TURNER, IOWA GOVERNOR IN THE '30s, DIES

Courageous Leader In Depression

By George Mills

Dan Turner, courageous governor of Iowa during the turbulent depression years of 1931-1933, died Tuesday afternoon at Rosary Hospital in Corning. He was 92.

The venerable Iowa elder statesman, who lived in Corning all his life, entered the hospital late in March. Death was due to infirmities of age.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church at Corning. Burial will be at Walnut Grove Cemetery.

A "Fighter"

Mr. Turner was a Republican. But he was a fighter who made up his own mind during a tempestuous career that started during the depression of the 1890s.

He fought many of his battles for the cause of the farmer. Frequently, conservative Republicans were his opponents. He battled with President Herbert Hoover during the 1930s over the collapse of farm prices. He blistered Ezra Taft Benson, Dwight Eisenhower's secretary of agriculture, during the 1950s.

Nixon Gives No Hint of A Response

Leased Wire to The Register
WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon faced a severe international challenge Tuesday with North Korea's claim that it shot down a U.S. Navy electronics plane that allegedly penetrated its air space.

The loss of the reconnaissance plane with 31 persons aboard raised fears of another Pueblo-type incident. Senator Strom Thurmond (Rep., S.C.) called the unarmed EC-121 a "flying Pueblo."

Mr. Nixon discussed the problem at a series of meetings with his top advisers and with congressional leaders and plans to take it up at a previously scheduled meeting today of the National Security Council.

No Hint

There was no hint of how or whether the White House would respond to the North Koreans, who seized the intelligence ship Pueblo in January, 1968, in an area 200 miles from where search operations were launched for the EC-121 crew.

Late Tuesday American officials were reviewing possible options ranging all the way from diplomatic protest to a retaliatory attack on some North Korean military air field.

A massive search was in progress and the Pentagon reported Tuesday night that U.S. aircraft had spotted debris but no survivors.

Iowans Enjoy Warm Weather

Temperatures over Iowa warmed Tuesday as the early morning fog gradually lifted.

The change in sky cover helped warm southern sections into the 70s during the afternoon, while the remaining clouds in northern Iowa held the temperatures in the 60s.

High Tuesday here was 74.
 The five-day forecast, Thursday through Monday, predicts temperatures averaging 2 to 6 degrees above normal. Normal high is 61 for Des Moines. Normal low is 40.

Rain and slightly cooler temperatures are forecast for today through Thursday.

gressives" which finally broke dominance of the railroads over Iowa politics.

During his one term as governor occurred the so-called "cow war" in eastern Iowa.

Called Out Guard

That "war" consisted of an uprising of farmers who objected to mandatory testing of cattle for tuberculosis. Mr. Turner had to call out the National Guard, which converged on Tipton to guard veterinarians charged with the task of cattle-testing.

Also while he was governor, the worst agricultural depression of modern times deepened, as did the widespread business and industrial depression.

Governor Turner made two trips to Washington, where he warned President Hoover that something had to be done to halt the downward trend which engulfed banks by the hundreds, resulted in tens of thousands of Iowans losing their farms through foreclosure, brought corn down to 12 cents a bushel and saw unemployment grow to disastrous proportions.

Mr. Hoover, however, did not believe the situation was quite as bad as painted by the plain-speaking Iowa governor.

The election of 1932 followed and both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Turner went down to defeat in a Democratic landslide.

Democratic landslide.

Mr. Turner was a Corning merchant originally and an Adams County farmer with large holdings.

He was born Mar. 17, 1877, on a farm near Corning. In addition to farm chores, he clerked as a boy in a general store opened by his father in 1868.

Liberal Tendencies

The elder Turner was a Civil War veteran and a rockbound Republican, and was troubled at times by his son's apparently liberal tendencies.

"Don't stray too far from the bugle, boy," the father warned. In those days, most war veterans believed you had to be a Republican to be a loyal American.

The late governor's full name was Daniel Webster Turner, but he never was known as anything but Dan W. Turner.

Shortly after his graduation from the old Corning Academy in 1898, he enlisted in the Army for service in the Spanish-American war. He served in the Philippines.

