CAPT. J. H. POWERS DEAD

Was Long a Prominent Citizen of New Hampton---Other Deaths.

Tuesday evening, May 21, 1907, Captain J. H. Powers, for fifty years a citizen of this county and for nearly that length of time prominently identified with its growth and development, passed quietly from the scenes of his long and active life.

Capt. Powers had been in feeble health for several years, and especially for several days past. Last Thursday, however, he seemed stronger than he had for days, and ate a good supper. Shortly after the meal in walking across the room he was seen to collapse. His wife and daughter went to him and supported him to the floor. Assistance was called and he was put to bed. From that hour till he breathed his last at 5:30 Tuesday evening he was unconscious of his surroundings.

Julius Henry Powers was born at Rochester, Vermont May 22, 1830, and hence lacked one day of being 77 years of age. He was the son of Alanson P. and Serepta Martin Powers. When he was 6 years old his parents moved to Freedom, Ohio, thence to Berlin in the same state where he received a common school education which was supplemented by a course in Kingsville Academy. He then at the age of 20 became a teacher in the academy at Berlin and while thus engaged took up the study of law. Later he studied with M. B. Walker and Louis Gunkle at Dayton, Ohio, and then took a course in the Law School of Cincinnati College, from which school he was graduated in March, 1855. In his busy youth he had learned bricklaying and after graduation, while prospecting in Texas, he worked at that trade as he also did when he came to Allamakee county a little later. He was called back to Ohio by his father's death and did not return to Iowa till May, 1857.

He first located at what was once Forest City a mile west of the present Williamstown corner. When a year or two afterwards, the county seat came from Bradford to New Hampton, he came with it. He soon became a prominent factor in politics, taking a leading part in the two bitter county seat fights and always for New Hampton. And it was doubtless due to his influence and activity that New Hampton finally won and is today the official capital of Chickasaw county.

On August 31, 1859 he and Miss Engenia E. Stebbins, whose acquaintance he had made while on a professional visit to Garnaville in Clayton county, were united in marriage at Garnaville and at once took up their residence in New Hampton. In the same year of their marriage Captain Powers was elected State Senator for the district comprising this and several other counties in northeastern Iowa, and served in the session of 1859 and the following winter of '60, when he resigned to enlist in the Titanic struggle which followed. He enlisted as private in Co. B, Seventh Iowa Infantry. He came home in the fall of 1861 and organized Company I, Ninth Iowa Infantry and was given a commission as its Captain, serving until 1863, when sickness compelled his resignation. He was for a number of years engaged in the practice of law with the late Sam J. Kenyon, and when that firm dissolved he continued to practice alone up to the time when his failing health compelled him to give up active life entirely.

Captain Powers was one of the early active and influential Republicans of this county and during his entire life was an interested participant in upholding the principles of the party. He was an active worker in the church and assisted in the organization of the Congregational church and society of this city, and had much to do in directing its affairs.

Captain Powers' was a busy, active life. His time not taken up by his practice of law was devoted to literary pursuits and to the promotion of civic and religious advancement, some ten years ago he published a history of Chickasaw county of considerable interest to the older generation and of considerable value to the younger. He is survived by his wife, one daughter Isabella Eugenia and two sons, Edwin Hosmer Powers and Dr. Julius H. Powers, Jr., both of Saginaw, Michigan. He also leaves three sisters—Mrs. F. E. Aiken of Duluth, Minn., Mrs. John Dawes of Stoughton, Wis., and Mrs. C. R. Bruce of Elk Point, South Dakota. The funeral was held from the Congregational church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. A. Eakin preaching the sermon and the G. A. R. post of this city having charge of the services.

MRS. JOHN B. CLARK

At her home in Fredericksburg township Saturday May 18, 1907 occurred the death of Mrs. John B. Clark.

Jane Harrington Clark was born in Yorkshire, England, April 15, 1838. In 1839, her parents came to America and located in Cook county, Illinois. She lived with her parents until 1860, when she was united in marriage to John B. Clark. In 1869, they came to Fredericksburg where they have since made their home.

Mrs. Clark was the mother of nine children: Robert, David, John, Horace, Susie, Anna, Alfred, Ernest and Jennie. These children with the exception of John, Horace and Ernest, had preceded their mother to the better land where parting will no more be.

The good woman has left three sons, and a husband, numerous relatives, and a host of friends to mourn her death.

The funeral was held at the M. E. church, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Smith conducting the service. The worn and weary body was laid to rest in beautiful Rose Hill.

Death comes an unsought guest to every board, and at his spectral bidding some loved one goes forth to his mysterious home.

Time and philosophy may teach resignation unto hearts made desolate by his coming; but they can never fill the vacancy therein when she that was our mother no longer casts a halo about our darkened heart. A mother's place—so loved—so worshiped—once empty, must be forever so.—Fredericksburg News

He proves that in Europe, according to McKay of the state agriculture, dairymen are prospering that are worth all the way to $1000 per acre, and they to pay interest on such value of the butter cost. How do you breed that will average of 3000 three pounds of butter a year that amount is the Iowa average means that $35 is the yield a calf. In Europe the yield price (they get more) is $20 Republican.

