L. ALFORD'S TRAGIC DEATH

FOUND IN BATH ROOM

Community Greatly Shocked This Morning By the Sad News—Came to Waterloo in 1868—Speaker of Iowa House in 18th General Assembly.

Hon. Lore Alford was found dead in the bathroom at his home, 307 East Sixth street, about 7:30 this morning.
His throat had been cut with a razor, and the evidences of suicide were apparent.

The news of Mr. Alford's death caused a great shock to the people of this community, among whom he has lived so long and by whom he was so greatly respected. Intimate friends have noticed for several weeks that he was not himself, and the first premonition of the giving away of his faculties had hardly become fixed in the minds of those who knew him well before a change was noticeable in his whole manner.

Mr. Alford arose about 7:00 this morning, and went about the house as usual, performing a number of small duties that always engaged his attention. It was his custom to take a half hour's exercise in the morning, and he had fitted up the bath room with appliances for this purpose. It was supposed that he was engaged in this exercise until he was found as above stated.

The cause of the act can be attributed to only one source. Mr. Alford has been a very sick man for some time, but with the indomitable pluck and vital energy which was characteristic of him, he has attended to business affairs as usual. About four years ago Mr. Alford suffered a very serious spell of sickness. His sufferings at that time greatly reduced his physical vigor. As soon as he was able to travel he went to Battle Creek, Mich., and spent some time there. His health was gradually restored and he came home greatly improved. About Feb. 1st of this year he again began to fail and the decline has been quite rapid since that time. A debilitated him, and although he attempted to attend to business affairs the strain was too great to be borne and at times he was very despondent about

DES MOINES, March 30.—The approsenate manifest a disposition to give what is asked. This has, indeed, been the attitude of the entire legislature from the beginning of the session. Two years ago an "economy legislature" cut down salaries and everything else that could be reached; this year the pendulum has swung the other way and liberhave been agreed to by both committees, and will without much doubt pass the house.

Obituary.

Deceased was born March 8, 1838, at Hope, Maine. There he received a common school education. He prepared for college at Kent's Hill seminary and later entered Union college at Schenectady, N. Y., after which he followed the profession of school teaching for a time. He was engaged in this work in Texas before the war.

His Brilliant Military Career.

Mr. Alford was at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., when the war of 1861-'65 commenced. He went to Albany, N. Y., and enlisted as a private in Company A, Sixteenth regiment, New York volunteers, in May, 1861. About two weeks afterwards, while in camp near Albany, he was taken sick with the measles, but went with his regiment to Washington, D. C., a few days afterwards, though hardly able to do so at the time. He was in the Army of the Potomac in 1861, and was in the first battle of Bull Run July 21, 1861, and also in a few small skirmishes in the summer and fall of that year. About January 1, 1862, he was detailed for the signal corps service, and went into the camp of instruction in Georgetown, D. C., where he remained during that winter. In April, 1862, he was sent with a detachment of the signal corps to join General Butler at Ship Island, to organize a branch of the corps in that department. He was at New Orleans and stayed there until June, 1862, when he received a commission from the governor of Maine as first lieutenant, Company H, Eighth regi- ment of Maine volunteers, then at Beau- fort, S. C. He joined that regiment in July and was mustered in as first lieutenant of the regiment on July 22, 1862.

He was in the expedition to and the capture of Jacksonville, Fla., in February, 1863. About the time of leaving there, in March, 1863, he was taken sick with pleuro pneumonia, and was in the hospital until June, 1863, when he rejoined the regiment. In August, 1863, he was sent in command of a company of eighty men to hold Jenkin's Island, S. C., and was there for a month, losing over half of his men from active service from fever.

Mr. Alford was judge advocate at Beaufort and Hilton Head, S. C., the most of the time during the fall and winter of 1863 and 1864. In March, 1864, he was appointed upon the staff of General Vorles, commanding a division in the Tenth army corps. A short time afterwards he joined the Army of the James in Virginia, with the division. He was present at the battle of Drury's Bluff, and was severely injured by a

In addition, the senate committee has cut the board of control request for $403,174.93 to $374,983.93.

The normal school movement may be safely regarded as killed for this session. The bill to establish one school passed the house and was reported by the senate committee for passage. A minority report recommended it to be indefinitely postponed. The bill has been down at the bottom of the calendar with little chance of consideration. Senator Crossley, at the instance of the state normal people, asked that it be taken up in order that a vote might be secured on it. There was objection by Senator Garst, and in the absence of unanimous consent it was impossible to get the bill up without suspending the rules. This required a two thirds vote. Senator Crossley, in the face of certain defeat, bravely made his motion, and spoke briefly in its favor. When he was done Senator Healy made a one-minute speech against the motion.
