Ex-mayor, legislator Movry is dead at 89

By VALERIE MILLIGAN T-R Staff Writer

One of Marshalltown's formermayors and state legislators died Wednesday.

John L. Mowry, 89, died Wednesday at Marshalltown Medical & Surgical Center. Mowry served as Marshalltown's mayor from 1950 to 1955.

A native of Baxter, Mowry was very active in political and community life. He served as Marshall County attorney from 1938 to 1941. He represented the area in the Iowa House of Representatives and Senate for 12 years as a Republican. He also. owned a local law firm.

Mowry was a colorful character in the Iowa Legislature, said Mayor T.R. "Tommy" Thompson Jr., who knew Mowry when he served in the Senate. Mowry was easily identified by his trademark.

"He was known for his signature" cigars," Thompson said. "And his views were always well-known."

In April 1970, the Associated Press carried a story on four Iowa legislators who introduced a resolution asking then-President Richard Nixon to consider appointing Mowry to the Supreme Court.

In the resolution, the legislators called Mowry an expert on "constitutional law, baseball scores, daffodils, off-color stories, governmental waste and bureaucracy, municipal courts, legalizing acts and almost everything else imaginable."

Marshall County Supervisor A.E. "Bill" Minner was city clerk when Mowry was in the Senate.

"One of the things John helped me do was change voter registration." Minner said.

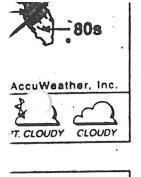

John L. Mowry

At the time, residents in communities of a certain population, which included Marshalltown, didn't have to preregister for voting. The city clerk also acted as commissioner of elections. A bill sponsored by Mowry and Rep. Richard Drake of Muscatine, now in the Senate, allowed voter preregistration and made the county auditor the commissioner of elections.

Mowry also spent six years as a special agent with the FBI, served in the Air Force during World War II and was deputy liquor commissioner for the state of New York in 1945. He was a member of the Marshall County Historical Society, Elks and Za-Ga-Zig Shrine.

A service schedule for Mowry is printed on page three of tonight's Times-Republican. A full obituary will run later this week.

Mowry, John and Irene Eudora (Lounsberry)

Irene and John Mowry, June 7, 1941.

John Mowry was born into a world far different from ours on December 15, 1905, and from the little town of Baxter, IA. John's family moved to Marshalltown in 1906 in time for him to see the first cars on the city's rutted streets, to see the first Los Angeles Limited passenger trains roar through the Marshalltown station, and to listen to the first incredible stories of man taking to the air!

John's mother, Grace Livingston Lindsay Conn, was born in Auchintibber, Scotland, on July 3, 1879, with roots to David Livingston, the well-know explorer. John's father, William Mowry, was born in Somerset County, PA, on April 2, 1864. They were married in Newton, IA, on November 9, 1898. A brother of William, Ross Mowry, was the U.S District Attorney for Southern Iowa. Ross had two daughters, Gertrude and Virginia. Virginia was the private secretary of J.C. Penney.

John's father, William, owned sundry grocery stores in Marshalltown, where John spent many hours working.

Teddy Roosevelt was President as young John grew up in Marshalltown, spending a carefree youth playing in his old neighborhood near Riverside Cemetery in a Milwaukee brick 14-room home at 311 North Center Street, prying ladybugs off his parents' potato plants, squaring off for a game of street hockey with his boyhood pals, and raising rabbits. John had two siblings, Donald and Ardelle Grace. He went off to MHS in the early 1920s, all decked out in his baggy knickers and floppy cap, and he made an early name for himself playing varsity football and basketball for the Red and Blue of MHS. In the 1924 yearbook, senior class president John Mowry was named the handsomest boy in his graduating class.

John went on to Ohio State University and the University of Iowa, where he picked up both his Bachelor of Arts and Juris Doctor of Law in 1930. He was a member of the Sigma Chi social fraternity and Phi Delta Phi law fraternity.

John's four-year stint with the FBI in the early 1930s launched his professional career, and he first worked out of the Ohio region with the legendary G-man Melvin Purvis. His salary was $2,800 — $5 a day for expenses. As John advanced in the Bureau, he became friends with Director J. Edgar Hoover. John and the other agents even attended prize fights at Madison Square Garden with Hoover. John's assignments ranged from recovering some 380 stolen Model A Ford vehicles to tracking down noted gangsters like Pretty Boy Floyd, and from investigating the Lindberg Baby's kidnapping to investigating the Bonus March on Washington for Communist activity.

