, does not render it insufficient. Bauer v. Dubuque, 122-500.

Where the primary proof of notice to the city is shown to have been lost, secondary evidence is admissible. Considine v. Dubuque, 126-283.

Notice of claim against a city for personal injuries may be served by taking acknowledgment of service upon the mayor and city solicitor. McCartney v. Washington, 124-382.

This provision is not applicable to cities under special charter, but a similar provision expressly applicable to such cities is found in Code § 1051. Kenyon v. Cedar Rapids, 124-195.

Code § 1051, containing provisions similar to those of this paragraph, held applicable only to cities under special charter. Harvey v. Clarinda, 111-528.

The provisions of Code § 1050 as to the limitation of claims for unliquidated damages against special charter cities, held not applicable to claims existing at the time the Code took effect. Thoeni v. Dubuque, 115-482.

Under Code § 1051, relating specifically to cities under special charter, and containing provisions similar to those found herein, it is sufficient if the notice states the nature and cause of the injury and the defect or negligence complained of. No amendment to the notice is provided for and the statute should have a liberal construction to the end that parties having meritorious claims shall not be cut off by mere technicality as to the form of notice required. Schnee v. Dubuque, 122-459.

Want of notice must be pleaded: The defense that a claim for unliquidated damages has not been made within thirty days is an affirmative one, and to be available the facts constituting it must be pleaded. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126-313.

The objection that action against a city for personal injuries received on account of defective streets is not brought within six months after the happening of the injury and that no written notice of the claim has been given is one that must be urged in the lower court, otherwise it cannot be considered on appeal. Reed v. Muscatine, 104-183.

It is not competent under a general denial in an action against a city to recover damages for personal injuries occasioned by a defective sidewalk, to urge for the first time on appeal the insufficiency of the notice given within sixty days from the happening of the injury. Belken v. Iowa Falls, 122-430.

Amended pleading: The plaintiff cannot recover under an amended petition filed more than ninety days after the injury, for injuries which are not included within the notice of claim. Ulbrecht v. Keokuk, 124-1, 97 N. W. 1082.

Where within sixty days an action is brought for personal injuries due to defective sidewalk, and the place of the accident is described, an amendment after the expiration of sixty days, slightly changing the description of the place of the accident, but not describing any different place than that mentioned in the original petition, is proper. Sachra v. Manilla, 120-562.

Dismissal of action: Where an action against a city for injuries received from a defective sidewalk is brought within three months, no previous notice of the claim need be shown. But if such action is afterwards voluntarily dismissed, a new action will be barred, unless it is within the provisions of Code § 3455, providing that if after the commencement of an action plaintiff, for any cause except negligence in its prosecution, fails therein, and a new one is brought within six months thereafter, the second shall be held to be a continuance of the first. Ceprely v. Paton, 120-559.

In instituting the second action the burden is on plaintiff to allege and prove such diligence in prosecuting the first action as to bring the case within such provisions. Ibid.

The running of the statutory period is not affected by the fact of the insanity of the person injured occurring after the injury and before the bringing of the action. Roelfsen v. Pella, 121-153.

Par. 3. For statutory penalty: An action to recover three times the excessive charge of a common carrier, as authorized by 22 G. A., chap. 28, § 9, held, to be an action for a penalty which must be therefore brought within two years (following Herriman v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 57-187, and distinguishing Koons v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 23-493). Baker Wire Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 106-239.

For injuries to relative rights: An action on a liquor seller's bond for damages to a wife by reason of sales to her husband is based on an injury to the relative rights of the wife, and should be brought within two years. O'Banion v. DeGarmo, 121-139.

An amendment made more than two years after the cause of action has accrued alleging sales in a different locality than that specified in the bond sets up a new cause of action and is barred. Ibid.

Par. 5. Against sheriff or other public officer: While the action against a sheriff for wrongful levy upon property is barred in three years, yet an action on an indemnifying bond given by the execution plaintiff to protect the sheriff may be brought within ten years. Whitney v. Gammon, 103-363.

An action against a clerk of court for omitting to index a judgment to plaintiff's damage must be brought within three years, and the time within which it may be brought is not extended under the provision of Code § 3448 with reference to actions for relief on the ground of mistake. Lougee v. Reed, 133-48.

Par. 6. Unwritten contracts—other actions: The right of one joint obligor to recover against the other for his share of payments made on the joint obligation is barred in five years. Novak v. Dupont, 112-334.

An action on an implied contract brought by a surety to recover indemnity from the principal is barred in five years after payment. Van Patten v. Waugh, 122-302.

The limitation as to actions on unwritten contracts and for injuries to property is applicable to a case where the owner of a party wall asks an accounting of the adjoining owner who has made use of such wall. Pier v. Salot, 107 N. W. 420; 111 N. W. 989.

Par. 7. On written contracts: A written agreement on the back of a certificate of assessment for street improvements, by which the property owner undertakes to pay the amount of the assessment in installments, is a written contract upon which action may be brought within ten years from the maturity of the demands called for. Talcott v. Noel, 107-470.

A suit to foreclose a mortgage is barred in ten years, and as the rights of mortgagor and mortgagee are reciprocal, redemption under a mortgage will be cut off in the same time. Adams v. Holden, 111-54.

The action to foreclose a mortgage is not barred so long as the debt secured may be enforced. Freeburg v. Eksell, 123-464.

The taking of a judgment for the debt does not discharge the mortgage lien. Ibid. A mortgage is not barred so long as the debt is unpaid and enforceable. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129-65.

The rights of the mortgagee by foreclosure as against other lien holders is not barred until the statute has barred the debt secured by such mortgage. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127-450.

It appearing that defendants had become liable on subscriptions for stock in the corporation of which plaintiff was receiver, and that on sale of their stock to third parties their liability became that of guarantors for the payment of the corporate debts of the company to the amount of their unpaid subscriptions whenever such debts should be ascertained and the corporate property exhausted, held that as defendant's liability was upon the guaranty, the statute did not commence to run as against the same until the debts of the corporation were ascertained and its property was exhausted. Wyman v. Bowman, 127 Fed. 257.

The guardian's principal undertaking to account for funds received by him is a contract, and an action for failure to account for funds so received is an action for breach of contract within the statute of limitations. Blakeney v. Wyland, 115-607.

An action in the federal court on coupons from bonds issued by a municipality is governed by the state statute, and coupons maturing more than ten years prior to the commencement of the action are barred. Reynolds v. Lyon County, 97 Fed., 155.

For recovery of real property—adverse possession—in general: While it will be presumed that possession of land extends to the entire tract covered by the occupant's claim of right, such presumption will not prevail as against actual adverse possession by another of a portion of the tract covered by such claim, of which possession the claimant of the entire tract has knowledge. Libbey v. Young, 103-258.

Adverse possession must be shown to sustain the plea of the general statute of limitations in an action to recover possession of real property. Gill v. Candler, 114-332.

Adverse possession cannot be predicated upon a mistake in describing the land which both parties supposed to be included in the deed. Lougee v. Shuhart, 127-173.

Where possession of land is taken under the belief that it is part of a tract which is purchased, which belief is not in accordance with the facts, the possession will not constitute adverse possession. Kahl v. Schmidt, 107-550.

From the time a railroad company is entitled to a certificate under a grant adverse possession as against it commences to run, although the legal title remains in the government. Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. Fehring, 126-1.

What acts sufficient: The acts of ownership relied on to constitute adverse possession, when there is no actual occupancy, must be such as are necessary to the enjoyment of the use, and to acquire the profits the land may yield in its present condition. Stern v. Fountain, 112-96.

Acts of ownership sufficient to constitute adverse possession of uncultivated land are such acts as are necessary to the enjoyment of its use in its present condition and to acquire the profits which such lands would yield. Rogers v. Turpin, 105-183.

Claim of right—color of title: Title by adverse possession can in no event be acquired by mere possession. There must be an honest claim of right or color of title. Biglow v. Ritter, 121-213.

Possession to be adverse under the statute of limitations must have been held in good faith by the claimant. If he knows that he has no title or claim, and his possession is merely wanton, his occupancy, no matter how long continued, will not ripen into a title. Clark v. Sexton, 122-310.

Possession is presumptively subordinate to the title of the true owner, and the burden is on the party claiming by adverse possession to show that such possession was hostile, which necessarily involves knowledge, either express or implied, on the part of the true owner that such possession was adverse and under claim of right and under color of title. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118-106.

If possession is originally acquired in subordination to the title of the true owner, there must be a disclaimer of the title from him, and actual hostile possession, of which he has notice, or which is so open and notorious as to raise a presumption of negligence. Ibid.

If one enters upon land with the owner's permission, expecting merely that the owner will give it to him in the future, such entry and possession will not constitute a hostile holding. Ibid.

Where the defendant has not been in possession of the property in dispute, no cause of action can be deemed to have accrued against him unless he has in some other way asserted some right thereto. Mead v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 112-291.

An adverse holding under good faith claim of title is sufficient, although there is record notice that the title is defective. Severson v. Gremm, 124-729; 100 N. W., 862.

A deed, though made by one having no authority to convey, is sufficient to support a claim of adverse possession, provided such possession was in good faith. Roth v. Munzenmaier, 118-326.

Title by adverse possession is sufficient to support an equitable action, under Code § 1440, to redeem from a tax sale prematurely made, notwithstanding the provisions of Code § 1445 that a person claiming adversely to a tax deed must show fee simple title. Ibid.

Possession under a tax deed which is absolutely void may nevertheless constitute sufficient color of title to serve as the basis for a claim of adverse possession. McCash v. Penrod, 131-631.

One may claim under color of title, though his grantor has no real or apparent title to the premises, and a conveyance from one in possession is sufficient consideration for a claim of right and color of title on the part of the grantee, even though the grantor had no title whatever. Blankenhorn v. Lenox, 123-67.

For the purpose of showing claim of right and color of title, a conveyance in writing need not be proven. Parol evidence of sale may be sufficient, when accompanied by possession. Ibid.

Title by adverse possession may be acquired as against all those who claim under a grant of land which takes effect in praesenti, although such possession is not adverse against the government until the issuance of a patent. Blumer v. Iowa Railroad Land Co., 129-32.

Adverse possession under a tree culture claim may be sufficient to ripen into title if held in good faith, although the claimant is mistaken in his belief that the claim made by him is sufficient. Possession under such claim is adverse to all other claims to the property, although not adverse to the government. Ibid.

Where plaintiff entered upon public land as a homestead claim, held that his possession after title was passed by the government under a railroad grant and his entry was canceled was adverse. Wilbur v. Cedar Rapids & M. R. Co., 116-65.

Possession under a conveyance purporting to convey absolute title and taken in good faith is sufficient to support a claim of title by adverse possession, although the grantee had knowledge at the time of accepting the conveyance that there was the possibility of adverse claim to the property in the future. Wenger v. Thompson, 128-750.

Where one is in possession of property claiming as owner under a recorded deed, such possession constitutes notice to adverse claimants such as to support the bar of the statute of limitations. McCarthy v. Colton, 108 N. W. 217.

Possession by one tenant in common is presumptively for his co-tenants as well as himself and not adverse to them and the burden is on him to show that it was adverse for the required length of time to give him title as against them under the statute of limitations. He must show that the possession was with the intent to hold adversely and such intent must be indicated by acts calculated to exclude the co-tenants. Bader v. Dyer, 106-715.

Exclusive occupancy by one tenant in common, accompanied by acts and declarations of ownership, if known to his co-tenant, will amount to an ouster. Notice may be shown by circumstantial evidence. Casey v. Casey, 107-192.

The defense of adverse possession by one tenant in common against another or his grantee must be based upon a disclaimer of the common ownership, and an open assertion of title in hostility thereto. Mere continuance in possession is not sufficient, nor is it sufficient that the party claiming under adverse possession has made use of the property not inconsistent with the common interest of the other tenant or his grantee. Garst v. Brutsche, 129-501.

The possession of a tenant in common is not adverse to his co-tenants until he has in some unmistakable manner given to such co-tenants notice or sufficient reason to know that he claims the property adversely. Zunkel v. Colson, 109-695.

Possession under a sheriff's deed for the interest of one tenant in common does not constitute ouster as to a co-tenant. To constitute such ouster there must be actual notice of claim of title, followed by hostile acts under such claim. Curtis v. Barber, 131-400.

Possession by one tenant in common may be under such assertion of absolute, entire and exclusive ownership as to constitute an ouster against his co-tenant, and cause the statute of limitations to commence to run in favor of the tenant asserting such right of possession. Blankenhorn v. Lenox, 123-67.

Before the statute of limitations will commence to run as between co-tenants there must be an ouster and in fact adverse possession. Ordinarily the making of a deed by one co-tenant purporting to convey the entire title will amount to an ouster. Stern v. Selleck, 111 N. W., 451.

A conveyance by one of several co-tenants of the entire premises constitutes an ouster of co-tenants, and continued possession under such conveyance under color of title and claim of ownership, for the period of limitation, bars the co-tenants. Murray v. Quigley, 119-6.

As between joint owners, continued possession by one will prevent the running of the statute of limitations in favor of the other. Truth Lodge, etc., v. Barton, 119-230.

One co-tenant or his grantee may work an ouster and disseisin of his co-tenants and, having held adverse possession under a claim of right or color of title for the period of the limitation, may assert full title and evoke the bar of the statute in protection thereof. For this purpose an actual ouster must be made to appear, but proof of actual physical eviction is not necessary. Crawford v. Meis, 123-610.

So the grantee of a life tenant may so dispute or assail the title of a remainder man as that the latter failing for the statutory period to assert his disputed title will be barred by the statute. Ibid.

Against remainder man: Title by adverse possession may accrue against a remainder man not yet entitled to possession, as under the statutory provision relating to actions to quiet title such remainder man has an interest which he may protect by an action. Hubbird v. Goin, 137 Fed. 822.

Grantor and grantee: The mere fact of retention of possession by the grantor after delivery of a conveyance and the making of improvements on the premises by such grantor, does not of itself amount to adverse possession. Luckhart v. Luckhart, 120-248.

A grantor remaining in possession after conveyance is presumed, in the absence of a contrary showing, to be holding in subordination to the title of his grantee. He may acquire title by adverse possession, even as against his warranty deed, but he must explicitly disclaim holding under his grantee, and openly assail his title in hostility to the title claimed under his own previous deed. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118-106.

The continuance in possession by the grantor after the conveyance is not adverse as to the grantee. Garst v. Brutsche, 129-501.

Trustee and CESTUI QUE TRUST: At law the cestui que trust is regarded as a tenant at will to the trustee, and until this tenancy is terminated there can be no adverse possession. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118-106.

Landlord and tenant: A tenant cannot deny or dispute his landlord's title, and this rule obtains even if the tenant is in possession at the time the lease is made. One who acquires a leasehold interest in land of which he is in possession does an act which so explains his previous possession as to rebut any subsequent claim that it was adverse. McClenahan v. Stevenson, 118-106.

Railroad right of way: One who purchases and goes into possession of premises, subject to a railroad right of way, does not by continuance of such possession acquire a better right than his grantor had with reference to such right of way, regardless of representations made by the grantor as to extent of the right of way, such representations not being known to the railroad company. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Snyder, 120-532.

Agreed boundary: acquiescence: The fact that owners of adjoining tracts of land have for many years occupied up to a line, supposed to represent the boundary between them, and have acquiesced in such boundary, is a strong circumstance to show the correctness of such boundary line. Corey v. Ft. Dodge, 118-742.

The boundaries recognized by parties at the time of a conveyance and with reference to which they subsequently occupied the property adversely to each other becomes binding after the statutory period of adverse possession, and will control the description. Dows Real Estate & Trust Co. v. Emerson, 125-86.

Acquiescence in a certain line, with possession up to it for a period of ten years, is conclusive evidence of an agreement as to the true line, and will bind the parties concerned. Axmeare v. Richards, 112-657.

Where a division line between adjoining owners has been acquiesced in by them for a period of ten years, an agreement to make it the true boundary will be implied, and neither may ordinarily be heard to dispute it. Kulas v. McHugh, 114-188.

Occupancy to a line of trees planted upon what the parties agreed was the boundary line, held to be adverse, although it subsequently appeared that there was a mistake as to the location of the line. Handorf v. Hoes, 121-79.

Where for a period longer than the statute of limitations, property owners whose premises abut on opposite sides of a highway, have occupied to the boundaries of the highway, as fixed by them, one of them cannot afterwards complain that the boundaries of the highway are not in accordance with its true location. Buch v. Flanders, 119-164.

If co-terminal owners have adopted another line than that of the government survey as their division line, and have occupied up to it and recognized it as such for a period of ten years, then such line is to be regarded as the boundary line. Miller v. Mills County, 111-654.

Where the owner of a government subdivision of land erected a fence and subsequently planted a hedge on what he claimed to be his line, and cultivated to such fence, and the adjoining proprietor likewise in cultivation recognized the fence as the boundary line, and this claim and recognition continued for ten years, held that the first party had acquired title by adverse possession to a strip of land included by his fence beyond the true boundary of the subdivision of land to which he had title. Fullmer v. Beck, 105-517.

Where a division line between two tracts of land has been definitely marked by the erection and maintenance of a fence, which has been recognized by the owners as the division line, and to which they have occupied and cultivated land, without objection, under a claim of ownership, for more than ten years, the line so established is the division line between such tracts. Lawrence v. Washburn, 119-109.

Where adjoining property owners improved their property with reference to a line run by a surveyor and continued to occupy their respective premises with reference to such line for the statutory period of limitation, held that such line had become the boundary line by adverse possession and acquiescence, and could not be disturbed on account of a subsequent survey showing that the agreed line did not correspond with the actual line. O'Callaghan v. Whisenand, 119-566.

The boundary line between the two premises having been established for a part of its distance by reason of acquiescence in the making of improvements, held that the boundary line would be deemed to be a straight line determined by the portion of it thus established. Ibid.

Occupation to a boundary line, acquiesced in by the parties as being founded on a claim of right, is adverse regardless of whether the boundary by acquiescence is the true boundary. Klinkner v. Schmidt, 114-695; Rattray v. Talcott, 124-398; Klinkefus v. Van Meter, 122-412; Harndon v. Stultz, 124-734; Watson v. Hogan, 130-350; Yunker v. White, 111 N. W. 824; McBride v. Bair, 112 N. W. 169.

A boundary line up to which each party has occupied for more than ten years is not to be questioned by a re-survey. The purpose of the surveyor should be to locate the line as originally located. Bevering v. Smith, 121-607.

Where adjoining owners treat a division fence as marking the line between their lands, and so recognize it for the statutory period of limitations, it will ordinarily be held to constitute the true boundary, and a mere agreement to have a re-survey made which does not bind either party to an acceptance of the result will not overthrow the boundary line as established by acquiescence. Andrews v. Meredith, 131-716.

Acquiescence in a definite line as the true boundary for the period of limitations is binding upon the parties, and is not negated by the showing of a mere oral agreement to have a survey made to ascertain and establish the true line, there being no subsequent acquiescence in the result of such survey. Uker v. Thieman, 132-79.

To give rise to title by adverse possession to the common boundary line it must appear that the claim of title by possession to such boundary line has continued for the statutory period or for such length of time and under such circumstances as to raise an inference that the boundary has been settled by acquiescence. Hootman v. Hootman, 133-632.

Neither failure of the boundary line, as determined from a survey based on the description in a plat or conveyance, to correspond with the line established by acquiescence, nor the fact that the line established by acquiescence is not a straight line, such as is called for in the description, furnishes such controlling circumstances as will defeat a claim of title based on acquiescence in a boundary line. Laughlin v. Francis, 129-62.

The doctrine of adverse possession as distinguished from acquiescence in a common boundary line does not apply where the party claiming title has not been in the exclusive hostile possession to the boundary line contended for, and is not shown to have had an intent to claim to such boundary line, regardless of the true boundary. Boltz v. Colsch, 109 N. W. 1106.

Possession to be adverse must have been uninterrupted and hostile. Ibid.

Where a survey is had to ascertain the line, and the line thus ascertained is treated as the correct one, under the belief that it is so, possession of such land will not be adverse of any portion of the adjoining tract which by mistake has been included within the premises. Kahl v. Schmidt, 107-550.

In the absence of proof of acquiescence in the boundary line indicated by a fence, one of the adjoining owners is not estopped by proof of the existence of such fence from showing the true line. Erikson v. Slate, 130-187.

The mere fact that there is a fence upon a line claimed by one of the parties as a boundary line between adjoining properties is not conclusive upon the question of acquiescence or adverse possession. But if it appears that the two adjoining owners have by parol fixed a line or acquiesced in it as a common boundary line, such line is conclusive, although the possession with reference thereto may not have been for the full statutory period. Kitchen v. Chantland, 130-618.

Where the boundary line has been in dispute, adverse possession by acquiescence does not arise. Liddle v. Blake, 131-165.

The doctrine of acquiescence in a common boundary does not apply where there is no showing that the fence designating such boundary as originally built was intended as a designation of the boundary line, or that the parties have ever treated it as designating such boundary. Boltz v. Colsch, 109 N. W. 1106.