His fighting qualities included expertness with his fists. He won the boxing championship of his division, although he suffered a broken nose that remained a facial characteristic the rest of his life.

He joined the Iowa National Guard when he came home and rose to the rank of major before resigning 10 years later.

Mr. Turner was elected state senator from the old Adams-Taylor district in 1903. He was 26 years old, the youngest Iowan ever elected to the Senate up to that time.

Constant Warfare

He served six years in the Senate as a member of the Progressives, who engaged in constant warfare with the "Standpatters" for control of the Republican Party.

the Republican Party.

While he was a senator, the Progressives forced the adoption of the direct primary for nominating major party candidates for office. The practice of railroads corrupting politicians and others with free passes also came to an end.

He was one of the finest public speakers of his time and he keynoted Republican state conventions three times.

During World War I he served as a Y.M.C.A. secretary in France. In World War II he worked with the War Production Board in Washington.

Agriculture was in deep trouble in 1928. Prices were low and many banks already had been forced to close beginning with the collapse that took place in rural areas beginning in 1920.

Left Convention

By 1928 Mr. Turner, the late Henry A. Wallace and other irked Midwestern farm leaders went to the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, Mo., to demand support for agricultural relief.

Mr. Wallace left that convention and became a Democrat.
He later was U.S. secretary of agriculture and vice-president
under Franklin Roosevelt.

Mr. Turner was one of four speakers at the Kansas City convention who demanded greater Republican recognition and support for the farmer. He helped draft a minority report setting out such a goal. The convention nominated Mr.
Hoover. Mr. Turner decided to stay with the party.

In 1930 he ran for the Republican nomination for governor. He won the nomination and was elected.

Mr. Turner came back in 1934 to win a bitter battle for the Republican nomination for governor over Robert Colflesh of Des Moines, Clarence Knutson of Clear Lake and Wallace Short of Sioux City.

Mr. Turner campaigned against the sales tax that year. But the Democratic tide was still strong and Mr. Herring was re-elected by 74,000 votes.

Mr. Turner never ran for office again, although southwestern Iowa Republicans always felt that he could have been elected to Congress from the Seventh Congressional district had he wanted to become a candidate. Some Republicans who did not see eye-to-eye with him were just as glad that he did not run.

One mark of his independent thinking was his activity in behalf of Republican Eisenhower for president in the 1952 election and his backing for Democrat

IOWA CITY, IA. (AP)—Picketing classroom buildings to emphasize graduate assistants' demands was recommended Tuesday by the campus assistants union's president.

Graduate assistant John Schacht said picketing would emphasize assistants' dissatisfaction with the lack of response to the assistants' Apr. 9 petition to university President Howard Bowen.

The demands included higher pay and free tuition plus dependency allowances and bigger parts in planning and directing courses the assistants teach and a pay increase from $2,700 to $3,000.

Senate Votes for Loudspeakers

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Senate broke with its past Tuesday and agreed to installation of a public address system in the Senate chamber.

A resolution authorizing "a speech reinforcement system and auxiliary appurtenances" was approved by voice vote. For years there have been complaints about the difficulty of hearing Senate debates, but nothing has been done about it.

The estimated cost is $125,000.

Dan W. Turner of Corning, former Governor of Iowa and First Citizen of Adams County, died Tuesday afternoon at Rosary hospital in Corning.

In failing health for the past several months, Mr. Turner had been hospitalized for the past few weeks. Just last month, March 17th, he celebrated his 92nd birthday.

Funeral services will be Friday, April 18 at 2 p.m. from the First Presbyterian church in Corning, conducted by Rev. W. H. Sinning. Burial will be in Walnut Grove cemetery.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers contributions be sent to the Rosary Hospital in Corning.

He was born in Corning, Iowa on March 17, 1877, one of nine children. He was educated in the Corning schools and graduated from the Corning Academy.

Academy officials, on graduation day, said, "Dan, you just wore us out", an indication of his aggressiveness and of things to come.

Declining further education in the east, Dan moved into the area of a self-taught scholar. He read a great deal, pursued his interests with vigor and determination.

