

661—11.4(690,692) Right of review. Any person who has a criminal history record on file with the division of criminal investigation has the right to review and obtain a copy of the record. This right may be exercised by an attorney acting on behalf of the person with the criminal history record with written authorization and fingerprint identification of the person with the criminal history record. A copy of a criminal history record provided pursuant to this rule is subject to the fee provided in rule 661—11.15(692).