Cannot Be Confined

We are informed that recently appeared in one of the papers stating that Chas. Simpson, former resident of Chickasaw had committed suicide in Iowa. He have been unable to learn farther than this, but as Chas. moved from this county to Illinois about three years ago much speculation is felt by his many friends that the unfortunate is Mr. Simpson, for many years upon a farm in South Richland he moved to Fredericksburg there to New Hampton and moved to Illinois. He was a capable man, and one who was to do at one time. He also a member of the board of supervisors of Chickasaw county for some time. Hur Reporter.

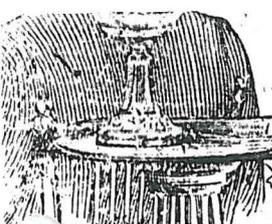

An investigation of this case to confirm, but rather discredited.

Echo Jr. Injured

As the result of a fall recently being tracked last Monday, the celebrated pacing horse in critical condition at Shell Rock the fall a bunch appeared before legs, which is supposed to have been caused by the shoe striking his fall. A local doctor probed the contusion and a hemorrhage that was stopped with great difficulty and left the animal in weak condition from the loss of blood. Dr. Inger and other veterinarians now attending the animal but covers at all, it is hardly likely can be raced this season. He entered at Libertyville and meets, and prior to his injury in fine condition. Echo is one of the greatest racing horses that have been produced, measured by the time in races won. He won nearly all the races in which he was entered the summers of 1904 and 1905, but not tracked last season. His record of 2:07 1/2 and his owner had refused $5000 for him. Democrat.

byterian church in Menlo and after his removal to Des Moines was elected an elder in the church in the capital city. He lived a life in consistent harmony with his professions. In his business career he won success by honorable methods and in every relation of life he commanded the respect and trust of his fellowmen by reason of his fidelity to the most honorable principles. He had many sterling traits of character which won him high regard and friendship and his example is one well worthy of emulation, proving that success and an honored name may be won simultaneously.

CAPTAIN JULIUS HENRY POWERS.

Captain Julius Henry Powers was an honored veteran of the Civil war, for whom "lights out" sounded on the 21st of May, 1907. For a half century he had been a resident of New Hampton and of Chickasaw county, and through the greater part of that period was closely connected with the growth, development and progress of the district in which he lived, leaving the impress of his individuality for good upon the history of the county and of the state. He was a man of letters and devoted most of his leisure hours to literature. The high regard of those who came within the circle of his friendship grew and strengthened as the years went on and they came to know him better.

He was born in Rochester, Vermont, May 22, 1830, and had therefore reached the age of seventy-seven years, lacking one day, when death called him. His parents were Alanson P. and Serepta (Martin) Powers, who removed from New England to Freedom, Ohio, when their son Julius was but six years of age. Later they became residents of Berlin, Ohio, and there he attended the common schools, while later he pursued a course in Kingsville Academy. He took up the profession of teaching when twenty years of age in the Academy of Berlin and while thus engaged devoted every spare moment to the study of law. Later he continued his reading with M. B. Walker and Louis Gunkle, at Dayton, Ohio, and afterward entered upon a course in the law school of Cincinnati College, from which institution he was graduated in March, 1855. His youth was a period of earnest toil. His education was acquired under circumstances that would have discouraged many a young man of less resolute spirit. He was but thirteen years of age when he began learning the trade of brick-laying, at which his father worked, and he was employed in that manner through the summer months until nineteen years of age, while in the winter seasons he attended school. All through his school days and until after he had completed his preparation for the bar he was obliged to rely upon his own labors for his maintenance. Following his graduation from the law school he went upon a prospecting tour to Texas and there worked at the brick-laying trade, which he afterward followed in Allamakee county, Iowa. When the news of his father's death reached him, he returned to Ohio, where he remained until May, 1857, when he again came to Iowa and opened a law office in Forest City but in the following year he removed to New Hampton, when the county seat was there established.

From that time until his death, covering a period of almost a half century, Mr. Powers maintained his residence in New Hampton and was a prominent and influential citizen. He opened a law office and for many years engaged in practice, being recognized as an able member of the bar. For a number of years he followed his profession as a partner of the late Sam J. Kenyon, and after the dissolution of the firm he remained in practice alone until failing health obliged him to withdraw from the active work of the courts. He was ever a careful and painstaking lawyer, preparing his cases with thoroughness and presenting his cause forcefully and logically. He devoted his leisure time to the study of literature and published a history of Chickasaw county of considerable interest to the older generation and of value to all time.

