Hon. G. R. Miller Dead.

We are indeed sorry to learn of the death of our old and esteemed friend, Hon. Geo. R. Miller, of Mason City, a gentleman who formerly resided in this county and was quite well known here by the older settlers. His death took place last Wednesday night. He had been ill for a year past, from spinal affection, much of the time being confined to his bed, and his death had long been anticipated. His death is universally mourned by the citizens of Mason City, where he has dwelt for many years past, and recognized as one of the leading men of the place, and a zealous worker in building up and furthering the interests of that enterprising city. At the time of his death he was grand master of the A. O. U. W. of Iowa, a position to which he had been thrice elected, and also the editor and proprietor of the Iowa Workmen, the state organ of the order, and was consequently extensively known throughout the country. His popularity among his home folks is truly expressed by a correspondent of the Dubuque Herald who says: "In such universal esteem was he held here that when the announcement of his death was made the bells of the city were tolled and the mayor issued a proclamation requesting that business be suspended during the hours of the funeral, from 2 to 4 p. m. on Friday. The public schools were also closed in the afternoon, and the funeral pageant was the largest and most imposing ever held in northern Iowa, as it was attended by Knights Templar, Masons, Odd Fellows, and Workmen from all sections of the state.

--The Standard had better pull the sawlogs out of its own eyes before it undertakes to pluck the little splinters out of our's in the way of picking up typographical errors, such as are unavoidable in nearly all newspapers. Not a week goes by that we could not riddle the Standard with error marks, if we were so disposed. Why it is not two weeks ago it committed the unpardonable blunder of attaching John Hinchon's name to a notice of Rev. Fleming's lecture. And it also spoke of William Cavers as the republican candidate for supervisor, instead of James Cavers. So you see the little Sabbath school tract is as prone to mistakes as the wicked DEMOCRAT.

—Quite a commotion was kicked up last night (Wednesday) at the club room where several of our citizens were gathered to while away a little leisure time in a seductive game of cards. An three miles from the city, surrounded by handsome grounds, and where, free from the dust and din of the city, he rests from the toils of the day. Mr. Stewart is emphatically a self-made man. Beginning life in a new country, without friends and in straitened circumstances, he has by his own unaided industry and perseverance gained a competence, and the esteem and confidence of his fellow-citizens.

WESLEY JONES,

BURLINGTON.

WESLEY JONES, prominent merchant, Burlington, Iowa, was born in Springfield, Ohio, on the 11th of February, 1841, and is the son of Wesley Jones, senior, and Mary Margaret Jones, who were early settlers of the state, his father locating at Burlington in 1838. Soon after the birth of Wesley the family removed to Burlington, where he attended the common schools for a short time, but the death of his father leaving him dependent upon his own exertions for a living, he accepted the first position that offered, which was that of carrier for the "Hawkeye" newspaper, in which office he learned the printer's trade, and remained two years. He then secured a situation as clerk in the dry-goods house of W. H. Postlewait, in whose employ he spent seven years, and remained with his successors, Garrett, Rhodes and Co., until they quit business. Shortly after this he went west and engaged in a series of speculations, which, though at times perilous and in which he labored under great disadvantages, were very successful, and he again returned to Burlington.

In 1866 the book-store of J. L. Corse, deceased, being offered for sale, he purchased it. It was then doing a business of eighteen or twenty thousand dollars per annum. He took hold of it a green hand knowing nothing at all of the business, but investing the same energy and will which had proved so successful in the mountains of Montana, and with an eye to the growing demands of the country, and a determination to succeed, has built up the establishment to what it is now, the leading house in its line in the northwest, and doing a business of three hundred thousand dollars per annum. He is undoubtedly the proprietor of the largest book and paper store owned and controlled by any one man in the United States, and is vice-president of the American Book Trade Association of the United States, elected July, 1875, at a convention held at Niagara Falls. His success has been attained by his indomitable energy and close attention to business. He is in the fullest sense of the term a self-made man: commencing in early life without a penny, he has raised himself by his own unaided ability, industry and perseverance.

He was brought up in the Episcopal church, and is still and attendant of that form of worship.

In politics, he is a liberal democrat, but is in no sense of the word a politician.

Though still young, he has by his superb business qualifications attained the respect and confidence of the trade, and is a most exemplary citizen.

HON. GEORGE R. MILLER,

MASON CITY.

THE subject of this sketch was born in Crawford county, Pennsylvania, on the 21st of January, 1831, his parents being Abram Miller and Nancy Ross Miller. His paternal grandfather was a Baptist minister for thirty-five years, and his father, a hale old man, is living in Mason City. His maternal grandfather was a son of Sir William Ross, of Ireland.

Young George had a strong thirst for knowledge, and when twelve years of age used to attend a select school, five miles from home, walking ten miles daily.