Declining further education in the east, Dan moved into the area of a self-taught scholar.
He read a great deal, pursued his interests with vigor and de-

He was married in 1900 to Alice Sample, who died in 1961. There were three children born to this marriage: Major Ned Turner, who died from an illness contracted in World War II. He is survived by a son, Tom, a professor of Interest in civic and government affairs always was a challenge to Dan. He was elected to the State Senate from the Adams-Taylor district at the age of 26 in 1901.

The following tribute to Mr.
Turner appeared in The Free Press on the occasion of his 92nd birthday last month:

He notes with pride the keynote speech he made at the old Coliseum in Des Moines on July 10, 1912 as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention.

"It was the only speech I ever committed to memory—
and the last one," he recollected.
"From then on, I used only a few notes and often no notes".

In that speech, Dan commented that "I am very much in favor of maintaining the two-party system.
It is really a fact that the United States is the only large country with such a system".

Excerpts from his keynote speech would be applicable today:

"For we are in the midst of a crisis. Conditions are confronting us different from any that have existed during the present generation. The crisis is actually here and must be met. Let us reason determine what is the wise course to pursue.

Dan was nominated and elected governor in 1936.

Events of his tenure in office were reflected in an article by W. D. Archer of Shenandoah, appearing in The Iowan magazine in September, 1938.

At this time the hazards of holding any political office and keeping it with a good record were multiplied by general economic conditions and by farm troubles which were brewing everywhere.

Dan Turner's unswerving position on all issues invited other difficulties.

"One was the so-called cow war, out of which came, Dan says, the most constructive thing I did while in office. The state legislature had previously passed a law calling for the vaccination of cows and destruction of diseased cattle.

"To purpose was to eliminate German tuberculosis from the

Adams NFO To Lincoln Meet

"Listening Affair" Conducted Saturday

The Adams county National Farmers Organization conducted their monthly meeting April 19 at the city hall in Corning.

Russell Hedingger of Brooks county president, was in charge of the meeting. Dave Fitzgerald, marketing area chief, gave a report on marketing activities.

On Saturday a large delegation of NFO members from Adams county attended the "Listening Meeting" in Lincoln, Neb., conducted by Sec. of Agriculture Clifford Hardin and other members of his staff.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hedingger, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walker, Gilbert Hedingger, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cox, Art Schwewer, Paul Lyman, Arnold Long, Stanley Ambrose, Ronald Long, Dave Fitzgerald, Gale Perkins and others.

A large percentage of the estimated 1,000 crowd attending the seven-hour session was made up of NFO members in the Lower half of Nebraska. Memorial Union

A mood that farmers were not getting their rightful share of an otherwise booming economy prevailed as the speaking program totaled more than 22 persons.

Hardin said he wanted farm, ranch and rural leaders to offer ideas and help in developing policies "aimed at building a prosperous and successful farm and ranch agriculture in a prosperous and thriving rural America."

One of the Department's projects attacked by the NFO was the recent lower of price supports. "This will cost agriculture approximately 300 million dollars soybeans and more on such crops," William Solihorst, Adams county NFO president, pointed out. "Farmers Soil Determination program" he said the program would work this way.

The farmers would vote on commodities each year and what level of support they wanted and would produce according to the program they voted. If they vote for 90 per cent support levels they will get only as much to meet the needs of the country.

If they vote for 80 per cent support levels they can produce more. If they vote for 70 per cent price support levels they can produce even more. And if they vote for 60 per cent support price levels they could have almost unlimited production.

The work worked out will, would greatly reduce interest costs and the farmers receive his price at the same place as every one else does.

The NFO said it stands for continuation of price support programs, loan programs, acreage payments, storage loans and the feed grant program unless it can be improved.

The future of this great country upon its agriculture is all work for a more prosperous agriculture which, in turn, will yield a much greater nation and only then can we all be bread eaters and say with America, the land of the free, the home of the brave.

Mrs. Anna Blong of York, Ark., celebrated her birthday on March 20. Mrs. Blong is still on the farm home she and her husband have decreased their following their marriage.

