hons. Chaniles mentzel.

It is with a sorrowinl feeling, that we undertake to communlcate to our readers the torrible accident that has shocked the community. Saturday evening Hon. Chas. Ment\%el, while enroute to his home from Elkader, when near the second bridge, by luf toam becoming unmanageable, was thrown from his buggy and received injurles to his back and head that caused his death Monday forenoon. Saturday afternoon hevisited our olllee and while cobmplaining that a recent, attack of the grippe had left him poorly, he talked of his age as if the years were creeping on rapidly. Litple did we then dream that wo should today be called upon to preform this sag duty.
Mr. Mentzel was born in Dresden, Saxony, (iermany, July 26,1831 , being the son of Charles and Johannạ (Leonard) Mentzer. Ile was liberaily educated in the schools of his native land, and while yst a student became engaged in the revolution of ' 49 , and afterwards served as a soldier in the Saxon army. ${ }^{\text {F }}$ In 18.33 he came to this country, and after a short stay in Chteago, came to Garnavil!o in 18irt: Here tre worked at his trade as a mason for four years, when he prrechased the farm In Cox Creck Lwp., where he died. In 1855 ho married linah Kahorndt, and to them have come live children. Three, Mrs. Ienry Kaehn, Martha Ment\%el and Mrs. Fred Diers, with the wife and one brother, Gustav Mentzel, of Usborne, survive to ever remember the sad misfortunc that hats come upon them.
Mr. Mentyel has filled many fownship officos, was supervisor under the old system and has represented the county tamuostdide exegntatorsncoliectidredorn piled byivoiuntee bly, and in January last retired from the Ponver St Sinervtone bosides for years
"Mr. Mentzel, whatever your opponents have sald, thoy have never charged you with a willful wrong. They bave never guestioned your honesty or Integrity, nor do I belleve that there is a person in Claytod county who thinks that Charles Mentzel is capable of a disnonestact."
He stretehed out his hand, with that impulsive manner so pamiliar to those who knew him, and grasping mine, said," 'John, I thank you. I am glad you'said it, for I know I have tried to do.right and to be honest." I had simply sald what I thought to be true, or I should not have sald it, and he knew thls. The lesson I wish to conv́ey is, that kind words leave pleasant memories. unkind ones a stlng. "As you sow, so shall you reap." Which seed shall we sow?
Charles Mentzel was a typical CepmanAmerican citizen, leaving his Fatherland and cherishing its memorles. Proud of its great men and their achievements, yet bo-had a stronger love for his adopted home, was more proud of being an Americun citizen.
The people of Claytor county have shown that hey appreclate.him by placing him in pesitions of trust and honor only accorded to few. Ho has flled nearly every township onice In his home township. From the first organfzation of our Insurance Company, many yearsago, to the present time, he has been the principal manager, kept the necounts and handled the funds, and during all these years there has been no complaint or a cent squandered or misáppropiated. For two terms he represented us in the legisiature of our state, has been a membor of the Board of Supervisors, both under the township and county organization, and in ait of these positions of honor antil trust, he has always remained the plain, unassuming, true and trusty man, Charles-mentzel.
It was nór my pleasure to kuow so much of him in his fanily relations, but from my own knowledge of his true worth and manhood and the testimony of others, I know he was at good nelghbor, un affectionat& husband, and an indulgent parent. Those' who knew him best will feel the bereavement most. He is gone, but fie has left his mark. And my frlends, when it cones our turn to be stricken by the Angel of death, the waving of whose black wingecan nlmost be felt by this stricken family, may it be sald of us ats we suy of him: "The world is better for his hiving Xivel." May lle who neither slumbers mor sleeps, wateh over and comfort the bereaved ones. The Poet Longfehow has suid: - "Parting wheth friends is woporary death, as ill deathi. is. We see no mony their faces, nor hear their voices saye in memory, but messiges of love give us assurance that we are not forgotten. Who shall say from the world of spirits com es no greeting, no message or rememberance? It may be the thoughts that visit us we know not whenco; sudden as-inspiritions, are the whispers of disembodled spirits speaking to us as friends who watt outside a prison wall, through the barred windows speak to those whthin." Ho has also satd: "There is no deash. What seems so ls transition. This life of fortal breath is but the suburb of the Ifte elystian, whose portal we call Death.
