Duffy services are Saturday

Services for John L. Duffy, 70, of 220 Bryant St., former state representative will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Columbkille's Church, with burial in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

The Rev. Robert Wagner will officiate. Friends may call at Behr's after 11 a.m. Friday, where the Rosary will be said at 4 and 8 p.m.

Duffy died at his home late Wednesday morning of an apparent heart attack. He was in his law office earlier, but became ill and returned home.

Born in 1899 in Dubuque, Duffy was the son of Thomas H. Duffy, who served as chairman of the Dubuque County Central Committee of the Democratic Party for about 30 years.

Duffy's brother-in-law, was Louis Murphy, who was U.S. Senator from Iowa from 1933 to 1936, and for whom Murphy Park is now named.

Duffy served nine terms in the Iowa General Assembly. He first entered the Legislature in 1947 but dropped out four years later to take over the county attorney's post in Dubuque which he had held in the 1930s.

He returned to Des Moines in 1955 and successfully sought reelection every two years until he was defeated in the 1968 primary by Michael Blouin, the present incumbent.

During his stay in the House, Duffy actively engaged in the battle to eliminate some of Iowa's "blue laws," which limited various activities on Sundays.

While serving as county attorney in the '30s, Duffy prosecuted Marlo Heinz, charged with murder. Heinz eventually was hanged at the Fort Madison penitentiary, and Duffy's conscience was so struck with the gruesomeness of capital punishdays.

While serving as county attorney in the '30s, Duffy prosecuted Marlo Heinz, charged with murder. Heinz eventually was hanged at the Fort Madison penitentiary, and Duffy's conscience was so struck with the gruesomeness of capital punishment that he battled for its repeal in Iowa. In 1965, he saw the Legislature eliminate capital punishment from Iowa law.

A graduate of the Notre Dame law school, Duffy became famed for his speeches in the House on St. Patrick's Day, during which he lauded the accomplishments of noted Irishmen.

He was a graduate of Columbia College (now Loras) and was a veteran of World War I.

He was a member of the American Bar Assn., the Dubuque County Bar Assn., St. Columbkille's Church and the Marquette Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Surviving are his widow, Antoinette; a daughter, Mrs. Sheila Casey, Engelwood, Calif.; two sons, Thomas J. and Roger L., both at home; two grandchildren, and a brother, Prof. Charles J. Duffy, Akron, Ohio.
