presidential campaign of 1894, Moline citizens concluded to dig it to the extent of $100,000. The money was placed in the name of George C. Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong put the money in an envelope, and wrote the names thereon, and hid it in the drawer of his desk. He told his confidential friends where he had hidden it, and was advised to put it in the bank, but did not do so. One day he came to his friend and found some one had stolen the money. When the result was known Mr. Armstrong paid the winner out of his own pocket. What ended the incident, till after his death, in looking over his papers, the envelope containing the money was found in an old desk.

REV. J. N. YOUNG.

Died, at his home in Howard, Kansas, after an illness of about one month, Rev. James N. Young. Deceased was born in Fleming county, Kentucky, February 7, 1836. In 1819 his parents moved to Indiana, settling first in Fayette county and later in Rush county, where he grew up and was married. His mother being a Methodist her home at that early day was a preaching place for the circuit preacher. Under this influence his father and himself both joined the M. E. church.

In October 1837, J. N. Young married Sally Ann Eyestone, who died in 1840, leaving two sons, one of whom was killed in the battle of Shiloh, and the other one lives in Washington, Iowa. In 1848 Bro. Young married Martha J. Cones, his surviving widow, and moved to Washington county, Iowa. Here Bro. Young helped to organize the republican party both in his county and state, and was elected as a representative to the legislature.

In 1872, having been security for a friend, Bro. Young found himself financially embarrassed, and calling the creditors as his friend together made over to them his homestead, the result of many years of patient toil, and came to Kansas to begin life again. He settled 8 miles north of Howard, then part of Howard county. Next fall he was elected to the state legislature, and in 1874 was elected county superintendent. About 12 years ago advancing years made it wise for him to move to town. He came to Howard where he has resided ever since. For more than half a century Brother Young has been an industrious worker in the church. In early life he felt called to preach, but being diffident, he refused to be licensed till 1872. Long before this, however, he had been a leader in the church and Sunday School. Coming to Kansas, then a new country, he found urgent need of his talents in preaching among the new settlers, and organizing churches.

Brother Young enjoyed remarkably good health. For about 60 years he had no medical attendance except when hurt by accidents. His last illness began by a fall, which happened in his own yard, on a very sleety Sunday, five weeks ago. His shoulder and arm were very painful but no bones being broken he refused to send for a doctor. After a week's suffering his heart began to trouble him, and then his appetite failed and both himself and his friends realized that his recovery was hopeless, he grew weaker and weaker, till on Tuesday night January 25, about half past ten without a struggle he breathed his last.

For several months past Brother Young seemed to think that the end of his life was approaching, and he spoke of it and made arrangements about it as calmly as possible. As to his hope for the future and his confidence in God there

It was decided that the death of some one like 500,000 of these people by starvation was not of sufficient import to draw a crowd, and as it was not practical to put up a "nigger" show in so short a time a crowd (?) will be entertained with (so we have been told). The ministers are always on hand to do their part and be prepared with short talks. Ladies especially invited.

UNCLE JOE MARTIN.

J. V. Martin, one of the earliest settlers on Indian creek, died at 8 o'clock this evening after an illness of less than a week's duration. The immediate cause of death was congestion of the lungs. He transacted business at this place just before he died and appeared in usual health. Mrs. Martin suffered a stroke of paralysis upwards of two years ago, since which time he has been speechless. Uncle Joe, who was about 65 years, had leased the farm to the boys for two years time, and intended to go on a trip. He has taken the trip, but from which no traveler returns. He was laid to rest in the Jackson cemetery Saturday at 3 o'clock p. m.—New Ex Ray.

Mr. Martin was one of our best men of sterling worth, and his death will be a shock to all his friends. The CITIZEN extends the sympathy of its friends to the bereaved family.

most certainly "underneath him were the ever-

OBITUARY.

Died, at her home in Howard, Kansas, on Tuesday, February 1st, Martha Jane, widow of Rev. J. N. Young, whose obituary we published last week.

Martha J. Cones was born in Campbell county, Kentucky, March 2, 1821. When she was a very small child her parents moved to Indiana and when she was three years old her father died.

She was converted and joined the church when she was a girl and all the remainder of her life she adorned her profession by a godly walk and conversation.

