NATIONAL SCENIC BYWAY
About the Byway Maps
The main part of the Byway, called the spine, is marked in dark blue on the maps. The spine is always on paved roads, ranging from two-lane county highways to state highways and four-lane interstates.

Excursion loops and connections are marked in green. These routes are a mix of gravel and paved roads.

Red numbers: The county maps show the mileage between various points on the spine.

Byway Attractions, indicated by triangles with black letters, are the most closely related to the hills in one manner or another.

Area Attractions also listed are other places you might want to visit. These are not on the Byway route but are nearby and are mentioned in the text of each chapter.

Shaded portions of the maps illustrate the extent of the landform of Iowa’s Loess Hills which is determined by where the depth of the loess is greater than 60 feet.

B Roads: While traveling the Byway and its excursion routes, you may notice signs noting “B” roads off to the side of the routes. This guide does not direct readers to use any B roads. Those signs warn travelers to use those low-maintenance roads at their own risk especially if they’re wet.

See page 4 for notes about driving in the Loess Hills.
Welcome to the Loess Hills National Scenic Byway

Flanking Iowa’s western border, the Loess Hills National Scenic Byway passes through a unique land formation that’s up to 15 miles wide and about 200 miles long from north of Sioux City, Iowa to near St. Joseph, Missouri.

So……what are the Loess Hills?

They are hills made almost entirely of windblown soils. Toward the end of the last ice age, winds picked up soils that had been ground as fine as flour and formed dunes along the ancient waterway that became today’s Missouri River. The process repeated itself during the thousands of years the ice age took to end, enlarging the dunes. Because the prevailing winds were from the northwest, the dunes on the Iowa side of the river were higher than those west of the Missouri.

Today, the definition of a Loess Hill is a hill made of loess that is more than 60 feet in height; using that definition; about 640,000 acres of land in western Iowa constitute the Loess Hills landform.

Although deposits of loess are found across the world, nowhere else but China are those deposits higher than they are in Iowa.

Eventually, topsoils evolved on the dunes and a unique natural community developed. Ice age animals like wooly mammoth, camel, giant beaver and giant sloth roamed the Loess Hills during the Hills’ early years. Humans have lived here off and on for 6,000 years as evidenced by stone tools, spear points, pottery and burial sites.
Lewis and Clark Corps of Discovery
When Captains Meriwether Lewis and William Clark led their Corps of Discovery through this region in the summer of 1804, the Hills were covered with prairie. The scant trees that existed hugged the waterways. At that time, Oto and Missourie tribes lived in the southern part of the Hills and the Omaha in the mid-section of the Hills.

Change Comes to the Loess Hills
Around the 1850s, change came to the Loess Hills. Farms, communities and roads checked the wildfires that had cleansed the prairie of the always encroaching trees and woodland plants and, as you can see now, trees blanket most of the Hills. Of the prairie that had covered the Hills, only 22,000 acres remain with about 4,500 acres being in the Broken Kettle Grasslands, the largest self-sustaining parcel of prairie in Iowa.

Now surrounded by forests and developed lands, the pockets of prairie in the Hills are islands of prairie flora and fauna not found until hundreds of miles to the west and not seen elsewhere in Iowa. Among these animals are the prairie rattlesnake (only in a very small area near Westfield in the northern Hills), plains pocket mouse, upland sandpiper, zebra swallowtail, ornate box turtle and plains spadefoot toad. Among the plants are ten-petal blazing star, spear grass, tumble grass and prairie moonwort. The native yucca you see here is at its easternmost limit in North America.

Unique Features of the Loess Hills
The Loess Hills have some features that are unique because of their soil.

First, if you look at a hill through which a road has been cut or part has been removed (usually for fill elsewhere), you will see its cross-section is almost uniformly loess. Only in the northern and southern reaches of the Hills are rocks naturally exposed.

Second, if you were to remove the topsoil from the slope of a Loess Hill, the exposed loess will erode like sugar when saturated. Local people call the loess soil “sugar clay” for this reason. Even when covered with topsoil, loess can slump, most often in a unified manner across a slope creating the characteristic “cat step” ledges seen on some grassy hills.

