FORMER STATE SENATOR CALLED

CAPTAIN A. M. WHALEY OF APLINGTON DIED TODAY.

Was Honored in Business, Church and Political Circles.

After an illness of nearly two years' duration, which had necessitated several operations and caused prolonged pain and suffering, Captain A. M. Whaley, one of the pioneer residents of Aplington, a leading banker and a man prominent in business, political, church and lodge circles, passed away Sunday night at 10 o'clock at the Presbyterian hospital, where he had been ill since June 12. The cause of his death was cancer of the bladder with complications.

For two weeks, he had been failing steadily and during the past few days his condition had been critical. Throughout his long illness, whenever his health permitted, friends came from Aplington to pay him frequent visits while his son, Wayne S. Whaley, who has made his home here for several years, visited him every day. He was patient and uncomplaining at all times and met death with Christian fortitude. A number of the relatives were at his side when the end came last night.

Captain in Civil War.

Alvin M. Whaley was born in Wyoming county, N. Y., on May 14, 1838. He was a pupil in the common schools until the age of 15 when he entered Middlebury academy in Wyoming county, continuing there, except during the winters when he taught, until 1861, when the breaking out of the rebellion put an end to peaceful pursuits.

Patriotic and loyal, he quickly enlisted for service and, although without experience, was elected by his comrades. He served as a private in the Seventeenth N. Y. volunteers, one of the first companies to enlist. Going to the front, he was with the Army of

MARX BROTHERS & COMPANY IN "FUS"

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Parkersburg, having been honored as a Knight Templar and as a member of the Mystic Shrine. He was also a member of the John Braden G. A. R. post of Parkersburg.

Surviving Relatives.

Mr. Whaley was married on Oct. 17, 1871, to Jane Hull Smith, daughter of George B. Smith, one of the leading early residents of Aplington. She passed away a year ago last July. Four sons are left to mourn their father's death. These are C. G., who is in business at Elberon; Holsa H., who is married and engaged in the land business at Pine Bluffs, Wyo.; George A., married and manager of the creamery at Seneca, Wis.; and Wayne S., employed in the Commercial bank, Waterloo. A brother, Albert, and two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Swan and Mrs. Roselle Faunce, reside at North Collins, N. Y. Mrs. J. P. Burnham of Aplington is a sister-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Groat of Waterloo are cousins. The late Henry W. Austin of Waterloo was a brother-in-law. There are also four grandchildren, living in Austinville.

Funeral on Wednesday.

The body will be taken to Aplington for burial and the services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Presbyterian church, in which he was prominent so long. Rev. L. M. Heebe of Excelsior Springs, Mo., his old pastor, will come to take charge of the funeral.

WOOD CHOPPER DEAD IN CABIN

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 30.—Sam Kramer, a wood chopper, living with Phil Everett in a log cabin in the timber five miles north of Buffalo, Ia., was found dead on the floor of his home last night. Everett, who was found in a field nearby, is in jail pending an investigation.

Conditions point to murder as Kramer's body was badly mutilated by the discharge of a shotgun, which took him the place Saturday night claims he heard some men quarreling and heard a shot fired. Kramer and Everett are Whaley, who has made his home here for several years, visited him every day. He was patient and uncomplaining at all times and met death with Christian fortitude. A number of the relatives were at his side when the end came last night.

Captain in Civil War.

Alvin M. Whaley was born in Wyoming county, N. Y., on May 14, 1838. He was a pupil in the common schools until the age of 15 when he entered Middlebury academy in Wyoming county, continuing there, except during the winters when he taught, until 1861, when the breaking out of the rebellion put an end to peaceful pursuits.

Patriotic and loyal, he quickly enlisted for service and, although without experience, was elected by his companions, second lieutenant of Company K, Seventeenth N. Y. volunteers, one of the first companies to enlist. Going to the front, he was with the Army of the Potomac, where, on account of bravery and merit, he was successively advanced to the rank of first lieutenant and then captain.

Had Remarkable Recovery.

At Alexandria, while leading his men in an assault on the rebel works, he was struck in the head by a musket ball and it was supposed by all that this was the end of his brilliant career. Although the skull was fractured, prompt surgical skill saved his life, but so remarkable was his recovery that the case was reported at length in "The Medical and Surgical History of the Rebellion" and pieces of his skull are still preserved in the museum at Washington. Since that accident, he had always worn a silver plate over his brain.

