JOHN W. TRAER DEAD.

A Pioneer Resident of Vinton Dies at Kansas City.

The Kansas City Star of last Wednesday evening contains the following notice of the death in that city of John Traer.

"John W. Traer, agent for the Fidelity Life Insurance company, with offices in the Sheidley building, died
this morning of an accident, the exact nature of which cannot be learned.
Mr. Traer was found in front of the Shukert building, near Eleventh street and Grand avenue. A letter carrier found him. Mr. Traer was lying senseless on the street. His bicycle was lying near him. A strange feature of the accident is that there seems to be no witnesses.

Mr. Traer was sent home in a carriage. His body had no bruises on it but he was unconscious. It is thought that internal injuries caused his death.
Mr. Traer was one of the pioneers and builders of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he lived for nearly forty years. He lived in Lake Charles, La., a while but two years ago came to Kansas City.

He was 68 years old and lived at

MET ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

John W. Traer, a Former Resident of This City, Dead at Kansas City.

The details of the sad accident which resulted in the death of John W. Traer, a former resident of this city, at Kansas City last Wednesday, still remain a mystery. Mr. Traer was found in an unconscious condition in the street in front of his office, his bicycle lying by his side. No one saw the accident, and as there were no bruises or marks on the person a carriage was called and he was sent to his home, where death ensued a few minutes later, evidently from the effects of internal injuries.

John W. Traer was one of the pioneers and builders of Cedar Rapids, being prominently identified with the building of the Pacific division of the B., C. R. & N. and having the beautiful little city of Traer named after him. After a residence here of nearly forty years he removed to Lake Charles, La., from which point he removed to Kansas City two years ago to engage in the insurance business. He is survived by his wife and four daughters, Mrs. Willie Bradley, and Miss Maud Traer of Kansas City, Mrs. George Penfield of Chicago, and Mrs. W. G. Harcourt-Vernon of Toronto, Canada, who will have the sympathy of many friends in Cedar Rapids and elsewhere.

Further Particulars in Regard to Death
of John W. Traer.

The Kansas City Times contains further particulars in regard to the death of John W. Traer in that city
as follows:

John W. Traer for two years past a resident of this city, died at his residence, 3110 Peery avenue, yesterday morning. Tuesday he was knocked down by a vehicle at Grand avenue and Eleventh street, but was able to proceed to his office in the Sheldley building. Shortly after his arrival there he complained of being ill and soon became unconscious.

Mr. Traer was 44 years old and leaves a wife and four daughters, one of whom is the wife of W. C. Bradley, manager of the Anchor Fence company
of this city. He was a pioneer of Iowa and for many years during his residence there was a banker and railroad
promoter.

The coroner was notified yesterday
and is investigating the circumstances
leading up to the death.

new possessions. After five years successful farming he sold out and moved to Vinton where he engaged with his father in the agricultural business, at which he has since been engaged. Their sales average about $50,000 a year. They sold 55 Marsh Harvesters during the season of 1872. He was married in 1861 to Miss Lemira Gun nison, a native of N. H. They have a family of two children.

Politically he is a Republican—voted twice for Lincoln and twice for Grant. Religiously he is a member of the Presbyterian church. He has a vital-mental temperament, is a thorough, practical business man—successful because he is always faithful to business.

In the winter of 1872 they erected a fine brick block, 40x80, two stories, at a cost of $12,000. They occupy the entire lower floor with agricultural implements, and the basement for storage. He takes an active interest in the prosperity of the place.

JOHN WELLS TRAER.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE, IOWA LEGISLATURE.

J. W. Traer is a native of Knox county, Ohio, where he was born, November 13, 1832. He is of English-Irish ancestry. Gen. Montgomery, who fell at Quebec, is in the line of the paternal ancestry, his great-grandmother being a Montgomery. He is the third generation from the colonial pilgrims, his grandfather being an Englishman by birth. His father, James Traer, was a native of Pennsylvania and one of the early settlers of Ohio, having settled in Knox county in about 1816. At that time there was but one log cabin in Mt. Vernon.

Young Traer was educated to agricultural pursuits during his minority with the advantages of the common schools of the Buckeye State. At the age of sixteen years he began the study of medicine under Dr. H. H. Meridith. At the age of 21 he began as a druggist but sold out in 1856 and moved to Vinton, Iowa, where he engaged in banking and real estate, in which he is still interested at present under the firm name of Traer Bros., but for the past seven years he has been actively engaged as a general business agent of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Minnesota Railroad.

