12. Other applicable information

- Nearly all his life he was an evangelist on the frontiers, first in Indiana and then to Iowa.
- After attaining his markbook in Concord, New Hampshire, he went to Stagnon County, New York where for 7 years he was a minister in the Methodist churches of the area.
- Because of church questions of ordinances of the Methodist Church and a question of the church government he united with the Christian Church. It occurred 42 years before his death in South Butler, Logan County, Indiana.
- He soon became very well known as a man of great ability and character by the people of his churches.
- He moved to Indiana in 1842 and for 12 years preached in that state as well as Michigan.
- In 1854 he came to Iowa, locating in Dallas County and for the rest of his life he ministered to nearly 2500 souls.
- He would hold discussion sessions regularly on religious and non-religious topics.
- He wrote many essays and also a large work titled "Materialism Against itself"

All the members are urged to be present.

S. J. Currott, Esq., has greatly improved his residence by repainting it. The job is a credit to his taste and ability. The painters, Stebbings, Gibbons & Co. did the work.

It now seems evident that the world's fair that was to have been held at New York is to be a failure, and you who have been saving up your dimes to spend in that direction are just that much ahead.

Will McMullen is having erected on his lots in the southern part of town a dwelling 16x21 a story and a half high. He says it will be for rent, but the way in which he tries to hurry the workmen indicates that for some reason he wants the job finished in short order.

H. A. Kendall, the theatrical manager and the Chariton correspondent of the late Register are liable to have a coming together. The correspondent asserts that the lady members of the Kendall troupe chew tobacco and drink beer. Mr. K. asserts emphatically that it is a lie, but threatens to hold the Register responsible for the slander.

If there is one way more than another at you can captivate editors and printers it is by bringing them something to eat, and if there is one man more than another that we particularly admire, that man is M. E. Coons, who came striding into our office last Friday with a large bowl chock full of delicious ice cream. It would have charmed you to have seen that cream fade away.

The young ladies of Westfield, N. Y., according to the Rochester Democrat, have held a public gathering of their kind apropos to the unfortunate fate of a Iowa girl who died of excessive hunger, and adopted rather skeptical resolutions declare the belief of the fair reviewers that such an event is impossible, and that, despite the gloomy telegraphic reports, they will still favor the custom and take all the risks.

The lecture course was closed Thursday with a lecture by Col. Sanders upon his travels in Japan and China and we are at a loss to write it up in such a manner as to do the Colonel justice. He was very interesting, and while he imparted a vast amount of information, he succeeded, by Moines" for the year 1892. It is a well gotten up pamphlet of forty-eight pages and is mostly devoted to an advertisement of Des Moines, her business, her present inducements as a business point and her future prospects. As an advertising scheme it is a decided success.

Judge McHenry is noted for his odd way of saying things some times. He is credited with the following remark at Des Moines upon a recent occasion when the lawyers were making more noise than he considered consistent with the peace and dignity of his court: "Gentlemen, you're hummin' here and hummin' there, an' makin' so much noise that if Gabriel should blow his trumpet I would get left, for I wouldn't be able to hear it."

Elder Peter T. Russell died at his home in Des Moines on Thursday last at the advanced age of 73 years. The deceased was for many years a resident of Adel, and is widely known throughout the county, having been sent from here in 1862 as a member of the State Legislature. Shortly after reaching his majority Mr. Russell entered the ministry and has ever since up to the time of his death been an effective worker for the cause of Christ.

this life, etc. After which testimony Snider addressed the Court and related the history of his wounds and also concluded by saying that he had only a few days to linger in this world and he, although guilty of robbery while under the influence of one of his inmates at tacks, disliked to go to the penitentiary to die, and asked the Judge to allow him the privilege of going home to die in his mother's arms, etc. In accordance with which testimony and request Judge McHenry sentenced him to thirty days in the penitentiary and placed him in the hands of Sheriff Dittleton to hold until Gov. Gear responded to a recommendation for a pardon, which he placed in the hands of Snider's attorney.