After being discharged from the hospital at Georgetown, he was mustered out, but almost immediately re-entered the service, receiving a commission as quartermaster and serving as assistant quartermaster general. Being ordered to Alabama, he went to Vicksburg and was with Sherman on his raid and later in his famous march to the sea. Soon afterward, the war ended and he returned home to engage in farming in his native county in New York.

An Iowa Pioneer.

In 1869, he came to Iowa, where he settled at Aplington, Butler county, where he rapidly became one of the wealthy men of the community through his extensive grain, lumber and stock operations, and later because of his banking interests as president of the Exchange bank for many years.

Prominent in Politics.

Capt. Whaley was a leading republican all his life and for many years, was well known and honored in the councils of his party. In 1877, he was elected to represent Butler county in the Iowa legislature and was returned to the same office in 1879. On the death of Senator W. B. Gaylord, he was chosen to represent the Forty-sixth senatorial district, which included Butler, Floyd and Mitchell counties, for the unexpired term, being also re-elected for the second term. He again re-entered politics when on the election of President McKinley, he was made postmaster at Aplington, an office which he held until a few years ago.

Church and Lodge Connections.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church of Aplington and for over 20 years was an elder in the church, being sent to represent the church in the Presbytery and being sent in 1898 to the general assembly as representative of the Waterloo Presbytery. In Sunday school and in the Christian Endeavor he was also interested and a loyal supporter of the church interests.

at the Presbyterian church, in which he was prominent so long. Rev. L. M. Beebe of Excelsior Springs, Mo., his old pastor, will come to take charge of the funeral.

WOOD CHOPPER DEAD IN CABIN

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 30.—Sam Kramer, a wood chopper, living with Phil Everett in a log cabin in the timber five miles north of Buffalo, Ia., was found dead on the floor of his home last night. Everett, who was found in a field nearby, is in jail pending an investigation.

Conditions point to murder as Kramer's body was badly mutilated by the discharge of a shotgun, which took off part of his head. A farmer passing the place Saturday night claims he heard some men quarrelling and heard a shot fired. Kramer and Everett are said to have been seen together at Blue Grass late Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. A. F. Hoenig, who has been ill for several weeks, has so far recovered as to permit of her visiting downtown Saturday.

A license to wed has been issued to Lawrence Freeland, Cedar Rapids, 32, and Josephine Ashcroft, 29, Seymour.

Mrs. Ruel E. Dana and Mrs. Levi D. Wait of Armour, S. D., arrived Saturday in Waterloo, the former to visit at the home of her brother, T. J. Moore, and family, 851 Fourth street west, and the latter to visit relatives in Janesville.

Business, professional men and all others are urged to attend the smoker at 8 o'clock this evening in the Waterloo club rooms. This event is under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and for President Mudge and other officials of the Rock Island railway.

Show how live a town this is by turning out in large numbers to the smoker in the Waterloo club rooms tonight to give a greeting to President Mudge and other officials of the Rock Island railway. The Chamber of Commerce has the matter in charge.

HYDE'S ATTORNEY MAKES OBJECTION

Kansas City, Oct. 30.—Over the customary objection of attorneys for the defense in the second murder trial of Dr. B. C. Hyde, 50 veniremen, whose names had been drawn from the regular jury wheel, appeared in Judge Porterfield's court for examination. Dr. Hyde's attorney maintained the names were illegally drawn.

Six unexamined veniremen of the panel, called last Saturday, were also present. Eleven talesmen had been selected before the opening of court today. Attorneys for both sides are doubtful if a jury can be obtained this week, it being necessary to select 36 more talesmen before the exercising of peremptory challenges will begin.

RICHESON INQUIRY STILL ON.

Boston, Oct. 30.—The grand jury today began its third day of investigation into the charges against Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson for the alleged poisoning of Miss Avis Linnell. It is uncertain when the inquiry will be concluded.

Staff of the State Historical Society of Iowa is in Waterloo on business.

A. M. Whaley of Aplington, who has been in the Presbyterian hospital for several months, has so far improved that he was able to be down town one day and will probably be able to leave the hospital soon. Mr. Whaley was a leading banker at Aplington until ill health compelled him to give up active work. He is also a former postmaster of Aplington. His son, Wayne Whaley, who is a graduate of East Waterloo high school, is now employed in the Commercial National bank.

