CHAS. C. SMITH DIED SUDDENLY

Stricken With Heart Attack Saturday Night After Retiring.

Chas. C. Smith, pioneer resident of Pleasant township and Griswold, passed away at his home in east Griswold Saturday night about 11:30 following a severe heart attack. During the day Mr. Smith had been down town and visited with many of his friends. He did not complain of feeling ill and was as jovial as ever.

After an evening with his wife and daughter he retired and a little later was seized with a sinking spell. He had experienced these on other occasions and told his wife and daughter, who ministered to him, that it would soon pass away. However, his condition became more alarming and the daughter rushed to the telephone and called the family physician. However, before he arrived at the home Mr. Smith had passed into that long sleep. Members of the family had also been summoned, but they too, did not arrive in time to be with him at the end.

Charles C. Smith was born near Roxby, Lincolnshire, England, on February 1, 1854. He grew up in his native country and when twenty years of age he decided to come to America. He first located in Nebraska but work not being plentiful he decided to come to Iowa and was headed for the eastern part of the state. On his trip he met the late Lawrence Dolan, who at that time, 1875, was one of the prominent farmers of Pleasant township. They talked of the possibilities of Cass county and Mr. Dolan offered the young man work. Mr. Smith accepted and came to Pleasant township. Little did he realize that he would become one of the leading men of this part of the country. Being a very industrious man he soon began to prosper and in a short time he decided to farm for himself.

This demonstration will be held on land farmed by Edgar Zimmerman and the work will start at one o'clock sharp.

Two types of tractors will be used. The Allis-Chalmers "All Crop" and the Allis-Chalmers Model U. The first tractor will be hitched to a 14-inch plow and the latter will pull two 18-inch plows. An ordinary steel lug tractor will be on hand to show the difference in the ability of machines. If you will note carefully you will see that the air tires will develop much more power and use much less gasoline. This has been demonstrated several times of late and people who have noted the greater power developed with air tires cannot believe it to be possible.

In the demonstration Saturday sweet clover sod and corn stalk ground will be used. Be on hand early and as actual work on farms is not under way you will have time to see it and lose no time.

FATHER AND SON HAVE VERY EXCITING TIME

W. W. Morton and his son, A. W., who reside northeast of Griswold, had a very exciting time Sunday morning. As has been their custom for years they look over the cattle in the sheds and pastures. During the week a number of calves had been born and the mothers and the offspring were in a large barn. They went in and A. W. had his little daughter with him. They had walked to the back of the barn when an old cow suddenly took a notion to drive them out. W. W. was knocked down and the son went to assist him, but had to get the little girl in a safe place. She was finally placed in the hay under

Being a very industrious man he soon began to prosper and in a short time he decided to farm for himself. On October 11, 1877, he was happily united in marriage to Miss Millie A. Shaffer. They went to housekeeping on the farm owned and operated by Mr. Smith for many years. As time went on he added to his earthly possessions and with the assistance of his wife they prospered despite the privations experienced by the early settlers of this locality. The home was blessed with five children, four sons and a daughter. They are Miss Laura, who remained at home with the parents, Ross, John, and Ray, all of whom reside in the vicinity of Griswold. One son, Fred, passed away about three years ago.

In 1922 Mr. and Mrs. Smith retired from active farm life and came to Griswold to make their home. Their son, John, now operates the home farm. Mr. Smith took a keen delight in his agricultural pursuits and was always happy when he was on the farm and during the past few years often went out and while
