HEART ATTACK TAKES LIFE OF L. BARRYMORE

Beloved Head Theater's 'Royal Family' Dies At 76

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD — Lionel Barrymore, 76, the crotchety and noble head of the theater's "Royal Family," died Monday night of a heart attack. His last words were Shakespeare's immortal lines about "the way to dusty death." The gruff-voiced old man known to millions through motion pictures, radio and the theater for half a century was stricken at his home Sunday night as he sat in his familiar wheelchair reading his favorite Shakespearean play. In it Macbeth says:
 . . . And all our yesterdays
 have lighted fools
 the way to dusty death. Out, brief candle.
 Life's but a walking shadow,
 a poor player
 that struts and frets his hour
 upon the stage and then is heard no more . . ."
 The patriarch of American acting suddenly could not catch his breath. Mrs. J. E. Wheeler and her family, with whom Barrymore had lived since his second wife died 18 years ago, helped him to the door for fresh air.
Sinks Into Coma
 When he continued to gasp, he called his doctor, John Ewing, who rushed the veteran actor to Valley Hospital. At midnight he sank into a coma. Then he suffered a second heart attack, and died Monday night with the help of his family and his doctor at his bedside.
 His sister, Ethel Barrymore, was too shocked to comment immediately and withdrew into seclusion.
 Friends said she saw her brother last week and remarked he was not looking well. The actor had been under daily care by a doctor for the past two weeks. In 1945 years he had suffered from chronic poisoning, a kidney ailment, which weakened his condition, Dr. Ewing said.
 Barrymore's last appearance before the public was on his regular CBS radio show, "The Hall of Fame," last Sunday. His friend, Edward Arnold, will substitute for him next Sunday.

FIRST BUSINESS FLIGHT ACROSS THE NORTH POLE

Scandinavian Airliner in 5,000 Mile Hop Over Top of World

By WILLIAM BEST
COPENHAGEN, Denmark—A Scandinavian Airlines DC6B airliner blazed the first commercial air trail across the North Pole today, landing in Denmark on a 5,000-mile flight from Los Angeles.

The giant four-engine U. S.-built "Royal Viking" arrived at Copenhagen's Kastrup Airport at 9:18 a. m., seven minutes ahead of schedule.

Pilot Ferdinand Buck, using a "magic" electric gyro-compass no larger than a baseball, brought 40 passengers and nine other crewmen over the route in finally conquering the legendary "Northwest Passage" as uneventfully as on a routine flight from Washington to New York.

The flight took 22 hours and 28 minutes. A 55-minute delay at the takeoff from Greenland's Soendre Stroemfiord Air Base was made up on the way to Copenhagen.

Soar Through Three Seasons
 Passengers and crewmen soared through the climates of three seasons in passing over summery California, Winnipeg and wintry Soendre Stroemfiord.

On its way to Los Angeles after taking off from Copenhagen Monday night was a second DC-6B, the "Helge Viking," to complete the two-way trans-polar link.

The service will now operate regularly twice weekly.

The 16 U. S. and Canadian officials and 24 newsmen were greeted by Copenhagen's diplomatic corps at Kastrup Airport.

Among the passengers on the historic flight were Harold J. Powers, lieutenant governor of California, and Mrs. Powers; film stars Walter Pidgeon and Jean Hersholt, and Mayor Norris

Jap Economy Weak; Crisis For Yoshida

By CHARLES M. McC
 Premier Shigeru Yoshida's "Mr. One Man," is due Wednesday to face the fight of his political career.

Leaders of three political parties, including some of the Liberals, have ganged up to attempt to overthrow him.

If he succeeds in ousting them, he will have good cause to congratulate himself.

It is typical of Yoshida that he has no doubt of his ability.

"I have survived many experiences in the past," he said before he left the United States for the flight across the North Pole to Tokyo. "I am confident I will continue to survive. My opponents have no policies. My anti-Yoshida isn't a policy."

Yoshida is ending a week tour of the United States and Western Europe in search of trade and aid. His report he makes to the Japanese people on his mission may be his.

Crisis For Month

Japan has been in a political crisis for months. The Liberal party economy is weak and weaker. The Liberal party has been involved in a big scandal over accusation that some of its leaders were receiving money from government-owned shipping companies.

Two hundred members of the Progressive, Liberal and Independent Japan Liberal parties have added the addition of some members, decided Monday to form a new party which would include all conservative elements.

The party is to be formed Nov. 24, in preparation for a special session of Parliamentatively set for Nov. 30.

Yoshida's Liberal party has 225 of the 460 seats in the House of Representatives. The opposition has 86.

Yoshida has kept in power by getting the support of some progressives to give him a majority in the House. His hope is that he can rally most of the Liberals to his support and some of the Progressives to join the coalition against him.

Big Test For Him

It will be a big test for Yoshida. He is now 76 years old, who has spent his political life only after World
