- He worked in his father's dry-goods store from age 8 to 14 when he went to college.
- At age 18 he worked on a farm near London, Ohio until age 21. This is when he became interested in raising stock while recovering from failing health.
- He then left the farm with his health partially restored and went into the mercantile business at Charleston, Ohio.
- He prospered, but with many failed financial aid situations he was in failing finances and again failing health and in the fall of 1855, he moved to Eddyville, Iowa.
- Here he and his wife taught school and he also began to study law.
- After being admitted to the bar he moved to Bedford, Iowa where he practiced law until Sept 1860.
- In 1860 he moved to Clarinda, Iowa and practiced law.
- After being a merchant and losing $10,000 he repaid it all in 1867.
- In 1867 his health started to fail again and conceived the idea of a stock farm and he purchased 1000 acres south of Clarinda. Here he fed 1000 to 3000 head of cattle yearly.
- From 1865-1870 he bought cheap land and in 1878 owns 9000 acres.
- He and his first wife divorced 6 Mar 1880.
- He left Clarinda around 1888 for Fort Smith, Arkansas to live with children living.

Judge N. B. Moore Dies.

Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 2.—
Judge N. B. Moore, for many years a well-known resident of this city, and also a prominent figure in republican city and state political af-airs, died this morning at the advanced age of 6, at his residence, 1512 Hurley avenue.

The funeral services will be held at the late residence at 9 o'clock
Wednesday morning, with interment in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Rev. J.
F. Boeye conducting the ceremonies.
Judge Moore was a retired attorney, who came here originally from Ohio. He is survived by the widow and a son, Bruce, and a daughter,
Mrs. Jessie McPherrin, of Kansas City.

Judge Moore was well-known among poultry breeders of this section, as he served for several years
as secretary-treasurer of the Fort Worth Poultry and Pet Stock Association.

OBITUARY RECORD.

N. B. Moore.

A former leading citizen of Clarinda, N. B. Moore, died the morning of Aug. 2, 1910, according to copies of a daily paper of that date published at Worth, Tex., which have been received in this city by Dr. E. T. Farrrens and H. H. Scott. That paper said: "Judge N. B. Moore, a prominent citizen and a lawyer, died at 1 o'clock this morning at his residence in this city, from infirmities incident to old age, he being 78 years of age. The arrangements for his funeral will be given later." Two children of Mr. Moore died prior to his demise: Mrs. Sattie Bruce of Kansas City, and Floyd Moore of Fort Worth, Tex. Both died a number of years ago. Lloyd was accidentally killed at Fort Worth. Surviving Mr. Moore are his widow, Mrs. Nellie J. Moore, and son, Bruce Moore, at Fort Worth, and daughter, Mrs. S. C. McPherrin, of Kansas City. The late Mr. Moore was born in Ohio. He came to Iowa in 1857; taught school near Ottumwa that winter, and read law. He was admitted to the bar, then went to Bedford about 1858. In the fall of 1858 or the spring of 1859 he came to Clarinda. He was once county judge of Page county. He was elected state senator from the senatorial district in which Page county was located, in 1867, and served as mayor of Clarinda from 1881 to 1885. He established the first bank in Page county, in Clarinda, about 1866, and was a member of the banking firm of Moore & McIntyre, which afterward became the First National bank, and later the Page County bank, now the Page County State bank. Mr. Moore left Clarinda for Fort Worth, Tex., about 1888. He was at one time a wealthy citizen of Page county, being a large land owner in connection with his other possessions and business. Old settlers remember him as one of the most enterprising and useful men for the community at large that Clarinda ever had. At the same time he was known for his generosity. He built the large, fine brick residence property in Clarinda, on North Eighteenth street, now owned by D. H. Killingsworth, and known as the Clarinda hotel.

Mrs. Mary E. Middaugh.

Lola L. Hayes.