When he was fourteen his parents moved to Virginia, and after working one year with his father on a farm the son was apprenticed to the tailor's trade, serving his full time of three years. While working on the bench he was accustomed to study, more or less, giving all his leisure to text-books, fitting himself for a teacher while learning his trade. He went directly to teaching, devoting eight years steadily to this, in Erie county, Pennsylvania, and in the southern part of that state.

Mr. Miller moved to Rossville, Allamakee county, Iowa, in 1856, being one of the early settlers in that place. Rossville was named after an uncle of his. At twenty-six years of age he commenced studying law at Rossville, and was admitted to the bar at Lansing, Allamakee county, in 1859. He practiced in that county until 1868, when he moved to Mason City, Cerro Gordo county, connecting real estate with his legal business. For six years he was in partnership with Hon. I. W. Card. The firm is now Miller and Cliggitt, and has a high standing in the county.

In 1861 Mr. Miller received a recruiting commission from Adjutant-General Baker, with the title of lieutenant, and that year recruited a portion of the 1st Iowa Cavalry and the 5th and 12th Iowa Infantry. The next year he recruited a company for the 27th regiment of Infantry, and went into the army as captain of the same. He served until June, 1863, when his health failed and he was discharged.

Mr. Miller represented Allamakee county in the twelfth general assembly, 1868, being in the lower house. He was one of the hard-working members.

He is a Master Mason, and has been a member of the fraternity twenty years.

He has been connected with the Baptist church since he was eighteen years old.

He was a Douglas democrat, and now calls himself a liberal democrat. He was a delegate to the national democratic convention in 1876.

In June, 1853, he married Miss Mary E. Burchinal, of Fayette county, Pennsylvania. They have five children, all born in Iowa.

Mr. Miller had quite a struggle to get his education, having no assistance except his own diligence, perseverance and good health. He has been identified with many important enterprises in northern Iowa. He is one of the foremost men in Cerro Gordo county in agricultural matters, and has been president of the county agricultural society for the last four years. He is one of the leaders in whatever is calculated to promote the best interests of society.

COLONEL JED LAKE,

INDEPENDENCE.

THE subject of this sketch, a son of Jedediah Lake, a farmer, and of Patience Church Lake, was born in Lapeer, then a part of Virgil, New York, on the 18th of November, 1830. His grandfather, Henry Lake, served four years in the revolutionary war. Jedediah Lake died when his son was only three years old, and the latter remained with his mother on the farm until he was seventeen. He enjoyed the usual educational advantages of farmers' sons to be had in a district school. After that age, for four or five years, he attended Cortland Academy in the summers and taught school in the winters. He paid some attention to classics, but the English branches, and particularly mathematics, engaged most of his attention.

The years 1853 and 1854 were spent in traveling in the middle and southern states, partly to acquaint himself with the manners and customs of the people and the resources of the country, and partly to find a location in which to settle.

He came to the west in September, 1855, and being delighted with the valley of the Wapsipinecon, resolved to settle at Independence, Buchanan county, which he did the next month. He ran a saw-mill and cultivated a farm until the financial crisis of 1857, when he found himself, like many of his neighbors, ruined by its effects.

Prior to this date he had read a few law books, and now resolved to devote himself to the legal profession. He entered the office of C. H. Lathrop, Esq., in the autumn of 1857, and studied about one year, when he was admitted to the Buchanan county bar. Here he has practiced ever since, except when in the army, having a very remunerative business and standing high in the profession.

In August, 1862, he enlisted as a private in company C, 27th Iowa Infantry. When the company was organized he was elected first-lieutenant, and was appointed lieutenant-colonel by the governor before the regiment was mustered into the service. In 1864, when Colonel Gilbert, commander of this regiment, was promoted to brigadier-general, Lieut.-Colonel Lake was commissioned colonel. He served three years, at the end of which time the war had

He was married again in October, 1876, to Martha A. Waldo, a graduate of Milton Academy, Wisconsin. She came to Mason City in 1870, and was employed as teacher in the high school. They have two children—Anna W. and Ralph S. Mr. Stanbery was born in Mercer Co., Ohio, Sept. 23, 1846. He is a republican in political sentiment, and belongs to the Knights of Pythias and the Masonic fraternity.

