DRASTIC LOCAL OPTION LIQUOR BILL OFFERED

Anti-Saloon League of Iowa Sponsors Act
To 'Cure Evils'

Moines—(AP)—Iowa senate house "drys" placed before the chambers Monday a drastic option liquor bill which, one sponsors said, would "wipe many of the bootleg and other in the present system." Sponsors said the bill was drafted by the anti-saloon league of Iowa. Sen. Ora E. Husted (R) of Truro and Sen. George Hopkins (R) of Erie Center introduced the bill in the senate and a group of drys led by Rep. Harry E. Morrow of Hopkinton, a minister, filed companion measure in the house. The bill would permit cities and towns, through local option elections, to outlaw operation of liquor or beer establishments in their areas. Although state liquor stores are not mentioned specifically in the measure, terms of the bill would allow dry towns and cities to oust them.

A sore spot between federal and local law enforcement officers—sale by the internal revenue department of retail liquor dealers' tax stamps—would be erased under terms of the measure, which sets up a dividing line between wet and "No license territory."

Also Includes Beer

It would make "possession of a United States special tax stamp" in cities and towns which had voted to oust liquor "prima facie evidence of guilt under this act."

The bill would include beer under the drastic local option regulations by defining liquor as any beverage containing more than one-half per cent of alcohol by volume.

Husted, long a spokesman for dry forces, said he believes "this bill would clean up a lot of the rottenness in the liquor situation." Dry law with similar provisions since 1890 and 1909 first became legal

UAW LAUNCHED SUDDEN DRIVE ON CHRYSLER

Asks Recognition After Mysterious Tear Gas
Attack on Sunday

Detroit—(U.P.)—Recognition of United Automobile Workers bargaining agency was demanded by the Chrysler Corporation Monday after a mysterious tear gas demonstration disrupted a union meeting called to celebrate the latest to unionize completely the automobile industry.

Richard T. Frankenstein, UAW organizer, announced a telegram containing the demand would be sent directly to Walter Chrysler, head of the corporation "and he can turn it over to anyone he wants to."

Police began an intensive investigation of the tear gas episode, which came as workers and their families were marching into the fairgrounds coliseum after a "victory" parade which started in front of the Motor Company's big Highland plant.

Light bulbs containing a poisonous gas which, according to investigation, generated tear gas when exposed to heat, apparently were thrown through ventilators. In the ensuing confusion, George Vargo, a worker in Dodge division of Chrysler, was seized and beaten by workers who believed him guilty of the attack. Riot calls brought 25 police to the auditorium. Vargo was injured and taken to a hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises. He was released later.

The union's demands on Chrysler were prepared only 10 days before settlement of a 44-day strike which affected 135,000 employees of the General Motors Corporation, and negotiations still were progressing between union leaders and General Motors executives for wages and hours agreements not including the strike peace.

It was recalled that John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for

Although the UAW appeared to be directing its latest demands solely

When in the State senate, he represented his constituency and the state with distinction and contributed his full measure to the success of the government. He displayed such leadership that many felt he should have been called still farther up in the annals of leadership in the state government. His name was therefore presented to the people of his state in the primary election for the office of Governor of Iowa in the years 1930 and 1932.

He was actively engaged in interests outside of his insurance business, and for a considerable number of years was president of the Langworthy Silica Company.
