Day's Illness In Hospital Is Fatal Here

Opposed Dowell for Nomination in Last Primary.

Amos O. Hauge, 56, former president of the Iowa Trust and Savings bank, died Friday morning in Iowa Lutheran hospital after an illness of one day.

He became ill Thursday morning and was taken to the hospital, where he had spent some time last spring with the same ailment, gall bladder trouble.

Mr. Hauge was widely known throughout the state, having been identified at various times with the banking, insurance and real estate business, and also having been active politically.

Opposed Dowell.

In the last national campaign he ran unsuccessfully against C. C. Dowell for the Republican nomination for congress.

At the time of his death, Mr. Hauge, whose home was at 2001 E. Ninth st., was representative in Des Moines for the Omaha Federal Land bank. He also was head of the Hauge insurance agency here.

Elected to Board.

He was elected to the board of directors of the Federal Land bank of Omaha early in 1931, but resigned in October, 1933, remaining as the Des Moines representative, however.

Mr. Hauge had served in the thirty-ninth, fortieth and forty-first regular terms of the Iowa legislature and in one extra term.

Mr. Hauge was a past president of the East Des Moines club, which

Underwriters Official Calls for Immedi- ate Action.

Life insurance underwriters of the nation Friday were called upon by Roger E. Hull, New York City, to wage a campaign of public education "which will bring vividly and convincingly to the American public, the social significance of life insurance."

Speaking at the morning session of the National Association of Life Underwriters, the managing director and general counsel of that body warned "we must not wait until we are confronted with some crisis which strikes a blow at the very foundation of the structure which we have built during a hundred years."

Hull said that only a few weeks ago congress came "dangernously near" enacting a tax law which would have taxed proceeds of life insurance in the hands of beneficiaries, and would have done an American owners of life insurance.

Swing From F. R. Started, Knox Asserts

Republican Stops Here on Way to Shenan- doah Rally.

By Cliff Milton.

Tribune Political Writer.

The swing away from Roosevelt is on, Col. Frank Knox, publisher of The Chicago Daily News and possible Republican presidential candidate, said in Des Moines Friday.

He stopped here for breakfast at the home of John Cowies, associate publisher of The Register and Tribune, before proceeding to a Shenandoah four-state Republican rally, where he will speak Friday night.

"Did Huey Long's death remove an obstacle to Roosevelt?" Knox was asked.

"Danger at Right."

The question started the hard-hitting newspaper man off on a diagnosis of the political situation.

"Roosevelt's danger is at the right, not the left," Knox declared. "I never did think such men as Long were his danger. As I see it, it is more likely that it will come from such men as Al Smith and Stibbe and Ely and other constitutional Democrats who aren't going to let this thing go on without a fight."

"They will lose in the regular Democratic convention because of the president's control of patronage. Then they will start a constitutional Democratic ticket in order to have something for which a self-respecting Democrat can vote."

That and a change in public opinion will do down the New Deal, he commented.

"Significant."

"The outcome in Pennsylvania and some of the recent elections seems to me strikingly significant," he said. Pennsylvania voted

Threat to British Empire Feared.

The following is a recapitulation of the picture which Neb behind the dispatches pouring in daily from Geneva, London, Rome, Paris and other European centers, all ominous with the threat of war.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (U.P.)—War in Europe, which a few months ago was declared by the world's most competent observers and statesmen to be a remote possibility before another 10 years at least, was accepted on all sides Friday as a grave, imminent threat.

The threat is of war between England and Italy. Other nations could scarcely be kept out.
 The immediate reason is Benito Mussolini's intention of waging war against Ethiopia. But back of it is something more fundamental than an altruistic desire to defend the sovereignty of the backward African kingdom.

"Colonial Empire."
 It is felt in Britain that Mussolini's present campaign is only the forerunner of a dream of colonial empire, and that he may threaten the whole status of colonial Africa.

