The members of the Congregational church were greatly pleased with the sermon of Rev. George W. Dickinson last Sunday. Children will be admitted to the matinee given this afternoon by the Austrian Juvenile band for 25 cents. Give the little ones a chance to hear this wonderful organization. It is said the schools will adjourn at 8 o'clock because of a teacher's meeting. If this is the case the matinee will not begin until 3:15 so as to give all school children time to get to the opera house. Let them hear the beautiful and inspiring music of this band. It will be a rare treat to them all, and you will not regret the 25 cents it costs.

Mr. John Sinclair, of LaFayette, Ind., is now in the city to assume his duties as organist of Grace church to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. E. A. Leo. When only fifteen years of age he had charge of a boy choir. He is a thorough musician. He proposes to teach here vocal as well as instrumental music. He can be found at the church or at 150 south 8th street.

Earl, son of F. A. Allen, died at their home, 414 First avenue west, last Sunday morning, aged 16 years. The unfortunate young man was a victim of consumption and through all his months of struggle with that disease had maintained a cheerful courage that even the near approach of death could not dent. He was a general favorite with his neighbors, and the sympathy of his friends and relatives will be the more ready for the loss which has come to all his friends as well. The funeral was held from the home

The young Austrians play with dash, brilliancy and precision, and their whole program was pervaded with a splendid fervor. Their waltzes have a fascinating flow, and the jolly Viennese pieces in which they sang and whistled, made a pleasing, novel variety. Taking the age into consideration, this band gives a remarkable exhibition, as well as a musical entertainment, altogether charming and worthy the highest praise. The program was almost doubled by encores. Miss Marie Glover, a popular New York church choir soprano, who sings a solo in each program, has a sweet, sympathetic voice, and last night received an encore to which she responded with "The Last Rose of Summer."

Smith was the most remarkable forger that ever lived. For twenty years, while leading a life of the utmost apparent respectability, he produced counterfeit after counterfeit of the most marvelous character, both of notes and bonds, from $50 to $1,000. Probably not less than $1,000,000 of imitation money of his manufacture found its way into circulation. It was only through the discovery of his association with the notorious plate printer, Brockway, himself a marvelous expert in his line, that Smith was arrested in 1881 in Brooklyn. Thus was broken up one of the most dangerous combinations against the national finances that has ever existed.

Western College - Western, Iowa

1875 Iowa Atlas, page 343

The following is a description of the beginning of Western College in Cedar Rapids as recorded in the book: History of Linn County Iowa: From Its Earliest Settlement to the Present Time, Vol. I. By Luther A. Brewer & Barthinius L. Wick. Chicago, The Pioneer Publishing Co., 1911.

"Western was laid out in March, 1856, under the auspices of the United Brethren church, with the design of forming proper surroundings for the college. Ground was first broken in June of that year. By August, 1857, there were forty-three dwelling houses and three hundred inhabitants. One college building had been completed. This was of brick, three stories in height, 36 by 62 feet. This was placed upon a campus of seventeen acres. Rev. S. Weaver was first president of this institution. The plan was to operate a large farm in connection with the college, that students might earn their way. In this new town there were already two stores, one hotel built and one building, a blacksmith shop, two physicians, and fourteen busy carpenters. Land in the vicinity was worth from $10 to $20 per acre. Its quality was proven when the college president, on his own farm, raised 1,800 bushels of wheat. There was a railroad coming there, of course, as there was on prospected to nearly every cross-roads in the state. This particular line was the Iowa Union, to run from Cedar Rapids to Iowa City." (History 1911, p. 479)

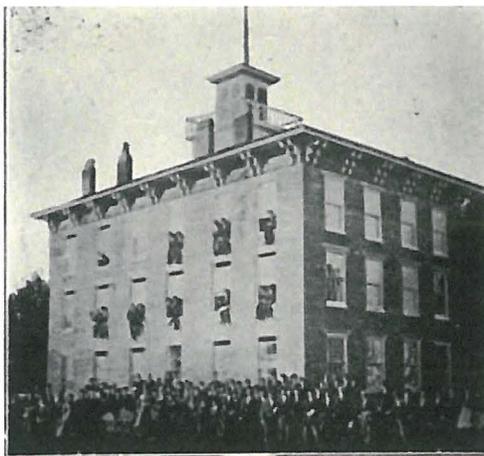

The 1860 Linn County Census for College Twp., displays an entry on line 33 of p. 49:

Solomon Weaver, age 45, Male, Supt. Western College, b. Penn.

On page 50 of the same township census, there is an entry that is likely connected to the college:

William Paimetter, age 32, Male, Prof. Mathematics, b. N.Y.

Also in the same census & township, page 55, lines 3-10 are the following listings identified as "Western College
