from his present salary of $22,500. Berge explained Huseman is on a 12-month salary and because of the number of athletic events he "sometimes doesn't get too much vacation." Berge said the board was given salary schedules of other Big 8 conference schools for comparison purposes. Board President William Gibb said the increase was made at the recommendation of Berge but he (Gibb) hadn't noticed the percentage was that great at the time.

During contract negotiations with teachers, the Fort Dodge Education Association used Big 8 and the 29 largest school districts in Iowa for comparative purposes, the school board representatives largely used other school districts in this immediate area, explaining to the fact finder that these wages were more realistic since teachers in nearby districts were paying about the same as Fort Dodge teachers for living expenses.

Those who will receive 8 to 8.4 percent increases are Senior High principal Robert Bargman, up $2,420 from $30,250 to $32,670; Senior High assistant principals Donald Carlson, up $1,850 from $22,650 to $24,500 and

P. McCarville dies at 77; rites Tuesday

Paul E. McCarville, 77, widely known Fort Dodge attorney and a former state senator and supreme governor of the Loyal Order of the Moose, died suddenly at his home, 710 Northwood Ave., Saturday afternoon.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m.

Paul McCarville

Tuesday in the Laufersweiler Funeral Home chapel and at 11 a.m. at Sacred Heart Catholic Church with the Rev. James C. McAlpin, administrator, officiating at the mass of the resurrection. Burial will be in Corpus Christi Cemetery.

A lifelong resident of Webster County and a practicing attorney in Fort Dodge for 52 years, McCarville was a senior partner in the McCarville, Bennett, Beisser and Wilke law firm which has offices in the Beh Building.

He was a state senator from a Webster-Calhoun County district in 1949-52 and active in the Republican party throughout his adult life. He served as chairman of the Webster County Republican Central Committee in 1950-51 and was Wahkonsa Township justice of the peace before his election to the Iowa Senate in 1948.

As supreme governor of the Moose—highest elective office of that fraternal organization—McCarville traveled all over the United States and to other countries in 1955-56 following his election at Philadelphia in August 1955.

Other offices he held include: district deputy of the Knights of Columbus, 1944-48; chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters; chairman of the building committee for the new Sacred Heart School, 1953; president of the Community Chest. In 1977 he received citations in recognition of his 50 years as an attorney from his alma mater, Creighton University of Omaha, Neb., and the Iowa State Bar Association. He was a fourth degree member of the Knights of Columbus.

Railroads had their troubles, too. Officials reported that 13 Illinois Central-Gulf diesel engines were stuck in snowdrifts at various locations between Fort Dodge and Sherwood.

Iowa Highway Patrol officials in Fort Dodge said Iowa 7 was passable by mid-morning Monday, with all other highways in the area opened. Road surfaces were 50 to 75 percent snow and ice packed and the roads were extremely hazardous, however.

Just as the Fort Dodge area was beginning to recuperate from a winter of snow and cold, another storm dumped seven inches of new snow on the city over the weekend.

The snow accompanied by strong winds forced the cancellation of classes in Fort Dodge public and parochial schools Monday. All stores in the Crossroads Mall except Walgreen Drug closed Sunday afternoon because of the weather.

The Fort Dodge Choral Society concert and some church services were canceled Sunday as a result of the snow.

Fort Dodge received .75 of an inch of snow and freezing rain in the 24-hour period ending at 5 p.m. Saturday. The storm Saturday night and early Sunday brought 5.75 inches of snow and the city received an additional one-half inch after 5 p.m. Sunday.

The seven inches of snow increased the total amount on the ground to more than 12 inches.

City street crews spent much of another weekend on the job sanding and plowing streets. Streets Commissioner Virgil Wilshusen said the strong winds created drifts up to six and eight feet high on the east end of Second Avenue South, Twenty-fifth Avenue North and other open streets in the city.

Wilshusen said the city did not put its snow emergency ordinance into effect because the early snow and ice which fell Saturday was melting with temperatures in the 30s until conditions changed and the city received the large accumulation of snow.

Crews were out Saturday morning until noon and worked again from 5 p.m. Saturday until 9 a.m. Sunday. Three sanders and two plows were out part of Sunday.

The street workers began operations again at midnight Sunday and continued work throughout the day. The parking lots and the downtown area were cleaned Sunday and early Monday and crews will be removing more snow from the downtown area observed by the spacecraft's two telescopic television cameras.

Europa, the next moon out from Jupiter after Io, is the brightest of all the satellites with subtle yellow-tan shades with dark brown streaks. It is believed to be rocky with a coat of ice.

Earth, which has a lot of surface water but little water inside, might look like Europa if all the oceans froze, Morrison said. If all the oceans boiled away, it might resemble Io.

Ganymede and Callisto, both larger than the planet Mercury, are less dense than Io and Europa, leading scientists to conclude they are half water and have rock.

Ganymede may be half covered with ice while Callisto, farther from Jupiter, may have dark rocky soil with some ice.

Beyond Callisto are at least eight other satellites, all small.

The spacecraft, first of two probes in a $410 million space agency program, left Earth exactly 18 months ago and traveled 625 million miles to reach the fifth planet out from the sun.

Monday night. Alleys are to be plowed Tuesday.

The city hired a couple of additional payloaders Monday to assist with hauling the snow away.

Fort Dodge Post Office personnel said all city and rural carriers were out on time Monday morning.