An oral agreement creating an easement, while it may not be enforceable against a subsequent purchaser without notice, is sufficient for the foundation of a claim of right, which may ripen into good title by adverse usage. O'Reagan v. Duggan, 117-12.

Use of a right of way, with permission of, and without claim of right in hostility to the owner is not adverse possession. Friday v. Henah, 113-425.

The burden of proof as to adverse possession is on the party claiming in hostility to the title, and in case of an easement by grant, the adverse possession must consist of assertion of right as against the claim under the grant, continued for the statutory period of limitations. Reed v. Gasser, 130-87.

Husband and wife: It is doubtful if the husband may under any circumstances hold adversely to his wife, especially where the property is a homestead. The possession of husband and wife is the possession of the one in whom is the legal title. Hays v. Marsh, 123-81.

Recovery of dower: The wife's right of action for dower out of lands conveyed by her husband during coverture in which she is not joined does not accrue until the death of the husband, and until that time the statute of limitations does not commence to run as against such right. Lucas v. Whitacre, 121-251.

The action of a widow against the grantee of her husband for the recovery of her dower interest in land conveyed by her husband during coverture, without her joinder in the conveyance, does not accrue until the death of the husband. Lucas v. White, 120-735.

The possession of the grantee of the husband under a conveyance in which the wife has not joined to extinguish her dower right becomes adverse as to the wife's dower right twenty days after the death of the husband. (See Code § 3369.) And the widow's action to assert her right to a distributive share in such property must be brought within ten years thereafter. Britt v. Gordon, 132-431.

The right of a widow to recover her distributive share of her husband's property does not accrue until ouster, or some denial on the part of the heirs of her husband or their grantees of her right. Mere possession on the part of such heirs or grantees is not adverse and does not give rise to a right of action. But where the widow's action is against strangers, who claim the entire title and estate under a deed from the husband under which they have been in actual possession, the widow's right of action accrues immediately upon the death of her husband, and the statute begins to run in favor of such adverse claimants. Britt v. Gordon, 132-431.

Against public: Public by adverse possession alone cannot be acquired against the public. The public may be estopped by its conduct, but the statute of limitations will not run against the sovereign or its agencies. The only basis for an estoppel as against the public is conduct of the officers having authority with relation to the subject-matter in standing by and permitting improvements to be made on property which belongs to the public. Biglow v. Ritter, 121-213.

The statute of limitations does not apply to a city so as to prevent its exercise of governmental functions; but the doctrine of acquiescence in a certain line as being the true line is applicable to municipalities as well as to private individuals. Eldora v. Edgington, 130-151; 106 N. W. 503.

As against the state holding title to the beds and banks of navigable rivers for the public, there can be no adverse possession. Board of Park Commissioners v. Taylor, 133-453.

Ordinarily the rule of adverse possession does not apply to a public corporation in the exercise of its governmental function. Vorhes v. Ackley, 127-658.

As to streets: The statute of limitations will not run to defeat the city in the exercise of its governmental authority with reference to streets. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Council Bluffs, 109-425

While it may be that the statute of limitations as to real property does not run against a claim of a city to premises belonging to it as a street, yet it may so deal with the property, by recognizing the rights of another as owner thereof, as to estop itself from asserting the title thereto. The exaction of public charges against the property as belonging to a private owner will constitute such estoppel. Davenport v. Boyd, 109-248.

The owner of a lot abutting on the street does not acquire title by adverse possession as against the city to the strip of land between his lot line and the sidewalk, by mere occupancy. Markham v. Anamosa, 122-689.

While mere non-user for the statutory period will not constitute an abandonment by a city of a street duly laid out, yet, where there has been such non-user, accompanied by actual and notorious possession of the land by an individual as private property, under a claim of right, an abandonment will be presumed, and the public right in the street will be held to be extinguished. Weber v. Iowa City, 119-633.

One who claims the right to an alley, shown on the plat to be a public alley, and as to which there have been proceedings by the town for dedication, although irregular, and makes improvements thereon accordingly, may rely upon such possession, continued for a sufficient length of time, as giving title by adverse possession. Blennerhasset v. Forest City, 117-680.

Par. 8. Judgments of courts of record: In the absence of any statutory limitation in the state in which a judgment is rendered, an action on such judgment brought in this state will be barred only under the provisions of the statute of limitations in this state. Mahoney v. State Ins. Co., 133-570.

The fact that the indebtedness on which a foreign judgment was rendered was barred at the time of bringing the action cannot be urged as a defense against the judgment rendered on such cause of action. Tomlin v. Woods, 125-367.

The rule adopted in Weiser v. McDonnell, 93-772, has no application to a judgment rendered before the Code of '73 went into effect. Wilson v. Tucker, 105-55

The act of the 29 G. A., chap. 137 (Code Supplement § 3439), reducing the period of limitation for actions on judgments rendered prior to the taking effect of the Code, is not unconstitutional, as it preserves to the holder of the judgment a reasonable time within which his action may be maintained. Wooster v. Bateman, 126-552.

Under the provisions of 29 G. A., chap. 137, actions on judgments rendered prior to the taking effect of the Code of 1897 must be brought within the limitation prescribed by the Code, unless brought within one year after the taking effect of that statute. Haugen v. Oldford, 129-156.

(In the Code notes to this section, on page 1245, second column, the reference for the case of Auchampaugh v. Schmidt, should be, 70-642, instead of 72-656. In the last paragraph on page 1248, second column, the word "stay" in the sixth line should be "start.")

SEC. 3447-a. Time of bringing action. That in all cases where by the death of the party to be charged, the bringing of an action against his estate shall have been delayed beyond the period provided for by statute the time within which action may be brought against his estate, is hereby extended for six months from the date of the death of said decedent. [31 G. A., ch. 151.]

SEC. 3447-b. Recovery of interest in real estate when spouse failed to join in conveyance. In all cases where the holder of the legal title to real estate situated within this state, prior to the first day of January, 1885, conveyed said real estate or any interest therein by deed, mortgage, or other conveyance, and the spouse failed to join therein, such spouse or the heirs at law, devisees, grantees, or assigns of such spouse shall be barred from recovery unless suit is brought therefor within one year after the taking effect of this act. But in case the right to such distributive share has not accrued by the death of the spouse, making such conveyance, then the one not joining is hereby authorized to file in the recorder's office of the county where the land is situated, a notice with affidavit, setting forth affiant's claim together with the facts upon which such claim rests, and the residence of such claimant; and if such notice is not filed within two years from the taking effect of this act, such claim shall be forever barred. Any action contemplated in this section may include lands situated in different counties, by giving notice thereof as provided by section thirty-five hundred and forty-four (3544) of the code. [31 G. A., ch. 152, § 1.]

SEC. 3447-c. Foreclosure of certain mortgages. No action shall be maintained to foreclose any real estate mortgage which was executed prior to January 1, 1885, unless the same is brought within one year after the taking effect of this act: provided, that this section shall not apply, in case the record of such mortgage or any extension thereof, shall show that such debt is not yet more than ten years past due, which fact may be shown, within one year from the taking effect of this act, by the holder of the debt, noting on the margin of the record of such mortgage in the recorder's office, any extension of the debt secured, such notation to be witnessed by the recorder and entered upon the index of mortgages in the name of the mortgagor and mortgagee. [31 G. A., ch. 152, § 2.]

SEC. 3448. Fraud—mistake—trespass.

The fraud referred to in this section is such as is solely cognizable in a court of equity. Daugherty v. Daugherty, 116-245.

In an action to recover on account of fraud the statute begins to run from the time the fraud is discovered. Telegraph v. Loetscher, 127-383.

For the purpose of starting the running of the statute of limitations against an action for fraud, the recording of a deed involving the fraud complained of is sufficient to constitute notice. McDonald v. Bayard Sav. Bank, 123-413.

The filing of a patent from the United States to the patentee is notice to those claiming title under such patent of any fraud involved in the issuance of the patent. Murray v. Quigley, 119-6.

Where an action is cognizable in equity by reason of the fiduciary relations existing between the parties, this section is applicable. Faust v. Hosford, 119-97.

So long as it is legally impossible to say whether or not a representation as to title of property conveyed is false, the statute does not begin to run as against an equitable action to set aside the conveyance for the falsity of such representation. Wise v. Grove, 123-585.

The statutory provision with reference to limitation of actions on the ground of fraud and mistake is applicable to such mistake as is cognizable in courts of law as well as the basis of equitable relief. But the statute commences to run against the cause of action arising from a pure mistake at the time when the mistake might in the exercise of ordinary diligence have been discovered. West v. Fry, 112 N. W. 184.

The fraud referred to in this section is such as was originally cognizable in equity, but the matter of mistake is not so limited. Therefore in case of a mistake whether cognizable in equity or at law, the action does not accrue until discovery of the mistake. Baird v. Omaha & C. B. R. & B. Co., 111-627.

This provision as to when a right of action based on mistake accrues has no application to an action to recover taxes subsequently paid by a tax purchaser on property, as to which his tax title appears to have been defective by reason of mistake of the auditor. Such an action is barred in five years from the time of payment of taxes. Lonsdale v. Carroll County, 105-452.

As against an action for the cancellation or reformation of a deed on the ground of mistake, the limitation does not commence to run until the mistake is discovered. Bottorff v. Lewis, 121-76.

Where a railroad company, claiming title to land under a railroad grant from the United States, had been notified that land certified to it had been certified under a mistake as to the legal rights of the company, held that in afterwards redeeming the land from taxes it acted at its peril, and an action to recover taxes so paid, not brought within the statutory period, was barred by the statute of limitations. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. O'Brien County, 118-582.

A cause of action to reform a conveyance on account of mistake arises immediately upon the discovery of the mistake, and if the action is not brought within the statutory period after such discovery it is barred. Garst v. Brutsche, 129-501.

In an action for money had and received predicated upon the wrongful payment by the county treasurer to the defendant school district of taxes collected on property situated in the plaintiff school district, the period of limitation commences to run from the time of erroneous payment and not from the time when the mistake was discovered. Independent School District v. Independent School District, 123-455.

The provision that actions for relief on the ground of mistake are not to be deemed to accrue until the mistake is discovered has no application to an action against a clerk of court for omitting to index a judgment. Lougee v. Reed, 133-48.

Section applied in case of mistake. Cole v. Charles City Nat. Bank, 114-632.

SEC. 3449. Open account.

An action upon open account brought within five years after the date of the last item is not barred. Padden v. Clark, 124-94.

SEC. 3450. Commencement of action.

This provision is applicable also to special statutory limitations. Smith v. Callanan, 103-218.

The provisions of this section apply only to the general statute of limitations. A right which is given to be enforced by bringing an action within a specified period is controlled by the provisions of Code § 3514, that actions shall be commenced by serving defendant with notice. (Distinguishing Smith v. Callanan, 103-218; Hawley v. Griffin, 121-667.

The delivery of an original notice to the sheriff for service does not constitute the commencement of the action where, after it has been placed in the sheriff's hands, he is unable to make service and two terms of court are allowed to intervene without further attempt to have service made. The intention that the notice shall be served must be continuous, and the effect of it is lost where the notice placed with the sheriff is abandoned. Richardson v. Turner, 110-318.

Where there is nothing in the record to disclose the service of an original notice which would interrupt the statute of limitations, and the only appearance of the defendant is the voluntary filing of an answer after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation, the date of the answer will be regarded as the time of the commencement of the action, although the petition was filed before the expiration of the period of limitation. Dolan v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 129-626.

SEC. 3451. Nonresidence.

The time during which the defendant is a non-resident of the state is not to be computed in determining the period of limitation. Davenport v. Allen, 120 Fed. 172.

In an action to subject property fraudulently conveyed to the payment of a judgment, non-residence will prevent the running of the statute until the property comes into the hands of a resident. Applegate v. Applegate, 107-312.

As against an action for partition the statute of limitations does not begin to run until there is some one within the jurisdiction of the state against whom the action might be brought. Even though the defendant had a tenant in possession of the property upon whom service might have been made, the non-residence of the owner will defeat the statute of limitations. Stern v. Selleck, 111 N. W. 451.

SEC. 3452. Bar in foreign jurisdiction.

An action for wrongful attachment in another state where the cause of action arose and the defendant resides, which is barred by the laws of that state, is also barred here. Smyth v. Peters Shoe Co., 111-388.

Where a note executed in another state is mailed to the payee in this state, in accordance with agreement, express or implied, the cause of action on such note is one arising in that state, and if barred by the law of that state where the maker resided and still continued to reside until the bar was completed, it is barred here although the payee of the note has resided in this state. Tharp v. Thero, 112-573.

A judgment by confession upon warrant of attorney rendered in another state against one who is a resident of this state may be valid although the cause of action is already barred by the laws of this state. Cuykendall v. Doe, 129-453.

SEC. 3453. Minors and insane persons.

This provision applies only to those who are under disability at the time the cause of action accrues. Such disability subsequently arising does not extend the statutory period. Roelofsen v. Pella, 121-153.

Therefore, held, that the insanity of a debtor, occurring nine years and four months after the cause of action on a contract accrued, would not extend the limitation of action on the contract. Black v. Ross, 110-112.

As against a minor the period of the statute of limitations does not become complete until the expiration of a year after he obtains his majority. Rice v. Bolton, 126-654; 100 N. W. 634.

SEC. 3455. Failure of action.

Where plaintiff's first action was dismissed on account of his negligence in not filing the petition in time for the term designated in his notice, held, that a subsequent action brought after the expiration of the statutory period of limitation but within six months from the dismissal of the first action could not be sustained. Conley v. Dugan, 105-205.

A plaintiff against whom judgment has been rendered after refusal to amend upon ruling against him, on demurrer to his petition, cannot bring a new action under this section. Gregory v. Woodworth, 107-151.

Where the plaintiff is entitled to a continuance on account of an emergency arising in the progress of the case, but instead of asking such continuance he dismisses the action, he is negligent within the language of this section. Pardey v. Mechanicsville, 112-68.

This section does not apply where the cause of action stated in the second action is different from that alleged in the first, though based on the same transaction. Whalen v. Gordon, 95 Fed., 305.

This provision has no application to a second action on a policy of insurance brought after the expiration of the limitation provided by the contract, although such action is commenced within six months of the dismissal of an action in which the plaintiff failed because it was prematurely brought. The contract provision in an insurance policy supersedes the statutory provisions. Wilhem v. Des Moines Ins. Co., 103-532. And see Harrison v. Hartford F. Ins. Co., 67 Fed. 298.

Where the first action is dismissed and the second brought after the expiration of the period of limitations, but within six months of the dismissal of an action in burden is on the plaintiff to allege and prove such diligence in prosecuting the first action as to bring the case within the provisions of this section. Ceprley v. Paton, 120-559.

SEC. 3456. Admission in writing—new promise.

The debtor cannot avoid a written admission of liability signed by him by showing that he signed the same without reading it under a misapprehension of its contents, due to statements of the attorney of the opposite party, which were not fraudulent. Bannister v. McIntire, 112-600.

Where a guardian in his written statement of account acknowledged the receipt of money as guardian, held that this was sufficient acknowledgment to extend the statute of limitations as to an action against him to recover the amount thus acknowledged to have been received. Blakeney v. Wyland, 115-607.

It is not necessary that the admission be express; it is enough if the writing clearly and unequivocally refers to the instrument in suit and clearly admits that it is not paid. Will v. Marker, 122-627.

An admission such as is contemplated by statute does not arise by mere implication. It must be clear, express and direct, with reference to the indebtedness admitted. Parol evidence is competent to connect the admission with the indebtedness referred to therein, but not for the purpose of giving rise to an implied promise to pay an indebtedness not therein referred to. Therefore held that a written acknowledgment as to one of the notes secured by a mortgage did not prevent the bar of the statute subsequently becoming effectual as to another note so secured. Finn v. Seegmiller, 111 N. W. 314.

The extension agreement may be signed by an authorized agent. Iowa Loan & Trust Co. v. McMurray, 129-65.

It is not competent by parol evidence to show that a subsequent note was given for unpaid interest on the note in suit in order to remove the bar of the statute of the limitations which can only be done by an admission in writing. Kleis v. McGrath, 127-459.

A judgment may be revived by a written admission, or a new promise. Spilde v. Johnson, 132-484.

In a particular case held that reference to the claim in a letter was sufficient to constitute a written admission or a new promise. McConaughy v. Wilsey, 115-589.

Evidence in a particular case held sufficient to identify the instrument sued on as one acknowledged by the debtor in writing as a valid obligation. Campbell v. Campbell, 118-131.

SEC. 3457. Counter-claim.

A claim which is already barred but which was held by the defendant at the time plaintiff's cause of action arose may be pleaded as a counter-claim. Richardson v. Richardson, 111 N. W. 934.

CHAPTER 3.

OF PARTIES TO AN ACTION.

SECTION 3459. Plaintiff—party in interest—exception.

Where a city provides salaries for police judge and marshal, so that the fees thereof are to go into the city treasury, the city may, as the real party in interest, bring action for the recovery of such fees in criminal cases from the county. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107-525.

One to whom a note is indorsed for collection may maintain an action thereon. Lehman v. Press, 106-389.

One to whom negotiable municipal bonds, transferable by delivery, have been delivered as agent for another, may sue thereon in his own name, being vested with the legal title, although the action is subject to any defense between the maker and the beneficial owner. Salmon v. Rural Ind. School Dist., 125 Fed. 235.

A party holding the title of an instrument may sue thereon. So, where the action was brought by a foreign receiver which could not be maintained by him as such receiver, held that as an individual to whom the cause of action sued on had been assigned he could maintain such action. Hale v. Harris, 112-372.

The assured in a contract of fire insurance may maintain an action to recover thereunder, although it has been pledged to a mortgagee. Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108-382.

With respect to contracts made by the cashier of a bank for its benefit, he may maintain an action without joining the bank, being the trustee of an express trust for the bank. Leach v. Hill, 106-171.

The trustee of an express trust may bring action without joining those for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. Zion Church v. Parker, 114-1.

Defect of parties appearing on the face of the petition is waived by not objecting thereto in the proper manner. Ibid.

The party for whose benefit a contract has been made may maintain an action thereon. Runkle v. Kettering, 127-6.

Where a contract is made for the benefit of a person not a party thereto, such third party may bring action thereon. Therefore, held that where one party authorized another to draw checks in his own name on a certain bank with the agreement that the first party would see that the checks were honored, the cashier of a bank receiving such checks had a right of action against the person who had agreed to see that the checks were paid. Leach v. Hill, 106-171.

The principle that one can sue upon the promise made to another for his benefit is confined to cases where the person for whose benefit the promise is made has the sole, exclusive interest in its performance.

SEC. 3460. Plaintiffs joined.

Several judgment creditors may join as plaintiffs in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance. Gamet v. Simmons, 103-163.

Where the claims of the insured and the person for whose benefit the policy is Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Ottumwa, 112-300.

The party with whom or in whose name the contract is made for the benefit of another may sue thereon in his own name without adding the descriptive words used by him in designating the capacity in which he acted in making the contract. McKee v. Needles, 123-195.

One who sells property to another on an agreement that its value shall be credited on the note of a third person may, on failure of the purchaser to make the credit as agreed, maintain an action against the purchaser for the value of the property. Dorr Cattle Co. v. Jewett, 116-93.

The holder of an unaccepted check may maintain an action thereon against the bank subject to the offset of any note or other claim held by the bank against the drawer (following earlier cases, but not referring to § 189 of the negotiable instruments act, supplement of 1902, § 3060-a.). Bloom v. Winthrop State Bank, 121-101.

In a contest over the probate of a will relating to personal property, the administrator or executor of a contestant should be substituted on his death. Such contest cannot be carried on in the interest of the deceased by his widow and heirs. In re Will of Wiltsey, 122-423.

A member of an unincorporated association cannot maintain an action in behalf of the association. Westbrook v. Griffin, 132-185.

An order of substitution of a trustee in bankruptcy in place of the bankrupt in an action to recover property delivered under a sale procured by fraud, does not terminate the jurisdiction of the court as to the bankrupt himself, and a judgment against him is not invalid. Kuh, Nathan & Fisher Co. v. Glucklick, 120-504.

While an action should be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, one who sues by way of substitution is subject to the burdens as well as entitled to the benefits of the action of his predecessor. Crary v. Kurtz, 132-105.

The executor named in a will cannot protest the probate of a codicil. In re Estate of Stewart, 107-117.

Where all the parties having a like interest join in the bringing of an action, the amount in controversy is the aggregate of the amounts of the claims of the different parties so joining. Comstock v. Eagle Grove, 133-589.

SEC. 3461. Assignment without prejudice.

The assignment of a chose is without prejudice to any counterclaim, defense or cause of action, whether matured or not, if matured when pleaded, existing in favor of the defendant and against the assignor before notice of the assignment. Hayes v. Clinton County, 118-569.

Since the adoption of this statutory provision, the assignee is subject not only to defenses, but also to equitable rights of set-off existing in favor of the maker of a note as against the assignor. De Laval Separator Co. v. Sharpless, 111 N. W. 438.

The assignee of a cause of action held by an insolvent bank takes such claim subject to a set-off in favor of the debtor of any deposit he may have in such bank. Little v. Sturgis, 127-298.