German intervention from the milk stream of cows. When had any Iowa farmers united and openly rebelled against the law? Gov. Turner acted to uphold it, sending state troops to quell the agitation.

Peace was restored but the farm action had unfortunate political implications for Turner, who lost the support of many farm friends. Today his pride in regard to his decision in the cow war is bolstered by the fact that every state has the same law he once enforced so dramatically.

"And after the cow war, a farm strike in Council Bluffs, Sioux City and other market centers took place. Milk trucks were overturned and livestock shipments halted and although the trading was ~~effected~~ ^{continued} under the auspices of the government inspectors, a chief Turner as responsible for the circumstances which led to this Farm Holiday movement.

"All these events contributed to a decline in Turner's popularity, especially with the old standpat Republican leaders of the state. Nevertheless, Dan fought to victory in the party primaries of 1922 and 1924 only to lose the gubernatorial elections to Democratic foes.

"Winning the Republican nomination in those two years involved some of the most extremely bitter political fights ever seen in Iowa and the ensuing elections were equally turbulent."

In the late 1930's Dan took an active part in the rise of the National Farmers Organization (NFO). He made many speeches, traveled thousands of miles on behalf of the cause and his "den" was the site of numerous strategy meetings.

The Iowan article continues:

"The vitality which Turner, now 79, has displayed in building the NFO within the framework of his principles has surprised most Iowans. Those who have heard him speak, the first of his vigorous and lucid speakers in

The battle in farmers' behalf has been a life-long occupation for Dan.

His concern dates back to his early days when he learned the problems first hand from his family's own farming interests and from his father's dealings in loans to farmers.

Down through the years, he kept a close eye on the family's farm operations in the Corning and Adams county area.

Dan served in the Spanish-American War as a member of the expeditionary forces in the Philippines.

During World War I he was a YMCA secretary in France and during World War II he worked with the War Production Board in Washington, D. C.

Heritage

Are we struggling to be worthy
As along life's road we go.
If we're having serious problems
There's a thing we all should know.

Our heritage is not a face,
We put on or off at will.
No amount of money bought it,
No amount, will keep it still.

What we are and what we can be,
Is an attitude of mind.
Share life's story with each other,
Leaving selfishness behind.

When you leave a heritage to others,
You are planting God's good seed.
It may help in their life struggle,
And fulfill your own deep need.

DANIEL WEBSTER TURNER

Daniel Webster Turner (1877-1969) was born in Corning, and spent most of his life here. After graduating from the Corning Academy, he worked with his father in the General Store and continued there for many years.

Daniel Webster Turner

In 1900 he married Alice Sample Hayworth. There were three children; Marjorie who married Don Witt. She worked as a Psychologist in the New York City schools for fifteen years before she returned to Corning; Edward Bates who married Rowena Hawley. He died in 1946 of a combination of diseases contracted while serving in China in the Army; and Thomas Sample who married Isabel Lambly. He taught Music and Harmony at the University of Iowa, Iowa City until he retired recently.

Dan was a peace loving man, but he took part in three wars. He was a combat person in the Spanish American war; he was in France with the YMCA; and he served as a "dollar a year man" in Washington, D.C. where he supervised the Prison production of rope.

He distinguished himself by serving a term as Governor of the State of Iowa in 1932-34. Among other things, he will be remembered as having the courage to see that our laws were enforced. When farmers in eastern Iowa protested at having their cattle tested for Tuberculosis, Dan called out the National Guard to see that the tests were made and the sick cattle destroyed.

His tenure as Governor of Iowa was cut short by the dramatic democratic landslide and launch of the New Deal by Franklin D. Roosevelt (plus enemies created by the Cow War).

He and most of his brothers were a part of the local "hose team" — originally pulling the hose cart to fires, but later mostly a form of racing.

I remember him as a story-teller for the family children, particularly his continued stories of a fictional "Billy Brazee".

He was a civic minded person and backed many local projects.

He was instrumental in helping the farmers organize the NFO. He never went to college, but he was a great student and admirer of Abraham Lincoln, and well educated in governmental affairs. He was an excellent public speaker, and gave many a Memorial Day Address.

