FAMILY AND PERSONAL HISTORY

KENNETH RICE COOK—Of the second generation of his family to achieve prominence in the practice of law in Malvern and Glenwood, Kenneth Rice Cook has also made his name well known in public life. He has served as judge of the fifteenth judicial circuit, and as advisor on new rules of civil procedure in the Iowa Supreme Court. Until recently he was city attorney for Glenwood. For a number of years he was in practice with his twin brother, Carleton H., until 1943 when the latter died, since which time he has practiced independently, and is now senior member of the law firm of Cook and Drake.

Mr. Cook's father, Amos Edgar Cook, was born March 10, 1859 at Salem, and died May 20, 1926 at Malvern where he had made his home for many years and had become one of southwest Iowa's most prominent citizens as well as one of the state's leading attorneys. He was educated in the public schools of Iowa, and graduated from the University of Iowa in 1882 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. In 1886 he established his home in Malvern, and it was there that he began the practice of law. He served as county attorney for Mills County, and likewise served the town of Malvern as attorney, and was a member of the town council and the school board. Throughout his life his conduct of public affairs was exemplary and above reproach, and he was loyal and unselfish in his service to his community.

In June, 1885, Amos Edgar Cook married Florence Rice, who was a native of Indiana. As a child she had traveled with her family by wagon train to California, and back to Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Amos Edgar Cook had two children, twins: Carleton H., and Kenneth Rice. Both followed professionally in the footsteps of their father, and led successful legal careers.

Kenneth Rice Cook was born October 10, 1890 at Malvern, where he attended public schools, graduating from high school in 1908. During his high school years, he was popular in sports, and particularly prominent as a football and basketball player. During the summers he worked on the farm, and he continued working during his spare time and the vacation periods throughout the subsequent years, to defray the expenses of his college education. He entered the University of Nebraska and attended one year, but then, in 1913, left for a time to work as bookkeeper for the Iten Biscuit Company. Returning thereafter to the university, he completed his course and received his degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1916. He found sufficient time in this program of work and study to engage in athletic and social activities, and was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Returning to Malvern on the completion of his legal training, Judge Cook entered the law firm with his father, Amos E. Cook, and his twin brother, Carleton H. With this membership, the firm continued to conduct a successful practice in Malvern until the death of the father in 1926. Judge Cook and his brother then continued, under the firm name of Cook and Cook, and maintained offices in both Malvern and Glenwood. In 1929, Kenneth Rice Cook was appointed by Governor John Hamill to the judgeship of the fifteenth judicial circuit court, and he was retained on the bench in the election of 1930. He resigned the judgeship in 1933 to re-enter the practice of law with his brother, and their partnership continued until the death of Carleton H. Cook in 1943.

As was his father, Judge Cook has been engaged in many aspects of public life in his home city and Mills County. He served the municipality of Glenwood as city attorney, and during World War II, was an appeal agent of the Selective Service Act. He has rendered valuable service to the Supreme Court of Iowa as an advisor on new rules of civil procedure. He has been very active in the American Bar Association, and in the state and county associations; and is now a member of the board of governors of the Iowa Bar Association. Judge Cook is fraternally affiliated with the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, and is a member of the Community Club. He attends the Congregational Church. Since his early days when he worked on a farm, he has retained an interest in that most important of the state's activities, and occasionally escapes from his professional routine to participate in the management of his farm acreage in Mills County.

On April 18, 1917, Kenneth Rice Cook married Mona Berry, a native of Litchfield, Illinois. Mrs. Cook is an alumna of a girls' seminary. They are the parents of three children: 1. Carolyn, who attended Mount Vernon College. She is married to Richard E. Owen, and they have two sons, Samuel J. and Kenneth. 2. Edgar E., who attended the University of Iowa, and entered the United States Army for service in World War II. He served three and a half years, seeing action in both the Pacific and European Theaters. At the time of his discharge, Edgar E. Cook held the rating of sergeant. He resumed his studies at the University of Nebraska, but transferred to Drake University where he graduated in June, 1950, with a degree of Bachelor of Laws, was admitted to the bar and is now engaged with his father in the practice of law at Glenwood. Edgar Cook has been elected county attorney for Mills County beginning January 1, 1951. 3. Nancy, who first attended Christian College, then went to Drake University to receive her Bachelor of Arts degree. She taught in public schools for one year and is now married to Frank H. Mackaman, and they have one son, Frank H., II.