One who takes a negotiable instrument by assignment and not by negotiation in due course takes subject to the defenses available to the maker as against the assignor. Hecker v. Boylan, 126-162.

In an action by the assignee of a chose in action, the defendant can only interpose such defenses as existed in his favor and as against the assignor, before notice of the assignment. Peterson v. Ball, 121-544.

SEC. 3462. Defendants.

In an action against an insolvent corporation it is not necessary to make the receiver of the corporation a party defendant unless an attempt is made thereby to interfere with the right of the receiver to the property intrusted to his care. State Bank v. McElroy, 106-258.

The action of the board of a public corporation in issuing bonds cannot be annulled on certiorari where the holders of the bonds have not been made parties. Brockway v. Board of Supervisors, 133 293.

A contractor to whom bonds have been issued in payment of work is an indispensable party to a suit to restrain the further issuance of bonds to him and the collection of the taxes for the payment thereof. Tod v. Crisman, 123-693.

The surety is not a necessary party to a cross-petition in which the principal debtor seeks to assert his rights against a third person growing out of the transaction with reference to which he is sued. First National Bank v. Dutcher, 128-403.

In an action to set aside a conveyance for false representation as to title it is immaterial that a third person appearing to have some interest in the property is not made a party. Wiese v. Grove, 123-585.

Non-joinder of a necessary party plaintiff must be raised in the manner pointed where there is no controversy presented by the pleadings the determination of which will affect their rights. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110-385.

In an action on a non-negotiable instrument, brought by a transferee thereof, the defendant, who has therefore the opportunity to make as against the holder any defense which he could make against the original payee, is not entitled to have the payee and assignor of the instrument made a party. *Shambaugh v. Joinder of different parties defendant liable to the plaintiff on different causes of action is not allowable. Iowa Lillooet Gold Mining Co. v. Bliss, 144 Fed. 446.

A misjoinder or uniting of parties who should not be joined cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer, but must be reached by motion. Dolan v. Hubinger, 109-408.

If such objection is not raised by motion it is deemed waived. Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank, 110-537.

One who has conditionally paid a sum of money which is in controversy to the clerk of the court and has no further interest in its disposition, is not a necessary party to a suit with reference to the disposition of such money. Hubbard v. Ellithorpe, 112 N. W. 796.

SEC. 3465. Joint and several obligations.

If plaintiff maintains his action against one of several defendants he may have

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, a partnership contract not to engage in a particular business for a specified time, although signed by the members of the firm as individuals, will be binding only on the partnership, and not

Action against the surety on a liquor seller's bond for civil damages caused by the sale of liquor may be maintained without making the principal a party. Knott v. Peterson, 125-404.

SEC. 3466. Other parties brought in.

When the determination of a controversy between the parties before the court cannot be made without the presence of other parties, they must be ordered brought in. Farmers' Savings Bank v. Independent School Dist., 122-99.

A plaintiff may be required to bring in other defendants for the purpose of avoiding a multiplicity of actions against the same party. Stroup v. Bridger, 124-401.

Failure to bring in indispensable parties may be a sufficient ground for denying relief, although the objection is not raised in the trial court. Tod v. Crisman, 123-697.

One who is a proper but not a necessary party need not be brought into the litigation, and a failure to bring in such party cannot be complained of. Busse v. Schaefer, 128-319.

Where a party is necessary to the granting of effective relief he may be brought in, although it is not necessary for the establishment of the cause of action. Rea v. Ferguson, 126-704.

In an action to recover real property it is not proper for defendant in a cross-petition setting up adverse possession by reason of occupation to a boundary line different from that recognized by plaintiff, to bring in as co-defendants other parties owning adjoining property as to whom the same question may arise. *Klinker v. A mortgagee of personal property, sued by the mortgagor for its conversion, has the right to have subsequent mortgagees brought in. Kohn v. Dravis, 94 Fed.

Where one seeks protection against conflicting claims to the same debt or duty and has an opportunity by having a party brought in, to have the conflicting claim settled in one action at law, he has no right to the equitable remedy entered by bill of interpleader. Hoyt v. Gouge, 125-603.

financial officer of a life insurance association for the security of the funds of the association deposited by him in a bank and before action on the bond was brought he had ceased to be such officer, held that he was not a party entitled to maintain an action on such bond. Bort v. McCutchen, 147 Fed. 626.

SEC. 3468. Partnership.

The creditor of a partnership may bring an action against members of the partnership individually to charge them with a partnership debt without joining the firm, but to maintain such action the plaintiff must show that the alleged indebtedness existed. In such a case it would be a complete defense to show that as between plaintiff and the alleged members of the firm the indebtedness had been finally adjudicated not to exist. Baxter v. Rollins, 110-310.

In an action brought against a partnership it is not proper to render judgment against a member of the firm for an individual liability. Ogle v. Miller, 128-474.

SEC. 3475. Actions by state.

This provision has no relation to actions by a county or other municipal corporation, and an appeal in an action in which judgment is rendered against a county will not suspend the judgment unless a supersedeas bond is filed. Harrison v. Stebbins, 104-462.

SEC. 3476. Transfer—abatement.

Where a cause of action is transferred by assignment there is no occasion for dismissing the action, nor is the assignee entitled to intervene. His proper relief, if any, is to have himself substituted as plaintiff. Bank of Commerce v. Timbrell, 113-713.

An assignment of a cause of action after suit thereon has been instituted is not a ground for abating the action or for requiring the substitution of assignee as the party plaintiff. Mayo v. Halley, 124-675; Emerson v. Miller, 115-315; Kringle v.

Rhomberg, 120-472; Citiens' State Bank v. Jess, 127-450.

A substituted party takes up the prosecution or defense of the case at the point where the original party left it, assuming the burdens as well as receiving the benefits of the action of his predecessor. Crary v. Kurtz, 132-105.

A pending action is not abated by the discharge of the defendant in a bankruptcy proceeding subsequently instituted. Wilsey v. Jewett, 122-315.

SEC. 3480. Actions by minors.

A court acquires jurisdiction in an action brought by a minor in his own name and not by guardian or next friend and though its judgment may be erroneous because the action is not properly brought it is not void. Parkins v. Alexander, 105-74.

Therefore, where in an action brought

SEC. 3482. Defense by minor.

A judgment against an infant without defense by a guardian is clearly erroneous, and such error may be made the ground for granting a new trial under the provisions of Code § 4091. Wise v. Schloesser, 111-16.

A judgment rendered against a minor without appointment of or defense by a guardian is not void, but at most irregular. Reints v. Engle, 130-726.

The fact that a guardian ad litem appears for a minor does not render it imperative that such guardian represent the minor on appeal. The court may appoint a general guardian and authorize him to prosecute the appeal for such minor. In re Estate of Strang, 131-583.

An appointment of a guardian ad litem by a minor in his own name before a justice of the peace judgment was rendered for the plaintiff and defendant appealed to the district court, held, that the latter court had jurisdiction to allow the substitution of a next friend as plaintiff and proceed with the case. Ibid.

before the court has acquired jurisdiction of the minor is not invalid. Rice v. Bolton, 126-654.

The appointment of such a guardian is not in itself a jurisdictional matter. Ibid.

The entry of judgment without such appointment in the absence of an appearance is not void, but an irregularity only. Ibid.

The appointment of a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant will ordinarily be made upon the motion of either party, and it is to be presumed that the court appoints a proper person for such purpose. The fact that the guardian appointed does not make active defense is not in itself evidence of fraud. Harris v. Bigley, 111 N. W. 432.

SEC. 3485. Defense of insane person—appointment of guardian.

Where the insanity of a defendant is not called to the attention of the court and a judgment is rendered against him by default, no guardian ad litem being appointed nor defense made, the judgment may be set aside on petition, under the provisions of Code § 4091, relating to new trial after the expiration of the term at which the judgment is rendered. Haw-Griffin, 121-667.

A decree against a defendant who is in fact insane may be vacated, and a new trial ordered, where no guardian ad litem was appointed to defend, although the fact of insanity was not made to appear of record in the proceeding. Hawley v. Griffin, 121-667.

Where plaintiff in an action against an insane defendant is unsuccessful, compensation for the services of the guardian ad litem appointed by the court should be taxed against him as costs. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107-369.

In a proceeding by the guardian for the sale of the ward's property in which a guardian ad litem has been appointed for the ward, the guardian ad litem should plead whatever might defeat the action of the guardian. In re Guardianship of Kimble, 127-665.

SEC. 3487. Interpleader.

Although an interpleader is expressly recognized only in actions of replevin, the general statutory provision that a plaintiff may prosecute his action by equitable proceedings in all cases where courts of equity before the adoption of the Code had jurisdiction (Code § 3427), still authorizes the action of interpleader as previously recognized in equity. Hoyt v. Gouge, 125-603.

CHAPTER 4.

OF PLACE OF BRINGING ACTION.

SECTION 3491. In relation to real property.

Where the court acquires jurisdiction by virtue of the location of the real property, one who is made defendant in the action and seeks to establish his title is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Booth v. Bradford, 114-562.

An action for specific performance is transitory, unless made local by statute, and may be brought in the court having jurisdiction of the property, or in one having jurisdiction of the person only, at the option of the plaintiff. Epperly v. Ferguson, 118-47.

An action for specific performance of a contract to convey land may be brought and prosecuted in the county where the land is situated, and the defendant is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Bradford v. Smith, 123-41.

An action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of land and to quiet title thereto may properly be brought in the county where the land is situated. Donaldson v. Smith, 122-388.

A suit to set aside a deed and declare the property that of another than the grantee therein should be brought in the county where the real estate or some part of it is situated. Long v. Garey Inv. Co., 112 N. W. 550.

A court having jurisdiction of an action by an administrator regarding lands in more than one county, may on dismissal as to the lands located in the county where the action is brought retain jurisdiction to grant relief as to the lands in another county. Ibid.

SEC. 3493. To foreclose mortgage or mechanic's lien.

Although this section requires that an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage on real property shall be brought in the county in which the property to be affected is situated, nevertheless the objection that an action to foreclose is brought in another county from that in which the property is situated is not jurisdictional, and if the defendant does not move for a transfer of the action to the proper county, he cannot afterwards urge such objection. McDonald v. Second Nat. Bank, 106-517.

The statute confers on the defendant a right to insist upon a foreclosure suit being tried in the county in which the subject matter is situated, but this right may be waived by defendant. Ibid.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, properly brought in the county in which the mortgaged property is situated, one who is on cross-petition of the defendant made a party to the suit is not entitled to have the venue changed to the county of his residence. Such cross-petition and the proceedings thereunder do not constitute a separate action. Brown v. Holden, 120-191.

SEC. 3494. Local actions. Actions for the following causes must be brought in the county where the cause, or some part thereof, arose:

1. For fines, penalties or forfeitures. Those for the recovery of a fine, penalty or forfeiture imposed by a statute; but when the offense for which the claim is made was committed on a water course or road which is the boundary of two counties, the action may be brought in either of them;

2. Against public officers. Those against a public officer or person specially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue or under color of his office, or against one who by his command or in his aid shall do anything touching the duties of such officer, or for neglect of official duty;

3. On official bonds. Those on the official bond of a public officer;

4. Executor, administrator or guardian. Those on the bond of an executor, administrator, or guardian may be brought in the county in which the appointment was made and such bond filed;

5. Actions on other bonds. And actions on all other bonds provided for or authorized by law may be brought in the county in which such bond was filed and approved. [C., '73, § 2579; R., § 2796.] [27 G. A., ch. 99, § 1.] [31 G. A., ch. 153.]

SEC. 3496. Place of contract.

To authorize suit against defendant in a county other than that of his residence on the ground that the contract on which he is sued provides for performance at a particular place, the provisions must be express and not merely by implication. Bailey v. Birkhofer, 123-59.

To authorize action on a contract to be brought against a non-resident of the county on the ground that performance in the county is provided for, it must appear in terms from the agreement that there was to be a performance in such county; otherwise an application for change of venue should be granted. Moyers v. Council Bluffs Nursery Co., 125-677.

If the jurisdiction of the court depends on the fact that the contract sued upon is payable at a particular place, it is competent in a collateral attack upon the judgment to show that as a matter of fact the contract did not so provide. Cooley v. Barker, 122-440.

A bond for the payment of damages which shall be sustained by failure to perform a decree which may be subsequently rendered is not a contract to be performed at any particular place. Prader v. National Masonic Accident Ass'n, 107-431.

SEC. 3497. Against common carriers. An action may be brought against any railway corporation, the owner of stages, or other line of coaches or cars, express, canal, steamboat and other river crafts, telegraph and telephone companies, and the lessees, companies or persons operating the same, in any county through which such road or line passes or is operated. [C., '73, § 2582.] [29 G. A., ch. 138, § 1.]

SEC. 3498. Against construction companies.

The statutory provision as to venue of actions against persons engaged in the construction of railways does not authorize a suit against a sub-contractor on an oral contract for grain purchased by him to feed his team in a county other than that of his residence. Wilkinson v. McCarthy, 127-292.

SEC. 3499. Against insurance companies.

These provisions as to place of bringing suit on a policy of insurance are applicable, although as an incident to the relief sought the court is asked to reform the terms of the policy. Benesh v. Mill Owners' Mut. F. Ins. Co., 103-465.

An insurance company may be sued where the contract of insurance is made. Teller v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 108-17.

The statutory provision that an action for breach of contract of insurance may be brought in the county in which the contract was made is not to be confined in its application to actions for losses under policies of insurance, but it applies also to actions relating to the consideration for a policy. Cameron v. Mutual Life & Trust Co., 121-477.

SEC. 3499-a. Action against operators of coal mines brought in county where mine is located. An action may be brought against any corporation, company, or person, owning, leasing, operating, or maintaining a coal mine, in the county where said mine is located, on any contract, or for any tort, in any manner connected with or growing out of the construction, use, or operation of said mine. [28 G. A., ch. 121, § 1.]

SEC. 3500. Office or agency.

This section does not require that the office or agency be permanent rather than transient nor that the business carried on be a considerable share of that done by the principal. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-390.

The fact that the person served with notice was at the time representing the defendant company as secretary in the making of a contract and in determining the manner of execution thereof, held sufficient to show an agency such as to authorize the bringing of an action on a contract thus made within the county of such agency. *Thistle Coal Co. v. Where administration is granted in a county other than that of the residence of deceased at the time of his death, it is void. In such case motion for a change of venue is not necessary. In re King's Estate, 105-320.

If an action to foreclose a mortgage is brought in a county where no part of the mortgaged property is situated, it may on motion be changed to the proper county, but failure to ask for the change will be a waiver of the objection. The court is not sent the same agent with the trees to that county for delivery, in accordance with the terms of the contract, an action relating to the contract could be brought against him in that county. Wood v. Rice, 118-104; Goodrich v. Fogarty, 130-223.

This provision as to transfer of the case to the proper county has no application where suit is brought in one county to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment rendered in another county in violation of the provisions of Code § 4364. Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Huston, 115-621.

The defendant sued in the wrong county, who procures a change of venue to the proper county, is not entitled to recover personal expenses and attorney's fees in defending the case. The allowance is largely discretionary with the court. Moyers v. Council Bluffs Nursery Co., 132-98.

SEC. 3504-a. Place of bringing actions against municipal corporations. Actions against municipal corporations including cities organized under special charter in all counties where terms of the district court are held in more than one place must be brought in the county and at the place where terms of the district court are held nearest to where the cause or subject of the action originated. [32 G. A., ch. 162.]

CHAPTER 5.

OF CHANGE OF PLACE OF TRIAL.

SECTION 3505. Grounds for.

Par. 1. County a party: In an action against the county, the plaintiff has the right to change of venue to another county, and if he does not elect to have a change, he cannot challenge the jurors on the ground that they are taxpayers of the county. Wilson v. Wapello County, 129-77.

Par. 3. Prejudice: The judge is warranted in considering matters which are of his own knowledge and conviction in the disposition of a motion, and the denial of the change for prejudice of the judge will not be disturbed on appeal where the circumstances indicate that the denial was in the exercise of a reasonable discretion. Petty v. Hayden, 115-212.

Where the showing is of prejudice in the portion of the county where the transaction involved took place, it is not sufficient. State v. Moats, 108-13.

Where change of place of trial was asked on account of prejudice in the community arising from previous trials of another case involving the same facts, held that it could not be presumed that the verdicts rendered in the other cases were not the result of a fair consideration of the facts by the jury, and that they indicated passion and prejudice in the community against the defendant in that case, who was the same defendant as in the case in which the application for change was made. Croft v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 109 N. W. 723.

The showing in a particular case, held not sufficient to require change of venue on account of prejudice likely to have been created by newspaper publications. Alverson v. Anchor Mut. F. Ins. Co., 105-60.

In general: This section relates to civil actions, and not to special proceedings. Union Bldg. & Sov. Assn. v. Soderquist, 115-695.

The granting or refusing of an application for change of venue is a matter largely within the discretion of the court to which the motion is addressed, and when a showing is made which is regular in form and prima facie sufficient, the ruling of the trial court sustaining it is rarely, if ever, reversed on appeal. The correctness of the ruling of the trial court is not to be determined by comparative count of affidavits. Favre v. Manderscheid, 117-724.

SEC. 3509. When change perfected.

The making and transmission of the transcript is not the act, or one of the acts, which is necessary to perfect a change of venue. If the clerk gives a defective transcript it may be perfected within a reasonable time. Favre v. Manderscheid, 117-724.

When the papers transmitted are received into the official custody of the clerk of the court to which the change is granted, and the case is entered upon the docket of that court, the court acquires jurisdiction, and an omission of the clerk to properly note such filing can be cured by order of court. Ibid.

SEC. 3511. Costs of change.

The court having failed to designate or point out the costs to be paid as a condition for granting the change of venue, it must be assumed that there were no costs which the party was required to pay. Favre v. Manderscheid, 117-724.

CHAPTER 6.

OF THE MANNER OF COMMENCING ACTIONS.

SECTION 3514. Original notice.

The commencement of the action with regard to special statutory limitations is to be dated from the placing of the notice in the hands of the sheriff for service, the same rule being applicable as in case of the general statute of limitations under the provisions of Code § 3450. Smith v. Callahan, 103-218.

This provision is to be applied in determining whether an equitable action to redeem the lands of a minor or insane person within one year after the termination of the disability has been brought within proper time, and also in determining whether a proceeding by petition to set aside a judgment against a minor or insane person, not represented by guardian, has been commenced within one year, as required by Code § 4094. The provision in the general statute of limitations (Code § 3450), that an action shall be deemed commenced when the notice is placed in the hands of the sheriff for service, has no application in such cases. (Distinguishing Smith v. Callanan, 103-318.) Hawley v. Griffin, 121-667.

Under Code § 3450 the placing of an original notice in the hands of the sheriff for service is a sufficient commencement of the action under the statute of limitations, but the intention that the notice shall be served must be continuous, and if the sheriff returns the notice as unserved, and two terms of court are allowed to elapse without further attempt to have service made, the action is to be deemed abandoned. Richardson v. Turner, 110-318.

The holding in Fanning v. Krapy, 61-417, that whoever undertakes to give notice by publication and misnames the defendant is without excuse and the notice will not confer jurisdiction, is equally pertinent to a case of substituted service. Thornily v. Prentice, 121-89.

In an action against a married woman the original notice may be served by leaving a copy with her husband at his place of residence in case the wife is not found

SEC. 3519. Return of personal service.

Where the affidavit of service appears to have been signed by the person making it, and the notary so writes the jurat as to make use of the signed name as a part of the jurat itself, this fact does not prevent the return being considered as duly signed and sworn to. Blair v. Hemphill, 111-226.

The statutory provisions with reference to service of notice recognize no smaller governmental subdivisions than counties, filing of pleadings, etc., is to enable the parties to prepare for trial; but by consent of parties the court may have jurisdiction to try the case at the term at which the petition is filed, although proper notice of the filing of the petition has not been given. Rummel v. Dealy, 112-503.

A notice of a cause of action against two persons for goods sold and delivered to them will sustain a prosecution of action against one of them for goods sold and delivered to him alone. Padden v. Clark, 124-94.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage it is not necessary to describe the land covered by the mortgage, and therefore a mis-description in the notice of the land covered by the mortgage will not render the notice void so that the court is without jurisdiction to determine the sufficiency of the notice and to render a valid judgment. Fleming v. Hager, 121-205.

the defendant is entitled to have the case dismissed. Conley v. Dugan, 105-205.

This statutory provision does not require the dismissal of the action on the ground that the petition is not signed by the plaintiff or his attorney. First National Bank v. Stone, 122-558.

is entered against him, such judgment is at least premature, and should be set aside. Streeter v. Gleason, 120-703.

within the county, although she may have temporarily abandoned him and is not actually residing with him at the time. Galvin v. Dailey, 109-332.

Any one upon whom service may be made, may acknowledge such service; and thus service upon a municipal corporation being authorized to be made by service on the mayor or clerk, an acknowledgment of the service by mayor or clerk is binding on the corporation. McCartney v. Washington, 124-382.

and a return of service of the original notice as having been made in a particular town does not show that town to be the residence of the person upon whom service is made. Shoemaker v. Roberts, 103-681.