Cottage Grove, Ia.—[Correspondence of The Journal]—Lola L. Hayes was born Dec. 27, 1884, in Page county, Ia., and died near Coin, Ia., July 31, 1910, age 25 years, 7 months and 3 days. She was the second daughter of Mrs. Frank Young. Her life was spent in this community until Nov. 9, 1904, when she was married to Ed Osborne. To this union only one child was born, Lucile, age 5. The death of this young person is a sad affair, but death is no respecter of persons and at this time took the dearest object of the young husband's affection. The funeral was held Tuesday, Aug. 2, 1910, at the Brick church in Shambaugh by Rev. W. E. Kelley. She leaves to mourn her untimely death, a husband, one little girl, mother, step father, two sisters and four brothers, besides a number of relatives and sympathizing friends. She was laid to rest in the Davis cemetery. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Judge McPherson's Brother Dead.

Red Oak Sun, July 29: Judge Smith McPherson arrived home Wednesday from Indianapolis, Ind., where he was called on Friday by news of the death of his brother, Carey McPherson. Only a week before Judge McPherson had gone to Niagara, Ontario, Can., to accompany his brother, who was taken seriously sick while there on a trip, to his home in Indianapolis.

Corning Union-Republican, July 27: George D. Schaible, son of Mrs. John D. Schaible of this city, was killed by being run over by a fast passenger train at Vancouver, Wash., on Wednesday of last week. The remains were brought to this city, arriving yesterday and accompanied by F. A. Swan, a brother-in-law of Dr. Wallahan, and C. W. Stanley. The funeral services were conducted yesterday from the residence, by Rev. L. W. Bock of Des Moines, assisted by Rev. P. F. Pfaltzgraff and Rev. Jay Kirkenut Grove cemetery. the age of twenty four, he was married to Miss Susan Fry, and in the fall of 1839, removed with his father-in-law and family to Johnson county, Iowa. Mr. Bonham was foreman of the first grand jury that sat in Iowa City. He served for several years as justice of the peace, and also as town clerk, in what was then known as "Old Man's Creek precinct." He was a candidate for delegate to the first constitutional convention, and defeated by thirteen votes. Was also a candidate for the territorial legislature, and defeated by a small vote. Was elected to the territorial legislature in 1846. The territory having been admitted into the union as a state, Mr. Bonham was elected a member from the district composed of the counties of Johnson and Iowa, to the first general assembly; and also was elected from the same district to the second state general assembly. At the meeting of this body, he was chosen speaker of the house, and received credit for being an able and impartial presiding officer. After a residence of thirty years in Johnson county, Mr. Bonham, in the spring of 1869, removed to Clarke county, Iowa, where he at present resides, following the avocation of a farmer. In 1873, he was elected on the anti-monopoly ticket to represent Clarke county in the 15th general assembly. He was a member of the railroad committee during this session of the legislature, and took a very active part in its labors, which resulted in the passage of the present railroad law, in the state of Iowa. Mr. Bonham is a member of the church of Christ, known in some localities as Campbellites. He is a member of, and an earnest worker in, the order of Patrons of Husbandry, and is always ready to shiver a lance with any one who opposes the grangers. Since Mr. B.'s residence in Iowa, they have had born to them nine children, and all raised without a doctor's bill. He is a firm believer in the climatic influence of growing timber, and has given much attention to the growing of forest and fruit trees.

Hen. Napoleon B. Moore. He was born at London, Madison county, Ohio, Sept. 7, 1832. His father was one of the pioneers of that county. Young Moore was brought up on a farm near the place of his birth, and was educated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware. His health failing him before completing a collegiate course, he entered actively into agricultural pursuits. In 1855, he removed to Iowa, and first settled at Eddyville. Here he read law in the office of Homer L. Ives, Esq., and was admitted to the bar at Albia, Monroe county, in June, 1856; removed to Bedford, Taylor county, in Sept., 1857, and commenced the practice of his profession; and in Sept., 1860, removed to Clarinda, Page county, where he has since resided. In July, 1866, he established the banking house of Moore and McIntyre, and succeeded them as sole proprietor in May, 1871. In August, 1872, he organized the First National Bank of Clarinda, and was president of the same until July 1, 1875, when he resigned in order to devote his time to his profession. In politics Mr. Moore is a republican, and was elected by his party, county judge of Page county, in 1861, and to the state senate, in 1867. He is a member of the M. E. Church and an active worker in the church, and well known in the state as an active Sabbath school man. He is recognized throughout the state as a leading financier and able lawyer.

