Funeral Service of Hon. S. M. Boling.

The funeral service of Hon. S. M. Boling were held Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at the residence of the family. There was a good attendance of friends of the family. The service was impressively conducted by Rev. E. L. Schreiner of the M. E. Church: Saturday morning the remains were escorted to the C. B. & Q. depot by delegations of the Masonic and Odd Fellow orders and the G. A. R. the pall bearers were chosen from these three orders as follows: Masonic T. F. Higley and W. H. Neibert; I. O. O. F. Robert Israel and John W. Quillan; G. A. R. Thos. Bell and Chas Gift.

The remains were taken to Chariton for interment. They were accompanied by Mrs. Boling and her son-in-law, Wm. Millikin, Mrs. Millikin was so ill as to be unable to go, and is confined to her room. The following friends also accompanied the party and will act as pall bearers at Chariton. Prof. J. E. Williamson, Master of the Masonic lodge of this city, J. E. Wilkins, Asa Royce, W. H. Neibert, T. F. Higley, D. G. Higley, and T. D. McClellan. There was also quite a goodly number of sympathising friends at the depot.

Obituary.

Sanford M. Boling, was born in Muskingum county, Ohio, Dec. 31, 1834. Here he grew up to the years of manhood, esteemed and respected by those who had known him from infancy. Here too he laid the foundation of a character, built on the granite rock of principle, that remained with him unto the end. In the early years of the war he enlisted in the 122 regiment of Ohio Volunteer Infantry, serving until the close of the war but was compelled finally to give up, because of disease contracted in the service. In the army he held, and honored, the office of Lieutenant. After leaving the army he came to Fairfield, crowning virtue of our association, rendering to all, but more especially his comrades, their dues without distinction.

The public offices that he filled, and to which he was chosen by the suffrages of those who knew him best, are a standing proof of the estimate his fellow citizens placed upon him. For these places came not as a result of the tricks of a wily politician, but the free-will offering of a public that honored theman. In November 1873 he was elected County Auditor, after having by appointment, filled the unexpired term of his predecessor, who had resigned. This office he held for three successive terms, to the great satisfaction of his constituents. From 1880 to 1884 he filled the position of State Senator and afterwards the mayoralty of this city for two years.

Until about a years ago, he was the Agent of the United States Express Co., but was compelled to resign because of declining health. During this time he has been a patient, quiet sufferer, anticipating all the time the probability that he might not recover. About three months ago he sent for me, and told me that during his life he had been troubled with doubts and had been skeptical about Christian religion, but since his sickness he had reviewed the whole ground, and felt that he could not set up his reason and judgement against God, and his Word, and he had come to a cordial acceptance of them, and he desired to yield to every requirement that God made of him, asking me to read from the Bible and pray with him. I returned in a few days, and during this and subsequent inter views he made a complete surrender of himself to God and cast himself on the mercy of Christ, and soon found peace in believing. Shortly after this he united with the State Historical Society and with a few intimate friends received the sacrament of at his own request, with the Church, and with a few intimate friends received the sacrament of the Lords supper, manifestly discerning by faith the shed blood and broken body of Christ, his only hope. From this time on his progress in spiritual discernment was great and rapid. On my return from Conference while with him one day, when he had so declined in strength that he could only speak in a whisper, he took my hand and drawing me close to him, he said "the doctor has just told me that there is no possible chance for me to get well, and I want to say that it is all right. I am perfectly happy! happy, Glory to God!" The last time I saw him, a day or two before he left us, he said, "his sufferings were terrible but that he felt perfectly resigned." And thus it was until Thursday afternoon, when he calmly closed his eyes in sleep and departed to be with Christ which was far better."

As a business man, as a public offi-

Whether in public or private employ, he met his obligations with an eye single to the interests of those who had trusted him, and these interests

In the domestic circle he was tenderly cherished and regarded with an current of affection and love. In his fellowship with the various orders with which he was associated, he tried to exemplify the principles upon which they were founded, and give them a practical bearing on the duties of life.