The return of the officer as to substitute service should correctly state the township, town or city where the service was made, and an error in such statement will render the notice ineffectual to confer jurisdiction. Thus, where the return was of service in a certain township, whereas it was in fact made in a town included within that township, held that a default rendered on such service was void. Bradley Mfg. Co. v. Burrhus, 112 N. W. 765.

The return of an officer as to service by leaving a copy held not to be overcome by the testimony of a witness, given many years afterward, based only upon his recollection. Galvin v. Dailey, 109-332.

Service of notice will be presumed from recital thereof in the judgment, and the burden is on the person attacking the judgment to overcome the presumption, which will not be done by showing facts from which merely a contrary presumption may arise, such as absence of notice from the files, or of entries in the appearance docket and fee book. Farnsley v. Stillwell, 107-631.

Where there was a recital of service in a decree, and as against that explicit denials on the part of the party alleged to have been served of the service of any notice, strengthened by other evidence, held that the finding of the lower court that there had been no service would be sustained. Miller v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 119-41.

The judgment of the court is conclusive as to whether the facts essential to jurisdiction in the particular case exist. Applegate v. Applegate, 107-312.

Where a return showed service on defendant's son but it did not appear that defendant was not found within the county or that a copy was left at his usual place of residence or that the son was a member of his family or over fourteen years of age, held that such return showed no service whatever, and not simply defective service. Thompson v. Thompson, 117-65.

Return of service "by leaving a copy of notice with Paul Thornily, over 15 years of age, his son," held not sufficient to show service upon the defendant. Thornily v. Prentice, 121-89.

A return of substituted service which states that the notice was left with the defendant's wife is sufficient, without naming her. Hass v. Leverton, 128-79.

In a particular case held that evidence of want of service of notice in pursuance of which a judgment was rendered was sufficient to overcome the presumption of service arising from the rendition of the judgment and from entries on the appearance docket and fee book showing return of service, the original of the sheriff's return not being introduced in evidence. Shehan v. Stuart, 117-207.

A judgment may be collaterally attacked for want of jurisdiction when there is no notice, as, for instance, where the notice is by publication without the previous filing of an affidavit as required in such cases. But where there is a notice supported by a proper preliminary proceeding, the sufficiency of which is subject to construction and upon which the court must judge of its own jurisdiction, the judgment is good until set aside in some direct proceeding. Priestman v. Priestman, 103-320.

Where there is an attempted service, and the question is whether the forms of law were complied with, the case is one of defective service, and not want of service. Longville v. May, 115-709.

A judgment which is void for want of service may be set aside at any time. Spencer v. Berns, 114-126.

Where the service of notice is merely informal or defective the judgment is not subject to collateral attack. Thornily v. Prentice, 121-89.

If the notice is defective merely, such defect cannot be taken advantage of in an action on the judgment. Tomlin v. Woods, 125-367.

A non-resident who has come into this state for the purpose of attending a trial in an action to which he is a party, is privileged from the service of civil process in another action. Murray v. Wilcox, 122-188.

SEC. 3524. Proof of service—patients in hospital for insane.

The entry of judgment on a return purporting to be made by a deputy sheriff, and not under oath, is not conclusive that the person making such return had authority to do so, and parol evidence is admissible to show that no such service was ever made, and that the court was therefore without jurisdiction of in entering the judgment. Buck v. Hawley, 129-406.

A judgment rendered upon service of notice upon an insane person without compliance with the special provisions as to service in such case is not absolutely void, but voidable. Day v. Goodwin, 104-374.

SEC. 3525. Superintendent may acknowledge service.

Acknowledgment of service on an insane person by the superintendent of a hospital for the insane in which such person is confined is authorized. And in a particular case, held that the acknowledgment was sufficient although there was a variance in name, there being no question as to the identity of the person to be served. In re Estate of Strang, 131-583.

SEC. 3528. Service on county—presentation of claims.

Where a city provides salaries for police judge and marshal, and the fees of such officers therefor become payable to the city, and such fees in criminal cases are to be paid by the county, the filing with the county auditor of transcripts showing that such fees have been earned, is a sufficient demand against the county to enable the city to recover the fees in an action. Des Moines v. Polk County, 107-525.

The acceptance of a portion of a claim allowed by the board does not bar recovery of the balance if there is an absolute liability for the full amount of the claim. Resner v. Carroll County, 126-423.

The provision requiring notice of unliquidated demands before the institution of suit thereon applies to all demands of that character whether arising out of contract or tort. Little v. Pottawattamie County, 127-376.

But the failure to make demand before suit is brought may be cured by such demand subsequently made and alleged in supplemental or amended petition. Ibid.

No provision, similar to that of this section is found in the statute applicable to cities except in Code § 1050, which is applicable only to cities under special charter. Kenyon v. Cedar Rapids, 142-195.

SEC. 3529. On agent of corporation. If the action is against any corporation or person owning or operating any railway or canal, steamboat or other river craft, or any telegraph, telephone, stage, coach or car line, or against any express company, or against any foreign corporation, service may be made upon any general agent of such corporation, company or person, wherever found, or upon any station, ticket or other agent or person transacting the business thereof or selling tickets therefor in the county where the action is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then service may be had upon any such agent or person transacting said business in any other county. If the action is against any railway corporation which has merged and consolidated its stock, property, franchises and liabilities with that of any other railway corporation, as authorized by section two thousand and thirty-six (2036) of the code, or which has sold or leased its property and franchises to any other railway corporation as authorized by section two thousand and sixty-six (2066) of the code, service of the original notice may be made upon any station, ticket or other agent of the merged, vendee or lessee corporation in the county where the action is brought; if there is no such agent in said county, then, service may be made upon such agent or person in any other county. [C., '73, § 2611; C., '51, § 1727.] [29 G. A., ch. 139, § 1.] [32 G. A., ch. 163.]

SEC. 3531. On municipal or other corporation.

If the notice is directed to a school district and served on the president thereof, it is sufficient to constitute notice to the district. Haggard v. Independent School Dis., 113-486.

The mayor or clerk upon whom service may properly be made may accept such service by written acknowledgment thereof. McCartney v. Washington, 124-382.

Service upon the secretary of a corporation is sufficient service upon the corporation. The Telegraph v. Lee, 125-17.

Although the defendant in the action may be designated as a partnership, yet if it is in fact a corporation, and is served as a corporation the court acquires jurisdiction. Taft Co. v. Boumani, 110-739.

Where foreign corporations are required as a condition of doing business within a state to appoint an agent upon whom service may be made within the state, service upon an agent appointed in attempted compliance with such statutory requirements will be valid, although it does not technically authorize the service of process upon him. Green v. Equitable Mut. L. & End. Assn., 105-628.

SEC. 3532. On agent as to business of office or agency.

It is sufficient if the principal has an office or agency in the county in which the suit growing out of or connected with the business of that office or agency is brought and service of the notice be made upon an agent or clerk employed in that office or agency. Lock v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-390.

A non-resident corporation may be sued in any county in which it can be found and service upon it may be made by serving an officer or agent. Moffit v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-407.

To sustain a service on an agent or

SEC. 3534. By publication.

Whoever undertakes to give notice by publication and misnames the defendant is without excuse, and the notice will not confer jurisdiction. (Following Fanning v. Krapfl, 61-417.) Thornily v. Prentice, 121-89.

Where judgment is rendered by default in a divorce proceeding, on service of notice by publication which does not correctly give the name of defendant nor spell it so as to indicate the correct pronunciation, the judgment is subject to collateral attack. Hubner v. Reickhoff, 103-368.

The fact that in an original notice in an action to foreclose a mortgage the land covered by the mortgage is mis-described does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to proceed under such notice, and a judgment rendered in pursuance thereof is not void, so as to be subject to collateral attack. Fleming v. Hager, 121-205.

The filing of an affidavit is a condition precedent to the service of notice by publication, and a judgment rendered without an appearance by the defendant served only by publication when the affidavit has not been filed is void. Priestman v. Priestman, 103-320.

And held, that filing of the affidavit after the first publication, although before the conclusion of the publication, was not sufficient. Ibid.

Where the decree recites service by publication, and the appearance docket shows that an affidavit of non-residence was filed clerk under this section it must appear that the action grew out of some matter connected with the business of such agent or clerk. Barnabee v. Holmes, 115-581.

with the petition and before the first publication, and there is evidence of witnessess that they saw the affidavit, etc., the judgment will be sustained, although the affidavit was not found on file after the judgment was entered. Omaha Nat. Bank v. Squire, 113-365.

A proceeding by a sub-contractor to enforce a mechanic's lien may be maintained as a proceeding in rem without asking a personal judgment against the principal contractor, where the principal contractor is a non-resident upon whom personal service cannot be obtained. Simonson Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Citizens' State Bank, 105-264.

The rule that a judgment without personal service against a non-resident is only good so far as it affects the property which is taken or brought under the control of the court or tribunal, is applicable also where a city attempts to enforce by personal judgment an indebtedness for special assessments on his property. Dewey v. Des Moines, 173 U. S. 193.

Service of notice by publication is authorized as to actions to quiet title, it being made to appear by affidavit that the defendant is a non-resident of the state. Bales v. Williamson, 128-127; Ruppin v. McLachlan, 122-343.

Notice by publication may be served on a non-resident defendant in an action to construe a will. Dillavou v. Dillavou, 130-405.

SEC. 3536. When complete—proof.

A published notice requiring appearance at an impossible date is no notice, and confers no jurisdiction on the court over the party or the subject-matter. Gaar v. Taylor, 128-636.

SEC. 3537. Actual service.

Personal service of notice outside of the state gives the court jurisdiction to render judgment in rem in an attachment suit. Clark v. Tull, 113-143.

Personal service of notice in another state does not give the court jurisdiction to render a personal judgment. Richardson v. Richardson, 111 N. W. 934.

SEC. 3540. Length of publication. Such notice shall be filed in the action, and its contents, shall be published in the paper, and for the time designated, at least once each week for four successive weeks, and at the end of said time service shall be complete, and such unknown person in court at the next term thereafter. [C., '73, § 2625; R., § 2839.] [31 G. A., ch. 154.] [32 G. A., ch. 164.]

SEC. 3541. Mode of appearance—when required.

Effect of appearance: An appearance by the assignee in insolvency of a foreign corporation may by comity be recognized and will bind the corporation although such assignee has no legal authority beyond the extent of the jurisdiction in which he is appointed. State Bank v. McElroy, 106-258.

The court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter acquires jurisdiction of the case by appearance. Applegate v. Applegate, 107-312.

By appearance to an action, even though for a special purpose, jurisdiction to determine the case upon its merits is conferred upon the court. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-390; Moffit v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-407.

Appearance by motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, where service has been made on an alleged agent, is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction in case the motion is overruled. Teller v. Equitable Mut. L. Assn., 108-17.

The appearance of a defendant in a divorce proceeding to object to the granting of temporary alimony is such appearance as to give the court jurisdiction. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 129-628.

A defendant may not make a special appearance to resist an interlocutory order or ruling, and then say he is not in court for the purpose of a judgment on the merits. Blondel v. Ohlman, 132-257.

Appearance by a non-resident defendant to plead to the jurisdiction of the court, held to constitute a waiver of objection to the jurisdiction of the federal court on removal of the case from the state court. Louden Machinery Co. v. American Malleable Iron Co., 127 Fed. 1008.

Recital that defendant defaulted for want of pleading after appearing in the action is sufficient to show jurisdiction of the court. Harrison County v. State Sav. Bank, 127-242.

A trustee holding the legal title to mortgaged property cannot appear for the cestui que trust so as to render a personal judgment against the latter binding. Thornily v. Prentice, 121-89.

The appearance which gives the court jurisdiction must have some relation to the merits of the controversy and the purpose must be to invoke some action on the part of the court having direct bearing in some way upon the question of the judgment or decree proper to be entered. The taking of a stay of execution is not such appearance as to confer jurisdiction to the entry of the original judgment. Bank of Horton v. Knox, 133-443.

Holidays: Judicial business may be transacted on the Fourth of July and a witness may be punished for contempt in not appearing on that day in response to a subpoena. Chambers v. Oehler, 107-155.

Legal holidays are also enumerated in Code § 3053 as days on which negotiable paper cannot be presented for protest. Brennan v. Roberts, 125-615; 101 N. W. 460.

The statutory exemption as to appearance in an action on the days specified as holidays has no application to subsequent proceedings in the case, after there has been a sufficient appearance. Michel v. Boxholm Co-operative Creamery, 128-706.

Sunday or any other day mentioned by this section as a holiday should not be excluded in estimating the three days within which a motion for new trial is to be filed. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114-228.

Privilege: A non-resident who has come into this state for the purpose of attending a trial in an action to which he is a party, is privileged from the service of civil process in another action. He is entitled to the same privilege as one who attends as a witness. Murray v. Wilcox, 122-188.

SEC. 3543. Notice of action pending.

Where, without authority of one party, a case was marked on the judge's calendar as settled, and a corresponding entry was made in the court record, but subsequently a trial notice was filed in the case and it was put on the calendar for the succeeding term, held that one who purchased real property involved in such action after the service of the trial notice was affected with notice of the pendency of the action. Furry v. Ferguson, 105-231.

A purchaser at execution sale under a judgment takes subject to any right subsequently established in an action already pending, to have the premises declared a homestead and exempt from sale under such judgment. McClelland v. Bennett, 106-74.

The primary object of the rule as to lis pendens is to keep the property within the power of the court until final judgment or decree shall be entered, and thus to enable the courts to give force and effect to such judgments. In the absence of the statutory provisions, the notice involved in the pendency of the action continues until the suit is determined by final decree, or until it is suspended by a failure to make what is called a "full prosecution." An appeal from the final judgment of an inferior court continues the lis pendens during the pendency of the appeal. It has also been held that where there is an apparent neglect to prosecute, a reasonable excuse for the delay complained of is always available to keep the lis pendens alive. Full prosecution exists so long as the action is pending and the court has complete jurisdiction over the matter in controversy. Under the provisions of this section lis pendens commences when the petition has been filed and continues while the action is pending. Olson v. Leibpke, 110-594.

Lis pendens is notice to those only who attempt to acquire some interest in the subject-matter of a litigation after suit is begun and from a party thereto. But one who has instituted such suit does not become a purchaser in such sense as to be protected against unrecorded instruments. Noyes v. Crawford, 118-15.

One purchasing at execution sale is bound to take notice of an action as to the title to the property pending against the owner. Bacon v. Early, 116-532.

One who purchases or otherwise acquires an interest from the defendant in a foreclosure proceeding, brought in the county where the land is situated, takes subject to the determination of such proceeding, and, although not made a party, has no equitable right to redeem from the foreclosure sale. Cooney v. Coppock, 119-486.

CHAPTER 7.

OF JOINDER OF ACTIONS.

SECTION 3545. When permitted—issues tried separately.

Causes of action may be joined where each may be prosecuted by the same kind of proceedings, by the same party, in the same right, and if suit on all may be brought and tried in the same county. Chambers v. Oehler, 104-278.

It is proper to join in one action claims on tort and on contract. Devlin v. Walsh, 108-428.

An action by a wife for damages by reason of sales of liquor to her husband cannot be joined with an action to recover penalty for sales to minors or habitual drunkards. Carrier v. Bernstein, 104-572.

It is not proper to join with an action on a bond to indemnify against the enforcement of a decree a cause of action on the decree itself. Prader v. National Masonic Accident Assn., 107-431.

It is not proper in the same action to join separate causes of action against different defendants. Iowa Lillooet Gold Mining Co. v. Bliss, 144 Fed. 446.

Distinct causes of action may be pleaded in different counts of one petition. Watters v. Waterloo, 126-199.

The statement in different counts of two inconsistent causes of action does not show an election to rely upon one of them rather than another. Continental Ins. Co. v. Clark, 126-274.

SEC. 3548. Misjoinder waived.

The remedy for misjoinder of actions is by motion. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127-450; Mitchell v. McLeod, 127-733.

By failing to appear, a defendant waives objection to misjoinder of actions. McDonald v. Second Nat. Bank, 106-517; Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank, 110-537.

CHAPTER 8.

OF PLEADING.

SECTION 3551. Motions and demurrers.

The provision that motions assailing pleadings must be in writing may be waived and the opposite party will be deemed to have acquiesced therein where without objection the motion is made orally and taken down by the official stenographer. Fischer v. Johnson, 106-181.

Failure to object to the filing of a motion as not within the proper time may be urged in connection with the consideration of the motion on its merits, and need not be taken at the time the motion is filed. Turley v. Griffin, 106-161.

A motion to strike from the files another motion is wholly unnecessary. The motion may be overruled if not properly introduced, although no specific objection to it on that ground is made. German Sav. Bank v. Cady, 114-228.

A receiver's final report on which his discharge is granted may be set aside on the ground that no notice of a motion for the acceptance of the final report and for discharge had been entered on the motion docket in accordance with the practice prevailing in the county with reference to noting the filing of motions upon such docket. Williams v. Des Moines Loan & Trust Co., 126-22.

SEC. 3552. Subsequent pleadings.

While a party after his pleading has been held defective is entitled until noon of the next day in which to amend or plead over, yet if without objection he allows the court to proceed before the expiration of that time without so amending or pleading over he cannot complain on appeal. Chase v. Wright, 116-555.

SEC. 3554. Extension of time.

When time is given until a day named for filing a pleading it should be filed before the named day. Carver v. Seevers, 126-669.

SEC. 3557. Pleadings defined—filing—forms abolished.

The rule that when the construction of a pleading is doubtful, after giving to the language a reasonable intendment, it should be resolved against the pleader, is not to be applied save when the attack is by motion or demurrer. The rules by which the sufficiency of pleadings is to be determined are those prescribed by this section. Lampman v. Bruning, 120-167.

While a motion is for some purposes to be regarded as a pleading, yet the bar of the statute of limitations cannot be raised by a motion to direct a verdict, but must be specially pleaded. Borghart v. Cedar Rapids, 126-313.

Questions presented for determination by motions or demurrers are issues, the determination of which constitutes a trial. Columbus Junction Tel. Co. v. Overholt, 126-579.

SEC. 3558. Copy filed.

Failure to file a copy of a pleading is not a ground for vacating the judgment afterwards rendered. Stephens v. City Council, 132-490.

SEC. 3559. Petition—what to contain—counts—divisions—paragraphs.

Title of action: The omission to properly entitle the petition as provided in paragraph two of this section is merely a defect of form for which the defendant is not entitled as a matter of right to have the action dismissed. First National Bank v. Stone, 122-558.

Statement of cause of action: Allegations in the petition which direct the attention of the court with reasonable certainty to the facts upon which the prayer for relief is based, are ordinarily held sufficient. Conner v. Baxter, 124-219.

A statement of facts relied upon by the plaintiff as entitling him to relief is a sufficient pleading of such facts to sustain a decree for the relief to which, as a matter of law, the plaintiff is entitled under such facts. Atlee v. Bullard, 123-274.

When a material fact necessary to a recovery is omitted from a petition it is said that it does not state a cause of action. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-660.

A prayer for relief cannot take the place of a statement of facts showing the party to be entitled to relief. In re Estate of Bruning, 122-8.

A party is presumed to have stated the case as strongly as the facts will justify in his favor and nothing will be assumed in his favor which has not been averred or may not upon a liberal or fair interpretation be implied from his averments. Witham v. Blood, 124-695.

An allegation of ownership, although in effect a mere legal conclusion, is to be treated as an allegation of fact. Ruppin v. McLachlan, 122-343.

The petition in an action to foreclose a mortgage covering specific personal property should state the facts entitling plaintiff to a special execution, and if it does so the court may decree a special execution to issue for any part of the property, no matter where it may be located, within the state. King v. Nelson, 120-606.

Allegations of contractual relations with a common carrier or telegraph company do not necessarily make the action one upon contract rather than in tort. Cowan v. Western Union Tel. Co., 122-379.

On information: A statement of facts on information and belief is sufficient, in the absence of a motion attacking the pleading on this ground. Robinson v. Ferguson, 119-325.

Ultimate facts: The pleading should state ultimate facts and not the evidence. Johnson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-1.

A paragraph in a petition which is in the nature of a statement of evidence not relevant to any issue in the case and not of ultimate and material facts may properly be stricken out on motion. Tisdale v. Major, 106-1.

Ultimate facts only and not evidence of them are to be stated in the petition; but, held, that allegations that the placing of a trolley pole in front of plaintiff's premises was without necessity and to annoy plaintiff and injure and depreciate the value of his property, and that it was an obstruction to the enjoyment of his property and had caused depreciation therein, were sufficient to set out a cause of action, in the absence of a motion for more specific statement. Snyder v. Ft. Madison Street R. Co., 105-284.

Where statutes of another state relied on are merely evidence of ultimate facts they need not be pleaded, but can be introduced in evidence in support of the ultimate fact which is properly pleaded. Green v. Equitable Mut. L. & End. Assn., 105-628.

Implied contracts: Under allegations showing implied promise to pay for services, no recovery can be had under breach of an express agreement. Duncan v. Gray, 108-599.

