Children's Home Society Seeks Jackson Funds

A group of Jackson county residents are making annual preparations to solicit in behalf of the children under the care of the Iowa Children's Home Society.

The society is a Maquoketa United Fund agency; there will be no canvass for funds in the Timber City this fall as a result.

The only statewide, non-sectarian service of its kind in Iowa, ICHS is an accredited adoption agency. In addition, it cares for youngsters who have inadequate home lives and who are unwanted and uprooted.

The society aids such children overcome problems and learn to enjoy normal family life. Professional case workers counsel the children and guide foster parents, in whose homes most ICHS children live, in teaching the youngsters to live constructively and normally.

Four Jackson citizens are handling the ICHS campaign in the area. They are the Rev. Laurence Nelson of Bellevue, Mrs. Chester Ackerman of Sabula, Mrs. W. J. Ritenour of Preston and Mrs. Delta Scott of Baldwin.

attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Chicago and a Valparaiso, Ind., pharmacy college.

On Feb. 14, 1911, Dr. Swift married Blanche Campbell in Maquoketa. For many years he was a physician here. He was a member of the United Church of Christ and Helion Masonic lodge. He was a past patron of the local chapter of the O.E.S. A World War I veteran, Dr. Swift was a life member and a past commander of the Timber City American Legion post. He was a 50-year member of the Iowa State Medical Society and a Democrat.

During the 1920's, Dr. Swift served Maquoketa as its mayor for 10 years. In 1930, he served as state representative from Jackson county and in 1933 was appointed deputy state health commissioner. From 1936 to 1940, Dr. Swift was commander of the Iowa soldiers' home in Marshalltown.

erection of a new one hundred thousand dollar postoffice building at Muscatine, a seventy-five thousand dollar addition to the postoffice at Davenport and the establishment of a biological station at Fairport to perpetuate the pearl button industry by maintaining a supply of fresh-water mussels through artificial propagation. Mr. Dawson has won the reputation as the most industrious and useful member of congress the second district has ever had."

While Mr. Dawson's congressional service is notable by reason of what he has accomplished, he is, moreover, recognized in the state as one of Iowa's eminent republicans, serving in five successive state campaigns as manager of the speakers bureau of the state central committee. Throughout his life he has made it his purpose to thoroughly inform himself concerning any subject or task with which he has had to do and his own political actions and support are based upon comprehensive knowledge of the questions under discussion.

On the 21st of June, 1903, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Dawson and Miss Phoebe R. DeGroat, a daughter of Zachariah and Minerva DeGroat, of Preston, who were among the early settlers of Van Buren township. Her father was one of the founders of Preston and a leader in local affairs. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson have become the parents of four children: Loleta, Claribel, Olive and Albert, all yet at home. In a review of his life it is seen that out of the struggle with small opportunities he has come finally into a field of broad and active influence and usefulness. Public interests have long been near his heart and in his political addresses it is a dull mind that does not respond to the touch of his thought, to the play of his fancy, to the force of his logic.

FRED J. SWIFT, M. D.

Dr. Fred J. Swift, who enjoys a large general practice as a physician and whose business ability is manifest in the up-to-date and popular drug store he conducts in Baldwin, was born in Brandon township, Jackson county, Iowa, March 9, 1884, his parents being James and Fanny (Braun) Swift. The father was born in Jacksontown, Licking county, Ohio, in 1836, and in the place of his birth he grew to manhood, learning the cooper's trade there through apprenticeship. In 1855 or 1856 he came overland by ox-team to Jackson county, Iowa, locating in Brandon township, where he opened a shop, having Dubuque as a market for his barrels. He also engaged in farming, and in the '80s, after his cooperage was destroyed by fire, he gave all of his time to agricultural pursuits, being thus engaged until 1902, when he removed to Maquoketa, this county. He has since been living in retirement, enjoying the fruits of a well spent life. He was one of the early settlers of the county and knew the sound of the wolf at the door, both literally and figuratively speaking, but he courageously surmounted the hardships of pioneer days and has gained a position of affluence among his fellows. He is a stanch democrat in his political views and a man prominent in local affairs, holding many township offices at the behest of the people.

James Swift married Miss Fanny Braun, who was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, and as a girl came to the United States with her father, her mother having died. They located near Monticello, Jones county, Iowa, where Mr.

Braun was killed by a falling tree. Thereupon Mrs. Swift was taken into a family by the name of Clarke, who were living in Jones county, and when they removed to Brandon township, Jackson county, she accompanied them. It was in this place that she became acquainted with Mr. Swift, and they were married in 1868. Their union was blessed with the following children: W. H., who is a large landowner of Jackson county and is living in Maquoketa with his father; Lally, now the widow of George Jacobs; Alvie E., who is engaged in farming in Brandon township, this county; Mina E., who is living with her parents; and Fred J., the subject of this sketch.

Fred J. Smith completed his literary education in the high school at Maquoketa, from which he was graduated in 1900. He then commenced the study of medicine, spending two years in the Keokuk Medical College and two years in the medical department of the University of Iowa, receiving his degree of M.D. from the latter institution in 1904. The next six months he spent in a railroad hospital at Springfield, Missouri, after which he located in Baldwin, in March, 1905, remaining here until the summer of 1906, when he went to Valparaiso, Indiana, to take a course in pharmacy. Completing his studies, he established himself at Welton, Clinton county, Iowa, where he practiced through the winter and the following April he went to Lyman county, South Dakota, where he filed a homestead claim. He proved up this claim and still owns it. In July, 1908, he returned to Baldwin, where he purchased the drug store of McMerry Brothers of Maquoketa, and has since been engaged in conducting a vigorous business in drugs and sundries. He has also built up a large and remunerative practice as a physician, for he has shown an excellent understanding of the fundamental principles underlying the science of medicine and is well qualified in other ways for the onerous duties of the profession.

Dr. Swift has always been a very enthusiastic Mason, being in hearty sympathy with the purpose of the craft which finds its basic element and belief in universal brotherhood. He belongs to Helion Lodge, No. 36, A. F. & A. M.; Rose Croix chapter, R. A. M.; Council of Kadosh, Lodge of Perfection; and De Molay Consistory, No. 1, of Clinton. He is a man who thinks, who keeps abreast with progress and with whom intention means accomplishment. He holds to a high standard of professional service, is conscientious in the performance of every duty, so that each year marks a measurable progress in his chosen field of labor.

SAMUEL CLARK.

Samuel Clark is numbered among those representative American citizens who claim England as the place of their nativity and who in this country have found the opportunities which they sought for advancement along business lines. Born in Maxey, near Peterborough on the 5th of October, 1855, he was there reared and in the schools of his native country acquired a good education. In early life he learned the wagonmaker's trade, in which he became very proficient, being recognized as one of the best wagon wheel makers in England. There was no opening for him in that line of business in England, however, and, hearing the Secondary sources (family genealogy books, for example) vary greatly in their accuracy. I don't cite really bad sources, such as the LDS Ancestral File, World Family Tree Volumes, Ancestry's One World Tree, or other people's gedcoms, all of which are entirely lacking in credibility.