Oddly though, cut a Loess Hill vertically and its wall can stand for decades due to the interlocking characteristics of the loess soil particles.

If You Want to Learn More……..
A good resource about the Loess Hills is Cornelia Mutel’s book, “Fragile Giants,” sold at area bookstores.

You can also learn about the Hills at the annual Loess Hills Seminar, conducted by the Northwest Area Education Agency (800-352-9040, ext. 6080) and held on the weekend after the Memorial Day weekend near Turin. For more info visit online at www.nwaea.k12.ia.us/en/upcoming_events/loess_hills_seminar
The Routes

This guide to the Loess Hills National Scenic Byway takes you through Iowa’s Loess Hills from north to south, through each of the seven counties where the Hills are located. This allows you to use the guidebook and the Iowa Travel Guide, obtained from Iowa Welcome Centers and the Iowa Tourism Office, which is also set up in a north-to-south manner. Detailed maps are provided of each county.

Note that unlike most of the rest of Iowa where roads run true east and west or north and south, the roads in the Loess Hills wind here and there. You’ll have plenty of opportunities to enjoy the many wonderful views and places along the way.

Traveling in the Loess Hills

Gravel Roads: A few tips for those who have not driven on gravel roads:
1) stay to the right when going uphill;
2) take curves slower than usual, allow extra time to stop and don’t speed because gravel doesn’t offer the best traction; and
3) remember, this is the nation’s food basket. That means slow-moving farm equipment and trucks will be on the roads at times too, especially during spring planting and fall harvest.

Fences: Do not cross fences unless a specific opening — such as for a hiking trail — exists. Also, for those unfamiliar with Midwestern fences, do not touch single strand fences that do not have barbs on them — these are electric fences meant to contain livestock.

Other Notes

Services in the Loess Hills vary greatly as communities range from small towns of less than a hundred people to the largest cities in the Hills, Council Bluffs with 58,000 people and Sioux City with 83,000 residents.

When using this guide, you may also want to use the free Iowa Travel Guide and the official Transportation Map published by the Iowa Department of Transportation. You can get these at Iowa Welcome Centers across the state or by calling the Iowa Tourism Office at 888-472-6035 or 515-242-4705.

Enjoy the Loess Hills and when you leave, you can tell your friends that you’ve been to a place like none other in North America.
When you arrive in Akron, look for information about the Loess Hills and the Byway on the information kiosk in the city park along Iowa Hwy. 12 on the city’s north side. Although Akron is the northern anchor of Iowa’s Loess Hills, you’re no doubt looking around and wondering, “What hills?”

If you watch as you drive south out of Akron on Iowa Hwy. 12, you will see them rise gently out of the relatively flat fields like gentle swells on the ocean on the east side of the highway within a couple miles of town. To the west you’ll see the Big Sioux River, Iowa’s boundary with South Dakota.

When you arrive in Westfield, the westernmost city in Iowa, be sure to follow the signs to the Loess Hills Interpretive Center which has new exhibits in a former one-room schoolhouse at Union and Linden streets.

As you continue south on Highway 12, you will notice the Hills rise in height and become more sharply etched. Similarly, you will also notice that, at times, the highway lies on a narrow ledge of land between the base of the Hills and the Big Sioux River.
EXCURSION LOOPS

Ridge Road Loop
- Just south of Westfield on Iowa Hwy. 12, turn left (east) onto County Rd. C43.
- One mile later, you should follow C43 as it turns right (south, as Birch Rd.) and just more than a half-mile later, it becomes North Ridge Rd. Soon, the road lifts you above the floodplain and takes you along several ridges, offering vistas of Iowa and South Dakota. Along the way you will see Butcher Rd, which forms the Butcher Road Connection.
- About 3 miles after coming upon Butcher Rd., you will turn right (southwest) onto County Rd. K18 to return to Iowa Hwy. 12, 4 miles later.
- Along the way you will see 260th St., the dirt road entrance to Five Ridge Prairie, a Plymouth County park.
- Allow about 25 minutes travel time for this 12-mile trip on asphalt and gravel roads.