Negligence: An allegation of negligence in a mine owner in allowing the roof of an entry to be in a dangerous condition with knowledge thereof, is sustained by evidence that it had been in a dangerous condition for such length of time as that knowledge thereof would be imputed to defendant. Blazenic v. Iowa & W. Coal Co., 102-706.

In an action to recover damages for injuries resulting from negligence, the plaintiff should be limited in his testimony to the specific negligence alleged. Wirstlin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 124-170.

Statement of the specific acts or facts constituting the alleged negligence by which the injury has been occasioned is not necessary to the statement of a cause of action for such negligence, and after the period of limitation for bringing such action has expired, an amendment in an action seasonable brought may be allowed, if it simply amplifies the specifications or grounds of the alleged negligence. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Co., 129-747.

Freedom from contributory negligence: Plaintiff, in an action to recover damages for malpractice of a physician should allege freedom from contributory negligence, and, having failed to do so, the defendant may raise the objection by motion in arrest of judgment. Decatur v. Simpson, 115-348.

That the petition does not allege freedom of plaintiff from contributory negligence in a case where such fact should be alleged may be raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Kleineck v. Reiger, 107-325.

Where the wrong charged in plaintiff's petition is a wilful one, contributory negligence need not be negated. Continental Ins. Co. v. Clark, 126-274.

A general allegation in an action for an injury alleged to be due to defendant's negligence, that plaintiff was without fault or negligence on his part, is sufficient, unless specifically attacked. Hobbs v. Marion, 123-726.

Where defendant in an action for personal injuries sets up the contributory negligence of the plaintiff, the plaintiff who intends to rely upon the fact that defendant might have avoided the injury, in the exercise of reasonable care after the negligent act of the plaintiff became known to him, should allege such matter by way of reply. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106-85.

Fraud: In alleging fraud committed by an agent it is not necessary to set up the fact of agency, nor that of ratification. The fraud in such case may be pleaded as that of the principal. Higbee v. Trumbauer, 112-74.

More general statements of fraud are insufficient. But where attempt is made to set out the claim of fraud, though not sufficiently specific, the defect must be reached by motion; and if not then raised, cannot afterwards be relied upon. Seely v. Seely-Howe-Le Van Co., 130-626.

Waiver: Where facts are alleged by way of waiver they cannot be proven to establish the making of a contract. A contract relied upon should be pleaded and a party should not be allowed to plead it one way and prove it to be different. Kinhead v. McCormick Har. Mach. Co., 106-222.

Where a passenger sued to recover damages for being put off a train on account of insufficiency of his ticket, held that if he relied on waiver of the conditions of the ticket such waiver must be pleaded. Trezona v. Chicago G. W. R. Co., 107-22.

Waiver of breach of conditions in a policy of insurance must be pleaded. McCoy v. Iowa State Ins. Co., 107-80.

In a motion on an insurance policy, allegation that due notice was given necessarily implies proofs of loss, and waiver of proofs must be specially pleaded. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108-6.

While it is true that a waiver must be pleaded, it is also true that insufficiency of the pleading of the waiver, where it is apparent that a waiver is intended to be pleaded, may be waived by failure to seasonably raise the objection. Barrett v. Des Moines Mut. H. & C. Ins. Assn., 120-184.

A waiver which is relied on must be pleaded. Kinhead v. McCormick Har. Mach. Co., 106-222; Murray v. Thiessen, 114-657; Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129-507.

Estoppel: Matters in estoppel to be available as such must be specially pleaded. Spencer Co. v. Papach, 103-513; Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104-63. Tracy Land Co. v. Polk County Land & Loan Co., 131-40.

Custom: A custom relied upon as affecting a contract must be pleaded. Eller v. Loomis, 106-276.

In an action against a master for negligence as to inspection and repair for the purpose of keeping safe the place where the servant is to work, the general custom in such business as to the duty to inspect and repair, with reference to whether it rests upon the master or the servant, may be proven without being pleaded. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 121-121.

Duress must be specially pleaded, and until pleaded evidence to prove it cannot properly be received over objection. Sturman v. Sturman, 118-620.

Payment: A pleading which contains an allegation that a given sum of money is "substantially if not wholly" paid does not allege with sufficient definiteness that such amount has been fully paid. Hardin County v. Weels, 108-174.

In actions for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, non-payment constitutes the breach of the contract sued for, and must be alleged. Such an allegation is put in issue by a general denial. Hoverton v. Augustine, 130-389.

Want of notice: Where in an action on a certificate of insurance in a mutual accident association it was alleged that plaintiff had complied with all the conditions and provisions of the articles of incorporation and by-laws of said association on his part to be kept and performed, and defendant interposed only a general denial, held, that defendant could not rely on failure of the plaintiff to prove the giving of notice as required by the articles. Hart v. National Masonic Acc. Assn., 105-717.

Allegation of damage: In an action to recover damages for personal injuries, an allegation that plaintiff suffered great bodily pain, etc., is sufficient to sustain an allowance for mental pain and suffering. Ousley v. Hampe, 128-675.

In an action to recover damages for personal injuries an averment that by reason of the injuries alleged plaintiff has continually suffered, and still suffers pain, and believes said injuries to be permanent, is sufficient to support a recovery for future pain and suffering. Evans v. Elwood, 123-92.

In alleging damages in an action for personal injuries, where no recovery is sought for pain and suffering, it is not necessary to allege the particulars of the personal injuries from which the pain and suffering resulted. Kircher v. Larchwood, 120-578.

Under an allegation of damage to property, proof of its destruction is competent. Monarch Mfg. Co. v. Omaha & C. B. S. R. Co., 127-511.

Prayer: A prayer that plaintiff have "such other relief as would be proper in the premises" does not convert a petition to recover possession of personal property, or the value thereof, into an equitable action, but where the petition, which seemed otherwise to be based on a right to recover at law, also averred a trust arising under the facts for plaintiff's benefit, held that it sufficiently appeared that the petition was in equity. Stokes v. Sprague, 110-89.

A prayer that a deed be set aside for fraud, or, if it be held valid, that the contract price be recovered and a vendor's lien given, does not involve such inconsistent or contradictory relief as to be improper. Hogueland v. Arts, 113-634.

It is not necessary that there be a prayer for costs. Reed v. Corrigan, 114-638.

The jury should be specifically limited as to the amount of recovery to the specific items on which recovery is asked in an action on an account, and it is error to so instruct as that there can be a total recovery for an amount not exceeding the total claim, without regard to a finding as to the specific items. Baker v. Oughton, 130-35

In an equity action to enforce a lien it is proper to render a money judgment under a prayer for general relief. American Trading & Storage Co. v. Gottstein, 123-267.

The prayer for general relief is broad enough to authorize a judgment for the recovery of a sum of money. Saunders v. King, 119-291.

It is error for the court to grant relief not called for by the petition, or a judgment or decree different from that prayed for. Bottorf v. Lewis, 121-27.

The judgment must follow the prayer for relief and cannot be extended beyond it. Browne v. Kiel, 117-316.

Entire cause of action: A party cannot split up his cause of action. When he brings suit to claim a lien he must present all the facts entitling him thereto, and will not be allowed in one case to assert a mortgage lien, and when defeated with reference thereto, claim a general equitable lien in another action against the same property for the same indebtedness. Zion Church v. Parker, 114-1.

A party to litigation may not split up his causes of action and try his case by piecemeal. He may not present one branch of his case for the determination of the court and when unsuccessful therein begin over again and present some other matter upon which he relies, which might theretofore have been presented and determined. Ingold v. Symonds, 111 N. W. 802.

A continuous book account is to be treated as an entirety, and cannot without agreement of the parties be split into separate and distinct demands so as to form a basis for distinct suits. The fact that the items of the account are for goods sold at different times and on different orders does not entitle the seller to sue separately for each distinct item. Williams-Abbott Elec. Co. v. Model Elec. Co., 112 N. W. 181.

Even though different items of claim might have been the subject of separate suits, yet after the right of action as to all the items has matured, they must be embodied in one suit to avoid multiplicity of actions. Ibid.

Issues not raised: As parties may by amendment introduce new issues, or make certain those intended, their interpretation of the pleadings, when clearly manifested, is uniformly adopted by the courts. Permitting the introduction of evidence on an issue not specifically pleaded, without objection, obviates the necessity of its formal presentation. Fenner v. Crips, 109-455.

Counts: The objection that the petition and an amendment thereto stating but one count allege inconsistent and contradictory causes of action must be taken before the submission of the case to the jury. Robbins v. Basserman, 133-318.

SEC. 3560. Amended before answer.

When plaintiff amends his petition before answer, notice of such amendment

Although in the same count of the petition is stated a cause of action for breach of warranty, and also a claim for recovery as upon rescission of the contract of sale, yet if no attack is made on account of the improper joinder of causes of action in the same count, a recovery may be sustained, if supported by the evidence, upon either ground. Westbrook v. Reeves, 133-655.

The plaintiff may allege two inconsistent causes of action as based on the same facts, such as a cause of action for breach of contract and another for tort in an action against a common carrier; but in the absence of any objection made in proper time and manner to such double pleading, the opposite party cannot take advantage of such inconsistency after verdict. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

must be served upon the defendant. Ogle v. Miller, 128-474.

SEC. 3561. Demurrer—causes of.

Capacity to sue: Failure of plaintiff suing as a corporation to allege corporate capacity may be taken advantage of by way of demurrer, but cannot be raised after judgment. Calnan Construction Co. v. Brown, 110-37.

Another action pending: The provision that pendency of another action between the same parties for the same cause may be a ground of demurrer, and that objections which are ground of demurrer may be taken by answer when the ground does not appear on the face of the petition, does not determine the question whether the pendency of a prior action in another state or in a foreign country is a ground of abatement. Such pendency is not as a matter of law pleadable in abatement to an action in this state. Schmidt v. Posner, 130-347.

Defect of parties: A question as to defect of parties is not jurisdictional, and such a defect is waived unless raised by demurrer or in other proper manner. Fulliam v. Drake, 105-615.

The defect of parties which will afford ground for demurrer is the non-joinder of those who should have been joined, either as plaintiffs or defendants. A misjoinder can be taken advantage of only by motion. Dolan v. Hubinger, 109-408.

Non-joinder of necessary parties is such defect of parties as may be raised by demurrer. Anderson v. Acheson, 132-744.

Misjoinder of parties or of causes of action should be raised by motion and not by demurrer. Citizens' State Bank v. Jess, 127-450.

Defect in parties is not waived by a failure to make objection when the omitted parties are indispensable to the final adjudication of the rights of the parties before the courts. Such a defect of the parties may be raised for the first time on appeal. Tod v. Crisman, 123-693.

Insufficient statement of cause of action: When the construction of a pleading assailed by demurrer is doubtful, after giving to its language a reasonable intendment, the doubt is to be resolved against the pleader. Stephens v. City Council, 132-490.

To entire pleading: Where the petition contains but a single count it must upon demurrer be held good or bad as an entirety, and the demurrer should go to the sufficiency of the entire petition, and not to specified portions thereof. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129-747.

Sufficiency of demurrer: Although the demurrer raises an objection which should have been raised by motion, nevertheless if no question is raised as to the sufficiency of the demurrer on that ground there is no error in treating it as a motion and ruling upon it accordingly. Frazer v. Andrews, 112 N. W. 92.

A demurrer made to depend not upon what is alleged or revealed in the pleading demurred to, but upon a statement or recitation of facts not appearing in such pleading, is a "speaking" demurrer and is bad. Jeffries v. Fraternal Bankers' Reserve Soc., 112 N. W. 786.

The grounds of the demurrer must meet the case made by the petition. Harris-Emery Co. v. Pitcairn, 122-595.

What admitted by demurrer: A demurrer only admits facts which are well pleaded. Cowell v. City Water Supply Co., 130-671.

A demurrer admits all facts well pleaded, but not conclusions of law or facts which are contrary to law or which are legally impossible. Iowa Mut. Tornado Ass'n v. Gilbertson, 129-658.

Where the demurring party stands upon his demurrer, he admits facts alleged in the pleading demurred to so far as they are well pleaded. Jeffries v. Fraternal Bankers' Reserve Soc., 112 N. W. 786.

Allegations of fact as to the law of another state are confessed by demurrer. American Trading & Storage Co. v. Gottstein, 123-267.

Waiver: The defendant by not moving to strike an amendment to the petition, SEC. 3562. How specific.

A demurrer is not a pruning hook and cannot be used to trim out immaterial and irrelevant matter. This must be done by motion. In re Estate of McMurray, 107-648.

In a special proceeding, the demurrer must specify and number the grounds of objection to the pleading. Ibid.

A demurrer to a petition in an action at law, stated in the terms of the fifth division of the preceding section, is not sufficient, and should be overruled. Stokes v. Sprague, 110-89.

SEC. 3563. Objection raised by answer—arrest of judgment.

Waiver of objections: Grounds of demurrer or motion are waived by proceeding to trial without raising such objection. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. DeClow, 124 Fed. 142.

Failure to demur or move in arrest of judgment on account of defects in the petition constitutes a waiver of such defects. Nichols-Shepard Co. v. Ringler, 112 N. W. 543.

A defect appearing in the petition is waived if no attack is made thereon, either by demurrer or motion in arrest. Mitchell v. McLeod, 127-733.

Where defendant answers he thereby waives any ground of demurrer. Barrett v. Des Moines Mut. H. & C. Ins. Assn., 120-184.

Failure to demur on the ground of non-joinder of parties is a waiver of such objection. Anderson v. Acheson, 132-744; 110 N. W. 335.

Objection to improper joinder of causes of action is waived by answering. Keller v. Strong, 104-585.

after the original pleading has been held to be defective on demurrer, waives the right to claim that the amendment is merely the restatement of the petition which has been held defective. Koboliska v. Swehla, 107-124.

While generally speaking grounds of motion are waived by demurring, the court has never been very insistent upon technical accuracy in the use of names given to such pleadings and although a ground of demurrer is stated as a ground of motion the court may properly treat it as raising an objection proper to be raised by demurrer. Wisconsin Lumber Co. v. Greene & Western Tel. Co., 127-350.

Demurrer to evidence: An objection to evidence because no cause of action is stated in the petition is not recognized in practice. It is a sort of oral demurrer for which there is no authority. Boyer v. Commercial Building Inv. Co., 110-491.

As to motion to direct a verdict see notes to § 3722.

In an action at law the defects in the petition must be specifically pointed out and a general statement of the ground of demurrer is not sufficient. Robinson, Grant, 119-573.

In a law action the demurrer must point out the ground of objection; it is not sufficient to say that the facts stated do not constitute a cause of action or a defense. Timken Carriage Co. v. Smith & Co., 123-554.

Objection as to misjoinder of causes of action should be made by motion to strike, and is waived by failure to raise the objection. Campbell v. Spears, 120-670.

An objection which might be raised by motion for more specific statement is waived by going to trial. Fox v. Waterloo Nat. Bank, 126-481.

Where a case has been tried on the theory that the pleadings are sufficient to present the question which is submitted, a party cannot on appeal for the first time take advantage of defects in such pleadings. Alexander v. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., 119-519.

The allegations of a pleading not sufficiently specific will support a judgment if not in any manner questioned. A party who has had the benefit of the correct rule of law on the theory on which the case had been tried, cannot afterwards complain of insufficiency of the pleadings. Hobbs v. Marion, 123-726.

After waiving any objection which might have been raised to the pleadings a party cannot claim that they did not present the issue which is in fact tried. Caldwell v. Drummond, 127-134.

Where defendant is allowed to introduce, without objection, under the general issue, evidence of a defense that could be properly offered only under a special defense pleaded, plaintiff should be deemed to have waived the objection to the insufficiency of the pleading. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

And see notes to § 3597.

Statute of frauds: When parol evidence of a contract within the statute of frauds is introduced upon the trial without objection, it cannot afterwards be objected to upon appeal. Marr v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 121-117.

Statute of limitations: The defense of the statute of limitations is an affirmative one, and is waived if not pleaded. When not pleaded such defense should not be submitted to the jury, even though supported by facts appearing in the record. McDonald v. Bice, 113-44.

And see notes to § 3447.

Motion in arrest of judgment: It is not every objection which might have been good if raised by demurrer that is available to the unsuccessful party on motion in arrest of judgment. The objection that inconsistent causes of action are stated in the same count of the petition cannot thus be raised. Robbins v. Bosserman, 133-318.

Where plaintiff in an action for personal injuries fails to allege freedom from contributory negligence, and defendant demurs to the petition on that ground and the demurrer is overruled, defendant may still raise the objection by a motion in arrest of judgment, and if the plaintiff does not offer to cure such defect by taking advantage of Code § 3760, the court may properly sustain the motion. Decatur v. Simpson, 115-348.

Failure in a petition stating a cause of action for personal injuries to allege the freedom of the plaintiff from contributory negligence may be taken advantage of by motion in arrest of judgment. Brown v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 123-239.

The court should not, however, make the omission of such allegation a ground for directing a verdict for the defendant without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend in that respect. Ibid.

The objection that an action was prematurely brought may be raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Reeves v. Lamm, 120-283.

The objection that notice of a claim for damages against a telegraph company was not presented within sixty days, as required by statute (Code § 2164), may be first raised by motion in arrest of judgment. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 110 N. W. 143.

A party does not by pleading over waive his right to attack the pleading of the adverse party at a subsequent time in the progress of the case, but he may raise the question of the sufficiency of the pleading by motion in arrest of judgment, or to direct a verdict. If, however, he fails to make objection this way he cannot have the ruling reviewed on appeal. Hawkeye Loan & Brokerage Co. v. Gordon, 115-561.

If the pleadings do not present a cause of action or defense, and the question has been properly raised in the court below, and a ruling had thereon, the question may be reviewed upon proper assignment of error in an equity case, notwithstanding the fact that the party may have pleaded over and had a trial on the merits. Ibid.

SEC. 3564. Demurrer to one of several causes—effect of demurrer and ruling.

The provision of 25 G. A., chap. 96, that no pleading should be held sufficient on account of the failure to demur thereto, held not to entitle a party to urge in the supreme court objections to a pleading not raised in the trial court. Reed v. Muscatine, 104-183; Wood v. Dunham, 105-701; Lacy v. Kossuth County, 106-16.

An objection to the petition not raised by answer or demurrer is not deemed waived under the present Code. Pierson v. Independent School Dist., 106-695.

The provision of 25 G. A., chap. 96, as to the effect of a ruling on demurrer, does not change the rule of pleading that a party answering over after his demurrer to a petition has been overruled thereby waives any error in such ruling. Buchanan v. Blackhawk Coal Works, 119-118.

The provision as to the effect of the overruling of a demurrer was not designed to permit a review of the ruling on the demurrer which had been overruled, where the party demurring had afterwards filed an answer, or replied, but to provide that the ruling should not have the effect of an adjudication, and to permit the party demurring unsuccessfully to question the sufficiency of the pleading in other ways during the progress of the trial, as by motion to direct a verdict, or in arrest of judgment. In such a case the party, by pleading over, waives his right to complain of the ruling on his demurrer, but does not waive his right to attack the pleading on the grounds upon which his demurrer was founded at any subsequent time in the progress of the case. Frum v. Keeney, 109-393.

Notwithstanding the provisions of 25 G. A., chap. 96 (now embodied in the last sentence of this section), questions not raised in the court below will not be considered on appeal. Hough v. Gearen, 110-240.

Mere failure to demur to a defective petition does not prevent defendant from raising the objection in some other way. But he cannot allow the case to be tried on the theory that the petition is sufficient and then on exceptions to the giving of instructions on the issue raise the question as to whether a cause of action is stated. Enix v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 114-508.

Where the sufficiency of a pleading is not attacked by demurrer or otherwise and the allegations thereof are established by the proof, the party relying on such pleading is entitled to succeed, although it might have been held defective had it been attacked. Ormsby v. Graham, 123-202.

SEC. 3565. Joinder in demurrer—answering, amending or pleading over.

By amending or pleading over after an adverse ruling on a motion or demurrer the pleader waives any error in such ruling. Hurd v. Ladner, 110-263; Frick v. Kabaker, 116-494; McKee v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 121-550; Hunn v. Ashton, 121-265; Davis v. Boyer, 122-132; Scribner v. Taggart, 123-321; Redhead v. Iowa National Bank, 123-336; Long v. Furnas, 130-504; Iowa-Minnesota Land Co. v. Conner, 112 N. W. 820.

A party going to trial after the overruling of a motion to strike, or of a demurrer, cannot urge error in such ruling on an appeal from the final judgment, unless subsequently on the trial he has presented in some way to the court his objections to the pleadings. Puritan Mfg. Co. v. Emporium, 130-526.

If a party, after an adverse ruling on demurrer or on motion, pleads over or secures time to plead, he by so doing waives the error in the ruling, and it has likewise been held that where the law tenders an issue without the filing of further pleadings, he who would take advantage of an order overruling a demurrer must stand upon the pleading in order to have his case reviewed; but a defendant who demurs to plaintiff's petition and after the overruling of the demurrer does not ask for further time to plead over, files no other pleading in the case and makes no further appearance, is deemed to stand on the demurrer without the record showing a formal election. If it affirmatively appears that the unsuccessful party did not waive the error under the ruling that is sufficient. Derby v. Fie, 106-299.