Captain George R. Miller, one of the old settlers of Iowa and at present a resident of Mason City, was born in Crawford Co., Penn., Jan. 21, 1831. His parents, Abram and Nancy (Ross) Miller, both now deceased, were among the first settlers of the county in which the subject of this sketch was born. Mr. Miller emigrated to the State of Iowa and settled in Allamakee county in October, 1856. At the age of fifteen he was apprenticed to learn the tailors trade and served his full time, three years, in the town of Smithfield, Penn. During the time he was working at his trade, by improving his leisure hours, he prepared himself to teach, and on the expiration of his time, commenced teaching in Erie Co., Penn., and taught for eight years in the public schools until he came west. At the age of twenty-six years he commenced the study of law, was admitted to practice at Lansing, Allamakee county, in 1859, and continued to practice law in that county until 1868, at which time he removed to Mason City, Cerro Gordo county. For six years thereafter he was the law partner of Hon. I. W. Card. The firm is now Miller & Cligitt and has a high standing in northern Iowa. In 1861 Mr. Miller received a lieutenant's commission from Adjutant General Baker and recruited for the 1st Iowa Cavalry, and the 5th and 12th Iowa Infantry. The next year he recruited company I, 27th Iowa Infantry and went into the service as captain, serving until June, 1863, when his health became so poor from long continued sickness and exposure, that he was discharged from service. He represented Allamakee county as a member of the twelfth General Assembly, being in the lower house. He has been quite active in politics since he became a resident of Iowa, and was a delegate to the National democratic convention in 1876, at St. Louis. He has occupied many stations of trust and responsibility of minor importance; was president of the Cerro Gordo County Agricultural Society for four years; president of the board of trade, Mason City; is now serving his third term on the board of education in Mason City as president; and is grand master of the order of United Workmen for Iowa. In June, 1853, he married Mary E. Burchinal, of Fayette Co., Penn. They have five children, all born in Iowa. The eldest, R. J. Miller, late principal of schools at Rockwell, Iowa, is twenty-four years of age; Ella (Miller) Loring, wife of H. P. Loring, twenty-three years old; Thomas B., principal of schools at Plymouth, twenty-one years old; Will E., eighteen years of age, and Lulu May, twelve years old. Mr. Miller has a liberal education, obtained through his own exertions without assistance, save diligence and perseverance. He has been successful in his profession; is, and always has been, identified with whatever is calculated to promote the best interests of society, and may be said to be one of the live men of northern Iowa. In religion, Mr. Miller is a Baptist; is a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity and an Odd Fellow since 1852.

John Cligitt, junior partner of the law firm of Miller & Cligitt, Mason City was born in Rensselaer Co., N. Y., Aug. 25, 1840. He came to Mason City, Iowa, in 1871, where he has since lived, engaged in the practice of law. Soon after his birth his parents moved to Burlington, Vt., residing there until the spring of 1850, at which time they settled in Kendall Co., Ill., where John was brought up on a farm, receiving a common school education. He afterwards divided his time for some years between farm work, teaching school and reading law. He attended the Chicago law school and received his first certificate of admission to the bar, from the Supreme Court of Illinois, in the spring of 1869. Coming to Iowa without financial means and wholly unacquainted, he had his full share of difficulties to contend with. But with good health and persevering efforts he has successfully established himself in the legal profession. In the spring of 1881 he was elected mayor of Mason City, in which office he is now serving his fourth term. He is a law partner of Hon. G. R. Miller and is one of the rising men of the State.

R. Wilbur, of the firm of Wilbur & Sherwin, Mason City, came to Cerro Gordo county in 1871, and has since been actively engaged at his profession.

Mr. Sherwin, junior member of the firm of Wilbur & Sherwin, is a self-made man, has acquired a good legal education and is to-day among the most prominent lawyers in Cerro Gordo county.

John D. Glass, of the firm of Glass & Hughes, became a resident at Mason City in 1871, and in 1875 formed a partnership with C. H. Hughes. Mr. Glass was born in Monroe Co., Ohio, Nov. 3, 1845. He received a good common school training, supplemented by a course of academic study. In 1870 he was graduated at the Law Department of the Iowa State University, and in the fall of the same year he went to West Union, where he began the practice of law. In 1878 he was elected mayor of Mason City. In 1882 the county presented his name for member of Congress from his district. Mr. Glass was married in January, 1871, to Alice, daughter of James Remley, of Johnson Co., Iowa. She is a graduate of the Academic Department of the Iowa State University. They have one child—Eva. In August, 1883, Mr. Glass was nominated as republican candidate for Senator from the forty-third senatorial district of Iowa, and the campaign opens with the best of prospects for his election.

J. J. Clark, junior member of the law firm of Stanbery & Clark, located at Mason City in 1874, and formed conjointly with J. S. Stanbery, the relation represented by the above named style.

Mr. Clark was born in Madison Co., Ky., Oct. 30, 1851. His father, James W. Clark, was a Presbyterian preacher and was, during his life, twice a delegate to the Presbyterian, General Assembly. His mother, Martha (Embray) Clark, was born in Kentucky where her father was a settler contemporaneously with Daniel Boone and her relatives intermarried with those