GEORGE LELAND PAUL—It is a characteristic of modern agriculture, especially in its specialized branches, that it attracts many men of superior education and mentalities. George Leland Paul, college graduate privileged to wear the Phi Beta Kappa key, has spent the most of his years farming in Poweshiek County, Iowa. Well fitted to give leadership to organized activities, he is associated with creamery endeavors, and serves in public offices, notably as an Iowa legislator.

George Leland Paul was born at Newton, Iowa, on April 30, 1903, son of David and Margaret (Picken) Paul. Reared in Grinnell, Iowa, he attended local schools, gained farm experience during school vacations, was graduated from high school in 1921, and matriculated at Grinnell College, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts with the class of 1925, and was a member of the scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa. His first eight years out of college were spent in Chicago, Illinois, with the Hart, Schaffner and Marx Company, manufacturers and distributors of high class clothing.

In 1935, Mr. Paul returned to what may have been his first deep interest, agriculture, and has since been a farmer specialist in the Brooklyn, Poweshiek County, section. A man of varied interests and exceptionally keen about a few, he enters heartily numerous activities, business, civic and social, and his services have constantly been drafted by neighbors and associates. Mr. Paul is secretary and treasurer of the Brooklyn Co-Op Creamery Association, and president and a director of State Brand Creameries, Inc., of Mason City, Iowa. He was township assessor for a decade, a member of the Poweshiek County Triple A Committee, and has the honor to represent his district in the General Assembly of Iowa. Fraternally Mr. Paul is affiliated with the Free and Accepted Masons, of which he is Past Master of his lodge, a member of Des Moines Consistory, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, and figures prominently in Brooklyn community projects. He worships in the faith of the Presbyterian Church, and is to the fore in the promotion and support of charitable and religious projects and organizations.

On February 14, 1935, at Des Moines, Iowa, George Leland Paul married Rachel Reeder.

CLARK FRANKLIN WALSH—The business career of Clark Franklin Walsh of Charles City, county seat of Floyd County, has been associated mainly with transportation and manufacturing. As the organizer and president of the Walsh Manufacturing Company, of the city, he combined both phases of his activities, but with emphasis placed upon manufacturing. In business he has amply manifested his acumen, judgment and enterprise. Combined with his progressive ideas in trade is a keen interest in the development of the community and the betterment of the conditions under which its people live. To many forward-looking projects he lends hearty support.

Born at Nashua, Iowa, on October 9, 1910, Clark Franklin Walsh is the son of Jerome and Martha (Boerschel) Walsh, his father being a farmer. Their son early learned that often the man who took crops to market sometimes made more than the agriculturist who grew them, the time element being considered. After being graduated from the Nashua High School, with the class of 1928, Clark F. Walsh went into long distance hauling, or transportation, out of Nashua, and developed this on an important scale. In 1939, he established the Walsh Manufacturing Company, in Charles City, of which he has since been the directing head and driving force. At the same time he maintained the Walsh Transportation Company of Nashua. In 1942, he combined both concerns, and in 1948 incorporated his present company.

The Walsh Manufacturing Company engages in the making and jobbing of an exceptionally wide variety of products, including hardware and implements, electric fences and flame throwers, boom sprayers, pressure sprayers and hydraulic hoists, steel corn cribs and power take-off drives for hammermills. What the concern does not manufacture, it will try to get for the trade from other manufacturers. Some twenty-five to thirty people are employed at the Charles City headquarters, and while products are distributed nationally, the larger attention is given to the so-called corn belt in seventeen states.

Mr. Walsh is also a member of the board of directors of the Commercial Trust and Savings Company, of Charles City; figures prominently in the Nashua and Charles City Chambers of Commerce; is fraternally affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, and is interested in Republican party politics. He worships at St. Michael's Catholic Church, and has his residence in Nashua. For recreation he enjoys fishing.

On May 8, 1935, at Nashua, Iowa, Clark Franklin Walsh married Avis Laurie, daughter of W. H. and Rose (Larry) Laurie, her father being an hydraulic engineer associated with the Iowa Public Service. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh are the parents of the following children: 1. Michael, born May 1, 1936. 2. Joan, born October 29, 1938. 3. Mary, born February 6, 1940. 4. William, born August 25, 1942. 5. Kathleen, born April 17, 1943. 6. Margaret, born May 24, 1945. 7. Rose Mary, born in June, 1948. Mrs. Walsh is a member of the Catholic Guild, and the Parent Teacher Association.

RHOMBERG'S—The company slogan, "Famous for Furs," rightly describes the business and the reputation of one of Dubuque's large commercial firms whose activities extend into several states. It is a monument to the enterprise of Karl J. Rhomberg. In 1949, the company celebrated its forty-second year in the trade, so that it is neither young nor old as compared with other concerns in the city.