By filing an amendment to his petition after a demurrer thereto is sustained, the plaintiff waives any error in the ruling on the demurrer. But such ruling does not thereby become an adjudication in such sense that the same question cannot be raised in some other way. On the other hand the defendant by failing to object further to the allegations in the amendment which are open to the same objection previously made by demurrer does not waive his grounds of demurrer if his answer contains the same objections which by demurrer were interposed to the original petition. Marshall Ice Co. v. LaPlant, 111 N. W. 1016.

By pleading over after a ruling sustaining a demurrer to his petition, plaintiff waives the error, if any, but the ruling does not constitute an adjudication, and the same question may be presented in other ways. Geiser Mfg. Co. v. Krogman, 111-503.

One who pleads over after an adverse ruling on a demurrer waives the error on that ruling, but such ruling does not constitute an adjudication binding in the subsequent course of the trial and the same question may be presented in other ways as by motion in arrest or to direct a verdict or by objections to evidence. Watkins v. Iowa Cent. R. Co., 123-390.

One who after his pleading has been held defective on demurrer pleads over by a mere repetition of the matter before held insufficient, does not waive the ruling against him, but if he has not excepted to the ruling the only question on a subsequent motion to strike the new pleading as a mere repetition is as to whether it is in fact a repetition of the pleading held to be insufficient. But new matter cannot be attacked by a motion to strike on the ground that the allegation thereof is a mere repetition. Ibid.

Plaintiff appealing from judgment against him on demurrer to his petition on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to show a cause of action, cannot complain of the sustaining of a motion complied with by him requiring him to make his petition more specific. Sigmond v. Bebbler, 104-431.

Where judgment has been rendered against plaintiff whose petition has been held insufficient on demurrer, and who has elected to stand on his petition and not to amend, such judgment constitutes a final adjudication. Gregory v. Woodworth, 107-151.

In general judgment goes against the party whose pleading is held insufficient on demurrer only when he elects to stand on his pleading, or when, having asked leave to amend, he is in default for not doing so. Williams v. Williams, 115-520.

SEC. 3566. Answer—what to contain—distinct defenses.

Denial: In an action for libel where plaintiff alleges the falsity of the statements, defendant may under general denial introduce evidence of their truth. Locke v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-390; Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-407.

Under a general denial of a settlement, any evidence should be received which tends to show that no settlement was made. Beach v. Wakefield, 107-567.

Under general denial in an action for breach of contract the defendant may not only offer testimony in denial of the contract as claimed by plaintiff, but also to prove the contract which defendant claims was in fact made, and the non-performance thereof on plaintiff's part. Tracy Land Co. v. Polk County Land & Loan Co., 131-40.

In an action for goods sold to defendant the defendant may under general denial prove that the goods were purchased by him for another. Cole v. Laird, 121-146.

Where plaintiff's claim is based on various items, each of which is expressly denied, the validity of each item is put in controversy, although the plaintiff claims in the aggregate much less than the total amount of the items specified. Steele v. Crabtree, 130-313.

Where plaintiff sues for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, he must allege the fact of non-payment and such fact is put in issue by a general denial. Howerton v. Augustine, 130-389.

In an action for specific performance based on a contract of sale made by an agent, the defendant may under general denial show want of authority to the agent to enter into such contract. Staten v. Hammer, 121-499.

A general or specific denial as authorized by the statute may be introduced without being objectionable as a conclusion. While conclusions may not be pleaded by way of affirmative averment, there is no such objection to a general or specific denial. Provident Bank Stock Co. v. Schafer, 110-440.

New matter—affirmative defenses: Where the plaintiff's petition shows on its face that the claim is not barred by the statute of limitations, the question can be raised by defendant only by an answer. Goring v. Fitzgerald, 105-507.

Settlement is an affirmative defense as to which the burden of proof is on the defendant. Johnson v. Berdo, 131-524.

A defendant, in order to avail himself of facts not appearing on the face of a contract to establish its invalidity, must plead such facts. Richey v. Rowland, 130-523.

Where affirmative matter is pleaded both by way of defense and as a ground for a counterclaim, the dismissal of the counterclaim does not constitute a dismissal of the defense. Steele v. Crabtree, 130-313.

Confession and avoidance: While allegations by way of avoidance must be coupled with a confession of plaintiff's cause of action, it is sufficient if the confession be by implication. Jackson v. Independent School Dist., 110-313.

A plea in confession and avoidance is necessary only when defendant proposes to admit the truth of a material allegation made by the plaintiff and to avoid liability thereon by affirmative proof of matters which destroy the effect of the allegations admitted. Staten v. Hammer, 121-499.

Special defenses: In an action for malicious prosecution, evidence of advice of counsel as rebutting malice and want of probable cause, is admissible without being specially pleaded. McAllister v. Johnson, 108-42.

If it is desired to rely upon facts as an affirmative defense, they should be pleaded in avoidance. Kingsbury v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 104-63.

In a suit against a municipal corporation, based on a contract for services, the defense that the contract is ultra vires must be specially pleaded. Ryan v. Lone Tree, 122-420.

And see notes under § 3629.

Inconsistent defenses: While a defendant has the right to plead the same defense as many times as he sees fit, he has the right to prove it but once, and if this right is preserved to him he cannot complain of the action of the trial court in striking out portions of his answer. Shambaugh v. Current, 111-121.

Where one of the divisions of an answer admits defendant's liability, plaintiff is entitled to judgment, although in other divisions of the answer defendant's liability is controverted. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110-385.

Defendant in an action for goods sold and delivered may plead rescission and also set up a counterclaim for breach of warranty. He is not required to elect. Thorson & Cassidy Co. v. Baker, 107-49.

As to inconsistent defenses see Code § 3620 and notes.

Partial defense: A demurrer cannot be interposed to allegations in an answer not pleaded in themselves as a complete defense, but as material with other allegations in making out a defense. Seaton v. Grimm, 110-145.

Even matter in mitigation should be specially pleaded as a partial defense, and cannot be proven under a general denial. Vierling v. Binder, 113-337.

Counterclaim: Allegations in the answer which are in the nature of a counter-claim will support affirmative relief to the defendant, no objection to the sufficiency of the pleading as constituting a counterclaim having been made. Crawford v. Fort Dodge Plaster Co., 125-658.

SEC. 3570. Counterclaim—how stated—what may constitute.

Nature of counterclaim—when proper: The counterclaim proper presents matter upon which an original action might have been brought in defendant's favor. Bardes v. Hutchinson, 113-610.

A counterclaim does not constitute a defense. Johnson v. Nash-Wright Co., 121-173.

The mere fact that affirmative relief is prayed for in a counterclaim or cross bill against the plaintiff, does not justify judgment in the defendant's favor against the plaintiff on the failure of the latter to appear if the allegations of the defendant's pleading are merely defensive in character. Stewart v. Gorham, 122-669.

Any new matter constituting a cause of action in favor of defendant may be pleaded as a counterclaim against the demand of the plaintiff, provided such counterclaim was held by the defendant at the time the action by plaintiff was brought. Richardson v. Richardson, 111 N. W. 934.

A cause of action not held by the defendant at the time action is instituted against him by the plaintiff, cannot be interposed as a counterclaim. Morrison Mfg. Co. v. Rimerman, 127-719.

A counter demand going directly to the amount due on account of the very transaction out of which the demand arises is a right of recoupment which is often spoken of as a defense and is more than a mere counterclaim. Medart Pulley Co. v. Dubuque Turbine & Roller Mill Co., 121-244.

Inasmuch as the landlord in an action for an attachment for rent cannot join other causes of action against the tenant, if the tenant sets up a counterclaim plaintiff may in reply interpose any matter of set-off which he may have as against the counterclaim. Issly v. Grayson, 105-685.

After trial in an equity case, and remanding the case for further proceedings, it is not proper to allow the introduction of a counterclaim which sets up a right of recovery at law, and which does not grow out of the same transaction. Allen v. Davenport, 115-20.

A claim for repayment of money paid for intoxicating liquors illegally sold (Code § 2423) exists from the time such payment was made, and nothing but a demand is necessary to mature it, and therefore such a claim may be introduced by way of counterclaim, although the demand for repayment has not been made until after the bringing of the action in which the counterclaim is sought to be introduced. Brown v. Wieland, 116-711.

Action in representative capacity: In an action brought in a representative capacity a counterclaim against the plaintiff as an individual cannot be interposed. Headington v. Smith, 113-107.

Debt belonging to partnership: To be available as a counterclaim the claim must have been owed to the defendant at the time of the commencement of the action, and it is not enough that the debt belonged to a partnership of which he was a member. Ibid.

A claim against an estate after the death of the intestate cannot be set up as a counterclaim in an action by the administrator. Sullivan v. Nicoulin, 113-76.

The indebtedness of one member of a partnership cannot be set off as against an action brought by the partnership to recover partnership funds. Hoaglin v. Henderson, 119-720.

Failure to interpose: A counterclaim may or may not be pleaded in an action as the defendant shall elect. And held that the vendee of property, buying under a guaranty, might plead breach of the guaranty as a defense in an action for the balance of the purchase money, and afterwards in an independent action recover damages sustained by reason of the seller's breach. Jones v. Witousek, 114-14.

If the matter of set-off or counterclaim is presented and passed upon in the suit it is barred by the judgment, if not, defendant may make it the subject of a separate and distinct action. Ibid.

The fact that defendant in an attachment suit pleads and establishes a counterclaim, thus defeating recovery of judgment by plaintiff, does not show that the attachment was sued out maliciously and without probable cause. The defendant has the election not to plead the indebtedness in his favor as a set-off or counterclaim, but to make it the subject of a separate and distinct action. Smeaton v. Cole, 120-368.

Failure to plead an existing cause of action as a counterclaim does not operate as a cancellation or satisfaction of such cause of action. Ferguson v. Epperly, 127-214.

SEC. 3572. Counterclaim by co-maker or surety.

An adjudication of the principal's right to a set-off or counterclaim is conclusive on the surety afterwards seeking the benefit thereof. Beh v. Bay, 127-246.

SEC. 3574. Cross-petition.

Wholly distinct and independent transactions cannot be brought into an action by cross-petition. It is only where a defendant has a cause of action affecting the subject-matter of the main suit that a cross-petition against a co-defendant or a third person may be interposed. Culbertson v. Salinger, 131-307.

SEC. 3575. Demurrer to answer.

If matter pleaded as a defense is not attacked by motion or demurrer it will, if proved, defeat the plaintiff's action, although had the question been raised the answer would have been held to present no defense. Ormsby v. Graham, 123-202.

SEC. 3576. Reply—when necessary.

A reply introducing a new cause of action should be stricken out on motion. Hunt v. Johnston, 105-311.

Where in an action for personal injuries defendant pleads contributory negligence of the plaintiff, the plaintiff, desiring to rely upon the fact that defendant might by reasonable care have prevented the injury to plaintiff after plaintiff's contributory negligence became apparent, should plead such fact in the reply. Ford v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 106-85.

Matter in avoidance of facts alleged in the answer should be pleaded in a reply. Pitstick v. Osterman, 107-189.

The allegations of an answer setting up an affirmative defense are denied by operation of law without the filing of a reply. League v. Ehmke, 120-464.

The averment of settlement in an answer is denied by operation of law. If, however, the plaintiff desires to impeach such settlement on account of fraud or mistake, such matter should be set up in a reply. Stomne v. Hanford Prod. Co., 108-137.

A reply should not be stricken out on motion for being inconsistent with the petition, where no inconsistency appears on the face of the reply, though such inconsistency may become apparent under the evidence. Keairnes v. Durst, 110-114.

Where one sets up matter of avoidance in the reply it is not necessary that he couple it with a denial. The law denies all affirmative allegations in the answer, save where a counterclaim is pleaded. Parno v. Iowa Merchants Mut. Ins. Co., 114-132.

Facts recited in a reply are not to be treated as constituting a cause of action, either of themselves or in connection with matters stated in the petition, but only as avoiding the defense alleged in the answer. Cedar Rapids Water Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 117-250.

SEC. 3577. Statements of.

Allegations of the answer being denied by operation of law, the burden of proving the same is upon the defendant, notwithstanding confession and avoidance pleaded in the reply. Parsons v. A. O. U. W., 108-6.

SEC. 3580. Verification—when necessary.

The omission of the signature of plaintiff's attorney at the conclusion of the petition is a defect of form only, and in the absence of a showing that the defendant has been misled or prejudiced thereby, it does not necessitate the dismissal of the action on defendant's motion. First National Bank v. Stone, 122-558.

The signature of a pleading purporting to be signed by the party in whose behalf it is filed, may be assumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be his signature. Frank v. Berry, 128-223.

SEC. 3581. By corporation.

A corporation may verify its answer denying the genuineness of the corporate signature by the oath of its secretary.

Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117-157.

SEC. 3583. By agent or attorney.

The provision that an affidavit of an attorney to a pleading is insufficient if it fails to show his competency to state the facts has reference to pleadings only and not to other matters which may require verification. The affidavit of an attorney made the basis of an auxiliary proceeding will be presumed to have been made with knowledge of the facts and to have been accepted by his client in whose behalf such affidavit is made. Carpenter v. Clements, Judge, 122-294.

SEC. 3588. Failure to verify.

Failure to verify a petition of forcible entry and detainer will be waived if not taken advantage of in the trial court. Herkimer v. Keeler, 109-680.

Advantage of the failure to verify a pleading can only be taken by motion to strike. Newburn v. Lucas, 126-85.

SEC. 3591. Amendments not verified.

The court may permit an amendment to be filed without verification. Thompson v. Brown, 106-367.

Section applied. Boos v. Dulin, 103-331.

SEC. 3592. Pleading in slander and libel.

Extrinsic facts need not be alleged in an action for slander to show that the language charged was spoken in a defamatory sense. Craver v. Norton, 114-46.

SEC. 3593. Matter in mitigation—justification.

Matters in mitigation cannot be proven unless specially pleaded. Craver v. Norton, 114-46; Flam v. Lee, 116-289.

In an action for breach of promise of marriage, want of chastity on the part of the plaintiff before or after the alleged promise is a circumstance tending to lessen damages, but must be specially pleaded by way of mitigation. Likewise seduction of plaintiff by the defendant, if relied upon, should be specially pleaded in such case by way of aggravation. Herriman v. Layman, 118-590.

In an action for criminal conversation that the bad character of plaintiff's wife prior to her marriage is matter in mitigation of damages only, and as such must be pleaded. Frank v. Berry, 128-223.

In an action by the wife for alienation of her husband's affections, the bad moral character of the plaintiff may be pleaded and shown by way of mitigation of damages. Hardrick v. Hardrick, 130-230.

SEC. 3594. Intervention.

In a proceeding before the board of supervisors for the remission of a mullet tax, there is no right of intervention by a mortgagee of the premises on which the tax has been levied for the determination of the question whether his mortgage is prior to the lien of the tax, nor can such question be raised in the district court on appeal from the action of the board. David v. Hardin County, 104-204.

It is the policy of the law to permit conflicting claims of priority growing out of a single mortgage to be settled in one action and such a result may be secured by intervention of parties interested in the property. Cooper v. Mohler, 104-301.

An assignee for the benefit of creditors, to whom has been transferred a right to recover on an attachment bond, may intervene in the original action for the purpose of recovering on such bond. Ringgen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109-175.

An assignee of the claim on which the action is based is not entitled to intervene. He may allow the action to proceed in the name of the assignor, or may have himself substituted. Bank of Commerce v. Timbrell, 113-713.

Where the wife in a proceeding for divorce and alimony asked to have a conveyance of property from her husband to a third party set aside as fraudulent, and after a dismissal of the action by plaintiff was filed, and before any order of dismissal had been entered, attorneys of the wife sought to intervene, asking to have their claims for attorneys' fees enforced against the land, held that they had no such standing with reference to the controversy as to be entitled to intervene, and that at any rate the application was too late. Keehn v. Keehn, 115-467.

The creditor if an insolvent partnership may come into a receivership proceedings in which the distribution of assets of the firm is being determined as between the partners and have an order for the payment of his claim. Johnson v. Johnson, 132-457.

One who intervenes in an action may subsequently withdraw such intervention so as not to be bound by the further proceedings in the case. Guinn v. Iowa & St. L. R. Co., 125-301.

SEC. 3595. Decision—no delay—costs.

The provisions of this section as to delay refer to delay of trial and not to such delay as may result from an immediate trial. If the intervenor, by his action, does not occasion any postponement, he is not chargeable with delay resulting from the trial of his petition of intervention. Ringgen Stove Co. v. Bowers, 109-175.

SEC. 3597. Variance—amendments.

A variance between allegations and proof which does not mislead the opposite party is immaterial. Harward v. Davenport, 105-592.

Objection cannot be made to the allowing of an amendment on the ground of surprise when the evidence which may be introduced thereunder would have been admissible under the original pleading. Thompson v. Brown, 106-367.

As the parties by amendment may introduce new issues, or make certain those intended, their interpretation of the pleadings, when clearly manifested, is uniformly adopted by the courts. Thus, permitting the introduction of evidence on an issue not specially pleaded, without objection, obviates the necessity of its formal presentation. Fenner v. Crips, 109-455.

It does not constitute a fatal variance between the allegations and the proof that the plaintiff establishes more than is necessary to sustain the allegations of his petition. Goodrich v. Fogarty, 130-223.

Where the case goes to trial without objection on a cause of action not set up in the petition, but which is supported by evidence, the defendant cannot complain of the defect in the petition. Shoemaker v. Turner, 117-340.

And see notes to § 3563.

A plaintiff relying upon an express agreement must prove it and cannot recover under an implied contract. Hunt v. Tuttle, 125-676; Leonard v. Leonard, 111 N. W. 409.

Plaintiff need not file an amendment to his petition because of variance between the allegations and the proof, where the defendant is estopped to say that he was misled thereby. Voelker v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 116 Fed. 867.

Where plaintiff suing for breach of contract does not allege whether it is oral or in writing, in the absence of any attack on the pleading on that ground, recovery can be had on proof of an oral agreement. Newburn v. Hyde, 132-88.

SEC. 3599. Failure of proof.

Failure to prove unnecessary allegations in the petition will not defeat recovery. See notes to § 3639.

SEC. 3600. Amendments allowed.

Right to amend: The rule is to allow amendments to pleadings, and where the amendment is offered before trial is begun and presents matter which has any reasonable relevancy to the controversy to be decided, leave to file such amendment should be granted. Bruner v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 111 N. W. 977.

The clause, "When the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defense," has reference solely to "conforming the pleadings or proceedings to the facts proved," and does not limit the portion of the section relating to the correction of a mistake in the name of the party, or a mistake in any other respect, and held that an amendment to take a cause of action out of the statute of limitations was properly allowed. Taylor v. Taylor, 110-207.

Statutes authorizing amendments are to be liberally construed. Ibid.

Under the code system of pleading no litigant should be denied relief because of an error in the mere form of the action, when he has the right to amendment to adopt that appropriate to the relief prayed. The mere method should not obscure the results to be obtained. Cox Shoe Co. v. Adams, 105-402.

Therefore, held, that in an action of replevin wherein it appeared that the plaintiff was entitled to equitable relief, he should be allowed to amend, asking such relief, and have the case transferred to the proper calendar. Ibid.

A party may not by successive amendments present his case by piecemeal. Ingold v. Symonds, 111 N. W. 802.

Failure of the plaintiff in an action to recover damages for personal injuries to allege freedom from contributory negligence should not be taken advantage of by the trial court as a ground for directing a verdict for the defendant without affording the plaintiff an opportunity to amend by alleging want of contributory negligence. Such defect may be waived by the defendant. Brown v. Ill. Cent. R. Co., 123-239.

Discretionary: The trial court may exercise a wide discretion in the matter of allowing amendments, in the interest of justice. Livingston v. Heck, 122-74.

Amendments to pleadings are allowed with great liberty, and a large discretion is vested in the trial courts in permitting them; unless some prejudice results from the filing thereof or some injustice appears, rulings with reference to such matters will not be disturbed on appeal. Williams Shoe Co. v. Gotzian, 130-710; McClurg v. Brenton, 123-368.

The exercise of discretion on the part of the court in striking out an amendment will not be reviewed unless an abuse of discretion appears. Bay v. Monroe County, 121-302.

While the matter of allowing amendments is discretionary, still this discretion is a legal one and should always be exercised with a view to substantial justice. Cole v. Laird, 121-146.

In a particular case held that the court did not abuse its discretion in allowing an amendment. Weiland v. Ehlers, 107-186.

Leave to file: Amendments are allowed with great liberality, and the mere fact that they are filed without leave is no ground for striking them from the files where the amendment is such an one as should have been allowed had permission been asked to file it. West Side Lumber Co. v. Hathaway, 115-654.

Leave to file is immaterial if the court subsequently treats the amendment as constituting a part of the pleadings. Rice v. Bolton, 126-654; Berkey v. Tefelbure, 125-76.

Within what time—pending trial: The allowance of amendments at almost any stage of the trial is the rule, and the refusal of such privilege is the exception. Jaroszewski v. Allen, 117-632.