Butcher Road Connection
- A bit more than 5 miles south of Westfield on Iowa Hwy. 12, you will come to Butcher Rd., where you will turn left (east). This 4-mile gravel road meanders from the base of the bluffs to a ridge where you meet County Rd. C43 (North Ridge Road, which forms the Ridge Road Loop). Butcher Road provides several places to look over the Broken Kettle Grasslands but only one turnout exists. So if you park other than at the turnout, use care.
- Allow 10 to 15 minutes for this drive on gravel.

THE BYWAY, north to south

- Enter Woodbury County on Highway 12 near the entrance to Stone State Park on Iowa Hwy. 12. Continue south on Hwy. 12 near the base of the Hills, passing through western Sioux City. There, the Byway joins I-29 at Exit 151 and travels south for 10 miles along the Missouri River.
- At Exit 141, you leave I-29 for County Rd. D38 which runs east through some small hills before turning southeast onto County Rd. D25.
- After traveling on the flanks of the Hills, which offer views of the wide valley of the Missouri River, enter the Hills and shortly afterward arrive in Smithland.
- From there, take County Rd. L12 to the south (right).

BYWAY ATTRACTIONS

- Stone State Park
  (712-255-4698): On Sioux City’s northwest side, the 1,069-acre park has prairie-topped ridges and dense woods. Visitors can see three states from Dakota Point and Elk Point overlooks. Multi-use trails, shelters, 9 electric and 21 non-electric campsites, RV sites and interpretive panels are throughout the park.

EXCURSION LOOPS

Stone Park Loop
- You will find this 3-mile paved route pretty curvy as it passes through the 1,069-acre state park on the northwest side of Sioux City. Be aware that hikers are on the road at times.
- You should allow about 15 minutes for this 3-mile paved loop.

Smokey Hollow Loop
- You travel a 12-mile-long triangle north of Smithland in a region dominated by woods and farm fields. The route begins in Smithland and heads north on Iowa Hwy 21 to Oto.
- In Oto, turn left (west) onto 290th St. until you reach Knox Avenue about 8 miles later.
- There, turn left (south) onto Knox which eventually returns you to the west side of Smithland when you meet Old Highway 141 and turn left (east).
- Sioux outlaw Inkpaduta camped in this region before leading others north to commit the Spirit Lake Massacre in 1857.
- Allow 20-25 minutes for this pleasant loop on paved and gravel roads.

Stagecoach Trail Loop
- You’ll be on paved and gravel roads for most of this 7-mile route that heads west of Smithland on Iowa Hwy. 141 to County Rd. K67 which you take to the south. Watch for traces of the stagecoach trail that once connected Sioux City with other communities.
- Southwood Conservation Area is on the route as are Fowler Forest Preserve and the Smithland Museum and Log Cabin. The route has limited sightlines. Along the way, note a rarity in the Loess Hills — a nob hill standing all by itself on the west side of K67.
- Allow about 15 minutes to drive this gravel route.

SIoux City
Also known as Siouxland, the Sioux City metro area encompasses three cities, three rivers and parts of three states. The Missouri River, which forms the “shore of the prairie,” was the lifeline of the community for several years. Riverboats traveling to and from Montana gold fields made Sioux City an important stop until railroads pushed further west. Now it is an economic hub of northwest Iowa.

Siouxland Historic Railroad Association
(712-233-6996): 3400 River Rd. south of Dorothy Pecaut Nature Center on Highway 12. In the former Milwaukee Railroad roundhouse complex, the museum displays the city’s historic steam locomotive, GH 1355 (which is on the National Register of Historic Places), a switch engine and rolling stock. Call for hours.