Prof. Hugh G. VanPelt yesterday received a message from P. S. Eustis, general passenger agent of the Burlington lines, that he was ready to commence on a schedule for a special dairy train which will be run for two weeks. The success of the dairy trains this winter has been far beyond expectations and another season the dairy officials of the state association will be swamped with requests for time. In the two weeks' time the Milwaukee special was run it is estimated that in excess of 40,000 people heard the lectures.

Doubtless many persons in Waterloo who were privileged to meet Evangelist and Mrs. W. H. Bromley of Kentucky, who stopped off in Waterloo during the Sunday meetings on this way to points in South Dakota, where the Rev. Mr. Bromley was to conduct tabernacle meetings, will be interested in learning that they are meeting with great success. At Milbank, a series of meetings has just closed with 330 conversions. This evangelist follows very much along the same line as Mr. Sunday does. He publishes a daily evangelist paper devoted to the meetings, which is very interesting. They soon begin a campaign in Huron, S. D.

COFFEE AND SUGAR PRICES TAKE DROP

Refined Sugar Dropped Ten Points While Sharp Declines Were in Evidence in Coffee Market.

[By Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 30.—There was a considerable drop today in the prices of sugar and coffee.

In the sugar market refined was marked down 10 points to the basis of 6.60c per pound for standard granulated which some refiners not long ago were quoting at 7.50. No actual change was reported in the raw material but the market was weak and unsettled.

Sharp declines were also in evidence in the local coffee market with the grade of spot coffee known as Rio 7's quoted at 15 3-8 comparing with Saturday's quotation of 15 5-8 and the recent high record of 16c. Futures showed even greater weakness.

Base Was Only 20 Feet Instead of 30 as Provided in Plans.

[By Associated Press]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Austin, Pa., dam was only twenty feet thick at the base instead of thirty as provided in the original plans and no trace of a cut off wall or "key" was found in his recent investigation at the scene of the recent disaster, by Alexander R. McKim, New York inspector of dams, according to a statement issued today by the State Conservation Commission.

Portions of the dam as constructed differed as widely from the original plans that from the outset it was doomed to failure, says the statement.

Rome, Oct. 30.—Comments approaching consistory, when teen cardinals, including three the United States will be created to emphasize the great chance of Pope Pius' decision to America four representatives Sacred College. By some it is ed that the way is being paved the advent of an American Pope.

It is pointed out that the body of Catholics in the world be found in the United States possessions, the Philippine, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Guam only are the Catholic of America prior in number but in deep feeling, piety, loyalty to the Holy and in wealth and generosity. Irish-American Pope is suggested the day when it shall be considered longer necessary for the papacy held by an Italian.

The American college faculty students are rejoicing especially the elevation of Archbishop Fulton New York, and Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, as they are alumni college. The former was one original thirteen students when college was founded by Pope Pius. The objections made by some Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college, being an American, cannot be appointed apostolic delegate and in London are confuted by the fact the present Pope for the first time made a departure from the routine in naming Mgr. Fruehwirth as papal vicar to Munich, which arrangement working well. Moreover Mgr. Fruehwirth is described as a Romanist backbone.

It is reported that Mgr. Sanpieri, who accompanied Cardinal Ceccozzo Vannutelli to America on the occasion of the eucharistic congress at Montreal and is private chaplain to the Pope, will be entrusted to take the red hat to Bishop O'Connell.

ent thought and action, one whose integrity and honor were universally respected and honored by his fellow men. His work as a legislator was especially commendable and won for him the highest praise. The house of representatives of the Twenty-sixth General Assembly, at the time of the special session held during the winter and spring of 1897, appointed a committee, of which Hon. W. G. Ray of Poweshiek county was chairman, to draft resolutions relative to the death of Mr. Wood. The resolutions, which were unanimously adopted March 3, 1897, by a rising vote, were as follows:

"Whereas, an all-wise Providence has removed by death the Hon. A. J. Wood, a worthy member of this house, from Poweshiek county, in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth General Assemblies; therefore, be it,

"Resolved, By the House of Representatives, that in his death Iowa mourns the loss of an upright citizen of incorruptible character and pure manhood, one whose sympathies were always with the toiling masses, whose record as a legislator is without stain, and whose life is reflected as a rich heritage in the best laws of the state, which in honoring him exalted true citizenship.

"Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and that these resolutions be spread on the House Journal, and a copy forwarded to the widow by the clerk of this house.

"W. G. RAY.

J. J. LOWRY.

"C. C. DOWELL."