An amendment pending the trial for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proofs is proper. Tyler v. Bowen, 124-452; Johnson v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 125-565.

An amendment to a pleading so as to make its allegations conform to the evidence should not be denied, though not made until after the evidence is closed. Cole v. Laird, 121-146.

After the conclusion of the evidence and before the opening of the arguments to the jury a party may be allowed to amend his pleadings to correspond to the proofs. Taylor v. Star Coal Co., 110-40.

Where an amendment to an answer tendered an entirely new and distinct issue after the case had been once tried, and was offered at the conclusion of defendant's evidence upon the second trial, no good reason appearing for not having filed it before that time, held that it was properly refused. National Horse Importing Co. v. Novak, 105-157.

It is not error to refuse leave to file an amendment to the petition after the close of the evidence, in which a new substantive allegation is made. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Dean Drug Co., 111 N. W. 534.

Liberality in permitting amendments is the rule and the party against whom a demurrer has been sustained may amend or plead over as a matter of course at any time before the opposing party takes advantage of his default by motion for judgment. Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank, 123-336.

An issue tendered by an amended answer, setting up want of consideration in a written contract sued upon, may be considered, although the amendment is not filed until after motion is made to direct a verdict, the ruling of the court allowing such amendment not being attacked. Beaty v. Carr, 109-183.

New issues should not be injected by amendment after the conclusion of the arguments to the jury. Herrstrom v. Newton & N. W. R. Co., 129-507.

After submission: The court will not be presumed to have taken into consideration an amendment to the pleadings filed after the case was submitted, without leave of court or notice to the opposite party. Sturman v. Sturman, 118-620.

A party is not entitled to file an amendment to his pleading after the case has been submitted, which substantially changes the cause of action or defense. LeMars Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Burgess, 129-422.

While amendments are allowed with great liberality yet it is quite irregular to introduce a new cause of action after the submission of a case for the purpose of conforming the pleadings to the proof and the court may properly refuse to entertain such amendment. Boardman v. Louis Drach Const. Co., 123-603.

An amendment filed after verdict, raising an entirely new issue, may be stricken out on motion. Shawyer v. Chamberlain, 113-742.

After a final submission, either before or after reversal on appeal, there is no good reason for opening the case for the purpose of allowing the introduction of a new cause of action by way of counterclaim, not growing out of the same transaction, and which may quite as well be investigated and decided in a separate proceeding. Allen v. Davenport, 115-20.

Where an application was not made for leave to file an amendment to a petition for the purpose of making it conform to the evidence until several days after the verdict was rendered, held, that the action of the court in refusing to allow such amendment would not be reversed on appeal. Ankrum v. Marshalltown, 105-493.

Error in admitting evidence of an issue not raised by the pleadings cannot be cured by an amendment of the pleadings after the trial introducing such issue. Cole v. Thompson, 112 N. W. 178.

Discretion as to time: While a great liberality should be shown by the courts in allowance of amendments that are in furtherance of justice, the right to amend is not absolute and attorneys should not be encouraged to wait until the last moment before presenting their cases. If the amendment is not filed until the commencement of the trial the exercise of discretion by the trial court in striking the amendment from the files will be sustained. Emerson v. Converse, 106-330.

The discretion of the court in disregarding an amendment on the ground that it was filed too late will not be interfered with on appeal. Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 107-369.

Amendment of pleadings after trial is begun is not always a matter of right and the ruling of the trial court in refusing leave to file such amendment will not be interfered with on appeal in the absence of a showing of the abuse of discretion. American Life Ins. Co. v. Melcher, 132-324.

There is no abuse of discretion in not allowing an answer to be filed after the trial has been called and the jury waived, the defensive matter averred being admissible under general denial. Dunton v. Dawley, 122-512.

Refusal to allow the filing of an amended pleading introducing new issues during the trial is not an abuse of discretion requiring reversal. Allen v. North Des Moines M. E. Church, 127-96.

The discretion of the court in denying the right to file an amendment not offered in proper time will not be interfered with on appeal. Davis v. Boyer, 122-132.

The trial court has large discretion in the matter of extending time for filing amendments, and where no default has actually been entered, its action in giving further time to amend will not, in general, be disturbed. Davis v. Huber Mfg. Co., 119-56.

An amendment to the answer tendered at the close of the argument interposing a new defense may be rejected at the discretion of the court, no reason being made to appear why it should not have been earlier offered. Kettering v. Eastlack, 130-498.

New parties: To save an action from abating, plaintiff should be allowed, on request, to have proper parties substituted before the court directs a verdict for the defendant on the ground that plaintiff is not the proper party to sue. Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 112-210.

New cause of action: Where, in an action to recover for negligence, one ground of negligence is stated in the petition, and another in an amendment thereto, the cause of action stated in the amendment will be barred if barred when the amendment is filed, although not barred when the action was commenced. Box v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 107-660.

Where a substituted petition sets up a cause of action, of the same nature, but not founded on the same facts, the cause of action is not to be deemed the same, and if the substituted petition is not filed within the statutory period, the cause of action therein pleaded is to be deemed barred. Brooks v. SeEVERS, 112-480.

An amendment seeking to hold the defendant as a debtor on his own account while the original petition charged him as a member of partnership, does not so change the cause of action that such amendment cannot be made after the five-year limit has expired. Padden v. Clark, 124-94.

The statement is an amendment of additional grounds of negligence does not constitute the interposition of a new cause of action. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 129-550.

An amendment to a petition in an attachment suit may set up a new ground of attachment. Emerson v. Converse, 106-330.

The question whether plaintiff may amend his petition setting up a different cause of action should be raised by motion to strike, and if such motion is sustained, the plaintiff should have the opportunity allowed by statute to cure the defect in his petition by further amendment. It is not proper in such case to render judgment against the plaintiff without the lapse of the statutory period allowed for further pleading. Williams v. Williams, 115-520.

In an action against a city for personal injuries by reason of defective sidewalk, the place where the accident occurred is material to the cause of action, but a change of the description of such place, to cure an oversight or inadvertence, does not introduce a new cause of action. Sachra v. Manilla, 120-562.

After action barred: If the new matter pleaded does not state a new cause of action, but merely amplifies the charges of negligence made in the petition, the amendment may be upheld, although filed after the period of limitation has run. Gordon v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 129-747.

An amendment specifying more particularly the damages flowing from the wrongs alleged in the petition may be interposed after the statutory period for maintaining the action for such injuries has run. Anderson v. Acheson, 132-744.

Substitute: Where a pleading has been superseded by a subsequent pleading, filed as a substitute, the former pleading cannot be used for any purpose on the trial without being introduced in evidence. Longley v. McVey, 109-666.

It is only when the original pleading has been superseded by a subsequent pleading that the averments of such original pleading are not to be taken against the pleader unless the pleading is introduced in evidence. Burns v. Chicago, Ft. M. & D. M. R. Co., 110-385.

A pleading which has been superseded or withdrawn cannot be submitted to the jury to prove an admission contained therein unless it is introduced in evidence. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117-157.

The fact that averments of a substituted petition are inconsistent with those of the previous pleading is not a ground of demurrer. Williams v. Williams, 115-520.

Pleadings superseded remain a part of the record, but they cannot be read or commented on in the trial unless formally introduced in evidence. Ibid.

An amended pleading may appear to be and be treated as a substitute. In re Estate of McMurray, 107-648.

Must be substantial: It is proper to strike out a pleading, even though filed as a substitute for all previous pleadings, which is in substance a mere repetition of allegations which have been held insufficient on a demurrer to a former pleading in the same case. Hoyt v. Beach, 104-257.

The court may properly strike out an amendment which amounts to nothing more in legal effect than a refiling of the original pleading. McKee v. Illinois Central R. Co., 121-550.

SEC. 3604. Interrogatories annexed to pleading.

It is not necessary to submit interrogatories which do not call for ultimate facts nor for answers which would necessarily control the verdict. Thompson v. Brown, 106-367.

The statutory provision requiring answers by the opposite party to interrogatories attached to the pleading are applicable to corporations as well as to individuals. The answers in such cases are to be made by the proper agent of the corporation. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

Interrogatories may be attached to an amendment to a pleading, and it is within the sound discretion of the court to permit such amendment at any time during the trial. Ibid.

restating what has been previously pleaded, may be stricken out on motion. Curl v. Foehler, 113-597.

Entered on docket: Where an amendment is treated by all the parties as filed, and the case tried on the issues raised by such amendment, it cannot afterwards be objected that the amendment was not entered on the appearance docket. Foley v. Cedar Rapids, 133-64.

Change of forum: After the trial of a case as in equity, if the plaintiff is allowed to amend his petition so as to convert his demand from one of equitable cognizance to an action at law for damages, the court should set aside the submission and proceed to a trial by ordinary proceedings. Hartwig v. Iles, 131-501.

A party should not be allowed by amendment to convert an equitable action into one at law and have a change to the law docket after the evidence has been taken by depositions as in an equitable action. Saunders v. Wells, 112 N. W., 205.

After the filing of a substitute petition and a subsequent withdrawal of the same, the plaintiff may file an amendment to the original petition. Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 129-550.

It is proper to strike out interrogatories proposed in an amended petition where it is manifest that to permit them to stand would necessarily postpone the trial, and plaintiff offers no excuse for the delay in propounding them. Thies v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 107-522.

In the absence of objection by the opposite party, it is not error to allow interrogatories to be propounded in an amendment to the pleading. Free v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 110 N. W. 143.

Interrogatories attached to a pleading are not a part of the pleading, and the answers thereto cannot be considered in determining the issues of law arising on the pleadings. Van Norman v. Modern Brotherhood, 111 N. W. 992.

While exceptions to interrogatories annexed to a pleading should be passed on before the entry of an order requiring answers thereto, circumstances may arise justifying the setting aside of the order requiring answers, in order that exceptions to the interrogatories may be interposed. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 110 N. W. 143.

SEC. 3609. How verified.

Where the answers to interrogatories made by the officers of a corporation in a case against the corporation show on their face that they are not made in good faith, and that, although the officers making the answers have not personal knowledge of the facts inquired about, they might have acquired such knowledge from the records and books of the corporation, accessible to them, such answers may be stricken out and the penalty for failure to make proper answers may be enforced. Blair v. Sioux City & P. R. Co., 109-369.

The pleading of a corporation may be verified by the oath of its proper officer. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117-157.

SEC. 3610. Effect of failure to answer.

Failure to answer interrogatories propounded in a pleading does not authorize the summary entering of judgment. Modern Steel Structural Co. v. Van Buren County, 126-606.

Before rendering judgment for failure to make answers to interrogatories, an opportunity should be afforded to answer the interrogatories by fixing a time within which such answers must be filed, either by entering such an original order, or by extending the time originally fixed, and such remedy cannot be given where the time for answering has elapsed without an order affording such reasonable time. Fee v. Western Union Tel. Co., 110 N. W. 143.

SEC. 3611. Answers compelled.

Without regard to statutory provisions, the court may compel answers to interrogatories by proceedings for contempt, and on failure of the party to answer may strike his pleadings. Free v. Western Union Tel. Co., 110 N. W. 143.

But where the facts sought to be elicited are admitted by answer even though filed without leave of court, and there is nothing to show bad faith, the court should not strike the defendant's pleading for failure to answer interrogatories propounded by plaintiff, and enter judgment by default against him. Ibid.

SEC. 3613. Allegations as to time.

Allegations of time, when not material, need not be proven as made. Arrison v. Mystic Toolers, 129-303.

SEC. 3615. Evidence under denial.

A custom relied upon as affecting a contract cannot be proven under a general denial, but must be pleaded. Eller v. Loomis, 106-276.

In an action for criminal conversation the defendant cannot, under general denial, prove consent or connivance of the husband to the improper relations with the wife. Such facts should be pleaded by way of special defense. Morning v. Long, 109-288.

The evidence which tends to negative or disprove the matters of fact alleged in the petition is proper to be admitted under a general denial. Therefore in a joint action against an employer and an employe for a tort committed by the latter, a general denial of liability by the former is sufficient to warrant the admission that the latter was an independent contractor, for whose acts the former was not liable. Overhouser v. American Cereal Co., 128-580.

A mere general denial of a claim based on a written contract raises no issue under which testimony as to the peculiar or trade meaning of the words used in the contract is admissible. Tubbs v. Mechanics' Ins. Co., 131-217.

Further as to general denials see notes to § 3566.

SEC. 3618. Sham defenses—redundant matter.

The remedy for getting rid of immaterial and irrelevant matter is by motion. In re Estate of McMurray, 107-648.

The objection that a pleading is sham or frivolous cannot be interposed by demurrer. Williams v. Williams, 115-520.

SEC. 3620. Inconsistent defenses—verification.

Defendant in an action for goods sold and delivered may plead rescission and also set up a counterclaim for breach of warranty. He is not required to elect. Thorson & Cassidy Co. v. Baker, 107-49.

A party may interpose inconsistent defenses. Thus defendant in an action to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent may deny the sale and also allege that the sale relied upon by the plaintiff was in fraud of creditors. Jordan v. Crickett, 123-576.

Defendant may in different divisions of his answer plead a general denial and a confession and avoidance, and the effect of the general denial will not be nullified by the colorable confession necessarily alleged in connection with the avoidance. Rudd v. Dewey, 121-454.

The doctrine of election in pleading applies only to inconsistent causes of action, and not to inconsistent defenses. Bruner v. Brotherhood of American Yeomen, 111 N. W. 977.

Inconsistent defenses may be pleaded and relied upon, and the defendant cannot be required to elect as between them. Cole v. Laird, 121-146.

SEC. 3622. What deemed admitted.

Allegations of the petition which are not denied are to be treated as true. Kent v. Muscatine, N. & S. R. Co., 115-383; Redhead v. Iowa Nat. Bank, 127-572.

Where the parties proceed to trial without answer or other pleading to an amended petition the plaintiff cannot afterwards claim that defendant is in default as to the amendment or that its allegations should be treated as confessed. Gregory v. Bowlsby, 126-588.

The statements made in a pleading which have been superseded or withdrawn do not constitute admissions presumptively true as against the pleader. McDonald v. Nugent, 122-651.

The rule that allegations in the petition not denied in the answer are to be deemed true has no application on an appeal from the board of review for the assessment of taxes, although such appeal is to be determined as an equitable proceeding. City Council v. National Loan & Investment Co., 122-629.

SEC. 3623. Account—bill of particulars.

Although a verified bill of particulars does not in every respect meet the requirements of this section, yet, in the absence of timely objection it may be treated as sufficient if it serves the purpose of the case. Sitzer v. Fenzloff, 112-491.

SEC. 3626. Conditions precedent.

The general denial of a general allegation of the performance of conditions precedent does not put such allegations in issue. Krause v. Modern Woodmen, 133-199.

SEC. 3627. Action in representative capacity.

In filing a claim against an estate it is not necessary to specify in what capacity the claim is made, and denial of the capacity of plaintiff to sue must be made specific. University of Chicago v. Emmert, 108-500.

While a failure to allege corporate capacity is a ground of demurrer, such objection comes too late after judgment. Calnan Const. Co. v. Brown, 110-37.

SEC. 3628. Denial—facts must be stated.

Where the petition in an action on a policy of insurance states that plaintiff has performed every act necessary to comply with the terms of the policy, defendant cannot rely upon failure to submit to an appraiser without pleading such fact as a defense. Smith v. Continental Ins. Co., 108-382.

Where corporate existence is a material allegation of fact, proof of which is necessary to sustain plaintiff's claim, the case is not governed by this section. Taft Co. v. Bounani, 110-739.

Where plaintiff alleges its corporate capacity, and the denial is merely want of information on the subject, this is not sufficient to put in issue the corporate capacity of the plaintiff. Iowa Sav. & L. Assn. v. Selby, 111-402.

To put in issue defendant's corporate capacity as alleged in the petition, facts showing want of such capacity must be specially pleaded. Stork v. Supreme Lodge K. of P., 113-724.

A trustee in bankruptcy, suing in the interest of creditors, need allege no more than the fact of his representative capacity to entitle him to maintain the suit, and such allegation can only be put in issue by specially pleading the facts relied upon, to show that he is not entitled to maintain such suit. Crary v. Kurtz, 132-105.

SEC. 3629. Matters specifically pleaded.

In an action for criminal conversation, defendant, desiring to prove the acquiescence of the husband in the relations to his wife, should set up the facts by way of special defense. If he does not do so, he cannot prove them under general denial. Morning v. Long, 109-288.

The defense of the statute of limitations is waived if not pleaded. McDonald v. Bice, 113-44.

Matter which is admissible under a general denial need not be pleaded by way of justification. Overhauser v. American Cereal Co., 128-580.

In an action for breach of contract for the payment of a specified sum of money, an allegation of non-payment is essential and the fact of payment need not be alleged as a special defense, but may be proven under a general denial. Howerton v. Augustine, 130-389.

Section applied. Shawyer v. Chamberlain, 113-742.

And see notes under § 3566.

SEC. 3630. Motion for more specific statement.

A motion to strike out defensive matter from an answer on the ground that it is immaterial and redundant cannot be supported by affidavit. Mast v. Wells, 110-128.

In an action against two defendants to recover compensation for keeping, caring for and feeding stock, at the request of the defendants, orally made, held that it was error to overrule a motion asking that plaintiff be required to state whose property it was he kept, cared for and fed, and at whose instance and for whose benefit he performed the labor specified. Hurd v. Ladner, 110-263.

Where defendant in his answer denies, either generally or specifically, the allegations of plaintiff's petition, he cannot be required by motion for more specific statement to make such denials more particular. Providence Bank Stock Co. v. Schafer, 110-440.

Section applied as to stating whether a contract is in writing. Montgomery v. Downey, 116-632.

In an action to enjoin a liquor nuisance, held that while the general allegation of unlawfully keeping and selling intoxicating liquor in violation of law, was sufficient, yet where it was made to appear by a motion, supported by affidavit, that the defendant was entitled to sell liquor under a permit, the court rightly sustained a motion to require the plaintiff to state more specifically wherein the keeping and selling by defendant was unlawful. Abrams v. Sandholm, 119-533.

Any error in the sustaining of a motion for more specific statement is waived by amending in response to such motion. Hunn v. Ashton, 121-265.

SEC. 3638. Bond—breaches of.

Judgment against sureties on a bond being for the delinquency of the principal not to exceed the amount named in the bond, interest on a principal's liability should be added even as against the sureties from that time. Ellyson v. Lord, 124-125.

SEC. 3639. Amount of proof.

Unnecessary averments in a pleading need not be proven. Kerr v. Topping, 109-150; Russell v. Holder, 116-188; Krejci v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 117-344; Perpetual B. & L. Assn. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 118-729; Anderson v. Acheson, 132-744; Williamson v. Robinson, 111 N. W. 1012.

A party is not required to prove more of the allegations of his pleading than necessary to entitle him to the relief demanded or any relief included in that which is demanded. Garvik v. Burlington,

C. R. & N. R. Co., 124-691; Everett v. Christopher, 125-668.

Where plaintiff seeks to recover on an implied contract and also for trespass on the same facts, he may recover on the implied contract without proving the trespass. Harrison v. Palo Alto County, 104-333.

Although plaintiff in an action for assault and battery alleges malice which is not necessary to be proven in such an action, he may recover without malice being shown. Reizenstein v. Clark, 104-287.

SEC. 3640. Denial of genuineness of signature.

Having once denied the signature under oath, defendant is not bound to renew his denial in subsequent amendments. Renner v. Thornburg, 111-515.

Such denial throws the burden of proof on the opposite party. Ibid.

In an action on a note purporting to be signed by a corporation the corporation may deny the genuineness of its signature by alleging that its president who signed the corporate name had no authority to do so. The verification of such sworn denial by a proper officer of the corporation is sufficient to put in issue the genuineness of the corporate signature. Marshall Field Co. v. Oren Ruffcorn Co., 117-157.

Where the execution of a note and mortgage is denied under oath, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove the execution. Damman v. Vollenwieder, 126-327.

Where the signature of a written instrument is so denied as to throw the burden of proof upon the plaintiff suing thereon, and the plaintiff wholly fails to sustain the averments of his petition, as against such denial, it is not error to render a judgment for the defendant. Peterson v. Ball, 121-544.

Section applied. Carthage Nat. Bank v. Butterbaugh, 116-657.

[The Code note for the case of Schulte v. Coulthurst, near the bottom of second column on page 1394, should be changed to read as follows:]

Where a claim against an estate is based upon a note, a denial of the execution of the note puts in issue the genuineness of the signature and overcomes the presumption which ordinarily obtains in favor of the signature of a written instrument when the statutory denial is not made. Schulte v. Coulthurst, 94-418.

SEC. 3641. Supplemental pleading.

A continuance of the same grievance complained of in the original petition may be pleaded by way of supplemental petition for the purpose of securing additional relief. Foote v. Burlington Gas Light Co., 103-576.

