Mrs. Pauline
Rood Passed
On Wednesday

Many friends, especially older residents of Dubuque, were saddened by the news of the passing of Mrs. Pauline Rood at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Though Mrs. Rood had been frail for the actual illness was of short duration and the end came quietly.

Pauline Langworthy, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Rood, who was the fourth of four Langworthy pioneers, helped her father build the brick house erected at the corner of White and Bluff streets. Three years old, she was brought to Dubuque by her father, and in exception of a few years her life was spent in Dubuque.

Married in 1877.

During her youth, Mrs. Rood's spacious grounds included most a country estate of life and activity. She married George Rood Dec. 27, 1877, and with him she lived in Dubuque, Ill., to live. Mr. Rood in 1882 brought to Dubuque a singularly happy man, the young widow of a Dubuque and her father's baby daughter. Her daughter, Eleanor, a singularly happy man, she gave to the uttermost hearted care and devotion. Her daughter died in Dubuque and her father's hand her four children with tenderness and devotion to these four. She gave all her interest to her heart.

She was of a retiring nature, greatly for her friends, but nothing outside activities. At home, her loved one, her trinity to which her life was devoted with gracious and loving care. She found reward in her life and her heart.