It was the practice of his profession that took Captain Powers to Garnavillo, Clayton county, Iowa, and there he formed the acquaintance of Miss Eugenia F. Stebbins, who had come to the middle west from Massachusetts in search of health. The friendship formed between them ripened into love and they were married August 31, 1859, establishing their home in New Hampton, where they continued to reside until death called them. Mrs. Powers traced her ancestry back to Rowland Stebbins, who was born in England in 1594, came to America in 1634 and died at Northampton, Massachusetts, December 14, 1671. The line of descent is traced down through Lieutenant Thomas Stebbins, who was born in England in 1620, came with his father to America in 1634, and died at Springfield, Massachusetts, September 15, 1683. Samuel Stebbins, of the third generation, was born September 19, 1646, at Springfield, Massachusetts, where he died July 13, 1708. Lieutenant William Stebbins, born at Springfield, Massachusetts, July 27, 1693, died at Long Meadow, Massachusetts, October 30, 1776. Ezra Stebbins, born at Long Meadow, August 16, 1731, enlisted for service in the Revolutionary war, March 2, 1777, and was with his command one month and ten days, marching to reinforce the northern army at Ticonderoga. He was discharged April 10, 1777, and died February 5, 1796, at Long Meadow, Massachusetts. Ezra Stebbins, born August 14, 1760, at Long Meadow, enlisted August 12, 1777, as a drummer and was on duty for three months and eighteen days, being discharged November 30, 1777. On the 18th of October, 1779, he reenlisted as a private and was with his command for one month and eleven days at Claverack. He died at Long Meadow, July 25, 1819. His son, Aaron Chapin Stebbins, born December 29, 1804, at Long Meadow, Massachusetts, died at New Hampton, Iowa, June 8, 1888. He was the father of Eugenia Flavia Stebbins, who was born January 12, 1838, at Long Meadow, Massachusetts, and became the wife of Captain J. H. Powers. Of this marriage there were born a daughter and four sons: Clarence, who died at the age of one and one-half years; Isabella Eugenia; Edwin Hosmer, of Saginaw, Michigan; Alanson Aaron, who died at the age of four years and three months; and Dr. Julius H. Powers, who is practicing his profession in Saginaw.

Captain Powers had every reason to be proud of his military record. In the fall of 1859 he was elected state senator from his district, which comprised several counties, and attended the session of 1860 and the special session of 1861, when the assembly was known as the "war legislature." He then resigned his position in the senate, where his able service as a distinguished lawyer and student of political economy reflected credit upon his district, and enlisted July 24, 1861, in defense of the Union, as a private of Company B, Seventh Iowa Infantry. After a few weeks he returned from the field and organized Company I of the Ninth Iowa, being commissioned captain, August 17, 1861. He did valiant duty with his regiment for two years, when he was forced to resign at Young's Point, Louisiana, April 13, 1863, and returned home because of ill health, which brought on a lameness from which he never recovered. He had served as judge advocate at Helena, Arkansas, during the summer of 1862. He was in the first rush on Vicksburg, also at Chickasaw Bayou and Arkansas Post, and in the last named engagement was wounded in the leg, from which he suffered much through the remainder of his life.

Following his return, Captain Powers worked just as zealously and earnestly for the interest and upbuilding of county, state and nation as he did when in the legislative halls or on the battlefield. He was a staunch republican, never wavering in his support of the principles of the party, and few men were better informed concerning its history. He was one of the first to espouse the cause of the party and he continued to give to it his active support until his demise. He was also equally active as a member of and worker in the Congregational church, serving almost continuously as one of its officers, filling the position of deacon at the time of his death. He acted as superintendent of the Sunday school and was a generous contributor to the building fund when the new house of worship was erected. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic order and of A. P. Martin Post, G. A. R., and at one time also belonged to the Odd Fellows. He continued in the practice of law and on the 3d of March, 1876, was admitted to the circuit court of Iowa. At the same time he aided in the material development of the county in his efforts to secure the building of the railroad to this point. He was more influential than any other citizen in inducing the McGregor & Sioux City, now the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, to enter New Hampton and for several years he served as attorney of the road. His life was an influence for good along material, intellectual, political and moral progress. Like all who take an advanced step he had opposition which developed into enmity but the years proved that his integrity was unassailable. He was ready to make sacrifice for the right and would even stand unjust and bitter opposition with a marked degree of courage and manliness, that even challenged the admiration of those who tried to thwart him and that drew his friends all the closer to him. His own sense of right and the honesty of his purpose upheld him. He lived and labored without staining the spotless integrity of his soul; he loved the things of life which are most worth while and the opposition which he met seemed to serve to strengthen his character. His character grew mellow and perfect with the passing of time and the close of his life was crowned with admiration, respect, friendship and love. His ideals were most high and his memory remains as a blessed benediction to all with whom he was closely associated. Prominent and active as he was in public life his best traits of character were ever reserved for his own family and fireside and to those of his household remains a beautiful memory of a tender, considerate and loving husband and father.

JUDGE JOSIAH ALLEN HARVEY.

Judge Josiah Allen Harvey, one of Iowa's great lawyers and a distinguished legislator, was the true father of the amendment bill of 1832. That he was an abolitionist and prohibitionist is indicative of the fact that at all times his influence was on the side of the oppressed, those who were suffering either through external agencies or through their own lack of judgment and will. He believed in safe-

Description:
 This database is an index to 50 million individuals enumerated in the 1880 United States Federal Census. Census takers recorded many details including each person's name, address, occupation, relationship to the head of household, race, sex, age at last birthday, marital status, place of birth, parents' place of birth. Additionally, the names of those listed on the population schedule are linked to actual images of the 1880 Federal Census. Learn more...