THE BYWAY, north to south

- You enter Monona County on County Rd. L12 from Smithland.
- About 5 miles after leaving Smithland, turn left (east) at 133rd St., which is also County Rd. E16, to cross the floodplain of the Little Sioux River and enter the Hills just east of the river.
- After being on 133rd St. for just under 3 miles, southeast), turn right (south) onto County Rd. L20 to ramble through more Hills until you’re east of them, going south to Castana, 8 miles later,
- As you approach Castana, turn right (south) onto Iowa Hwy 175 to follow the Maple River valley toward Turin.
- When you meet Iowa Hwy. 37, 4.5 miles later, turn left (east) for 1.5 miles until you reach County Rd. L16
- At County Rd. L16, turn right (south) to drive County Rd. L16 until it joins County Rd. E54, about 7.5 miles later. In less than a mile, you will enter Moorhead.
- In Moorhead, home of the Loess Hills Hospitality Association, you will see Iowa Hwy. 183. Turn right (southeast) to take that highway down the Soldier River valley to the county’s southern border, 5 miles away.

BYWAY ATTRACTIONS

A Timber Ridge Winery and Vineyard

B The Loess Hills Wildlife Area, Turin Loess Hills Nature Preserve and the Sylvan Runkel State Preserve
(712-423-2426): These three state-owned areas total more than 3,500 acres just north of Turin. They are also one of the larger areas in the Loess Hills that show the hills in their native prairie habitat. Some hiking trails begin at parking lots located on 178th Street and Oak Avenue. Also, this region is where the annual Loess Hills Seminar is hosted by the Northwest Area Education Agency (800-352-9040) on the weekend following the Memorial Day weekend. www.nwaea.k12.ia.us/en/upcoming_events/loess_hills_seminar

C Turin Man Archeological Site
(712-423-1384): The remains of humans who were buried at this undeveloped site about 6,000 years ago were found in 1955 and jointly called the Turin Man. They are the oldest human remains in Iowa.

D Ingemann Danish Lutheran Church
Built in 1884 by Danish immigrants, this picturesque country church is just over 4 miles west of Moorhead on County Rd. E54.

E Preparation Canyon State Park
(712-423-2829): A group of Mormons rested here in 1853 to prepare for continuing their journey to Utah, but they left the church to follow a charismatic leader who they later discovered was a swindler. This 344-acre park has hiking trails and nine backpack campsites. www.iowadnr.com/parks/state_park_list/preparation_canyon.html
EXCURSION LOOPS

Wilderness Loop
- You travel on paved and gravel roads on this 13-mile loop which begins by continuing to go south on County Rd. L12 after the Byway Spine turns off at County Rd. E16. This passes between two spurs of the Loess Hills and across the valley of the Little Sioux River.
- Almost 5.5 miles after starting this loop, turn left (northeast) at Nutmeg Avenue.
- About 2 miles later on Nutmeg Avenue is its junction with Oak Avenue which goes both to the right (southeast) and straight ahead (northeast); go straight ahead.
- Less than 1 mile later, turn right (east) at 160th Street and stay on 160th Street. Along the way, 160th Street traverses part of the Loess Hills Wildlife Management Area.
- When you meet Olive Avenue, turn right (southeast) and follow the avenue to County Rd. L20 – the Byway Spine—less than 2 miles later.
- At County Rd. L20, turn right (southwest) onto County Rd. L20 which will eventually lead you east, to Castana, a bit more than 2 miles away. Allow about 30 minutes to drive this loop.

Larpenteur Memorial Road Connection
- You take paved County Rd. L14 all the way on this 5.5-mile route that begins at the junction of L14 and L12 and follows the base of the Hills south to Turin. Small parking lots serve as trailheads. Allow about 15 minutes for this route.
- At Turin, either turn left (east) onto Iowa Hwy. 175/37 to rejoin the Byway Spine east of town or continue south on County Rd. L14 which starts Preparation Loop.