In his later years he lived by himself until his daughter retired and returned to Corning. He was an active supporter of the Presbyterian Church. He took daily walks to maintain his health. Submitted by Almira Turner

FRANCIS AUSTIN TURNER

Francis Austin Turner, born March 24, 1900, was the son of Austin Beecher and Ella Shuler Turner Jr. He had an older brother, Theodore, who died when he was two years old. Francis attended Corning schools and Kiskiminitas Spring School in Pennsylvania. He graduated from Grinnell College in 1921 and was the youngest student to graduate up to that time. He returned home to join the business operated by his father and Dan Turner.

LaNor and Francis A. Turner

In 1924 he was married to LaNor Holmes (born January 11, 1901) of Keota, Iowa. They met while attending Grinnell. LaNor graduated Phi Beta Kappa and taught school one year in Wapello before her marriage. To this union a daughter, Sarah Jane and a son, Austin Beecher, were born. The family lived most of their married life in the home they built at 1202 Grove Avenue. In their latter years the couple lived in the carriage house at Happy Hollow Country Club (Edgewood). LaNor designed the plans for the extensive remodeling of the house into their unique home.

Besides devotion to their daughter, son, grandchildren and friends, theirs was a life of service and concern for their community and state. While active in farm management and in management of one of southwest Iowa's oldest department stores, Francis took great interest in his community. He was a member of the original board of trustees of the Corning Municipal Utilities and served 20 years. He was on the City Council from 1928 to 1932 and spent 18 consecutive years on the Corning School Board. He initiated the formation and was president of the Adams County Weather Modification Association during a period of drought in this area. He was Adams County Savings Bond Chairman for 20 years until his death. During this time the country won several state awards. He was an active member of the Presbyterian church, Rotary International and the American Legion. He served in 1957 and 1959 as senator from Adams and Taylor counties in the Iowa State Senate.

LaNor was a learned student all of her life which led to her interest in educational and self-improvement projects. She was an officer of the Corning Public Library Board of Trustees for many years. Working in the Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs she was chairman of the Pan American Committee at the time the student exchange program began. She served as State Chairman of the Scholarship and Loan Committee of the Federation. She was a member of the board of the Iowa Children's Home Society in Des Moines, was active in the Corning Red Cross Blood Bank, was a member and president of P.E.O. Chapter CAV, the Corning Culture Club, and was active in Corning Departmental Clubs.

Francis lived for a little over three years following a heart attack at a University of Iowa football game. He died in Corning January 12, 1962.

LaNor lived to participate in the 100th Anniversary celebration for A.B. Turner and Son in October, 1968. She wrote the history of the store for the anniversary pamphlet, which served for future store histories. She died in Corning December 18, 1968. Submitted by Jo Ann G. Turner

FRANKLIN WILSON TURNER

"Frank" was born in Corning, Iowa, in 1916 to Theodore Baker Turner and Ida Jane Okey Turner. He was graduated from the Corning High School in 1933 and from the University of Iowa in 1937.

He worked as a Flight Dispatcher for American Airlines until he joined the Air Corps and served as a Flight Dispatcher in Egypt during the second World War. He married Elizabeth Ruppert of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. They had two sons and one daughter, John, Mark and Lesley.

After the war, he went to Rio de Janeiro and was a dispatcher for Braniff Airlines in Brazil, Lima, Peru and Dallas, Texas until he retired.

Currently they are living in Brazil and dreaming of building a home in Amacortes, Washington. Submitted by Almira Turner

JOHN HAROLD TURNER II

John Harold Turner II was born in Corning, Iowa in 1907 to Theodore Baker Turner and Ida Jane Okey Turner. He graduated from High School in Grinnell, Iowa in 1926 and from the University of Wyoming in 1931. He joined the United States Air Force and was a pilot until he was killed in a plane accident in December of 1940 testing blind flying equipment.

