

571—67.6(456A,461A) Guidelines for trail location. No new trail shall be designated or constructed:

1. On any slope where erosion will occur unless measures are taken to permanently control erosion. The measures may include, but not be limited to: water bars, steps, vegetative or crushed stone surfacing and terraces;
2. Through rare or sensitive plant communities, except for trails intended for interpretive purposes and designed for foot traffic only;
3. In locations where wildlife management practices are being carried out that would be negatively affected by trail activity;
4. To pass over archaeological sites or adversely affect known archaeological sites eligible for the National Register of Historic Places or known sites not yet evaluated;
5. Where past trail use has resulted in erosion or other environmental damage that would be exacerbated by continued trail use;
6. So as to allow travel through a river, stream or wetland or waterway except at designated crossings.