George L. Brooks. Mr. Brooks was born at Lawrence, Mass., September 27, 1848. When he was four years of age, his parents removed to Philadelphia, and three years later to the state of Iowa, settling on a farm near Independence, in Buchanan county. At the age of 18 he commenced school teaching. When 20 his father gave him "his time," and with $15 in his pocket he started out in the world. After spending several months in Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky, he returned to Independence and engaged in book keeping. In 1871, having acquired a few hundred dollars in money, he removed to Corning, Adams county, Iowa, and there engaged in the grocery business, and the following spring started a small store at Lenox, Taylor county. Lenox, at this time, was decidedly in the embryo state,—a depot and two or three dwellings comprised the sum total of improvements, and the country for miles around was without inhabitants. But

In 1855 he was appointed prosecuting attorney, and the next year was elected by the people; was county judge for nine consecutive years, commencing on the 1st of January, 1861; during the same period was county recorder four years, and after going out of the latter office was county auditor three years. Few men in Dallas county have held more offices than Judge Perkins, and none have discharged their duties better or to the more complete satisfaction of their constituents.

The judge was originally a whig, imbibing anti-slavery sentiments from his father, who was a Quaker. Naturally, on the demise of the whig party, he joined the republican. He has been the recipient of all his official honors at the hands of the latter party, but the vote he received was not always limited to his party. He is very much respected in the county.

The religious views of the judge are liberal. He is a Royal Arch Mason.

His wife, who was Miss Eliza Kennedy, a native of Richmond, Indiana, became such on the 4th of February, 1841. She died on the 6th of April, 1876, leaving seven children, and five had preceded her into the other world. Mary Lorette is the wife of Dr. Lee Kenworthy, a dentist, of Saint Helena, California; Jeremiah A. has a family, and lives in Fremont, Nebraska. The others are single.

Judge Perkins has a commanding appearance. He stands six feet in his stockings, and weighs two hundred and forty pounds. He has brown hazel eyes, a florid complexion, easy and graceful manners, a cordial address, a cheerful disposition, and good social qualities. He has, in every respect, the polish of a gentleman.

HON. NAPOLEON B. MOORE,

CLARINDA.

WE claim for this biography the careful perusal of every young man into whose hands this volume may fall. In the career of Mr. Moore may be learned as great a lesson in energy, tact and discrimination as has, perhaps, fallen to the lot of any of the many self-made men, whose biographies we have published. He was born on the 7th of September, 1832, at London, Madison county, Ohio. His father's name was Stephen Moore, who was born in Virginia and settled in London in 1808 with his brother John, and Stephen built and opened the first storehouse in Madison county, so that he was, indeed, an original settler in that part of Ohio.

He married Miss Hester Dungan, who was born in Pennsylvania, but moved with her parents to Ohio at a very early day.

Mr. Stephen Moore continued in commercial business most of the time he resided in Ohio, during which time he filled the office of sheriff and county treasurer.

Napoleon Bonaparte Moore, from the age of eight years, was brought up in his father's dry-goods store until he was fourteen years of age, when he went to school at the Wesleyan University at Delaware, Ohio, where he remained till he was eighteen, when his health began to fail him, and he went upon a farm near London, where he became interested in stock raising, and remained till about twenty-one.

When nineteen years old he married Miss B. W. Webster, daughter of a prominent Methodist minister of the Cincinnati conference.

Partially restored to health, he left the farm and went into mercantile pursuits at Charleston, Ohio, where he remained in business until the fall of 1855. Here he had prospered in business, but through financial aid extended to others he became greatly involved, to an extent of at least ten thousand dollars; so again failing in health and ruined in finances he came to Iowa and settled at Eddyville, on the Des Moines river, where he and his wife taught the district school, and he began the study of law, and in two years was admitted to the bar, when he left Eddyville and settled at Bedford, Taylor county, Iowa.

