a member of the University Club, Des Moines; the Wakonda Country Club, Kiwanis Club, and is a Republican in politics.

He married in 1913 Laura Withington, who was born at Toledo, Iowa, and finished her education in Grinnell College of Iowa. Her father, Wallace Withington, was a farmer, banker and land operator, with extensive connections in North Dakota, but is now living in Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Shambaugh have two children, Elizabeth Joan and Nancy Withington, both attending school at Des Moines.

HON. DENVER L. WILSON. The career of Hon. Denver L. Wilson, one of the most prominent attorneys of Shenandoah and Page County, and member of the State Senate, contains all of the incidents necessary to compiling a true American romance. From the time that he was left an orphan, as a lad, through the period of his hardships on a neighboring farm, where he was practically a bound boy until breaking his bondage by running away, and on through the ensuing years, which brought him fame, prestige and means, his life has been full of incident, abounding in color and characteristic of ambitious manhood in the making.

Senator Wilson was born at Clarington, Monroe County, Ohio, March 17, 1869, and is a son of John and Amy (Sykes) Wilson. He was named for James W. Denver, a friend of his father, after whom the City of Denver was named. Mr. Denver, of Kansas, having at one time owned nearly all of the present State of Colorado. John Wilson was born in Virginia and as a young man went to Ohio, where he met and married Amy Sykes, a native of Virginia. Mr. Wilson was a farmer and stock dealer, and died on his farm in Monroe County, Ohio, in 1875, his wife having preceded him in death two years. They were the parents of three children: One who died in infancy; Louis S., engaged in the practice of law at Raton, New Mexico; and Denver L., of this review.

Denver L. Wilson was about six years of age at the time of his father's death, when he was taken into the family of a neighborhood farmer, where for the next five years he labored in the fields almost incessantly, with only several months in the winter in which to gain educational advantages. At fourteen years of age he ran away to Nebraska, where he found employment on various farms, and by the time he was twenty-one years of age had earned and saved enough money to enter school at Shenandoah, where he entered the Western Normal College. After graduating from the latter institution he taught school at Braddyville and Riverton, Iowa, and Dunbar, Nebraska. He then took the liberal arts and law courses at the University of Nebraska, from which he received the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws as a member of the class of 1897, and immediately opened an office at Shenandoah, where he is now the oldest attorney in point of continuous practice. Senator

Wilson has always enjoyed a large and prominent clientele, has appeared as counsel in many famous and hard-fought cases, and is entitled to practice in all of the courts of Iowa and Nebraska. He belongs to the Page County Bar Association, the Iowa State Bar Association and the American Bar Association, and occupies a high position not only in the confidence and esteem of the general public, but among his professional contemporaries. A pillar of the Methodist Episcopal Church, he is a member of the board of trustees and a generous contributor to its movements. Fraternally he is a York Rite Mason and Shriner at Des Moines, and a life member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He is a Republican in his political views, and in 1926 was the successful candidate for the office of state senator, a capacity in which he has served with honor, dignity and effectiveness. In addition to his large law practice Senator Wilson is the owner of much farming property.

In 1897 Senator Wilson was united in marriage with Miss Dora Dunbar, of Nebraska, and to this union there have been born two children: Ruth, the wife of Jesse Patty, a druggist of Omaha, Nebraska; and Ivan D., a graduate of the University of Iowa, class of 1928, who is engaged in the practice of law in association with his father at Shenandoah. He married, in 1929, Miss Caroline Cooper, of Shenandoah.

OSCAR C. PERRIN, president of the First State Bank of Greene, has made banking his profession since he left school. A real banker has closer contact with the diversified business interests of a community than probably any other business or professional man, and farmers, merchants, professional men and others throughout this section of Butler County have come to look upon Mr. Perrin as their chief adviser in a financial way, and it would be difficult to overestimate his standing and influence as a financier.

Mr. Perrin was born near Clarksville, Butler County, January 24, 1868, son of Jeremiah and Anna (Hillman) Perrin. His father was a native of England, first settled in Pittsburgh, and in 1851 came to Iowa as a pioneer of Butler County, acquiring land and developing a farm. He was a man of very substantial character and highly esteemed in his community. He died in 1905, leaving two sons, Oscar C. and Mark J. Mark J. Perrin was for many years a resident of Waterloo, but died at Clarksville.

Oscar C. Perrin grew up on an Iowa farm, had the advantages of the common schools and finished his education in the Clarksville High School. Immediately after leaving school he went to work in the private bank of Louis Slimmer at Clarksville, and later he assisted in organizing the Butler County State Bank, Clarksville, of which he is now vice president. His chief interests have been centered at Greene since 1887, when he became assistant bookkeeper for the First National Bank. Later this was reorganized as the First State Bank of Greene and in
