—The various base ball games on the Fourth were decidedly one sided affairs. Clermont defeated our club by a score of 29 to 9.

Prairie du Chien won the game and $50 at Postville from their club to the tune of 23 to 3.
The Hanover boys won the game from Union Prairie by a score of 17 to 2. In the game last week between Waukon and Decorah at this cured 27 scores to their opponents 4.

—Justin Wines, of this bailiwick, went down to Waterville on the 4th and set up a lager beer dispensatory, contrary to the laws of Iowa made and provided, and as a result Justin languished for a few days in the county jug. His examination takes place today. It is said that he had due warning as to what the consequences would be if he did not quit the business down there that day, but it seems that he did not heed the admonition.

—The Iowa Columbian commission, at its last meeting in Des Moines, appointed a Chicago firm the official photographers to prepare views of the state of Iowa to be exhibited at the exposition in 1893 at Chicago. A large map of the state will be made, bordered on all sides by photographs of the executive officers of the state, members of the commission and a large view of the capitol building will be shown in the center. At least seventy views will be taken in each county, including scenes along the river and railroads, school houses, colleges and churches.

—News has reached friends in this city of the death of Hon. P. G. Wright at his home at Martinsburg, Neb., on Tuesday last, but we are unable to obtain any particulars. It will be remembered that he was back here among old home friends on a visit about a year ago and was in poor health then and had been for a long time. Mr. Wright was a prominent citizen of our county years ago and served the county in two terms of the legislature on the Democratic side. He was also elected to the legislature of Nebraska after becoming a resident of that state.

—The West Union Argo says: "The many personal friends of Prof. J. B. Knoepfer, who have so long known that gentleman, while they congratulate him upon being the successfull candidate for the Democratic nomination for Supt. of Pub. Inst., will question the propriety or expediency of neglecting a substance for a shadow." Say, Mr. Argo, he'll be the healthiest shadow you've seen for many a day after election and he gets into the State School Superintendent's chair at Des Moines.
Please go down in January next and call on him. You will find him in the capitol building. The janitor will take pleasure in show-their sister, Mrs. A. Dereham, of this city, a most welcome visit.

Prof. Kling and family arrived last Monday evening and have already taken possession of the Major Reed residence. They are heartily welcomed to Waukon.

Misses Bertha Beeman and Anna Dayton accompanied Misses Juliette Payen and Lottie Hillman to their homes in St. Paul, where they will visit for several weeks.

Misses Lizzie Ward and Nellie Holahan started for Grand Forks, N. D., last Monday, to spend a few weeks in visiting with friends and they will no doubt have a good time.

Will. Burdick, of Lansing, was a Waukon visitor Sunday. He informed us that he had recently received notification of an appointment as postal clerk on the route between LaCrosse and Dubuque.

Nic. Pleimling, who is traveling in the interest of Chicago and Rockford clothing houses and meeting with good success in that line, was at home to celebrate the great natal day in the bosom of his family.

Miss Minnie Matthews arrived last Thursday from St. Paul, where she has been employed as bookkeeper in the St. Paul Dispatch Publishing Company for the past two years.
She will remain about a month.

John Eddy Fourthed it at home and is yet staying here superintending improvements in and around his residence. He goes to Connecticut next week on business connected with his house, the Colchester Rubber Co.

Theodore and Herman Greeling came home from Omaha, Neb., to spend the Fourth, the first time they have gladdened their parents with a visit for four years. The boys have good situations and fill them faithfully and well.

Bert. and Mrs. Robbins returned home last Saturday. Mrs. R. was out on the road about a month with that husband of hers to prevent his getting into cyclones and other discouraging difficulties. Bert is getting along nicely as a commercial tourist.

A fishing party composed of Dr. Will Gilchrist, his brother John, Charley Hale and Allan Boomer have gone up into the wilds of Wisconsin in the vicinity of Tomahawk Lake to spend a week or two in trying to entice the frisky trout from his lair.