Teaching school at Eddyville simply produced enough of an income to supply a most frugal subsistence for himself and family, so that when he had determined to remove to Bedford he prospected the place before removal of his family. He owned no horse, could get no conveyance and had to walk the three hundred miles there and back. Having determined upon the removal, a wagon was obtained, into which he put all his worldly effects, including his wife and one child, and commending himself to the care of an all-wise Providence, he commenced the journey of one hundred and fifty miles. The little girl of four years was ailing when they started, and died when they were seven days out, but the mother kept it until they reached Bedford, where Mr. Moore and his father dug a grave and gave it burial.

He remained in Bedford, practicing law, until September, 1860, with great success, commencing life as it were anew. He had two dollars and a half in money and owed ten thousand dollars.

Our subject removed to Clarinda in 1860, continuing the practice of law. In the fall of 1861 he was elected county judge, which office he filled for four years. In the fall of 1865 he established the first banking house in southwestern Iowa. In 1866 he was elected state senator, and while serving on the judiciary committee framed the bill relative to the present circuit court system, and was among the most earnest supporters of the plan for the erection of the present state capitol building at Des Moines, which justly ranks among the grandest architectural piles on this continent. In 1871 he established the First National Bank of Clarinda. In 1867 he completed the payment of the ten thousand dollars indebtedness imposed upon him in Ohio. In 1872 he established the banking house of Moore and Webster, at Shenandoah, which is now known as the First National Bank of that place, and also established the banking house of Crum, Moore and Van Fleet, at Bedford, in January, 1873, now succeeded by the Bedford Bank.

In 1867, his health again failing him, the result of too close confinement to sedentary labor, he sought relaxation in a diversion of body and mind, and conceived the idea of a stock farm in lieu of stock banks, and he bought a farm of one thousand acres situated ten miles south of Clarinda. This farm seems to have been a favorite matter of concern to him, for he has continuously developed it, feeding from one to three hundred cattle annually thereon. From 1865 to 1870 he bought cheap lands in southern Iowa, and owns now about nine thousand acres, two thousand of which are improved.

Amid all this busy business life Mr. Moore has ever been a strong devotee to his church. Since 1862 he has had charge of the Sabbath school, excepting only two years of absence. He has to-day one hundred and twenty-eight young men and women in his class. He was a member of the general conference of the Methodist church which met at Baltimore in May, 1876.

He has been an active Mason; has taken thirty-two degrees since 1859, and is now prelate to the commandery here.

Since the age of nineteen he has had the aid and solace of an intelligent and devoted wife, self-sacrificing in the extreme in their hours of deepest trouble, and worthily wearing the mantle of her husband's ultimate financial prosperity. A devoted christian woman, she has lived a life of benevolence, of service to her church and to humanity. Mrs. Moore, too, has taken deep interest in the cause of temperance, and is at present president of the Woman's Church Temperance Association of Iowa. The lady, at her personal expense, employed the famous temperance orator, Francis Murphy, for a three months' campaign in Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have had born to them two boys and four girls. The two boys and two of the girls have been taken away.

Mr. N. B. Moore may be summed up in all truthfulness as a thorough business man, governed in his every action toward his fellow-men by all the graces of a practical christian gentleman.

HARVEY POTTER,

JEFFERSON.

HARVEY POTTER, a native of Lewis county, New York, was born at Turin on the 17th of July, 1834. His father, Chester Potter, was a stonemason in early life, and a farmer in his later years. His mother was Dinah Miller, of English and Irish pedigree. The Potters were wholly English. The paternal grandfather of Harvey was in the first war with the mother country; his father in the second.

Chester Potter moved with his family to Illinois when Harvey was four years old, settling on a farm near Somonauk, De Kalb county, where the son assisted his father until twenty years of age. He then repaired to Wheaton, twenty-five miles west of Chicago; spent six years in preparing for and going through the college at that place, graduating on the 4th of July, 1860. He attended the law department of the University of Chicago, and graduated in 1862 with the degree of LL.B. In 1864 he received the degree of A.M. from his Alma Mater.

When Mr. Potter graduated from the law school