Mr. Wood was a leading member of the A. F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F. fraternities and an active member of the Presbyterian church. His wife, whom he married in 1862, and who now survives him, was Fadilla I. Carson, of Iowa City. To them were born two daughters, Cora Bell and Anna Margaret. Mr. Wood was a good example of a self made man who raised himself from poverty to competence and influence by his own unaided exertions. He was one of the best political managers in the state, one of the most successful business men and a man of integrity and uprightness, whose character may well be emulated by young men.

WHALEY, ALVIN M., former senator from Butler county, was born in Wyoming county, New York, May 14, 1838. As a child he was a pupil in the common or district schools of his native county until at the age of fifteen he became a student in Middlebury Academy, in Wyoming county. He was also a teacher in the schools during five successive winters, earning the means thereby to complete his scholastic training.

While thus engaged in peaceful pursuits, with no harder battles before him than those incident to the teaching of a school of learning, came the call of a terrible and bloody conflict. The War of the Rebellion came upon a startled people. Always prompt and patriotic, he gave a quick and decided response to that call. With several of his classmates he was among the first to volunteer for the defense of the Union. Having been accepted as a private in Company K, Seventeenth regiment, New York Volunteer Infantry, though lacking experience, he was elected by his comrades second lieutenant of the company, and went immediately to the front. From this on he participated in all the campaigns of the army of the Potomac, rejoicing in its victories and never disheartened by its misfortunes. For bravery and meritorious conduct he was successively and rapidly promoted to first lieutenant and then captain.

While during the fierce and bloody battle of Fredericksburg, Capt. Whaley was leading his men in an assault upon the rebel works, he was struck in the head by a musket ball, and it was supposed by all his career was then to end and his was to be another of the many thousands of lives ended on the battle field that their country might live. His skull was fractured and several large pieces were taken from the wound. Prompt and skillful medical aid saved his life, much to the surprise and gratification of his comrades and friends. The nature of his wound, his treatment and recovery, were so remarkable, that his case was reported at length and published in full in the Medical and Surgical History of the War of the Rebellion, while portions of his fractured skull are now in the Medical Museum at Washington. As a friend remarked at the time: "The rebs got away with a portion of the Captain's head, but they left the brains all there," and active ones they always have been and are now. After being discharged from the hospital at Georgetown he went home on a furlough. Returning to Washington, he was discharged with his regiment and mustered out at New York. The regiment veteranized, and he was commissioned quartermaster and served as assistant quartermaster general; was ordered to Alabama, from there to Vicksburg; was in Sherman's Meridian raid; went via Decatur and Huntsville to Atlanta, where they joined Sherman. In the battle of Jonesboro nearly one-half of his regiment was killed, including its gallant Colonel Grover. When they reached Savannah he resigned, and returning home engaged in farming in his native county. He came to Iowa in 1869, settling at Aplington in Butler county, where he now resides.

He is a republican in politics, and has been repeatedly honored by his party. In 1877 he was elected to represent Butler county in the state legislature, and re-elected in 1879. He served his constituents so faithfully while in the house, that upon the death of Senator W. B. Gaylord he was elected to fill the vacancy as senator from the Forty-sixth senatorial district, which included Butler, Floyd and Mitchell counties. At the expiration of the term he was re-elected, serving out the second term with credit to himself and honor to the friends who elected him. After the election of President McKinley he was appointed postmaster at Aplington, which position he holds at the present time. His oldest son, C. G., is his assistant. Mr. Whaley has been, and is, a useful man in social and religious circles, although positive in his convictions, he is yet broad-minded enough to concede the rights of others, thus establishing himself firmly in the hearts of his friends, and it has frequently been said that those who know him best love him most. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, having attained to the honor of the Knights-Templar degree, and the Mystic Shrine. His best work is done in connection with the church. As an elder in the Presbyterian church he has repeatedly represented that body in presbety, and in 1898 he was a delegate to the General Assembly from Waterloo Presbety. For years he has served as superintendent of the Sabbath School, and is an active member of the Y. P. S. C. E.

He was married October 17, 1871, to Miss Jane H. Smith, daughter of George B. Smith, who was one of the prominent early settlers of Butler county. They have four boys: C. G., G. A., H. H. and Wayne S. For many years Mr. Whaley was actively engaged in business, a large portion of the time as dealer in lumber and grain, and later in the banking business, but of late years had retired until the duties of postmaster called him into active service again.