Mr. Geo. B. Woodworth came over from Milwaukee to spend the Fourth at Forest Home with his wife and youthful pets, returning to his duties on Monday. George found his wife so much improved in health and looks that he hardly knew her.

T. H. Studebaker, editor of the McGregor Times, and D. D. G. M. of the Odd Fellows, came up to install the newly elected officers of Waukon Lodge, last Monday evening, and this office acknowledges a pleasant visit with the brother. Mr. Studebaker, we are pleased to learn, is succeeding well with the old Times financially and is making a good paper of it.

THE LATE HON. P. G. WRIGHT.
A Tribute to His Memory by a Friend who Knew Him Well.

The following biographical sketch of the late Hon. P. G. Wright, whose death we briefly announced last week, was written by a friend in Nebraska, and was published in the Wakefield Republican. Mr. Jas. McCauley has our thanks for a copy of the article:

Perce G. Wright was born in Ontario county, New York, in 1816; was separated from his parents at three years of age, and suffered the privations and lack of sympathy which are the portion of many of God's little ones. His privileges were such as the over worked children of a new country usually enjoy, consisting of a few months study at a district school, were imperfectly taught. But these opportunities, well improved, have been the means of stimulating many a bright intellect to great endeavors; and who will say that much of the firmness of purpose, in what he considered to be right, was not nurtured by his hard struggle for an education? He was married at the age of 23, to the companion who is now left lonely by his death. His early manhood was spent in Michigan, where privileges, both social and religious, were few; where life was a struggle with every circumstance that calls for an unflinching purpose and an iron will. The forests were to be felled, wild beasts driven out, bands of out-laws ferreted out and punished; laws made and order produced from many opposing and conflicting elements. Twenty-five years of active life, serving his fellow citizens as sheriff for five years, and in other capacities mingling in all classes of society, and becoming acquainted with their needs, prepared him for a useful political career in the new state of Iowa, to which he subsequently moved. Her citizens recognizing his ability and integrity of purpose, chose him as their representative for three terms. Who shall say how much his efforts have done to make and mould the laws of that model state?

As a token of their confidence in the kindness of his heart, they entrusted him with the guardianship of their soldiers' orphans' home, and the faithfulness of his service is best attested by the fact that he was chosen as their guardian for five years. Who can say how many lives were made brighter and more useful by his guardianship? Perhaps the memory of his own lonely childhood caused his heart to warm toward every lonely, friendless child, causing him to take to his home several orphan children—although the father of ten children—treating them in all respects as his own.

After serving the state of Iowa for twenty-one years, as representative, father of the fatherless, neighbor and friend, he moved into the home which he now leaves lonely, 15 years ago, where he has served the state of Nebraska as county commissioner, representative, and in many other capacities until his health would no longer admit of further heavy burdens. For five years his health has been gradually falling, and in his own comfortable home, in easy access to his six living children, he has spent the last years of his life.

When we look over the substantial services Mr. Wright has rendered to the citizens of the several states where he has resided, perhaps it would be well to ask who has done more? Who has traversed over younger roads, in darker nights, than this sheriff of a new country, where the trees were tall and the swamp mud

Personals.

Eddie Armstrong is visiting relatives at Mt. Vernon, Iowa.

Miss Vesta Greer is visiting relatives in McGregor this week.

Mrs. Geo. Taylor has gone to pay a visit to friends in Glendale, Iowa.

Miss Luna Hewit has gone to Dubuque for a visit with her friend, Miss Mable Rose.

Mrs. Geo. Goodman and her daughter Mattie are in Chicago visiting relatives and friends.

Col. H. H. Rood was the guest of his brother-in-law, Levi Armstrong Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Jos. Haines is enjoying a visit from his brother-in-law, Dr. A. T. Bryan, of Egan, S. D.

Mrs. L. E. Howe and her sons Len. and Horace are off on a pleasure trip to Milwaukee, which they will no doubt greatly enjoy.

Miss Mary Ryan returned home from the Chicago Musical College and School of Dramatic Art last week to remain for the summer.

Miss Kate Belden has been again engaged to teach in the New Albin public school, where she was employed for several terms a few years ago and gave the best of satisfaction.