He married Mary Kathryn Budd from Big Piney, Wyoming. They had one daughter, Nan, who was two at the time of her father's death. Submitted by Almira Turner

STATE OF IOWA
Des Moines

Mr. Tabor was in partnership with his son, Jack, in a farming and cattle feeding business on a farm that has been in the family for one hundred years. Served as committeeman on the Agricultural Adjustment Administration seven years. Member of the Methodist Church, Farm Bureau, and American Legion.

Mr. Tabor, a Democrat, served in the Iowa House of Representatives in the Fifty-eighth, Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixtieth Extra sessions from Jackson County, and Senator from Jackson-Jones Counties during the Sixty-first session.

He passed away April 5, 1968. Surviving Mr. Tabor are his widow, Ella, and two sons, Jack Tabor of Baldwin, Iowa and Dr. James Tabor of Englewood, Colorado. Also surviving Mr. Tabor are two sisters, Mrs. Leon Gray of Martinville, Indiana and Mrs. Eloise Stewart of Preston, Iowa and one brother, Clifford Tabor, Baldwin, Iowa.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Senate of the Sixty-third General Assembly of Iowa: That in the passing of the Honorable Howard Tabor, the state has lost an honored citizen and a faithful and useful public servant, and the Senate by this resolution would express its appreciation of his service, and tender its sympathy to the members of his family.

Be It Further Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the Journal of the Senate and the Secretary of the Senate be directed to forward an enrolled copy to the family of the deceased.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

DANIEL W. TURNER

MR. PRESIDENT: Your committee, appointed to prepare a suitable resolution commemorating the life, character and public service of the late Governor Daniel W. Turner, begs leave to submit the following memorial:

Daniel Webster Turner was born March 17, 1877, on a farm near Corning, Adams County, Iowa. He died April 15, 1969, at Corning, Iowa, 92 years old.

Shortly after graduation from the old Corning Academy in 1898, he enlisted in the Army for service in the Spanish-American war. He served in the Philippines.

He joined the Iowa National Guard when he came home from the war and rose to the rank of major before resigning ten years later.

In 1903 he was elected State Senator from the old Adams-Taylor County district. He was 26 years old, the youngest Iowan ever elected to the Senate up to that time.

He served six years in the Senate as a member of the Progressives who engaged in constant warfare with "Standpatters" for control of the Republican Party. When he was a Senator, the Progressives forced the adoption of the direct primary for nominating major party candidates for office.

He was one of the finest public speakers of his time and he keynoted Republican state conventions three times.

During World War I he served as a Y.M.C.A. secretary in France. In World War II he worked with the War Production Board in Washington.

In 1930 he won the Republican nomination for Governor and was elected.

Mrs. Turner died in 1961. A son, Ned, died at 39 while serving with the armed forces in China during World War II. Surviving are a son, Prof. Thomas Turner of the University of Iowa at Iowa City; a daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Witt of Mount Kisco, New York, and six grandchildren.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Senate of the Sixty-third General Assembly of Iowa: That in the passing of Governor Daniel W. Turner, the State of Iowa has lost a valued and honored citizen and by this resolution attests its sincere sympathy to the family.

Be It Further Resolved: That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the Journal of the Senate and the Secretary of the Senate be directed to send an enrolled copy to his son and daughter.

Q.: What started the decline of live television drama?

A.: I think clearly it was "I Love Lucy". "I Love Lucy" was an excellent show with its generic type. It belonged in any program schedule; there was nothing against it. But the evil of "I Love Lucy" was that it started the trek to the West Coast. That meant that control of the program was taken away from the creative people and put back into the control of agencies. From this time on, television just started to go down hill.

Q.: Why did you deplore the move of TV to Hollywood?

A.: I think every astute observer recognized the profound danger to all responsible programming in a wholesale surrender of theater standards.

What made the golden age of television was the people who had come from the theater and who attacked the dramatic part of programming on the basis of theater standards, theater quality.

Of course the moment it went to Hollywood that disappeared; it became slick and it became safe, and the content became of very little importance. And this of course is the ad man's delight. This is exactly what he wants: Non-controversial. It wasn't trying to be literate or articulate. It was simply telling a cliché story enormously skillfully.

Q.: What about a program like "Playhouse 90", which carried on in Hollywood for a while with stage methods?

