FIRE MEETING SET THURSDAY

Trustees to Attend Talks on Protection in Outlying Areas

Fifteen township trustees in areas surrounding Iowa City are being invited to attend a meeting here to discuss fire protection in rural areas.

The meeting, approved by the city council this week, has been called for 7:30 p.m. next Thursday, February 23. The session will be held in City hall.

Attending, in addition to the township trustees, will be city officials, including Fire Chief Al Dolezal, Mayor Preston Koser, members of the city council, and City Attorney W. H. Bartley.

The city clerk is writing to the township trustees to notify them of the forthcoming meeting.

The question of whether or not the Iowa City fire department shall give protection to homes and towns outside the city has been under study for two years. An ordinance, providing for contracts with outlying areas, has been given three readings in the council. Passage, however, has been postponed until after the meeting with township and other government groups.
