- He came to Iowa by steamer - down the Ohio River from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania to St. Louis Missouri and up the Mississippi River to Muscatine, Iowa in 1851.
- He located a farm near West Liberty, Iowa where he and his family lived until 1855 when he took a claim a couple miles west of Hapello, Iowa. It became known as the Patten homestead.
- His wife died in 1895 and then he lived with his daughter, Mrs. J. P. McClanahan at Morning Sun, Iowa.

of the J. A. Hale petition was attended by a large crowd. Engineer J. A. Schreiner made his report regarding the advisability and cost of the proposed cut-off on the line of section 11. He estimated the cost at about $17,000. After discussing the matter, pro and con, the original plan, No. 1, was finally adopted by the board, and H. M. Letts and Thos. Newell, of Columbus Junction, were appointed to assess the damages for the right-of-way. This drainage system promises to be a big thing, in more ways than one, before it is completed. The problem of getting rid of the great flood of water that swamps the farmers on much of the bottom land west and south of Wapello should interest every body in the community. The question of who is going to pay for it is the vital point with land holders.

Passing of Enoch Potter.

The venerable Enoch Potter died at his home in Morning Sun Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, as the result of old age and from the effects of the shock following the amputation of one of his hands, some three weeks ago. As stated in a local elsewhere, he rallied from the effects of the operation and from the influence of the anesthetic, but only temporarily. His extreme age, almost 91, and the general decline of his physical powers, led to a gradual sinking, and he died peacefully, without pain, as a tired child goes to sleep. The funeral was held at the Harrison church, near his old country home, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Fred Elliot, pastor of the United Presbyterian church in Morning Sun.

We will publish a full obituary next week.

Christmas Cantata.

The M. E. church will give the Cantata, "Santa Claus in Slumberland," Friday evening at 7:30. The personnel is as follows:

- Wide Awakes, Mr. Morris' and Mr. Cook's Classes.
- Sleepy Heads, Mrs. Cook's Class.
- Dreamers, Miss Barrett's Class.
- Believers, Miss V. K. ...

mercial Association has been organized in that city to boost the town. It says:

"There will be no factionalism about it and no one will be permitted to drag political or religious affairs into it. Neither will the association's influence be used to benefit the personal interests of any one member."

That sounds good, and no doubt will be if it can be carried out, but as is too often the case in many towns, there are selfish, narrow-minded men who push themselves forward in the "boosting business" for the sole purpose of helping themselves and their particular friends, totally losing sight of the broader purposes of the organization, and only thinking of special interests. If you can keep such men off of important committees, and keep all personal jealousies and business rivalry out of all affairs of such an association, and all work together in a friendly, unselfish spirit, why a Commercial Association can accomplish a world of good for any community. But, if the contrary spirit prevails, the life of such an organization is very short and its objects unfulfilled.

Courtesy to Rural Carriers.

The fourth assistant postmaster general calls attention to the inconvenience and loss to rural mail carriers resulting from putting loose pennies or other coins in the mail boxes for the purchase of stamps, etc. This is especially inconvenient during cold weather, causing exposure and loss of time to the carriers in fishing out coins from the box with numb fingers. As a courtesy to the carriers, in compliance with the request of the postal department, patrons are requested to supply themselves with stamped envelopes, stamp books, or at any rate to equip their boxes with receptacles. It is only a little thing but little things make up the daily tasks of the rural carriers.

From a recent count made by rural carriers in one of the counties in the state of New York of coins deposited by patrons in their boxes for the purchase of stamps supplied by the post office, it was found

Hon. Enoch Potter Dead.

Hon. Enoch Potter died at his home in Morning Sun at 8:40 p. m. Tuesday, December 21, of the infirmities of old age. He was one of the early settlers in Louisa county, having come to this county and located east of Wapello in 1855. He was born September 23, 1819, in Beaver county, Pennsylvania, and the old Potter home still stands on the hillside overlooking the Ohio river, a few miles below Beaver, Pa.

In 1843 he was married to Mary Hunter Patter, of Beaver county, Pennsylvania, and, in 1851, taking a boat on the Ohio river at Pittsburg they came, via St. Louis, to Muscatine, and located on a farm five miles from West Liberty, Ia., but later on, on account of church and school privileges, they moved down into Louisa county and settled east of Wapello. Four sons and one daughter survive to mourn the loss of a father.

Mr. Potter for many years was an elder in the Harrison U. P. church, and the funeral was held in this church on Thursday, December 23, at 1:30 p. m., conducted by his last pastor, Rev. Mr. Elliott, of Morning Sun.

Mr. Potter in earlier life took an active part in politics and was often honored officially, being at one time a member of the board of supervisors of his county and also serving as a republican representative in the Tenth general assembly of his state.

Passing of Prominent Citizen.

