students, who had been attending the state large group music contest at Pella, was delayed by a small motor fire for a half hour late Saturday afternoon at the junction of Highways 218 and 22 near Riverside.

The bus pulled into a nearby service station, and the fire was put out immediately by extinguishers. No flames, smoke or fumes escaped into the bus interior.

The Riverside fire department was called but the fire was out by the time firemen arrived. The fire was believed to have started in the fuel line of the vehicle.

As directed by L. A. Wintermeier, city schools orchestra director, the 35 students left the bus in an orderly procession.

After some minor repairs, the bus continued on to Iowa City.

A CAR containing two people, one of whom was a woman, turned about 11 p.m. Sunday on Highway 218 near Iowa City on Highway 218. The occupants suffered bruises, Sheriff Wallace W. Murphy, who investigated, reported.

Leonard Renouard, Iowa City, told authorities that he was driving the vehicle involved in the accident near Alice, Washburn.

The sheriff said the car apparently lost control and it overtook the car and it was traveling south.

WALLACE W. MURPHY, Iowa City, said that he was a student at the University of Iowa and Robert J. Meyer, Iowa City, were injured in a car collision about 11 p.m. Sunday on Highway 218 near Iowa City.

grew substantially, and with funds collected in the Baltic provinces of Russia in the early '60s by the late Dr. Sigmund Fritschel, then president of the seminary, the financial condition of the Wartburg was materially strengthened. By 1874 the early storms had all been weathered, and Wartburg was permanently established as an integral factor in the expansion of the Lutheran Church in the Midwest. The enrollment by that year had outgrown the limited capacity of the plant at St. Sebald. A large building at Mendota, Illinois, was taken over and Wartburg again became an urban institution. Soon the enrollment, made up of both American students and students from Europe, had again doubled. About this time the Dubuque Board of Trade offered the old Emerson Estate on the southwestern outskirts of the city to Wartburg, provided the property be improved and devoted to educational purposes. On September 17, 1889, the old Wartburg Seminary Building, being an enlargement of the old Emerson homestead, was dedicated. Soon after the removal of Wartburg back to Dubuque the immigration of students from Germany and other foreign lands began falling off. Today the enrollment consists practically entirely of American born students, graduates of American colleges and preparatory schools. Only graduate students are now enrolled in the Seminary.

The beautiful new Wartburg buildings were dedicated in 1916, after the older buildings had proven inadequate. These buildings are constructed of native limestone, excavated from the seminary grounds. Wartburg Tower is visible for miles around from practically every highway leading into the city. The present plant is conceded to be the most beautiful and practically appointed quarters of any similar institution in the land. The environment of campus and buildings is consistent with the high educational ideals. Wartburg has graduated over 800, almost 500 of whom were graduated while the institution was located in Dubuque.

The president of the Wartburg Theological Seminary is Dr. Max Fritschel, widely known as a scholar and an authority on Lutheran Church administration in America. Doctor Fritschel was born at St. Sebald in Clayton County, Iowa, February 21, 1868. Several members of the Fritschel family have been leaders in the Lutheran Church. His parents, Doctor Sigmund and Margaret (Pröttengeier) Fritschel, were born in Germany and came to Iowa in 1854. Doctor Sigmund, a minister of the Lutheran Church, established congregations in Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois, was in Detroit for a time, and in 1857 was called to the Wartburg at St. Sebald.

Max Fritschel has been a student all his life. He took his A. B. and A. M. degrees in Thiel College at Greenville, Pennsylvania, and had the Doctor of Divinity degree conferred upon him by the same institution. He was abroad in study at Rostock, Erlangen and Leipzig, Germany.

Doctor Fritschel came to the Wartburg Theological Seminary as assistant professor and after two years was made full professor, and since 1906 has been president of the institution. He has served on numerous committees of the Lutheran Church of America and at present is a member of the merger committee, working out details for the merging of synods of the church.

Doctor Fritschel married Henrietta Hillemann. They have three children: Irma, wife of T. H. Streng, of San Antonio, Texas; Max, professor of English in the Technical High School at Milwaukee; and Sigmund, associated with the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

SAMUEL DANFORD WHITING, of Iowa City, has had a career of well-earned success in the law. He had to work his way through college and law school, was a teacher for several years, and at the present time is a member of the State Legislature.

