STIPULATION FOREVER. to Candy Chathurle, Dr. or 101 to Nure, druggists re-

It was just before 10:30 o'clock when a telephone message was received at the station saying that some fellow was lying at the corner of C avenue and Sixth street in an unconscious condition, and covered with blood. Capt. Spaulding and Officer Smetana were soon dashing to the scene in the patrol wagon at breakneck speed.

The fellow, who proved to be Matt Elwood, was taken to St. Luke's hospital, a physician hastily called, and everything was done to alleviate his suffering. He presented a horrible sight when taken to the hospital. He was covered with blood from one end to the other and was in a semi-conscious condition, unable to tell anything about the happening.

Upon the arrival of the physician, it was found that he had four ugly cuts in his scalp. Two of them were on the forehead, one about two inches long, running up and down, the other about the same length pointing toward the left ear. Two more cuts were on the back of the head, near the crown, one pointing almost directly downward and the other at about right angles. These were also about two inches in length. The bone was laid bare in each, although there was no fracture of the skull.

He had evidently been slugged with some blunt instrument, but whether he had been hit twice or four times was hard to tell, although it is believed that two cuts were made at one blow. The position of the two cuts in front in relation to the two in the back of the head were about the same, and it looks as though the blows were inflicted with an instrument with two prongs that stood at right angles.

Elwood stoutly maintains that he does not know who his assailant is. He claims that they met at a saloon on C avenue and after taking a couple of drinks wandered off down toward the oil mills, where they sat down and talked for awhile. He says they were together about half or three-quarters of an hour, and that he stated he was going to bed and started to leave, when the fellow slugged him. He said he turned and the fellow struck him again, and, to use his own language, he lost no time in "making his get away." It seems that Elwood ran up Sixth street. When on C avenue and just across from the Clinton house, he fainted away from loss of blood and the shock. He was seen and it was then that the police were called.

The police have absolutely no clue to the fellow, as Elwood either does not know or will not say anything about his assailant. Elwood had a close call. His injuries are not dangerous and he will be able to leave the hospital in a short time. How it happened, however, that his skull was not fractured is wonderful.

Flints the Famous Hypnotist Open a Week's Engagement at Greene's Opera House Last Night.

The famous Flints opened their week's engagement last night at Greene's opera house, to an audience that crowded the playhouse to the floors, many late comers standing in the rear of the house.

The Flints have long been favorites in Cedar Rapids and from the round after round of applause heard for blocks around the theater, they will live forever as a company of the most pleasing type. They have always presented good hypnotic work. In this city, last night was no far ahead of any work in that line that no comparison can be made. Their work is quick this year and the large audience was not bored to death with long and tiresome scenes. Miss Flint, the doctor's charming daughter, who is known to be the only lady hypnotist on the stage, was more than charming. She at the end of this performance from the stage so that she could be in the east. She made her appearance shortly after 9 o'clock and was very warmly received. From that time on there was a

PICKPOCKETS NABBED.

George Sherman and Will Smith Pick the Pockets of Mrs. James Crosby Last Night and are Arrested.

George Sherman and Will Smith are the names given by a couple of young strangers, each of whom is 20 years old, who are locked up at the police station on a charge of suspicion, the arrest having been effected just before 9:30 o'clock last night at the union passenger station by Officer McKernan.

James H. Crosby and wife, who have been at Charlton, called there by the death of Mr. Crosby's father, returned home last night, coming in on the Milwaukee and arriving here at 9 o'clock. They were accompanied by Mr. Crosby's mother. Mr. Crosby and wife alighted from the train first and started on into the depot. The mother followed, being assisted from the train by a young fellow, who afterward turned out to be Sherman. Mrs. Crosby had little more than left the cars until she discovered that her pocketbook had been stolen.

A Mr. Fleming, a contractor, who was at the depot, had noticed the young fellow assisting the old lady from the train and noticed him put his hand in her pocket. Not knowing either one, however, he supposed they were relatives. As soon as he learned the lady had lost her pocketbook he immediately came to the conclusion that the young fellow had done it when he assisted her in alighting from the train. He pointed the lads out to Mr. Crosby, who followed them to the union depot, where he grabbed both of them. Mr. McKernan arrived about this time and marched them off to jail.

