JANE GREIMANN

Ames

After a courageous battle with lung cancer, the spirit of Jane Greimann of Ames, 64, left her body and went to be with her Lord. She died at Israel Family Hospice in Ames on Saturday, February 4, 2006.

A worship service entitled Witness to the Resurrection will begin 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, February 9 at Collegiate Presbyterian Church in Ames and is to be officiated by Rev. Larry Mitchell and Rev. Vicky Curtis. In lieu of a post-worship reception, family and friends may gather to visit with Jane's family prior to the service at 9 a.m. in the church.

Jane's body will be cremated followed by a private burial of her remains at the ISU Cemetery prior to the worship service at 8:30 a.m.

Jane was born January 25, 1942 in Klemme, Iowa to Chet and Ina Mae (Jarchow) Renner. There she grew up on the farm, learning to love horses, holding leadership positions in 4-H and graduating from Klemme High School in 1960. Jane acquired a degree from Iowa State University in Textile and Clothing in 1964 and a teaching certificate in 1980.

One week following graduation, Jane married Lowell Greimann in Klemme, Iowa on June 7, 1964. They moved to Boulder, Colorado where Jane worked as a seamstress and then office worker to support her husband's further education and proudly bore their first son, Chad. The young family moved to San Antonio where their second son, Blair was born. While in Texas, Jane worked with children in the Hispanic community and low-income adults. The Greimanns returned to Ames in 1973 to be nearer parents and grandparents. Jane flew to Chicago in 1975 to bring home their adopted daughter, Amy, who just arrived from Viet Nam.

Jane taught art, health and family and consumer science at Nevada Junior High for sixteen years. While teaching, she worked on studies of student health with regard to cholesterol, helped to start a breakfast program, taught parenting classes, made a five week trip to Russia in 1992 and sat on the Board of Eastern Story County Youth and Shelter Services. Jane retired from full-time employment in 1998.

Jane served in almost every volunteer position at Collegiate Presbyterian Church, including chair of the most recent pastor search committee, elder, deacon, Sunday school teacher for both children and adults, co-leader of mid-week program
