- Military service - Civil War - bodyguard for Abraham Lincoln and scout work on western frontier and escort of Pepple Bell
- He moved with his family from Le Claire, Iowa to a farm in Sugar Creek Township of Cedar County in 1856. He worked on his father's farm
- When the Civil War began in 1861 one of the neighbors and his father's farm was used for drilling men in preparation to enlist in the army.
- He studied military tactics and was elected Captain of the local company of the boys he drilled.
- In 1862, he tried to enlist in the 24th Iowa Infantry. His father protested because he was young, so he returned home and continued drilling boys and young men until 31 Aug 1864 when he enlisted in Company B, 1st Iowa Volunteer
- After the war he returned to farming
- In 1864 he moved to Des Moines and became a lawyer. However, he never engaged in practicing law.
- He dealt in real estate and also engaged in writing for the Des Moines Tribune newspaper in Des Moines.
- In his later years he engaged in surveying a prospective railroad in the Ozark portions of Missouri. This led him to Cameron County, Missouri where he lived the rest of his life.

Persons Homecoming Will Be on Oct. 25

(The Tribune's Iowa News Service.)
AIRFIELD, IA. — Saturday, Oct. 25, has been chosen for Parsons college homecoming by a majority of faculty members, led by Prof. Charles Carter. A program is scheduled for the evening, including a football game with Cobleskill college of Dubuque in the afternoon and a banquet and dance in the evening.

Scott, Lincoln Guard, Dies

Once Member of Iowa Legislature.

CAMDENTON, MO. (AP)—Col. Robert G. Scott, 90, a member of Lincoln's bodyguard during the civil war, Indian fighter, politician and author, died at his home at Niangua Park, near here, Thursday.

He was born in Iowa Apr. 7, 1845, and the year former President Hoover was born he served in the Iowa legislature. He was a member of the Democratic state committee in that state for years.

For a time following the civil war, Colonel Scott was engaged in scout work on the western frontier, and was an associate of Col. William (Buffalo Bill) Cody.

Colonel Scott's articles have appeared in scores of newspapers and magazines, and at the time of his death he was writing a book. He was a pioneer of good roads and scenic resorts in the Missouri Ozarks.

Three daughters and a son survive.

Savonarola, Italian monk and reformer, was born in 1452.

Injured As Lights Fail Near Bridge

LEON, IA.—Russell Baxter, 28, of Chillicothe, Mo., was seriously injured when the lights went out on his truck 30 feet from a bridge on Highway 69 south of here early Thursday morning.

The truck crashed into the bridge railing. Little hope is held for Baxter, who is a patient at the Decatur County hospital.

FORMER RESIDENT: AN INDIAN FIGHTER; DEAD

Col. Robert G. Scott, 90, a member of Lincoln's bodyguard during the civil war, an Indian fighter, politician and author, died at his home at Nianqua Park near Camdenton, Mo. Thursday, September 26, according to word received by Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Nicolaus.

Col. Scott was born at Wilton on April 7, 1845, and served in the 16th
Iowa legislature. He was a member of the democratic state committee for many years.

For a time following the civil war
Col. Scott was engaged in scout work on the western frontier, and was an associate of Col. William (Buffalo Bill) Cody.

Col. Scott's articles have appeared in scores of newspapers and magazines, and at the time of his death he was writing a book. He was a pioneer of good roads and scenic resorts in the Missouri Ozarks.

Three daughters and a son survive.

The editor owns a book written and autographed by Colonel Scott which he prizes very highly.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Nicolaus, Miss Kate Daut, Mrs. Emma Holzhauser and Mrs. Caroline Maurer were guests at the home of Mrs. Will Dearborn at Anamosa early in the meeting in the Pacific Garden Mission, Chicago, under the preaching of Harry Munro, he quit baseball and for four years was a Y. M. C. A. worker. In 1896 he went into professional evangelism in which he continued until his death, almost forty years. Starting in a small way he soon developed an efficient organization of helpers. His earlier series of meetings were held in smaller towns in one of the leading church buildings. Later as he went into larger towns a temporary tabernacle would be built and elaborate plans made and carried out mostly through the co-operation of nearly all the local protestant denominations. The congregational singing of immense audiences and the stage settings all contributed to the interest of which the address of Mr. Sunday was the climax. He was dramatic and powerful. His magnetic energy and personality were thrown into the effort. His language was direct, simple, original, arresting, accusing, convincing. He was tempestuous, melodramatic, individualistic, fundamentalistic. Thousands "hit the sawdust trail." The height of his work was reached in about 1917. But he never abated his efforts until physical strength ebbed. It is claimed that in his nearly forty years as evangelist that he preached to more people than did any other man or woman in America up to his time. The general effects of his efforts are believed to have been good in leading thousands into better living. In 1903 Mr. Sunday was ordained a minister in the Presbyterian church. In April, 1918, he was chosen by the Chicago Presbytery as a delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church which met at Columbus, Ohio, in May, 1918.