When searched at the police station Sherman was found to have $24.70 and Smith $5.11. Mrs. Crosby thought, however, that she had about $35 in her pocketbook. Among this money was a $20 bill. Neither of the young fellows had a bill of this denomination, although Sherman had a $5 gold piece, which tallied with what Mrs. Crosby had.

It is believed there is no question but what they are the fellows who did the work.

A BRILLIANT SOCIAL EVENT

Secretary and Miss Wilson Entertain the President and Mrs. McKinley.

On the evening of May 20 the secretary of agriculture and Miss Wilson gave a handsomely appointed dinner party in honor of the president and Mrs. McKinley. The decorations were of pink, consisting of a mound of beautiful pink roses in the center, with additional masses of sweetpeas at either end, and quantities of long-stemmed pink roses scattered about the damask-covered table. The candles all burned under pink shades, and the young daughter of the secretary, who is a very charming and attractive hostess, was gowned in a becoming French creation of pink satin and chiffon.

Present to meet the guests of honor were Mrs. Bliss, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Smith, Justice and Mrs. McKenna, Mrs. Grant, Senator and Mrs. Elkins, Senator and Mrs. Gear, and Senator Allison. A military air was given the serving of the dinner by the lads being frozen in the form of torpedo boats and the punch being served in cups decorated in flags, bayonets and other devices suggestive of war.

Rev. Father Klos of Chelsea Sues A. M. Zahorik of This City.

A suit has just been commenced in the district court at Marion that is liable to cause a big sensation. Rev. Father F. Klos, rector of the Bohemian Catholic church at Chelsea, is the plaintiff, and he brings suit against A. M. Zahorik of this city, asking damages in the sum of $10,000, for alleged false statements. The petition of the plaintiff is a long one. Summed up in a few words, Klos claimed that Zahorik made public presentations that he solicited funds for the Spanish cause, all of which is untrue and libelous.

LAST OF A PIONEER.

Interesting Sketch of the Late William Ure.

Fifty-seven years ago, slowly undering their way westward over the then little known prairies of Iowa, was a family in search of a home.
Meeting a surveying party they were told, of a good location about ten miles from the ford at the rapids of the Red Cedar river; heading for the place described they came to a grove of fine timber with good land all around it and there decided to stay.
That family was Robert Ure, his wife and eight children, the location Scotch Grove, and the settlement then made was the first in which is now the township of Fairfax. Even more than the usual discomfort and hardships incidental to an isolated life this family had to endure. Their nearest neighbors were many miles off. For things absolutely necessary they had to go to one of the towns on the Mississippi river, even to get their wheat made into flour the nearest mill was at Cascade, in Dubuque county.

But more fortunate in their location than many of the early settlers, as the country was peopled, the lands which each member had secured became very valuable.

William Ure was a boy of 14 when the family made their home at the grove. Having a sound constitution, a well knit frame and mental qualifications far above the average, when the township of Fairfax was organized in 1838, he was elected to an important office, and later when county affairs were managed by a supervisor from each township he was the selection of Fairfax, and that body on his becoming a member at once appointed him county bridge commissioner. In 1871, when the present supervisor system was established, he was elected by the county at large one of the three members.

The Fourteenth general assembly appointed him one of the commissioners to plan, fix upon a site and commence building the penitentiary at Anamosa, and in 1875 he was elected to represent Linn county in the Sixteenth legislative assembly and was re-elected to the Seventeenth.

Honest and fearless, whatever duty devolved was discharged with strict fidelity. As county bridge commissioner he laid the foundation for the noble system of bridges we now possess. As supervisor he curbed the growing tendency to extravagance and kept the county free from debt. And when as a penitentiary commissioner he found that his opposition would be powerless to prevent what he considered a bad appointment, rather than appear to consent he resigned his position and subsequent scandals showed how accurate was his discernment. And Linn county was never more worthily represented in the state legislature than when he was a member.

