PIONEER LAWMAKERS ADDRESS

Senator Todd Taylor introduced John Putney, who addressed the House as follows:

Mr. Speaker, Madam President, Senator Whitver, Senator Taylor, Senator Dotzler, Representative Windschitl, current members of the Iowa Legislature, and my Fellow Pioneer Classmates – thank you very much for the great honor of sharing memories and thoughts of my time associated with the legislature – as a citizen, lobbyist, and member of the Iowa Senate.

I appreciate the opportunity to reflect on some history, fondly reminisce, and offer some personal thoughts on the past and present.

Last night, I took a look at the last speeches that were given at this ceremony honoring the Pioneer Lawmakers of their respective classes. I mentioned to my wife, Emily that these past speeches seemed a lot longer than the one the I was planning on giving. Her reply: When was the last time you heard someone say that a speech was too short?

I grew up in a politically active environment. My dad, Lawrence Putney was elected to the House for his first term the year I was born. He served 10 years in the House and in 1952, he lost his bid to become Speaker of the House by one vote after six ballots. He then was elected Speaker Pro Tempore.

The results of the 1952 election were greatly influenced by the landslide of Dwight Eisenhower's candidacy for President. 103 Republicans were elected to the House and three Democrats. In those days the extra six seats were in place because certain populace areas were entitled to more than 1 seat in the House. The Senate on the other hand, had 50 seats and the results were 44 Republicans and 6 Democrats.

In 1954, my dad was elected to the Iowa Senate and served two terms. He became the Appropriations Chair. I will never forget the day Dr. James Hilton of Iowa State came to our farm to talk to my dad about a dream he had for constructing a major venue on the Iowa State campus and asking my dad, as Appropriations Chair, to support his vision. I remember my dad expressing that Dr. Hilton's vision was exemplary, but he was skeptical that it could be funded in the near future.

Being a member of the General Assembly then was a part-time job (as it still is today) and the legislature met only once every two years. As the problems of lawmaking became more complicated there was a need to meet more often. In 1969, after Iowa voters changed the state Constitution the General Assembly began meeting every year.

Approximately 15 years after Dr. Hilton's vision and initiative, his dream became a reality, Hilton Coliseum opened in 1971.

Moving forward – In 1989 I met with the Speaker's grandfather for breakfast at a Perkins. Our visit resulted in Senator Grassley offering me a position on his staff. He told me how much the salary would be and said, "But I don't want you to tell anybody." I replied, "Don't worry about that Senator, I'm just as ashamed of it as you are!"

I spent the next three years working for the Senator. In 1992, I was asked to lead the fundraising efforts for the Iowa State Fair and I assumed that role in the spring of 1993. In addition to my job responsibilities of raising money and support, I also was tasked with lobbying for the State Fair. Over the course of the next nine years, I spent many hours and days in this building while the Legislature was in session. I made many acquaintances and friends in the lobby and in both houses of the Legislature, on both sides of the aisle. I have fond memories of the mentorship that I received from the guys like John Flannery, Jerry Fitzgerald, Steve Roberts, Brian Johnson, Larry Murphy, Larry Blixt, and Scott Newhard.

Even though I grew up in a political household, I really had zero aspirations to run for any office, EVER. However, that changed with reapportionment in 1991, when my home Senate district reconfigured back to the same district my dad represented in the Senate from 1954-1960.

During my days in the lobby, of course I had to listen to many legislators giving speeches to their colleagues in debates, etc. I remember, there was this House member who seemed to frequently be recognized about the time I wanted to go home. And it seemed to me that he would talk forever, almost like filibuster type. His name, Bill Dotzler!

And when I learned that Representative Dotzler was going to run for the Senate, I almost changed my mind about running myself. But, I did run and was elected. A long-time, respected fellow lobbyist was quoted as saying, "one of our boys from the lobby finally made it!"

But, I got to know Senator Dotzler and he became one of my closest friends in the Senate and I have always been grateful for his friendship, as well as, many others on both sides of the aisle.

As I moved from the lobby to the legislature, I reflected on key Representatives and Senators on both sides of the aisle who had actively supported our quest for the renovation and survival of the Iowa State Fair. In the House, Speakers Ron Corbett and Brent Siegrist, Dolores Mertz, Dan Huseman, Pat Murphy, Rich Arnold, Dennis Cohoon, Hubert Houser, and Chuck Gipp. In the Senate, Leonard Boswell, Larry Murphy, Tony Bisignano, Gene Fraise, Jack Kibbie, Mike Gronstal, Jack Rife and Darryl McLaren. An example of both houses, both political parties working together. Regardless of political affiliation, I think most Iowans have a vision for Iowa, a desire to preserve our quality of life and, of course, enhance it.

