The second annual invitational golf tournament will be played over the Brooklyn-Victor Country Club course Sunday, with the championship flight going over the 27-hole route, and lower flights limited to 18 holes.

Although early registrations have been lagging, it is expected that entries will pick up this week. The event will be limited to 100 players, with prizes of $500 offered. The entry fee is $5.

Last year 65 competed in the tourney which was won by Mike Wahl of Victor, who shot 111 for the 27 holes.

Invitations for this year's affair have been issued to golfers from a number of clubs in the surrounding area. Since no other tournaments are scheduled at nearby courses, it is expected there will be a large entry list for the local affair. Reservations can be made with Mrs. Don Lender or Mrs. James Doonan.