Any measure or project to better the community could always count on the help of William Ure. He was in organizing the West Side Mutual Insurance association and he was its president for eighteen years. The Pencil Valley falls over to him.

The Fourteenth general assembly appointed him one of the commis- sioners to plan, fix upon a site and com- mence building the penitentiary at Anamosa, and in 1875 he was elected to represent Linn county in the Six- teenth legislative assembly and was re-elected to the Seventeenth.

Honest and fearless, whatever duty devolved was discharged with strict fidelity. As county bridge commis- sioner he laid the foundation for the noble system of bridges we now possess. As supervisor he curbed the growing tendency to extravagance and kept the county free from debt. And when as a penitentiary commissioner he found that his opposition would be powerless to prevent what he con- sidered a bad appointment, rather than appear to consent he resigned his position and subsequent scandals showed how accurate was his discern- ment. And Linn county was never more worthily represented in the state legislature than when he was a mem- ber.

Any measure or project to better the community could always count on the help of Mr. Ure. He was active in organizing the West Side Mutual Insurance association and he was its president for eighteen years. The Prairie Valley fair owes to him much of its success and he was its first president.

When six years ago he moved to Nebraska the community lost a good citizen and the neighborhood a help- ful friend. On the 23d of May he died at Omaha and, last Wednesday his remains were brought to Fairfax. In the church hall on the old home- stead his friends had a last look on the familiar features. The immense concourse of people that came to his funeral testified to the respect and esteem in which he was held; and by the side of his parents and kins- dred in the beautiful cemetery of Fairfax, which he did so much to procure and adorn, was laid as true a gentleman as ever its portals closed upon.

Although still survive three of that band which came to Fairfax so long ago, they do not live in town, and the once prominent Ure family is now but a memory.

CONVENES TODAY.

MAY TERM OF DISTRICT COURT IN SESSION.

With Insurance Company.

Another page in the famous Nov case has just been closed by the settlement with Charles Zaborkitsky the Hartford Insurance compa which concern held policies of ins- urance on the general merchandise of Novak & Mlek.

The case above mentioned is a fresh in the public mind. Frank Novak, his sister, Anna Mlek, a Charles Zaborkitsky, a brother-in- law were conducting a prosperous mer- chandise business at Walford, Bent county, in 1896-97. On the night February 2, 1897, Frank A. Novak enticed Edward Murray, a coun- try boy, into the store, murdered him with cold blood, carried the remains to a basement, set the building on fire and made his escape. On July 12 he was captured at Dawson City by Detective "Red" Perrin, and at the 27th of November term of district court he was found guilty and sentenced by Judge Burnham to the penitentiary for 10 years where he now is.

An action was commenced by 29 of Novak's partners to collect the loss on the stock. The court was instructed plainly in favor of the plaintiffs, but the jury found for the defendants. On his own motion the court set the verdict aside and ordered a retrial. Before the commencement of the suit, it is said the insurance company offered to settle for $2,600, but Judge Ney of Des Moines, who had taken the case on contingent fee, would not have that way. When the case was called on the second trial M. J. Toole, Vinton asked counsel for the plaintiffs what they would settle for, I could get no figure. He then filed a receipt in full from Mr. Zaborkitsky, who had been paid $1,000 in- demnity by the defendant Judge Ney and M and berated Zaborkitsky sorely for settling without his knowledge or consent, and announced that he would claim the agreed share of the entire amount of the claim. It is stated upon good authority that he received $750 out of the $1,000 which Zaborkitsky settled for.

Our Very Dear Friend; Mrs. Bernhardt's letter of 25th received this morning saying the glasses had been sent April 29, 1899, via American press, marked Jas. F. Gehbart, 1 Des Moines, Iowa, and also she went the express office and had a box sent after them. Forgy, the boy's glasses were for, and myself, we drove to the express office as for a horse and buggy could go, and found they had been there since May 1st. They claimed they notified by postal card, of their arrival. I jumped all over them for not delivering them. Well, that part is settled. Now for the glasses: For when I received the package a messenger handed them to him, he was hardly wait until we reached the city, and he had them. And see how it