John wanted to return home to Marshalltown, and he did in the mid-1930s. He was elected Marshall County Attorney from 1938-1941, a post he held until he resigned to enter Army Air Force Intelligence during World War II. John married Irene Eudora Lounsberry June 7, 1941, in the Harold Claire Lounsberry home at 503 West Main. Their only child, Madelyn, as born December 21, 1942. When the War ended, John's old prosecuting friend, Thomas Dewey, was the Governor of New York, and he asked John to come there to serve as Deputy State Liquor Commissioner and help rein in the massive racketeering in the state. Dewey later repaid the favor by bringing his 1948 Presidential Campaign to Marshalltown for a big rally on the courthouse square.

By 1947, the Mowrys were again anxious to return home from New York. John was elected Mayor of Marshalltown in 1950, and he was an activist mayor right from the start. Old press clippings tell of John staying up all night directing the clearing of city streets following a big snowfall, then ordering the police to ticket or tow away over 100 vehicles which were in the way!

During John's two-term tenure as Mayor, most of the downtown streets were widened, a new lighting system was installed downtown, additional public ue of class d the class parking lots were added, a new fire station was built on First Avenue, and the new viaduct opened on Center Street. But for all of the progressive works of the Mowry Years, some will always remember the Big Blast that shook the entire city and gave John some unwanted national media coverage as well.

It seems that the Mayor had directed several workers to blast an Iowa River log jam to open the main channel, and the Mayor knew that the dynamite couldn't be discharged in the river itself, at least not legally. So the dynamite was detonated on land the Mayor already owned right outside the city limits off North Center Street, and it was truly the Explosion Heard Round The World: Dishes shook off the shelves and pictures fell from their walls all over Marshalltown on that Bastille Day of 1955, and newspapers all over the country ran an Associated Press story with big headlines like: "Iowa Mayor Blows Up His Own City!" And after all the excitement, wouldn't you know it ... the log jam remained intact.

John stepped down as Mayor in the mid-1950s and soon after that was elected to the Iowa House of Representatives, where he served 14 years. He became majority floor leader. John was elected to the State Senate in 1968 and served two terms in that body. John became a fixture in state government circles, known for his trademark cigar and crusty demeanor, especially with the media covering the legislature.

John soon developed a statewide following, known for his tounge-in-cheek legislative pranks and his notorious sense of humor as well as for the real work he did in the House and later the Senate. Almost every session John would introduce a bill to move the State Capitol from Des Moines to State Center, because, he reasoned, the capitol should be in the center of the state, as well as in his own legislative district. Of course, John's bills never got out of committee, but every legislative session, the Des Moines Register would dutifully cover Mowry's futile attempts to move the state capitol, usually accompanied by a photo of John chomping on his cigar and waiving an amendment in

His mates in the Senate responded in good-natured fun in 1970 by introducing a resolution asking President Richard Nixon to immediately appoint the learned Marshalltown lawyer to the Supreme Court, acknowledging that John was an "expert on constitutional law, baseball scores, daffodils, off-color stories, governmental waste and bureaucracy, municipal courts, legalizing acts and almost everything else imaginable."

John finally stepped down from his two-plus decades of public service in the early 1970s and went back to the practice of law with his son-in-law, Stephen Robert Irvine, but he always kept active in civic affairs and Republican Party politics. He attended two GOP national conventions.

But John Mowry was more than a lawyer and a politician and a wit and a raconteur. He was an active historian, serving 30 years on the board of the Susie Sower Trust and tracing his own family's history all the way back to the 15th century in Scotland. He was elected national president of the Society of Former Agents of the FBI in 1945 and at the time of his death was the Society's oldest living member. John was active in the Sons of the American Revolution. He was an Elk. He was a Mason and member of the Za-Ga-Zig Shrine.

John Mowry died November 1, 1995, two years after Irene's death on June 9, 1993. They are survived by Madelyn, their daughter, and grandchildren, Kristin Elizabeth and John Robert. Kristin has three children — Mitch, Stevie, and Haley. John graduated from Northwestern University and attends the University of Iowa Law School.

And a final epitaph? John always said it the best himself: "Children and dogs," Old John would always say with that familiar twinkle in his eyes. "Children and dogs have always liked me ..."

