Throngs Attend Organ Dedication

Two Programs at St. John's Church Attract Overflowing Crowds.

Storm Lake music lovers thrilled to the music of the new Lutheran organ at the dedication recital Sunday evening.

Prof. Karl Haase of Seward, Neb., presented the concert. His accomplished playing revealed the organ's unusual tonal effects to the fullest extent.

Perhaps most enjoyed of all the numbers were the chorale preludes. These lighter pieces emphasized the more hushed tones.

Bach's well-known "Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor" pleased the audience as well as the dignified Adagio from Mendelssohn's "Great Organ"

Mr. Lund, instructor in Alfred University in New York State had just arrived with his wife and three-year-old daughter and had planned Monday morning for California to spend a two-month vacation.

The falling trees wrecked his car badly, his trip will be held up for considerable time.

Mr. Lund, who was awake when the large trees were snapped off by the terrific force of the wind, said the "baby cyclone" lasted hardly more than a minute. A high wind which shook the house had awakened the family previously, however.

Worst in Northwest Side

Most of the damage appeared to be in the northwest part of town, where trees were riddled and branches blown about in the streets over an area of several blocks. Many persons were still at work cleaning up the debris Monday. A car and numerous helpers were needed to extricate the Lund automobile beneath the two heavy trees.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene Sunday morning. Although the terrific wind did considerable property damage, no personal injuries were reported. Persons who were caught out in the storm luckily stayed clear of the crashing trees.
