Briefly describe what the minimum wage law is, does it cover full-time as well as part-time employees and at what age does it begin? Are all businesses, including hospitals, obliged to honor this law.

There is a different minimum wage for all varieties of employment and the basis for determining these varied minimum wage scales is dependent upon many factors, including the employer's gross annual income, net profit, number of employees, etc.

In instances where the minimum wage law is applicable, both full-time and part-time employees are covered. Employees are primarily covered at age 18, although there are exceptions.

Regarding hospitals, the varied minimum wage laws affecting the medical field are very complex.

The answers to your questions are general, but as was stated earlier, a variety of factors are involved. Legal advice regarding the minimum wage law can be obtained free of charge from the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division, Federal Building, 210 Walnut, Des Moines 50309. —DON ZIMMER, Iowa Employment Security Commission.

To Exchange Old Food Stamps For New

"Food stamp recipients will be able to exchange old stamps for new ones as old stamps expire on August 31. Dennis M. Doyle, administrator of the Food Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, announced Friday.

"Until August 31, food stamp recipients may use old stamps in authorized food stores," Doyle said. "After that date, recipients will be able to exchange old stamps at local food stores."