If any power other than Britain tried dominance in the Mediterranean, Africa and the Red sea, the very foundation of the empire would be threatened—the route by Gibraltar, the Suez canal and the Red sea to India, the orient, Australia and New Zealand, which is the life-blood of England's trade.

The British public emphatically does not want war. Important Labor leaders already have bolted the party in protest against the possibility. It is scarcely conceivable that the public would approve war for the sake of Ethiopia alone. But the empire is another matter.

Natural Allies.
 If Britain and Italy go to war, other nations might easily be involved. Despite neighborly friction, England and France are natural allies and joint supporters of the League of Nations. France has her continental allies. Italy, too, is not without potential allies. Germany has no idea of submitting perpetually without protest to the loss of her rich African colonies, stripped from her after the world war.

The danger of the situation is so manifest that the powers at Geneva have been taking unprecedented steps to alleviate it. As it stood Friday, however, they are absolutely blocked.

Showdown.
 It has come to a showdown. Mussolini has committed himself before his people and to back down would entail a loss of face fatal to a dictator. Either England and France must let him have his mighty fleet in the Mediterranean. Mussolini has retorted with movements of his own fleet and formidable air force.

The best opinion was that the start of war in Africa is near, with a consequent showdown that the whole world dreads.

he also had served as treasurer. He also was formerly treasurer of the Lutheran Brotherhood of America.

Nearly Blinded.
 In 1928 Mr. Hauge was nearly blinded when some dynamite near which he was standing exploded. The accident occurred at the gravel pit of the Independent Sand and Gravel Co., killing the general manager of the company, E. A. Lansrud.

Mr. Hauge, who was born in Polk county, Feb. 13, 1879, the son of Halvor H. and Kari Hauge, began his career as a country school teacher. Later he had charge of the commercial department at Humboldt college, and then taught commercial work in East High school, Des Moines.

He at one time was cashier in the state treasurer's office, and later held a position in the national treasury.

He had lived in Des Moines 35 years.
 He became identified with the Iowa Trust and Savings bank first as cashier, later becoming vice president, and later president.

The Des Moines man also served three years as trustee of the Norwegian Lutheran Synod of America.

He was married to Elizabeth Heggen in 1904.

Survivors.
 Surviving besides his widow are two sons, Herbert, a Des Moines attorney, and Gerhard, employed in the Polk county assessor's office; four brothers, Lewis of Belmond, Ia.; Thor of Minneapolis, Minn.; Ed and Martin A. Hauge of Des Moines, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Martinson, a missionary in China.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Monday in Central Lutheran church, of which Mr. Hauge had been a member for many years. Burial will be in Glendale cemetery.

Forget-Me-Not Day Is Proclaimed.

Saturday is Forget-Me-Not day. Gov. Clyde Herring proclaims it such and calls upon Iowans to buy and display the flower. Proceeds from their sale are used for rehabilitation among disabled veterans.

MRS. L. W. SECOR, Iowans of the world war, will be in charge of Mrs. L. W. Secor, 115 Glenview drive. The co-chairman of 1935 sales is Mrs. E. W. Allen, 1094 Twenty-eighth st.

He a quarters for the drive, in which 25 teams will take part, has been established at the Kirkwood hotel. The auxiliary unit of the Baldwin-Patterson American Legion post will assist.

Splendid Work.
 "This splendid work," said the governor in his proclamation, "is financed, in large part, through annual Forget-Me-Not drives, in which those of us who were not called upon to make the supreme sacrifice have the opportunity to give of that which was spared to us."

"The time is now upon us, in the harvest of a year of prosperity and plenty, to divide with those who have not as much as we have, to help them bear with fortitude those pains and ills spared to us."

Police Find 95 Out of 100 Stolen Cars

If your car is stolen, don't worry—state bureau of investigation records show you have 95 chances out of 100 of getting it back.

However, there's no guarantee that it will be returned in good condition. A fender may be smashed, license plates removed, gas tank dry, and extra accessories stripped off.

During the first eight months of 1935, 875 cars were stolen in Iowa and 808 recovered, Glen Schmidt, bureau of investigation chief, reported.
