- He was born in Ross County, Ohio, but raised in Fayette County, Ohio.
- He came to Iowa ^{in 1840} to obtain a farm of 160 acres. This dream was successful, but he kept adding farm land until he finally owned 4000 acres of land.

out outside interference.

THE TRIBUNE'S EXCUSE.

The Tribune's report of the county meeting is about the most awkward ever made in this county to do a parachute drop, and the landing is to have somewhat jarred our temporary and its large editorial committee of Cummins men remained in the field to have given him a de-majority," says the Tribune.

It can hardly be so.
The attendance at the caucuses were fully large all over the county.
Cummins men are no more devoted to corn fields than others. The reference is that the people of the county have good sense and knew what they were doing. Had the attendance at the caucuses been increased it would have shown the same proportion of anti-Cummins men. Does our neighbor show a full attendance at the Wa-pello caucuses would have changed the proportion 227 to 28.

Think not. "Alas! how little they (the voters) really know of the real purpose of those who assembled there," says the Tribune.

The Tribune rather reflects upon the policy of Louisa county republicans in this assertion, when it thus states that those who attended the caucuses "really knew little."

They certainly know our citizens can read and investigate and they are right-minded and truth-loving people. The fact is, they knew too well and were too well posted on the Tribune. When the cry was raised about the assessments the voters were organized and as a result they found it was to be a railroad lawyer, aided by a powerful combination of lawyers. They found him to be the railroad lawyer among all the lawyers, and wisely decided these roads were working for the law for a purpose and if there was a contest between the people and the law always the interests of the people will be safer in other hands.

The ponderous editorial staff of the Tribune stepped on the "railroad question" and it flew up and hit them in the face.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

George Jamison, One of the Early Settlers of Louisa County, Died at His Home Near Newport July 1.

Hon. George Jamison, one of Louisa county's earliest settlers, died at his home in Wapello township, near Newport, last Monday at 11 a. m., after an illness of several months' duration.
He was troubled with a cancer on the face, and although his suffering was intense, never did he complain to those around him.

Deceased was born in Ross county, Ohio, August 25, 1817, but was reared in the Fayette county, Ohio.

On the 2d of September, 1840, Mr.
Jamison was married to Hulda A. Herrick, a native of New York, who emigrated to Ohio with her parents when a mere child. By their union there are four children who are residents of this county, namely: John W., of Newport; Jacob H. and Merritt L., of Wapello, and Oregon B., who resides on the home farm. Four children—three daughters and one son, are dead.
His good wife survives him.

On coming to Iowa he determined to obtain for himself a farm of 160 acres with good improvements, but when this desire was accomplished he was not yet satisfied, and continued to add to his original farm until he at one time owned 4,000 acres of land.

In educational matters, Mr. Jamison was always greatly interested, and in political sentiment was a democrat.
He was honored with an election to the Seventeenth General Assembly, overcoming a majority of 800 on the republican side. He was always interested in the growth and development of the country around him, and was considered one of Louisa county's most substantial business men. Coming here in 1840, when the county was but sparsely settled, only a few pioneers being located in the timber, and there were no railroads, he not only witnessed the remarkable growth of town and county, but contributed to its development as much as any other man within its borders.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. Leaving the home at 2:30 o'clock, the remains were borne to the Bethel M. E. church, where services were conducted by Revs. R. L.
Patterson, of Wapello, and T. S. Pool, of Letts; interment occurring in the Bethel cemetery. The funeral was attended by a large concourse of people who came from far and near to pay their last sad rites over the remains of this noble citizen.

Our Sunday school and League pic-the obstruction of the bridge. We hope for good success in replacing the old one with a new and safe bridge.

The extreme hot weather has checked the current of church interest some, but while we ought to be prompt and short in our services, don't give way to that tired feeling. Fill your place, and the Lord rewards you well.

R. L. PATTERSON, PASTOR.

No greater mistake could be made than that in last week's REPUBLICAN which made us say that "christianity is not designed to help us in bearing life's burdens." What we desired to say was that the religion of Jesus is not an added burden, but a help in all others.

final limit July 27.

Rev. Matthews preached at the union services in Mediapolis Sunday. His son, Robert, filled his pulpit in this city, and his sermon was spoken as most excellent. Having completed his work at Lake Forest, he expects to enter McCormick theological seminary this fall.

The home of Ol Derby, east of the city was burned to the ground last night about 11 o'clock and with the house, the summer kitchen and ice house. The house furnishings were saved except those in the immediate vicinity of the origin of the fire which was in the summer kitchen.

Miss Pearl Kremer, who has been employed in this office the past three years will take a month's vacation, leaving Monday for Denver where she visits her brother, Guy. Her sister, Miss Kate, accompanies her and Miss Vinnie Winter also expects to go at the same time to visit her two sisters.

Last Friday afternoon the Muscatine Maroons crossed bats with the Wapello team at this place and the former were easily defeated by a score of 5 to 2. Stephens pitched for Wapello doing good work, and had good support in every way. The Muscatine boys thought they had a snap before the game commenced, but they were outplayed in every particular. It was by far the best game played here this season.

Oakville citizens were very much aroused by the doings or want of doing of Perry Eads and Monday evening he received a suit that was not wool and a yard wide, but of tar and feathers, and was requested to leave the place. But not until he received a further request did he do so, Morning Sun being his first landing place and his reception there was not a cordial one.

Saturday last Messrs. Gorman, Nelson, Balch and Peppard of the M. N. & S. and Price, a representative of the postal telegraph service, went over the survey from Burlington north to Elrick Junction, which was surely not a leisure trip, as the heat was intense. Following this comes the statement that work on the M. N. & S. extension will commence within a short time, building from Elrick Junction on into Burlington.

A Washington crowd to the number of ten passed through here Monday

One of the most enjoyable gatherings ever held in the county, the most people, and the most real fun and jolly good humor was the welcome tendered the returning soldiers a year ago last fall. Without doubt a public reception will be tendered these returning ones, but the date will be postponed a few days in order that the bridge work may be far enough under way that teams and people from east of the river may add their mite to the joyousness of the occasion.

Hon. George Jamison.

Another pioneer of Louisa county has passed away.

George Jamison was born in Ross county, Ohio, August 25th, A. D. 1817, and died at his home south of Wapello July 1st, A. D. 1901.

Mr. Jamison came to the territory of Iowa in the year 1840, and thereafter continued to be one of its citizens, always active in building up this great commonwealth. He witnessed the wonderful changes wrought in the wild west. The primitive methods of those days have all passed away and what was once a wild expanse of prairie has been converted into highly cultivated farms, dotted here and there with commodious homes. In all this transformation Mr. Jamison acted well his part. He was a public spirited man, and was active in forwarding every enterprise for the benefit of his community, the county or the state. In 1877 he was elected to represent Louisa county (then the 30th representative district) in the 17th general assembly of Iowa, the duties of which he discharged acceptably to his constituents.

September 2nd, 1840, he was united in marriage to Miss Hulda A. Herrick of New York, who with four sons survive him.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, July 2nd, 1901, at Bethel chapel, where interment was given his remains.

We depend on the income from new paid-up subscribers for a fund to increase the library and add new and up-to-date copyrighted books. Whoever loans books to anyone out-
