

199—7.11(17A,476) Documentary evidence in books and materials. When documentary evidence being offered is contained in a book, report, or other document, the offering party should ordinarily file only the material, relevant portions in an exhibit or read them into the record. If a party offers the entire book, report, or other document containing the evidence being offered, the party shall plainly designate the evidence so offered.