"They're all out, and they're attempting to deliver as much as they possibly can," a post office spokesman said. "We're just going to have to play it by ear, and deliver on the roads that are opened. The ones they can't get today we'll hope the plows can get to tonight, and we'll try to deliver tomorrow."

School classes were either called off or started late in most areas. Humboldt Community Schools had scheduled a make-up day on what had been slated as a teacher in-service day Monday because of classes already missed due to bad weather. The make-up day classes were called off. Law enforcement office dispatchers were harried as they attempted to answer calls from persons who wanted highway condition information, and some offices were short-handed because relief personnel couldn't get to work.

Humboldt County Sheriff Marvin Andersen was manning the phone in his office Monday because his dispatcher was snowed in west of Humboldt, and the police dispatcher in Humboldt worked on her day off Monday because the dispatcher scheduled for the day was stranded in Cedar Falls.

Kossuth County Deputy Jan Walden, who is jail matron there, said she shoveled out her driveway several times during the weekend to go to the jail to check on two female prisoners. The women were serving weekend sentences, and then couldn't get home when they were released. Mrs. Walden said the women were taken by snowmobile to relatives' homes in Algona. Two men scheduled to serve weekend jail time in Kossuth County called in and said they couldn't get through the snow to jail, Mrs. Walden said.

Snowmobiles assisted when a snowplow and ambulance got stuck at the end of a farm lane near St. Joseph. Sheriff Andersen said county residents in a four-wheel drive pickup with two snowmobiles on the back followed the ambulance and snowplow from Humboldt, and when the plow got stuck the men went to the farmhouse and brought a young girl suffering from suspected appendicitis, and her family, to the ambulance and squad car at the end of the lane.

A snowplow also led the way for a Gilmore City ambulance to transport a patient to the Humboldt hospital.

Andersen said Mrs. Robert Adams and other residents of farm homes located along U.S. 169 north of Humboldt called his office Sunday and asked law enforcement officers to close the highway.

"She said people were getting stranded Sunday in front of her house, and they kept coming in."

trouble pretty soon now. They don't stock up like they used to. I don't know for sure, but I would suppose some of them would be running pretty low on groceries," McFarland noted.

Thirteen Illinois-Central Gulf diesel locomotives were stuck in snowdrifts in four different locations between Fort Dodge and five miles west of Rockwell City at Sherwood. The problem started Saturday when two locomotives became stuck, and engines with snowplows were sent out to free them.

However, each rescue engine that was sent out also became stuck, eventually bringing the total number of stranded locomotives to 13. The engines were located in four spots—one half mile west of Sherwood, one mile east of Sherwood, east of Rockwell City and between Tara and Knierim. Railroad officials said four more engines were sent out Monday morning to retrieve the others.

In Calhoun County where some drifts were estimated at 10 to 15 feet high in places, road crews were using road graders on the hard surface roads instead of trucks. Usually, the road graders are used exclusively on gravel roads, County Engineer Jerry Weber explained.

"We have to use a grader on them at least to get a hole punched in them so the trucks can then work on the roads," Weber said. "The drifts are so darn hard. This heavy, wet snow is just so darn hard." At the earliest, Weber predicted, it will probably be at least two or three days before all county roads, including the gravel, are open to one-way traffic in Calhoun County.

All major highways in Calhoun and Pocahontas counties were open to travel Monday morning. However, the county roads in Pocahontas county, like nearly everywhere else, were blocked.

Pocahontas County Engineer Robert Reinhart said most hard surface roads would probably be open by Monday night. About the rest of the roads, Reinhart said, "It's too soon to be sure, but it could probably take several days to get some people out." Reinhart noted that some rural roads have not been open all winter and won't be opened, but no farm residents are located along those roads.

Some of the problems Mr. and Mrs. James Hunt of rural Rolfe encountered during the snowy weekend are probably representative of the tribulations others faced.

The Hunts, who live one mile west of Rolfe, suddenly realized Saturday night that their automatic oil burner was gassing up the house, because the chimney had iced over.

"We had no choice but to turn the stove off," Mrs. Hunt explained Monday. "We covered the damper with foil to stop the gas from getting out. Then we tried to get a window open, but we couldn't. We finally took a hairdryer to the bathroom window and got it open. Then we set a fan in the bathroom door to pull out some of the fumes."

Meanwhile, for heat, the Hunts turned on their oven, an electric heater and electric blanket. They were still without heat Monday morning, Mrs. Hunt said, but they felt a small draft coming through the Creighton Alumni Association programs, McCarville had worked closely with the presidents of that college in connection with development programs.

In December 1977, Mr. and Mrs. McCarville donated 15 acres of land northwest of the city for use as a park. Lying on the second terrace of the Des Moines River and the flat land west of the Boat Club, it is commonly known as the Moose picnic grounds.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T.H. McCarville, he was born at Moorland but the family moved to Fort Dodge when he was a small child. He graduated from Sacred Heart High School in 1920 and received his law degree from Creighton University in 1927, two years after earning his BA degree there. He returned to Fort Dodge and has practiced law here since.

In 1932 he married Helen Sabatka at Jackson, Minn.

Surviving are his wife; daughters, Mrs. Mary A. Coleman; Fort Dodge, and Mrs. Carl A. (Ruth) Nelson, Wayzata, Minn.; seven grandchildren; brothers and sisters, Thomas E., Joseph F., Gertrude and Mrs. Willard (Mary) Carlson, all of Fort Dodge.

The Sacred Heart Rosary Society will say a rosary at 4 p.m. Monday and a Knights of Columbus and parish rosary will be said at 8 p.m. Monday at the funeral home.