As a mason, "Truth, Hope and Charity" were to him not meaningless phrases, but living principles that were to encompass his life, and by which his conduct was to be squared, and as his end drew near, he drew his consolation and hope from the great light of the order, the word of God, the holy scriptures, that revealed to him a Christ mighty to save.

As an Odd Fellow, the three great articles of the order, "Friendship, Love and Truth," formed for him the three articles of a creed that bound him in dearer ties of friendship to the brethren, love to humanity, and made with one of the controlling elements of his life.

As a member of the Grand Army of the Republic a position won by his patriotism, he was faithful to all assigned obligations to the order and grades. Loyal to the old flag, believing that treason was the greatest of crimes, the essence of all crimes, that the penalty of treason was death. And yet with all he held tenaciously to that charity which is the of David Ralston and Agnes Sharp, the latter being the first white child born in that part of Pennsylvania, and it may be observed that her father, Andrew Sharp, was killed by the Indians while taking his family to Ft. Pitt for protection, and he is buried in Pittsburg.

For a quarter of a century Mr. McCrackin made his home in Indiana, Pa. In the autumn of 1855 he started with his family for Nebraska. Going to Pittsburg in wagons, he embarked on a steamboat with wagons, horses, etc., for St. Louis, at the latter place disembarked and proceeded north and west as far as Fairfield where, the weather becoming too cold for comfortable traveling, it was decided to stop. Every house in Fairfield was occupied, and the only way shelter could be obtained was to buy a house.

Mr. McCrackin died May 7, 1857, and Mrs. McCrackin decided to remain in Fairfield, where she lived until her death, on July 27, 1888. Both were members of the United Presbyterian Church. Unto Mr. and Mrs. McCrackin were born ten children, eight of whom grew to mature years; Jane, wife of Dr. William Anderson, of Indiana, Pa.; David Ralston, who died in Fairfield, February 6, 1890; Nancy S., wife of Capt. B. F. Crail; Mary A.; William W. and Joseph R., both living in Butte City, Mont.; Eliza M. and Alexander.

Mrs. McCrackin sent all her sons to the support of the Union, in the late war, the youngest being only thirteen and one-half years old. On the first call for troops, David, who was in St. Louis, enlisted in the First Missouri Infantry, and served with that regiment for his term of enlistment, being in the battle of Wilson's Creek; he then enlisted in the Fourth Iowa Cavalry, and was mustered out the following year. He served as Deputy Provost Marshal for a time, and then enlisted in Company I, Forty-fifth Iowa Infantry, and was made First Lieutenant; he remained in that regiment until it was disbanded. William served with David in the Fourth Iowa Cavalry, and upon being discharged from that regiment he enlisted in a Pennsylvania regiment and after the expiration of that enlistment he served in the Navy as Master's mate on the Mississippi River, until the end of the Rebellion; Joseph, though only a boy, served in the Eighth Iowa Cavalry; Alexander enlisted in the Navy and served on the Mississippi River with Capt. William R. Wells for a year; he then entered the Naval Academy, and is now in the Navy.

SANFORD M. BOLING, agent for the United States Express Company at Fairfield, Jefferson County, was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, December 30, 1834, and is a son of William and Julia (Grimsley) Boling, both of whom were natives of Virginia. The parents of our subject were married in their native State and in an early day emigrated to Muskingum County, Ohio. After reaching man's estate Mr. Boling learned the plasterer's trade which he followed in pursuit of fortune throughout life. In his political affiliations he was a Democrat.