insulted, and said they would settle it in a personal way if Mr. S. had anything to say against his honesty of purpose, etc. Mr. S. replied that he did not want to get into any trouble, but they couldn't bull-doze him. The men finding that the game had failed to Mr. S. that it was about train time and that if he was going to Winterset he had better start, etc., and left him. Mr. S. went to Winterset, transacted his business, and returned at 11 o'clock yesterday and put up at the International hotel, where he overheard the men sitting around there talking about the Mills confidence game and then told his experience. Several of the boarders advised him to tell his story to the police, and some of them went with Mr. Shellberger to the police headquarters, where he found the officer and detailed the above facts. Together with a couple of officers he started on a tour of the city in the endeavor to come across the men with whom he had the experience of the day before, and they came upon Officers Jarvis and Hanger just in time to identify Burk as the man who represented the Express agent, while those officers were making the arrest in the Monitor House yard. Mr. Shellberger did not know McCarty, but was certain about Burk as the person who asked for the advancement of the express charges. This would seem to argue that there are fully six of the gang in this city, for the two who robbed Mr. Mills have not been found yet, and only one of the two who undertook to play their little game upon Mr. Shellberger. Either this is case, or there are but two of them, and they operate under "make-up" or disguise. The parties now in confinement are shrewd and sharp and understand their business thoroughly. They do not appear to be alarmed at all, thinking that if the present charges cannot be proven they will be given their liberty. It is more than likely that these two fellows are the couple of Chicago faro gamblers who have been working the state for some time. One of them, always a nice old man in "make-up," stands and the fragments and timbers and lifted away from the spot the boy had last noticed the man sitting sure enough there was the doubled form of the man who had but a moment before stopped at Mr. Wengler's shop. The man was picked up and carried into the shop where he waited for the ambulance to take him to the hospital. He could contribute little but it was learned that his name was Christian and that he was intending to return to Omaha as soon as he could. In relation to the accident he said he thought it was too early to go to the widow's house after his quarter after leaving the hospital, and so thought he would sit on a block on the north and shady side of the empty building to rest, while he waited for the agreed time, and he was there when the building fell upon him instantly without warning. It appears that the building was one of the old shells that have long since made Third street one of the graceful looking streets in the city, but it had rotted down so as to be fit only for kindling wood it was moved to the corner of Third and Walnut streets and placed on Third street, where the owners expected to use it as a store-room. That it was totally destroyed by the accident fully demonstrated, if a building will fall down flat without provocation of any kind, it has a breath of air, it certainly could not have the strength enough to hold stored up. Why men will endeavor to economize and remove and undertake to occupy space which was a very general problem, yes, day after the accident. Mr. Frieze was present writing at the hospital under the supervision of Dr. Hanawalt, and all that can be done for him. It is thought that he has received severe internal injuries, his recovery is very doubtful. There were a large number of little children playing about the same building the day before the accident and the marvel is that they escaped. This reckless moving of buildings and rookeries should be vetoed at once. There is no reasonable excuse for undertaking the risk of human life to keep up buildings that are worthless save as kindling. A very general protest went out from the city yesterday after the accident and the further removal of such rickety buildings and it is not unlikely that the City will be petitioned to take action to prevent such a matter at an early date.

of what he believed, for out of this number of discussions he was the challenging party only three times. He held two of these discussions with Rev. Erasmus Mansfield, the leader of the Universalists, and one with W. W. Cunniff, at Danville, Indiana, of the same church, which is still remembered as a remarkable contest by many people who live in Des Moines.

He was often engaged with his pen and has published a great many essays and sermons, and also a large work entitled "Materialism against Itself." At the time of his death he was engaged in preparing a review of the celebrated work of Alexander Hall on the "Problem of Human Life." He was unable to print it, but has solved ere this the great problem for us all, "does death end all?" He was Chaplain of the Thirty-Ninth Iowa during the last two years of the war, and will be remembered by a great many of the Iowa soldiers. His patriotism was of that kind that although past the age for service he would do something for his country in the hour of need.

He was married October 20, 1842, in Michigan, to Adelgritha Shorter, who still survives him, and with her kind ministrations has smoothed his way to the end of his life and still waits to join him and the other ones on the other shore. They had three children, only one of whom, Hon. W. S. Russell, of Perry, is now living. James dying when young, and George, the well known attorney who was so sadly mourned about two years ago in our city.

He was a member of the Iowa Legislature from Dallas county in 1862, and took a high rank in that body, his speech on slack water navigation displaying a research and knowledge of the question of such a character that it was published throughout the State. This was the only political office he ever held, being rather adverse to public life, choosing rather to preach the gospel of Christ as he had opportunity. The congregation now worshipping at the Christian chapel was largely the result in its incipiency of his freely given labors. He has labored for them in the years gone by and they sincerely mourn his loss to day.

With a moral character sustained, a religious faith verging on the sublime, a mind of superior order, a name without reproach, a reputation for sincere devotion to his ideas of truth he has gone into the realm of the unseen to meet the God whom he served. That he will hear the call of his Master saying, "Well done good and faithful servant," is the profound faith of all those who know him. He selected for the text of his funeral those triumphant words of the great Apostle Paul, "I have fought a good fight," and they are expressive of the conquest and victory over sin and death that he has gained.

His funeral will take place at the Christian chapel at 2:30 p. m. on Sunday. A fitting eulogy upon his life and character will be pronounced by Elder Lucas.

FUNERAL NOTICE.—The funeral of Miss Argie, 11-year old daughter of Patrick McTighe, will occur from her home on East Court Avenue this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The friends of the family are invited to attend without further notice.

DIED.—At his residence in Des Moines, Thursday, May 5, Peter Russell.

The funeral services will be held at the Christian church to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, Elder Lucas officiating.

The deceased was one of the oldest ministers of the Christian church in this state, and is known in almost every church in Iowa. He was often engaged with his pen and has published a great many essays and sermons, and also a large work entitled "Materialism against Itself." At the time of his death he was engaged in preparing a review of the celebrated work of Alexander Hall on the "Problem of Human Life." He was born in Concord, New Hampshire, April 3, 1808, and was consequently at the time of his death, May 5, 1881, upwards of three score and ten, or 73 years of age. He was educated at Phillips' Academy, at Exeter,