Preparation Loop
- This 15-mile loop heads south from Turin for about 9 miles along the base of the Hills on County Rd. L14 (also called Larpenteur Memorial Road) and turning left (east) onto County Rd. E60 which lifts you up into the Hills.
- About 1.5 miles after leaving L14, turn left (north) onto Oak Avenue.
- Less than ¾-mile later is a Y-intersection where 314th St. turns right (east) and leads to Preparation Canyon State Park 1 mile later.
- At the entry to the park, though, if you turn left (north), 314th St. will lead you to Iowa Hwy. 183, the spine of the Byway.
- Note: If you turn left (west) at the intersection of Oak Avenue and 314th St., you will find the Loess Hills State Forest overlook, a wooded platform atop one of the hills. Trails lead from the overlook into state-owned land. Allow about 30 minutes for this drive on paved and gravel roads.
Lewis and Clark State Park
(712-423-2829): Lewis and Clark used a keelboat to haul most of their supplies up the Missouri River. It was moved by sail, oars, poles and towlines. The replicas of the keelboat and the explorers’ smaller boats, called pirogues, which are quartered here were used in the Ken Burns’ documentary, “Undaunted Courage.”

THE BYWAY, north to south

- Enter Harrison County on Iowa Hwy. 183 from the north and pass through Pisgah, home of the Loess Hills State Forest Visitor Center.
- A bit more than 9 miles south of Pisgah, you meet Iowa Hwy. 127 which you take for 11 miles to the east edge of Logan, the county seat.
- At Logan, you turn left (west) on U.S. 30, which was the Lincoln Highway, the first transcontinental highway. As you drive west, you will arrive at the Harrison County Historical Village and Iowa Welcome Center.
- No more than one-half mile beyond the Harrison County Historical Village and Iowa Welcome Center on U.S. 30, turn left onto County Rd. F58 which runs east.
- About 4 miles later, at the junction of County Rd. L34, you turn right (south) to take L34 to the southern county line, about 6 miles away.
EXCURSION LOOPS

Fountainbleu Loop
- Travel about 9 miles as this loop heads west from Pisgah on County Rd. F20 to visit the overlook at Murray Hill.
- After leaving the overlook parking lot, County Rd. F20 meets County Rd. L14 a half-mile later.
- Also called Larpenteur Memorial Road, County Rd. L14 runs along the base of the Hills and turns briefly into the Missouri River valley before meeting Eden Avenue about 3.25 miles later.
- At Eden Avenue, also called, County Rd. K, turn left (south) for 1.5 miles.
- When you meet 165th Trail, turn left (east) until you reach Geneva Place, just more than 3.75 miles later.
- At Geneva Place, turn right (east) and follow the signs back to Pisgah, about 4.25 miles to the north and east.
- Allow about 30 minutes drive time on paved and gravel roads.

Orchard Ridge Loop
- Travel nearly 12 miles on this loop which goes east of Pisgah on County Rd. F20 and then south on County Rd. L23 through gently rolling hills to Magnolia where you rejoin the Byway Spine.
- Allow about 20 minutes’ drive time on paved roads.

Sawmill Hollow Run
- On this route, which starts where County Rd. L20 departs south from Iowa Hwy. 127, you follow an 1850’s stagecoach route, now an 11-mile journey. County Rd. L20 runs along the base of the Hills, before entering the Hills for nearly 6 miles until you meet County Rd. L23.
- At County Rd. L23, head north to Magnolia where you rejoin the Byway’s Spine.
- Although the route is entirely paved, you can also visit Sawmill Hollow which is accessed off County Rd. L20 by a low-maintenance “B” road that is well marked; caution is urged.
- Allow about 20 minutes drive time.

THE BYWAY, north to south

- Enter northern Pottawattamie County on County Rd. L34 which passes under I-680 and continues south with horizon-to-horizon views of farm fields that seem to roll away from the Byway.
- Nearly 14 miles later, when the Byway meets County Rd. G81, you should turn right (south) to follow that for 3.5 miles to U.S. 6 which leads into Council Bluffs.
- At U.S. 6, turn right (east) to go to S. 7th St. (Iowa Hwy. 92), a one-way street going south to the South Expressway which passes under I-29/80 to meet the South Omaha Bridge Rd., 3 miles later.
- At the South Omaha Bridge Rd. (also called Iowa Hwy. 92), you turn left (east) to pass over I-29 and then, less than 2 miles after leaving the South Expressway, meet Harry Langdon Blvd.
- At Harry Langdon Blvd., turn right (south). On your left is the Iowa School for the Deaf. Shortly afterward, the boulevard becomes Wabash Ave. and then County Rd. L35 which, for just more than 6 miles, leads you along the base of the Hills and sometimes rides high enough on their flanks to provide vistas of the Missouri River valley before you exit the county.