Our subject is the only one out of five children living in Iowa. The family once numbered eleven children, of whom he was the third in order of birth, but six have been called from this life. He received his education in the old subscription schools common at that early day and at the age of ten years began working at the plasterer's trade with his father. His life was unmarked by any event of special importance until in August 1862, when he enlisted in Company F, of the One Hundred and Twenty-second Ohio Volunteers. He was immediately commissioned Second Lieutenant and with his command joined the army of the Potomac. Passing through Virginia, as far as Winchester, they commenced to fortify that place and while thus engaged Mr. Boling contracted typhoid fever, resulting in almost total blindness, from which he has only partially recovered. He went home to be treated and while away, his regiment participated in the great battle of Gettysburg. Having rejoined his command in Martinsburg, Va., he started on the Mine Run campaign, but after marching a time through the mud and enduring untold hardships, the project was abandoned. Mr. Boling was Acting Adjutant and on the call for an officer and four men to go to Columbus, Ohio on detail service, he was selected. From that time until his discharge on December 30, 1864, he remained in the capital city of Ohio. His duties there were very arduous, it being a part of his labors to pilot recruit soldiers from Columbus to southern posts.

In January, 1865, Mr. Boling first set foot on Fairfield soil. In the years which have come and gone since that time he has had no occasion to regret his choice of a location, for he has formed many ties of friendship which bind him to the place with cords of love which he would not sever. During the first five years after his arrival he was in the employ of the American Express Company, but his health so failed him that he was compelled to change his occupation and for a time he worked at the plasterer's trade. This was followed by one year spent as a contractor and in January, 1874, he entered upon the duties of the office of Auditor of Jefferson County, in which capacity he served the people acceptably for six years. His worth and ability having been tested and found to be in merit even above what his friends had anticipated, in 1879, he was honored with an election to the State Senate and served in that body during the sessions of 1880 and 1882. In the first Assembly, he was Chairman of the Committee on Penitentiaries, which originated a bill creating the office of warden in the penitentiary at Anamosa. He was the active spirit in securing an amendment to equalize the good time earned by convicts. Up to this time counties could vote on public improvements only at general elections, and as a result when one party championed any public enterprise, the other felt bound to oppose. It thus became difficult for a county even to erect a court house, and it was through the instrumentality of Mr. Boling that an amendment was passed permitting such questions to be voted upon either at general or special elections. During the session of 1882, he was Chairman of the committee on Public Buildings and secured the passage of a bill appropriating a half million to complete the State Capitol. Former appropriations had been so small that they were largely consumed in paying the salaries of those selected to look after their expenditure and in the passage of this bill Mr. Boling performed an important work. In 1883, after retiring to private life, he became agent for the United States Express Company at Fairfield, in which capacity he has since served, covering a period of seven consecutive years.

Mr. Boling has also been called upon by his townsmen of Fairfield to represent them in the Council and has served in the honored position of Mayor of the city. He accepted the latter office in order to assist in securing for the city, control of the water works, which up to that time had belonged to a corporation. In all his public life he has been faithful to every trust reposed in him and has won the confidence and regard of even his political enemies. He cast his first vote for Buchanan in 1856, but since that time has been a supporter of the Republican party. Socially, he belongs to the Masonic and Odd-Fellows fraternities and to the Grand Army Post of Fairfield, of which he is a charter member.

Mr. Boling chose as a life companion Miss Hester A. Younkin, their marriage being celebrated on the 17th of January, 1865. Mrs. Boling is a native of Muskingum County, Ohio, and with her daughter, Bessie, their only child, carries on a millinery store in Fairfield. Mr. Boling is one of Fairfield's most highly esteemed citizens and it is with pleasure that we record his sketch in the history of his adopted county.

ELMER A. HOWARD, Vice-President of the Iowa State Savings Bank of Fairfield, is a native of the city which still continues to be his home. He was born on the 18th of July, 1858, his parents being Levi and Elizabeth (Cook) Howard, who are numbered among the early settlers of Jefferson County, and still reside in Fairfield. His father was a native of Indiana and his mother was born in Ohio, and on another page of this volume a sketch of this worthy couple appears.

The early educational advantages of our subject, acquired in the public schools, were supplemented by a course in the Axline University, of Fairfield,
