Long Time Resident Called by Death

The announcement last Wednesday evening that H. J. Neitert had answered the final call, was received with varying emotions in Walker. Mr. Neitert came to Walker in November, 1848 and ever since that time, or up to the time when his health began to fall he was a powerful factor in the development of the town and surrounding community, and for many years he was an acknowledged leader in the republican party organization. Always of a progressive turn of mind and a highly strung nervous disposition, Mr. Neitert was eminently a builder, as his achievements amply show. Mrs. Neitert died in February, 1926. The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist church, under direction of Rob Morris Lodge No. 500 A. F. & A. M.

OBITUARY

Henry John Neitert was born March 12, 1848, at Dayton, Ohio, died January 26, 1927, aged 78 yrs, 10 months and 15 days. He came with his parents to Garnivillo, Clayton county, Iowa, in 1864. He worked on the farm, first in Clayton county, then in Delaware county from the time he was thirteen years old until he was twenty-one. He is of German and on the Buhlman side of Holland descent. He attended first the German and then the public schools at Garnivillo, and later taught school for awhile.

His business training was begun in a store at Manchester, Delaware county, afterwards operating a store of his own. His next move was to Walker, November 14, 1878, where he has since resided. He started in the mercantile business with J. R. Gitchell as a partner. They owned and operated a number of cream-eries remaining in this business until 1918. In this connection Mr. Neitert did some public service. He was president of the State Dairy association in 1895 and 1896 and was the recognized representative of the dairy interests while in the legislature. He took charge of the bills

He was chairman of the special committee that had charge of the board of control bill in the session of 1898 and took it thru without amendment or loss of time, conducting the bill safely around the parliamentary shoals that threatened it.

In 1885 there was a demand for a bank at Walker and he organized the Exchange State Bank, which he conducted as a private institution until 1908, when it was incorporated in the present Exchange State Bank, of which he continued to be president until a couple of years ago. Mr. Neitert married first, Carrie Houser of Earlville, Iowa, February 20, 1872. To this union two children were born, Will J., at Cedar Falls and Mabel at Earlville, both of whom are deceased. coming west to Miss Lydia Swift, a winsome girl of seventeen years, who, like her husband, was musically inclined. That their business education has not been sacrificed to their musical learning is shown by the fact that they now own and operate one of the largest and most prosperous mercantile concerns to be found outside of the larger cities in the state. They have five children, the oldest being twenty years of age, and all are apt in music. Their home somewhat resembles a music store, in that it contains about every kind of instrument from which music can be produced. In politics Mr. Millard is a republican, and has held such local offices as his business would permit. He is known throughout the state as a church and Sunday school worker, and holds a license as local preacher in the M. E. church. He speaks the Indian language fluently and in 1887 attended the Seni Om Sed demonstration at Des Moines in charge of twenty-five Sac and Fox Indians. In the spring of 1896 he brought twenty of this tribe to Des Moines to take part in the semi-centennial celebration, and in October took part in the state semi-centennial celebration in Burlington.