He was born at Clermont, Fayette County, Iowa, May 16, 1875. The Whiting family is of English ancestry and came from Boston, England, to America about 1630. Samuel Whiting was one of the early Puritan preachers at Boston. Members of the family were soldiers in the Revolution and in the Civil war. Mr. Whiting's father, Timothy H. Whiting, was born in the East, and came out to Iowa in 1861, locating at Clermont. He was a surveyor in early life, was associated with some of the early railroad building in the Middle West, and for a number of years he and former Governor Larrabee were partners in the brick and tile business at Clermont. He is now living retired at Los Angeles, California, where his wife died December 28, 1921. Timothy H. Whiting married Mary Anne Dudley, who was born in New York State. They had five children: Mrs. Blanche Dornan, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Bernice Barlow, of Blacksburg, Virginia; Samuel D., of Iowa City; Mrs. Donna May Lewis, of Colby, Kansas, and Nathan D., of Los Angeles.

Samuel D. Whiting was ten years of age when his parents moved to Iowa City in 1885. He attended public schools there, graduating from high school in 1892, as valedictorian. The following four years he was at the University of Iowa, taking the liberal arts course, and in spite of the fact that he had to work to pay part of his expenses, he became prominent in student affairs, representing the Irvin Institute Society every year, was president of his class and treasurer of his class two years. After graduating in 1896 he was principal of the Shueyville High School a year and in 1897 was elected county superintendent of schools for Johnson County, serving two terms in that office. In 1902 he entered the law school of the University of Iowa and was graduated LL. B. in 1904. In law school he was president of the Forum Society and one of the outstanding debaters in the school. Since graduating he has practiced law at Iowa City and has gained enviable prestige at the bar of that university town. He has handled cases in all the courts and has been admitted to practice before the Federal courts. He is a member of the Johnson County Bar Association.

Mr. Whiting for years has been a recognized leader of the Democratic party in his section of the state, has served as Democratic committeeman and in 1926 was elected to represent Johnson County in the Legislature and was reelected in 1928. For the past six years he has been a member of the Iowa City school board and twice was chosen president of the board. He has filled all the chairs in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, is a member of the Congregational Church and has taught a class in Sunday School. During the World war he was on the home defense committee. Mr. Whiting is interested in farming.

He married, August 16, 1904, Miss Caroline Buresh, of Johnson County. They have four children: Nathan B., an electrical engineer with the Westinghouse Electric Company at Chicago, Samuel B., of Iowa City, Miss Mary C. and Joseph T., students.

CHESTER ARTHUR PHILLIPS, dean of the College of Commerce of the University of Iowa, has won many honors in the educational field, as an authority on finance and particularly in his administrative and teaching work at Iowa City, where he has had his home since 1913.

Doctor Phillips was born at Scipio, Indiana, July 17, 1882, son of Jacob and Celia (Celestia) Phillips. He was educated in public schools in Indiana, and graduated with the A. B. degree from Central College of that state in 1904. He was principal of the high school at Weston, Ohio, in 1904-05, and held the chair of English and history in Central College in 1905-07. He then entered Yale University, where he took his A. B. degree in 1908, the Master of Arts degree in 1909, and in 1919 Yale conferred upon him the Doctor of Philosophy degree. He was instructor in economics at Yale in 1909-10, and from 1911 to 1913 was instructor in economics and finance at Dartmouth College.

On coming to Iowa City in 1913 Doctor Phillips served as assistant professor of economics and finance at the State University until 1918, was professor of economics and finance from 1918 to 1920, and since 1921 has been dean of the College of Commerce. He was special teacher and lecturer on economics at Columbia University in the summer sessions of 1919, 1920 and 1922, and at the University of California in the summers of 1923 and 1928.

Doctor Phillips is author of Readings in Money and Banking, published in 1916, and Bank Credit, published in 1920. He has been a member of the advisory council of the Stable Money League, is a member of the International High Commission of the Pan American States, and is a member of the American Economics Association, Academy of Political Science, American Academy of Political and Social Science, is a national councilor of the United States Chamber of Commerce and president of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce. Doctor Phillips is a director of the First National Bank of Iowa City and a member of the United Brethren Church. His college and honorary fraternities are Phi Sigma Kappa, Phi Beta Kappa, Delta Sigma Pi and Beta Gamma Sigma.

He married Mary Gordon McMurray, of Huntington, Indiana, and they have three children, Jessie Dorothy, Gordon and Van Lehn.

JOSEPH JAMES is manifesting in his administration as mayor of the vital little City of Oxford, Johnson County, the same loyalty and progressiveness that have marked his activities in business. Mr. James has been a resident of this county more than forty years and no citizen has more secure place in popular confidence and esteem than the popular mayor of Oxford.