Rhomberg fur stores, dealing exclusively in furs, are located in Dubuque and Davenport, Iowa, and Rockford, Illinois. The first store was established in Dubuque in 1907. In addition, there are four "traveling" stores, by means of which Rhomberg furs are advertised and sold in one hundred and fifty towns in Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Nebraska. Smart, compact trucks, manned by alert, well trained Rhomberg representatives, are used in transporting the fur garments from town to town for special traveling fur store showings.

In addition, Rhomberg's operates in several stores in their fur departments, and have maintained for over twenty years their excellently staffed buying office in New York City. Through volume purchase in New York of everything from raw skins to the distinctive Rhomberg label, the company has been able to effect substantial savings not enjoyed by the average retailer.

Rhomberg's principal offices and manufacturing plant, in addition to their retail store, are located at Tenth and White streets, in Dubuque. Here, also, are serviced the fifteen thousand and more customers' fur coats entrusted to Rhomberg's care each year. In an adjoining building, completely fire and burglar proof, many of these garments are kept in cold storage during the summer and winter storage seasons.

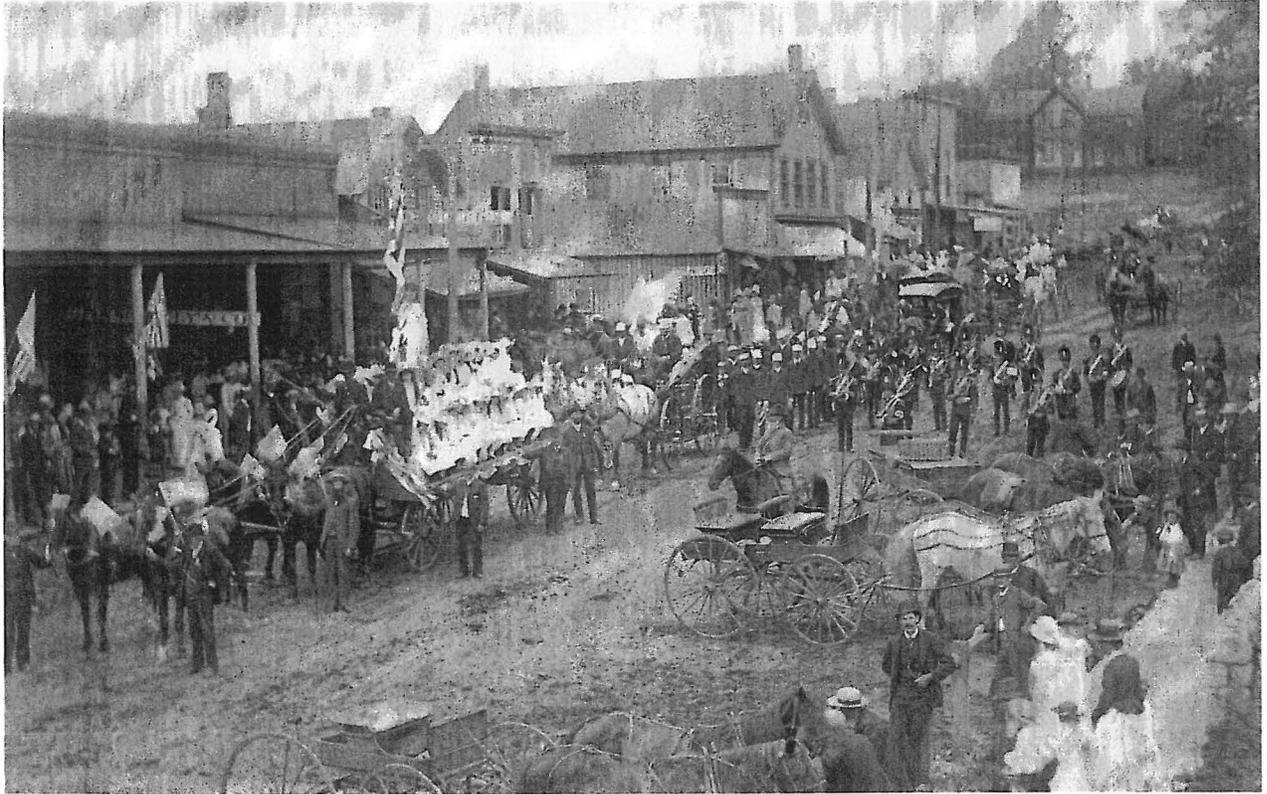

In 1928, Rhomberg's built in Dubuque, what was then the only modern exclusively cold storage plant for furs, in the State of Iowa. Since then, a number of additions have been made to it, and in May, 1948, a second huge vault was completed, more than doubling the former capacity, and providing the company with the largest and most complete fur storage facilities in the state. Year after year, customers from as far distant as California and New York, Alaska and Louisiana, send their furs to Rhomberg's for safe keeping in the master vault, and for repairs by the complete fur garment servicing department.