NIETERT, HENRY J., who has earned success as a banker, creameryman and legislator, lives in Walker, Linn County, Iowa, and is now engaged in the banking business in that town. He comes from good German stock and has made his own way in the world, taking its hard knocks along with the pleasures of life, and flinching from nothing that was his duty. His father, John H. Nietert, was a contracting carpenter and millwright, who was born in Germany and came to America when he was fifteen years old. He settled in Ohio and was married in Dayton, Ohio, in 1844, to Miss Caroline E. Buhlman, who died in 1863. She was born in Germany in 1821 and came to America at the age of nine years. She was a few months younger than her husband. Henry J. Nietert was born in Dayton, Ohio, March 12, 1848. The family moved to Clayton County, Iowa, in 1854, and Mr. Nietert engaged in the grain and produce business in Clayton City. He afterward conducted a hotel in Garnavillo, and engaged in farming in Clayton and Delaware counties. In 1875 he retired from active business and removed to Walker, Linn county, where he died in 1882, while holding the office of postmaster. Henry J. attended the common schools when he was a boy, but at an early age went into active business for himself. He worked with his father on the farm in Clayton county from the time he was thirteen years old till he was twenty-one. His business training was begun in a store in Delaware county. He afterward owned a store of his own in Earlville, with partners who taught him his first lesson in adversity by loading Mr. Nietert with heavy debts unknown to him, which he had to pay. His next move was to Walker, where he has remained ever since. He started in the mercantile business with J. R. Gitchell as a partner, but when there was a demand for a bank, he organized the Exchange Bank, of which he is the principal owner, and which now takes nearly all of his time. For a time he, with his partner, J. R. Gitchell, owned and operated several creameries, and he is still interested in the business in his town. In this connection Mr. Nietert has done some valuable public service. He was president of the State Dairy Association in 1895 and 1896 and was the recognized representative of the dairy interests while in the legislature. He took charge of the bills for the improvement of the dairy laws and secured the enactment of some very necessary and beneficial legislation, the law providing for the publication of the proceedings of the State Dairy Association as a state document for the information of the public. Mr. Nietert was elected to the legislature in 1893 and re-elected in 1895 and 1897, serving through the extra session of the Twenty-sixth General Assembly and having a prominent part in the revision of the code. He was chairman of the house committee on banks and banking in the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh General Assemblies, and was an influential member of the committee on appropriations and other committees. He was chairman of the special committee that had charge of the board of control bill in the house in the session of 1898, and took it through without amendment or loss of time, conducting the bill safely around the parliamentary shoals that threatened it. Mr. Nietert was one of the leading candidates for speaker in 1898, but was compelled to abandon the field on account of the critical illness of his oldest son, going to South Carolina with him in the hope of bettering his condition, but without success, for the young man died January 29, 1898, leaving a young wife. He was his father's mainstay in business; was cashier of the bank and actively engaged in assisting his father in business since he was eighteen years old. It was a heavy blow to Mr. Nietert, but it was softened by the sympathy of friends, a large committee of members of the house attending the funeral. Mr. Nietert was married in February, 1872, to Miss Carrie Houser, at Earlville, Iowa, and two children were born to them, the son, Will J., born December 5, 1872, in Cedar Falls, and a daughter, born at Earlville, Iowa, in December, 1874, who died in infancy. Mr. Nietert was married a second time, May 4, 1882, to Miss Anna E. Wilde, of Troy Mills, Linn County, Iowa. They have two children, Roscoe H., born July 15, 1886, and Gertrude E., born July 18, 1888.

Mr. Nietert has never been afraid to stand up for what he believes and has always been able to give good reasons for his actions. He won the respect of the members of the house by his straightforward manner of doing business. They always knew where to find him and he was always true to his agreements and to his friends. Such a man wears well in politics. Mr. Nietert will therefore be heard from in the future, because he is a man who can be depended upon.

NEWBOLD, JOSHUA GIDDINGS, four times elected to the general assembly, made temporary speaker at a critical time, honored by an election to the office of lieutenant-governor, and serving nearly two years as governor, serves to make a man a part of the history of the state. Such honor belongs to Joshua G. Newbold of Mt. Pleasant. He is a native of Pennsylvania, and his ancestors were Friends or Quakers. He first saw the light in Fayette county on May 12, 1830, and the first eight years of his life were spent on the farm. His father, Barzilla Newbold, owned a mill in connection with the farm, but in order to secure better school advantages for his children, removed to Westmoreland county, and there Joshua G. acquired his education in most part in the pub-

Hart, of this county, and died, leaving one child.

In early life Mr. Pearson supported the Whig party and cast his first presidential vote for General Winfield Scott, but in 1856 he voted for John C. Fremont, and has since affiliated with the Republican party. His fellow-citizens, recognizing his worth and ability, have called upon him to fill several positions of honor and trust, the duties of which he most capably discharged. He served as township trustee several terms, justice of the peace about seventeen years and as a member of the school board and school treasurer for some time. During his entire residence here he has been actively identified with the welfare of his community and is one of its most public-spirited and enterprising citizens.

HENRY J. NIETERT.