In 1866 he was elected to fill a vacancy in the Legislature. In 1867 he was elected as Representative and re-elected to the same position in 1869. He made a very successful legislator—earnest and constant in defense of what he believed to be right.

Failing health and his private business have prevented his accepting other and more important offices in the gift of the people.

Politically he was an old-line Whig, and a Republican from the organization of the party and took an active part in organizing the party in the county, and during the war took an active part in organizing clubs and was the organizing officer of the Union League in the county.

He was married in 1853 to Allowesia D. Beardslee, daughter of Beverly Beardslee of Whiteside county, Illinois. They have a family of four children.

Religiously he is a liberal, taking a wide view of theology and a liberal estimate of man, his duty and his destiny.

All in all Mr. Traer is a true and loyal man, full of business and successful in all he undertakes.

WILLIAM McCLAIN,

PRINCIPAL OF THE IOWA CITY ACADEMY AND IOWA COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

This distinguished educator was born in Lancaster county, Pa., February 27th, 1817, is of Scotch-Irish descent and lived in the place of his nativity five years, when his parents moved to the city of Philadelphia, where the father died when the son was 10 years of age. Upon the occurrence of this event, William went to reside with an uncle in his native county of Lancaster, and a few years later removed with the family to Columbiana county, Ohio, and in the fall of 1836 commenced teaching school in Marlborough, Stark county, Ohio, and after one year's service, attended a Quaker school taught by Jesse Holmes, Esq., now of West Liberty, Iowa. The next twenty years of his life was spent in teaching schools of various grades in various places in Indiana and, Ohio, principally in Richmond, in the former State, and in Salem, Belmont, Atwater, Marlborough in the latter State, and he tells us that, in Salem and Marlborough the best twenty years of his life were devoted to his loved profession and in his effort to establish a grade of education in those schools which should conduce to the greatest possible good to the pupils, he succeeded most satisfactorily. His advent into this State was made in the fall of 1854, in an endeavor to regain that health which had been greatly damaged by incessant professional application. On the 9th of September, 1841, he married a lady who, in all the subsequent years of effort, he found to be truly "an help meet," for him, and in April of 1855, with his family he settled in Tipton, Iowa, where with but a brief interval to 1866, his time was occupied in the conduct of his farm, and in the last named year he removed to Iowa City for the purpose of availing himself of the opportunity presented by the schools of that place for the more perfect education of his children. In the fall of 1857 he bought the Iowa City Commercial College and conducted this institution until September, 1870, when he opened the Iowa City Academy. In the founding of this preparatory school was furnished all students an opportunity for the acquisition of knowledge in all the common branches of an English education, and an intimate acquaintance with mathematics, the natural sciences and languages.

Its exercises are conducted by a corps of able and accomplished teachers, and in connection with the Business College possesses ample facilities for imparting either a good Academic or Commercial business education. Though established but two years it has attained a popularity with the people of the State, second to no similar institution in the State, and in view of its facilities and of the results already accomplished it is made the subject of a very fine recommendation from the State University. 281.

Iowa City, in which college is located, a great educational center, the location of this city its opportunity for various libraries and its citizens as manifestly exerting upon it a very desirable influence upon the student life. This is a story of Traer; it is not THE story of Traer! Of all the cities in Tama county, this one perhaps has had more of its history recorded than any other, but there are the newcomers, the young, and those who delight in reminiscing — and a story of Traer is a delightful narrative. Through the media of newspapers and books, members of well-known pioneer families and their descendants have written of Traer and/or the early families who settled in the "new land". There are the late E.E. Taylor and his family through the Traer Star and the Traer Star Clipper, Janette Stevenson Murray in They Came to North Tama, as well as her other books, Margaret Wilson's novel, The Able McLaughlins, Allan Carpenter's Between Two Rivers, and Rev. James Chalupnik's Pioneers, O Pioneers. Facts have been kept from fading into oblivion in Those Were the Days, 1873-1973, the centennial compilation by a dedicated committee who collected into one volume what can most nearly be called THE history of Traer.

During the Western Movement from the early settled parts of the United States, Iowa was considered part of the Great American Desert, and emigrants bypassed it for Kansas and Nebraska. However, in the spring of 1849, some settlers chose the southern part of Tama county in which to live, but it was not until January of 1852 that the northern part had a permanent resident.