Theo. Greeling returned to Omaha yesterday via Decorah, after a fortnight's very agreeable visit with home folks. Herman and his bride leave for the same city this morning.

Mrs. Sawyer and son, of LaCrosse, were Waukon visitors a few days ago, looking up their interests in the Sawyer & Austin lumber yard here which is being carefully managed by that good boy Chal. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brunson, after a few days stay in Waukon on their return from their wedding trip, left last week for their future home in Sioux City, bearing with them the best wishes of all acquaintances.

Mr. Dan. Sires, an old veteran who formerly resided in our county, but who some years ago took Greeley's advice, has been visiting old home scenes for the past several days, and his old comrades were right glad to see him.

Henry Lamont is home again after several months absence in Boston, where he was actively engaged in horse business, and also making two or three trips to Montreal, Canada, to purchase equines. Henry looks as though the customary Boston bean diet agreed with him well.

Mr. Knowlton, the new contractor of the Waukon and Postville stage route, accompanied by his wife, came to town a few days ago in search of a residence to rent or purchase, with a view to making this place their future home. We believe they were unable to rent a suitable house, as there is scarcely anything in that line to be obtained.

After serving the state of Iowa for twenty-one years, as representative, father of the fatherless, neighbor and friend, he moved into the home which he now leaves lonely, 15 years ago, where he has served the state of Nebraska as county commissioner, representative, and in many other capacities until his health would no longer admit of further heavy burdens. For five years his health has been gradually failing, and in his own comfortable home, in easy access to his six living children, he has spent the last years of his life.

When we look over the substantial services Mr. Wright has rendered to the citizens of the several states where he has resided, perhaps it would be well to ask who has done more?
Who has traveled over rougher roads, in darker nights, than this sheriff of a new country, where the trees were tall and the swamp mud deep, that the lives and property of others might be protected? Who has spent more midnight hours in deep study, when his constituents were wrapped in slumber, than the statesman who ponders whether this measure or that would benefit the commonwealth he was sworn to serve? As neighbor and friend who has done more? Who has been more faithful in visiting the sick and afflicted than he, even when his own feet were tottering on the verge of the grave. We would not presume to flatter or censure the departed, but we deem it but justice to ourselves as neighbors and citizens, to thus publicly attest our appreciation of the worth of one who has spent the greater part of a long life in the service of his fellow citizens.

in our city with a part of his right ear done up in a sling, the other part having been chewed off the day before by a young tough of Village a load of cream to the Nielander creamery, when Kean and another young man who were both under the influence of old budge imbibed in Lansing, asked him for a ride. He let them

Pierce Granger Wright moved at an early age from Phelps, N. Y., to Columbus, Mich., where he lived 25 years. For five years he was sheriff of the county; he then moved to Iowa, where he was three times elected a member of the Legislature of that State. After a residence here of 21 years he removed again to Allen, Dixon County, Neb., where he remained fifteen years till his death. He was frequently a member of the Legislature of Nebraska. He took a leading position in every community in which he lived. - The Granger Book, James N. Granger, 1893

County Commissioner Dixon Co. 1878-1880

<ftp://ftp.rootsweb.com/pub/usgenweb/ne/dixon/at885a.txt> Pierce Granger Wright moved at an early age from Phelps, NY, to Columbus, Michigan, where he lived 25 years. For five years he was sheriff of the county; he then moved to Iowa, where he was three times elected a member of the Legislature of that State. After a residence here of 21 years he removed again to Allen, Dixon Co, NE, where he remained fifteen years till his death. He was frequently a member of the Legislature of Nebraska. He took a leading position in every community in which he lived. - The Granger Book, James N. Granger, 1893 Dixon County, Nebraska Commissioner, 1878-1880 Chronology (by Bob Couch, 1/15/2000): Abt. 1816-1820 Phelps, NY Abt. 1820-1845 Columbus, MI Abt. 1845-1876 Waukon, IA (I believe Granger book miscalculates 21, should be 31) Abt. 1876-1891 Allen, NE
