REGENTS ANNOUNCE DELAY IN SETTING 2018-19 TUITION RATES

President's Statement. Board of Regents President Michael Richards released a statement on October 10, 2017, announcing that the Board will not do a first reading of proposed Fall 2018 tuition rates at its October 18-19 meeting as originally planned. In part, the statement read:

“The Tuition Task Force meetings held this past summer gave the Board great information and feedback from a wide variety of constituents. One of the key messages we heard is that students and families do not want multiple tuition increases during the year. We agree with this, and we will not revisit 2018-19 tuition levels once they have been established.”

President Richards said there is no timetable in place for setting tuition rates and that the Board members will move forward when they have a proposal with which they are comfortable.

Next Meeting. The next meeting of the Board of Regents is scheduled for October 18-19, 2017, in Cedar Falls, Iowa.