Among the most progressive and enterprising business men of the northern part of the county is Henry J. Nietert, a well-known banker of Walker. He was born in Dayton, Ohio, March 12, 1848, and is a son of John H. and Caroline (Buhlman) Nietert, both natives of Germany. The father came to America in 1836, at the age of fifteen years, the mother in 1830, at the age of ten, and they were married in Dayton, Ohio, from which place they removed to Clayton county, Iowa, in 1854. By trade the father was a carpenter and millwright, but at that place he engaged in the produce business for about two years, and then conducted a hotel at Garnavillo for three years. He then removed to Clear Creek, Colorado, but in 1861 returned to Clayton county, Iowa, and in 1864 came to Delaware county where he was engaged in farming until 1875, when he came to Linn county, locating in Walker in 1876, where he lived a retired life until his death, which occurred in 1881, when he was sixty-one years of age. He served as postmaster of that place under President Hayes. His wife died in 1863. They had eight children but only three are now living.

Henry J. Nietert is indebted to the public schools of this state for his early educational privileges. He remained at home until attaining his majority and then engaged in clerking in a store at Manchester and other places until 1873, when he embarked in business for himself at Delaware Center, remaining there about a year and a half. He next went to Earlville, where he carried on business under the firm name of Deily, Nietert & Co. until 1875, when he disposed of his interest in the store, and for about a year was employed as a traveling salesman for a Dubuque house. For two years he was in the agricultural business at Earlville for E. Healy & Co., of Manchester, and then became manager of a store of general merchandise at Alta, Iowa.

On the 12th of February, 1872, Mr. Nietert married Miss Carrie Hauser, a native of Pennsylvania, and to them were born two children: William J., who died in January, 1898, and a daughter who died in infancy. Mr. Nietert was again married

May 4, 1881, his second union being with Miss Anna E. Wilde, a native of Illinois and a daughter of Edmond Wilde. Unto them were also born two children, Roscoe and Gertrude E.

In 1878 Mr. Nietert came to Walker and was engaged in mercantile business here under the firm name of J. R. Gitchell & Co. for about six years. They also carried on the creamery business together for eight years, and our subject is still interested in that enterprise. On the 12th of March, 1885, he opened the Exchange Bank, of which he is president, while his brother Charles H. serves as cashier. He is one of the ablest financiers in this part of the county, and in his banking business has met with excellent success. Although he started out in life for himself with no capital, he has, through his own well-directed and energetic efforts, acquired a fair competence, and owns considerable property, including a fine farm of two hundred acres near Walker. In 1890 he erected an excellent business block in the village, the lower floor of which he uses as his bank, and the hall above is the meeting place for the different secret societies of Walker.

Mr. Nietert is a member of the Blue Lodge of the Masonic order at that place, and also belongs to the chapter, commandery and temple of the Mystic Shrine at Cedar Rapids. As a Republican he takes quite an active and prominent part in political affairs, and in 1893, 1895 and 1897 was elected to the state legislature. During his second and third term he was chairman of the committee on banks and banking. He is at present serving as mayor of Walker, to which position he was elected in 1900. He is one of the most influential and popular men of the community, and never were the reins of city government in more capable hands, for he is pre-eminently public spirited and progressive.

HON. JOHN P. CARBEE.

For many years this gentleman was one of the most popular and distinguished citizens of Brown township, and was prominently identified with the development and prosperity of the county until death claimed him on the 25th of October, 1893. He was born in Grafton county, New Hampshire, May 3, 1823, a son of John H. and Anna (Powers) Carbee, both of whom were natives of Newbury, Vermont. His paternal ancestors were originally from France and were among the pioneers of New England. His father, who was a farmer by occupation, spent the last years of his life near Bath, Grafton county, New Hampshire.

John P. Carbee acquired his early education in the common schools of his native county and remained upon the home farm until reaching man's estate. Coming west in 1850, he decided to locate in Linn county, Iowa, and entered a tract of two hundred and forty acres of land on sections 5 and 8, Brown township, where his family now reside. He at once turned his attention to the improvement and development of this farm, and built thereon a small frame house, which was his home for a number of years, but was later replaced by a large, neat and substantial residence. In 1856 he built a large barn, which still has the appearance of being a recent structure. In connection with the operation of his land, Mr. Carbee also engaged in raising thoroughbred short horn cattle, and was ac-
