Fletcher smiled as she stepped off the plane at Sioux City with her son. They were greeted by his father and sister, Phyllis, after a seven-months absence from home.

There will be no homecoming celebration. "I don't think that's necessary," Mrs. Fletcher said. Their home was ravaged by the flooding Missouri. Herbie can help clean that up, she said.

What then? "I'll probably go back and finish school out," he said.

'Stop River in Hills, Ranges'

Thomas Speaks for Harrison Delegation

SIOUX CITY, AP — A Harrison county delegation told the Missouri river study committee Friday that it was unanimously agreed "the only place that we will ever stop Missouri river is by impounding our runoff from the hills and mountain ranges."

The spokesman for the group was A. L. Thomas. He said that the group was also agreed that the water impounding program should be closely affiliated with an overall soil conservation and planned use program.

Thomas added:

"We further ask that all agencies connected with this Missouri river basin program be instructed to proceed to continue this work at an accelerated rate and complete it at the earliest possible date.

"This does not mean to put in the dams and then stabilize the channel. It means that the overall plan should be put to work at once."

Gives Details

Here is Mrs. Whitman's account of what happened:

"We were following Jim's car. When he slowed down -we didn't know why- we slowed down too.

"We saw Jim get over as far as he could. The other car hit him broadside. They came together with a bang. There was a cloud of smoke like a fog. Then they parted and went off the road to each side."

The Dempsters had resided in Council Bluffs all their lives.

A graduate of Abraham Lincoln high school in 1947, Dempster was employed by Mrs. Whitman's husband at Whitman Standard Service, 421 East Broadway.

Another son, Jack, lives at 2625 Avenue D.

Committee Okays Post Office Bill

The bill authorizing a $1,900,000 post office for Council Bluffs was approved by the house public works committee Thursday in Washington, D. C.

The progress of the bill is being pushed by Rep. Ben F. Jensen of Exira, sponsor. The post office is now located temporarily at Moose auditorium and various other federal agencies are scattered throughout the city.

The old federal building, with the exception of one wing, was demolished last summer. Federal funds must be allocated before construction of a new building can begin.

Other news from the post office here Friday was that James C. Jenson, 607 Bluff street, would take over as postmaster on May 16. Jenson said the postal inspectors had received official notice to that effect.

Postal inspectors and Acting Postmaster Kenneth A. Madigan could not be reached.