Mr. James was born at Newcastle, England, May 31, 1865, and is a son of Joseph and Annie (Young) James, who continued their residence in England until the close of their lives, the death of the former having occurred in 1884 and that of his widow in 1913, and both having been earnest communicants of the Established Church of England. Of their six children Joseph, Jr., of this review, is the one surviving son, and the three surviving daughters still remain in England—Mrs. Fannie Snowball, of Harriet; Mrs. Kittie Hewiston, of London; and Mrs. Mary Bettenstadt, of Hexhal. The father was identified with the milling industry during his entire active career.

Joseph James, Jr., immediate subject of this sketch, attended the Eildon House School in Melrose, Scotland, and thereafter continued his studies in Croft House School in Cumberland County, England. He then entered historic old Cambridge University, in the law department of which he completed a partial course. He left the university in 1882, when he was seventeen years of age, and in the following year he enlisted in the British Army, in which he received commission as second lieutenant in the Northumberland Hussars. After two years' service with this command he was transferred to the Sixteenth Lancers, with which he did loyal service in quelling insurrection on the part of Arabs in Egypt, where he remained somewhat more than one year. On his return to England, in 1885, he resigned from the army and became a clerk for Lohden, Jacob & Company, owners and operators of a line of steamships. By this concern he was given assignment, in 1886, to the opening of an office in Brisbane, Australia. In this mission his voyage brought him to the United States, and upon landing in New York City he decided to forego his journey to Australia, the great island continent, and to establish permanent residence in the United States—a decision that he has never regretted, though he retains deep affection for

SAMUEL DANFORTH WHITING

Samuel Danforth Whiting, the subject of this sketch, is entitled to write his name among the first families of New England. His ancestors were among the founders of Boston, and Lowell, Massachusetts, is located on the Whiting farm. His father's ancestry dates back to the seventeenth century in Massachusetts. Timothy Whiting and Mary A. Dudley, his parents, however, are natives of New York state, both being born in Jefferson county. Happily, both are now living, the father in honorable retirement, at Iowa City with our subject. The mother is a practicing physician at Los Angeles, California. Timothy Whiting, in early life, was a railroad engineer (civil); but later took up in connection with his profession the business of brick and tile. He is well and favorably known throughout Iowa, having done a large amount of surveying in the state. He was at one time in company with Ex-Governor Larrabee in the brick and tile business at Clermont, Iowa. The Whiting family came west to Fayette county, Iowa, about 1861, at the beginning of the Civil War, and resided in that county until 1885, where Mr. Whiting was county supervisor, when they removed to Iowa City in order that the children might have the educational advantages of the University city. Five children were born to this excellent couple, all of whom are living at this writing.

RESIDENCE OF SAMUEL DANFORTH WHITING

Samuel Danforth Whiting, the third in order of birth, was born in 1875 in Clermont, Fayette county, Iowa, and came with his parents to Iowa City when he was ten years of age. Here he grew to manhood, was educated, entered business, and still resides. He graduated from the Iowa City high school in the class of 1892, and from the State University of Iowa in the class of 1896, with the degree of A. B. Following his graduation he became principal of the Jefferson Township high school, Shueyville, Iowa, for one year. He was then elected county school superintendent and served from 1898 to 1902. Thereafter Mr. Whiting entered the Law Department of the S. U. I. and graduated in the class of 1904, with the degree of LL.B. He immediately put out his "shingle" and began the practice of law. Being an expert French, German, and Bohemian scholar, his pathway to professional success has been uniformly progressive, and he is regarded as one of the successful members of the Johnson County Bar Association.

Mr. Whiting married Caroline Buresh, of Shueyville, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Kahoun) Buresh, both deceased. Mr. Buresh was a farmer of Jefferson township. He was a native of Bohemia, born in April, 1838, and came to America in 1864. He accidentally shot and killed himself while hunting, in 1883. His marriage to Miss Kahoun took place in Cleveland, Ohio, December 25, 1869, where he lived for ten years and was employed by a glass company. Miss Kahoun was a native of Bohemia, and came to America when sixteen years old. She was the fifth child in her father's family.

Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Whiting: Nathan, Samuel, Mary, and Joseph. The family resides on a forty-acre tract north of the Kimball road, facing North Summit avenue, a sightly, beautifully shaded place, famous for its products of fruits. Mr. and Mrs. Whiting are members of the Congregational church.