Muller, Fred William and Joan (Wisgerhof)

Fred William Muller, born July 2, 1905 to Simon and Sadie Sash Muller, and Joan Wisgerhof, born March 26, 1908, to Cornelius and Gertie VanWorkem Wisgerhof, were married August 30, 1928, in Marshalltown. They lived on farms in the Laurel, Haverhill, and Newburg areas. They returned to the Laurel community in 1945 after purchasing a farm NW of there. They enjoyed fishing and had a cabin at Madison Lake, Minnesota.

Joan died in August of 1971 after a broken hip; "Fritz" died of cancer in June of 1984.

Their children were Alice Joan born June 23, 1929, and Kenneth Fred born June 19, 1933. Kenneth served four years in the US Navy during the Korean War.

We visited with relatives and friends, froze homemade ice cream and listened to the Joe Louis fights, had the usual kittens, dogs, and a stubborn Shetland pony. On two farms we had a long lane to walk to the schoolbus; at another home we walked to country school. One especially fun morning Alice and Kenneth had was running across a brooderhouse roof, then up a barn roof as far as they could go, then sliding down! Mom was washing and she would never know — except for the fact they had worn out the seat of their overalls!

Murdock, Earl and Amanda (Lafrenz)

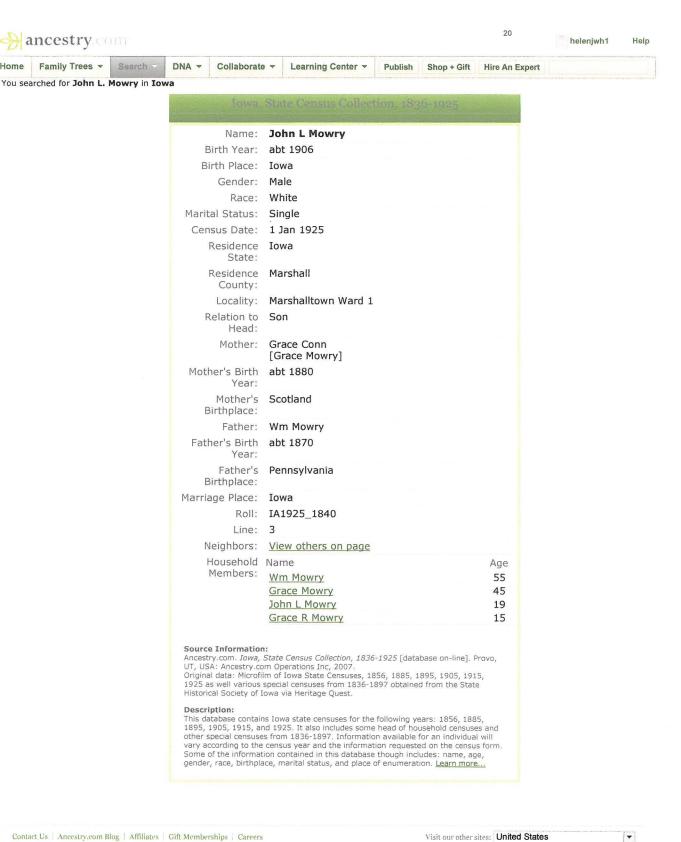

Earl and Amanda Lafrenz Murdock farmed and lived in the Green Mountain area from 1919 until their deaths. They grew up in the Laurel community and after their marriage in 1925, they moved to the Green Mountain farm.

Robert Murdock, our earliest American ancestor, came to the U.S. from Scotland in the late 1600s and settled near Roxbury, MA. Our branch of Robert's family moved to Pennsylvania, then to Illinois, and finally to Iowa.

Amanda's mother and father immigrated to the U.S. from Germany in the 1870s and they eventually ended up in the Laurel area. The Zoar Reform church near Baxter was their German church.

Earl and Amanda, our mother and father, had five children: Robert, Mary, Eleanor, Margaret and Barbara. We all grew up on a farm just outside of Green Mountain and became aware early in our life of the work farming entails. The daily chores of feeding pigs, milking cows, and gathering eggs were allotted to each of us depending on our ages or inclinations. Many hours were spent each spring and summer tending to a huge garden. Almost everything we ate we grew at home. Much of the produce was canned in Mom's seven quart pressure cooker. Hot summer afternoons became almost unbearable when the cookstove was heated to do the canning. The work became somewhat easier when we rented freezer space from a locker in Marshalltown, and Mom was elated when we got a big chest freezer for
