PHIL STONG HERE FOR SHORT VISIT

Phil Stong, novelist, son of the late B. J. Stong, Keosauqua, came to his home here Sunday for a week's visit with his brother Jo and mother. Benton J. Stong, another brother, left Monday morning for Memphis, Tennessee, where he is employed on the editorial staff of a Scripps-Howard newspaper.

Phil, who wrote "State Fair," "Strangers Return" et cetera, is completing an historical novel called "Buckskin Britches". The book will be off the press some time in February. This book is much longer than anything Mr. Stong has written and required extensive research. The action of the story occurs in 1836 to '38 and concerns the migration of a family from Ohio to Iowa.