As elected officials, we will always have our names somewhere in the history and archives of Iowa history. That is a humbling and proud thought. But, rightfully earned through our willingness to put our names on the ballot, march in parades, attend meetings and events back in our districts, have long talks on our phones, and represent our constituents to the best of our abilities, hopefully, in their best interest.

However, I always thought that sometimes we all have taken ourselves a little too seriously. Occasionally, I liked to play a few practical jokes on my colleagues.

One day when we were debating, I noticed Senator XYZ playing solitaire on his computer. His back was towards the West Senate Gallery. I went out to the cloak room and wrote a note to the Senator with the following message: "Senator XYZ, I'm one of your constituents up in the gallery and I wonder if you could take a break from your solitaire to meet with me." I then had a page deliver it to him. It was hilarious to watch him fold down his laptop and sheepishly look up to the gallery.

Over my time in the Senate, I used pages numerous times to deliver mischievous notes to fellow Senators – all in good fun.

In the Senate, I was a member of the majority for two years, we were tied for two years, and then the Republicans became the minority in 2006.

I was visiting with Senator Dick Dearden before the 2006 session began and he told me that the Democrat Majority Leader, Senator Gronstal, was only going to let the Republicans use one elevator. I relayed this to Senator Seymour and his response was, "which one?"

Another favorite memory I have is when my Representative, Lance Horbach was facing a primary challenge with a strong opponent. A Meet the Candidates night was scheduled for Grundy Center and my wife and I attended. Representative Horbach led off with his comments and then yielded to his opponent who discussed his qualifications as a prosecutor who had great experience in addressing and replying to tough questions over his career. Horbach's opponent then finished his comments by challenging the audience to ask him any tough questions on their minds. A guy stood up and said, "How come you aren't a member of the Farm Bureau anymore?" Debate over.

It is disappointing and alarming for me to see the erosion of civility in our world today. It is occurring everyday between nations, governments, and political systems. Unfortunately, it is rampant in our own National Capitol, and in many State Capitols as well.

I think of two stories that exemplified respect and civility in years gone by.

Looking back, I have always been fascinated with the relationship of John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon. The two were Naval Officers in World War II and in 1947 they both were elected to Congress. Although they were of much different economic, political, and social backgrounds they became good friends. When JFK suffered severe injuries in an airplane accident, Nixon visited him in the hospital frequently. When Nixon ran for the US Senate in California, JFK's father, Joe Kennedy, made a significant contribution to him. When Nixon became Vice President, his office on Capitol Hill was room 362 and Kennedy's was 361.

Of course, they subsequently opposed one another in the 1960 Presidential election. Kennedy won by only 113,000 votes—Nixon was urged to contest the voting in Chicago but he declined.

Edward Kennedy reflected on behalf of his family after Nixon died in 1994, that “Despite the intensity of the campaign and the narrow outcome, Nixon accepted the results with grace and without spite.”

During Nixon’s Watergate troubles, the Kennedy’s were silent and the only time Jackie Kennedy returned to the White House after JFK’s death was when Nixon was President!

Next, I refer to Lesley K’ writing on “How Gorbachev and Reagan’s friendship helped thaw the Cold War.” She described the two leaders as follows: one was an avid capitalist, an actor-turned US President determined to quash America’s nuclear arms race with the Soviet Union’s “evil empire.” The other, a young committed communist who rose through the political ranks to lead the USSR, pushing publicly for reform.

But Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev, unusual bedfellows as they may have been, managed to forge not only a mutual respect, but a friendship which helped end the Cold War. In his book, Dear Mr. President, historian Jason Saltoun-Ebin writes that confidential letters between the two world leaders forced the men to “talk, debate, argue, disagree, but also offer proposals even when they thought no agreement would be possible.”

I believe most of us would yearn for those times again.

Thank you for keeping this institution and our state an example of civility, respect, and friendship.

Thank you all for your commitments, dedication, and sacrifices, past and present, in making Iowa a great place to live!

Speaker Grassley offered closing remarks to the Pioneer Lawmakers.

On motion by Windschitl of Harrison, the House was recessed at 2:02 p.m., until the conclusion of party caucuses.

RESPONSORIAL READING

Please respond by reading the verses in italics

[Leader] In the rising of the sun and in its going down, we remember them.

In the blowing of the wind and in the chill of winter, we remember them.

[L] In the opening of the buds and in the rebirth of spring, we remember them.

In the blueness of the sky and in the warmth of summer, we remember them.

[L] In the rustling of the leaves and in the beauty of autumn, we remember them.

In the beginning of the year and when it ends, we remember them.

[L] When we are weary and in need of strength, we remember them.

When we are lost and sick at heart, we remember them.

[L] When we have joys we yearn to share, we remember them.

[ALL] So long as we live, they too shall live, for they are now a part of us, as we remember them.