Hitchcock Loop

- This 27-mile loop on paved and gravel roads heads west on I-680 from its intersection with County Rd. L34. On the way is the I-680 Scenic Overlook, a good place to view the Hills and the Missouri River floodplain.
- At I-29, turn north and exit immediately at Exit 72 to enter the small community of Loveland.
- In Loveland, turn right (south) to take County Rd. L20 to the south which runs along the edge of the floodplain to Honey Creek where you enter the Hills. Less than 2 miles south of the small community of Honey Creek is the entrance to the Hitchcock Nature Area (see below in Byway Attractions). Continue south on County Rd. L20 to County Rd. L36 about ¾-mile away.
- At County Rd. L36, also called Coldwater Avenue, turn left (northeast) and follow this gravel road that winds through the Hills to return you to County Rd. L34 near the loop’s start, about 8 miles away.
- Allow about 40 minutes drive time.

COUNCIL BLUFFS

Centrally located in the Loess Hills, the community was called Kanesville when Mormons stopped here on their way west in the 1840s. In 1853, as hundreds of thousands of gold rushers and pioneers later made the city a crossroads to the west, it was renamed Council Bluffs, reflecting the title given the region by Lewis and Clark in 1804.

Rails West Railroad Museum

(712-323-5182): A former Rock Island depot with railroad memorabilia, the museum has a large HO-scale display with rolling stock and locomotives on the tracks outside. On the east side of the Byway near the South Expressway’s 16th Ave. intersection. Open 10 a.m. – 4 p.m., Wed. – Sat., 1-4 p.m. Sun., Apr. 1 – Oct. 31.

EXCURSION LOOPS

Pleasant Overview Loop
- This paved, 20-mile loop takes you east from the Spine toward Sidney on County Rd. J34, also called Knox Rd. Note that just after you get on County Rd. J34, if you take the first gravel road to your left (north), you’ll end up at an old cemetery which provides a beautiful overlook of some of the Loess Hills.
- On County Rd. L34, you will wind through the Hills to meet U.S. 275 in the southern part of Sidney.
- Turn left (north) onto Main St. which soon veers to the right around the county courthouse as Indiana St.
- At the far side of the square, you turn right at Filmore St., which is also Iowa Hwy. 2. This leads you out of the Hills onto the flats created by the West and East Nishnabotna Rivers.
- About 5 miles out of Sidney, you turn south on County Rd. L68 to the Riverton Wildlife Area, less than 4 miles south of Iowa Hwy. 2. Bring binoculars to watch the birds.
- In the town of Riverton, turn right (west) onto K St., which is also County Rd. J46.
- Upon intersecting U.S. 275 4.5 miles later, go straight on what is now Iowa Hwy. 2. In less than 2 miles is Waubonsie - Wa-Shawtee State Park and, a mile later, the Byway Spine on County Rd. L44 which is also called Bluff Rd.
- Allow about 35 minutes drive time on this paved route.

Spring Valley Loop
- This 3-mile route on gravel leads you through cuts in the Hills before rejoining the Byway Spine. Some caves and brick-faced cellars can be seen as well as some stone outcroppings, a rarity in the Loess Hills.
- You begin this loop by turning left (east) from County Rd. L44 onto 222nd St. which is less than a half mile south of County Rd. L34, the beginning of the Pleasant Overview Loop. At 270th Avenue, you turn right (south) and the avenue will lead you back to County Rd. L44, the Byway Spine, shortly.
- You will probably spend less than 10 minutes on this short drive on gravel surface.