The first cabin in the area was built in 1852 by Norman L. Osborn, but he did not remain and the land eventually passed into the hands of Giles Taylor in the fall of 1852 when Giles and Ira Taylor and their families came from Ohio. Giles used the cabin Osborn had erected and Ira built another for his family. It was Giles Taylor who was the first mayor of Traer, and whose family consisted of Zoe, Traer's first postmistress when the Wolf Creek post office was moved to Traer Aug. 21, 1873, Melville, Addie, and Elmer E., originator and editor of the Traer Star, later the Traer Star Clipper.

John W. Traer, of Cedar Rapids, known among his friends as "Skinny", platted the site of a town on Sections 10 and 3, Perry township, when the Pacific branch of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern Railroad came to the region in July, 1873. The selected site, surveyed by Charles G. Johnson, was on land owned by Giles Taylor and J.L. Bull. Traer himself had owned a saloon in the new town, but although it had been named for him, he did nothing to further its development. An earlier Traer, J.C., was the clerk of court who signed orders for forming the three townships that made up Tama county in 1853: Buckingham; Indian Village and Howard.

Unfortunately, the "Crash of 1873" caught the B., C.R. & N. Ry. and the track ended at Traer for four years, due to lack of finances for completion. This crisis of the railroad caused it to be put into the control of John I. Blair, Moses Taylor, Wm. E. Dodge, and other eastern capitalists. Blair was president and the road, which cost about $40,000 per mile, was put into the hands of a receiver in May, 1875.

On July 26, 1873, D.E. Bryson became the first telegraph operator. The depot waiting room served as the scene of the first religious services held in the new town. Two churches, Ripley Congregational and the Methodist, which were in Old Buckingham, were moved to Traer where Giles Taylor donated the site for each.

Another railroad was to come later. A branch of the Chicago & North Western, known as the Mason City, Ia. and Blue Earth, Minn. Railroad, extended from Belle Plaine to Traer and thence northwestward in 1900. Its first passenger train reached Traer June 18, 1900, and for a long time there were two "day passenger" trains, 1:00 P.M. from the north and 6:00 from the south. An unfortunate wreck at Elberon Junction on March 24, 1968, terminated service on that line and the rails were removed in 1976. The abandoned depot, now restored as an eating place, still stands.

The B., C.R. & N. was absorbed by the Rock Island Ry. in June, 1902, and the last passenger service was in 1956; the depot has been removed after being in use until the late 1940's when it was dismantled and replaced by a rail car. Now that, too, is gone, and the Rock Island railroad is bankrupt.

J.R. Smith came from Tama City in 1873, opened a lumber yard and built the first building which burned within a few years. In this structure, B. Best operated the first substantial store, bringing the stock from Tama City. After the store burned, Best became the proprietor of Best House. A.M. Batchelder and J.G. Strong built a store building and had a stock of drugs. Clark Newcomer sold tobacco, cigars, and a little of everything. Within a short time, almost any item that would entice a customer could be obtained in Traer. By 1879, the professionals included 2 dentists, 3 druggists and 6 doctors. There was a land agent and 2 justices of the peace, not to mention 5 hotels, 3 restaurants and 9 grocers.

These numbers seem impossible, but the establishments were not the kind of super-businesses we patronize today. Each stocked small inventories. There were 5 blacksmiths, 3 livery stables, 3 harness shops, and 2 wagon makers which were also necessary activities in the nineteenth century. Many other businesses were carried on.

An election for incorporation carried Dec. 9, 1874, and Traer was incorporated in 1875. Mayor Giles Taylor took charge, while W.H. Bowen acted as recorder. The trustees were J. Morrison, T.H. Greelis, A. Mitchell, J.R. Smith, A.M. Batchelder and L. Ladd. R.H. Moore was treasurer, the marshal was Hiram Klingman and W. Rogers became assessor.

The Perry township census of 1875 listed 947 males and 699 females, a total of 1646 persons. A century later, Traer alone contained 1682 citizens. An early statement of elevation notes 916 feet above sea level, but the present one is given as 892, a difference of 24 feet, perhaps depending on one's location in the city.

The Independence Day celebration, July 4, 1875, was expected to be the grandest ever witnessed in the county. The Rev. Stephen Phelps, Vinton, was secured as orator, the Cedar Rapids Brass Band, one of the best in the state, was to furnish music, there would be a 13-gun salute at sunrise, as well as a display of fireworks after dark, and other attractions. The railroad had a special sched-

Description:

This database is an index to individuals enumerated in the 1860 United States Federal Census, the Eighth Census of the United States. Census takers recorded many details including each person's name, age as of the census day, sex, color, birthplace, occupation of males over age fifteen, and more. No relationships were shown between members of a household. Additionally, the names of those listed on the population schedule are linked to actual images of the 1860 Federal Census.