The true criterion for determining the propriety of a supplemental petition does not lie in ascertaining whether it states a cause of action which might be independently maintained. It may be read with the original petition and both considered as one pleading, and if its scope is limited to strengthening, developing or re-enforcing the original cause of action, or of enlarging the extent of, or changing the relief sought, then it meets the very purpose of such pleading. The new cause of action which the law will not permit to be thus pleaded is one not related to that stated in the original petition and which, under the rules of pleading, must be set up in a separate count or division. Ibid.

SEC. 3642. Matter in abatement.

Where a prior action is so dismissed by the plaintiff as to waive any right to recover therein such prior action cannot be relied on in abatement of a subsequent action. Pray v. Life Indem. & Secur. Co., 104-114.

One of the recognized tests of determining whether the plea of another action pending is good lies in ascertaining whether the judgment, when obtained, would necessarily be res adjudicata of the issues of the action wherein the plea is interposed. Valley Bank v. Shenandoah Nat. Bank, 109-43.

Two actions for the same cause may not be maintained at the same time because the second suit is unnecessary for the enforcement of rights or the redress of wrongs, and simply annoys and harasses the defendant without cause, but the reason of the rule applies only when the plain-

Therefore, held, in an action to recover damages resulting from the maintenance of a nuisance, a claim for additional damages accruing since the commencement of the action by reason of a continuance of the nuisance might be set up in a supplemental petition. Ibid.

This section does not authorize the presentation of an entirely new cause of action. Allen v. Davenport, 115-20.

In an action against a county on an unliquidated claim the failure to make demand as required by Code § 3528 before instituting suit may be cured by a subsequent demand pleaded in a supplemental or amended petition. Little v. Pottawattamie County, 127-376.

A motion relating to the enforcement of a decree is not properly entitled a supplemental pleading. Dunton v. McCook, 120-444.

Section applied. Christie v. Iowa Life Ins. Co., 111-177.

tiff in both actions is the same person, and hence the rule itself falls when this is not true. The fact that the parties do not stand in the same relation in the two suits is an insuperable obstacle to the plea. Pratt v. Howard, 109-504.

The fact that the action depends upon the same right or title as another action pending will not suffice to sustain a plea in abatement. The two actions must involve the same cause of action. Watson v. Richardson, 110-698.

The rule that the court first acquiring jurisdiction of the case will retain the same to the exclusion of any other court of concurrent jurisdiction is not applicable unless it appears that the suits are between the same parties seeking the same remedy. State v. Clough, 111-714.

Another action pending is a good plea in abatement where the parties are the same, the issues identical and the interests of respective parties such as must be determined, although the parties plaintiff are not the same in the two suits. Guinn v. Elliott, 123-179.

The doctrine that a subsequent action may be abated on the ground of the pendency of a prior one between the same parties for the same cause does not apply where the prior action is pending in the courts of another state or in a foreign country. Schmidt v. Posner, 130-347.

This section does not specify what shall be a good plea in abatement. That must be determined independently of the statute. Moffitt v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-407.

SEC. 3644. Consolidation of actions.

Two actions, one in law and the other in equity, although between the same parties, should not be consolidated. Hodowal v. Yearous, 103-32.

Where so far as the parties defendant are actually served with notice the actions may properly be consolidated, such consolidation will not be erroneous on account of the fact that other parties defendant are named in the two actions, who if they had been properly brought into court would have prevented the consolidation. Bank of Montreal v. Ingerson, 105-349.

The important inquiry as to the consolidation of actions in equity is as to the identity of the subject-matter involved. The aim is to bring in all the parties in interest, and suits will be consolidated without special regard to the identity of parties. This is because of the power of such a court to make proper orders, according to each party exact justice. Cox Shoe Co. v. Adams, 105-402.

Consolidation is effected on the order of court alone, upon application of a party, or by motion. When applied for the order is discretionary, and the action of the trial court in the matter will be interfered with only on a clear showing of abuse. Jones v. Witousek, 114-14.

Pleas in abatement do not go to the merits of the action but rather to the procedure; and a pleading tending to show that the action has been prematurely brought is a plea in abatement, and judgment for defendant on that ground will not bar a subsequent action. Nor will a judgment for defendant on the ground that the plaintiff has not proven capacity to sue, constitute a bar to another suit. Telegraph v. Lee, 125-17.

An affirmative defense in the nature of a plea in abatement is denied by operation of law. State v. Beardsley, 108-396.

CHAPTER 9.

OF TRIAL AND JUDGMENT.

SECTION 3647. Issues.

An issue of law is raised by presenting a question for determination on demurrer or plea. Columbus Junction Tel. Co. v. Overholt, 126-579.

SEC. 3649. Trial defined.

A judicial examination of an issue of law raised by a demurrer or plea is a trial. Columbus Junction Tel. Co. v. Overholt, 126-579.

The trial of an action as defined by statute is not completed until all the issues raised are passed on. The return of the verdict does not necessarily conclude the examination either of questions of fact or of law. Bevering v. Smith, 121-607.

SEC. 3650. How issues tried.

There is not in general a right to a jury trial in special proceedings. Green v. Smith, 111-183.

Where there is no element of accounting or other recognized ground of equitable jurisdiction, mere intricacy of the calculations necessary to determine the amount of plaintiff's recovery will not justify the court in refusing to grant a jury trial in an action at law. Galusha v. Wendt, 114-597.

The issues on an appeal under Code § 2450 as to the correctness of the action of the board of supervisors in canvassing a statement of consent under the mulct law are triable without a jury, and it is error to submit issues in such a proceeding to a jury, even in an advisory way. Porter v. Butterfield, 116-725.

SEC. 3651. Method of trial in ordinary actions.

A proceeding for admeasurement of land is triable ordinarily upon assignment of error and not de novo. In re Estate of Lund, 107-264.

SEC. 3652. In equitable actions—certificate of evidence—trial anew on appeal. In equitable actions wherein issues of fact are joined, all the evidence offered in the trial shall be taken down in writing, or the court may order the evidence, or any part thereof, to be taken in the form of depositions, or either party may, at pleasure, take his testimony, or any part thereof, by deposition. All the evidence so taken shall be certified by the judge at any time within six months after the entry of a final decree, and the evidence and certificate be made a part of the record, and go on appeal to the supreme court, which shall try the cause anew. But this section shall be so construed as to include the evidence taken in shorthand, when the reporter's notes of such evidence have been certified to by the judge and reporter within the time herein provided. [19 G. A., ch. 35, § 1; 17 G. A., ch. 145; C., '73, § 2742.] [31 G. A., ch. 155.]

Evidence taken down—filing transcript: Under the statutory provisions that in equity cases the evidence shall be taken down in writing and all the evidence so taken shall be certified by the judge and be made a part of the record and go on appeal to the supreme court, the transcript of the evidence taken in shorthand and certified by the reporter and filed, is to be deemed written evidence. But otherwise the trial judge must finally determine what the evidence in the case tried before him and the certificate of the judge to the shorthand notes is conclusive that they contain the evidence on the trial. It is immaterial whether the reporter certifies to the correctness of such notes or his transcript thereof. Dietz v. Capital City Brick & Pipe Co., 103-542.

The provisions of Code of '73, § 2742, as amended, that the written evidence should be certified within the time allowed for appeal, was not affected by the provision of 26 G. A., ch. 64, by which the transcript of the shorthand reporter's notes might be transmitted to the supreme court in lieu of the clerk's transcript of such evidence. Sloan v. Davis, 105-97.

The notes of the stenographer are not evidence in writing within the statutory provision as to taking down the evidence in writing in an equity case. But when such notes identifying all documentary evidences are duly certified to by the trial judge the transcript thereof, including the judge's certificate, duly certified by the reporter, may become written evidence. To secure a trial de novo, however, a transcript of the evidence must be on file within six months from the time final decree is entered. Smith v. Wellslager, 105-140.

According to the law as it now stands equity actions are to be tried on written evidence and no motion for that purpose is required. To make the transcript when duly certified a part of the record for the purpose of appeal it is necessary to file it with the clerk within six months from the time final decree was entered, and evidence not thus preserved cannot be considered on appeal, even on assignment of errors. Ibid.

The failure of the reporter to furnish appellant a transcript of the evidence in an equity case in time to enable him to prosecute his appeal will not be a ground for new trial if appellant has been negligent in attempting to procure such transcript. McKinley v. McKinley, 123-574.

Where the evidence in an equitable action is not certified and filed in the lower court within six months, there cannot be a trial de novo on appeal. Kringle v. Kringle, 123-365.

If the shorthand notes or transcript in an equity case are lost the court may order a substitution and will not be without jurisdiction to do so in a proceeding commenced within the time allowed for taking appeal although the final order for substitution is not entered until the time for the appeal in which it is desired to make use of the evidence has expired. Ormsby v. Graham, 123-202.

Where appellee has set out in an additional abstract portions of the evidence, which he avers to be a part of the record, he cannot raise the question whether the evidence was properly preserved in an equity case. Sarvis v. Caster, 116-707.

After the evidence has on appeal been stricken from the record because not properly preserved and the case has been submitted on the part of appellee, appellant is not entitled to have the evidence reinstated and the case considered as though such evidence was in record. Citizens' Bank v. Johnson, 107-365.

Depositions: Under § 2742 of the Code of '73 held that the court might in its discretion refuse to order the testimony to be taken by depositions. But held that such refusal even though erroneous would not constitute prejudicial error as the party would have had a right to introduce the evidence by depositions so far as he desired. Varnum v. Winslow, 106-287.

Certificate of judge and reporter: To justify a trial anew of an equity case in the supreme court the evidence must be certified and filed within the time allowed for appeal, that is, six months. Bauernfiend v. Jonas, 104-56.

Failure to file the certificate in time cannot be cured by an order nunc pro tunc. First Nat. Bank v. Redhead, 103-421.

Where the evidence is not thus preserved the court cannot, on assignment of error, pass upon questions in the case requiring the consideration of the evidence. Smith v. Wellslager, 105-140.

Where the evidence has not been taken down, certified and preserved as required, a motion in the supreme court to strike the evidence set out in the abstract will be sustained. Co-operative Bank v. Meldrum, 128-694.

The office of the certificate of the judge is to identify the evidence and to make it of record when filed, while it is the office of the certificate of the clerk to identify and authenticate the record. Bauernfiend v. Jonas, 104-56.

Where the judge certified that the evidence was all the evidence offered, given or introduced upon the trial, held, that such certificate was sufficient. Miller Brewing Co. v. Hansen, 104-307.

A certificate that the record contains all the evidence offered and introduced on the trial it is not sufficient to enable the court to try the case de novo. Cheney v. McColloch, 104-249.

A certificate that the transcript of the evidence is a correct, true and complete transcript of all the evidence introduced, both oral and documentary, together with the objections interposed by counsel and the rulings of the court thereon, exceptions taken, etc., is not sufficient to enable the court to try the case de novo, because it does not show that the record contains all of the evidence which was offered upon the trial below. Greenlee v. Home Ins. Co., 103-484.

Exhibits which are sufficiently identified in the stenographer's report or translation, duly certified by the judge, are sufficiently preserved. Mason v. Des Moines, 108-658.

Under the provisions of Code § 4118, embodied in rule 22 of the supreme court, it is not necessary to formally allege in the abstract on appeal that the evidence was certified by the trial judge and the certificate made of record. Kirchman v. Standard Coal Co., 112-668.

It is not necessary to set out the certificate to the evidence in order to show that it has been properly preserved in an equity case, it being presumed that the proper steps have been taken, unless the question is raised by a specific denial. Burget v. Greenfield, 120-432.

To secure a trial de novo the provisions of this section must be complied with. Code § 3675 as to reporting the proceedings in general does not relate to the subject. Dwyer v. Rock, 115-722.

It is not required that the evidence in equity cases be taken down by the official reporter, and the certificate of the transcript should be made by the reporter who reports the proceedings. Spinney v. Halliday, 115-420.

A statement in the abstract of record showing that the report of the evidence as filed in the trial court is certified by a person named, who is not designated or otherwise shown to have been the official reporter or a person authorized to report the evidence, is not sufficient. Oskaloosa Nat. B. L. & I. Assn. v. Bailey, 129-287.

A certificate of the evidence introduced on the trial of the case of "D. M. Smith v. W. T. Brown and Nellie C. Sprague, et al.," held not sufficient to entitle the appellant to a trial de novo in the case of "D. M. Smith v. W. T. Brown and Mrs. Nellie C. Springer." And held that a statement of counsel in the abstract that the word "Sprague" was a clerical mistake for "Springer" could not be considered. Smith v. Brown, 123-114.

The amendment to this section by 31 G. A., ch. 155, directing that the section be so construed as to make sufficient the certification of the shorthand notes of the evidence within the prescribed time, is not to be construed as retroactive, so as save an appeal in which the right has been lost by failure to perfect the record under the section as it stood before such amendment. But as the amendment is remedial in character, and merely changes the procedure, it may be held applicable in perfecting a record in all cases where the time within which this might have been done had not elapsed before the law became operative. Richardson v. Fitzgerald, 132-253.

The amendment, although it purports to make direction only as to the construction of the section amended, is in fact a change in the law, and not a curative act. Ibid.

Assignments of error: Where appellant is entitled to a trial de novo, assignments of error relating to rulings on the introduction of evidence will not be considered. Foy v. Armstrong, 113-629.

In a case triable de novo the appellant cannot make assignments of error in the admission or rejection of evidence, and have them considered as at law. Spinney v. Halliday, 115-420.

In an equity case rulings on motions to strike and on demurrers will not be considered unless exception is taken and error assigned. Hogueland v. Arts, 113-634; Jackson v. SeEVERS, 115-370.

That assignments of error are no longer necessary, even in actions tried by ordinary proceedings, see § 4136-a.

On a trial de novo the supreme court does not consider points of practice, unless they are in some manner brought to the attention of the trial court and exception taken to the ruling thereon. West Side Lumber Co. v. Hathaway, 115-654.

There can be no reversal for failing to exclude improper evidence in a trial in equity unless it appears that the evidence proper to be considered does not support the findings of the court. To entitle the appellant to reversal in such a case for the improper admission of evidence, it must appear that the court ruled adversely to him on objections to the admission of such evidence. Edwards v. Olin, 121-143.

Findings of lower court: The findings of a trial judge even in an equity case when based on the testimony of witnesses appearing before him will be disturbed on appeal with reluctance. Johnson v. Farmers' Ins. Co., 126-565.

And see notes to § 4139.

SEC. 3653. Abstracts in equity causes.

The costs of this abstract are not to be taxed to the unsuccessful party. Grapes v. Grapes, 106-316.

SEC. 3654. Finding of facts.

A finding of facts by the court in a law case tried without a jury should not be disturbed unless so clearly against the evidence as to justify the conclusion that it was based on passion or prejudice. Brown v. Curtis, 111-542.

The finding of facts by the trial court must be sustained on appeal, if there is any substantial evidence to support it. The trial court has the advantage of the presence of the witnesses, and his conclusions will not be interfered with where they are supported by the evidence, and do not appear to have been the result of passion or prejudice. Jenkins v. Dewey, 122-530.

In a law action, the findings of fact by the court in a case tried without the jury are entitled to the same force as the verdict of a jury. Bullard v. Hopkins, 128-703.

SEC. 3655. Trial term.

Parties may consent to trial at the term at which the petition is filed, although proper notice of the filing of the petition has not been given. Rummel v. Dealy, 112-503.

The general provision of Code § 3655, that all causes of action, both at law and in equity, and special proceedings, except where otherwise provided, shall be tried at the first term after legal and timely service has been made, does not prevent the continuance of an action to a subsequent term, where the business of the court requires or substantial justice will be promoted thereby. Cox v. Burnham, 120-43.

SEC. 3656. In equitable actions. The appearance term shall not be the trial term for equitable actions, except those brought for mandamus or divorce, to foreclose mortgages and other instruments of writing whereby a lien or charge on property is created, or to enforce mechanics' liens, or appeal cases in contested elections. [C., '73, § 2745; R., § 2856.] [30 G. A., ch. 122.] [32 G. A., ch. 165.]

SEC. 3658. Trial notice.

The provisions as to trial notice do not apply to motions. Manning v. Nelson, 107-34.

SEC. 3659. Assignments of trial causes—hearing of motions and demurrers.

The rules made by the judges of court in force prior to the adoption of the present Code did not require the court to make assignments of cases for trial and it was not error for the court on request of a party to refuse to make such an assignment. Slocum v. Brown, 105-209.

An assignment of a cause for a particular day is not essential to its being called for trial in its regular order. The statutory provision as to assignment of causes is not mandatory. Stewart v. Gorham, 122-669.

SEC. 3660. Docketing appeals from justices—other appeals.

This provision applies to docketing alone, and not to failure to pay filing fee. While the clerk has the right to exact his fee before docketing the case, if he does actually put the case on the docket, the appellee cannot have it dismissed for failure of appellant to pay the fee. Vasey v. Parker, 118-615.

If the case properly gets upon the docket even in the absence of a transcript and without the payment of a docket fee, the appellee cannot have the appeal dismissed or the judgment or award affirmed on himself paying the fee and causing the docketing of the case. The appellant is not required to file a transcript until the case is reached for trial. Simons v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co., 128-139.

General appearance in court having jurisdiction of the case and the parties, with agreements from time to time as to the disposition of the case, will waive an entry of the case upon the appearance docket. Ibid.

Where the railroad company appeals from an assessment of damages for right of way and later the land owner also appeals, without paying a filing fee, the railroad company cannot by paying such fee have the land owner's appeal dismissed, and held, that it was proper for the court to consolidate the land owner's appeal with the company's appeal and a subsequent dismissal of the latter would leave no question for trial. McKinnon v. Cedar Rapids & J. C. R. & L. Co., 126-426.

The provision as to docketing appeals in the district court held applicable to an appeal from the action of the board of review for the assessment of taxes. Stephens v. City Council, 132-490.

It is evident from this section that an affirmative duty is placed on the appellant to get an appeal from the action of the board of tax reviewers before the district court for determination. Notice of appeal is not alone sufficient. Frost v. Board of Review, 114-103. See also Code § 4559 and notes.

SEC. 3663. Causes for continuance.

The matter of granting a continuance is largely within the discretion of the trial court and to justify a reversal it must clearly appear that this discretion has been abused and that an injustice has been done thereby. Cheney v. McColloch, 104-249; Hibbets v. Hibbets, 117-177; State v. Wilson, 124-264.

The court may waive conditions imposed on the granting of a continuance where it is made to appear that without fault on the part of the attorney applying for such continuance, he is unable to properly present the case at the time set for trial. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Dean Drug Co., 111 N. W. 534.

A motion to amend a motion for a continuance after a ruling thereon based on counsel's admission that the witnesses would testify as claimed is not in order. At any rate, the trial court is vested with a large discretion in the matter. Goldstein v. Morgan, 122-27.

The filing of an amendment or of a supplemental petition will not alone authorize a continuance and if the defendant desires a continuance on that ground he must set out some good reason therefor. Foot v. Burlington Gas Light Co., 103-576.

The grounds alleged in a motion for continuance in a particular case held not sufficient to require a reversal of the action of the trial court in overruling the motion. Hibbets v. Hibbets, 117-177.

A continuance, asked for the purpose of procuring depositions which cannot be taken during the term of the court without an express order, should be granted. Reupke v. Stuhr & Son Grain Co., 126-632.

A showing as to absence of a party familiar with the facts although incompetent to testify held to be such that a refusal to grant a continuance was error. In such case, the counsel of the party is entitled to have the advice of his client. In re Townsend's Estate, 122-246.

Under the showing of surprise in a particular case, held that the party was entitled to a continuance in order to enable him to procure his evidence. Flint v. Atlas Mut. Ins. Co., 112 N. W. 1.

It is not error to refuse a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness desired for impeachment purposes, where at the time the motion is made it does not appear that his testimony will be required. State v. Hayden, 131-1.

A continuance should not be granted for the absence of a witness where no facts are presented from which it might reasonably be expected or believed that the attendance or the testimony of such witness could be procured at any subsequent time. State v. Burns, 124-207.

Inability to secure the attendance of a witness is not sufficient ground for a continuance where the party has not used reasonable diligence in attempting to secure the attendance of such witness. Moffit v. Chicago Chronicle Co., 107-407.

SEC. 3664. Affidavits—what must show.

The affidavit must not only show diligence in attempting to secure the presence of the witness, and the materiality of the evidence sought to be obtained, but also that the witness's presence can be secured by ordinary methods at the ensuing term, and where it appeared that the witness in question had once disobeyed a subpoena, and there was no reason to think that he would come at any other time without compulsion, and also that he was a non-resident of the state, held that the showing was not sufficient. State v. McGinn, 109-641.

Notwithstanding the evidence to procure which a continuance is sought may be cumulative, it may be that the interests of justice require the continuance to be granted. State v. Hasty, 121-507.

The showing in a motion for a continuance as to the absence of witnesses held not sufficient as to what it was proposed to prove by such witnesses. State v. Penney, 113-691.

SEC. 3665. Admission by opposite party.

The only effect of the admission as to the testimony of an absent witness for the purpose of preventing a continuance, is to authorize such admitted testimony to be read as evidence; if it is not so read it is not for the consideration of the jury. Michel v. Boxholm Co-operative Creamery, 128-706.