Wines of the Loess Hills – Make It a Grape Time Here

At one time, Iowa boasted more than 6,000 acres of vineyards, 3,000 of which were located in the Loess Hills of western Iowa. Pottawattamie County alone had over 600,000 vines and harvested more than 4 million pounds of grapes in 1929.

Only the hills of southern France and China’s Yangtze River Valley have soils like those found in western Iowa. The distinctive flavor of the fruit grown in these soils made the Loess Hills the perfect location for vineyards and wineries.

The Depression, Prohibition and a killing freeze on Armistice Day in 1940 led to the decline of Iowa vineyards. But the most devastating impact was made by the use of 2-4D, a herbicide lethal to grapes.

Today, many people in the Loess Hills are seeking new ways to live on the land. Adding diversity to a farm or putting in an acre or two of grapes on a small homestead offers new opportunities for landowners. As a perennial crop, grapes prevent erosion of the loess soils and offer added income for the landowner.

A vineyard can produce an average of three tons of grapes per acre. One ton of grapes can make up to 150 gallons of wine. Depending upon the grape, common or premium, a grower may earn between $800 and $1,500 per ton of grapes harvested.

Beginning in 1999, Golden Hills Resource Conservation & Development led a movement to revitalize the grape and wine industry in the Loess Hills and create a regional wine culture once again. As a result vineyards and wineries are now producing wines in and near the Hills.

Along the Western Iowa Wine Trail, you will find cold hardy red grape varieties such as Catawba, Chambourcin, Concord, de Chaunac, Frontenac, Marechal Foch, Norton-Cynthiana, St. Croix and St. Vincent. Cold hardy white grape varieties grown in the Loess Hills include Brianna, Cayuga, Chardonel, Edelweiss, La Cross, Prairie Star, Seyval, St. Pepin and Vignoles.

Land Management in the Loess Hills

Occasionally you may see some burned areas in the Loess Hills but don’t worry. Things are okay. In many parts of the country, fire is unwelcome but in the Loess Hills, fire is sometimes good.

Prescribed burns — fires that are intentionally set and tightly controlled — help the Loess Hills in various ways. They push encroaching woods back from parcels of prairie. They encourage warm season grasses to grow and stimulate the reproduction of various plants depending on the time of year a fire is set. And last but not least, prescribed burns reduce undergrowth that, if left unburned, can fuel an uncontrolled fire.

For centuries, wildfires cleansed Iowa’s prairie of woodland plants and trees but the presence of European-American civilization in the last 150 years has stifled the wildfires. Thus, to keep the remaining prairie vibrant, trained crews create prescribed burns to do what the wildfires did.

Noting wind speed and direction, humidity, air temperature and the dryness of vegetation, the fire crews set fire to areas only on days when the conditions are right so the fire can be controlled and so the crews can accomplish specific ecological objectives. Proximity to houses, businesses and roads is considered too.

Each year, between 5,000 and 10,000 acres are burned in the 640,000-acre landform of the Loess Hills.

Besides using prescribed burns, crews also cut encroaching woody plants from the Hills as another way to preserve the original prairie habitat.

Loess Hills National Scenic Byway

The Loess Hills National Scenic Byway began in 1989 as a grassroots effort by dedicated citizens in cooperation with Golden Hills Resource and Conservation Development, Inc. “(RC&D)” and the Western Iowa Tourism Region.

The Byway became an Iowa Scenic Byway on July 8, 1998 and on June 15, 2000 received the National Scenic Byway designation.

The Byway is governed by a 12-member board of representatives from the seven Byway counties, State Historical Society, Iowa Department Natural Resources, Golden Hills RC&D, Western Iowa Tourism Region and an at-large member.

Countless thanks go to the County Boards of Supervisors’ continued financial support. Thanks also go to the County Engineers and County Conservation Boards whose members provide numerous hours of professional expertise and to the landowners and individuals who continue to volunteer their time to the Loess Hills National Scenic Byway.

*Golden Hills RC&D is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to the wise use and protection of natural resources for the economic and social betterment of the people of southwest Iowa.
