A. J. JEWELL IS DEAD

Prominent Resident Of Mahaska County Passes Away.

Hon. A. J. Jewell, one of the oldest and best known of Mahaska county pioneer farmers, passed away peacefully and quietly at his home in Spring Creek township, at 10:15 o'clock Thursday evening, May 14, 1908, after a lingering illness and confinement with jaundice. The funeral will be held from the late residence Sunday, at 2:30 p. m., and interment will be in the old cemetery.

Andrew Jackson Jewell, "Jack," he was called by friends, was a native of Ohio, born Feb. 14, 1833, and was 75 years and 3 months of age at the date of death. He has been fifty-three years in Iowa and Mahaska county.

Mr. Jewell was an old soldier and belonged to the regiment that became famous in history as "The Squirrel Hunters." He also represented Mahaska county in the legislature during one term.

The deceased leaves a widow and two sons, C. W. Jewell, of Utica, Ohio, who was recently here on a visit, and Pliny Jewell, of this county. Two brothers also survive, Jacob, at Pueblo, Colo., and Johnathan, of Leonardsburg, Ohio.

Mr. Jewell knew that the end was near, but he was not in the least disturbed by the knowledge. He was self possessed and even cheerful. He gave directions concerning his personal affairs and the arrangements for his funeral. He requested that the following act as pall-bearers: Pliny A. Jewell, Matt Crozier, William Campbell, Joseph Beach, William Rice and J. N. Taylor.

Death came without struggle and without pain. The man was conscious to the last and as easily as a child falling to sleep the old pioneer passed on to his last long rest.