On their building fronts, on their smart de luxe delivery trucks, on their stationery and printing, and in the cool interiors of the Rhomberg stores, one will observe the familiar grey and blue combination that is as typical of the company's design as the slogan "Famous for Furs."

KARL J. RHOMBERG—Throughout his years in Dubuque, Karl J. Rhomberg was identified with the fur business centered in this city, with branches

BROOKLYN IOWA

The First 150 Years

By Carol Carpenter Hanson

Published by The Brooklyn Historical Society, Brooklyn, Iowa

George Paul

She was the mother of Harold McMullin.

McMULLIN, HAROLD BRENNIMAN—Inventer; maintained a blacksmith/machine shop business, begun in 1936, in back of his home at 411 East Des Moines Street. "One of the most versatile men in Brooklyn" the Chronicle wrote in 1963. A 1923 BHS grad; he could and did manufacture almost anything of wood and steel. Had patents on a watertight zipper and an air suspense system for cars, and four others. Hooked up a wire recorder on his shop radio so he wouldn't miss his favorite radio programs while attending movies with his wife. Welded everything from huge "boom" trucks for REA, to small machine parts for farmers. His wife, Thelma, a longtime schoolteacher and community volunteer, died one week after her husband, in 1977.

MILLER, JANET—1931 BHS grad; as a 12-year old in 1926 she won first prize in the state spelling contest, and placed 11th in the national competition in Washington, D. C. Daughter of J. A. Miller.

MILLER, J. C.—Served for 11 years as president of the BGM Dollars for Scholars chapter. Honored in 2000 with the Scholars' Founders Award from the national CSF organization, in recognition of his work in developing the local group; only the third award presented, and the first given to a scholarship worker.

"John Morrison is the owner of a brand new top buggy purchased from Flem Orr. When the Chronicle man asked Flem if a new top buggy was not an unusual sale these days, he said. 'Nope, I sold one two years ago.' Remember way back when people were complaining that the fool gasoline wagons were a danger to life in that they scared all the horses on the road?"

Brooklyn Chronicle, 1925

MILLGATE, DR. SYLVESTER—Practiced veterinary medicine in Brooklyn for 60 years, died in 1974.

MORLAN, FRANK—As editor of the Brooklyn Chronicle beginning in the mid-1960s, won national and state newspaper awards for his columns, news articles and photos. Brought the local paper to a circulation high of over 2,000. He and his wife Sally continued to publish the paper after they moved, selling it in 1978. Presently they publish the Osceola Sentinel Tribune.

MUNSON, DUANE—Highly regarded BGM High School principal, 1966 to 1996.

MUSTAPHA, ADOLPH—A butcher whose meat market was located in the Jackson Street, two-story structure later called Woodman Hall, in the early 1900s. An earlier relative, August Mustapha, had a meat market in the 1870s-80s at the northeast corner of Broadway and Third Street in 1958 to receive the first governor awards to volunteer firemen for outstanding community service; was active with Brooklyn Volunteer Fire Department for 62 years. Collected early photographs and other historical memorabilia of Brooklyn.

PAUL, GEORGE—Brooklyn farmer who served 14 years as a state representative. His wife, Rachel, was president of Iowa Council of Republican Women in 1960s, also president of Iowa Legislation Ladies League.

PIERSON, WILL G.—Bank president in early 1920s; developed High Street section of town after purchasing 26 acres of the William Manatt estate in 1909. The family moved to Florida around 1924. A son, Bob, became national president of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. He had been a happy-go-lucky young man until his mother's death, when he promised to fulfill her dying wish that he become a minister. He returned occasionally to Brooklyn to visit his brother John, who worked at the creamery, and his sister, Robin Hall.

PORTER, MARIE—Popular fourth grade teacher who died of cancer in 1978. Taught in Brooklyn and Malcom schools for 39 years. A memorial cross over front doorway of the Brethren Church was constructed in her honor in 1980.

REED, U. M.—1892 BHS grad; Brooklyn attorney for 54 years. Studied law under Judge John T. Scott. Active in civic progress of town. Died in 1954.
