Methodists Hear Cornell College Choir On Sunday

Grace Methodist church was filled to the rafters Sunday and the Cornell College 60-voice a capella choir made the whole sanctuary ring as it presented a short sacred concert by its double choir.

Directed by Miss June McCone-lo, half of the group sang from the center of the balcony while the balance grouped in front of the chancel. The perfect pitch, impressive dynamics and organ like effect of the voices was outstanding. The mixed choir, enroute Sunday from Charles City to Waterloo, where they sang Sunday afternoon, is one of the best known college groups in the midwest.

Following the concert, Dr. Gerald Hasbee preached an appropriate Palm Sunday sermon on the subject "Christ's Last Week."

The choir was served dinner in the church social parlor in the basement by members of the choir and fellowship groups.