The death of Honorable Enoch Potter removes one of the best known citizens of Louisa county. He was one of the oldest pioneers of the county, having passed his 90th birthday last September. Old age was the cause of his death, hastened no doubt by the removal of his left arm a couple of weeks before, owing to a cancerous growth of long standing.

He was born in Beaver county, Pennsylvania, Sept. 13, 1819. He came of sturdy Scotch-Irish ancestry and was a man of sterling character and of nervous, active temperament. He was married in 1846 and with his wife came to Iowa by steamboat, down the Ohio from Pittsburg to St. Louis and up the Mississippi to Muscatine, in 1851. They located on a farm near West Liberty where they resided until 1855 when they took up a claim a couple of miles east of Wapello, which is still known as the old Potter homestead. Here they endured all the hardships and privations of pioneer life and raised a family of four sons and one daughter.

Their home was noted for its hospitality and good cheer.

Mr. Potter was gifted with a remarkable memory and possessed a wonderful fund of information and was one of the best story-tellers in all this region. He loved a laugh and delighted in fun of the rollicking, ridiculous sort. Even down to old age he kept his love of a joke and was a most entertaining conversationalist, though almost blind and deaf for several years before the summons came. He took an active part in politics in early life, serving as a member of the

Feed The Quail.

That there is grave danger of the quail being entirely exterminated is evidenced by the State Game Warden in authorizing Deputy Dan L. Tubbs, of Burlington, to pay farmers for the grain they feed the quail during this cold spell. The following notice has been published by Mr. Tubbs:

"All farmers in this county knowing of quails on their premises should feed them and send in a written statement to the undersigned, giving their names and the amount of grain and the township, and I will see that you are paid for the grain. Quail during this kind of a storm have a certain place for their home that is sheltered and when hustling for their food will be found there. Feed them under some kind of covering, so that if more snow comes the feed will not be covered. One peck of corn will do a large covey a week or ten days. Now let every one that knows of quail get busy, in my earnest appeal. D. L. TUBBS, "Deputy Game Warden."

It will be noted that Mr. Tubbs refers to his county (Des Moines) in particular, but the same will no doubt apply to Louisa county as well, as the State Game Warden would not single out one county and provide for the feeding of these birds and refuse to do so in an adjoining county.

The hunters of Iowa have contributed a big sum to the state in the way of a license fee, and what is necessary to protect these little birds from starvation should be freely paid out of that fund. That is certainly a part of game protection, and a practical working of the law. We have heard of a few farmers in

he took an active part in politics in early life, serving as a member of the county board of supervisors and as representative from this county to the Tenth General Assembly.
 His wife died in 1895, since which time he had made his home in Morning Sun with his daughter, Mrs. J. P.
 McClanahan, who, with four sons survive: Rev. C. C. Potter, of Des Moines, O. N., of Xenia, Ohio, Geo. S. and L. K., of near Wapello.
 The funeral services were held last Thursday, Dec. 23rd, at 1:30 p. m. at the Harrison U. P. church, conducted by Rev. Fred Elliot, pastor of the U.
 P. church in Morning Sun, of which he was a member. Interment was in the Harrison cemetery.
 We append a tribute by his son, L.
 K. Potter, which will be read with interest by all who knew him:
 Like Lincoln, my father was best known to most people as a humorous story teller—what the Greeks called a laughing philosopher, for they knew
 as we know that a laugh cured more disorders than a patent medicine; that he who made two smiles grow where one grew before was a public benefactor and might be an earnest, honest, social reformer. "Burying the religious feuds of his Irish ancestors,
 I wouldn't know the Battle of the Boyne, I heard it piped, or recognize Dutch William's picture." Without race prejudice he was the friend of the negro and indian, when to be such was unhealthy. A lover of animated nature, he never followed
 the brutal sport that lives on death
 and extracts its pleasure from another's pain. Living almost a hundred years, he never had a law suit or personal encounter. In morality he was more than righteous, in business successful, in religion superior to his creed, always thoughtful of others;
 almost his last words were: "I want to make as little trouble as possible."
 Calvinistic in belief, humanitarian in practice, I can almost hear the recording angel say, "Write him as one who loved his fellowmen."
 L. K. POTTER.

Fire in Winfield.
 Winfield suffered a disastrous fire

ing of the law.
 We have heard of a few farmers in this locality who have voluntarily undertaken to feed the quails on their premises without any expectation of being reimbursed, notably Ed. S.
 Johnston of near Elrick, and Wm. and Chas. McLaughlin, east of Wapello.
 There are no doubt many others doing the same thing, that we have not heard of, and if so we should like to have their names. The REPUBLICAN hopes that all farmers will look after the quail in their locality and keep an account of the feed they distribute, as outlined by Mr. Tubbs, and there is no doubt but what the State Game
 Warden will pay the bills.