She was married to J. N. Young, May 8, 1843. Fifteen children were born to her, nine of whom survive. In the same year of her marriage she moved with her husband to Iowa, and there endured the usual toils and struggles of pioneer life. In 1872 by her advice and consent, her husband surrendered their home to pay the debts of a friend for whom her husband had been security, and together they came to Kansas to repeat the struggle at a time when advancing years made success most difficult.

About the beginning of December, sister Young had a severe spell of sickness from which she had only partially recovered when her husband had the fall which resulted in his death. During the ensuing weeks, while Brother Young lay so low, she neglected herself and refused to allow herself to be considered an invalid. After the death of her companion she still kept up and attempted to assist in some of the small duties of the house. On Monday night she was very restless and slept very little. On Tuesday morning when the writer called, she opened the door to admit him to the house and conversed with somewhat less than her usual cheerfulness. She complained of a pain in her right side and inability to sleep. She said she had sent for a doctor and thought it would be well to know if there was anything serious the matter with her. About noon she lay down on the lounge, as had been her frequent habit, and closing her eyes appeared to be going to sleep. Soon, without a cry or groan of any sort, she fell from the lounge to the floor, and when Miss Colgrove, who was but in 1877 was again elected, and has continued to serve till the present time. He and his wife are members of the United Presbyterian Church. He is now the owner of thirty acres of land adjoining the village, and owns a nice residence and lot in Ainsworth.

For more than a third of a century Mr. Livingston has been a respected citizen of Washington County, and in that time has witnessed the great changes that have been made, and in the development of the country has contributed his part. Few men enjoy the confidence and esteem of their fellow-citizens in a higher degree.

JAMES N. YOUNG, one of the pioneers of 1843, was born in Fleming County, Ky., Feb. 7, 1816. When a small boy, his parents removed to Rush County, Ind., where he grew to manhood and received a liberal education. Here he was united in marriage with Sally Eystone, an estimable lady, by whom there were born two sons, John Alexander and Hamey. A sketch of the former appears elsewhere in this volume. The latter enlisted on the outbreak of the war in the 8th Iowa Infantry, and was killed at the battle of Shiloh. Mrs. Young died in the fall of 1841. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was highly respected by all who knew her. In 1843 Mr. Young was again united in marriage, the lady of his choice being Martha J. Coons, a native of Indiana.

In the spring of the latter year, and shortly after the marriage took place, the family moved to Washington County, Iowa, coming through with teams, and being about four weeks in making the trip. On coming to this county, Mr. Young made claim to 200 acres of prairie, and sixty-seven of timber in Cedar Township. He settled upon the prairie land which was about two miles from the timber, and built one of the first hewed-log houses in the township, on which was laid a puncheon floor. This, however, was soon replaced with a floor from sawed lumber. The pioneer cabin of Father Young was the home of all who chose to accept its hospitality, and before the erection of school-houses and churches, was where the pioneers met for religious worship.

In his religious views, Mr. Young was a firm believer in the Methodist Episcopal doctrines, and for many years was a local preacher of that denomination. In politics he was known in the early days as an anti-slavery Whig, and in 1855 was elected by that party a member of the Lower House of the General Assembly, representing the district comprising Washington and Louisa Counties. On the organization of the Republican party, in 1856, he was one of the first to espouse its principles, and has never ceased to affiliate with and advocate the measures adopted by the party. In 1872, through financial reverses, he lost all his property, and although nearing his threescore years, he emigrated to Kansas, with the hope, in that new country, to retrieve his fallen fortunes. Locating near Howard, Elk County, he made a new home, on which he lived for some years, but is now living a retired life in Howard. Among the early settlers in Washington County, few were better known or more universally esteemed than James N. Young. A conscientious Christian man, he went forward in the discharge of every duty devolving upon him in a way to merit the good-will of all, practicing in an eminent degree the principles of the Golden Rule.

WESLEY C. RUNYON is a farmer and stock-raiser residing on section 16, Cedar Township. He came to this county in 1855, and first settled on section 29, where he lived two years. He is a native of Jefferson County, Ohio, born in 1830, and the son of Micajah and Elizabeth (Argo) Runyon, the former a native of New Jersey, and the latter of Ohio. He was reared on a farm, and remained with his parents until twenty-one years of age, alternating his time between working on a farm and attending the public school. On reaching his majority he commenced teaching school, and taught for two years. He then entered Jefferson College, in Harrison County, Ohio, which he attended one term, being compelled to abandon his studies on account of having his shoulder broken by being thrown from a horse.