Public spirited and always interested in the welfare of those about him, he well deserves a place among the Progressive Men of Iowa.

WAITE, JOHN LEMAN, editor of the Burlington Hawk-Eye and postmaster of Burlington, is known throughout Iowa as one of the leaders in the profession of journalism and for the high standard he has set and maintained for the editorial management of the Hawk-Eye, with which he has been connected a Representative district in itself and numbers 60.

The present Senatorial district is numbered 46, and embraces the counties of Butler, Floyd and Mitchell. As above stated, W. P. Gaylord was elected in 1879, but died not long after his election. To fill the vacancy so occasioned, Hon. A. M. Whaley, of Aplington, was elected Senator, and still holds that position.

Honorable Alvin Manley Whaley came to Aplington in 1869. Since his advent into public life as a soldier in the Union army, several sketches, together with incidents of his life, have been published in the press, from which we glean the following: He was born in Wyoming county, New York, on the 14th of May, 1838. He received the first rudiments of an education in the district school, and at an early day began to prepare for college. He studied languages for four years. When seventeen years of age he commenced teaching, and continued that in winter seasons. In 1860 he entered Middlebury Academy, at Wyoming. Upon the breaking out of the rebellion in April, 1861, he, with ten other classmates, responded to the first call for troops. A company was formed in Wyoming county, and he was mustered in as second lieutenant. This was the first company that left Wyoming county. It was joined to the 17th regiment New York volunteers and designated as Company K. In about six months he was promoted to first lieutenant, and a few months later to captain. After doing guard duty a while at Washington, the regiment was sent to Alexandria, where they relieved the Ellsworth Guards, and later took part in the Peninsular campaign.

He was dangerously wounded at the battle of Fredericksburg. The Medical and Surgical History of the Rebellion gives this as one of the wonderful cases of the war. On page 283, Vol. III., it says:

"Captain Alvin M. Whaley, Company K, 17th New York volunteers, wounded at the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862, by a musket ball which fractured the left parietal bone. He walked with some assistance to the hospital of the 3d corps, quite a distance. His voice became thick and had an unnatural hesitancy and slowness. The middle and ring finger of the right hand were paralyzed, but the motion and sensibility in first and fourth fingers were only slightly impaired. His mental faculties were clear. He complained of a slight headache, and his pulse was slow and full. The trophine was applied by Assistant Surgeon Tice, and a disc of bone and several fragments were removed, one of which was three-quarters of an inch in diameter. During the operation blood flowed profusely. One large fragment of the bone, evidently from the inner table, lay exactly beneath, but was too large to be extracted from the orifice. The dura mater was found to be uninjured. The power of articulation returned immediately after the operation, and the numbness of the fingers became less marked. On January 2, 1862, the numbness of the fingers had entirely disappeared, and the wound was slowly healing. The patient was mustered out with his regiment. His recovery was owing to a strong constitution and an invincible determination."

After being discharged from the hospital at Georgetown, he went home on a furlough. He returned to Washington, and was discharged with the regiment and mustered out at New York.

The regiment veteranized, and he was commissioned Quartermaster General; was ordered to Alabama, from there to Vicksburg; was in Sherman's Meridian raid; went via Decatur and Huntsville to Atlanta, where they joined Sherman. In the battle of Jonesboro nearly one-half of his regiment was killed, including its gallant Col. Grower; went to Savannah, where he resigned. After his return home he visited the oil regions of Pennsylvania; stopped a few months; then engaged in farming in his native county. In 1869 he came to Aplington. He bought real estate in the town of Monroe. In 1870, he engaged with S. L. Kemmerer, selling agricultural implements and machinery. In 1872 he bought out a drug store, which he run about one year; then he sold that and opened a collection office. In 1874 he went to Independence, where he bought an elevator, and dealt in grain one and one-half years; then traded with S. L. Kemmerer for an elevator and lumber yard in Aplington and returned. He has since made this his home, dealing in grain, flax and lumber. He is also engaged in the banking business, having opened a bank in 1878.

He is a republican in politics; elected to represent Butler county in the State Legislature, in 1877, and re-elected in 1879. He was chairman of the military committee both terms, and also filled important positions on other committees. He was elected Senator from the 46th Senatorial district, which included Butler, Floyd and Mitchell counties, in 1880, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of W. B. Gaylord. He was also chairman of the military committee in the Senate.