A.: I think the difficulty with "Playhouse 90" is that it was almost impossible to maintain a standard of hour and a half original dramas as frequently in a year as this. I think this is one of the things that very few people seem to recognize about the problem of producing dramatic programs on television.

Turner Dies; Governor of Iowa in 30s

CORNING (UPI)—Dan Turner, governor of Iowa during the "cow war" and a moving force behind the formation of the National Farmers Organization, died Tuesday at the age of 92.

Turner served only one term in the statehouse, in the early 1930s, and his loss of popularity was blamed in part on the "cow war." A state law was passed requiring the vaccination of all cattle and the destruction of diseased animals.

Farmers, suffering under the first blows of the depression, reacted with violence to the legislation and Turner had to call in troops to enforce it.

Though he ran for governor the next two elections after that, he lost both times.

In War

Turner was born in Corning in 1877 and attended public school and the Corning academy here. He served in the Spanish-American war as a member of the expeditionary forces in the Philippines and in World War I worked with the YMCA in France.

He served three terms as a state senator, elected first from Adams and Taylor counties in 1902 at the age of 26.

After his term as governor, Turner went back to Corning where he was a merchant and managed the family's farm holdings in the area.

In the 1950's he traveled thousands of miles throughout the United States, making speeches in favor of farmers organizing to raise the prices they were getting for their products. Eventually the NFO was formed, with national headquarters here.

In recent years, Turner's pride in his decision to call out troops to enforce state vaccination laws was reinforced by the fact every state in the union now has a similar regulation.

He also boasted that the only speech he ever memorized was the keynote address at the state Republican convention in 1912.

He met Democratic Sen. Eugene McCarthy last July 4 when McCarthy, then a candidate for his party's presidential nomination, campaigned in Corning.

In 1900 Turner married the former Alice Sample and the couple had three children. She died in 1981. A son, Maj. Ned Turner, died in 1946 of an illness contracted while serving in World War II.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Marjorie Witt, Corning, and a son, Dr. Tom Turner, professor of music at the University of Iowa.

Pope Going to Geneva For Labor Observer

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI announced Wednesday that he will go to Geneva in June to attend the 50th anniversary celebration of the International Labor Organization. The world's biggest association of Protestant churches, the World Council of Churches, said the Pope had sent it word he wanted to visit its headquarters in Geneva during his visit, but the Roman Catholic Pontiff made no mention of this in his announcement.

Pope Paul told his weekly general audience: "An official invitation has been sent to us to go to Geneva to take part in the foundation of the 50th anniversary celebration of the International Labor Organization, half of next June."

Judge Denies Abodeely Plea To Move Trial

A motion to have the abortion trial of Joseph Abodeely held in another county was overruled in Linn district court Tuesday.

Judge William Eads overruled the motion for a change of venue brought by attorneys for the 37-year-old Cedar Rapids business man. He is accused of aiding and abetting a convicted abortionist.

Eads pointed out that the defense gave the following as grounds that Abodeely could not receive a fair trial in Linn county or in the other four counties of the judicial district, Jones, Cedar, Johnson or Iowa: Considerable pre-trial publicity, the nature of the crime charged, the nature of the occupation of the defendant and his national origins.

No Prejudice

Since there was no allegation of prejudice of the judge, the ruling said, the case, if changed to a different jurisdiction, "must be awarded to the county in the district in which no objection exists."

Eads said there was no doubt that there was a great amount of publicity in the case, but that it has lessened and a "considerable period of time has elapsed" since the trial of the man Abodeely is accused of aiding.

Concerning testimony of friends of Abodeely who told about being aware of much publicity and comment, the judge said, the publicity "would thrust itself more readily into their consciousness... than a person who reads, hears or sees a news item relative to this case along with the other national, state and local news items."

Not Knowledgeable

On the point that Abodeely is well-known because he formerly owned a night club, the ruling said that in a "populous, metropolitan county such as Linn" it would be reasonable to assume there would be "numerous people not particularly knowledgeable" about the defendant or the case.

The judge also referred to two Linn county cases in the past.