ROBERT G. SCOTT was born at Le Claire, Scott County, Iowa, April 7, 1845, and died near Camdenton, Camden County, Missouri, September 26, 1935. Burial was in Laughlin Cemetery, near Camdenton. His parents were James and Rebecca (Peterson) Scott. The family removed to a farm in Sugar Creek Township, Cedar County, in 1856. Robert worked on his father's farm and attended public school in the country at intervals. After the firing on Fort Sumpter in 1861 one of the pasture fields of their farm was much used for drilling men preparatory to enlistments in the army. Robert studied military tactics and was elected captain of a local company of boys he drilled. In July, 1862, he tried to enlist in the Twenty-fourth Iowa Infantry, and went to the rendezvous at Muscatine. His father protested because of his youth. He returned home and continued drilling boys and young men, until August 31, 1864, when he enlisted as a private among the recruits of Company B of the Twenty-fourth, went to the front at once and saw hard service in the Shenandoah valley. He was with his regiment to the end of the war, being mustered out at Savannah, Georgia, July 17, 1865. Returning home he resumed farming, joined the Grange and was soon writing articles for newspapers in advocacy of reforms in freight rates the farmers asked. In 1875 he was elected representative from Cedar County and served in the Sixteenth General Assembly, and was again elected in 1879 and served in the Eighteenth. In the Sixteenth he was chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, and in the Eighteenth was chairman of the Senatorial and Representative Districts Committee. In May, 1876, Governor Kirkwood appointed him Special Aide to the Governor. He was thereafter popularly known as Colonel Scott. In 1884 he removed to Des Moines, was admitted to the bar but never engaged in the general practice, dealt some in real estate and soon engaged in writing for the Iowa Tribune. Up to about this time he had been acting with the Republican party, but had independent leanings, and now began to co-operate in political matters with General James B. Weaver, E. H. Gillett, and Thomas Meredith. He was chairman of the State Central Committee of the Peoples party in 1891, 1892 and 1893. When living in Cedar County he had received instruction in surveying and partly because of his health in 1894 engaged in surveying a prospective railroad in the Ozark portions of Missouri. This led him to adopt Cameron County, Missouri, as his home for the remainder of his life. He led in the transformation of that vicinity in the building there of good roads and in the development of hydro-electric power. Colonel Scott wrote much for newspapers and magazines and did a great deal to acquaint the people of the United States with the beauties of the Ozarks. He was an enthusiast, a poet, a nature lover, a reformer, a valiant soul and an excellent citizen.

JOHN E. BARTLEY was born in Red Oak Township, Cedar County, Iowa, October 21, 1866, and died in Des Moines, September 7, 1935. Burial was at Resthaven Memorial Cemetery, Des Moines. His parents were George and Mary Brown Bartley. He was graduated from Tipton High School in 1888, attended Iowa State College, Ames, for half a year, taught in the schools in Cedar County until 1895 and then engaged in farming. He enlisted at Tipton May 21, 1887, in Company B, First Infantry, Iowa National Guard. He was transferred to Company M, Second Regiment, became battalion sergeant major June 28, 1892, and second lieutenant of Company M June 22, 1896. At the breaking out of the war with Spain he went in as second lieutenant of Company F, Forty-ninth Regiment, and was with his company at Jacksonville, Florida; Savannah, Georgia; and Havana, Cuba. He was promoted to first lieutenant November 25, 1898. At Havana his regiment participated in taking over the city and its fortifications as the Spaniards evacuated them on January 1, 1899. Lieutenant Bartley was in command of his company, which was the first unit of United States troops to enter Moro Castle. He was mustered out at Savannah May 13, 1899. Returning to Tipton he was nominated by the Republicans and was elected treasurer of Cedar County the fall of 1899, was re-elected in 1901, and served four years. He then engaged in fire insurance and real estate business in Tipton. In March, 1906, he was elected mayor of Tipton and served until 1910, and was again mayor from 1914 to 1916. He retained his

Description:

Containing records for approximately 123 million Americans, the 1930 United States Federal Census is the largest census released to date and is the most recent census available for public access. The census gives us a glimpse into the lives of Americans in 1930, and contains information about a household's family members and occupants including: birthplaces, occupations, immigration, citizenship, and military service. The names of those listed in the census are linked to actual images of the 1930 Census. Learn more...