He has served his constituents faithfully—has performed his duties in such a manner as to reflect great credit upon the judgment of his friends who elected him and honor upon himself. His re-election and promotion was certainly a strong endorsement of his course.

In 1871 he married Miss Jane H., daughter of George B. Smith, Esq. They have four boys—Grant, George A., Halsa H. and ———

COUNTY OFFICIALS.

A history of Butler county would, indeed, be incomplete without a record of the county officials, who have served since its organization. There has been much difficulty connected with obtaining material for biographical sketches of those who have died or moved from the county since their official services were performed. Where the mention of men, who, in their time, were prominent, is short, it is because of the meagre material to be secured. The following list, embraces a complete list of the various officers, from 1854 to 1882, inclusive. The most fitting office to commence with is that of

COUNTY JUDGE.

This office, in early days, was the most important of the county, embracing the work of various officers of the present day. It is treated at length under the head of county and circuit courts, in the judicial chapter.

The first county judge was John Palmer, who was elected in 1854, and held for a term of one year.

Committee.

Adopted April 10, 1913.

HON. ALVIN M. WHALEY.

MR. SPEAKER—Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in honor of Alvin Manley Whaley, a former member of this body, respectfully submit the following:

Alvin Manley Whaley was born in Wyoming county, New York, May 14, 1838. He was a pupil in the common schools until the age of fifteen when he entered Middlebury academy in Wyoming county, continuing there, except during the winters he taught, until 1861, when the breaking out of the rebellion put an end to peaceful pursuits.

Patriotic and loyal, he quickly enlisted for service and, although without experience, was elected by his companions, second lieutenant of Company K, Seventeenth N. Y. volunteers, one of the first companies to enlist. Going to the front, he was with the army of the Potomac, where, on account of bravery and merit, he was successively advanced to the rank of first lieutenant and then captain.

At Fredricksburg, while leading his men in an assault on the rebel works, he was struck on the head by a musket ball and it was supposed by all that this was the end of his brilliant career. Although the skull was fractured, prompt surgical skill saved his life, but so remarkable was his recovery that the case was reported at length in "The Medical and Surgical History of the Rebellion" and pieces of his skull are still preserved in the museum at Washington. Since that accident, he had always worn a silver plate over his brain.

After being discharged from the hospital at Georgetown, he was mustered out, but almost immediately re-entered the service, receiving a commission as quarter master and serving as assistant quarter master general. Being ordered to Alabama, he went to Vicksburg and was with Sherman on his raid and later in his famous march to the sea. Soon afterwards, the war ended and he returned to engage in farming in his native county in New York.

In 1869, he came to Iowa, where he settled at Aplington, Butler county, where he rapidly became one of the wealthy men of the community through his extensive grain, lumber and stock operations, and later because of his banking interests as president of the Exchange bank for many years.

Capt. Whaley was a leading republican all his life and for many years was well known and honored in the councils of his party. In 1877, he was elected to represent Butler county in the Iowa legislature and was returned to the same office in 1879. On the death of Senator W. B. Gaylord, he was chosen to represent the forty-sixth senatorial district, which included Butler, Floyd and Mitchell counties, for the unexpired term, being also re-elected for the second term.

He was chairman of the committee on military affairs of the Senate and also chairman of the Senate committee which selected Marshalltown, Iowa, as the location for the Iowa soldiers' home.

He again re-entered politics when on the election of President McKinley, he was made postmaster at Aplington, an office which he held until a few years ago.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church of Aplington and for over twenty years was an elder in the church, being sent to represent the church in the Presbytery and being sent in 1898 to the general assembly as representative of the Waterloo Presbytery.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Parkersburg, having been honored as a Knight Templar and as a member of the Mystic Shrine. He was also a member of the John Bradley G. A. R. post at Parkersburg.

Mr. Whaley was married on October 17, 1871, to Jane Hull Smith, daughter of George B. Smith, one of the oldest leading residents of Aplington. She passed away a year ago last July. Four sons are left to mourn their father's death.

Resolved, That in the death of this noble man the state has lost a worthy citizen, soldier and statesman and the House and Senate a loved and honored member, and be it further

Resolved, That these sentiments be entered upon the House Journal and a copy be sent to the bereaved family of the deceased.

January 8, 1914. He removed with his parents to a farm in Carroll county, Illinois, in 1856. Here he grew to manhood, obtaining his education at the Mt. Carroll seminary and the Mt. Carroll high school. He taught school for a year and then began the study of medicine in the medical department of the University of Michigan, graduating therefrom in March, 1873. He engaged in the practice of his profession at Lyndon, Illinois, for six years. He removed to Winneshiek county in 1880 and continued there in the practice of medicine and surgery, associating in later years with his son, Dr. M. D. Jewell. He served as coroner of Winneshiek county from 1899 to 1903 and was a member of the United States pension board from 1897 until his death. He was elected representative to the Thirty-second General Assembly in 1906 and served through the Thirty-second, Thirty-second Extra and Thirty-third General Assemblies. In 1910 he was chosen state senator and represented the Winneshiek-Howard district in the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth General Assemblies.

LEONARD BROWN was born in Syracuse, Indiana, July 4, 1837; he died at Chicago, August 24, 1914. He attended the common schools of Syracuse until thirteen years of age and then worked for three years in a blacksmith shop. He removed to Des Moines in 1853 and attended Des Moines academy for one year. The next year he went to Burlington where he remained for four years as student and tutor in mathematics in a university. Returning to Des Moines, he associated with Rev. John A. Nash in establishing Forest Home Seminary in 1860. In 1866-7 he was superintendent of schools in Des Moines and Polk county and in 1875-6 professor of language and literature in Humboldt College. During the Civil war he enlisted in Company F, Forty-seventh Iowa Volunteer Infantry and served with his regiment the one hundred days of their enlistment. He spent much time on the lecture platform, speaking on education and political subjects, and contributed much to campaign literature. He was the author of several books and pamphlets, among them being Poems of the Prairies; Our Own Columbia; Popular Perils; Iowa, the Promised of the Prophets; and the Rights of Labor.

ALVIN MANLEY WHALEY was born in Wyoming county, New York, May 14, 1838; he died at his home in Aplington, Iowa, October 29, 1911. He began his education in the common schools of Wyoming county and at fifteen years of age entered Middlebury Academy, teaching during the winters in order to pursue his course. In 1861 he enlisted in the Civil war in Company K, Seventeenth New York Volunteers, was elected Second Lieutenant and on account of meritorious service was soon promoted to Captain. He was severely wounded at Fredericksburg and mustered out upon his discharge from the hospital, but he immediately re-entered the service commissioned as quartermaster and serving as assistant quartermaster general. In this capacity he went to Alabama, Vicksburg and with Sherman on his march to the sea. After the close of the war he returned to Wyoming county, New York, and engaged in farming. He removed to Iowa in 1869, settling at Aplington, Butler county, and became one of the influential men of the community, interested in the grain, lumber and stock business and later was president of the Exchange Bank for many years. He was a Republican in politics and represented Butler county in the House of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth General Assemblies. He was also senator from the Forty-sixth senatorial district in the senate of the Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-first General Assemblies. He was appointed postmaster at Aplington by President McKinley and served for several years.

JOHN NOLLEN was born at Didam, Holland, April 4, 1828; he died at Pella, Iowa, May 31, 1914. He was educated at Arnhem, Holland, for the profession of teacher and taught in that place for several years. He emigrated to the United States in 1854, settling in the struggling Dutch colony of Pella, not then ten years old. He was assistant editor of the Pella Gazette, the first newspaper published in Marion county, from 1854 to 1859. In 1855 he entered the banking business and acted as cashier of the Pella bank from the time of its organization as the Pella Savings Institution until 1908, and continued his connection with it until his death. He was the author of a series of articles on currency reform that were considered authoritative. Mr. Nollen was a prominent factor in the welfare of Pella, serving in his early years as treasurer and for four consecutive terms as mayor. He was also president of the school board and member of the board of trustees of Central College. He was a man of broad culture, well versed in the sciences, modern languages and the classics, and was a skilled pianist and pipe organist.

MILLARD F. LE ROY was born in Manchester, Dearborn county, Indiana, January 16, 1850; he died at Hillsdale, near Chicago, Illinois, February 21, 1914. His parents removed in 1852 to Grundy county, Illinois, and his early education was received there and at Moore's Hill, Indiana, where he attended school from eleven to sixteen years of age. After a business course in Clark Seminary in Illinois, and a year at Manchester, Iowa, he returned to Moore's Hill and graduated from the Moore's Hill College with the degree of B. S. In 1869 he entered the State University of Iowa and graduated from the law department in 1870 with the degree of LL. B. He engaged with Charles L. Bronson in the practice of law at
